$1 million slashed
Prepared for the worst

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Associate Editor

The Clarkston school district is already preparing itself for the worst by cutting $1.1 million from next year's budget.

The Clarkston Board of Education approved these cuts 6-0 on April 27. Trustee Joseph Helpert was absent.

Listed among these cuts is the layoff of 11 school teachers — saving the district about $175,000. The layoffs go into effect at the end of this school year.

However, these cuts can be eliminated if the voters approve a two-mill proposal June 8. The two-mill package is proposed to offset a projected loss of $1.2 million to the school district next year.

One mill is $1 for each $1,000 in assessed property valuation. For example, the owner of a $100,000 home assessed at half the market value ($50,000) would pay an extra $100 per year in school taxes if voters approve the two mills.

According to Superintendent Gary Haner, the projected $1.2 million setback is the result of a statewide tax freeze and various legislative cutbacks.

The school board's approved cuts include:

- Non-personnel reductions, such as teacher retirements, fewer substitute teachers, reduced overtime for

Two computer proposals on hold

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Associate Editor

A pair of local parent-teacher organizations (PTO) have instructed the Clarkston school district to put their schools' loan requests for new computer equipment on hold for now.

The PTOs for both Andersonville Elementary and North Sashabaw Elementary had loan requests pending with the Clarkston Board of Education. Each school sought loans of about $30,000 apiece, so they could develop new computer rooms in their respective schools.

However, the two schools have decided to hold off on the requests for six months to a year, so a districtwide technology request can be made to the public.

The PTOs' change of heart came after the administration recommended that the loans be denied at the school board's April 27 meeting.

"I'm not denegrating the efforts of the PTOs, but we need equity across the board," said Dave Reschke, director of staff development and curriculum. "Let's see if we can do this in an equitable fashion by putting it before the community. If it fails, we'll circle the wagons and see what we can do from there."

Reschke added that support staff would need to be hired to supervise and implement the new systems. He said this would not be possible, due to the impending lay off of 11 instructors in the district.

Vice President Karen Foyteck agreed with Reschke's recommendation.

"If we don't have the personnel to take care of a lab, then we'll have $33,000 worth of unused equipment," she said. "It's a terrible quandary to be in, but no one has shown me how we can support this equipment."

Treasurer Paul Van Klaveren disagreed.

"My vote isn't for school favoritism but a move toward our district's technology goals," he said. "I just don't feel we can miss one more day and keep children from taking advantage of new computers."

President Thomas Howard said the board wouldn't be in this predicament if it hadn't approved an athletic booster club loan a couple months ago.

"In my opinion, a school board isn't the place to receive a loan," he said. "If I could take my vote back on the athletic (booster club) building loan I would.

Cleanup days set

Goodbye junk, hello cleanliness!

Area residents may clean up their own property or pitch in to clean up the neighborhood in the next two weeks.

The Independence Township Board has established township Cleanup Day on Saturdays, May 9 and May 16. That means that, for a small fee, residents may dump trash 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Department of Public Works, 6050 Flemings Lake Road (off Clarkston Road). Proof of residency is required.

A fee schedule follows:

Vehicle	Per load
Automobile	$5
Auto w/single-axle trailer	10
Pickup truck or van	10
Pickup truck w/single-axle trailer	25
Flatbed single-axle truck	25
Dual-axle trailer	25
5-yard dump truck	25
Tires, limit of 10,
from passenger cars and trucks	2

Material that won't be accepted includes: fuel oil drums, barrels, propane cylinders or storage tanks; automobiles or vehicles of any kind; no chemicals of any kind. For more information, call the township hall at 625-5111.

School board cuts $1.1 million

hourly staff and a freeze on per-pupil allocation, totaling $691,226.

■ Support staff reductions, from areas such as the grounds, transportation and custodial departments, totaling $212,900.

■ Instructional staff reductions totaling $175,000.

Groups drop request for computer money

"I think the board made a terrible mistake in granting the loan because it set a very poor precedent," he added.

In the end, the board was split on the matter and voted 3-3 to deny the loan requests. Trustee Joseph Helsen was absent from the meeting, causing the even-numbered vote.

A tie is considered a failed motion because majority approval is needed.

President Howard, Sheila Hughes and Foyteck voted to deny the loan requests, while Kurt Karlstrom, Janet Thomas and Van Klaveren voted for approval of the loans.

The vote would have come before the school board again at the May 11 meeting, if the schools hadn't agreed to hold off on their proposals.

Superintendent Gary Haner said the school district will eventually put together a technology-based bond issue, which includes upgraded computer systems for all the schools. He said it won't be any time soon, though.

Haner said it would be futile to propose another bond issue so soon, considering the crushing defeat sustained by a recent elementary school bond issue April 11.

These cuts would go into effect July 1 if the two-mill package is defeated.

Perhaps more critical than the two-mill package June 8 is the renewal of an 19-mill operating package. As long as Haner's been in Clarkston, he said the public has never nixed an operating millage renewal.

However, fed-up voters are defying nearly everything in sight this year, and an operating renewal defeat could be devastating for Clarkston schools.

"If the renewal was voted down, the district, as we know it, wouldn't be able to function," Haner said. "I'm optimistic, though, because Clarkston voters have a long history of approving millage renewals."

The district's operating millage is presently 38.83 mills, which produces the $24.4 million budget.

Woman, 84, donates historic artifacts to library

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Associate Editor

Some bits and pieces of Clarkston's past have made their way back home.

They were donated to the Independence Township Library from a direct decendent of Clarkston's founding family.

Jean Clark Rosborough, 84, journeyed to Clarkston May 1 to officially present the library's Heritage Room with the historic treasures.

The items donated from Rosborough are from her grandfather's home, which once stood near Middle Lake. The Washington E. Clark residence, now destroyed, would have dated back to the 1860s.

Specific items donated include: a family bible; many photos of Washington, grandmother Eliza and father Rollin; jewelry; two handmade quilts; teaching certificates for both Eliza and Washington; two tables from the home; several chairs; table linens; and a large collection of Haviland china.

Rosborough presently lives in St. Petersburg, Fla., where she serves as a trustee in the Museum of Fine Arts.

Born in Pontiac, Rosborough has always been involved in "bookish" endeavors. She was graduated from high school at age 16 and immediately enrolled in Russelsage College, Troy, N.Y., where she received a bachelor of arts degree in history.

Rosborough eventually earned a master's degree in library science from the University of Syracuse, N.Y., in 1929.

Soon after, she returned to Pontiac and worked as an elementary school teacher, a librarian, and a reporter for the Pontiac Press. She moved back to New York in 1934 and married James Rosborough, an employee with the fledgling IBM corporation. The couple had one daughter, Ruth.

Her husband died in 1960, so Jean shed her apron strings and re-entered the workforce.

"After my husband died, I tried a little bit of everything because I didn't know what to do," she explained.

She eventually worked as director of the Vestal (N.Y.) Public Library from 1972-1979. She said it was quite a job, when you consider the new library was housed in a former shopping center.

For Rosborough, this visit to Clarkston was her first in nearly 35 years. She was notably impressed with the area.

"I can't get over all the beautiful homes," she said. "I'm also impressed with the upkeep of the Nelson Clark home on Main Street. Seeing that beautiful, old home sure means a lot to me."

When asked why she donated her family's heirlooms, Rosborough was frank.

graphs in an old family album. Rosborough, a Florida resident, is a direct descendent to the founding family of Clarkston. (Photo by Curt McAllister)

"At 84, what was I supposed to do with them?" she asked. "This is where they rightfully belong."

Rosborough said she felt a tinge of pride when visiting Clarkston, which her ancestors settled over 150 years ago.

"I'm very proud to be here," she said. "I definitely feel like a part of good history. I'm sure Jeremiah (Clark) would be proud."

Applause!

He takes his beliefs to the streets of Clarkston

David Kramer stood up for his convictions Friday, May 1, and attracted attention in downtown Clarkston in the process.

Kramer, the Independence Township assessor, took four hours personal time off work to carry a sign saying, "Protest the verdict. Call Washington."

It was a reaction to the Ventura County, Calif., jury's acquittal of the four white policemen charged with beating Rodney King, a black motorist in Los Angeles — an incident that was captured on video tape and shown across the country.

Kramer also gave slips of paper with the pertinent phone numbers (see below), so area voters can call government officials and ask that the four policemen be charged under civil rights violations.

"I am outraged at the injustice of the verdict in California," Kramer said. "It's clearly a case where the police went beyond the rights of apprehension. That puts the civil rights of all in jeopardy."

He noted that his method of demonstration was a peaceful expression of his outrage.

"I am saddened by the violence that's occurring right now (in Los Angeles)," he said. "That's not a proper response. That may overshadow the real issue here."

In Los Angeles, violence included widespread arson, shootings, robbings and lootings, which required city, state and national peace-keeping forces to maintain order.

The reactions of Clarkston-area residents to Kra-mer's demonstration Friday were mixed, Kramer said.

"Of all of the folks who responded, I would say 80 percent were favorable, and 20 percent or less were opposed," he said.

Those who voiced opposition — in addition to being louder — mostly talked about the violence in Los Angeles or about whether or not Rodney King was guilty.

But that's not the issue, said Kramer.

"This is not about whether Rodney King is a criminal," he said. "The behavior of the police is the problem."

Kramer offered the following phone numbers for those who would like to express opinions to government officials: U.S. Attorney General's office, 202/514-4718; Sen. Don Riegle, 202/224-4822; Sen. Carl Levin, 202/224-6221; Rep. Bob Carr, 202/225-4872; President's office White House Comments Line, 202/456-1111.

L.A. verdict sparks police discussion

Violence in Los Angeles, black motorist Rodney King, four white policemen, the U.S. jury system, and police procedures are the topics under discussion by local law enforcement officials.

Lt. Joe Quisenberry of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department (OCSD), commander of the Independence Township substation, said most sheriff's department employees have been talking about the issues all week.

"The reaction is there's an awful lot of anger over what's happening in L.A. right now," said Quisenberry. "The verdict in no way justifies the reaction."

When the all-white Ventura County jury acquitted four white policemen who were charged with beating black motorist Rodney King, shootings, lootings and fires erupted throughout Los Angeles, as well as in Atlanta. The videotape of the beating incident and the film clips of the violence following the verdict were shown widely across the country.

But the L.A. violence "was not a picture of an angry mob — it was a party," said Quisenberry.

For the most part, OCSD employees support the justice system, he said.

"Everyone here believes in the jury system, even though the tape appears to be very brutal. We don't know what went on," he said. "I'm still confident that we have the best criminal justice system in the world."

However, he noted that the officers weren't charged with simple assault, so the jury could easily have found them not guilty of stiffer charges.

He stressed that only those involved with the case know all the facts.

"I think it's a little unfair to sit here and try to make a decision on what they should and shouldn't have done," he said.

Quisenberry said an incident such as the beating of Rodney King is not likely to occur in Independence Township.

"That violates all our training policies; we're not trained that way," he said.

From the videotape of the beatings only, said Quisenberry, it appears as if the police officers' actions would have violated the policies in place in the OCSD.

"There's a big difference between violation of departmental policy and criminal assault," he added.

Julie Campe

It's been years since my grandmother died, but I still think of her often. While my memories of her are good, I can't help feeling sad.

I worry that her life was not happy enough, that she did not like herself enough, that I was not attentive enough.

White haired and quiet, she wore cotton print dresses and black shoes and usually an apron. She walked slowly and heavily and did not often laugh aloud.

She did not show the exuberance that was apparent in her children, who were always laughing and joking and teasing. They'd tease her, too, and she'd smile. And she always smiled to see her grandchildren.

But if you didn't talk to her, she would sit silently — even in a crowd — and would not invite herself into the conversation. Sometimes you would forget she was there.

Every once in a while, if she didn't know you were looking at her, you could see the sadness in her face.

I never asked her about that sadness, and now it bothers me. Was it grief over her deceased husband? Pain from arthritis? Regret over missed opportunities? Tiredness of life? Longing for ... what?

She never learned to drive and depended on relatives for trips to the grocery store and doctor's office and church. She rarely bought anything for herself and was overwhelmed when her children pooled their money and bought her a reclining chair, for instance, or new clothing.

Why didn't she learn to drive, though?

I never knew who her friends were. Did she have any?

The happiest I remember her ever being was during a visit from her cousin Lucy from California. The two laughed and talked, and you could tell they both had missed each other a lot. Lucy brought out the best of my grandmother. Grandma smiled all day and seemed more confident, more perky. But Lucy returned home eventually. Even so, for a few weeks afterward, my grandmother had a far-away look in her eyes rather than a sad look.

She believed in the wisdom of the folklore she had learned as a child. "If a pregnant woman touches a dead bird, it will mark the child," for instance. And she believed that girls should help in the kitchen and not talk too much and do housework without complaining. And boys, well, they should be endured.

She did not go for girls playing sports. "It might hurt your innards," she once told me, and I had laughed.

She tried to impart useful tips to me. "If you're working in the kitchen, it's best to keep the sink full of hot, sudsy water and wash up as you go along." I never once saw her throw away used aluminum foil or paper bags or even paper plates. She would simply brush off the crumbs, fold or flatten them neatly and stash them in a drawer.

When she was alone with one of her grandchildren, she seemed more like one of the kids — or perhaps we children allowed her to become one of us. Together, we would stir Red Pop into a glass of vanilla ice cream — she stirring as vigorously as the rest of us. She would share her sugar wafer cookies in vanilla, strawberry and chocolate flavors. And she would play "I Spy" for hours with us.

Later, she lived in group care homes for the elderly. Whenever she visited us, we would talk. Yes, the food there was good, she told me. The other residents were nice.

"But they ain't family," she said, purse in hand, awaiting her ride back to the home, even though it was early afternoon. She was tired, I guess.

I never visited her in those homes. It was too awful, somehow.

Editorial

Freedom of expression important

We've heard from lots of readers over the past few weeks about our decision to print some of the letters on our opinion pages. Most argued that one letter or another (or all) should not have been printed.

However, the letters-to-the-editor section of a newspaper provides a valuable public forum, an exchange of ideas, and an outlet for emotions.

We don't always agree with the viewpoints in the letters, but it's important that we print them.

For instance, in the case of the letters about Clarkston varsity coaches, the opinion pages allowed parents and others to express their frustration over team situations. It also allowed readers to offer support for coaches or policies.

And, for the record, we think varsity basketball coach Dan Fife has shown exemplary behavior on and off the court, and we hope he coaches Clarkston kids for years to come. But we thought it was important to let those with differing viewpoints be heard.

In another instance, a caller said we shouldn't have printed any letters written by children because the letters were all negative, the children didn't know anything, and they weren't yet citizens.

However, the right to free expression is extended even to the youth of the United States. And I, for one, am glad to see teen-agers taking the time to think about something that bothers them and to write a letter to the editor. That is precisely the type of citizen who is likely to contribute positively to the community. To make improvements, someone must first point out the deficiencies.

Letters to the editor are a way to exercise that freedom of expression. JLC

Of cats and fishing

The only question facing the Charles Stilwells before taking a vacation was what to do with their cat . . . Bimbo.

The Oxford couple's motorhoming destinations were simple: Lake Tahoe to see daughter, Holly, and on to Carefree, AZ for a meeting.

Actually, Bimbo's carekeeping wasn't a problem. Their son, Lee, said he'd feed the feline and worry about her for them.

With that assurance there was never a reason to call Lee. Upon arriving home April 22 they found a note from their son:

"Hi Folks. Mon. 4-20.

"Bimbo has gone insane. She is currently outside being punished for her rebellious behavior.

"Since Thurs. 4-16, she has been getting into the basement fireplace, eating soot and ashes and defecating under the laundry tub and upstairs next to the swivel rocker.

She got into her food locker and ate the entire bag of dry food in four days.

"Call me when you get in."

Then there was this follow-up note:

"Tue. 4-21

"Came back to check on Bimbo, seeing as she was roughing it outside. The house was trashed again.

"So, in conclusion, unfortunately you have a problem of a different nature, perhaps a raccoon.

"But I don't know. Look on the counter and you'll see the footprints. Whatever it is it comes in through the chimney."

Charlie said, "I've lived in the house for over 20 years and they've never bothered me before. Guess I'll have to put a screen over the chimney."

Yeah, Charlie. And apologize to Bimbo.

The 1992 Michigan Fishing Guide has a full-color picture of a bluegill coming out of the water with a lure in its lip.

The picture, the Guide says, is from the "Hunting and Fishing Library, Minnesota."

I had lots of time to read the Guide while opening trout fishing seasons in the UP. I didn't, however, have to concern myself with the daily limits.

Pansy Baldin and I fished planted ponds for about 16 hours and failed to get even a bite. We blamed it on: 1. Cold weather; 2. Rainy weather; 3. High water; 4. Cloudy water; 5. Elimination of the major feeding phase by Gov Engler.

It certainly could not have been us. We have a combined total of over 100 years fishing experience. Note I said fishing, not catching.

Besides, we talked to lots of other fish-less worm drowners. They blamed their no-catch on: 1. Otter got 'em; 2. Bad luck; 3. Elimination of the major feeding phase by Gov Engler.

We had high hopes when we headed north. One in-the-know person told us they hadn't stocked the pond we usually fish, "because there are too many big ones in there now."

Every year the in-the-know people have another story.

My apron

When I was 23, my mom made me a yellow gingham apron, trimmed in rick rack and lace. I learned to keep house, cook and sew and to begin to raise our family in my yellow gingham apron.

Over years of wearing, my apron became synonymous with love. With my apron wrapped around me, I made formula and washed the dishes, splattered cookie dough and flour from my pies, and kept dryer when I was bathing children. It hung more limply with the years when it was time to rest.

My apron did not fetter me or seem a symbol of drudgery from the past. It became a sign of joy, for I wore it most when I was sharing "Me" with others. It was a sign of freedom; when I wore it I was truly free to be myself. It was my kitchen companion; it became a garden coverlet and my painting smock as well. My mob, "a household engineer," covers spectrums broader than the modern age of technology would define. My apron is a symbol, for me, of the "s ... miles" I've left behind.

Today, I have three aprons: another from my mother and two that I have sewn. I have five children who are learning that a "modern" mother need not hide her apron or her dignity in life. There is no greater occupation than to raise the generation next to come and to do it well, through selfless hours in an apron full of love.

Rachael Ann Hasso (Buckner) resides on South Holcomb Road, Clarkston.

Is L.A. the sign of things to come?

Curt McAllister

Like millions of other Americans last week, I was astonished and angry when I learned that four Los Angeles police officers, charged with beating black motorist Rodney King, had been acquitted.

I remembered thinking, "How could this be?" Was that often-played, video taped account of the beating just a figment of everyone's imagination?

These questions were put on the back burner, though, as the world watched L.A. erupt. Fueled by anger and a disregard for authority, the "city of angels" was transformed into a living hell.

Motorists were dragged from their vehicles and beaten. Firefighters and cops were murdered. Businesses were looted and burned.

For two days and two nights, anarchy reigned. In the wake of the riots, about 58 people lost their lives and over 2,000 were injured. Damage estimates are in the hundreds of millions of dollars.

So,

Undoubtedly, the federal government will conduct its own investigation and eventually charge the four cops with violating King's civil rights. I imagine the four will probably see some sort of prison time to appease the angry masses.

But what of the grieving relatives and the business owners who had every penny sunk into their vandalized stores? The riots may have started out in defiance of the verdicts, but eventually a darker side of human nature took over.

I've seen similar idiotic acts of mass destruction and violence at some of our college campuses. Even though killings weren't involved, massive property damage and numerous assaults were usually the outcome of these campuswide parties.

Be it L.A. or a college campus, such riots occur from the disregard for authority and a "mob mentality" that makes a crime OK if everyone is doing it.

In the opinion of numerous political analysts and behaviorists, this type of full-fledged riot could be the first of many to come. With economic strife and racial tensions at the forefront, social revolts could be more commonplace in the 1990s.

Some analysts are even predicting that the prospective social conflicts of this decade could overshadow those of the 1960s. Besides racial strife, there are numerous volatile issues facing this country. The unavailability of a national health care system, high unemployment rates, the dwindling of the middle class, abortion and lack of faith in national leaders are just to name a few.

Just possibly, the L.A. riots have provided us with a glimpse of the future. Or maybe it was merely another growing pain in our country's 216-year existence.

In either case, buckle up, America, because we could be in for a bumpy ride.

Insurance tale tells why we all lose

Jim Fitzgerald

Everyone agrees car insurance rates are too high, but there's much disagreement on what to do about them. AAA Michigan, the state's largest auto insurer, has several suggestions on how to cut consumer costs, and wants people to vote on them in November. One consumer - L. Traicoff - made a cost-cutting suggestion of her own and she is astonished and angry because, she says, AAA brushed her off.

Traicoff's suggestion was that AAA should take action against a car insurance scam she says she was invited to use to avoid paying a $75 towing charge. Traicoff doesn't know how widespread the maneuver might be. Maybe it's too small to affect insurance rates. But she does know she's "livid about all the dishonesty" at AAA's apparent willingness to go along with it.

Traicoff, 23, resides in Grosse Pointe Woods and is project manager for Marketing Force Inc. in Rochester Hills. She is also honest and, she concedes, perhaps a bit naive. She insists she can hardly believe what happened to her. I think most people will find it easy to believe. So what you think.

It all began the night of March 27 when Traicoff and several friends, in two cars, went to the Road House, a popular country bar in Warren. The parking lot was jammed so, at the suggestion of a Road House parking attendant, Traicoff parked two buildings down the road, in the Bonanza Bowling Alley lot. When she returned from the Road House a couple of hours later, her car was gone. A bowling alley employee told her it was towed because the lot was for Bonanza patrons only.

Traicoff's next stop was at South Macomb Towing at 8 Mile and Ryan. "They were very nice, even though they interrupted their card game," Traicoff said. "I paid the $75 towing fee, and a man gave me a blank receipt. He said I should write 'Road Service' on it and my insurance company would reimburse my $75."

But that would be dishonest! It wasn't a road service call. It was an impoundment. Traicoff wasn't going to pay for $75. That is what she told a couple of AAA employees by phone a few days later, she said. After all, if it had been a service call, she would have phoned AAA, not South Macomb Towing.

Traicoff expected AAA to be as angry as she was at the towing company. She expected AAA to investigate her charge. But no.

"I was told an investigation wouldn't be worth it because it would only be my word against theirs," Traicoff said. "I was also told that if I waited a few days and then submitted my claim for road service, nobody would know the difference and I'd get my $75 back."

"That makes me so mad. That forces all AAA customers to pay for a scam. I can't believe it."

So did Traicoff give up and take the $75, like most people would? No, she phoned me. I phoned Tom Freel, AAA public relations manager. He questioned the AAA employees who had talked to Traicoff and reported back that they denied her version of their conversations.

Subsequently, another AAA executive phoned Traicoff. "He apologized and said they would check on that towing company. He also said AAA would never pay my $75 towing fee," Traicoff said.

As for South Macomb Towing, manager Gary Hertz told me no one there gave Traicoff a blank receipt or suggested she participate in an insurance scam.

So you can believe what you want. You can believe Traicoff would tell a lie that cost her $75. Traicoff says she is about to buy a new car and might switch insurance companies.

I believe Traicoff is truly a rare bird. I believe if 100 people received the $75 scam offer that she says was offered her, 99% of them would grab the money and run.

I believe if there were more honest citizens like Traicoff, it would be a good idea for AAA to hire them. That's my suggestion on how to cut auto insurance costs.

Saving lives

I would like to express extreme gratitude on behalf of the community's patients to the citizens of the Clarkston area.

Their generosity in giving a pint of blood has definitely helped to save the lives of many people and given them another chance to enjoy life.

While the spring season is giving new life to nature's beauty, it is heartening to see hospital patients being given new life through your blood donations.

The groups in this area deserving recognition for drives in March and April are:

Clarkston United Methodist Church	51 donors
American Legion Chief Pontiac Post	37 donors
Clarkston High School	113 donors
Our Lady of the Lakes Catholic Church	59 donors
STRIVE Alternative Education	42 donors
St. Anne Catholic Church	90 donors
St. Daniel Catholic Church	120 donors

The amount of blood the Red Cross must collect daily is 1,200 pints. The next Clarkston bloodmobile visit is set for Saturday, May 16, in the Clarkston Depot Park during Fun Daze.

A+ mothers

On Friday, April 3, the students of Clarkston Elementary had the opportunity to be "Mad about Science" for the entire day. This was due to a special event called, "Festival of Science."

Thanks to everyone who was involved. I'm sure that our students gained much from this day, while enjoying it, too.

But the really thank-you should go to the co-chairs, Corena Bell and Sherry Regiani. Without these two, this event would not have occurred. These moms put in countless hours, as they so often do on numerous other programs, to enrich our children's lives. I, myself, along with others I'm sure, would like to thank these to generous people publicly.

Thank you, Corena Bell and Sherry Regiani, for a job well done, once again.

Patient, helpful

I recently had the opportunity to meet a few of the fine people employed by United Artists Cable Co. in Clarkston.

After first discussing arrangements with Sally Salter, who was most helpful, I was informed that Joel Burnell would be the person responsible for filming a video of the special event, "Festival of Science," at Clarkston Elementary.

On the day of the event, Joel and his assistant, Amy, roamed through the halls with patience and professionalism, which made me proud to be their guide. After much conversation and a lot of work, the filming was done.

Reporter's Notebook

Who'd figure that Clarkston could somehow get dragged into the Rodney King affair?

Well, last week it was. The day after four police officers were acquitted of beating the Los Angeles man, south central L.A. was in ruins. That same afternoon, WXYT-Detroit commentator David Newman was discussing how the trial being held in Ventura County, a suburb of L.A., may have affected the outcome.

"To move the court case from L.A. to Ventura would be comparable to a Detroit-based case being moved to Clarkston or Warren," Newman said.

Perhaps it is a small world after all!

Springfield Township native Tim McCormick, who now plays professional basketball for the New York Knicks, made an appearance at a fund-raising party for L.

I would like to say thanks to Joel and Amy for all of their time spent at our school and for all of their additional time, which will be spent on editing the video. The video will be shown on cable-TV Channel 65 at a later date.

On behalf of Clarkston Elementary, thank you!
Nancy Licatovich

Dedicated staff

In honor of National Parent Teacher Association Teacher Appreciation Week, we would like to thank Principal Vincent Licata and Assistant Principal Jan Gabier, the wonderful teachers and all of the staff at Clarkston Junior High School.

These outstanding people perform daily miracles in the classroom that many of us take for granted. So for all of the time, talent and genuine caring these dedicated teachers give to our students, we would like to say, "Thank you."

Brooks Patterson April 29. Patterson, a Republican candidate for Oakland County executive, raised about $20,000 at the fund-raiser at Tradewinds Aviation-hangar at the Oakland/Pontiac Airport. Other guests included Detroit Pistons head coach Chuck Daly, Charlie Jones of the Detroit Red Wings and county and state elected officials.

In a seven-day schedule of fund-raisers, Patterson hoped to raise $250,000 in his bid to succeed Daniel T. Murphy as county executive. Murphy is retiring after nearly four decades at the helm of Oakland County government, the last 19 years as county executive.

Saile calls it quits

Nearly two years after accepting the post of Independence Township Board trustee, Jean Saile is stepping down.

She announced her intentions at the May 5 township board meeting.

"I'd like to announce that I will not be running for re-election for township trustee," she said that evening. "I just feel it's not wise to proceed. I have enjoyed myself, though."

Supervisor Frank Ronk said he was saddened by the news and complimented Saile for her dedication to the township.

"Your gain is our loss," Ronk told Saile. "You've been a great board member. You've come up with some good ideas, instead of creating (personal) ones. In your time here, you've served this township well."

Saile was named to the board June 19, 1990. She replaced William Vandermark, who resigned because he was moving to Springfield Township.

In her 24 years as a resident, the 61-year-old Saile served in several journalistic and community capacities. She was a former editor of The Clarkston News and also wrote for The Rochester News, The Oakland Press and The Detroit News.

Her community pursuits included two years as a member of the township's planning commission. She also served as the township's election precinct chairman in a general election.

Saile's vacant seat will be one of seven up for grabs this fall. Positions available include: supervisor, clerk, treasurer and four trustee spots. Each position has a term of four years.

Workers await pay from defunct ambulance company

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Associate Editor

Any chance of resurrecting the defunct Advance Medical Transport, Inc., (AMT) fell to the wayside last week.

According to co-owner Ronald LePere, the Clarkston-based ambulance company was unable to secure the necessary $200,000 to keep the 1-year-old enterprise afloat.

Negotiations between investors, bankers and attorneys reportedly fell through early last week. However, the final indicator was probably the sale of the company's seven ambulances to a carrier company in Genesee County.

The company's close-out has left its 51 employees angry, confused and scrambling for jobs. For the most part, they've given up hope of AMT ever bouncing back.

"As far as the employees are concerned, AMT is D.O.S. — dead on the scene," said paramedic David Wayland of Pontiac.

Paramedic Kevin St. Peter of Metamora is a little more graphic about his feelings on the closure.

"I think the employees got the shaft," he said. "I don't think it was a bad idea to close, then re-organize, but in the long-run it was us who ultimately got the shaft."

Wayland said AMT employees are still angry over the way upper management handled the ultimate closure of the business.

"If a company closes, you usually get a notice of closure, but we never got one," he said. "All we got, in terms of notification, was a call from headquarters to the dispatcher ordering the return of all our carriers that Friday (April 24)."

Paramedic Gary Zingler said the company's closure has financially crushed its employees. Besides being unemployed, he explained, many of the workers hadn't been paid in the month prior to the closure.

Zingler said nearly 30 of the 51 employees relied on AMT as their family's sole source of income and some have been forced to file for bankruptcy.

According to Randy Josey, AMT's vice president of marketing, the company owes more than $90,000 in backpay to all its employees. However, there's been no indication from upper management when the employees can expect to be paid or paid at all.

Many of the employees have applied for unemployment compensation and filed complaints with the state's wage and hour division in Lansing. However, it will probably take a month before any of the unemployment compensation kicks in.

But the workers say they need it now.

"For the past month, we've been working for money that was supposed to come," Wayland said. "The creditors are hounding a lot of us, and all we can make are promises."

"If it weren't for my roommates helping me out, I probably would have lost my truck to GM by now," he added.

Zingler said the workers feel shunned by a company they trusted to support them.

"We're all basically left out in the cold, and no one seems to give a damn. A lot of our past employers in the ambulatory field either won't take us back or say they'll pay us at beginning wages," Zingler said. "In my 11 years as a paramedic, I've had a gun pulled on me, been bit, punched and kicked. But this whole AMT affair probably bugs me more than any of those experiences."

"I really don't know how these guys (co-owners Ted and Chuck Engelmann) can sleep at night," he added.

In fact, Zingler and Wayland said, the workers blame the Engelmann brothers for their woes and not LePere, the third co-owner and a local physician.

"Dr. LePere was doing everything he could, like offering free medical care to us," Wayland said. "He has to know we appreciate everything he's tried to do for us in attempting to revive the company."

"For the most part, the workers blame the Engelmanns for the company's financial problems," he added.

The closure has also reportedly caused a rift between LePere and the Engelmanns. When asked if he intends to sever business ties with the Engelmanns and the Advance/Reliable ambulance company in Chicago, LePere said, "Absolutely."

Physician Ted Engelmann, who shares a clinic with LePere in Clarkston, said this decision was new to him.

"That's the first I've heard of this decision," Engelmann said. "We're all partners in that venture and I haven't received any legal notification of his intent."

"I think it's impossible for him to do so," he added, "because we're all bound by the company's liabilities."

Chuck Engelmann, president of AMT, was unavailable for comment from his Chicago office.

For now, Wayland said AMT's employees will continue to search for jobs. Luckily, he's found one — an ambulance service in Taylor — but he knows it will be hard for everyone to secure employment in an already saturated paramedic field.

"At this point, folks are taking any job to compensate for money they haven't seen in four weeks," he said. "You've got to do what you've got to do because creditors aren't known for their sympathy."

Wolves split with state's top baseball team

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Clarkston's varsity baseball team isn't afraid of anybody.

The Wolves, 12-4 overall and 9-1 in the Greater Oakland Activities League after a May 4 win over Pontiac Northern, split a doubleheader with Rochester May 2.

Rochester, the runner-up in the state finals last year, was rated first in the state in class A as it stepped on the Clarkston field.

The Wolves topped the Falcons, 7-4, behind six-hit pitching by Derek Wiley in the opener. The Falcons took the nightcap, 9-5.

Will Clarkston, unrated in the polls, finally get some respect?

"Hopefully, we might be (rated) after this week," said Clarkston manager Roy "Pops" Warner.

But Warner said his team is thinking about more than just the polls. His Wolves are on the brink of winning its first GOAL title in about five years. The Wolves have only lost once in the GOAL while Waterford Kettering has lost (at least) three times, Waterford Mott and Lake Orion have lost four and Brandon and Pontiac Northern fell a half dozen times.

"It doesn't make a difference who we're playing," said Warner about his team's confidence. Warner attributes much of that confidence to the Wolves' strong pitching and stingy defense.

Warner is especially impressed with his team because it only had a "32-minute spring training," the amount of time the Wolves were able to go outside in pre-season.

The Wolves' battle with Rochester might not have ended with the split. The two teams are in the same district and Clarkston will be out for revenge (the Falcons eliminated the Wolves in post-season action last year).

But until the districts, the Wolves' goal is the GOAL.

CLARKSTON 6, Pontiac Northern 5 (May 4 at Pontiac Northern)

Derek Wiley helped the Huskies with an error but the Wolf more than made up for it with a game-winning home run in the sixth inning.

The Huskies tied the game at 4-4 in the bottom of fifth. But Northern couldn't come back after Wiley's two-run blast.

Eric Ryan, 5-0, picked up the win in relief.

Wiley had a single with his homer. Mark White smacked two singles and a double and Jason Jarvis doubled and singled. Rochester 9, CLARKSTON 5 (May 2 at Clarkston - 2nd game)

Clarkston only trailed 6-5 after four innings, but the Falcons scored three in the fifth to put the game away.

The Wolves pounded out 10 hits in the loss. Matt Underwood doubled and singled (2 RBI) and Tom Doyon and Matt Seitz each had a pair of singles to pace the Wolves.

Aaron Phillips, 1-2, took the loss.

CLARKSTON 7, Rochester 4 (May 2 at Clarkston - 1st game)

A five-run fourth inning sparked Clarkston to a 7-4 win over Rochester.

Netters win twice with identical 6-1 scores

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Clarkston mowed down two league opponents with identical scores to raise its boys' varsity tennis record to 4-1.

Four of the Wolves' first nine scheduled matches this season were postponed because of poor weather.

The 4-1 mark puts Clarkston second in the Greater Oakland Activities League behind undefeated Lake Orion.

In addition to the make-up league matches, the Wolves have also added a tournament to their schedule. Clarkston will join Hemlock, the Cranbrook "B" squad, the Liggett "B" team, a team from Toronto and host Holly at the Holly Invitational May 9.

CLARKSTON 6, Waterford Kettering 1 (May 1 at Kettering)

Clarkston won three-of-four three-set matches in a 6-1 victory over the Captains May 1.

In No. 3 singles, Clarkston's Craig Coxen came back to down Matt Cooper 4-6, 6-3, 6-0. The Wolves' No. 1 doubles team of Matt Babcock and Brendan Kelly topped Jason Bennett and Paul Smith 6-1, 3-6, 6-1. Clarkston's No. 3 doubles team Renny Abraham and Jeremy Doty came back to life after losing the first set 0-6 but taking the next two 6-3, 7-5.

The Captains only win was in No. 2 doubles when Rich Blair and Ray Mollins edged Pat Wall and Navi Lamk 4-6, 6-3, 6-4.

Three Clarkston single players needed only two sets to stop the Captains. No. 1 Jason Gross crushed James Bejin 6-2, 6-1; No. 2 Bobby Brazier had few problems with Dakota Dennison 6-3, 6-1; No. 4 Mark Chamberlain demolished Greg Walden 6-2, 6-0.

CLARKSTON 6, Brandon 1 (April 27 at Clarkston)

A sweep in doubles and three-of-four wins in the singles earned Clarkston a 6-1 tennis victory over visiting Brandon April 27.

"They played well," said Clarkston coach Dick Swartout about his Wolves, "they played up to their abilities."

Last season the Wolves split in their two meetings against the Blackhawks.

Two of the doubles' matches went three sets. The No. 1 duo of Matt Babcock and Navi Lamk stopped Scott Randall and Mike Schmaltz 6-3, 2-6, 6-2, and the No. 2 team of Pat Wall and John Tan came back for a 1-6, 6-4, 6-0 win over Tod Tryska and Dave Nichols. Renny Abraham and Jeremy Doty, the Wolves' No. 3 team, topped Ajay Gupta and Matt Erickson 6-4, 6-2.

The Wolves won three singles matches. No. 1 Wolf Jason Gross defeated Brandon's primo player Primo Tongko 6-4, 6-0; No. 2 Bobby Brazier downed Aaron Elowski 6-3, 7-5; No. 4 Mark Chamberlain got past Mark Peterson 6-3, 6-2.

The lone win for the Blackhawks was in No. 2 singles action when Gary Cooper topped Craig Coxen 6-3, 6-1.

QUESTION: I have a choice of investing in two duplexes or a four-unit apartment house. Which makes more sense if the sales price and income are the same?

ANSWER: You will be better off financially with the most number of units in a building that you can afford rather than two separate buildings of half the number of units. The economic reasons are obvious. One lot, one tax bill, one oil tank, one boiler, one basic plumbing system and electrical system. The cost per unit decreases in direct proportion to the number of units. The greatest number of units you can get for your money, the better off you will be financially.

THE MORE the number of units in a building, the lower the per-unit upkeep cost.

Kickers stop top-rated 'Hawks ... for awhile

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

For about 25 minutes, the Clarkston girls' soccer team played even with the Class B-C-D No. 1 rated team in the state.

But Brandon broke the scoreless tie, took a 3-0 lead at the half and then finished with a 5-0 win.

The win on May 4 upped the host Blackhawks' record to 10-0 overall and 5-0 in the Greater Oakland Activities League.

Clarkston, whose only two losses in the league have been against Brandon, dropped to 4-2 in the GOAL and 5-4 overall.

"That's the best we've played," said Clarkston coach Dan Fitzgerald despite the loss. "We had them going for awhile. They were a little worried."

Fitzgerald praised three of his defensive players, Jenny Vasold, Audrey Schlaff and co-captain Rose Lazzari.

"They all played good on defense," said Fitzgerald.

However, the defense couldn't shut out all of the Blackhawks, especially Stephanie Randall who scored three goals for a hat trick.

Kate Knyzewski was in goal for the Wolves.

Fitzgerald said his squad has its sight on second-place and noted that Brandon is filled with seniors.

"Maybe we'll get them next year," said the coach.

CLARKSTON 4, Waterford Mott 1 (May 1 at Waterford)

Senior forward Sadie Caruso scored two goals and assisted on another in the Wolves' 4-1 victory over host Mott.

Clarkston opened the scoring early when Andrea Vasold knocked in a rebound five minutes into the match. Caruso assisted.

Caruso then scored on a break-away after getting an assist from Tonya Dylag.

Carrie Millen found the net from 20 yards out to make it 3-0 before the half. Janet Molen assisted.

In the second half, Caruso took a pass from Jenny Vasold and scored her second break-away goal of the match.

The Corsairs prevented Wolf goalkeeper Kate Knyzewski's shutout bid by connecting on a penalty kick with 10 minutes remaining.

"We played very well," said Clarkston coach Dan Fitzgerald, who, along with league-leading Brandon, had thought Mott could give the Wolves problems in the GOAL.

Holly 2, CLARKSTON 1 (April 30 at Holly)

Clarkston coach Dan Fitzgerald called an April 30 loss against Holly "a nightmare" and hopes his Wolves get the chance to wake up against the Bronchos in post-season.

"I hope we play them in the districts," said Clarkston coach Dan Fitzgerald, who said his team played "awful" against the hosts.

Clarkston looked as if it was going to blow the Bronchos away when Carrie Millen's corner kick was knocked in by Gabrielle Bielak just two minutes into the match.

second half.

"We pounded on their goal. It was just one of those days," said Fitzgerald.

The Wolves lost in spite of a solid game in goal by Lisa Brosofske.

Webber guest at camp

Chris Webber will be the guest speaker at the eighth annual Tim McCormick Basketball Camp.

Webber is the former Detroit Country Day High School star who helped the University of Michigan this year reach the finals of the NCAA tournament.

The week-long camp will take place from June 22-26 at the Clarkston High School gym. Boys and girls in grades 4-6 will meet from 7:30 to 9:45 a.m. Grades 7-9 will meet from 10:15 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. The cost is $70 and enrollment is limited to the first 80 campers in each session.

Registration forms, which are available at Clarkston schools and at the Clarkston News office, must be returned before June 10.

McCormick, a Clarkston High School and University of Michigan standout who is currently playing for the New York Knickerbockers, will conduct the camp. Clarkston varsity girls' basketball coach Larry Mahrie and some former Clarkston High School players will also assist with the instruction, which emphasizes offensive and defensive fundamentals as well as fun.

Ace at Pine Knob

The Pine Knob Golf Course has been dealt its first ace of the season.

On May 3, Jeffrey Greenberg of Farmington Hills, with a 7-iron, sank a hole-in-one on the par-3, 161-yard 15th hole. It was the first ace for Greenberg, who finished the round with an 82.

Witnesses were Michael Goodwin, Dan Lazar and Phil Goldsmith.

Mom finds rewards in raising 8

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Editor

When Ruth Brueck, 45, of Clarkston thinks about the skills she's used to mother her eight children, she thinks about her own mother, Elizabeth Monahan of Big Rapids.

"The person that I really got the love of mothering from is my mother," says Ruth, one of six children. "She is my very best friend in the whole world. I just love her. I give her credit for any good things I do — I learned it from her."

According to the Brueck children, Ruth learned her lessons well. The Middle Lake Road family consists of John, 22; Jim, 21; Mike, 20; Bill, 17; Anne, 15; Ben, 11; Tom, 10; and Matthew, 3. Oh, yes, there's also dad: Jim, 45, who works in engineering for General Motors Truck and Bus.

On a Sunday afternoon, Ruth, who teaches fiction through Clarkston's adult education, listens while six of her children explain what they like best about her.

"She's always there when you need her; she doesn't yell as much as my dad," Jim says, and the family breaks

A brief history of Mother's Day

Aspects of the modern-day observance of Mother's Day date to prehistoric times.

Ancient civilizations celebrated spring festivals dedicated to mother goddesses, especially Cybele. By 250 B.C., the Romans had adapted this rite to a three-day religious ritual, called Hilaria, honoring the feminine principle of life.

More closely related to creating the present Mother's Day is "Mothering Sunday" or "Mid-Lent Sunday," observed since the 17th century on the fourth Sunday of Lent. The Mother Church was honored as each Christian visited the church of his own baptism.

In England, apprentices and servants returned to their homes with a small gift or a "mothering cake" and a nosegay of wild flowers for their mothers. This custom persisted into the early 19th century. It met its demise during the Industrial Revolution.

Concerned for all neglected mothers, Anna M. Jarvis started Mother's Day in 11907. Jarvis arranged for a special mother's church service and asked all those attending to wear white carnations. She also inaugurated a letter-writing campaign to gain support for her project. This first service really honored Anna's mother rather than all mothers, but her idea took root.

Services multiplied the following year. By 1911, every state celebrated Mother's Day. On May 9, 1914, President Woodrow Wilson issued the first Mother's Day Proclamation, designating the second Sunday in May as Mother's Day.

Each year a similar proclamation has been issued by the president directing that the flag be flown from all government buildings "as a public expression of our love and reverence for the mothers of our country."

MOST of the Brueck family members gather for a photo in the family room (built with help from the whole family). In front (from left) are: Matthew, 3; Ben, 11; and Tom, 10. In the center (from left) are: Jim, 21; Anne, 15; Ruth; and Jim. In the very back is Bill, 17. Missing from the photo are John, 22; and Mike, 20, who were away at college. The entire family helps out in the household, with the older children looking out for the younger children, say the Bruecks. While raising a family of eight children can be expensive, it makes you sort out your needs from your wants, says Jim Brueck.

Jim points out that the children have developed independence and have learned to do things for themselves.

"In a large family, you don't try to live your kids' lives for them. ... Part of it is you can't spend all your energies all on one child," he says.

Ruth says it's important to recognize the individuality of each child.

"They're all so different. It's really interesting," she says. "You have to accept your children and like what they are. They are what they are, and that's wonderful."

Still, parenting can be difficult, she says.

"The biggest challenge is giving everyone enough attention when they need it," she says.

Jim, however, gives Ruth high marks in that area.

"She does an excellent job of communication," says Jim. "She's always here when they need her. She keeps the channels open. We feel very fortunate that she hasn't had to work for a living. She chose to stay home."

Ruth smiles and says, "My mother always tells the story about when I was a little girl, and when people asked, I would say I wanted to be a mother when I grew up."

At this point in the conversation, most of the Brueck children have left the room to forage through the refrigerator, play with friends or head off to a part-time job. Ruth looks at the commotion, smiles and says, "This is what it's like every day."

"It's an accumulative thing. There are rewards every single day. I'm really lucky I've been able to have this many children and not work. Just having them and being with them is rewarding. There's ups and downs, but it's something that I really love."

"They fill your life up until the day you die, I guess," she says.

Ruth's mother must be proud. out in laughter.

Anne adds, "She cooks good food."

Tom says, "She buys us lots of stuff," and Bill adds, "She treats our friends really nice."

Ben agrees. "She's nice to all my friends," he says. Matthew thinks for a while, then says, "She takes care of me and plays hockey."

And it's true. She has joined in many of the children's activities over the years, serving as spectator, chauffeur or playmate.

Combined, the activities include: church and events at St. Daniel Catholic Church, soccer, wrestling, hockey, baseball, swimming, football, basketball, skiing, softball, reading, painting, student council, school-related activities, family vacations, family household projects, and lots of time with friends.

Through that, Ruth coordinates schedules, rides, equipment, uniforms, fees and meals. Meals can be difficult, she says. Take shopping, for instance. She shops three to four times a week.

"If you buy three days of food at one time, they'll eat it in one day," says Ruth. "When you have boys, it's not that they eat so much at one sitting; they eat all the time."

Jim and Ruth moved to Clarkston in 1970 and found it "a nice place to raise a family," says Ruth.

They admit that their child-rearing styles have changed over the years.

"I don't know if the kids are getting better or we're getting easier," says Jim.

Ruth agrees. "We're much more relaxed with the second half than the first half. ... You kind of learn that the things you did with the older ones aren't important. You emphasize different things."

For instance, says Ruth, "Happiness or success has

"The person that I really got the love of mothering from is my mother. She is my very best friend in the whole world. I just love her."

Ruth Brueck

nothing to do with money or grades. It has to do with how good of a person you are."

And her children are pretty good, she says. "I'm really pleased that they're all nice. They're not perfect, but who is?"

Clarkston choirs show excellence at festivals

Vocalists in Clarkston schools have performed well in competitions and festivals recently.

The Clarkston High School Varsity Concert Choir earned a Second Division rating at the Michigan School Vocal Association (MSVA) state choir competition April 30 in Saginaw. To qualify for the state festival, they earned a First Division rating at the district level.

"The students worked very hard and diligently toward this accomplishment, and they have every reason to be proud," said Director Grayce Warren of the performance.

At the MSVA District Choir Festival in March, about 65 junior high and high school choirs participated in District No. 4.

They were judged on performance and sight reading and could have received the following ratings:

First Division: Excellent level of performance and musicianship.

Second Division: Good performance; shows accomplishment and promise.

Third Division: Fair performance; shows accomplishment and promise but lacking some essential qualities.

Four Division: Performance lacks in many essential qualities.

From Clarkston High School, all participating choirs received First Division ratings in sight reading. In addition, the Varsity Concert Choir received a First Division rating in performance. And the Choralaires, Barbershop Ensemble and Girls' Select Ensemble received Second Division ratings for performance.

Warren, who directs all of the choirs, was pleased with the performances.

"This year has proven to be an outstanding one for the entire vocal music department," she said. "This is the first time that all choirs of CHS have performed so very well. Out of the two days of competition, we had the most choirs in attendance."

That fact reflects the "fine teaching" of Danielle Blanchard and Becky Linder at the junior high school levels, said Warren, also giving credit to the fact that many students are also members of instrumental programs in the schools.

"Many members of the Girls' Select Ensemble and Barbershop Ensemble, who rehearse once a week after school hours, are in band during the day," said Warren.

She said she appreciated the dedication and support of the many parents and friends of the music department.

The CJHS Ovations, directed by Blanchard, received a First Division rating in performance and a Second Division rating in sight reading.

"This year's ensemble has truly raised the level of overall musicianship in the Clarkston Junior High choral curriculum," said Blanchard.

"In addition to performing many types of repertoire requiring complex harmonies and accurate vocal technique, they have gone to the next level, which is interpretation," she said.

The SJHS Encores, directed by Linder, received Second Division ratings in performance and sight reading.

"This was the first time the Encores have entered this festival in recent memory," said Linder. "Yet they earned good ratings, singing a capella madrigal of advanced difficulty, and earned a good rating and praise for their sight-reading skills. I am proud and look forward to a tradition of accomplishment in the future."

The SJHS Sashabaw Singers, directed by Warren, earned Second Division ratings in performance and sight reading.

"It was my pleasure taking this fine young ladies to this festival as they demonstrated many fine qualities of musicianship and personal accomplishment," said Warren. "Our music department is fortunate to have so many talented and dedicated members."

Health expert uses wit to spice up radio program

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Associate Editor

To say that dietary scientist John Tomlinson's career path has taken some unusual turns would be an understatement.

Over the past three decades, the Flint native has been employed as a Great Lakes freighter ship pilot, a stock market broker and eventually an author.

Now, with a successful diet book, "The Fabulous Sex Organ Diet," to his credit, Tomlinson finds himself with his own radio show on WACY 1160 AM, Fenton, which broadcasts into the Clarkston area.

"The radio show was a total surprise," he said. "It all came about when I was interviewed for my book on WACY. The station's management said they were impressed with my radio presence and offered me a job."

Tomlinson said his interest in the dietary field germinated while he was employed as a broker. His physician told him that his cholesterol count was too high and that he was too stressed out. The doctor ordered Tomlinson to lose weight.

Soon after, Tomlinson started doing research on the best way to lower his cholesterol levels. During this exploration, Tomlinson discovered more than 50 million Americans go on diets each year, and 95 percent of these people fail to reach their intended weight.

Tomlinson studied everything that worked, everything that worked for a while, and all things that didn't work at all. Whether it was the oat bran diet, the pineapple diet, the rice diet, or the grapefruit diet, Tomlinson surmised that they all had two things in common.

The first was that they actually caused weight loss in humans and, secondly, it turned out, the primary food was the sex organ of the plant.

After further investigation, he learned that virtually all the eatable sex organs from the plant world contain these same properties that contribute to weight loss — or "skinnyfying" in Tomlinson lingo.

Hence, the title of his book, "The Fabulous Sex Organ Diet." The book is comprised of statistics, humor and a stringent, dietary regiment that Tomlinson stands by.

Tomlinson says his dietary manual provides his readers with something they don't get to often — the truth.

"People in the country are being duped by numerous diet programs," Tomlinson said. "I thought I'd add some legitimacy to the field."

This eagerness to help others has carried over to his radio program as well.

"The main goal of this show is to educate people and debunk all the hype around fad dieting," he said. "I feel that any time you help someone, you help yourself."

Tomlinson said he feels for those people, who've tried every conceivable type of diet and failed.

"In my show and book, I try to emphasize that being fat doesn't mean being weak," he said. "Fat people are some of the most dedicated, relentless people in the world. They're just doing it wrong."

The "Diet Show," airs 12:30-1 p.m. Wednesdays and Fridays.

DIETARY scientist John Tomlinson, an author and radio talk show host for WACY 1160 AM, has a "Diet Show" program dubbed "the show that causes mirth to lose your girth."

Top 102

HOW'S this for figures? Clarkston High School senior Renny Abraham was one of 18,000 Michigan math students taking an exam in October. His test results placed him in the top 1,000, so he took a five-question essay type exam in December, where he finished in the top 102. Those elite 102 were then honored Feb. 29 at a banquet at Lawrence Technological University in Southfield where they were awarded with books and $28,500 in scholarship money. Abraham, a 4.0 student, credits much of his math success to his former trigonometry-pre-calculus teacher. "Last year's teacher Mr. (Dave) Skillman taught me a lot." Abraham, who currently plays doubles for the Clarkston varsity tennis team, said one of the essay questions on the test asked that if a blind umpire randomly called balls and strikes, what would be the probability of getting a walk each time. Abraham was the only Clarkston student to make the top 102, but four others advanced to the select 1,000-group: Jess Killion, Brian Ruppert, Sean Halleran and Doug Armstead. Theater season opens on May 9

Offering a variety of music and comedy acts, the enlarged amphitheater is entering its second year of operation under the management of the Palace of Auburn Hills.

For the second consecutive season, the Palace is dumping millions of dollars into renovating the outdoor arena on Sashabaw and Pine Knob roads, Independence Township.

This year, $2 million worth of improvements are being made to the 19-year-old structure. They include: bathroom additions, a new concession cabana at the east entrance, 600 new pavilion seats and expanded hand-capped seating from 15 to 86 seats.

Land Conservancy celebrates 20 years

The 20th anniversary celebration for the Independence Land Conservancy is planned for Monday, May 11, at the Independence Township Annex.

Open to all area residents, festivities begin at 7:30 p.m. at the annex, 90 N. Main St., Clarkston. Refreshments will be served.

The day marks the 20th anniversary of the Conservancy as a functioning organization and also honors all those who have donated property or scenic easements to the Conservancy, with a special presentation in memory of Lucy Kassl.

The Independence Land Conservancy was founded in 1972 by a group of people who wanted "to preserve for the general public the natural and historic resources of Independence Township."

This is done by acquiring lands outright (or acquiring easements on them) by donation or by purchase. IRS clearance for tax deductions is available.

The Conservancy began with three objectives:

- To educate the community on the merits of two effective methods for preserving open space: cluster housing and scenic easements.

- To persuade the township planning commission and township board that they should take advantage of the Conservancy's existence and use it to guarantee the permanency of open space that they obtain from developers.

- To find a parcel of land for sale at a reasonable price, land that a major segment of the community would consider to be important open space.

During the past 20 years, the Conservancy has acquired 241 acres within Independence Township, which are now protected against future development.

To donate land or join the group, contact President Tom Stone at 625-8193. Or attend the anniversary celebration. New members are welcome.

Few medical conditions affect someone's day to day living as those dealing with the digestive system. During the last 15 years, we've had some amazing developments to help people. One of the most important is the flexible endoscope. This allows me to look at internal organs, and identify and treat a number of ailments without surgery. People recover quickly, and I am able to relieve their symptoms immediately in many situations.

We are studying so many ideas and methods in gastroenterology, from hormonal therapies and new medicines to treatments that fight the bacteria causing many conditions. Since I also train medical students, I am always looking at emerging studies and theories. The variety I have between practicing medicine and teaching residents certainly keeps things interesting. Medicine is both enjoyable and humanizing. The reward of successfully treating people is constantly balanced by knowing how much is left to be done. These reminders make us become better people and, I believe, better doctors.

PEANUT butter is more expensive than cooking class pupils expected. A calculator came in handy when trying to stay within budget. Making shopping decisions are (from left) Tim Yonka, Mike Hetchler, Adam Curry and Matt Follis.

Youngsters got first-hand experience in preparing a meal — from planning and budgeting to shopping and cooking — and eating it recently. The cooking class at North Sashabaw Elementary School, offered by Clarkston Community Education, included a field trip to the Clarkston IGA supermarket, said instructor Tammy Thompson. The pupils were surprised at the cost of some foods, she said, and they were shocked at the time required to prepare the food.

"It was a good learning experience," said Thompson.

Members of the class were: Adam Curry, Amanda Curry, Alaina Dodds, Michelle Erickson, Elizabeth Milam, Melissa Ogg, Tim Yonka, Michael Hetchler and Matt Follis.

Rush Road Reports

By Don Rush

Corvette is still America's premier sports car

When it comes to Corvette, Chevrolet delivers. America's most famous sports car has three new features this year, which helps fine-tune the car's all-around performance level.

The Vette still looks stylish and impressive. It still feels powerful. It still has the feel of a real street rod -- from take-off adrenalin rush to the meaty feel of the steering wheel. If you can afford to drive a Corvette, you know you've made it. I was fortunate enough to be able to try out the 2-door hatchback coupe. It was only "mine" for a week, but it was a good week.

1992 is the 39th year Chevrolet has produced the Corvette name plate -- racing technology has influenced the current generation's design. The cockpit-style interior, welded-steel uniframe, 5-link independent rear suspension, 17-inch unidirectional tires and heavy-duty brakes, with anti-lock brakes were all developed to high performance standards.

New features that help improve performance are a new 350-cubic-inch V8 engine (notice, it wasn't labeled in liters) dubbed LT1, a sophisticated traction control system (my personal favorite feature) called Acceleration Slip Regulation (ASR) and new high performance tires.

The LT1 engine replaces the L98 V8 used in Corvettes since 1985, and ushers in a second generation of Chevy small-block power. According to Chevy, it delivers 300 horsepower at 5,000 RPM -- the highest net horsepower for any production-car small-block in Chevrolet history. This is also 50 HP more than the old L98 engine.

The ASR system is masterfully designed. Its purpose is to get the most out of the grip the tires have on the road. To make the Vette system work, it is calibrated with the Bosch ABS IIS brakes, the engine throttle, and engine spark. And, what it all does, is limit the amount of drive torque so it matches the driving situation and road conditions! It automatically turns on when the car is started. If the driver desires, he can turn it off, with a flick of his left hand's fingers.

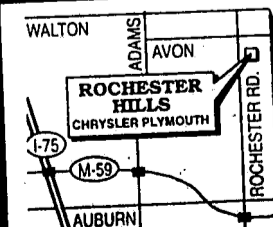

Helping the ASR system are the four, low profile, 17-inch tires. (Corvette sits about 6 inches off the ground). The new Goodyear Eagle GS-C tires have directional and asymmetrical tread patterns which deliver superb wet and dry handling.

The Corvette name is an American legend. The 1992 model does nothing to take the car's image astray. It's powerful, stylish and exciting to drive (it would have been more fun, had the weather cooperated -- as it was, I was only able to remove the fiberglass top a couple of times and it was cold!).

Hammer time

SHANE Wilson, a Waterford Kettering senior, does some hammering on the deck. The classes are taught by OTC instructors Dick Moscovic, Larry Thibault and Steve Wyckoff and the project is in conjunction with the North Oakland Builders Association. Last year, Clarkston High School's Randy Liford and Brandon High School's Jason Bradley received full-ride college scholarships through the program. Another scholarship will be given this year.
