Charter vote on Tuesday

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Editor

The polls will be open 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. on Tuesday, Feb. 4, for village residents to cast their votes regarding cityhood.

Registered voters may vote at the village hall, 375 Depot Road, Clarkston.

Residents are asked to adopt a charter for the City of the Village of Clarkston. If voters say yes, the village will become a city on July 1. If voters say no, the Charter Commission, elected on Oct. 16, 1990, has the option of rewriting the charter and again asking voters to accept it.

However, Sharron Catalo, president of the Clarkston Village Council, said Jan. 27 that if voters said no, cityhood would be dead. She said the Charter Commission wrote the best charter it could, and cityhood proponents would not pursue becoming a city if villagers vote no on Feb. 4.

Following is an explanation of the ballot issue:

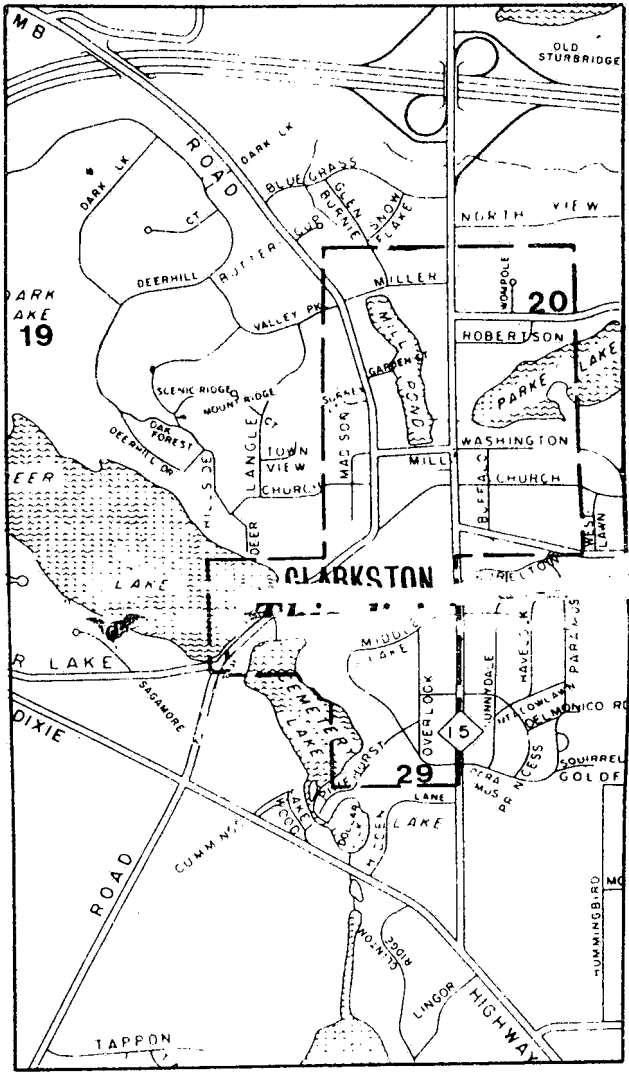

What it says:
Shall the proposed Charter of the City of the Village of Clarkston drafted by the Charter Commission elected on October 16, 1990, be adopted?

What it means:
Residents are asked to approve the charter for when the village becomes a city. Without the charter, there is no city.

The charter, written by a specially elected Charter Commission, is a list of rules and procedures for the new city government.

If defeated, it could be re-written and voted on again or dropped, finishing cityhood.

If approved, the village would become a city on July 1, with much remaining the same in government operations. (See related story on charter explanation.)

THE VILLAGE of Clarkston is a half-square-mile and lies in the southwest quadrant of Independence Township. By next week, this area could be considered city property.

There's going to be a murder at Clarkston High School, and it will be up to Clarkston's Fearless Faculty Footlighters to find the culprit.

On Feb. 8-9, CHS presents "Par for the Corpse." This two-hour murder spoof features 10 CHS faculty members.

Directed by Barb Gibson, the play includes performances by: Holly Rupprecht, Jane Miller, Howard Webster, Marilyn Kettler, Tim Kaul, Katherine Wlodarczyk, Kelly Cutshaw, Jim MacArthur, Jim Chamberlain and Ginny Farmer.

Holly Stevens serves as set director. The set was constructed by a handful of teachers. Pupils Amy Scaman and Erin White are student directors.

The Feb. 8 performance begins at 8 p.m. Admission is $4, $3.50 for students and senior citizens. The Feb. 9 show begins at 2 p.m. Admission for all is $3 for the matinee performance.

SHARRON Catallo says cityhood offers better, more stable, protection for the village.

Makes sense for future

BY SHARRON CATALLO

As village president, I have been asked to present the positive side of cityhood. The continuation of our autonomy is the foremost reason.

The village has a long history of self-rule. For many years we considered the consequences of what would happen to that autonomy when and if the township turned to cityhood as a better way of governing. It finally became apparent that it was necessary to make a move now towards cityhood or risk being in a position where that alternative would be denied us by others who were not village residents.

There is no need for me to remind you of how unusual the Village of Clarkston is, in this day and age. We are recognized as a National Historic District mill village by the federal government. This makes our boundaries important to keep intact, as well as our zoning, which protects our residents who work so hard to keep up the historic designation through their continual upkeep and maintenance of their homes and residential surroundings.

Facts and research over this long process of cityhood have shown that villages have smooth transitions to cities. In fact, 105 villages have become cities since 1930.

The reasons for these changes are to

Too often the cityhood issue has been made to sound like village dissatisfaction with township policies; this is not the case.

Sharron Catallo

eliminate the inefficient and outdated dual form of government that a township/village combination imposes. After cityhood, you have only one local government to elect, one place to register and vote and one government to which you pay taxes. A village is similar to a city in its form of government and already provides city-like services by contract or otherwise.

A 1986 Michigan Municipal League study reflects both the ease and cost of change:

"...Continuous study by the League staff has shown that, in general, the advantages of city incorporation will result in little or no increase in cost of government."

"Upon incorporation as a city, ... joint fire protection or disaster control plans or any other service currently provided by Village and Township may continue in operation as before. This will not entail any additional expense, and, again depending upon whether or not a Township property tax is being levied, there may be a saving to the taxpayer in the city." (Michigan Municipal League Technical Topics, No. 24, October 1986)

Too often the cityhood issue has been made to sound like village dissatisfaction with township policies; this is not the case.

Both the township and the village are committed to doing what is best for their citizens. However, while the village remains the same, the township is experiencing the turmoil of expansion and growth. Consequently, our respective community's needs are very different and will become even more so.

Our future costs of operation can be estimated easily — the township, on the other hand, is on an ever-changing course to keep up with the demand of services caused by such growth. I believe it is only appropriate that our tax dollars be better spent on just what is deemed necessary to operate the village, with those fiscal decisions being made by village residents.

In the length of time it has taken to prepare for cityhood, receive approval from the State Boundary Commission, elect a Charter Commission, write a charter and have the state approve that charter, we have received a great deal of positive suggestions and recommendations from other municipalities that have reached cityhood.

Based on this, it is clear that the village's needs will be better suited as a city. Moreover, if the charter passes on Feb. 4, we will have five months to work on contractual agreements before cityhood takes effect on July 1, 1992.

Cityhood makes sense for Clarkston's future.

Sharron Catallo of Buffalo Street, Clarkston, is president of the Clarkston Village Council.

FRANK RONK says the village should not become a city because costs would increase, and the change would divide the community.

Cityhood costly, destructive

BY FRANK RONK

I have been asked by The Clarkston News to express my feelings, as the present supervisor of the Charter Township of Independence and also a life-long resident of the Village of Clarkston, on the issue of cityhood for the Village of Clarkston.

First of all, I would like to state that the Township of Independence is not in a legal battle with the Village of Clarkston. The litigation is between the township and the Michigan State Boundary Commission. The village is involved because it chose to join the suit with the Boundary Commission on the Commission's decision to allow cityhood within the Charter of Independence.

Independence Township chose to become a charter township seven years ago. The main thrust of that decision was to maintain the township as it existed overall at that time. It was the understanding that no change could take place geographically to alter or reduce the size of the area. By becoming a charter township, this process protected the boundaries, both inside and out.

The suit against the State Boundary Commission is intended to clarify the intent of the Charter Township Act in regards to cityhood within a charter township, which has never previously occurred in Michigan. I am sure the issue will be settled by the Michigan Supreme Court.

Now, let's take a look at what may happen if the Village of Clarkston elects to become a city. All kinds of figures have been badgered about as to costs and services that are provided by or through Independence Township at present and that the city would have to provide by way of the city charter. This division of the village and township would be like a divorce of a marriage.

The village and township have been married, so to speak, for over 150 years. At present, a group of village residents is trying to bring about a divorce of the Village of Clarkston and the Charter Township of Independence.

If this change takes place, it will affect the overall community, in that all services presently provided to the village by the township through taxes will have to be contracted by the city from whatever provider the city wishes.

These services will probably double in cost, or more, when contracted or provided within the city. Also, there will not be any representation on the township's boards or commissions by city residents to voice their concerns and vote on issues in the township. At present, village residents sit on most every board and commission of the township.

If the village becomes a city, village residents will have no vote on issues that will affect the entire area of the city and township.

There is no statute that directs the Charter Township of Independence to provide any services to a city. If negotiations for services cannot be reached for fire, police, public works, library, parks and recreation, senior center, building and election services, then these services will have to be provided by the city (at great cost) or contracted through whatever agency can provide them. Some services are presently provided to the village, which the township does not care to provide or negotiate if cityhood becomes a reality.

This division of the village and township would be like a divorce.

If this divorce takes place, there will be a great division of the total Clarkston-Independence area, not only in government, but in the entire way of life — as in most divorces.

The Charter Township of Independence will not supplement the costs of any services to the city of Clarkston but will charge a cost-effective fee for any services it elects to offer via contract.

Before the City of the Village of Clarkston's charter is approved, residents who will have to pay the bills through taxes should have some breakdown of costs and from where the services will be coming.

If there are any issues that I have touched upon in this short article that need further clarification, please feel free to contact me or any other official of the township, and we will attempt to resolve your concerns.

Frank Ronk of Overlook, Clarkston, is supervisor of Independence Township.

Bottom line on cityhood

Township says it won't provide police, assessing and tax collection

The cost of turning the Village of Clarkston into a city will be a determining factor in the Feb. 4 charter election.

If Independence Township has its way, the "City of Clarkston" won't be able to have its cake and eat it too. It will have to pay — big time — for every service.

But village officials see that as merely big talk and an attempt to sway voters to say no to the charter. After the election, the township will be talking a different story, they say.

As a result, cost projections differ widely in some categories.

Township officials have told their Clarkston village counterparts that the cost of cityhood will be a little different from their "subcontracts" of the past.

The biggest difference is that the township and the local Oakland County Sheriff's Department substation are refusing to provide the half-square-mile village area with police protection.

"Once the village files for cityhood, we are gone," said Lt. Joe Quisenberry, who's in charge of the Oakland County deputies assigned to Independence Township. "It's not that we don't want to respond ... it's that we can't. Once they stop paying for the service, we will be out of there. The Oakland County Sheriff's deputies that the residents now see in the village will no longer be there."

Quisenberry said the township also has the backing of the Deputy Sheriff's Association of Michigan (DSAM).

"The Deputy Sheriff's Association has stated for the record that they are opposed to cityhood in Village of Clarkston," he said. "Consolidation of governmental services is the most cost-effective use of taxpayers' dollars. Duplication of these services is a form of abuse, when it comes to how the money is spent."

The Clarkston Village Council, which unanimously supports cityhood, has pointed out that even though township Supervisor Frank Ronk has voiced his personal opinion against cityhood and has threatened to end contracts, no action can take place until the whole township board votes.

Village Trustee William Basinger said Ronk's position is political.

"It's something we expected. It's an attempt to cause the defeat of cityhood," said Basinger.

Basinger said he doesn't understand why the township would suddenly no longer want the village/city's money.

"Fiscally, they have nothing to gain by it," said Basinger.

For the current level of police service in Clarkston, the village presently pays about $65,000. According to

"If we'll be too much trouble as a city, why haven't we been too much trouble as a village?"

Trustee William Basinger

Quisenberry, if the village becomes a city, the cost would be about $360,000 for the same level of service they currently enjoy.

"Right now, the village is getting more bang for their buck," he said. "They receive around-the-clock police protection seven days a week."

Basinger counters by saying that the township is getting its own big bang for its buck with the village's $65,000 because the police only have to patrol the village's half square-mile area.

And Basinger added that the village has less crime than the rest of the township. He said when he looked at a six-month span of sheriff reports in 1991 Clarkston News issues, only five of the reported 240 incidents came from within the village.

Basinger said he still has hope that if cityhood passes, Ronk will rethink his position.

"I don't want to write off the township," said Basinger. And he said that after the election, "I think they will be more reasonable."

Basinger said if cityhood passes and the township still votes not to continue police protection, the city will have five months (official cityhood would take place July 1) for other options. He said Oakland County Sheriff John Nichols would be open to a contract, and contracts with Springfield Township and Waterford Township would also be looked into.

Besides police, the township has also decided not to handle assessing and tax collection services for a "City of Clarkston."

Even though the township will be denying the city's right to these three items, it has agreed to contract other local services. These services include: library, parks and recreation, fire department, building department, elections and the department of public works.

Supervisor Frank Ronk and Trustee Basinger not only disagree on the cityhood issue, but both have different views about projections if cityhood were passed.

Fire department

Ronk said the city would have to pay $98,378. This is based on township tabulations, which show that the fire department had to answer 316 calls in the village between 1988 and 1990. The three year average, of 105.33 runs, is multiplied by the average cost per run of $934 in 1990.

Ronk says no to sharing police services with city

■ Basinger said the cost is negotiable, expecting it will fall somewhere between the current $61,057 and $98,000. He said one way the village could reduce its costs is to end the part of the contract the village pays for "lockouts" (people locking their keys in their cars). He said about half all the fire calls in the village last year pertained to the lockouts.

Library

■ Ronk said the cost will be $37,016. This proposed fee is formulated from a 1.5-mill levy that would be charged to the "city," multiplied by the village's present state equalized value (SEV) of $24,677,400. One mill is $1 for every $1,000 in assessed property valuation.

■ Basinger said the current levy for the library is 1.1 mills (which adds up to $25,000). He said he doesn't know about any increase in millage rate and projects future costs to be $28,000.

Elections

■ Ronk said elections will cost about $4,274. This fee would cover the cost of labor in a year with general presidential and presidential primaries as in 1988. This cost will rise and fall, according to the total number of elections held in a given year.

■ Basinger said the village/city would hold its own elections (about two a year) and actually save money.

Parks and recreation

■ Ronk said the costs will be $25,554. This sum reflects the village's share of the township's projected 1992 budget, according to its total population. The village makes up 5 percent of the township's total population, so it will have to pay for 5 percent of Independence's $968,231 parks and rec. budget.

■ Basinger said the village currently lends Deer Lake Beach to the township for $1. If cityhood passes, he said negotiations with the township for beach access could wipe out the $25,554 cost.

Building department

■ Ronk said the costs will be $9,000. This cost is

"First of all, they haven't engaged us in a lot of negotiations over the cityhood issue, and, secondly, we don't want to supplement another city."

Supervisor Frank Ronk

based on the department's administrative, inspection and maintenance fees.

■ Basinger projected a figure closer to $6,000.

Department of public works

■ Ronk pointed out the sewer, water and cemetery rates. "City" residents would be charged $4.52 per unit quarter for sewers, and $1.53 per 100 cubic-foot of water, plus $11.80 service charge for 3/4-inch meter, per quarter, for water rates. As for the Lakeview Cemetery, residents of Clarkston would no longer be considered township residents. The non-resident rate, effective Jan. 1, 1992, is $375 per grave space.

■ Basinger agreed with Ronk on his figures but noted that the far majority of village residents get their water from individual wells, so water costs don't apply.

According to Ronk, these collective costs are about twice as expensive as they've been in previous subcontracts between the village and township.

Basinger said he doesn't understand why the township would alienate Clarkston just because of a title change.

"If we'll be too much trouble as a city, why haven't we been too much trouble as a village?" he asked.

Ronk said this sort of indifferent attitude bothers him and other township officials.

"First of all, they haven't engaged us in a lot of negotiations over the cityhood issue, and, secondly, we don't want to supplement another city," Ronk said. "If we supplement them, we might as well take care of Brandon, too."

If Clarkston adopts the proposed city charter Feb. 4, Ronk could be out of a job in a matter of six months. Clarkston wouldn't officially attain cityhood status until July 1, but Ronk would be forced to step down if he's still residing in his Overlook home.

According to state law, township officials have to be residents of their own township to hold office. Overlook lies within the village's limits, which puts Ronk in violation if Clarkston were to become a city.

As of last week, Ronk said he hasn't thought about what he'd do. He said renting an apartment or selling his home are possible options.

However, his neighbors are presently weighing other options.

According to Ronk, a few Middle Lake Road-area residents are considering seceding from Clarkston if it becomes a city.

He added that this faction hasn't become a unified force yet because they're awaiting the outcome of next Tuesday's election.

Township officials, however, are still hinging their hopes on a pending lawsuit. On Feb. 12, the Michigan Court of Appeals will be hearing oral arguments from the township over the State Boundary Commission's right to grant cityhood to the village.

Regardless of the outcome, Ronk said this case will probably advance to the Michigan Supreme Court, which is the state's highest legal authority.

Staff writers Curt McAllister, James Gibowski and Dennis V. Carter contributed to this story.

City charter means tough choice

The staff of The Clarkston News was split in its recommendations for cityhood.

Two said voters should vote no Feb. 4, in effect, killing cityhood; while two said voters should vote yes, adopting the charter and turning the Village of Clarkston into a city.

Following are the points in favor of and opposed to becoming a city.

Why you should vote no

A city will cause the duplication of services, thus wasting money. Depending on who you believe, the cost of cityhood could double current costs of being a village, or it could increase only slightly.

Plus, village city proponents are unprepared and did not, for instance, commission a study on the costs, pros and cons. This would have shown an objective and more convincing approach to facts and figures.

Since negotiations for services have not taken place, only hard feelings between the city and other municipalities can result from working out the technicalities of contracts.

In addition, communication has been practically nil between city proponents and officials from the municipalities with whom they hope to negotiate services. That shows unpreparedness.

Why you should vote yes

The village setting is rare in the entire country. Becoming a city would put it in complete control of those who live within its boundaries.

Since it can't expand, and the surrounding Independence Township can, village residents would be wise to become a city now and preserve what it's got left. While township officials say they will forever protect the village, village residents have no reason to believe that. If they look around, they will see how the township has protected its own property. Many say they don't want that rapid, modern growth in their village.

Costs are unknown, but the city charter limits property taxes to a 15-mill levy for the general fund. Fifteen mills is $15 for every $1,000 assessed property valuation. For instance, the owner of a $100,000 home assessed at half its market value ($50,000) would not pay more than $750 per year for city property taxes.

Some say that's a great deal for what they'll get in return: complete control, plus all the services they receive now.

Finally, cityhood is the ultimate protection of the village's boundaries. One reason the village filed to become a city was because the township was considering becoming a city. Current township board members may deny that now, but five years ago, it was discussed at a public township meeting. The village simply beat the township to the punch.

Politics

City proponents and township proponents both say the debate is not a village vs. township problem.

However, we think it is.

The biggest political issue: police coverage.

Currently, the village contracts for police coverage through Independence Township, which contracts through Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

Township Supervisor Frank Ronk flat-out refuses to negotiate for police coverage in the event that cityhood should occur. The township board as a whole might have a different opinion, but residents must make their own guesses on this.

Is Ronk bluffing? Will the township board agree at least to negotiate if the village becomes a city? And if not, why? It would be more money for the township -- similar to the money it receives now for village police coverage.

Cityhood proponents believe the township board will negotiate and that negotiations prior to the charter election would only hurt the township's case. Just in case they're wrong, however, they're prepared to negotiate with Waterford Police, for instance.

Big decision

The last cityhood election broke all voter turnout records in the Village of Clarkston. The Feb. 4 election, too, promises to entice voters to turn out.

If there's any case where the people have a say in their own destiny, this is it. Weigh the options carefully. And turn out 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. Tuesday, Feb. 4. JLC

The talk this week in downtown Clarkston centers on cityhood — for some people, that is.

Others — non-village residents who still consider themselves "Clarkston" residents — couldn't care less.

Whether or not the Village of Clarkston becomes a city next week won't affect them. Their postal district still designates them as "Clarkston." They will still show up for parades in downtown Clarkston. Their children will still attend Clarkston schools. Later, those children will say they grew up in Clarkston.

When out-of-town relatives ask these residents where they live, they will answer, "Clarkston." They will identify it by saying that Pine Knob is in Clarkston, that Tim McCormick (the former U of M basketball star who now plays NBA ball) is from Clarkston and that the Clarkston Cafe is in Clarkston. (In reality, Pine Knob is in Independence Township, and Tim McCormick is from Springfield Township. Only the Clarkston Cafe is actually in Clarkston.)

If, by chance, a reporter from The Clarkston News asks them to participate in Photo Inquiry, they will tell him or her that they live in Clarkston. And when the reporter asks, "Is that the Village of Clarkston or Independence Township or Springfield Township?" they will say, "Just Clarkston."

We, of course, check our maps.

But the gist of it is this: people consider themselves part of the Clarkston community, regardless of the geographic or political boundaries.

Maybe it's the name. "Clarkston" has a more pleasant ring to it than does "Independence Township."

Or maybe it boils down to mail service. People think they live where their address says they live. (Hence all the confusion when Drayton Plains and Union Lake mailing designations were eliminated in favor of names that coincide with political boundaries.)

It could even be the school system. Most of those with Clarkston mailing addresses attend Clarkston schools, though the schools also have pupils with Waterford, Lake Orion and White Lake mailing addresses.

Or maybe it's just that communities form regardless of names. For instance, those who live on Oakhill Road in Independence Township are likely just as friendly with their neighbors across the street in Brandon Township as they are with their neighbors on the same side of the street in Independence Township.

It is in this way that all who enter the Village of Clarkston boundaries reap the benefits of its existence — whether the boundaries are a village or whether they become a city. It serves the greater Clarkston community because it is a focal point, a meeting point and, at the moment, a point of contention.

In the greater Clarkston community, it is the point most vulnerable to change. True, it's already established with few buildable lots left. And the township's vacant lots are in much greater danger of undergoing change.

But the vacant lots are expected to change — the village, running so smoothly in its well-worn grooves, is not.

There's a new rule in basketball in the Big Ten this year about shirt tails.

Players have to keep them tucked in while on the court.

For some reason or other certain players like to look as sloppy on the court as the baby boomers of the '60s did on Friday night.

Of course, I can't say for sure these tail-exposing players don't have a phobia to restriction or discipline or regulation.

But, as an admirer of neatness, discipline and regulation, I can say the in-pant look-alikes give a limited amount of class to the four trees and a bush that make up many starting 5's.

However, shirt tail lengths, not basketball, is the subject matter this week in Jottings.

I was exposed to t-shirts as underwear while helping the Navy win WWII. I've been a fan ever since. The only change has been to V-neck. Sailors wear crew neck. I didn't like my underwear showing above my necktie knot.

Being long enough at 6'4" to be a guard on today's prep squads, underwear shirt-tail stuffing has been a daily problem for me since WWII.

Through those years many 3-pack purchases have been made by me and for me. I always ask the clerk, "Are these long t-shirts?" They always respond, "They are the longest Jockey (Fruit-of-the-Loom, JC Penney, etc) make."

Never have these shirts been any more than adequate. By the time I sit and stand a dozen times or so the tails have crept above my belt. You think you've got problems!

Jim's Jottings

A sad tail of timing

Ah, but . . . my long sought, seldom fulfilled long-underwear needs are now history, you'll be happy to know.

Dear wife Hazel made Christmas extra perfect by finding extra-long undershirts.

No longer does my belly button suffer from lacking the layered look and warmth. No longer are my shirts stretched to look threadbare.

And, they feel so good. These suckers reach below my briefs. They're long enough for Wilt "The Stilt" to wear for a nightgown.

They cover both sides, the buttocks and the frontocks.

But, with this added length comes a problem. Prepare to shed a tear of sympathy. Men, especially, will understand.

We all become creatures of habit. We expect certain things to happen at particular times, we anticipate conclusions based on experience, we become accustomed to things, even when we don't like 'em.

Well, now comes the drawback to my extra long tailed v-neck t-shirts.

You see, nature's call is not always predictable. They come in spurts, sometimes requiring immediate action. I've learned through years of relief how long it takes to finish this job.

Therein lies the major fault of the unaccustomed to shirt tail . . . they've thrown my timing off. In some embarrassing cases, way off.

Letter to the Editor

Not anti-township

We are writing to urge the passage of cityhood. We have lived here 20-plus years and have always enjoyed the personal feeling of living in a small town.

In these years many changes have taken place; growth does that to a community. However, the growth will continue as long as there are developers and people desiring to live in Independence Township.

Some will argue that police and fire protection may not be available to us as a city. Do you think the township will readily give up the revenue that we presently pay for fire protection? We think not.

Our needs will not be any greater just because we become a city. Oakland County will still be our "protectors," but contracts cannot be made until cityhood is determined; therefore, the cost is unknown. Prohibitive costs? We again think not.

To vote for or against cityhood should not be a personality issue or an issue to "show" the township. A vote for cityhood is necessary to maintain the village as it has been and will be in the future. We simply need to change the name; all else will remain the same—the form of government, the ceiling on taxation, the size of government, the boundaries, etc.

Independence Township is a desirable community to live in as is evidenced by its growth. The village is also highly desirable as is evidenced by newly built and remodeled homes.

The township has literally acres of property waiting to be developed, sewers to be installed, additional fire protection (the village passed the last request for fire millage; the township did not), roads, police protection, additional staff for needed additional services, etc.

Perhaps 10 parcels in the village are presently undeveloped. Who do you think will pay for expanded township needs? The village will certainly have to shoulder its fair share of the costs of township development with little or no return to us. Our needs, quite possibly, will not be high on their list of priorities.

We are not anti-township. We realize that in order to stay the same, cityhood is a necessity to allow us continued independence and a voice to control our own destiny.

Bob and Karen Sanderson

Answer: cityhood

Years ago, my husband and I were in Clarkston to visit a friend. We talked about the special charm and unique character of the village, for we were house-hunting at the time.

As we left, he said to us, "If you lived in Clarkston, you'd be home now."

More letters, Page 8,9

We needed no more convincing; we found a house in the village, moved here, and it became, and is, for more than 40 years, our beloved home.

I believe cityhood is now the answer for preserving the special qualities of this historic village. Runaway development surrounds us; gone is the rural countryside; let's keep our village intact.

Perfect sync is a remote dream

Jim Fitzgerald

It was impossible to contain my excitement. "Get in here quick and look at this," I hollered to my wife. "I think I've finally done it."

Well, it turned out I hadn't. Not quite. But I'd come the closest ever in several years of trying.

The closest to achieving perfect dual synchronization of a single television commercial.

I'm not one of those insufferably impatient remote-control TV watchers who constantly change channels. Usually I leave whatever's on. Otherwise I might never be able to end a sentence with two prepositions.

In ironical fact, except for the 30-minute-per-day synchronization quest, the only time I look up from my reading to stare long and intently at the TV screen is when the picture is badly blurred. Think about that.

Think about it some more.

My wife is a compulsive knitter and her hand-embedded knitting needles prevent her from securely grasping a remote control device. If you saw the movie "Edward Scissorhands," you understand her problem. Which means I'm sole custodian of our three remote controls (TV, VCR, cable) and it's my responsibility to fast-forward through commercials when we're watching a taped TV program via VCR. And if I fail this responsibility, my wife becomes a TV critic.

"The commercial's over, the program's back on," she critiques, "get your big nose out of the newspaper and PUSH THE BUTTON."

So, to escape my wife's odious odium (see Jan. 13, 1992, column), I must closely monitor my fast-forwarding, with a finger poised to punch whenever the blurred image appears to change from sales message - sporadic printed words on screen - to entertainment. At the same time, I must use another finger to keep my place in the newspaper. Because of geographical factors, the two fingers used can't be on the same hand. Which makes fast-forwarding time no time to scratch my big nose.

As for synchronized commercials, I discovered the possibility by accident, while cursing. The only time I continually hop channels is 6:30 to 7 in the evening, to see both NBC and CBS national newscasts. When Tom Brokaw breaks for a commercial, I punch up Dan Rather, and vice versa.

Sometimes, of course, I punch up another commercial, which used to make me curse. I want news, by God, not June Allyson breaking my heart by selling adult diapers. But then one night I punched up the same commercial. Continents apart, Brokaw and Rather were simultaneously pausing for the identical sales message!

That's when I decided to follow the advice my wife frequently intones to her grandchildren: "When life sticks you with a lemon, make lemonade." She illustrates this philosophy by noting that after we were married, she taught me how to sit up and fast-forward.

My lemonade is the fascinating search for perfectly synchronized commercials. I mean word for word, image for image, so the channels can be switched seamlessly, with absolutely no evidence of remote-control interruption.

Last Tuesday, with a Great Looking Gray shampoo commercial, I damn near made it. Barely half a syllable off, the CBS spiel ended a microsecond after NBC's. It was so thrilling to come that close that I can't imagine how I'll feel if I ever attain 100 percent synchronization.

It may be even as exciting as fast-forwarding through a rented video so - gasping - you get it back to the video store one second before the $2.50-added deadline.

Many questions

Question of the year for 1992: Why was the village tractor plowing snow out of a private driveway on South Main Street the day after the big snow, and the village sidewalks were not plowed?

This would go well with the questions for 1991: Why did the village pay for a cement driveway entrance to a private residence on South Holcomb? Or why did the village, while patching village streets, completely recover the dead-end alley behind the houses on South Holcomb, which is referred to as Madison Court?

My last question is: Why should I want to create a city for these people to run when they are having what I see as a problem running a village?

Perhaps we should take a lesson from those in Lake Orion, who wish to dissolve their village. According to politicians, it will take a vote of 51 percent of all registered voters. They will let you form a city with a majority of whoever chooses to vote.

When you vote in the next election, vote as they treat you. Vote as if you were stupid, and re-elect these people who take your tax dollars and waste them.

C.L. Weber

Cityhood or not?

Cityhood or not is the question faced by residents of the Village of Clarkston Tuesday, Feb. 4.

The major question before village residents is: Will the cost of a city government be more than the cost our village government has been?

What services will a city of the Village of Clarkston be required to provide that the current village does not?

1. State and national elections: The cost will be minimal as local elections will be held coincident with state and national elections.

2. Police protection: Police services currently are provided to village residents through a township contract with the Oakland County Sheriff's Department. There is no reason why services should cost more under a similar contract between the City of the Village of Clarkston, Independence Township and the Oakland County Sheriff.

3. Fire protection: Fire protection currently is provided to village residents by the township. Again, there is no reason why the cost of fire protection a contract with Independence Township should cost more than the current level of property tax support for fire services paid by village residents.

4. Property assessing: Assessing of real property currently is provided by the township assessor. This service can be purchased by the village from Independence Township or Oakland County. Again, there is no reason for the cost to be higher than the current level of property tax support paid by village residents to the township.

What about the future? It is likely that future costs of services will increase regardless of whether we are a village or a city. However, it is reassuring to know that the requirement for services to the city should be stable as Clarkston is fully developed.

What about the impact on the township? There will be a loss of tax revenue to the township, but reasonably, this can be recouped through an agreement with the City of the Village of Clarkston to provide fire protection and other services to the city.

In summary, there is no reason why village or township residents need be affected negatively by a "yes" vote for cityhood on Tuesday, Feb. 4.

Rich and Marty Johnston

Vote yes Feb. 4

On Feb. 4, village voters will decide the most important issue we have faced since the village was founded over 150 years ago — cityhood.

It has taken four years, numerous hearings and hundreds of hours of commitment by dedicated citizens, the Clarkston Village Council and, most importantly, the City Charter Commission to make this election possible.

The proposed city charter is a model of thorough and thoughtful drafting. It reflects the Charter Commission's goal of accomplishing the transition to cityhood with as little change as possible from our current small, directly elected and largely volunteer village government.

It is unfortunate we must change our form of government just to remain the same. However, it is the only way we can absolutely assure that the village will not be absorbed or annexed by some future larger city.

It's the only way we can absolutely assure that we can maintain the unique character of the village and your power to directly control our ordinances, zoning and local government taxes.

And it's the only way to assure we don't become just another subdivision of a continually growing township, where your vote would be only one of more than 15,000.

Despite all the hearings and information provided in the last four years, cityhood opponents argue that the exact details of city service contracts should be worked out prior to any vote. Obviously, such argument puts the chicken before the egg.

Other governments — especially surrounding townships and Independence Township, in particular — will not negotiate contract specifics until they are sure we will finally become a city. Otherwise, their negotiations could affect the outcome of the election.

Obviously, only your yes vote on Feb. 4 can provide that assurance. If you vote yes, the City of the Village of Clarkston will not come into being until July 1, 1992, the effective date of the charter. Thus, the village council will have almost five months after the election to negotiate final arrangements for city services.

This opportunity, to determine and protect the destiny of the village we all love so dearly, will be forever lost unless you seize this opportunity which so many have worked so hard to provide. For Clarkston's sake, vote yes on Feb. 4.

William K. Basinger,
village trustee

Important legacy

When I was a child, families of Algiers, Huttenlocher and O'Dell had the vision to protect our glorious heritage and the dream of a 19th century mill village by not allowing theaters, bowling alleys and "tin-pan-alley" atmospheres.

Is the vision of a loyal band of dedicated workers and concerned citizens less important today?

Allowing pieces of the village to be rezoned will most certainly compromise the integrity of the historic district and may well jeopardize Clarkston as we now know it!

Maintaining the total integrity of this historic community is the most important legacy we can leave for the future.

Do we have the vision?

Yes means control

We will vote "yes" for cityhood for two reasons:
 1. It assures Clarkston's control of its character and development.
 2. It means that we will control and pay for the costs of maintaining a stable community. We will not be taxed for the costs of growth in the surrounding township.
 As Clarkston residents for 38 years, we have appreciated deeply the fact that our voices, along with those of fellow citizens, have been heard and heeded. Cityhood means keeping it that way.

Generous with time and talent

The Library Christmas Party this year was, without a doubt, one of the most successful ever in terms of enjoyment and satisfaction for those attending and for the planners as well.

The library, as most citizens know, is in the midst of the excitement and realization of our new building project and so, particularly this year, the help and enthusiasm of civic groups, school groups, volunteers and the hospitality of the church where the party was held was needed for this function for young children to become a reality.

Gift books, refreshments, music, a North Pole visitor and the Music Lady comprised our afternoon of festivities.

You all know who you are (most of you are library users as well as library supporters), and we express our gratitude to all for the continuing generosity of your time, talent and funds.

We look forward to serving you in your new facility.

What's a city? And a village? And a township?

BY DENNIS V. CARTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

To be or not to be a city — that is the question which faces residents in the Village of Clarkston on Feb. 4.

But what is a city? And what is a village? For that matter, what's a township and a charter township?

The differences between municipalities are complex as well as simple, according to attorney Gerald Fisher, who is the legal consultant for such municipalities as Independence Township and Oakland Township.

When people decide to govern themselves, they have four options in Michigan, he said.

"Historically, all of Michigan was broken into townships," he said.

Townships

When the state of Michigan divided the counties into townships, they divided them by geographic area in each county, without regard to population.

By law, the township is required to provide public peace and safety for the residents. How they do it is up to them. They are not required specifically to provide police, fire and other services.

It has no minimum population requirement, and its form of government is determined by state law. For instance, law requires a partisan vote and a township board of seven members.

They are not required by law to have zoning laws, and their boundaries are protected from annexation.

But time and growth changed Michigan's townships, said Fisher.

"As individual communities grew, they became villages inside of the township by adopting a charter," he said. "But the village is part of the township."

Villages

When any area becomes a village, they are, according to Fisher, half way in and half way out of the township.

"A village shares a variety of the aspects of local government with the township, like police, fire, parks and recreation and the library. They also share millage revenue in some categories, along with assessing and voting," he said. "There is no population requirement to become a village."

Cityhood

In a village, residents receive a certain autonomy from the township to regulate land use and have control over historical landmark matters.

A village is not required to have zoning ordinances, however. But it does have its own form of government, which is determined by state law. Like a township, it must have partisan votes and have a village council of seven members.

Villages and townships may become a city. Or a township may choose to become a charter township.

Cities

A city is an entity unto itself — it is no longer a part of a township, for example.

Cities must have a minimum population based on the class of city they are. For example, the Village of Clarkston would be a fifth-class city, which requires 750 residents.

Like townships and villages, a city is required to provide public peace and safety for its residents in the manner it elects to employ.

"If, for instance, when any village becomes a city, they would be solely responsible for their own police and fire protection along with the library and parks and recreation, assessing and voting, which (may have been) shared with the township before," Fisher explained.

A city's form of government is determined by the residents, who vote on a charter. The city charter also spells out laws and procedures for city residents.

Residents have the right to determine how many members are on the city's council and how many boards or councils should be used in the city.

Its boundaries are protected from annexation.

Charter township

A charter township's boundaries, too, are protected from nearby municipalities.

In order for a township to become a chartered township, certain criteria must be met.

Fisher said that population is a key factor in whether or not a township becomes a charter township.

"When the population expands to a certain level, with the requirement being 2,000, a more sophisticated form of government is required with more detail," he said. "It takes a state statute to become a charter township."

A township can become a charter township two ways: one is by the township board adopting a resolution, and if the public doesn't disagree, then they become a charter township. Or, two, the issue can go before the people as a ballot question.

When a township becomes a charter township, it automatically gets a ready-made charter by state statute.

The law requires that charter townships be governed by boards and must have partisan votes, but it is up to the charter township residents to decide how many members should serve on each board which boards should be established.

A chartered township is not required to have zoning laws.

A chartered township's charter provides for such things as: protection from annexation and more freedom on how they govern themselves.

On Feb. 4, the residents of the Village of Clarkston will have to make their own minds up on which they feel is their best option.

Clarkston city government would be non-partisan

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Editor

If the village becomes a city, a city charter will determine how the government will run.

Following is an explanation of the proposed charter, much of which is the same as the current village operations.

Council

A seven-person council still would be responsible for decision making, and a manager would run the day-to-day operations of the city.

However, the city council would be non-partisan, with a mayor running the meetings. Council members would be elected in an annual November election. The fiscal year would be July 1 through June 31.

The council would still meet twice a month. Council members would be paid annually at the following rate: $25 per meeting for members (not the mayor) and $3,850 per year for the mayor, pro-rated for each month served. Changes to pay need a roll-call vote.

Administrative service

The council would appoint 1) a city manager, who would serve as the chief administrator of city government; 2) a city attorney who would have set compensation and would advise the council on legal issues and prepare ordinances and contracts; 3) city clerk who keeps council records and attends all council meetings; 4) city treasurer who collects city taxes and disburses city funds; 5) city assessor who would make and prepare regular and special assessment rolls (duties may be contracted) and 6) city finance officer, to be appointed from administrative officers of the city, who would be the general accountant and keep books of assets, receipts and expenditures and would balance books each month.

Other commissions, boards

The mayor must appoint and the council confirm residents of the city to serve on the city planning commission and the city zoning board of appeals.

Taxation

The city may assess, levy and collect taxes, rents, tolls and excises.

Tax limits

Not including a levy for the payment of bonds, property taxes for general municipal purposes are limited to one-half percent or 15 mills of the assessed value of all real and tangible personal property in the city. Fifteen mills if $15 for every $1,000 assessed property value.

Currently, the assessed value of village property is listed at $24,677,400 (half the market value). That means the general fund would be limited to about $370,155 (15 x 24,677).

Board of Review

The mayor is to appoint and the council is to confirm city voters to serve on the Board of Review, whose duties it is to revise and correct assessments.

State, county and school taxes

The council may contract for the collection of these and other taxes.

Borrowing authority

The city council may authorize the borrowing of money in case of emergency (fire, flood, windstorm, etc.), public improvement, purchasing public utilities, or retiring debt.

Reporter's Notebook

During the Independence Township Planning Commission's discussion over some proposed modifications to the retail center at the corner of M-15 and Dixie Highway, township planner Dick Carlisle took a fun-filled poke at township fire chief Gar Wilson.

Carlisle teased Wilson on how appropriate it seemed that a Dairy Queen could be located next door to the proposed fire department/ sheriff's department building on M-15.

"Now, all you need is a doughnut shop," Carlisle ribbed.

At that time, architect Ronald Jona said that a doughnut shop owner was, indeed, looking into an empty storefront in the plaza.

"I guess we covered the sheriff's department, too," Chairman Brent Bair added, laughing.

When preparing stories to inform voters about Clarkston's cityhood election, we heard rumors that a faction along Middle Lake Road planned to leave if the village became a city. However, area residents said it was merely talk at this point. No formal "leave the city" group has been formed.

Items for Reporter's Notebook are compiled by Clarkston News staff writers.

Cagers lopsidely top Kettering, Imlay City

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Imlay City and Waterford Kettering were the calm before what could be an upcoming storm.

The Clarkston boys' basketball team, ranked No. 4 in the state, crushed both Imlay City and Kettering to raise its record to 9-0 (4-0 in the Greater Oakland Activities League).

However, the Wolves are expected to be challenged in three straight upcoming games against Flint Carmen-Ainsworth Jan. 28 (no results because of press deadlines), Pontiac Northern Jan. 31 and Flint Northern Feb. 4.

CLARKSTON 64, Waterford Kettering 25 (Jan. 25 at Clarkston)

Four Wolves scored in double figures in Clarkston's 64-25 romp over Waterford Kettering before a packed crowd at the Clarkston gym.

Kettering's low scoring was attributed to the Captains' ice-cold shooting coupled with the ever-pesky Clarkston press.

The Captains, 2-7 overall and 2-2 in the GOAL, could only manage seven points in the first half when the Wolves took a commanding 29-7 lead. Dan Fellows was Kettering's leading scorer with only seven points.

Nick Shires paced the Wolves with 13 points, Sean Halleran had 12, Luke Fedio 11 and Jon Wyniemko 10. Halleran and Fedio each pulled down 12 rebounds.

Other Clarkston scorers were Derek Wiley and Chris Combs both with four, Eric Ryan three, Jeremy Burke, Jeremy Fife and Matt Underwood each with two, and Nathan Pomeroy one. Jeremy Fife had four assists and David Smith had four steals.

The Wolves were without the services of senior guard Dugan Fife, who was suspended for one game after getting two technical fouls in the previous game against Imlay City. Fife had started every game since his freshman year.

"The kids had something to prove. We're not a one-man team. I never thought we were," said Clarkston coach Dan Fife.

The elder Fife said it was strange having his son on the bench.

"It was weird. You get so used to writing his name in the book," said the coach.

Dugan Fife, who will play for the University of Michigan's basketball squad next season, said he felt "helpless" on the

Sellout expected

Those interested in seeing the annual clash between Pontiac Northern and Clarkston varsity basketball teams better arrive early this Friday (Jan. 31) at the Clarkston gym.

Both teams are undefeated in Greater Oakland Activities League play and the Wolves are ranked No. 4 in the state by the Associated Press.

Clarkston Athletic Director Paul Tungate said he expects the game "almost certain" to be sold-out.

Previous games this season have already been sellouts or near sellouts.

Doors will open for the game against the Huskies at 4:30 p.m. (The JV contest begins 5:30 p.m.).

There will be no advanced tickets sold. The cost of the game is $3 at the door.

bench and admitted it's something he might have to contend with as a Wolverine freshman.

"It's something you don't want to get used to," said the guard. "It's a good reason to work even harder."

Dugan Fife wasn't forgotten by some loyal fans sitting in the part of the student section called "The Jungle" (formerly "The Zoo"). They raised a poster stating, "Dugan Fife - M.I.A."

CLARKSTON 99 Imlay City 45 (Jan. 21 at Imlay City)

Nine 3-point bombs helped Clarkston explode against host Imlay City, 99-45.

The Wolves jumped out to a lopsided 26-7 first quarter and never looked back.

Dugan Fife and Luke Fedio combined for 43 points to pace Clarkston. Fedio (one 3-pointer) scored 20 points. Teammate Fife sank four 3-pointers and 23 points before being ejected from the game because of two technical fouls (he was also suspended for the following games under Michigan High School Athletic Association rules).

Fife was called for slapping his hand against the backboard for the first technical and then later was whistled for hanging on the rim after a dunk attempt.

"He barely hit the board. It wasn't blatant," said Clarkston coach Dan Fife.

The coach also questioned the call of hanging on the rim. Dugan Fife went sprawling and fell on his back after the dunk attempt. Dan Fife said his guard barely held onto the rim and grabbed it because of safety reasons (an Imlay City player was close behind in pursuit).

Dugan Fife had plenty of teammates who took up the slack. In addition to Fedio's 20 points, Derek Wiley (two 3-pointers) netted 14, Jon Wyniemko and Sean Halleran each had eight, Eric Ryan (two 3-pointers) seven, Nick Shires six, Chris Combs three, and David Smith, Matt Underwood, Jeremy Burke Nathan Pomeroy and Jeremy Fife each with two.

Halleran also hauled down 11 rebounds.

Netters set with setters, reach tourney finals

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

An improved net attack helped Clarkston's volleyball team reach the finals of the eight-team Seaholm Invitational Jan. 25.

The Wolves, who had split games with Troy earlier in the day, lost to the Colts in the finals, 11-15, 13-15.

"We played probably as well as we have all season," said Clarkston coach Gordie Richardson, whose team improved its overall record to 10-6-5 after finishing 4-1-1 in the tourney. "Our hitting is much better and our setting percentage is up."

The Wolves have been searching all season for the right combination, especially when it comes to setting. Richardson said maybe the Wolves have found their setters in his two Heathers (Steinhelper and Austin). Austin had eight assists against the Colts and Steinhelper had seven.

But the taller Colts (a 6-foot-plus front line) were too much for Clarkston, whose tallest player measures 5-11 and two more at 5-10.

"Our weak point was in our defense. That was partially because we were tired (the sixth match of the day) and partially because they hit over our block."

Clarkston was 3-10 in the first game against the Colts, but came back before losing 11-15. In the second game, Clarkston was up 8-5 but then found itself behind 14-10, before losing 13-15.

Steinhelper, who also had six blocks, paced the Wolves by being 20-of-20 in attacks with nine kills. Laura Garlitz was 12-of-15 with five kills and Tracey Ortwine 12-of-12 with three kills. The entire team only made five errors in 62 attack attempts.

In serving, Stacey Tinkis was 8-of-8, Ortwine 11-of-12 with one ace and Caroline Allison 8-of-9 with one ace.

Tinkis was 9-of-10 in service receptions, Allison 8-of-9 and Ortwine 9-of-11.

Clarkston reached the finals by defeating Lutheran Northwest, 15-5, 15-10 in the semifinals. Northwest was undefeated this season until its outcome with the Wolves.

Ortwine and Steinhelper had five kills and Allison added four. Steinhelper and Austin each had seven assists.

Steinhelper served 10-of-10 with three aces, Lisle was 8-of-9 with four aces and Austin 10-of-13 with four aces.

Defensively, Lisle was 10-of-12 in service receptions and Allison and Tinkis both were 8-of-9. Allison had five digs and Lisle, Steinhelper and Tinkis each had four.

Clarkston crunched Wyandotte Mount Carmel in the quarterfinals, 15-4, 15-6.

Steinhelper had eight kills, five assists and two blocks.

Austin had five assists and served 8-of-10 with five aces. Tinkis served 8-of-9 with four aces and had two digs.

Ortwine had four digs, Garlitz smashed three kills and Lisle served 6-of-6 with one ace.

Clarkston began "pool" play by crushing River Rouge, 15-2, 15-0 in the opener. Austin served 14-of-15 with nine aces and Allison was 7-of-7 with three aces. Steinhelper had three kills and four assists.

In its second match, the Wolves had another lopsided victory, topping Southfield, 15-5, 15-1. Garlitz had five kills and Jennie Oliver smashed four. Steinhelper had six assists and served 17-of-17 with eight aces. Lisle served 7-of-7 with two aces. Defensively, Ortwine had five digs.

In the first meeting of the day with Troy, the Wolves lost the first game 8-15 but took the second 15-7. Steinhelper had seven kills, four assists, two blocks and served 10-of-10 with two aces. Allison had four kills and served 9-of-9 with two aces. Austin totaled six assists and served 8-of-8 with one ace. Tinkis had four assists and served 7-of-7 with one ace. Garlitz had three blocks and Ortwine had three digs.

CLARKSTON defeats Pontiac Northern 15-4, 15-4
(Jan. 22 at Pontiac Northern)

Clarkston blitzed Pontiac Northern 15-4, 15-4, to raised their Greater Oakland Activities League record to 2-0.

Three Wolves had perfect days serving. Heather Austin was 11-of-11 with two aces, Deanna Lisle 10-of-10 with three aces and Stacey Tinkis 6-of-6 with two aces.

Laura Garlitz pounded four kills, Heather Steinhelper had three and Tracey Ortwine two.

Wrestlers 2nd in own tourney

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Four first-place Clarkston wrestlers wasn't quite enough to help the Wolves win their own tournament Jan. 25.

Burton Bendle, rated fifth in the state in Class C, edged the Wolves, 177-169, to win the third annual 10-team Clarkston Invitational.

"We didn't wrestle well. We lost to some guys who we shouldn't have lost to," said Clarkston coach Scott Strickler. "You like to win your own tournament."

Four Wolves, however, won all of their matches to take individual championships. Corey Grant ((103-pound division) won on a 22-7 technical fall against Walled Lake Western's Rob Fritz; Jerry Anderson (130) pinned Grand Blanc's Arnold Lopez at 4:50; Jason Roughton (140) defeated Grand Blanc's Rob Root, 12-7; Nathan Smith (171) defeated Hazel Park's Jamie Majewski, 9-7, in overtime (Majewski was the runner-up in this season's Oakland County Meet and Smith finished sixth).

Three Wolves placed third. Frank Lafferty (145) took third after defeating Hazel Park's Aaron Higgendorf, 3-0; Steve Cohoon (152) topped Walled Lake Western's Tom Malistowski, 7-2; P.J. Vandermeer (160) defeated Lansing Everett's Steve Greenhoe, 5-2.

Three Wolves finished fourth, Brett Walter (112), Armin Michelsen (125) and Brian Davis (189).

CLARKSTON 49, Pontiac Northern 14 (Jan. 23 at Pontiac Northern)

The team from Pontiac was the opposition, but the Wolves are the ones driving towards a league title.

"We're in the driver's seat," said Clarkston coach Scott Strickler about his team's fortunes in the Greater Oakland Activities League after six straight Wolves pinned Huskies en route to a 49-14 victory. But he adds, "You can be rest assured it isn't over."

Even if the Wolves finish undefeated in the regular season, their opponents still get one more crack at them in the GOAL meet Feb. 7 at Waterford Mott. The regular season and GOAL meet count equally when determining the overall GOAL champion.

The victory over the Huskies gives Clarkston a 3-0 record in the GOAL (3-3 overall), which includes recent victories over Waterford Kettering and Lake Orion.

Clarkston unexpectedly had few problems with Northern. The Huskies had finished in the top 10 at the Oakland County

CHARLIE Liggett (on top) is in control during Clarkston Invitational action Jan. 25.

Meet earlier this season.

"They looked a little intimidated," said Strickler about the Huskies. "Since coming back from Ohio, we won't let anyone intimidate us."

The Wolves don't expect to see any tougher team the rest of this season than Ohio's St. Edward's, which crushed the Wolves 69-0. The Ohio team is one of the top rated squads in the country.

The six Wolves who consecutively pinned Huskies were: Brett Walter (112-pound division) against William Crumb at 3:51, Jeff Farrand (119) against Damon Jacobs at 4:53, Armin Michelsen (125) against Dwayne Clark at 3:37, Jerry Anderson (130) against Koshin Rice at 2:31, Charlie Liggett (135) against Charles Watkins at 3:21 and Jason Roughton (140) against Kyre Westbrook at 1:07.

Other Clarkston wrestlers who won were: Corey Grant (103) 9-3 over Mica McDonald, Steve Cohoon (152) 6-4 over Marcell Butler, Nathan Smith (171) 5-2 over Edwin Watson and Brian Davis (189) 10-1 over Besean Wade. Davis' win was revenge for a previous 14-10 loss to Wade.

The three Huskies who won were: Fred Causey (145) 17-9 over Mike Cain, Quentin Wade (160) 9-1 over P.J. Vandermeer and Pat Duncan (hwt) pinning John Roy at 47 seconds.

Girls continue to be undefeated on slopes

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

The Clarkston girls' ski team remained perfect after an easy victory over Lasher and a tough one against Andover.

The wins over the Bloomfield Hills' schools increased the Wolves' record to a Pine Knob Ski Division-leading 5-0 mark.

Clarkston coach Judy Roeser said the 17-19 victory over tough Andover was especially crucial.

"That was the meet we needed to prove ourselves," said Roeser. "We persevered, thank goodness."

CLARKSTON 11, Lahser 25
(Jan. 22 at Pine Knob Ski Resort)

Clarkston easily stopped the Knights, 11-25, as Wolves took four of the first five places.

Junior Courtney Whittaker captured first for the second straight meet, finishing her two combined slalom runs at 43.66 seconds.

"Courtney stepped up and went for it," said Roeser.

Clarkston Senior Kim Carpentier took second (45.54), junior Jenny Curd was third (46.47) and senior Becky Rumph fifth (48.12).

Clarkston sophomore Kristi Stuetzer was ninth (55.05) and sophomore Carrie Millen did not finish.

The best finish for a Knight was by Carrie Turas, who placed fourth (47.94).

CLARKSTON 17, Andover 19
(Jan. 21 at Pine Knob Ski Resort)

Clarkston edged Andover in a key league meet.

Wolves finished first, fourth, fifth and seventh to nip the Barons.

Courtney Whittaker had the best combined runs on the slalom courses, finishing at 43.66.

Andover's Linzi Beck was second (41.42) and teammate Katie Fitzpatrick third (41.94).

But Wolf Kim Carpentier followed in fourth-place (42.42), Becky Rumph was fifth (43.83) and Carrie Millen seventh (46.16).

Other Clarkston skiers were Lisann Hutchinson, 11th (48.86), and Jenny Curd 12th (52.46).

Boys 5-1 after two ski victories

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Team balance helped the Clarkston boys' ski team get past Bloomfield Hills Lahser, 16-22, raising the Wolves' record to 5-1.

Wolves finished in five of the first seven places on the Pine Knob Ski Resort slalom course Jan. 22.

"I was pleased with their efforts. They can use this to build on," said Clarkston coach Judy Roeser, whose Wolves are tied for first with Rochester Adams in the Pine Knob Division.

Clarkston senior Bryson Menke finished second, just five hundredths of a second behind Lahser's Dave Way. Menke's two combined runs totaled 36.74 seconds while Way's were clocked at 36.69.

Wolf senior Justin Whittaker placed third (37.37) ahead of Knight Brandon Vogt (37.41).

Wolves then captured the next three places. Senior Dave Studt was fifth (38.39), junior Scout Trimsixth (38.97) and sophomore Mike Kozlowski seventh (39.26). Wolf senior Bill Brueck did not finish. (In high school skiing, only the top four of six skiers' places count in team results).

CLARKSTON 13, Bloomfield Hills Andover 24
(Jan. 21 at Pine Knob Ski Resort)

Pine Knob wasn't barren of snow, but Clarkston skiers made the Andover Barons barren.

A one-two-three punch sparked the Wolves to a 13-24 win over the Barons in Pine Knob Ski Division action Jan. 21.

"We were skiing on snow for a change," said Clarkston coach Judy Roeser, who along with her skiers, liked the recent heavy snowstorm which blanketed the area.

Bryson Menke was the fastest down the slalom course, finishing in 36.95. He was followed by teammates Justin Whittaker (37.29) and Scout Trim (37.38). Wolf Mike Kozlowski placed seventh (39.37).

Wolf Dave Studt fell on the course. Bill Miller did not finish.

LAND OWNERSHIP

BUYING RAW LAND entails different dollar decisions than buying buildings.

"Let's discuss your Career in Real Estate Sales"

QUESTION: What are the pros and cons of land ownership?

ANSWER: Money is made on raw land only when you sell. During the holding time, there is usually no income. Cash outlay is required for property taxes, insurance and mortgage payments. There is no deduction for depreciation.

Does this mean land is a poor investment? On the contrary, with very few dollars invested, it is possible to make a small killing on land through the use of land options, leverage and acquisition just prior to change in land-use. And you can sell off the benefit at the lower capital gains rates. Also it takes almost none of your time in management.

Most residents question police issue before Tuesday's city charter vote

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Police protection dominated the discussion during the Clarkston Village Council's Jan. 27 public hearing on cityhood.

The hearing, one of a series on the topic, took place before a packed audience.

Trustee William Basinger opened the hearing with a presentation of the current village operating costs and projected costs if cityhood is passed in the Feb. 4 election (see related story about township and village projected costs on Pages 4 and 5).

Basinger said many of the costs, including police coverage, won't exactly be determined until negotiations take place.

"Will the township negotiate?" asked Basinger, who then answered his own question. "Why not? They are as strapped for cash as the village is."

Some people in the audience asked Basinger for exact costs of police protection if cityhood is passed.

Basinger said exact figures won't be determined before the election because the council wants to keep the door open with the township and still has hope that the township will continue its police protection.

And Basinger added, "We have no negotiating position until after the vote."

Oakland County Sheriff Sgt. Stephen Parker, a Waterford resident, said if cityhood is passed and the township's police protection is stopped, the city would have to pay for five officers (about $72,000 per officer) to get the same type of 24-hour coverage it currently is getting (the village now pays about $62,000 for police coverage, with township officers patrolling the village but not permanently stationed in it).

Council President Sharron Cattalo said the money currently paid by the village to the township allows the township to add about one car to its force, which not only helps the village but also helps other township residents. "They're looking at it like they're giving us the car," said Catalo.

Basinger, who pointed out that the village is a tiny area to cover (one-half square mile) and has a very low crime rate, said the village/city would have more options than spending over $350,000 for five full-time officers. He said one option would be to hire a full-time officer for the more critical 10 p.m. to 6 a.m. shift, continue to have the village marshal patrol the streets during the morning and afternoon and get additional coverage on a part-time basis through the county or Waterford or Springfield Townships.

Basinger said right now four township officers patrol 8,000 houses (that's one officer per 2,000 homes) in the township, along with about 100 businesses. He said one officer should easily be able to cover the 400 houses in the village.

However, someone in the audience was concerned if one officer on duty would be enough in an emergency, pointing out that if the officer were doing the paperwork after an arrest, what would happen if something else happened that needed attention?

Sgt. Parker, a detective covering Independence Township, said that with the current coverage, there is "mutual aid," citing the example, "If Independence Township is tied up, Brandon will send someone down to assist."

Basinger said that stand-by assistance would be a part of any new contracts with other law enforcement agencies.

Sgt. Parker concluded by saying, "Our main concern is to provide the best protection."

After the officer made the comment, Basinger said the best situation would be for the township to continue its contract with the village/city. He asked Sgt. Parker if he agreed.

"Without a doubt, yes. That's correct," answered Sgt. Parker.

Basinger finished the meeting by predicting that the township itself will soon vote to become a city.

"Independence (Township) is going to become a city; it's just a matter of time," said Basinger.

He said Clarkston residents can avoid being lost in the shuffle by first becoming a city itself.

He used another sensitive topic, the bed and breakfast issue, to make his point.

"That decision should be made by 800 residents, not by 16,000 people," said Basinger.

The village council will conduct one more public hearing on cityhood, Feb. 3, the day before the vote.

New Independence fire station moving slowly

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Associate Editor

Though minor renovations are underway, a proposed fire station at the intersection of M-15 and Ortonville Road is at least two weeks away from being a done deal.

Gentleman's agreement

Independence Township Supervisor Frank Ronk said the township hasn't officially acquired the former First Federal Bank building yet. He said the township is working on the building due to a "gentleman's agreement" with the federal government, which still owns the structure.

According to Independence Township Chief Gar Wilson, a bid of about $269,000 is still on the table between the two parties.

Two buildings planned

The township is looking to acquire the land, so it can construct two public safety buildings. The fire department is planning to convert the bank building into a 3,000-square-foot office facility for the fire department and the Oakland County Sheriff's Department (OCSD).

The present OCSD substation is next to the township offices on Main Street, Clarkston.

Wilson said a second building, at the rear of the one-acre parcel, would be about 10,000 square feet and would house the fire department's equipment, living quarters and training area.

A boulevard entrance is proposed at Citation Drive and M-15 to provide a thoroughfare to the public safety center.

How to pay

Ronk said the bank hasn't changed hands yet for two reasons. One is that the township is still trying to determine how they are going to pay for the buildings and the boulevard. Ronk said Independence officials are looking at all financial alternatives, including borrowing the money from the township's sewer fund. Voters turned down a bond issue to build a new fire station.

Alternate site considered

Secondly, Ronk said a number of developers have asked the township to consider their plan to build the public safety center near the 52nd District Courthouse instead of at the bank property. He said the township will take about two weeks to consider all its options before he signs the final purchase contract.

Fire station No. 1 presently remains at its long-held location on Church Street, Clarkston, just off Main Street. The facility is being rented to the township by new owner Dick Morgan. The business owner plans to convert the fire station into an automotive service station after the fire department's lease runs out a year from now.

New township office?

Ronk said the township is also looking at some buildings in Independence for possible township offices, if the Village of Clarkston attains cityhood status. One of these buildings under consideration is the Clarkston Professional Plaza on M-15, owned by Orthodontist Charles Monk. Ronk also mentioned the forementioned property next to the courthouse as another possible alternative for township offices.

Fire department goes high-tech.

Big Brother is inching closer — in this case, to aid in fighting fires.

A new $15,000 computer information program in Independence Township will put information about every commercial building at the fingertips of the fire department dispatcher — and eventually even the firefighters themselves as they're en route to the scene of a fire.

The township board voted unanimously Dec. 30 to authorize the fire department to spend up to $15,000 in 1992 on the "pre-fire survey drawings" project.

In the program, the fire department is to gather structural and storage information and draw up the schematics of every commercial building in the township. This information is then forwarded to the Magnum Group, Brandon Township, for final drawings and conversion to hard computer disks.

Fire Chief Gar Wilson said this program gives the fire department the advantage of knowing everything about a commercial building, which would be essential if a blaze were to break out.

He said that the fire department's engines could eventually be equipped with computers to get the information from the computer disks, as in many metropolitan areas today.

Until then, the fire department will use blueprints on the scene or computerized information relayed to them via the dispatch.

Wilson said the fire department presently has about one-third of the township's commercial buildings on file, and his personnel will continue to gather all information.

He hopes to have all the buildings accounted for within 12 to 15 months, he said.

What's your cure
 for the common cold?

How common is the common cold?

Cough and cold season is nothing to sneeze at. Experts say colds are so common during the cooler months of the year mainly because we huddle together indoors, releasing contagious viral particles into the air as we sneeze and cough. A cold is defined as a collection of infections that can affect the upper respiratory tract: nose, sinuses, throat and lungs, sometimes the ears as well.

But, as our nasal tissue swells and no one appears clear headed enough to create a cure for the common cold, we become all too aware of its accompanying discomforts -- stuffy nose, sore throat, hacking cough, and that aching feeling.

What to do next? In our rush for quick solutions, myths abound, for example, from one generation to another. Consider these common questions from the experts at Halls-Plus, Warner-Lambert's new cough suppressant tablet with syrup in the center.

Q. How common is the common cold?

A. Adults reportedly suffer from one to six colds a year, with children averaging six a year. Under age 4, boys catch more colds than girls. Annually, nine of 10 Americans catch a cold, and colds are believed to be responsible for 23 million work days and 26 million school days lost.

Q. Why did Benjamin Franklin insist on sleeping with his window open?

A. Franklin refused to believe that getting chilled or wet would cause one to catch a cold and advocated breathing lots of fresh air for prevention.

Many years later, scientific studies indicated he was on the right track. Although chilling and dampness may make an individual more susceptible to catching a cold, scientists now believe colds are caused by viruses -- some 200 different kinds of tiny organisms that can be transferred from the mouth or nose of an infected person who sneezes or coughs contaminated material into the air.

Q. What is the most common way to catch a cold?

A. While traditional belief held that colds were spread mostly by coughing and sneezing, current theory is that these contagious illnesses are frequently passed on by hand as, for example, by an individual who touches a virus-contaminated object and then rubs his own eyes, nose or mouth. Thus, professionals advise handwashing to help protect against catching colds.

Q. How long do colds typically last?

A. Generally, a cold -- known as an upper respiratory infection -- lasts about a week, no matter what you do. Some studies say the third day is generally the most miserable.

While home-grown remedies range from chicken soup to kerosene plaster applied to the chest, the main concern is often relieving the cold's accompanying symptoms, whether a sore throat, runny nose, coughing, stuffy feeling or the "blahs." Smoking is thought to worsen the discomforts of a cold. Drinking lots of fluids may make one more comfortable.

Cough drops may also help by fighting coughs, soothing sore throats and helping nasal passages feel clearer.

Q. What is the harm in coughing?

A. On the one hand, coughing is one of the body's defenses that helps rid the lungs of harmful substances. On the other, coughing can spread germs. A hacking cough also can prevent you from sleeping through the night -- or finishing a sentence in your morning business meeting.

Q. Why do we refer to our nose as "stuffy" when we have a cold?

A. Catching cold means a cold virus has invaded the cells that produce mucus. As a cold progresses, nasal tissues often swell and mucus accumulates in the nose which then feels stuffed up and runny. Mucus is the thick liquid that lubricates the nose, throat and lungs.

When the bedbug bites

Each year, about 10 million Americans consult physicians about sleep complaints, which rank third behind the common cold and headaches as reasons for seeking medical help.

Waking up once or twice during the night or feeling too tense to fall asleep is not an unusual experience. However, when sleeplessness does become a problem, simple lifestyle changes may be all that are necessary to correct it.

Eating habits are particularly important, says neurologist Paul Q. Proffitt, D.O. For example, heavy meals and products containing alcohol or caffeine should be avoided within two hours of bedtime.

Nicotine is also a key contributor to poor sleep. According to research done at Penn State University, chronic smokers who abstain from tobacco for five days fall asleep 50 percent faster than when they are using tobacco.

Proffitt advises his patients, particularly those who work nights or mornings, to set specific times for sleeping and rising throughout the week. Naps should be taken sparingly when needed to keep going.

"Most people keep a strict sleep schedule on weeknights; then they stay up on Saturday, sleep late on Sunday and awake in a blue funk on Monday," he says. "It's not surprising that college students are the most sleep-deprived segment of the population."

Although aerobic conditioning will help patients feel tired, Proffitt encourages patients to do such exercise in the early morning or late afternoon, rather than close to bedtime. Nor should patients exercise in their bedrooms.

Additionally, Proffitt advises that bedrooms should not be used for reading, watching television or catching up on work, because these activities can cause stress. "The bedroom should be used strictly for sleep and sex," he says.

"Stay away from people who have it."

What is cryosurgery and its role in skin cancer

Q. I have tried to quit smoking twice now and failed both times. A friend told me that this is very common with people trying to stop smoking and that I should try again. Is this true?

A. Yes, your friend is absolutely right; and by no means should you feel that you have failed. According to a survey of the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, at least 60 percent of adult smokers who have tried to quit have relapsed. Most smokers succeed only after making several attempts to quit. Remember that quitting smoking is not an event but a process.

Many things may help an individual give up or stay off cigarettes -- it depends on his or her motives for smoking and how addicted he or she is to cigarettes. The American Cancer Society offers self-help materials that have assisted many people in quitting smoking. Others have successfully quit with support groups. There is no single best way to quit smoking. Since people smoke in different ways and for different reasons, quitting smoking will also be accomplished through many different means by different people.

You sound very motivated to quit, and you also have a means of support through your friend who is urging you to try again to stop smoking. Some tips to use while giving up smoking in order to avoid cravings and weight gain include:

■ Get regular exercise, especially walking, which is an effective activity that is not too strenuous.

Cancer Answers

■ Avoid other smokers so that you do not tempt yourself or test your willpower. Most relapses occur when the quitter is in the company of smokers.

■ Avoid habits, places and situations that are tied to smoking. For instance, try having a morning cup of tea instead of coffee.

■ To avoid weight gain, drink a lot of water and substitute low-calorie foods or sugarless gum for cigarettes.

Q. I have a friend who is ecstatic that her brain tumor has gone into remission. I understand that this means she is doing better, but what is remission?

A. Remission means that the tumor is no longer actively growing. Remission usually follows treatment directed to the tumor, such as surgery, radiation or chemotherapy.

Remission is usually determined by a brain CT scan (computerized tomography) or MRI scan (magnetic resonance imaging). Usually, remission in the tumor is accompanied by improvement in physical symptoms and signs.

Remission can be partial or complete. A partial remission means that some, but not all, of the tumor is gone. A remission is not exactly a cure because cancerous cells may remain in the brain but be undetectable. She should have close follow-up of the tumor, with periodic neurologic examinations and brain scans.

Q. What is cryosurgery? A friend reports having this procedure for removal of skin cancer.

A. Cryosurgery is a method of destroying tumors by freezing them with liquid nitrogen. The liquid nitrogen is applied through a narrow metal probe.

Instead of a scalpel, the physician uses this hollow metal probe to insert the nitrogen into the tumor or to apply it to the tumor surface.

Liquid nitrogen is a very cold substance, with a temperature of minus 320 degrees. The liquid nitrogen is applied until the area is frozen solid and the nitrogen has killed the cancerous cells. Sometimes liquid nitrogen is sprayed on the tumor surface only to freeze cancerous cells.

Within a week after this procedure, the frozen area begins to slough off as the body rids itself of the dead cells. This leaves a sore, which will heal.

In addition to certain skin cancers, cryosurgery is used to treat premalignant tumors and tumors of the head and neck, as well as many other skin disorders.

Q. What is small-cell carcinoma and how is it treated?

A. Small-cell carcinoma is one of 13 types of lung cancer. It is a very fast-growing cancer. Cancers are most often named for the appearance of cells from a tumor when cells are examined under a microscope, and this is how "small cell" or "oat cell" lung cancer got its name.

Questions may be directed to Cancer Answers: The Cleveland Clinic Cancer Center, 9500 Euclid Ave., Cleveland, Ohio, 44195. All questions will be answered by mail.

Take it easy when beginning to exercise

Getting more exercise doesn't have to be time consuming or expensive, according to SelectCare Health Plan.

Start with a light, regular exercise program you can build on as you go. Take it easy when you're getting started -- you did not get out of shape in two weeks, and you will not get back into shape that soon. Most people discover that before long they start to feel better and have more energy.

Watch out for grocery items

You should watch out for items in the grocery store that are labeled "no cholesterol" or "contains no animal fat," according to SelectCare Health Plan.

They may still contain a large amount of fat or saturated fat, for example, peanut butter, vegetable shortening and baked products such as cookies and cakes. For people trying to lose weight or reduce their blood cholesterol level, these foods should be chosen less often.

"I wonder about my cholesterol level."

"I wonder if we should go to the emergency room."

"I wonder if I should put some ice on it."

"I wonder where I can find a doctor for my family."

Dropouts should come as no surprise to parents

When a child joins the ranks of the more than 700,000 students annually who drop out of America's schools, it frequently comes as a surprise to his or her parents.

But the adolescent who quits school probably has raised a raft of danger signals over his years in school -- beginning as early as first or second grade.

What are the warning signals? And how do you recognize them in your child?

Warning signs

Look for these classic warning signals indicating long-term academic failure:

- The "failure syndrome," a pattern of dropping grades following a normal routine of good grades.

- Discipline problems, particularly relating to homework.

- Negative comments about teachers.
- Laying blame on others.
- Reluctance to discuss school.
- Lack of interest in any aspect of school from academics to sports -- an indicator of a child who mentally has left school.

- Disruptive behavior or physical violence -- an attempt to attract attention or force expulsion from school by administrators

- Disinterested, characterized by teacher comments such as "not working up to potential" or "is well-mannered in the classroom."

What to do

What should you do if your child exhibits a continuing pattern of these symptoms?

- Seek help quickly from experts -- teachers, religious or secular counselors, or medical authorities -- who can intermediate between parent and child and can assess the extent of the problem.

- Together with your child, review his report card -- calmly and without judgmental comment.

- Praise accomplishments and positive performance reflected on the card.

- Don't focus solely on grades. Ask about your child's feelings and opinions.

- Ask how he thinks he could do better, how you could help him improve.

- Encourage him to establish realistic, yet challenging goals to improve study habits and class performance. Discuss the objectives, but don't formulate goals for your child.

- Together, set a routine to improve study habits. Provide guidance, but remember that studying is his responsibility.

- Review his progress weekly by discussing -- not grilling -- about studies and activities. Don't wait to be surprised at report card time.

- Listen actively to your child -- to his meanings and emotions or to what your child is not saying.

- Get help to overcome skills gaps. The dropout syndrome begins with learning gaps that the child cannot overcome.

Smoking hurts health

Quitting smoking now can help you avoid many serious health problems in the future, and here is why:

- Cigarettes cause 30 percent of all cancers, including 85 percent of all lung cancer, the leading cause of cancer death in the U.S. Smokers have 15 to 26 times the rate of lung cancer of nonsmokers.

- Smokers have a six to 15 fold increased risk of developing chronic obstructive pulmonary diseases such as emphysema. Over 80 percent of all deaths due to these diseases are directly linked to cigarettes.

- Every year 5,000 nonsmokers die from lung cancer as a result of inhaling other people's smoke.

- Nicotine, an ingredient in cigarettes, is addictive, a new Surgeon General Report declares. That's why it's so hard to quit.

Fortunately, people who care about the health of those around them, as well as their own, are kicking the smoking habit, some with the help of prescription medication in a gum form that releases small amounts of nicotine in the mouth. This produces nicotine blood levels sufficient to reduce withdrawal symptoms. Your doctor can tell you more about the medication.

Treat frostbite promptly

The first symptoms of frostbite are a pins and needles sensation, according to SelectCare Health Plan.

The skin appears white, cold and hard and then becomes red and swollen. Frostbite must be treated promptly.

The person should be sheltered from the cold and affected parts warmed as quickly as possible by immersing them in lukewarm water at 100 degrees.

Movement of the affected parts should be avoided and massage is not helpful.

Do not rub the affected area; do not attempt to burst blisters; do not warm the affected area with direct heat; and do not allow the victim to walk on a frostbitten foot.

What to consider when choosing a babysitter

Sooner or later it happens. No matter how much you love your children or that new baby, eventually you and your spouse will want to get away.

An important element to a successful and fun evening is the sense of security you have when you select the right babysitter. Knowing that your children are with a reliable person can help you to relax and enjoy the evening.

It is not uncommon for parents to feel a bit anxious when hiring a babysitter for the first time. Each year 1,300 children under age 5 die from injuries sustained in the home.

Choosing a sitter

Children's Hospital of Michigan recommends that you:

- 1) Talk with any prospective babysitter before hiring him or her.
- 2) Check references.
- 3) Make certain sitter is reliable and willing to accept your guidelines in taking care of your child.
- 4) Select a sitter who is experienced and has received special "babysitter" training certification including CPR and first aid training.
- 5) Sitter is responsible and has the maturity needed to care for your child.

Introducing sitter and children

Once you have selected a sitter, it's important to introduce that person to your children prior to the actual sitting date. This will help your child and the babysitter feel more at ease.

The most important part of any babysitting job is everyone's safety while the parents are gone. Children are naturally active, and sometimes it can be difficult to keep up with them.

However, make sure the babysitter understands the significance of watching the child at all times. Once the child is asleep, suggest the babysitter check in regularly, ever half hour to an hour.

Knowing the rules of the household as well as where things are can be vital to your child's safety.

Rules can keep them safe

Before leaving for the evening, make sure you tell your babysitter the following essential information:

- 1) your child's bedtime routine,
- 2) special medical problems or habits,
- 3) approved play areas,
- 4) your child's preferences for food or a special toy,
- 5) rules for use of the television, stereo and telephone,
- 6) a list of emergency telephone numbers and procedures
- 7) and a tour of the house showing exits, smoke detectors, fire extinguishers, first aid kit, flashlight and extra blankets.

Taking the time to go over these tips with your babysitter will help both of you relax and enjoy your evening.

Women twice as likely to suffer depression

Women are twice as likely as men to suffer from depression, and the reasons have more to do with contemporary culture than with biology. But the good news is, experts are working on ever improved treatments.

The warning signs of depression include:

- Feeling helpless and pessimistic.
- An inability to sleep or sleeping far too much, irregular sleep patterns.
- A great increase or decrease in eating.
- A refusal to go out to see friends.
- Lowered self-esteem, blaming yourself for your problems or feeling worthless.
- An inability to concentrate, even on routine tasks.

■ A heightened use of alcohol or drugs. If you experience any of these feelings, you should seek counseling from a psychologist or other mental health professional.

According to a research report by the American Psychological Association's National Task Force on Women and Depression, factors such as poverty, discrimination and abuse increase women's risk for depression.

Depression is known to be a chronic and recurrent disorder, and its economic cost exceeds $16 billion a year. Fortunately, treatments now available are so effective, 80 to 90 percent of patients can have a significant reduction in depressive symptoms in 12 to 14 weeks.

Peanut butter snacks can be a healthy alternative

After a day in school, "Mom, I'm home," usually means, "Mom, I'm hungry!"

When most kids get home from school, the first thing they do is head to the kitchen for a snack. Snack time can provide a much needed energy boost for children after a busy day and is an ideal way to relax and make the transition from school to home.

Many nutrition experts agree that snacks can be a good idea for children.

Never heat unopened can

If you caramelize sweetened condensed milk in the unopened can, you might be headed for danger, according to Sylvia Treitman, home economist for the Oakland County Cooperative Extension Service.

"This old recipe seems to reappear every once in a while," says Treitman.

However, the method is unsafe, she says, explaining that heat causes expansion. So if any unopened can of food (whatever kind) is heated, the can could explode and cause serious injury.

Never heat an unopened can, she says.

She offered a safe way to caramelize sweetened condensed milk, so the tasty sauce can still be made.

Stovetop method

Pour sweetened condensed milk into top of double boiler; cover. Place over boiling water. Over low heat, simmer 1 to 1 1/2 hours or until thick and light caramel colored. Beat until smooth and cool.

For safe directions for caramelizing sweetened condensed milk in your microwave or regular oven, call the Food and Nutrition Hotline at 858-0904 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

"Studies have shown that children who eat snacks have a better dietary intake than children who don't," according to Dr. Marilyn Schorin, manager of nutrition services for Weight Watchers International.

"Properly planned, snacks can be a great way to balance out your child's diet with foods they may not eat at regular meals," she said.

For example, if your child dislikes cooked vegetables, raw vegetables with dip are a good snack choice. If you don't provide milk at mealtime, yogurt or puddings make good snack choices.

"The key to developing good snack habits is combining great taste with nutrition," Schorin said. "A parent's goal should be to provide nourishing snacks that kids will enjoy eating."

The following three recipes from Weight Watchers Magazine fit the bill perfectly. All three feature kid-pleasing peanut butter, an excellent source of protein, and are fast, delicious and great for the whole family.

CRISPY PEANUT BUTTER STICKS

12 slices reduced-calorie raisin bread
1 ounce coarsely chopped unsalted dry roasted peanuts
1/2 cup plus 2 tablespoons smooth peanut butter

1. Preheat oven to 150 degrees. Place bread slices on two baking sheets. Bake 30 minutes or until dried, turning over once.

2. Cut crusts from bread; cut each slice in half; set aside. Place crusts along with any raisins or crumbs from cutting in the food processor; process to make coarse crumbs. Place crumbs on large piece of wax paper; toss with peanuts.

3. In small saucepan, melt peanut butter over low heat until smooth; remove from heat and cool slightly. With fork, dip bread in peanut butter, coating top and bottom, then press into crumb mixture to coat. Place peanut butter sticks on rack 30-60 minutes to dry.

Makes 12 servings; two sticks each. Per serving: 133 cal, 6 g pro, 8 g fat, 12 g car, 158 mg sod, 0 mg chol.

PEANUT BUTTER BANANA SNACK

3 tablespoons smooth peanut butter
4 popcorn-flavored rice cakes
1 1/2 medium bananas, cut into 1/4-inch thick slices
2 tablespoons golden raisins
1 tablespoon shredded coconut
2 teaspoons unsweetened wheat germ

Divide peanut butter evenly among rice cakes; spread to 1/2-inch of edge. Top evenly with remaining ingredients.

Makes four servings. Per serving: 169 cal, 5 g pro, 7 g fat, 24 g car, 116 mg sod, 0 mg chol.

PEANUT BUTTER POCKETS

1/2 cup part-skim ricotta cheese
1/4 cup smooth peanut butter
1/4 teaspoon ground allspice
1/8 teaspoon orange extract
2 tablespoons raisins
4 one-ounce pita breads, cut to make pockets

1. In mini-food processor or blender, puree ricotta, peanut butter, allspice and orange extract until smooth. Scrape into a small bowl. Add raisins; stir to combine.

2. Spoon 3 tablespoons spread into each pita; place in toaster oven. Toast until pita is lightly browned.

Makes four servings. Per serving: 240 cal, 11 g pro, 11 g fat, 26 g car, 296 mg sod, 10 mg chol.

Mammogram: a picture that could save your life

1 When you turn 40, have a mammogram every 1-2 years and, when you turn 50, have one once a year. You should also have annual physical breast exams by a doctor and do monthly breast self-exams.

2 Ask your doctor to make an appointment for you to get a mammogram at a quality facility, or call a local hospital or health clinic to arrange an appointment. The procedure is simple.

3 Don't fear the results of a mammogram. For those women who do have breast cancer, there are several improved and effective treatment options. When the cancer is detected early, 90 percent of women who get it will survive.

If you have any questions, call NCI's toll-free Cancer Information Service at 1-800-4-CANCER.

If someone told you that simply having your picture taken could save your life, would you do it? Of course. A mammogram, which can detect breast cancer in its earliest, most treatable stages is just that - a picture - an x-ray of the breast that can save your life.

One in ten women will develop breast cancer at some point in her life, but mammography can help you beat the odds. Here are three key tips from the National Cancer Institute (NCI):

Women who have had a mammogram

The majority of women age 40 and over are still not getting mammograms as often as they should. Women should have a mammogram every 1-2 years at age 40. Beginning at age 50, women should schedule a mammogram once a year.

COMMUNITY HEALTH CARE CENTER

A DIVISION OF PONTIAC OSTEOPATHIC HOSPITAL

384 N. Lapeer Rd., Oxford 628-3000

A NEW NAME FOR CARING

North Oakland Medical Center

Pontiac General Hospital
Division

461 West Huron
Pontiac, Michigan 48341-1651
(313) 857-7200

Back in 1910, "caring" meant Pontiac residents raising $25,000 to build "Oakland County's First Hospital" in what was then a village of 5,000 people.

Five years later, caring meant the Oakland County Hospital Association donating the hospital to the thriving industrial center of Pontiac and Oakland County. Hospital became Pontiac City Hospital, which was changed to Pontiac General Hospital in 1931. Today, new communities all over Oakland County look to the same hospital for caring in the 1990's for services such as:

Seminole Ambulatory Care Center Division

Waterford Ambulatory Care Center Division

Pontiac Health Care Center Division

- Complete care for new mothers and babies, including family-centered birthing and northern Oakland County's leading intensive care unit for newborns.
- Satellite centers offering walk-in medical care and diagnostic services.
- Expanded programs in physical rehabilitation, county-wide psychiatric services and cardiac care.
- State-of-the-art laser and outpatient surgery.

With these new "caring" services and a patient base throughout Oakland County, our hospital has earned a new name.

This multi-faceted, contemporary cross represents the international symbol for compassionate, community-oriented health care. The repeating lines, which comprise the cross, signify the diversified parts of the North Oakland Medical Center, a medical facility with many aspects, affiliates, divisions, services, and organizations all working together for the people of the North Oakland County area.

Showered with gifts

A NEW Community Center Shower Jan. 18 brought gifts for Hart Community Center, formerly the Springfield Community Center. The shower — organized like a baby shower — collected kitchen items and donations for a microwave to be used at the center at the Mill Pond Park, 495 Broadway, Springfield Township. About 40 people attended the shower, and over $300 was collected for the microwave. As in most showers, games were played and refreshments were served. Here, Sherry Swindell, director of Springfield Parks and Recreation, leads the group in one of the shower games. (Photo by Dennis V. Carter)

FATHER OF THE BRIDE... "ONE OF THE YEAR'S TEN BEST" - People Magazine. This aggressively old-fashioned remake of the 1950 movie starring Spencer Tracy as the father who goes through the ordeal of his daughter's marriage remains virtually unchanged. But what saves it from being just another slice of white bread sitcom cinema is its energy and Steve Martin's performance as the father. Rated PG; nothing objectionable.

MY GIRL (PG): Spunky newcomer Anna Chlumsky and "Home Alone" fave Macaulay Culkin are odd kids out and best friends in a fresh, insightful comedy with a seriously sad ending. Chevrolet Lumina Euro: sporty family car Test driving cars, I try and show the car to as many people as possible. I like them to look at trunk space, sit in the back seat, behind the driver's wheel, check out the dash board and body styling.

I like to get their first reactions to any particular vehicle to see if they matched mine. With the 1992 Chevrolet Lumina Euro Sedan, I was right on the money.

We all liked the exterior styling. We all liked the interior design and amount of leg room. The Lumina was off to a good start.

The front-wheel-drive Lumina Euro is touted as Chevrolet's premier family car. The price ($17,685 base), however, styling and performance makes it very attractive to single folks, too. The Euro Sedan I drove had the powerful 3.4 Liter V6, fuel injected engine.

This is the same engine Chevy makes standard Lumina's sporty edition Z34 coupe. With the four-speed automatic transmission, the engine has 200 horsepower (210 hp with a manual trans). The engines power is evident during take off, and in the passing lane. Estimated gas mileage is between 17 miles per gallon in the city and 26 on the highway.

Young families should like the car because it offers room for the kids, and lots of trunk space (15.7 cubic feet -- comparable to the 15.3 cubic feet offered in Cadillac's Eldorado).

The ride from Waterford to Oxford (made daily for one week, driving on Dixie Highway, Baldwin, Joslyn, Indianwood Road and M-24) was always comfortable. The cloth bucket seats are thick and firm and make comfort for longer drives possible.

And while it handled the curves quite well, got up to the speed limit quickly and effortlessly -- the road noise was only a little noticeable -- what I personally really liked about the Lumina Euro was the interior design.

I drove the torch red car, with gray interior coloring. It looked sharp with the console, and gauge package with the tachometer. I also like the engineering effort into the front seat belt design. It's only a little thing, but on a lot of new cars the seat belts sometimes get shut in the car door when you get out. They hang loose and before you know it, you've closed the door on the danged thing. Not so with the design of the Lumina.

(this paragraph for Mature American)

Senior citizens might not like this car - for all the sporty reasons the young crowd may like it. However, it is a mid-sized car, so there's more security than the smaller vehicles. The car also has fairly good field of vision.

Highlights: looks, leg space, comfort
Lowlight: minimal road noise
Estimated gas mileage: 17 city; 26 highway
Base Price: $17,685
Model Tested: $19,015

BPW cites Women's Health Center

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Associate Editor

The Women's Health Center of Clarkston was recently recognized for its commitment toward helping area residents.

On Nov. 14, the health center was named "Business of the Year" by the Waterford-Clarkston Business and Professional Women's Club (BPW). A certificate was presented to its founder, physician Susan E. Coleman.

Coleman has been a physician specializing in internal medicine in the Clarkston area since October 1981. Five years later, she converted her small Dixie Highway practice to a women's health center.

Since 1986, the number of patients visiting the center has grown from 2,800 to nearly 18,000. Her medical staff has also tripled to three additional doctors and one nurse practitioner.

A mother of two, Coleman said she was surprised by the award from the BPW.

"It was kind of a shock because I'm not a very public person and quite shy," she said.

Mike Mosharo, administrative director at the health center and Coleman's husband, said the entire staff was on "Cloud 9" after the announcement.

"I can't think of anyone more deserving than Dr.

Coleman," Mosharo said. "And apparently, they (BPW) agreed by saying, 'you're due.'" an employee at the health center, said Coleman was originally considered for "Woman of the Year" honors but said the awards committee thought "Business of the Year" was probably more appropriate.

"We felt her excelling and giving of herself was more business oriented," McMillan explained. "She's the one who came up with this health center's concept and who's responsible for its prosperity."

"There's a lot of doctors who are a lot of 'show' but not Dr. Coleman," McMillan said. "She's a very intelligent and caring person."

Coleman said she presently is considering adding one or two more professionals to her staff and could be working on a project with the Federal Drug Administration (FDA). The project, if approved by the FDA, would designate the health center as a study site for the research of osteoporosis.

Osteoporosis is a disease that causes bones to become brittle from a lack of nutrition and mineral metabolism. This ailment primarily attacks women.

Coleman also said she's looking into ways of enhancing her center's breast care treatment.

Over the years, the Women's Health Center has helped sponsor the Clarkston Fun Daze marathon, donated a mammographic machine to Ukraine and assisted young girls aspiring to work in the health care field.

Woman of the Year chosen for her volunteerism

BY DENNIS V. CARTER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

With outstanding service to the community as the criteria, the Business and Professional Women's (BPW) club of Clarkston and Waterford selected Sharon Scott of Independence Township as its Woman of the Year.

Scott, who was presented the award Nov. 14 at the Deer Lake Racquet Club, is an active volunteer in the Clarkston area.

"My last big project was the 30-year anniversary of our church," said Scott, the mother of three. "I have worked on projects with various organizations in my church and in the community."

According to Lynda McMillen, administrative coordinator for the club, many organizations and businesses were contacted to submit nominees for the award.

"Since we moved around a lot, I found that one of the best ways to meet new friends was to become involved in community projects."

Sharon Scott

"We only had six nominees but don't feel that takes anything away from the winner," said McMillen. "I was very happy with her (Scott) as our selection and felt she was very deserving of the honor."

McMillen, chairwoman of the selection committee, said the selection was based on community service.

"When we asked for the nominees, we asked for people who the business or organization believed did the most in area to help the community," McMillen said. "All the nominees were deserving, but you can select only one, and I feel we made a very good choice. ... Scott has really done a lot volunteer work in this area through her church and Lighthouse North."

According to McMillen, the award serves to recognize good deeds.

"When someone spends a lot of time working to help others and does something outstanding, they should receive some recognition for it," McMillen said. "This is why we have the award. It is a way to let this person know they are truly appreciated."

Scott, who was a teacher for several years, said she was honored by the award.

"It really was so nice to receive this award," she said. "I'm sure there are a lot of deserving people who could have also won this award. I was very happy to be honored like this. It's not something you expect, but it is nice when you receive it."

Scott's long list of community activities includes working as Brownie leader, as general chairperson at her church, in several chairperson positions at her church, and as a volunteer with Lighthouse North.

"It's not something you expect, but it is nice when you receive it."

Sharon Scott

Scott said her husband Russell's job required the family to move a lot. Volunteering was a way to become part of each new community, she said.

"Since we moved around a lot, I found that one of the best ways to meet new friends was to become involved in community projects," she said. "I have always been involved in church-related organizations, and they often lead to other community services which I would become involved in."

According to McMillen, the BPW club is designed to raise funds for community projects and meets the second Thursday of each month.

"We are always looking for ways to help the community," she said. "And when we find someone who is so deserving as Sharon Scott, it is nice to give them some recognition."
