Wint leaves legacy of community service

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Associate Editor

Area flags flew at half mast Monday, as Clarkston laid to rest one its most beloved community leaders. Lewis E. Wint, 58, died Friday, Nov. 13, after a long served as the commission's vice-chairman in 1976 and secretary from 1974-75.

During his tenure on the commission, the parks system acquired Glen Oaks Golf Course in Farmington Hills, Orion Oaks in Orion Township, and a 10th park, Lyon Oaks in Lyon Township.

An innovator and advocate of all forms of recreation, Wint oversaw the development of Michigan's first wave-action swimming pool at Waterford Oaks County Park.

This year, the Oakland County Parks and Recreation

Commission was a 1992 finalist for the Gold Medal, the highest national honor in the field.

In 1989, Wint received the National Recreation and Park Association's Great Lakes Region Award as an outstanding board and commission member. He was also honored by the American Parks and Recreation Society in 1985 with a Meritorious Service Award for his voluntary contributions to parks and recreation.

bout with cancer.

He was buried at Lakeview Cemetery, following the funeral at Clarkston United Methodist Church, where he was a long-time member.

Wint earned the respect of many, including those worked with him.

"Lew was quite a man," said Jenni Simsack, a funeral director at the Lewis E. Wint and Son Trust 100 Funeral Home, Independence Township. "He was a very good teacher, who was patient and liked by everyone. He's left a lasting impression on a lot of people in this community."

The Rev. Doug Trebilcock of Clarkston United Methodist Church concurred.

"Mr. Wint was a very loving man, who served people in any capacity that he could," Trebilcock said. "He was always willing to give back to the community that had given his so much.

"He leaves behind a legacy of caring and generosity," he added.

Wint's son, Bill, summarizes his father's life with a statement from Abraham Lincoln.

"I like to see a man proud of his community in which he lives and so live that the community will be proud of him."

A graduate of Wayne University, Detroit, Wint's expertise in the field of mortuary science spanned nearly 37 years. Along with his first wife, Diane, he founded the Lewis E. Wint & Son TRUST 100 Funeral Home in 1959.

Over the years, he became involved in a bevy of organizations in his community and county.

He was past president of the Clarkston Rotary, North Oakland SCAMP Funding Corp. and the North Oakland Chamber of Commerce. He received numerous community awards, including the 1991 Citizen of the Year Award and the 1983 Outstanding Volunteer of the Year Award.

Wint was instrumental in setting up Oakland County's heralded park system. He was a member of the Oakland County Parks and Recreation Commission for the past 18 years and chairman for 15 consecutive terms. He also

Wintry weather

SNOW makes for a wet weekend in downtown Clarkston, as these pedestrians find while waiting for a traffic light to change at the corner of Main and Washington streets. Temperatures hovered around 32 degrees, so the ground was alternately white with snow or brown with mud. The wind, however, was calm, so it didn't seem too cold.

History tape given

Discussion on local history, architecture and government might be a little more lively in Clarkston schools, thanks to a recent donation.

The Clarkston Community Historical Society recently donated copies of the video tape "Why Clarkston Is Special" to the five elementary schools, two junior high schools and the high school in Clarkston Community School District.

The Society's intent is for the brief presentation of Clarkston's importance as a National Historic District to be used as an introduction to classroom discussions of local history, architecture or government.

The Society also provided each elementary classroom teacher a copy of a walking tour pamphlet, which deals with a portion of Clarkston's Historic District.

Recreation and Park Association in 1985 for outstanding contributions to parks and recreation by a person not professionally employed in the field.

Wint was also a founding member and trustee for the Oakland Parks Foundation, a group of citizens committed to preserving parklands and enhancing recreation in the county.

In 1985, Lew Wint was honored by the Detroit United Way Foundation with a Heart of Gold Award for outstanding voluntary contributions.

Professionally, he served his career field as president of the Michigan Funeral Directors Association.

Wint is survived by his wife, Nancy of Clarkston; a daughter, Joy Blackerby of Warren; his son, Bill of Clarkston; four grandchildren; a brother, Lane Barrett; step-daughters, Brenda Ellis of New Mexico and Dawn Kosinski of Lansing; father-in-law, Harold Euler of Bloomfield Hills; and brother-in-law Richard Euler of Chicago.

Food for needy flowing in, but is it enough?

BY CATHERINE PASSMORE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

This year, 300 area families will get their Thanksgiving dinner from Lighthouse North.

But even more are on the waiting list.

Sherry Kaars, director of Lighthouse North, said the community response to Lighthouse North's request for Thanksgiving foods has been great, but she's not sure that it will be enough.

"We have more people helping than last year," she said. "There is still a concern, though. We have a waiting list going on. I think it's going to be a busy year."

Kaars said that a waiting list was created for those who haven't planned ahead.

"They need to think about Thanksgiving in October or the beginning of November," she said. "People in this Kaars said that they have a lot of spaghetti and no spaghetti sauce — plus no yellow vegetables at this time. They also need personal care items, such as laundry detergent, deodorant and toothpaste.

Lighthouse is open for donations weekdays from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. On Saturday, Nov. 21, they will accept donations all day, and on Sunday, Nov. 22, they will be open 1-5 p.m.

area are not accustomed to getting this kind of service and wait until it's almost Thanksgiving to ask for help."

Lighthouse North still needs cash donations to buy turkeys, which they get at a discount rate because they buy them in bulk.

It also needs pie crusts, stuffing mixes, sweet potatoes and canned pumpkin pie filling.

Also on the list: boxes of cereal, since Lighthouse provides breakfast, lunch and dinner on Thanksgiving for the families. Whatever is not donated to the food drive, Lighthouse has to buy.

Throughout the year, Lighthouse North needs donations of canned meats, cereal, peanut butter and jelly.

Public hearing helps determine grant use

BY CATHERINE PASSMORE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Residents requested that about $57,000 in township grant money be used to help the needy and the senior citizens in the area Nov. 11.

After the Nov. 11 public hearing on the Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) money, the Springfield Township Board voted unanimously in three separate motions to allocate the money.

The board voted to reallocate $20,908.67 remaining in the 1989-90 minor home improvement fund. Now it will be used to remove barriers to handicapped people on township property, in accordance with the Americans with Disabilities Act. The money could be used to construct ramps, change restrooms or install hard surfaces in park pavilions.

The board also agreed on how to spend $36,307 in expected 1993 grant money. Twenty percent of that amount, or $7,261.40, will go toward the purchase of a senior citizens' van; 20 percent ($7,261.40) toward making township property barrier-free to handicapped people; 40 percent ($14,522.80) to public service agencies; and 20 percent ($7,261.40) to planning and management.

In the public service category above, the board voted to give $3,000 to Lighthouse North and $11,522.80 to Neighbor for Neighbor.

CDBG money comes from the federal government and is distributed by the state. It may be used to benefit low- and moderate-income populations, to prevent or eliminate slum and blighted conditions, or to meet an urgent community need.

Before board members voted, a few residents voiced opinions on how the money should be spent.

Norris Walls, coordinator for Neighbor for Neighbor, asked the board to reissue money to the non-profit group that helps needy Springfield Township residents. Norris Walls said, "There are a lot of old men and women working down there, and we'd appreciate your consideration."

Helen Vergin of Springfield Township asked that the board consider allocating money toward a van to transport seniors in Springfield Township. Supervisor Collin Walls said the van is estimated at $22,000 to $24,000, and in 1992 the township board allocated $12,103 toward the van.

Supervisor Walls read a letter from the Oakland County Food Bank requesting that it be considered to receive funds from the township. Also, Walls asked board members to consider the non-profit Lighthouse North as they have before.

Township officials won't know the exact amount of money they will receive until summer 1993. They have until 1997 to spend or commit to spending all of the money.

Carr wins DAR leadership award

Stacy Carr has been selected to represent Clarkston High School in the Daughters of the American Revolution (DAR) statewide competition.

The 17-year-old Springfield Township student earned the distinction by exhibiting academic ability, leadership, citizenship and community service. She was chosen by members of the CHS faculty.

Stacy Carr

Carr presently serves as president of CHS' Students Against Driving Drunk (SADD) chapter and vice president of the National Honor Society, where she holds a 3.92 grade point average. She's also a member of the school's leadership group (WOLF).

As part of the statewide competition, Carr must now complete a two-part questionnaire and submit it to the state judges' panel. If she does well at the state level, she could be up for a number of cash scholarships.

The DAR Award in the Clarkston Area is given by the Sashabaw Plains Chapter of the DAR.

Block grant money goes toward senior center kitchen, historic structure study

Independence Township will pay for a few extra activities and projects next year, with the help of Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) funds.

This money comes from the federal government. The amount of money is based on population and the number of targeted groups (low income, senior citizens and handicapped) within the municipality's borders.

The township will receive about $69,022 for 1993-94.

On Nov. 4, the board agreed to spend the money in the following manner: Public Services, $24,847; Transportation, $10,353; Kitchen Renovation, $17,255; Emergency Rehabilitation, $9,663; Planning, $6,902.

Under public services, the $24,847 will be divided between seven organizations. They include: SCAMP, Clarkston Area Youth Assistance (CAYA), Consortium for Human Development, Lighthouse North, Meals on Wheels, Home Chore and Righteous Mission.

Transportation money is slated for 50 percent of the cost of a new van with a lift. The van is to be purchased in 1995, when the parks and recreation department requests the remainder of the purchase price.

In regards to kitchen renovations, the parks and recreation department plans to refurbish the kitchen in the senior center.

Emergency rehabilitation entails helping disadvantaged residents in case a major utility malfunctions or a tragedy befalls their home. The funds make for a speedy recovery.

Under the planning segment, the township would conduct a "historic preservation study" of homes, in order to identify various alternatives for the preservation of these structures. This study and its recommendations will eventually be forwarded to the township planning commission and the township board.

$1,400 VCR OK'd

A new video cassette recorder (VCR) will soon be added to the equipment at the Springfield Township Cable Station.

On Nov. 11, the board voted unanimously to approve $1,400 from the cable-TV budget.

The VCR will be used to show pre-recorded programs on North Oakland Cablevision's Channel 53. For instance, the Oakland County Sheriff's Department has asked to show a crime prevention program but can't without a VCR.

Walls said the money will be used to buy a VCR plus a switch that will allow videos to be shown on the cable station and then return to a message or program.

"There is one stipulation to this though," said Walls. "We can't go out and rent the latest hot movie to show on cable."

'Hero' seeks reward money in criminal case

BY CATHERINE PASSMORE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

When Carl Paulsen Jr. stumbled upon a man apparently kidnapping a woman in a Springfield Township cemetery in May, he alerted police and was hailed a hero.

The man turned out to be Leslie Allen Williams, who confessed to killing four teen-age girls.

Now Paulsen, an Independence Township resident, hopes to be rewarded for his heroism. But so far, he has been denied all reward money.

So he hired an attorney, with whom he'll discuss the case this week.

"I'm not doing this to line my pockets," Paulsen said. "It's a moral issue. If it wasn't for me, they wouldn't have found (Williams). Getting him to confess to the crimes and having him lead them to the graves was (the detectives') job to do."

On May 24, Paulsen and his mother, Helen, notified the Oakland County Sheriff's Department (OCSD) that something was wrong in Hillview Memorial Cemetery on Andersonville Road.

Paulsen saw Williams dragging a woman into the bushes and knew that she was in trouble. Police captured Williams and found the woman — injured but alive — in his car trunk.

Paulsen waited until Williams was convicted of all the crimes before inquiring about the reward money. He was told the Silent Observer reward program paperwork would take a month.

But it took so long, he became curious and called the precincts that investigated each crime.

At the Brighton precinct, he discovered the reward money was to be given only if the Urban sisters were found alive.

In Milford, the home of Cynthia Jones, he found that the Presbyterian Church, which collected the reward money, had given it to Jones' family.

"People in the shop have been asking me about it,"

"I'm not doing this to line my pockets. It's a moral issue."

Carl Paulsen Jr.

said Paulsen. "They don't understand why I didn't get the money right away."

Paulsen said he doesn't know exactly how much money was raised by Jones' family and her community.

"The way I understand it, her grandfather gave $7,000, and the businesses contributed — people contributed large amounts," said Paulsen.

Paulsen said that he had entrusted the gathering of reward money to sheriff's department detectives with whom he had spoken. When months passed and he heard nothing, he called one of the detectives.

"He told me 'You don't deserve it. You didn't do anything to deserve that money.' That is the kind of attitude that I got from the detectives," said Paulsen.

Paulsen believes that he should receive the $2,000 that the Silent Observer program gives to the person who helps in the apprehension and conviction of a murderer.

Paulsen said he hired an attorney through his employer, General Motors Corp.

"I plan to pursue this matter," said Paulsen. "It depends though on what the lawyer says about it."

Although Paulsen talked to "A Current Affair" TV program, he said he has not received any monetary compensation for his good deed.

True grace

Julie Campe

There was a grace about Lew Wint, who died Friday, Nov. 13.

I had known him my whole life, and I had always liked him.

But I didn't consciously recognize his unique qualities until I became a reporter for The Clarkston News.

It was then that I heard him speak, again and again, as a master of ceremonies, as an award recipient, as one person in a two-person conversation, as a member of an audience at a business or social function.

He had that rare, rare gift — one that I have never seen in anyone I know personally — of exemplary public speaking.

I have seen characters in movies with that gift and have read about outstanding orators in our country's past — before the dawning of television and radio, when communication by public speech was essential and was encouraged and developed.

And I imagine that Lew would rank among the best of them.

Nowadays, people don't speak much in public. If they do, it rivals the "sound bites" on television — just a comment here or there.

Not Lew.

Yes, he was capable of an apropos quip here and a witticism there — and he used them often and skillfully.

But the speeches for which he was known best were of substance. He spoke passionately about parks and recreation and their role in society. His philosophy was that open space was essential to our well being and should be preserved for all (only he said it much more eloquently).

He inspired with his words on community service, for which he had received many awards.

Simply put, he said he loved his community of Clarkston and would do anything for it. Somehow, he made it sound as if the community honored him by allowing him to serve it.

He seemed as comfortable in front of 150 people as he was in front of one.

As a member of his audience, I sometimes forgot I was a reporter and became engrossed in his speech — once I even forgot to take notes until loud applause from the audience interrupted Lew's talk and brought me back to my task at hand.

His very voice was fluid and smooth. And he seemed perfectly comfortable at the podium.

Quick thinking, with impeccable manners, he could stir up thunderous laughter or solemn reverence with equal ease.

He could gently hurl "insults" at his peers in the audience and manage to offend no one and to entertain many.

Where had he learned such wondrous ways? Perhaps he was born with the ability? Or maybe his path in life required so much public speaking that he simply developed his skills over the years.

I don't know that answer.

I only know that anyone who has heard Lew speak has observed grace itself.

Crash course on bad driving habits

A few years ago Robert Fulghum wrote a best-selling book entitled, "All I Really Need to Know I Learned in Kindergarten: Uncommon Thoughts on Common Things."

Fulghum said, "Wisdom was not at the top of the graduate-school mountain, but there in the sandpile at Sunday School."

Among the things Fulghum learned in kindergarten that continue to make sense in adult life are: "share everything; play fair; don't hit people; put things back where you found them; say you're sorry when you hurt somebody; when you go out into the world, watch out for traffic, hold hands, and stick together."

We think Fulghum's philosophy also applies to something else we learned in school and continue to do in adult life — the way we drive on our highways and expressways.

Following are some guidelines contained in a book that could be entitled, "All I Really Need to Know I Learned in Driver's Training: Common Sense and Common Courtesy for Oakland County Motorists":

- Obey all speed limits
- Don't tailgate

- Use your blinker when changing lanes
- Don't flash your lights on and off to intimidate the driver in front of you
- Don't pass on the right
- Obey all traffic lights and signs
- Stay a car length away from the car in front of you for every 10 mph (example — if you're driving 50 mph, stay five car lengths away)

- Don't drink and drive
- Keep both hands on the wheel
- Stop means stop. Don't come to a rolling stop
- Keep your eyes on the road
- Turn your wheels toward the curb when parking on hills

- Wear your seat belt
- Pedestrians have the right-of-way
- Use your side and rear-view mirrors
- Drive defensively
- Pull over when you hear a siren
- Look both ways when crossing railroad tracks
- Stop well behind a school bus (on both sides of the road) when the bus' lights are flashing
- Drive slower than normal in snow, fog and rain

The greatest day — Thanksgiving

We are closing in on the greatest non-Christian holiday of them all . . . Thanksgiving.

Love Thanksgiving. It's an inherited thing. From childhood through about 1962 Thanksgiving was a Sherman "family thing."

I realize now it was a whole lot of work for Mom, but I also realize it was a "love thing" too.

I know this because it's the same way at Thanksgivings now at our house. The three kinds of pie making (from scratch), all the preparation that goes into making dressing (stuffing).

Getting the cranberries ready — both relish and plain, having a variety of pickles, baking squash, preparing two vegetables (one green), chopping cabbage for slaw, baking rolls and we haven't even started discussing the turkey.

There's the worry about the cleanliness of the house, having the right candles, shining the glasses, polishing the "saved for special occasion" silverware and counting and re-counting the place settings.

Mother's house and ours are similar in other ways. Dad helped make the dressing, I help make the dressing. Dad had a drink or two before dinner, I have a drink or two before dinner.

We differ in turkey selection. Mom and Dad usually went for goose. We opt for turkey. Dad bought the goose, Hazel buys the turkey.

But, Dad did the carving and I do the carving. Another similarity; Neither Dad nor I were/are (Dad died in 1984, Mother in '64) real hungry when we sit down to eat. Seems pieces of the fowl fall on the counter and can't be put on the serving platter. The carver should not let those morsels go to waste.

There are always some areas of the skin that 'wouldn't look good' to some of the diners, and the carver might as well eat them.

Deeper into the bird, samples have to be tested to make sure of doneness and be satisfied the flavor got through, thus assuring more praise comes the way of the cook. Dad and I shared this obligation.

By the time two platters are filled with carved turkey and the carver has sampled the dressing he removed from the fowl, he's content to just keep things moving once seated at the table.

That is he should be content. But no, the marshmallow-coconut-pineapple salad looks especially tempting. What's that? Mashed potatoes and gravy? Oh, yeah, one pickled beet for color.

My, that was the best Thanksgiving dinner I ever had. Thanks, Mom, I couldn't eat another thing. Maybe just one scoop of ice cream on that pumpkin pie, but make it a small piece.

And, so it's been for over 60 years. So it will be this year. Much bounty, with family, tons of love.

No, we don't forget the origin of the day.

For sure, we are thankful.

About staff editorials

We at The Clarkston News realize that an important duty of a newspaper is to provide more than just the facts found in news stories.

Since we're out there uncovering the news, we get an inside look at the issues. In our staff editorials, we will give our opinions on those issues, just as other writing on this page — letters and columns — also offers opinions.

We leave the editorials unsigned because we've written them as a staff. Every week, we talk about the issues and take notes on everyone's opinions. Then one of us writes it and the rest of us change it until we're all satisfied.

While our opinions aren't always unanimous, our editorials reflect the majority views of the staff. If the staff splits evenly on an issue, we'll write two editorials on the subject.

We welcome your response to our views.

Letters to the Editor

Beneficial class

We choose to send our children to public schools to receive a well-rounded education.

We could educate our children at home — after all, a child's parents are its first and most important teachers — but imagine the essential socialization they would miss, the exposure to new voices and opinions.

We depend on teachers to encourage our children to open their minds to different ideas. We want our children to generate their own thinking processes, not just to listen passively, then spit back facts from memory. Clarkston's CAT and GATE programs have accomplished these goals for many years, by many avenues.

I am thankful that my child has had the good fortune to be in Susan Banworth's classroom. On one occasion my son appeared to the class as Dr. Robert Ballard, sharing with his classmates his knowledge of the Titanic.

And, yes, on another occasion he imagined himself an ancient Egyptian citizen beseeching the god Osiris to grant him immortality.

My son and his classmates would later be encouraged in Barbara Glover's GATE classroom to challenge the Parker Brothers Co. regarding a game call Careers for Girls. In a letter-writing campaign, the students chided Parker Brothers for the game's narrow-minded and self-limiting message. The game is no longer on the market. Were Mrs. Glover's students instrumental in its demise? We like to think so.

This year in GATE, my child is learning U.S. history from a philosophical perspective — why did the age of exploration occur when it did? I'm sure I was never asked this in my 1960s' classroom, but I recall memorizing dates, which were soon forgotten after exams.

When I see a negative response to the teaching methods of Mrs. Banworth, I feel compelled to respond as a mother and as a strong advocate of Clarkston's fine programs and professional teachers.

I see two separate tragedies occurring: 1) that more parents cannot, or will not, familiarize themselves with modern educational methods, and 2) that every child in the district cannot be exposed to Mrs. Banworth and the other dedicated teachers in Clarkston's gifted programs.

Denise McIntyre, president SAGE (Support and Advocacy for Gifted Education)

Dedicated person

Clarkston Senior High School would like to thank Mrs. Barbara Hamaker for years of dedicated hard work, which she has devoted to the Young Woman of the Year competition.

Her efforts have brought thousands of scholarship money to the Clarkston community. Our contestants are very fortunate to have had her guidance and mentorship to develop their talents to their fullest potential.

As a result of Mrs. Hamaker's dedication, many students have realized scholarship opportunities which may not have existed, had it not been for her goodwill and belief in this very healthy competition.

Again, our sincere thanks for countless hours of effort for the good of our future and our young people.

Ginny Farmer,
Assistant Principal

Salad is the course of most resistance

Jim
Fitzgerald

At least once a week, I generously take my wife out to dinner, to give her a break from old-fashioned kitchen tasks, such as sleeping on the couch in the living room, waiting to be awakened by the beep-beep of the microwave oven.

During our many years of dining out, we've discovered that the better the restaurant, the larger the wait staff, and the greater the worry for my wife. This truism was emphatically reaffirmed recently at Opus One, downtown Detroit's grandest, and justifiably most expensive, restaurant.

What my wife worries about is the eternal preservation of her salad. I wrote about her affliction many years ago, but Jim Kokus, the Opus One owner, didn't read that column because he was busy being a little boy.

So Kokus was surprised, when he approached our table, to see my wife suddenly prostrate, her body over her salad plate, like a mother shielding her child from stray cannibals.

My wife is passionately protective of her salad because she is forever fearful that a waitperson will take it away before she is done with it. And historically, she is never done with it, I have to cut her meat for her because she always sits with one arm around her salad plate.

She likes to nibble at her salad throughout the entire meal. She refuses to eat it under deadline, between the soup and the main course, or under duress. Early in our relationship, she got the duress from me when I noticed waitpersons waiting for her to finish her salad before bringing our meat and potatoes.

One Friday night in 1954 I politely but hungrily said: "I have to be to work Monday morning." Ever since she has dutifully made room for real food by moving her salad away from the center of her table setting while yelling at everyone in sight that she isn't done with it.

She has learned to be forever wary of the zeal with which many restaurants' employees clear tables. At fancy restaurants, when we get out of our car and the parking valet says, "Good evening," my wife answers: "I want to keep my salad."

Perhaps my most embarrassing experience with her salad paranoia occurred in a northern Michigan resort. The problem stemmed from my dear departed mother who, when I was very young, convinced me it is good manners for a man to stand up when a woman leaves or returns to the table in a restaurant.

I'd ordered off the cheap side of the menu, which didn't include salad. My wife went for the four-course maximum and, as she got up to go to the salad bar, I stood up in mannerly memory of my mother.

"Where do you think you're going?" my wife asked. "You don't get any salad."

Lordy. The woman had reached the point where she could suspect her own husband of trying to steal her radish slices while they were still on the salad bar.

Our waitress also misunderstood my standing position. The trouble with Woman's Lib is that it sometimes leaves an old-fashioned guy confused about what to do with the food manners learned from his mother.

The waitress whispered to my wife: "You can share anything you get off the salad bar with him."

Pity. That was all I needed. Embarrassing pity for the poor jerk who couldn't afford two salads.

But back to Opus One. Each table gets a waitperson to take orders, two other waitpersons to deliver the food, countless lurking busepersons looking for something to do, and even owner Kokus risking his health by leaning dangerously close to my wife's salad fork. It's no wonder she was nervous.

A near crisis developed when one buseperson ignored my wife's protests and reached for her salad anyway. I thought he was a dead man. Just in time he pointed out that the salad actually rested on two plates, and he only wanted to remove the lower plate, which was apparently his specialty. My wife reluctantly agreed, but watched him closely, in case of some kind of trick.

It was a splendid meal, and when the valet parker returned our car, my wife handed him her remaining salad plate, finally empty.

Wedding promises

I received a phone call last Wednesday from my best friend from college, and she announced that she was engaged.

It wasn't a real shocker. They've been dating for awhile, and this is the first time she's ever admitted that she loved someone she was dating. Still, images of pink parasols, $300 green taffeta formals, and strange ushers danced through my head as soon as I was asked to be a bridesmaid.

Last night we talked about the wedding, and I would like to document in this column promises that were made on both parts. That way Kim and I will both remember what was said and you can chuckle along with us.

KIM: I promise that this dress is something that you can wear again.

ME: I promise I won't complain about the color or style of the dress — maybe I'll complain a little if I have to wear silly things in my hair though.

KIM: I promise that you won't have to walk down the aisle with a troll.

ME: I promise to do whatever you want me to do with a smile (which includes walking down the aisle with whoever Jeremy picks — remember someday I'll get married and you, too, will be a bridesmaid).

KIM: I promise you won't have to wear peach or orange.

ME: I promise to wear whatever color you pick out.

KIM: I promise you'll have fun.

ME: I promise not to make you laugh during the ceremony.

KIM: I promise not to faint.

ME: I promise not to faint.

KIM: I promise not to make you carry a parasol.

ME: I promise I would carry one with a smile if you change your mind (and I am praying you won't).

KIM: I promise to throw you the bouquet.

ME: I promise to pretend that I'm trying to catch it (and then I'll let her little cousin Emily have it).

KIM: I promise to help you when you get married.

ME: I promise to cash in on the above promise.

The wedding is still eight months away, so her mind may change about a lot of things — food to serve at the reception, colors for her bathroom, who will serve the cake — but these promises won't.

ME: I promise to send this column to Kim so she won't be able to stick me in an orange dress. I'll never wear again, make me carry a parasol and dance with a troll.

QUESTION OVER 55 BONUS

QUESTION: I am over 55 and was advised that I did not qualify for $125,000 exemption because I had only lived in my home for three years. I was told that I had to own the home for five years to qualify. Is this true?

ANSWER: There is no requirement for five years of ownership. If you owned and lived in the home for the last three years before the sale, you qualify. The rule states that you have to own and occupy the home for three out of the last five years before the sale.

Many who qualify for this exemption are not taking it because of a misunderstanding on the rules.

This exemption can only be used once in a lifetime.

City, township meet over assets

The governing bodies of Independence Township and the City of Clarkston met Nov. 11 to discuss the division of assets.

This amiable session resulted in the township board promising to give the city about $270,000, or 4.32 percent of the township's state equalized value (SEV). According to township Clerk Joan McCrary, this percentage represents what the village would normally pay in township taxes.

She said Clarkston is entitled to their share of the SEV, since attaining cityhood status.

The length of this settlement has yet to be decided by the municipalities.

The Village of Clarkston became a city last July, severing itself from the township. Since that time, the township and city have negotiated on shared services such as fire and library.

So far, only a fire contract has been reached.

Presently, township and city attorneys are attempting to hammer out contracts in the areas of parks and recreation and library services. The length of the ongoing fire contract between the two municipalities is under discussion as well.

Subsequent meetings will be scheduled when contracts are drawn up by the two sides' legal consultants.

Irate father

I am writing to you regarding your Nov. 11 issue in which you included a feature article about the Clarkston Young Woman of the Year competition Saturday, Nov. 7.

I realize that you have already heard of the errors made in the information published by Curt McAllister; however, so far you have only heard it from the two upset, concerned, affected mothers. Now you are going to hear from a very ticked off and irate father.

I realize that the publication of a newspaper, with all of the details included, can be an opportunity to make errors. However, I have seen more than a few, particularly when it comes to kids and young adults and their accomplishments, which is just about the worst thing you could do when it comes to having to deal with their parents.

Once again, let me advise you that the first runner-up was Melissa O'Dea, receiving a $900 cash scholarship, and the second runner-up was Staci Hill, receiving a $500 cash scholarship. Lisa Kozierowski, Jennifer Gill and Kari Stanley all were finalists (i.e. finishing behind the winner and the first- and second-runners-up), receiving $300 cash scholarships.

Thank goodness that the remainder of the awards you had listed were correct. I also find it very interesting that you did not feature Kim Michalak or Staci Hill in either of your photos, which brings me to my suggestion.

I strongly recommend that you go beyond a simple correction statement in your next issue, which would not even be noticed by most people. I request that you publish a combined photo of the winner, the first runner-up and the second runner-up, along with a revised article that explains the correct situation.

I really would not want your newspaper to be subjected to negative letters, the likes of which you have not seen in years (including the Dan Fife controversy). Please make sure to spell Staci's name correctly.

I stated earlier how upset I am, but I really put it mildly. You really blew this one on a major event in this community.

Great new service

Thanks goes to the partnership between Clarkston Elementary and a Clarkston-area fast food restaurant. My daughter, Amy, and I feel extremely lucky.

We have the opportunity to call the fourth-grade telephone line, which is published monthly in our school newspaper, to obtain up-to-date message concerning her particular class — 24 hours a day.

While I enjoy keeping informed, my daughter enjoys just listening. It's a great service available to all grade levels and completely free. Thank you to the fast food restaurant for funding "Voice Tel." We love it!

Kind sympathy

We would like to express our deep appreciation to all our friends and neighbors for all their kind and thoughtful expressions of sympathy at the time of the loss of our wonderful father, Arthur J. Goyette.

A special thanks to the funeral home and all the staff for all their support. Thank you so very much.

Fantastic fair

We would like to thank all the local businesses that supported the Clarkston Elementary School Cornucopia Fair this past Saturday through their generous donations.

The funds raised at the fair will be used to support the many educational projects that are conducted throughout the school year.

The fair committee also thanks the crowds of kids and adults who attended the fair and enjoyed themselves while helping the school.

Finally, special thanks to the many workers who generously gave their time to insure that this event was a success.

Budget reinstatements on school board agenda

The possible reinstatement of programs or equipment cut from the budget earlier this year is the main topic at the Nov. 23 Clarkston Board of Education meeting.

The meeting begins at 7 p.m. Monday in the school board office, 6389 Clarkston Road, Independence Township.

Discussion of budget reductions arose at the Nov. 9 meeting. That evening, the board suggested that the administration look into the feasibility of restoring programs with some of the $624,000 surplus leftover from last year's budget.

The money is in the district's fund equity account. Prior to the school year, the school board cut $1.2 million from the budget to make up for money the district lost this year from a statewide tax freeze. The cuts varied from personnel reductions to program elimination.

Budgetary reductions also prompted the school district to impose a pay-to-play policy to save interscholastic sports in grades 7-9.

Steve Lenar, deputy superintendent of business and operations, said he'll present a prioritized list of program needs and how much it would cost to re-institute them at the Nov. 23 meeting.

For more information on the upcoming meeting, call the school district office at 625-4402.

Lights mean better safety at Pine Knob

The Pine Knob Music Theatre has taken a big step in ensuring the safety of its patrons and passing motorists. This was accomplished when Pine Knob revamped the lighting system in and around the premises.

Completed in mid-August, the project affects 12 spots around the property. Working in conjunction with Independence Township and Detroit Edison, Arena Associates has provided additional lighting to entrances along Clarkston, Sashabaw, Waldon and Pine Knob roads.

Arena Associates owns the Palace of Auburn Hills, as well as the amphitheater.

Increased lighting was created by adding lights to standing poles or increasing the wattage of existing light poles. Arena Associates paid $6,000 to insulate the poles and will pick up 40 percent of the annual operating costs. The township is slated to pay the other 60 percent.

According to Ron Woodbridge, director of special projects for Arena Associates, the changes were made for the sake of safety.

"The lights will provide both patrons and passing motorists with a better view of the roads in and around Pine Knob," he said. "This project will serve the area year-round, not just during the concert season."

"It's part of the continual commitment we have to our guests and the residents of the Clarkston-Independence Township area," he added.

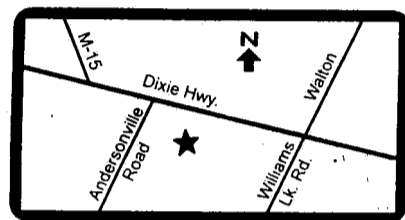

In The Spirit Of Giving...

We're extending our best wishes to you and yours for a holiday filled with love and laughter.

A sign of the times

Cager McChesney inks contract with Oakland University

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Alyson McChesney had signed her name on plenty of other papers at Clarkston High School but her signature on Nov. 10 was extra special.

McChesney, sitting at a table in the school's library flanked by her parents Becky and David, signed a letter of intent to play basketball next year at Oakland University.

"I'm very privileged to be able to continue playing for four more years. I'm excited," said McChesney, who received one of two full-ride scholarships offered by the university for women's basketball (Kim Bailey of Wyandotte received the other one).

Her high school coach, Larry Mahrle, said that privilege came with much hard work.

"Alyson is very deserving of the scholarship," said Mahrle. "It's nice to see a person who works so hard to get what she rightly earned. I'm looking forward to seeing her in four years."

McChesney also works hard in the classroom, carrying a 3.5 grade point average. She plans on becoming a physical therapist.

The 5-10, 145-pound senior, who broke the school's scoring record earlier this season (37 points), is a four-year varsity letterman. This year she's averaging 20 points, four assists and four steals per game. She averaged 18 p.p.g. her junior year and 12 p.p.g. her sophomore year.

McChesney, whose sister Jennifer is ALYSON McChesney signs her letter of intent in the presence of parents Becky and David.

playing softball for Miami of Ohio, has also been the Wolves' top rebounder the past three seasons.

McChesney, who plays first base on the Wolves' softball team in the spring, said she wasn't confident she was a college-caliber player until the beginning of her senior season.

"I knew I had a way to go," said McChesney, who worked hard on her game in the off-season.

Two other colleges, Alma College and DePauw University (in Indiana), were seriously interested in McChesney. She also received about seven form letters from other universities.

McChesney will be competing with her Pioneer teammates in the Great Lakes Intercollegiate Athletic Conference, which includes Lake Superior State, Ferris State, Saginaw Valley, Wayne State, Grand Valley, Michigan Tech, Northwood and Hillsdale.

McChesney expects college basketball to be more competitive and intense than high school competition.

She also knows what she will have to work on to better adapt to college ball. "The emphasis will be on my outside game," said McChesney.

She'll be working on her outside game ... and gladly playing inside a gym for four more years.

7 former Wolves compete in college hoops

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Basketball fans from six different colleges will witness the progression of Clarkston boys' basketball.

Seven former Wolves will be suiting up this winter at colleges all over Michigan and one in Iowa.

Dugan Fife, a 1992 Clarkston graduate and two-year all-state guard, will be playing his first season at the University of Michigan. The Wolverines, finalists in the NCAA tournament last year, are picked No. 1 in the country in many pre-season polls.

Ed Whittaker (1986 graduate) will finish his last year of college basketball by starting at guard for Michigan Technological University.

Bill Knight (1990 graduate) and Mark Galbraith (1991 graduate) will both be competing in the frontcourt at Oakland Community College. Last year Knight averaged 6.4 points and 7.4 rebounds for the Raiders. Galbraith is expected to see much action in his first season.

Reggie Reed (1990 graduate) is expected to start at guard for Alma College. Last year Reed was sidelined much of the season with a knee injury.

Chris Wasilk (1991 graduate) will battle for a starting guard position during his sophomore year at Oakland University.

Luke Fedio (1992 graduate) will be playing in his freshman season at Clarke College in Dubuque, Iowa.

All seven of the players were coached at Clarkston by Dan Fife.

Fife said all of the players share the same quality.

"None of them shy away from hard work," said Fife. "If you talk to any of their (college) coaches, they're hard workers and smart kids."

The Wolf coach said college scouts are attracted to Clarkston players because they are good students, play a good schedule and are "game tough."

"When they see us play well against teams like Pontiac Northern and Flint Southwestern, they know the kids can compete in college," said Fife. "And our drills help them get a little ahead of most players. They know the game when they get there."

Fife said the quality of the Clarkston team play is more important than the coach when it comes to recruiting by colleges.

"If we're successful, kids will get an opportunity," said Fife. "The biggest misconception is that high school coaches get kids scholarships. There's no truth to that whatsoever."

Nearly all of the seven players have full-ride or partial scholarships. But all of them didn't originally have scholarships and not all knew they were going to play college basketball before enrolling. Reggie Reed, for example, was a walk-on at Alma College.

Fife said when he watches his former players compete in college, he notices that they improve in maturity and in physical strength.

Seeing the players' hard work and solid fundamental skills, on the other hand, is nothing new.

Swinging from the heels

Sudden loss

James Gibowski

I never wrote a cat's obituary before.

And before I met Harry, I never would have bothered to write one.

Harry, my six-year-old brown tabby, died from a diseased liver Nov. 5. A few days later, I buried him in the backyard of my parents' house in Bay City. The same backyard where Tammy and Cookie are buried, the two dogs I grew up with in my childhood.

The six days Harry spent at the Clarkston Animal Medical Center were the worst days I've had in the two and a half years I've been in Clarkston.

When I first took him in to the vet on a Halloween morning, I thought he'd be back in my apartment that afternoon after a quick examination and maybe some antibiotic injection. He never seemed to be in any pain but I did notice he started to lose some weight and he was inconsistent with his eating (I have another cat, Tillie, so keeping track of who was eating what was a little tricky).

When Dr. Bruce Harlton examined Harry, he said Harry wasn't in any pain but he told me, "He's a very sick cat."

Harlton showed me the yellowish color underneath Harry's tongue. He guessed it was jaundice but said a blood test would better determine what was wrong. He knew Harry wasn't eating so he would immediately be fed liquids intravenously.

The doctor called me the next day on a Sunday and said Harry seemed to be responding well to the treatment. He noticed that Harry was playfully sticking his paw through the cage to get someone's attention. But Harlton also pointed out that Harry wasn't out of the woods, yet.

When I went to the vet's office on Monday, the doctor said he was worried that Harry couldn't keep anything down after eating solid food. And the next day, Election Day, was more of the same.

After work on Wednesday, I stayed with Harry in a room for two hours. He looked weak but in many ways he seemed like the same old mellow Harry. Even with an I.V. bandaged around his neck, it still didn't stop him from climbing up on my shoulder and then crawling across the back of my neck.

The next morning, Dr. Harlton phoned and told me Harry had died.

I went through and am still going through those stages associated with mourning a death. One that especially continues to linger is guilt. Feeling guilty that I didn't notice Harry's change in eating habits earlier. Guilty that I didn't take him sooner to see the vet. Guilty about concern for having to pay a $700 vet bill. Guilty that I had two cats but Harry was my favorite. Guilty about having to explain to my ex-wife, Patty (who's in Saudi Arabia), that Harry died under my care.

If it weren't for Patty, I wouldn't have had any cats in the first place (I had always been a dog lover). But soon after we bought a house in Renton, Wash., I reluctantly went with her to the humane society near Seattle in search of two cats. It was there that whenever we had our backs turned to a certain cage, a brown cat would stick his paw through the mesh and touch us.

Naturally, we took the brown cat home, along with a female calico (we scheduled a return trip for spaying and neutering). Patty named the calico "Tillie." I named the affectionate paw-pusher "Harry" after a character played by Sam Shepard in the movie, "Frances."

Harry had brushes with death throughout his life. In Renton, he was hit by a car and suffered a broken leg (Harry and Tillie became house cats from that day on). A few years later, a guy in Cheboygan who was helping me back up my U-Haul truck, almost ran Harry over (Harry had jumped out the window). And then about a year ago, Harry survived urinary blockage. He had at least four lives, but unfortunately not nine.

I will remember Harry most for how he barely made a sound while traveling in a truck all the way from Seattle to Michigan, how instantly he was affectionate with strangers, how he always was waiting behind the door after hearing my keys rattle in the lock, how he would somehow unravel a complete roll of toilet paper in my bathroom (the last time a week before he died), and how he used to sleep on my pillow and put his left paw around my neck.

There is a saying, "All dogs go to heaven."

All dogs ... and at least one cat.

Tillie and I miss you, Harry.

Pet Health Tips

Holidays are filled with warm wishes from friends & family. We all tend to eat too much of the wonderful traditional holiday foods, & suffer the consequences days later. Our pets will also suffer if they are fed leftovers, table scraps, cookies & candy. These added "treats" can harm our furry friends.

FACTS:

* Treats are full of sugar! Sugar will upset your pet's stomach & bowels. Vomit & diarrhea can occur.

* Chocolate is toxic. If given in large quantity it can kill your pet!

* Rich meats: Roast beef, ham & even some pork will cause severe stomach problems.

* Bones: No pet should be fed bones. They split & break into sharp pieces which can penetrate the intestine walls & kill your pet.

* Weight gain: All treats make our pets heavier & can cause heart problems.

If you absolutely need to treat your pets - give them healthy treats: Carrots, lettuce & other vegetables.

If there are any questions please call our office.

Cagers finish regular season with 18-2 mark

Alyson McChesney and Courtney Whittaker combined for 36 points as the Clarkston girls' basketball team crushed Waterford Mott, 63-45.

The game at Mott Nov. 10 was the regular-season finale for the Wolves, who finished 18-2 overall and a perfect 10-0 in the Greater Oakland Activities League. Clarkston had already clinched its first outright GOAL championship before meeting the Corsairs.

The Wolves put much distance between themselves and the Corsairs early, jumping out to a 22-8 lead after the first eight minutes. Clarkston extended its advantage to 39-14 by the half and then put it in cruise control in the second half.

McChesney finished with 19 points and Whittaker netted 17.

Heather Steinhelper added eight points, Anne Brueck and Shawna Greene each had six, Laura Seitz four and Erin Patterson one.

Kelly Rose had 13 points and Angie Gadzinski added 10 for Mott, which finished at 5-5 in the GOAL.

Howe reinstated by arbitrator

Steve Howe has been given yet another lease on his baseball career.

The 34-year-old Clarkston native was reinstated by baseball arbitrator George Nicolau last week. Nicolau, baseball's permanent arbitrator, heard the case following a grievance filed by the union on behalf of Howe.

The arbitrator gave both parties a draft of his opinion, but they've yet to be made public.

Howe was originally suspended June 8 by then-commissioner Fay Vincent, following the left-hander's seventh incident related to drugs or alcohol.

Howe was a member of the New York Yankees at the time of suspension, which followed a guilty plea in U.S. District Court in Missoula, Mont., to a misdemeanor charge of attempting to buy a gram of cocaine.

The former Clarkston High standout was 3-0, with six saves and a 2.54 ERA for the Yankees last season. He is now officially a free agent, but his agent said Howe would like to re-sign with the Yankees.

Until this turn of events, Howe had the distinction of being the first player banned from baseball for life because of substance abuse.

The woman was eventually rescued by firefighters and taken to Pontiac General Hospital. From there, she was transported to the Ann Arbor Burn Center. According to Wilson, the woman sustained burns to her hands, arms and face.

He said the baby's heartbeat was good, and the woman was in good condition on Tuesday.

First alarm

Get permit before burning fall leaves

This time of year, the problem arises of what to do with those leaves that are falling off the trees.

If you live in Independence Township and wish to burn them, you must have a burning permit issued by the township fire department.

To obtain that permit, you must go to any one of the three township fire stations (No. 1 on Church Street, Clarkston; No. 2 on Clarkston Road at Sashabaw Road; No. 3 on Maybee Road, near Sashabaw Junior High).

The permit is free, and it's good for one year, beginning Jan. 1 of that year.

When you receive the permit, you'll also receive a set of rules to follow. Some of those rules include:

- Burning is allowed only on the first and third Sunday, Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday of the month.
- Burning is allowed only from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.
- You may burn tree trimmings and leaves only — no burning building materials, plastics, rubber products, etc.

The fire department investigates all complaints on open burning, even if a permit has been issued to the particular address. This is done to make sure the permit

Plowing bid awarded

Fenton Grounds Keeper will be keeping the sidewalks and parking lots of Springfield Township building free of snow this winter.

Grounds Keeper has four vehicles, references and 20 years experience. The company also had the lowest bid, not including sidewalks, at $150 a push for the township hall, the fire stations, library and community center.

The township board voted unanimously to award the job to Fenton Grounds Keeper — with sidewalks, if there is no General Motors Jobs Bank person to clear them — without sidewalks if there is. The business will remove snow for the township hall, the community center and fire stations No. 1 and No. 2.

holder is following the rules. If the holders if violating any of the rules within the burning ordinance, a ticket will be issued. A second violation will be a court appearance ticket.

Tips for burning leaves are:

■ Don't burn leaves when they are wet or while it is raining. Wet leaves don't burn — they smolder, and smoke causes lots of complaints. A smoldering fire is a smokey fire. If you rake your leaves on one day but don't plan to burn them the same day, we advise you to cover the leaves with a tarp to keep them dry.

■ Don't light the fire and leave. Since you must constantly attend the fire, keep the fire stirred up. Loose leaves burn hotter and faster and don't have time to smolder.

■ Burning is not allowed within 50 feet of any road right-of-way or structure.

A special campfire request is issued daily and may be obtained by calling 625-0470 on the day of the campfire.

One thing to remember: Be considerate of your neighbors. If the smoke from the fire is drifting over to your neighbor who has a respiratory problem, try to burn on a day when the wind is blowing in another direction.

Sometimes this is hard to do when you can burn only on certain days. If this cannot be accomplished, possibly let your neighbor know what day you will be burning so possibly they can plan to be away from home that day.

We hope these tips can help you and your neighbors enjoy Michigan autumn.

First Alarm is provided by the Independence Township Firefighters Association.

Holiday party planned Dec. 5

Children in the area have two chances to visit with Santa and partake of other holiday fun this year at the Independence Township Library.

The library offers two holiday parties on Saturday, Dec. 5, with help from the Clarkston Area Optimist Club. The event is designed for ages 3-11.

The free party — offered at 10:30 a.m. to noon and at 2-3:30 p.m. — includes a musical festival with Chataqua Express, refreshments, a gift book, movies and a visit with Santa. For $1, children may have their photograph taken with Santa.

Free tickets may be picked up (in person) at the library on Clarkston Road. One adult per family is allowed to accompany the children.

Ann Rose, director of children's services at the library, said each session is limited to 125 children for safety reasons.

For more information, call 625-2212.

Clerk to be charged with embezzlement

Police think they know who stole $111 from Clark gas station on Sashabaw Road, Independence Township, Oct. 10.

The gas station clerk, who told police she was robbed at knifepoint and even provided the license plate of the alleged getaway car, is the prime suspect, according to the Oakland County Sheriff's Department (OCSD).

The clerk faces a charge of embezzlement, a 10-year felony, and a charge of a false police report, a 90-day misdemeanor.

The clerk's name is being withheld until she is charged with a crime.

According to OCSD Detective Doug Edgar, the clerk, an 18-year-old Waterford woman, said that a 6-foot-tall bearded man had robbed her while she was alone at the station and gave the police the license plate number of the getaway car.

Police tracked the car down to a Waterford resident, but the owner said she'd been busy all day and no one had borrowed her car.

Upon combing their files, the police discovered the clerk had an open felony case for larceny. In that case, she was accused of stealing from her employer, for which she had been arrested.

She insisted that she was telling the truth about the Clark robbery and even agreed to take a polygraph test.

Edgar stated that the clerk actually took the money and made up the story of the armed robbery.

Imagination and music

Children's 'free verse' originates in melodies

BY CATHERINE PASSMORE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Sounds of a saxophone softly waft from Sherril Bailey's fifth-grade class at Clarkston Elementary School. Inside, students sit poised with pencils and paper, writing occasionally, and listening intently. Their ultimate goal: to turn the music into words that express their feelings.

Bailey, who has been teaching for 23 years, has never assigned such an exercise to elementary pupils. But "You can get things off your chest, and you can express them in different ways other than talking."

Christi Oliver

"Everything you write for free verse is acceptable," Bailey told her class. "They are your thoughts and your feelings."

Molly Orinston, 10, wrote both of her free verse poems about her grandfather, who died when she was in first grade. "I like expressing my feelings this way," she said.

Christi Oliver, 11, said the once-a-month writing exercise is a lot more fun than normal class work. "You can get things off your chest, and you can express them in different ways other than talking," she said.

Bill Hamilton, 10, titled his second poem "Depression." He said he has had to deal with depression in his life after his uncle died and his parents got divorced. "I like to express my feelings (in writing), especially in free verse," he said.

He said that although he isn't necessarily a sad person, the music they listen to seems to be sad and calls for sad poems.

Bailey selects music from her own collection. The writing exercise gives the children an added lesson in music appreciation, she said.

Ryan Moultrup, 10, enjoys the exercises. "When you are listening to the music it is kind of relaxing. I've gotten to like different kinds of music more," he said.

Bailey said she would like the children to express their feelings through their writings.

It seems that the children are striving for — and achieving — the same goal.

she is not afraid to try something new, particularly something that combines learning with imagination and music.

Bailey explained that with "Imagination through Music," children listen to an instrumental piece of music and write down any word or emotion that pops into their heads. Then, they listen to the music again — this time softer — and they compose a topic sentence. During the third repeat of the music, the children write a free verse poem.

Bailey learned about the technique at a Grand Rapids workshop in gifted education taught by Dale Fournier. Bailey doesn't teach a class labeled as "gifted," but her children seem to have the gift of writing.

The class rules may help encourage that talent.

"We established right away that we can laugh with someone, but there is no laughing at another person," said Bailey. "If you don't have a free environment, the kids won't participate."

The children must feel secure in their surroundings because almost all of them want to share their thoughts throughout the entire process, she said.

After listening to a song by saxophone player Kenny G. during one recent free verse day, the pupils' topic sentences varied from: "Relaxed and having a good dream," to "I'm playing my sax in the subway."

The children listened intently to what their peers had written, and no criticism was allowed, not even by the teacher.

RYAN MOULTRUP, 10, a fifth-grader at Clarkston Elementary School is learning about free verse poetry in his class. He participates in Sherril Bailey's "Imagination through Music" and has written poetry that he's proud to share with others.

MEGAN WHIPP contemplates what to write during the first section of "Imagination through Music." In the first part of the project, the children listen to instrumental music and write any word that comes to mind. During the second section, they write a topic sentence, followed by a free verse.

A sampling of free verse ...

Lost
I am walking down the road
I have been walking for days walking walking
looking for food and my home starving homeless
I sleep under trees
eat growing fruits and vegetables
I am hoping someone will let me in their house to stay until I find my home
I would say, "I am lost. Can you help me?"
lost
lost
lost
lost ...
(By Jeff Walters, a fifth-grader at Clarkston Elementary)

War rages on to find a more violent level.
Losses are high.
Blood is spilled.
Bodies
lying on the ground.
Madness has grasped our hearts and children are left dead or hungry.
Stop this madness.
I do not know but all we can do is pray and hope.
(By Darren Palulian, a fifth-grader at Clarkston Elementary)

Tropical Fish
are swimming in an ocean of Starburst Snickers bars are flying
Life Savers holes
are jumping rope
Mik and Ike
are playing piano and Milk Duds
are busy studying And then I woke up
(By Ella O'Connor, a fifth-grader
at Clarkston Elementary)

Pupils present findings at international convention

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

High school and college students usually travel to Florida to get energized from the climate.

Three Oakland Technical Center-Northwest Campus students, however, went south to give reports on energy conservation and climate control.

On Sept. 21 in Orlando, Fla., Eddie West, Tamie Dixon and Neil Warren presented their class-project findings at a 19th annual conference attended by more than 600 members of the American Society of Quality Control's Energy and Environmental Quality Division.

The international organization (people from 10 countries) comprises members of the U.S. Department of Energy, the Environmental Protection Agency, public utility representatives and other private enterprises.

OTC-N is the first-ever secondary school in the nation to become a member of the organization.

The trio, which also had a little time to visit nearby Disney World during the trip, represented 10 other OTC-N classmates who last school year helped worked on the project described as the "Slicer, Dicer and Homogenizer."

The homogenizer is a device that creates a wind tunnel that comes straight down to the floor. The air spreads out as it hits the floor, and the homogenizer keeps

"They're planning the environmental future."

William Ireland

the heat from rising to the ceiling too fast, which saves energy.

The slicer regulates heat in the duct so the system can be turned off before the desired temperature is reached, thereby conserving energy.

The dicer is a power line filter that regulates the flow of electricity to act as a safety device in controlling the power flowing to electrical equipment.

The project had the initial support of OTC-N Principal Daniel Manthei, and then that support grew to the Oakland Chamber of Commerce, the Michigan State Legislature, local businesses and several national organizations.

The trio's presentation lasted 20 minutes.

West, who was graduated from OTC-N last spring and is now working in the climate control field while attending Oakland Community College, began the presentation. West emphasized the importance of the business community's involvement with students.

Dixon then spoke, discussing the three technologies of the project. Warren finished by giving the results of the experimentation, which not only took place in rooms at OTC-N but also in such area businesses as Big Boy, Hound Dog Coney, Georgia Carpet, Frank's Nursery and McDonald's.

Class instructor Jesse Riojas and REMS partnership coordinator William Ireland (an ASQC member and regional councilor for the division) also attended the convention.

Ireland said many of the ASQC members were impressed with the students' presentations.

"They thought it was the highlight of the convention," said Ireland, who added, "They're planning the environmental future."

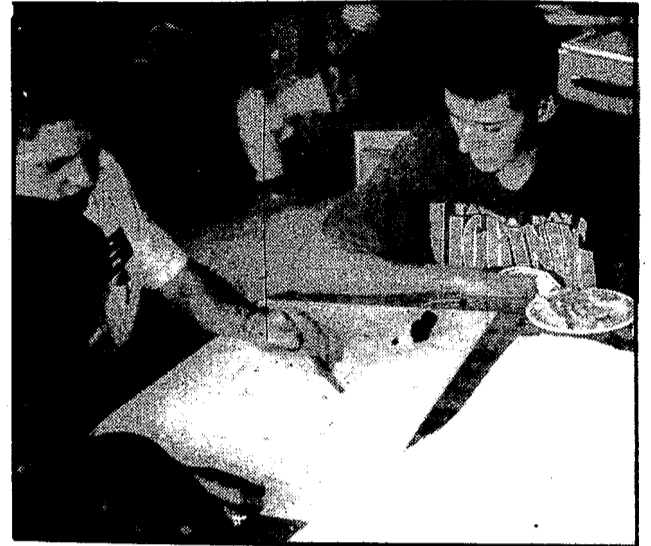

Riojas said the convention was an excellent way to help in the progression of the project.

"We made unbelievable contacts," said Riojas.

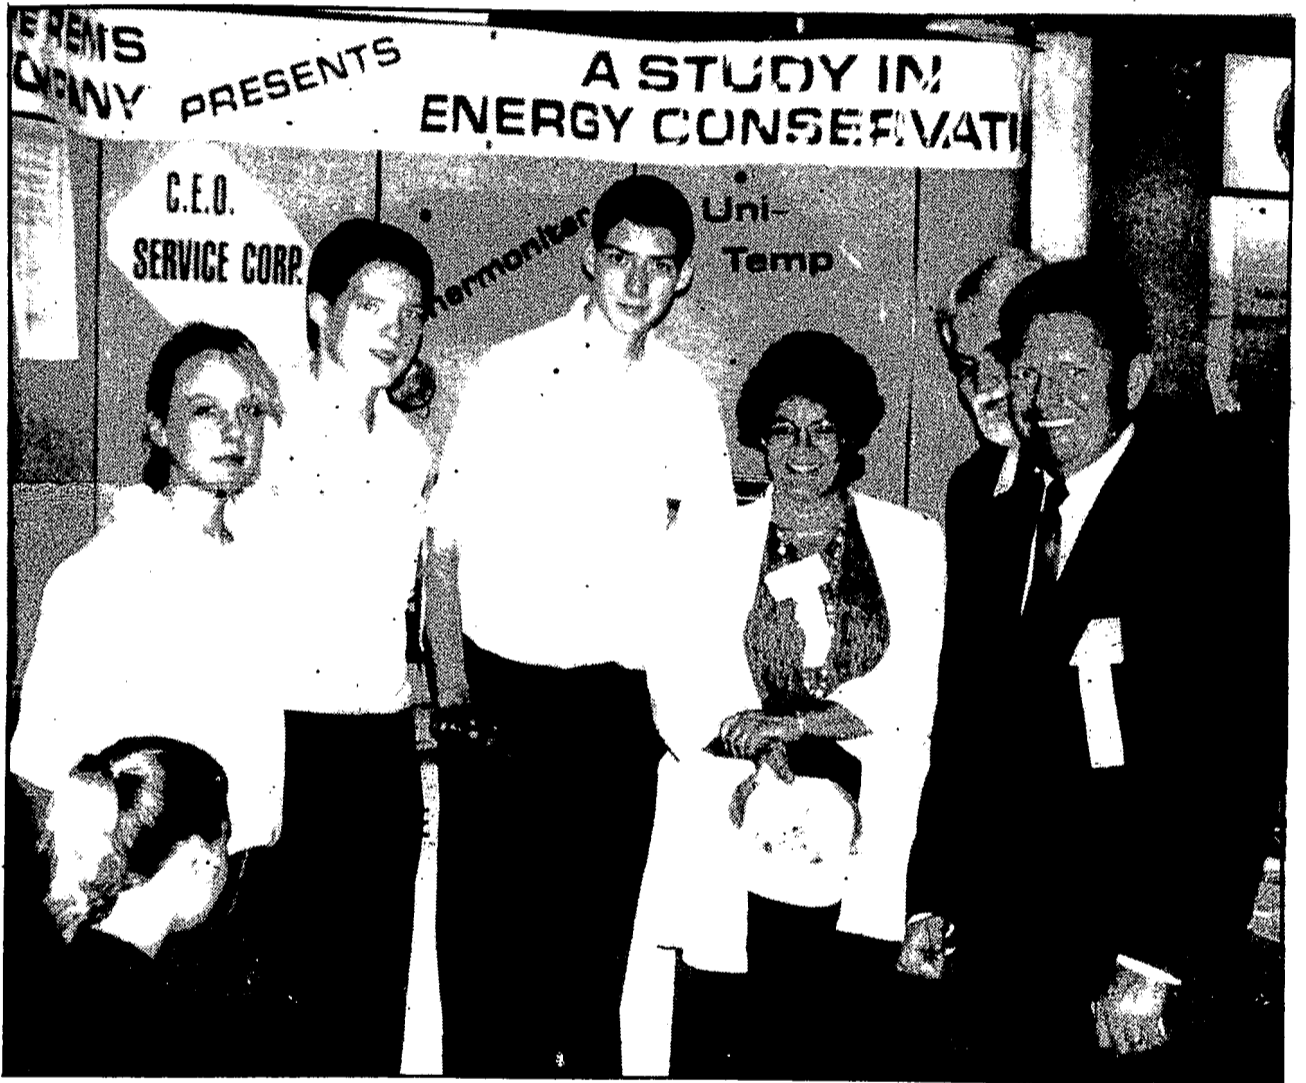

The other 10 OTC-N students who did not make the trip to Florida but did work on the project were John Brown, Matt Grimes, Edward Ross, Jeff Burdzinski, Arnold Dreher, Stephen Knox, Steven Zimmerman, Nathan Carry, Ty Fleming and Drew Okolovitch.

The efforts of the 13 students, OTC-N school personnel and businesses that supported the program were honored in Lansing Sept. 16 by Senate Resolution No. 579.

Part of that resolution states, "... One example of this cooperation we wish to recognize is known as the 'Slicer, Dicer and Homogenizer,' a unique partnership that has involved governmental agencies, local and national organizations, school systems, businesses, and students."

SOME of the students' experiments in energy conservation were monitored at the Hound Dog Coney restaurant.

THREE OTC-N students presented their findings at a conference in Orlando, Fla. In addition to speaking at a luncheon, the trio also manned a booth. From left are OTC-N students Tamie Dixon, Ed West and Neil Warren.

Essay contest for teens

Teen-agers have a chance to earn scholarship money and express themselves in writing at the same time.

An essay contest is sponsored by the Michigan Women's Commission and the American Association of University Women in celebration of Women's History Month (March). It's open to students in middle school, junior high and high school.

Pupils are asked to write an essay about a woman who has served as a role model in their lives, using the theme: "Dream Dreams: Reach for the Sky! Women in History Have Achieved Their Dreams ... Who Has Inspired you to Achieve Yours?"

The top three winners in each grade category (6-8, 9-10, 11-12) will be honored at the governor's residence and will receive savings bonds in the amounts of $100, $200 and $500. Lt. Gov. Connie Binsfeld and First Lady Michelle Engler will present the awards.

Application forms for the essay contest are available from the Women's Commission Office. Deadline for submitting an essay is Feb. 1, 1993.

For more information, contact the Michigan Women's Commission at (517) 373-2884.
