AND CATHERINE PASSMORE

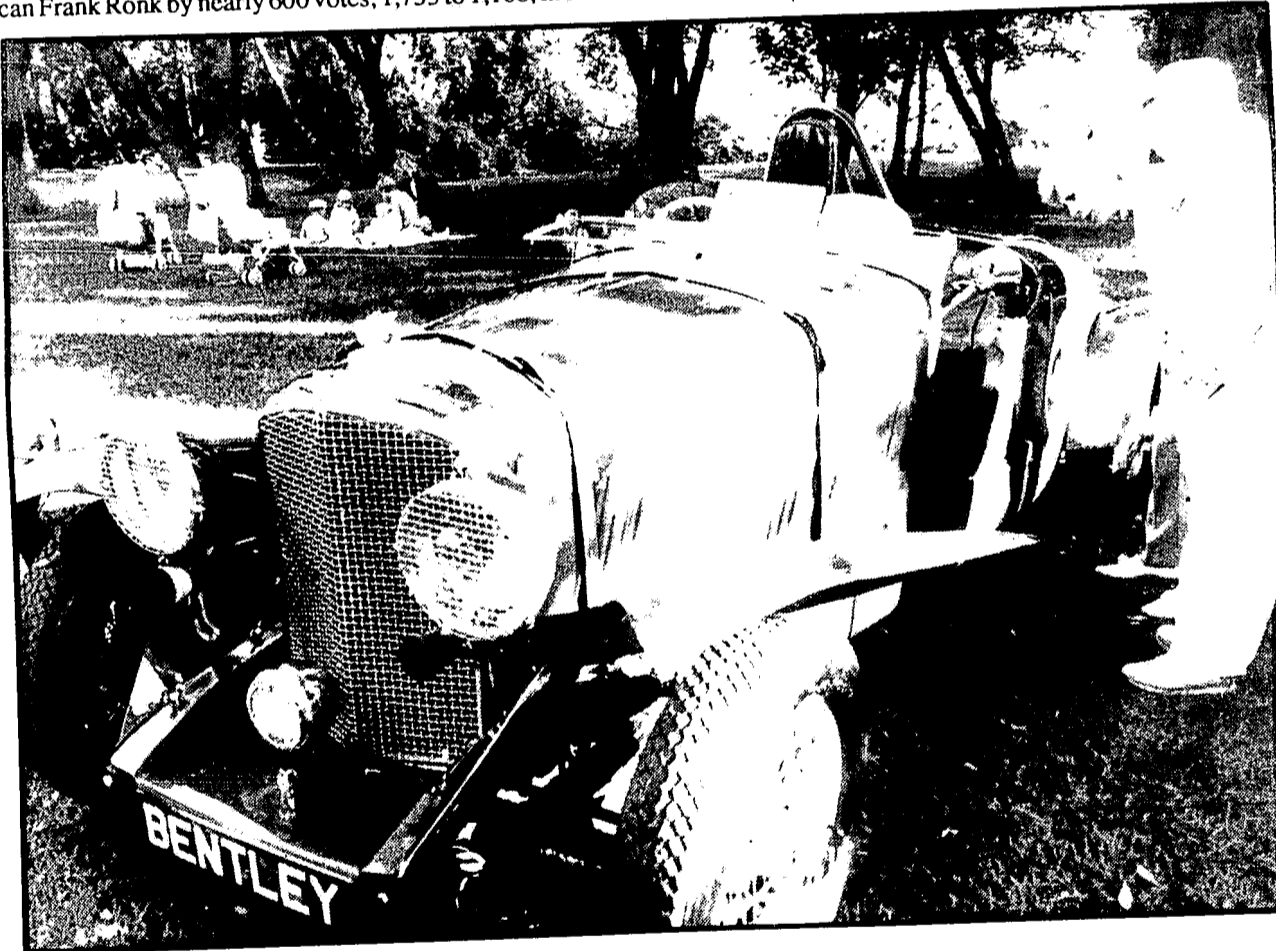

Come this November, Independence Township will be getting a new supervisor — Dale Stuart.

The 49-year-old attorney pulled off one of the county's biggest surprises Aug. 4, when he upset fellow Republican Frank Ronk by nearly 600 votes, 1,753 to 1,168, in the primary election. Ronk, 63, had been seeking a third consecutive term after taking office eight years ago.

Stuart, formerly a trustee on the township board, was admittedly pleased with his victory.

"I'm very happy with the outcome," he said. "I'm looking for a smooth transition of power in November, so I can ease into the position and investigate ways of" (See STROLE, next page).

Comedy comes alive in youth theater

A comedic night out is possible next weekend if you go to the Clarkston Village Players Summer Youth Theater production of "You Can't Take It With You."

The three-act comedy takes place at 7 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 13; 8 p.m. Friday, Aug. 14; 8 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 15; and 2 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 16; at the Depot Theater on White Lake Road, Independence Township. Tickets are $4 for Thursday and Sunday, $5 for Saturday and Sunday.

Directed by Amy Seaman, the play brings out the lively characters of the Sycamore family, circa 1937. The play is produced by Erica Nienstedt and Chris Lewis with help from Holly Stephens.

For more information, call Melissa at 625-3061 or Shawna at 394-0525.

New hours at Secretary of State

Next time you have to renew your license, you likely won't have to take time off from work to do it.

Beginning Aug. 5, 165 Secretary of State branch offices shifted their hours on Wednesdays to 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. to offer citizens service in the evening.

Richard H. Austin, secretary of state, said motorists still should take advantage of the renewal-by-mail program, when possible, because it's quicker and saves time and money.

Austin said the Secretary of State was forced to eliminate Saturday morning service offered at 41 locations until January 1991 as a result of state budget reductions. The shift of hours on Wednesday will not increase cost to the department but should add convenience to customers.

While the Clarkston branch office on Dixie Highway, Independence Township, is among the 165 offices with evening hours on Wednesday, the downtown Pontiac branch office is not.

Strole, Stiles named Springfield clerk, treasurer

reducing township spending."

Township Treasurer John Lutz said Ronk's leadership will be sorely missed.

"I'm going to miss the old guy because he's been such a strong leader these past eight years," Lutz said. "I've worked with Dale before, and he's a clear thinker. However, I think he'll find the supervisor role a little different from his trustee duties of the past."

Clerk Joan McCrary said she'll also be sorry to see "Tink" go.

"This is a great loss for the township, but we're here to serve the people and do our jobs to the best of our abilities," she said.

Ronk will continue to serve as supervisor until after the general election in November.

Fire millage renewal passes

In other primary action, the fire millage renewal passed by a margin of 1,900 to 1,604. So residents will continue to pay taxes on the present three-mill package.

Three mills is $3 for every $1,000 assessed property valuation. That means the owner of a $100,000 home, assessed at half the market value ($50,000), will continue to pay $150 a year for townshipwide fire protection. This millage will run from Jan. 1, 1993, to the end of 1997.

Independence Township

In the township board race, six Republicans ran the show. Incumbents McCrary and Lutz ran unopposed for clerk and treasurer, respectively. McCrary garnered 2,308 votes and Lutz collected 2,326.

Four residents also ran unopposed for four open trustee spots. They included incumbents Bruce Mercado, Daniel Travis, Mel Vaara and newcomer Jeffrey McGee. That evening, their tallies included: Mercado 1,560, Travis 1,585, Vaara 1,580, McGee 1,407.

All four trustees will be required to serve a four-year term on the board.

According to Lutz, voter turnout in Independence was a little better than average with 4,102 voters, or 23.7 percent, casting ballots.

Dale Stuart finished first in the Republican primary election for Independence Township supervisor. Since no Democrats are on the ballot, he probably will be elected supervisor in November.

Strole, Stiles win in Springfield

Voter turnout in Springfield Township was dismal, but for those who won their bids for office nothing could dim their happiness.

Of the 6,534 registered voters in Springfield Township, only 1,647 people or 25 percent of the voters turned out for the election.

Nancy Strole, 50, of Davisburg Road received 603 votes to place her in the township clerk's office. Strole will take over for retiring Clerk Calvin Walters.

A communications consultant, Strole, was elected township trustee in 1988. She is a township delegate to the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments; an alternate member, Areawide Water Quality Board; member of the Springfield Business Association and a member of Lighthouse North Steering Committee.

Other Republican candidates for clerk included:

Correction

In last week's Clarkston News, a list of churches should have said that First Congregational Church at 5449 Clarkston Road, Independence Township, has 10 a.m. worship service.

Cynthia Ashley, receiving 206 votes; James Ashley 363; and Kathleen Woods 201.

The other major township race was between Geraldine Rumph and Lois Stiles for the position of township treasurer. Incumbent Stiles received 836 votes, and Rumph received 459 votes.

Stiles, 60, of King Road has lived in Springfield (See STILES, Page 19A)

Middle Lake Road residents may secede from city

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Associated Editor

A Clarkston resident has begun a petition drive with hope of pulling Middle Lake Road out of the fledgling City of Clarkston.

Attorney Jon Gaskell said he's on the verge of collecting petition signatures from neighbors and residents along Middle Lake Road. His hope is to garner enough community support to where the Oakland County Board of Commissioners would allow the issue to be placed on the general election ballot in November.

Gaskell said he believes he can gather the necessary 250 signatures within the week and send them off to the county. Gaskell said the Middle Lake Road area is made up of about 150 property owners who are registered voters.

In addition to these people, he intends to seek signatures from other Clarkston and Independence Township residents.

Gaskell said he's been preparing for this petition

"The idea behind this is that I don't see a need for a city government."

Attorney Jon Gaskell

drive long before Clarkston transformed into a city July 1.

"I've been preparing for this action for quite some time," he said. "The idea behind this is that I don't see a need for a city government."

The cityhood issue has already affected one Middle Lake Road resident — Independence Township Supervisor Frank Ronk of Clarkston. Ronk was forced to rent a home on Northview Drive last month because law prohibits him from holding a township position while living in another independent municipality.

This legal contingency also affected Steven Secatch of M-15, Clarkston. Secatch, a long-time member of the Independence Township Planning Commission, stepped down from the commission because of his city residence.

If the county board of commissioners deems the request viable and allows it on the November ballot, Gaskell expects the issue to be open to township and city voters.

Sharron Catallo, Clarkston City mayor, said she was surprised by the news of the petition and the man behind it.

"This is sort of surprising because Jon was on the village council a few years back, and he never outwardly expressed a concern when the subject of cityhood was initially brought up," she said. "If the residents of Middle Lake have a problem, I wish they'd come to us about it."

Gaskell said he's worked for several months on this project, at no substantial cost. He believes his determination will eventually pay off.

"It's taken quite a while to draw up these petitions because each signee must provide me with a legal description of their property," he said. "But I believe all this hard work will be worth it in the long run."

500 surveyed by phone, mail

Over the last several weeks, more than 360 Independence Township residents have been asked their opinion of the library and parks and recreation department.

And you could be next.

According to library director Mollie Lynch, the two departments have hired the Great Lakes Marketing Research company to conduct a phone survey. A library questionnaire is also being sent to consenting residents, who've been randomly called by marketing representatives.

Lynch said the cooperative venture between the library and parks department resulted from a $314,270 state grant recently presented to the parks and recreation department. Contingent on the parks department receiving the grant, the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) asked that the township produce a long-range plan for their parks and recreation department.

So, parks director Ann Conklin decided to randomly survey 500 township residents to gauge their opinions and aspirations before devising such a plan. Lynch said the library offered to jump on board of this project, in order to learn more about their public as well.

The two departments are splitting the costs, which haven't been determined yet, Lynch said.

Lynch said the phone survey should be completed by the end of August. She feels her staff has already gained valuable insight by some of the preliminary returns.

"So far, our biggest surprise from these surveys has shown that a large number of residents support the implementation of an outreach program for homebound citizens," Lynch said. "Many of these same residents also want the library to ultimately attain a grade of above average to excellent."

"And we couldn't agree more," she added.

Complete statistical data from this survey is expected to be finished and in township hands by September.

Main Street mailbox set on fire in daylight

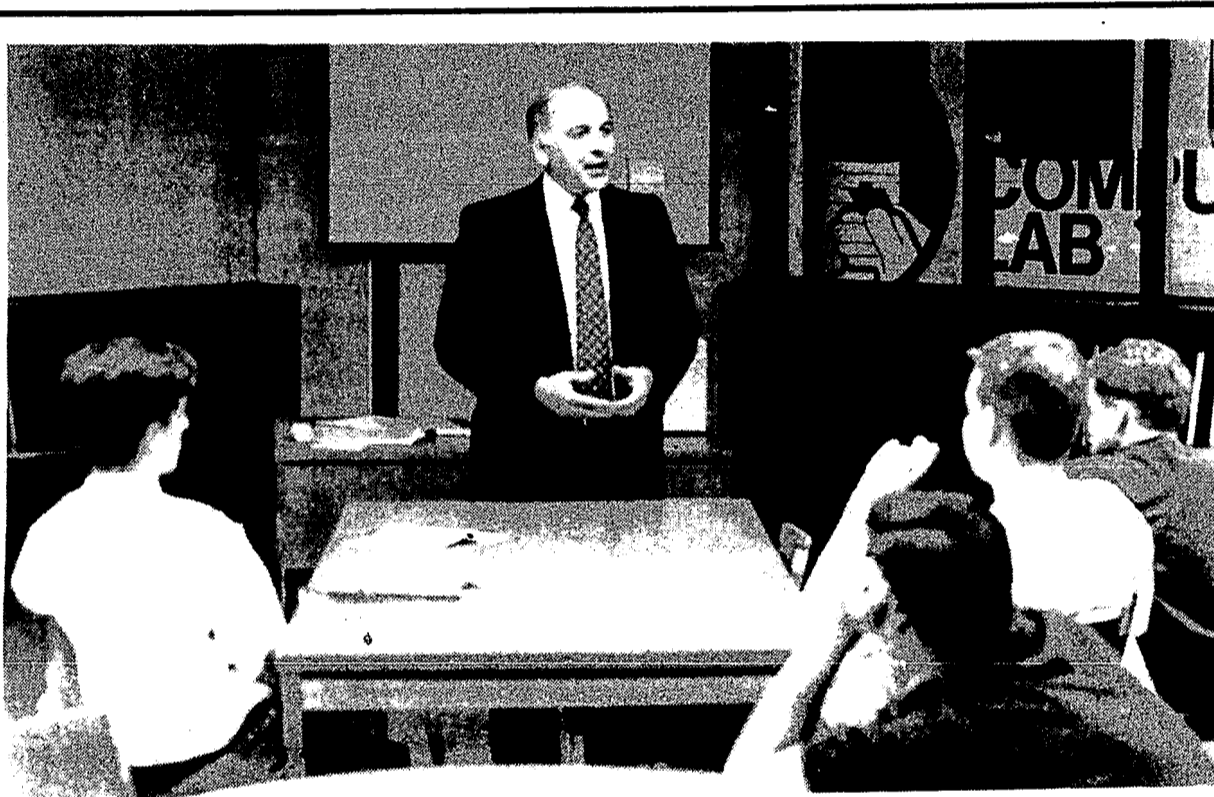

A federal crime was committed in broad daylight on July 28, and no one seems to have witnessed it.

One of the U.S. Postal Service curbside mailboxes on South Main Street, Clarkston, was set on fire at about 7:30 p.m. last Tuesday.

According to Mickey Gonzales, postmaster general of Clarkston, the fire is under investigation. As of Aug. 3, no witnesses had come forward.

The fire is considered a federal crime, since it is mail tampering. The penalty, said Gonzales, "would be pretty heavy, but it depends on the judge."

Gonzales said that although the mail was damaged, it was not burned beyond recognition, and all of the mail was either returned to the sender or forwarded to the addressee.

Roeser holds city council record

BY JIM SCHUBINER
Clarkston News Special Writer

Dentist Douglas Roeser is consistent.

A long-time member of the former Clarkston Village Council and now a member of the new Clarkston City Council, Roeser has started off the new city meetings in the same way he has ended the village meetings — by being first to motion for adjournment.

According to Clarkston Village Council records, Roeser motioned to adjourn more than 70 percent of the time during the past few years.

After he was informed of the statistics, Roeser admitted they were true.

"I know what you noticed," he said. "I figured that anybody who saw the minutes would notice that after a while."

It's not a question of seniority that gives Roeser the distinct privilege. And the rules of parliamentary procedure say nothing about special discretion for doctors. It's a matter of force.

"I bullied my way into the position," Roeser cracked. "I just threatened anybody else who ever tried."

Roeser denied that he had a particular rendezvous on Monday nights — no special golf game to play, no hockey game to attend, no TV show to watch.

"I'm just trying to get out of there," Roeser said. "They're interesting meetings, but as with any political meeting, sometimes there's a lot of wind. Sometimes it's good to get out."

Adjourning meetings has become natural, routine, almost an instinctive way of life for Roeser, and so has attending the meetings. Roeser couldn't quite recall his number of years on the council.

"I've been on there 6, 8 or 10 years. I've lost track now," he said.

That may give a little insight into Roeser's adjournment record. Roeser explained that the average meeting lasts about 2.5 hours, and a few have gone for four or five hours.

There are no breaks.

"The chairs are old and ripped," Roeser said. "The chairs used to be leather, but now they're petrified, like petrified wood that turns into rock. The leather on there has to be 150 years old."

Roeser said that the seats become especially unbearable at times.

"They're very hot and uncomfortable when there's a big audience out there, and they're all mad at you," he explained.

Man to face sex charges

BY CATHERINE PASSMORE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

A 58-year-old Independence Township man has been charged with fondling one boy and providing alcohol and cigarettes to minors.

Eugene Anthony O'Rourke is charged with one count of second-degree criminal sexual conduct, two counts of contributing to the delinquency of a minor, two counts of providing alcohol to minors and two counts of furnishing them with tobacco.

According to Oakland County Sheriff's Detective Joe Duke, the two boys, ages 5 and 7, are also from Independence Township. He said that the department received a phone call on July 2 from the 5-year-old's mother.

O'Rourke furnished the two children with about 1/2 ounce of vodka each and an undetermined amount of cigarettes, said Duke. He allegedly fondled one of the boys through his clothing. Duke said that neither of the boys was physically hurt.

O'Rourke waived his right to a preliminary exam on July 31 in 52nd District Court, Independence Township, and remains in the Oakland County Jail on a $26,000 bond.

He is arraigned was set for 8:30 a.m. Tuesday, Aug. 18, before Oakland County Circuit Court Judge Richard Kuhn.

Earwigging it

Julie Campe

Just as we have been barraged with political signs, pamphlets, letters and commercials on television, radio, newspaper and along roadsides, my apartment has been deluged with earwigs.

In fact, I sometimes find the two together. I wonder if they arrive together.

On my counter is a stack of voter guides, pamphlets (some from districts of which I am not a resident) and letters. Twice I have startled some adult earwigs when I rifled through the pile of material.

The pincer-laden bugs scuttled away, but I chased them with paper towel. Sometimes they got away, and sometimes they didn't.

I have read up on earwigs and have decided that they may, indeed, have some relation to the political material in my home.

For instance, these insects, like politicians, prefer cool, dark places — under shrubbery and behind doors, for example, for insects, and in darkened, air-conditioned offices for politicians.

Neither earwigs nor politicians mind diffuse light, but if you shine it directly on them, they will scatter and avoid it. Like earwigs, politicians like the limelight but hate to be under the spotlight under certain circumstances.

Both are usually harmless, though if you give them the opportunity, they will take it and pinch you. It's best to handle them gingerly.

Often, you don't know they're around until you stumble upon one of their favorite hangouts. Then, you will find lots of them, scurrying about with all sorts of busyness.

In fact, the colony of earwigs beneath the long, wide leaves of the plant outside my apartment is not unlike a senate or house. A few discuss things in one corner, while an entire mass works on something else across the room, and a few others hustle in and out and between groups.

They're not interested in, for instance, the food in your home. Rather they have special interests — lodging for their friends, moist dirt to roll around in, and, basically, free reign over their part of the world — which is why they might pinch you if you're not careful. Everything goes smoothly unless you interrupt their lifestyles. Then, watch out.

However, the earwig is not as fearsome as it may seem, and neither is the politician. Earwigs, for example, don't really go into your ear and bore into your brain, as many believe. And, despite the many commercials that may lead you to believe the contrary, neither do politicians. Your brain is still your own.

But watch out for the pincers.

Reporter's Notebook

Bruce Kidder -- or was that Bryce Kidder -- was back in court on Tuesday with other alleged members of "The Family." Mr. Chartrand, Kidder's lawyer, seemed to forget who his client was during the second day of the preliminary exam at 52nd District Court, Independence Township, calling him Bruce more than he called him Bryce.

A Pine Knob Road, Independence Township, resident called The News to complain about a raucous concert at the Pine Knob Music Theatre.

The caller, who wished to remain anonymous, said she was bothered by the Lollapalooza II tour that performed Saturday, Aug. 1. She was hosting a party in her backyard and had to take everyone inside because of the excessive noise.

But even inside, she said she could still hear the bands, which played 2-11 p.m. Consisting of alternative music artists, the Lollapalooza II tour included the Red Hot Chili Peppers, Ministry, Ice Cube, Soundgarden, Jesus & Mary Chain, Pearl Jam and Lush.

The woman said she called the Oakland County Sheriff's Department to complain about the noise. The police told her that they had no intentions of pulling the plug on the show because there would've been a riot with these particular fans.

A local man called The News to report that Clarkston Police had missed a call July 30.

He said he heard the Clarkston Police being summoned over his scanner to check out a family dispute on Holcomb Road. However, the dispatcher was unable to reach any officers after seven tries and sent two Oakland County Sheriff deputies there instead.

The caller figured Clarkston Police must've been too busy writing traffic tickets.

Real bedroom conversation

I never knew there was a certain language for various rooms in a house until I met Elizabeth Baldwin.

The first time one of her 'room' remarks registered was when she said, "Let's keep bedroom conversation in the bedroom." I've since heard her refer to the garage and woodshed.

It's the bedroom talk that's the topic today. I didn't know what Mrs EYB was referring to until wife Hazel mentioned an advertisement for pillows she'd seen in a Friday paper.

Except for pillow talk our bedroom conversation is limited to "Good night, I love you, turn down the television and leave that radio on for more than five minutes."

Sometimes the 'I love you' is missing, especially when the TV is on too loud and the radio left on less than my usual 18 minutes. It's her TV, my radio, but you've guessed that.

Our "pillow talk" is just that. Pillows. I like to fold over a pillow and put it under my shoulder when I sleep on my stomach.

Many of the foam filled pillows are too stiff to fold, some will fold but not form right when I sleep on my back. Once in a while (rarely) a motel pillow, with foam particles, has 'fit' just right for back and front sleeping.

Our bedroom, like every other room in our house, is Hazel's. I built a barn 148 feet from the house for me. Hazel's bedroom has feather pillows.

The first year they were too solid, the second year they were OK. After that they didn't fold, they had to be scrunched.

Most recently, right after my 'I love you,' I asked, "Do you want me to buy new pillows or do you want to?" Thank goodness our feather pillows are too limp to hurt.

My question was prompted by our pillow talk on pillows in Hudson's "Any size, one price" ad in the Detroit Free Press.

The ad had Globe synthetic fill and natural fill pillows, three varieties of each . . . soft support for stomach sleepers, medium support for back sleepers, extra support for side sleepers.

I've read that selection a dozen times and I still can't believe the marketing strategy.

Does it mean each of us has to have three pillows, changing them each time we turn in bed?

Does it mean we have to pre-determine what position we're going to sleep in for the life of a pillow?

Hudson's has any size, one price, how about one size fits all?

What I suggest for Hudson's is that they open a pillow rent-to-buy department. Better yet, let them loan us one of each, synthetic fill and feather fill (a total of six) for a week. We'll guarantee to buy one.

On the other hand, maybe the pillow marketers could make another pillow to accommodate me and sell twice as many. I try to fall asleep on my left side, and if I'm still awake three minutes later, I turn on my right side.

See how that opens the possibility of having a right- and left-handed pillow? Wow! Right- and left-handed pillows for side sleepers! Revolutionary! Buy one, get one free!

Everyone will sleep happily and healthily, synthetically or naturally filled.

We miss them

I am a classmate who attended the five-year reunion of Clarkston High School's Class of 1987, and I would like to address a well needed, overlooked issue.

Unfortunately, we have, as a graduating class, lost several fellow classmates within a short five-year period to freak accidents, suicide and cancer.

I alone am aware of seven classmates who couldn't join us at our class reunion. The following were more than an athletic team member, band or drama performer, chemistry partner, locker buddy or lunch partner. Behind the walls of the Kirchgessner Theater and off the football field or basketball court, these were our friends.

To my fellow classmates who I think of often — you were very much a part of the reunion even though words went unspoken. We miss you:

'If it Fitz . . .'

Quayle should go to jail

Jim
Fitzgerald

Ironically, Marilyn Quayle and Olive Oyl resemble each other. They have the same dark, thin, angular look, sort of like a clothes tree.

It's ironic because Dan Quayle recently said something sensible, thus endangering George Bush's chances of being re-elected. And it would be doubly appropriate for Bush to have Dan Quayle thrown into solitary confinement, with visiting privileges limited to Olive Oyl.

Like any loving father, Quayle said if his daughter were pregnant and chose an abortion, he would support her decision, even though he personally disagreed with it. Immediately, abortion rights activists praised the vice president for being smarter than the president. And Bush and his campaign aides pounded the floor with their heads.

If Quayle is going to go around making good sense, he will scare away the people who previously favored the Bush-Quayle ticket. It might be necessary to shut Quayle up, which brings us to appropriate action No. 1.

Quayle could be shut up until after this year's election the same way Brett Kimberlin was shut up until after the 1988 election. Just before that vote, Kimberlin, a federal prison inmate, scheduled a press conference to reveal he once sold marijuana to Quayle. But the conference had to be canceled because Kimberlin was suddenly thrown into solitary confinement until six days after Bush and Quayle were elected.

Kimberlin was back in the news last week because Michigan Sen. Carl Levin, a Detroit Democrat, suddenly decided to investigate Kimberlin's old charge that the only reason he was isolated was to keep him from spilling the dope on Quayle. The Justice Department, with a straight face, claimed Kimberlin was put in solitary for his own protection, because there had been threats against his life.

Levin wants the Justice Department to answer some questions about why Kimberlin was prevented from meeting with the press. Naturally, Republicans are questioning Levin's four-years-later timing, accusing him of oh my God!-trying to influence the nearing election. Levin insists he was belatedly alerted to the Kimberlin case by a May 3 article in the New York Times.

Gee, if Levin had read this column July 15, 1990, he might have asked his questions two years earlier and avoided the Republicans' snide but believable accusation that he was oh my God again!-playing politics.

That column also had some questions. Pointing out that Kimberlin was in prison, I demanded to know who might wound or kill him? His cell mate? The Republican National Committee? And why punish Kimberlin by isolating him? Why not punish the people who wanted to hurt him?

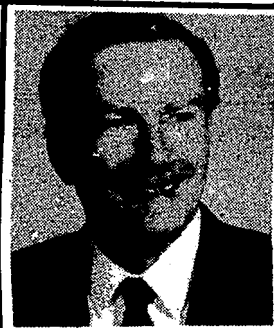

(To be fair, I conceded that there were worse things than having a running mate who smoked marijuana years ago. A presidential candidate could, for instance, have a son who robbed a savings and loan last week.)

Strangely, no Democratic politicians joined in demanding answers to my insightful questions in 1990. Levin was probably busy reading the New York Times.

Anyway, I'm sure if the Justice Department tried, it could discover that some antiabortionists threatened to shoot Dan Quayle for loving his daughter. Which would justify throwing him into solitary confinement until after the election, preventing Quayle from showing any other signs of intelligence that could cost President Bush the support of the nation's most influentially idiotic voters.

As for Olive Oyl and appropriate action No. 2: As you probably read, Oyl, along with Popeye, was recently voted out of newspapers everywhere for being pro-choice. If the Justice Department allowed Oyl to visit Quayle while he was in solitary, it would deflect charges that the vice president was suffering cruel and unusual punishment. Bush could claim Quayle compassionately was allowed the company of a like-minded baby-killer.

You might say my suggestion is silly, because Olive Oyl is a fictional character. And I might say Murphy Brown.

From the superintendent ...

New direction

Gary Haner

The arrival of two new administrators on July 1 completed our management roster and signaled the start of changing input and direction for the upcoming school year.

Dr. Michael LaBay is our new deputy superintendent of instruction, replacing Mr. William Neff who retired at the end of June. LaBay will play a significant part in the day-to-day operations of our schools, since all principals, the community education director and the special services director report to him.

Although he has only been with the district for a month, LaBay states that he is "very positive about what I've seen so far. I'm impressed by the high degree of caring for kids — there's strong support here for students of all ages, even during the summer months. Few districts use their school buildings in the off months the way I see them used here."

Dr. LaBay and his wife are in the process of house hunting and look forward to relocating in the Clarkston area. They now reside in New Haven, where LaBay was the New Haven Schools Superintendent.

"I am anxious to get to know this community," said LaBay. "I'm in the process of scheduling fall meetings in the buildings, so I can meet parents, identify our strengths and target areas for improvement."

Further restructuring of central office staff resulted in the promotion of Dave Blehm to director of buildings, grounds and maintenance. Blehm has taken over many of the responsibilities handled by former Assistant Superintendent Mel Vaara, who retired in June.

Blehm said, "Our job is to provide a clean, healthful, safe and attractive physical surrounding in which people can work, play and learn. We're currently involved in a complete renovation of Clarkston Junior High restrooms, including new walls, fixtures, plumbing, lighting and ceiling. This will make what we have more presentable and more functional. Our biggest challenge in the coming year will be to maintain and groom our buildings with a tighter budget and shorter staff."

Other responsibilities belonging to Vaara have been redistributed among central office administrators, now numbering five people instead of six. Recent restructuring of positions in our central office has resulted in a net savings to the district of $20,000.

Also on the board is Mr. James Goebel, new principal at Clarkston Senior High. Goebel recently held the position of high school principal in Spring Lake, Mich. His high energy level and enthusiasm for students are hallmarks of his former experience.

Goebel attended seven days of Clarkston activities in the spring and is just finishing his first month on the job.

"My impressions of Clarkston are very good," said Goebel. "We have a strongly committed staff. I saw that at the in-service day at the library this spring. I experienced it when we worked together as the School Improvement Team for two days in May. I felt it when teachers visited me to express concern over program cuts in drug and alcohol education.

"We have good people in our student body. I saw how well-behaved they were during prom and graduation ceremonies. They impressed me with their wholesome fun at the all-night post-graduation party. Summer school students have come in to introduce themselves.

"We have warm and caring parents here. That was apparent to me as I sat in an Athletic Boosters Club meeting. Their dedication to youth was evident when we painted the team building. Several parents shared how well prepared their youngsters were for college as a result of their Clarkston school experience. We have many positives on which to build."

We welcome these new — and newly assigned — staff members and look forward to working with them as a new school year approaches. Remember, school starts on Aug. 31 with a half day for all students.

Gary Haner is superintendent of Clarkston Community Schools.

More letters

Not a ticket mill in Clarkston

I would not normally respond to a letter written to the newspaper over a traffic citation, but in response to the letter written in your July 29th edition, I feel that because of the fact we are a new department I should write some kind of rebuttal.

First of all, it doesn't take long for new police officers to learn that no matter what they do, they cannot please a good portion of the public. When it comes to traffic enforcement, forget it! It's one of the worst parts of our job.

If you write traffic citations, you're working a "ticket mill," trying to make money for your department or community or being just plain over-zealous. If an officer doesn't issue citations, then he or she isn't doing the job, and traffic enforcement and control is one of the main reasons any community feels compelled to have its own police department.

The police officers who make up the Clarkston Police department are highly skilled and dedicated officers. They — as all men and women who make law enforcement their chosen profession — became officers, not to punish the public but to serve and try in their own way to make a difference.

Our officers are working hard to keep Clarkston a good, safe community. A place where we can all live peaceably and enjoy the streets and park of this beautiful city. Traffic enforcement is just a part of the job we have asked these officers to perform.

The letter indicated the need to "warn friends and family to beware of the Clarkston Police." The only people who need beware of our officers are those who don't comply with local or state traffic laws or who break the law in some other way in our community.

I assure the citizens of Clarkston that the main concern of this department is to serve and protect. I am very proud of the young men and women who are wearing the Clarkston uniform, and I hope you are, too.

Not much freedom in quaint Clarkston

What a quaint, well kept little town with a hometown feeling! And I thought you would like to know that I was very impressed, until the Fourth of July celebration parade.

My husband and I were visiting friends we have met over the years of travel — taxpayers and educators for 30 year in the Clarkston school district and community.

We are white. I was born in Germany and was raised there, immigrated and became a citizen in this wonderful and free country, which I treasure very much. Not everyone is this lucky. I am a proud American and love this country for what it stands for — freedom for all. This freedom means very much to me.

With my friend and her 5-year-old granddaughter, we went downtown to see the Fourth of July parade. What a disaster — I still can't believe it.

As we walked down the sidewalk on Main Street, we stopped and put a towel down on the curb for the little girl to sit down to watch the parade. What a wonderful day to celebrate.

A short, fat almost bald-headed little man with glasses, dressed with a stars and stripes vest, came running out of his house on North Main Street toward us. For a minute I thought he was going to greet and welcome us, but I was wrong.

He asked if we belonged to this party. Thinking of the Fourth of July party we said yes. He said he meant to the party at his house. We said no. He said that where we were sitting was reserved for his party and that no one was allowed to sit or stand there. He said he pays the taxes and waters the boulevard. He had on each end of his boulevard a man sitting on a picnic bench, and if anyone dared to sit on the curb they were escorted off.

I am still upset, almost in shock, thinking that something like this can happen in this country, especially in the quaint little town of Clarkston. Our host was embarrassed.

As a citizen and taxpayer, I was under the impression that the sidewalk and boulevard is public property; in Minnesota everybody sits on the sidewalk and boulevard when there is a parade.

That man must have forgotten what the Fourth of July means.

I felt black for the first time in this country, which has been my home for 35 year. And now I know (because I was wondering) why there are no Asians or blacks in your quaint nice little town of Clarkston.

One thing is for sure, you will never see us there again.

Rita Morrisette
Blaine, Minn.

Ironic display

I think it's ironic that people in the City of the Village of Clarkston have signs on their lawns for both township supervisor candidates, Frank Ronk and Dale Stuart, even though they don't vote in Independence Township.

Woodhull Lake controversy enters new waters

BY JIM SCHUBINER
Clarkston News Special Writer

A few residents of Woodhull Lake in Independence and Waterford townships would be happier if a 40-slip marina weren't in the works for their lake.

In fact, they have asked the Oakland County Circuit Court to reverse a decision by the state Department of Natural Resources (DNR) to grant a construction permit to Parkwoode Shores Homeowners Association for a 40-slip marina.

The plaintiffs — a furious segment of Woodhull Lake residents — in conjunction with Woodhull-Oakland Lakes Ecological Association, complain that the prospective development would have harm Woodhull Lake as well as the adjacent Lake Oakland.

They charge that the plan for three new boat docks and accompanying finger piers would jeopardize wetlands, overcrowd the lake, and disrupt a fishing area.

Defendant Parkwoode Shores Homeowners Association — composed of homeowners in a subdivision near the southwest corner of Woodhull Lake — has denied those claims and has requested that presiding Judge Fred M. Mester dismiss the case. No court date has been set.

The lawsuit is the climax to a long series of events that started when the DNR rejected the association's request for a construction permit in June 1991. Almost a year later in May 1992, the DNR granted the permit after the association appealed the original denial and agreed to alter its construction plans.

Disapproving Woodhull residents, who argue that they had no chance to voice their objections prior to the DNR's acceptance of the modified proposal, have submitted petitions to the DNR.

But they are unsatisfied with the DNR's time-consuming petition process.

"When a party files a petition for appeal, it takes up to 18 months just to have it scheduled to be heard," explained Tom Graf, a DNR land and water management analyst. "In the meantime, the permittee can go ahead and build."

"Docks are better than having people pull boats up to the shore through the wetlands. That does more damage."

James Isaacs Jr.

Fearing that construction will start before the DNR considers their petitions, the frustrated Woodhull Lake residents have searched and found an alternative means of protest. On July 2, their attorney William A. Gold filed a lawsuit in circuit court.

In addition to asking the court to overturn the DNR's permit approval, Gold asked the court to place a "temporary restraining order" preventing construction from beginning.

James Isaacs Jr., chairman of the dock committee for Parkwoode Shores Homeowners Association, said he couldn't believe Woodhull residents have filed a lawsuit.

"We think the lawsuit is totally unjustified," he said. "I think the main issue is that people don't want any more boats on the lake, and they're using wetlands to disguise it."

Isaacs argued that installing the docks would actually prevent wetland damage.

"Docks are better than having people pull boats up to the shore through the wetlands," he explained. "That does more damage. Wetlands are still going to exist under the docks. We're spanning over the top of them."

Carrie Hardigan in the Department of Land and Water Management at the DNR echoed Isaacs' statements. She said that construction under the guidelines of the modified permit would not harm the lakes.

"We felt they made modifications that would allow us to permit them," explained Hardigan. "They are not placing fill in wetland areas. Also, their dock configurations will not encroach into open water areas of the lake. The docks will parallel the shoreline without encroaching the shoreline."

Beverly Hatcher, a Woodhull Lake resident protesting the project, plainly disagrees with the DNR. And she's not alone.

"We've got a stack of letters four or five inches thick," said Hatcher, referring to the letters' authors, who believe construction will adversely affect the lakes.

Hatcher said that attempting to halt new dock construction is not an unusual pursuit.

"They're having this problem all over the county," she said.

Besides overcoming the unified and angry group of Woodhull Lake residents, the association must also obtain a wetlands permit from Waterford Township. The township, which has recently asked the association to resubmit its application, has not scheduled a hearing date.

Swinging from the heels

Taking a (jay)walk on the wild side

James Gibowski

THE CROSSWALK on Washington isn't too far away but many people still prefer to jaywalk across Main Street in downtown Clarkston.

Everyday in downtown Clarkston, hundreds of people willingly put their bodies a few feet (or a few inches) away from possible bruises, paralysis or death. No, they're not bungie jumping on Main Street.

But, yes, they are continuing one of Clarkston's biggest traditions, jaywalking. According to Webster's New World Dictionary, jaywalking is "to walk across a street carelessly without obeying traffic rules or signals."

Most of the jaywalkers would probably defend themselves by saying they don't carelessly walk across the street, trusting both themselves and the drivers (even those passing on the right). And I'm sure many might think it's a God-given right to jaywalk ("First they want to take away our guns, next they'll want to take away our walking privileges...")

However, we're not really talking about rights here. What it really boils down to is that the quickest way from the Clarkston Village Bakeshop to Rudy's Market is a straight line across Main Street.

Of course, another way is to walk 100 or so extra feet to the corner of Washington, across the crosswalk at the traffic light and then a half-block back to Rudy's.

But who needs the exercise? And besides, what better way is there to really get that heart pumping than to scoot across Main Street in front of few tons of oncoming steel?

I never thought much about jaywalking until I arrived in Clarkston over two years ago. I rarely do it, if at all. I don't feel superior because I don't jaywalk, it's just that I'd rather sacrifice my body for a more worthy cause.

Two incidents in downtown Clarkston especially made me think about jaywalking. While driving on one of those winter nights when it gets dark at 5:30 p.m., I turned right from Washington onto Main Street, went a half a block and at the last second saw that there were two jaywalkers (in dark clothing) standing in the middle of the road. My car came within inches of them and I first clearly saw them when I was already nearly past them (I'm glad I wasn't reaching to turn the station on the radio or something).

Another instance happened on the exact same route but this time in daylight. As I turned the corner onto Main Street and drove about a quarter of a block down, an elderly woman, ready to jaywalk, gave me a mean look as I drove past her. It was the kind of look that said, "What are you doing driving on my street, over my space?" She couldn't have been more than 30 feet away from the crosswalk. Instead, she ended up being about a foot away from my right front fender.

That woman still probably thinks jaywalking on Main Street is the same as it was in the 50s, 60s, 70s or even 80s. But I've seen how the traffic has grown in just the last two and a half years and can only imagine how different it was 40, 20 or 10 years ago.

It's obvious many people jaywalk, but how many?

On Monday, I took my own unscientific poll. For one hour, from noon to 1 p.m., I sat on the bench at the National Bank of Detroit and recorded (in my notebook and with my camera) the number of people jaywalking within a one-block area on Main Street from Washington to Depot (It's worth mentioning that there is no crosswalk on Depot, so if people there want to walk against a traffic light they would have to walk north to Washington or south to Waldon Road).

THE ACTION in the middle of the Main Street can be a challenge for both pedestrians and drivers.

Less than a minute after the noon horn blew, a blond woman cut across the street to Coach's Corner. She was the first of 59 jaywalkers during the hour (if the same person jaywalked more than once, that was counted in the totals).

One thing I noticed was how some jaywalkers use their hands. Several people extended one arm out, resembling a football player giving a stiff-arm. These Heismann Trophy-style jaywalkers did this as if it was some official signal given to the cars' drivers to stop. A citizen playing traffic cop.

Another highlight was when a woman crossed Main Street holding an infant with one hand and a cup with the other while being flanked by two other children (they looked not more than five years old). Watching those four stand in the middle of the road as cars whizzed by within a few feet of them gave new meaning to the thrills of jaywalking or the chills of pedestrian safety, depending on how you look at it.

I looked at it 59 times in 60 minutes.

Two local stars meet at MSU

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

One catches passes, the other tries to stop the quarterback from passing.

One starred at Clarkston High School, the other at Birmingham Brother Rice.

One lives in Independence Township, the other in Springfield Township.

Jon Wyniemko and Mark Matson took different routes to the Michigan High School Football Coaches All Star football game at Michigan State University's Spartan Stadium Saturday, but both finished the game (and a week-long string of practices) with an appreciation of the other's football and people skills.

After a scoreless first half, the West scored three unanswered touchdowns for a 20-0 win. Eighty-eight of the state's best high school graduates competed in the 12th annual game. The game was preceded by a week of four-hour practices and an awards ceremony.

Wyniemko and Matson played for the East squad. Wyniemko, a 6-foot, 175-pound all-state wide receiver, rotated with two others at the wide-out position. Matson, a 6-3, 225-pound honorable mention all-state defensive lineman, played defensive tackle.

Matson made about a half dozen tackles and had one sack in the all-star game, which was played under a blazing sun on MSU's artificial surface.

Wyniemko ran as much as anyone on the field but much of his time was spent delivering plays to the huddle sent in by head coach Tom Moshimer of Plymouth Salem High School. None of the East quarterbacks' passes were ever thrown to the disappointed Wyniemko, who last year as a Clarkston Wolf caught 55 passes for 782 yards and nine touchdowns.

Most of the passes were long bombs thrown to the speedy Roy Granger III from Farmington Harrison. Granger, who will be playing his collegiate football at MSU, finished the afternoon with two receptions for 40 yards.

But practice was a different story, as

JON Wyniemko, an all-state wide receiver from Clarkston High School, looks downfield for someone to block during the 12th annual high school all-star game at MSU's Spartan Stadium.

EAST All Star head coach Tom Moshimer tells a play to Jon Wyniemko.

Wyniemko had as many opportunities as Granger.

"I got my fair share, he got his," said Wyniemko, who was pleased with his East squad practices. "I really did get a lot of good compliments. Personally, I know I could play with any of the others."

Matson backs up Wyniemko's observations.

MARK Matson, an East All-Star defensive lineman from Birmingham Brother Rice, fights off a West blocker. (Photos by James Gibowski)

"In practice, he was the best receiver," said Matson about the former Wolf. "He had the best hands and he wasn't afraid to get hit."

Matson could see that Wyniemko doesn't have the blazing speed of a Granger but that still didn't stop him and his teammates from praising Wyniemko's skills of running crisp routes and holding onto the ball in traffic.

"That's why we nicknamed him (Steve) Largent," said Matson. A quick but not-so-speedy Largent broke many lifetime NFL receiving records while playing for the Seattle Seahawks.

Despite being ignored in the East game plan, Wyniemko still valued the week's experiences.

"I had a good time. I'm glad I got chosen. It's something I'll always remember," said Wyniemko.

"It was a fun week," said Matson, who admitted he didn't like the food as much as Wyniemko. The two, however, did agree that there was ample time between practices to get in a few card games.

Matson said since both live a few miles apart, it made it easier to get to know each other during the week.

"Jon and I became pretty good friends," said Matson who will be studying pre-med at Hillsdale College this fall. He will play defense for the Chargers.

Wyniemko, who will attend Central Michigan University, said he hopes they continue to stay in touch with each other.

Wyniemko didn't receive a football scholarship from CMU and doesn't plan on being a walk-on this fall. He said he might consider trying out his sophomore year.

"You never know," he said. "Like my dad (Waterford Mott head football coach and Clarkston teacher Walt Wyniemko) said, I might miss it so bad."

Even though the two players first got to know each other last week, there was one other slight previous connection.

Kathy Fracassa, the daughter of Matson's head football coach at Brother Rice (Al Fracassa), used to babysit Wyniemko.

Who knows? Maybe she was the first one to notice Wyniemko's crisp slant patterns while chasing the former rug rat and eventual all-stater.

WALT Wyniemko, right, got the chance to see his son Jon play live for only the fourth time in East Lansing. The elder Wyniemko coached at Waterford Mott while his son played for Clarkston.

New federal law will protect disabled

BY ANNETTE KINGSBURY

It seemed like a simple enough request.

Jane Smith (not her real name) of Lake Orion had a one-hour drive each morning to work. A severe diabetic, when she arrived each morning, she headed straight for the bathroom.

"With diabetics, one of the problems we have is we have to go to the bathroom more often than others," she said. But her employer refused to understand.

"They marked me late if I went to the bathroom first. They said, 'You have to come to work 10 to 15 minutes early.' Other people were going to the bathroom in the morning."

Fired over diabetes?

Ultimately the issue couldn't be resolved, and Smith was fired. She later received a settlement from her employer but was out of a job.

"I was being discriminated against," she said. "It's not going to ruin my life or anything, but it wasn't an accommodation to my disease."

New federal law

Cases such as Smith's could become a thing of the past, thanks to a new federal law that went into effect July 26. The Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) was designed to protect disabled Americans from discrimination in the job market, in public accommodations and in access to public services and transportation.

It's already clear that some people are a bit nervous about the new law's potential effect on employers. Donald Scharg, a lawyer with the Fishman Group in Bloomfield Hills (who represents only employers), recently told Oxford Rotary that it will make hiring a bit tricky.

"I think everybody would agree that when you're hiring you want to hire the most qualified person," he said. However, he then raised concerns that employers who refuse to deal with ADA could pay dearly.

Scharg said if "The Phantom of the Opera" were written today, "he (the Phantom)" would sue the opera house because he was discriminated against. Then he'd take the money and run the opera house."

The new law requires employers to make "reasonable accommodation" to the disabilities of employees or potential employees. What exactly constitutes reasonable is left open.

Basically, Scharg said, it boils down to this: If a disabled person is qualified for the job, then reasonable accommodation must be made so he can perform it. The disability cannot be the sole reason he is not hired.

What is a disability?

A disability is defined in the law as a physical or mental impairment that substantially limits a person's major life activities; a history of such an impairment; or a perception that one has such an impairment.

While some examples are listed, such as allergies, blindness, cancer, nervous conditions and alcoholism, the list is not all-inclusive. What about AIDS? What about smokers?

Tougher hiring

When it comes to hiring, employers must ask themselves whether the person can perform essential tasks required of the job. Non-essential tasks cannot be required. The job description is left up to the employer.

"Go through your jobs and decide what is an essential function," Scharg advised.

"ADA covers employers who have 25 or more employees. 'If you haven't read it, you better start now,'" Scharg said.

Creative problem solving

But rather than spell out specific remedies for specific disabilities, ADA encourages creative problem solving. The federal Equal Opportunity Employment Commission is responsible for enforcement.

Employees must notify the employer they need an accommodation, and the employer is allowed to choose the least expensive option available. If it would cause an undue hardship, the employer is not required to provide it.

Not everyone takes as pessimistic a view of ADA as Scharg. Eileen Wicklund, legal counsel to the Michigan Township Association, is a bit more upbeat. She pointed to a report that says most accommodations cost less than $500, many less than $50.

"Individuals with disabilities are willing and able to pursue employment," she wrote in the June MTA News. "By taking the time to identify the steps required to comply with ADA, your township will be making a step in the right direction to serve all of its citizens equally."

Without contract, city ethically shouldn't use library, says director

According to last week's edition of The Clarkston News, Independence Township Library Director Mollie Lynch said Clarkston residents wouldn't be allowed to use the library after Dec 31 if a 1.75 mill contract was not agreed upon between the city and township.

When Deputy Director of Wayne-Oakland Library Federation Doug Whitaker heard about Lynch's comments, he said, "Mollie may have just temporarily lost her grip. That's not right. They can enter the building and use any of the materials."

Whitaker also pointed out that a state law gives any residents that right.

Lynch later said there was "miscommunication" between News reporter Curt McAllister and her. Instead of saying Clarkston residents wouldn't be allowed to use the library at all, she said it was more accurate to say, "Technically, they probably shouldn't be using it."

Lynch said if the contract isn't worked out by Dec. 31 it would be unethical for Clarkston residents to use the library, but she added, "We're not going to kick anybody out."

Sales Manager

"Let's discuss your Career in Real Estate Sales"

THE OFFER TO BUY

DON'T BE SURPRISED if you get an offer lower than your asking price. It's human nature.

QUESTION: I have listed my home with a Realtor and am waiting for the first prospect. What is the procedure if I get an offer lower than the asking price?

ANSWER: You can depend on human nature. Your prospect WILL probably make an offer lower than your asking price. If you are going to even consider the offer, it must be in writing and signed. It must have a definite time limit, and it should be accompanied by a respectable amount of the buyer's money as an indication of sincerity.

Once these elements are fulfilled, it's up to you to either accept the lower offer, reject it outright, or make a counter offer to sell somewhere between the two.

Get the facts about air bags

If you have small children and a passenger-side air bag in your vehicle, here are a few precautions to keep you and your children safe.

They are provided by Michigan State Police.

1. If you have a passenger-side air bag, don't use a rear-facing child restraint in the front seat of your vehicle. Use these types of restraints in the back seat only. If rear-facing restraints are used in front, the air bag could strike and seriously injure the child due to the force of its deployment.

2. A forward-facing child restraint may be used in the front seat of the vehicle if the child's age and weight meet the manufacturer's requirements and the seat of the vehicle is moved all the way back to its farthest position.

3. Using safety belts in combination with air bags is still the best way to protect yourself against injuries caused from traffic crashes. An air bag cannot fully protect you; therefore, it is important to remain buckled up.

Air bags are a beneficial addition to occupant restraints, but the above precautions should be taken to provide you and your children with the maximum protection against the nation's No. 1 killer — traffic crashes.

From tarantulas to tortillas, teens see it all

BY CATHERINE PASSMORE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Eleven area high school students left behind the beaches and malls of Michigan and traded them in for wet cement and paint brushes in Mexico.

Members of the teen group at the Clarkston Free Methodist Church spent 10 days at Rancho Betania Camp, south of Sanora, Mexico, helping with the construction of the camp.

The camp is sponsored by the Free Methodist denomination and will be used by Mexican Christians of all denominations, by area schools and as a place where new missionaries can learn about Mexican culture. Since the camp is not complete, they subsidize the camp costs by raising bees and selling honey and by selling goat milk.

Glenn Ruppert, youth pastor at Clarkston Free Methodist, said the teens' day began at 6 a.m. with a military style shower. Then they were off to work on the various projects around the camp.

The teens poured cement foundations, built brick and stone walls, painted, did some landscaping and blazed trails.

The teens slept in tents while in Mexico. "We had to always be aware of rattle snakes, tarantulas and scorpions while we were in the tents," said Ruppert.

The time at the camp wasn't all work, though. The teens spent a few afternoons learning about the area's culture, religion and government. They toured a place where tortillas are made, an ice making factory and a few cathedrals.

"We went on a hike one day. We went off the grounds and to a remote village. At one point we had to swing across a creek on a rope, and some of the kids fell in. It was really funny," said Ruppert.

Another event not on the schedule happened only 15 minutes after the group arrived at the camp. Two of the girls fell into some prickly bushes and got prickles about an inch long stuck in their hands, feet and backsides.

"It was quite hysterical," said Ruppert, "because they had just been told not to go over where the bushes are. So they were standing there picking the thorns out of one another for a while."

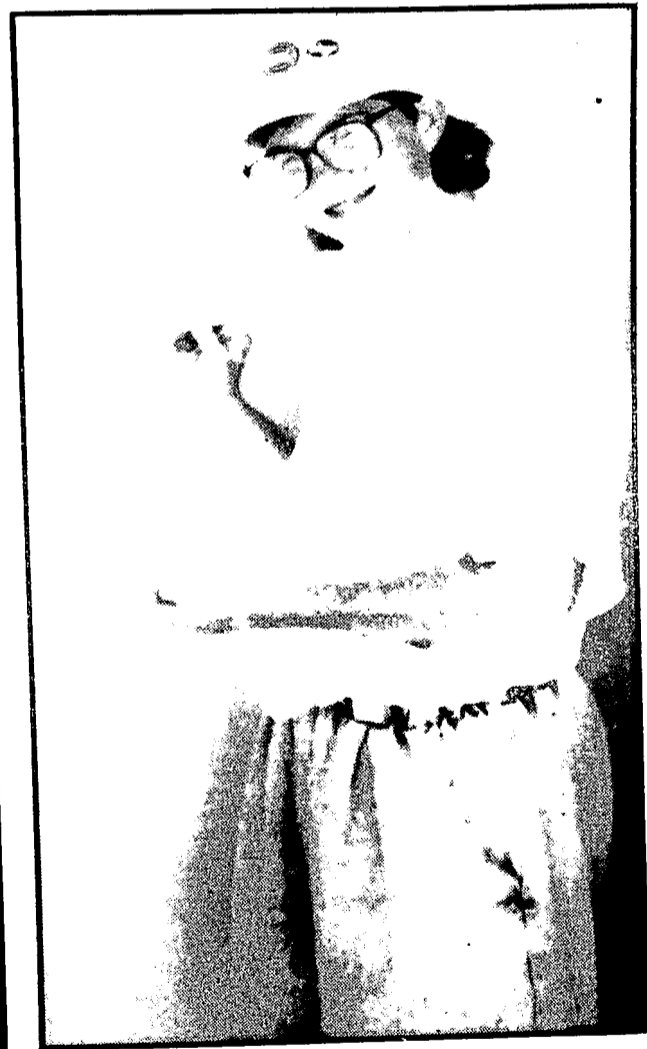

Ruppert said the purpose of the trip was not solely for construction. Rather, it was to have an impact on the people of Mexico.

"It was an investment of our time for Christ," he said.

MORE THAN WORK: Heidi Lake (top), Stephanie Sturgis (from left), Danette Stuart and Kristi Morris goof around while waiting to return home from 10 days in Mexico. The teens worked eight hours a day on construction and took advantage of their time off to see the sights. While in Mexico, the group saw the tortillas being manufactured, swam, hiked, and toured villages and the area.

Timing turf care saves time, money and energy

Whatever your reason for wanting to cut back on lawn care — whether it's to save time or money or reduce chemical inputs to the environment — the requirements are the same: have a clear idea of your quality goal and an understanding of how turf growth changes throughout the season.

Mike Saffel, Michigan State University turfgrass specialist, notes that quality consists of many factors: how many weeds you're willing to tolerate, how much insect activity or disease you consider acceptable, and how often you want to mow, irrigate and fertilize.

"What you consider acceptable quality will to a large extent determine how you care for your lawn," he says.

Knowing how and when lawn grasses grow will help you time limited inputs so the lawn will get the most benefit from them.

"Significant root growth occurs in spring and more in the fall," Saffel explains. "Anything you can do to encourage root growth in the fall will contribute to lawn quality next year."

Therefore, if you're going to fertilize only once a year, make it in the early fall, so grass plants can take up nutrients during their fall growth period. An alternative is to apply a little nitrogen in late May or early June, then fertilize again in September.

"Fertilizing in late fall has proven effective in increasing fall root growth and spring green-up," Saffel observes. "Late fall fertilization should be used when the total amount of nitrogen for the season is divided into three or more applications."

Applying half the necessary nitrogen in water-soluble form and the rest in slow-release form supplies nutrients for both spring and fall growth, Saffel notes.

Another way to provide nitrogen for turf growth is to return clippings to the lawn, he suggests. Returning clippings reduces nitrogen needs by up to 1 pound of actual nitrogen per 1,000 square feet.

If you want a lawn with few weed and insect problems, work on building a healthy turf, Saffel advises. A dense lawn will shade and crowd out many weeds, and a vigorous, healthy turf can better resist attack by insects.

An often-neglected step in maintaining a healthy

Report gypsy moths to county

It's finally spring, the time when gardeners survey their kingdoms and hunt for the dreaded gypsy moth.

If you're one of them and want to do something—anything—to protect your trees, the Cooperative Extension Service of Michigan State University recommends you NOT purchase traps. They won't help. In fact they may do just the opposite.

"I've probably had six calls on them this spring," nurseryman Brad Jacobsen said. "The studies they've done on it show it has no scientific basis whatsoever."

The gypsy moth is one of the most destructive pests for trees and shrubs. When concentrated in large numbers they can defoliate trees.

Jacobsen said he was driving in the Thumb area last summer and noticed the trees were bare. "It looked like October in the middle of July," he said. "All of a sudden it hit me what had happened to all those trees."

Nevertheless you won't find the traps, which are available through mail-order catalogues, at Jacobsen's Nursery. There is no truth to the claim that they save your trees by controlling the moth population, according to the Cooperative Extension Service.

Traps are only used to monitor the presence of insects. They are not a control measure. They collect only adult flying insects; gypsy moths damage trees only in the caterpillar stage. Therefore, "They're useless," Jacobsen said. Adult moths do not feed, do no damage, and die by the end of August.

Jacobsen said the traps use pheromones, chemical substances secreted by the insects themselves, to attract other insects. "It actually attracts more insects to your yard," he said.

If you are in an area which has been infected with gypsy moths and want to know what to do to determine if control measures are necessary, call the Extension Service Garden Hotline at 858-0902.

However Jacobsen said there is a natural cycle to the gypsy moth. "If they don't spray them, after about two or three years there's not as much food for them so they go into decline," he said. "We didn't have much problem in Lake Orion or Oxford last year."

turf is keeping mower blades sharp. Grass that's cut rather than torn not only looks better, Saffel says, but it is less disease prone.

Remove no more than one-third of the leaf blade at any one cutting, he adds. Removing more than this stresses the plant and reduces the leaf area for photosynthesis.

The above information was provided by the Michigan State University, East Lansing, Outreach Communications. For more information, call Mike Saffel at 517/353-3117.

Investors should begin with low-risk options

One way to build an investment portfolio is by following the pyramid style, according to the Michigan Association of CPAs.

The foundation should consist of safe investments.

8 p.m. - A Difference of Opinion: Motivational series hosted by Dr. John Cowan.

8:30 p.m. - K-TV: Karaoke television "live" at Deer Lake Inn.

TUESDAY AND FRIDAY

7 p.m. - The Power of Love: Religious talk and variety program hosted by Ted Slankster.

7:30 p.m. - In Step with the Seasons: Dance recital.

WEDNESDAY

7 p.m. - The Job Show: A presentation of The Michigan Employment Security Commission.

7:30 P.M. - Clarkston Board of Education: Meeting of Aug. 11.

As your portfolio grows, you can gradually include investments with slightly more risk. But the amount invested in high-risk investments should always be small compared to the rest of your portfolio.

Here are some other tips from the Michigan Association of CPAs on how you can invest $5,000.

Bank certificates of deposit

If you want a federally insured investment, consider a bank certificate of deposit (CD). CDs are a safe way to lock in specific interest rates for a pre-determined period of time.

Banks generally set their CD rates based on the yield offered on Treasury bills and other competing investments. While CD rates may appear modest in comparison to other investments, in today's economy there is something to be said for an investment that guarantees to preserve principal when held to maturity.

Government securities

Government securities guarantee repayment of principal at maturity. In return for this security, be prepared to settle for lower interest rates.

If you are considering purchasing a Treasury note, keep in mind that you will generally have to tie up your money for the term of your note — or run the risk of receiving less than if you held the bond to maturity since prices on the open market fluctuate with prevailing interest rates.

U.S. savings bonds are another type of government security that is within reach of the small investor. Like Treasury notes, U.S. savings bonds come with government backing that makes them virtually risk-free.

The interest rate is adjusted every six months, so if interest rates go up after you've purchased a savings bond, your rate will go up too. Savings bonds come in denominations from $50 to $10,000. You buy them at half of their face value and receive both the principal and interest when you cash in the bonds.

Savings bonds are best suited for investors who are prepared to hold onto them for at least five years. Savings-bond interest is exempt from state and local income taxes. Federal taxes can be deferred until the bond is redeemed.

The amount invested in high-risk investments should always be small compared to the rest of your portfolio.

Corporate bonds

Corporate bonds are generally sold in $1,000 denominations (plus a broker's commission). If you invest your entire $5,000 in corporate bonds, try to stick with high-quality issuers. The yield your corporate bond pays depends primarily on the financial soundness and prospects of the company, but, in general, you can expect corporate bonds to pay rates higher than those paid on government or municipal bonds.

Mutual funds

A mutual fund is a large, professionally managed portfolio of securities that individual investors can buy into — sometimes for as little as $250. Investing in a mutual fund is a practical way for the small investor to achieve three desirable investment goals — diversification, instant liquidity and professional management.

There are thousands of mutual funds from which to choose. Some invest only in stocks, some in bonds and some in a combination of the two. You will also have to choose between no-load and load funds. No-load funds carry no sales charges and are the most economical for the small investor.

Investment decisions can be particularly perplexing to the new investor. Before you make a decision, be sure you completely understand any investment you are considering.

Save energy to save money

Utilities bills, like death and taxes, are one of life's few certainties. But homeowners can reduce their utility bills with a few simple steps.

WATER BILLS: Your shower is one of the easiest places to cut down on water use. Install a low-flow nozzle to save up to 50% usage. A shower head with its own on/off switch makes it easy to conserve water while soaping up.

Leaky faucets and toilets are some of the biggest water wasters. A leaking faucet can waste up to 25 gallons daily! Most repairs are simple, so don't delay.

Don't leave the water running when washing your car. Use the "grey water" from the final rinse for watering the garden.

ELECTRIC BILLS: Simply turning out the lights makes a difference. Also, replace high wattage bulbs with energy conserving bulbs. Set appliances, such as your dishwasher, on low-energy settings.

Don't locate heat-producing appliances, like a stove or dishwasher, next to a refrigerator or freezer. Heat will cause cooling equipment to work harder.

Install electric water heaters as close as possible to the kitchen and bathrooms. This means shorter pipes and less heat lost as water travels through them. If long pipes are necessary, wrap them in insulation. Use cold water whenever you can -- it requires no energy.

Check your home's insulation. Do you need weather stripping around your windows and doors? Keep fireplace dampers closed when not in use so heated or cooled air can't escape.

Keep vents and doors closed in infrequently used rooms.

GAS BILLS: Many of the tips provided for saving on electric bills also apply to gas appliances. In addition, gas heat is nearly immediate. When cooking, don't waste energy with lengthy pre-heating. Regularly clean and adjust your gas heater so that the flame is blue.

Cancer-fighting tip: Reducing fat intake means eating fewer high-fat foods. Many of these, such as dairy products, meat, nuts and seeds, contain vital nutrients for good health and need not be avoided completely. Fats carry fat-soluble vitamins A, D and E; fatty deposits serve as reserves of energy and protectors of vital organs.

Road strikes chord with Conservatory

The hills are alive with the sound of ... rock-n-roll? They will be soon at the Clarkston Conservatory of Music. A new teacher has been hired to teach rock chords on the guitar.

Ivan Rouse, director of the Main Street conservatory, calls the new class a "break-through in music education."

"We've got to be with the times," Rouse said. "We're still going to keep the classical, but this is important, too."

New teacher Dan Flowers, 22, of has played guitar for 12 years and has given lessons for three years in the Flint area.

Flowers has completed a music education minor at Spring Arbor College, Spring Arbor. While attending Spring Arbor, Flowers participated in the Jazz Band, Jazz Ensemble and the classical guitar ensemble.

He is a member of the band Alyze, which has opened for groups such as Spinal Tap, the Guess Who, Danger Danger and Love/Hate. His band has recorded two albums, and Flowers himself has done extensive studio playing.

But the Davison resident is just as interested in teaching as in performing.

"I am more concerned with the student as an individual than just a student," said Flowers. "Since I'm young, I still speak their language and can understand their problems. I try to be a friend — it's my personal mission."

America's first newspaper short-lived

Newspapers are such an integral part of American life that it is hard to imagine a time when they were not available on every street corner.

In Colonial times, however, American journalism faced many hardships, including poor communications and distribution systems, as well as a government intolerant of criticism.

On Sept. 25, 1690, Benjamin Harris of Massachusetts published what history records as America's first newspaper. Public Occurrences, Both Foreign and Domestick was a first for the people of Boston; before the paper, news usually was posted on trees and poles.

The first issue of Publick Occurrences, however, proved to be its last. Upset by several of Harris' views, the Massachusetts governor issued an order of suppression that outlawed the paper.

It wasn't until 14 years later that printer John Campbell capitalized on Harris' idea by founding the Boston News-Letter, a weekly newspaper that began publication in 1704. The News-letter lays claim to several firsts in American journalism, including the use of correspondents, the selling of subscriptions and home delivery.

Today, there are more than 9,000 newspapers published in the United States. And, despite the many changes that have taken place in the past 302 years, the motivating force behind Harris' attempt to bring journalism to America is the same force that guides the media today: the public's right to know.

Sooty's a cutie

If Sooty's cute name doesn't grab you, her piercing green eyes should.

This 3-pound Russian blue weighs 14 pounds and is housebroken. She's already been spayed.

She is considered a lap cat, but Sooty isn't friendly toward others pets. She is good with children, though. Her adoption fee is $25.

PUBLIC NOTICE

"BECAUSE THE PEOPLE MUST KNOW"

CITY OF THE
VILLAGE OF CLARKSTON
375 DEPOT ROAD
CLARKSTON, MICHIGAN 48346
JULY 27, 1992

Mayor Catallo called the meeting to order at 7:35 p.m., followed by the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag.

Roll: Present - Arkwright, Catallo, Roeser, Sanderson, Schultz and Secatch. Absent - Basinger.

Moved by Schultz, supported by Arkwright, "That minutes from the Public Hearing regarding the District Library on July 13, 1992 be approved." Yeas - 6. Nays - 0. Motion carried.

Moved by Secatch, supported by Sanderson, "That the minutes from the regular meeting of July 13, 1992 be approved." Yeas - 6. Nays - 0. Motion carried.

Moved by Schultz, supported by Sanderson, "That the agenda be approved with the following additions: That the Library be added under Old Business, that the Fire Contract be added under New Business, and the Planning Commission appointment be added under New Business." Yeas - 6. Nays - 0. Motion carried.

Committee Reports:
Roeser stated that a question had been posed by Jim Smith in regards to the safety path on White Lake Road. The estimate provided by the contractor was for 1500 linear feet of side walk. According to Roeser approximately 1050 feet of this should be reviewed because part of it should be covered under the original contract. Pappas will review the contract.

Roeser reviewed the minutes from the June 15, 1992 joint meeting with the Township. The minutes indicate the Township will provide the Clarkston City Council an estimate of the cost of the audit by Plante Moran for the division of assets. Pappas will look into this.

Roeser has written a letter to the Township to address the issues of the stream crossing and the lost vegetation along the safety path of White Lake Road. The letter requests a written response to these concerns because a verbal response has not been forthcoming. Pappas indicated there are some washout areas along the safety path near the cemetery.

Virginia Walters met with the Council as a representative of the Youth Assistance Program. The Youth Assistance Program operates under the Juvenile Division of the Oakland County Probate Court. The Village Council has supported the Youth Assistance Program in the past. This year the program has sent kids to camp, recognized youth for acts of heroism, provided movies regarding shoplifting to local schools, matched needy youth with caring adults and provided Parent Education in conjunction with the schools.

The annual meeting will be September 21, 1992 from 12:00 to 1:00 p.m. at the Methodist Church. $1500.00 has been budgeted for the Youth Assistance Program.

Moved by Schultz, supported by Roeser, "To give $1500.00 to the Youth Assistance Program." Roll: Yeas - 6. Nays - 0. Motion carried.

Sy Stone has been hired as the new Building Inspector. Roeser wanted to know who approves the site plans. Pappas indicated if it is in the Historic District it is referred to the Historical Commission. If not he checks for set-backs and will check with Mr. Stone.

Certificates of Occupancy will be issued after the final inspection.

Any permit issued before July 1, 1992 the Township will continue to follow up on those issued. After July 1, 1992 it will be the City's responsibility. Contractors should be pulling the permits, since if there is a violation the person who pulls the permit is responsible.

Homeowners can pull the permits if they are contracting with someone on an hourly basis or if they are doing all the work themselves.

Attorney Ryan is familiar with Sy Stone's work in Keego Harbor and believes he does an excellent job.

Building permit applications are available with Art Pappas. The Zoning Ordinance Amendments for Municipal Building was initially looked into because of the desire to expand the police substation and the Village had no provision in our Ordinance for Municipal buildings. Tom Ryan will put the proposed changes into an Ordinance form. Arkwright will set a public hearing in front of the Planning Commission to discuss the proposed changes in the Ordinances.

The Deer Lake Beach Ordinances were discussed. Ryan took the Township Ordinances and made some changes to indicate joint jurisdiction.

Pappas will obtain a copy of the lease agreement for Ryan to determine who has jurisdiction at the beach via the lease. Some changes were made to the Ordinances which Ryan will incorporate. Ordinances will be reviewed at another meeting.

The SEMCOG delegate and alternate appointments were tabled for another meeting.

Moved by Roeser, supported by Schultz, "That the $771.00 received by the SMART Agreement be split between SCAMP to pay for bus tickets for field trips and the Senior Citizens for their van. Roll: Yeas - 6. Nays - 0. Motion carried.

Secatch indicated the Library contract expires in December 1992. The Township is going to put a millage on the ballot in September at a mill increase on top of the 3/4 mills they currently levy for a total of 1-3/4 mill for library funding. Secatch feels we should look into putting the issue to our voters in November. Pappas will call the County Elections Division to determine the time frame to put an issue on the ballot.

Secatch will meet with Molly Lynch to determine what millage would need to be levied if we contract with the Township for Library services after December 1992.

Tom Ryan indicated we sent a certified letter to Mr. Jordan at his Post Office Box which was returned unopened. A second letter, was sent through the ordinary mail which was not returned. Ryan believes we have two alternatives to resolve the drain ditch problem, one is to issue a citation, the second to try to resolve this in circuit court.

The Council felt the first would be to issue the citation for an Ordinance Violation which Chief Devore will deliver.

Ryan indicated he will update the traffic ordinance so the police office citations can begin to earn revenue for the City.

Ryan indicated the Township Attorney, Gerald Fisher, has been out of town, but he will try to contact him to complete the contract for fire protection services.

Pappas indicated that the Community Development Block Grants of which the Village has between $10,000-$12,000, expires in 1993. If this money is not spent and the area is reassessed and determined not to be depressed area the money will be lost.

A committee will be formed to look into areas for Community Development. Some suggestions that were made included sidewalks on the west side of North Holcomb and trees and tree trimmings.

Moved by Arkwright, supported by Schultz, "That Tim Vanderkrohn, of 69 S. Holcomb be appointed to the Planning Commission to replace Gordon Spelbring. The appointment is effective immediately and runs until March 1995. Yeas - 6. Nays - 0. Motion carried.

Moved by Roeser, Supported by Schultz, "That the meeting be adjourned." Yeas - 6. Nays - 0. Motion carried.

Meeting adjourned at 8:10 p.m.

Adam, with nine other area students, modeled their own back-to-school clothes and offered advice on where to shop and what to buy for this school year.

Clarkston's new school year brings many changes

Less elementary music, more junior high foreign language — and pay-to-pay sports

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Associate Editor

Less time in music class is in store for elementary pupils this year, while junior high students will have a chance to explore foreign languages.

And athletes in junior high and high school must pay to participate in sports.

The 1992-93 school year is just around the corner, and Clarkston students and their parents will witness several changes.

They vary from program additions to class cuts to pay-to-play sports. Either way, this school year is bound to be interesting as well as controversial.

Prior to the school year, the Clarkston Board of Education slashed the budget by $1.2 million because of state cuts and an ongoing property tax freeze. These cuts eliminated or hindered several of the district's programs.

Classes affected include:

- Elimination of the Elementary World Language class.

- A 50 percent reduction in the Elementary Gifted Support program.

- Elimination of the CHS SEARCH program.

- Elimination of one of three full-time media specialists from the Elementary Library program.

- A 50 percent reduction in the K-5 music program.

- A 50 percent reduction in the Elementary Physical Education program, cutting gym time from 50 minutes per week to 35 minutes per week.

- Elimination of the Elementary

Keyboard class.

- Elimination of local funding for Computer Assistance, PA 25 Assistance, Jazz Band, District Wellness Coordinator and Summer School.

These cuts have meant the school district has instituted pay-to-play sports for students in grades 7-12. Starting this fall, all students will be required to pay $75 per sport to participate.

This fee pertains to cheerleading and pom-pom teams as well. There will be no discounts for the number of sports or the number of active family members.

Program changes aren't only limited to cutbacks this fall, however. Several classes have been re-structured or added for children at all levels.

These positive changes include:

- Changing the mathematics class sequence in grades 9-12. From now on, students will take Algebra I & II, Geometry I & II, Algebra III & IV. Originally, students had to take all their algebra classes before they could take geometry. This should help students be better prepared for state tests.

- Speaking of math, students in grades K-8, will face more manipulative, problem-solving exercises in the future.

- A new eighth-grade health course was added at both junior high schools.

- New classes in exploratory foreign language were added at both junior high schools.

- At Sashabaw Junior High, an experimental 50/50 split between band and physical education will be offered. This course gives a student the opportunity to be involved in both band and gym. If successful, a similar class will be offered at Clarkston Junior High School next year.

- Intramural programs were extended at both junior high schools.

New classes can also be found for youngsters at the Clarkston Community Education Center. Among a variety of offerings, some of fall's highlighted programs include:

- An organizational workshop for students in grades 6-9.

- A variety of eight-week courses for elementary-age students on topics such as bugs, dance, gymnastics and clay sculpturing.

- Halloween craft classes for kids of all ages.

Adult enrichment courses have also been added to educate students over 18 years old. Some of the one- and two-night sessions include:

- Home decorating

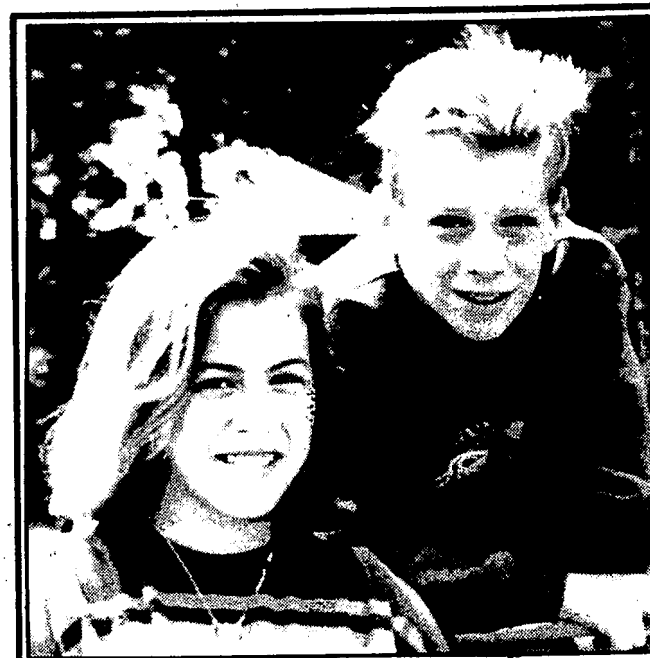

- Wall paper hanging

- Mortgages

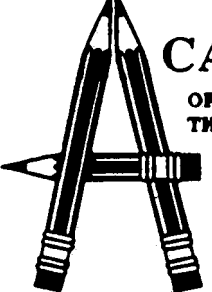

- How to sell your home

- Self-defense classes for women

According to officials at the Community Education Center, all school district residents should receive a catalog of courses by the second week of August. For more information, call the center at 674-0993.

Teens name favorite school lunches

Surprise! Most prefer school cafeteria food to Mom's lunch from home

BY AMANDA PESKE
Clarkston News Special Writer

Today, with fast food, microwavable meals and health-consciousness, it's difficult to decide what to have for lunch.

But area junior high and high school students know exactly what their favorite lunch is. And guess what? A majority of students surveyed said they prefer school cafeteria lunch to a lunch packed at home.

Since most junior high students don't have the option of going out to lunch, students either pack a lunch or eat school lunch.

Mollie Anderson, a seventh-grader at Sashabaw Junior High, said her favorite school lunch is chicken nuggets. However, if she had to bring a lunch from home, her top choice is submarine sandwiches, she said.

Anderson's friend Melissa Kitson, also a Sashabaw student, said taco salad is her favorite school lunch.

Disagreeing with her older sister, sixth-grader Mindy Kitson said she didn't know what kind of food to expect at the junior high, but when she was in elementary school, she preferred the pizza pocket.

Jeff Sanders, also a junior high student, named "fiestada" (Mexican pizza) as his favorite school food.

Favorite school lunch items changed a little at the high school level — particularly for seniors who can leave school campus for lunch.

Even though Doug LaBrie is only a junior at Clarkston High School and thus not allowed to leave school for lunch, he said with no doubt that his favorite lunch is McDonald's: two cheeseburgers, a small fry, and a small Coke.

Brendan Kelley, a CHS senior who can now "legally" to go out for lunch, said he still prefers the school's Little Charlie's pizza.

Back to the basics is Jennifer Baumann, also a senior at Clarkston, who said she enjoys the old-time favorite of peanut butter and jelly, along with orange juice, some potato chips and an apple.

While mothers may be a little offended by the majority's preference for school lunches over homemade, at least school cafeteria employees can take pleasure that a few teens appreciate their efforts.

Amanda Peske of Independence Township is a Clarkston High School senior.

DEBBIE THOMPSON was just graduated from Springfield Christian Academy in spring. This fall, she plans to attend Bob Jones University in South Carolina. Since her college has a strict dress code, Debbie's closet at college will be filled with dressier clothing such as these skorts.

Perk up school lunches with easy suggestions

BY AMANDA PESKE
Clarkston News Special Writer

It's hard enough to find a lunch that's healthy as well as tasty for youngsters.

But combine that difficult task with the busy schedules of working parents, and it becomes even tougher.

Luckily, a few area restaurants and delicatessens have come up with some school lunch suggestions for parents on the go.

Sandwiches are the forever common school lunch item, but, "Not a lot of kids like sandwiches for lunch," said Margaret Wickline, a worker at the Main Street Deli Cafe.

She suggested rolled meats, cheese blocks and sliced fruit as an alternative to the sandwich.

If a sandwich is as adventuresome as your child likes to be, maybe variety is the way to go. Jim McLachlan, owner of Captains Subs, naturally suggested a submarine sandwich for a change of pace.

With the proven fact that children are less active now than they were in the past, many health-conscious parents — such as Greg Ryeson, owner of Greg's Carry-Out — now carefully watch what their children eat.

Greg said a well balanced meal is essential.

"People are getting lazy and look for a crutch," said Ryeson, explaining that some have forgotten the four basic food groups.

He suggested that consumers stay away from processed food, such as turkey and especially high-fat bologna — even though Greg admits, "I always liked bologna, but Mom never bought it."

Instead, Greg suggested that parents include more homemade items. Home-

"I had one of those moms who packed nice lunches, but I'd rather (have) had a hamburger."

Scott Crane

made soup in a thermal container, leftover ham or turkey on a multi-grain bread, fruits and vegetables. And if desert is a must, try Entemann's Non-Fat deserts, he said.

Juice boxes have also become popular among school lunches — and they're easy, said Ronnie Bahri, owner of Pine Knob Wine Shoppe and Deli.

Take lunch tips from experts

If your child is anything like Little Louie's manager Chris Shiek, who said, "I hated my lunches as a kid; I always got peanut butter and jelly" — maybe you will take the advice of John Esshaki, co-owner of Rudy's Market and Deli. He suggested a corned beef sandwich, a bag of chips, a Snapple soft drink, and a banana or apple for desert.

Or take a hint from Shiek's restaurant and serve leftover cold pizza for lunch.

Being different is also important when it comes to packing your children's lunch, especially if you have a child like Nanjo's manager, Scott Crane.

As kid, said Crane, "I had one of those moms who packed nice lunches, but I'd rather had a hamburger."

Those who are just looking for a basic outline on what to pack in a child's lunch should take the advice of Carol Borgmesser, co-owner of Carol's Village Grill, who admits that it has been a long time since she packed a lunch. She suggested a sandwich, fruit and some sort of treat, such as chips or cookies.

For parents who suffer a day-to-day time crunch, these suggestions may ease the stress of being original when it comes to packing your child's school lunch.

Amanda Peske of Independence Township is a Clarkston High School senior.

After-school jobs mean money for college, cars

BY CATHERINE PASSMORE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Whether high school students work for car payments, college money or to afford the clothes they want, kids have held after school jobs as long as there have been high schools.

A few area high school students talked to The Clarkston News about their jobs. Here are their comments:

Mandy Henkel

Mandy has worked at the Village Bake Shop on Main Street, Clarkston, for two months. She works over the counter.

"I've been working for three years, and it doesn't affect me."

Mandy Henkel

Her job, she said, doesn't affect her school work. "I've been working for three years, and it doesn't affect me," she said.

Matt Leineke

Matt, 16, is more of an entrepreneur. He runs his own lawn service and continues his work during the school year. The Clarkston High School junior, a Mockingbird Lane, Independence Township, resident, said his job doesn't interfere with school or social activities.

"I just don't let it," he said.

Christina Sailor

Christina, 17, and a Clarkston High senior, is saving money for her spring break trip to Arizona. The Whipple Lake, Independence Township, resident has worked for Independence Township Library for a year. She shelves books and sometimes works at the desk. Christina also said her work doesn't interfere with her school work or social life.

Jason White

Jason, 17, works as a busboy at Alexander's Restaurant on Dixie Highway, Independence Township. The Felix Road, Independence Township, resident and Clarkston High School senior works to earn money for college. He plans to study veterinary medicine at Michigan State University, East Lansing.

His first job was with SCAMP when he was 16. He thinks that his job may interfere with his school work, but he is not sure as he has not worked during school before, he said.

This Deer Ridge, Independence Township, resident is 16 and will be a senior at Clarkston High School in the fall. She works to pay for her car and has been working since she was 13 years old.
