Visiting Deadheads cause few problems

BY CURT MCALLISTER
 Clarkston News Associate Editor

Despite widespread rumors, the arrival of thousands of out-of-state "Deadheads" in the Clarkston area didn't result in a two-day crime spree.

An estimated 7,000 Deadheads, from nearly every state in the union, converged on the area for two concerts performed by The Grateful Dead. Held at the Pine Knob Music Theater, both shows were sold out far in advance.

The Deadheads are considered the most faithful fans in the music industry. Their dress and attitudes are throwbacks to the "hippy" lifestyles of the 1960s. These modern-day gypsies caravan from city to city to watch The Grateful Dead perform concerts.

Despite the vast numbers of Deadheads, Sgt. Joe Quisenberry of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department said the two-day stretch was busy but peaceful. He said the substation received nearly 100 calls regarding the Deadheads June 19 and 20.

A majority of the calls were reports of loitering, trespassing and excessive noise.

Despite rumors, Quisenberry said there was not one report of larceny or shoplifting reported during those two days.

"For two days, we were invaded," joked Quisenberry, "but the Deadheads were a very manageable group. They didn't give us any significant crowd problems before or during the concerts."

The managers of two local establishments, heavily frequented by the Deadheads, also reported no problems.

"We had no problems whatsoever," said Rachel Wilson, manager of Pierre's Market. "They were one of (See GRATEFUL, next page)

Big band music in free concert

Big band music will waft throughout the Village of Clarkston during the first free concert of the year in Depot Park.

The Executives perform 7-9 p.m. Friday, June 28, in the park on Depot Road, off Main Street, Clarkston.

The Clarkston Band Boosters will be manning a concessions stand, but some like to bring picnic dinner. Concert-goers also may want to bring bug spray and blankets or lawn chairs.

The remaining concerts include: July 5, The Pontiac Play Boys (Dixieland); July 12, Russ Simonson Quintet (Jazz); July 19, Auto City Banjo; July 26, Metropolitan Jazz Orchestra.

The free concert is sponsored by the Clarkston Area Chamber of Commerce and First of America Bank; however, donations still are accepted to help offset the cost.

Send donations to: Clarkston Area Chamber of Commerce, Concert Fund, 5897 Dixie Highway, Clarkston, MI 48346.

For more information, call Don Brose at 623-7900 or Cathy S. Scott at 625-4111.

July 4th celebration bigger than ever

Clowns, flags, marching bands and lots of floats will mark the Fourth of July in downtown Clarkston.

The annual parade, sponsored by the Independence Township Fire Department, begins at 10 a.m. Thursday, July 4. Parade entrants are asked to line up at Clarkston Junior High School on Waldon Road at 9 a.m.

Highlights of this year's parade include a visit by Gov. John Engler, an appearance by the nation's official Uncle Sam and a special ceremony in Depot Park following the parade.

Selfridge Air National Guard Base has committed to a "fly-over" during the parade, and U.S. troops and tanks also will participate in the parade.

In addition, businesses and residences along the parade route were asked to decorate patriotically this year, and the fire department will give prizes for the best decorations. The fire department also will award prizes to the best floats.

In Depot Park, a monument 48 inches by 28 inches will be dedicated, and soldiers will give a 21-gun salute and play taps. The Rev. Robert Walters of Calvary Lutheran Church is to give the benediction.

Following the ceremony, an entertainment group, That's Entertainment, will provide an hour of patriotic songs and other entertainment.

Meanwhile, parade-goers may browse through a collection of antique cars on display in Depot Park and partake in food from concessions available.

For more information, call Capt. Mike Fahrner at 625-1924.

Senior, 84, saves pair from burning car

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Associate Editor

The quick actions of a former Springfield Township man may have saved the lives of two men trapped in a burning car last week.

On Wednesday, June 19, 84-year-old Milton Roberts of Croswell pulled two Pontiac men from their vehicle on Shaffer Road, near Ormond Road, Springfield Township.

According to an accident report with the Oakland County Sheriff's Department, a car containing Merle Johnson, 38, and John Reamer, 21, lost control around 2:20 p.m. The vehicle reportedly swerved across the centerline, hitting a couple of mailboxes before striking a roadside tree.

The collision caused a fire in the engine. Shortly after the crash, Roberts happened across the accident and instinctively pulled the pair from the burning car.

After being rescued, Johnson reportedly fled the scene, not returning for nearly 90 minutes. Both Reamer and Johnson received medical attention at area hospitals. Since the time of the accident, both men have been discharged from local hospitals.

Springfield Township Fire Chief Marlan Hillman said his department arrived on the scene after the car had already burned. He said Roberts' quick actions saved the men's lives.

"If it weren't for Mr. Roberts, I'm very sure that one and probably both men wouldn't have survived," Hillman said.

New 25 mph speed limit on Farley Road

Drivers on Farley Road, Springfield Township, soon will have to drive more slowly.

The Springfield Township Board voted unanimously June 12 to set a residential speed limit on the road at 25.

A petition signed by at least 51 percent of the Farley Road property owners had been submitted to the board, requesting the change.

According to Trustee Nancy Strole, several sharp curves on the road warrant the 25 mph speed limit.

The new speed limit will go into effect as soon as the Road Commission for Oakland County installs the signs.

Mike Ostrander, a manager at Food Town, said the only complaints he received were in terms of the congested parking lot. Besides that, the fans were reportedly well behaved.

Quisenberry said the most difficult part of monitoring the "Woodstock on Wheels" was keeping the visitors out of local parking lots and the nearby I-75 rest area. Most took refuge in many of Oakland County's campgrounds, Quisenberry said.

However, they had to deal with some stragglers. "It seems we'd ask one group to leave the parking lot at Food Town and then have to shoo away others at another site," he said.

He said the police also had to continually instruct the visitors not to stand on Sashabaw Road and ask for tickets. On the days of the concerts, as many as 20 ticket seekers could be found spread along Sashabaw Road, from Waldon to Clarkston roads.

Quisenberry said about 45 officers from the Oakland County Sheriff's Department worked both concerts. In those two days, only three custody arrests were made.

Quisenberry said many of the Deadheads were also ticketed for selling their wares on the amphitheater's premises, which is prohibited.

School board OK's $27.8 million general fund

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Associate Editor

The Clarkston Board of Education has approved a district general fund budget of $27,790,625 for the 1991-92 school year.

On June 17, the board voted 6-1 to approve the proposed budget for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1992. Trustee Janet Thomas cast the lone dissenting vote.

Thomas disagreed with the budget because she believed the $621,511 in "total contingencies" should be taken out of the expenditure balance now and reflected as excess revenue instead.

Items listed under general fund contingencies include: teaching salaries, workers compensation insurance, emergency maintenance of utilities, health insurance, indirect costs to federal programs and excess revenue over expenditures.

Thomas wanted to put this money away in 1991-92 to defray costs for the 1992-93 district budget, which may be set back $1.5 million from a possible statewide property tax freeze in 1992.

The budget of $27,790,625 exceeds last year's total of $25,022,000. It also surpasses the 1989-90 budget by nearly $6 million.

According to Steve Lenar, director of business services, the upcoming revenue will outweigh the total expenditures by about $78,511. This leftover money will be injected into next year's budget.

Lenar said he feels confident with this year's budget. "We're hoping we've got a pretty conservative budget in terms of revenue," he said. "If we're under by about one percent we could save $280,000 this year."

Covered under this year's budget will be the purchase of numerous needed textbooks for the district. Lenar said the cost of these books will exceed $300,000.

In terms of teaching supplies, the district will spend $105 on every elementary student, $110 for every middle school student and $120 for every senior high student this year.

These figures were based on enrollment projections, which predict that nearly 5,524 students will be attending Clarkston schools this year.

Lenar said the district will be out of the state's funding formula next year. He said the state equalized value of the district's property increased 13.8 percent over the past year, meaning the total in property tax revenue surpasses the minimum requirement for extensive state funding.

Being "out of formula" has forced Clarkston schools to form a consortium with Brandon schools in terms of their adult education programs. Because Brandon is "in formula" and receives substantial state money, it will serve as the fiscal agent in the program, Lenar said.

That means that Brandon will count Clarkston pupils in its adult education program, thus receiving state money for the pupils. This partnership is allowed under state statutes regarding intra-district consortiums.

Lenar said that 88 percent of the Clarkston school district's operating money presently comes from taxpayers.

According to Lenar, about 19 mills of the proposed 20-mill operating millage approved by voters this month will make up part of the total operating millage rate of 38.83 mills.

One mill is $1 for every $1,000 assessed property valuation. So the owner of a $100,000 home assessed at half the market value ($50,000) will pay $1,941.50 (38.83 x 50) in school operating taxes for the 1991-92 school year.

This rate is identical to the rate last year. The debt rate is presently at 1.82 mills, which goes toward paying off existing outstanding bonds.

Lenar said the administration will continue to examine the district's financial picture to make appropriate decisions.

"As we look ahead to 1991-92, we're also looking ahead to 1992-93. The administration is looking to keep what's going, going and not make any reductions in programs," Lenar said.

A list of revenues and expenditures in the general fund follows:

Library users will have to browse in advance for the Fourth of July weekend.

The Independence Township Library on Clarkston Road will be closed on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, July 4, 5 and 6; so readers should stock up now on books for the weekend.

In addition, construction on the library expansion sometimes causes the library to close without advance notice, said Molly Lynch, director of the library.

"We apologize for any inconvenience," she said.

Board approves five other funds

When the Clarkston Board of Education approved the general fund budget June 17 they also OK'd five other school funds for the upcoming year.

They included the vocational fund for the Oakland Technical Center-Northwest, the debt retirement fund, the building and site fund, the food service fund and the athletic fund.

Softwater Lake site condominium plan rejected

BY DENNIS V. CARTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

The developer of a proposed 40-unit site condominium project was unhappy that his plan was rejected June 12.

The Springfield Township Board voted 2-4 to defeat one plan for single family housing on Softwater Lake, off Dixie Highway, south of I-75.

Voting in favor of the project were Supervisor Collin Walls and Trustee Dennis Vallad. Voting against the project were Clerk J. Calvin Walters, Treasurer Lois Stiles and trustees Nancy Strole and Charles Oaks. Trustee Margaret Bloom was not present.

After the meeting, developer Kevin Reis said, "Naturally, we are not happy with the board's decision. We were raised right here in Waterford, and we want to do the type of land development that improves the area, not hurt it. Right now we are just not sure which avenue we will pursue."

"Naturally, we are not happy with the board's decision."

Developer Kevin Reis

He said they may "come down to 35 units, which is the idea the board has."

At the meeting, Norm Hyman, a representative for Central Land Development of Waterford, presented two approaches to the project.

Plan A called for common area (area for use by all residents) and smaller lots; whereas plan B included larger lots and smaller common area on the 55 acres of which 20 acres are under water.

The site condominium plan means that each homeowner would own the home and "building envelope" in which a house would be built. The property between homes would be owned by the condominium association, which is comprised of homeowners.

Board members voiced concerns about the project, including the distance between the lake and septic tank systems and the number of units to be built.

Hyman assured the board that all state standards would be met for the sewage system. He also stated that the number of lots proposed was the least number they could build and still gain a return on the property.

Board members also expressed concern over the drainage.

Hyman, however, objected to the questioning, saying that drainage should be left up to the engineers, not board members.

Township attorney Gregory Need said the board's questions were appropriate.

According to Hyman, the drainage issue would be addressed, or Central Land wouldn't be allowed to pull permits anyway. He said it was inappropriate to stop the project because of these concerns.

According to Walls, the project was a reasonable use of property and better than the alternatives that may occur as the result of litigation.

Vallad said he voted for the concept because both sides had compromised.

"In the fall of 1988, they presented a proposal to the board which requested a R-3 zoning (one house per half acre)," said Vallad.

"I feel if they had made this proposal, which now comes close to R-2 zoning (one house per acre), at that time, it would have passed. I feel they have worked to make the project acceptable. I feel that with the way the concept was presented to the board this time it is a proposal we could work with."

SMART funds split between programs

Senior citizens as well as travelers in Springfield Township could benefit from some government money.

The Springfield Township Board voted unanimously June 12 to give 25 percent of its Suburban Mobility Authority for Regional Transportation (SMART) money to the Holly Hock senior citizen service for 1992.

The remaining 75 percent of the $7,611 in municipal credit funds goes to the Springfield Township Charter Service.

The Municipal Credit Program, funded with Michigan Act 51 money, is intended to provide financial support to each municipality in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties for the maintenance or improvement of local public transportation services.

Five drop-off sites for household batteries

Used household batteries now have a place to go, instead of ending up in landfills.

Drop-off sites have been established at businesses throughout the Clarkston area.

The project, run by the Independence Township Groundwater Leadership Team, calls for area residents to take their household batteries to the participating businesses and put them in the designated receptacles.

That way, the batteries and the toxic chemicals they contain will be properly disposed.

Drop-off receptacles have been placed at: ACO Hardware, 5591 Sashabaw Road; Rudy's Quality Market, 9 S. Main St.; Country Value Hardware, 7164 Ortonville Road; Kroger's, 6661 Dixie Highway; and Damman Hardware, 6669 Dixie Highway.

Quiet determination

Julie Campe

Upon meeting Tillie St. Croix, one would not guess the personal trials she has faced.

Her eyes crinkle up when she smiles, and she cracks jokes frequently. She speaks reverently of her family, appreciably of her country home, thankfully of her friends.

Hers has been a life of service. For 23 years, she was employed by Clinton Valley Center in Pontiac, retiring not long ago as a nursing service supervisor.

Accustomed to working, she quickly found herself employed part time in a group home after retirement. She admits that she was skeptical of the group home concept when it was introduced a few years ago, but she's convinced of its worth now. And she gets immeasurable satisfaction from her work there.

At an institution such as Clinton Valley, employees are much too busy with the day-to-day care of patients to actually be with them, she says.

At the group home, she spends time with the residents, working with them on personalized projects, getting to know them as individuals.

She has missed them lately, when obstacles in her life have called her away.

But Tillie is not one to grumble about hard work or about the hurdles placed in her path.

Hers is not a life of quiet desperation but one of quiet determination.

That determination has seen her through the death of her mother, caused by breast cancer, when Tillie was only 18 and the death of her sister four years ago, caused by bone cancer.

It has seen her through her husband's ongoing battle with cancer and diabetes and the intense care required by the diseases.

It has made her appreciate the life each of person has left on this earth. In most cases, that means each person must surround himself or herself in those activities or pastimes he or she finds most pleasurable.

In her husband's case, that means more time up north, fishing or simply sitting outside, observing nature, forgetting his pain.

In her own case, she relishes her time with people—her friends, the residents at the group home, her grandchildren.

She sighs when she thinks of three of her grandchildren, whose mother, Alma Allen-St. Croix, has been diagnosed with a rare bone marrow disease. Chances are high that Alma will not survive two years. Tillie, however, prefers to look toward the chance that a bone marrow donor will be found to give Alma a transplant, which would most likely mean a much longer survival for the mother of three of her grandchildren and the "sweetheart" wife of her son.

From her experience with her sister's death of bone cancer, Tillie knows too well what will happen if a suitable donor is not found for Alma.

So she buckles down, finds a reserve of strength somewhere and sets out to perform the tasks ahead of her.

There are phone calls to make, fund-raisers to organize, laundry to wash, children to hug, dinners to cook, pamphlets to read, holidays to observe, doctors to call, dogs to feed, trips to make, life to love.

And jokes to make, which she does, smiling, her eyes crinkling up.

Letters to the Editor

Clarify stats

The June 12 Clarkston News contained an article regarding a millage request by the Independence Township Parks and Recreation Department.

The article stated, "Statistically, residents' participation has more than doubled in the past three years." It went on to say "... 16,598 people participated. ... the number rose to 34,791." Are the words "residents" and "people" synonymous, or are many of the "people" non-residents?

I have enjoyed participating in several parks and recreation programs, but I have noticed there are many non-residents taking part. I believe they pay exactly the same fees that I do. I have no problem with non-resident participation, but I believe they should pay their fair share of both the capital and operating expenses.

Are they?

Unfair action

As concerned parents, we would like the community to be aware of a situation that involved the Clarkston school system.

The week before graduation, our son was the recipient of a disciplinary action. Some restrictions were placed upon our son, but at no time was there any mention made that he could not attend the post-graduation party at Deer Lake Racquet Club.

Considering this party was being put on after graduation by parent volunteers and being paid for by ticket sales to the seniors and donations from the community but no funding by the Clarkston schools, we encouraged our son to attend.

The night of the party, my son, upon entering, was stopped and escorted from the building. While I was working as a parent volunteer that night, I was called out to be informed by the high school administration that my son could not attend and that I had previously been informed of this.

I denied this, but since I had nothing in writing on his restrictions, it was to no avail. This ended up being a very embarrassing night for my son and myself, as this happened in front of some of my son's fellow seniors and their parents.

There are two points we wish to address due to this incident. First, all disciplinary actions should be in writing. Second, what right did the high school administration have to take it upon themselves the determination of who could attend the post-graduation party? We feel our son should have been able to attend and missed out on a very memorable occasion.

Our thoughts on OUR day

Jim Sherman

So, what do fathers think of on Father's Day? We fathers (let me state right up front, when I write 'we fathers' I'm writing about me and any others who can relate) expect our children to think of us on OUR day, even if only for a short span of time.

I believe, however, we fathers spend a whole lot more time on OUR day thinking about our offspring than they do us. After all, we're less busy and our mind has slowed down proportionately and is more organized.

We no longer get a barrage of thoughts, all extremely important, banging about our brain demanding 'do me first, NOW!'

We fathers are able to develop a line of thinking about one subject, even while doing another. Like, we fathers can recall the growing years of our children while we trim a hedge.

When we were our children's age we couldn't get our mind off baseball while cutting off the tomato plants as we hoed the garden. Today we can hoe around the plant and remember when our son tried to run over his sister.

On OUR day we fathers can mow around the trees without scarring the trunk while recalling the time daughter Susan ran our week-old snowmobile into a tree. We can also still feel her gangling arms and legs wrapped around us in happiness and sleepiness.

On OUR day we fathers can sculpt a bush as smooth as a billiard ball and relive the time son Jim came to us and said, "Dad, I just don't like football!" I hadn't expected my son to be a tight end on the Detroit Lions anyway... maybe the Chicago Bears, but not the Lions.

We fathers, on OUR day, can change a tire on our garden tractor while thinking of the time daughter Luan, playing in a powder-puff football game, nearly passed out from running in and out of the game so often. That squelched my dream of her with the Lions, also.

On OUR day we fathers can reflect on the raising of our children: Should we have spent more time with them? Should we have read to them more when they were young? Were we liberal enough, too harsh in our punishment or too restrictive in their friendships?

We even wonder if we did things just right... and soon reject that thought, replacing it with 'We could have done more.'

We fathers on OUR day also make some conclusions. Everything we did wasn't bad. More and more frequently our pre-birth thought returns... 'All we wanted was for you to be healthy.' After a birthday or two that thought was enlarged to be 'healthy and happy.'

OUR day turns out to be a good one, particularly when based on our last wishes. Jim (and Linda), Luan (and Bob and Danny and Karen) and Susan (and Tim) are healthy and happy.

We fathers are sure our wives have the same kind of thoughts on THEIR day and draw like conclusions. And, while we continue to worry about them, it's the kind of worry a whole lot of other parents wish they had... not much.

Timely poem

My husband and I drove to Marshfield, Mass., to visit our daughter, Sherri, and her family and to see our granddaughter, Karen, graduate from Marshfield High School.

It was a very nice day, and the graduation ceremony took place out of doors on the football field.

Part of the speech that Peter Deftos, the principal, gave was so good I would like to share it with your readers and especially the graduates of Clarkston High School.

Here it is:

People are often unreasonable, illogical and self centered; love them anyway...

If you do good, people will accuse you of selfish, ulterior motives; do good anyway...

If you are successful, you will win false friends and true enemies; do good anyway...

Honesty and frankness make you vulnerable; be honest and frank anyway...

The biggest men and biggest ideas can be shot down by the smallest minds; think big anyway...

People favor underdogs but follow only the top dogs; fight for some underdogs anyway...

What you spend years building may be destroyed overnight; build anyway...

People really need help but may attack you if you help them; help people anyway...

Give the world the best you have, and you'll get kicked in the teeth; give the world the best you've got anyway...

This part of Principal Peter Deftos' speech was printed in their local paper, the Marshfield Mariner, which looks exactly like our own Clarkston News.

Park memories hint immortality

Jim Fitzgerald

My father always arrived early for a baseball game so if the first batter in the first inning got a hit, he'd be seated in plenty of time to yell at the pitcher: "There goes your no-hitter, you bum!"

I thought about that last Sunday while picnicking in Pine Grove Park, near the diamond where Dad and I watched our last baseball game together. When the game ended, he went one way and I went another.

The park is in Port Huron, a block north of 1020 Pine Grove Ave., the address of the home where, after summer supper, Dad would push back his kitchen chair and announce that he was going to the ballgame in the park, and did anyone want to go with him. I did.

My boyhood home is now a parking lot for an insurance firm, and no one eats supper at 6 p.m. anymore, it's dinner. I forget why people stopped eating dinner at noon, in favor of lunch, but it probably had something to do with the hired hands drinking martinis while getting in the harvest.

Dad and I began going to ballgames soon after I was born, and we did it regularly for 24 years, until a night in 1950 when, after the last out, we went our separate ways. He lived 13 more years, but we never saw another game together.

As a youth, my father was a star pitcher, hurling a no-hitter for the University of Detroit. He no doubt hoped I'd be a splinter off the old bat, but it wasn't to be. Dad had four daughters and one son, and they all threw like girls.

But I eased his disappointment by being a super fan. I grew up during the Great Depression, and there was scant money for tickets to Detroit Tigers games. But that was when the games began at 3 p.m. and I listened to Ty-Tyson announce them on the radio, fiercely memorizing every word. When Dad got home from work, I gave him a play-by-play account. He would cheer when I said Hank Greenberg homered, and call him a bum when I said he struck out. It wasn't quite the same as having your son pitch a no-hitter, but I'm sure Dad was proud of the way I clearly pronounced every vowel, even when Boots Poffenberger played.

Mostly, we watched softball in the park. And there was nothing family tragic, or even dramatic, about our last game together, after which Dad went north and I went south. I only made it sound that way to keep scandal fans reading in hopes of glimpsing a family feud. You don't have to be a pitcher to throw a curve.

The straight truth, in fact, is funny. The last year I lived in Port Huron was 1950. That summer I worked the midnight shift in a Chrysler factory so, after the game, Dad walked home and I walked to a nearby bar to wait for the bus to work. Occasionally, the bartender tied me to a stool and made me miss my bus, forcing me to arrive back home at 2 a.m. instead of the usual 8 a.m.

If my entrance awakened my father, he would accuse me of giving up 75 cents per hour from Chrysler for the stupid pleasure of crawling home through the park. I would promise to behave more responsibly in the future — perhaps have the bartender arrested for kidnapping.

Forty-one years later, last Sunday, in the same park, on a blanket, my 7-month-old grandson Adam gained considerable acclaim by doing something for the first time. He crawled! It was a certain sign of creeping immortality, sort of.

So naturally, for Father's Day, I have to laugh at the memory of the last summer my father and I watched ballgames together, and then went our separate ways.

I sure wish we could do that one more time.

Weigh housing alternatives before buying home

Deciding whether it is better to rent or buy a home has always been a difficult choice for some people. But it's becoming even more difficult now that some of the long-standing benefits of home ownership are being put to the test.

Not too long ago, owning a home was considered a guaranteed hedge against inflation. But today's lower inflation, slower economy and sagging real estate market mean you can no longer assume a house will increase in value, particularly in the short term.

The Michigan Association of CPAs suggests that prospective home buyers take the time to consider housing alternatives before taking the plunge.

Advantages of home ownership

Owning a home still carries significant financial benefits and, for the majority of Americans, home ownership still makes good financial sense.

In addition to the opportunity to realize a profit when you sell, there are significant tax advantages available to homeowners. Homeowners can deduct real estate property taxes and interest on home loans. This can provide a substantial savings for taxpayers, particularly during the early years of a mortgage when the greater share of the monthly mortgage payment goes toward interest.

Uncle Sam gives homeowners the opportunity to shelter capital gains when they sell a house and reinvest in a more expensive home within two years before or after the sale of the old residence.

Owning a home also means you can borrow money against the equity you have built up in your home. And, if you live in your home beyond the term of your mortgage, you own your home free and clear, an important consideration for those who expect to be living on a fixed income during retirement.

For most Americans, the benefits of home ownership extend beyond the financial. In spite of changing economic conditions and personal values, owning a home remains an American dream. Many individuals long for a certain deeply rooted satisfaction that comes with owing a home.

Then there are the more practical advantages of home ownership. Owning a home generally means you have more space, more privacy and, often, more luxuries. When you own your home, you have the freedom to improve or redecorate your residence as you please (within local zoning and building codes).

Disadvantages of home ownership

Home ownership does have disadvantages. First, the costs associated with home ownership are high. You will not only need a sizable down payment but also additional funds to cover closing cost, legal fees, insurance and ongoing maintenance. Second, a loss on the sale of a personal residence is not deductible.

For most Americans, the benefits of home ownership extend beyond the financial.

In addition, securing a mortgage has become more difficult. As a result of bad real estate loans and pressure from regulators, lending requirements have become more stringent. What's more, many of the costs associated with owning a home are variable, making it difficult for some new homeowners to plan and budget accurately.

Aside from a financial commitment to years of monthly mortgage payments, owning a home requires that you devote a great deal of time and money to the upkeep of your home. Consider the ongoing maintenance and repairs, from trimming the lawn and cleaning the gutters to repairing a leak. You also have to expect the unexpected -- the potential need for a new roof, furnace or plumbing.

When is renting right

If the myriad of responsibilities or the financial requirements of home ownership make you wary, take another look at renting.

On the plus side, renting allows you more flexibility. When you rent, your commitment is generally limited to the term of your lease. If you expect that a job change, marriage or simply wanderlust may result in your needing to relocate, renting may make more sense for you. Because you can just pick up and move when your lease is up, you do not have to worry about property values declining or significant changes in the neighborhood.

Additionally, renting often gives you more control over your living expenses. You know exactly how much your rent will be and how often to expect increases. Renters also have the luxury of calling someone else when the roof leaks or the air conditioning fails. If you rent a house, you may be responsible for general repairs, but you won't have to invest a large sum of money in repairs or maintenance.

But renting has its down side as well. Keep in mind that renting has absolutely no investment value. While you can certainly invest any funds you save as a result of paying less in rent than you would in mortgage payments, you cannot build equity in the property. You also miss out on the tax advantages reserved for homeowners.

Aside from the financial considerations, renting means you may have to forgo some of the space and privacy that your own home could bring you. And remember that finding good renting is not always easy, particularly if you have children or pets.

Historically, the financial benefits of long-term home ownership outweigh those of renting. If you need additional help in determining which course to follow, consult your CPA. He or she will be able to steer you in the best direction.

Books on tape can make driving fun

Commuters may have a more enjoyable drive to and from work if they take advantage of incoming materials at the Independence Township Library.

Due to heavy demand, the library plans to expand its audio book collection — books on tape.

Library personnel plan to build in fiction and non-fiction areas, stocking tapes for adults and children. Also, listeners will be able to choose from condensed versions and unabridged.

The tapes can make a drive to work more pleasant for adults and a long trip in a car more enjoyable for children, said library Director Molly Lynch, who has received many requests for more audio tapes.

The library is accepting donations of books on tape if the tape is in good condition. For more information, stop by the library on Clarkston Road, or call 625-2212.

On June 18, the township board unanimously passed an ordinance that gives a designated parks officer the right to issue tickets to violators of park policies. This officer will be Mike Turk, an employee of the Independence Township Parks and Recreation Department.

According to Ann Conklin, director of the parks and recreation department, Turk will be monitoring Clintonwood Park, Sashabaw Plains Park and the Deer Lake Beach. He won't have designated hours, Conklin said, but will have the authority to issue tickets if he sees policy violators in these areas.

The types of tickets he primarily will be issuing include illegal parking and the consumption of alcohol on park grounds.

Those ticketed will be required to appear in 52nd District Court for fines. The cost of the penalty will be up to the judge.

Conklin said the ticket officer should help deter present and prospective violators.

"The sheriff's department has been helpful in trying to rid our parks of these ordinance violators, but the people are usually gone by the time the police arrive," she said. "With Mike on the scene, we should be able to provide a better environment for those people wanting use the parks in a proper fashion."

Principal's first ninth-grade class 'outstanding'

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Editor

During Vince Licata's first year as principal at Clarkston Junior High School, the pupils were "outstanding," he said.

The end-of-year awards included Matt Martin, 14, and Christa Herron, 15, as Licata's first Principal's Award-winners.

Martin, the son of Gloria Blaski and Jake Martin, earned a 3.7 grade point average and played football, basketball and baseball and served on the Student Crisis Team.

Angelic Brown

Herron, the daughter of Judy and Glenn Herron, earned a 4.0 grade point average, played volleyball and served on Student Leadership Council.

The Principal's Award is given to one boy and one girl each year who have exhibited outstanding scholastic ability, contributed to the life at the school, shown outstanding leadership qualities, and been well liked and respected by peers and adults.

"Christa and Matt are all-around neat young people who have fit this criteria to a T," said Licata. "They are positive young people. Other student look up to them. They are very well liked and respected by their peers."

Another student, Angelic Brown, 14, was the recipient of the McGrath Award, an award given by the faculty in memory of "Uncle Bud" McGrath, a former counselor and coach at CJHS.

"He really had an impact on the building," remembers Licata. "He was enamored by kids who were very positive, good students, good role models."

"It's a very touching award to give out for the faculty and some of the parents because we all remember Bud."

McGrath would have liked Angelic, the daughter of David and Melanie Brown, said Licata.

"Angelic smiles a lot. She's positive, involved, respectful, cooperative, well liked — an all-round special person," said Licata.

Finalists for the McGrath Award were Keith Conklin,

Sashabaw students rack up end-of-year honors

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Editor.

The top award-winners at Sashabaw Junior High School this year were well-rounded, said Principal David Reschke.

Rusty Mitcham

Kristen Stanton, 15, of Tiohero and Brett Debo, 14, of Ranch Estates were the recipients of this year's Principal's Award — Reschke's last to give out because next year he will be curriculum director for the entire district.

"They are just outstanding kids in all ways," said Reschke.

The award is given to one boy and one girl in ninth grade each year who makes a long-lasting and positive impression on the principal at Sashabaw Junior High.

The students demonstrated good citizenship, good academic performance, good attendance and good leadership through involvement in extra-curricular activities and community service, said Reschke.

Winners of the Cougar Spirit Award went to Jenny O'Rourke and Tony Lucca. Lucca finished the school year in Florida, where he was working as a "Mousketeer" for Walt Disney Productions.

O'Rourke, 15, of Sally Road, was voted most valuable player by cheerleaders and will be a junior varsity cheerleader next year. She has been on the honor roll all year.

According to Assistant Principal Jean Lang, faculty members said O'Rourke was "always friendly and cooperative, was highly motivated to get others involved, enthusiastic, diligent and consistent, energetic, extremely motivated and an all-around nice young lady and student."

Lucca was the 1990 football team captain and won the Heart Award for playing with "great pride and intensity," according to his coach. He also was on the honor roll all year.

Lang said faculty members said Lucca was "always polite, a good student, pleasant attitude, very conscientious, always respectful to his teachers and other students in the class, a great student — the first to volunteer, very creative, talented, enthusiastic; and he never let his talents get in the way of being a friend to his classmates."

A new award this year — the Faculty Award — was given to the student in each grade who faculty agreed was an ideal student. Rusty Mitcham, 15, of Chanto Drive was the ninth-grade recipient of the award.

"The staff agreed that he exhibited the ideals of the faculty," said Reschke about Mitcham.

Winners of the Faculty Award in other grade levels were Rhonda Vaughn, sixth grade; Robbie Hukka, seventh grade; and Jeremy Fife, eighth grade.

CHS hosts Michigan Mechanics

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Associate Editor

What's the best way to tow an ailing school bus? If you were among the 350 school bus fleet mechanics who attended the Michigan Mechanics Expo and Idea Exchange Day at Clarkston High School June 18, you would know.

The event was sponsored by the Michigan Association for Pupil Transportation (MAPT) and was chaired by member Kevin Bickerstaff, fleet supervisor for Clarkston Community Schools.

More than 130 districts across the state took part in this event.

The MAPT is a 25-year-old statewide organization of school district fleet supervisors and directors. The goal of the Expo is to keep mechanics informed of the newest ideas to promote safe, efficient fleet operations.

Mechanics' classes included diesel maintenance, commercial driver license requirements for tow trucks used to tow a school bus, and maintenance of air and hydraulic brake systems.

About 71 companies were also on hand to demonstrate new and replacement equipment, supplies and services used by various school bus fleets.

Presenters included representatives from the Michigan State Police, Rockwell, Lucas, Navistar, Midland Brake Systems, Michelin Tire, Allison Transmissions, JB DLCO, Cummins Diesel-Michigan.

Mechanics were invited to bring along their "best idea" tool or device they'd created in their fleet operations. Plaques were awarded to those ideas that fellow mechanics voted as the most useful and cost effective. A Clarkston area man was cited during the awards presentation.

Mark Summers, a mechanic with Lamphere Schools in Madison Heights, was the member of a team cited for its tie rod end remover. The entry received a first-place plaque from the panel of judges.

Stoplight idea stalled

A stoplight is not in the plans for the northbound I-75 exit onto Dixie Highway.

However, one Springfield Township business owner thinks it should be.

Randy LaLone asked the township board June 12 install a light at that spot.

Supervisor Collin Walls, however, produced a memo from the Road Commission for Oakland County that stated that the commission did not feel a light was warranted.

LaLone then asked the board to request an accident report from the Road Commission that would show the number of accidents that had accrued at the intersection.

The board voted 6-0 to make the request of the Road Commission.

Higher noise levels

OK'd for historic races

The seventh annual Meadow Brook Historical Races will be coming to the Clarkston area Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 2-4.

The races will be held at the Waterford Hill Race Track on Waterford Road, Independence Township.

On June 18, the Independence Township Board unanimously granted a noise variance for the three-day event. The variance will override the township's noise ordinance, whose legal decibel level may be surpassed by the sound of roaring engines.

Under the ordinance, which was initiated in 1984, the maximum sound levels cannot exceed 75 decibels when in the vicinity of dwellings and educational facilities. Some of the cars at the races have the potential of surpassing 100 decibels.

According to event organizers, throngs of vintage racers from all over America will be attending the races. The event will also feature such vintage European racing models as Ferrari and Alfa Romeo.

To appease the track's neighbors, surrounding homeowners will be given free passes to the races.

Clinton River cleanup calls for joint effort

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Editor

If Diane and Walt Brutzer had their way, trout would swim freely and canoeists would paddle comfortably in the Clinton River.

At present, only a few trout have been sighted along the polluted river, and the waterway is not yet open to canoeists, despite cleanup efforts.

More safety paths coming for walkers

Bikers and walkers soon will have a few more paths to follow, including one to a county park.

Construction of four safety paths around Independence Township should begin within the next month.

On June 18, the township board unanimously approved of a Sterling Heights construction company to install the bike paths. Italia Construction, Inc., is scheduled to begin work sometime after July 4.

Italia was the lowest of three bidders at $299,130. The cost will be paid for from the township's safety path fund, which is funded through a special safety path millage.

The new areas slated for safety paths include:

- Sashabaw Road, from Clarkston Road north to Independence Oaks County Park.

- Waldon Road, from Almond Lane to near Gulick. There will be about a 1,000-foot gap on Waldon, due to several neighbors refusing the right to cross their property with the safety paths. Paving will then continue on to Sashabaw Road.

- Main Street, from the north Village of Clarkston limit line to Northview Drive.

- Holcomb Road, from the north Village of Clarkston limit line to Bluegrass Drive.

The project should be completed by the middle of September.

To help clean the meandering river, which has headwaters in Independence Township and feeds dozens of area lakes, the Waterford Hill Terrace, Independence Township, couple have agreed to lead a portion of the cleanup effort this year.

The couple is in charge of the portion of the Clinton River which runs from Dixie Highway (south of Sashabaw Road) to Cass Lake in Waterford Township.

A planning meeting for the entire river cleanup is planned for 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, July 10, in the Oakland County Commissioners Room A, 1200 Telegraph, Pontiac.

The actual cleanup takes place Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 17 and 18. The July 10 meeting will help volunteers prepare for the job ahead, said Diane Brutzer, who hopes that others in the Clarkston area will join in the

Amnesty Week forgives library overdue fines

If you keep forgetting to return library books you checked out over the winter and spring, you're in luck.

During Amnesty Week July 8 through 15, library patrons who still have materials due May 11 or earlier may return the items without paying late fines.

The library went "on-line" on May 11, so items due after that date are now on the computer's system that will automatically send notices if items are overdue.

However, for items due before that date, Amnesty Week hopefully will encourage people to return the items, saving library employees a little work, said Molly Lynch, director of the Independence Township Library on Clarkston Road.

In addition, library employees plan to conduct an inventory of items in preparation of the library expansion, so the return of books, tapes or other materials will help them determine what's lost and what's in stock, said Lynch.

"It's a lovely thing to have — a river in your community."

Diane Brutzer

effort.

"This is really our own neighborhood our here, so we'd like to have people in the community do the work," she said. "It's a lovely thing to have — a river in your community."

Due to cleaning in past year, trout are beginning to live in the river again, she said.

"If we have the continuity of a clean river, the fish will be encouraged to move up," she said.

Officials also want to open the Clinton River to canoes.

Anyone who would like to contribute to the effort should attend the July 10 meeting, headed up by Oakland County Clinton River cleanup coordinator Bob Sharrod.

Already, some people have offered to provide lunch to volunteers, while others have offered trucks to haul away the debris found in the river.

Now, all that is needed is people to do the actual cleaning, said Diane Brutzer.

For more information, call Diane or Walt Brutzer at 623-9349.

Juzysta chosen All-State

Kevin Juzysta has been selected as an all-stater and five of his Clarkston varsity baseball teammates also earned post-season honors.

Juzysta, who broke a school record this season by batting .524 (43 for 82), is part of the 1991 All-State Baseball Dream Team, which is selected by the Michigan High School Baseball Coaches Association.

In addition to his hefty batting average, the 5-foot, 9-inch, 170-pound senior led the Wolves in runs scored (32), doubles (14) and stolen bases (19). He also drove in 18 runs. He committed three errors in leftfield.

Juzysta, who also was a wide receiver on the Wolf football team, will be playing in an East-West All-Star baseball game at Tiger Stadium, July 2.

He was voted as the team's Most Valuable Player, chosen as first-team all-Greater Oakland Activities League (outfield), as well as first-team region and first team district by the coaches' association.

Senior Chad Hetherington, who batted .304 with two homers, nine doubles and 18 RBI, was selected as first-team All-GOAL (catcher), as well as first-team district.

Senior Darren Master, a .380 batter with 20 RBI, also was selected first-team All-GOAL (infield) and first-team district. Master was the team's Most Improved Player.

Senior Jim Jenkinson and juniors Derek Wiley and Dugan Fife were selected second team All-GOAL.

Outfielder Jenkinson batted .347 and led the team in RBI (25) and walks (20). He stole 10 bases.

Pitcher Wiley was 6-2 with a 2.54 ERA. He walked 34 and struck out 30.

Shortstop Fife batted .324 with 24 RBI and 17 runs scored.

The Wolves finished 14-11 overall and third in the GOAL with a 9-6 mark.

New team building built brick by brick

Joining a "Block Club" is one way a person can help donate money to pay for the new proposed team building at Clarkston High School.

The Clarkston Athletic Boosters are looking for donations of funds for the proposed team building and one way to donate is through the "Block Club," which will help to build the facility block by block.

The cost per block is $10. There are a variety of ways people may donate. A $10-$20 donation (1-2 blocks) is needed to become a Micro-Block Builder, $30-$50

(3-5 blocks) to be a Mini-Block Builder, $60-$90 (6-9 blocks) to be a Macro-Block Builder, $100-$250 (10-25 blocks) to be a Mega-Block Builder, $260-$500 (26-50 blocks) to be a Multi-Mega Block Builder, $1,000 and up (100 or more blocks) to be a Magnificent Block Builder.

The estimated cost of the facility, which will completely be paid through donations and fund raisers, is between $40,000 and $60,000. The building, which will be located near the football field, will be used for football, soccer and track and will consist of two team meeting rooms, lavatory facilities, an officials' room, a trainer's room and two ticket booths.

Plans for the facility were formulated by athletic director Paul Tungate, booster president Dwight Spiker, Kurt Richardson, Gordie Richardson, Ed Fletcher, Dave McChesney, Dale Ryan and Rick Detkowski.

Anyone interested in donating can send a check (along with the type block builder he or she would like to be) to the following address: Clarkston Athletic Booster, 6992 Cranberry Lake Road, Clarkston, MI 48348.

THIS was some of the 3-on-3 action June 19 during the opening week of league play at Clintonwood Park, with the Red Devils winning two of three games. The league will be playing on Wednesday nights, with teams squaring off by playing three games (up to 15) each week. Katy Conlen

Former Wolf breaks record

Katy Conlen, a 1988 Clarkston High School graduate, broke a Hope College women's track record this spring and was selected as the team's most improved athlete.

Conlen, a junior, shattered the Flying Dutchmen's 1500-meter record by nearly three seconds when she finished at 4:44.5 May 17 at the Last Chance Meet in Naperville, Ill.

Conlen, who sat out her sophomore year due to an injury, also had personal bests this spring in the 800 run (2:20.4), 5K (18:33), 10K (40:24).

Hope finished third in its conference. Conlen, majoring in international studies and minoring in business, will graduate early in December before leaving for Japan.

She will be competing for the Flying Dutchman cross-country team in the fall.

Beer bimbos

James
Gibowski

You're watching television and Chuck Daly calls a timeout, Sparky signals for a new pitcher or Chris Spielman twists his knee and falls on the turf. What will you most likely see next?

A commercial. And odds are, one for beer.

Alcohol being advertised on television bothers me for two reasons. One is the inconsistency of the Federal Communications Commission allowing beer and wine ads while prohibiting cigarette ads. (I think they should both be either on or off the airwaves. Also, "hard liquor" is not allowed, another inconsistency). The other thing that bothers me is the way the ads are presented.

I admire Secretary of Health and Human Services Louis Sullivan for recently castigating sports events that are sponsored by cigarette companies (the Virginia Slims tennis tour, car races sponsored by tobacco products, etc.), but I can't believe that he doesn't say anything about how beer is so widely advertised in sports. Doesn't Secretary Sullivan realize that alcohol kills many more people every year than cigarette smoking?

I'd be a hypocrite if I said I'm totally against beer. I do occasionally drink it (usually with Mexican food).

But that doesn't mean I can't get upset about how beer is advertised, selling via both sex and sexism and capitalizing on a sports-nut audience.

I'm not naive in thinking that the beer companies would ever want to be honest or direct (God forbid!) in their advertising. I wouldn't expect them to actually broadcast that millions of people drink beer to get a buzz or get drunk, or that thousands die from cirrhosis, or that thousands of families are broken because of alcoholism or that half of the auto-related deaths are caused by drunk drivers.

Obviously, you won't see that type of information broadcasted by Coors, Stroh's, Anheiser-Busch or Miller. But chances are, either you or someone you know has been affected by alcohol, affected in a way which wouldn't sell much beer during halftime or a television timeout.

So what can you do about these ads, especially since you can't avoid them while watching sports?

Just don't believe them, either consciously or subconsciously.

Don't believe that if you have a beer in your hand, a good looking girl or guy will automatically fall into your lap.

Don't believe that one brand is so much purer than another. (Did you ever notice that none of the beer companies have ingredients listed on their labels?)

So when you see the following types of beer advertisements, you may laugh, snap your fingers to the jingle or see striking colors, but don't believe.

■ Beer bimbos: Beer bimbos are usually no more than 23 years old and blond with made-for-TV figures.

They giggle and jiggle, but seldom speak, just the way beer companies think men want women to be.

The sexism in these ads seems to be getting worse and worse every year.

Busch beer's angle used to be a nature-filled "head for the mountains." Now it asks, "What is a mountain man?" and the only thing on camera resembling mountains are women's breasts.

Old Milwaukee used to have a group of guys together fishing or camping, saying, "It doesn't get better than this." Now, apparently, it has gotten better with the arrival of the Swedish Bikini Team (more curvaceous blonds who rarely speak).

■ Macho, game-saving athletes: These are the ads when a guy, usually in the mud and in slow-motion, stretches to make a catch in the endzone. Or a softball player safely sliding into home. The ads seem to tell viewers, "hey, if I drink that type of beer I can do that." But you aren't, because you're sitting home watching instead of playing.

■ Funny ex-athletes who don't remember what happened to Billy Martin: Some former athletes have made a nice chunk of money and gained much recognition by peddling Lite beer from Miller.

THE Swedish Bikini Team has been added to Old Milwaukee's "It doesn't get better than this" style of commercials.

Yeah, they're funny.

But do you think it would be funny if they eventually had Reggie Rogers, Bruce Kimball or Len Dykstra plug their beer?

■ Seriously folks, "don't drink and drive": Every once in a while the PR department from some beer company comes up with a paid ad (with an overly sincere voice over) urging people to be responsible and not drink.

This just happens every once in a while, and it is PR.

Maybe someday they'll even repeat the warning on the cans about how women should avoid drinking their product if they're pregnant.

■ This one's for you: These ads salute the factory worker, the teacher, the Desert Storm soldier, the police officer ...

What does it have to do with beer?

Why ask why?

■ Under-aged animals: Hey, if dumb blond beer bimbos can sell beer, why not smart animals like Spuds McKenzie or Alex (the Stroh's dog)?

■ Artsy, close-up water droplets: These ads usually emphasize how a beer's water comes from "mountain fresh springs" or only uses "choice hops and grains."

It sounds like you're drinking a mixture of nutritious bread and water.

But how fresh are the added alcohol and preservatives?

■ Moses speaking to the masses: Charleton Heston's booming voice religiously tells the viewer that beer has been an important part of the United States since our country was formed.

Mom, apple pie and a can of Bud.

■ Olympics or Olympia?: Did you ever question the ads that say, "Bud, the official beer of the U.S. Olympic team"?

"Sorry, I've got to run the 1600 meter run in few hours, so I'll take a raincheck on that fifth beer."

And what about those car ads. What does a "pretty woman" have to do with a Mercury Capri? ...

REAL ESTATE UPDATE

WHAT IS AN APPRAISAL?

THE RULES for selling real estate by the installment method have been simplified.

QUESTION: What is the difference between a Realtor suggesting a selling price for a property and an appraisal?

ANSWER: A suggested selling price is not an official appraisal. An appraisal is the valuation of your property by a qualified Appraiser for a fee. His written instrument will carry its weight as documentation in any official capacity such as for tax or legal problems.

An Appraiser will provide you with a document which will cover all the elements which go into the valuation. If it is income property, he will capitalize the present and future income potential.

Young at Hearts hit lanes

BY DENNIS V. CARTER
 Clarkston News Staff Writer

Some say life begins at 40, but some young at heart senior citizens have found it can begin at 50 or even over 80.

Many of the 25 members of the Springfield Young at Heart Group's bowling league are giving bowling a try for the first time.

According to Lloyd Vergin, league coordinator, many league participants are just learning the sport.

"A lot of them have never bowled before, but now they are really getting into it," said the Springfield Township resident. "Some even went out and bought new bowling ball, shoes and bags."

League members, who range in age from 50 to over 80, get together every Tuesday at Cherry Hill Lanes, Dixie Highway, Independence Township.

"We hope to see the league continue," said Vergin. "We have a really good time, and it gives us a chance to get some exercise while having fun."

For Ray Biskner of Springfield Township, it's the fellowship and the love of bowling that keeps him coming back for more.

"I bowl in a couple of leagues," said Biskner. "I find that bowling with the others here is very enjoyable. We come out here and just have a good time. I love bowling, and being in this league with friends to share the fun with is just great."

Those bowling in this league prove that you're never too "young at heart" to learn a new trick.

Tigers host clinic

Four former Detroit Tigers will be conducting a free baseball clinic at Independence Oaks County Park July 9 and July 11, from 6-7 p.m.

Pitcher Dave Rozema of the 1984 World Champion Tigers and outfielders Jim Northrup and Gates Brown and catcher Jim Price of the 1968 World Champion Tigers will be teaching baseball fundamentals for children ages 8-16.

They will lead participants through an evening of instruction, drills and live play. Clinics include tips on hitting, pitching, catching and infield and outfield play.

"Every youngster should have the opportunity to play every position," said Price.

Certificates of participation will be provided to youngsters. Autographs will not be available.

Participants can enter a prize drawing for passes to Tiger games and the annual Tiger Stadium Youth Clinic on Aug. 1.

Park entry fees will be waived from 3-6 p.m. at the park on the day of the clinic. Families are encouraged to enjoy a picnic and amenities at each park.

The clinic is sponsored by the Detroit Tigers Alumni Association, the Oakland County Parks and Recreation Commission and Gatorade.

Buckle up or face 'Blitz' over July 4th holiday

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Editor

If you don't wear a seat belt, you could suffer serious injury or die — or receive a $50 ticket.

As part of a nationwide effort to increase traffic safety, state and local law enforcement officials will be more aggressively monitoring seat belt usage around the Fourth of July holiday, said Trooper Dan S. Thomas of the Michigan State Police.

A nationwide "Blitz" is in effect for two weeks, beginning June 30. The effort, coordinated by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, is part of a national campaign to achieve 70 percent safety belt usage by 1992.

"We will be looking for violations," said Thomas, an Independence Township resident.

"There's never a quota of tickets, but ... now we have to send to Lansing the number of tickets we write for seat belt violations. They are keeping stats — officers will be writing more tickets because there's more emphasis."

In Michigan, a mandatory seat belt law went into effect in the mid-1980s.

As of April this year, another safety belt law went into effect, requiring mandatory belt use in the front and back seats for those ages 4 to under 16. While a driver can't be stopped for violating that law, a ticket may be given if the driver is stopped for some other reason — speeding, for instance, said Thomas.

However, drivers can be stopped for violating two parts of the safety belt law: Children under one year must be fastened into a child car seat in the front and back seats. And children ages 1 to under age 4 must be fastened into a child car seat when riding in the front and in a safety belt when riding in the back.

If stopped for another reason, drivers may be ticketed for violating this law: Those ages 16 and older are required to wear a safety belt when riding in the front seat but not in the back seat.

Seat belts have proven to save lives and prevent injury, said Thomas.

"That's the big thing," he said. "In the U.S. alone, 50,000 to 60,000 die on roads in a year. In a five-year period, that's the number of people we lost in World War II. Some people say we're in a war on our own roads."

Seat belt usage also can reduce insurance costs by reducing injury, medical expenses and lawsuits. In addition, fines and court costs for tickets can cost $50 or more, he said.

"Excuses just don't hold water," he said, explaining that injury can occur at slower speeds when area residents are traveling only short distances.

In Michigan, 49.6 percent of people currently buckle up, compared to 15 percent in 1965, when statistics were first taken.

When preparing food, don't lick fingers

Food may be "finger lickin'" good, but this habit is a poor food safety risk in the kitchen.

"The food preparer has the most important role in safe food handling," said Sylvia Treitman, home economist for the Oakland County Cooperative Extension.

Hands carry the bacteria that can infect food. "If a soiled spoon or finger goes from the mouth to food, it can cause contamination and possibly food poisoning," she said.

Careful hand washing is a basic part of food preparation.

"But how many times do you see someone sneeze

— or touch their face or other dirty objects and return to food preparation without washing hands?" asked Treitman.

Keeping everything in a kitchen clean means very little if the food preparer's hands are not kept scrupulously clean.

Here are some safe hygiene tips to teach young children:

■ Never taste food with the same spoon used for stirring — take a fresh spoon and wash each time used.

■ Wash hands thoroughly — under nails and between fingers. A nail brush under nails is helpful.

■ Don't wear rings or other jewelry when preparing food since food can get in crevices.

■ Use disposable plastic gloves or a plastic bandage if you have a cut or an infection on your hands.

■ Keep clean hands away from mouth, nose, hair and body when preparing food.

■ Rewash hands after sneezes and coughs, and always use a clean tissue away from food.

■ Always wash hands after visiting the bathroom or touching garbage, cleaning supplies, and pets and their dishes or bedding.

Re-appointed to wetlands board

Brent Cooley has been re-appointed to the Independence Township Wetlands Board.

On June 18, the Independence Township Board voted unanimously to keep Cooley on the committee. The Clarkston Senior High assistant principal was named to the board a few months ago, replacing Harry Mosher.

Mosher left the wetlands board to take a seat on the planning commission, and his term on the wetlands board was set to expire this month.

Cooley's three-year term expires in June 1994.

Tips for canners

Canning season will soon be upon us and old-time canners as well as new may benefit from the latest information, according to Sylvia Treitman, home economist for the Oakland County Cooperative Extension Service.

U.S. Department of Agriculture canning recommendations have changed since 1989. Here are some important ones to note:

■ All home canned foods should be processed to prevent growth of bacteria: fruits, jams, jellies and pickles in boiling water bath; meats, poultry, fish and vegetables in pressure canner.

■ Add one tablespoon bottled lemon juice to each quart of canned tomatoes to assure proper acidity.

■ Do not use paraffin wax method of sealing jams and jellies. Use new lids and bands instead, and process jams in boiling water bath.

■ For more information, call the Food and Nutrition Hotline at 858-0904 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Matthew Newmarch was taken to Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital and released June 21 after treatment for multiple minor injuries.

Newmarch was riding his bike across Dixie Highway, Independence Township, when he struck the right side of a car driven by Matthew Vogt, 23, of Waterford.

Teen's sentencing delayed until July

The sentencing of a 14-year-old Independence Township boy, found guilty of reckless use of a firearm in the death of a friend, has been postponed until July 8.

Sentencing was adjourned so further testimony could be offered on the boy's behalf before Probate Judge Eugene Moore renders a sentence. The boy could receive anything from probation to incarceration in a juvenile facility until the age of 19.

The teen was found guilty of reckless use of a firearm by a jury June 4. Charges stem from the accidental shooting death of Independence Township resident Carmen Blehm, 15, in the boy's Oakvista home last December.

Mother of three fights blood disease

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Editor

Alma E. Allen-St. Croix, 32, had been feeling tired and had suffered from a high temperature off and on when she finally decided to go to her doctor in March. The preliminary diagnosis was pneumonia, but Alma

The Clarkston News Reflections Section 2

Wednesday, June 26, 1991 Page 29

went to work as a press operator at Truswal Systems Corp., Troy, anyway.

However, on the second day, she left work early, and when her husband, Jon, arrived home from work, he took her immediately to Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital's emergency room, where her temperature was measured at 105.

A chest X-ray showed that Alma did not suffer from pneumonia. Blood tests showed that her body was not producing white blood cells, leaving her, in effect, without an immune system.

She was placed in a "cooling bed" to try to reduce her temperature, and her family was told that she may suffer from leukemia.

On March 25, tests showed that she suffered from myelodysplastic syndrome, a leukemic blood disorder that usually brings death in five to 20 months.

Her oncologist, Carol Claycomb, said not much was known about the disease, but Alma had a 50-percent chance of not surviving the hospital stay.

Five weeks and one dose of chemotherapy later, Alma was home. She was told that her best chance for survival was a bone marrow transplant.

However, none of her eight siblings or three children matched, though five of her siblings matched each other, and three more siblings matched each other, too.

"I'm the oddball," said Alma.

That means she'll have to rely on the generosity of strangers to find a bone marrow match.

ALMA Allen-St. Croix is the mother of three: Dawn (left), 10; Mike, 12; and Krisi, 6. Alma and her husband, Jon, grew up in the Clarkston area and now reside in Pontiac. A related story appears on Page 34.

Alma and her husband, Jon, had grown up neighbors on Hadley Road, Independence Township, and had attended Clarkston schools. When they married a few years ago, Jon adopted Alma's two young children from a previous marriage, Mike, now 12, and Dawn, now 10. They also have 6-year-old Krisie. The family resides in Pontiac, though both sets of parents still live on Hadley Road.

Alma said she feels "fine" now, though she isn't able to work 40 hours.

"I just don't overdue it," she said.

Instead, she works around the house and spends time with her children, who are home from school for the summer.

And she's learning how to cope with a disease that might kill her.

"I try not to think about it," she said. "If it's your time, it's your time. I just take one day at a time."

It's difficult, though, and sometimes Alma cries herself to sleep.

"I try to hide it in front of people," she said. "The doctor said it's important to keep your spirits up, but it's not as easy as it sounds."

Because she is trying to remain as stress-free as possible, her family and friends have told her to relax and let them take care of raising money to pay medical expenses. But that, too, is difficult for a person used to working full time and caring for three children plus a house.

"You sort of get depressed because you feel left out," said Alma.

Without a bone marrow transplant, she knows she has only up to two years to live, said Alma. So she uses her remaining time to enjoy life.

"I spend a lot of time alone, doing things for me, things that I never had time to do before," she said. "Just little things, like spending a day just walking or taking a day and visiting friends. I spend more time with my family and with my kids."

Her illness is difficult on her family, she said.

"They're hurting. I can see it in their faces. They try to act cheery around me. My father, it hit him hard. The first thing he said was, 'Why you? Why couldn't it be me?' My father is 73 years old," she said.

Jon broke the news about Alma's illness to their children, but Krisie is too young to understand, Alma said.

Mike, however, does know what's happening, and

How to help Alma Allen-St. Croix

Donating bone marrow is not as difficult as some imagine, said Tillie St. Croix, whose daughter-in-law, Alma Allen St. Croix, is awaiting a bone marrow match.

To check for a suitable bone marrow donor, a "few teaspoonfuls" of blood are tested from volunteers ages 18 to 55, said St. Croix.

In many cases, the American Red Cross will test volunteers' blood right along with other procedures during a blood drive, she said. Tested one at a time through a hospital — as Alma's eight siblings and three children were — the test costs about $450.

However, the American Red Cross can offer the test to groups for about $60 each. Plus, additional fund-raising locally can pay for even that fee.

Once a volunteer agrees to have his or her blood tested, a small sample of blood is checked for four "human leukocyte antigens" (HLA). HLA are the structures on the surface of bone marrow cells that can recognize and reject foreign tissues. Chances are about one in 20,000 of any two people matching.

If the HLA matches, the same blood is tested further. If that, too, matches, then medical personnel "talk seriously" to the possible donor, said St. Croix.

"It's quite a psychological thing," she said. "They're very thorough. They want these people to be committed."

She explained that, in preparation for the bone marrow transplant, the patient's own bone marrow is destroyed in advance, so there's no backing out.

If the donor is willing, then a time is scheduled to take marrow from the back of the donor's hip, bone using a special syringe and needle. The procedure takes place in the operating room under general anesthesia.

The anesthesia insures that the donor won't feel pain when the bone marrow cells are removed. The needle puncture sites will be tender for about a week and may show slight scars. Some mild stiffness and tenderness will last for a day or so. The donor usually is released from the hospital the next day.

The small amounts of marrow and blood taken from the donor (usually one pint) do not result in any bad effects. Marrow cells are quickly produced by the donor's body, and the amount removed is manufactured in two or three weeks.

About a pint of blood will be taken before the marrow donation and will be given back to the donor to restore his or her blood volume.

Risks to a donor, though slim, do exist. Some people experience complications from anesthesia, such as nausea or a sore throat.

To date, more than 18,000 marrow transplants have been performed internationally.

In Alma's case, none of her eight siblings matched her bone marrow, and none of her three children provided a close enough match.

If an unrelated donor can be found, the cost of the transplant and recovery period could reach $100,000, which Alma's insurance company would not cover.

A date for local bone marrow testing is to be announced soon, said St. Croix.

■ For more information on bone marrow transplants or to donate money to help pay Alma's medical expenses, write: My Friends Care Leukemia Fund, C/O Alma St. Croix, P.O. Box 430934, Pontiac, MI 48343. The organization's tax-deductible number is: 788-169. For verification, call Pat Steele, bone marrow transplant coordinator, 993-0205.

■ Results of bone marrow donor tests will be added to the National Marrow Donor Program (NMDP) central registry or to the American Association of Bone Marrow Donor Registries (AABMDR) and may be matched with others who need bone marrow transplants. For more information, call NMDP at 1-800-654-1247 or AABMDR at 1-800-7-DONATE. Registries on behalf of a patient should contact The Caitlin Raymond International Registry of Bone Marrow Donor Banks at 1-800-7-MATCH.

"I try to hide it in front of people. The doctor said it's important to keep your spirits up, but it's not as easy as it sounds."

Alma Allen-St. Croix

that's hard, she said.

One other trial: her doctor told her to quit smoking. Smoking reduces her chances of survival by 30 percent.

"I haven't figured out how to do that yet," she said, explaining that she's trying. "Smoking helps my nerves."

But she takes pleasure in other things.

"I drink beer — it helps me relax. They told me to enjoy myself, so I am," she said.

She also is becoming an expert on myelodysplastic syndrome, which she admits she had trouble pronouncing.

"I never thought I'd have to learn about that," she said.

But mostly, she waits.

They caught it early, but they said chemo isn't going to help. I really have to just sit back and wait," she said.

U-M survey: Support for sobriety lines up

Nearly 90 percent of Michigan residents think drunken driving is a "somewhat serious or very serious" problem in their community, and more than 75 percent support increases in taxes on alcohol and fees for relicensing of drunken drivers to pay for countermeasures, according to a University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, traffic safety survey.

"Alcohol-impaired drivers have left their mark on Michigan communities, and most residents believe that the burden of reparation should be carried by the offenders, rather than all drivers," explained survey author Frederick M. Streff, research scientist at the U-M Transportation Research Institute.

The Michigan Omnibus Traffic Safety Survey, begun in 1987, polls Michigan residents' attitudes, perceptions and reported behaviors on such issues as licensing requirements, use of safety belts, drunken driving, speeding habits and enforcement of safety laws.

The most recent findings are based on telephone interviews with more than 750 Michigan adults conducted in the fall of 1990.

Most respondents reported drinking little or no alcohol. However, of those who did drink, nearly 20 percent said they drank to intoxication at least once in the previous two weeks.

Of these, more than 50 percent reported drinking to intoxication at home, while nearly 25 percent drank to intoxication in a bar. Eighty-six percent said they did not drive after drinking to intoxication.

In addition to the use of sobriety check lanes, a majority of survey respondents voiced support toughening the legal definition of intoxication by lowering the blood-alcohol concentration limit for drivers from .10 percent to .05 percent — and lowering it still further to 0 percent for drivers under age 21.

More than two-thirds of respondents favor immediate 90-day suspension of a drunken driver's license; a similar number support incarcerating convicted drunken driving offenders in minimum-security prisons rather than county jails.

More than 75 percent of respondents voiced support for increasing the state alcohol tax and relicensure fees for convicted drunken drivers to pay for drunk-driving countermeasures.

However, most respondents oppose increases in driver's license or plate fees or in state sales, income or gasoline taxes to raise such funds.

On other topics, a majority of respondents favor graduated licensing for young beginning drivers and older drivers. Under such a system, young drivers would generally acquire driving privileges as they demonstrated increased skill and experience; older drivers would gradually reduce their amount and type of driving as their ability declined.

More Michiganders say they're drinking at home and driving less when intoxicated.

While opinions are evenly split on the issue of a youth driving curfew that would prevent minors from driving between 11 p.m. and 5 a.m., a majority of respondents did favor a similar curfew for drivers 70 and older.

Study co-author Lisa Molnar notes that "the greatest support for such a law comes from respondents over 70, those most likely to be affected by such a measure."

More than 50 percent of respondents said they regularly drove at least 60 mph in Michigan's 55-mph zones, and more than 25 percent reported driving at least 65 mph. Almost half of the respondents believe drivers on these highways would not be ticketed unless they exceeded the speed limit by at least 10 mph.

On rural interstates, where the speed limit is generally 65 mph, a majority of those polled said they drove below 65 mph; more than 75 percent believed that drivers must exceed the speed limit by at least 5 mph on these roads before they would be ticketed.

More than 75 percent of respondents said they used a safety belt "all or most" of the time. A majority of respondents favored extending Michigan's safety-belt use law to rear-seat passengers.

While a majority do not yet support changing the law to allow police to stop a car solely on the basis of seat belt non-use, the proportion of residents supporting such a law increased from the last survey in 1988. Two-thirds of respondents said there was "at least a good chance" of getting a ticket for not using a safety belt if pulled over for speeding.

The survey also found that:

■ More than 75 percent of respondents think driver-education classes should be conducted in high schools.

■ Almost 75 percent of respondents favor a $1 increase in the annual motor vehicle registration fee to pay for improvements in rural emergency medical services.

Mother-in-law leads fund-raising for woman

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Editor

Tillie St. Croix manages to hang on to her humor, although she sometimes feels she can't hang on to much else.

She has been appointed family spokesperson because she said, "I'm the mouthy one."

Her daughter-in-law, Alma Allen-St. Croix, was diagnosed March 25 with myelodysplastic syndrome, a leukemic blood disorder that usually causes death within five to 20 months.

A bone marrow transplant is the only hope for a longer survival, and, for now, finding a suitable donor and money to pay for the operation at Harper Hospital is Tillie's mission.

Her daughter-in-law's diagnosis followed the news last November that Tillie's husband, Elwood (Bud), suffers multiple myeloma, a cancer that in his case attacked his arms, legs, spine and rib cage.

Due to Bud's diabetic condition, age, and the advanced stage of his cancer, his treatment is limited, said Tillie. He undergoes chemotherapy every three weeks. In the meantime, they concentrate on the quality of his life.

For Tillie, much of her energy is spent caring for her husband, trying to help her daughter-in-law and wondering if relief will ever come.

Her own mother died of breast cancer when Tillie was 18. Recently, three nieces have had lumpectomies, and she, herself, found a non-malignant lump just last month.

In addition, four years ago, she lost her sister to bone cancer.

"I saw what she went through," said Tillie, a Hadley Road, Independence Township, resident. "She didn't want to die in the hospital. I took care of her the last three weeks. The pain — the excruciating pain she suffered. Nobody should have to die like that."

Through her experiences, Tillie has educated herself on cancer and treatment of cancer. A retired nursing service supervisor after 23 years at Clinton Valley Center, Tillie now works part time in a group home.

She is familiar with medical terminology, but she had difficulty finding information on Alma's disease. The cancer society had no pamphlets about myelodysplastic syndrome, but Independence Township's library director, Molly Lynch — a former medical librarian, knew exactly who to call to get written material on the syndrome, said Tillie.

Once thought to be a "pre-leukemia," it is now considered a disease in its own right, Tillie said, adding that almost nothing is known about it.

However, recent research "points in the direction of pesticides" as a cause, said Tillie.

She recalls the day Alma, whose family lives five doors down from the St. Croixes, learned of her disease.

The oncologist told the family and Alma: "We don't know the best way of treating this," recalled Tillie. "Anything I give you might kill you."

A week later, Alma received a dose of chemotherapy and spent five weeks in the hospital. She attempted to return to work to maintain her insurance benefits, but she was unable to work.

Fortunately, her husband, Jon's, insurance also covers her. Of her medical expenses, the insurance company paid for her blood tests, chemotherapy and hospital stay, but it will not cover the bone marrow transplant, which it considers experimental.

If a suitable bone marrow donor is found, the medical bill could add up to $100,000 more than what the insurance will pay for.

"It's not just a thing that you get the transplant, it's all over, and you're better," said Tillie. "It probably means 100 days in the hospital after the transplant.

"It's a scary thing. ... They're very, very ill. They have to be in a completely sterile environment," she said.

It's also frightening for the children, said Tillie.

All of Alma's family members were tested — at $450 each — to see if their bone marrow would be a suitable match. Before the testing, Alma's daughter, Dawn, 10, crying, hugged Tillie and said, "Oh, Grandma, I hope my blood matches my mama's, so I can make her well."

None of the relatives matched. The next step is a national computer search to find a perfect match from an unrelated donor, said Tillie. However, the cost to merely access the computer is $5,000.

In addition, more people should be tested to provide a greater chance that a match will be found. Through the American Red Cross, the blood test costs about $66.

Tillie, whose friends and family raised $1,181 through car washes and donation canisters last weekend, found that the government doesn't allow tax-deductible fund-raising for individuals, only for groups.

So all fund-raising is directed to My Friends Care Leukemia Fund, which was established a few years ago specifically to help raise money for cancer patients' medical expenses.

Any money raised that is not used for Alma's medical expenses will be used by My Friends Care to help other cancer patients.

Tillie, with help from Alma's brother Rodney, already is planning other fund-raising activities. In addition to the canisters placed at area businesses, they are planning an auction, a yard sale and possibly a walk-a-thon, perhaps at a park such as Indian Springs Metropark.

And Tillie recently pulled out her Christmas card list and wrote to her friends.

"I'm not too proud to ask for $5," she said. "There are good people out there; there really are."

Help is beginning to pour in. Jon, who works for Nagle Paving, is allowed to use the company's 800-number and copy machine.

Alma and Jon's three children, too, are helping.

"The kids pitch in and do the cleaning and do the dishes," said Tillie. "Alma does the cooking. The kids might fight, but they help. They're good kids."

Hopefully, they all can hang on until a perfect bone marrow match is found for Alma, said Tillie.

"She deserves the chance to see her kids grow up," Tillie said, adding that Alma and Jon were happily married.

The two grew up together on Allen Road. After Alma was divorced with two young children, she married Jon, who adopted young Mike and Dawn. Then, Jon and Alma had Krisie, now 6.

They're suited to each other, said Tillie.

"She's a best buddy. She goes hunting with him and hiking. ... She's just a sweetheart.

"If there's any kind of a chance at all, she's going to be the one to make it," she said.

Nurse's research leads to Nightingale award

Joan Munchiando of the Clarkston area has been given the 1991 Florence Nightingale Award from the Oakland University School of Nursing, Rochester.

She is the nurse manager of a 26-bed rehabilitation unit at William Beaumont Hospital in Royal Oak. A nurse since 1982, Munchiando received $1,000 and a figurine at a May 7 reception honoring this year's Nightingale Award winner and nominees.

A Beaumont nurse since 1982, Munchiando was recognized for a research study comparing the effectiveness of two bowel training programs for stroke patients.

Munchiando has a bachelor of science degree in nursing from Oakland University and is a certified rehabilitation registered nurse. She is a past president and director-at-large of the Michigan Association of Rehabilitation Nurses.

The OU Nightingale Award is given each year to one area nurse who conducts research and communicates the findings to the nursing community.

The award is named after Florence Nightingale, the "founder of modern nursing," who is popularly known for her courage in leading a group of nurses to the battlefield in Russia to care for sick or wounded soldiers.

In medical circles, she is known for her innovative research of stricter sanitation methods that led to a reduction in deaths. Nightingale drew ornate statistical diagrams called "coxcombs" to share her research findings with others.

The OU Nightingale Award recognizes improvements in patient care.

The wave of the future in housing

Phoenix Homes combines the proven building methods of yesteryear with the modern technologies of today.

Some people call it modular; others call it industrialized housing. One thing you should please not call it, says Jim Siudara, owner of Phoenix Homes, is a trailer or mobile home.

Then what is it? It's stick building your home in a controlled environment. "That means I have 220 carpenters that build your home in a plant where it literally sunshines every day," Siudara says. "We don't have to put up with weather delays; we don't have to put up with thieves; we don't have cost overruns.

"Ten years from now I venture to say the vast majority of homes -- 90 percent -- will be made in a plant.

Even today, Siudara offers 50 different models and he's already built over 100 houses in the area. "If I don't have a model of the exact house you're looking for, chances are I may have built that home for somebody else," he says. "If you like, we can give them a call. I think they'd be happy and proud to show you the quality and workmanship of the house they're living in."

Phoenix Homes is unique because Siudara handles all the designs, financing, construction and site work. That leaves the owner with a superior product without all the headaches.

Siudara says he is willing to work with customers who may have a tradesman in the family or want to do some of the work themselves. "If you can save some money, I'm all for you, and I'm willing to supervise to make sure there are no mistakes," he said. "Twenty to 25 percent of my customers have the ability to do something on their own. I'm all for that. It's a very large investment."

Siudara features the same name-brand products as other builders, whether it's carpeting, cabinetry, roofing, shingles or vinyl flooring. Here again, the customer makes the choices. The factory furnishes what you've selected. The house comes complete, from paint to carpeting.

"I deal only in Heckman Homes because they are the Cadillac of the industry," Siudara said.

Jim Siudara will prove that buying a house from him is easy. His office is located in the Acheson's Building in downtown Oxford. Call 628-4700 for more information.

"Heckman is the best of builders as evidenced by my many daily referrals. They have taken first two years in a row at builder's shows at Cobo Hall," he said.

Siudara, who has lived in the Oxford/Metamora area for the last 17 years, has experience in rehabbing and conventional stick-built construction. He points out that "industrialized housing" is all he does. It's not a sideline. It's how he makes his living.

"And I think that's what makes me unique today," he said. "I give you that extra attention."

Last year, over 27 percent of all housing permits in Oakland County were for this type of housing. "This concept is really the future. It comes in at exactly the price you quote, and you do it in one-third the time," he said.

Once your home is ordered and all your customizing has been finalized and the home has arrived at the designated site, you usually can move into the home in approximately 30 days, weather permitting.

"When I tell you the house is going to be here, we can sit back and watch it arrive. It's a delightful experience to see your dream home happen before your eyes."

Developer opens new complex in Hamburg

A Clarkston-area man has developed a 14-lot complex of single-family housing in Hamburg Township. Gary L. Mitchell, president of The Louis Development Corp., developed Fox Run Estates, a complex of detached housing about 6 miles from U.S. 23, just north of Ann Arbor.

Mitchell represents the third generation of Michigan developers and builders in his family.

Mitchell's grandfather, Charles L. Langs, developed the first federally subsidized senior citizens complex in Pontiac in the 1950s.

Mitchell's father, Robert K. Mitchell, was a builder of private homes, most of which are located in the Bloomfield Hills area.

"I guess you could say it was preordained that I would become a developer," said Mitchell. "My grandfather and dad were both excellent models for me to follow."

Mitchell said Fox Run Estates should be comfortable yet affordable.

"I think we've come up with beautiful homes that the average family will be able to afford," he said.

He said the Hamburg area is "largely untapped in terms of development and features lakes and wooded areas."

Eye care conference

Ray Fligman, one of the owners of 1st Optometry-Clarkston on Dixie Highway, Independence Township, attended the May Eye Quest Midwest Conference '91 at Chicago's Hyatt Regency O'Hare and the Rosemont Exposition Center.

Eye Quest attendees could choose from 250 hours of continuing education covering such subjects as contact lenses, primary care, dispensing, practice and business management.

About 3,000 Midwestern practitioners and personnel turned out for the third annual conference.

Voluntary pay freeze

One public official from Independence Township voluntarily decided to forego a raise this year due to a tight budget.

At a recent meeting, the Board of Road Commissioners for Oakland County were informed by John L. Grubba, Road Commission managing director, that "after discussion with members of the executive classification and due to the budgetary funding reductions and monetary problems the Road Commission is currently experiencing, I, Brent Bair, Gerry Holmberg and all department directors will give up the three-percent increase in salary, which in accordance with the past practice of the Board would have been provided."

Bair resides in Independence Township.

In a letter to Road Commission employees, Grubba said, "it comes as no secret to you that this and every other road agency in the state is having increasing revenue problems."

"The essential question is and always will be ... where do we get the money to provide the level of service our customers expect and we want to deliver."

"Our revenue each of the past seven months has been less than last year and much less than our expectation was when we developed this year's budget."

In informing employees of the executives' willingness to give up the three-percent wage increase, Grubba declared, "This action may not result in large savings, but like other efforts, it adds up."

The effect of the frozen wage increase will be to provide more than $25,000 to the Road Commission general fund — equal to one road worker's annual pay.

Ordained church elder

Christopher D. Cowdin was ordained elder in the United Methodist Church on Waldon Road, Clarkston, June 7.

Bishop Judith Craig of the Detroit Annual Conference performed the ordination during the 150th Annual Conference on the campus of Adrian College, Adrian.

Cowdin has been appointed by Craig to the Utica Methodist Church. He began June 16. Cowdin graduated with a master of divinity degree from Garrett-Evangelical Theological Seminary in Evanston, Ill.

He is the son of Philip and Charlotte Cowdin of Clarkston, and his wife is Theresa.

Refrigerator muffin recipe unsafe

Sometimes a recipe comes along that is just too good to be true, according to Sylvia Treitman, home economist for the Oakland County Cooperative Extension Service.

"The refrigerator muffin recipe that calls for keeping the batter containing raw egg and other ingredients in the refrigerator for up to six weeks is one to watch out for," she said.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture is concerned that this type of recipe containing raw egg and low sugar may grow bacteria, even in the refrigerator.

The original recipe gave directions for mixing up a raw muffin batter, keeping it in the refrigerator for up to six weeks — baking small batches as needed.

It sounded like a great time saver and labor saving idea, said Treitman. However, due to the possibility of bacterial growth, keep batter with raw egg no more than three days in the refrigerator.

Since it is advised that you do not use this type of refrigerator muffin recipe, here are some other safe ideas for fast muffin making:

■ Using a regular muffin recipe, measure out all dry ingredients the night before, and add the wet ingredients including raw egg in the morning when ready to bake.

■ Make up a bulk supply of homemade "master mix" (dry muffin mix) to which liquid ingredients can be added.

■ Bake and freeze large batches of muffins, defrost and use as needed.

To receive a free recipe for homemade "master mix," send a stamped self-address envelope to the Cooperative Extension Service, 1200 N. Telegraph, Pontiac, MI 48341.

For other questions on food safety, nutrition or food preservation, call the Food and Nutrition Hotline, 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday at 858-0904.

Program helps kids 'play it safe'

Children ages 4, 5 and 6 have a chance to have fun and learn safety at the same time.

"Play It Safe" is offered two sessions: 9:30-11:30 a.m. and 1-3 p.m. Monday through Friday, July 8 through July 19.

The children's program takes place at the First Church of God on Clarkston Road, Independence Township.

Offered by the Independence Township Parks and Recreation Department, the program costs $45 for residents and $50 for non-residents.

Each day, children will learn different safety aspects, including such areas as traffic, animal, water, poison, hospital and more.

A miniature safety town also will be set up, so the children can "play" at being safe.

To register, stop by the parks and rec. office at the lower level of the township hall, 90 N. Main St., Clarkston. For more information, call 625-8223.

Summer adventures offered through books

Children of all ages may want to "Read on the Wild Side" in this summer.

The Springfield Township Library is offering a summer reading program sporting the statewide three.

Special features of the program include animal balloon sculpting, Michigan mammals slide show, the "Jungle Book" show with Keith the Ventriloquist, pizza and awards party, scavenger hunt and coloring contest.

Children who read or have read to them 12 more books will be awarded prizes and certificates.

A new part of the program will be Book Bingo for young adults ages 12 and up. Teens may read books from different categories (mysteries, romance, sports). When they "bingo" or finish the card, they will receive fast food coupons and posters.

To register or for more information, call the library at 625-0595.

A BOA constrictor wraps around small children such as Kiley Stone as if they were a tree.

PRESCHOOLERS are delighted when a turtle crawls over their hands. Jeff Lowrie (center), 5, and Andra Barget, 5, get help from others in covering a hole so the turtle won't fall through. The reptile visited the group at Clarkston Elementary School during Living Science Camp, which was offered last week through Clarkston Community Education.

A SOFT rabbit is a favorite among Chris Kleber, 5, and other children.

A BABY hedgehog curls into a ball when Chris Kieber (left), 5, and Kiley Stone, also 5, look at it with Kiley's mother, Marty. Science Interpreter Kathy Guezen said the animal uses the position as a defense against predators.
