Slow times mean time to regroup

"Our zoning doesn't allow for much commercial development," he said. "I foresee more residential development in the township for '92."

Bair said he foresees less development north of Interstate 75, and what development takes place in '92 will depend on the economy.

"Certainly the economy will have an effect on how much development goes on in the area, but what we are most concerned with is sticking to our master plan and steering the township in the right direction."

This is the second in a three-part series on the effects of the recession on the Clarkston area.

BY MATTHEW J. FORSTER

Merchants in the area are finding ways to weather the recession, however, some residents aren't so lucky. Business people in Independence and Springfield townships said the economy has adversely affected business, but already signs of improvement are showing. However, a non-profit agency in Independence Township sees only increasing calls for help, with no signs of improvement.

Lighthouse North Director Sherri Kaars said more people than ever have approached the 2-year-old Maybee Road establishment, asking for food, clothing, emergency medical assistance and more.

Kaars said many families that Lighthouse North helps are traditional families. In many cases, the husband Coping with hard times and wife work. They usually can make ends meet until some crisis comes up, she said.

Lighthouse North, which serves northwest Oakland County, is funded by churches, corporations, grants and private donations, and Kaars said that funds are trickling in to meet the needs.

A few area businesses also have felt the effects of the recession.

Before the holidays, Su Strangway from Tierra, a store in downtown Clarkston, said that Christmas items had not started out selling as well as they have in the past. But many men are buying engagement rings for Christmas presents, combining the two occasions, she said.

Mary Tebo, owner of the Davisburg Candle Factory, Springfield Township, said consumers were shopping (See RECESSION, Page 3A)

Storing div to willship in the right direction.

For Springfield Township, an increase in single family residential housing can be expected, according to Doug Lewan, township planning and development coordinator.

"I haven't heard much, as far as commercial development," he said. "But we do have a small industrial park in the southeast part of the township, which may allow for some industrial businesses going in."

With limited increases in commercial development, Lewan said he sees more single family housing units as opposed to multiple dwelling units.

"You will probably see an increase in the single family housing, like subdivisions," he said. "But I don't really see much in the way of apartments and condos.

As in most areas of country, the economy will be a factor in how much development will begin in the new year, said Lewan.

ment will hinge a lot on how the economy will go," he said. "But I foresee an increase, at least in the single family housing units."

As with most other issues facing the Village of Clarkston, cityhood will affect nearly everything. And whether the about 1,000-population village becomes a city this year is up to the voters in the half-square-mile village, which is in the southwest quadrant of Independence Township.

"What happens in the village hinges on cityhood," said Stephen Arkwright, chairman of the Clarkston Planning Commission. "There are only two or three units which are not developed now, so I don't foresee much in the way of development."

According to Arkwright, improving the zoning ordinance will be a priority with the commission during the upcoming new year.

"Our zoning ordinance needs a lot of work," he said. "It has been neglected in the past, and now is the time to clean it up and make for some better clarification in it."

"You will probably see an increase in the single family housing, like subdivisions. But I don't really see much in the way of apartments and condos."

The downtown area is one focus of plans in the village in the upcoming year and in the future as a whole. "We look very closely at the development which occurs around us," Arkwright said. "What we want to do is to get businesses helping businesses in downtown area. It is a slow process and will be tough, but we want to help

1990 refunds waiting

Five people with Clarkston mailing addresses are among the almost 1,000 Michigan residents whose federal tax refund checks were returned by the Postal Service as undeliverable.

The refund checks from the Internal Revenue Service range in amounts from $1 to $16,309 and average $410, according to John O. Hummel, IRS district director for Michigan.

Undeliverable checks with Clarkston mailing addresses belong to: Charles R. Beach, Charles R. Beach II, Nancy L. Huckaby, Bernice S. Tyburskie and Jonathan D. Cort, according to an IRS list.

When a refund is returned by the Postal Service, the IRS attempts to locate the taxpayer by follow-up mail, "but there are always a small number who cannot be found," Hummel said.

"What we want to do is to concentrate on helping. We can't do anything about the development that goes on outside of the village - we are very small - but we want to do what we can to bring business to the downtown area," he said.

Robert Esshaki from Rudy's market, a store that carries specialty foods in downtown Clarkston, used to consider Rudy's "recession-proof." Now, he said, Rudy's is feeling the effects of the recession. People tend to shop more at the large grocery stores when money gets tight, he said. Some said money has been tight for everyone. Pilarcik cited the move of Chrysler to the new industrial park off of I-75 in Auburn Hills as a symbol of continued growth in the area.

However, at Lighthouse North, there are no signs that things are getting better, said Kaars.

In 1991, there was a dramatic increase in the number of people helped by Lighthouse North.

In 1990, Lighthouse North served 4,322 clients. As of September 1992, it had already served 12,093.

Because of cuts in funding for state general assistance recipients, Kaars said, more will need aid in the future.

1992 to be tougher on drunken drivers

Drivers in Michigan arrested for drunken driving will face tougher penalties, as of Jan. 1.

Their driver's license will be destroyed, and they'll be issued a temporary permit. They also will face swifter prosecution and, if convicted, tougher penalties.

For instance, the new deadline for resolving drunken driving cases is 77 days, which will shorten the time people charged with drunken driving are allowed to remain behind the wheel, according to AAA Michigan.

A minimum six-month suspensions is now mandated for a first conviction on charges of operating under the influence of liquor (OUIL) or with an unlawful blood alcohol level (UBAL).

No restricted license will be offered for the first 30 days of the suspension. A second offense within seven years will result in driver license revocation.

Other changes include:

Up to 15-year prison term if a driver kills someone in a crash and is convicted of OUIL or UBAL.

A possible five-year prison sentence for an OUIL or UBAL conviction if an accident causes a serious injury.

Penalties based on the person's driving record, including both in-state and out-of-state convictions. This prevents habitual offenders from being punished as firsttime offenders.

Juries able to learn if a person refused a chemical test. Currently, this information is not admissible in court.

A $500 instead of $100 fine for a first offense of driving with a suspended or revoked license and up to $1,000 for a subsequent offense.

A fee increase from $60 to $125 to reinstate a driver's license. A portion of this revenue will help buy and maintain infrared breath-testing equipment to make enforcement and legal action more efficient.

In 1990, 738 people died in alcohol-related crashes in Michigan — 47 percent of the state's total traffic fatalities.

Aunt Penny was up for the holidays, as usual. She is one of those characters who always makes an impression.

I remémber one of the first times I met her -- I was a teen-ager, and she was my new step-mother's sister.

She had been teased all day because she had volunteered (though no one had asked) to perform some of the cheers she remembered from her teen-age days as a cheerleader in Des Moines.

The teasing had gotten so bad that she refused to cheer anymore (everyone felt punished, I'm sure).

But when I arrived, she agreed to show me a few, as long as no one else was in the room.

So she put on her big cheerleader smile (which she still uses regularly during her weekend modeling jobs), and she jumped and yelled out cheers.

"Ja-ha!" I remember her shouting, with arm and leg movements as jolting as her exclamations. She continued, and I remember being surprised that someone so tiny could yell so loudly.

I didn't laugh. I merely stared -- I was too astounded.

So this was Aunt Penny, I thought, wondering what else she was capable of.

I have since found out.

She is the aunt who, without the benefit of her sister's famous Christmas punch, always starts the party.

And if there's not an official holiday, she'll make one. Any Iowa football-game will serve as a reason for celebration.

Or a good song on the radio. And Penny is not limited to the songs of her youth.

For instance, we recently attended my brother's wedding in Miami, and during much of the reception, hispanic music was played -- very fast hispanic music.

The hispanic women in attendance used elaborate and graceful hand movements yet moved so quickly to the fast rhythms.

Aunt Penny, however, was up to the challenge.

She boldly joined the group and mimicked their gestures. She even added a few flourishes of her own when she went a few bars one-footed, then switched to the other foot.

She and some of the others couldn't speak the same language, yet they found out a lot about Aunt Penny that night.

As did we all.

On the way back to the hotel that evening, Penny chattered the entire way. Yes, that evening, she was in her element.

Of course, whenever she can, Aunt Penny turns any occasion into her element.

The natives are restless as we end one year and start another.

We're overtaxed. Our leaders lie to us and don't lead. We seem to give more money to every other country than to our own.

The biggest manufacturing company in the world is cutting 74,000 jobs and closing 21 plants. Other major firms are making drastic cuts also.

·Illegal drug sales (crime) continue unabated, illegitmate birth rates climb, new diseases seem to outnumber new treatments for old diseases and television is terrible.

And you know what? We've heard it all before.

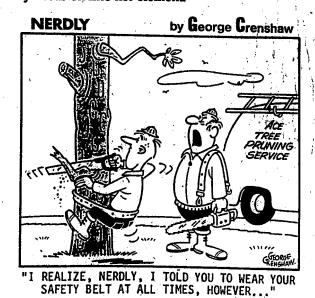

matter how wrong they may be.

A "mild decline" is how a politician/professor sees a recession. The unemployed see it as a depression.

We hope the professors are right when they see our Michigan economy dipping further in early 1992, but bottoming out early and climbing "at least through 1993."

The fact that over 90 percent of the people are employed, and many of the unemployed are receiving substantial benefits, has no effect on improving the economy.

We're a pessimistic lot and live accordingly. In times like these we save. Stock brokers Paine Webber call it the Big Shift. Consumers who have financial means are shifting their attitude from spending to saving.

And many of us lived through it. Every once in a while someone brings in a quote from centuries ago that reads like the opening paragraphs of this column.

The world didn't end then and it won't this week either.

There was fear then, there's fear now. Politicians had the credibility of professional wrestlers then and their reputation hasn't changed.

As a Detroit Free Press editorial read recently, "Politicians will not talk plainly to their mothers, much less voters." No one expects to believe them.

Economists, too, have a way to go to get respect. In late November, 1991 three from the U of M said, "Michigan's economy can expect a comparatively mild recovery from the comparatively mild decline that occurred between July 1990 and July 1991."

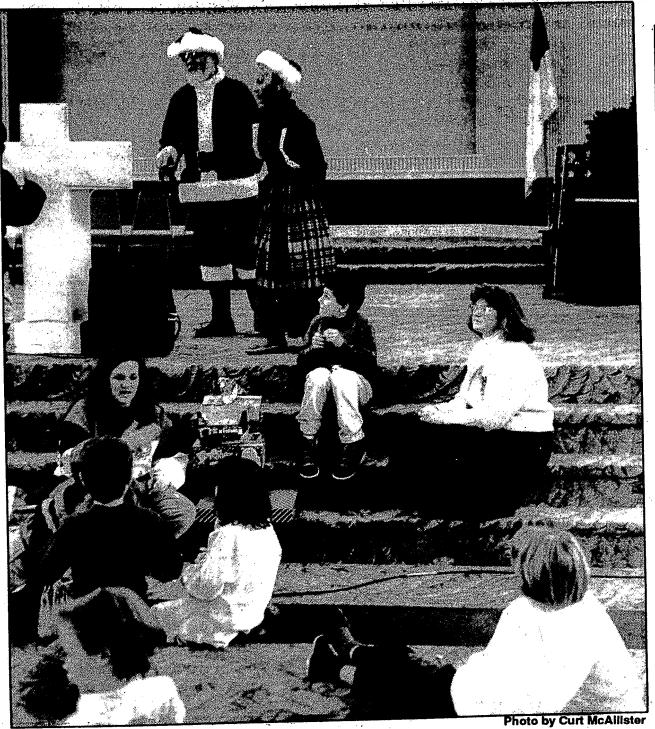

Keep in mind, U of M professors are like politicians in that they seldom see a paycut or layoff, no Why do we do this? Fear! We fear for the future so we spend less, which helps keep the recession sputtering.

Higher up in this column I said, "We're overtaxed." And, like other bad news, this too has been heard before. Our accountant sent the 1951 tax rate schedule. People who made $10,000 that year paid 39% on everything over $10,000.

Those who made $25,000 paid 60% of all over $25,000 and those who made over $100,000 paid 89% of all over $100,000.

See, things have been worse, even taxes.

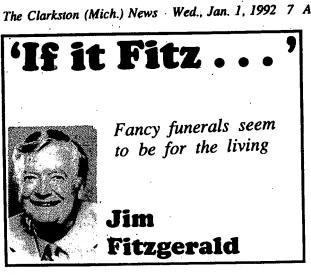

A year ago GM chairman Robert Stempel said, "Economists have been predicting a recession for six years. I think they finally got it." It apparently took him another year to believe it himself.

Mr. and Mrs. Claus did the honors in passing out the gifts.

The live mortician got lots of publicity. The dead mortician didn't get enough. That's what I think, but you should take my opinion with an ounce of embalming fluid, because I belong to the Cremation Society of Michigan.

You undoubtedly read recent articles about a Flint mortuary keeping a dead man in the basement for nearly three years after his funeral because of a dispute over the mortician's bill. The corpse's family accused the mortician of "holding the body for ransom." The mortician denied it.

Last week the family of the dead man agreed in court to pay the mortician $3,605 plus 1-percent interest a month for 31 months. The next day, the body was buried.

Before telling you about the other mortician - the dead one - and why I was intrigued by his departure, I should first tell you that, a few years ago, I wrote a column planning my non-funeral. Several morticians responded negatively, calling me selfish.

It is my plan that, after medical science extracts whatever parts it desires, my remains be cremated immediately. No corpse viewing or visitation in a funeral home. No funeral. No ceremony. No burial. Cheap.

It cost me $15 to join the Cremation Society. When the time comes, I'll be toasted in the cheapest container available. No expensive casket. No cemetery plot and eternal grave gardening.

No obscene $9,000 ransom to pay to get me out of a mortician's basement. The last time I checked, the Cremation Society would take care of body removal, cremation and application for Social Security benefits for around $600.

My funeral-planning column quoted several readers' complaints against the funeral industry's handling of cremations. It was charged that some morticians didn't tell bereaved families it is legal to cremate Uncle Jake in a $60 crate rather than a $2,000 coffin. There was also a charge that survivors occasionally pay for a burned coffin that really isn't burned but instead is stealthily snatched from the flames so the mortician can sell it again.

These charges were called outrageous lies by three morticians who took me to lunch. They conceded only that morticians often don't suggest to the bereaved that "immediate disposition" would be a good way to say good-bye to Uncle Jake. And that's the only way he could be burned in a $60 crate.

According to most morticians, most families don't want the corpse sped directly from hospital to furnace. They want Uncle Jake laid out in the funeral parlor for a couple of days so friends can come see him and his survivors. And it would hardly do to lay him out in an orange crate.

Funerals are for the living, those three morticians stressed. Even if Uncle Jake's last wish was to be incinerated before his corpse became cold, that quickie disposal probably wouldn't be good for his family.

"Good funerals are those that help the grief-stricken deal with the hurt," they said, so decisions concerning the funeral should be made by the survivors, with the guidance of a mortician. For the dead person to arrange his or her own funeral is "the ultimate selfishness," they said.

Which brings us to the Detroit-area mortician who died a while back after more than 40 years of operating a well-known funeral home. According to his published obituary, his body was cremated, there was no funeralhome visitation, and no funeral.

As mentioned, there was scant publicity and no explanation of the apparently converse circumstances. We'll probably never hear the answer to the screaming question: Why didn't a man who made his living selling funerals with all the trimmings get the same thing for himself?

If a veteran gourmet restauranteur requested a McDonald's hamburger for his last meal, you might think he didn't really approve of all the fancy stuffy stuff he sold all those years.

Which reminds me, about all the money saved on my cheap disposal: My family has my permission to spend it on a big memorial bash in a gourmet saloon. I ask you, is that selfish?

CHS alumnus hits road with Reba McEntire

Dean, a 1985 graduate of Clarkston High School, presently tours with McEntire's entourage as its video director. His job is to instruct the tour's camera crews during the concert to hone in on specific angles and project them onto their big video screens. As an employee of the I-MAG Corp., based in Tuscon, Dean and four other co-workers were contracted to work on McEntire's "Rumor Has It" tour last year. Due to a contract extension, Dean and his crew are scheduled to accompany the band for the first 30 weeks of 1992 as well.

A student of the Specs Howard School of Broadcast Arts in Southfield, Dean moved to Tennessee after graduating in 1985.

In the latter part of 1990, he got his big break, while free-lancing as a video specialist in Nashville. He answered a newspaper want ad for a camera operator, unaware of I-MAG's upcoming contract with McEntire.

He accepted the job, even though it meant long hours and non-stop travel.

After a stint as camera man, Dean was promoted to tour video director in the fall of 1991.

Dean said the past year has gone by swiftly, and he's enjoyed life on the road so far.

"I really like it," he said. "It's been nice to see different cities and meet all sorts of people."

He added that most of his travel time is spent on a 45foot long travel tour bus, which sleeps 10 people and is modified with all the comforts of home.

As a former Michigander, Dean said he hasn't received too much ribbing for being one of the few "yankees" on the tour.

"Luckily, I've lived in Tennessee long enough to earn my keep with the others. It also helps that half my blood is 'hillbilly," Dean said, laughing.

Dean said the 37-year-old star is the consummate

Looking death in the face

CLARKSTON High School sophomore Jenni Drallos takes on a ghostly appearance, as Death (senior Mark White) looks on. The pair were involved in a day-long project Dec. 12, sponsored by Students Against Driving Drunk (SADD), that portrayed the severity of drunken driving among teens. During the day, a pupil was removed from class every 10 minutes, signifying a national statistic that claims a teen dies from drunken driving in America every 10 minutes. Once removed from class, these students applied white facial makeup and took on the personas of ghosts the rest of the day. Nearly 45 students participated in the project. (Photo by Curt McAllister)

Infant cushions to be banned

Infant cushions may be banned by the U.S. Product Safety Commission, following the suffocation of 35 infants.

The Safety Commission removed existing products from the marketplace and from consumers but is concerned that other manufacturers may begin production of similar products.

The cushions of concern have soft fabric coverings, are loosely filled with a granular material such as plastic foam beads or pellets, are easily flattened to create a nest so the infant lies prone on them, are capable of conforming to the face or body of an infant and are intended or #### promoted for use by children under 1 year.

Of these features, the key characteristic the contributes most to death is the ability of the cushions to conform to an infant's face or body, according to the commission.

Almost all of the incidents reported to the Safety Commission involved children lying in a prone, stomach down position. In all but two of the incidents, the infant was less than 4 months old.

Consumers who still have infant cushions should call the commission's toll-free hotline at 1-800-638-2772 for recall information and instructions.

Wolves don't get a kick out of Mules' victory

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI Clarkston News Staff Writer

Wrestlers were seeing plenty of red at the first annual Goodrich Tournament of Champions Dec. 28.

The red-clad Temperance-Bedford Kicking Mules dominated the 16-team tourney, placing nine of their wrestlers in the finals, with seven of those winning. Bedford finished with 267 1/2 points, well ahead of second-place New Lothrop (131) and 14th place Clarkston (31).

Clarkston, rated second in the state (Class A) behind Bedford, didn't field its starting lineup and only managed to have three wrestlers place.

Freshman Corey Grant, moving up to 112-pounds, took fourth after being pinned by Roseville's Kirk Williamson at 3:36. Senior heavyweight Jon Roy topped Goodrich's Scott Webb, 12-3, for fifth. Freshman Armin Michelsen edged Traverse City's Brian Warren, 8-7, for fifth

The match of the day didn't involve a Clarkston Wolf, but it did involve an Independence Township resident, two-time state champion Derek Moscovic. Moscovic, a Birmingham Brother Rice senior, nipped Bedford's Fred Schumacher, 7-5 in the 119-pound division. Moscovic (rated No. 1 in the state individually by the Detroit News) won on a take down of Schumacher (rated third in the state) with only about 25 seconds remaining in the

While the night was nice for Rice, it was no dice for the Wolves.

"It wasn't a banner day for Clarkston wrestling. It was a sluggish tournament," said Clarkston coach Scott Strickler.

The Wolf coach said few of his starting wrestlers competed for a number of reasons, including some being "banged up" from the recent Oakland County meet (won by Clarkston), wrestlers not making weight and concern for a state rule (wrestlers can only compete in six tournaments during the season).

Strickler, whose Wolves defeated the Kicking Mules in last year's Class A state finals, watched the red wave of winning Bedford wrestlers at Goodrich and was impressed. He said his Wolves are on a

Local gridder receives national recognition

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI Clarkston News Staff Writer

Desmond Howard isn't the only Michigan receiver to get national recognition this football season.

Jim Miron, an Independence Township resident the past four years and Saginaw Valley State University football player, finished in the top eight of balloting for the Harlon Hill Trophy. The award is the equivalent of the Heisman Trophy in NCAA Division II football.

The 6-0, 190-pounder (who just recently graduated) holds 12 of 16 Cardinal receiving records. Some of his fouryear totals include 39 catches, 2,133 yards, and 24 touchdowns (one touchdown occured on a return of a interception).

But Miron didn't just catch footballs, he played defensive back, returned punts and kicks, was on the kickoff team and held for the field goal kicker.

"I think that's why I was nominated," said Miron about his versatility, Two-way football players are unique in college football Another factor which weighed on his nomination (127 sports information directors from around the country voted) was Miron picked up his impressive receiving stats, even though the Cardinals ran the ball 80 percent of the time.

Miron, who works full-time at Poolmart of Michigan in Independence Township, played his high school football at Centerline High School in Warren before moving to the Clarkston area. He was selected honorable mention all-state for Centerline in 1986.

The criminal justice major was a walk-on at Saginaw Valley but still made the team his freshman year. He would later earn a partial scholarship, which still later turned into a full scholarship.

Miron plans on again trying out by being a walk-on this spring, but this time with the pros.

"My coaches think I can try out. I've thought about it," said Miron. And if the Harlon Hill Trophy nominee isn't chosen for a certain position, he

West Bloomfield man bags half-ton elk

BY DENNIS V. CARTER Clarkston News Staff Writer

Some 34,000 hunters applied for the right to stalk an elk in the state this year. Of that 34,000 only 157 received the honor.

For John Jacques of West Bloomfield, it paid off in a big way. He not only bagged a coveted bull elk but also walked away with a trophy and what may be a state record bull elk to boot.

"They are still checking to see if it is a state record," said John. "But it was the heaviest elk turned in at the check station in Altanta, Michigan, and because it was heaviest for the year, I received the trophy for heaviest elk.'

According to John, the elk dressed out at a whopping 658 pounds and has a rack rated at 6-7. As a comparison, that equals a 13-point buck in deer hunting. John is having the elk shoulder mounted at Baldwin Taxidermy in Lapeer and had the meat processed at the Cracker Barrel IGA in Brandon Township.

'We got about 300 to 350 pounds of meat from the elk," he said. "It is always nice to have the meat on hand whenever you want it."

According to John, he drove around in a truck until he spotted a herd of elk.

"You have to look for the elk; it's not like deer hunting where you usually sit and wait for one to come by," he said. "The elk travel in herds, so most of the work involved is finding them."

It took two shots from John's .30-06 Remmington to bring the large elk down.

"After I saw the bull in a herd with about 20 cows, I moved up to a position where I could get a clean shot at him," John said. "I was 100 to 150 yards away

"When I first saw it, I just could not believe how big it was. I was so excited, my heart was just pounding."

John Jacques

when I got the shots I needed."

According to John, of the 157 tags given to hunters, only 57 allow the hunter to shoot either a bull or a cow. The other 100 tags allow hunters to shoot only cows.

'I was fortunate in having a tag which allowed for either a bull or a cow,' he said. "It was very exciting when I saw a bull, and to have it be one of this size was totally exciting."

Once John made sure the animal was dead, he used an all-terrain vehicle to bring the huge elk out to the road, where he then used a come-a-long to pull the 1,000to 1,100-pound elk into the back of the pickup.

'When I first saw it, I just could not .believe how big it was," he said. "I was so excited, my heart was just pounding."

John has hunted deer for 15 years, but his was his first time stalking an elk.

"It's really hard to get a tag to hunt the elk in the first place. You have to go through a lottery type to get one. It is a very controlled hunt," he said. "But as hard as it is to get a tag, it's even harder to actually see a bull and then shoot it. It was just a really great experience and one I will never forget."

John said the elk was taken in Cheboygen County and ran about 200 to 300 yards after being shot before it actually dropped.

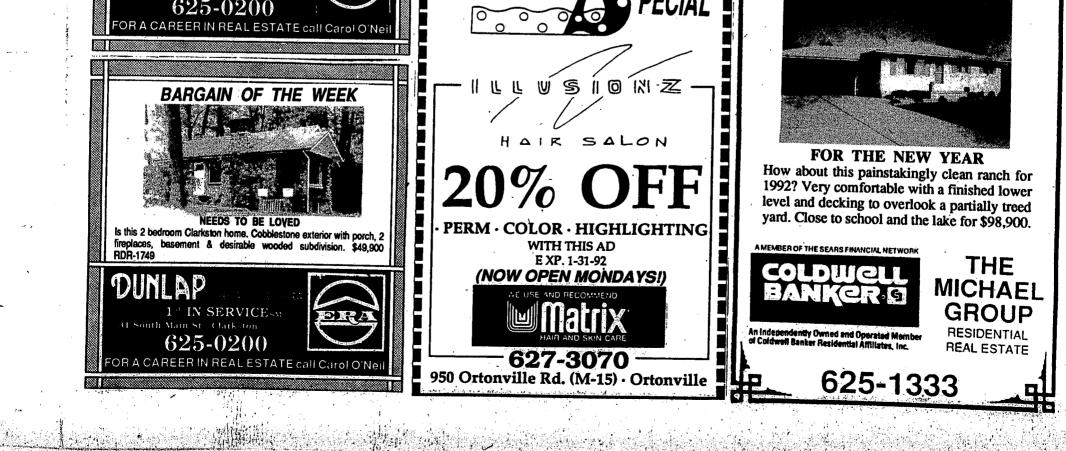

"I was able to keep an eye on him after I shot him, but I was afraid he would get into the woods and be lost. It really was a thrill once I got over and found him there," he said.

According to John, you are allowed to kill only one elk in the state of Michigan because of the lottery system, so for him it was a great experience to bag his bull elk.

'It is like a once-in-a-lifetime chance," he said. "But it is something I wanted to do for a long time, and now I done it. It could have came down to shooting a cow, but I got lucky and was able to get a bull."

Mini-series produced by Clarkston area residents

W ith the increasing need for a two-income family -- escalating cost of living, education costs and taxes -- financial planning has become more important than ever.

Addressing this need is a production by volunteers at the Independence-Clarkston public access studio of United Cable.

It may not be network, but much there is much preparation, and excitement abounds as the cameras begin to roll.

The host, Stephen Arkwright — a Clarkston resident originally from Texas, says that the series has been a good experience.

Since he has conducted many seminars in financial planning, the material presented is not new. However, being in front of a camera is a new experience.

"It's a whole new ballgame," he says.

He says the program is a sincere attempt to give information to Clarkston-area residents, and he was happy to oblige when approached by the production crew.

That includes Producer Eleanor Harned of Independence Township, Director Stan Cool (a Clarkston High School graduate and Specs Howard School of Broad-

The news magazine covers with such topics as the New Pine Knob, emergency service and recycling.

The latest mini-series, called "Financial Planning Simplified," airs at 8 p.m. on Wednesdays.

Harned says that another informative series is in the planning stages for the early year, and local business, programs and area services clubs will be among those featured.

Each student paid $425 (off-season cost) for the camp, which includes food and lodging. Among other things, the students learned about the history of U.S. space travel and how to build a rocket, and they flew in a shuttle simulator. Thompson said he enjoyed the spins and tumbles of the Multi-Axis Trainer the best. The Cooks said they liked the Space Shuttle Simulator. (Photo by James Gibowski)

Back in 1910, "caring" meant Pontiac residents raising $25,000 to build "Oakland County's First Hospital" in what was then a village of 5,000 people.

Five years later, caring meant the Oakland County Hospital Association donating the hospital to the thriving industrial center of Pontiac...and Oakland County Hospital became Pontiac City Hospital, which was changed to Pontiac General Seminole Ambulatory Hospital in 1931. Today, new communities all over Oakland County look to the same hospital for caring in the 1990's for services such as:

Complete care for new mothers and babies, including family-centered birthing and northern Oakland County's leading intensive care unit for newborns. Waterford Ambulatory Care Center

Satellite centers offering walk-in medical care and diagnostic services.

Expanded programs in physical rehabilitation, county-wide psychiatric ser-Pontiac Health Care Center vices and cardiac care.

State-of-the-art laser and outpatient surgery

With these new "caring" services and a patient base throughout Oakland County, our hospital has earned a new name.

Pay off high-interest debt; then set goals

Most people start off the new year with lots of good resolutions — and a drawer full of bills.

Along with your promises to lose 10 pounds, quit smoking and exercise regularly, the Michigan Credit Union League suggests 12 New Year's resolutions that will put you on the path toward better financial health:

Get a handle on your finances. Don't let them become unmanageable and end up controlling you.

Develop a balance sheet. List your assets (what you own or are purchasing over time) and your liabilities (what you owe on accounts that are not yet paid in full). This will help you to assess your financial situation.

Set short-term and long-term goals for yourself and your family.

Involve your spouse and children in the planning to gain their cooperation and support.

Write down your financial goals and set up an annual budget --- putting it down on paper commits you to a new plan of action for 1992.

Analyze your saving and spending habits and shape them to advance your goals.

Pay yourself first. Save a certain amount or percentage of each paycheck and add to your nest egg regularly.

Reduce interest expenses by paying off shortterm, high-interest debt.

Switch to a lower interest, low fee credit card and plan to pay the full balance owed each month.

Shop around for a financial institution, such as a credit union, that offers lower service fees and higher returns on savings.

Compare prices and quality before you buy.

Ask your credit union or bank how you can get free financial counseling if you're swamped with debt.

Faithful Judah

Judah is more faithful than his namesake, and he's looking for a new home.

This 77-pound Belgian Tervuren is 3 years old and has been neutered. Colored black and tan, Judah is reportedly good with children but dislikes small animals — especially cats.

His adoption fee is $35.

Saying no to drugs

DEPUTY David Hernandez of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department presents a youngster with a D.A.R.E. t-shirt at Pine Knob Elementary's Dec. 18 graduation ceremony. About 110 fifth graders recieved certificates and t-shirts for their participation in the 16-week Drug Abuse Resistance Education (D.A.R.E.) program. Pine Knob Elementary served as the Clarkston school district's pilot program, with instruction provided by OCSD deputies Joseph Lambourn and Hernandez. (Photo by Curt McAllister)

Sports card show

Sports card enthusiasts may want to attend this special show 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 11, 1992, at the Clarkston High School cafeteria. Admission is $1. Table space to sell cards will also be available for $25.

Theater opportunities

"The Gin Game" at Meadowbrook Theater is a touching and brilliantly funny play about two lonely senior citizens. Their friendship, born from playing gin rummy together, leads them to discover unexpected potential in their lives. Discount tickets, at $13, are available for the 8 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 21, 1992, performance.

Village of Clarkston 375 DEPOT ROAD CLARKSTON, MI 48346 Village Council Minutes of Regular Meeting

December 23, 1991 Meeting called to order by President Catallo at 7:30 p.m. Roll: Present: Basinger, Catallo, Mauti, Roeser, Schultz. Absent: Haven, Whitmer.

Moved by Basinger, supported by Mauti, "That the minutes of the special meeting of December 5, 1991, and the regular meeting of December 9, 1991, be approved as presented." Motion carried. Moved by Roeser, supported by Basinger, "That the Agenda be accepted as presented." Motion carried. Discussion of the Clerk's salary for 1992 was tabled until the next meeting.

The Village Manager was instructed to forward the Oakland County Intergovernmental Agreement for solid waste disposal to the Village Attorney for his review.

Trustee Roeser reported on the Johnson, Johnson, and Roy report regarding the Independence Township sewer extension on White Lake Road, and stated that there were several issues to be reviewed.

President Catallo reported that a representative from MDOT would be present at the January 13, 1992, meeting regarding the traffic signal project at M-15 and Clarkston Road. President Catallo asked that the discussion with MDOT be limited to that topic only at this time.

The Village Manager was instructed to inform the Clarkston News and the Village Attorney that there would be a special meeting on January 7, 1991, at 7:30 p.m. at the Village Hall.

The Village Manager was instructed to complete the tri-party agreement and submit it to the Oakland County Road Commission.

Moved by Roeser, supported by Basinger, "That the meeting be adjourned." The meeting was adjourned at 7:55 p.m.

Respectfully submitted, Artesmus M. Pappas Acting Clerk

Rush Road Reports Ey Don Rush 1992 Dodge Grand Caravan SE

For those of us who like to make the long haul -- any road trip over four hours -- a van to consider driving is Dodge's 1992 Grand Caravan SE.

We loaded up weekend luggage, filled the 20-gallon gas tank, made sure we had cassette tapes and drove from Pontiac area to the St. Joseph area: up I-75, over and down on I-69 and then west on I-94. The weekend was enjoyable and what helped start and end the trip on up-notes was the ride. Five adults had plenty of room in the Caravan to ride, read and relax. The van is a seven-passenger vehicle and came equipped with two integrated child seats (child seats built into the middle seats). These seats are handy if you're driving your toddler twins, or grandkids. All you do is pull the seats out -presto, kid seats. If all your passengers are adults, push them back in. Three people sat up against these seats during the trip and not one complained the seat was uncomfortable.

Handling Package for $93. Driving at highway speeds of 70 mph the Caravan was easy to handle; there was no sway. Another nice option for long highway trips is the electronic speed control (cruise control). Not only can you accel with the flick of your thumb, but you can also decel. The control for this
