Permits steady in 1992

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Associate Editor

Despite a shaky economy, the Clarkston area's three municipalities either held their own or improved on the number of building permits issued over the past year.

In 1992, Independence Township and the City of Clarkston reported no gain, while Springfield Township recorded an increase of 60 permits over 1991.

In Clarkston, city officials reported that 17 permits were acquired for residential remodeling and one permit was obtained for the building of one new home in 1992. These 18 permits generated $295,722 in construction value.

In 1991, Clarkston reported 19 permits, 18 for residential remodeling and one for a new home. The total construction value was $365,155.

City manager Art Pappas projects that Clarkston should see a rise in permits in 1993.

"I'd say up to 20," Pappas said.

He's uncertain about a possible rise in new homes, however.

"As far as new homes, it's hard to tell. Some might be sold at Village West," a site condominium development near Deer Lake on White Lake Road, he said.

In Springfield Township, building proved to be robust in 1992.

The township's building department reports the addition of 120 new homes, which is an increase of 40 over 1991.

Besides 120 new residential permits, Springfield's breakdown of new construction for 1992 included: 1, industrial; 1, commercial; 4 condominiums with 16 units; 142 residential additions (porches, sheds, remodeling, etc.).

In all, 268 permits were granted in 1992, compared to 208 the year prior. The value of construction in '92 was $17,396,200, which is an increase over 1991's total of $11,753,375.

In Independence Township, the total number of permits decreased 4 percent from 1991 to 1992. Last year,

"I think a 4 percent drop over 1991 is a very respectable statistic, considering the nature of the economy last year."

Beverly McElmeel

the township recorded a total of 2,053 permits, compared to 2,157 in 1991.

Valuewise, the total cost of construction for 1992 was up from the year before, from $39.2 million to $32,212,621.

Independence granted 197 permits for new homes last year, compared to 137 in 1991. About 80 of those 197 permits were granted to manufactured homes in the new Mann Road mobile home park.

Other building permit statistics for 1992 included: 7, apartments/ condominiums; 41, commercial additions; 12, new commercial; 193, residential additions.

Incidentally, the 193 permits for residential additions eclipsed 1991's total by nearly 100.

Township Building Director Beverly McElmeel said Independence fared well in 1992, even though it just fell short of breaking even with 1991.

"I think a 4 percent drop over 1991 is a very respectable statistic, considering the nature of the economy last year," she said.

Looking ahead, McElmeel didn't want to make a prediction for 1993, but she did say that early indicators are optimistic.

"This past December was an excellent month in that we granted 18 permits for new homes. The previous December we only had eight," McElmeel said. "January was terrific also, in that we gave out 10 new residence permits. In 1992, we only recorded two.

"We're hoping that this wave of hope and confidence continues, but we'll have to wait and see," she added.

Staff writers James Gibowski and Catherine Passmore contributed to this story.

First 'snow day'

Clarkston was among 150 schools in the state that closed due to inclement weather Wednesday, Jan. 13.

Steve Lenar, deputy superintendent in charge of business operations, said the decision to close school came before 5 a.m. that day.

Freezing rain and snow created hazardous road conditions, he said, explaining that the U.S. Weather Service called for more freezing rain and snow for the remainder of the day.

He added that the gravel back roads in the school district especially can be dangerous because they're the last to be cleared by snow plows. Also, a lot of packed ice and snow means that even salt isn't likely to help on those roads.

It was the district's first official "snow day" of the school year. The state requires 180 days of instruction per school year. Clarkston's school calendar includes 181 days. So at this point, the district isn't likely to add days to the end of the year to make up time.

In addition, the state allows two "act of God" days that a school district doesn't have to make up.

Dog do-do crackdown possible

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Here's the scoop.

People who walk their dogs (usually big ones) on the streets and sidewalks of Clarkston and don't clean up after them may soon be breaking a city ordinance.

The Clarkston City Council discussed such an ordinance Jan. 11 but took no action.

"If you're on a busy street, it is annoying," said councilman Stephen Arkwright, who lives on Holcomb and has been victim to several deposits on his lawn.

Mayor Sharron Catalo, one of the city's many dog walkers, described a simple method to take care of the problem.

"I call it the 'stoop and scoop,'" said Catalo.

The mayor admitted that at least on one occasion she didn't apply that method, felt guilty and returned to the scene.

"I have gone back. Then you really feel dumb ... with no dog there," she said.

Council members questioned how such an ordinance could be enforced.

"What are we going to do with those people, shoot them, put them in jail?" asked councilman Douglas Roeser. Catalo wryly suggested, "They could make everybody use a different color of dye in their dog food."

Only a future meeting will determine whether the council's effort to get an ordinance passed is all bark or actually some bite.

Officials hope packets, parents will boost bond

BY CURT MCALLISTER

With a school election less than three weeks away, the Clarkston school district is busy distributing information about its $16.1 million bond issue.

If passed, this bond issue would include the construction of a new elementary school, widespread renovations and improved technology in all the district's schools.

Strategy-wise, the school district is relying on a 24-page packet to convey facts on the bond issue. Officials consider this booklet to be their most valuable tool to informing the public.

"The district's strategy is to provide this document to anyone who wants it and talk to them and answer any questions that they may have," said David Reschke, assistant superintendent of curriculum and staff development.

The school district is also providing various parental groups with background information for their campaigns, such as town hall meetings and door-to-door canvassing. One of these grass-roots groups includes the Clarkston Community Bond Campaign Committee, also known as HUG (Help Us Grow).

Superintendent Gary Haner said this particular bond issue has garnered more community involvement than ever before.

"It seems that those people who've been involved in Planning commission adds one

The Independence Township Planning Commission has added another member, now that Cecilia Yarber has been reappointed to the board.

Yarber was unanimously approved by the township board Jan. 18. She'll complete the term left by the departing Brent Bair.

Yarber's term expires Dec. 31, 1994.

That evening, the board also approved a motion that gives Carolyn Place a three-year term. Her term expires Dec. 31, 1995. Place, a former school board member, was approved at the Jan. 5 meeting.

"This bond issue won't put us ahead; it'll help keep us from falling behind."

the past are now more collectively involved," he said. "We're also seeing several more contingents involving themselves voluntarily, such as the business community, the Republican party, Independence Township and men's church groups. There appears to be a much higher level of interest by the public this time around.

"I think people realize that the crisis we were predicting is now here," Haner added.

Reschke said it's time for facilities to catch up to the quality of students and teachers in the district.

"We're still producing the same number, if not greater numbers, of kids as national merit scholars. And at

In last week's Clarkston News, a story about town hall meetings on the Clarkston school bond issue should have said that the Clarkston Junior High meeting takes place at 7:30 p.m. Monday, Feb. 1. School officials suggest calling in advance to make sure town hall meetings times and dates have not been changed.

A story about Secretary of State hours should have said that the Clarkston branch would be closed for President's Day on Monday, Feb. 15, but would reopen on Tuesday, Feb. 16.

"Parents are expecting more out of their schools because kids have to compete in a tougher environment," Reschke said. "This bond issue won't put us ahead; it'll help keep us from falling behind."

Administrators answer bond issue questions

On Feb. 8, area voters will be asked to vote on a $16.1 million school bond issue, which includes construction of a new elementary school, renovation to existing buildings and upgrading the schools' technology.

Clarkston school Superintendent Gary Haner and Dave Reschke, assistant superintendent of curriculum and staff development, were asked a variety of questions regarding the upcoming bond issue and its effects on the community.

What will the school district do if the bond issue doesn't pass?

HANER: There's literally no plan at this juncture for another election.

RESCHKE: There are some contingency plans listed in the bond proposal information packet. These considerations, which the board would make at each level, could include raising class sizes, adding portables and converting various areas for classrooms. These options aren't prioritized, however, and they'd have to be phased in over time.

Will the ninth-graders still be attending the high school in the fall, regardless of the election's outcome?

RESCHKE: Yes. All the parent orientations are beginning this month. We've had two study committees in the district, one on transition for students, faculty and parents and another on curriculum. We're now doing an analysis on what equipment needs to be moved and what purchases need to be made at this point. So we're moving ahead.

HANER: It's going to be quite an undertaking when you consider that 50 percent of our junior high students will be in the high school next year.

RESCHKE: The people who this bond issue will most affect are those parents' kids who'll be walking into the high school next year. So those parents in particular should really be taking a close look at this proposal.

If the district plans to hold another election, how many times will they hold one if it continues to fail?

HANER: There's no plan.

RESCHKE: The problem will not go away. It'll continue to exist until the public decides to address it.

How much does it cost to hold an election?

HANER: This one will cost about $10,500 (includes township fees, ballots and supplies and legal notices).

Will the voters be asked to approve a higher operating millage this time around?

HANER: No. Under current state funding, we don't anticipate having to increase the operating millage rate (38.83 mills) at all. As far as the operating costs of opening a new building, in our case, almost all of the money that would cost to run that building is already going to be an expense by the time the building opens because the kids will already be here.

We're eventually going to have to bring on more teachers, custodial staff, counselors, aids and support staff to accommodate those kids, no matter where we house them. The only area that would be an increase over and above those kinds of costs would be the utility costs of the building. However, our utility costs will go up in other buildings because we're using them longer, with more kids, in areas that might not have been heated before.

Even worse is if we go to portables. It'd cost us less to run the new building utilitywise than what it would cost us to run the added space taken up by portables.

Is there a five-year plan for facilities?

RESCHKE: There's a long-range plan, encompassing five years, which includes a section on facilities. We're presently in the second-year of the long-range plan, but we're still trying to adopt the things from the first year because the community has been slow to respond.

That (facilities) plan includes what we're doing now, with this bond issue, plus the addition of a new high school and the eventual conversion of Clarkston High School to Clarkston Middle School. In turn, Clarkston Junior High School would become the new community education center.

HANER: This five-year plan for facilities is just one component of the long-range strategic plan of the district. A facilities sub-committee made these recommendations, which the school board approved as a goal-concept a year ago last September.

Will voters be asked to approve a future bond issue on anything, such as a high school?

HANER: There's been no formal discussion, on the part of the board, regarding any future bonding.

What does the $1.5 million in "technology" mean in regards to this bond election?

RESCHKE: What we're looking at doing is modernizing our current labs with current equipment that we think will network well with future equipment.

The first component is to create a modern computer lab setting in each school. This provides students with a hands-on learning component. We'll also create technology service centers in all our media rooms. This is the teaching component, in that it gives the equipment to staff so they can help students learn the systems.

See school-related letters on 7A-10A.

Since maintenance is part of this bond issue, will voters always be asked to approve bond issues for maintenance?

HANER: We have an item-by-item identified list of approximately $10 million, and this portion is $3.5 million, so it's entirely reasonable to think that there may be repairs requested down the road.

RESCHKE: These repairs go beyond the normal, every-day maintenance. They're major plumbing, carpentry and energy improvements. They're things that take big chunks of money to do, but in Clarkston, we don't have big chunks of money for such items.

About 8 percent of our budget per year goes toward maintenance. It's been steadily increasing a percent or two each year due to the school board and Steve Lenar's (deputy superintendent of business and operations) efforts.

When was the last time voters approved a bond issue in Clarkston?

HANER: 1988. It was a $5.2 million issue for repairs. Asbestos removal and roofs were the single biggest components in that proposal.

How long did it take to pay off?

HANER: It's one of the current issues facing the district.

Some people think the board hasn't budgeted wisely in the past for such things as maintenance and supplies. How can voters be sure it won't happen again?

HANER: I think the key word in this assumption is the word "wise" because, historically, boards of education will reduce maintenance budgets to maintain programs for kids, in the face of limited monies. I think it's a wise decision.

Unfortunately, in the end, this accumulates on the district and it gets to the point where you have to ask for a separate millage or bonding money to take care of it. So it's true that the board could have spent more money on maintenance and supplies for repairs than they did, but it was done in the face of not enough money for programs.

RESCHKE: It was also done in the context that, in the past 20 years, Clarkston has been either last or near the last in the amount of money spent per child.

We've been in the bottom three of the county's 28 districts for the past few years. So the only way the board has been able to compete with other districts, in terms of program offerings, is to cut other places like maintenance.

What's the lifespan of a school building?

HANER: I don't know. There's just too many variables like number of kids, construction costs and quality of construction.

I don't see any of our elementaries being discontinued any time soon. Secondary schools have a tendency to wear much faster because of the number of kids, the age of the students and the number of activities.

(From "most likely" projections by Stanfred Consultants, using actual live births in the Clarkston school district.)

What's the oldest elementary school in the district?

HANER: According to district statistics, Andersonville and Clarkston elementaries were both built in 1952. Each school has undergone three additions since that time.

The oldest school in the district is Clarkston Junior High, which was built in 1930. It's undergone two additions which nearly doubled its size.

How much do portable classrooms cost?

RESCHKE: From what I understand, they cost between $40,000 to $45,000 apiece, which doesn't include the plumbing set up. There are presently nine or 10 in the district now.

Will any portables be purchased with bond money?

HANER: You can't purchase portables with bond money.

Will one of the existing portables at Sashabaw Junior High be moved over to CHS to facilitate the ninth-grade move?

HANER: Maybe. Actually, we may have a greater need for that portable at Bailey Lake Elementary than we do at the high school, assuming the passage of the bond issue.

RESCHKE: Next year's picture for the elementaries, if the bond issue passes or not, is one of crowded conditions. If the bond issue passes, we'll look at temporary solutions. If it doesn't pass, we'll have to look at longer, temporary solutions.

If the bond issue passes, will it adversely affect the student-teacher ratio?

HANER: It will reduce it. However, if you look at the district's growth projections, it might not last all that long. We're just growing too fast.

This year, we've grown around 100 kids in the elementary schools, which would make up 20 percent of the new building.

RESCHKE: Within the next four years, the projections tell us, the middle schools will be up to the same level they are now, after the ninth-grade move.

Many voters have no children in Clarkston schools because their children are grown, they have no children, or their kids attend other schools. Why should they vote yes on this bond issue?

HANER: The single biggest factor, in my opinion, is the reputation of the district's schools being diminished by the overcrowded conditions, resulting in a reduction of property values to those trying to sell their homes. And that will escalate significantly as the overcrowding conditions worsen. For example, having to go to double-day sessions or losing the high school's accreditation would hurt the area as a whole.

The realtors are telling us that prospective family-buyers are willing to accept the old buildings, because of the quality of instruction, but they aren't willing to accept classroom sizes of mid- to upper-30s.

RESCHKE: It's not just a coincidence that it's getting harder and harder for us, each year, to attain quality test scores, with diminishing space resources.

If this bond issue is passed, will school personnel get raises?

HANER: There's no connection between the two issues.

RESCHKE: It doesn't mean that people aren't going to get raises; it means employee raises aren't paid out of these pockets. It's not legal to pay salaries out of bond money.

Does this bond issue mean Clarkston will eventually receive a swimming pool?

HANER: There's no connection except that we'd be one step closer to reconsidering other building needs, including a swimming pool.

Bond money

How will it be spent?

The Feb. 8 bond election is an opportunity for the Clarkston Community Schools to improve its school facilities. According to school officials, the specific aims of this bond proposal are to:

- construct a new elementary school to alleviate crowded conditions in K-5
- construct science labs at Clarkston High School
- create a media center at Clarkston High School that is well equipped with proper space
- create enough classroom space at Clarkston High School to properly house grades 9-12
- create proper counseling centers at Clarkston High School
- provide basic technology equipment that enables proper teaching and learning at all our schools
- repair the elementary schools, middle schools and the high school according to identified needs
- maintain learning environments in all of our schools that are academic, orderly, friendly and safe

Not always so sweet

Julie Campe

"What's in a name? that which we call a rose
By any other name would smell as sweet."
~Shakespeare

Names are our nemesis sometimes in journalism.

Everytime we interview or write about a person,
we must get the correct spelling of his or her name.
And it's not as easy as it sounds.

Take John, for instance. It also can be spelled
"Jon." Even Julie has multiple spellings: "Juli,"
"Jewely," "July." I dare not even begin spelling
Laurie (or is it Lori or Lorie or Lorrie or Lory or ...)

It's not possible to spot typographical errors anymore in lists of names from schools. Jennifer might plausibly be spelled Jennyfer or Jennifur or Gennifer. So we end up calling school secretaries a lot.

Obituaries are another story. It's impossible to tell the gender from some names. Is Dakota a girl or a boy? Only a phone call can find out for sure.

What's more, sometimes when we ask the spelling of a name, our question is mistaken for stupidity instead of accuracy. (Me: "Jeff Taylor you said? Can you please spell that?" Him: Silence. A sarcastic look. Then, one letter at a time, punctuated by long pauses. "J." Pause. "E." Paaaaause. "F." Paaaaause.
"F." Paaaause. Whatta wiseguy.)

It used to be that, given a name on a piece of paper, you could guess the general age of the person.
Not anymore. Sarahs and Emilys abound, though I haven't met many Matildas or Mauds or Walters recently.

The most recent listing of birth announcements from North Oakland Medical Center included two Breannas, three Shawns, five Michaels (mostly middle names), nine Maries (all middle names), two Chan-tels (girls), two Nicoles, three Roberts, four Alexandrias (girl) or Alexanders (boy), two Katlyns, one Taylor (girl), one Tyler (boy), one Tara (girl), one Tyerica (girl) and one Travis (boy).

It also included a Hailey, Dominique, Ena, Anthony, Alicia, Jailynn, Dalton, Roderick, Holly, Kasha, Keith, Brian, Amber, Elizabeth, Ashley, Dora, Heather,
Erik, Zackary, Adam, Jesse, Charles, Todd, Doyle, Raymon, Keyonte, Erica, Courtney, Ashton, Carmen and Jessica.

Of course, those children are mere infants now.
But wait until they become teen-agers. Then Breanna will become Bri-Anna or Bree Ann or whatever else takes the child's fancy. And if you interview them in high school, they may not remember the real spelling of their names at all.

Wouldn't it be nice if things returned to simpler a time, when girls were named Rose and boys were named Harold? (Of course, they probably would be spelled "Rows" and "Hair-old.")

Editorial

Follow Fido — with a scooper

City-dwellers who have pets should take responsibility for their animals — including their animals' droppings.

Apparently, complaints are mounting about certain Clarkston pooches who leave poo-poo on their neighbors' porches, sidewalks and grass.

The dog-do is so deep at times that the Clarkston
City council is considering an ordinance governing pet excrement.

Is that a thing city officials should have to worry about?

If pet owners would live up to their responsibility,
there would not be a poo-poo problem.

Dog-do do-rights do one of the following, and other pet owners should do the same:

■ Carry a plastic sandwich bag — when Fido makes a deposit, place bag over your hand, pick up poop, turn bag inside out, close and throw away.

■ Carry a pooper-scooper — these long-handled dustpan-type devices can be purchased from pet stores or made by handy do-it-yourselfers. After Rover roves, follow his trail with the scooper and throw away his droppings.

■ Be resourceful — if you're caught without a do-do device, use sticks or leaves to dispose of Dusty's do-do.

I didn't make The Sun

For my last birthday son Jim and his wife,
Linda, gave me an August 10, 1926 (my birthdate) edition of the New York Sun. I finally got around to reading it this week.

Some things that made the front page then still make it now. A rich woman's cottage was robbed of jewelry. A murder investigation is still going on after four years. A prominent Massachusetts woman won a divorce when it was proven her husband was unfaithful.

But, the screaming headline was "DEMPSEY REFUSED LICENSE TO BOX HERE." And, the horse race results at the Saratoga track were printed above the fold. So, too, were semi-scores of the Cubs vs Giants game at the Polo Grounds and Pirates vs Brooklyn game at Ebbets Field. Attendance was 5,000 and 3,000, respectively.

Letters to the Editor

Teachers know bond's human side

The staff of North Sashabaw would like to thank Mr. Carlson for visiting our school.

Although we are happy that he recognizes that there is a space problem, we are concerned that his solutions will create more problems.

We feel that Mr. Carlson used our letter out of the context in which it was written. Our 1991 letter addressed suggestions for immediate relief for our space problems while the community considered the 1992 bond issue.

After receiving the school board's proposal for the upcoming bond issue, we feel our space needs will be adequately met.

In looking at Mr. Carlson's plan for a "mega-school," we see the following difficulties: scheduling special classes (gym, music), personnel for playground and lunch, safety on playground, lunch hour schedule, lunch serving time and cafeteria time, playground supervision, media center use, use of multipurpose room for assemblies, assistant administrator, inadequate parking for staff, inadequate parking for visitors — conferences, open houses and school functions would have to be split by grade levels on different nights.

Mr. Carlson views the schools from the outside, seeing things from a business perspective. Yes, he did visit our building, touring outside the classrooms. He missed the human factor.

Our staff feels that we have the expertise to see and feel what is right regarding space utilization that will give children a good education.

We also feel that it is time for the community to dissolve the factions that are warring against each other with the children caught in the middle.

If this bond issue fails, the children again lose. The years that a child spends in a crowded classroom in a crowded school can never be regained. How long will our children have to be subjected to a community that can't come together for them?

Dial correctly

Could you people who use the phone make sure you dial the right number? I am sure it would be easy to do if you would only concentrate on the number you are dialing.

It sure disgusts me when I answer a wrong number and especially irritating when the caller hangs up after making a dialing mistake.

Please make sure when phoning the Oakland County Sheriff's Department, Clarkston sub-station, that you dial "620 - _____."

Thank you.

The future is now

Curt McAllister

Another school bond election is just around the corner, yet this one has a different feel to it.

It's not the cost of the package or what's inside. It's who's talking about it — EVERYBODY.

For the past month, The News has been in contact with several organizations who are either discussing the $16.1 million bond issue or hawking it to their friends and neighbors. Everybody from the Clarkston Area Chamber of Commerce to the Republican's Club has had roundtable discussions on the matter.

Our newspaper is also making room for the editorial comments of a grass-roots organization made up of parents. They call themselves HUG (Help Us Grow), and they've been seen at area grocery stores, town hall meetings and on door steps.

So why's everybody so determined that this bond issue doesn't go down to defeat like the previous three? Let's count the reasons why.

■ Overcrowding. This is the biggie. Clarkston's schools are busting at the seams, especially at the elementary level. This year, about 100 additional elementary-age kids enrolled in the district than previously predicted.

According to district officials, Andersonville Elementary is the only school that's not overcrowded. And that may not last long.

With the arrival of the ninth-grader next fall, CHS will also be at maximum capacity. You'd think this move would provide the middle schools with a reprieve, but it could be short-lived.

Enrollment projections indicate that the populations at both middle schools in 1997 will probably rival today's numbers, even without the freshman.

■ Better technology. If you haven't noticed, the world has become a more competitive place.

In a lot of school districts, elementary students are already introduced to computers. And the systems are updated and improved all the time.

Clarkston's schools are looking to improve the labs in all their buildings, so they can function on the most basic level. Computer illiteracy will undoubtedly become an obstacle in the next century.

■ Condition of facilities. Clarkston is the home to some old schools. All three of the secondary buildings haven't seen major overhauls since their last additions in the 1960s.

The school district has tabbed nearly $10 million in needed repairs to all the district's schools but are only shooting for $3.5 million in the bond issue.

■ Plummeting property values. Remember when "Clarkston Schools" on a house listing meant something? Well, it's meaning less and less each day.

According to Pam Ford, a realtor with Max Brock Realtors, Inc., Clarkston, prospective home buyers are becoming hesitant with the area because of the aged, overcrowded conditions of its schools.

Despite the district's good academic reputation, she said, the district's uncertain future could hurt Clarkston and anyone who may want to sell their home.

If you remember, last year, I wrote a column in favor of the last bond issue, which got dumped by a 2-to-1 margin. Well, I'm going to stick by my guns again.

I believe a solid turnout can put this bond issue over the top. I don't expect a 75 percent voter turnout rate like the past general election, but you have to admit this issue hits a lot closer to home than electing someone you'll probably never meet.

I'd like to remember Feb. 8, 1993, as the day Clarkston area residents took back their schools. Remember, the children are our future.

And like it or not, the future is now.

'If it Fitz . . .'

Lawsuit is nutty route to wealth

Jim Fitzgerald

While watching TV and eating by rote from a bag of two-bite size Milky Ways, I was puzzled when it took only one bite to consume a bar, and a particle of peanut stuck in my throat.

What was going on? Why was that one bar half the size of the six or so other bars I'd eaten from the same bag? And what was with the peanut? There are no peanuts in Milky Ways.

The bag was plainly labeled "Fun Size Milky Way." From the wastebasket beside my chair I retrieved the tiny wrapper from the bar most recently gulped. It was plainly labeled "Snickers."

Hey, This was getting exciting.

The Milky Way bag was about half full. I emptied its contents on my footstool. Sure enough, almost lost among a dozen two-bite size Milky Ways was another one-bite size Snickers.

I yelled a triumphant yell. Visions of a million-dollar retirement danced - a slow two-step - through my mind.

That's because, a month earlier, my wife had opened some newly purchased Tropicana orange juice and discovered what she said was a chip in the glass bottle neck. "Don't drink this," she instructed me, "you could get a hunk of glass in your stomach and die."

Silently, in my mind, I scoffed. (It should be pointed out that, besides scoffing and dancing, my mind also accommodates roting, as in the previously mentioned "eating by rote.")

Subsequently, roting would play a crucial role in my dreams of attaining untold riches.)

I figured a big outfit like Tropicana wouldn't sell life-threatening bottles, and the chip-like indentation was actually sophisticated glassware design. But my wife wrote a letter of protest to Tropicana Products Inc., in Bradenton, Fla., and, within a few days, received a contrite letter from Linda Clem, Senior Coordinator, Consumer Relations.

The letter contained such culpable admissions as: "Sometimes during shipping and storage from our plant to your store, the product may not be handled properly....This can damage the bottle. It's important for our Quality Control personnel to be aware of this and your comments have been forwarded to them for review."

And, most important, "I have enclosed some coupons and hope that you will give Tropicana another try."

My wife was satisfied to be bought off with coupons for three free bottles of orange juice. Suddenly recalling that this is an extremely litigious nation, full of predatory lawyers, I was outraged by the meager settlement.

I said we should sue. My wife said I was silly and, besides, she'd trashed the bottle - destroyed the evidence!

Following that tragic loss of treasure, I didn't cheer up until the Snickers-Milky Way commingling gave me a second chance at great wealth. After all, eating by rote is common in a country full of TV trays. While justifiably thinking I was eating a Milky Way, I easily could have choked to death on an unexpected peanut in an unexpected Snickers. Just the thought of it gave me chills and stress worth $5 million in damages.

What about truth in packaging and federal requirements that all products be correctly labeled? I couldn't lose. I told my wife that, while I was phoning a lawyer, she should put the tell-tale bag and bars in the locked tin box containing my car insurance policy and her Tropicana coupons.

She said I was silly because, the night before, she'd emptied an almost-empty Snickers bag into an almost-full Milky Way bag. She said she did it to conserve cupboard space.

I say, by God, she did it to continue a long tradition of making me crazy, by rote.

From the heart

Technology a must for good education

Did you know:

- We retain ... 10 percent of what we read
- 20 percent of what we hear
- 30 percent of what we see
- 50 percent of what we see and hear
- 70 percent of what we say as we talk
- 90 percent of what we say as we do something

The use of technology can enable the teacher in the classroom to deliver learning in a format closer to the 90 percent than ever before. Today, in a traditional environment, a teacher has a chalkboard to compete with outside influences such as Nintendo and M-TV.

We need to not only increase the learning of individual children but to promote life-long learning as well, to not simply memorize material to be shortly forgotten but to develop thinking skills that will serve students throughout their lives in all areas.

Studies show that children learn more while working in groups. Computer software and video disc materials, specifically developed for education, can be used in these group settings.

The interaction and immediate response of these devices result in more highly motivated students. In many situations, textbooks are replaced with software and multimedia sources, which can be updated more cost effectively. By using technology as a tool, instead of addressing 30 students as if they were clones of each other, a teacher now has the flexibility to work with smaller groups and provide more individual attention.

Children today are not afraid of technology. They can use it to broaden their lives and experiences. Technology in the classroom can be and is used as a tool to enable children to learn more than was ever possible before.

Studies show that not only is technology used to improve the learning process, but it also allows the teacher to more effectively measure the performance of individual students.

Futurists have a way of describing the year 2000 as though being there has little to do with getting there. The future simply arrives full-blown. In reality, the decisions made today regarding our schools will determine their future.

On Feb. 8, Clarkston voters have the opportunity to vote on a bond proposal that will provide the first step toward improving technology at all grade levels.

It will also include a new elementary school to help with overcrowding at that level and will remodel the high school to accommodate the ninth grade that will move their in fall 1993. Also, it pays for major repairs to all schools, as determined by individual building needs.

Technology for all eight district buildings comprises $1.5 million of the about $16 million total bond proposal. The money can be generated by extending the district's 1.7-mill bond debt levy (one of the lowest in Oakland County) without increasing the annual bond rate. One mill is $1 for every $1,000 in assessed property valuation. Is it needed?

When you consider it will update computer labs that now contain computers that were discontinued by the manufacturer years ago, we believe it is.

Our current computers are expensive to keep running and maintained because parts are no longer available. Parts from one computer are used to repair another. This situation obviously limits the number of computers available for student use.

Current software also is not available for these computers, making it impossible to offer updated information to Clarkston students. The educational needs of today's children are ever changing, and computer technology is certainly here to stay. We believe this is a necessary beginning to prepare our children for the job market today and tomorrow.

We take pride in our community. Let's take pride in our schools. For the love of our children, please support the Feb. 8 bond extension proposal.

From the Heart is prepared by Help Us Grow (the Clarkston Community Bond Campaign Committee.)

Base vote on facts

On Saturday, Jan. 9, we stood outside the A&P store on Dixie Highway and asked people two questions as they left the store: "Are you a resident of the Clarkston school district?" and "Can we give you information about the upcoming Bond Proposal for the Clarkston schools on Feb. 8?"

At least half of the people who live in the district refused to take the information. We were amazed by this behavior. We were not asking for a yes vote; we were not pushing for signatures on a petition; we were not advocating a tax increase. We were just attempting to get out some factual information about a critical bond proposal that is also easy to misunderstand.

In less than four weeks, this community votes on an important issue. We cannot ignore the condition of our school buildings and their increasing population. We have been wrestling with this issue for over three years now and it is still here.

Whether you are a parent or not, whether you have lived here for 25 years or 25 days, whether you rent or own the place you call home — you, as a responsible registered adult resident of the Clarkston Community School District, need to be informed about the complexity of this issue.

Please be informed. Do not be negative on Feb. 8 because you are "fed up with high taxes" or because you had a "bad experience with a school" or because "schools just don't teach anymore" or "you don't have any students in Clarkston schools at this time." The bond issue is about children and facilities and a curriculum appropriate for the approaching 21st century.

If someone approaches you with information in the next few weeks, please take it and read it and give it some thought. Everyone is entitled to an opinion; hopefully your opinion is based on fact and not feelings or hearsay. Then be sure to vote your informed opinion on Feb. 8.

Electronic technology-based job wages increase

When Daniel Manthei told The Clarkston News that the best job outlook for most pupils was in electronics and technology, he wasn't exaggerating.

The latest quarterly economic review for Oakland County confirms the principal's statements.

Manthei heads the Oakland Technical Center-Northwest, a regional center for high school students and adults that teaches technology and specific job skills. He told The Clarkston News that the middle majority of students would be smart to learn technology and possibly plan to attend a community college or technical school.

According to the "Oakland Focus" newsletter produced by the Oakland County Community and Economic Development Department, electronic technology-based job wages increased more than other job categories.

"Labor supply might be a reason for the increase in Education update

electronic technology-based job wages," said Marlys Vickers, supervisor of marketing and research of the Economic Development Division. "They may be perceived by businesses as being more valuable by the firm or may be perceived as contributing more toward profit."

Wages for 16,526 employees are covered in the survey responses. The survey is conducted every two years.

The top gainers in the mean low hourly wage rate included: electronic assembly ($3.69-per-hour increase from 1990 to 1992), final assembly ($2.56 increase), office manager ($2.16 increase), data processing ($2.13 increase), drafter ($1.90 increase).

The top gainers in the mean high hourly wage rate included: data processing ($2.18-per-hour increase from 1990 to 1992), electronic assembly ($2.18 increase), drafter ($1.93 increase), production supervisor ($1.64 increase), industrial engineer ($1.58 increase).

According to the county's wage and salary survey for 1992, the following are the range of wages for some job categories: electronic assembly ($9.65-$12.32), electronic technician ($11.10-$15.30), drafter ($11.73-$16.63), data entry programmer ($8.05-$10.42), metal fabricator ($9.89-$14.09), metal finisher ($8.64-$11.20), secretary ($8.58-$10.83), light assembly ($6.41-$9.28), final assembly ($9.85-$13.79) and machine operator - number control ($9.88-$13.29).

Wages for 1992 were modified to reflect 1990 dollar values for comparison.

Proposed taxation unfair, unequal

Presently, a bipartisan group chaired by Rep. H. Lynn Jondahl of the House Taxation Committee is proposing a 2.65 percent income tax increase and a reduction of property taxes.

Because the pensions of legislative retirees and teacher retirees are completely exempt from state income taxes, these retirees would not pay the additional taxes but would enjoy the property tax reduction.

Retirees with pensions from private sources have only $7,500 exemption if single or $10,000 exemption if married. Please refer to the Line-to-line instructions for Line 49 Limitations of the State of Michigan income tax booklet.

This is an unequal and unfair taxation. How about some letter writing from present and future private source pensioners?

Size factor

Mr. Carlson's arguments for his ideas are based on a false premise. He assumes that schools of 650 or more students are correct for elementary youngsters.

My daughter attends a private high school with a modest enrollment of 450 young women. At a meeting last month, I asked the counselor why the school wasn't aggressively trying to attract more students. There is room for larger numbers of kids, and I figured more students, more money, more success, right?

The counselor answered that the school's goals include maintaining a personal, nurturing environment — not too big — so teachers, counselors and administrators can get to know their students. Not surprisingly, the school is friendly, disciplined and comfortable. The students excel there partly because they feel good about being there.

I will vote yes for Clarkston's new school because I believe in the concept of friendly and caring environments for children. Size is definitely a factor, since it affects personal space, safety and control. If it is important at my daughter's high school, it is even more important for little elementary children whose experiences will shape them for years to come.

Sign hikes speed

This last Dec. 9, I wrote to you about the speed limit change on the west end of Waldon Road at M-15.

This speed limit was changed from 35 mph to 25 mph, beginning at Waldon and Main Street. I protested this as being a speed trap and certain death to a city just starting out last July, a terrible mistake.

There has been another terrible mistake and possible disaster for Clarkston: someone has posted a 35 mph speed zone just west of Laurelton. Why?

There is a school speed zone signal light and sign at Buffalo Street on Waldon Road to regulate westbound traffic from Clarkston to 25 mph during school hours, when flashing.

This new speed sign supersedes the former 25 mph speed law and raises traffic speed to a permanent 35 mph, even during school hours. This new sign was placed there by the city, and it is the city line limit; therefore, the city is responsible for any children who may get mowed down in 35 mph, even during school operating hours. This new sign supplants the previous 25 mph speed zone sign and flashing signal light and is a time bomb lawsuit waiting for the Village of the City of Clarkston.

The speed of 35 mph beginning at Main Street and Waldon Road for eastbound traffic was a safe and prudent speed limit, with the 25 mph signal light and sign for use during school hours. They should have left well enough alone!

Critical point

We are writing this letter as a communitywide plea to all residents of the Clarkston school district.

For several years, we have been working for and hoping for voters to approve funds to improve the condition of our schools. Each time the vote was negative, we thought, "OK, we can still get by."

In our personal lives, we are basically "make-do" people. We continually discourage unnecessary materialism in our schools and community.

As our daughter has graduated, one son is entering the high school in the fall, another son entering Clarkston Junior High, and one daughter remaining in Clarkston Elementary — we feel that our schools have definitely reached the critical point.

We have one toddler still to attend Clarkston Schools. We are not pushy people. However, we feel that it's imperative that the bond issue pass. That is why we finally feel compelled to write this letter.

Please go to the polls on Feb. 8, and please vote yes.

But still topple Dragons

Anderson-less grapplers lose 2 close duals

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Call it victory in defeat.
Or call it see-you-later-in-Battle
Creek-but-next-time-with-Jerry Anderson.

Last Saturday Clarkston's varsity wrestling team, two days after defeating league rival Lake Orion, traveled to Bay
City where it lost 31-28 to No. 1 rated
Grandville and 31-27 to No. 3 rated Bay City Western (the Wolves, however did defeat Flint Northern 37-29).

The No. 8 rated Wolves, however, were without the services of Jerry Anderson. Anderson, the winningest wrestler in Clarkston history, is still recovering from a shoulder injury.

"If you put Jerry in, you anticipate that the whole match turns around," said Clarkston coach Mike DeGain, who was happy about his team's performance in Bay City. Clarkston's dual meet record dropped to 7-2 after the trip north.

Add Anderson's usual "automatic" three to six points and take away some points from the foes and the total reads wins instead of close losses.

"Now the kids know they're capable," added DeGain, who hopes to see Grandville and Bay City Western again at the state finals in Battle Creek. "They walked away knowing they're within their grasps."

Of course, defending Class A champ Temperance-Bedford is also expected to make its annual appearance at the Kellogg Center.

Bay City Western 31, CLARKSTON 27
(Jan. 16 at Bay City)

Clarkston led No. 3 rated Bay City
Western by two points going into the final match.

However, Bay City's Jeremy Whittaker, the state's No. 2 rated heavyweight, picked up six points on an injury default over Wolf Jon Roy to clinch the match.

The seesawing match began with Clarkston's Chad Auten (103 pounds) winning a close 7-6 decision over Jeff Werner. That was followed by Bay City's Terry Elliot (112) edging Brett Walter 4-2.

Corey Grant (119) regained the lead for Clarkston by stopping Dave Wishaw-ski 7-1.

But the Warriors came back to win four straight matches: Mike Weyrowske
(125) topped Jeff Farrand 16-6, Ryan
Beaver (130) pinned Steve Locher at 1:51,
Keith Villano (135) defeated Armin
Michelsen and Greg Horneber (140) nipped Charlie Liggett 10-9.

Jason Roughton (145) broke Bay

CLARKSTON 103-pounder Chad Auten only needed 26 seconds to pin Lake Orion's Aaron Walter. The Wolves downed the Dragons, 41-21, in GOAL action at Lake Orion Jan. 14. (Photo by Brad Kadrach)

City's streak by pinning Chad Cnudde at 1:28. But Warrior Art Werner (152) countered by pinning Brent Hummel at 2:47.

The Wolves then won the next three straight, setting up the decisive heavyweight match. P.J. Vandermeer (160) pinned Mike Yambrick at 2:17, Joe DeGain (171) topped Shawn Clifford 14-8 and Steve Hunkele (189) won on a void.

Grandville 31, CLARKSTON 28
(Jan. 16 at Bay City)

Clarkston won the first three matches on pins but No. 1 rated Grandville won four of the last five, edging the Wolves 31-28.

Auten, trailing by two points with seconds remaining, opened the contest by pinning Jared Hemrich at 5:58. Walter followed by pinning Andy Meryweather at 1:11 and then Grant pinned John Phelps at 4:16.

Grandville won the next two. Mike Glane defeated Farrand in a 24-9 major decision and Jeremy DeLeon (130) stopped Jesse Laycock 8-4.

Clarkston's Michelsen defeated Ryan
Vanderveen but Grandville's Paul Griffost countered with an 8-0 decision over Liggett.

Roughton crushed Dave Engvall 15-1

on a major decision.

Grandville came back to win the next three straight. Dan Herrema pinned Hummel at 2:14. Kevin Brink edged Vandermeer in overtime 16-14 and Tom Graverson topped DeGain 9-1.

Hunkele defeated Brian Meanes 8-1.
But Grandville also won on void
(because of Roy's injury).

CLARKSTON 37, Flint Northern 29
(Jan. 16 at Bay City)

A six-match winning streak sparked
Clarkston to a 37-29 win over Flint Northern.

Flint Northern won the first three matches but then the Wolves struck for six straight of their own.

In that streak, Laycock, Roughton and Michelsen won on pins; Hummel won on a void; and Farrand (19-7) and Liggett
(8-7) won on decisions.

Hunkele had the only other victory for the Wolves, a pin.

CLARKSTON 41, Lake Orion 21
(Jan. 14 at Lake Orion)

Clarkston broke-in Lake Orion's new singlets by nearly doubling the final score,

41-21.

"It was one of the most lopsided wins against them, but they're not a lay down team," said Clarkston coach Mike DeGain.

The Wolves always have respect for their GOAL rival Dragons, who upset them in the district last season.

And both teams still remember those recent state championship years: Lake
Orion (1990) and Clarkston (1991).

Clarkston was sparked by four pins.

Wolves winning via pins were: Auten against Aaron Walter in 26 seconds, Michelsen against Justin Wiscombe at 1:39, Hummel against Eric Tyrrell in 56 seconds and Vandermeer against John Davis at 2:21.

Five Wolves won on decisions:
Walter 5-3 over Jeremy Tyson, Laycock
10-1 over Jason McCall, Liggett 12-3 over
Brian McGee, Roughton 13-0 over Jason
Griffen and Hunkele 9-6 over Dan Goik.

Dragons who won were: Mark Steffens 8-1 over Grant, Ryan Ormsby on a pin at 2:10 against Steve Locher. Ruben DeLosrios on a pin at 1:14 against Joe DeGain and Rob Chaney on a default over Jon Roy.

DAVID Hartke finished third as the Clarkston boys' varsity ski team topped Cranbrook 13-37 at the Pine Knob Ski Resort Jan. 14.

No snow job; boys 4-0

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

A "rebuilding" Clarkston varsity boys' ski team has quickly constructed a 4-0 record in the Pine Knob Division.

"What can I say? They've got four wins," said Clarkston coach Judy Roeser. "I rebuild good."

Roeser is the team's contractor but she is the first one to give her downhill workers the credit. Her skiers last week downed Rochester Jan. 12 and then the next day topped Rochester Adams and Cranbrook.

"Basically, we have already skied against the really strong teams," said Roeser.

But Roeser knows how when her Wolves ski on the edge, missed gates and falls can occur, as in last year's upset defeat against Waterford Kettering.

The two victories against Cranbrook and Adams Jan. 13 were close in this regard as two (Mike Kozlowski and Eric Bauer) of the Wolves' six skiers DQ'd (the four top places count in team scoring). Nearly half of all skiers either fell or missed gates on the slalom course's icy slopes at the Pine Knob Ski Resort. Clarkston's two combined runs were doubly important, with the times competing against both Cranbrook and Adams.

The Wolves captured the first three places in the 13-37 victory over Cranbrook (three Cranes DQ'd).

Senior Scout Trim finished first with a combined time of 47.50 seconds, freshman teammate Paul Rumph followed at 49.21 and junior David Hartke took third at 50.10.

Cranbrook's three skiers that didn't fall finished fourth, fifth and sixth but Wolf junior Brian Bovee broke that string by placing seventh (65.29).

In the 15-21 win over Adams, Trim and Rumph finished one-two.

The Highlanders' best finish was by Chris Wrobel, who took third (49.87).

Hartke's fourth-place finish and Bovee's eighth-place finish sealed the win for the Wolves.

On Jan. 12, Clarkston rolled to an easy 12-26 victory over Rochester by taking four of the first five places.

Trim finished first on the slalom course, his two runs totaling 41.42 seconds. Teammate Kozlowski finished a strong second (42.52), Hartke was fourth (43.80) and Rumph took fourth (44.31).

Bovee finished eighth (45.75) and Bauer placed ninth (45.83)

CARRIE Millen finished fifth in the Clarkston varsity girls' ski team's 16-20 victory over Rochester Adams Jan. 14 at the Pine Knob Ski Resort.

Girls win third in a row

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

After a season-opening loss, the Clarkston girls' varsity ski team last week won three straight meets.

"I'm glad to see we're back on a winning run," said Clarkston coach Judy Roeser.

Bloomfield Hills Andover, which defeated the Wolves in the opener, loss last week. Andover and Clarkston are both tied in the important loss column (one loss apiece) of the Pine Knob Division.

Clarkston's first victory of the season was a 15-22 win over Rochester Jan. 12 at the Pine Knob Ski Resort. Three Wolves finished in the first four places.

Clarkston senior Courtney Whittaker took first after finishing both of her slalom runs in 45.03 seconds. Rochester's Robin Thus took second (46.91) but she was followed by a pair of Wolves, senior Jennifer Curd (50.48) and junior Kristi Stuetzer (50.52).

Junior Lisonn Hutchinson's seventh-place finish (52.59) clinched the victory for Clarkston (the top four of six skiers for each team count toward team totals).

Clarkston junior Carrie Millen finished eighth (52.92) and freshman Sara Hoemke placed 11th (61.87).

On Jan. 13, the Wolves skied against both Rochester Adams and Kingswood (the skiing was doubly important because Clarkston's times counted against both Adams and Kingswood).

Highlander Robin Garrard easily finished first with her combined runs (47.73) on the icy Pine Knob slalom course but it wasn't enough as the Wolves downed Adams 16-20.

Wolf Whittaker placed second (53.86), Curd third (54.83), Millen fifth (59.57) and Hutchinson sixth (61.77).

In addition, Stuetzer was ninth (82.22) and Hoemke DQ'd.

Coach Roeser said her team was aware that not falling was a big factor in the wins on the slippery course.

"They check out the course. They know the conditions," said Roeser.

The Wolves defeated Kingswood by the same 16-20 score.

Against Kingswood, Whittaker's 53.86 finish was good enough for first place. Curd placed second, Millen sixth and Hutchinson seventh. Stuetzer was 11th.

'Nah, nah, nah, nah...' Wolves top Mott in 2 OTs

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI
Clarkston News Staff Writer

It didn't look good for the Clarkston varsity boys' basketball team.

After the game was tied 65-65 at the end of regulation, the Wolves found themselves down by five in the first overtime period against host Waterford Mott last Friday night.

And it didn't sound good for Clarkston.

"Their people were going crazy," said Clarkston coach Dan Fife about the crooning Corsair crowd. "They were singing 'nah, nah, nah, nah' and all that stuff."

However, Clarkston forward Matt Underwood eventually silenced the Mott melody makers by sinking a 3-pointer, which tied the first overtime at 71-71.

And in the second overtime, it was the Wolves who carried the tune as Clarkston scored five unanswered points (two baskets by Underwood and a free throw by Jeremy Fife) to dramatically win, 78-73.

The victory raised Clarkston's Greater Oakland Activities League mark to 3-0 and overall record to 6-3. Mott, which had lost to North Farmington three days earlier in single overtime, fell to 1-6 overall and 0-3 in the GOAL.

Coach Fife said the first time he thought the Wolves had a good chance to win the game was in the second overtime.

He had good reason to feel that way as Clarkston trailed 34-26 at the half and 54-45 after three quarters.

Clarkston had itself to blame for falling behind early in the game as it sank only two of its first 18 shots.

"When we shoot poorly, we do other things poorly," said coach Fife.

One Wolf who found the range was Rick Vollmar, who came off the bench to score 18 points.

Nick Shires finished with 17, Underwood had 15, Brad Agar nine, Steve Black and Jeremy Fife each had seven, Rusty Mitcham and Pat Mulligan both had two, and Chris Combs had one.

Mott's Will Martin had a game-high 25, Scott Goddard scored 19 and Pat Nadeau had 16.

The Corsairs sank seven 3-pointers and the Wolves sank four.

Clarkston converted on 18-of-33 free throws and Mott sank 20-of-28.

Saginaw 60, Clarkston 42
(Jan. 12 at Saginaw)

A 22-6 run in the third quarter sparked host Saginaw to a 60-42 non-league victory.

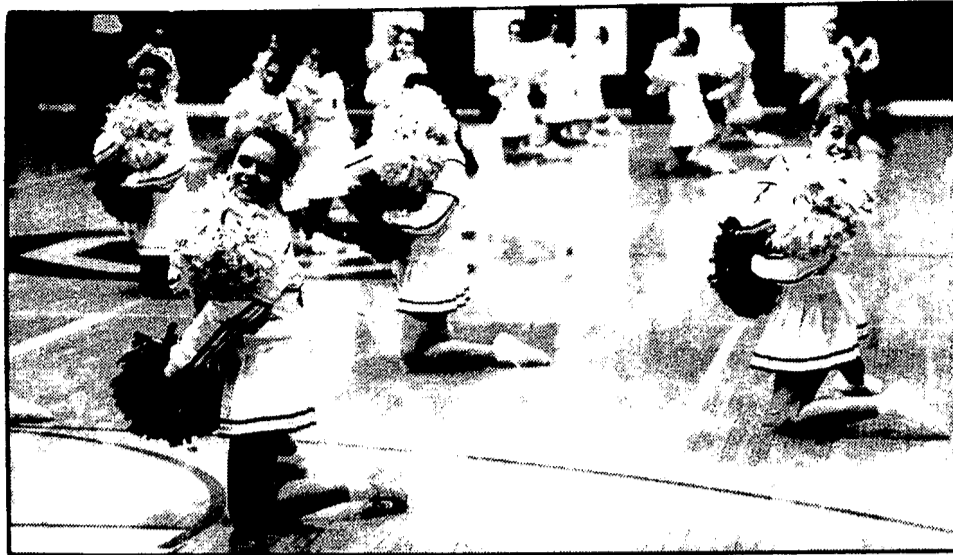

"They shot the lights out," said Clarkston coach Dan Fife about Saginaw, which shot 57 percent from the field and outrebounded the Wolves 31-19.

Clarkston trailed 25-15 but turned it around for 28-27 lead.

Saginaw, 2-5, regained the lead with its big third quarter. Clarkston came back to within 10 with less than five minutes but couldn't get any closer.

Nick Shires scored 14 for the Wolves and teammate Jeremy Fife added 10.

Andre Williams poured in a game-high 22.

Ten Clarkston Wrestling Club members placed at the Jan. 10 tournament in Hazel Park.

Ryan Victory wrestled to first place in the 80-pound division.

Placing second were David Endreszl (65), Richard Geliske (95), Chris Haag (65), J.T. Taylor (108) and Kevin Turnbull (85).

Finishing in third were Rocky Bills (70), Bobby Geliski (112), Colin Gibbs (80) and Justin Krause (80).

In action at other tournaments on Jan. 10, Andy Auten (95) placed first, Chris Webb (67) second and Ryan McAleer (75) third.

The Scots dropped to 1-3 in MIAA conference play.

Fund-raiser helps cyclists

Sports enthusiasts or people with hometown pride may be interested in an unusual fund-raiser Saturday.

The 7 p.m. benefit Jan. 23 raises money for the Clarkston Cycling Club, an elite team of seven racers. The affair at the old white church on Main Street, Clarkston, (next to Kinetic Systems) includes refreshments and a 10-minute version of a film in the works about the team.

The unique part of the fund-raiser: it doesn't cost anything to attend the event.

"It costs zero," said coach Jeff Nofitz. "I'm a coach, not a money person. ... We thought we'd do the fund-raiser kind of how our personalities are. People can give nothing or $10, $15, $20 or $1,000."

Or people may mail donations to: Clarkston Cycling Club, 60 S. Main St., Clarkston, MI 48346.

Nofitz said the team competes nationally, which costs $40,000 to $100,000 a year. Normally, corporate sponsors take care of the costs. However, budget cut-backs have limited that.

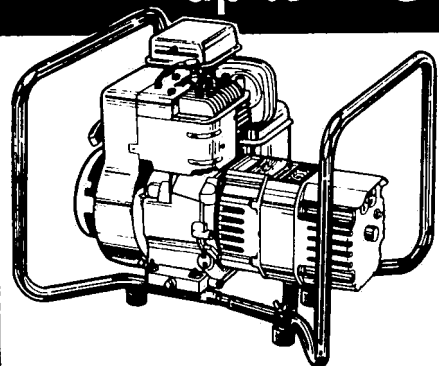

"Big companies don't have that kind of money right now," he said.

For more information, call Nofitz at 625-7000.

From Our Perspective

Two of three plans OK

Doug Carlson

Editor's note: This column should have been published in the Jan. 6 issue of The Clarkston News. Part Two of it was mistakenly printed out of sequence (in the Jan. 6 issue).

Let's cut through all the rhetoric and get right down to business.

Our group has a copy of the 47-page proposal that the Clarkston Board of Education sent to the Michigan Department of Education for approval. Here, in essence, is the board's proposal:

Construct a new elementary school	$8,603,727
Remodel the 5 existing elem. schools	2,852,529
Remodel the 2 junior high schools	1,300,311
Remodel Clarkston High School	4,212,053
Total package	16,968,620
Less: Revenue from other sources	853,620
Amount of bond issue:	$16,115,000

How does our group feel about all this? First of all, we have no problem with spending $4-plus million on the high school. We've said all along that the high school needs a lot of work. The science department should have an entirely new area with the best technology possible. The building itself needs a lot of tender loving care (paint, lights, repairs, etc.). They need new computers, and they need more space.

As far as we're concerned, they should add a whole new wing to the building. To us, the high school is the number one problem in the district, not the elementary schools.

We have no problem with spending $1.3 million on the junior high schools, either, especially Clarkston Junior High. Nor do we have a problem spending $1 million or more on the latest advances in educational technology.

Where we come apart is with the proposed new elementary school, and here's why:

The board projects a K-5 enrollment of 3,210 in 1997-98 school year. And they've even projected this headcount school by school. Let's take a look at their numbers, exactly as outlined in their application:

Name of school building in district	Membership
	Current year	In 5 years (estimate)
Andersonville El.	402	398
Bailey Lake El.	698	695
Clarkston El.	509	497
North Sashabaw El.	510	498
Pine Knob El.	611	597
New elementary	—	525

Notice anything? The enrollments they're projecting five years hence for our elementary schools are very nearly the same as they are today.

Since these schools can't handle numbers like these today (hence the bond issue), then we presume that the board plans to remodel the elementary schools in such a way that they'll be able to handle such numbers in 1997-98.

So let's examine one such remodeling proposal. Let's look at Bailey Lake, where they plan to spend the most money, $797,391.

Bailey Lake renovations
Renovate one set of toilets for barrier free	$80,000
Renovate plumbing system	31,000
Replace classroom cabinets	207,000
Misc. renovations —
ceiling, floor, fire alarms, door hardware, lighting, etc.	198,000
Furnishings and equipment	150,000
Construction manager's fee	28,400
Building contingencies	38,100
Professional fees	44,900
Bond issuance expenses	19,991
Total	$797,391

Notice anything? It's all cosmetic. Nowhere in this proposal is anything said about additional space to handle their projected headcounts. Nor is there any mention of additional space for any of the other four elementary schools.

So what will happen in 1997-98? Well, if they can't handle these numbers today, who will barrier-free toilets and new cabinets make it possible for them to accommodate such enrollments five years from now?

Obviously, the board will have to come back to the community for help once again. They'll have to ask us for (1) yet another new elementary school or (2) money to expand the existing elementary schools.

Either way it'll involve a tax increase because we can't keep extending our indebtedness forever.

Our position is to enlarge the five elementary schools now and resolve this problem once and for all. Why pay $8.6 million for a Band-Aid solution when the problem will be right back in our lap five years from now?

Two weeks ago we discussed our plan, which includes expanding all five elementary schools now for little more money than it would cost to build one new school. If you missed it, it appeared in the Jan. 6 issue of The Clarkston News.

In the meantime, I'd just like to say something to Cheryl McGinnis:

In your guest column, Cheryl, you were referring to me when you said, "I recall at the Focus on Facilities Forum at the high school that you questioned many line items for the possible new high school as frills."

There was more, but this is sufficient to make my point. The point is that I never attended the Focus on Facilities Forum. The night it was held, I was in Tennessee.

First alarm

Medical calls frequent, possibly dangerous

Medical calls are among the most common made by the Independence Township Fire Department.

This kind of call is any type of personal health-related incident. It can be categorized from an in-house medical emergency, a vehicle accident, a sports-related incident or any other medically related incident.

Independence's fire personnel are well qualified for this emergency. All of the full-time personnel are emergency medical technician-defibrillators. If you have had any training in the medical field, you would know that the most crucial time for a medical emergency is within the first few minutes, and with full-time personnel on duty 24 hours a day, the response time is three to four minutes of the call.

The biggest threat we face in the field is not verbal or physical abuse from a drug-overdosed patient. It isn't the broken glass, sharp metal or spilled gas we work in at an accident. It isn't even the inconsiderate drivers who fail to slow down.

The biggest threat we face is communicable diseases from the common cold to AIDS. The threat is also to our families to whom we return after our job is done.

We are not looking for sympathy, just a bit of understanding for what a medic faces. We're still there when you need us.

First Alarm is provided by the Independence Township Professional Firefighters Local 2629.

CONDO RESTRICTIONS

QUESTION: I am buying a condo rather than a single home because of affordability. Are there any differences I should be prepared for?

ANSWER: The difference between condo and home ownership is more than a difference in price. Lifestyle may (and probably will) be different. You are talking about multiple ownership, so there will probably be restrictions to consider. The rules and regulations will vary from complex to complex. Buyers should understand how these rules may inhibit their freedom in some cases, and protect their rights in others. Know and understand any restrictions before you buy.

Not a tax hike?

Some people have been pushing the Feb. 8 school bond issue by saying it won't increase your taxes. We all know we don't do something for nothing, so how can this be? Here's how it works.

Taxpayers in the Clarkston school district right now are paying off a $5.2 million 1988 bond issue that paid for repairs to district schools. To pay off that debt, 1.7 mills are levied and will be levied until 2004.

School officials figured out a way to raise $16,115,000 now by simply levying that 1.7 mills for a longer time — until 2016, to be exact.

So if the bond issue passes, it's true — you won't see an increase on your tax bill. But you will see that tax bill for many more years.

How does it work out for you, personally? One mill is $1 for every $1,000 in assessed property valuation. So the owner of a $100,000 home assessed at half its market value ($50,000) would continue to pay $85 a year for 23 years. If the bond issue doesn't pass, that homeowner would continue to pay the $85 a year for 11 more years.

Chair search in Springfield

The search is on for comfy chairs in Springfield Township.

The Chair Committee, which consists of Clerk Nancy Strole and Treasurer Lois Stile, was authorized by the board Jan. 14 to buy 10 chairs for no more than $300 per chair.

The committee provided the board members with examples of chairs in that price range. Supervisor Collin Walls quipped, "I noticed that one of these promises all-day comfort — I hope that doesn't mean our meeting will last longer than necessary."

A chairperson has not been named for the Chair Committee.

Business leaders endorse bond issue

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Associate Editor

The Clarkston school district has gained a long list of allies in its attempt to pass a $16.1 million bond issue.

About 25 area business leaders have signed their names to a public endorsement, asking voters to pass a school ballot proposal on Feb. 8.

This mass signing occurred at a meeting hosted by the Clarkston Area Chamber of Commerce Jan. 12. The event was held at the Deer Lake Racquet Club.

According to parent-volunteer Milan Manojlovich, this meeting was well attended, despite the unpleasant weather.

"Everyone understood the importance of this matter, so nearly 25 area business people showed up," he said.

"By the end of the evening, nearly everyone who'd showed up pledged their support for the bond issue."

Clarkston Superintendent Gary Haner and school board President Joseph Helpert were on hand to explain the proposal and answer questions. Manojlovich said the most pressing questions involved: long-term financial benefits, why the multi-item proposal was packaged, and the bond issue's effect on the operating millage.

Manojlovich said most of the business people left the meeting with little doubt on how'd they vote three weeks from now.

"I don't know how many times I heard someone ask, 'How can the public not pass this bond issue?'" he said.

The merchants' endorsement, accompanied by their signatures, is scheduled to appear in a Clarkston News advertisement prior to the election.

Tainted soil may be disposed in Rose Township

Thirteen years after toxic wastes were discovered in Springfield Township, there is a chance they will be cleaned up.

On Jan. 14, the Springfield Township Board unanimously approved a resolution that supports the transportation of contaminated soil from Springfield to an incinerator in Rose Township.

The Springfield and Rose sites were identified as having similar contaminants and common responsible polluters. The cleanup of the Rose site began in 1992 and is to be completed sooner than anticipated. The early completion gives Springfield a window of opportunity to clean its site two years earlier planned.

The contaminated soil would be transported from Springfield Township to Rose Township to be cleaned. The resolution calls for two round trips per day by two trucks, and that this proposed plan "is safe and will have minimal impact on traffic, roads and resident living along the transport route."

The final decision about the soil still has to be approved by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency.

Tracing their family roots

While searching for history, they find new friends

BY CATHERINE PASSMORE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

When Marge Erkfritz began searching for her ancestors, she found friends.

Erkfritz joined the Clarkston Community Historical Society in 1980 and was turned on to genealogy after a lecture she heard by Dennis Spade.

"He was interesting and convincing, so we plunged in," said Marge. "It's like eating peanuts: once you start you can't stop."

What began as a small adventure has produced

*"It's like eating peanuts:
once you start you can't stop."*

Marge Erkfritz

MARGE and Don Erkfritz of Independence Township have spent 12 years searching for their ancestors and relatives. "It's just like eating peanuts. Once you start you can't stop," said Marge. They have met relatives now living in Australia, Canada and England.

numerous ancestors and living relatives around the world — and an addition to their Eston Road, Independence Township, home.

"I built this alcove for her to work in," said Marge's husband, Don.

The alcove is a small room with floor-to-ceiling shelves, filled with books and magazines on their families and on genealogy research. A desk includes a typewriter and a stack of correspondence from relatives who want information about their family. On the wall is a map of the world with pins marking the areas where they have relatives.

"Genealogy is likened to detective work or a puzzle," said Marge.

She and Don began by recording the memories of older living relatives. They found a cousin in Vermont who, at 80, had lived in the same place his whole life. He spoke on tape for an hour-and-a-half about events throughout his life and events that he had heard about while growing up.

"I also knew we had family in Canada and England, so I wrote to a pastor and an archivist in England. The pastor wrote back and said 'Why don't you write to your cousin Winifred?' I didn't know I had a cousin Winifred," Marge said, laughing.

From that newfound cousin came family charts and a visit from Winifred's daughter and granddaughter.

The Erkfritzes also have found and met relatives from Australia and Canada. "This is a bonus, finding such nice people and becoming friends," said Marge.

Along with living relatives, the couple have discovered relatives who fought in the Revolutionary and Civil wars and some who came to America on the Mayflower. Don is a descendent of William Bradford, who was a governor of the Plymouth Colony; and he's a descendent of Charlemagne.

The Erkfritzes are also in the business of helping others find their families. Don has written a book about the early settlers of Attica, Mich. Marge has had an article published in the American Genealogist and has conducted lectures at Oxford High School and the Pontiac Area Genealogical and Historical Society.

The couple also formed a tax-deductible, non-profit foundation called "Genealogical and Historical Research" to send information to others.

Helpful hints for would-be genealogists

Have you ever wondered if you're related to historically famous people but don't know where to start looking?

These helpful hints for the novice genealogist can help you get a start.

■ Talk and/or write to relatives. Have them use a recorder; they can use it as they remember things.

■ Read federal census films.

■ Search courthouse records for births, deaths, marriages, wills and probate papers. If out of state, you can send for copies, for a fee.

■ Search land deeds. Often they tell where "they've" come from. Many early Canadian deeds have wills attached.

■ Write genealogical societies and historical societies in the area of interest. Many keep surname lists and will send you names of others searching your line.

■ Place queries in historical and genealogical magazines. Most groups allow non-members to place a query for $1 to $3. This can be an inexpensive, helpful way to make contacts.

■ Read city directories. Large city libraries have these, and you can get copies of pages from distant cities for a small fee.

■ Read old newspapers, especially obituaries; these often are on film. Copies of these may be obtained from out-of-state libraries for a small fee.

■ Read genealogical magazines, and write people of the same surname as you are searching. You never know when or where help will come from; others are always glad to assist a fellow genealogist.

■ Be sure to write down the source of any information you find; you may need this later on.

■ Keep a log of letters and information you send out, as well as addresses of those you make contact with. And send self-addressed stamped envelopes whenever you ask for information; then send a thank you and stamp to those who answer your queries.

■ Many libraries have family histories — check these. You may find a great deal of your work has already been done for you, and you need only make the connection.

■ Write cemeteries. They often have a wealth of information on the family, when you may have only written about one person.

■ Mormon libraries have many birth and marriage records copied, from all over the world, on Microfiche; check into these.

The Mormon libraries near you and the Michigan State Library in Lansing have all U.S. films on the censuses. The Burton Division of the Detroit Main Library has all U.S. and Canadian films of the census. The Flint Main Library and the University of Michigan Graduate Library in Ann Arbor have Michigan census films.

"Genealogy is likened to detective work or a puzzle."

Marge Erkfritz

They have also helped their adopted daughter to find her family. The woman, whose biological parents are dead, found her brothers and sisters and eventually traced her family to the mid-1700s. "All of a sudden she has a family and a past — she wasn't on the outside looking in anymore," said Marge.

"It's hard to explain the thrill (of finding your ancestor) to someone not interested in genealogy," said Marge. "(If) those were your ancestors who rode in covered wagons and did all of those things, it makes it personal. It's what makes history interesting."

Area doctor helps in research project

Physician Irving Kernis, who has a practice in Clarkston, is a physician-investigator in the Boston University Fever Study.

This large, nationwide study was designed and is conducted by medical researchers at Boston University to examine the safety of medications commonly used to treat fever in children.

Kernis is one of a number of selected physicians from across the country participating in this first-of-a-kind research project.

The study was developed to respond to a request from the U.S. Food and Drug Administration. It is the largest research effort of its kind, and because it is being conducted in doctors' offices, the results will apply directly to the care of children with common, every-day illnesses accompanied by fever.

Market loan part of record year

A loan to a supermarket in Independence Township was part of a record year of Small Business Administration 504 loans for the Oakland County Local Development Co.

Pine Knob Food Town, Inc., borrowed $1.25 million through First of America bank to pay for machinery and equipment in 1992.

In 1992, over $12 million in small business loans were completed in the county, a sharp increase from $4 million sold in 1991.

As a result of the dollars loaned for business expansions in 1992, over 500 jobs were retained and over 100 new jobs were created — and a $365,000 local tax base increase was realized, according to the local development company, a non-profit lending arm of the Economic Development Division.

The SBA 504 Loan program provides small- and medium-size businesses with long-term financing for the acquisition or construction of fixed assets. The loans are typically financed 50 percent by private lenders, 40 percent by the SBA and 10 percent by the small business.

Companies interested in applying for an SBA 504 Loan can contact the Economic Development Division office at 858-0732.

Lozano elected chair

Rudy D. Lozano was elected chairman of the Board of Oakland County Road Commissioners.

Lozano was appointed a road commissioner in late 1991 by the Oakland County Board of Commissioners.

He attended school in Pontiac and also attended Lawrence Technological University, Oakland Community College and Oakland University.

The owner of Evans and Associates Real Estate in Waterford, Lozano served in the 101st Airborne as a military intelligence expert with qualifications in cryptography, demolition and aerial photographic interpretation.

He has served on the boards of directors of the Oakland County Chamber of Commerce, the North Oakland Builders Association and the North Oakland County Board of Realtors as its president.

He currently serves on the Guest House Board of Directors, the D.A.R.E. program for Waterford schools. Lozano is a member of the Clarkston Rotary Club and the Waterford Elks Club.

Animal medical center accredited — again

Clarkston Animal Medical Center has again received accreditation following a comprehensive evaluation by the American Animal Hospital Association.

The evaluation includes a quality assessment review of the clinic's facility, medical equipment, practice methods and pet health care management. Less than 14 percent of the small animal veterinary facilities in the United States are hospital members of the association.

In order to maintain accredited status, Clarkston Animal Medical Center must continue to be evaluated regularly by the association's trained consultants.

The American Animal Hospital Association is an international association of more than 11,000 veterinarians who treat companion animals, such as dogs and cats. Established in 1933, the association is well known in the veterinary field for its high standards for hospitals and pet health care. Clarkston Animal Center has been a hospital member of the association since 1981.

What do you think about the Flushing High School senior who sued the school district after being cut from the varsity volleyball team (the matter was later settled out of court and the player is back on the team)?

"My feeling is if you have a set number of players on the team, you go with that number. And the coach should go with that team. The courts have said that playing sports is a privilege and not a right."

Secretary retires from township after 17 years

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Associate Editor

As an Independence Township employee, Pauline Esselink has served under four supervisors and two directors at the parks and recreation department.

Now, after 17 years, she's calling it quits.

Esselink joins her husband, Marty, in retirement Jan. 22. He retired from General Motors a year and a half ago. The couple intends to move to their chalet in Roscommon as soon as they can sell their home on Bluegrass Drive.

Esselink began her township career in 1976, as a clerk at the Department of Public Works. A newcomer to the area, Esselink said she came across the position by accident.

"We'd just moved from Warren in 1975, and I met a township employee, Jodie Norton, who came to look at a truck we had for sale," Esselink said. "We got to talking about work, and I told her I was eager to find a job in the area."

"Jodie told me she'd contact me if something came up at the township," the mother of three grown sons added. "A few months later, I got a call for an interview, and I've been there ever since."

In 1979, Esselink moved from the DPW to the parks and recreation department. She's spent the last 14 years working as a secretary for directors Tim Doyle and Ann Conklin.

During this time, Esselink has been in charge of payroll and billing for the department, including the Senior Center. In addition, she routinely helped out as a witch at the township's annual Haunted Forest in Clintonwood Park and as an organizer for the township's holiday Spirit Dinner.

Conklin said her secretary will be sorely missed.

"We're really going to miss her," Conklin said. "She's been an integral part of this department for 14 years. She's got a wonderful personality, and she always gave it her all as an employee. We wish her well."

Esselink considers the implementation of computers at the township as the biggest change and challenge in her 17 years of service.

"In looking back, the purchase of computers are probably the biggest change our building has seen," she said. "To me, change isn't easy. The computers had a tendency to scare me, but I've had the opportunity to work with them quite a bit in the last year."

"Like it or not, computers are going to be a necessity in coming years for nearly everyone," Esselink added.

Even though she's looking forward to a life of retirement and travel, Esselink said she's going to miss her friends at the township.

"It's almost like a second family here, and I'm going to miss the camaraderie," she said. "I've made a lot of good friends over the years."

Esselink's only regret is that she won't be around to see the opening of Baycourt Park on Andersonville Road.

"I remember the excitement around here when the township first purchased the park about five years ago," she said. "I'd hoped that it would have re-opened while I was still here, but it's not going to happen."

"I'll just have to visit the park when it opens in the summer," Esselink added. "It'll give me an excuse to stop by and see my friends."

PAULINE ESSELINK of Bluegrass Drive is leaving her position at Independence Township Hall after 17 years of service, most in the recreation department.

Keep potatoes in dark

If your potatoes seem green around the skin, it's best not to eat them.

When potatoes are exposed to light — either while still in the garden or after harvest — the surface may turn green as a result of chlorophyll production, said Sylvia Treitman, home economist for the Oakland County Cooperative Extension Service.

The greening is accompanied by the formation of a bitter substance called solanine, which can be toxic if consumed in large quantities.

To keep potatoes you eat safe:

- Do not consume potato sprouts.
- Trim and discard all green areas of potatoes.
- Store potatoes in the dark.
- Limit the amount of potato skins you consume.
- Do not use wrinkled spongy potatoes — the concentration of solanine is usually high in these also.

If you want to benefit from the fiber naturally present in potato skins, use newly harvested or properly stored potatoes or potatoes without sprouts or greenish skins.

For more information, call the Food and Nutrition Hotline at 858-0904.

How to keep warm in cold winter house

If the heat goes out in winter, major problems can crop up.

The Oakland County Cooperative Extension Service recommends relocating to someone else's home if your heat goes out.

If residents must stay in their cold house, follow the tips below:

- Dress warmly. Several layers are better than one heavy layer of clothing.
- Eat well-balanced meals.
- Wear a heat, especially when sleeping.
- Use several lightweight blankets rather than one heavy layer to trap heat.
- Use an alternate heat source, if possible.

You Take a Feeling of Two ...

By Tom Erickson

WOMAN, WOMAN ...
You ask for a start, steal my heart.
You rip hands of touch across,
Your razor sharp heart.

You take a feeling of two,
(The lizards would cherish you.)

Slander the Lords of the night,
(Blood you say, makes you tight.)

Kick, stick, trick, my trust,
(With an emotional sword,
you willingly thrust.)

Steal my hands in the night,
(Leave me screaming in fright.)

You leave ...
Making an invisible stand.
And,
Within the night ...
you make me ... A MAN.

TOYS of all types and ages will be on display and for sale and trade at the annual Clarkston

Toy Show Saturday. More than 40 dealers are featured.

Toys bring smiles, investments

Robots, pull toys, horses, cap guns, character toys, trains, dolls and more are part of the eighth annual Clarkston Toy Show this weekend.

The show takes place 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 23, at the Knights of Columbus Hall, 5660 Maybee Road, Independence Township. Admission is $2 (free for children under 12). Breakfast and lunch are available.

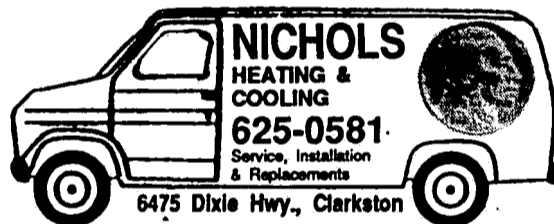

More than 40 dealers are to display items by Disney, Marx, Arcade, Schoenhut, GI Joe, Hubley and others. In addition, Thomas Toys of Fenton will have hard-to-find cast iron replacement parts.

Toys range from the 1800s to the 1960s and are in demand by collectors, as well as by people who marvel at the wind-up mechanisms of toys or the childhood memories evoked by them or by the artistic value of the items.

According to organizer Jim Carlson of Independence Township, toys need 10 or more years to mature and develop before they can be chosen as a collectible toy.

For instance, in 1993, Barbie was a big-selling toy again, as were Ninja Turtles and Lionel trains. But it's difficult to predict which will be in demand in the future, he said.

Do you know someone who volunteers time or talents to a good cause? We'd like to hear about it. Give us a call at The Clarkston News. 625-3370.

Power to be shared in Michigan House

The shared power agreement signed by House leaders will bring about a new spirit of cooperation in the Michigan Legislature, said state Rep. Tom Middleton, who supports the decision.

"Now that the House is organized, it's time to get to work and start moving Michigan forward," said the Ortonville Republican. "Voters emphatically expressed outrage with the political institution last November and will not tolerate another two-year stalemate. We must prove that our political differences are not insoluble and that we can put forth a positive agenda aimed at real problem-solving. People do not want to hear excuses; they want results."

Middleton said he approves of the new structure because it offers fairness and flexibility.

"I am comfortable with the plan," Middleton said. "It represents a lot of good faith and encourages bipartisanship and open debate. There are many obstacles ahead, but none are so daunting that we cannot make this new organizational move benefit all Michigan residents. My Republican colleagues and I still believe we have a philosophical majority, and that will help produce an atmosphere geared toward accomplishing our policy goals."

Middleton pointed out the need for the Legislature to focus on long-term solutions rather than the quick fix.

He cited the urgency to act quickly on paramount issues such as property tax, auto insurance, health care, and school finance reform.

"To avoid a repeat of last session's lackluster performance, these vital issues demand swift attention," Middleton said. "If we don't hit the ground running, Michigan's economic stability and competitiveness will be jeopardized. I am committed to attacking these problems as soon as possible. If we don't start now, it will become more difficult to resolve them down the road."

Middleton was elected by his fellow caucus members to serve as assistant Republican floor leader, a position he feels will allow him to contribute more significantly to the efficiency of House business. He stated that one of his strongest assets is his ability to bring large groups to consensus, a quality which will be a key to success under a shared leadership.

"The State House has never had a shared leadership structure. Issues of real concern to voters that in the past were overshadowed by irrelevant partisanship or thwarted by special interests, will now be addressed in a different fashion. I find this new era in Michigan politics intriguing and look forward to seeing how we will shape the future for the people of this state."

Public surprise

STEVE LENAR'S co-workers braved ice, snow and dangerously bright sunshine to erect a surprise sign on Clarkston Road in honor of his 40th birthday last Friday. Lenar, deputy superintendent in charge of business operations at Clarkston Community Schools, did not expect such public notice. His co-workers at the board office also decorated his office Jan. 16 and presented a "funny" cake to him on his lunch hour. (Photo by Curt McAllister)

Laborer pens his way into science fiction arena

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Associate Editor

Three years ago, Bob Wagner decided to take a chance and try his hand at writing.

Today, this 35-year-old Independence Township man is awaiting the release of his first novel, "Unearthly Visions," which is composed of three science fiction stories.

Wagner's trilogy has been picked up by the Dayspring Press of Golden, Colo. This small publishing company is scheduled to release the first of Wagner's three "novellas" in an upcoming periodical that features new serial works. A novella is a story with a compact plot.

If this first novella — which is sent to thousands of other publishing companies and subscribers — elicits interest, then Wagner's trilogy will be published in novel form.

A general laborer at Commercial Steel Heating in Madison Heights, Wagner said his inspiration to write culminated from his blue-collar status.

"About three years ago, I did some serious soul searching and decided that I didn't want to be a laborer all my life," he said. "My interest has always been in books and writing, so I decided to give it a shot.

"I'd like to eventually write for a living, but it could take a while to get to that point," Wagner added.

Wagner's 200-page novel, "Unearthly Visions," took about 15 months to complete. He actually finished the trilogy about a year and a half ago, but it took a while before he could find an interested publisher.

"Writing is good therapy because it allows me to get a lot of things out of my subconscious and get away with it."

He still remembers the day he learned of his acceptance by Dayspring.

"It was a pleasant surprise," he said. "I sent copies of my work to a lot of places, but Dayspring was interested from the start. It just took them a while to get back to me."

Writing two hours a day, he penned "Unearthly Visions" in long-hand, while his wife, Melinda, typed and printed them on her personnel computer.

The book's three novellas are titled "Distant Cousins," "From Out of Nowhere," and "Darkness Between the Trees."

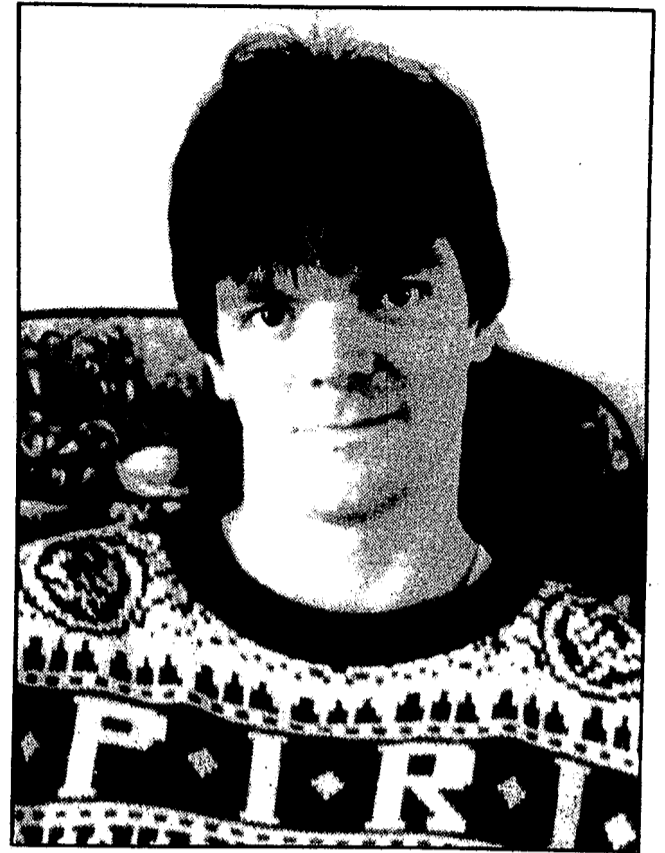

"Distant Cousins" is the tale of a man who comes across a downed alien space craft in the desert and befriends the visitors.

Georgia community who stumbles upon a race of reptilian carnivores, whose existence precedes that of man.

Wagner is a fan of authors such as Clive Barker, H.P. Lovecraft and Issac Asimov. He said their works have inspired his writing style.

"I've absorbed a little bit of each writer and added it to my own style," he said. "Writing is good therapy because it allows me to get a lot of things out of my subconscious and get away with it.

"I've always had a weird imagination and sense of humor," Wagner added. "I think these traits help me in the development of my stories."

Wagner now is working on a horror novel, which is half completed. To help him along, he's fallen back on a childhood "love" for his inspiration.

"I watched a lot of horror movies as a kid," he said. "I don't know if that means anything, but it helps me know what's scary or not."

Because of his publishing company's small stature, Wagner has been calling numerous libraries and bookstores to promote the impending release of "Unearthly Visions." He said it's not easy but knows it's the only way to get ahead.

"Dayspring isn't a big publisher, so I have to get the word out any way I can," he said. "It can be a hassle, but it comes with the territory."

Michalak to depart for Young Woman of the Year competition

KIMBERLEY Michalak will spend a week prior to the state competition with a host family in Marshall. Between rehearsals, she and 19 other contestants will be treated to luncheons offered by Marshall service clubs and businesses.

Kimberley Michalak, a Clarkston High senior, leaves Jan. 25 for a week of tours, rehearsals and preparation in Marshall.

The daughter of Donald and Jeanette Michalak, Kimberley represents Clarkston in the Michigan Young Woman of the Year Scholarship Program.

Kimberley has participated in band, the school newspaper, cheerleading, soccer, Students Against Driving Drunk, her church youth group and the Girl Scouts. She is also a member of National Honor Society, Pep Club and Varsity Club.

To become eligible for the Michigan Young Woman of the Year program, Kimberley first competed in the Clarkston Young Woman of the Year program.

She and 19 other senior girls will compete for the 1993 Michigan Young Woman of the Year title and the opportunity to represent Michigan at America's Young Woman of the Year program in Mobile, Ala., next June.

The Michigan program offers college scholarships totaling $8,050. The girls are evaluated on: scholastic achievement, 20 percent; a 10-minute personal interview, 30 percent; creative and performing arts presentation, 20 percent; fitness, 15 percent; and presence and composure, 15 percent.

Kimberley is to perform a flute solo for her talent presentation.

Tickets for the program are available at $12 for reserved main-floor seating and $10 for general admission in the balcony (some may be available at the door).

Send ticket orders or letters and packages for Kimberley to: Michigan YWOTY, P.O. Box 108, Marshall, MI 49068. On letters and packages, make sure "Contestant: Kimberley Michalak" is printed clearly on the outside.

The program takes place at 7 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 30, at Marshall Middle School, 100 E. Green St., Marshall.

Love that lasts

Do you know the secret?

To mark Valentine's Day, we ask readers who know the recipe for lasting love to write and tell us.

This contest is part two of Recipes for Love That Lasts that The Clarkston News offered last year in conjunction with "Michigan Spotlight with Michael Kupelian," a cable-TV program.

It's open to all ages and genders — even to those who aren't married. For instance, some may want to write about their parents' or grandparents' love.

Send your recipes to: The Clarkston News, 5 S. Main St., Clarkston, MI 48346. Deadline is Friday, Jan. 29.

The top three entries will be announced on Independence-Clarkston Channel 65. We'll also print the top entries in The Clarkston News. Names of all entries will be aired. And we ask for photos of those married 50 years or longer, so they may be shown on "Michigan Spotlight." Space permitting, The Clarkston News will print photos of those married 25 years or longer.

For more information, call 625-3370.
