Clarkston High gets energetic, new principal

BY CURT MCALLISTER Clarkston News Associate Editor

The long, drawn-out search for a new principal at Clarkston High School is officially over.

James W. Goebel was approved by the Clarkston

Board of Education April 27. The 49-year-old Spring Lake resident was chosen from a field of nearly 80 applicants.

He's presently the principal at Spring Lake High School in northern Michigan, a job he's held since 1987.

Goebel has been involved in education since 1965, when he took a job as a business and social studies instructor at St. Agatha High School in Redford Township. Eight years later, he was named the assistant principal at Bishop Foley High School in Madison

James W. Goebel Heights and moved on to a similar position at Marlette High School in 1976.

Three years later, he was elevated to principal at Marlette High, where he remained until 1987.

Originally from Farmington, Goebel possesses a master of arts degree in educational leadership from Eastern Michigan University, Ypsilanti, He also owns two bachelor of art degrees from the University of Detroit in economics and business.

A dedicated principal, Goebel initiated an application leading to Spring Lake High's eventual recognition as one of only 15 Michigan Exemplary Secondary Schools

His resume is filled with numerous organizational affiliations and civic and community activities. His devotion toward community and school were two of the main

Town swimming pool? Meeting covers it

A meeting is planned for those interested in a multipurpose community recreation center with an indoor swimming pool in north Oakland County.

The meeting of the "POOL Our Resources Committee" is set for $7:3\bar{0}$ p.m. Thursday, May 7, at the Independence Township Library, 6495 Clarkston Road.

In surveys, more than 400 people have said they would like to establish such a center and indoor swimming pool in the area. Many people - from school and church representatives to business leaders, parks and recreation departments and YMCA advocates - have joined forces on the project.

According to organizer Henry Woloson, community members are invited to combine efforts to build and operate a family-oriented, non-profit recreation facility for the area. For more information, call 620-1738.

selling points in his eventual hiring, said Superintendent Gary Haner.

"It seemed that everyone I talked to in Spring Lake had nothing but good things to say about Mr. Goebel," Haner said. "He's dedicated to his students, staff and community. You'd be hard-pressed not to be inspired by his attitude, devotion and enthusiastic manner.

"We hope he'll be around for quite some time," Haner added.

A self-professed "cheerleader," Goebel said he likes what he's seen so far in Clarkston.

Walking for healthy babies

CLOWNS and cheerleaders greet a couple at the finish line of the March of Dimes Walk America April 26. About 545 people walked a 20-kilometer course in and around the Clarkston area that day. The walkathon began and ended in Clintonwood Park, Clarkston Road, Independence Township. Clarkston was one of 14 sites in Michigan to host the event. March of Dimes officials estimate that $43,000 was raised from Clarkston course participants. (Photo by Curt McAllister)

Dump days

Spring cleaning time set for May 9 and 16

Spring cleaning time is just around the corner, and Independence Township will be helping its residents haul away unwanted refuse in May.

The township is sponsoring Township Clean-Up Day on Saturdays, May 9 and May 16. The event takes place at the Department of Public Works building, 6050 Flemings Lake Road, from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m.

During the event, township residents can bring their trash to the DPW for disposal. Proof of residency

Because of the tremendous cost of disposal, the township is forced to charge a fee for dumping. Fees are as follows:

Vehicle	Per Load
Automobile	$5
Auto w/ single-axle trailer	$10
Pickup truck or van	$10
Pickup truck w/ single-axle trailer	$25
Flatbed single-axle truck	$25
Dual-axle trailer	$25
5-yard dump truck	$25
Passenger car and truck
tires (limit of 10)	$2 each

However, the following material will not be allowed to be dumped at the DPW: chemicals, fuel oil drums, barrels, propane cylinders, storage tanks, and automobiles or vehicles of any kind.

Tickets for dumping may be obtained at the township treasurer's office at Township Hall, 90 N. Main St., Clarkston. Tickets will also be on sale at the dump site the days of cleanup.

For more information, call the township offices at 625-5111.

File by May 12 for primary election

If you've ever wanted to hold local public office, now's your chance.

The deadline to file petitions to be included as Independence or Springfield township board candidates in the Aug. 4 primary election is 4 p.m. Tuesday, May 12.

In that election, voters will choose candidates for each party to appear on the ballot in the Nov. 3 general election.

In Independence, candidates need at least 74 signatures of registered township voters but not more than 197.
The township recommends about 80 to leave a cushion for invalid signatures.

And, yes, Village of Clarkston residents may sign a petition, though by the time of the election, they won't be eligible to vote for township officials, said Independence Clerk Joan McCrary.

In Springfield, 26 signatures are required, and the township recommends a cushion of about 10 extra.

All candidates must also submit an affadavit of identity, which must be notarized. That means that candidates shouldn't wait until the last minute to submit the information because they may run into time trouble.

Goebel hired at CHS

"I'm very passionate about my students, and from what I've heard here tonight there's a lot of passionate people in Clarkston," he said, referring to parents who voiced their opinions at an open forum, earlier in the evening. "I'm looking forward to coming to Clarkston and meeting all these terrific kids I keep hearing about."

Goebel is married to wife, "Virg," and the father of four children. He presently is looking to buy a home in the Clarkston area and sell his residence in Spring Lake.

He's slated to start at CHS next fall. Goebel will be succeeding interim Principal Mel Vaara, who took over for outgoing Principal Robert Burek last fall. Burek is now superintendent in the Fenton school district.

On both township boards, positions available include: supervisor, clerk, treasurer and four trustee spots. McCrary noted that a voter may sign only one petition for supervisor, one for clerk, one for treasurer, but four for trustee.

Faxed petitions are not allowed. For more information, call 625-5111 in Independence Township and 625-4802 in Springfield Township.

AMT ambulance company closes in Michigan

BY CURT MCALLISTER Clarkston News Associate Editor

Nearly a year after its induction into northern Oakland County, Advance Medical Transport. Inc., (AMT) is out

However, the Clarkston-based company may not be completely dead. Presently, corporate leaders and prospective investors are negotiating to possibly resuscitate the ailing ambulatory care service.

AMT is headquartered at the Clarkston Village Clinic-Ambulatory Care office on M-15, Independence Township. The company is co-owned by Charles Engelmann of Chicago and local physicians Theodore G. Engelmann and Ronald LePere, among others.

In Independence Township, AMT was used as a secondary service in emergency situations — behind Paramed. AMT was used primarily in transferring patients for hospitals and nursing homes.

In addition to the Clarkston area, AMT's paramedic units were serving Highland, Commerce, Brandon, West Bloomfield, Groveland and Oxford townships.

The three also own the Advance/ Reliable ambulance company in Chicago, which is the largest provider in that city and the state of Illinois.

On Friday, April 24, the National Bank of Detroit (NBD) repossessed AMT's seven ambulances because of the company's inability to pay off outstanding debts to the

About a dozen employees called a press conference outside AMT's headquarters later that afternoon. They had come to collect their pay, which many hadn't seen in four to six weeks. According to Randy Josey, AMT's vice president of marketing, the company still owes its 51 full-time and part-time employees around $90,000 in

In frustration, some of the workers blocked in Theodore Engelmann's BMW with their own vehicles, to prevent the doctor from leaving the parking lot.

Later, officers from the Oakland County Sheriff's Department (OCSD) arrived on the scene to investigate a call that claimed the workers were "looking to kill someone," said OCSD Sgt. Michael Searing.

In the earlier stages of the protest, Bob Munro of Warren collapsed to his knees and complained of chest pains. His wife is an employee of AMT.

He was taken into the clinic but later transferred to Pontiac General Hospital — via a Paramed ambulance. He was discharged later that evening.

The workers left a couple of hours later, after LePere's attorney, Thomas Rabette, informed them that the company was trying to restructure, a move that would exclude the Engelmanns.

Theodore Engelmann said his possible involvement with a re-vamped company is still , in the air and depends on the new, prospective investors.

Regarding the demise of his company, Engelmann said AMT failed for two reasons.

He claims AMT was undercapitalized, making it hard to absorb costs incurred when insurance carriers lagged in paying clients' bills. And, secondly, his carrier company was up against some formidable competition.

"Initially, we knew it was going to be difficult to break into this market," Engelmann said. "I think the company was starting to prove it could be successful, but it was too little, too late."

On Friday, several employees were adamant in their accusations of "underhanded practices," on the part of Engelmann. Rabette said those comments were made out of frustration.

"In working closely with this situation, I haven't seen any signs of underhandedness on anyone's part," he said. "I understand the people are angry and looking to blame someone, but there's no need to attack someone's

Mike Nutt, vice president of operations, said he and Randy Josey are working hard on having everything in place, should the company re-open. Nutt said he hasn't been involved in recent negotiations between stockholders, prospective investors and the bank, but he's optimis-

"I certainly hope the company survives," Nutt said. "Having AMT around makes all the carriers a little more competitive and improves the quality of service to cus-

However, if AMT fails to come out of this," he added, "I don't see any independent companies trying to come into this area for a long, long time."

As for the employees, Josey said most have filed for unemployment compensation and have decided to hold off on looking for new jobs.

'I've found that most the employees are holding tight because they really enjoyed working for the company and want to come back," he said. "Everyone's remained faithful for the most part."

Independence Township Fire Chief Gar Wilson said the loss of AMT to the Clarkston area is sad but not detrimental. 'It's a shame they had to drop out, but their loss isn't going to affect us a great deal," Wilson said. "We really didn't use them in emergency calls all that much because Paramed always has at least two vehicles at the ready."

For an interim period, AMT employees and their families can receive free medical care from LePere, as well as from the Clarkston Ambulatory Care Center, which shares space with LePere.

SGT. MICHAEL SEARING of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department talks to AMT workers, who'd just learned that their company was out of business. The workers went to the Clarkston Village Clinic, Main Street, Independence Township, to protest the closing of the one-year-old ambulance service, which was housed in the same building. The OCSD was called to monitor the workers' action.

BOB MUNRO of Warren is loaded into a Paramed ambulance at the Clarkston Village Clinic, which is headquarters for Advance Medical Transport (AMT). The vehicle is surrounded by AMT employees, who'd just discovered that their company was closing its doors after one year of service. Munro, the husband of one of the AMT employees, collapsed from chest pains April 24, while accompanying his wife to the clinic. She was among a dozen workers who came to protest and collect back pay.

11 teachers get lay-off notices

Fleven Clarkston teachers received layoff notices from the Clarkston Board of Education April 27.

The school board approved the measure 6-0. Trustee Joseph Helpern was absent from the meeting.

Four factors contributed to the board's decision They included: the overall financial posture of the dis trict, the uncertainty of continuing programs at the Oakland Technical Center-Northwest (OTC-N) campus next year. the return of two staff members from leave and the anticipated decline in enrollment at OTC-N.

The teachers scheduled for lay off include: Esther Andrews, dental assisting, OTC N, Laura Cerretani, counselor, Clarkston High; Art Kuney, diesel engine repair, OTC-N; Becky Linder, vocal music, Sashabaw Jr. High; Philip Price, math teacher, Clarkston High; Mary Reed, elementary music; Joan Swartout, grade 1, North Sashabaw Elementary; Mary Thompson-Leh, learning resource center, Clarkston Elementary; Deborah Trudeau culmary arts, OTC-N; Patrice Young, speech pathologist, Special Services; and Amy West, grade 1, Bailey Lake Elementary.

According to Gary Hane, nearly all 11 teachers will be bired back for 1997.9" is soiers approve of an additional 2 mills at the June 8 school election. The extra money would offset the effects of a statewide tax freeze, which has already reduced next year's budget by nearly $1.2 million

If the millage fails, Haner said the dismissals will be permanent.

Two mills is $2 for every $1,000 in assessed propcrty valuation. For example, the owner of a $100,000 home assessed at half the market value ($50,000) would pay an extra $100 per year in school taxes if voters approve the 2 mills.

Flash flood

Julie Campe

As a kid, I used to follow my brother The Scientist around when he hunted for night crawlers. I didn't do that too often though because I grew bored with my brother's endless endurance. Would he never find enough?

But through him I learned why the worms came to the surface when it rained. The water, he said, would fill up their homes in the earth, and they would drown. So they came up for air.

I marveled at such a vast population living unseen in our world, becoming visible only when disaster struck them.

Just the other night, after a three-hour long torrent of spring rain, I arrived home at my apartment, only to see a river of worms sparkling in the darkness under the parking lot lights.

The water rushed along the asphalt to the drain, and the quickly moving stream was thick with writhing, elongated worms. They were tangled with each other, and most were swept speedily into the drain. Some managed to cling to life for a moment or two but were eventually captured by the rushing water.

Everywhere I looked there were worms, swollen and slow. They covered the pavement, the grass, the woodchips and the sidewalks — and filled the water.

Laden with packages, I resisted my first impulse to whisk the worms out of the water and onto safer surfaces. There were too many — I had never seen so many all at once, not even when trekking behind The Scientist; holding a flashlight in the rain.

Saddened that so many would die that night, I carefully picked my way through the worm bodies to my apartment, steadfastly avoiding them.

The image of the worm river remained with me until morning. Outside, I expected that many of the worms that had made it to higher ground would have stayed alive. But, alas, they were already turning hard and crisp in the morning sun. Again, I picked my way through their remains on the pavement.

I wondered whether any had survived. Where is a safe refuge for worms in the rain? Do they have a sort of flood warning system, or do they each act on their own?

I paused to take in the green of spring and noticed chording robins hopping along the lawn, taking in their fill of plump earthworms. They, at least, would benefit from this mass destruction.

I felt happy about this easy meal for the robins and less sad about the worms.

And I laughed. Such emotions would not have occurred to The Scientist. Had he witnessed the scene the night before, he would have merely grabbed his minnow net (which he probably would have been carrying in his back pocket—just in case) and neited the worms from the water, gathering 10 times the number of worms than when using the old fashioned night-crawler-hunting method.

I don't know if I would have held the flashlight for him.

Airbags in some European cars are about half the size of airbags in U.S. cars. Why? Because Europe has mandatory safety belt laws, and a belted driver needs only a "facebag," instead of the massive airbags designed for the often unbelted American driver, who may be "out of position" in a crash. According to the Michigan State Police (MSP), belts double your chance of surviving a crash (which is America's No. 1 killer). Airbags are a nice addition, but they're no substitute for belts. Which is why Europeans use facebags. And so should we. So buckle up, the MSP advises.

At 15,000 miles per year, it costs 33.5 cents per mile to drive a Ford Escort, 39.3 cents for a Ford Taurus L, and 43.5 cents for a Chevrolet Caprice — an increase of 3 percent to 6 percent compared to 1991, according to AAA Michigan. Jim's Jottings

Not on time, Flight 249

I don't believe I've ever written nasty things about airline food, but after Flight 249 I'm going to. Generally, airline food I've been served has been acceptable, sometimes tasty for stuff packaged and cooked somewhere besides the airplane kitchen.

Not this time. Northwest got to me. The 'on time' bragging people transporters were over an hour late leaving Metro for Phoenix.

That did not exactly stimulate or elevate my vacationing mood.

Seems like it's hard to get out of Metro on any other airline than Northwest, and until now we've had mostly good experiences with them.

Of course, we've been good passengers, too. Every since the 'Friendly Sky' people told me to "SIT DOWN," right after the Captain told me I could get up and walk around, I've been a model passenger.

I never get up for anything. Anything! If I get yelled at by Friendly Skys, no telling how I'd be treated by On Time.

On late flight 249 our food and beverage were put on hold until the flight attendants could get up enough courage to slide a tray of food previously rejected by , unexcepted by , that appeared to be prepared by flunked out dietitians from The Cooking School of Crazies.

The bread rolls looked good. The silverware was sanitarily wrapped and cold. The advertisement for Hertz car rental in the middle was nice. I rented from National.

Then there was the hot dish. It's always covered by easily tearable aluminum foil. This time it stuck to the melted glue-cheese that was covering (hiding) whatever was therein.

A little poking and separating disclosed zucchini, black olives, pimento bits, pasta discs and an unknown dark substance. I think it was herbs from the oil dressing. At least it didn't move.

The chocolate eclare was good.

The carrot, cabbage and lettuce salad was there. It's always there. Just there. It is also usually there when the tray is removed.

It was a nice plane. It had wings and everything. It was really clean inside and out, like new even.

The passengers were nice. Cute, quiet kids. The inevitable tatooed man with skimpy shirt, beard, pony tail, unisex earrings... the usual. This is the guy who is also always reaching up to get something out of the overhead compartment.

The flight crew was quiet and unexplaining and unapologizing for being late. That's ok. I was late once. I think I apologized though.

None of the above would have been written if they'd just given me some peanuts. What's an airplane ride without a free, half ounce package of peanuts?

Top role model, leader and coach

I was disappointed to read the recent letter in The Clarkston News questioning coach Dan Fife's loyalty to his team and school.

Dan Fife has been an excellent basketball coach, role model and leader of young men in Clarkston for years, both as a student and now as a coach.

He has demonstrated an even-handedness in developing and molding these young men. In fact, I have personally known young men, ranging from the benchwarmer to star player, who have benefited from Dan Fife's lessons of dedication, discipline, perseverance, sportsmanship, team spirit and personal integrity that he instilled in every one of his players.

I extend to Dan Fife and his family my sincerest support for all of his wonderful coaching and community

James A. O'Neill, M.D.

Sounds of spring

Ah! The sounds of spring in Clarkston — not the crack of the bat on the ball, not the cry "fore" from a misplayed shot — but the whining of parents whose sons did not play first string on some sports team.

Successful athletic programs are kept going by successful teams. The players on these teams are there because of 1) a God-given natural athletic ability, 2) someone who has put a lot of time and effort and lately money with all the pay-for-play camps.

Everyone feels they have the next "Air Jordan," the next Joe Montana, or the next Cecil Fielder. But let's face some kids are forced into it to live a parent's dream, and they don't have the talent or have not worked their talent level to where they can compete.

Some of these athletes have been training themselves since they were little children, dedicating their lives to become a pro athlete. Why saddle them with a klutz who has never worked up a sweat in practice to be on a team where they can compete? Please, you only add to the game when you have mastered the basics, and some people never can or never will.

Do you realize how good a lot of college players are? And some are just 18 years old, fresh out of high school. They learned their sport by practicing to become the very best they can. Only a very small percentage will realize

Some players can only go to college on a sports scholarship. If you don't have a winning team, you don't get noticed. Mediocrity breeds mediocrity. Winning breeds winning. Check out your most successful colleges and high schools.

Remember, if you can't be varsity or first string, there is intramural sports, where the level of play is somewhat less but just as much fun. One last note - both of my children grew up and played sports at CHS. I was their cheerleader, sometimes helped if they had a problem if they asked, but I never, never cried and whined when they did not play, and they did very well, thank you.

Buy-out method wastes tax money

Recently, I read with concern several articles appearing in a daily newspaper that dealt with the "buy-out" method of removing sub-standard teachers from the school districts in which they were employed.

Rather than use the Michigan Tenure Law and master agreement evaluation guidelines to rid themselves of employees they have deemed undesirable, the buy-out method allows school systems to rid themselves of a poor teacher(s) by giving said teacher "X" amount of dollars in return for a resignation, thus rewarding poor perform-

Imagine my shock and dismay when I learned on April 6 that Clarkston Schools is doing what is described above. From good authority, I was made aware that Clarkston had "bought-out" an allegedly poor instructor for an amount in the $30,000-$40,000 range and that there might be more to come in the future. The rationale was that legal fees would have far exceeded the buy-out figure if dismissal were sought using the guidelines of the law.

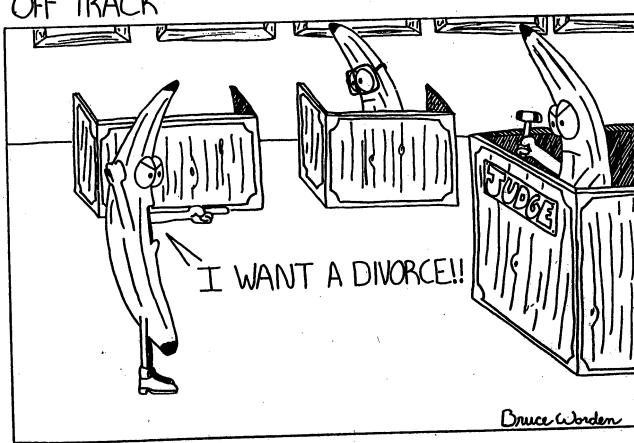

I have a difficult time accepting this rationale, especially in light of the eminent budget deficit Clarkston schools currently face. In addition, I can't help wondering where in the budget this falls.

As a recent retiree from the Clarkston school district, I know how reluctant the school board is to offer retirement incentives each year. Consequently, I don't understand how they could have agreed to this unwarranted buy-out. I should think and hope they would much rather reward those who have served the district well rather than to sacrifice the good to be rid of the bad.

Many fine teachers and administrators plan their retirement from Clarkston schools this June; these people have dedicated their lives to the children of this district, yet they will walk away with nothing more than a free dinner and a plaque that they will receive in May.

In the future, I certainly hope the procedure of dismissing a poorly performing teacher will be done only after following the guidelines set forth in the law. In my opinion, our property taxes are far too high already for them to be wasted on rewards for poor performance.

Puppy snatching is allowed in toy store

Cesarean section transplants are being performed. I mean infants are prematurely - and surreptitiously! removed from one womb and inserted into another womb to await natural delivery.

My daughter, Ferd, told me about it. She has a teaching degree and is generally a rational, reliable informant. But she is also the mother of Adam, Tricia and Emily, ages 18 months to 10 years, and sometimes their cumulative behavior causes Ferd's eyes to glaze, and her perspective to craze. I figured this was one of those times when the children had driven Mother all the way around the fingered-lip, blub-blub bend.

The children were germane to our discussion because Ferd claimed to have discovered sneaky cesarean section transplants in a Toys 'R' Us store. We were, of course, talking about infant dogs. Puppies. What else did you think? And I had no trouble believing that one of the toys that r us is "Puppy Surprise."

Buy my suspicions were aroused when Ferd said adult shoppers - presumably parents and maybe even grandparents - were stealthily breaking into "Puppy Surprise" packages and tampering with the merchandise. They were doing this so quietly and swiftly that store clerks and security personnel were unaware of the crimes until after the perpetrators had fled.

That's what Ferd told me. And I said, "Fat chance." Due to numerous acquisitive grandchildren, I am acutely familiar with modern packaging. Most items are encased in clear bulletproof plastic permanently attached to impregnable cardboard. The only way to get at the object of the child's desire is to rip, claw, stomp, curse and holler for an axe.

For instance, for Easter I gave Tricia, 6, a marvelous "Sing, Color 'n' Say" product called "Going to Grandma's." We ultimately had a great time coloring, reading and singing along with a cassette tape that includes children singing about Grandma in 10 different languages. It's marketed by Worldkids Press of Troy, and I recommend you run right out and buy one.

But be warned that Tricia almost exploded while waiting for fumble-fingered Grandpa to extract the book and cassette from its thick, tight, plastic envelope without destroying the world. I ended up sobbing for help from my son-in-law, who finally came through with a butcher

So anyway, back to Toys 'R' Us. I found it impossible to believe any shopper was capable of opening "Puppy Surprise" packages on the sly, undetected by nearby toy guards. But Ferd swore that every "Puppy Surprise" package on display had been broken into, and she was assured by a clerk that it happened all the time.

OK, but why?

Because the stuffed dog in the package is pregnant and the surprise is how many puppies she has in her womb. As advertised, it could be three, four or five, and you're not supposed to know the size of the li opens the package at home.

But shoppers are invading the first package to make sure they get five puppies for their money. If there are only three or four, they open another package, remove one or two puppies from a womb similar to a kangaroo pouch, and relocate them.

A surreptitious cesarean section transplant.

I swear I don't make this stuff up.

When Ferd complained that none of the surgically incised packages contained at least the guaranteed three puppies, the clerk wondered why she hadn't simply done what so many other shoppers did - transplant. "Because then I'd be guilty of the same criminally stupid behavior that disgusted me when other shoppers did it," Ferd explained.

The clerk was so impressed by Ferd's sterling (inherited) character that she swiftly performed cesarean section transplants from three dogs into a fourth dog, sending Ferd home with the maximum five puppies, to be delivered. naturally on Easter morning by Tricia.

Honesty.

Time now to voice opinion on fire hall

BY NEIL E. WALLACE

The so-called fire hall project has been temporarily put on hold by the Independence Township Board. Unfortunately, the planned acquisition of various properties and the construction of a new fire hall, administrative offices, sheriff department offices and a brand new, threelane road from M-15 to Dixie Highway, complete with lights, sewers and water, has only been postponed.

It's not clear whether the board will solicit or seriously consider the cost-effectiveness of any alternative sites. But, even if they actually consider other alternatives, it appears they intend to have all of these new facilities without direct voter approval.

The latest device to avoid submitting these proposals for the voters' approval is a 15-year bank loan. This is not "found money"; it is simply a loan. It's no better than the previous plans to borrow money from the $4 million sewer fund or to establish an independent building authority to float bonds.

There is absolutely no assurance that the township will have the funds to pay back this loan when its current operating millages for fire and police expire, and that will be soon. So we will be borrowing money without an established source of revenue to pay it back. Undoubtedly, the next time the operating millages are for a vote, the voters will be told they must approve them or the township will have to find another source of money to repay the loan.

No matter how you look at it, the money comes from the voters, and we won't have a chance to vote on it.

Last week, the township's special attorney for this matter wrote a letter to The Clarkston News with his opinion that this was a "legal" borrowing procedure. First, no one should be impressed with his argument that this law is "routinely used" because it has undoubtedly not been routinely used to circumvent two consecutive "no"

He went on to say that this is not a violation of the Headlee Amendment for the reason that the law requires the approval of the electors. If that is the case, the voters should be "legally" entitled to vote on this matter.

And, even if this procedure is somehow technically, legally correct, it's simply not right in these circum-

The past two defeats of similar proposals are now interpreted as a mere rejection of additional taxes and a message to finance these buildings from the fire and police operating millages. Nonsense, both proposals were presented for a determination of whether they were needed. Moreover, the fire and police millages were voted on and earmarked for operations.

The township board obviously knew that because it had submitted the prior proposals for new buildings to the voters for a separate millage.

In addition, it's obvious that if we use these operating millages to build facilities, we don't have the money to pay for operations we lose something something must be given up.

Conveniently, the postponement may well go beyond the May 12 filing deadline for candidates for the township office elections this year. If that date passes with only the current incumbents filing, there is no chance they will submit any of this to a vote of the people.

The township supervisor and the fire chief say there are very good reasons why we need all of these buildings and the road, at this location. The chief has said that he is confident the citizens of Independence Township will support this endeavor. But how will we know unless there's a vote?

I don't believe the last two votes of similar proposals were merely knee-jerk, anti-tax responses. Rather, I attribute both defeats to the failure to demonstrate the need and importance of such facilities. If that can be demonstrated, there should be no trouble convincing the voters of this community to fund this proposal in a proper manner. But it's essential that the people decide.

Finally, it's important that the many peoplewho have expressed dismay about the manner in which our government has handled this come forward now and be heard. If we don't, the township board will approve this proposal just as it was conceived.

But, more importantly, they will take the silence as a license to concoct similar spending proposals without the approval of the people who foot the bill.

Neil E. Wallace resides in Independence Township.

Not a U.S. Postal scandal

Recent news stories concerning the scandal in the U.S. House Post Office have left the impression that this postmaster and employees work for the U.S. Postal Service. This is not true.

The postmaster and employees were employed by the House of Representatives, working as a private contractor under contract to sell postal products. Oversight for their operation was the House of Representatives:

When the problem first surfaced, the capitol police were called in to investigate. Only later, after the House determined that more expertise was needed, was the Postal Inspection Service asked to help with the investiga-

They have done this and have developed the evidence showing the abuse and misappropriation of funds that had occurred in that office. The U.S. Postal Service has not lost any money over this incident. No U.S. Postal employee has been involved in this scandal.

From the big operations, like Royal Oak Post Office, and from little Davisburg, we thank you for helping clarify this issue.

What can we do?

I am an eighth-grader at Clarkston Junior High School, and I would like to express my feelings about new malls, schools and houses moving into every vacant spot

I have noticed less and less space in our community. This used to be a small, country town. It has now blossomed into a strange new city.

What this has been doing is overcrowding schools, creating too much traffic and making it nearly impossible to park in town.

Should we try to do something about this? I think we all know the answer to that. The question is, who's going to do this? What should we do about it and when?

Problems on bus

I am writing to inform the people of the problems student face almost everyday on the bus.

One particular thing I have to say about it is the teasing that goes on. We have an overweight girl on my bus who has a lot of problems. Everyday, though, kids are teasing her. Even the bus driver does. All of on the bus have heard her say a mean remark at one time or another.

I don't think it is fair to this girl at all. The reason I am writing this is to let people know that even the adults who are supposed to be our role models aren't being any better than the students.

Recall humanity

In 1944, as Olivet celebrated its 100th birthday, I entered my junior year as a student — having transferred from Piedmont College in Demorest, Ga., a sister college to Olivet.

Today Olivet is 148 years strong in a tradition of deliberately including minorities when other colleges had "quotas."

Then president, Dr. Malcolm Dana, as he welcomed new students, reminded us that the campus is a real world of differences, economic backgrounds, ethnic and racial backgrounds and differing political beliefs. The challenge is to live within it in peace. No need to wait until graduation to go out into the world. It is here and real.

Sunday evening forums open to the public brought to the campus notable and often controversial public figures from many walks of life for informal discussions and exchange of ideas. Olivet was, for me, a whole world. I had an opportunity to live my own personal beliefs. As a white anglo-saxon protestant, I shared a room with a black Catholic Hatian who attempted to teach me her native French language.

Recent newspaper reports of unrest among a few on campus are more than saddening. They set us back a century. They indicate a need to remember what real education at Olivet means. Grab the opportunity to make sure that a diploma at graduation represents some real people skills for living in a world of peace.

It is my hope that the board of trustees will continue to search for qualified instructors who also represent minority backgrounds. Two such (black) instructors enriched my life at Olivet: Dr. Cornelius Golightly, who later became president of Detroit's board of education, and Dr. Catherine Cater.

Because the ratio of students to faculty allows each to know the other as real persons, Olivet students can benefit from the wisdom and experience of faculty in and out of the classroom. My hope for my alma mater is that our search for knowledge will remember our humanity—a strength as deep rooted as the oaks of Olivet.

Education needs more than 'basics'

The latest flurry of letters over the defeated bond issue have made some valid and not-so-valid points.

Yes, the school board must try to convince "no" voters to become "yes" voters. Perhaps this can be accomplished by, once again, showing the voters how our district's expenses stack up against other districts. As for a 50 percent pay cut for Gary Haner and the rest of the administrators, let's be realistic. I suggest the school board publish the information again, and the voters can decide if our officials are overpaid.

These "frivolous extras" the school board wants will provide added dimension to our children's education. If a pool is not worthwhile, if a swimming team is frivolous, why not cancel athletics altogether? While you're at it, let's cancel all music and art programs to save a few bucks. If all we need are the "basics," we can eliminate Latch Key. Let's stop running buses, too. They didn't have buses in the old days. What's good enough for Gramps is good enough for me. If we followed through and provided only the "basics," the "no" voters would raise Cain with the board.

Education in the '90s requires more than the basics. As citizens of this community, we owe it to our kids to provide the best education possible. By the time our elementary students graduate from high school, a "basic" education won't cut it. In fact, a "basic" education won't cut it today.

Businesses unfair to teen-agers

I am a teen-ager in the Clarkston area. I would like to address an issue of growing concern to me.

As a minor, I am often discriminated against in local businesses. I go into shops, such as a bake shop, and am not served. I am ignored like I don't exist.

I go to the movies and other establishments catering to all age groups and am deliberately overcharged. I recently went into a roller skating rink with two of my friends, and we were overcharged by $6. When we protested, the cashier "re-figured" our price and changed the figure. Except then we were overcharged by $8. We weren't with our parents, so no matter how much we complained, there was no change. Because of that horrendous expenditure, we had no money left, and we all still had to eat dinner.

Contrary to popular belief, parents don't just hand their teen-agers money. I have worked summers at farmer's market since I was 8 to acquire money. I have to get up at 4 a.m. just to earn spending money! I'm saving money to go to college. I can't afford to be overcharged like that as often as I am.

I am a straight "A" student, a member of many school groups, and I am also a member of the Flint Youth Wind Ensemble at Flint Institute of Music; I am hardly the type of person who would shoplift. Most merchants in this area treat me like they expect me to steal. I have never shoplifted, and I never will.

I am tired of this harassment, and I really would like it to stop. I am treated like a juvenile delinquent wherever I go around here, and I'm tired of it.

I just wish the merchants of this area could just once look at our side of the issue and protect us, the customer.

New practice opens

Dr. Nedra Downing

Nedra Downing, D.O., recently opened a health care practice in Independence Township.

The physician-nutritionist has lived in the area since 1985 and specializes in a natural approach to health care.

Her office at 6300 Sashabaw Road, Suite C, is open 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. on Monday, Tuesday and Thursday, and 1-6:30 p.m. on Wednes-

According Downing, who previously worked at the Women's Health Center in Flint, prevention is a key to good health care "Often just a change in a diet can make a big difference in a patient," she said. "Using natural remedies to care for people is important to me.'

Downing said she's happy with her location. "Clarkston is a very nice place to practice," she said. "So far the response has been terrific.'

Downing offers many health care programs, such as general practice, care for adolescents to senior citizens, physical exams and others.

New recreation programmer named

Ray Kubani, an employee with the Independence Township Parks and Recreation Department, has been promoted to recreation programmer. --

His promotion and $23,000 starting salary were unanimously approved by the Independence Township Board April 21.

The 26-year-old Independence Township resident will be taking over for Ron Davis, who resigned to take a similar position with the City of Southfield. Davis had been responsible for all of the athletics sponsored by the parks and recreation department.

Kubani is a 1983 graduate of Clarkston High School.

He is also an alumnus of Kent State University, Kent, Ohio, where he played four years on the basketball team.

He has worked part time for the parks and recreation department for the past year. He has supervised teen programs and activities, adult basketball and has worked with the junior baseball program. During his spare time, he referees collegiate basketball at the NAIA and Division III levels.

Planners OK 125 homes on Waldon

BY CURT MCALLISTER Clarkston News Associate Editor

By summer, residents around Waldon Road might notice new, $140,000-and-up houses going up in the area. Nearly a year after its introduction, a 151-acre housing development has been given the green light from the Independence Township Planning Commission.

On April 23, the planning commission unanimously granted final site plan approval for Waldon Lake Estates, which calls for 125 Eastern seaboard colonial homes, two private beach clubs and lots of nature trails. The site, which includes Gulick Lake, is south of Waldon Road, north of the Spring Lake subdivision.

It encompasses the former Camp Fire Girls' Camp

Oweki and 30 acres belonging to Waldon Road resident

The property is contracted to be sold to the Holtzman and Silverman Development Co., which won approval from the planners to cluster the lots together. Cluster lotting is the legal reduction of lot sizes — in those areas with public sewer services provided — to preserve such things as wetlands are wooded areas. The minimum lot sizes for cluster lotting is 12,000 square feet.

This development calls for single-family, detached homes with 100-foot lot widths.

According to Buzz Silverman, president of Holtzman and Silverman, construction of the new homes should occur later this summer. He said several showcase models will be available for public display by fall.

Library thanks community, celebrates history

A collection of historic artifacts from Clarkston's founding family will be returning to the area on Friday, May 1.

That day, the Clarkston Community Historical Society will celebrate the formal opening of the Heritage Room in the revamped Independence Township Library. The celebration is in conjunction with the library's "Applause! Applause!" gathering, which thanks the community for its support.

The celebration is 7-9 p.m. Friday, at the library on Clarkston Road.

The Heritage Room, which has also been known as the Local History Room, contains numerous books, letters, papers and artifacts of a historic nature relating to Clarkston and Independence Township. These items have been donated to the Historical Society over the years.

However, some of the finest donations have just arrived from Florida, having been donated by Jean Clark Rosborough.

The 84-year-old woman is a direct descendant of the founding family of Clarkston. She is the the daughter of Rollin Clark and the granddaughter of Washington E. and Eliza Clark. Washington Clark was the grandson of Jeremiah Clark, co-founder of Clarkston.

The items donated by Mrs. Clark Rosborough are from the Washington E. Clark home, which once stood near Middle Lake. The home, now destroyed, would have dated back to the 1860s.

Specific items donated include: a family bible, many photos of Washington, Eliza and Rollin Clark, two handmade quilts, teaching certificates for both Eliza and Washington, two tables from the home, several chairs, table linens and a large collection of Haviland china.

CHS accredited

For the 27th consecutive year, Clarkston Senior High School has been granted accreditation by the North Central Association (NCA).

CHS has been a member of the NCA since 1965 and has been accredited continuously since that time. Accreditation gives assurances that the school meets preconditions for effective education established by the NCA.

The NCA is the largest of the country's regional accrediting agencies. It's a voluntary membership league of more than 7,000 schools and 900 colleges and universities within a 19-state region. The association works with schools to improve educational goals through evaluation, accreditation and school improvement plans.

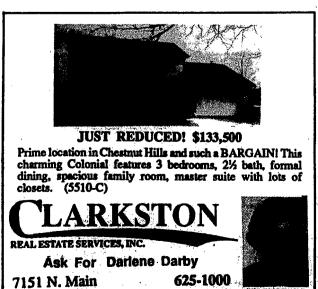

Global Releaf tree sale this weekend

Trees are for sale at low prices through Global Releaf of Michigan.

In the Clarkston area, the trees are available on Saturdays and Sundays, May 2, 3, 9 and 10, at Bordine's Better Blooms, 8600 Dixie Highway, Springfield Township. Proceeds benefit Global Releaf of Michigan, which plants trees across Michigan.

Bare root trees — 5'6" and 6'7" in height — will be sold individually ($15) and in lots of five ($70) and 10 ($100) trees.

Tree species offered include: Crimson King Norway Maple, Green Ash and Norway Maple.

Mrs. Clark Rosborough will arrive in Clarkston on May 1 to help celebrate the opening of the Heritage Room and the addition of the Washington Clark collection to the room.

Community groups that contributed to the library over the years will be thanked. They include: the American Legion Auxiliary Unit 63, Campbell-Richmond Post; Clarkston Area Optimist Club; Clarkston Community Historical Society; Clarkston Community Women's Club; Clarkston Farm and Garden Club; and Friends of the Independence Township Library.

Township seeks fire station bids

Builders interested in constructing a public safety complex have until Friday, May 22, to submit bids to Independence Township.

Plans and specifications can be picked up at the township hall, 90 N. Main St., Clarkston.

The complex was originally slated for the corner of M-15 and Dixie Highway, but area residents argued that township officials hadn't considered alternative building sites. Now, the township can weigh a variety of options and give everyone a chance, Clerk Joan McCrary said.

According to the township, all proposed sites must have frontage along M-15 and have acreage enough to support fire department administrative offices, Oakland County Sheriff's Department administrative offices and a new fire station.

For more information on the bidding process or proposed plans, call the township at 625-5111.

Applause! is an all-purpose community event.

"It's a chance for the community to get acquainted with the library, and it's a fund-raiser for books," said Lynch. "It's also to open up the historical room."

She noted that the admission to Applause! Applause! is the donation of one new hardcover book or $20 to the library book fund. Bookplates will be placed inside each book in honor of each donor.

Though the deadline to attend the event has passed, Lynch said the community still is invited.

"It's not too late; they can still come," she said.

"And a donation is as good as a book, particularly since we get a discount."

If you can't attend Applause! Applause!, you can still help the library by donating money or books. Lynch said many donate in honor of a special event: the birth of a child, a memorial for a loved one who has passed away, or other occasion.

For more information on the Clarkston Community Historical Society, call Kim Huttenlocher at 625-2499. For more information on Applause! Applause!, call the library at 625-2212.

Council appoints six

Six appointments were announced by the Clarkston Village Council April 27.

All of the positions were extentions, which will continue until the end of July.

Gordon Spelbring, David Huttenlocher and Paige Visser-Mack will continue on the planning commission, James Schultz and David Raup on the zoning board of appeals and Cynthia Chiapetta on the historic district commission. A vacancy remains on the wetlands review board.

The village becomes a city July 1, so new appointments for longer terms will be made in early August.

Howard had served as interim deputy clerk two weeks prior to her official hiring. For the past three years, Howard had been employed as a finance assistant in the clerk's office.

This position entailed payroll, journal entries, budget and working with the auditors and other financial reports with the finance director.

As the new deputy clerk, Howard will be acting as the right-hand person to township Clerk Joan McCrary. She will also oversee the running and vote tabulation of all township and school-related elections.

The last day to register to be eligible to vote is Monday, May 11. Those registering after 5 p.m. that day will not be eligible to vote at the annual school election.

This year, four items are scheduled to be on the ballot. They include: two school board seats, an intradistrict "schools of choice" proposal, a 19-mill renewal, and an additional 2-mill package to compensate for tax money lost to the state.

Weight Loss Surprises Researchers

WASHINGTON-A nutrition organizaton was hopeful that a nutritionally complete "hi-tech" food tablet would help erase world hunger problems, until a study revealed that one of the ingredients could cause significant weight

Although other studies and scientists may not agree, researchers in Europe found that the ingredient, a natural plant colloid, actually caused people to lose weight, even though specifically instructed not to alter normal eating patterns, according to one study published in the presti-gious British Journal of Nutrition; Researchers in an earlier study had speculated that the weight loss was due to a decrease in the intestinal absorption of calories.

While the project of National Dietary Research, aptly named Food Source One, would not be used to successfully fulfill its original goal, the formula which has since been improved with other natural colloids has been a windfall for some overweight people. A Daytona Beach, Florida woman fighting a weight battle for 12 years used the product on the recommendation of her physician and lost 30 pounds. She stated, "Not only have I lost 30 pounds but my cholesterol has dropped from 232 to 143. I have two closets full of clothes which have not fit me in two years that I can now wear." In a separate report, a telephone interview revealed that a Wilmington, North Carolina pharmacist lost 14 pounds in 3 weeks on the product and was never

MOVE IN BEFORE SETTLEMENT?

Sales Manager "Let's discuss your Career in Real Estate Sales"

HON HOGGE

OUESTION: A prospect wants to buy my home, but says he will not have the money for a couple of months. Should I let him move in before we finalize the sale?

ANSWER: One of the best ways to kill a sale is to allow a prospective buyer to move in before settlement. He may keep finding things wrong with the house, keep insisting they be fixed, or even worse, demand that an adjustment be made in price.

Sometimes the result is even more disastrous. The seller becomes disgusted with all the alleged complaints and calls the whole sale off. It is better to let a house sit empty than to let a prospective buyer move in before closing the sale.

LETTING A PROSPEC TIVE buyer move in before closing the sale is asking for trouble.

Kiev Rotary Club has Clarkston connection

The Clarkston Rotary Club has played a part in creating the first Rotary Club in Ukraine.

Rotary International, an association of service clubs, has announced that the provisional Rotary Club in Kiev, which has existed for several months, will be awarded a charter as the first official Rotary Club in Ukraine. The club has 70 members.

The charter award ceremony takes place Saturday, May 9, in the Kiev Palace of Culture during a gala banquet. In attendance will be the president of Rotary International, Rajendra K. Saboo; members of the Rotary hierarchy; representatives of the six Western Rotary Clubs that co-sponsored the Kiev club; guests from various Rotary Clubs in the United States, Canada, Europe and Australia; and many local guests.

The president of Ukraine, Leonid Kzauchuk, was scheduled to participate, however, will not be able to do so because of his trip to Washington, D.C., on that date.

Lubomyr Hewko, member of the Clarkston Rotary Club and one of the principal organizers of the Kiev Rotary Club, said that preparatory work to organize a club in Kiev dates back to 1989.

It began under President Ron Davis, whose support in 1990 enabled the first dialogue with Kiev. It showed the first solid signs of success under President Dick Beardsley during his 1990-91 office term. Now, under President Brent Cooley, the first milestone will be realized when the club is charted in May, said Hewko.

"The presence of Rotary clubs in Ukraine can be most beneficial to the country because this opens a path for influx into the country of a variety of humanitarian interactions and aid," said Hewko.

"For instance, Rotary Foundation, the financial base of Rotary, appropriated $225 million in order to eliminate polio in North Africa. This project is now nearing a successful completion," he said.

In addition, said Hewko, the Inaugural Charter Banquet, the charter festivities in Kiev, will include an evening of folk songs and dances, exhibits of arts and crafts, boat excursions on Duipro River, and several press conferences.

REALTORS

The various programs begin on Friday, May 8, and

ROTARIANS from Clarkston and six cosponsoring clubs of the Kiev club meet in Edinburgh, Scotland, to plan the chartering end on Sunday, May 10.

Hewko, who has relatives in Ukraine, said it was a challenge to create a club in the new, independent republic of Ukraine.

"Organizing a Rotary Club in Eastern Europe posed unique problems," said Hewko, chairman of the Clarkston Rotary Club International Service Committee. "The Rotary Motto 'Service Above Self' is not well understood there.'

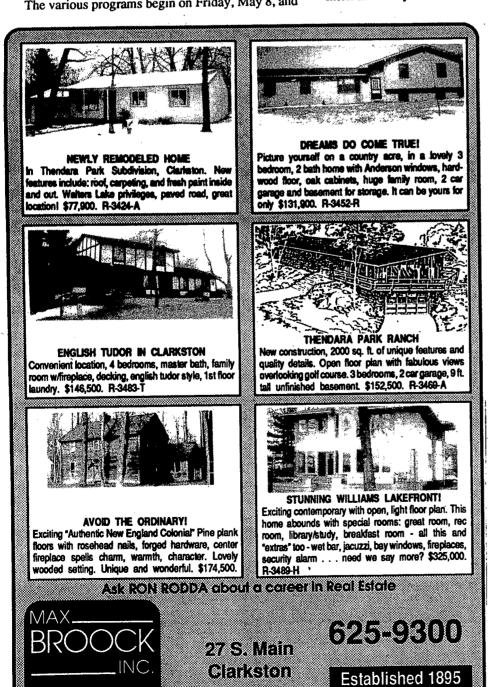

Western-style service clubs were outlawed under the former communist regimes, and conversely, Rotary International by-laws barred formation of Rotary clubs in activities. Lu Hewko (far right) of Independence Township represents the Clarkston Rotary Club.

countries that violated human rights of their citizens.

"Now that most of the former Russian colonies declared themselves independent democratic republics, the process of introducing Rotary there will be easier," Hewko said.

It's not surprised that the Clarkston Rotary Club is so heavily involved, said Hewko. Over the years, Clarkston has established a tradition of interest in international activities through sponsoring foreign student exchanges, professional fellowships and through frequent attendance of Clarkston Rotarians at foreign club meetings whenever they visited abroad.

Friendly first-graders

A first-grade unit entitled "Good Friends, Good Times" from the new Houghton Mifflin reading series inspired these Andersonville Elementary School students in Elizabeth Bisbikis' class to write and draw about friends.

Desperate Thoughts

By Kerry Kelly, 9th-grader

As I close my eyes I think about why I exist or at least what the point of existing is. Do I really have any importance in this world? I search deeply to find the very darkest, smallest part of my mind. This is a very special part that I have never found and some people never find. I am hoping the answers to my questions are just hidden. I think about nothing other than these questions. I think as though there is no world, no people, no existence. I search deeper and deeper within myself. Although I have not yet answered my questions, I begin to uncover secrets.

These secrets might be the answers to my questions. I'm not sure yet, but I am soon to discover, I hope. These secrets I realize are my true thoughts and opinions, my own beliefs about myself. These thoughts are my own, not the ones I have decided upon because of society's influ-

My breathing is very heavy now. I can hear it clearly. I begin to hear other voices within me. They may be mine, or they may be other people's. Then again, there are no people, remember? I guess they could be mine. I'm not sure though. I'm not sure about anything anymore. I think I'm in a state of insanity. I know I am. I start to feel sick and desperate inside. I am lost in myself, and I can't return to normal. Now I am scared. Certain things are introduced to me, new feelings. I try to stop, but I can't. I'm not sure what's happening. I try to calm myself or whatever is controlling me, but nothing is changing. Maybe I have discovered the real inside me. I am afraid I have lost my physical me. I guess this isn't really a big loss

I'm not sure what direction I'm headed in, but I think it's for the better. I don't think my situation is actually improving; I just think I'm starting to accept what's happening to me. Since I am starting to accept these new feelings, I am able to mentally grip something and slowly return to my old self. I am back physically and mentally, although something is different. I didn't exactly answer the questions I intended to, but I have discovered things about myself and my true views of life. I have come to a conclusion about the meaning of life. I think it's different

I now understand that what I feel and think is OK. I should never be afraid to stand up for my own beliefs and do what I want to do. These things will change the way I act toward everything and everyone. It's almost as if this were a new beginning for me. Thank you, God.

Even though I hope to never return to my sudden state of insanity, I am glad I experienced it. For I know things about myself that most people never now about themselves. I am no longer afraid.

Life

Life is a twisted, bumpy road. Many people to meet, many hands to hold. Many joys undiscovered, many secrets untold.

Many people who care, many things are unfair. Many troubles to bear, a struggle, a strife.

Night and Day

By Jeff Roselli, 8th-grader When the sun ducks, Out of sight, Everything around us, Becomes night. And people all over Whether a city or a park, Notice everything around us. Turning very dark. Nocturnal creatures, Rule the skies, And everything closes, Including many eyes. Parents across the land, Send their children to their beds. To sleep and to relax, To rest their little heads. This is the time of day, That I've come to love. Where there are no worries, No push or shove, But then comes morning, And the sun leaps to the sky, There is no darkness, Tonight we say goodbye. Now there are many, Welcoming the day, But I still love the night, I only wish it would stay. Since I must now wait, Until another night comes. I cannot waste my time, Twiddling my thumbs. Instead I must try, To work as hard as I can, For I have things to do, Just as every woman and man. So I must continue, Working and wishing. Hoping I'll find the night,

Exploring a New Beginning

By Megan Schlicher, 7th-grader

The climber grabbed the jagged rock edge with a strong, gripping hand. Rock fell down and down ... hundreds of feet. The climber looked up at the sky, a blue desert stretched across the mountains. Shadows creeped along the rocks as the spring wind blew his jacket edge. Pull by pull and shiver by shiver the climber came to his

Mikhail Gorbachev and Boris Yeltsin shook each other's hands with respect. The agreement was settled. Yeltsin's Commonwealth of Independent States would replace the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics. Their minds tolled and tossed about the ideas within their hopes and fears. A bright light flashed, and a press picture was Mary slowly walked along the cracked sidewalk that led to her new school. Her head hung low as she looked down on a small stone that she kicked with each rhythmic step. The cool fall breeze gently tugged at her ruffled jacket edge. Her cold red hand reached out and pulled the unzipped jacket opening closer to her chest. She shivered as she peered up through the stripped trees at the cloudless fall sky and then lowered her head to rest her gaze on the front stairs of her new school. But then to her surprise, a girl waved to her ...

Lucy waited patiently at the front window overlooking a yard and a busy road. Her mom frantically raced around to make the final last-minute cleanup. Her mother came over and placed a small decorative party hat on Lucy's head. Lucy played with it and struggled to get it off. She wiggled around like a bug within her chair until a car pulled into the driveway. Lucy gave up on the hat and shrieked with excitement ...

The Boss Kettering Award, named for GM's late vice president and inventor, Charles F. Kettering (1876-1957), who himself held more than 140 patents, encourages, recognizes and rewards GM inventors for technical creativity and leadership.

Along with a trophy, each winner also receives a monetary stipend.

"The Kettering legacy continues at GM," said GM Chairman Robert C. Stempel. "Through their inventions - from advances in electronics and brake systems to more efficient manufacturing processes — these inventors have helped ensure that General Motors will remain at the forefront of technology development and the auto industry."

More than 200 GM employees have received the award since it was initiated in 1976 to commemorate the 100th anniversary of Kettering's birth.

Office Hours:

I have always tried to treat patients with one thing in mind. That's to be the patient's friend. This doesn't mean the physician can just let people go on doing whatever they feel like doing; but, I realized early on that it can be very hard for people to do what's right to get well. People really need flexibility, understanding and, most importantly, compassion from their physicians.

This is our philosophy at the Community Health Care Center. I am very pleased with the team of physicians, nurses and support staff we have assembled. In addition to our Family Physicians, we offer a host of Specialists so that people can receive the care they need in one place. We have evening hours for Urgent Care services. We also present a regular schedule of health education programs. Still, at the center of all we do is the Family Physician. I see a thrust in health care back to the Family Physician precisely because people like the caring, involved way we try to help them.

Rush Road Reports By Don Rush

Grand Am -- younger drivers will like the looks

Pontiac's 1992 Grand Am is a redesigned Grand Am. According to the folks at Pontiac, the company wanted to make some changes with this line.

They wanted a newer look for 1992, not so much that it would turn off people and bare no resemblance to previous years' designs, but enough to attract some new blood. Pontiac intends to grab a larger share of the compact sedan market. With that in mind, this is the first complete redesign for Grand Am since the 1985 model year. From 1991 to 1992, they eliminated 266 parts on the Grand Ams.

I think it works. I test drove the Grand Am SE (four door) sedan. It's a good looking vehicle. very contemporary. I picture young professionals driving the car, because of the looks, cost and highway gas mileage. That said, here's what the marketing types at Pontiac have come up with.

Nearly 70 percent of the sedan buyers are married, versus about 45 percent for the coupe. Women will comprise over half of the buying segment. The target buyer group is 30-45 years old, with an annual household income of $40,000 to $50,000. (So, what do I know?) Grand Am offers standard anti-lock brakes and a powerful 3.3 liter V6 engine with a starting price of $11,899 for coupe models and $11,999 for sedans. Gas mileage ranges from 19 in the city to 29 on the highway.

Okay, it looks sporty, it costs under $20,000, and gets decent gas mileage, but how does it ride? Grand Am handled very well on any curve Oakland County has thrown at me. It's a tight car and also responsive when you need it to be. Very little road noise.

I did, however, feel a little cramped inside. The seats were comfortable and all, I just felt cramped. Maybe I felt this way because you sit low in this car. One passenger in the seat next to the driver complained the handle above his door hit him in the forehead whenever I made a turn. He's about 6-feet tall (This handle is the one that hangs down from the roof for passengers to latch onto when the driver makes a sharp, unexpected turn). Tall folks might want to consider this.

I think Grand Am will continue to be Pontiac's most popular model. It's a good looking, nice handling sport compact car. Highlights: styling, inside and out

Indian Springs Metropark, April 23. (Photos by Curt McAllister)

Pioneering pupils

CHRIS STAUFFER, 9, dips his homemade candle into some dye to transform its color from white to yellow.

AMY TIBEDEAU, 7, and her mom, Joanne, team up to complete a woodpunch project. The activity gave the children a chance to see how pioneers made decorative wood works. The pupils also dipped candles, made paper and spun rope that day.
