School bond election set for April 13

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Associate Editor

A public push for an elementary school bond issue has caused the Clarkston school board to schedule an election for April 13.

On Nov. 11, the board unanimously voted to put an elementary school referendum on the April ballot.

Trustee Joseph Helpern made the motion, which included the stipulation that the board address the facility needs of all district schools with a vote to be held in five months minimum. This means the bond issue won't necessarily be limited to just a new elementary school.

"Thus far, we've come to a consensus of elementary needs," Helpern said. "But, in the following weeks, if we can agree on those concerns at other levels of education, they can be added to the referendum."

Last week, the board debated on whether to hold the election in February or wait until April. Members eventually decided that the only way to get public approval is through preparation and not forcing another bond issue on the public.

Trustee Janet Thomas said the district will benefit by waiting until spring to hold the election.

"By waiting until April, we now have a number of weeks to figure out what we want to put in the referendum," she said. "A well thought-out plan is imperative, so we don't fail for a third straight time."

The entire elementary school issue was spurred by a room full of parents who attended special meetings Nov. 4 and Nov. 5., imploring the board to build a new elementary school. They demanded that something be done to ease the overcrowding that's presently occurring at the elementary level.

According to school district statistics, currently, 2,704 elementary students attend Clarkston schools. Of Clarkston's five existing elementary schools, three are considered over the ideal maximum capacity of 500 students. They include: Bailey Lake, more than 600 students; Pine Knob, just under 600 students; and North Sashabaw, more than 500 students.

During these special meetings, the elementary school dilemma wasn't the lone topic of conversation, however. While a lot of parents pressed for building a new elementary school, others, including school board members, pushed for the revamping of other district facilities.

These concerns will surely rise again at future meetings, as the board tries to focus on the district's most immediate needs and form an effective cost package.

The is to kick off these discussions with a special meeting 7-9 p.m. Monday, Dec. 2, from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m.

Board, developer fight over land

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Associate Editor

A discussion over land use in Independence Township erupted into a clash of personalities last week.

The Independence Township Board voted 6-1 Nov. 6 to change its master plan of land use, provoking anger from a local developer, who later said he might sue the township.

"In the future, I envision I-75 as 'the tracks,' separating those who can and can't buy nice homes in Clarkston."

Developer Michael Clark

The controversy centered on three parcels in the southeastern portion of the township.

The board's action changed the master plan for that area, also known as Section 25, from rural residential (R1R) to suburban farm residential (R1B). It also changed Section 36 in the same area north of I-75 from R1R to R1B.

Trustee Bruce Mercado, who cast the lone dissenting vote, said the master plan should be left alone at this point.

Voting yes were Supervisor Frank Ronk, Treasurer John Lutz, Clerk Joan McCrary and trustees Jean Saile, Daniel Travis and Mel Vaara.

The township master plan is a schematic drawing of how land is to be used in the future in the township. It predicts community growth and reflects township officials' long-term plans for the area. It does not affect actual zoning of land but may be used as rationale to approve or deny zoning changes.

The sections in question lie near Clintonville and Maybee roads and contain land owned by three property owners: developer Michael Clark, Roy Portney and Al Semaan. Together, the three own about 200 acres.

They plan to build connecting housing developments under a proposed single-family residential zoning (R1A). At present, their land is zoned either R1A or R1R, and the property owners are asking that all their land remain or be converted to R1A.

Now, they face the prospect that all their land could be rezoned to R1B by the township board.

THIS sea horse was seen wandering Main Street last week after it was released into the street by the Clarkston Cafe. The ice sculpture was given to the restaurant by Lake Angeles resident Marian Murvay, who held a private party at the Cafe the weekend of Nov. 2. Wanting to show off the work of Warren artist Jim Phitts, of Ice Is Nice, the sculpture was set out into the street. During the week, it mysteriously appeared in front of several different store fronts. It remained in Clarkston until Mother Nature decided to send some warmer temperatures over the weekend. considered by the planning commission, the commission will consider the township's request to change the use of the five parcels -- on Thursday, Nov. 14. The board, which has the final say in rezonings, is to consider the rezoning Nov. 19.

At the meeting last week, Clark claimed the township board members were acting only in their own interests.

"These three parcels of land have been examined five times in the past two years, and the planning commission has said that it was content with its zoning until we submitted plans for my 10 1/2 acres and the adjacent properties," Clark said.

Clark added that the public hearings on those three properties coming before the planning commission next week seemed more than coincidental. Clark said the township requested those hearings to purposely block his developments' progress.

"You don't run these meetings, so sit down and act like a gentleman for once!"

Supervisor Frank Ronk

Throughout the meeting Clark and Supervisor Ronk engaged in numerous verbal confrontations.

At one point, Clark interrupted a report by township planning consultant Richard Carlisle by walking in front of him and posting his own diagram over a township map being utilized by Carlisle.

Not apologizing, Clark explained that his map was pertinent to the topic and should be posted to state his side of the story later, but Ronk wasn't amused.

"Listen, you had your chance to post that before the meeting started," Ronk stormed. "You don't run these meetings, so sit down and act like a gentleman for once!"

Not skipping a beat, Carlisle proceeded with his analysis.

Later in the meeting, Clark contended that an R1B zoning would eliminate a class of citizens from buying homes in the area because the lot sizes would push the price of homes well past the incomes of middle-class citizens.

"We're trying to make affordable housing available in the township," Clark said. "Under R1A, we could offer a house at $140,000, but, at R1B, it could push those costs to $300,000. In the future, I envision I-75 as 'the tracks,' separating those who can and can't buy nice homes in Clarkston."

Trustee Jean Saile told Clark that she didn't consider a $140,000 home affordable, and Trustee Mel Vaara said he knew of two developments on Maybee Road and three on Waldon Road that fall under Clark's "affordable cost" scheme.

Trustee Daniel Travis said he had received a petition from nine residents in the northern part of Section 25. They all stated that they favor rezoning to R1B.

Clark, who claims an R1B zoning would reduce the number of lots from 214 to 72 when compared to R1A zoning, told the board that he and his partners are willing to dump $3.35 million into public water and sewer improvements if the land were zoned single-family residential. He also said the wetlands would be left alone and donated to the Independence Land Conservancy.

After the meeting, Clark said he may consider suing the township if the planning commission nixes his request.

Following the meeting, Carlisle said the master plan revisions have been under study for about six months and fall in line with the township's attempt to preserve the identity of the township.

He added that the developers should accept an R1B zoning because it calls for one unit per one acre, while an R1R only allows one unit per three acres.

"The property owners should realize that they'll benefit by upgrading from R1R to R1B," Carlisle said. "We've been totally reasonable with them and compatible to the zoning scheme of our neighbors in Orion Township."

Jennifer Andryco overcame a field of 12 other Clarkston High School seniors to be named the Clarkston Junior Miss - Young Woman of the Year.

This year marked the 30th anniversary of the pageant. The Nov. 10 gala went by the theme, "The Yankee Doodle Girls" and attracted a standing-room-only crowd in the CHS auditorium. The Clarkston Junior Miss pageant is held in conjuncton with state and national programs.

Claiming two Michigan Junior Misses in its history, the event is judged based on personal interviews, a talent competition, scholastic achievement and personal poise and fitness. This year, area merchants contributed $5,600 in scholarship money for the girls.

By winning, Andryco was awarded a $1,500 cash scholarship, a $500 cash scholarship from the Rotary Club, and $100 toward Michigan's Young Woman of the Year program.

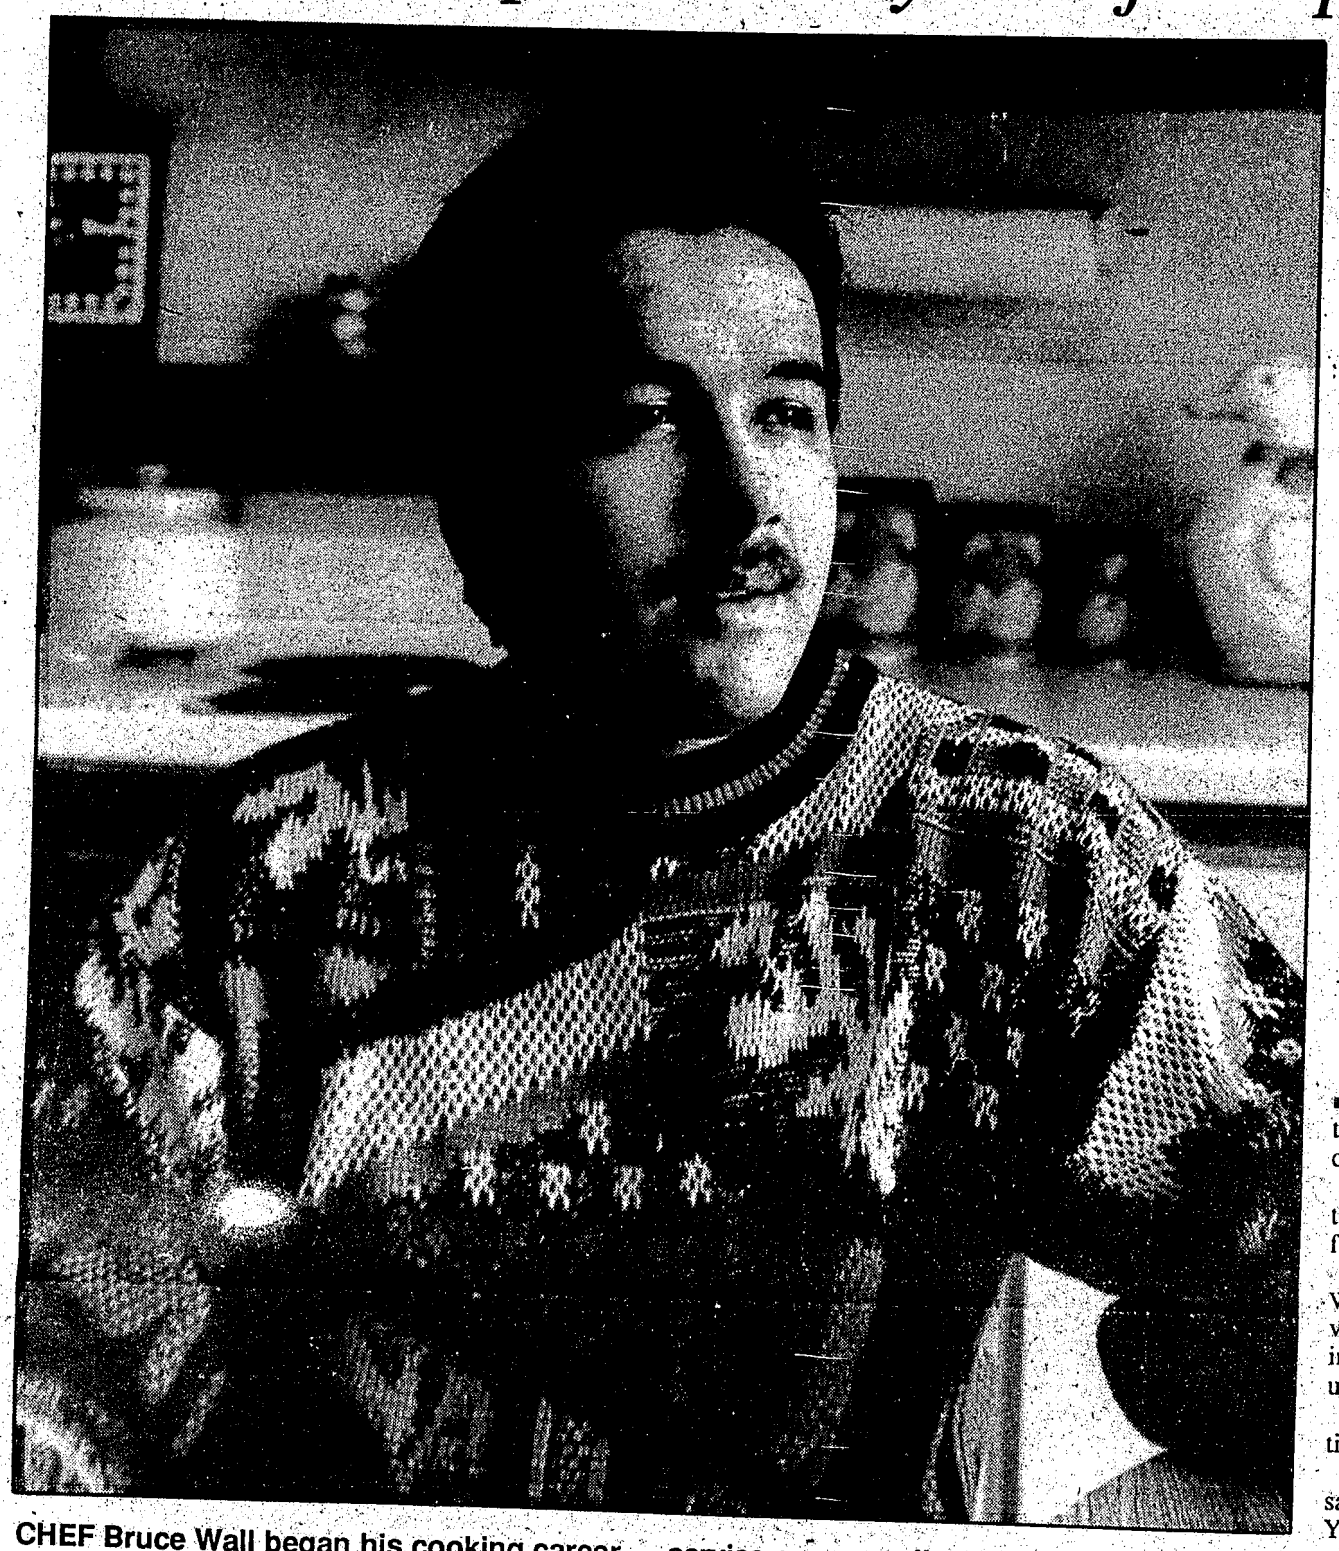
Taking runner-up honors were: Pella Lazaris, first, $900 cash scholarship and $100 toward Young Woman of Year program; Shalae Montney, second, $500; Angie Smith, third, $300; and Cindi Owens, fourth, $200 cash scholarship from Clarkston Optimist Club.

Cash scholarships were also presented to seven award winners on the evening. They included: JoAnn Thornberry, Spirit of Junior Miss Award, $200 from Clarkston Women's Club; Wendy McFalda, Scholastic Award, $200 frm Clarkston Jaycees; Pella Lazaris, Poise Award, $100 from Clarkston Eagles Lodge 3373; Emily Plec, Judges Award, $100 cash; Shalae Montney, Physical Fitness Award, $100 from American Legion; Wendy McFalda, Talent Award, $100 from Clarkston Jaycees; and Jennifer Andryco, Chairman's Award, $100 cash.

Other contestants in the pageant included: Amy Hester, Melissa Ferguson, Karen Taulbee, Jayna Rose and Stacy Martin.

CONTESTANT number 10, Jennifer Andryco, hugs last year's Junior Miss, Rory Roberts, after being named the pageant's winner. Roberts later presented Andryco with a medal and $2,100 in cash scholarships.

He puts his personality into food preparation



CHEF Bruce Wall began his cooking career by enrolling in Clarkston High School's food service program offered through the Oakland Technical Center-Northwest Campus.

BY DENNIS V. CARTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Since he was a child, Bruce Wall has loved to prepare food.

Now the 24-year-old Independence Township resident makes his living with his love. He is the chef at Foxy's by Machus in Great Oaks Mall, Rochester.

Prior to his promotion to the position, he had been named Employee of the Year by the Palace Grill in Auburn Hills.

"I've been interested in cooking and preparing food since I was kid," explained the 1986 graduate of Clarkston High School. "I was always in the kitchen bugging my mom."

That persistence also carried over into his career. Tim Wilkins, general manager of the Palace Grill, said it was Wall's persistence in quality and his willingness to be trained that led to the Employee of the Year honor.

Wall earned an associate's degree in the culinary arts from Oakland Community College-Orchard Ridge and began his quest to be chef while in high school, where he studied food services at the Northwest Oakland Vocational Education Center (now called the Oakland Technical Center-Northwest Campus).

"Seafood is my favorite type of food to work with. It really allows for a lot of creativity."

Bruce Wall

"I always knew that being a chef was what I wanted to do," he said, adding that he prefers preparing some foods to others.

"Seafood is my favorite type of food to work with," Wall said. "It really allows for a lot of creativity. It is a versatile food which lets you put a part of your personality into preparing it. It's a lot fun to see what you can come up with."

According to Wall, it was honor to receive recognition for his work.

"I really was very happy to receive the award," he said. "It is an honor to be selected as the Employee of the Year, and I was also promoted, which is great."

Wall received his award at an employee's banquet held the Palace last June. Wall and his wife, Chris, have been married for four years.

County prosecutor sues judges over transcripts

BY DENNIS V. CARTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

After receiving a letter from the 10 judges in the 52nd District, Oakland County Prosecutor Richard Thompson answered it with a lawsuit.

Judge Gerald McNally of Clarkston's 52-2 District Court said the lawsuit responded to the judges' letter informing Thompson that they would not give transcripts to the prosecutor's office unless accompanied by a court order.

"What we did was to send a letter to the prosecutor explaining that we would respond only to requests from the Circuit Court judges, which is the recommendation we received from the Michigan Supreme Court's Administration office," said McNally.

Judges in the district informed Thompson in the letter that they would not automatically prepare preliminary examination transcripts at the prosecution's request unless accompanied by circuit court order.

The high court had issued several recommendations on various ways to save money, which included the transcripts requests.

"We look at this as a way to save the taxpayers money," McNally said. "The prosecutor's office orders transcripts on every case, and many times it's just not needed."

Thompson has filed lawsuits in Oakland County Circuit Court against Walled Lake District Judge Harold M. Bulgarelli, Clarkston District Judge McNally and Troy District Judge William Bolle, asking that things remain as they are.

According to Thompson, prosecution cases could be dismissed if a transcript is not available.

"I have to enforce the law and make sure criminals

"We'll be damned if we let the judges usurp the rights of the prosecutor."

Prosecutor Richard Thompson

don't get out on the street because of a judge," Thompson said. "We'll be damned if we let the judges usurp the rights of the prosecutor."

For the time being, Thompson — and Independence Township resident — has blocked the judges' new policy.

Circuit Judge Robert Templin signed restraining orders that keep things as they were until further order of the court.

"Really, this is a budget situation," said McNally. "The lawsuit is really a lot of hype. It really comes down to who is going to order and pay for the transcripts."

Water heater ignites laundry, causes fire

No one was injured in a house fire on Jerome, Independence Township, Sunday, Nov. 10.

Firefighters were called about 7:45 a.m., but the homeowner had extinguished the flames by the time they arrived, said Capt. Dan DeLongchamp.

"Everybody got out OK," DeLongchamp said.

Apparently, clothes piled on a water heater caught fire, starting the blaze, he said. The water heater was missing a plate that covered the flame, but the clothes were still too close.

To prevent fires, nothing should be placed within a 2-foot radius of a water heater — at least, said DeLongchamp.

The house suffered minor smoke damage to the utility room and surrounding areas. Firefighters spent about 20 minutes on the scene, ejecting smoke from the structure.

The house is off Sashabaw Road near Woodhull Lake.

Creepy and crawly

Julie Campe

Since we moved to the upper floor of The Clarkston News building two summers ago, we've made all sorts of discoveries.

For instance, spiders love the sunny upstairs.

Maybe it's the abundant supply of flies and other winged creatures. Or maybe it's the array of computers and printers from which to hang their silken tents. Whatever the reason, they have made themselves at home.

I have harbored a fear of arachnids for as long as I can remember, but I have come to respect them now that I share such close quarters with them.

Take the plump one that lives beneath the center window ledge, for example.

Each day (or is it night?), it carefully weaves sparkling strands from a plant in the window to each corner of the window sill. Each day, I wipe the webs away (OK, so I miss a day now and then). But it always replaces them.

It also has a tangled mass hanging from the window ledge to the floor board beneath it. Occasionally, a tiny creature becomes caught in that parlor, and I spot the eight-legged resident wrapping, wrapping, wrapping it — for easy transport to its safe harbor in a crack, out of sight.

Once or twice, I have gone after the spider with a fistful of paper towel, but it scampers — always quickly — into its cave. So I merely gather up the cotton-candy-like mass and toss it out.

The spider, never daunted about losing such a hard-won meal, merely begins anew.

Other spiders are not so lucky. A tiny jumping spider — the sort found in many gardens — made its way across my desk and into my peripheral vision. It easily sidestepped my first, second and third attempts at it and then hid beneath my disk drive. I moved everything off my desk and stood prepared. And it soon obliged by walking into my trap. I felt sort of like a spider myself.

Another spider — a smaller version of the window sill spider — made its home at my feet, amidst the power surge protector and the four wires protuding from it. It could dodge behind so many things that my attacks were futile — almost.

Eventually it succumbed, much to my relief, since my briefcase was alarmingly near it. Fortunately, it had not yet invaded my belongings.

It may have been a relative of the ever-vigilant spider of the window sill, I mused, tearing at the invisible, sticky tangles of web clinging to my hand. The smaller spider had built an elaborate home, but, I noticed, it had not caught even a single pillbug.

Apparently, the area beneath my desk was not good hunting ground.

The window sill, however, is another matter — one worthy of exploration by a brave, wise spider. (Yes, it is preparing its net for its next victim even as I write.)

My dilemma: to let it be or not to let it be?

Jim's Jottings

We used to call it deer hunting

Jim Sherman

Getting Hazel's permission to go deer hunting has never been a problem for me.

Good pregnancy timing eliminated the responsibility to be home for the birthing. Staying too close to her in the kitchen made her want me out of the house. And, she knew she wouldn't be able to live with me if I didn't 'get north'.

Besides, my wife had come from a home where her father and three brothers went deer hunting every year, regardless. Hazel went along on my first deer hunting trip, which was with her brother.

With that lead-in, I'd like to repeat the soleful story my nephew Ed Sherman told me in 1978. It's about a hunting experience he had in his early-married days about 10 years earlier.

It takes time for some stories to become 'funny-now' to spouses.

Like many newly married men, Ed didn't tell his wife of the planned trip until the last minute.

When he did there were threats of leaving him . . . "You won't find me here when you come back if you walk out that door," etc.

Since Ed has committed himself to some friends, the trip stayed on. At 4 a.m. he started putting two pieces of bread together, with anything in between that he could find.

With bundle and basket Ed went to pick up the first guy. He, too, had not been long from the church. And, like Ed, he waited to say "I'm going hunting," as he left the bed before dawn.

The two of them prepared another basket in the friend's kitchen during the wailing of the very upset spouse.

The same threats were repeated, "You leave, and I leave." Etc., etc.

On to the third friend. This guy wasn't married. He was in a live-in arrangement. As the duo pulled up they noticed the lights on in the house, and they were greeted by two smiling people.

The girlfriend had risen early to get her mate's breakfast and help pack a few sandwiches, fruit and other goodies.

"Can I pack you guys some cookies," the gal asked. That's the part that really got to my nephew. He can ask that question with such sweetness it leaves no doubt of how he felt.

Well, that trip came and went. No one left anyone.

Came next year and the trio decided to test the water again. During that year the third guy had gone to the altar to make the live-in permanent.

Ed and the first friend were now initiated and all went as they left their homes.

At the recently-wedded home there was a sense of disruption. The guy had failed to tell his bride of his hunting plans until very late. The records of the two wives of the previous year were heard again by the new one. "I never want to see you again" . . . whatever.

The experienced guys laughed as they helped their friend leave the house . . . and they closed the door just as a shoe hit the inside.

Letters to the Editor

ZBA commendable, not at all shameful

Last week's Clarkston News published a letter accusing the Village Zoning Board of Appeals of "shameful ... cowardice" for not approving a bed and breakfast use request on Main Street in the face of opposition by a "special interest group."

According to that letter, the ZBA failed to represent the interests of the community as a whole in reaching such decision.

That letter is correct on only one point, that those village residents who opposed this B&B request are a "special interest group." However, they are not a group seeking financial gain as the phrase normally implies. Rather, their "special interest" is the same as that of any homeowner — the legitimate interest to express their concerns on matters that directly affect their homes and neighborhood.

This is an interest explicitly recognized in the state law, which requires that all property owners within 300 feet of a proposed ZBA action shall be individually notified so their views may be heard and given due deference. That is precisely what happened in this case when 22 nearby homeowners registered their opposition to the proposal before the ZBA.

The members of the ZBA, like most of village government, are essentially volunteers who contribute their time and efforts to benefit the village. Often in performing such duty, they must make decisions that some residents might disagree with. However, they should not be attacked so vehemently for merely performing their duty in interpreting and applying the zoning ordinance. This is especially true when some of those attacking them do not even live in the village, elect village officials or pay village taxes.

In this case in particular, the decision of the ZBA is fully supported by law. Under the ordinance, its members had the discretion to grant a change from one nonconforming use to another only where the new use was "more appropriate" to the residential district and if "no structural alterations were made."

A majority of the ZBA evidently agreed with the surrounding homeowners that a B&B, as a commercial use, was not "more appropriate." Moreover, as noted by the ZBA, the proposal called for extensive structural alterations not allowed by the ordinance.

There is no question that Clarkston looks like a great place for B&Bs. However, this is so because we have maintained the integrity of our residential areas. The village attorney advises that, under current case law, B&Bs are commercial uses. Thus, to allow them may open the door to other commercial uses in Main Street homes and destroy the very village character that makes it such an attractive location in the first place.

The first duty of village government is to the residents of the village, not to visitors from out of town looking for a place to stay. The latter certainly are welcome, but we can't destroy our zoning just to provide them with accommodations or to satisfy the few residents who wish to use their homes to generate a living.

Despite persistent calls by B&B proponents for village residents to contact village officials in support of B&Bs, only about 15 of the village's 1,000 residents have appeared at hearings or contacted the council in support and considerably more than that have indicated their opposition.

Thus, there is no groundswell of support, which would justify changing our residential zoning or justify approval of this B&B by the ZBA over the substantial objections of 22 nearby property owners.

B&Bs are a "neat" idea for tourist destinations, college towns, places to go for a visit. But put yourself in the place of those homeowners who objected. Ask yourself if you would want your neighbor renting out four or five bedrooms to 10 strangers daily? Also, if B&Bs were permitted, their numbers would have to be limited in some manner. Should a few homeowners be able to make their homes businesses, which then pay for those homes while all other homeowners cannot?

In summary, the ZBA said it would give the request serious consideration, and its members put in many hours of intensive review and discussion on the matter. They should be commended for the thoroughness of their review and for fulfilling their duty as they saw it.

He's the best

I sense the tremendous sadness of those people associated with Clarkston Elementary School with the upcoming re-assignment of Bill Potvin.

We now live in a school district that spends $6,500-$11,000 per student from elementary to high school. Whereas we've got abundant materials, small class sizes, physical education daily, music twice weekly and extended art periods, I feel that my children's education is impoverished in comparison to the three years they experienced under Bill's leadership at Clarkston Elementary School.

Money cannot buy Bill Potvin's abilities to nurture an exceptional and dedicated staff. No amount of money here can match Bill Potvin's dedication and sincerity. Bill created a sense of family among the staff, parents and his students. He encouraged innovative curriculum and instruction methods.

I've been involved in education as a parent and teacher for 20 years. Bill is unquestionably the finest principal, and his staff are definitely the best teachers I've ever encountered. I miss them often.

My heart bleeds for the people at Clarkston El., but I know that after Bill has left, his positive attitude will remain behind.

Lapeer wouldn't take this kind of abuse

Jim Fitzgerald

A question I'm often asked is what's the biggest difference between being a small-town editor and a big-city columnist. Lapeer, population around 6,000, vs. Detroit, population around 1 million. The answer lies in the Coleman Young administration's outrageous refusal to make public business public. And the public's failure to do anything about it.

Stonewalling. If, when I was editor of the Lapeer County Press, a local mayor had stonewalled as stubbornly as Mayor Young does, I would have written scorching editorials about the taxpayers' right to know how their money was spent. Voters would have thrown the bum out.

That's not how it works in Detroit, no matter how many indignant opinions are expressed by editorialists and columnists, no matter how many damning truths are itemized by reporters. Young remains the invincible, reelectable, stonewalling mayor, and his department heads had better take their close-mouthed cue from him or look for another trough.

In a letter to the Free Press editor last week, Bruce C. Berger of Detroit asked: "Shouldn't there be an immediate, full-scale public investigation concerning the loss of almost $14 million in Housing and Urban Development funds by the Detroit Housing Department? Someone has to explain to the citizens of this economically deprived city how this unbelievable blunder could occur."

Fat chance.

According to one published report, "In the last seven years, HUD has taken back almost $19 million in unspent or misused rental rehab or public housing repair dollars." Why was it unspent or misused? Thousands of poor people, some homeless, are crying for subsidized housing. And Detroit public housing has a 41 percent vacancy rate.

"Instead of filing vacant units with people, Detroit lets them sit empty and deteriorate . . . until they have to destroy them," one news article said last week. Another article repeated the familiar charge made by the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development - that Detroit is "one of the country's worse providers of public housing."

We have a super-lousy record and never got around to spending the money available to improve that record. Why? Mayor Young and his minions won't say. But last week, when that super-lousy record cost us another $30.5 million in federal housing funds, Young complained about poor people having to suffer from "the viciousness of the federal government."

How about what poor people have suffered from the city's grossly incompetent handling of public housing? Why doesn't Young address that question?

The stonewalling is pervasive in all city departments, not just public housing. Take the People Mover, please. It costs millions of public dollars every year. Taxpayers own it, like it or not. But when the Detroit News recently asked how's business, the People Mover bureaucrats refused to answer. Incredibly, the newspaper had to file a Freedom of Information request to force the city to tell the public that public transportation is doing increasingly rotten business.

Or how about the cops? Since he stopped being police chief several months ago, the indicted William Hart has continued to draw his $100,000-a-year salary. He's even getting a $1,800 Christmas bonus. Initially, it was claimed Hart would do something to earn that money. Anybody know what Hart's assignment is? Try to find out.

Hell, when a much lower-ranked cop, Officer Eugene (Moon) Mullins, recently was indicted, Executive Deputy Police Chief James Bannon said he didn't know what Mullins' assignment was. If the department's No. 2 pooh-bah is so uninformed, what chance do ordinary taxpayers have of learning what their employees do to earn their pay?

If all this had happened in Lapeer, the editor would have had apoplexy, and the responsible officials would have been chased out of town. But in Detroit it's routine, everyday procedure, and voters keep asking for more.

Astonishing.

State wetland bills would take away local control

BY RICHARD C. OPPMANN

Just recently, the state Senate Committee on Natural Resources and Environmental Affairs considered Bills 15 and 522.

Senate Bill 15 would have required the state to purchase wetland areas upon petition, and Senate Bill 522 would have abolished local wetland ordinances and review boards, such as we have in Independence Township.

Both bills are now pending in committees (Bill 522 being returned by the Senate to the Committee on Urban Planning and Development). The comments below were sent to Sen. Paul Wartner, chairman of that committee.

I urge all citizens of Independence Township to consider the implications of such legislation and voice your opinion to Gov. Engler, Sen. Wartner and Sen. Honigman.

Our township wetlands are precious as are any natural resources, and we must all do our part to preserve these resources to pass on to future generations.

Independence Township is one of the 19 or so townships in Michigan that has enacted a wetlands ordinance to protect those valuable natural resources.

Independence contains the headwaters of the Clinton River, along with numerous lakes, streams and natural watercourses that not only provide for rural beauty in the township but also maintain a critical ecostructure for nature.

These wetlands are unique in the state, and this township has placed a very high priority on their preservation consistent with development rights of property owners.

Senate Bill 15 could serve to destroy wetlands rather than preserve them since the bill does not provide fiscal backing. Without money, the bill — which calls for the purchase of wetlands by the state — replaces balanced, environmentally conscious decisions of the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) and local wetlands ordinance with dollars that state does not have.

Our township wetlands are precious as are any natural resources, and we must all do our part to preserve these resources to pass on to future generations.

The bill would also remove local control, reducing a local community's ability to provide for local zoning and land use planning.

Senate Bill 522 would replace local control of wetlands with control by the DNR, which does not have enough staff as is.

In contrast, Independence's local ordinance keeps a continual watch on wetlands boundaries, which evolve and change as do living organisms. Development and preservation efforts therefore require continuous update by integrating the wetlands ordinance and its provisions with the township's master land use plan and zoning ordinance.

To put those in the hands of a state agency would be detrimental to local wetlands interest. The more integrated approach a local community has, the more successful it will be in accomplishing and balancing the objectives of development and preservation.

The bill also does not require local input for developmental applications. Such action can only be viewed by the public as pro-development and anti-preservation of natural resources.

This committee should act against Senate Bill 522 and maintain the current provisions of the Goemaere-Anderson Wetland Protection Act.

Richard C. Oppmann is chairman of the Independence Township Wetlands Board.

Letter to the Editor

School column, story show bias

Last week's Clarkston News contained two articles written by or about the Citizens for Fiscal Responsibility (CFR) in the Clarkston school system. Both articles call for high school improvements, not a new building.

We had a problem with Curt McAllister's article, which is totally one-sided, containing direct quotes from architect Gary Jackson and rephrasing of the CFR presentation to the school board.

In the article on the new elementary proposal, he interviewed numerous school board members to get their reactions to the proposal, which was made at the same board meeting by a group of parents.

Apparently, in regards to the high school, he did not think it worthwhile to ask the board members for their side of the story or reaction to the high school proposals.

We respect the CFR for taking the time to visit each building and write reports and make proposals to the school board and community of Clarkston. Most of the points made about building safety and improvements are legitimate.

However, we are afraid that many readers did not make it past point No. 3 of Doug Carlson's article, from which we quote: "The high school gave no evidence of being overcrowded. During our tour we observed 11 classrooms totally empty and all others containing 15-20 students, at most."

Our son is currently a senior at the high school. In the past three years, he was enrolled in only one class that had about 15 students — "Advanced Placement Biology," which by its nature has a limited enrollment.

Every other class he has attended has varied from 25 to 35 students. A blanket statement like the one Mr. Carlson and the CFR has made can do nothing but harm the administrators' and school board's sincere attempts to inform our community about the real situation of class size at the high school.

People are tired of high taxes and distrustful of "officials." People will also believe what suits their purposes and needs, and since you have taken your valuable time to briefly visit and report upon all the schools in the district, you are now seen as the experts — not the people who work in those same buildings day in and day out.

We would like to ask the CFR a few questions: At what time of day did you visit the high school? Did you visit every classroom during every hour of the day, or were you there during lunch hour or an assembly, which would have caused classrooms to appear empty and unused?

Did you question anyone in the office about the empty classrooms you observed? Did you speak to the counseling staff about typical class sizes? Did you obtain a list of classes offered and their corresponding numbers of students?

Apparently the overcrowding issue is a figment of the imagination of the students, teachers, administrators, school board and school advocates within the community. We are afraid your few sentences based on one visit have done the entire high school community a great disservice.

As we said earlier, we appreciate your recognition that there are many sub-standard issues to be corrected at the high school. But let us not choose to ignore the most important issue of all — the students, each and every one of them, and not just the ones you saw that day last May.

Boy, 6, still fears father who's charged with abuse

BY DENNIS V. CARTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Even now, months after being taken from his parents when he was 5, a little boy still fears his father, David Lewis Simpson III.

Simpson, 23, of Independence Township, was found responsible by an Oakland County Probate Court jury last month of abusing his son by forcing him to drink gin from a pop can and smoke cigarettes at a home in Independence Township.

According to Virginia Warner, the counselor who has been treating the Simpson's blond-haired son, the child still fears his father.

"He said he wanted me to tell the judge that his dad hurt him," Warner said. "He does not want his dad to be his dad anymore."

Simpson and his friend Paul Matthew Salvino, 23, of Independence Township are facing criminal sexual and child abuse charges in Oakland County Circuit Court stemming from incidents of July 24.

"He's very fearful of his father. He talks about how he's safe as long as his father is in jail."

Counselor Virginia Warner

The two men were arrested after police were called to the residence of Salvino's step-father on Circle Drive, Independence Township, after a neighbor reported hearing screams from the house and seeing suspicious activities.

Sexual abuse charges came later after the deputies received statements from the child.

At the probate hearing last week, caseworkers recommended that the parental rights of Simpson be permanently ended.

It is now up to the judge to decide if it is in the child's best interest to end Simpson's parental rights.

During periods of counseling, the boy, now 6, has stomped a leaf on the floor, which he pretends is his father, according to Warner.

"He's very fearful of his father," she said. "He talks about how he's safe as long as his father is in jail."

During Warner's testimony, she told Simpson's attorney, Len Gorz, that the boy's interview weighed heavily in her recommendation.

"If (the child) has made a statement that he has been hurt in any way, I tend to believe that statement until someone proves differently," she said.

Oakland County Probate Court Judge Barry M. Grant is to make a determination in the case Nov. 22 after reviewing a psychological evaluation of the child, whose name is being withheld to protect him.

YMCA program could be tough to build in area

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Associate Editor

Hard work, dedication and money will be necessary to build a YMCA program in the Clarkston area, according to organizers.

About 25 residents from Clarkston and its neighboring communities attended a public forum Nov. 7 to find out what it takes to build a YMCA program in the area.

Held at the Calvary Evangelical Lutheran Church, Independence Township, the meeting was called to gauge the public's attitude toward a YMCA facility and the programs it would offer the community.

Local organizers Henry Woloson and Dennis Darrow told the guests that they envisioned garnering enough support to one day build a YMCA facility that would rival those in Warren, Farmington and Birmingham. However, they added, it would not be an overnight process.

At that point, they turned the meeting over to Joel Alderman, a management resource director for the metropolitan-Detroit YMCA. Alderman said a community such as Clarkston has two options in gaining a YMCA charter.

They include being a full-fledged member of the metropolitan YMCA group or being independent and running their programs autonomously.

Alderman said an independent group could take 1 to 1 1/2 years to gain YMCA chartership, compared to three to six months for a community belonging to the metropolitan association. The difference is that a metropolitan group could gain a quicker charter because its programs and eventual facility would be ruled by a board of directors in Detroit.

An independent group, on the other hand, must prove itself worthy of chartership to state and national officials before receiving permission to institute programs. However, once approved, this group has full rein over its programs and facility.

When asked how Clarkston expects to pay for these programs and an eventual facility, Woloson said the members and community would bear the brunt of the costs.

"The YMCA is a grass-roots organization, and money must come from its members," Woloson said. "We are not going to ask for public dollars, only those belonging to members."

He said that his group will be targeting people and organizations in Independence, Waterford, Groveland and Springfield townships because of their proximity to the ever-growing I-75 corridor.

Woloson added that a Clarkston-area YMCA group would have to work in conjunction with the community education program and the townships' parks and recreation department so not to duplicate services.

"There are so many recreational resources in the Clarkston area that we don't want to duplicate any of their programs," he said. "We have to work toward complementing each other and offering what the community wants at an affordable basis."

> "The YMCA is a grass-roots organization, and money must come from its members."
> Henry Woloson

John Carney, an executive director of the YMCA facility in Westchester, Mich., told the visitors that their first step in developing a program is creating interest in their cause and asking what the community wants in terms of programing. After that, he said, a steering committee must be formed for the creation of goals and strategies.

Carney said his town took nearly three years before it broke ground on a free-standing facility. He said a group must attain at least $250,000 before it can even consider this phase.

Until a center is built, he suggested that programs be carried out in other community buildings until the money is raised.

After discussing the programs and the steps necessary for forming a YMCA, Alderman made it clear to the guests that they're in for a tough road ahead.

"I've heard the people of Clarkston have wanted a swimming pool for some time, but you've got to be prepared for a lot of hard work," he warned. "Even tougher than garnering public support will be when you have to ask for money. This will really test your dedication toward wanting to build a center.

"You're going to have to give your time, your talent and your treasure to get a YMCA. It's as simple as that," Alderman said.

For more information on forming a YMCA group, call Henry Woloson at 620-1738.

Wanted: Kids' books

Independence Township Library has become a drop-off point for a "Gift of Reading" program, sponsored by the Detroit Free Press.

Through the program, more than 300,000 new storybooks have been distributed to disadvantaged Michigan youngsters. This year, more than 40 agencies are hoping for books to distribute in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties.

Children exposed to books at an early age are more likely to read well and succeed in school. Owning a new book is a real source of pride and encourages children to read, according to Anne Rose, director of children's services

Area residents can help by dropping off new, unwrapped paperback or hardcover books for children from infancy to age 7. Because religious backgrounds vary, religious books or those with Christmas themes are not recommended.

The deadline for donations is Monday, Dec. 9.

An added bonus to donating: a chance to see the newly renovated library on Clarkston Road. For more information, call 625-2212.

Firefighters, township finally ink new contract

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Associate Editor

After 13 months of negotiations and 11 months of working without a contract, Independence Township and its fire department union have agreed on a three-year contract.

Unanimously approved by the township board Nov. 6, the new contract will increase the township's firefighting salaries by 15.1 percent over the next three years. The township employs 16 full-time firefighters.

Next year, the salaries will increase 6.2 percent and then 4.9 percent and 3.3 percent in the subsequent years.

Clerk Joan McCrary said the new contract now brings the fire department's wages into parity with similar townships.

"Our firefighters were making slightly lower wages than those in surrounding areas, so we compromised with a larger increase in the first year to bring them up to comparable standards. After that, the yearly increases drop off a bit," McCrary said.

McCrary said Independence used White Lake and Commerce townships in their comparative studies because they have similar property valuations and housing stock.

Negotiations began last year but were not complete by the Dec. 31, 1990, expiration, so firefighters have worked under the old contract since Jan. 1, which meant no raises and no changes in benefits.

The negotiations did not interfere with fire department operations, according to engineer Phil Williams.

"It was pretty much business as usual," Williams said. "Of course, it affected morale a little bit, but nothing that affected operations. That's something we kept to ourselves."

McCrary blamed lengthy negotiations on a disagreement over the firefighter's Individual Supplemental Disability Account (ISDA). McCrary said the firefighters, who receive a 24-hour day off each month, wanted to be paid the full 100 percent of their hourly wage for the time they didn't use toward vacations.

"Our firefighters were making slightly lower wages than those in surrounding areas, so we compromised with a larger increase in the first year."

Clerk Joan McCrary

She said quite a few firefighters had been accumulating a lot of these hours since the last contract — some amassing nearly $12,000 worth of time.

Refusing to pay for these unused hours in full, the township got the fire department to agree on a deal that would pay them 50 percent of the balance of this account into their pensions plans and 25 percent in cash. The remaining 25 percent would be deposited into the fire department's operating fund.

Also under this provision, sick time will be on an as-needed basis, with no accumulation.

Also included in the contract is the creation of a workers' compensation committee. Comprised of the township supervisor and two officers of the union, it will review workers' compensation claims with the workers' insurance carrier, render assistance in claims and cases, and help the overall improvement of workers' compensation services for firefighters.

Another change includes an optical plan, which offers one eye examination and one pair of eye glasses twice a year. The cost of these glasses will only be covered up to $100 bi-annually.

Another minor change to the contract includes the accrual of one personal day per year and two days after 10 years served.

The final draft of this contract was taken to the firefighters Nov. 3, where they voted 15-0 in favor of its ratification.

Dave Stover, a firefighter and member of the International Association of Firefighters' negotiating team, said he was pleased with the outcome.

"Overall, we're pretty happy with the new contract," he said. "We're satisfied with it as a whole, especially the ISDA provision, which should have been ironed out a long time ago."

Mother charged with abuse released on bond

Lisa Allen, 26, of Independence Township, was released on $10,000 bond Nov. 7.

Judge William Waterman of 50th District Court, who dismissed felony charges against Allen on Oct. 17, reduced Allen's bond from $50,000.

Allen had been charged with child abandonment, a 10-year felony, for allegedly leaving her sons, ages 1 and 2, unattended in a crack house on Melrose Street in Pontiac on Oct. 6. She has been in the Oakland County Jail since her arrest.

Her bond was reduced by the judge on the condition that she enter an in-patient drug treatment program.

She is also ordered to live with her mother and is restricted from visiting her children unless Oakland County Protective Services officials are present.

Her children are in the custody of their paternal grandparents who reside in Independence Township.

Allen still faces trial on two charges of fourth-degree child abuse in connected with the Oct. 6 incident. Those charges are one-year misdemeanors.

Trial date is on hold, pending an appeal by Oakland County Prosecutor Richard Thompson of Waterman's dismissal of the felony charges.

A hearing on the appeal is scheduled for Nov. 27 before Oakland County Circuit Judge Gene Schnelz.

Deerwood IV OK'd

Residents along M-15, north of I-75, can expect a few new neighbors soon.

The second phase of the Deerwood development project between Ortonville Road and Elk Run, Independence Township, has received final plat approval from the township board.

On Nov. 6, the board unanimously voted in favor of the plat's second phase.

The multiple-phased project, as a whole, has received preliminary site plan approval from the township board. Upon completion, it will include 160 lots and provide its residents with municipal water, sanitary sewers and underground utilities.

The land set aside for the development is presently zoned suburban farm residential (R1B), which allows about one dwelling per acre.

The first phase of the project, known as the Manor of Deerwood, is presently under construction. So far, 25 of the phase's 34 lots have been created.

Under the approved second phase — Deerwood IV — 14 new lots will be added to the project. Originally, the developer had planned to create 37 lots but cut back due to uncertain economic conditions.

The next phase — Deerwood V — will make up the difference by constructing the remaining 23 lots.

The last two phases, Deerwood VI and VII, will round out the project with 28 and 61 lots, respectively.

Bomb scare clears technical center

A school was evacuated after someone called in a bomb threat Nov. 5.

According to the Oakland County Sheriff's Department, police investigated a bomb threat last Tuesday at the Oakland Technical Center-Northwest Campus on Big Lake Road, Springfield Township.

No bomb was found, but evening classes were canceled.

Someone used a false name to make the threat, according to the police report. After police interviewed the person with that name, they determined that the person was not responsible for the threat.

New rules govern '900' phone calls

Due to numerous complaints, the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) has stepped in to solve problems with "900" telephone numbers.

While the FCC has no direct control over the information providers, it has issued the following requirement, effective Dec. 1:

All companies operating the 900 information lines must add an opening statement that tells callers the cost of the 900 call. The consumers can then decide if they want to continue the call or hang up before ringing up a big telephone bill.

The service must also tell children to hang up unless they have their parent's permission to make a call.

In addition, local phone companies will have to offer free blocking of all 900 calls to residential customers. They also cannot disconnect customers' local telephone service because of their refusals to pay for disputed calls to the 900 information line.

However, the long distance company may report your name to a credit and collection agency if you fail to pay your bill.

In 1980, 900 telephone numbers first appeared. They have since exploded into a $1 billion-a-year industry. Many consumers don't understand the way the calls work and have rung up huge bills. In addition, many children have placed calls to 900 services without parental knowledge or permission, often resulting in parents being outraged by 900 services and costs, according to the Michigan Public Service Commission.

For more information, contact the FCC at 1919 M Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20554, or call the Michigan Public Service Commission at 1-800-292-9555 for the free brochure, "Customer Service Guide for 900 Programs."

Do you know the difference between a medical doctor and a doctor of chiropractic?

Both are primary care physicians, and both diagnose. The medical doctor employs drugs and surgery while the doctor of chiropractic utilizes natural health-care methods, mainly spinal manipulation and other safe procedures. While doctors of chiropractic are trained in medical diagnosis, medical physicians are not ordinarily trained in specific chiropractic diagnosis and treatment.

The following scientific studies done by medical sources comparing chiropractic care against medical and physical therapy non-surgical care of the back and neck show that chiropractic procedure relieves chronic and severe pain, both immediate and long term, in half the time it takes medical physicians. That's quite a difference.

RESEARCH SUPPORTS THE FACTS

California Workmen's Compensation Study (1972), C. Richard Wolf, M.D.

Average lost time per employee - 32 days in the M.D.-treated group, 15.6 days in the chiropractor-treated group.

Employees reporting no lost time - 21% in the M.D.-treated group, 47.9% in the chiropractic-treated group.

Employees reporting lost time in excess of 60 days - 13.2% in the M.D.-treated group, 6.7% in the chiropractor-treated group.

Employees reporting complete recovery - 34.8% in the M.D.-treated group, 51% in the chiropractor-treated group.

Oregon Workmen's Compensation Study (1971), Rolland Martin, M.D., Director, Workmen's Compensation Board.

Examining the forms of conservative therapy the majority received, it is interesting to note the results of those treated by chiropractic physicians.

A total of twenty-nine claimants were treated by no other physicians than a chiropractor. 82% of these workmen resumed work after one week of time loss. Their claims were closed without a disability award.

Examining claims treated by the M.D., in which the diagnosis seems comparable to the type of injury suffered by the workmen treated by the chiropractor, 41% of these workmen resumed work after one week of time loss.

British Medical Research Council Study (1990) reported in the British Medical Journal for June, 1990.

Results - Chiropractic treatment was more effective than hospital outpatient management, mainly for patients with chronic or severe back pain. A benefit of about 7% points on the Oswestry scale (between three quarters and twice as effective according to Dr. Tom Meade, medical researcher in charge of study) was seen at two years. The benefit of chiropractic treatment became more evident throughout the follow-up period. Secondary outcome measures also showed that chiropractic was more beneficial.

Conclusions - For patients with low back pain in whom manipulation is not contraindicted, chiropractic almost certainly confers worthwhile, long term benefit in comparison with hospital outpatient management. The benefit is seen mainly in those with chronic or severe pain. Introducing chiropractic into NHS practice should be considered.

Baycourt Park receives $314,000 DNR grant

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Associate Editor

In a year or two, area residents may find themselves walking or cross-country skiing in wooded trails along Greens Lake.

Baycourt Park, Independence Township's latest addition to its park system, has been sitting dormant since the township purchased the 50-acre parcel with the help of state grant money in the late 1980s.

But a new $314,000 grant means that a road and parking lot can be created, so the public will be able to use part of the park.

On Oct. 20, township officials received word that the Andersonville Road park will receive the $314,000 state grant from the Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR) bond program dubbed "Protecting Michigan's Future." The state Legislature must approve the grant before it's official.

The township applied for the grant in April 1990.

Voters defeated a parks and recreation millage request in August, so the news from Lansing is a welcome shot in the arm, according to Ann Conklin, director of the township's parks and recreation department.

The grant will cover specific expenditures in the park. They include: creating a new entrance and interior roadways, developing a playground and picnic areas, clearing new trails and installing utilities such as water and electricity.

Conklin said the township will have to make a commitment to match 25 percent, or $80,000, of the total grant. Despite budget cuts, she said there should be no problem in raising the money through service clubs, fund-raisers and donations.

Even though the grant is a substantial sum, Conklin said it won't make up for the loss of the proposed parks and recreation millage.

"Even if the millage had passed, we still would have found ourselves applying for grants to make ends meet," she said.

> "This grant is exciting because it will allow us to open the park and allow people to utilize the newly constructed picnic areas and trails."
>
> Director Ann Conklin

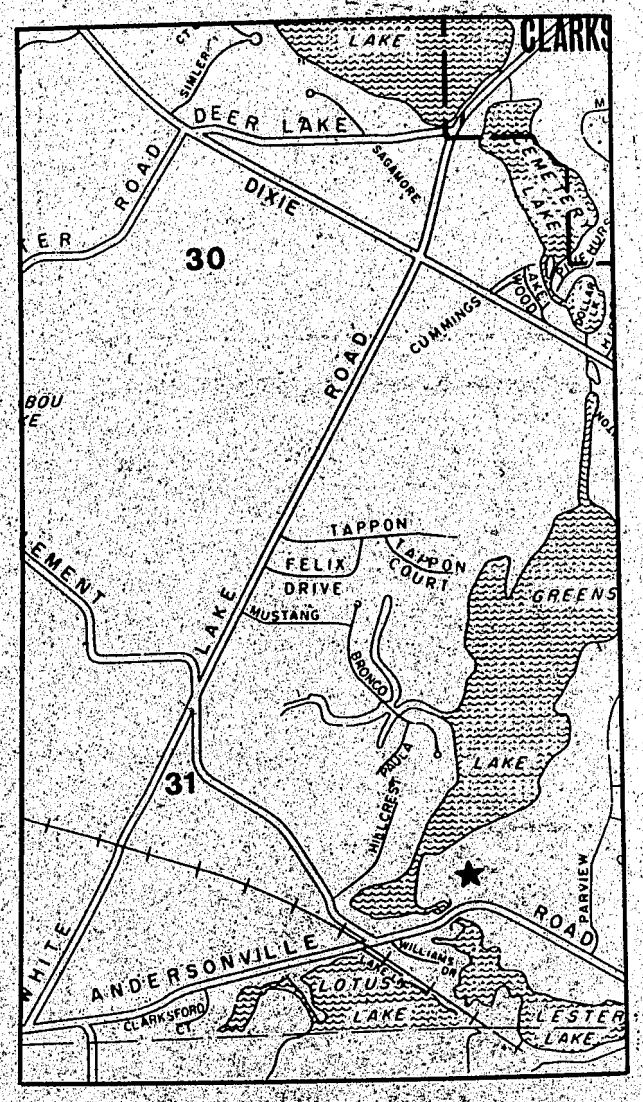
Conklin estimates that the park will take nearly $5 million to renovate, but the grant is a good start. She said the money will allow area residents to use certain parts of the park.

"This grant is exciting because it will allow us to open the park and allow people to utilize the newly constructed picnic areas and trails," Conklin said.

If given the grant prior to the 1992 construction season, Conklin surmises that the park could possibly be open within a year or two.

The park in the southwest quadrant of the township includes part of Greens Lake.



BAYCOURT Park is on Andersonville Road in the southwest quadrant of Independence Township.

Food, helpers needed

Food donations and volunteers are needed to fill food baskets for needy families over Thanksgiving.

Lighthouse North on Maybee Road, Independence Township, is expected to feed 500 families this year. Canned food and dry goods may be dropped off at Lighthouse North at 5331 Maybee Road, between Sashabaw and Clintonville roads, Independence Township.

Volunteers are needed to sort food and pack baskets. They may work 9 a.m. to noon Thursday and Friday, Nov. 14 and 15; 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday, Nov. 18, through Friday, Nov. 22; and on Monday and Tuesday, Nov. 25 and 26.

High school to get new gym roof

With the start of the Clarkston boys' basketball season just weeks away, the Clarkston school board has made a move that will assure that the gymnasium roof doesn't cave in when the Wolves "shoot the lights out."

On Nov. 11, the school board unanimously voted to repair Clarkston's aging gymnasium roof. The roof has sustained a lot of water damage over the years, causing the fascia between the second and third arch supports on the west side to break loose.

The school district brought in its structural engineers to determine the damage, and they have drawn up a plan to repair the west side of the roof. Bids from three firms were received Oct. 31, and the school board chose Roofing Systems, Inc., who's done work in the district before.

Roofing Systems, Inc., put in the lowest bid at $26,889. The other two applicants, Royal Roofing, Inc., and O'Brien Waterford Construction, levied bids of $35,500 and $44,900 respectively.

The board had originally asked that the east side of the roof be repaired as well but had to settle for just the west side because of a lack of funds remaining in the $5.2 million bond issue.

Due to insufficient funds, Supervisor Gary Haner said the cost to repair the roof will come from the budgeted money set aside to replace windows at Sashabaw Junior High School.

Artist appeals to imagination with her work

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Sandy Bosca's art doesn't mask her originality.

Bosca will feature her masks on dowels, Toffels and jewelry at the Santa Workshop Saturday, Nov. 16, at Clarkston High School.

"When a person buys it, they know it's an original. No two are ever alike," said Bosca about her art.

Bosca said some stores have asked her to mass produce particular items, but she refuses to stray from her originality.

This will be the fourth year Bosca has displayed her art at the workshop.

The Waterford resident, who calls her business "Accents by Lady B," said people are attracted to masks.

"There's something about a mask that has drama, secretiveness and imagination," said Bosca.

Bosca's masks on dowels, which cost $10 and up, comprise a mask, feathers and a small figurine.

"I sold a lot of those for Halloween parties," said Bosca. She said they're also in demand for Christmas and the Mardi Gras season.

Bosca coined the word "Toffels." Toffels, which sell from $15 and up, are similar to the masks on dowels but are used more as decorations.

The artist special orders her feathers, which come from peacocks, pheasants, egret, ostrich and marabou.

Bosca, whose art is sold by two stores in Chicago, said she plans to add some smaller and lower-priced items for children at the Santa's Workshop.

"I'm trying to develop something smaller and cheaper for the children. It will be available at the fair," said Bosca.

SANDY Bosca likes the secretiveness, the drama and the imagination associated with masks. No two of her creations are alike, says the artist.

Bosca, who also takes orders for custom-made items, said she has seen only one other person in Michigan that has made something close to her creation.

Eventually, Bosca said someone will steal some of her ideas and market them. Bosca isn't concerned about this because she said her art can never be completely duplicated by someone else.

"Her personality is in hers and mine is in mine," said Bosca.

Don't accept any imitations; the original Toffels can be found at the Santa's Workshop.

Crafter works at full speed for Santa's Workshop

BY DENNIS V. CARTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

About seven years ago Michele Ranck began spending time at home with her child and found a need to do something just for herself.

"I've always enjoyed art," she said. "I started with baskets, and it all seemed to branch out from there."

Michele of Woodcreek, Independence Township, plans to sell her homemade crafts at Santa's Workshop 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 16, at Clarkston High School on Waldon Road.

Michele began preparing her wares for upcoming craft shows in summer.

"I'm involved in my children's school activities, so I knew back in the summer that I would have to get an early start for the upcoming shows," Michele said.

Michele and her husband Michael have two boys, Derek, 7, and Nick, 5.

"When I first started doing crafts, I would sew the boys' Halloween costumes, and then I took an art class and began doing a lot of different crafts. I found out you can sell them and make money, which adds to the enjoyment of making them," she said.

Michele works with many types of materials and does a variety of crafts to keep the excitement alive so as not to become bored.

"I go to six or seven shows a year, and you see a lot of different crafts, but I also like to design crafts from ideas I come up with myself," she said. "Making crafts is a way to express your personality."

She especially enjoys doll-making.

"Making dolls is fun," she said. "I usually make a lot of Raggedy Ann and Raggedy Andy. In fact, I have a Raggedy Ann which is three feet tall."

Plus, dolls are in demand and can cost more than other crafts, she said.

"Doll collectors realize that homemade dolls will cost more than dolls picked up at a department store, which have been mass produced," she said.

According to Michele, this time of year is best for selling crafts.

"Christmas time is really great for selling crafts," she said. "People love to get handmade things for Christmas."

MICHELE Ranck enjoys being mother to Derek, 7, and Nick, 5, and appreciates that her career in crafts allows her to work at home.

Santa's Workshop at CHS Saturday

Homemade baskets, Christmas ornaments, dolls and more are the highlights of a special craft show this weekend.

The annual Santa's Workshop sponsored by the Clarkston Area Jaycees is planned for 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 16, at Clarkston High School. Cost is $1 at the door.

The craft show features craft-makers and artisans from the Clarkston and surround areas. It provides area residents with close-to-home Christmas shopping.

JV kickers continue where they left off

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

It was a tough act to follow but the 1991 Clarkston JV boys' soccer team was up to the task.

Last fall's squad was undefeated and this year's team finished at 11-1-1.

First-year coach Brian Fitzgerald, who previously was an assistant coach for three years at Bloomfield Hills Lahser, said he didn't exactly know what to expect when he began the season, but he did know one thing.

"All I heard was they were undefeated last year," said the coach.

Fitzgerald, whose brother (Dan) guided the varsity to its first-ever district championship this season, was impressed with his team's improvement as the season progressed.

"They did surprise me. They did better than I thought they would," said Fitzgerald. "The guys just played together. The kids got better."

Waterford Mott edged the Wolves, 2-1, but Clarkston came back to top the Corsairs later in the season. Clarkston finished with a 7-1 record in the Greater Oakland Activities League to capture the title.

Clarkston and Royal Oak Kimball played to a scoreless tie.

The Wolves victories were against: West Bloomfield (1-0), Waterford Kettering (9-1, 2-0), Brandon (5-2, 2-1), Lake Orion (4-0, 5-0), Flint Powers (2-0), Oxford (9-0), Waterford Mott (2-0) and Saginaw Heritage (4-2).

Fitzgerald said the season's highlights were the revenge win against Mott and the victory over Heritage, the last two matches of the season.

Fitzgerald stressed aggressive defense, and the year's final statistics are proof of that strategy. Clarkston outscored its opponents, 46-8.

"If you don't give up any goals, you can't lose," said Fitzgerald. "If the players are tough and play hard, you've got a chance. If they're wimps you have no hope at all."

Sophomore Jason Kneisc and junior Nathan Forbes were certainly tough in goal, each playing in six matches. Kneisc had four shutouts with a 0.50 goals per game average. Forbes, who later moved up to varsity half way through the season, had three shutouts with a 0.83 average. Junior Mike Miller also tended goal for one match (a shutout) but was moved up to the varsity early in the season, eventually becoming its No. 1 goalkeeper.

The Wolves thought highly of their defense players, selecting both their most valuable and most improved players from the defense. Sophomore defenseman Ben Grinold was chosen as the MVP and sophomore Matt Little the MIP. Little came back after missing the first five games because of a broken arm.

Rounding out the defense were junior Chris Spires and freshman Paul Sadows.

Sophomore forward Nick Bielak, the team's captain, paced the Wolves offensively, scoring 10 goals with 12 assists.

Three Wolves scored five goals: Charles Kirk (with nine assists), Ray Torrence (five assists) and Ryan Noll (four assists). Noll, who scored his five goals in just three matches, and Torrence both moved up to the varsity.

Scoring four goals were Brian Bovee (five assists), Rob Doyle (four assists) and Eric Corbett (three assists).

Kneisc scored three goals with one assist; Forbes had two goals, and Chris Spires, Charley Larson and Grinold each had one goal.

Rounding out the squad were midfielders Brad Deuel and Jeff Harrison and forwards Jeff Molen and Matt Tantrup.

Cagers set for districts after passing Mott

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Clarkston girls' basketball coach Larry Mahrle hopes victories against Waterford Mott and Dearborn are putting his team in the right mood for districts.

"We're ready to play and get the districts going," said Mahrle after a convincing 49-34 win over Mott Nov. 7 on the Wolf floor.

The victory improved Clarkston's overall record to 13-5 and Greater Oakland Activities League mark to 6-3.

Clarkston's last regular-season game will be Nov. 14 when it hosts Brandon. The Wolves will then compete at the districts at Lapeer East High School, taking on the winner of Lapeer East and Lapeer West Nov. 20 at 6 p.m. (see brackets)

Alyson McChesney gave Mott fits, scoring 26 points while pulling down eight rebounds. The steady 5-10 junior also sank all six of her free throws.

Clarkston led 16-11 after the first quarter and increased its lead to 23-15 at the half. The Wolves then distanced themselves from the Corsairs with a 17-8 third quarter.

Heather Steinhelper helped the Wolves by scoring 11, Stacey Tinkis had five, Laura Seitz four and Heather Austin three.

Angie Gadzinski paced the Corsairs with 13 points.

Clarkston 63, Dearborn
(Nov. 5 at Clarkston)

Courtney Whittaker's 25 points sparked the Wolves to a 63-45 thrashing of visiting Dearborn.

Clarkston poured it on in the first half, taking a huge 38-17 advantage into intermission.

Dearborn, 12-5, cut that deficit to 48-35 after three quarters but the Wolves held on for the win.

In addition to Whittaker's scoring, Alyson McChesney netted 14 points, Stacey Tinkis had six, Heather Steinhelper and Heather Austin each had five, Lesley Allen four, and Laura Seitz and Cheralyn Evans each had two.

Jill Wojewuczki led Dearborn with 13 points and teammate Erica Desentz scored 10.

LAURA Seitz flips a pass to Alyson McChesney during Clarkston's win against Waterford Mott.

HEATHER Austin applies pressure in a Wolf press against Waterford Mott. Austin and her Clarkston teammates will soon start district play at Lapeer East High School.

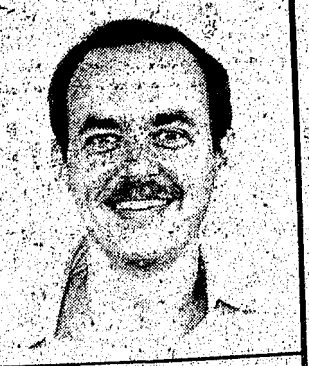
Swinging from the heels

Some of the best



James Gibowski

I have spent so much time writing recaps this fall that I haven't been able to feature many individuals for their performances.

Since it is now in between the fall (girls' basketball, however, still continues) and winter sports seasons at the Clarkston schools, I thought it would be the right time to recognize at least some of the fall's highlights.

I know these awards aren't as meaningful as being named to the AP All-State team or an All-GOAL team, but, hey, it's the thought that counts. Right?

The Double Bagel Award

If I'm not mistaken, Clarkston's No. 4 seed, Jessica Miller, had the most double bagels on the girls' tennis team.

For those of you who aren't tennis aficionados, a double bagel (I believe the term was coined by NBC announcer and Boston Globe columnist Bud Collins) is when you defeat an opponent 6-0, 6-0.

HOT in Districts Award

You couldn't ask for much more drama than what happened at the varsity boys' soccer team's last two district matches.

Aaron Phillips dramatically won two straight matches in overtime to help the boys win their first district championship in school history.

If you didn't enjoy soccer after those two matches, you never will.

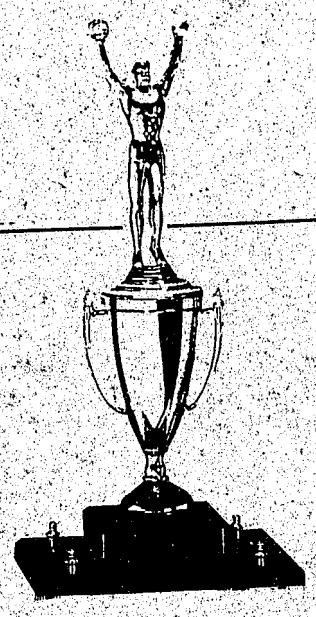
The 'Why Can't I Do That?' Award

Jayson Buchmann or Derek Bildstein (or the rest of the Clarkston varsity golf team for that matter) aren't as big physically as many other athletes, but they can sure nail a golf ball down the fairway.

The golf team's solid strokes and consistent play earned them a seventh-place finish at the state finals, probably the best finish ever for a Clarkston boys' golf squad.

When I would hear the whiz of the ball while photographing their drives, I often caught myself saying, "Someday, I'll hit a ball like that."

Right. And some day I'll be invited to play at the Masters...



The Best Is Yet to Come Award

All of Clarkston's JV teams have been terrific. The golfers finished 19-1, boys' soccer team 11-1-1, football team 7-1-1 and girls' basketball team (as of Nov. 11) 14-4.

Biggest Rivalry Award

Waterford Kettering vs. Clarkston in girls' basketball?

No.

Lake Orion vs. Clarkston in girls' tennis.

Nope.

Lake Orion vs. Clarkston in football?

Nottttt!

Year after year, season after season, and no matter what sport they're playing, the biggest rivalry award has to go to Clarkston Junior High vs. Sashabaw Junior High.

I think this rivalry is loud, healthy and (looking at all those green-and-blue-painted faces in the stands) colorful.

All for One and One for All Award

The varsity girls' cross-country team fielded five runners, the minimum number to be able to score in team competition.

So if it wasn't for Angie Brown, Leah Scharl, Stacey Patterson, Shelly Draves and Lisonn Hutchinson, there wouldn't have been a team this fall. They deserve much credit for sticking it out. Cross-country isn't a glory sport and takes much self-discipline, running and running.

By the way, the Wolf fivesome finished second in the GOAL and freshman Scharl placed 28th at the state finals.

Making the Right Connection Award

The Dugan-Fife to Jon Wyniemko pass connection was pretty to watch on the varsity (Wyniemko caught 54 passes for 773 yards and nine touchdowns).

Nearly as pretty was the Kevin Dankert to Brent Bundridge JV pass connection, which accounted for 544 yards.

It was fun watching all those footballs flying in the air this fall. Most of them were on the mark. And if they weren't, the sticky fingers of Wyniemko and Bundridge still grabbed them.

Splitting the Uprights Award

Last year, David Marks successfully kicked every one of his PATs (I think he made about 25 straight).

I never trusted any high school kicker until I saw Marks in action last season.

But this season, Matt Smith could also be trusted. The junior kicker only missed about two PATs.

That trust will continue next fall.

Dr. Bob Award

Clarkston has missed former principal Dr. Bob Burek, who is now the superintendent of Fenton Schools. Dr. Bob showed up at many sport events and I'm sure the athletes appreciated that.

Interim principal Mel Vaara has been following the Wolves (at home and on the road) as closely as Dr. Bob. I'm sure the athletes appreciate that, too.

Getting Out of Her Sister's Shadow Award

Alyson McChesney, when she doesn't get in foul trouble, has probably been the most consistent player on the varsity girls' basketball team.

It isn't unusual for the junior to score 25 points in a game and pull down eight rebounds.

Alyson continues to make the McChesney name proud. Her sister, Jennifer, who graduated last year, was a Wolf stalwart for several years.

The name McChesney will continue to be a big part of basketball in 1992.

Best Popcorn Award

Hands down (and I can't help from putting my hands down into some of that great popcorn) the Clarkston concession stands feature the tastiest halftime food in the area.

The Clarkston Athletic Boosters feature a great selection at fair prices when compared to such pitiful concession stands as Brighton's (great band, terrific stadium lights, but lousy food) and Bloomfield Hills Lahser (nothing warm to drink during a cold district soccer match ...).

Saving His Best for Last Award

Derek Lachman finished 14th at the GOAL meet, but four days later, against a much larger field of runners, he finished 18th at the regionals.

That quick improvement at regionals earned Lachman a trip to the state finals, where he finished 64th among the state's elite.

Rescheduled But Not Forgotton Award

Linda Walker, the secretary at Clarkston High School's Athletic Office, deserves an award for the number of times she has helped me get team schedules, team rosters, the time when a team practices, the time when the team's bus leaves, when a game is rescheduled, a coach's prep hour, an athlete's lunch hour, matching a name to a jersey number, matching a name to a face, checking to see if any coach left any info in the Clarkston News box, checking to see when Athletic Director Paul Tungate is available, finding out if someone is eligible, finding out if someone is injured, etc.

And doing all this while she is busy doing all those other things for all those other people.

Thanks.

Now about that first wrestling match ...

Former Wolf coach enjoys new opportunity

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

It was the same gym, same parking lot, same sport and the same people, but some things were quite different for Dallas Thorn Nov. 7.

Instead of coaching Clarkston to win, Thorn was coaching Corsairs to defeat the Wolves.

"It was good to see everybody but not a very good homecoming," said Thorn, whose Waterford Mott varsity girls' basketball team dropped a 49-34 decision to the Wolves Nov. 7. "You can't win a ballgame when you can't shoot a basketball. And they played good defense."

Last season, Thorn coached Clarkston's JV girls' basketball team, along with the Wolves' JV volleyball and softball teams.

"I'll always think of Clarkston as the place where I got my start," said Thorn, who, among others, was greeted at the Wolf gym by Clarkston Athletic Director Paul Tungate, trainer Gail Cooper, varsity coach Larry Mahrle and some school custodians.

Thorn's present players also gave her a "Good luck" helium balloon, which was tied to the end of the bench.

Clarkston's Alyson McChesney did everything she could to break Thorn's balloon, scoring 26 points and grabbing eight rebounds.

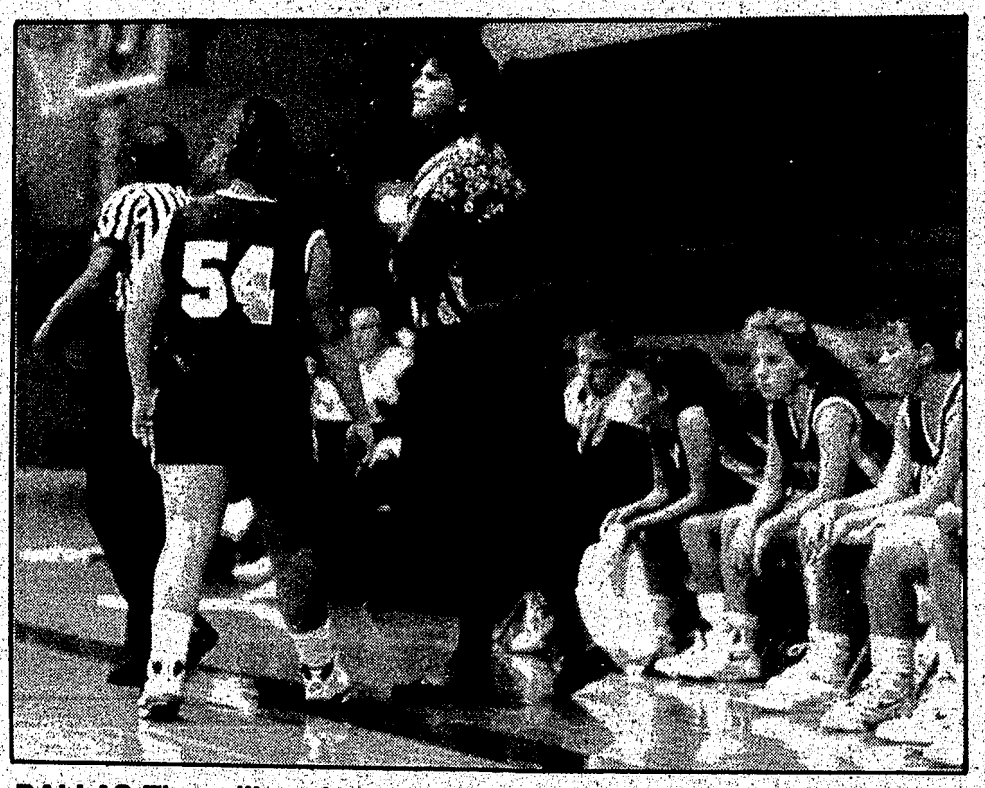
"Alyson had a good game, but I expected her to," said Thorn.

Thorn said the loss to Clarkston was only the third time this season a squad has beaten the Corsairs by 10 or more points (earlier in the year, Clarkston topped Mott by a closer 54-47 spread).

Thorn, who said she enjoys running her own program, only has three seniors on the team and is looking forward to her future at Mott.

"It takes a team a while to get used to a new coach," said Thorn.

And it takes a while to change from a Wolf to a Corsair.



DALLAS Thorn likes the opportunity of being the varsity coach at Waterford Mott.

Pom Pon dance clinic Nov. 23

The Clarkston High School Pom Pon Squad is sponsoring a "Dance Clinic" Saturday, Nov. 23, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the high school gym.

The clinic, which is for girls in grades 3-11, will be conducted by members of the high school pom pon squad.

Those attending are asked to bring a sack lunch. Beverages will be provided.

Cost is $5 for pre-registration and $6 at the door.

Pre-registration forms are avaiable at the schools. For more information, contact Mary Jean Cox at 625-4446.

Risk Proofing Kids Against Alcohol, Sex and Drugs

On Friday, November 22, 1991 at 8:00 P.M. Dr. Donald Joy will be presenting the seminar "Risk Proofing Kids Against Alcohol, Sex and Drugs" in the Clarkston High School auditorium. Dr. Joy, who serves as professor of human development at Asbury Theological Seminary, is a distinguished lecturer and author of eight books, most of them dealing with sexual development and the family. He has been a frequent guest on Dr. James Dobson's nationally known radio talk show, "Focus On The Family." Dr. Joy has also served as consultant to the Office Of Pregnancy Prevention at the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services.

It's a steal! JV Wolves easily top Mott

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Erin Patterson, Sadie Caruso and their Clarkston JV girls' basketball teammates, stole the show against visiting Waterford Mott.

The Wolves stole the ball 27 times en route to a 42-27 victory over the Corsairs Nov. 7.

The victory raised Clarkston's record to 14-4 overall and 6-3 in the Greater Oakland Activities League.

Patterson scored 15 and had five steals.

And the Wolves had their own version of the Great Caruso.

"Sadie had a really great game, with a season-high 13 points. She also had six rebounds and six steals," said Clarkston coach Janet Swan. "She's really a hustler and has filled in well for an injured Lisa Goforth (who has a broken wrist)."

Clarkston led 17-11 at the half but began pulling away after a 13-8 bulge in the third quarter.

Jennifer Woutinen scored five, Shannon Binkley and Sarah Antonazzo each had four, Shawna Greene two and Amy Bishop one. Binkley pulled down nine rebounds and had six steals while Wuotinen cleared seven boards.

(Nov. 5 at Clarkston)

Erin Patterson scored a career-high 18 points and every Wolf scored in Clarkston's 54-12 lambasting of Dearborn.

Clarkston led 21-3 after the first quarter and 15-0 second quarter gave the Wolves a commanding 36-3 advantage at the half.

Patterson hauled down six rebounds to go along with her 18 points. Amy Bishop had a solid game with 13 points and five boards.

Shannon Binkley scored seven, Sadie Caruso and Rachel Olney each had four, and Jennifer Wuotinen, Carrie Ruddy, Sarah Antonazzo and Shawna Greene each had two. Olney also grabbed five rebounds.

IN-HOUSE MOISTURE affects your comfort in summer as well as winter.

QUESTION: During the summer, I need air conditioning to take the humidity out of our home. In the winter, the air is so dry, I create sparks whenever I touch metal. What can I do to help the situation?

ANSWER: To reduce humidity you can install ducted fans to vent vapors outdoors from the kitchen, laundry and bath. If you don't have air conditioning, you may want to invest in a humidifier.

If too LITTLE moisture occurs during winter, you can resort to automatic humidifiers. One kind is built into the heating system and spreads moisture through the heating ducts. The other is a portable room humidifier.

Recreation Roundup

1992 PONY BASKETBALL

Clarkston basketball players not on the junior varsity or varsity teams are invited to play Pony basketball through the Independence Township Parks and Recreation Department. Teams must register by Dec. 18.

JR./OPEN KARATE

Sanchin Ryu Karate, which can help a person's self-confidence and personal discipline, will be taught from Nov. 12 to Jan. 14 (eight weeks, no classes Dec. 24 and Dec. 31) from 7 to 8 p.m.

Cost is $12 for residents and $17 for non-residents. The location of the class is to be determined.

COUNTRY-WESTERN DANCING

Students will be introduced to the Texas two-step, Western polka, cha and line dance.

The six-week class meets 7-10 p.m. Tuesdays at the Carriage House in Clintonwood Park. Cost is $21 for residents and $26 for non-residents.

MORNING AEROBICS

This aerobics class will be a combination of high- and low-impact aerobics, followed by much toning to slim and trim your body.

The class meets 9:30-10:30 a.m. at the Church of Resurrection at 6490 Clarkston Road and begins Nov. 25 (no class Nov. 29).

Cost is $20 for those meeting two times a week and $30 for meeting three times a week.

LOW-IMPACT THERAPEUTIC AEROBICS

Back by popular demand is low-impact therapeutic aerobics for the mentally challenged at St. Daniel Catholic Church of Clarkston.

Classes began Oct. 2 and include walking, motion, strengthening and music aerobics. The 12-week session runs through Dec. 18.

Cost is $36 for 12 weeks, and pre-registration is required.

Targeted for the mildly to moderately impaired with or without wheelchair needs, the class is open to ages 14 to adult. This is a drop-off program, so parents, guardians or caregivers are offered a quiet room for reading, games or videos and speakers.

GAME ROOM AT CLINTONWOOD PARK

Interested in sharpening your skills in billiards, euchre, checkers, chess, pinochle and backgammon?

If so, you can come to Game Room Night at Clintonwood Parks' Senior Citizen Center 6-8 p.m. Tuesdays. Activities are open to all ages. Cost is $1 at the door. Players must bring their own chess, backgammon and checker games.

FALL TREE ENTHUSIASTS

Attention, environmentalists and tree-planting enthusiasts: the rec. department has planting areas available at Clintonwood, Bay Court and Sashabaw Plains Parks for those interested in donating trees or shrubs.

Those making tree donations become eligible for various prize drawings throughout the year.

TOGETHER TOTS

Children learn language concepts that lead to skill in expressing ideas in this play-group atmosphere class.

Parent and child participate in finger plays, songs, gross and fine motor activities, art and crafts, stories and field trips. Maximum of 12 per class. Early registration is advised.

The 12-week class begins Jan. 7 at the Carriage House in Clintonwood Park.

The class meets on Tuesday or Thursday from 9:45 to 10:45. Cost is $59 for residents and $64 for non-residents.

MOTHER-SON DANCE

Mothers and sons are invited to attend this dance 6-8 p.m. Monday, Nov. 18, at a location to be determined. Refreshments will be served. Cost is $5 per person ($7 non-residents), and early registration is advised.

ADULT BASKETBALL LEAGUE

Basketball players over age 18 are welcome.

The sponsor fee is $125. Resident's fee is $15 and non-resident's $25. Action for the league begins Sunday, Dec. 8, at Clarkston High School.

FOR MORE INFORMATION

Call 625-8223 or stop by the Independence Township Parks and Recreation Department, 90 N. Main St., Clarkston. The office is open 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Creative Design opens anew

BY DENNIS V. CARTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

After four years in Holly, Dody's Creative Design has moved to Independence Township.

"Holly was good to me, but I found that a majority of customers were from Clarkston," said Dody Cook, who recently moved her store to 6561 Dixie Highway. "People were always telling me there was need for my store in Clarkston, so I decided to move it here."

Dody opened the doors for business in early November month but is planning her grand opening for Dec. 6 and 7.

"We are looking forward to the Christmas season," said Dody. "Now is good time for us to reopen because people still have time to have something special designed and made for Christmas."

Dody, a designer for 20 years, said much of her work comes from special orders.

"We do a lot of custom design work," she said. "We do a lot of collages where people bring in memorabilia and we put it together and arrange it to so they can hang it their wall or give it as a gift."

What's new in business

Dody got her start designing and decorating by working in other stores and then went into business for herself.

"I had a store in Florida, and when I got out of the business, I said I would never do it again," she said. "But then I began to miss it and opened a store in Holly after moving back to Michigan."

Her store in Holly featured mostly bed and bath accessories, but her new store carries all sorts of accessories.

"We have items of all types ranging from hand-stitched quilts to rag furniture and lamps. Our feeling here is that if you're looking for something, let us know and we will help you find it."

Three other designers — Mitzie Guthrie, Barbara Marshall and Sherry Zadony — help Dody at the store.

"We really do have a lot of talent here to help people get just what they are looking for as far creative designs," said Dody. "We can help with gift selection or with someone's personal decorating needs."

And she's optimistic about her new location.

"I really like the Clarkston area," she said. "I feel I will do very well here, and I'm looking forward to being in business here in Clarkston."

AFTER operating her business for five years in Holly, Dody Cook decided to move to the Clarkston area, where many of her customers live.

Business Briefs

Named to research post

Krista A. Stricklin has accepted a position at Vanderbilt University in Nashville, Tenn. She will be working in genetic research for DNA cloning.

Stricklin graduated from Clarkston High School and Michigan State University, East Lansing. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stricklin of Independence Township.

School lunch seminar covers lower-fat items

In the future, school lunches in Oakland, Wayne, Macomb and Genesee counties may be a little lighter — in fat, that is.

On Nov. 13, representatives from 11 counties, including the above-mentioned counties, met at the Oakland Technical Center-Northwest Campus in Springfield Township to evaluate new, lower fat hamburger, turkey and chicken products for school lunches.

The session included a demonstration of fat testing, followed by product evaluation and lunch, prepared by the center's culinary art students. The students also took part in the product evaluation.

Tanning salon helps cut cancer patient's costs

If you're planning a winter trip to warmer climates this season, you can get a head start on your tan and help a good cause at the same time.

Kokomo: The Electric Beach is offering its services 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 24, to raise money for Holli Schilling, who is fighting cancer. Owner Chris Maybee is allowing anyone to use the tanning beds in exchange for a donation of their choice.

Maybee said she was inspired to help because she has met Schilling and knows Schilling's best friend, Tari Garcia-Hutchinson, who is a regular at Kokomo. Garcia-Hutchinson is helping to raise the $100,000 needed to pay Schilling's medical expenses through That's What Friends Are For — North Oakland County Chapter.

"It could happen to any of us," said Maybee, noting that Schilling had had regular medical checkups. "My mom died of cancer last year, so it kind of hit home."

Kokomo is in the lower level of Ritter's Country Square, accessible from the back, off Dixie Highway, Independence Township.

WITHOUT the support of family and friends, Bill Jentzen says he doesn't know if he could have recovered as quickly or as thoroughly. His goals are to walk more on his prosthetic leg, to do more around the house and to play more with his three children.

He takes recovery one step at a time

BY DENNIS V. CARTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

After Bill Jentzen realized the severity of his injuries, he questioned whether it was worth living.

"I was involved in an accident at work," said Jentzen, a former welder who has a Clarkston mailing address. "My hands, arms and legs were burned the worst, along with my face and chest."

The 1990 accident occurred when Jentzen was working at a shop in Frazier. A spark flew into a barrel, which exploded, catching him on fire.

"I had just been married," Jentzen said. "In fact, I had my six-month anniversary in the hospital. When the realization of how bad I was injured set in, I just asked myself if it was feasible to keep on living."

As a result of the accident, Jentzen's leg was amputated, and he lost movement in both hands.

Several days after Jentzen's accident, Karen Simonich, a physical therapist at Detroit Receiving Hospital, began treating him.

"She convinced me that I had a lot to live for," said Jentzen, a Cedar Loop, Brandon Township, resident. "Once I accepted the fact that I wanted to live, I really went after the therapy in a big way."

At this point, Jentzen said his therapy is going "real good."

After 87 days in the hospital, Jentzen could use a walker and go home Aug. 15, 1990.

"It was a goal I had set for myself," he said. "She (Simonich) was always having me set goals."

Jentzen continues to work with Simonich in out-patient therapy.

His goals now are walking with a prosthetic leg, doing more around the house and playing with his three children — ages 6, 4 and 20 months. The two oldest children are from his wife Michelle's previous marriage.

Before the accident, Jentzen raced cars and amateur dirt bikes.

"I, of course, miss the activities I did before, but I learned to ride a stationary bike in physical therapy. Recently, I rode 3 1/2 miles in a bike-a-thon on Belle Isle to raise money for the burn center at Detroit Receiving Hospital," Jentzen said.

Throughout his ordeal, Jentzen said family and friends helped a lot.

"Everyone has really been supportive," said Jentzen. "I really don't know if I could have come back this far, this fast, without their support."

Despite the pain involved in his therapy, he feels it has been worth it.

"In the first few dark days after the accident when I wasn't sure if it was worth it or not, I can (now) say for sure, it is. I decided that life was too important to give up on. My wife and children were too important to give up on, and that has really been an important part of my therapy," he said.

Jentzen said it's been a lot of hard work to just get to where he is now. He is unable to work at present and doesn't know when or if he'll be able to work again. So he focuses on the activities he can do.

"It all comes down to looking to future with a positive attitude. I know it won't be easy, but I know I can do it," he said.

Early detection of breast cancer . . .

It could give you time to enjoy the important things.

A regular breast x-ray is your best defense against breast cancer. Found early enough, 9 out of 10 breast cancers can be cured.

The Breast Center of North Oakland Radiology has been designed especially for women who need a breast x-ray. With the attention of our breast care professionals, your regular breast x-ray will be private, personalized and comfortable.

Our state-of-the-art equipment produces extremely accurate images of breast tissue, using a very low dose of radiation. Our program also includes a special videotape on breast care, a review of breast self-examination methods and an opportunity to discuss your own breast care with our nurse.

Ask your doctor for a referral to see us. Or call us direct and make your own appointment. We'll forward your test results to the doctor of your choice. To make an appointment or find out more about the Breast Center, call us at 625-7750.

Having a regular breast x-ray is one of the best things you can do for yourself. Because your granddaughter wants you to be around for a long time to come.

Baby boomers can expect vision changes

As America's baby boomers enter their 40s, they should prepare for subtle changes in their vision.

"Many vision changes are due to normal aging of the eye, and very few will cause permanent vision loss," says Dr. Will E. Phillips, president of the Michigan Optometric Association.

Vision changes baby boomers should watch out for include:

■ Presbyopia, which results from reduced flexibility of the eye's lens and begins to blur vision at age 40-45. It makes reading newspapers or restaurant menus difficult. Optometrists solve this problem by prescribing reading glasses, contact lenses or multifocal lenses.

■ Spots and floaters, which are harmless particles floating in the fluid of the eye but should be evaluated by an optometrist.

■ Glaucoma, which occurs when fluid pressure in the eye rises above normal, causing a loss of vision if left untreated. That's one reason regular eye exams are important for people in their 40s. If diagnosed early, chances are good that vision can be maintained.

■ Cataracts, a cloudiness in the eye's lens. Symptoms include blurred or hazy vision, spots and double vision. If monitored, vision can often be improved with a change in eyeglasses and surgery may not always be needed.

■ Retinal disorders, such as macular degeneration, diabetic retinopathy and retinal detachment. Thanks to advances in eye care, vision conditions once considered sight-threatening may be successfully treated if diagnosed early.

People who may be experiencing any of these problems should schedule an examination with their family optometrist.

Blood.
What Every American Should Know.

1. Each year four million Americans depend on blood transfusions.
2. The safeguards on the blood supply include conducting seven separate laboratory tests to screen out AIDS, hepatitis and other infectious agents, educating donors on transmissible diseases and encouraging at-risk donors to disqualify themselves from giving blood.
3. Blood banking is one of the most highly regulated areas in health care, governed by multiple federal and state rules, laws, policies and regulations.
4. As an alternative to blood transfusions, today a growing number of people benefit from autologous (self) transfusions.
5. There is no risk of AIDS or other infectious diseases when blood is donated, as sterilized needles are never reused.

Why the 'hoopla' over colon cancer-causing gene?

What's all the hoopla surrounding the discovery of a gene that causes colon cancer? Didn't researchers hypothesize that colon cancer was caused by an isolated gene before now?

Colorectal cancer isn't caused by an isolated gene but rather by the accumulated effects of a series of genetic changes that occur in the cells lining the large bowel. The particular genes involved are thought to be responsible for controlling the way in which cells grow and divide.

When the genes become abnormal, this control is lost and cancer can develop. The recently discovered gene is thought to be one that starts off the series of changes that ultimately lead to cancer. Researchers have known about this gene for some years but have only just identified it.

When an abnormality in this gene is inherited, it produces familial adenomatous polyposis, a condition where colon cancer and polyps develop in patients at a very early age.

The fact that this gene now may be isolated and studied in people is the reason for all the "hoopla." If we can detect abnormalities in this gene in patients, we may be able to determine those who are predisposed to colon cancer and prevent its development.

Researchers also can use their new knowledge to open other avenues in the search for greater understanding of the development of colon cancer. This may lead to new and exciting ways of preventing, detecting and treating this very common and potentially lethal condition.

Anyone with a personal or family history of colorectal cancers, polyps in the colon or ulcerative colitis is at particularly high risk for developing colorectal cancer and should be examined carefully. Due to the fact that more than 93 percent of cases occur after the age of 50, the American Cancer Society recommends their following cancer-related checkups:

- a digital rectal examination each year after age 40
- a stool blood test every year after age 50
- a proctosigmoidoscopy or "procto" exam every three to five years after age 50

Can vitamins help lower my risk of cancer?

Some studies have suggested that vitamins such as A and C may protect against some types of cancer, but definite evidence for this is still lacking.

These vitamins can be found in dark green vegetables such as broccoli and green peppers; yellow-orange vegetables such as carrots and squash; and in yellow-orange fruits such as apricots, peaches and oranges.

Researchers have also found a link between the lack of certain vitamins and the development of some types of cancer. Diets low in vitamin A, for example, have been associated with a higher incidence of cancers of the cervix, prostate gland, skin, bladder and colon.

Many factors are involved in the development of cancer, and it is believed that many cancers are related to our diets. At this time, the association between diet and cancer is still being studied.

Eating a well balanced diet rather than relying on vitamin and mineral supplements is still the best approach.

I've heard so much lately about prostate cancer and the importance of early detection. What are the symptoms and who is at greatest risk for prostate cancer?

The symptoms of prostate cancer may include:

- The need to urinate frequently, especially at night.
- Weak or interrupted urine flow.
- Difficulty in starting or stopping urination.
- Painful or burning urination.
- Pain in the lower back, pelvis or upper thighs.

These symptoms may indicate signs of prostate cancer or other problems, such as a noncancerous enlargement of the prostate gland. If you are having any of these symptoms, it is important to discuss them with your physician.

The risk of prostate cancer increases with age, with over 80 percent of all prostate cancers being diagnosed in men over the age of 65. It is estimated that one out of every 11 men develop prostate cancer, with about 122,000 new cases being diagnosed this year alone. However, when prostate cancer is diagnosed in its early stages, the chance for cure is excellent.

It is important that all men over the age of 40 follow the American Cancer Society's recommended guidelines for detection of prostate cancer and have a yearly rectal examination as part of their regular annual physical checkup. A blood test called PSA may also be performed yearly.

Frostbite hotline

A frostbite hotline offers tips to protect people from cold weather. You can hear a recorded message 24 hours a day by calling (313) 876-7100.

Children and the elderly are especially at risk for frostbite. One of the best safeguards is to dress appropriately.

Layer your clothing, starting with polyester blends that will draw moisture away from your skin. The next layer should be include cotton blends that will help keep you warm. Finally, wear a layer of nylon or Gortex to help block the wind. Hats are also important during freezing temperatures since 70 percent of your body heat can escape through your head.

The hotline also gives tips on hypothermia, a life-threatening condition caused when the body is struggling to keep warm. Symptoms include lethargy, slurred speech and a bluish tone to the skin. If you experience these symptoms, s[illegible] emergency help immediately.

Plants can make a healthier home

House plants can clean your household air, as well as make your home look welcoming, according to the East Michigan Environmental Action Council (EMEAC).

Studies by NASA show that house plants can reduce certain contaminants common in indoor air pollution, according to EMEAC's "Target Earth" newsletter.

One or two plants per 100 square feet remove such chemicals as benzene in tobacco smoke and formaldehyde in household cleaners.

Pores on the underside of plant leaves absorb the chemicals, and bacteria associated with the roots help break down contaminants that the plant will take up as nutrients.

No plant excels at breaking down all indoor air pollutants, but a mix of plants can reduce formaldehyde, benzene and trichloroethylene — three of the most common indoor pollutants that are known or are strongly suspected of causing cancer.

Formaldehyde is removed from the air by philodendron, spider plant, golden pothos, corn plant, chrysanthemum and mother-in-law's tongue. Sources of formaldehyde include foam insulation, plywood, clothes, carpeting, furniture, paper goods and household cleaners.

Benzene is removed by English ivy, marginata, Janet Craig, chrysanthemum, gerbera daisy, warneckei and peace lily. Sources of benzene include tobacco smoke, gasoline, synthetic fibers, plastics, inks, oils, detergents and rubber.

Trichloroethylene is removed by gerbera daisy, chrysanthemum, peace lily, warneckei and marginata. Sources of trichloroethylene include dry cleaning, inks, paints, varnishes, lacquers and adhesives.

ISN'T IT GOOD TO KNOW...

"Wheelock Memorial Hospital was there."

On January 28th of last year, as Bob Flath headed home from a Super Bowl party, he began to have severe chest pains and knew exactly what was happening. He was having a heart attack.

Feeling that he didn't even have time to wait for an ambulance, Bob asked a friend to drive him directly to Wheelock Memorial Hospital where the staff recognized his symptoms immediately and were able to take appropriate medical action. By administering the clot dissolving drug TPA, they were able to stabilize his condition. Wheelock nurses then set up emergency transportation to take Bob on to a local cardiac unit for further treatment.

Four months later, Bob Flath is well on his way to recovery and today believes, "If it hadn't been for Wheelock and their fast action emergency care, I would not be here today. In fact, as soon as I left the hospital, my first stop was Wheelock where I gave that nurse a big hug and thanked her for saving my life. Wheelock Memorial Hospital was there for me!"

Fat replacers: What's the real story behind trend?

Three of four Americans regularly consume low-calorie or reduced-fat foods and beverages, according to a survey from the Calorie Control Council.

Too much fat, especially saturated fat, is a major factor contributing to the high incidence of cardiovascular disease, obesity, hypertension and possibly colon and breast cancer, according to Crittenton Hospital.

As a result, more companies are offering reduced-fat and low-fat products.

For a few years, companies reduced the amount of fat per serving in foods such as margarine and frozen desserts by simply adding water or whipping in air.

Now, improved fat replacement technologies are becoming available, according to Vikki Lasota, a member of Crittenton's Food and Nutrition Services Department.

New fat replacers fall into three general categories: carbohydrate based (CHO), protein-based and fat-based.

The CHO and protein-based fat replacers are similar in that both function by forming small hydrated particles that mimic the same texture as fats. Because the particles are hydrated, they provide only one to four calories per gram compared to nine from fat.

One fat replacers, Simplesse, is a calorie-reduced fat substitute developed by the NutraSweet Co., which also manufactures aspartame. Simplesse is made from either egg whites or whey protein. By a process called microparticulation, the protein is heated and blended to create very small, round particles that create a rich creamy texture similar to fat.

Lasota said that Simplesse can't be used in products that will be heated because heat causes the protein to gel and lose its creamy consistency.

Simplesse was affirmed as "Generally Recognized As Safe" last year by the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) for use in frozen desserts and salad dressings.

According to Lasota, the body digests and absorbs Simplesse as it would any other protein, and it should be safe for anyone without sensitivities to egg or milk products.

Simple Pleasures is a frozen dessert made with Simplesse. It provides one gram of fat, 120 calories and 14 milligrams of cholesterol per serving, compared with seven grams of fat, 135 calories and 30 milligrams of cholesterol in the same size serving of regular ice cream.

Lasota warned that, although eating Simple Pleasures saves some calories, it doesn't mean you're free to eat other high-fat foods or more fat-free double-dipped ice cream cones.

Other fat-like substances similar to Simplesse include Trailblazer, which is being developed by Kraft General Foods, and Finesse, marketed by Reach Associates.

Olestra is a fat-derived fat replacer being developed by Proctor and Gamble. It is a sucrose polyester — which means it's a combination of sugar and oils brought together by high temperature and pressure.

The resulting molecule is larger than a triglyceride. It cannot be digested by pancreatic enzymes and is not absorbed from the gastrointestinal tract, making it calorie-free.

Fat replacements do have the potential to be helpful — if they don't kill the incentive to eat well.

Olestra has the same taste and cooking properties as regular oils and fats and can even be used in baking and deep-fat frying.

FDA approval has been requested for production of snack foods such as potato and corn chips. Since 100 percent replacement is proposed, these foods could be made fat-free.

This would mean that one serving of potato chips — which presently supplies 10 grams of fat and 155 calories — could have absolutely no fat and only 67 calories.

Fat replacements can't be viewed as a quick and easy substitute for healthy eating while trying to control weight. A balanced diet, including a variety of foods, is still essential.

Fat replacements do have the potential to be helpful — if they don't kill the incentive to eat well. Whether they are helpful or not will depend on how they are used, according to Lasota.

Free growth screening clinic

Are you concerned that your child is too small for his or her age? Does your child suffer needlessly by thoughtless comments about his small stature?

Don't despair. If your child is a victim of a growth hormone deficiency, help is available.

A new synthetic growth hormone has made the difference for countless children and may benefit your child, too. However, timing is important. The younger the child is diagnosed, the more successful the treatment.

A free growth screening clinic is planned for 2-6 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 20, at the Clarkston Medical Group, 5885 M-15, Independence Township.

Nasir Hacque, a pediatric endocrinologist and growth specialist, will evaluate children for possible growth hormone deficiency and counsel parents if a deficiency is suspected.

To register, call 625-2621.

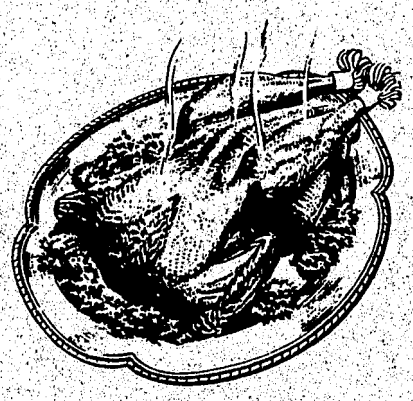
About the lighter side of holiday eating



Your taste buds are going to be pretty delighted over the next couple of months. They will keep company with the likes of festive cakes, pies, fancy dips and other edible pleasures.

Rice puddings will persuade them. Peanut butter fudge will prod them. And we don't need to mention the the pecan pie.

Where does this leave you?

This is the time of year when temptation overrides logic. Eating habits become less disciplined, and waistlines and cholesterol levels increase. For some, indiscriminate eating can be risky to good health.

Most of what you'd find at the traditional holiday spread is loaded with high contents of saturated fat and cholesterol. Both of these contribute to heart attack risk.

Desserts in general add a significant amount of sugar and calories to the diets of many people. The American Heart Association of Michigan (AHA/MI) recommends natural fruit as an alternative to tempting treats. Choose desserts that contain high sources of vitamin C such as oranges, strawberries and grapefruit. Be creative with fruit dishes during the holidays.

Nothing is more colorful or accents a festive table more beautifully than an arrangement of fresh fruit. As you frequent the sweets table, avoid commercial cakes.

Angel food cakes and homemade cakes made with low-fat ingredients are your best bets without sacrificing taste for calories.

These are typically made with high amounts of animal and/ or hydrogenated vegetable fat.

Angel food cakes and homemade cakes made with low-fat ingredients are your best bets without sacrificing taste for calories.

Unfortunately, most commercial cookies are made with animal and/ or hydrogenated vegetable fat and should be avoided. Fig bars, ginger snaps and molasses cookies offer low-fat options. The best homemade cookies for a heart-healthy diet are those made from low-fat recipes that call for skim milk, egg whites and polyunsaturated oils.

Instead of ice cream, try any flavor of sherbert, fruit ice or ice milk. If you must add syrups or toppings, choose kinds that contain no butter, chocolate, coconut or hydrogenated fats. Syrups containing cocoa are acceptable. Since any topping is mainly sugar, use them sparingly. Honey, fruit, jams and jellies or marmalade are good topping alternatives.

Beware of nuts. Avoid those roasted in coconut or palm oil. Although nuts and seeds are good sources of protein, they are concentrated sources of calories. Most contain more than 150 calories per ounce with about 80 percent of the calories coming from fat.

The best nuts to look for are walnuts, pine nuts, beechnuts and pecans.

When you mingle at holiday parties, stay clear of the snack table. You'll be less inclined to munch as you're talking if the food isn't within reach.

Seek out fruits, vegetables, air-popped popcorn, no-fat or low-fat crackers. Although not considered the most heart-healthy snack, pretzels are much better than potato chips.

If you must consume alcohol, do not consumer more that three drinks per evening. Tomato juice is a good substitute because a glass has 60 percent fewer calories than a gin and tonic. Orange juice in soda water with a lemon slice also makes a refreshing drink without the added calories of alcohol.

More than 50 percent of middle-aged Americans have cholesterol levels about 200 milligrams per deciliter of blood, a level at which the risk of heart disease begins to rise sharply. The average American man consumes about 500 milligrams of cholesterol a day and average woman, about 320 milligrams.

Although some dietary cholesterol is eliminated from the body through the liver, the AHA/MI recommends that the daily intake of cholesterol be below 300 milligrams. Considering these statistics, you probably should be concerned about your blood cholesterol.

Start the new year off with a commitment to healthier eating.

Exercise defends against heart disease

As summer fades into fall and winter, healthful habits such as exercise often fade away as well.

Shorter and cooler days tend to make you want to stay inside rather than take that run or go to the gym. Anyway, you don't need to think about wearing those shorts or that bathing suit again for months.

So why exercise? Because, according to the American Heart Association, exercise is one of the best personal defenses against heart disease.

Diseases of the heart and blood vessels claim the lives of nearly 1 million Americans every year. But by reducing blood cholesterol levels, controlling high blood pressure, not smoking, maintaining a proper weight and exercising regularly, the risk of heart disease can be reduced.

But that's just one of the reasons to exercise. People who exercise regularly often find that they feel better, look better, and even work better than before they started an exercise program.

If you feel too tired to exercise, do it anyway. You'll gain more energy and find that you have increased resistance to fatigue. Exercise can also improve your ability to fall asleep quickly and sleep well.

Even if you don't want to lose weight, exercise. It burns off calories to help lose extra pounds and helps you maintain your ideal weight. In addition, you'll tone up your muscles and look even better.

Have you ever convinced yourself that you "have too much work to do to worry about exercising?" Take heart. Exercise often contributes to increased productivity at work and helps increase your capacity for physical work.

Before you start an exercise program, consult your doctor. Then choose an activity you like, such as walking, jogging, bicycling, swimming, tennis or aerobics.

Then just set up a schedule to get started. According to the AHA, exercising regularly for 30-60 minutes at least three to four times a week will improve and maintain cardiovascular fitness.

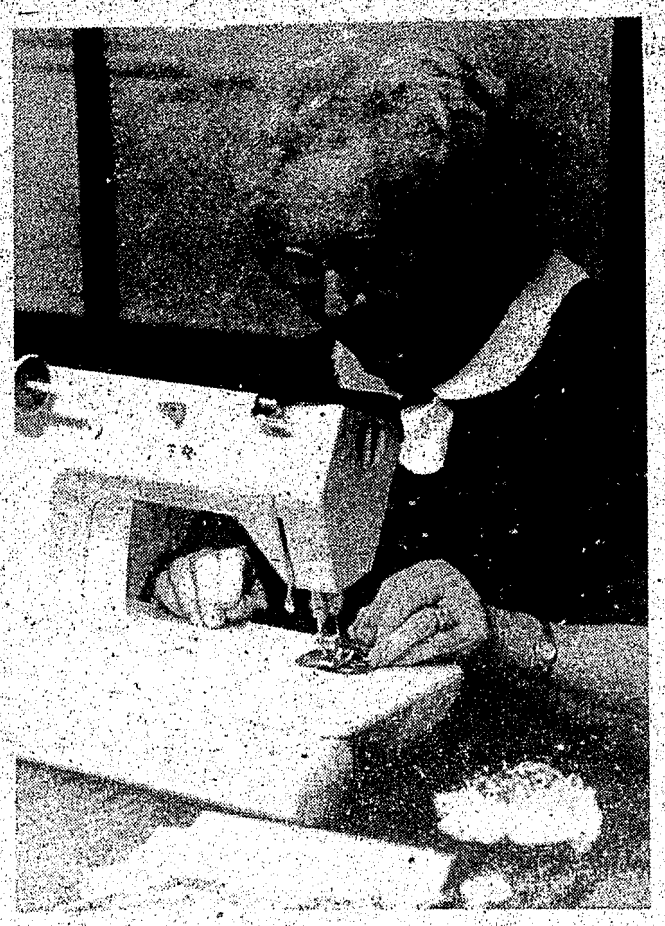
Grandparents are Don and Gerry Seeterlin of Waterford and Sandy Ginn of Capac.

Engagement

Randy and Shirlee Holt of New York announce the engagement of their daughter, Heidi J. of Sandusky, N.Y., to Timothy A. Pyke of Clarkston, son of John and Beverly Pyke. The bride-elect is a 1990 graduate of Pioneer Central High School, Sandusky, N.Y. The bridegroom-to-be is a 1990 graduate of Springfield Christian Academy. They are both currently attending Bob Jones University, Greenville, S.C. A July 1992 wedding is planned in Sandusky.

Holiday helpers

IT TAKES teamwork to fill a hot pot pad with spiced rice. Working together are Ruth Thompson (left) of Snowapple Drive, Independence Township, and Maxine Marlowe of Springfield Township. If you set a hot pot on the pad, a sweet aroma will fill the air, explains Thompson. The two met with other Church of God members once a week to prepare for the annual Holiday Bazaar set for this Saturday. "We have more fun than anything else," says Thompson. (Photos by Julie Campe)



FERNA Marlowe of Rose Township works at the sewing machine. She and other church members crafted aprons, Santa Claus toilet seat covers, stuffed cat-shaped and bear-shaped wind blockers, soap holders, pillows and more for the bazaar on Nov. 15.

Community education at a glance

Computer and electronic games expo

Need some help picking out those computer games for this Christmas season? Now you can try them yourself.

A special expo 1-4 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 23, offers New-Geo, Super Nes, Genesis and Turbo Graphix ready for hands-on use. IBM education representatives will also be on hand to answer questions and demonstrate K-12 educational software and the PS-2 product line. The event takes place at the community education center.

Quick holiday gift to make

A great gift idea is to cross stitch a festive holiday towel. This easy and quick project is perfect for the beginner. The workshop is 6:30-9 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 4, at Sashabaw Junior High. The class fee is $10.

Meet the IBM

An introductory course to the IBM-PC begins Monday, Nov. 25, at the community education center and runs four weeks. Fee is $42.

For more information

Clarkston Community Education Center is at 5275 Maybee Road, Independence Township. For more information, call 674-0993.

Band-O-Rama Nov. 14

A special concert is free at Clarkston High School at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 14.

Band-O-Rama takes place in Kirchgessner Theater and includes performances by CHS Wind Ensemble, Symphonic Band, Jazz Ensemble and Marching Band, conducted by Cliff Chapman and Jennifer Moehlman.

Selections include works by Karl King, James Curnow, Vaclav Nelhybel, Edward Elgar and John Phillip Sousa.

The Marching Band presents musical selections from its recent fall contest, including "A Festival Prelude," "Variations on a Korean Folk Song" and "Auld Lang Syne."

Do you have a story idea? Give us a call at The Clarkston News. 625-3370

Only today

Amber Gebrowsky

For years, people have been fascinated with time travel. We have read books and watched movies about it. If we could travel in time, it is possible that life could be perfect.

If you went back into your childhood, think of all of the things you could live again. The coloring books, the tree houses, the puddles you jumped in, your pet dog. The summer days that have now stretched and faded into misty memories, and the snowmen whose coal smiles you have long forgotten.

You could live all of those Christmas mornings again — the bikes, the dolls and the teddy bears. You could taste chocolate ice cream as you did when you were 5 years old. You could dig out your miniature toy trucks and play with them one last time. There would be tea parties and days on the playground to live over. The innocence of childhood would be yours again. No work, few worries and what seems like an endless life in front of you. It is possible that life would be perfect.

If you traveled into your future, just imagine all that you could see. Yourself — wise, rich, and happy. Head of your own company, president of the United States or winner of a Nobel prize. You, as the person who has helped the planet to achieve world peace, who has saved the rainforests, who has stopped all pollution. It could be you who has answered the problem of homelessness. You could be the doctor or scientist who has come up with cures for diseases like AIDS.

You could see yourself on your dream vacation, traveling around the world. You could be the richest person in the world, maybe in money or maybe in love. You would be able to see how all the decisions you've made had affected you. It is possible that life would be perfect.

Personally, I believe that people really don't want to travel in time. They just want to live the present forever. Then, it is completely possible that life would be perfect.

We Are SIDING And GUTTER Specialists

We are not a Jack-of-all-trades. We can not guarantee you the absolute lowest price as we will not sacrifice the quality products or workmanship that you deserve. But what we will guarantee is an honest and fair price with products and workmanship of the highest quality. We also do our own work. We don't get your job and sub-contract it out, or sell it. So if you are only looking for the cheapest way out, call someone else who claims they can beat any price. If you are looking for an honest and fair price, quality products and workmanship, dependability and someone that will still be here after your job is completed, give us a call. Helping you make your home the one you've always dreamed of is what we do.

Mid-week mingling

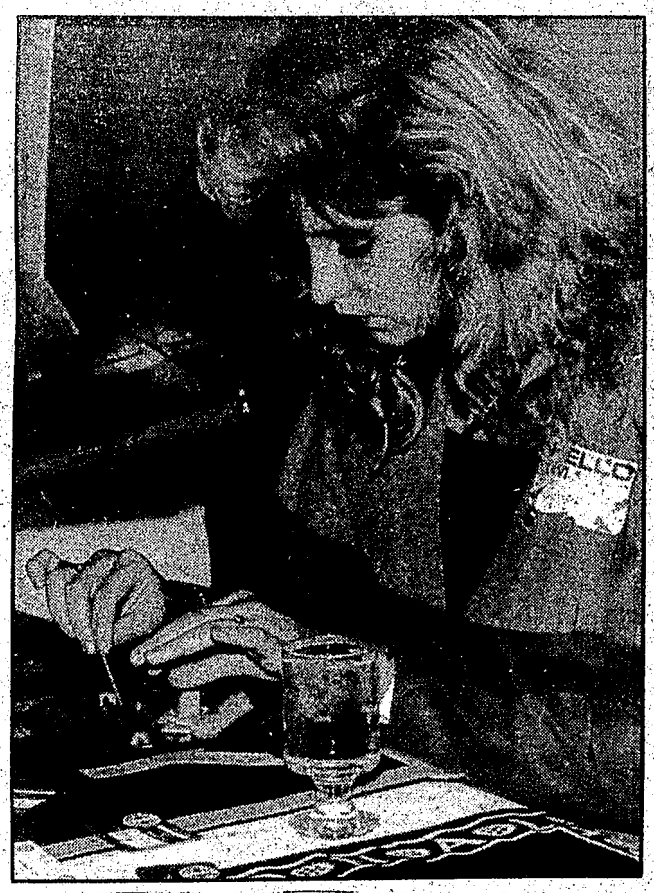
DON BROSE (right) of Brose Electric is strategically placed next to the Mary Kay Cosmetics booth of his wife, Robin (center), who works with Debbie Knill during the community expo last week. About 600 turned out for the event.



MANNING the Clarkston High School Interact booth and sampling the hors d'oeuvres is CHS junior Erica Nienstedt.
