Transformed: Clarkston is now a city

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

It's official. The village became a city Wednesday, July 1 — but it's still a village.

It's all in the name: The City of the Village of Clarkston.

The changes in switching from a village to a city were outlined in a four-page letter delivered recently to Clarkston residents.

Summaries of the topics contained in the letter follow:

Village name: The Charter Commission chose the official name of the new city as "The City of the Village of Clarkston." Village residents or businesses do not have to change their signs or stationary unless they choose to. And it's still accurate to refer to Clarkston as "the village," just as people refer to "Pontiac" instead of its full name: "City of Pontiac."

Cityhood costs: The letter states " ... the Village Council can unequivocally state that cityhood will provide more revenue than it will cost." The costs will be addressed in more detail at the first city council meeting, Monday, July 13.

Village Hall, office hours and phone numbers: There are no changes in the office hours at the hall on 375 Depot Road. The office is open 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. Monday, Wednesday and Friday. The telephone numbers are 625-1559 and 625-3770, and the village manager is generally available at 625-3770 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily.

Assessing and Board of Review: The village lost its authority over property assessments by state law in 1966. However, the village regains that authority with cityhood and has entered an agreement with Oakland County, which will handle assessing at a nominal cost.

Village residents will no longer have to pursue property tax assessment appeals with Independence Township, instead they can direct their questions to the village's own board of review (comprising solely village residents).

Building permits: The township currently handles the village's building permits and inspections but the Zoning Board of Appeals and Historic District Commission approvals must come from the village.

Elections: All voter registration and all elections (See CITY, next page)

Banjos open free concert season

The first free concert in the park this summer features the Auto City Banjos on Friday, July 3.

The 7-9 p.m. concert in Clarkston's Depot Park (on Depot Road, west of Main Street) is offered free, thanks to the Clarkston Area Chamber of Commerce.

The opening night entertainment is back by popular demand, said Don Brose, one of the organizers of the series. The Auto City Banjos — with 15-25 members — are from the Flint area. They include sing-along songs in their repertoire and donate their proceeds to charity.

In addition to the usual bug repellent and blankets or lawn chairs, Brose suggests that concert-goers also bring a picnic supper or snack to the concert.

No refreshments will be sold during this concert, he said, explaining that community groups volunteer to provide concessions for the July concert series.

While the Chamber provides the concerts to the public for free, it does accept donations to help pay the performers. Donation categories include: Sponsors, $100; Patrons, $50; Band Box, $25. Send donations to: Clarkston Area Chamber of Commerce, Concert Fund, 5897 Dixie Highway, Clarkston, MI 48346.

The remaining concert schedule is as follows:

Friday, July 10: Metropolitan Jazz

Friday, July 17: Cosmopolitan Big Band

Friday, July 24: Moose & Da Sharks ('50s band)

Tuesday, July 28: The Shaumburg Youth Choir

Friday, July 31: Balduc Mountain Ramblers

Clarkston officially attains 'cityhood' status

will now be held at the Village Hall, including state and national elections.

Fire protection and emergency medical services: All fire protection and emergency medical services will continue to be provided by the Independence Township Fire Department. Emergency calls for fire or Emergency Medical Service should continue to be made using 911. All non-emergency fire and EMS calls should continue to be made to 625-1924.

Library services: The village and township have formed a joint committee to establish a district library. Village residents can continue to use the township library while the agreement is worked out.

Parades: The village has informed the township that it welcomes parades and believes the village is a convenient place to host them. The only matters discussed with the township have been about assuring adequate police protection and liability protection.

Parks and recreation services: Because of the agreement between the village and township for the operation of Deer Lake Beach (which runs through 1993), village residents will continue to pay the same fees as township residents for parks and recreation services. Applications for beach and boat passes and recreation programs should continue to be made at the Township Hall.

Property tax collections: Currently, property taxes are collected twice yearly with village and half of school taxes due in July, and township, county and the other half of school taxes due in December.

With the change to cityhood, the amount of taxes residents previously paid to the township will now, in essence, be combined with your prior village taxes. However, to avoid any significant change in your tax payments, the village will split the collection of its taxes between July and December, so there will be little change from the amounts residents currently have to pay at those times.

Police services: In March, the village council sent a letter to the township requesting that its contract for police services be continued.

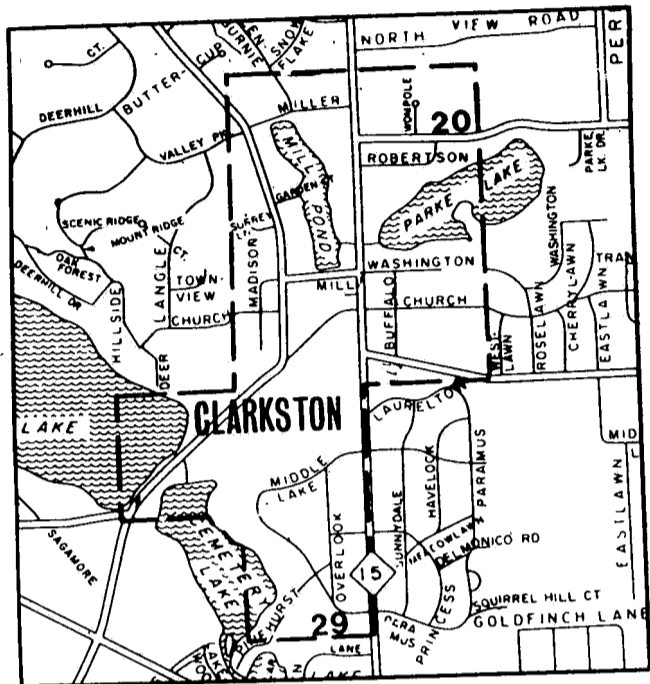

The council explains in its letter to residents: "For whatever reasons, a majority of the township board has refused to even discuss a possible police contract. In light of such refusal, the council is exploring alternatives with the county and other units of government for emergency police coverage."

Because of this, the village has hired a police chief (Robert DeVore) and is hiring additional part-time officers. In addition, the village has met with the Oakland County Sheriff's Department, which has "agreed to handle all dispatching for our police and indicated, that since we are county residents, deputies from Oakland County will respond to any life-threatening emergency even without a contract with the county."

For emergency police services, village residents should call 911. For all non-emergency police services, they should call 625-0088.

Roads: The village will be taking over control of parts of White Lake, Holcomb, Clarkston-Orion and Waldon roads from the county. This allows the village to establish its own speed limits and traffic control devices. Residents who have suggestions about changes in speed limits, stop signs, etc. should contact the city council.

AS OF JULY 1, boundaries around the Village of Clarkston became boundaries around the City of the Village of Clarkston. The municipality, with about 1,000 residents, is in the southwest quadrant of Independence Township.

Maple tree stays; road still to be widened — a little

JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

No one was entirely happy, nor totally upset. A compromise gave the Clarkston Village Council a traffic light at a busy intersection, allowed the Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT) to slightly widen a road and saved Jane Attaman's 28-inch maple tree.

For years the council had been trying to get a traffic light installed at the intersection of M-15 and Clarkston Road. This past year, M-DOT told the council it was convinced that making a turn from Clarkston Road onto M-15 was one of the state's most dangerous turns.

So the only questions that remained were when was the traffic light going up and what additional road improvements would be made?

M-DOT said that Clarkston Road would have to be widened on the south side on Attaman's residential property. The council preferred having the road widened on the north side on commercial property (Village Muffler and Brake Specialist).

"The best option would be to widen Clarkston Road on the north side of the road," said Trustee Douglas Roeser at a June 22 Clarkston Village Council meeting.

But Gary Tressel, an engineer for Hubbell, Roth and Clark which contracts with the village, said, "We can't go to that side."

Roeser and other council members have said that M-DOT shied away from the north side because the soil on the property was found to be contaminated during the past year (underground gasoline tanks were removed this winter).

Tressel also added, "It would be a lot cleaner situation if the tree was taken down."

Attaman attended last week's meeting and told the council, "The tree provides a lot of privacy."

Tressel said the tree could be a safety problem, especially if the traffic gets closer to the tree once the road is widened.

"I don't see why we should keep that tree if we have a problem here," said Trustee Robert Whitmer.

Tressel said the council had three options: approve the traffic signal only, approve the signal with minor road widening (still saving the tree) or approve major road widening (cutting down the tree).

The council voted 7-0 for the second option.

According to village council President Sharron Catallo, the light is expected to be installed by this fall and the road won't be widened until next year.

Attaman, a school teacher, had first found out that her tree was in danger after reading a council meeting story in a February issue of The Clarkston News. The story indicated that a representative from M-DOT would contact her about the tree situation.

In a recent interview Attaman said, "No one ever called me about this."

She added, "When you know you're in the hands of everybody else, it's real scary."

So Attaman contacted Ken Whitton of M-DOT in a brief phone conversation.

"He said he'd get back to me but he never did," said Attaman.

The next time she was contacted was a few weeks ago when village manager Art Pappas informed her that the tree matter would be discussed at the June 22 meeting.

At one time, M-DOT offered to plant three smaller trees to replace the large maple, but Attaman wasn't impressed.

"I don't care what size they put up; it would not take the place of the tree," said Attaman.

Attaman, who said she has heard at least 10 car accidents in the intersection since she moved into the house more than four years ago, said the maple tree not only provides privacy but acts as a screen over the heavy lines of traffic and cools her house.

"The heat from the road steams up," said Attaman, who's glad she and the village council didn't allow M-DOT to steamroll its original proposal.

JANE Attaman gives her maple tree a hug. M-DOT wanted to chop down the tree because of road widening but Attaman and the Clarkston Village Council helped save it.

Moving fowl is fair, decides village council

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Ronald Schebor knew the Canada geese problem in Clarkston wasn't just going to fly away, so he tried to do something about it.

Because of his complaints, the Clarkston Village Council June 29 voted 5-0 to have the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) trap the geese on Mill Pond and then relocate the birds. The DNR is expected to carry out its bird nabbing sometime this week.

Schebor, who lives at 18 N. Holcomb Road, originally wrote a letter to the village council April 6. In his letter he said, "For the last three years, it has been necessary to place a heavy cord along the shoreline to keep these filthy fowl off our yard. Last year it was necessary to place fencing not only along the shoreline but along the side lot lines for approximately 50 feet to keep them out of the yard."

Schebor also added, "I'm sure you know by now

"They're beautiful fowl, but they're just that, foul."

Ronald Schebor

how filthy these birds are. The fencing which was necessary last year is very unsightly; however, it's better than walking barefoot through a pasture."

On April 15, Clarkston village manager Art Pappas wrote a letter to Tim Payne of the DNR requesting a solution to Schebor's complaints.

The DNR didn't respond, so Schebor again voiced his concerns at Monday's village council meeting.

"I've been a resident for 46 years, and it's never been worse," Schebor told the council about the influx of geese. "They're beautiful fowl, but they're just that, foul."

Trustee James Schultz suggested that the geese would eventually be lowered in numbers this fall. As if squeezing a trigger and aiming his fingers up in the air, Schultz said that decrease will happen "when they fly over the Ohio Valley during hunting season."

But the council decided that removal of the birds would be most effective. Before the vote, President Sharron Catallo said she was worried about what would finally happen to the geese.

"They'll have a new home," said a comforting Trustee Dominic Mauti.

Catallo, still concerned, said, "They'll be separated."

"No they won't," said Mauti.

The council then passed the measure with Catallo abstaining.

Reuter quits planning commission

BY CATHERINE PASSMORE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

After 10 years of service to Springfield Township, Marjorie Reuter has decided to resign as chairwoman of the planning commission.

Reuter, 61, of Robert Drive resigned June 10.

Reuter's physician advised her to lighten her load of responsibilities. Actually, he told her to quit her job.

"I couldn't do that, so I'm quitting everything else," she said.

Reuter, her husband Larry and their son Bill own and run Spun Metal Products in Springfield Township. Her husband began the business in 1969, and Reuter holds the title of "corporate secretary."

"I also do the accounting, and I'm the office manager, and I clean the toilets," she said.

As a member of the planning commission, Reuter took part in developing the community's "Master Plan," which is a sort of blueprint for how she and other township officials would like to see the township land used in the future.

According to Reuter, it began as a 20-year look into the future, but the community is growing so quickly that it became a 10-year project.

"Springfield is developing, and you can't stop it," she said. "We did change the lot sizes, so they would be bigger, and that helps to keep the population down."

The Reuters leave in September to boat from Michigan to the Gulf of Mexico. "Boating is one of the most important things in my life," she said. She plans to spend a lot of time on this passion and with her family.

"I am still interested in what goes on in the township, even though I have resigned. When you get on the planning commission, you have to go to the sites and keep up on the ordinances, and I guess I've worked too many years. I need time for myself," she said.

"Springfield is developing, and you can't stop it."

Fire department officials said the banners turned up missing between July 4th last year and this year, and they don't know if they were stolen or misplaced or what.

Law would toughen boating laws for kids

New state laws pending the governor's signature would require young motorboat operators to be supervised at all times by an on-board adult.

House Bill 5739 (HB 5739) clarifies a 1991 public act (PA 174) that tightened restrictions on young boaters, according to state Rep. Tom Middleton. That law required boat operators ages 12-15 to have either a boater safety certificate or an on-board adult over age 16.

PA 174 also made it illegal for children under 12 to operate a motorboat of 35 horsepower or less except under the supervision of a person age 16 or older.

The new law sought to alleviate some of the dangers facing young people who operate motor boats.

HB 5739 eliminates the possibility that "supervision of youthful boaters" could be translated to mean an adult watching from the shore through binoculars, an interpretation the law's framers did not intend. The new law specifies that an on-board adult must provide guidance to very young motorboat operators.

In Michigan, voters may use 38,000 square miles of Great Lakes water area and 11,037 inland lakes.

Bursting in air

Julie Campe

I close my eyes and streaks of red and white and even blue and green burst upon a blackened sky, and I try to remember when I first saw fireworks.

There was a time when I was very young — so young that Pine Knob Music Theater was new (so new that theater employees used to go door to door to the neighbors, trying to give away free concert tickets, so the pavilion wouldn't seem so empty. I saw Liberace and Dionne Warwick that way, perched on the edge of my seat, trying to see over the puffed-up hair in front of me).

This summer, Pine Knob had announced that it would shoot fireworks on the Fourth of July. So there we were, my brothers and cousins and I, staying up late for the big event.

I'm not sure if we knew what we were about to witness, but the excitement was almost comparable to all of us staying up late at Christmas together.

We sat in the darkened dining room of our Waldon Road house, looking out the north window toward Pine Knob. Then, pizza appeared, which to Andrew the Horrible, Ronny the Scientist, Danna, Gail and myself, was almost more magical than the display of colors. In fact, I don't remember the fireworks themselves, just the five of us huddled in the dark, eating pizza, with our parents standing behind us.

Another Fourth of July found us in Missouri with a different set of cousins.

The air was warm and heavy and smelled green and full. Even without the voices of my cousins, the night air was loud with frogs and crickets, constant chirping and buzzing.

And suddenly, the sparklers appeared, and the older ones attempted to run around my grandparents' house before their sparkler lost its light.

I dared not try — too many spiders spin invisible webs in back of the house — I had seen their elaborate tunnels, sparkling with dew, too many times in daylight. It didn't take much to imagine myself as small as the grasshoppers The Scientist used to toss into those tunnels. Every time the web wiggled, the huge furry spider — quicker than a snake — appeared, ready to pounce. Each spider — and there were dozens — would take its catch back into its parlor. Their houses were made of so many layers of thick spider silk that they looked like cotton candy funnels.

Bangs and whistles stopped the running, and soon we were all assembled to watch bottle rockets and bursts of sizzling sparks, mostly white.

A cow across the street mooed. My cousin Bryan howled. He and The Scientist jostled for the honor of lighting the next firecracker.

It was rare to see the night and its own, natural sparklers winking behind clouds. I tried to block out the bangs and pops and smoke and squinted at the sky. I thought I saw green and blue stars and tried to pin down the colors. But they kept changing. Was that star red or green or merely white and playing tricks on earthbound viewers?

Or was it the fireworks playing tricks?

Jim's Jottings

I'll pause July 4

This booklet says, "You will be interviewed and given a record prepared for you showing the civilian jobs to which your training and experience is most related."

I have several records. None show qualifications for any life, let alone civilian. Of course, I once learned how to put out an oil fire in the ship's hold with fog. I learned missing a target with a rifle gets a 'Maggies Drawers' flag.

I experienced spine-tingling pride on parade grounds and while standing at attention for the Star Spangled Banner.

I learned to chip paint off decks, how to smoke and drink (if that's ever learned), how to wash clothes, that tailor-made sailor suits get high marks at inspection, and that there are good guys and bad guys and all the bad guys aren't officers.

Don't Independence Day and military service relate? How about going away from the military and Independence Day?

On June 3, 1946 I was honorably discharged from the United States Navy. I have a certificate to prove it.

Amongst the things received at the time was a congratulatory note from the Veterans Administration for "your part in bringing to a conclusion a two-front war which resulted in the unconditional surrender of the Axis Powers."

Another item was a pamphlet, "going back to civilian life." It says, in part, "You have helped to preserve liberty for generations to come."

Admiral Nimitz and General Eisenhower signed it.

Mostly Navy aged me . . . aged, not matured. It did not train me. Ages 18 and 19 are untrainable for many.

Perhaps I should have read my 'going back to civilian life' more carefully. It says I could go to any military base and get help concerning personal problems and rights.

I also could have seen a legal affairs officer on base, but for income tax help I had to go to the same place as now, Internal Revenue.

The booklet also says I would get $300 muster-out pay. If I got it, wonder what I did with it?

Hey, fellow veterans, have you still got your discharge emblem? What did we call it: Ruptured Duck? I still have mine. I don't wear it, but if I did I'd follow the booklet's advice and "wear these symbols proudly."

This Independence Day, like all other Independence Days since joining the Navy in 1944, I'll reflect for a little time at least and remember the pride I had wearing the uniform of one of our country's services.

I won't just remember scrubbing the white stripes with a toothbrush and salting my hat.

I'll remember too sailing past the Statue of Liberty, going through the Panama Canal, under the Golden (not then) Gate Bridge, and Guam, Saipan, China, Japan and being under fire off Okinawa for a short period of time.

I was just a sailor boy, doing what he was told and no more than I had to. But I was a proud sailor, and am pleased to have played any part in 'preserving liberty.'

Letters to the Editor

Car-smashing not a good idea

I just read about the upcoming Fourth of July parade and was considering going with my family.

However, I was disturbed to read about the "foreign car smashing" event. Don't we have enough violence around us?

This event is a stupid way to prove a point, and what are we showing our children? That it's OK to smash any foreign car you see?

Hopefully, this event won't be carried on outside of the park to other foreign cars parked in the street.

I am proud to say we have always bought American-made cars and would like to encourage others but do not think we should use this aggressive and violent behavior to intimidate others to buy American.

Ideas would help disabled at library

Recently, I had the opportunity to make use of the new Independence Township Library.

It certainly is a very nice, spacious facility that will serve some of the township residents very well. However, I did encounter some problem areas that will be a hindrance to some of the other residents.

I would like to bring these items to your attention and list some possible solutions that you might consider.

1. Disabled parking located on an incline. Move designated area closer to the entrance where it is flat.
2. Entrance doors are very heavy and swing outward. Install automatic door opener or a buzzer to alert desk person to come and assist.
3. Lavatory entrance door is heavy and has a high sill, which makes it impossible to open door and move wheelchair at same time.

Remove door completely and install small triangular pieces of wood on either side to form a ramp over the sill.

4. Circulation counter too high for a small person or someone in a wheelchair.

Reduce counter height. Would also help counter person to see persons at door needing help.

5. Infotrac too high.

Place on regular worktable.

6. Card catalog too high.

Arrange same as child's catalog height.

Although these items may seem minor to those who are temporarily able-bodied, they are certainly monumental to those of us who are disabled.

We are also tax-paying township residents who enjoy using the library facilities. It would be nice to use our library conveniently and know that our tax monies are being used equally for all persons, those temporarily able as well as those disabled.

I hope the township board will consider these suggestions.

Friends wonderful at 100th birthday

At the Chelsea Retirement Community on the occasion of my 100th birthday celebration, who should greet me on entering the lobby?

None other than the friends of my old farm neighborhood. What a joy and such a surprise!

Also, I received from cards from friends, plus notes from the Clarkston Methodist Church, Clarkston Farm and Garden Club and the community.

It was great for refreshing past memories.

Thanks and may God bless you all.

About the request for a DDA rebate ...

Gary Haner

Why is Clarkston schools asking for a rebate of DDA money?

■ The growth of the tax base in Independence Township has occurred at such a fast rate over the past few years that the Clarkston school district went "out of formula" much faster than was anticipated when the Downtown Development Authority (DDA) began. This means we no longer receive state aid reimbursement for tax dollars that have been "captured" by the DDA.

If this "captured" tax money was not being taken by the Independence Township DDA, Clarkston schools would be receiving an additional $912,000 this year.

Our district is now in the painful process of eliminating over $1 million in programs and services for the 1992-93 school year, including the layoffs of 15 employees. This comes at a time when we want to be expanding our programs and facilities to reflect new and higher educational standards, not reducing them.

■ We are not requesting a rebate of all the money captured by the DDA, and we are not implying that its projects should be stopped. We are simply asking that a portion of the dollars be returned to the schools in order to provide more programs and services for our children.

The Clarkston Board of Education requested the following action by the DDA and township boards:

■ A complete review of assessments and taxes currently being retained by the DDA.

■ Identification of financial commitments made by the DDA (e.g. the new water tower).

■ Review of all proposed projects.

■ A request that no additional amendments or extensions be made to the DDA (e.g. extension of Citation Drive).

Responding to this request, the DDA Board made the following recommendation to the township board:

■ That there be no further extension of the DDA.

■ That some planned projects be postponed for consideration in the future.

■ That money not needed for 1992 financial obligations be rebated to the taxing authorities within the DDA, including Clarkston schools.

In a recent Clarkston News article, township Clerk Joan McCrary and Treasurer John Lutz stated their opposition to a rebate for the schools, partly because improvements made within the DDA boundaries will produce a "windfall" of tax dollars in 1996 when the DDA expires.

I do not feel it is reasonable to expect our children to go without school programs and improvements for the next four years. A minimum of $912,000 in additional revenue during each of the next four years would make a vast difference in our ability to provide programs, technology and classroom space for our growing district.

Other school districts — including Walled Lake — have been successful when requesting rebates from DDA boards in their communities. Like them, Clarkston schools continues to seek fiscally responsible ways of providing good educational programs for our children without increasing local taxes.

Note: The township board and school board are to meet at 7:30 p.m. Monday, July 6, in the township library on Clarkston Road to discuss the school board's request for a rebate from the township DDA. The meeting is open to the public.

Gary Haner is superintendent of Clarkston Community Schools.

Senator Di Nello
strikes back

Jim
Fitzgerald

R. Kiskan, an Ann Arbor resident, clipped a recent column I wrote about state Sen. Gil DiNello, D-Clinton Township, attached a note calling it "a good article," and sent it to DiNello. It criticized the senator for seeking a ban on toy guns that shoot water while opposing any sort of control over real guns that shoot bullets.

The column also noted DiNello's recent wrestling match with a fellow senator on the Senate floor, and his attempt to physically attack a lobbyist who said something DiNello didn't like during a Senate committee hearing.

I wrote: "It appears certain that DiNello's stupid violence is a much bigger threat than squirt guns to the public peace." Rather than a law protecting citizens from propelled water, "what this state really needs is legislation protecting citizens against a macho bozo being elected state senator."

DiNello responded to my criticism in a letter that should be shared with the public. It isn't just that it's only fair to give DiNello equal time. More important, it is my civic duty to give readers the opportunity to evaluate the intelligence of one of the officials responsible for running our state.

So hang on to your astonishment. Here is Sen. DiNello in the entirety of his maturity:

Jim Fitzgerald

You'll observe I'm writing this missive on my own business stationery that I paid for myself. It would be a waste of public money to use my senate stationery on you. You'll also note that I'm writing this long hand because again you're really not worth my secretary's precious time in typing it either and by the way I used my own stamp.

I don't read your column because I consider trash and dishonest spins a waste of time. Unfortunately someone in Ann Arbor reads you. Sure glad I don't live in Ann Arbor. Perhaps I can be thankful someone in Macomb County didn't send me your column. Maybe we have a higher caliber of people out here. Thank God.

Anyway your last paragraph of your June 12th aberration is full of inaccuracies and obviously lies but then again what can you expect from a distorted mind who doesn't have the sense or intelligence to seek out the truth. Credibility? Sir, you do not know what credibility is nor does the Free Press management because if they did you, Sir, would not be writing.

The best use of a super soaker (not water pistols) would be on you to drill some common sense into your head or to drill something out of your head so decent people wouldn't be subject to your garbage. And maybe the Free Press could save some money by not advertising to read your nonsense.

Gil DiNello

P.S. I tried to keep this short & use both sides of the paper so I wouldn't have to waste another sheet. To bad I have to use an envelope and a stamp.

Enclosed is the paper the person from Ann Arbor sent you — (What ya call it?) Maybe you and it (not sure if it's a man or woman) could devise more comedy.

Wow. To me, the most surprising feature of Sen. DiNello's letter is it was handwritten with a pen, not a crayon.

In 41 years of column writing, I've received hundreds of dismayed letters. It's always depressing to be reminded that there is so much ignorance out there. But there's some comfort in realizing that, at least, these infantile thinkers usually don't hold positions of influence, where their childishness could harm great numbers of people.

But now comes the most childish letter of all, signed by a state senator. This guy helps make our laws.

And he's glad he doesn't live in Ann Arbor. Imagine how Ann Arbor must feel.

At a loss for words, I'll borrow a few from Joe Weaver, editorial director of WJBK-TV Channel 2. In commenting on DiNello's proposal to control squirt guns but not real guns, Weaver called it:

"A baffling bolt of idiocy."

Consortium means adult education money

For the second consecutive year, Clarkston schools will combine with Brandon schools in an adult education consortium.

The Clarkston Board of Education voted 6-0 June 22 to approve the consortium. Trustee Joseph Helpem was absent.

The consortium is a way for Clarkston schools to receive state money for adult education, even though it is out of the state's funding formula and thus ineligible for most state money.

Brandon, however, still operates within the state's funding formula, so it's partially reimbursed for each student in adult education — and in any consortium in which it operates.

That means that Brandon applies for state aid money for all adult education students in Clarkston and Brandon, shares the money with Clarkston — and charges Clarkston a 20 percent "administration fee."

Marilyn Allyn, director of Clarkston Community Education, searched for a school district that would charge a lower administration fee but could not find one in the county.

Through negotiations, however, Brandon agreed to give Clarkston about $2,500 for the 1992-93 school year for teacher inservice. Clarkston received nothing last year.

In addition, Brandon agreed to pay back any money lost due to failing "performance objectives" and cap it at $10,000. An increase for meeting performance objectives would go directly into Clarkston's program. Clarkston received nothing for this last year.

Wall signs topic of public hearing

Two "special" signs are the topic of a public hearing before the Independence Township Planning Commission Thursday, July 9.

The 7:30 p.m. hearings take place at the township annex, 90 N. Main St., Clarkston.

Jeff Heyn of Planet Neon Signs requested extra wall signs for his client, Dunkin' Donuts, in Independence Town Square at the southwest corner of Waldon and Sashabaw roads.

He also requested additional wall signs for another client in the same shopping center, Kenny Rogers Roasters, Wood-Roasted Chicken.

From Our Perspective

Something doesn't add up

Doug Carlson

I just finished reading all the articles in this week's Clarkston News regarding the school situation: Pay-to-play sports, recovery of DDA money, program cuts, etc. All this because the schools don't seem to have enough money with which to operate.

First of all, I have to say that I'm really puzzled as to how our school system got into this kind of shape. Oh, I know all about tax base sharing, the DDA situation, the Social Security payments, the property tax freeze and so on. I realize that these are funds that the schools would have had available to them if these situations didn't exist.

But let's just set these issues aside for the moment and play with some real numbers. These are numbers that were published by the Clarkston school system, by the way.

School Year	Revenues Actual	No. of Students
1987-88	$18,900,115	6,051
1989-90	21,956,521	5,907
1991-92	27,543,119	5,574

 Adult Education joined a consortium with Brandon schools. Their membership count is not included.

Note: I think it's safe to say that the Adult education count would not be large enough to push this number over 6,000. Therefore, I think we can assume a stable student population during this four-year period.

Now, I don't claim to understand everything the school people tell me when it comes to budget matters and the like. But, c'mon folks, these are basic numbers we're dealing with here. You don't have to be a mathematical genius to see that the schools had $8.6 million more to spend in '91-'92 than they had just four years earlier. This is a 46 percent increase in just four years. Just think how much they would have if they didn't have tax base sharing, property tax freezes, etc.

In this week's Clarkston News, Business Manager Steve Lenar was quoted as saying that the state has frozen property taxes, so, while costs for the district increased by the rate of inflation, local revenues did not increase at that rate.

To my knowledge, the inflation rate has hovered around 4 percent for the last three or four years, so I assume that Steve is saying the district's costs have increased by approximately 16 percent during the 1987-1991 period. I also assume this number excludes salaries and benefits.

Let's apply a little compound interest and grant them increases of 21 percent or so during this period. This means there's an additional 25 percent in available revenues that are more or less unaccounted for.

Where did this money go? We've already established that the student population count was relatively stable, so the old argument that it costs more money to educate more students goes out the window.

Did it go for an improved curriculum, new textbooks, more computers or better maintenance? Or did it go primarily for salaries and benefits? Well, if everyone in the district received 6 percent pay raises each year for the past four years, that would pretty much explain it.

But even if this is the case, we've simply accounted for the entire $8.6 million. In other words, the school system should be able to operate in the same manner it did in 1987. And this doesn't even take into account the additional $1.2 million that they have available to them for the 1992-93 school year. Or is this amount being set aside for more pay raises?

Obviously, something doesn't quite add up here. If there's something, I'm not seeing, I'd be very happy to have it explained to me.

Host families needed for visiting students

Area families are needed to host 48 French and Spanish boys arriving July 1.

These students are to spend four weeks in Michigan to experience American living. Families need not speak a foreign language to host, since the students have 4-8 years of English language study.

The 48 boys without host families are part of the 160 French and Spanish exchange students and chaperons scheduled to arrive here July 1.

In addition, another 41 boys and 36 girls are unplaced from the group of 160 French, Spanish and German students and chaperons arriving in Michigan at the end of July.

The agency Nacel Cultural Exchanges matches the 320 Michigan host families with students, according to general interests and specific activities they'd like to share with their guests. The teen-agers have a variety of interests including tennis and other sports, water activities, computers, camping and music.

Some American families take their guests on trips; others share their everyday lifestyle. The students, ages 14-18, bring pocket money, and their parents pay for their transportation and insurances. Teacher chaperons accompany the teenagers.

Families interested in hosting one of the boys, or perhaps a girl or chaperon, should contact Julian Prince at (313) 626-6641.

CHS students say vampirism rumors not true

BY AMANDA PESKE

The recent arrest of alleged leaders of a drug ring at Clarkston High School brought rumors that the teen-age suspects were vampires who performed satanic rituals. But according to two CHS students who know the suspects, those stories are untrue. "Sue" and "Jane," who asked that their real names not be used because they feared retribution from enemies of the suspects, said they are friends of those who belonged to the CVD, which stands for Confederate Vagabond Dominion or Clarkston Vampire Dominioncy, depending on who you talk to.

And rumors about vampirism and satanic worship are just that — rumors, according to Sue and Jane.

Sue, a former friend of one of the CVD members, said Stanley "Kelly" Watkins and Jason Smith — who were among five charged with conspiracy to sell LSD to CHS students — were not vampires.

The worst they ever did was to cut their forearms, drawing blood — but they did not drink it. And they vandalized by spray-painting "CVD" on area buildings and walls, said Sue. Jane's stories verified Sue's account.

Jane, who was never a member of the CVDs but is close friends with some, said that Watkins was more after controlling people than anything else. She added that he may have mutilated animals.

However, the thing that stands out most was that he enjoyed reading books on mind control.

"He would test you to see if you were afraid of him," said Jane. "For example, he might bounce a metal pole in front of you like he was going to hit you with it, and if you backed off, he would know that you were afraid of him," she said.

He would often become friends with people with weak personalities, knowing that he could manipulate them, which led him to head a small group of kids at Clarkston Junior High in grades 7-9, who could be influenced, Jane said.

Jane also said that this group was not organized; everything they did was spontaneous and nothing was planned.

However, membership in the group required initiation.

One example, said Jane, was that one kid would have to control five other kids in some way. If he could accomplish that, he would become a member.

Watkins' main focus was to control people, Jane said, and he definitely possessed the powers of scaring people."

Guest Column

School scandal blown out of proportion

Clarkston Senior High School. A school known for its outstanding athletic program and its drug ring, "The Family?"

Before last week, Clarkston High school was the all-American high school, with only the problems of a growing community. Now we have the problems of what the media has publicized as a major scandal, one thing that I do not understand.

It is the media's job to report the news, but it is not fair to the reputation of Clarkston High School to be damaged by a situation that has been more "hyped" than it actually is. Just for the record, only three of the kids who were charged with conspiracy to sell LSD attended Clarkston schools.

It seems to me that after incidents like this, people always get the wrong impression. They make the mistake of seeing things in "tunnel vision"; they forget to see things as a whole. What about the great things Clarkston has to offer? Your child can get a good education from knowledgeable, dependable staff, take part in one of the many activities and social events at Clarkston; and your child should feel secure knowing that if he or she has a problem, there are people available for them to talk to.

What else could a parent ask for? Supervision? There is the administration, and there is the staff, but in my personal opinion, they are not there to babysit. They have much more to worry about than following your children around to make sure that they aren't in trouble.

By the time kids get to the high school, they should know how to behave. If they can't behave, either they're just very undisciplined children or haven't been taught good values of behavior and respect.

As far as Clarkston's reputation goes, to me, it all depends on the individual. If you want to believe that Clarkston High School is full of brat-like adolescents who are all on drugs and into satanic worshipping, then that's fine. I know that there are decent kids who go to Clarkston, who are constantly trying to better themselves or the school's environment and could care less about drugs or people involved with them.

So why will Clarkston never be seen in the same way? Probably because from the beginning of time people have always remembered the bad things instead of the good.

Unfortunately, those same people forget that they had some of the same problems within their school. It doesn't matter what city or what school you go to, there is always going to be some problems with drug abuse. My suggestion to you as readers and faithful media followers is not to forget that Clarkston still has one of the best school systems in Oakland County.

I'm proud to say that next year, I will be a Clarkston High school graduate. If I'm a student and I don't look at my school any differently, then why should you?

Amanda Peske is a senior at Clarkston High School.

Stories of vampirism false, says Family member

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Editor

Jason Smith hasn't had his day in court yet, but he wanted to set the record straight about "The Family."

The 18-year-old Clarkston-area resident, one of five members of The Family charged with conspiring to sell LSD to high school students, said he planned to call members of the media to dispel rumors about vampirism associated with The Family.

His attorney advised him not to talk about the drug charges, for which a preliminary exam is set for July 8 in 52nd District Court, Independence Township.

But Smith — who recently resided in a Royal Oak hotel with others in The Family — said he wanted to respond to the other tales. He admitted that he and his friends had been involved in fights and had spray-painted "CVD" around town.

But he said that they are not vampires, don't drink each other's blood and don't drink the blood of animals. "That repulses me," he said.

He suspects that those tales were spread by "one guy getting back at us."

"That's all a big lie," he said. "We are not acid-dealing vampires. That's for 'Geraldo.' ... I think the people who are screwed up are the people who actually believe in vampires."

Smith said he had once belonged to a group called CVD, which stood for "Confederate Vagabond Dominion."

"Vagabond — that's a wanderer," said Smith, adding that some believed the "V" in CVD stood for "vampire."

He said broadcast and print media from all over had sensationalized the case, based on untrue stories.

"If you take the vampire and the occult out of it, you don't have much of a story. You just have a few kids who tried to sell acid," he said.

His friend, Stanley (Kelly) Watkins, 17, who is being held in Oakland County Jail on a higher bond than that set for the other suspects, received requests for his story from all the major TV networks.

"They all wanted the exclusive camera interview," said Smith.

Watkins asked Smith to handle it all. Thus came his phone calls to set the record straight.

Smith said he wears black eyeliner sometimes — mostly for shock value at parties — and he and his friends usually dress exclusively in black. In addition, some of the punk music bands they listen to use skulls as emblems.

He and Watkins also write song lyrics and use model clay to practice "special effects."

"We're horror movie buffs," he said.

He surmises that people who don't know any better mistook those signs for signs of vampirism. But they're wrong, he said.

"The punk scene a lot of people mistakenly think is only music," he said. "It's more of a lifestyle — to use the brain they were born with and think for themselves, not to be a mindless clone that follows what everybody says.

"We dare to be different," he said, adding that some people judge him solely on his apparel.

"We'll take that difference and we'll think it's their weakness, not ours. We have the freedom to dress how we want in America," he said, adding that those negative attitudes about his clothing are "as bad as racial prejudice."

In fact, he said, a new Independence Township ordinance bans certain types of apparel that he and his friends used to wear.

"We used to dress with spikes on us and nails in our boots and on our lapels," he said. But the township ordinance bans any weapon-like accessories.

"That seems like a violation on some First Amendment rights to me," said Smith. "We weren't going around nailing anyone. We just wore them because we liked the way they looked. We wore them in Royal Oak with no problems."

Smith moved to the Clarkston school district when "We are not acid-dealing vampires. That's for 'Geraldo.'" he was an elementary school student. He attended Bailey Lake Elementary, where he began wearing black, he said.

Jason Smith

In April 1990, as a Clarkston High School sophomore, he was expelled from Clarkston schools for setting a fire in the boys' bathroom.

That was "nothing more than a bathroom prank" at the end of the school year, he said.

After that, he attended alternative education schools, most recently in Monroe. He was off probation Sept. 6, 1991.

With one more semester of school left, Smith said he plans to attend Monroe's adult education program in the fall, if his court case goes in his favor. If not, he said, he will finish high school in jail.

Smith said he much preferred alternative high school to regular high school.

"There's a lot of 'old hick' attitudes," he said. "Either you're a jock, a rapper, you're a punk; you're a nerd. ... It's very close minded. A lot of times, they'll look at what sport you play or what music you listen to to decide what kind of person you are. ... We judge everyone as an individual."

Smith said he felt Watkins was getting a bad reputation that was undeserved.

"He's the best friend I've ever had," said Smith. "He's one of the most straightforward, honest, good-hearted people I've ever met. When this started, he wanted to think of a way he could take the rap for everything and help everyone else out."

Smith, who holds a painting job and at the moment lives with his mother and step-father, said he didn't consider his clothing or lifestyle a sign that he needed more attention.

His friends give him all the attention he needs, he said.

But he admits that his childhood wasn't always happy.

"I've had ups and downs with real low times mixed in," he said. "I had a rough childhood that a lot of people have to deal with. It's just your attitude. You have to stand up for yourself. If my parents don't like me, it doesn't mean I'm a bad person."

LSD exam delayed

The June 26 preliminary exam for "The Family" was postponed to 1 p.m. Wednesday, July 8, at 52nd District Court, Independence Township.

The exam, for five men charged with conspiring to sell LSD, was adjourned because the prosecutor, Reed Roe, had a scheduling conflict with another court case.

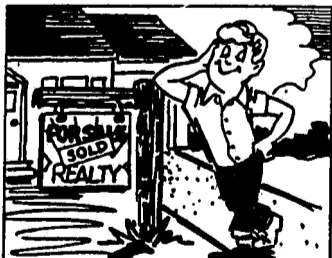

Those charged include: Bruce Kidder, 17; Jason Smith, 18; and Stanley Watkins, 17, all of the Clarkston area; Mark Bierman, 20, of Troy; and Philip Laycock, 18, of Lansing.

BUYERS ARE NOT NAIVE

QUESTION: I consider myself a good salesman. Don't you think I could handle a buyer as well as any Realtor?

ANSWER: Put yourself in the buyer's shoes. He will want the most house he can get for the money. Frankly, the stakes are too high to play the do-it-yourself game in this monetary arena. The best advice is—let an expert sell it.

The average buyer is far from naive. Before you even start serious negotiations, he'll expect you to deduct the Broker's commission for HIS benefit. Then you're on your own in the critical areas of financing, mortgages, contracts deeds, etc. It makes sense to sell it professionally.

BUYERS ARE NOT naive. A Realtor is the best ally you can have when selling your home.

Two rescued from water over weekend

Last weekend, all of the training Shawn Lambouris received to become a lifeguard paid off when he saved two men from drowning.

The 21-year-old Michigan State University student resides on Hubbard Circle, Independence Township.

He was working at the swimming area of Independence Oaks on Saturday, June 27, when a 21-year-old Detroit man swam out to the deep end of the lake and couldn't get back to shore.

"I noticed him out there, hit my siren and got my rescue board," Lambouris said. The man was already under water by the time the lifeguard arrived.

"I grabbed his hand and brought him in. He was breathing on his own, but he had swallowed some water," said Lambouris.

The next day, Lambouris rescued a 52-year-old man who was suffering from a leg cramp in the water.

Although he has saved little children from the water before, Lambouris said that this was the first time he had saved adults.

"It's kinda' rare to save adults, especially two in one weekend," he said.

"(When it happened) my adrenalin was going; I didn't even think about what I was doing. My main concern was getting the men out of the water. Everything seemed to go in slow motion like it was lasting forever, but they were really fast rescues."

July 6 deadline for voter registration

If you plan to vote in the Aug. 4 primary election, make sure you're registered to vote.

Voter registration deadline is Monday, July 6, at any Secretary of State branch office or at your township, city or county clerk's office.

The Department of State's Bureau of Elections notes the July 6 deadline comes on the heels of the Fourth of July holiday weekend. Most government offices will be closed on Friday, July 3, in observance of the holiday but will reopen for business on Monday, July 6.

U.S. citizens 17 years of age who will be 18 on or before Aug. 4 are eligible to register to vote for the primary election.

Two recalled

Two Clarkston school employees were called back from layoff status June 22. The school board voted 6-0 to approve each recall.

Laura Cerretani was called back as a counselor at Clarkston High School.

This came about because four teaching positions were added to the elementary level, so high school counselor Mary Ann Pace-Bleau — who has elementary certification — was reassigned to elementary level, allowing Cerretani to be recalled at the high school, according to Duane Lewis, director of personnel.

William Swayne, who was laid off May 11 with the understanding that he would be called back to a one-half position if the two-mill increase did not pass, was indeed called back to a half-time custodial position.

June 8, voters turned down a request for two additional operating mills. Two mills is $2 for every $1,000 assessed property valuation.

Hoop questions

JALEN Rose, left, and Juwan Howard answered plenty of questions, played a little one-on-one with some campers and jammed a few baskets during the 8th Annual Tim McCormick Basketball Camp last week. The two University of Michigan standouts substituted for the original guest speaker teammate Chris Webber, who was invited to practice against the U.S. Olympic basketball team. Rose, Howard accept being looked at as role models

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Only a little more than a year away from high school graduation, Jalen Rose and Juwan Howard find themselves thrust into the responsibilities of being role models to young basketball players who admire them.

And the two University of Michigan sophomore basketball players accept the challenge.

"It's not right to always preach but if I know something to help young kids I'll say it," said Rose, who with Howard and three other starting freshmen last year reached the NCAA men's finals, losing to Duke.

"I don't mind it at all," said Howard about the role model label.

The two were guest speakers at the Tim McCormick Basketball Camp June 24. Howard also played a little one-on-one with camper Ryan Kaul. Rose spotted Dirk Ridley wearing a Duke shirt and challenged him. The Wolverines also answered the call from the campers requesting some dunks.

Rose and Howard spoke at the Clarkston High School gym, where one of their future teammates, Dugan Fife, just finished an outstanding four-year career.

Rose said he had forgotten that Fife played at the gym.

What does Rose think about the Clarkston graduate joining a team with one of the toughest starting lineups to break into in the country?

"He saw a challenge and he accepted it," said Rose.

"We're happy to have him be a part of the team," said Howard. "He'll play a major role. He's a good point guard. A tough player who works hard."

Howard and Rose hope the Wolverines make a return trip to the finals with different results.

"It's there for us. We have to go out and get it," said Howard.

THERE were plenty of fast breaks like this one at the basketball camp held at Clarkston High School.

Clarkston gym still home court for Knick

Tim McCormick, an eight-year veteran of the NBA now playing with the New York Knicks, graduated from Clarkston High School in 1980. After a successful high school basketball career he helped the University of Michigan win the National Invitational Tournament championship in 1984, being named the tourney's most valuable player. The 30-year-old seven-footer first played for the Seattle SuperSonics in the NBA and then played for the Philadelphia 76ers, New Jersey Nets, Houston Rockets, Atlanta Hawks and the Knicks. Despite a career full of injuries, McCormick still has scored 3,988 points (8.7 points per game), grabbed 2,332 rebounds, shot 54 percent from the field and 70 percent from the free-throw line. McCormick has come back to the Clarkston High School gym each of the past eight summers to help teach basketball fundamentals to boys and girls in grades 4-9 during the week-long Tim McCormick Basketball Camp.

▼ How many more years do you plan to have your camp?

■ "I would really miss it if I stopped having the camp and I think a lot of the kids would miss it. I plan on having the camp at least until someday I have kids that are ready to play."

▼ Do you accept being a role model or is that too much of a title to live up to?

■ "I accept it and I relish that role. If I have a chance to have some little kid look up to me and want to be like me someday, that's a tremendous honor."

"When we meet with the (camp) counselors beforehand, one thing I tell them is whether or not you like it you're a role model this week. And these kids will look up to you."

"Being traded has gotten to the point where it's like an adventure."

Tim McCormick

▼ Do you think a well-known player can say "I'm not a role model, I'm just an athlete"?

■ "There's people that obviously don't live up to being a role model. They do the wrong things in life. When kids see players use drugs, players having trouble with the law, players getting kicked out of school, you can't help but have a negative reaction. That sends a mixed message to a lot of the kids. It's not necessarily fair that athletes are thrust into the job of being role models, but that's the way society is."

"... Society is strange in that way. Why do you look up to an athlete but not a doctor or teacher. I think the kids should be looking up to teachers. They see them every day, they're in the community, they're adults that have been successful. They should be role models just as much as athletes should."

▼ You've been married to Michelle for three years. What effect has marriage had on your professional career?

■ "My marriage has been the greatest thing in my life. My marriage means more to me than playing basketball ever did or ever will."

▼ What does it feel like when you first find out you're being traded?

■ "Being traded has gotten to the point where it's like an adventure. When I was traded from Atlanta to New York before the season it wasn't even a shock. I told Michelle, 'Well, let's pack up again, we're going to New York City.' We didn't approach it like it was an inconvenience. We approached it like it's a great opportunity to play for Pat Riley, to live in New York City, go to Broadway shows, experience new cultures, play with Patrick Ewing, play in Madison Square Garden."

▼ How does that compare with the first time you were ever traded?

■ "The first time was a shock. It was new to me. I was naive enough to think I would probably play for the same team and I would retire. My career took a different turn. I played with a lot of different teams and had great experiences. I wouldn't trade my career for anything."

Sports Q&A

(As told to Clarkston News Staff Writer James Gibowski)

▼ How have the basketball skills and the personalities changed of your campers throughout the years?

■ "I really think a lot of the kids are much better. The competition seems to have improved ... I think the former campers each year are picking up the level of the other kids and it's helping everyone."

▼ You've been around the country and now in New York. Does it help coming back for a week where you first started to play. Do you recommend that for other NBA players.

■ "This probably sounds corny but a lot of people have come up to me and said that you brought back a lot to the community by coming back and having the camp. I really feel like I've benefited a lot myself. First of all, it really is a nice feeling to come back and spend time with the kids. You sort of get lost in the glamour of being in the NBA. Everywhere you go there's cameras and TV and basketball is the most important thing in the world."

"Then you come back here and get a chance to spend time with the kids and realize this is a different society than we grew up in. When I was growing up I didn't feel pressure from drugs. I didn't feel like my friends were drinking. I didn't have the same worries that kids do nowadays. To spend a week talking and laughing and joking with them ... we start to develop a relationship. It reminds me how fortunate I have been. And if I can be a help, it's really a tremendous asset."

▼ What do think about the pros in the Olympics?

■ "I think it's exciting. I think it's unfair that professionals are playing in the Olympics but the reason the NBA players are playing is because the professional European players are playing for their Olympic teams."

▼ How are your knees? How many more years do you think you can play?

■ "It's a situation that is somewhat troubling because it looks like the possibility of another knee surgery is on the horizon. That would be my sixth knee surgery. Each time you have a knee surgery, you're never the same. I'm realistic enough to see that my minutes have been dwindling over the last couple of years because of the knee. So I'm definitely at a crossroads. I don't know how much longer I'll be able to play. I certainly play as long as I can because I love the game ... but when it's to the point when I'm either doing harm to my knee or I'm embarrassing myself, then I'll walk away and be proud of what I accomplished."

■ "It was a little frustrating at first ... I was getting my shots blocked. My man was always scoring on me. But after about 10 days or two weeks, I started thinking this guy's a phenomenal player. Patrick Ewing is blocking my shots. Patrick Ewing is scoring on me. And why should I think I would be different than anybody else in the league because he's dominant in the league. "... I sort of realized I was playing against the best center in basketball and that wasn't going to be successful against him all the time. But I think he made me a better player for going against him."

▼ What is it like playing for coach Pat Riley?

■ "I learned a great deal. I want to get into broadcasting when I'm done playing ... "... Until this year I didn't really feel like I knew the game as well as I should ... I feel like I'm a much more intelligent player after spending a year with him."

▼ You starred at the University of Michigan. What advice would you give Dugan Fife who will be playing there next year?

■ "I would say that the most important thing is that he stay confident in his abilities and don't be swayed by what other people tell him. It's a very difficult transition going from high school to college and at no point should he ever lose his confidence."

"... Now he is going to be playing against guys every day that are all-Americans and all-stars. So he needs to go in and work as hard as he can."

TIM McCormick and his wife, Michelle, lean over to get a little better view of the action last Thursday during the annual Tim McCormick Basketball Camp. (Photo by James Gibowski)

▼ What advice would you give to the parents of your basketball campers in order that they don't become "Little League-type" of parents?

■ "I'm very concerned and very disappointed of the treatment of coach Dan Fife and coach Larry Mahrle. It's possible it's happening in other sports but I know those two and they're friends of mine. I know what good coaches they are and I know how much they care about the development of their players. The fact that parents are giving them a hard time is so disturbing because parents cannot be objective about their kids. When I have children someday, I will not be able to be objective because I'm gonna think my kid is the greatest player and is ready to go into the Hall of Fame."

"... I really wish that the parents of Clarkston who are causing problems would just take a step back and realize that these kids aren't going onto the NBA. It's very difficult to get a college scholarship. They should just allow the players to have fun because that's what they're playing high school sports for. If they're in there for a college scholarship, that's the wrong attitude. It's a very selfish attitude."

▼ What's the funniest thing that happened to you this past year in the NBA?

■ "We were playing in Seattle. We had had a difficult day the night before. Everybody was sort of down. As we were going, Coach Riley informed us that is was going to be a real strenuous practice and he was going to have us work real long and hard."

"... So on the way to practice, he (Riley) stopped the bus. Everybody got off the bus and we walked into a dark room. He said, 'This is for Tim McCormick.' He turned on the light and we were in sort of a movie theater. And the film started rolling and they started playing the movie 'White Men Can't Jump.' So we got the day off of practice and they played my movie ... We went out and beat Seattle the next night and then beat Portland the following night, so it really brought us together."

▼ How much money do you earn a year?

■ "It's private."

▼ What's the best part and worst part about playing in the NBA?

■ "I would be lying if I said it wasn't, the best part of the NBA is that you're able to make a tremendous salary doing something that you love doing. The worst part is that you're forced to be away from your loved ones during the season."

Buchmann captures junior golf championship

Jayson Buchmann, a Clarkston High School sophomore, fired a 149 for 36 holes to win the 14-15 boys' age division of the 18th Annual Oakland County Junior Golf Invitational June 25-26.

Buchmann shot a 74 at the Springfield Oaks Golf Course and a 75 at the White Lake Oaks Golf Course. Scott Steinlauf of Farmington Hills finished three strokes behind Buchmann and West Bloomfield's Sean Lutwin took third by shooting a 154.

Buchmann's 149 total was identical to 16-17-year-old boys' winner Patrick Bingaman of Flint and 18-19-year-old boys' winner Marcus Myers of Pontiac.

Last fall in high school varsity golf, Buchmann placed tied for ninth individually in the Class A state finals as a freshman to help the Wolves finish seventh as a team.

Smith's Disposal 1st at Tawas

Smith's Disposal finished ahead of 15 other teams to win the 17th Annual Tawas Men's Invitational slow-pitch softball tournament on June 27-28.

The team, which plays locally in the Independence Township Parks and Recreation 35-and-over Sunday league, won all five of its games, including one against a two-time defending champ Hazel Park squad. The tournament was open to all age divisions.

It was the fifth time Smith's Disposal competed in the tourney. It had finished third the two previous years.

Most of the team members have been playing together for about eight years.

Some divisions compete with other communities. The leagues begin in mid-September. The cost varies, depending on the choice of seasons.

UNDER-16 AND UNDER-19 SOCCER

Players are wanted for boys' and girls' travel soccer leagues. Teams are registered with The Michigan Youth Soccer League and play their home games at Clintonwood Park — and also travel to other communities to play.

Matches are normally played on the weekends, with occasional weekday games. The season tentatively begins in late August. Registration is now through July 3. Early registration is required because of the MYSL deadlines. No late registrations will be accepted. Cost is $40 for residents and $45 for non-residents.

COUNTRY TOLE PAINTING

This class meets Saturdays, July 11 to Aug. 15, at the senior center. Cost is $45 for residents and $55 for non-residents.

Rug braiding: Bring clean, wrinkle-free material, scissors, tape measure, sturdy needle and strong thread to the first class. The eight-week class meets 6-8 p.m. Wednesdays, July 8 to Aug. 26, at the senior center. Cost is $12 for residents and $22 for non-residents.

Cake decorating: Instructor Marilyn Tindall Wick teaches students how to decorate cakes with the butter creme icing in shapes of flowers, borders, clowns, leaves and more. Students also learn how to make sugar molds and mints and how to decorate with cream cheese. Special-event decorations will also be taught. Bring paper and pencil to the first class. Decorating supplies will be the responsibility of the student. The eight-week class meets on 8-10 p.m. Wednesdays, July 1 to Aug. 26, at the senior center. Hearing on 198 homes proposed for Maybee

Clarkston News Staff Writer

Area residents have a chance to speak their minds about a proposal to build 198 homes on 188 acres on Maybee Road.

A public hearing before the Independence Township Planning Commission was set for 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 6, at the township annex, 90 N. Main St., Clarkston.

The hearing covers a proposal to build Morgan Lake Estates subdivision off the gravel road portion of Maybee Road, north of I-75.

The commission set the hearing date after a June 25 meeting filled with conflict with contractor Michael Clark, who represented the three owners of the property.

Clark told commission members that the development would not encroach on wetlands on the property.

But when commission member Steve Secatch asked why some parts of the development were very dense and others sparse, Clark responded: "You are a recommending committee. Density is not something you can change. We are submitting our plan, asking for a public hearing, and we want to move on."

Clark also said he would pursue litigation if the commission tried to stop the project.

Next, Cecilia Yarber spoke to Clark.

"We do remember that we are a recommending board, but we need to address issues that concern us," she said.

Commission member Joseph Figa said threats of court cases were offensive to members of the planning commission.

Clark said, "It is difficult not to mention court when certain members of the planning commission ask what we are doing here, (although we have been here on occasion before). The last thing I want to do is enter litigation. My clients are businessmen and paying a couple hundred thousand dollars in attorney fees and not (to) have to do some of the paving and other things would save them money."

Clark then asked for a July 23 public hearing, but Richard Carlisle, the township's planning consultant, said he doubted Clark's entire plans could be submitted in time for that meeting.

"Every step of the way I've had to judge whether or not the plans were complete," said Carlisle. "I want everything complete before the public hearing. I think we should make the meeting Aug. 6 to give you enough time to be completely ready."

Schools give $2,000

A $2,000 donation to the Clarkston Area Youth Assistance was approved by the Clarkston Board of Education June 22.

The request — for the same amount donated last year — came from social worker Garry Pullins, whose salary is paid for by the Oakland County Youth Assistance (CAYA). Other expenses are paid for by donations. The CAYA aims to prevent juvenile delinquency in the Clarkston area.

Only for a moment did board members pause to consider reducing the amount to be donated due to budget cuts, but members quickly voted 6-0 to approve the contribution.

"They provide a service to this district for students well worth the $2,000," said Janet Thomas.

School millage rate remains the same

Since property taxes are frozen for the 1992-93 school year, Clarkston schools did not have to hold a "truth-in-taxation" hearing before setting its millage rate.

By state law, the rate must remain the same as last year, said Steve Lenar, director of business services for Clarkston schools.

With little comment, the board voted 6-0 June 22 to approve the 1992 operational levy of 38.83 mills and the debt retirement levy of 1.7 mills. One mill is $1 for every $1,000 assessed property valuation.

Property within the Clarkston school district increased in state equalized value (SEV) by 4.28 percent, according to Lenar's written report to the school board. In 1991-92, the SEV of property within the district was $629,009,500. In 1992-93, the SEV is $655,916-350. However, the state's mandatory property tax freeze means area residents won't see an increase in their property tax bill this year.

Holiday fun, festivities

Pancakes, music, marching and ice cream abound in downtown Clarkston on the Fourth of July this year.

Following are activities for the entire family:

Pancake Breakfast: The Fourth of July celebrations begin Saturday with a pancake breakfast sponsored by the Clarkston Masonic Temple on Main and Washington streets, Clarkston. A meal of pancakes, sausage, juice and coffee will be served 7-11 a.m. Cost is $3 for adults, $2.50 for seniors, $2 for children ages 5-12, and free for children under age 5.

July 4th Parade: After breakfast you may need to sit down for a while and digest all of that food, and you are in luck. At 10 a.m., the annual Clarkston Fourth of July Parade begins. The theme of the parade this year is "Made in America." Grand Marshall is Red Beattie, and masters of ceremony are Byron McGregor and his wife Jo Jo, disc jockeys at WLLZ 98.7 FM.

The parade, sponsored by the Independence Township Fire Department, begins at Clarkston Junior High, travels west on Church Street, then north on Main Street, then west on Miller Road.

Depot Park Festivities: Eventually, the festivities end up in Clarkston's Depot Park on Depot Road (between Main Street and Holcomb Road).

The events include an antique fire engine display and "waterball" and "bucket brigade" contests between area fire departments.

However, there will be no "foreign-car bashing," as originally planned. A spokesperson from the department said, "It was supposed to be a cute fund-raiser, but we've gotten a lot of (negative) phone calls about it." So the event was canceled.

Ice Cream Social: By the time the parade is over and you have caught up on the village gossip with the people you only see once a year, you and your family will probably be hungry again. The gods must be smiling on you because now you don't have to go far for an ice cream treat at the St. Daniel Catholic Church ice cream social in Depot Park.

The social runs from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., and the proceeds help send area teens to summer camps. One large-scoop cone will be $1.25, but coupons for 25 cents off will be available at the booth.

By now you'll probably need a nap, a trip to the beach or a visit with family. Whatever you do, have a safe Fourth.

DON HART of Eaton Road, Springfield Township, stands in front of the community center that bears his name. The community center on Davisburg Road, Springfield Township, is home to many community groups, including the Davisburg Rotary Club, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, and Young at Heart Senior Citizens. Davisburg committee member Roger Beukema said the community center "couldn't have happened without the vision, patience and determination to see a project through by one man, Don Hart. I can't think of a more appropriate name for this building than the Hart Community Center." Hart is humble about the attention and simply said, "I think it's wonderful, a real honor."

"I like to see the whole community come together as friends." This is an idea which Don Hart has put to work!

On May 30, the Hart Community Center celebrated its grand opening with a dedication to Don Hart, the man who put forth all his enthusiasm and support to create a special place where the Springfield Township community could come together in one place to enjoy its neighbors and facilities.

Community center dedicated to: Don Hart of Springfield Township

Family: He resides on Eaton Road, Springfield Township, with his wife and seven children, four dogs and a cat.

Occupation: Builder (retired).

Hobby: Rebuilds antique cars that he enters in auto shows and some of which will be displayed in this year's Fourth of July Parade in Springfield Township.

Favorite TV show: "MacGyver." Hart enjoys watching shows in which people are friends and there isn't any fighting.

How does the dedication of the community center make you feel? Happy that there is now a place where the seniors can play cards and dance, the community group Neighbor for Neighbor has room to meet, and where new ideas for the community can be introduced.

What other community projects have you been involved in? He put forth his ideas and helped build a water wheel and dam, which can be found where an old Mill sat in one of Springfield's parks.

What else would you like to see done within the community or be involved with helping out with? "I would really like to put in a pipe in the lake by the water wheel in which water sprays out the top and lights are put in to light it up at night."

Do you feel you've accomplished a lot so far throughout your life? "Yes, and I've enjoyed all that I've done, but I still dream of seeing kids become more involved in activities within the community and using their imagination to build their own toys."

~Diana Pletz

Humane society says don't touch wildlife

Every year as warm weather arrives, new baby animals are born.

It's also the time of year when the Michigan Humane Society receives calls about orphaned wildlife. But, in truth, most of these youngsters are not orphaned or helpless.

The society encourages anyone who finds a juvenile animal without its mother not to touch or approach the animal. Most likely the animal has not been abandoned. The parents may just be out searching for food for their new family members. It is not unusual for adult animals to leave the nest or den for hours at a time.

If you don't see an adult bird caring for the young, you can try a little trick to determine if the baby bird is really orphaned. Place a cross of small twigs or yarn on the top of the nest and keep children and animals away. If the twigs or yarn have been disturbed in the morning, it is quite certain that they mother has been around to feed her young. If there has been no disturbance by the next morning, it is possible that the baby birds are abandoned. Carefully gather them up and bring them to your nearest MHS shelter or call the local nature center.

Young rabbits may also present a problem in the early summer months. When doing the first yard clean-up and mowing of the year, rabbit nests are often disturbed. Baby cottontails, like baby birds, are better off left in their natural habitat, according to MHS officials.

It's stressful for the rabbits to be handled and transported. It's also extremely difficult to raise young rabbits. Their survival rate is much greater if they are left alone.

If you are certain the animals are orphaned, take them to the nearest MHS shelter or nature center, where experienced workers can care for them. Wild animals should not be raised as pets — they are much better off living their life in their natural environment.

Playing it safe

Children can learn traffic safety in a program designed especially for them.

"Play It Safe" — set for 9:30-11:30 a.m. or 1-3 p.m., Monday, July 6, through Friday, July 17 — costs $55 for Independence Township residents, $65 for non-residents.

Children ages 4, 5 and 6 will learn safety education and correct traffic behavior through their own involvement, using model streets, railroads, street corners, traffic lights and vehicles.

Sponsored by the township parks and recreation department, Play It Safe takes place at the township library on Clarkston Road. For more information, call 625-8231.

Correspondence course on food preservation

If you've ever wanted to learn to preserve foods properly but never had time for classes, now there's another option.

A seven-week correspondence course in food preservation is offered through the Oakland County Cooperative Extension Service.

"You can work at your own pace and in your own kitchen," says Sylvia Treitman, home economist for the Extension.

The course covers the latest U.S. Department of Agriculture recommendations that make home canning a safe method of food preservation.

Older hand-me-down recipes are risky and may cause foodborne illness, says Treitman.

The course covers all aspects of food preservation including food safety, canning of low-acid and high-acid foods, and freezing and drying fruits and vegetables. The $15 cost covers postage and handling charges.

To obtain an enrollment sheet or for more information, call the Food and Nutrition Hotline, 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday at 858-0904.

She makes a living by reducing stress

BY CATHERINE PASSMORE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

In the fast-paced world we live in, very few people take time out to relax and rid themselves of stress — some people don't even know how to relax.

Carolyn Hamlin found a way to release stress in her life by participating in massage therapy. Hamlin, a 1972 Clarkston High School graduate, is a certified massage therapist practicing in the Clarkston area.

"I had been massaging people for 20 years — my father and my friends; it was stress management for me," she said, adding that back then, she wouldn't consider it for a career path.

"I didn't want to be a massage therapist because of all of those 'fringe benefits' that you hear about. It was a definite red light profession," she said.

However, the stigma of giving massages for a living has been changing, so Hamlin decided about a year ago to actually practice massage therapy.

In addition, she designs wellness programs for corporations that offer preventative health maintenance for CAROLYN HAMLIN demonstrates her massaging techniques on Todd Miske. She is careful to inform clients about what she is doing throughout the session.

However, she enjoyed it so much, she decided to branch out into the area with her own business.

Hamlin said she enjoys working with many types of people and thinks anyone would benefit from her stress-reduction techniques.

"A lot of people think that they have to have this perfect body before they come here," she said, but that's nonsense.

"I work with overweight people, older people — we work with what you have and decide how you can reach that ideal," she said.

Business Brief

Parks employee marks 25 years

As one of the original employees of the Oakland County Parks and Recreation Commission, Tom Jackson played an important role in the creation and development of the system.

He originally served as Oakland County's assistant director of civil defense until 1966, when he teamed with former director Ken Van Natta to promote the park's first millage election.

"Ken and I had always entertained the idea of starting a county parks system," Jackson recalled. "We ran an extensive advertising campaign, distributing more than 200,000 flyers before the election."

His greatest pride has been watching the parks system mature from infancy to a nine-park, 4,000-acre entity, which has garnered awards on the local, state and national levels.

"It's been thrilling to see the parks grow and become well respected throughout the nation," he said.

While serving as recreation coordinator at Springfield Oaks Golf Course, the system's first park, Jackson played a key role in acquiring the adjacent Springfield Oaks Activities Center plus acreage for Addison Oaks, Groveland Oaks, Independence Oaks and Waterford Oaks county parks.

"Most of my duties involved the purchase of park land," he said. "I took part in all aspects of the acquisition, including researching the land, analyzing costs and 'selling' the park to the board of commissioners."

Jackson has also served as an officer and president of the Michigan Recreation and Parks Association and the Northwest Parks and Recreation Association.

A Waterford resident, he and wife Joana are the parents of two adult sons.

What's new in business their employees. High-stress jobs are usually accompanied by high medical costs for employers. On-site exercising and massages can reduce the stress a person feels, and the employee feels that the corporation really notices them and cares for what they do, said Hamlin.

Hamlin also offers stress reduction for individuals, teaches couples customized massage techniques and offers massages at "pamper parties."

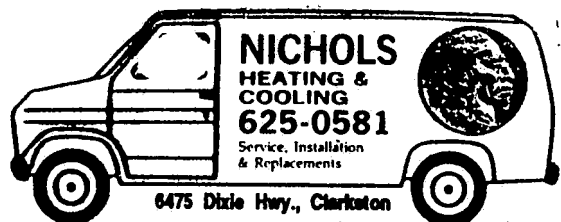

Through it all, propriety is a top consideration.

"Modesty is always a concern," Hamlin said, explaining that certain parts of the body are always covered, and she does not massage sensitive body areas.

She also schedules sessions at The Makeover Place on Dixie Highway, Independence Township, at the bottom of Waterford Hill.

Hamlin, a single parent of a 12-year-old daughter, moved back to the Clarkston area about three years ago, so her daughter could have some of the same experiences that she did while she was growing up.

Before launching her own business, Hamlin worked for the stress-reduction consulting company, Tamarra's.

Edmonds, Saile exchange vows

Debbie R. Edmonds and Peter J. Saile were married in a double-ring ceremony May 19, 1992, in Worland, Wyo. Judge William Shelledy officiated the 11 a.m. ceremony.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Nelson of Worland and Bobbie Edmonds of Dallas, Texas, wore a pink handkerchief-linen dress with a white lace overlay. Her shoulder corsage was of pink and white roses and baby's breath.

The groom, son of Mr. and Mrs. James R. Saile of Clarkston, is an electrician with Holly Sugar Co. They will make their home in Worland.

Cheryl Salzman, a friend of the bride, was maid of honor; and Keith Jarvis, a friend of the groom, was best man.

Call it vegetable, but it may be flower or fruit

The vegetable of the day at your favorite restaurant may be a grain, a fruit, a flower or almost any other plant part that you care to name. The part of the plant that you eat varies with the plant.

"We usually apply the term 'vegetable' to plant foods other than grains and what we commonly call 'fruit' — apples, peaches, pears, and such," says Tom Stebbins, master gardener specialist at Michigan State University.

"If in doubt, don't eat it."

Tom Stebbins

East Lansing. "This means a lot of unrelated plants are lumped into one broad category. And some of them are technically fruits."

To a botanist, a fruit is the female portion of a flower, swollen and enlarged to provide a protective structure for the seeds that began to develop when the flower was pollinated. That means that tomatoes, eggplant, squash, pumpkins, peppers, cucumbers and melons are fruits in the botanical sense, though only melons are commonly classed in that category. The rest are generally considered vegetables.

Seeds in pods also form as a result of pollination, but they lack the fleshy covering found in fruits. Beans, peas, okra, corn, dill and many other herbs and spices are either seeds or seed pods. Corn, of course, though we usually consider it a vegetable, is actually a grain.

Of the plant foods everyone agrees are vegetables, the part of the plant eaten may vary from the leaves to the stem to the flowers or the roots.

Leaves are the portion eaten when we consume lettuce, spinach, cabbage, kale, endive, collards, mustard, parsley and other leafy herbs. Brussels sprouts, though they resemble cabbages, are actually vegetative buds.

With rhubarb and asparagus, the stems are the edible part. Heads of broccoli and cauliflower are immature flowers. A mass of yellow flowers on top of your broccoli plants means you waited too long to harvest.

Grown for their underground parts are carrots, leeks, radishes, parsnips, rutabagas, salsify, turnips and sweet potatoes (all roots), potatoes (tubers) and onions (bulbs).

Often a plant grown for one part — turnips, for instance — have other edible portions — in this case, leaves. Others with edible parts may have inedible or even poisonous parts. Potatoes, for instance, sometimes produce little round fruits that resemble tomatoes but should never be eaten.

"If you're not sure about the other parts of a plant, stick with the parts you know are good to eat," Stebbins suggests. "If in doubt, don't eat it."

The above information was provided by Outreach Communications, Michigan State University, East Lansing. For more information, call Tom Stebbins at 517/353-3774.

My first impression of medicine came when my father would take me on visits to see relatives who were ill. I remember being impressed by the process of recovery. After seeing a doctor, this person who had been very sick was now talking, laughing and walking around as if nothing had ever been wrong. I wanted to be able to have that effect on people, and I decided to focus on children's health.

In addition to treating youngsters who are sick, I enjoy the special role I have in helping children become good citizens and good human beings. Support and encouragement are so important to healthy development. I also spend a lot of time talking with parents. Helping their understanding may be the most significant impact I have on the whole family. Nothing affects a child's health as much as the support and guidance that comes from a healthy family life.

Fire up for safe 'Fourth' fireworks

Fourth of July fireworks are as much a tradition as the Thanksgiving turkey — but considerably more dangerous.

Because nearly 200 fireworks injuries are recorded yearly in Michigan, AAA Michigan and the state's Fire Marshal's office recommend you leave the pyrotechnics to the professionals.

A permit is needed for any firework that spins, explodes, flies or jumps off the ground. Eight classes of fireworks allowed in Michigan include: toy trick noisemakers, wire sparklers (up to No. 14), flitter sparklers (creates a shower of sparks), cylinder fountain, cone fountain, toy snakes and toy smoke devices.

But the Fire Marshal's office warns that even these can be dangerous. Last year, an estimated 11,200 fireworks-related injuries were reported by hospital emergency rooms across the nation, according to the Consumer Product Safety Commission. Injuries can range from minor burns and smoke inhalation to loss of eyesight and dismemberment.

Since it's safer to view rather than participate, more than a hundred Michigan communities will stage fireworks displays throughout the Independence Day holiday.

'Ball Blue Book' gives safe canning methods

Canning season is fast approaching, so you may want to update your canning books and recipes.

The Ball Blue-32nd edition canning book is up to date on food safety, says Sylvia Treitman, home economist for the Oakland County Cooperative Extension.

Canning methods and U.S. Department of Agriculture processing recommendations have changed in recent years, says Treitman.

"Older canning information becomes outdated," she says. "Most local stores that carry canning supplies also carry this inexpensive paperback book. It is a worthwhile investment to assure that your home-canned food products are as safe as possible.

"Beware that there are some other 'new' canning books on the market that do not use the U.S.D.A. recommendations for processing," she says. "This could result in improperly processed food and the possibility of a food poisoning incident. If you are unsure if your canning recipe is safe to use, check with The Food and Nutrition Hotline."

To order the latest Ball Blue Book or for information from the Hotline, call 858-0904 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

"BECAUSE THE PEOPLE MUST KNOW"

Village of Clarkston VILLAGE COUNCIL REGULAR MEETING

JULY 22, 1992

Meeting called to order by President Catalo at 6:40 p.m., followed by the Pledge of Allegiance.

Roll: Present - Basinger, Catalo, Haven, Mauti, Roeser, Schultz, and Whitmer.

Moved by Roeser, supported by Mauti. "That the minutes of the meeting of June 8, 1992 be approved." Motion carried.

Moved by Roeser, supported by Mauti. "That the agenda be approved with the following addition: Old Business #3 Drainage ditch along M-15, #4 Police Employment Agreement, New Business #5 resolution of registration hours, #7 Special meeting." Yeas

- 7, Nays - 0. Motion carried.

There were no committee reports. Basinger wanted to dispel any rumors regarding the parades in the Village. Parades are welcome in the Village.

Police protection during the parades will need to be arranged between the Township and the Village as well as coverage for liability.

Basinger also stated that a letter will be sent to all Village residents within the next few days detailing changes that will go into effect 7/1/92 when the Village becomes a city. The letter is six pages long and is to be reviewed by the Council members for corrections and additions prior to its meeting.

Moved by Schultz, supported by Roeser. "To appoint Steven

Arkwright, Ann Weber, Roz Neelham and Susan Basinger to the District Library Committee with Ginny Schultz as an alternative." Yeas

- 6, Nays - 1. Motion carried.

On Saturday June 20, 1992 Roeser, Pappas, Gary Tressel and the involved home owners met to view the problem with the drainage ditch on North M-15. The engineer suggested that 1) that the ditch be re-established, 2) the home owners will assist in the final restoration of the graded areas. This would include the planting of the grass seed, 3) Mr. Jordon, the man who originally filled in the drainage ditch, and still owns the property will be asked to re-establish the ditch and regrade the area to insure proper drainage.

This request will be made in a letter from the Village Attorney, Tom

Ryan, with the stated expectation that the work will be completed within 15 days. 4) If the property owner does not comply with this request, the Village Attorney felt our recourse would be to address the issue in Oakland County Court.

Moved by Basinger, supported by Roeser. "That it be resolved that the Village of Clarkston contract with Robert Devore as

Police Chief for the Village of Clarkston for one year beginning

June 15, 1992 renewable for one year at the Village option. Roll:

Yeas - 7, Nays - 0. Motion carried.

Moved by Roeser, supported by Basinger. "To approve the use of the park on July 12, 1992 by Dale Stuart for a campaign rally from 12:00 to 4:00 p.m. The granting of the use of the park by the Village Council is not an indication of support for any candidate."

How To's for Canoes

DO.....

- wear a personal floatation device.
- keep gear dry by packing food and clothes in watertight containers. Put them inside two garbage bags sealed separately, one inside the other.
- bring a change of clothes--a hat and sunscreen if it's sunny, a wind-breaker and long pants for cool weather. Wear tennis shoes for wading.
- Strap eyeglasses or sunglasses in place.

DON'T.....

- overload. Keep cargo to a minimum and store in the bottom center of the canoe.
- litter. Attach a garbage bag to the canoe.
- canoe during a storm or high winds.
- drink alcohol which impairs judgment and boating capabilities.

FOR LIFES' MINOR ACCIDENTS...

MINOR ACCIDENTS MEAN URGENT CARE

"I just took my eyes off them for an instant . . ." The unexpected happens . . . bumps, bruises, scrapes and sprains. These minor mishaps may not be life-threatening but still deserve appropriate medical attention. We call this Urgent Care.

Prompt

We know you don't want to spend time waiting for assistance. So, our Urgent Care services are designed to assure you're evaluated efficiently and completely.

Professional

Supported by state-of-the-art laboratory and radiology departments, our experienced physicians and nurses carefully evaluate your problem and provide proper care, including follow-up instructions.

Caring

We know quite often an injury is more than skin deep. Soothing the feelings of a frightened child and taking time to talk with you can be as important as mending the injury. Concern and compassion are qualities we value as caring professionals.

Providing a complete range of efficient, high quality medical services is our promise to the community. So, when your day is unexpectedly interrupted, you'll find us available to respond to your needs.

ONE of Laura Wendt's strengths is swivel skiing.

BAREFOOT skiing is difficult but Brian Gruber makes it look easy.

TIMM Garceau drives from Grand Blanc to ski with the Spray Masters.

Making waves

The Spray Masters of Big Lake are making waves.

The 40-member group of water skiers will be participating in shows this summer on Big Lake in Springfield Township. On August 15, the group will ski in state competition, where it placed third last year.

This is the fourth year for the Spray Masters, who mostly range in ages from 9-25 (older members are also invited to ski). About six people formed the group four years ago after breaking away from a Fenton group.

Spray Masters will be performing in a 3 p.m. Fourth of July show for friends and residents on Big Lake (at 5919 Morning in Springfield Township). Earlier in the morning, the group will be a part of the Fourth of July parade in downtown Clarkston.

The public is invited to any of their practices every Tuesday and Thursday (about 6 p.m.) throughout the summer at Big Lake. The Spray Masters will also perform in shows on some of those Thursdays.

The Spray Masters' routines include flaglines, rope doubles, strap doubles, shoe skiing, ballet line, swivel skiing and pyramids.

Anyone interested in joining the group can call the club's vice-president Skip Wendt at 625-0974 or president Bob Dowling at 750-9410.

Other club board members are Alice Zacks (secretary); Debbie Gruber (treasurer); Jim Gruber (equipment); Kathi Dowling (membership); Kory Harris, Brian Gruber, Dan Pitock, Kathi Harris and Laura Wendt (show); Laura Wendt (safety and activities).

Boat drivers for the group are Bob Dowling, Darryl Wendt and Skip Wendt.

The Spray Masters' skiers are: (from Springfield Township) Larry Gruber, Brenda Shea, Brad Shea, Nicole Stuk, Laura Wendt, Kathi Harris, Kory Harris, Brian Gruber, Sarah Ashley, Richard Hawes; (Independence Township) Dawn Gawron, Matt Gruber, Jim Gruber, Amanda Heussner, Peter Hogaboam; (Davison) Dan Pitock; (Bloomfield Hills) Ben Schneider, (Royal Oak) David Nedry, (White Lake) Kimberly Boomer; (West Bloomfield) Nick Dinicola, Eric Zacks, Evan Zacks, (Waterford) Susan Woodrow, (Grand Blanc) Timm Garceau.
