Boy's drawings keep two in court

BY DENNIS CARTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Drawings by a 5-year-old boy helped a judge decide to send two 23-year-old Independence Township men to Oakland County Circuit Court Aug. 15 on charges of child abuse and criminal sexual conduct.

David Lewis Simpson III and Paul Matthew Salvino are to appear at 1 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 4, before Circuit Court Judge Robert C. Anderson.

The two men each are charged with two counts of first-degree criminal sexual conduct and two counts of first-degree child abuse of Simpson's 5-year-old son.

The blond-haired, blue-eyed boy, who had a hard time testifying at the Aug. 5 preliminary exam, gave his testimony on videotape Aug. 14 after Judge Gerald McNally cleared the 52nd District courtroom in Independence Township. Simpson and Salvino sat in another room and listened.

On Aug. 5 during the first part of the preliminary exam, the boy expressed fear of Simpson and Salvino and didn't want to talk about the abusive events that allegedly occurred July 24.

Even with the courtroom cleared by McNally on Aug. 15, the child had problems verbalizing what he called "bad answer." But according to Assistant Prosecutor Jean Gibson he did draw pictures on a courtroom board that showed in detail that he was subjected to sexual abuse in Salvino's step-father's Circle, Independence Town-

Lightning claims life of golfer

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Associate Editor

Three golfers were struck by lightning at the Heather Highlands Golf Course in Springfield Township last Thursday, resulting in the death of one man.

At 5:50 p.m., Aug. 15, the trio was hit while taking shelter under an apple tree on the fifth hole of the course. Elwynn Hillman, assistant chief of the Springfield Township Fire Department, said the lightning bolt struck the ground near the tree and entered the men's feet via the ground.

Joe Schmidt, 40, of Grand Blanc was able to drag himself to a nearby roadside and gain the attention of Springfield Township resident Jackie Bailey, who immediately called for assistance.

Once on the scene, fire department personnel tended to Gerald Quick, 57, of Bad Axe, who was unconscious, and Bob Sparks, 45, of Rankin, who was suffering from a heart attack.

Sparks was transported to Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital for treatment, where he was listed in grave condition most of the weekend. He died late Monday afternoon.

Quick and Schmidt were treated and released from POH and the Hurley Medical Center in Flint, respectively.

Hillman said burn holes were found in Sparks' hat and Quick's jacket. He said the holes probably indicate where the lightning exited the men's bodies.

During his career with the Springfield fire department, Hillman said this was his first case of someone being hit by lightning.

"When we got the call, we were responding to a report of just one person," he said. "You can understand our shock when we found three of them instead."

Labor Day parade plans in place

Floats, musicians and festive bicycles and vehicles are wanted for Clarkston's annual Labor Day parade.

Set for 10 a.m. Monday, Sept. 2, the parade is sponsored by the Clarkston Rotary Club. The theme is: "Community Service — Look Beyond Yourself."

This year's parade includes a "surprise visit from the sky," according to parade Chairman Mike Mosharo. In addition, parade-goers are invited to take pictures of the surprise for a contest.

To enter the parade, pick up a registration form at the Women's Health Center, 7650 Dixie Highway, Suite 110, Independence Township; or call 625-9260.

Oakland County Sheriff John F. Nichols is to serve as grand marshall of the parade, and the sheriff's department will participate with its mounted division.

On parade day, entrants are asked to arrive at Clarkston Elementary School on Waldon Road at 8:30 a.m. About 9 a.m., the following awards will be presented: President's, Best Float, Best Costume, Best Presentation of Theme.

The parade is to begin at Clarkston Elementary School, cross Waldon Road and travel west on Church Street, north on Main Street, west of Miller Road, and south on Holcomb Road to Depot Park.

"The parade is geared to the kids," said Mosharo, adding that groups that plan to distribute candy, toys or balloons should inform him so they can be assigned a portion of the parade route. In previous years, most of the treats were disbursed before the parade route was finished, he said.

"We're just trying to make this a lot of fun," said Mosharo.

ship, home.

According to Gibson, if the boy is unable to testify in Oakland County Circuit Court, the videotape may be used in his place.

During the testimony, the 5-year-old referred as Simpson and Salvino as "mean."

He also said that he learned oral sex from his father, who had forced him to have oral sex when he lived in Caro a few years ago. The child also said that he had been forced to smoke a cigarette and drink gin from a Squirt can.

Witness Anna Maria Church, a doctor at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Pontiac, testified that alcohol ingested by children poses a considerable risk because of children's lower body weight. She said alcohol could damage cells in the brain and other body parts.

"I feel that even giving a child cough medicine with alcohol in it is questionable because of the risk factor," said Church.

According to Church, she is concerned with the long-term effect of the large amount of alcohol in the boy's body, particularly on his brain cells as he gets older. When police found him July 24, the boy's blood alcohol level was tested at .114. In Michigan, drivers are considered legally drunk with a level of .10 percent or higher.

After the hearing, Gibson said it would take a minimum of two years of intensive therapy to help the boy deal with this traumatic experience.

"You have to understand the hellish nightmare this child has been subjected to for really all his life," said Gibson. "He was very, very clear in his testimony. He had a hard time talking about it at times but was able to draw out on the board what happened to him."

If convicted, Simpson and Salvino could face maximum sentences of life in prison for the first-degree criminal sexual conduct and 15 years maximum sentences on the first-degree child abuse charges. They remain in Oakland County Jail on $200,000 cash bond each.

In a related case, the child's mother Carolyn Dean, who prosecutors charge did nothing to stop the boy's father from abusing the child, and Simpson will stand trial separately in Oakland County Probate Court on charges of child neglect. State social workers are trying to permanently end the couple's parental rights to the boy.

"He was very, very clear in his testimony. He had a hard time talking about it at times but was able to draw out on the board what happened to him."

Assistant Prosecutor Jean Gibson

Judge Barry M. Grant granted a defense motion Aug. 12 for separate trials after Dean's attorney complained that trying Dean and Simpson together could hurt Dean's case.

Grant denied a motion by Simpson's attorney Len Gorz to put the Probate Court trial on hold until separate criminal charges against Simpson are resolved in Circuit Court.

There are no criminal charges against Dean, of Caro, who police contend had asked Simpson to baby-sit while she went to work.

According to Oakland County Sheriff's Department detectives, investigations are continuing in Lapeer County surrounding the possibility of other family members being involved.

Former Springfield man returns to hero's welcome

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Staff Writer

"On June 19, at 2:28 p.m., we received a call about a car fire on Shaffer Road," Springfield Township Fire Chief Marlan Hillman told a crowd at a recent township board meeting.

Though the incident was first described as a "routine car fire," it would stick in the minds of many for months to come.

> "If it hadn't been for his involvement, two people would be dead."
> Chief Marlan Hillman

"This short, small man — gray hair, a little bit elderly ..." Hillman said, gesturing to an older man in the front row, "made a routine car fire turn out to be heroic."

Milford Roberts did indeed have graying hair, and, at 85, could be considered a little bit elderly. But he had proven the courage of a lion.

Milford — called Bob by his friends — had been visiting his daughter, Rosemary, on that June day, while driving along Shaffer Road moments after the accident happened.

"There are a lot of hills along there, and when I came up over one I could see smoke coming up," Bob remembered. "I thought 'what in the world is that.'

"He had hit a tree I couldn't even reach around," he added.

The disabled car, containing Merle Johnson, 38, and John Reamer, 21, both of Pontiac, had lost control minutes before and crashed into a tree on the opposite side of the road.

> "I didn't panic. At least not until after it happened."
> Bob Roberts

The collision caused a fire in the engine.

The driver was slumped behind the wheel, Bob could see as he approached the car, and was "too big to lift."

"So I dumped him on the ground," Bob said. "That revived him after a minute and I started to get the other guy."

By this time, smoke from the car was threatening to turn into flames.

"I could see that other guy on the floor with his head up under the glove box," Bob recalled. "I finally got him up on the seat and had the other guy help me pull."

Hillman said when firefighters arrived to help, the car was totally engulfed in flames.

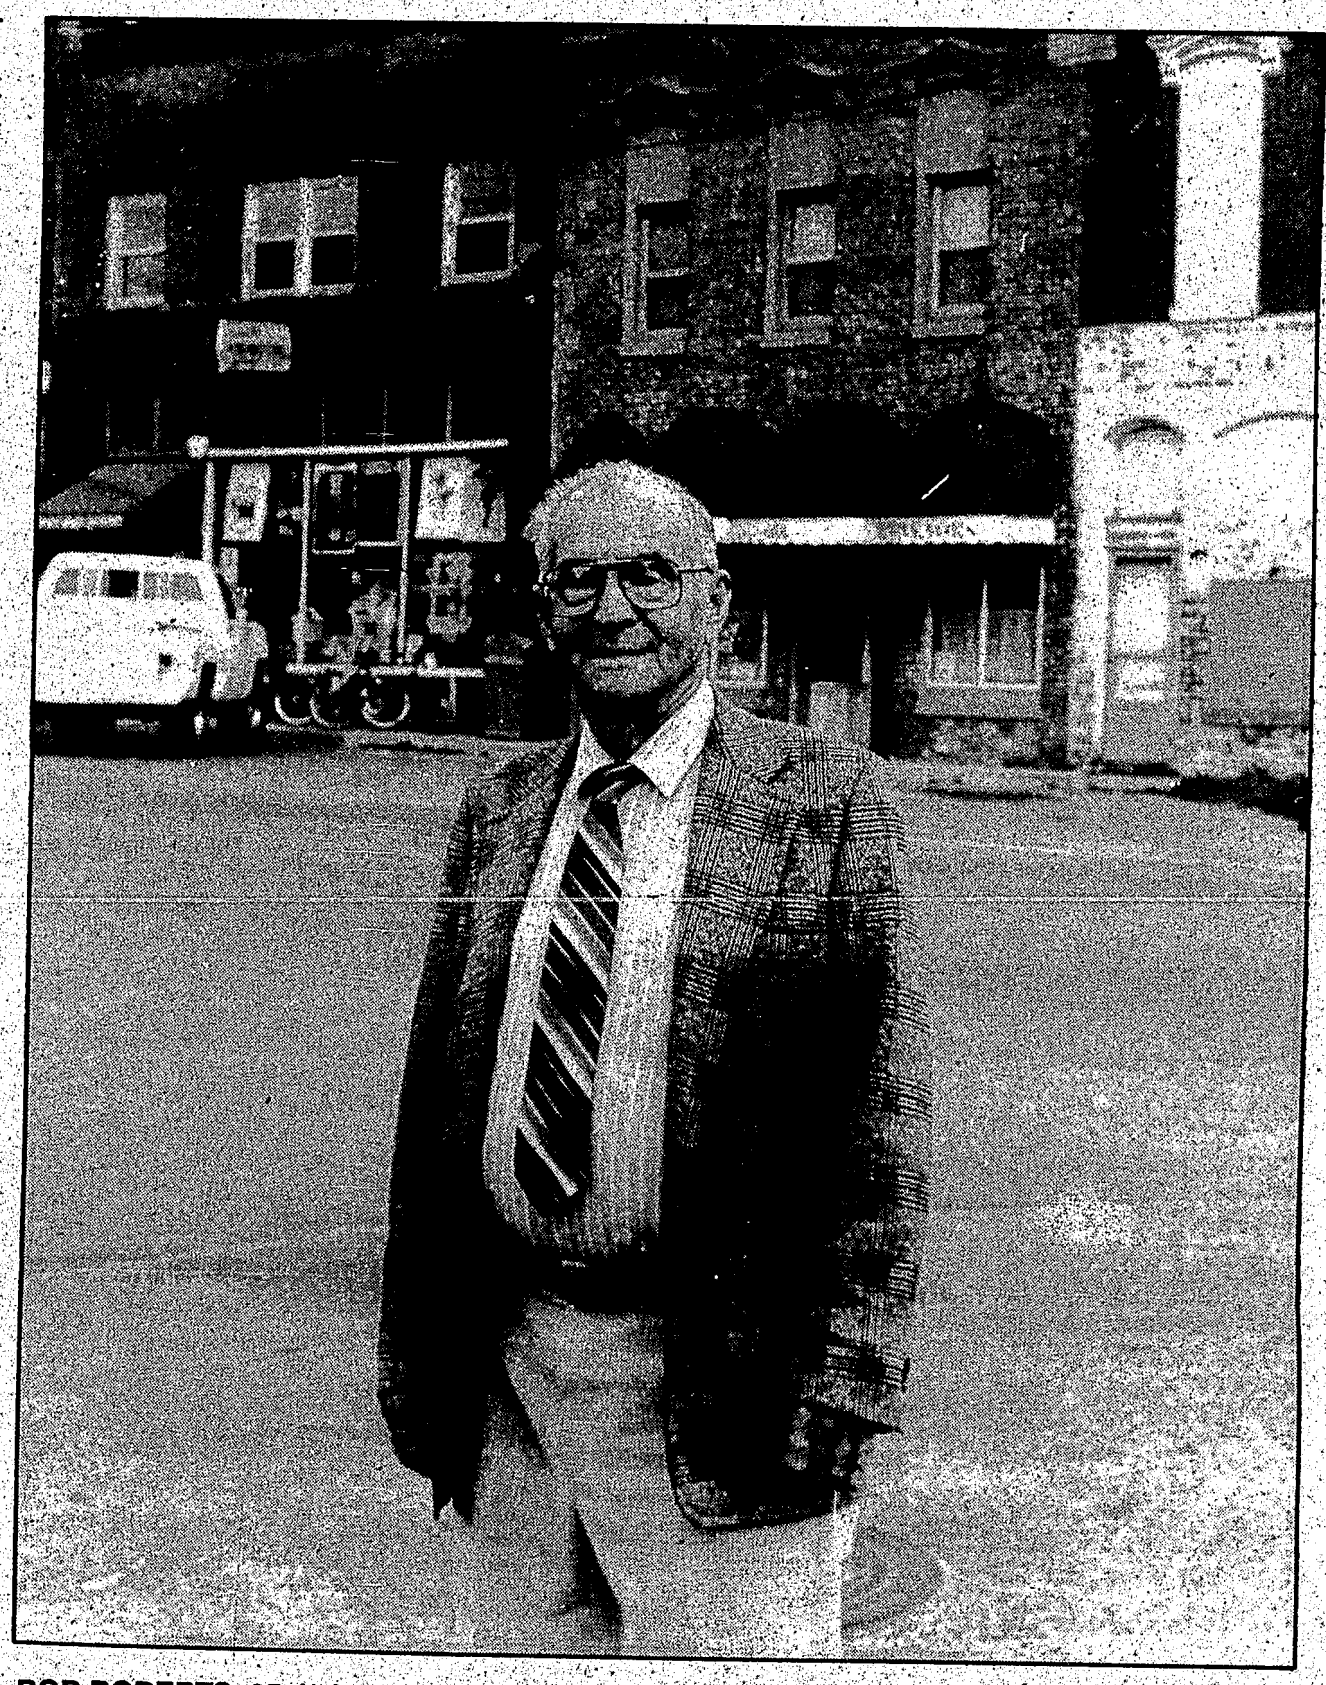
"We saw one victim by the tree," he added. "He was out of it; his vitals were very low."

Then Hillman saw Bob.

"I don't know who was more surprised," Hillman recalled, grinning. "He had started to say, 'When I got here — Oh, hello Marlin.'"

The chief told the audience that it was the consensus of the firefighters at the scene that Bob had saved two lives that day.

"If it hadn't been for his involvement, two people would be dead," Hillman said.



BOB ROBERTS, 85, is honored as a hero at a recent Springfield Township Board meeting for risking his life earlier this summer. Roberts, standing here in downtown Davisburg, pulled two men from a burning car after an accident on Shaffer Road.

One car, it was noted, had come upon the accident and had continued on its way.

Bob had been a driver for a trucking operation before he had retired and said the experience had kept him keep a cool head in the face of danger.

"I knew I had a little bit of time," he explained. "I didn't panic. At least not until after it happened."

Hillman presented Bob with a plaque of honor before an audience made up of Bob's family and friends.

Bob told the crowd that, though he had moved from the area, he still had a warm spot in his heart for Davisburg.

"All I can do is say thank you," Bob said. "This is really great."

Manager's salary hiked

The Clarkston village manager yearly salary has been raised $2,000.

As of Sept. 1, village manager Artemus Pappas will be paid $22,300. The Clarkston Village Council voted 5-0 Aug. 12 to approve the pay increase.

Pappas, who has held the position for 2 1/2 years, last received a raise two years ago.

Incumbents re-appointed as planners

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Special Writer

Despite the interest of three other candidates, Springfield Township Board members re-appointed Zona Summers and Joe Gorka to the township planning commission.

Supervisor Collin Walls told the board that five people had shown an interest in the three-year position.

Along with incumbents Gorka and Summers, the others included Carol Rogers, Neil Meredith and Gary Voelker.

Walls explained that because two of the interested candidates were involved in the development and real estate field, similar to others already serving on the commission, he wished to nominate Gorka and Gary Voelker, a financial planner.

Clerk Calvin Walters said he thought Gorka and Summers had been doing a good job, especially in regards to work on the master plan.

A motion to re-instate Gorka and Summers passed 6-0. Treasurer Lois Stiles was absent.

Back to school ... almost

Dozens of future and prospective families visited the building site of Everest Academy Aug. 18, during a three-hour open house.

They received literature on the parochial school and took tours of the incomplete building, which will house classrooms, a library and administrative offices.

Located on Clarkston Road, this building will hold students in kindergarten through eighth grades. The building will cost about $2.5 million to complete. Its construction is being funded through the Detroit Archdiocese and private donations.

Eventually, the site will house two separate buildings for boys and girls.

School is scheduled to begin Sept. 3, and Everest Academy has made arrangements for students to attend classes in other facilities.

According to the Rev. Lorenzo Gomez, the students will take classes in either the Clarkston United Methodist Church on Waldon Road or St. Daniel Catholic Church on Valley Park Drive until the building is completed in October.

Take note of caution signs

Julie Campe

Back from vacation, my desk did not have the usual pile up, thanks to The Clarkston News staff.

There was, however, the normal stack of news reports, which — along with news of the coup in the Soviet Union and Hurricane Bob in the Atlantic Ocean — swiftly brought me back from my sun-filled memories of Beaver Island to the fluorescent light-covered items in The News office.

While on vacation, my husband and I enjoyed our visit with Tim and Tanya Butler and their two children, Brianne, 4, and Alyssa, 2. The two youngsters rolled in the sand and splashed in the water and gradually browned in the sun. We enjoyed their antics.

Not once did I think of the usual issues that hit the newsroom. AIDS, for example. The June Michigan HIV/ AIDS Report awaiting my return reminded me that AIDS is as serious a problem as ever. In fact, 6.3 new AIDS cases were reported per 100,000 population in Michigan between May 1, 1990, and May 1, 1991.

Highest on the list, Detroit's rate of new cases was 23.6 per 100,000 people. Oakland County recorded a 4.8 rate of incidence per 100,000 people. The 15 counties in the Upper Peninsula reported 1.6 cases per 100,000.

Locally, two Independence Township men were bound over to Oakland County Circuit Court on charges that they sexually abused a 5-year-old boy. It was so much easier last week to forget that such abuse takes place. I read reporter Dennis Carter's story with sadness for the youngster.

And back to the press releases. The Oakland County Waste Reduction Partnership Update let me know that we humans still don't know what to do with our garbage, though many communities are beginning waste reduction efforts.

For instance, the cities of Farmington and Farmington Hills have joined together in a program that includes curbside recycling and composting.

A recycling drop-off center in Huntington Woods accepts newspapers, used motor oil, glass jars and bottles, plastic jugs, metal cans, household and vehicle batteries and — as of April 1991 — glossy magazines.

The Report also noted that a state grant helped Rick Detkowski's Clarkston Disposal set up a material recovery facility, which processes about 150 tons per week of clear glass, plastic bottles, newspaper, and aluminum and tin cans.

And Oakland County is still waiting for a decision from the Michigan Department of Natural Resources on an air quality permit for a proposed incinerator in Auburn Hills. A public hearing still must be scheduled; then, the DNR will either issue or deny the permit. If approved, the county will place a bond issue on the Nov. 5 ballot asking voters to approve money for the incinerator.

Now that I think of it, the waste issue did reach me while my husband and I vacationed on Beaver Island.

Recycling is mandatory in the two townships on the island that is three hours by ferry from Charlevoix. However, on that slow-paced island in Lake Michigan, other things occupied the minds of 300 or so year-round residents.

For instance, a yellow caution sign along the only stretch of pavement on the island read: "Watch for old dog in road."

And, sure enough, a black dog could, indeed, be spied sleeping in the warm afternoon sun, taking up three feet of the paved road.

If only the protection of children and the earth were so easy — "Watch for children in neighborhood" or "Watch for planet in solar system."

All the service clubs I'm familiar with have creeds, codes or rules members are expected to live by. They are all good, and I'd like you to read three of them.

Rotary International: The 4-Way Test of the things we think, say and do:

1. Is it the truth?
2. Is it fair to all concerned?
3. Will it build goodwill and better friendships?
4. Will it be beneficial to all concerned?

The Optimist International Creed: Promise yourself -- to be so strong that nothing can disturb your peace of mind. To talk health, happiness and prosperity to every person you meet. To make all your friends feel that there is something in them. To look at the sunny side of everything and make your optimism come true. To think only of the best, to work only for the best and expect only the best. To be just as enthusiastic about the success of others as you are about your own. To forget the mistakes of the past and press on to the greater achievements of the future. To wear a cheerful countenance at all times and give every living creature you meet a smile. To hold friendship as an end and not a means. To hold that true friendship exists not on account of the service performed by one to another, but that true friendship demands nothing but accepts service in the spirit in which it is given.

Always bear in mind my obligations as a citizen to my nation, my state and my community, and to give them my unswerving loyalty in word, act and deed. To give them freely of my time, labor and means.

To aid my fellow men by giving my sympathy to those in distress, my aid to the weak and my substance to the needy.

To be careful with my criticism and liberal with my praise; to build up and not destroy.

The Clarkston News revisited

Tracy King

It was time for a round of staff vacations at The Clarkston News and I assured Editor Julie Campe that I would be glad to fill in the gap.

Three months had passed since I had driven to Clarkston to take my desk in the newsroom and, frankly, I was looking forward to revisiting the good old days.

I guess I had expected everything to remain exactly as I had left it. Driving up the winding back roads, I realized I was wrong.

I had always entertained myself on this long, languorous trip by keeping careful note of what was blooming alongside the roadway each season and by noting what so-and-so had planted in their garden that year.

Things had really changed, I thought to myself, fighting to keep my eyes on the road.

Climbing the stairs to the newsroom I headed for my usual desk, which was now littered with strange scraps of paper covered in looped handwriting.

Confused, I turned and headed for the cleanest desk I could find and hesitantly placed my stuff in an obscure corner.

I was to cover a Springfield Township Board meeting, I was told. Did I want to see an informational packet beforehand?

This was too much. In the three years I had worked at the newspaper I had covered a lot of meetings: school board, Independence Township Board, township planning commission — even Village of Clarkston meetings.

But Springfield Township meetings? I didn't even know how to get there.

Clearly shaken, I headed to the bake shop across the street where I hoped against hope that change hadn't visited.

Stepping quickly through the screen door, my eyes darted to the counter. There they were. Applesauce/Oat bran muffins. I nearly sagged in relief.

Hours later, the Springfield Township Board meeting gained momentum. Resolutions were passed. Correspondences were noted. The township attorney was consulted on an alarm ordinance. Time passed.

Some two hours later, the board took up the issue of limiting the number or type of boats allowed on township lakes.

A concerned member of the audience spoke. Couldn't the board draft some sort of ordinance? Members discussed the idea among themselves at length. The township attorney was, again, consulted. The board decided to gather more information and the matter was set aside for a future meeting. Eventually the meeting adjourned.

Suddenly, it was Monday morning.

A whole week of work had passed. The Friday afternoon deadline had passed. And here I was at my word processor — daydreaming — instead of writing my now late column.

Thank goodness, I sighed in relief. Some things never change.

'If it Fitz . . .'

Dumb kids fit depressed time

Jim Fitzgerald

A few lunches ago a stranger approached me in the Edison Inn dining room in Port Huron and said he remembered my father, who died in 1963. Our conversation was overheard by my friend, Howard Bonvivant, who misunderstood it, and subsequently I dripped nostalgia all over his loudest jacket.

"That guy said he served with your father," Bonvivant said. "That must have been in World War I."

"He said he served my father," I explained. "He's a bartender."

We were sitting next to a window offering a magical view of the St. Clair River, little sailboats and 1,000-foot lake freighters, and the bridge to Canada. Also visible was the old Ft. Gratiot Railroad Depot, historically designated and preserved in commemoration of Thomas Edison, who worked there when he was a boy, never dreaming that some day his name would be attached to thousands of downed power lines.

I couldn't help recalling what I used to do in the same neighborhood when I was a boy, knowing that my father would kill me if he found out what I did.

My buddies and I would hook trains just down the tracks from the Ft. Gratiot Depot. The phrase "hook trains" isn't widely understood today, maybe because kids are smarter, or trains faster. What we did was run and leap onto the ladder attached to moving freight cars. We'd ride downtown and leap off, sprawling in gravel and tearing our pants and skin.

In the winter we hooked automobiles. We'd grab the back bumper, crouch on the packed snow, and use our shoes for skis. If a car went too fast, we didn't dare let go until a stop sign. If a street ran out of snow, we shifted to sitting on the bumper, sidesaddle; half-rump.

We jumped into the very deep St. Clair River when some of us, especially me, couldn't swim 50 feet. But we could stay afloat while the swift current took us 4 or 5 miles downriver. The trick was to stay close to shore and grab hold of a fishing dock before we ended up in dangerous Detroit.

A week after tales of my youth ruined Bonvivant's lunch (he sells accident insurance), I spent an afternoon in the park with Tricia, my 5-year-old granddaughter. A man pushing a kid on a swing had "Life is a bitch/Then you die" tattooed on his arm. I hovered over Tricia like a mother hen, cross-dressed.

But Tricia objected to my nearness. She was making new friends on the monkey bars and instructed me to wait at a distant picnic table. I said I wanted to be directly below her in case she had to be caught. She said she'd holler for me if she started to fall.

A long, steep flight of stairs stretches from the sunken park up to the highway. Tricia decided it would be great fun for her to take her basketball to the top and bounce it down the steps to me below. I said I didn't want her that far away, alone. She said I was silly. She won the argument, and I was nervous until her hand was again in mine.

The difference is glaring. If I heard that Tricia or any of my grandchildren were hooking trains or cars, I'd have a stroke. You might think the moral of today's column is that wisdom comes with age, and Grandpa knows best. But there's more to it than that.

I grew up during the Great Depression, and my father couldn't afford a smart son. The only way he could afford a dumb one was I earned my keep with a newspaper route. Most of my customers lived on the riverbank and on windy days when I missed their porches with thrown newspapers, they had to go through Canadian customs to retrieve them.

Letter to the Editor

Rich man's toy

The rolling hills of Lake Orion are again being invaded by a developer, only this time we are greeting them with open arms.

Keatington Antique Village, aka, Wildwood Village, aka, Antique Village, aka Scripps Farm is receiving a facelift and a new identity. It will soon be known as Indianwood Village. This name will help connect it with the prestigious and elite Indianwood Golf and Country Club.

Granted, the face lift, is much needed if the property is to remain a viable and valuable piece of real estate.

But, as Stan Aldridge, bulldozes his way into our pocketbooks, let us hope he remembers the people who live in Orion. He does not reside here -- he only invests here. I think some caution needs to be exercised regarding how much property any one individudal or company is allowed to own in a township.

Most of us peons can only afford one piece of property, unless you happen to belong to a three or four generation family of land barons and there are many of them in Orion who keep buying property, (lest it in fall into some undesirable newcomers hands) and renting it out.

Back to Aldridge. He has a proven track record of purchasing run down buildings and bringing them up to snuff. OK. Maybe, the Christmas store and Indianwood Village will be wonderful. It's still going to draw a ton of tourists, create, extra traffic and generate its own security problems. Will Aldridge hire Orion people to work in the area?

It probably won't matter. All he wants is our dollars. Aldridge as much said so himself when B.J. Griffin expressed a concern about security at her Lakeview condominimum complex.

She was worried people would be using the bike path to gain entrance into the condos.

"I hope anyone who comes out there is in my village spending money, buying fudge and toys," Aldridge said.

He said it lightheardly, but there was more than an ounce of the businessman shark in the statement. Aldridge didn't get where he is today by giving things away.

Granted, Aldridge seemed solictious of the people's inquiries and his planners attempted to answer all questions. But is he going to be living in the backyard of this booming tourist mecca?

Perhaps, we should be just a tad more skeptical about the intentions of Mr. Aldridge as he proceeds to renovate the Antique Village. Let's hope it doesn't become so pricey that the average person can't shop there. After all, how many Orion residents actually own memberships at Indianwood?

Helpful in storm

I want to thank all the men who cut down my weeping willow tree. Because of the storm, I was without lights for five days.

An added thanks to Kevin Nyberg and John Lutz, who carried away all the wood two weeks ago.

Peer Pressure

By Grampa Jay

Peer pressure comes not from true friends
It will swallow you up in satan's trends
Drink that booze smoke it don't be a nerd
Don't be a poor sport go along with the herd

Peer pressure shoots it up breaks laws like a jerk
That's not true friendship talking it's satan's work
It will get you down, low, but be so glad you heard
You can shake peer pressure release it with God's Word

Jesus Christ does not pressure you it is your choice
Ask and go to Him for help, He will hear your voice
He is your only release from pressures of the world
He breaks satan's bonds gets Gods banners unfurled

When you need a true friend, caring love in you heart
It is your choice to ask Him and to become a big part
Of God's loving and caring family, He is a true friend
You know joy and a peace that will never end

It is simple, be not afraid it is very easy to do
Need only repent as Jesus forgive my sins too
Cleanse me please come into my heart to save my soul
Guide me, guard me, give me wisdom and keep me whole

Bone marrow transplant from 6-year-old daughter goes smoothly

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Editor

Alma Allen St. Croix has survived the first stage of her bone marrow transplant Aug. 16.

The former Independence Township resident, now of Pontiac, received bone marrow from her youngest child, Krisie, 6, whose marrow was not a perfect match, said Tillie St. Croix, Alma's mother-in-law.

"Her spirits are good," said Tillie on Monday, Aug. 19. "Of course, there's a few weeks to go, but the nurses tell me that she's on course."

Tillie, who came down with a cold last week, has not been able to see her son's wife at Harper Hospital. Alma is in isolation because doctors have given her medication to suppress her immune system, hoping that it will help her body accept her daughter Krisie's bone marrow. Alma also is mother to Mike, 12, and Dawn, 10.

"Her spirits are good."

Tillie St. Croix

In all, Alma probably will be in Harper Hospital about 100 days recovering from the transplant, which is the best hope for her survival of myelodysplastic syndrome, a leukemic blood disorder with death within 5 to 20 months.

Krisie, too, is recovering as predicted from the bone marrow transplant, said Tillie, adding that the youngster said she was not in pain.

Alma's insurance covers most of her medical costs, but the hospital stay for her daughter, Krisie, was not covered.

So the family, through My Friends Care Leukemia Fund, still is collecting money to help pay the costs.

How to help

To help, Shearle Chic at 5756 Highland Road, across from Al Dittrich Olds in Waterford Township, has scheduled a cut-a-thon for noon to 5 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 25, during which time nine hair-stylists will work and donate all proceeds to the fund.

"Isn't that fantastic?" marveled Tillie. "These people don't even know her."

Alma, who can't accept any living plants in her room, can accept cards, which keep her spirits up, said Tillie.

To send cards, address them to Alma Allen St. Croix, Room 419, Harper Hospital, 3990 John R., Detroit, MI 48201.

To donate to the Alma St. Croix fund through My Friends Care, send checks or money orders to: My Friends Care Leukemia Fund, C/O Alma St. Croix, P.O. Box 430934, Pontiac, MI 48343.

Language screening clinic offered Aug. 28

Learning to talk isn't always child's play.

Putting together sounds, words and sentences correctly is difficult for many young children. It may be a particular sound that is hard to pronounce or confusion about how words go together to make sense to friends, teachers and family members.

On Wednesday, Aug. 28, a free speech/ language screening clinic is being conducted by Peggy Wright, a certified speech pathologist in cooperation with Lederle Pharmaceutical Company. The clinic will be held at the Clarkston Medical Group offices at 5885 Ortonville Road, Clarkston.

There is no charge for this service, but appointments must be made in advance.

If you are concerned about how your child communicates or just interested in hearing more, schedule an appointment by calling 625-2621.

Sold on the first call

There's one less 12-foot aluminum boat for sale in this week's classified ad section.

Mrs. J. Vejack of Lake Orion advertised she wanted to sell the boat, with an electric motor, for $300. She sold the outfit on the first call.

Mrs. Vejack also says she uses The Clarkston News and Penny Stretcher classified sections often and has had "very, very good results."

For only $6, your 10-word ad (25 cent's for each additional word) runs for two weeks in The Clarkston News, Penny Stretcher, Oxford Leader, Ad-Vertiser and Lake Orion Review papers. That's total coverage in Independence, Springfield, Groveland, Oxford, Addison, Orion, Oakland and Brandon townships — more than 36,400 homes.

If you want to buy, sell or trade, call the paper with the ads at 625-3370 weekdays 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. or 628-4801 Saturdays 9 a.m. to noon.

Springfield Board sounds off on alarm ordinance

BY TRACY KING
Clarkston News Special Writer

Springfield Township Board members seem to agree that the number of false alarm runs for fire and police are occurring at, well, alarming levels.

It's deciding how to curb false alarm incidents that has the board divided.

After debating a proposal that would fine property owners for repeated false alarms, members voted 3-3 Aug. 14 to defeat the proposal.

Voting in favor of the proposal were Supervisor Collin Walls and trustees Nancy Strole and Dennis Vallad. Clark Calvin Walters and trustees Margaret Bloom and Charles Oaks voted no. Treasurer Lois Stiles was absent. A tie vote effectively defeats a proposal.

Those voting no said the proposal is too harsh on offenders.

"When you have a police car responding to false alarms, that police car is at a place where it is of no use."

Trustee Nancy Strole

"I personally have an alarm and know what this is about," Oaks told the board. "With a fourth offense at $400 — that's a point worth arguing about.

"It's totally way off," Oaks argued. "It's unrealistic."

"It's totally way off."

Trustee Charles Oaks

Those in favor of the false alarm ordinance argued that the proposal needed to call the attention of repeat offenders.

"When you have a police car responding to false alarms, that police car is at a place where it is of no use," said Strole. "In the meantime, you might have a real emergency, such as a (breaking and entering), and that police car is tied up."

Township officials sought to limit the number of false alarms after commissioning a police and fire study outlining the number of false alarms during a five-month period.

According to the report, 12 locations were responsible for about 42 percent of all alarm activity.

The proposed ordinance would fine property owners thought to have excessive false alarms within a calendar year.

As first proposed, property owners would be warned of the ordinance the first time; he would be fined $50 for the second offense, $100 for the third offense and $400 for the fourth offense.

After some discussion, the board made the motion to read $25 for the second offense, $50 for the third and $100 for the fourth.

The fines could be waved if the alarm went off during a storm or for other acts of God; the owner could also avert a fine if he presents notification that an alarm problem is being fixed.

Some board members said although some ordinance should be in place to curb the number of false alarms, the time period governing the false alarms was too long.

"It should be a shorter period of time," said Walters. "Our problem is when you get three or four in a month."

Others argued that limiting an ordinance to monthly offenders defeats the purpose of having any ordinance at all.

Those in favor of the ordinance are expected to bring it forward in another form at a future date.

Adopt-A-Child program produces school clothes

Here's a chance to help a child in need and do a good deed.

An Adopt-A-Child project, sponsored by the Oakland Livingston Human Service Agency (OLHSA) and the St. Vincent DePaul Nutrition Site, has begun to provide a homeless or low-income child with school clothes.

Area residents may help in the following ways.

■ Send money by check, not cash. Make all checks payable to the St. Vincent Nutrition Site in care of Ms. Leona Patterson, 150 Wide Track Drive, Pontiac, MI 48342. Adopt-A-Child should be entered somewhere on the check.

■ Purchase clothing for the child yourself. Obtain the sizes for a child in need by contacting Leona Patterson at the St. Vincent Nutrition Site at 332-0283, or call Joyce Allen at 858-5139.

■ Purchase or donate good clothing for any child and deliver them to Joyce Allen at OLHSA's Community Services Department, 196 Oakland Ave., Annex Building, Pontiac, MI 48342.

■ Take the child shopping yourself. Contact St. Vincent's for the name of a child.

For more information, call Joyce Allen, community developer, at 858-5139. Donations will be accepted until Sept. 3.

Man charged with indecent exposure

Timothy Partlo, 34, of Independence Township was arraigned Aug. 12 on an indecent exposure charge after he was found nude from the waist down in a field behind the Meijer store in Waterford Township.

A Meijer security employee said he saw Partlo standing with his pants down at the edge of the store's parking lot about 3:35 p.m. Aug. 10 and called police.

Partlo was charged before 51st District Court, Waterford, Magistrate John McGrath. He is being held in the Oakland County Jail after being unable to post a $5,000 cash bond. The charge carries a maxium sentence of life in prison.

A preliminary examination hearing before 51st District Court Judge Robert Carr has been set for 8:30 a.m. Aug. 22.

Residential ad OK — until business pours in

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Advertising alone should not determine whether a Clarkston resident with a home occupation is breaking a zoning ordinance.

That suggestion was made by village attorney Tom Gruich at the Aug. 12 Clarkston Village Council meeting.

The original discussion of the matter took place April 22 when the council suggested that Michael Lorimer of Main Street change an advertisement he placed in The Clarkston News.

The ad featured a drawing of "The Lorimer Home" and the words "M.J. Lorimer Building Co.," along with Lorimer's name, address and a Clarkston phone number. Lorimer told the council his business is in Birmingham, but he does much of business in the Clarkston area.

The council, concerned that the ad may make Lorimer's residential property appear commercial, asked its attorney, Tom Gruich, to look into the matter.

"It's difficult to draw concrete conclusions," Gruich told the council at the Aug. 12 meeting. "Advertising simply is an additional factor among many."

Gruich said much "depends on the commercial nature of what is being done." He cited that people giving music lessons in their home is much different from people who have a printing press at their residences.

He also added that today's technology — facsimile machines, answering machines, home computers — makes it easier for people to legally work at home.

The attorney said most violations of an ordinance occur when a home occupation causes excessive foot traffic into the home because of the business.

In a letter he addressed to council president Sharron Catallo, Gruich concluded, "It seems that a homeowner may advertise a legal home occupation until such time as a response to the advertising creates sufficient disruption of the neighborhood to constitute a violation of the ordinance."

"As I have indicated in the past, it is inconsistent with the First Amendment to prohibit the advertising without some showing that it is having a present effect on conditions in the neighborhood."

The council suggested that the planning commission take a closer look at its ordinance to see if there is a need for any changes regarding advertising and home occupations.

College bound

Regina Nicholson, a former Camp Oakland, Oxford, resident who has made her home in the Clarkston area since 1989, is leaving for college Sept. 7, according to Julie Candler, director of public relations at the camp.

Nicholson, a Clarkston High School graduate, plans to study social work at Ferris State College, Big Rapids.

To help with college expenses, she is working two jobs this summer: two days weekly doing clerical work at Camp Oakland and selling tickets at a theater in Auburn Hills.

She was placed with the Hart family of Clarkston under Camp Oakland's Supervised Independent Living program for young people who do not have a suitable home to which to return. Originally, she resided at Camp Oakland's Girls Ranch.

According to Candler, she is like a member of the family of Suzette and Tim Hart and their five children.

"Suzette says, 'She is welcome to stay here until whenever she is ready to strike out on her own,'" said Candler.

Reunion

Pontiac Northern High School Class of 1961 is having a 30th class reunion on Sept. 28, 1991. Members of the classes of 1959, 1960, 1961, 1962 and 1963 are invited.

Village Vines swings its door open for business

BY DENNIS V. CARTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Unlike the song "I heard it through the grapevine", at the Village Vines you can get it.

The Village Vines is an upper-class gift shop which features arrangements and wreaths.

According to Owner Rita Navin, opening the shop is something she has always wanted to do.

"No mattered where I traveled, I would always go into the local gift shops — then say to myself, I will own one of these someday," she says.

After moving to Clarkston five years ago when her husband was transferred here with General Motors, Rita began to get serious about her idea to open a gift shop.

"I had been in other successful business ventures in the past, but I had put things on hold to raise my two daughters," Navin says. "Once we moved here I heard a lot people say that gift shop like the one I wanted to open was needed."

About two years ago the time seemed right, so Rita began looking for the right location.

"Finding the right place was one of the hardest parts of the opening process," she says. "But then I found this spot, and I felt it was just right for what I wanted."

The location on M-15 seemed to right for Rita because it still allowed her to participate with the local merchants in Clarkston.

"I feel that merchant participant is a key," Rita explains. "I've been involved in some of their events, and plan to be part of the Crafts and Cider festival in September.

"I don't understand why more of the local merchants don't get together for these events," she says. "I was surprised when they didn't."

Before opening the gift shop, Rita did a lot of checking around and took about a year to assemble her inventory.

"We did our homework before we actually opened," she says. "I travel around the country looking for ideas and produces. I get some of my items from out of state, but like to get as much as I can from right here in Michigan."

The arrangements and wreathes are done by her daughter Kris.

"Kris is very artistic. She is perfectionist and every little detail on the arrangement or wreath has to be just right," Rita says. "She is very talented and makes very beautiful arrangements and wreaths."

Rita is happy to be located in the Clarkston area.

"I think Clarkston is neat. We are very happy to be living here. The people are great, and business, so far, has been far better than I had expected for this type of shop," she says.

At the Village Vines gift shop you can also find pottery and other upper-class gift ideas.

"We wanted to give the customer a choice of something really nice to get as a gift or just for themselves," Rita states. "We have pottery with Clarkston on it which is something a lot people asked me for.

"I'm adding to the inventory all time, so feel I should have or could get just about anything someone might want," she adds.

With everything now in place, you don't just have to hear about it through the grapevines, you can go on down and check it out at the Village Vines.

RITA NAVIN, the owner of Village Vines, shows off one of the wreaths her daughter Kris made to sell at the new upper-class gift shop she recently opened on M-15.

Making Olympics no cakewalk for Morgan

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Gary Morgan has already competed in the Olympics.

Now he wants to walk off with a medal.

Morgan, a 1978 graduate of Pontiac Central who lives in Independence Township, is a world-class 20K walker who has his sights on the 1992 Olympics in Barcelona, Spain.

Morgan finished 37th at the 1988 Olympics in Seoul, South Korea, the top finish by an American in a sport dominated by Mexicans and the Europeans.

Recently he won a silver medal at the Olympic Festival in Los Angeles, finishing the 20K walk in one hour, 26 minutes and 56 seconds. Allen James nipped Morgan by finishing at 1:26:23.

Morgan also placed a close second at the national championships in New York. He crossed the finish line at 1:30:21, behind Colorado Springs' Tim Lewis who finished at 1:29:55.

But qualifying for the 1992 Olympics will not be a (excuse the expression) cakewalk for Morgan.

Because of new rules in the Olympics, Morgan will not only be competing against other Americans but also against the clock. Olympic officials have decided to trim the growing number of athletes attending the games by setting a required time in certain events.

In other words, even if Morgan finishes first, second or third at the Olympic Trials in New Orleans in June of 1992, he still must walk faster than a given time in order to qualify.

That magic time is 1:24:0.

Morgan thinks he can chop off three minutes from the 1:26:56 he walked at the recent Olympic Festival.

"It'll take a lot of training. I think I can do it if I don't get sick," said Morgan, who works for General Motors in Pontiac.

Morgan will be thrilled to again make the Olympics and he won't mind living in Olympic village dormitories.

What does Morgan think about the United States basketball team which recently flew in and out of Cuba to a swank Miami hotel during the Pan-Am games?

"That's a bunch of crap. That ain't right," said Morgan. "Most of us (Olympians) feel that way."

Morgan, whose largest prize money in a single event was $2,000, said the Olympics mean more than any invitational or even a national championship.

The last American to earn a medal in walking happened in 1972, a bronze.

Morgan practices six days a week, totaling about 50 miles. He usually walks four days at Indian Springs Metro Park and then two other days in Dearborn under the guidance of volunteer coach Frank Alongi. Occasionally, he walks around the Clarkston High School track.

The walker is sponsored by the New York Athletic Club, Nike shoes and Alena food products.

How fast can Morgan walk?

His fastest time in the 1-mile walk has been 5:54, his best 5K was 20:02, 10K 4:38 and 20K 1:26:56.

Morgan ran cross-country and track in high school, but a classmate at Pontiac Central noticed he had another athletic skill.

The classmate told a 15-year-old Morgan about an upcoming AAU track meet which had a 1-mile walk event. "You ought to try it. You can walk down the halls fast."

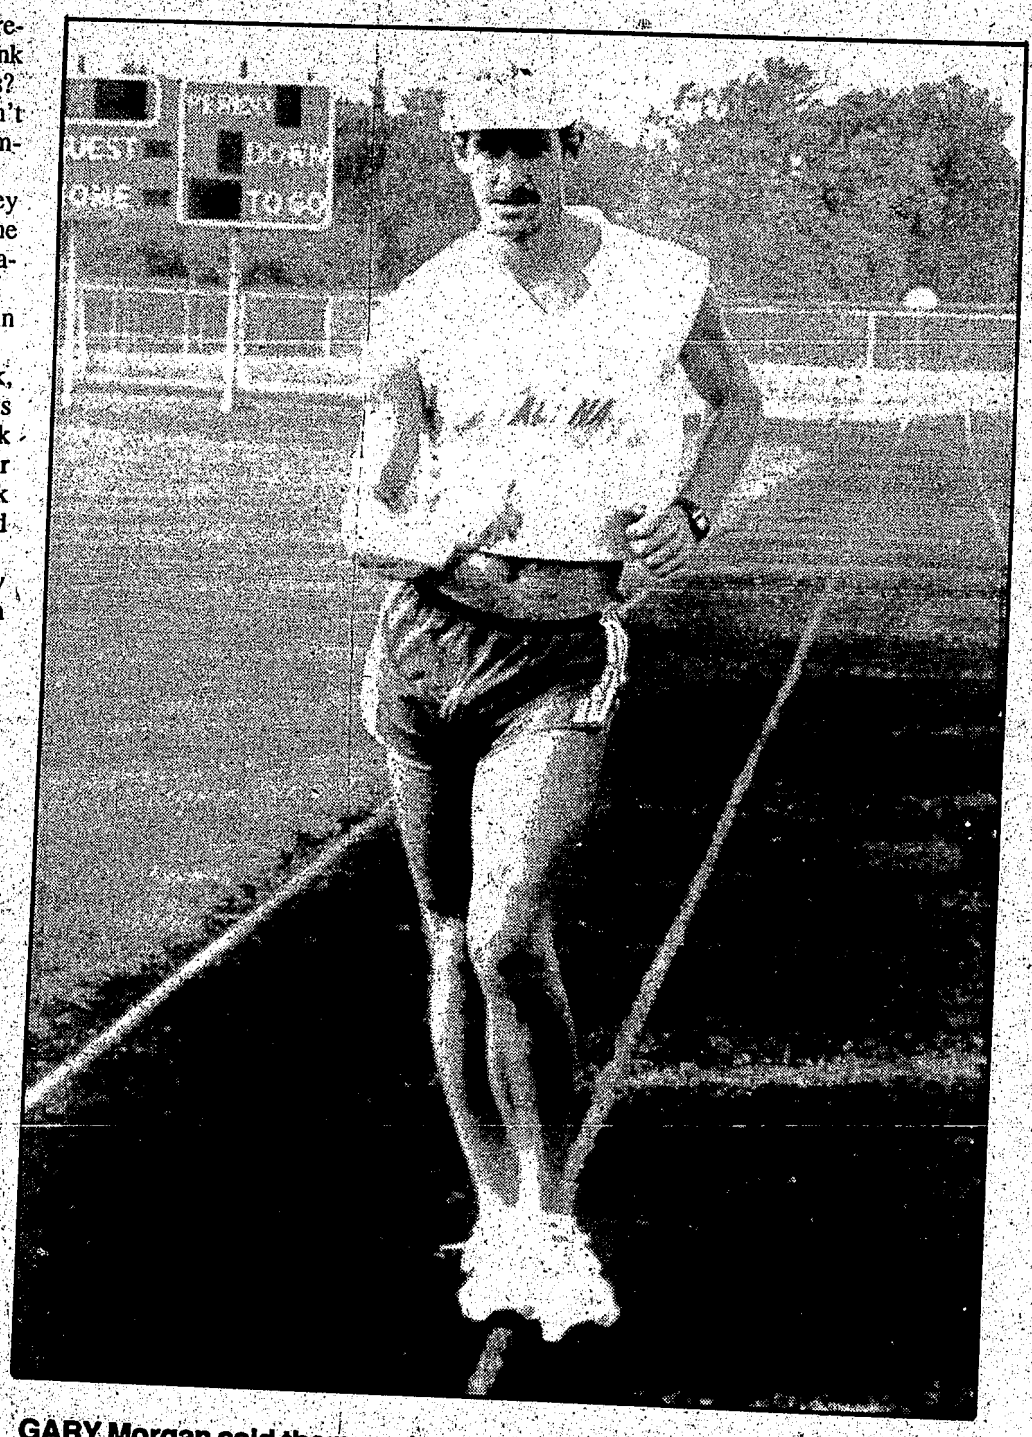
Morgan tried it and then one year later competed in the national AAU Junior Olympics in Nashville, Tenn.

But after that he didn't walk competitively again until five years later. Instead, he began to run in marathons, finishing the Detroit Free Press Marathon in 2:44 and one in Philadelphia in 2:35.

He ran cross-country at Oakland Community College for two years but in 1983 decided to get back into walking.

"With walking, I knew I had a chance to make the Olympic team," said Morgan.

And now he's walking and walking for another chance.



GARY Morgan said there are two rules to walking competitively, "Lock your knee every step and one foot should be on the ground at all times." Morgan will be competing at this Saturday's Bobby Crim Race in Flint.

Swinging from the Heels

Library no-Howe and ugly Americans

James Gibowski

I was just thinking...

■ Read any good books lately? If you want to read Steve Howe's book Between the Lines, you can't find it in Clarkston.

Howe, a 1976 Clarkston High School graduate who now pitches for the New York Yankees, had his book published in 1989.

I interviewed Howe a few weeks ago at Tiger Stadium and thought the book would be nice for some background information.

I called up the Independence Township Library and was told it doesn't carry the book.

I called up the Village Bookstore and it doesn't have it either. Someone there told me I could probably order it. She also told me I was the first one to inquire about the book. (Clarkston Athletic Director and Howe's former baseball coach Paul Tungate told me he tried in vain to get the book at the bookstore when it first came out a few years ago).

Whether or not you like Howe, whether or not you think he should have gotten another shot in the major leagues after continual drug problems, those aren't the questions.

The real question is, shouldn't any book published by a former or current resident of Clarkston be available in the local library or on the shelves of the local bookstore?

■ The shirt off his back: A surprise visitor showed up at the Clarkston News office on Friday.

Mary Jane Falls (wife of Independence Township resident, Clarkston News subscriber and Detroit News sports editor Joe Falls) gave me a shirt and cap which stated: "Ernie: we want him back."

Last week in this column (as I had one other time) I criticized both Joe Falls and Mitch Albom for asking their readers to apologize to Bo Schembechler in regard to the firing of Ernie Harwell. I blame Bo, Tom Monaghan and WJR, all of them for firing Ernie, who will probably end up broadcasting in Baltimore next year or for some other club that appreciates Hall of Fame announcers.

Anyway, thanks for the shirt and cap, Joe. (I wish you'd send one to Bo, too).

Joe and I may disagree on some things, but we both agree on one thing -- Special Olympics is probably the purest of all sports.

Joe is very active in promoting the Oakland County Special Olympics and he doesn't like to take credit for all of the hours he volunteers his time with that cause.

Last Saturday, Joe and other sports personalities helped raise over $100,000 for the Oakland County Special Olympics in an auction at Southfield.

In this age of huge salaries, renegotiating multi-year contracts, drugs, shoe advertising contracts, brawls on the field and in the stands, Joe takes much comfort in seeing an athlete happy about running 100 meters in 25 seconds.

That's special.

■ Stay Midwest, young man: Dugan Fife will be playing basketball at the University of Michigan after his senior year at Clarkston High School.

Fife, an all-state basketball player who will begin playing quarterback for the Wolves in a few weeks, was contacted by schools throughout the country. In fact, he could have visited the University of Stanford in Palo Alto, Calif. a few days before making his decision, but decided not to go and became a Wolverine.

I've been to the San Francisco Bay area (Palo Alto is southeast of San Franciso). It's one of the prettiest areas of the country.

But Fife chose Michigan instead of the Pac-10, instead of playing against UCLA with its sun-tanned cheerleaders in LA LA land.

We all have to make choices in our lives. Some of them are easy and some are tough.

Obviously, family and familiarity were more important to Fife at this stage in his life.

And after he's done playing basketball, California (barring a major quake) will still be there if he wants it.

■ 138,544: What were 138,544 people doing attending the three-day weekend series with Toronto at Tiger Stadium?

Don't they know the stadium is going to fall down?

Don't they know there is no place to park?

Don't they know they're going to sit behind posts?

Don't they know they're going to get mugged in downtown Detroit?

I guess the only thing they knew was that the Tigers were only two games behind first-place Toronto with only a month and a half left in the season.

■ Oh, say, can't you see...: For the first time in my life, I'm glad a United States basketball team has lost in international competition.

Puerto Rico defeated the American men's team, which had to settle for a bronze medal.

I wanted the American team to lose because of its arrogance at the recent Pan-American games in Cuba.

The ugly-American team won a bronze medal for basketball but it easily deserves the gold for its arrogance, refusing to live in Cuba during the games, flying back and forth to rest at some swank hotel in Miami.

The men's basketball team was the only American team not to stay in the Cuba village of athletes.

They said it helped them concentrate on winning the gold.

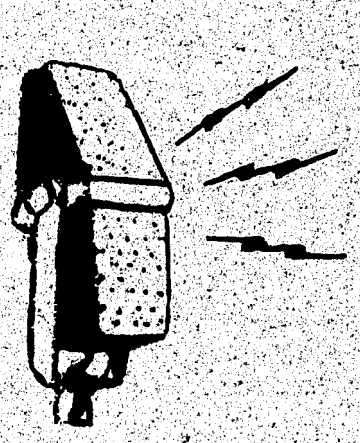
Apparently, some of the players were concentrating too much on filet mignon at the Miami hotel's restaurant instead of their jump shots or at the girls in the hot tub instead of their defense.

Anyway, next time our basketball team plays in international competition, let's field a team that will want to be like the rest of American athletes, a team that will enjoy the companionship and cultures of athletes from around the world.

Oh, the Americans will be sending NBA players at the next competition.

I guess this year's Pan-Am team was warming up the luxury suites for them.

Maybe Magic Johnson and Patrick Ewing should start making reservations for the Marriott in Barcelona.



Ernie and Paul listeners' (un)magic number

40

Only 40 games left to hear the descriptive, informative and soothing voices of Ernie Harwell and Paul Carey. Next year, the Tigers' radio booth will most likely be filled with the voices of WJR"yes Mr. Monaghan"-"Domino's is my favorite"-types like Frank Beckmann (who publically has criticized Ernie's performance but who denies he's out for his job), or Ray Knight (a clean-cut, non-Don Mattingly-hair-type, Sparky Anderson favorite who would fit in fine as a broadcast cheerleader for the Tigers). --by James Gibowski

Champ softball team now on Oregon trail

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

A Clarkston area softball team has qualified for the national finals Sept. 26-29 in Eugene, Ore.

The Breakers, Women's Beta Upper champs in Independence Township Parks and Recreation softball, recently won the Class D state championship in Mount Clemens, qualifying the squad for the American Softball Association nationals.

"I am very fortunate to have such a good group of girls," said Breakers' manager Dave Carlson.

Carlson has been managing the Breakers for 10 years and knows his players quite well. He said about 75 percent of the team has been together for all 10 years.

That togetherness is a big factor in the team's fortunes.

"That's a main reason for our success. Everybody knows everybody. Everybody gets along," said Carlson, a Waterford resident.

The manager noted other reasons for the team's success.

"Defense is our biggest strength," said Carlson. "They know where to throw the ball. They talk with each other on the field."

Four of the Breakers are from the Clarkston area: Kim Becker, Kelly Howenstine, Valerie Eversole and Debbie Clarkson. Assistant coach Jim Pierce is also from the Clarkston area.

Other Breakers and their residences are: Debi Iwanski of Rose Township; Lori Nelson, Kim Wightman, Becky Sayles, Carole White and Stevie Humbaugh of Waterford; Patty Thompson of Rochester; Mary Ann Schell and Nancy McKay of Mount Morris; Joleen Smith of Grand Blanc; Chris Bicknell of Union Lake and Kim Durst of Warren.

Thompson was the team's most valuable player on offense during the state tournament, and Schell was the team's MVP on defense. Eversole, Wightman, Becker and Sayles were also selected as all-stars.

The Breakers won both the regular season and playoff championships in the Women's Beta Upper league.

In state tournament action, the Breakers edged a Walled Lake team, 7-6, in the opening round. It then topped Geno's of Mount Clemens, 8-3, and Blue Diamonds of Howell, 5-1, to reach the finals of the double-elimination tournament.

The undefeated Breakers again met Geno's in the finals, with the Mount Clemens' squad edging the Breakers, 5-4, to set up one more game. The Breakers then earned the state title by stopping Geno's, 4-1.

The only thing that would stop the Breakers from making the trip to Oregon is the cost of the trip. The squad will be involved with fund raising the next several weeks.

Peace Corps takes woman around the globe

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Associate Editor

After a year and a half of helping citizens in Paraguay, Amy Bruce has come to the realization that people are the same the world over.

Bruce, a 26-year-old alumnus of Clarkston High School and the University of Michigan, has spent the last couple of years helping those in less fortunate countries.

Stateside, she is presently looking for employment in the Washington, D.C., area in the field of maternal and child development.

Bruce joined the Peace Corps in June of 1988. After graduating with a master's degree in public policy, she saw the Peace Corps as a stepping stone toward eventually working overseas.

Bruce was originally assigned to Mali, West Africa,

"It's such a different world, ours and theirs, because our society doesn't really know widespread poverty."

to work as a gardening volunteer. She had to be transferred, however, when they discovered she was allergic to a sulfa-based vaccine used to combat malaria.

In February 1989, she was sent to a rural community near Asuncion, Paraguay, to work as a health-education programmer. In this capacity, she was asked to create nutritional and hygienic programs for interested citizens.

Bruce said many of the people were suffering from

"They think America is one big city, and all its citizens are extremely rich."

Amy Bruce

an intestinal virus caused by contaminated drinking water and poor personal hygiene.

Besides nutrition, she was also responsible for educating pregnant women on the phases of childbirth and teaching first-aid.

Bruce said most of the country's people live in an impoverished state.

"It's such a different world, ours and theirs, because our society doesn't really know widespread poverty," she said.

Upon arrival, Bruce was surprised to find that her knowledge of the Spanish language wasn't enough. Even though Spanish is the official language of Paraguay, many of the people speak Guarani, an Indian dialect.

"It was a little tough at first because I expected most of the people to speak Spanish," she said. "I used Spanish until I got a good enough grasp onto the Guarani language, which took about nine months."

During her stay in Paraguay, Bruce had to learn to tolerate the region's sweltering heat and its militaristic government. Because she worked with the poor, she said supplies were hard to obtain.

"The government's ministry of health was very slow in providing us with supplies," she said. "It seemed the only way things got done around there was by who you knew or what you did."

Bruce also had to battle the frustration of dealing with people who didn't see her as their equal.

"It was extremely hard working with some people because they weren't used to working with women," she said. "There were doctors who just didn't view women as professionals, their equals, and it got to the point where I almost gave up."

Despite the hardships, Bruce said the thought of helping the Paraguayan people kept her going. She said some of her most memorable moments came from chats with the citizenry.

"It was great because they see you as a source of knowledge and are constantly asking questions on an array of topics," she said. "They've got a limited education, but it was great to see their eyes light up when you've taught them something about the world."

Bruce said most of the people viewed the United States as one grand city.

"They think America is one big city, and all its citizens are extremely rich. When you tell them about our homeless, they found it hard to fathom.

"They have such a strong sense of family that they can't imagine not taking in someone in need," she added.

While in Paraguay, Bruce said she conducted an exchange program with Clarkston's Andersonville Elementary School. The children of her area made friendship bracelets last fall and sent them to a class of Andersonville students, who in turn sold them for profit.

Nearly $150 was raised from sales and sent back to

Paraguay to help line a primitive drinking well.

Looking back on her Paraguay experiences, Bruce said she realized that the differences between people is purely in their surroundings.

"While cultures have an incredible impact on society, it doesn't hide the fact that we're all the same," she said. "Once you lift off all the cosmetics, like America's materialism, you find that all people have the same fears, hopes and aspirations."

Follow Through

By Grampa Jay

One may have the aptitude
To follow thru takes attitude
Faith takes intestinal fortitude
To praise the Lord is gratitude

Faith is trusting the Lord
Attitude is believing His Word
Fortitude is stepping out in faith
Aptitude, ability God gave grace

When you have the attitude and the intestinal fortitude
To give God all the gratitude
He will grace your Fortitude

When He graces your fortitude
It elevates your attitude
Increasing your aptitude
Praise His name in gratitude

QUESTION: I am very shy. If I ask too many questions when I view a home won't the Realtor think I am just being nosey?
ANSWER: Never be ashamed to ask! I could not think of a worse time to discover unpleasant surprises than AFTER the deed has been signed, sealed and delivered. There is no need to be unpleasantly surprised. How do you avoid this frustration? Have a ready checklist of items to ask your REALTOR - especially on items the eye cannot see.

At the wheel

BOBBY Cadeau, 3 1/2, of the Clarkston area, plays at being a firefighter during Oakland Pointe Shopping Center's Old Country Fair July 20. He is the son of Wynne and Don Cadeau.

Start early on money matters

The Michigan Association of CPAs advices that effective management is a gradual process that should begin during your child's toddler years and extend well into his or her teens.

Children are likely to learn best about managing through the experience that comes with getting an allowance. Starting at around age 6 or 7, an allowance should be given on a regular basis and in an amount that relates to the child's needs. A child's allowance should represent the child's share of the family budget and be given with no strings attached.

School-age children are ready to start learning about the concepts of budgeting, spending vs. saving, and other basic monetary strategies. You can also begin to explain the difference between short- and long-term financial goals.

Keep in mind that if you want your children to learn how to handle money responsibly, you will have to allow them a fair amount of control control over how they use their money. Children need to have the leeway to buy the things that are important to them even if you find them frivolous. If a child spends all his allowance on a plastic car and the wheels fall off the next day, the child will, hopefully, learn a lesson.

At about age 11 or 12, your child should have a good grasp on managing money, budgeting and setting priorities. But that doesn't mean he or she isn't going to make mistakes. What should you do if your child runs short and asks for more money or an advance? Generally, it is not a good idea to constantly bail your child out. If children know there is always more money available when they ask, they will quickly realize there is no need to budget their allowance.

When your children enter their teen years, a lesson in managing credit wisely becomes fairly essential. Next time you whip out a credit card to pay for a pair of sneakers, be sure to explain the cause and effect nature of credit.

The teen years are also an ideal time to introduce your child to the world of investing, from savings accounts to such fairly sophisticated financial concepts as stocks and mutual funds. Consider, for example, arranging for a trip to a U.S. Mint Office or stock exchange.

If you begin teaching children about money management when they are young, by the time they enter high school the should be fairly well educated and financially responsible. In many cases, they may be ready to have their own own checking accounts and learn to reconcile bank statements.

A child's allowance should represent the child's share of the family budget and be given with no strings attached.

Another valuable lesson for teen-agers can be found in buying a few shares in a stock fund and monitoring them. Similarly, try to involve teen-agers in the process of saving for college and encourage them to track the performance of investments earmarked for their education. Children in high school may also gain a lot from a part-time or summer job, which can teach them how jobs work and the responsibilities involved in earning a paycheck.

We all have to learn to make financial decisions, establish priorities, and function in the marketplace. The sooner you start teaching your child, the more financially responsible he or she is likely to be.

The above information was provided by the Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants.

Soviet exchange student in search of a home

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Associate Editor

With only a week left before school is scheduled to start in Clarkston, one Soviet exchange student finds himself without a foster home.

Vladimir Weksler, 17, of the Ukraine, will be attending Clarkston High School as a senior this fall. He's in the United States on the International Education Forum (IEF) exchange program.

He arrived in the United States on Aug. 18 and has been living with IEF community coordinator Alice Chamberlain of Waterford Township.

Chamberlain would like to see Vladimir settled as soon as possible because the transition from culture to culture is hard enough without worrying about living accommodations, too, she said.

His IEF profile lists Vladimir as polite, sensitive and independent. His hobbies include soccer, photography, tennis and backpacking.

> "The U.S. is very beautiful, a wonderful country."
> Vladimir Weksler

Vladimir's father is a deputy director in the government, and his mother is an engineer.

After graduating from CHS, Vladimir is hoping to return to the United States and major in economics at an American university.

So far, the young Soviet is impressed with what he's seen of America.

"The U.S. is very beautiful, a wonderful country," he said.

While staying at her home, Chamberlain said Vladimir had grown quite fond of cookies.

"You should see the expression on his face when I told him that's there literally hundreds of types cookies in the local grocery store," she said, laughing.

Chamberlain said sponsor families only need to feed and offer housing for the exchange students. The length of the residency usually runs from August to late June.

Exchange students have their own money and hospital insurance, she added.

If you're interested in sponsoring Vladimir or know of someone in the Clarkston area who might, contact Chamberlain at 673-0423.

VLADIMIR WEKSLER, a 17-year-old exchange student from the Soviet Union, still needs a Clarkston-area family take him for the upcoming school year.

Show time

Photos by Julie Campe

A FEW moments before show time, Hope Waller talks to the 11 members of the Rising Star Performing Arts Camp. She tells the group to close their eyes and say: "I will make at least one mistake today, and that's OK. I'm human. I won't get upset about it." Waller, a graduate of Clarkston High School and Alma College, Alma, offered the week-long day camp through the Independence Township Parks and Recreation Department.

SARAH Harrison, 13, dances during a rehearsal Aug. 9 just before a show for parents, relatives and friends.

Pastor helps people develop and grow

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Associate Editor

A renowned traveler and author, the Rev. Edward Farrell cherishes the opportunity of teaching people more about their innerselves.

Farrell, an ordained minister of 35 years, serves as associate pastor at the St. Daniel Church on Valley Park Drive, Independence Township. The 60-year-old Detroit resident is also a full-time professor at Sacred Heart Seminary in Detroit.

He's been a weekend assistant pastor at St. Daniel for nearly a year.

Since 1972, Farrell has written eight books on spirituality, prayer and personal growth. His most popular work, "Prayer Is a Hunger" has sold nearly 250,000 copies.

To his followers, Farrell is also known as the "Retreat Master." This is because, over his career, he has traveled to 26 countries and provided the citizens with prayer sessions. Farrell said these sessions allow him to help the participants with their prayer experiences and the faith behind them.

When Farrell wishes to renew his own faith and learn more about himself, he takes month-long "hermitages" to far-away places. His first one was to the Sahara Desert in 1971. Since then, he has visited Ireland, France and most recently Iceland.

Farrell said the solitude allows him to think about the progression of his life.

"During a hermitage, I just sit, free of doing (anything), and read the bible," he said. "By being completely removed from the everyday environment, I'm free to reflect on my life and make plans for the future."

He said most people, especially Americans, go throughout their lives and never get to know themselves.

"Everyone is so busy with pleasing others these days that they forget about themselves," Farrell said. "With a lot of people, they feel their contributions to family and society are limited.

"They don't know what they're capable of because they've never had time to sit and consider their personal strengths," he added.

"Everyone is so busy with pleasing others these days that they forget about themselves."

The Rev. Edward Farrell

Farrell's teachings aren't restricted to purely religious themes, however. He also offers clinics in personal growth management.

His clinics conjure personal awareness and are open to people of all denominations.

The program is called PRH, which stands for "Personnalite et Relations Humaines." Translated in English, this simply means personality and human relations.

This program was developed by French educator Andre Rochais, who devoted his entire life to exploring the depths of the human potential.

Farrell said his 10-week program entails exercises that allow individuals the chance to pinpoint who they are, where they've been and where their present life is taking them.

"So many people don't believe in and love themselves," he said. "Through our exercises, I give them the personal tools for their own growth development."

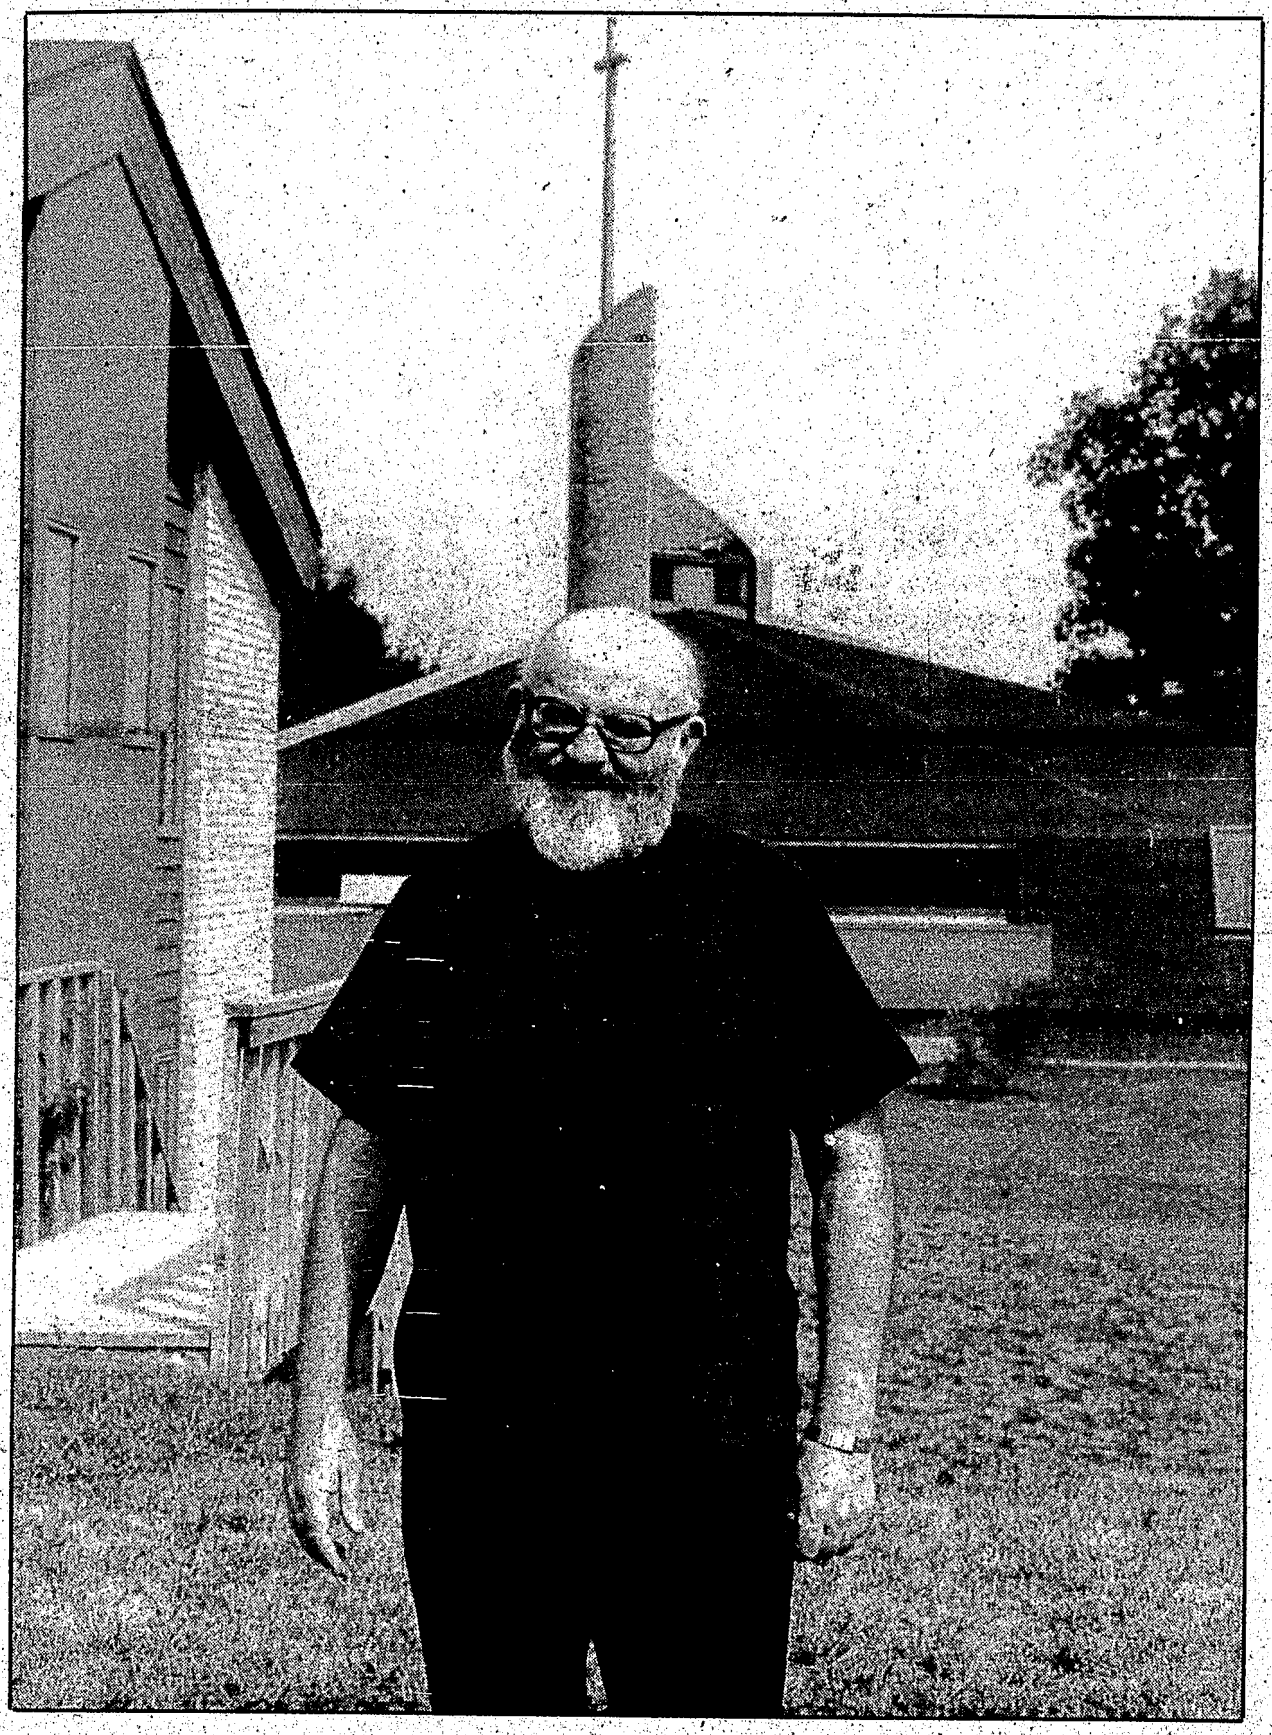
The programs are scheduled to begin in mid-September and be held at St. Daniel.

Farrell said he considers the "moment of discovery" the most exciting part of the PRH program.

"You can see the light in a person's eyes when they find out something about themself that's been there all along," he said. "PRH helps you discover what gifts you've been given so you can eventually share them with others."

With retirement about 10 years away, Farrell said he has no intentions of slowing down.

"My lifework is to help people receive the gift of themselves and the Lord," he said. "I'll continue to work as the church's tool until they tell me otherwise."



THE REV. Edward Farrell has been working as a weekend pastor at St. Daniel Catholic Church, Clarkston, for nearly a year. In addition to preaching, the 60-year-old Detroiter offers a program in personal growth development.

Golden poet's art to be published

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Editor

One senior citizen in Independence Township is soon to be a published poet.

Grampa Jay of Corunna Street submitted his poem "Trusting Children" in a contest for senior citizens sponsored by the World of Poetry, a newsletter for poets.

Jay, 64, was informed in May that he was a "Golden Poet" and that his poem would appear in "Our World's Most Treasured Poems" published by World of Poetry Press, Sacramento, Calif.

He also was invited to attend a special ceremony in New York City Sept. 2 to read his poem and receive a trophy.

Right now, Jay, who is off work due to cancer of the prostate — which is "under control," he says — is trying to raise the $495 to make the trip.

Jay, who is married to Peg and has a daughter, Jennifer, 11, says most of his poetry is religious in nature.

He says he was surprised that he won a spot in the upcoming book because, as the oldest of 10 children, he quit school to help work on his family's farm in Canada.

He's been writing poetry for about 20 years, he says.

"I just enjoy it," Jay says. "I really don't know why — I only have an eighth-grade education. I like learning. A word will come up, and I'll look it up, ... and see if it will work out."

His poem follows.

Trusting Children

By Grampa Jay

Our children do trust us to leave them a world
With a wide open sky and breath of life filled
To leave them that kind of world is up to us
We can make wise choices for a future luxurious

One golden rule applied can help save civilization
Do unto others as you would be done by, realization
Same rule applies to our relationship with earth
It's something our love and attention is truly worth.

God created earth then made may to enjoy it all
It is our only earth we must insure its survival
Like people we must treat our environment same way
We would like our environment to treat us every day.

God gave each of us an unlimited creative ability
Everyone countless opportunities of changeability
Millions of small changes will transform this world
With our actions and interactions with God's holy word

For all our wrongful ways we ask forgiveness, oh, Lord
And the strength for each to become a better steward
Oh, Lord God, that we might be trustworthy of this work
May thy kingdom come and they will be done on this earth

GRAMPA JAY says he feels "great" that he is about to become a published poet.

Proud grandparents are Cliff and Dolores Smart of Clarkston and Alton and Arlene Smiley of Marlette.

It's a son for Amy and Gary Reed of Grand Ledge.

Garrison David Reed was born Aug. 7 at Sparrow Hospital in Lansing. He weighed 6 pounds, 12 ounces and measured 20 inches long.

The parents are originally from the Clarkston area.

Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Jim and Carolann Reed of 8569 Ellis, Springfield Township and David and Carol Bixby of 6585 Washington, Independence Township.

Engagement

Mr. and Mrs. David Fricks of Clarkston announce the engagement of their daughter, Heidi Ann Fricks, to James Robert Mather, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Mather of Clarkston. The bride-elect is a graduate of Oakland Community College. The prospective bridegroom is currently stationed in Japan with the U.S. Navy. Both are graduates of Clarkston High School. The wedding is planned for fall of 1992.

Stefanski and Winchester marry

At 3 p.m. Saturday, April 27, 1991, Susan T. Stefanski and Robert M. Winchester Jr. were united in marriage at the Michigan State University Alumni Memorial Chapel, East Lansing, with the Rev. Mark Inglot officiating.

Pew bows, flowers and candles decorated the church inside, while the blooming magnolias and spirea decorated the surrounding outside area.

The bride, a 1986 Clarkston High School graduate, holds a business degree in accounting from Michigan State University, East Lansing. She is employed as a controller for Clara's Restaurant in lansing. Her parents are Walter and Dorothy Stefanski of Oakhill Road, Independence Township.

The groom, a graduate of Bullock Creek High School, Midland, is a student at MSU. His parents are Robert and Sharon Winchester of Homer Road, Midland.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore her mother's bridal gown of ivory satin and beaded lace with a cathedral train and fingertip veil of a lace over satin cap crowned with fresh flowers. She carried ivory roses and orchids with mixed spring flowers.

Janet Ward served as matron of honor with bridesmaids Angela Terwillegar and Robin Babrowski. Their gowns were floor length of turquoise brocade. They also carried flower baskets.

Charles Lawrence served as best man with groomsmen Michael Stefanski and Chris Babrowski. David Stefanski served as usher and James Ward as ring bearer.

Steve Brinklow was the soloist for the ceremony and led a group from MSU in the harmony at the reception in the Holiday Inn, East Lansing.

The couple honeymooned at Walt Disney World, Orlando, Fla. They reside in Lansing.

NEWLYWEDS: Mr. and Mrs. Robert Winchester Jr.

Think About It

Survival of hated job stress

Amanda Peske

There are many amazing and wonderful things to experience in life. For parents, it's watching their one-of-a-kind offspring growing up. As for kids, it's getting out of high school and venturing out of the parental atmosphere for bigger, brighter things such as college parties.

The first year at college is usually the most influential. Between the late-night parties and early morning classes, it's not easy to get acclimated.

Then, by the time senior year rolls around, the priorities are straight and the career is in clear view.

After four years (or more) of hard work at college, after all the money spent, it has always amazed me that somehow people always wind up in a job they hate or in some way dislike.

To me it is apparent that you should start thinking about what you want to do before or during high school. In high school the ciriculum is a lot different from, say, a junior high school.

High school offers many college preparatory classes. If you have a faint idea as to what you want to do in high school, then that right there will give you a head start. For example, I would like to major in public relations or communications. Volunteering here at The Clarkston News, as a journalist, has put me a step toward my goal.

The only way to survive a career in the future is to start by picking something you enjoy. You can't get up before the crack of dawn in the morning, stay there until the late hours of evening and survive if you hate it.

Pick something you are not only interested in but are fairly good in also. If you are good with numbers, go for something like accounting or bookkeeping. If you are good with people try something in communications. And even if you're the most opinionated person in the world, there is a well-suited occupation for you, too — become a lawyer.

If you are already involved in a job you don't like, there is still hope. Don't hesitate to try and find another job, if you think there is a possibility that you might find something else. Just don't be a fool. Find another job before you quit the one you are currently employed at. In today's economy, a bad job is better than no job.

While you are still trying to conquer your hatred for your job, instead of complaining about it, get out and look for a job.

One last suggestion, don't settle for just anything. Check out everything, even down to how the company has been doing in the last year and the prospect of how well it will be doing in the future.

There is one thing to consider during all your frustration: don't quit a job just because you don't like your coworkers. You are there to work, not to socialize. So if they are good business people, then leave it alone. And no matter what, anywhere you go there probably will still be someone you don't like.

Amanda Peske is a junior at Clarkston High School.

New MADD scholarship helps crash victims

A new scholarship offered by Mothers Against Drunk Driving is offered to victims of drunk driving crashes.

The scholarships are to be awarded on the basis of merit and need with consideration given to the impact of the crash on the family.

The $500 to $1,000 annual scholarship awards were created to help victims complete their chosen careers. To qualify for the scholarship, an individual must be a drunk driving crash victim (death of parent or spouse) or survivor, be a Michigan resident, be a graduate from high school with a 2.0 grade point average or better, be available for an interview, and have financial need.

The application deadline is Sept. 10. For more information, call (517) 631-6233, or write: MADD, Michigan, 910 Eastlawn, Midland, MI 48642.

Sun Valley Casual Furniture honored by chamber

BY DENNIS V. CARTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

The efforts of Sun Valley Casual Furniture owners to improve the appearance of their business did not go unnoticed.

At the Clarkston Area Chamber of Commerce's annual meeting, Sun Valley was selected as winner of the Beatification Award.

"We were very happy to be selected," said Kim Beattie, president of the company on Dixie Highway, Independence Township.

"We began remodeling the building last fall and have changed a lot of the appearance of the building both inside and out," he said. "We also tore down an old building, which helped the appearance of our location."

The structure that once housed the factory for Moon Valley Rustic Furniture was converted to a show place for Sun Valley's casual furniture, which is owned by the same company.

"We moved the production aspect of the company to (Springfield Township) and decided to use this building for our casual furniture sales floor," said Beattie. "This building had been set up just for production with some office space in the front, so we totally changed the inside to set it up for a sales floor."

According to Buck Kopietz, president of the Clarkston Area Chamber of Commerce, Sun Valley was selected because it did the most to make the business more pleasing to the eye.

"It is a process of elimination," Kopietz said. "We base our decision on which business has demonstrated the best example for the year of making their property more pleasing and appealing to the eye of the community.,

"In Sun Valley's case, we took into consideration the condition of the building beforehand. It had been a factory, and they did a lot work to improve the appearance of the structure."

Beattie said Sun Valley, a family-owned business, not only changed the inside of the building, but also worked to make the outside of the business more appealing to the community.

"We changed what had been loading dock-type doors to bay windows; we put on new awnings and had a new sign put up in front, along with some landscaping and repainting," Beattie said. "We did a lot the work ourselves and put a lot time into seeing to it that the building looked nice."

According to Kopietz, the award is designed to let people in the community know that commercial structures can also be pleasing to the eye.

"It shows the community that we care about the appearance of the township. We want recognize the businesses that do the most for the beatification of township," Kopietz said.

For the Beattie family, that meant a lot of planning.

"We put a lot of thought and a lot working into decided what we were going to do. We wanted to make sure that public would see our location as nice place look at when they drive by," Beattie said.

"We have a few more things in the works for our location here and are happy to see that the township liked we have done so far. It's nice to put a lot work into something and have it appreciated," he said.

Obituary

Walter R. Forbes

Walter R. Forbes, 73, of Laguna Hills, Calif., died Aug. 16, 1991, of cancer at Saddleback Memorial Hospital in Laguna Hills.

Formerly of Birmingham, Waterford Township and Oxford, Mr. Forbes was a veteran of the U.S. Army. Following World War II, Mr. Forbes founded Forbes Printing and Office Supply in Birmingham, eventually moving his office to Drayton Plains and Oxford.

Mr. Forbes was one of the founder of the Church of the Resurrection in Clarkston. A former member of the Clarkston Village PLayers and the Birmingham and Waterford Rotary clubs, he was a member of the American Legion Post No. 108, B.P.O.E. No. 810, and V.F.W. Post No. 1008.

Mr. Forbes is survived by his wife, Caroline (Giles); children, Mrs. Patrick (Susan) McKenzie of Laguna Beach, Calif., Walter Forbes Jr. of Waterford Township, Kenneth Forbes of Clarkston, John C. Forbes of San Diego, Calif., and Lynda C. Forbes of Clarkston.

He is also survived by his sisters, Mrs. Willard (Delores) Rappleye and Mrs. William (Audrey) Worth, both of Jackson, and Mrs. David (Constance) Phillips of North Carolina; and brother, Mr. Richard Forbes of Ventura, Calif.

Mr. Forbes is also survived by his grandchildren, Caroline, Michael, Daniel and David McKenzie; and Kelly, Christopher, Kimberly, Abigail, Nathan, Sarah and Chelsea Forbes.

A memorial service was held in California. Memorial contributions may be made to St. George Academy Scholarship Fund of Laguna Hills.

Pet of the Week

RASCAL is a big, loveable dog in need of a new home.

He's a Rascal

Rascal used to be a stray, and now he's looking for someone to offer him a home.

This 4-month-old Australian cattledog mix is tricolored and needs to be housetrained. Because of his friskiness, he's not recommended for families with small children.

His $60 adoption fee covers a neutering charge.

To see Rascal, visit the Michigan Humane Society, 3600 Auburn Road, Rochester Hills, 852-7420. Hours at the non-profit shelter are 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

Toads can minimize pests without chemicals

What's bugging your garden? Slugs? Caterpillars? Beetles? Crickets? What you need is a toad.

Toads — those lumpy, bumpy frog cousins with buggy eyes, big mouths and hearty appetites — will slurp slugs off your lettuce and beetles off your beans until they can hardly waddle. Then they'll come back the next night and do it again.

Where to you get a toad? Chances are you already have some.

Glenn Dudderar, extension wildlife specialists at Michigan State University, says almost any yard with some greenery is likely to be home to a toad. Leave your porch light on some warm summer evening just before or after a rain, and you're likely to see a toad in action, eating insects attracted to the light.

To attract a toad to your flower or vegetable garden and encourage it to stay there and dine on pesky slugs and damaging insects, Dudderar suggests creating a "toad abode."

A toad abode is simply a shelter for a toad to use during the heat of the day. To make one, start by scooping out a depression in the soil about six inches in diameter and three inches deep. Put half to one inch of good loamy topsoil or compost in the depression. Then, over that, put some sort of shelter.

"The ideal thing is a short, squat clay flower pot," Dudderar says. "The clay breathes, and it doesn't heat up like plastic or some other materials."

Garden Corner

To make a door for the toad, punch a hole in the rim on one side of the pot. Then turn it upside-down and place it over the depression. Shade it or choose a spot shaded by a plant or structure. If the toad abode is constructed next to cover — which your vegetable or flower garden will supply — it won't be long before a fat toad takes up residence.

"The first toad abode in my yard just happened by accident," Dudderar says. "A child's plastic pail ended up upside-down under a juniper in a slight depression filled with old leaves. The wooden handle on the pail propped the pail up a bit so a toad could move in. And one did."

The next one, made from a flower pot placed in a flower bed (as suggested in a National Wildlife magazine article), attracted a toad that would come out at night to catch bugs attracted to the porch light.

"It got so used to seeing us that we could feed it," Dudderar says. "We would put a bug down on the porch and the toad would either flick its tongue out and catch it, if it was close enough, or hop over to it and catch it. Pillbugs, beetles, moths, slugs, earthworms — it wasn't particular."

A toad in your garden — or even more than one — won't necessarily cure all your pest problems, Dudderar points out. But if you're interested in using biological controls or an integrated pest management approach to minimize chemical use, inviting a toad into the garden can certainly be helpful.

You can do the toad a good turn by mowing your lawn during the heat of the day rather than early in the morning or late in the day, Dudderar suggests. Mowing early or late.

PRAYER TO THE HOLY Spirit: Holy Spirit, You who makes me see everything and who shows me the way to reach my ideal. You who gives me the divine gift to forgive and forget the wrong that is done to me, and You who are with me, I, in this short dialogue want to thank You for everything and to confirm that I never want to be separated from You, no matter how great material desires may be. I want to be with You and my loved ones in Your perpetual glory. Amen. Thank You for Your love towards me and my loved ones. Persons must pray this prayer three consecutive days without asking your wish. After the third day, your wish will be granted, no matter how difficult it may be. Then, promise to publish this dialogue as soon as your favor has been granted. Thanks to St Jude for favors received. IIICX2-2*

Earth tip

Washing machines use about 14 percent of the water consumed in the home, 32-59 gallons of water for each cycle. You will save much water if you wait until you have a full load of wash. Up to 90 percent of the energy used for washing clothes goes to heating the water. A warm wash and cold rinse will clean clothes as well as hot water on nearly all clothes. A front-loading washing machine uses one-third less water and two-thirds less soap than a top loader. A typical family of four could save 5,304 gallons of water a year with a front loading washer.

Youngster to promote anti-drug message on children's TV show

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Associate Editor

Blessed with good looks and charisma, 9-year-old Nicholas Thomas of Independence Township is used to being in front of a camera.

An aspiring model since age 2 1/2, Nicholas has appeared in a slew of newspaper and magazine advertisements during his career in the modeling profession. They include such prestigious periodicals as Ebony, Essence, Jet and the Detroit News.

But now, he's about to stand in front of a different type of camera altogether.

Starting this fall, Nicholas and eight other Michigan youngsters will be appearing in the Channel 50 program, "BABESWORLD."

The TV show is based on a national prevention program, "Beginning Alcohol and Addictions Basic Education Studies" (BABES). BABES assists young people, ages 2 to 17, in developing positive living skills and providing them with accurate information about the use and abuse of alcohol and other drugs.

According to the program's associate producer, Mary Sieler, "BABESWORLD" will have a Sesame Street flavor to it, with large, costumed muppets conveying lessons on life.

The half-hour programs will run twice a week. The first episode, dealing with feelings and self-image, will air Sept. 4 at 3 p.m.

Sieler said the selection panel chose Nicholas because of his confident nature and leadership abilities.

"Nicholas is a real outgoing and confident young man," Sieler said. "Because he's one of the older children selected, we saw him as a possible leader of the group.

"He gets along great with others and has good memorization skills," she added.

Nicholas is the son of L.M. and Annette Thomas of Reeder Road. His father is part Afro-American and part Cherokee Indian. His blond-haired mother is from Germany. The two met while attending Northern Michigan University in Marquette.

Nicholas shares the features of both his parents, as does his 4-year-old sister Stefani. Stefani is also a model, with ties to four agencies. Nicholas is presently affiliated with seven.

Despite being in the limelight, Nicholas doesn't seemed phased by all of the attention. He's your typical all-American kid.

His hobbies include playing with his friends and collecting every creepy critter under the sun. His present pet collection consists of bugs, salamanders, crabs and turtles.

To no one's surprise, Nicholas wants to be a marine biologist when he grows up.

When asked what excites him the most about his upcoming TV program, he mentioned his co-workers.

"It's going to be fun working with the muppets," he said shyly. "I've always liked muppets."

His mother, Annette Thomas, said she enjoys watching Nicholas work and admitted she could handle being a "celebrity mom."

"Sure, I could handle being the mother of celebrity," she laughed. "Just as long as he stays humble, we'll be fine.

"Luckily, fame hasn't affected him yet," she added. "To him, he's just a regular nine year old."

"Nicholas is a real outgoing and confident young man ... He gets along great with others and has good memorization skills."

Associate Producer Mary Sieler

NICHOLAS THOMAS of Reeder Road, Independence Township, has been chosen for a children's show to air on Channel 50 television this fall.

GEORGE ELWELL, an area inventor, has been helping the hearing impaired for four years.

Inventor helps deaf with devices

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Associate Editor

Inspired by a deaf brother-in-law and his faith in God, inventor George Elwell is helping make life a little easier for the hearing impaired.

For the past four years, Elwell has been developing devices under his own company, Silent Call. Based in his Orion Township home, this business is a far cry from General Motors, where Elwell worked 21 years as a engineering technician.

He said he left GM because he no longer found his job challenging. And Silent Call, he explained, is the result of a higher calling.

"As a practicing Christian, I've always believed in helping my fellow man, and I decided to start with my brother-in-law, who was deaf," he said.

His affiliation with brother-in-law Alan Nelson of New Baltimore made Elwell see that the deaf were being neglected in the areas of safety and employment. So Elwell set forth over the next four years and developed the Personal Alert system.

Operating like a vibrating pager, the device allows the "wearer" to be made aware of sounds such as a phone call, a fire alarm and a doorbell. This particular transmitter later gave way to three other inventions in the Silent Call product line. They include: the Shake-Up Smoker system, the OMNI Pager system and Viber-Call.

The Shaker-Up Smoker system helps alert deaf and elderly people with hearing aids while they are sleeping. Wired to the smoke alarm, the transmitter is is placed under the matress and vibrates when activated. A strobe light can also be hooked up to the transmitter and placed on the nightstand.

The OMNI Pager system was created at the request of McDonald's restaurant, the world's largest fast food franchise. So not to discriminate against deaf employees, McDonald's hired Elwell to create a device that allows deaf employees to stock inventory accordingly.

When the restaurant is running low on Big Macs, for example, the supervisor pushes the button on his device. The device sends a signal to a transmitter, located in the back of the restaurant, and a light goes on. Each individual light has a number, indicating a particular sandwich on the menu.

This allows the employee to see what type of sandwich the restaurant is running low on up front.

Viber-Call helps people who are both blind and deaf. Working much like the Personal Alert system, it vibrates to alert the person of a phonecall, fire alarm or door bell. With this device, however, the operator must hit all the buttons until the correct one vibrates once more.

Elwell said the popularity of his devices are reaching across the hemisphere. The number of orders for these devices are doubling each year, he said.

Due to the popularity of his devices, he's been asked to appear on the Silent Network, a disability channel in San Antonio, and talk about his products. Elwell also said a large number of his Viber-Call units have been purchased by the owner of a new, all-disabled apartment complex in Toronto.

He intends to wire the systems into each of the rooms, Elwell said.

Despite his company's steady rise, Elwell said the most gratifying aspect of his business is knowing that people are benefiting from his inventions.

"I enjoy helping people cope with some of their special challenges in life.

"At first, I thought I was helping others with my devices, but I find my customers are helping me, too," he said. "They're helping me realize how fortunate I am to have all of my faculties."
