Report: Few dropouts

BY CURT MCALLISTER Clarkston News Staff Writer

Apparently, word of the national education system's demise hasn't reached the Clarkston area yet.

According to the Clarkston Community Schools 1990-91 Annual Report, this district isn't about to fall under a shroud of illiteracy as many of this country's doomsayers predict.

Statistics show quite the contrary. The two factors hurting the nation's schools — student dropouts and the lack of adult interaction — are two of Clarkston's strong points.

According to the report, which was issued three ported to and from school daily, using a fleet of some 36 buses.

A survey of the graduating class of 1990 showed that 54.8 percent are attending a four-year college, 19.3 percent are attending a two-year college and 6.9 percent are going to a vocational/ trade school.

Test scores from the Michigan Educational Assessment Program (MEAP) ranked with last year's tallies, with Clarkston students again rating higher than state averages.

Clarkston students averaged 21.1 on the ACT in 1990-91. The state and national average is 20.6.

Seven hundred twelve students served detention at CHS last year.

includes Emil Sutt of Springfield Township. His band will lead the children's march this week, which is an end-ofconcert tradition of Clarkston's free concerts.

The Clarkston Area Youth Assistance will provide concessions for the evening, but concert-goers may want to bring their own picnic suppers or snacks.

They also may want to bring blankets or lawn chairs and bug spray.

The five free summer concerts are sponsored by the Clarkston Area Chamber of Commerce and First of America Bank; however, donations still are accepted to help offset the cost.

Send donations to: Clarkston Area Chamber of Commerce, Concert Fund, 5897 Dixie Highway, Clarkston, MI 48346.

The remaining concerts this summer include: July 12, Russ Simonson Quintet (jazz); July 19, Auto City Banjo; July 26, Metropolitan Jazz Orchestra.

weeks ago, more than 500 parents and school friends worked on last year's millage/ bond issue elections. At parent-teacher conferences and extra-curricular events, at least 60 percent of the district's parents came on behalf of their children in the 1990-91 school year.

Andersonville Elementary School, for example, led the way in parent participation in parent-teacher conferences last year. Their records show that 96 percent of the students' parents attended conferences.

The dropout rate for Clarkston schools also remains close to non-existent.

Using the formula by the Michigan Department of Education, Clarkston's dropout rate is less than 1 percent. In reality, however, district records indicate that 6 percent of children who enroll at the 10th-grade level in Clarkston schools drop out before graduating.

Due to the length and diversity of the district's annual report, The News has listed a few of the document's detailed statistics:

Road options include Clintonville-I-75 exit

BY DENNIS V. CARTER Clarkston News Staff Writer

Four proposed options for improving the road conditions in the area were presented to the public June 26 at the Pine Knob Elementary School, Independence Township.

The options were explained by a consultation group for the Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT) as part of the North Oakland County/I-75 Corridor study.

According to David Wresinski, program director, the public meeting was the third in series to give area residents an idea of the projected problems and the solutions proposed by MDOT.

In November 1990, MDOT began working on the study, which offers ways to alleviate traffic congestion along a 12-mile stretch near I-75 that includes parts of Independence and Springfield townships. "We have to decide if the short-term loss is worth the long-term gain."

Joseph Corradino existing conditions, road capacity is exceeded on White Lake Road from Andersonville Road to M-15 in Clarkston: on Waldon Road between Sashabaw Road and Clintonville Road; on sections of Sashabaw Road north and south of Walton Boulevard; and on Baldwin Road north and south of I-75. With projected development between now and 2010, the road problems are expected to worsen. Additionally, according to the SEMCOG report, congestion problems could appear on Clarkston Road and on sections of Waldon Road. Increased travel demand would cause capacity to be exceeded on Dixie Highway between 1,75 and Walton Boulevard and possibly on sections of Walton Boulevard. Congestion on Sashabaw Road, north and south of Walton Boulevard, could become severe, as could congestion on an unimproved Clintonville Road, south of Waldon Road. Also, for the first time, I-75 itself could be over capacity. The four improvement alternatives are as follows: Origin/ Destination Alternative: This emphasizes development of roadways and corridors serving major generators, based on existing and projected travel demand. Major generators include the Pine Knob recreational area, the Orion Township General Motors plant, the Palace of Auburn Hills and the Auburn Mills Mall. The Chrysler Center, though out of the study area, also would impact the area.

Improvements already are on the way to M-15 south of Clarkston to Dixie Highway. And improvements are proposed to M-15 under the Origin/ Destination Alternative from I-75 north to the township line.

Due to Clarkston's strong position against improvements to M-15 within its jurisdiction, an option under this plan is to terminate M-15 from the north as a state trunkline at I-75 and route trunkline traffic via I-75 and Dixie Highway, rather than through Clarkston. This would allow the Village of Clarkston to control Ortonville Road within its boundaries.

Under this plan, White Lake also would be improved from Andersonville Road north to Clarkston.

Over the next 20 years, a Southeastern Michigan Council of Governments (SEMCOG) study projected that a majority of the thoroughfares in and around Independence Township could exceed the roadways' capacities.

However, to make projected needed improvements, a number of houses, residents and businesses would have to be relocated under some of the plans.

"We have to look at all aspects of the project, as far environmental concerns, cost and displacement of homes and businesses (are concerned)," said Joeseph Corradino. According to Corradino, in one plan some 27. businesses would have to be taken out on Dixie Highway and Walton Boulevard.

Walton Boulevard. "We have to look at how the loss of these businesses and the employment they provide will match up against the loss of businesses and employment because of what could happen if the traffic problems are not taken care of in the future." he said "We have to decide if the shortterm loss is worth the long-term gain." Already, the SEMCOG study shows that, under Sashabaw Road, too, would be improved.

This plan also calls for Waldon Road to be widened, paved and reconstructed between Sashabaw Road and M-24; however, sensitive wetlands are along the route.

It also calls for widening Sashabaw Road to five lanes from Clarkston to Waldon roads in Independence Township and from Walton Boulevard to Dixie Highway in Waterford Township. Lake Angelus Road would become a five-lane road from Baldwin to Joslyn in Auburn Hills.

- Under this plan, no businesses would have to be displaced, and the cost would be about $75 million.

Grid Alternative: This emphasizes development of a grid system on the local roadway network to provide a logical pattern for traffic flow.

In the grid plan, the improvements would be to county roads in Independence, Waterford and Orion townships plus Auburn Hills Roads affected in Independence Township are Clintonville, Maybee, Waldon, M-15, and Sashabaw. This plan is estimated to cost some $113 million.

Survey of structures helps plot township's past

BY CURT MCALLISTER Clarkston News Associate Editor

Wed., July 3, 1991 The Clarkston (Mich.) News

Independence Township now has a survey that will provide its governing bodies and residents with a documented history of the area's historic structures.

A copy of the historic structure survey arrived at the township offices last week. It includes detailed information on 110 homes in the township.

Broken into six sectors, the survey provides its readers with a historical background on the area's first settlers and its old standing structures.

These sectors include: the northwest quadrant, the Clinton River area, the Walter's Lake area, the Clarkston-Saginaw Trail quadrant, the Pine Knob area and the Sashabaw Plains sector.

According to Clerk Joan McCrary, this is the first of three possible survey phases. This first one covers homes built predominantly in the 19th century. In the latter two phases, McCrary would like to see the homes built in the 1920s and 1940s catalogued.

McCrary said the survey could come in handy if the township ever initiates a historical preservation ordinance. She said Dick Carlisle, the township's planner, is presently looking at other communities to see if they have such an ordinance and, if so, how they enforce it.

The survey was put together by Preservation Planning, Inc., of Franklin.

At a cost of $8,700, this firm poured over numerous documents from: property owners, the Independence Township Library, the Oakland County Register of Deeds, the Pioneer Historic Society, the Pontiac Public Library and the township's tax records.

Besides investigation, the fee entailed documentation, photography and printing.

In the survey, each landmark is given a page for documentation. Drawn up in an inventory-like fashion, each page includes: photos, the structure's historical name, the common name, the original usage of the property, its present usage and date of construction.

Preceding each of the six documented sectors are also short anthologies of that area's first settlers and how

This plan would also add an interchange to I-75 at Clintonville Road and would improve most local county roads.

■ Collector/ Distributor Alternative: This focuses on construction of a new roadway in the city of Auburn Hills from Opdyke Road at its terminus with M-24, north to the west limit of the Auburn Mills Mall.

Concentration is focused mostly on road improvements in the Auburn Hills area, where a lot of the development and traffic is expected to be in the future. It is estimated to cost $84 million and would have the least impact on residents and businesses.

focuses the traffic and economic development in the Dixie-Walton Corridor from the west project limit to cial development and strengthen the local roadway infrastructure.

Waterford Township, Sashabaw Road in Independence Township and Clintonville Road in Independence Township, plus Giddings Road in Auburn Hills.

This plan would displace the most businesses and is estimated to cost about $39 million.

At the next meeting, which should be in late summer or early fall, MDOT representatives will be looking for feedback from the public on the four proposals and will give any information that could clear up questions the public has on highway strategy.

they expanded the land.

It tracks the area's first white settler, John W. Beardslee, who purchased land in the Sashabaw Plains area in 1826, and many other families who migrated and settled the land.

Those interested in viewing this survey can contact the Independence Township clerk's office at 625-5111.

Bill gives towns power to stop nude dancing

A legislative package that would allow cities, villages and townships to prohibit nude entertainment was approved by the Michigan House June 25, according to an area lawmaker who sponsored one of the bills.

State Rep. Thomas Middleton, Ortonville, who serves on the House Towns and Counties Committee, said it was important to give all local governmental units the ability to enact ordinances.

"If only cities were granted the right, then nude entertainment would simply locate across the boundary line," Middleton said. "This comprehensive package was necessary because each type of local unit is governed by a different statute.'

The Michigan legislation comes less than a week after the U.S. Supreme Court ruled that enforcement of Indiana's public decency law to prevent nude dancing did not violate the First Amendment. Justices made a distinction between "freedom of speech" and "expressive conduct" and decided on a 5-4 vote that the Indiana statute was not invalidated by the First Amendment.

Middleton said at least 47 states have public indecency statutes.

The three-bill House package now goes before the Senate for further consideration.

"Probably about two years ago. I got to spend it with my daughter. I hadn't seen her for a year. We went to the fireworks together." Tony Sanchez Stone mason Auburn Hills

I remember one Fourth of July my family spent in Stockton, Mo., where my grandparents lived. As usual, the July air in Stockton was hot, humid and heavy, and my brothers and I had spent the day hanging over the bridge just north of the town square.

It was just a short walk from my grandparents' house on the edge of town. On the way there, trudging through high grass, I accidentally stepped on a garter snake in my bare feet. I can still feel the warm, dry, tickling, swift exit it made beneath the arch of my foot Startled, I had jumped, but my brother Ronny (The Scientist) pointed out that the snake was much more scared than I.

He was right, of course. But I had dropped one handful of last year's June bug shells my grandfather had saved for us. Luckily, I still hung onto the other handful — or rather, they still hung onto me. Their stiff, curled legs caught onto each other and to my hand and formed a sort of chain.

I began to reach for the dropped bugs among the long blades of grass but, thinking of the garter snake, thought better of it.

The June bug shells provided some of our favorite activities while visiting in Stockton each year. In fact, one year when we visited in a season other than summer, my grandfather sent a brown paper-wrapped box stuffed full of the giant beetle shells, carefully packed between slabs of thick cotton. No package in the mail has brought such pleasure since.

On that July 4th, I don't know if my brothers, too, carried the June bugs with them. Ronny probably carried a stick, and Andy (not yet too horrible) likely struggled to keep up with us.

Once at the creek that ran beneath the bridge, Andy and I pranced in the lush green grass, soft in comparison to the prickly dry vegetation further from the stream.

Ronny, however, waded in the creek, catching crawdads and trying to catch minnows, who were too quick for even his practiced hands.

Andy and I watched as huge grasshoppers leapt over us, and we picked sweet clover and chewed it, then tried grass and spit it out. We tossed walnuts back and forth and sometimes at Ronny.

Finally, the three of us sat on the bridge — I ever mindful of the spider webs — and watched the water pass below. We had grown tired of tossing twigs on one side of the bridge, then rushing to the other side to see them carried away.

Suddenly, a long, narrow, black mass wriggled in the water below, and Ronny, whose wet feet still glistened in the sunshine, shouted, "It's a water moccasin!"

Running to the water's edge, he informed us that this type of snake was poisonous, and with one bite, it could kill us. Andy and I, gingerly walking along the grass at the edge of the bridge, believed him, though he had been known to mix made-up tales of horror along with real ones.

It goes like this: Both players hit a tee ball. They switch for the second shot (no ball can be struck by the same golfer twice in a row). They alternate shots through the hole.

We started on a hole with tall, thick grass (rough) on the left side of the fairway. Son Jim is a slicer of huge proportions, meaning his ball will go to the right as far as it can . . . and often.

Soon, the moccasin was out of sight, and we began the walk back to my grandparents' house, where it would be cooler in the darkened rooms and where a filling lunch (which Southerners called dinner) no doubt was being prepared.

Later, we would light up the darkness with sparklers, attempting to run around the house before they burned themselves out.

And we would watch as older brothers and sisters and cousins created a show of brightly colored fireworks whose beauty was nearly eclipsed by their jarring explosions.

And we would sleep soundly, dreaming of June bugs leaping over water moccasins who carried sparklers into a deepening stream.

Well, maybe Penny didn't totally forgive Dante. The talent came from Verdi Opera Theatre of Michigan; Jack Morris, tenor, Jan Rae, coloratura, Comm. Dino Valle, baritone and David Wilson, pianist.

If you know Dante you also know that he could not be left out of the singing. Besides singing arias, he got everyone involved when he changed the mood temporarily with an Irish song.

The singing came between champagne, antipasto, pasta, fish, salad, chicken tosca and dessert. The eat-'n-listen evening was most enjoyable.

Speaking means repercussions

Here I go again, practicing my rights of free speech. But as the case turns out to be in the beautiful Clarkston area, freedom of speech just gets you in trouble if a person or persons in a power position doesn't like what you have to say.

I am referring to the Town Hall Meeting open public, forum presented by the Clarkston Board of Education in June.

I understood that this public forum was for the purpose of area residents to be able to voice their concerns and complaints. Did I miss something? I don't think so, but what I discovered is very sad and disturbing.

Since the article was printed in the June 19th issue, using my name and my concerns (as well as others'), I have been a target by certain administrators and teachers for repercussions because they were upset over what I said.

I have received very upsetting phone calls and maybe even threats if I interpret what was said to me correctly. I've been told (warned) that I'd better watch what I say or else!

What "or else" is, I don't know, but I'm sure that I'll find out if I refuse to get scared and shut up about what I know, see and feel. Now, that's scary, but I still believe in the first amendment and have hope that as adults we can overcome our childish bitterness and set a good example for our children in this school system.

When will we realize that we, the teachers, administrators and parents, are teaching our kids that they can't learn in anything less than a "state of the art" building. An older building in some mysterious way affects our ability to teach and to learn.

Segregation is also a requirement in order to teach and to learn. For some reasons, it's still believed by some that all kids have to be categorized and separated according to a man-given label. Being a human being isn't sufficient enough by man's standard.

Whatever you do, kids, don't disagree with anyone in the education field — even if you have a real concern you think needs to be addressed. Look what happened to Mom and Dad when they voiced a concern. You don't want that to happen to so, so you'd better just go along and keep your opinions to yourself.

Fortunately, I'm an optimistic person and believe that good will prevail in the end.

I look forward to the day when we've grown up and can be a good example for our children.

Let's start right now by proving that as adults we can work together to resolve our disagreements without mudslinging and threats.

Let's not forget to teach the lesson, "You can't always get what you want" but will always get what you need.

Maybe Clarkston can't provide state of the art buildings, etc., because of hard economical times, but why should that affect our ability for providing the best education?

With a little creativity and sincere educators, the best can't be taken away.

The outside appearance of a school doesn't mean it's not a good school. It's what is happening in that school that is really important. We can do wonderful things with the school we have now if we just make up our minds to do it and stop worrying so much about material appearances.

"God purposely chose what the world considers nonsense in order to put powerful men to shame. He chose what the world looks down on, and despises and thinks is nothing, in order to destroy what the world thinks is important." (Corinthians 1:27-28)

"Men judge by outward appearances, but I look at a man's thoughts and intentions." (Samuel 16:7)

If you print this in your paper, please don't use my name for fear of further repercussions. I'm not a coward, only human, and have enough repercussions to deal with now because I felt it was safe to speak out. Name withheld

Music would make our parade better

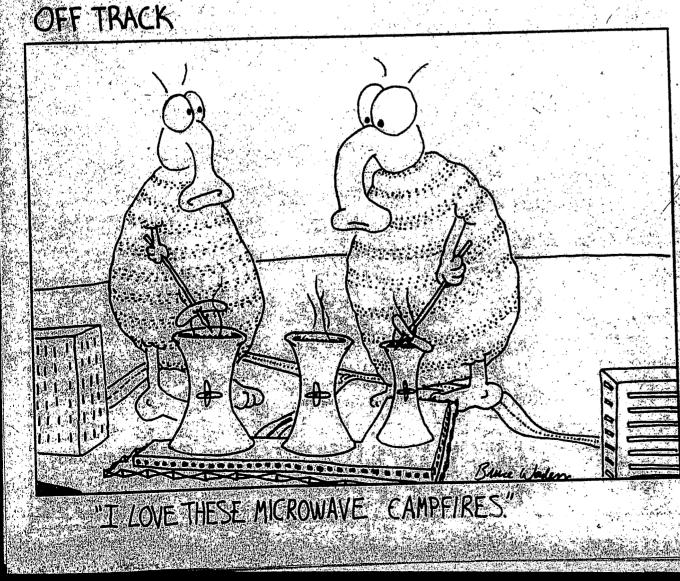

Last July 4th, Clarkston's parade was pretty bland, with all the people in the various units and on the floats staring wide-eyed and with blank expressions ... which in turn received the same response from the sideliners.

Every unit and or floar should have its own music, preferably marching time. A simple tape recorder will do the job. Let's celebrate with some enthusiasm.

Remember we stand and salute the first marching flag unit.

P.S. I love a parade.

The Clarkston (Mich.) News Wed. July 3, 1991 7

Independence is important to elderly homebound people. I wanted to tell you that in time for Independence Day. It is crucial that important news be spread in a timely, caring manner. Some government agencies don't seem to appreciate that importance, which is too bad for thousands of poor elderly Americans.

Eighty-four-year-old Geraldine, a neighbor of mnine, is one of them. She would be embarrassed if I revealed her full name. In last Tuesday's newspaper, Geraldine read an article that began:

"More than two million poor elderly Americans may be paying $1,000 or more a year in Medicare premiums and deductibles because no one has told them the government will cover the out-of-pocket expenses..."

Under a law updated last year, single people with yearly incomes of less than $4,000, and couples who earn less than $8,800 and have assets of less than $6,000, can have Medicare deductions eliminated from their Social Security checks. But no one has told them about it.

"If this were a benefit for the two million richest people in the United States, the president and Congress would make sure that the job was done and that everyone received the benefit," said Ron Pollack; head of Families USA, an advocacy group for senior health care issues. Amen.

Realizing she'd been missing out on somthing due her, Geraldine phoned Society Security. She was told to call the state Social Services (welfare) Department where, for the next two days, she was bounced from one phone number to another, finally totaling seven.

None of the welfare workers seemed to know what Geraldine was talking about. When she persisted, she was told that someone would look into the matter and call her back. There was no call back. When Geraldine phoned again and again, she finally was promised that someone would call and make an appointment to see her. She wasn't told when.

Geraldine was told "it isn't necessary for you to have that inofmration" when she asked the name of each Social Services worker she talked to. At this writing, Geraldine is waiting and wondering whether she'll live long enough to stop paying for medical care that's supposed to be free.

I'm watching her case and cursing a government that knows how to use billions of taxpayers' dollars to bail out millionarie S&L executives, but not how to give poor elderly people the measly $1000-per-year benefit owed them.

Now, back to Independence Day and a chance to do more than curse. Every Fourth of July there is considerable priase expressed for those Americans who fought in the wars that helped establish and preserve our independence. Michael, 69, is a veteran of World War II. Like Geraldine, he would be embarrassed to have his full name published along with this request for the help he needs to keep his independence.

Michael has been bed-bound since March, when a lung infection left him too weak to walk. He is cared for by his 73-year-old wife. Jenny, who, with high blood pressure and angina, is feeling overwhelmed. Their two children live out of state. Michael and Jenny want to keep living in their own home, and home-delivered meals make that possible. But the government-funded Meals on Wheels program is not available on holidays, including Independence Day.

That's where Holiday Meals on Wheels comes in. Supported by private donations and staffed by volunteers, the program is operated by the Area Agency on Aging in six area counties. And it needs help, or many oldsters like Michael and Jenny will miss hot meals and, just as important, perhaps their only holiday vistor.

Checks made out to Holiday Meals on Wheels can be sent to Area Agency on Aging 1-B, 29508 Southfield Road, Southfield 48076. Or volunteer by calling 569-0333, 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. weekdays. Onward and Upwart, independently, with private and, please, public help.

Homemade dishes can be frozen

Homemade frozen "diet" dinners offer many advantages over purchased ones, according to Sylvia Treitman, home economist for the Oakland County Cooperative Extension Service

When you prepare your own meals and freeze them you are in control of the ingredients," Treitman said. You can cut down on fat, salt and sugar, substituting healthier" ingredients and by adding herbs and spices you can add favor. Preparing frozen dinners yourself gives you the opportunity of increasing fiber and adds nutrients through veggies rich in vitamin A and C (often missing in commercial meals).

"You are also sure that no additional additives andpreservatives are included," said Treitman. Another distinct advantage is the cost factor - buying quantity ingredients saves money. Usually dinners prepared at home save about half the cost of the purchased ones.

"When time permits, prepare several large-quantity recipes at one time, and divide into individual freezer containers," Treitman said.

Some tips to help you get started:

To retain crispness, do not overcook food. Individually package dinners well in freezer proof or freezer safe materials. Allow a half inch head space in freezer containers as liquids may expand.

Do not fry foods that you intend to freeze, they tend to get soggy besides being a poor choice for a "healthy" meal. Use arrowroot or cornstarch rather than flour to thicken sauces - (less chance of separating). For more tips on preparing healthy frozen TV/din-ners at home or other food- and nutrition-related questions, call the Food and Nutrition Hotline 8:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Friday, 858-0904.

Uncle Sam shows a lot of heart by joining parade

BY CURT MCALLISTER Clarkston News Associate Editor

Despite an ailing heart, Ernest May will be one of the headliners at the Independence Township Fourth of ERNEST MAY, an Auburn Hills resident, has been portraying Uncle Sam for the past 15 years. He will be appearing in Independence Township's Fourth of July Parade.

CORRECTION: In the June 26th edition of the The Roy Brothers Standard "Happy Birthday America" ad should have read June 27th thru 30th. Sorry for any inconvenience.

July Parade.

The 51-year-old May is best known for his portrayal of Uncle Sam. Since 1985, he's been the "official" Uncle Sam of the City of Pontiac.

May said he was asked to attend the Independence Township celebration, through the mother of a local firefighter, after attending services at the Calvary Missionary Church in Pontiac. He said it only seemed fitting.

"I thought to myself, an Independence Township parade on Independence Day ... what more could you ask for?" May said, laughing.

The Auburn Hills resident is part of an entourage known as the Super Patriots, who attend various parades and rallies. Active since 1976, the group's characters consist of Uncle Sam, Betsy Ross and the Statue of Liberty.

The Super Patriots have marched in about 200 parades since America celebrated its bicentennial anniversary 15 years ago.

During his career as Uncle Sam, May and his compatriots have participated such prestigious events as: the National Independence Day Parade in Washington, D.C., the Cherry Festival in Traverse City, Detroit's Irish Parade and the annual walk across Mackinac Bridge.

Lately, health complications have forced May to cut back on public appearances. Due to poor valves, his heart is only operating at 12 percent efficiency.

May is presently on "A-1 status" in the wait for a heart transplant. After three minor attacks, he said he feels fortunate to be alive.

"For some reason, God hasn't taken me yet. I guess

"I try to promote patriotism wherever I go."

Ernest May

I've got more work to do," May said.

His "work" includes helping the families of hostages still held in Lebanon and preserving two special American flags.

May said he has met several family members of those held in Lebanon, and his organization is doing all it can to pressure the U.S. government into gaining their release.

"A lot of those people have been over there nearly 10 years, and our government should make their release top priority," May said. "Over the years, there's been numerous rumors of their eventual release but they always end in disappointment. I don't know how much more these

"I thought to myself, an Independence Township parade on Independence Day ... what more could you ask for?"

Ernest May

families can take."

Besides the hostages, May's other passion includes the preservation of "old glory." He is currently pressing state and federal officials so that a pair of "large" flags are preserved for public display.

One of these flags is the largest one in the world. Created in 1976, it measures one and half football fields and weighs seven tons. It was hung on the Verranzano Narrows Bridge between Staten Island and Brooklyn during the bicentennial celebration.

May said the flag is presently being stored in Fort Mead, Md. His group, the Great American Flag Association, in Houston, is currently pushing the government to create a monument for the flag in the Washington, D.C., area.

On a local note, May's organization is also looking to bring a smaller banner out of mothballs. The 1.500pound flag that once flew atop the Hudson's building in Detroit is also on the group's restoration list.

May said his organization is presently trying to convince city officials to display the flag somewhere in the metropolitan area.

Wearing striped pants and a tall hat, May said his sole purpose is to create a sense of national pride.

'I try to promote patriotism wherever I go. Whenever I participate in a parade or rally, there's no political motivation," he said. "Several groups have asked me to be a spokesperson, but I'm my own person, despite my attire."

After 15 years, May said it's still exciting to portray the national symbol.

"When people see me dressed up, I think it turns people's hearts to what this nation stands for," he said. "I get a good feeling when I see parents and grandparents pointing at me and telling their little ones who I am.

"It's never too early to instill national pride," he added.

New owner looks to expand on her own towing business

BY CURT MCALLISTER Clarkston News Associate Editor

It's been said that it's a man's world, but don't tell that to Sandy Johnson.

She's the new owner of North Oakland Auto Repair and Towing.

The shop is located at 7400 Dixie Highway, near White Lake Road, Independence Township. Previously Tim's Towing, the building was purchased by Sandy Johnson last October.

North Oakland Auto Repair and Towing has been in business since January. It's equipped with two mechanics, two tow trucks and one flat-bed vehicle.

What's new in business

Sandy Johnson said she and her husband, Ben, of Big Lake Road, Springfield Township, decided to buy the building after they lost the lease on their transmission repair station in Detroit. Sandy said the proximity to home was one of the main determiners in the purchase of the building.

"The Dixie Highway location is convenient for us and accessible to I-75, where a lot of our pickups come from," she said.

Besides towing, the business also offers all major repair work, excluding front-end alignments. Ben Johnson works in many capacities at the shop, including tow truck operator and mechanic.

Sandy said it took little time in adjusting to ownership of a business primarily dominated by men.

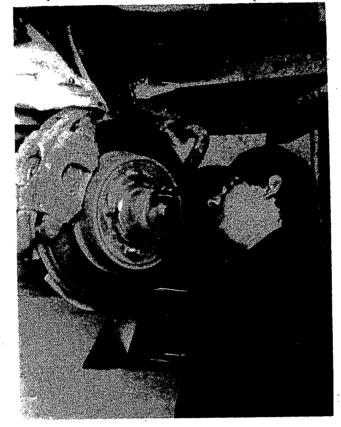

"At first, it was really hard but everyone grew to accept it. Now, it feels good to be in my position," Sandy said.

She said one of her goals is to someday expand the towing service to take advantage of the amount of storage area in the rear of the building.

Sandy, a mother of four, said she enjoys two things in particular since beginning her business.

"It's gratifying in that we help a lot of people, and I'm my own boss," she said.

BRIAN MOEN, an employee at North Oakland Auto Repair and Towing on Dixie Highway, Independence Township, is one of three qualified mechanics on staff.

Food safety risk greater for elderly

The chances of food poisoning may be greater for our elderly population, according to Sylvia Treitman, home economist for the Oakland County Cooperative Extension.

"Poorer eyesight, reduced sense of smell, limited income and lack of safe food storage and preparation information are a few major causes," Treitman said.

Instead of throwing out "overdue" food, the elderly may opt for eating something that can cause stomach distress or even severe illness.

It becomes a vicious circle. Losing one's sense of taste results in poorer appetite, which can lead to poor nutrition and lack of necessary vitamins, said Treitman.

Another problem of the elderly may be reduced stomach acid, which is necessary to kill possible harmful bacteria.

Due to all the additional problems that face the elderly it's important to follow basic food safety rules. These are recommended by the U.S. Department of Agriculture:

Never eat raw or undercooked meat, fish, poultry or eggs -- cook until pink is gone and juices clear.

Wash everything that comes in contact with raw foods — use hot soapy water.

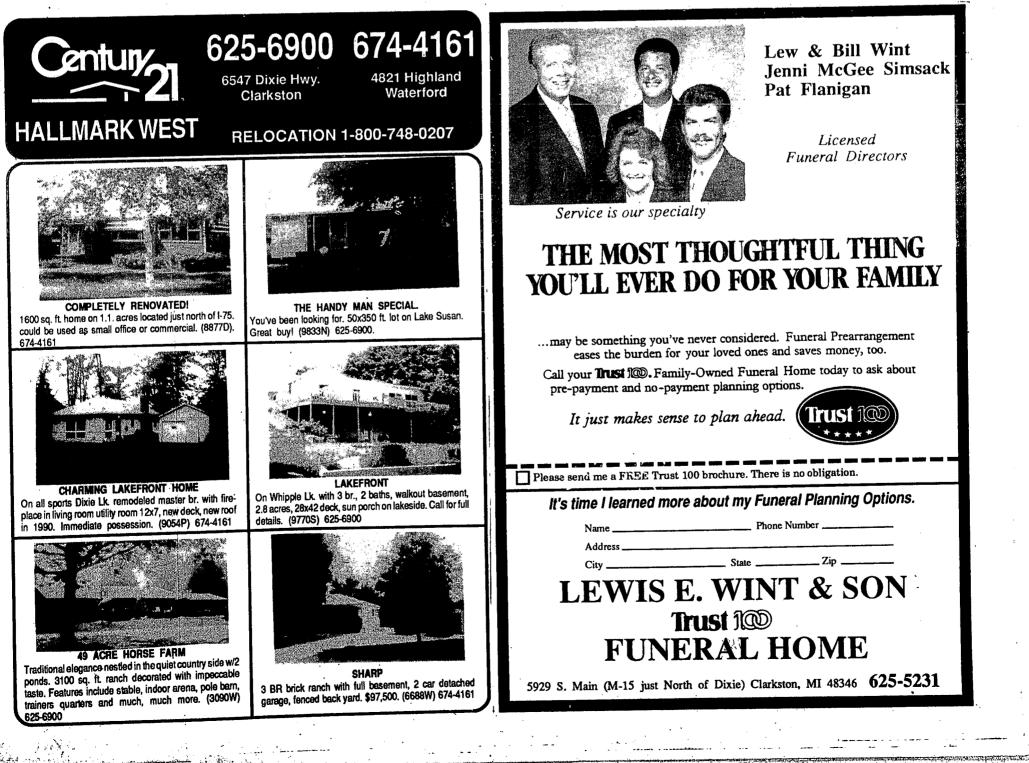

Eggs should be cooked solid.

Refrigerate all foods promptly within two hours of serving.

■ Keep all hot foods hot and all cold foods cold.

BY DENNIS V. CARTER Clarkston News Staff Writer

In years to come, Clintonwood Park will provide a little more shade for visitors.

As a part of a new Youth Environmental Service Program (YES), some 120 Clarkston-area youth received some hands-on training in helping to preserve the environment - including planting trees at Clintonwood Park, Clarkston Road, Independence Township.

According to Vince Paris, Day Camp director for Independence Township Parks and Recreation, the June 25 Environmental Day was part of the YES grant program administered by Department of Natural Resources. Part of the grant money was used to provide trees, seeds, transportation and tools for the activities.

During Environmental Day at the park, children ages 5-12 formed teams that went from station to station to try different environment-related activities.

The idea here is to give the kids a chance to learn about what it takes to help preserve the environment," said Paris. "Then we let them have some hands-on experience at actually doing something to improve the environment, like planting trees and flowers and cleaning up the area."

Included in the day's activities were speakers who covered recycling; a walk along the fitness trail, with the children cleaning it up as they went along; a treasure hunt; and a water balloon contest.

What we want to do is teach the children how important it is to save the environment and open them up to new experiences," Paris said. "By holding a day such as this, the children learn while still having a good time."

The grant program is designed to increase awareness of the state's environmental problems and instill the need to develop solutions.

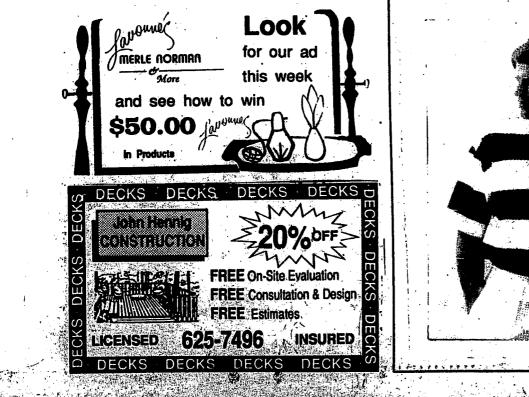

Through the grant program, the youths are to learn how the DNR operates as an arm of state government, how the state's natural resources are managed as a business, and how private groups and citizens can improve their local environment and manage it for the future.

These children are our future, and we need to educate them on how important it is do something about environmental problems now. If we teach them that today, then in future they can teach others," said Paris.

M-15 offices coming to Oakhill Road area

Two commercial office buildings are only one approval away from reality.

On June 27, the Independence Township Planning Commission granted final approval for a planned unit development (PUD) on the southwest corner of Oakhill and Ortonville roads.

A PUD is a rezoning tied to a specific site plan. It requires approval from the planning commission and the Independence Township Board.

This venture gained approval with a vote of 5-0. Commissioners Harry Mosher and Chairman Brent Bair were absent from the meeting. Joseph Figa chaired the meeting in Bair's absence.

The two office buildings are proposed at 7,200 square feet a piece. They're to be built on a three-acre parcel.

The commission's final approval was subject to the installation of a safety path on Oakhill Road to minimize all tree and retention pond losses.

The plan will come before the township board at a future date.

Starting this month, you won't have to attend school board meetings to know what's happening with Clarkston schools.

If you have cable-television, you can watch the meetings from your own living room.

Beginning with the Clarkston Board of Education regular meeting on Monday, July 8, United Artists Community Television will begin videotape coverage of the regular meetings.

Meetings will be shown in their entirety the following Wednesday at 6:30 p.m. on Independence-Clarkston Channel 65.

Master plan changes: topic of July 25 hearing

If township officials have their way, two portions of the township may be used differently in the future.

Two proposed changes to the township's "master plan" - a guide to future land use in the township - are the subject of a public hearing at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, July 25.

The Independence Township Planning Commission will be seeking public'input on revisions to sections 25 and 36 of the master plan during the meeting in the township annex, 90 N. Main St., Clarkston.

Copies of the proposed revisions many reviewed at the building and planning department. For more information, call 625-5111.

Hearing: PUD request

Those residents interested in discussing a zoning change for a development south of Maybee Road should attend the July 25 public hearing.

The hearing will be run by the Independence Township Planning Commission and focus on a 36-acre development proposed for the south side of Maybee Road, north and east of Dixie Highway.

The petitioners, Clarkston Pines Associates, are tial to a planned unit development (PUD). A PUD is a rezoning tied to a specific site plan. The hearing is set for 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the township annex, 90 N. Main St., Clarkston. For more information, call the building and planning department at 625-5111.

SMART funds split between programs

Senior citizens as well as travelers in Springfield Township could benefit from some government money.

The Springfield Township Board voted unanimously June 12 to give 25 percent of its Suburban Mobility Authority for Regional Transportation (SMART) money to the Holly Hock senior citizen service for 1992.

The remaining 75 percent of the $7,611 in municipal credit funds goes to the Springfield Township Charter Service.

The Municipal Credit Program, funded with Michigan Act 51 money, is intended to provided financial support to each municipality in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties for the maintenance or improvement of local public transportation services.

National Hot Dog Month: July

They say every dog has its day. The hot dog, however, gets a whole month.

July has been designed as National Hot Dog Month to pay homage to this American favorite.

But just how popular is the hot dog?

Fifty million hot dogs are eaten every day in the United States, and during the peak summer months, Memorial Day to Labor Day, Americans eat more than five billion hot dogs.

When laid end to end, these summertime franks would circle the globe more than 15 times.

We all have our favorite combinations. Mustard, ketchup, coleslaw, horseradish, onions and chili are a few of the condiments served with hot dogs.

According to the National Hot Dog and Sausage Council, some opt for more unusual additions to their hot dogs, such as maple syrup or peanut butter.

Hot dogs and champagne were the favorite dinner combination of actress Marlene Dietrich.

National Hot Dog Month is sponsored by the National Hot Dog and Sausage Council for the purpose of calling attention to the versatility of the ever popular frankfurter.

Dennis Rodman is a hero to thousands of young basketball players. But J.P. Moreau discovered an even bigger hero last week ... himself.

Sure, Rodman's speech June 26 at the Tim McCormick basketball clinic was a big draw. Not only were the nearly 200 participants of the camp waiting to see and hear the NBA's defensive player of the year, but so were many parents who formed a half-circle around their sons and daughters at the Clarkston High School gym.

And, of course, Rodman wasn't the only NBA player present. McCormick's camp isn't just one in name only. The current Atlanta Hawk and former Clarkston Wolf was there giving instruction, as he has for the past seven years.

So if Moreau, an eighth grader at Sashabaw Junior High School, had two NBA players to choose from, what did he do that was even close to being heroic?

"I made my first basket in six years. Six points and four baskets," said a proud Moreau, who excitedly hugged instructor Susan McKoin after making his first basket in six years at the annual five-day clinic.

Making a basket at a clinic might not sound like too big of a deal even to young basketball players. But if you were 0-for five years, that first one through the net must have looked pretty sweet. And then the three others that fell through didn't hurt either.

McCormick, who has persevered through several knee operations and had his first healthy season in years this season, pointed out Moreau's perseverance. "He worked hard on his game," said McCormick.

McCormick gets the most joy out of the little victories that happen to campers like Moreau.

STON BIG BOY. INC

6440 Dixie Hwy, 625-3344

"We're not trying to make the kids NBA players," said McCormick, who stresses fundamentals, defense, unselfish passing and fun at the camp.

Moreau says about his 7-foot teacher, "He teaches us how to block out on defense. And better ways to shoot."

What did Moreau remember about Rodman's speech?

He admitted, "I forgot most of it."

In just one short day, Moreau had forgotten about Rodman's speech.

Rodman, who had overslept and arrived an hour late to the Clarkston gym, was certainly the center of attention before, during and after his speech.

Several campers, who had completed their session of the clinic, were waiting outside the gym with their eyes glued on the parking lot. There was even a false alarm when someone saw a red Corvette pull into the lot (actually, the Worm's car is gray).

And after a half hour speech, there were just as many onlookers watching Rodman drive away.

So J.P., you forgot "most" of Rodman's speech.

You probably forgot that he said James Worthy was the toughest player he had to guard, or that he called the time he pushed Scottie Pippen in the play-offs an "unfortunate incident," or that he works out in the same gym with McCormick during the off-season, or that he went to high school in Dallas, Texas, or that he thinks somebody will be cut from the Pistons.

You probably forgot that.

But don't worry, you remembered most what the clinic is supposed to be all about.

You didn't forget the way you felt after sinking those four baskets for six points.

Gymnast vaults her way to nationals

BETHANY Rayner hopes her skills in gymnastics will eventually earn her a college scholarship.

Parks anniversary party on Aug. 18

Independence Oaks County Park will be joining other county parks in a 25th anniversary celebration.

This year marks the 25th anniversary of the Oakland County Parks and Recreation Commission, founded in 1966. Nine Oakland County Parks, totaling 4,000 acres, offer a variety of year-round recreational opportunities.

Independence Oaks will host a celebration 1-5 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 18. Live entertainment will be featured, along with sports mobiles, a hi striker, dunk tank, bumpa-bouncer, mimes and puppet shows.

A park entry fee covers free use of all the anniversary activities. The cost is $4 per vehicle for Oakland County residents ($7 per vehicle for non-residents).

Independence Oaks is on Sashabaw Road, Independence Township.

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI Clarkston News Staff Writer

Bethany Rayner's skills in gymnastics have vaulted her to regional and national competitions.

Rayner, a ninth-grader at Sashabaw Junior High, competed June 12 at the United States Association of Independent Gymnastics Clubs nationals in Greensboro, N.C.

She also competed May 19 at the United States Gymnastics Federation regionals (the highest level) in Bryan, Ohio.

Rayner participated in the Junior Division (13-14 year olds). She is currently at level 8 (gymnasts are rated at levels 1-10, elite and then Olympic-caliber) and most likely her coach will be moving her up to level 9 because of her recent showing.

Rayner practices year round at the Steve Whitlock School of Gymnastics. Three other Clarkston area gymnasts also practice with Rayner, Theresa Campanaro (level 10), Kelli Simko (level 8) and Angela Paulucci (level 5). They, too, have advanced into state or national competition.

Rayner's road to the USIGC nationals began when she scored a 33.75 overall score at her club, which qualified her for the regionals at Broadview Heights, Ohio. She needed a 33.5 overall score to qualify for the nationals and totaled 34.15, good enough for sixth at the regionals.

At the USIGC nationals in North Carolina, she totaled 33.7 overall, but didn't place. She had an 8.95 on the vault, an 8.9 on the floor exercises, an 8.45 on the balance beam and a 7.4 on the uneven bars

"The beam is my favorite and strongest event," said Rayner.

At the USGF state championships in Flint, Rayner's team finished third and she placed sixth overall individually. She had an 8.8 on both the vault and the balance beam, an 8.3 in the uneven bars and an 8.25 in floor exercise.

Rayner didn't place at the USGF regionals in Bryan, Ohio, totaling 33.75 overall. She had an 8.55 in the floor exercise, an 8.45 in both the uneven bars and balance beam and an 8.3 on the vault.

Bethany Rayner

Rayner, who first started in the sport at age 2, isn't the only person in her family to have a background in gymnastics. Her older sisters Amy and Cara also started out in gymnastics. But Amy stopped gymnastics because of cross country and track and Cara did the same because of cheerleading and track.

Their younger sister, however, stuck with it and plans on continuing the sport through college.

"My goal is to get a scholarship, possibly at Michigan State," said Rayner, who has never had a serious injury in the sport.

Rayner, who has a "B" average at Sashabaw, admits her practice schedule sometimes is an inconvenience with her friends at school.

She said they sometimes ask, "Can't you miss one day?"

Actually, Rayner has two sets of friends, those at school and those at the club.

One group sees her walking in the halls of Sashabaw Junior High School while the other group sees her flipping through the air on a dismount.

You can never have too many friends ... or rotations off the beam.

wants to make only a minumum down payment and invest the rest of the cash. What do your suggest?

ANSWER: I suggest you listen to your wife. The lower your down payment, the better. The reason includes leverage (that means you control the property and all its benefits with minimal cash of yours and using mostly the lender's money.) You will be receiving the maximum tax advantage on tax deductions.

Per dollar invested, your resale profit will be the largest if you invest only a minumum down payment.

EVEN IF YOU CAN afford a higher down payment than required, it may not make sense to do so. ********

WEARING plaster-gauze masks of themselves, pupils in a summer enrichment art class pose for a photograph. Clockwise from left are Lauren Basinger, 11; Gretchen Pitser, 10; Ryan McCleary, 8; Breanna Bartley, 10; Keith Bartley, 8; Rebecca Doty, 13; and Grace Blum, 9 1/2. The children made the masks of themselves, then decorated them any way they wished in the two-week art program.

BY JULIE CAMPE Clarkston News Editor

On any day of the two-week summer art class, a visitor might have spied children outside, staring at a piece of paper in the bright sunlight, or maybe sitting inside with a wet, gooey mass of gauze on their faces.

The youth enrichment class was offered by Clarkston Community Education. And from the children's attitudes toward the end of the session, it was a worthwhile experience.

Lauren Basinger, 11, said she particularly enjoyed the mask-making portion of the session, where each child made a gauze-plaster mask of his or her face and then decorated it in any way he or she wanted.

"It was different," said Basinger. "It was fun to design it. You didn't have to do it the way they wanted you to — you could do it your own way."

Basinger decorated her mask after the mime masks she had seen before, she said.

Rebecca Doty, 13, first drew puzzle pieces all over her plaster face and then painted each piece a bright color. "I just like a whole bunch of colors, and I like puzzles," she explained. Keith Bartley, 8, painted his mask flesh colored with green dots. . "I just wanted to paint it like myself," he said, grinning — without dots on his real face. Gretchen Pitser, 10, painted a cat face on her mask because, "I love cats," she said. Grace Blum, 9 1/2, said she liked tie-dyeing T-shirts in the class.

"I never did tie-dyeing before," she said.

The pupils also tried their hands at solar photography, wax peppers and paper sculptures and then offered them up at an art show for their parents.

The summer enrichment program was worthwhile, said Linda Walsh, who instructed the children with Betsy Travis.

"We need art, and we need to support these programs because, if we look around, we are surrounded by art," Walsh said, mentioning that clothing, automobiles, house wares and more are all designed by people who have used their creative talents.

"There's a saying by Picasso," she said. "'Every child is an artist. The problem is how to remain an artist once he or she grows up.' We need to keep alive the artist in us all."

SMILING, the pupils pose for a photo without their masks. This time, the identity is evident of (clockwise from left): Lauren Basinger, Gretchen Pitser, Ryan McCleary, Breanna Bartley, Keith Bartley, Rebecca Doty and Grace Blum.

KEITH Bartley, 8, paints his mask to look like himself — plus a few green dots.

WINKY is a 3-year-old Pomeranian-Terrier mix who's looking for a home.

Wary Winky

If you don't have small children or other pets, Winky could be the dog for you.

This Pomeranian-terrier mix is 3 years old and weighs 11 pounds. She's been spayed and is reportedly housebroken.

As previously stated, she is not suggested for homes with small infants and other pets.

Her adoption fee is $35.

To see Winky, visit the Michigan Humane Society, 3600 Auburn Road, Rochester Hills, 852-7420. Hours at the non-profit shelter are 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

Year-round day care available

Year-round preschool is now offered through Clarkston Community Education, thanks to space available at the Sashabaw Presbyterian Church on Maybee Road.

The preschool program for 3- and 4-year-olds takes place 9-11 a.m. Monday through Friday. In addition, day care is offered 7 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Preschool costs $7 per session, while day care is $80 per week, which includes the preschool session. A halfday of day care is $12 per day, while a full day is $18.

The church space means that community education can offer the service through school vacations and in the summer, making it more convenient for parents who use the service during the school year, said Jeanne Molzon.

The summer program is especially convenient because it means parents don't have to find an alternative day care.

"It meets the needs of working parents who aren't off when their kids are off from school," said Molzon. For registration information, call 674-0993.

Public access studio sports youngest producer

BY DENNIS V. CARTER 1 Mart and Clarkston News Staff Writer

He may be young, but he can produce. Sean Mosharo, 10, of Independence Township recently earned his cable-TV producer's license and now is working on his editor's license The Clarkston Elementary School fifth-grader became interested in video production about eight months ago, he said.

My dad was going to take a class on production, so I decided to see if I could take the class with him," he said. Mosharo, who also enjoys all sports activities, said he felt that TV programs could be better. According to his father, Mike, "Sean had expressed concern about the type of programs on TV, so I suggested he do something about it. I was taking this course so I could do some projects for the Rotary Club, and we decided to see if Sean could take the course with me," he said.

A 10-year-old student was definitely not the norm, according to class instructor Joel Burnell, the director of public access for United Cable's Independence-Clarkston Channel 65.

Registration is taking place for the following summer activities for youth:

Marine Biology Camp The Marine Biology Camp for students ages 5-11 is planned for July 15 through 19. The camp is presented by the Living Science Foundation.

Gymnastics Camp

Students ages 6-12 who would like to learn about gymnastics may want to sign up for this camp Aug. 5-8. The camp is presented by Riley School of Gymnastics.

Typing, Keyboarding

Students ages 10 and up are eligible for the typing and keyboarding sessions Aug. 5-16.

make an excellent student, and he did," said Burnell. As far as Sean and his father can tell, Sean is the youngest producer on record. "We checked the Guiness Book of World Records and couldn't find anyone on record as young as Sean, said Mike.

According to Burnell, Sean is the youngest licensed producer in the Clarkston-area cable system, which covers 13 townships and reaches some 6,000 subscribers.

Currently Sean is working on his editing project, which he filmed at Clarkston Fun Daze in May.

"I did the filming myself, and now I will do the editing, which will complete my editing course so I can my editors license," he said.

According to Burnell, who is the program supervisor at United Artist Cable Television of Oakland County on Waldon Road, Clarkston, Sean gave added insight during the course.

All the other students in class were at least twice Sean's age, but Sean would look at some of the concepts from a different perspective, that being one of a youngster. I was afraid he would be intimidated, but held his own throughout the course," Burnell said.

Even though the class is set up on an adult curriculum, Sean grasped the concepts and said he even felt comfortable with equipment.

'The written test was pretty difficult, but using the equipment was fun," he said. "I was able to learn enough during the class to pass the written test and get my license. It was really exciting when I did my production. I just felt very at ease with the equipment."

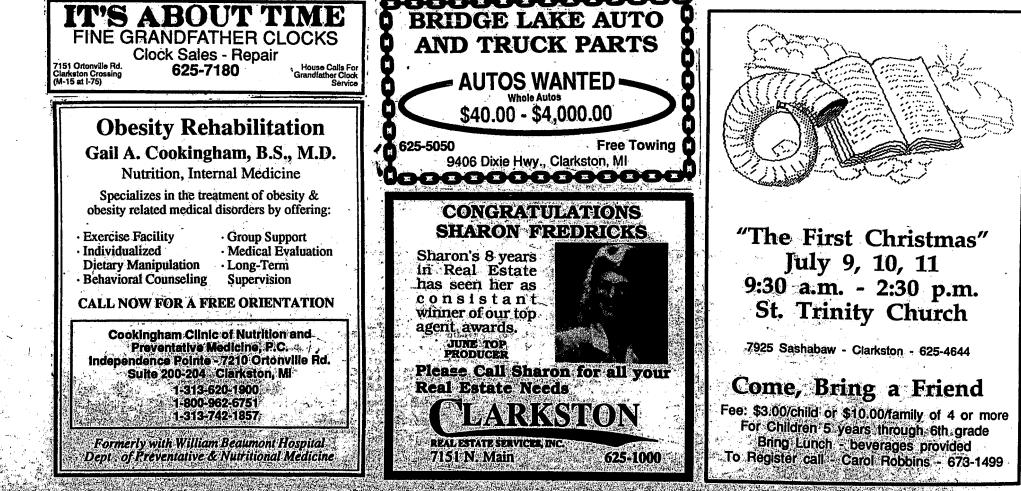

Sean isn't sure what the future holds as a career. "I'm not real sure what will happen when I grow up, but this is something that I'm very interested in. I really would like to get my director's license and get into that part of the business," he said.

No matter what Sean decides to do, this is one 10year-old who has proven he can produce.

PRODUCER SEAN Mosharo, 10, of Clarkston, is the youngest licenced producer in the Clarkston-area cable system.

Can nasturtium leaves really be used in salads?

What is a dry well, and why would you build one around a tree?

A well is a brick or stone wall built around a tree and combined with a system of agricultural tiles at the original soil level to protect a tree when the soil level around it is raised. Raising the soil level around a tree without taking such measures to protect it may suffocate the roots and kill the tree.

I keep reading that a loamy soil is best for gardening. What makes a soil loamy?

Soil is composed of many particles of varying sizes. Sand particles are the largest, clays are the smallest, and silt particles fall somewhere in between.

A loamy soil is composed of about equal proportions of all three kinds of particles. This makes it good for gardening because it holds moisture well (better than sand) but drains well (better than clay) and allows good air exchange between the soil and plant roots. Soils that are either very sandy or high in clay can be improved by the addition of organic matter such as compost, animal manure, cover crops or organic mulch material.

This will improve the water-holding capacity of sandy soils and loosen up the tightly packed particles of clay in clay soils and improve both water drainage and aeration. Organic soils also hold plant nutrients better than mineral soils.

How can I use plants to reduce the noise level around my home? Sometimes it sounds like the traffic on the expressway nearby is coming right through my yard.

To muffle unwanted sounds with plants, create a barrier of several layers of different kinds of plants. The aim is to put as much plant leaf surface as possible between your home and the source of the noise. An upper story of densely branched deciduous trees and an under story of high, medium and low shrubs -- evergreen and deciduous types — will help reduce the general noise level. The closer you put these plants to the source of the sound, the better the job they will do.

Someone just told me that I ought to grow nasturtiums in my salad garden. Is he putting me on, or are they really edible?

Nasturtiums have been on the menu for various cultures for more than 2,000 years. Nasturtium blooms may be added as edible garnishes to salads and dinner entrees or be used with dips and in sandwiches. Leaves can be served raw in salads or finely chopped in butter for a confetti look.

If you're growing nasturtiums to eat, be sure to avoid spraying them with chemical insecticides or other pesticides. Pick them in early morning before the heat of the day causes them to wilt. Wash petals and leaves in lukewarm water; then dry with paper towels. Store for no longer than a day or two in plastic bags in the refrigerator.

When do I fertilize my strawberry patch?

Hold off until after harvest. Fertilizing strawberry plants in spring will cause excessive plant growth, shading of the berries, soft fruit and excessive fruit rot.

I've always planted all my squash family plants together because it's easy to rotate them as a group around a garden (for disease control). Now a neighbor tells me I shouldn't be doing this because the various crops will cross-pollinate, and my squash will taste like cucumbers. I haven't had anything like that happen, and I've been gardening for some years. Is it something I need to worry about?

No. Thought it's true that some closely related plants may cross-pollinate, it's a problem in the current year's crop only in sweet corn and its relatives --- ornamental corn, popcorn and field corn. In the corn crops, cross-pollination affects the edible parts produced this year

In other crop families, such as the squash family, only the seed is affected. So cross-pollination would be a concern only if you were saving seed from one year's harvest to plant the next year.

I've always loved roses and want to plant some around my house. What kind of site do they need?

The planting site for roses should receive at least six hours of full sunlight daily. If roses will be shaded part of the day and you can choose whether they receive sunlight in the morning or the afternoon, it's better that they receive morning sun - this will help the foliage dry quickly after a morning dew.

This is important because moisture on the leaves favors the development of several devastating rose leaf diseases

Any reasonably fertile soil that grows grass, shrubs and other plants will do for roses. Very heavy or light, sandy soil can be improved with added organic matter, such as peat moss, compost, leaf mold or well rotted manure.

I've read that you should clean and disinfect pruning tools to avoid spreading disease organisms from plant to plant. How do you do that?

An easy-to-make home disinfectant for tools consists of one part liquid chlorine bleach and five parts water. Dip the tools in this for a few seconds, then put them immediately into a solution of one part vinegar, five parts water and one teaspoon of salad oil.

The first solution prevents the transmission of disease organisms, and the second stops the corrosive action of the bleach and lubricates the metal. (Remember to keep cutting tools sharp to avoid making ragged cuts that offer disease organisms and insects easy entry into landscape plants.)

Teens hope to solve drug, alcohol problems

... Two Clarkston-area teens are among 17 who are working on combating substance abuse in the north Oakland County area.

John MacLachlan and Trevor Sanford from Clarkston High School are part of Future Youth Leaders Rising for a Better Community, a part of the United Way of Oakland County and Pontiac Area Urban League's Youth Leadership Program.

With $5,000, the program is offering grants to nonprofit agencies that have solutions to the problems.

A few months ago, the youth leadership group conducted a community needs assessment among their peers, teachers, administrators, parents and police.

More than 270 surveys were returned from such areas as Pontiac, Clarkston, Waterford, Rochester Hills and Auburn Hills. Results showed that drug and alcohol abuse are the top two problems facing youth in north Oakland County.

The results are overwhelming," said Jeanette Morrison, chairperson of the Youth Leadership Evaluation Committee. "It didn't matter who was surveyed, where they lived or what their age, gender or race was. Substance abuse ranked number one."

Future Youth Leaders have been attending meetings for several months, learning problem-solving methods, fund-raising and budgeting techniques, conflict resolution, and research methods.

Now the Future Youth Leaders are requesting proposals for programs that address drug and alcohol abuse among youth ages 14-19. Any non-profit agency may apply for the $5,000 available help solve the problems.

Once the money is available in August, the group will evaluate the effectiveness of the programs they select

The Youth Leadership Program is a pilot project developed by United Way and the Urban League to create an awareness of volunteerism and a sense of community responsibility in students as young as 14. When the program ends, participants have the option of continuing their community involvement through membership on local agency boards, committees or working in other volunteer capacities.

Grant proposals may be submitted to United Way of Oakland County by 5 p.m. Thursday, July 11. For more information, call Michael Martinez at 456-8805.

Vintage cars in Detroit Indy parade

Just before the June 16 Grand Prix Indy in Detroit this year, a motorcar parade featuring cars from another era traveled through downtown Detroit then across the Ambassador Bridge.

This year's motorcar parade included two vehicles from the Clarkston area.

A 1909 Model T Ford with a touring body was driven by Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Forster of Allen Road, Independence Township. They also carried their children, Holly, Nancy and Dan, in the car.

Mr. and Mrs. James Forster of Perry Lake Road, Independence Township, also participated with a 1930 Model A Ford with a Phaeton body. They, too, brought their children, Becky and Toby.

Meringues need thorough baking

Recent concern over using raw eggs in recipes has given rise to another new question, according to Sylvia Treitman, home economist for the Oakland County Cooperative Extension.

Food hotline callers are asking if it is safe to eat meringue on pies, she said.

"There is good reason to be concerned," said Treitman.

All eggs need to be well cooked now days to prevent the possibility of salmonella (food poisoning), and some meringues may not be sufficiently baked if an old recipe is used, she said.

Meringues on a pie are safe if they are heated in a 350 degrees oven for at least 20 minutes and the temperature inside the meringue is at 160 degrees, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture recommendations, said Treitman.

A nice high meringue may look impressive; however, you don't want your guests to remember your pie for the tummy ache it provided if the meringue is not thoroughly baked. "Remember to leave the pie in the refrigerator at home if you are going on a picnic," said Treitman. "It's a poor food safety risk for picnics,"

The Clarkston (Mich.) News Wed July 3, 1991 35

Here are some other important safe egg handling tips — especially in hot weather.

Store eggs in refrigerator in original carton.

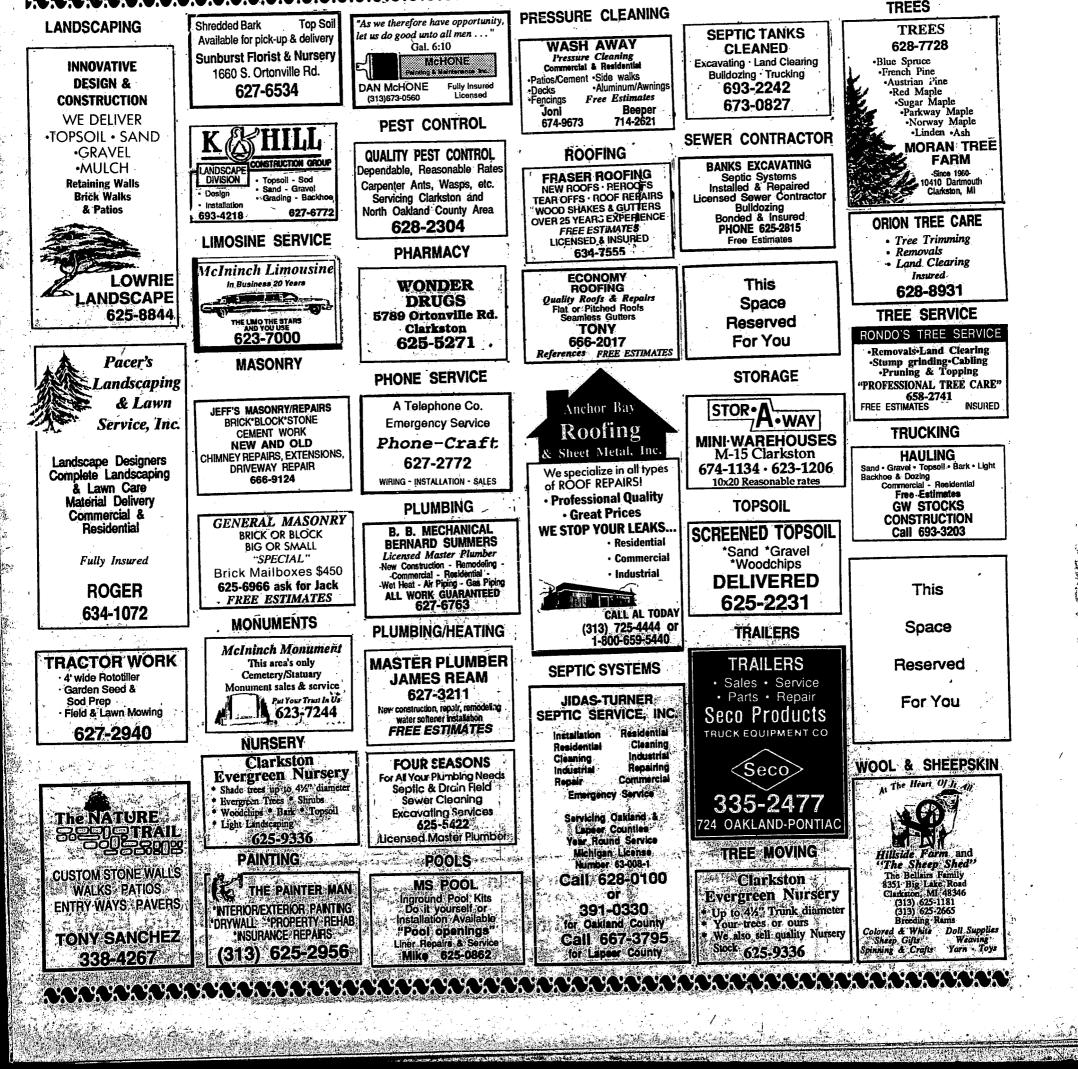

Cook all eggs well done to prevent possible salmonella contamination.

Do not use eggs raw in recipes such as frostings, caesar dressing, mousses. Whites and yolks can carry bacteria that may cause food poisoning if uncooked.

For other food and nutrition information, call the Food and Nutrition Hotline, 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday, 858-0904.

THE PLAYGROUND is the popular attraction for the younger members of the concert audience. While rousing music floats across Depot Park, children play, Band Boosters sell concessions, and others relax beneath the trees. The free Friday concerts are sponsored by the Clarkston Area Chamber of Commerce and First of America bank. Music plays 7-9 p.m. on Fridays through July.
