Car crashes into school bus

A Clarkston school bus was rear-ended on Waldon Road Feb. 26, resulting in minor injuries to one of the car's passengers.

No one on the school bus was injured in the accident.
According to Kevin Bickerstaff, director of the schools' transportation department, the Waldon Road crash occurred at 8:45 a.m., just east of Almond Lane. He said bus no. 48 was poised to pick up its first passenger of the day, when a 1979 Cadillac struck it in the rear.

The car was driven by Sidney Cox, 19, of Lake Orion, Passenger Juanita Cox, 55, Lake Orion, suffered a broken nose in the crash. She was transported to St. Joseph's Mercy Hospital, Pontiac, for treatment.

Carol Nelson, 15, of Clarkston was also a passenger in the Cadillac but was not injured in the accident.

The bus driver, Betty Campbell, 45, of Clarkston, wasn't hurt, but she was treated for a stiff neck at a local clinic.

The school bus was in route to Pine Knob Elementary School at the time of the crash.

Bickerstaff said the oncoming Cadillac bent the bus' rear bumper and busted the tailpipe. Despite the minor damage, the bus was taken back to the garage, and replaced with another one.

The Cadillac was towed away after the collision. "He popped the bus pretty good," Bickerstaff said. "I'm not sure why he hit it because there was plenty of sight-distance along this particular stretch of Waldon."

At press time, it was not known if anyone was ticketed in the accident.

Open space diminishes

Residents want answers about Morgan Lake plan

BY CATHERINE PASSMORE Clarkston News Staff Writer

Wildlife, traffic, stray balls and open space were the top concerns of about 40 residents who showed up for a public hearing Feb. 25.

The 1 1/2-hour hearing before the Independence Township Planning Commission focused on the proposed Morgan Lake Golf Classic.

The Classic is proposed for 303 acres north of I-75 near Mount Zion Temple on Maybee Road. The plan calls for an 18-hole golf course, 82 attached condominiums, 111 detached condominiums and 133 single-family homes.

The commission was to hear a request to rezone the land to from single family residential to planned residential development. After the public hearing, however, the commission tabled the request until further notice.

The issue was tabled because the commission said Jan. 14 that it would not consider the proposal until they were shown an agreement where all of the land in question was under single ownership or control.

Not only was this condition not met by the time of last week's meeting, but the commission also discovered that a piece of property figured into the development wasn't owned by the developers.

Township fire hall search continues

Independence Township isn't any closer to choosing a site for the new fire station than it was six months

Supervisor Dale Stuart said the search for possible sites is still being conducted by a committee, headed by Fire Chief Gar Wilson.

"We're still in the process of searching for a site," Stuart said. "However, we're not overtly active at the time."

When a prospective site is located, Stuart said the township board will discuss a variety of procedural issues before moving forward. Presently, the fire department pays rent on its Main Street-Church Street station, which was purchased last summer by Dick and John Morgan.

The pair own Morgan's Marathon, which is next to the station.

Earlier in the year, the township had planned to build the station near the intersection of M-15 and Dixie Highway. However, property owner Dr. James O'Neill withdrew his offer to donate the land because of public division over construction of a new station.

He told Clark that the commission needed more information on the uses of the proposed community building and an explanation of how phases 1 and 2 fit together

Spring weight limits imposed on some roads

Weight limitations have been imposed on some roads in Oakland County, starting Monday, March 8.

The Board of County Road Commissioners said spring weight loads are imposed because warmer weather tends to soften the road base and can result in damage to the road from excessively heavy commercial vehicles.

Existing weight limits won't be reduced on "All Weather" roads. However, no above normal-loads will be

Examples of All Weather roads are: Dixie Highway north of I-75, Grange Hall west of I-75, Sashabaw from Dixie to I-75, Southfield Road south of 14 Mile Road, and Novi Road south of 12 Mile Road.

Commercial vehicle operators must impose a 25 percent weight reduction for all Class A roads.

Typical examples of Class A roads are: Andersonville from Dixie Highway to Davisburg Road, North Holly Road from Grange Hall to county line, and Baldwin Road north of I-75.

All Class B roads, which include gravel roads, are subject to a 35 percent weight reduction.

For further information about the classifications of specific roads, review the 1984 edition of the Road Commission's Truck Operators Map or telephone the Permits and Environmental Concerns Department at 858appropriate open space in Phase 1. A PRD requires at least 20 percent open space. As a whole, Morgan Lake development has more than the required space; however, Phase 1 alone doesn't. he said.

The residents voiced concerns over traffic, their personal safety from the golfers, and the destruction of the wildlife behind their homes.

Sue Doolittle of Rohr Road questioned with the environmental impact of the development. "I have a reluctance to (believe) your environmental sensitivity," she told Clark. Dave Belch of Darlene agreed. "The lip service suggests they're environmentally sound, (but) who monitors the ecosystem?"

Clark responded, "Everyone would like the property to remain in its natural state.'

He noted that while the residents were enjoying nature, someone else was paying the taxes for it. "We think this is the responsible way to develop it," he said.

In addition to the development, they have offered to provide some extras such as installing a water system and extending it to Mary Sue Street. They also plan to pave Maybee Road from Mount Zion Church to the Orion Township line.

In a phone call to The Clarkston News after the meeting, John Terrone, a Rohr Road resident, said, "As neighbors we're kind of 50/50 on it. Neighbors are concerned because they're not getting specific information."

Correction

A story about Morgan Lake Golf Classic in last week's Clarkston News should have said that plans included 133 single-family homes on 15,000-square-foot

Terrone said residents fear that once Phase 1 is complete, minus the 20 percent open space required in a PRD, that the developers will drop Phase 2. He also noted that some of the neighbors were concerned about contamination to their wells from the upkeep of the golf course, and that no one seemed to know what these homes and condominiums will look like.

Teen's attittude helps in coping with cancer

BY JULIE CAMPE Clarkston News Editor

Jeremy Leach, 15, smiles a lot when he talks, and people can't help but smile back.

It's just in his nature, according to his parents, Judi and Joel Leach of Springfield Township.

Whether he's skiing with friends or in the hospital undergoing chemotherapy, he has the same attitude, they say.

They are proud of their Clarkston High School sophomore but also a little bit afraid for him at the moment.

After suffering headaches, low energy and vomiting last year, he was diagnosed May 13 with acute lympho-cytic leukemia, a cancer that scientists think is instigated by a virus or chemical. In Jeremy's case, his immature white blood cells are multiplying so quickly that they're ineffective and also are taking up space that healthy cells could use.

He has since been undergoing chemotherapy treatments at Children's Hospital, Detroit. For a while, his leukemia was in remission, but now he has suffered a relapse and needs a bone marrow transplant.

Neither his brother, Ryan, 12, nor any other relative matches, so the search is on for an unrelated bone marrow donor. If a match is found, the transplant (more accurately called a "transfusion") will take place at Harper Hospital, Detroit, the only Michigan hospital that performs unrelated transplants.

While awaiting a match and coping with timeconsuming tasks of fund-raising and information-gathering, the Leaches also are trying to cope with the disease itself. The illness has affected their everyday lives.

"It's put a hold on a lot of stuff," says Jeremy. "I can't ski or be at school."

Since he's susceptible to infection, he can't go to where lots of people are likely to be.

"It bothers me a little bit," he says.

He does his school work at home on a portable computer provided by the school district, and he sees his friends when he can.

It also has affected his younger brother, Ryan, a Clarkston Junior High School student, especially when he was being tested as a possible marrow donor.

"Now that I'm not a match, it kind of makes you mad," says Ryan. "At school, it has been kind of tough. Mr. (Larry) Sherrill and Mrs. (Marge) Dever (counselors) help me. They're always there for me. A lot of my friends help a lot."

Jeremy, too, has help from friends. He also relies on himself. He has spent a lot of time learning about his disease.

"He's tough," says his dad, Joel, adding that Jeremy asks the doctors all sorts of questions.

"He takes responsibility for his own health," adds his mother, Judi.

Joel continues, "He's real smart with the doctors. ... He kids them mercilessly."

His humor has been a strength to them all, says his mother, Judi, who gives an example, "I was going to the grocery store and asked him what he wanted. He said, 'Juice — and hair."

When asked about the source of his good attitude, Jeremy shrugs, grins and points to his parents on either side of him. "Just these two guys," he says.

Judi smiles and says she, too, tries to remain positive, though it's difficult with a diagnosis of cancer and with all of the many possible outcomes.

"As parents, you ask as much as you want to know," she says. "As far as statistics, it doesn't mean anything. You just really have to concentrate on the positive and on what you can control and do."

So they make sure they eat right and take care of themselves. And so far, chemotherapy has not made Jeremy sick, though he has lost his hair. He wears colorful bandanas on his head now.

His outlook is good, according to doctors.

Meanwhile Jeremy has found many ways to maintain a positive attitude.

During hospital stays, said Joel, "Jeremy helps all the little kids," something that seems to come naturally to him. He remains friends with a couple who recently lost their 2-year-old to cancer.

"Jeremy's positive attitude has carried on to other patients," says Judi, explaining that those parents have commented to them time and time again.

And just what is Jeremy's secret?

"I'm not worried about anything," he says. "I'll

They've already begun their tasks, with a bone marrow drive at Wayne State University, Detroit, where many of Judi's co-workers were tested. One teacher matched a little girl already on the computer, said Judi.

A dinner-dance fund-raiser is planned for 6:30 p.m. to midnight March 20 at Waterford Oaks County Park, 2800 Watkins Lake Road, Waterford. Admission is $20, which includes food, music and a "donation" bar.

■ A bowl-a-thon at Cherry Hills Lanes-North, Independence Township is planned for 1-5 p.m. Sunday, April 18. Sponsors and bowlers are needed. The goal is to raise $25,000 with about of 360 bowlers.

A combined junior high dance at Clarkston Senior High Schoo is planned for Friday, April 23. Students from Sashabaw and Clarkston junior high schools will be charged $3 for admission to this evening affair. Food and drinks will be available for a fee. A portable stereo will be raffled off that night.

How you can help

Joel and Judi Leach came up against all sorts of problems when their 15-year-old son was diagnosed with cancer.

Not only do they worry about Jeremy, a Clarkston High School sophomore, but they also worry about how to pay for all of the treatment.

While Jeremy is undergoing chemotherapy for his acute lymphocytic leukemia, doctors have told him that he needs a bone marrow transplant.

Joel has been a probation officer for the state of Michigan for 18 years and currently works in the Oakland County Probation Office. Judi has worked as a speech therapist for Lake Orion Community School District for the past 16 years and also coordinates the Lake Orion Child Care program.

Their health insurance does not cover a national search for a bone marrow match or testing for such a match.

The Leaches have joined "My Friends Care," a nonprofit organization that raises money for such cancer programs. With help from the organization, the Leaches' goal is to test as many people as possible and to further test any possible donors already on a nationwide computer.

But just to begin a search on the national registry costs $5,000. Each time they further test someone on the registry, it costs $350.

Building catches fire

While trying to thaw a frozen door, a store owner accidentally started a fire last week.

According to an Oakland County Sheriff's Department report, on Feb. 26, the back door of Pierre's Market on Clarkston and Sashabaw roads was frozen shut. A heater was placed outside, blowing on the door.

A few minutes later, a customer advised the owner that the rear of the building was on fire.

Upon investigation it was discovered that numerous wooden palates and boxes were next to the door and they caught on fire.

No one was injured. No damages estimates were available at press time.

Wondrous morning

Julie Campe

Early Saturday morning, the crisp air was cushioned with still fog on the last weekend of February.

Then, later, the fog disappeared and left white sparkling trees—like a sugar-cookie landscape. Sunshine caught sparkles in the air and on the ground, flashing, twinkling and smiling almost.

It was a work day for me, but it didn't seem like one.

It was too magical.

For one thing, it was silent. There was no wind howling and no snowmobiles zipping by. All I could hear was a loud tapping noise, which quickly made me smile, for it was no human neighbor early to work on a household project. Rather, it was a woodpecker in my front yard, hard at work on an oak tree.

I smiled more when I saw some rabbit tracks in the fresh snow. They had even used the path my husband The Thinker had shoveled. I wasn't home enough to see the actual rabbits themselves — only their tracks each morning. Apparently, they liked to stake out beneath our front porch and in the bushes in back of the house. Perhaps those were havens from the lumbering golden retriever who lived next door and who also left his tracks in our yard.

I smiled on my way to work, admiring the allwhite towering trees, so clean in the sunshine.

Up ahead, where the trees formed a tunnel over the road, I saw something huge swoop and then disappear. It was so big, I thought it must have been my imagination, especially since I couldn't spot/it in the shadows of the tree-roof.

Maybe it was a black plastic bag, gently wafting through the winter wind, I mused.

I saw a clump of darkness up ahead and kept my cyes glued on it, in case it was the bag, waiting to fall.

But instead, to my wonderment, I saw an owl. It was huge, with amazingly large disks around its eyes. Holding my breath, I slowed my car to a craw and inched past it, my eyes upward the entire time. It looked down at me and straight into my eyes.

The moment was magical, and I was still marveling at the sight when I topped the crest of the hill and saw a gigantic raccoon, sitting atop a tree, its dark form starkly visible in the pure white treetop. It looked as if it were sleeping and didn't even turn its head when my car passed.

So the morning truly was magical. And the magic really was in the sparkling, twinkling white stuff that made the animals' usual camouflage to be ineffective.

I wondered how many times I had passed beneath the owl or near the raccoon but hadn't noticed them because they blended so well — or because I simply wasn't looking to see them.

And maybe that was the real magic of the morning—a lesson on how to see and where to look.

About staff editorials

We at The Clarkston News realize that an important duty of a newspaper is to provide more than just the facts found in news stories.

Since we're out there uncovering the news, we get an inside look at the issues. In our staff editorials, we will give our opinions on those issues, just as other writing on this page — letters and columns — also offers opinions.

We leave the editorials unsigned because we've written them as a staff. Every week, we talk about the issues and take notes on everyone's opinions. Then one of us writes it and the rest of us change it until we're all satisfied.

While our opinions aren't always unanimous, our editorials reflect the majority views of the staff. If the staff splits evenly on an issue, we'll write two editorials on the subject.

We welcome your response to our views.

Editorial

Raises disappointing to voters

The Clarkston Board of Education missed an opportunity to show it's dead serious about its budget problems.

It recently gave a 3.5-percent raise to Superintendent Gary Haner for the 1992-93 school year and 4.5-percent raises for each of three years to seven employee groups in the district, including supervisors, principals, directors and administrators.

Not all of the raises were unanimous. For instance, trustees Karen Foyteck, Kurt Karlstrom and Janet Thomas voted against the superintendent's raise, as well as raises for building principals and directors.

Like many on the school board, we agree that the school employees we know do a good job and deserve a raise. And we understand that administrators have taken on more duties and are working more days.

However, the school district has cut programs each year due to budget problems and stands to lose even more money, depending on Gov. John Engler's property tax cut plan.

So looking at this year's short-term budget and the district's likely long-term budget, it's apparent that Clarkston Community Schools simply can't afford 4.5-percent raises — at least not without big costs.

Since administrators say they've already cut out all the frills, the only place left to cut remains student programs.

In addition, the school district suffers from a public image problem. Many voters think that no matter what the district's financial situation, district employees will always receive raises that out-pace inflation. So far, those voters have been proven correct.

If the majority of the school board had kept the big picture in mind, it would have approved smaller raises — perhaps raises to equal the rate of inflation. Politically, this would have been smart. It would have removed the doubt from voters' minds about whether the school budget is really tight or not. And it would have freed up money — perhaps to be used to hire teachers to fill the new elementary school voters just approved or to pay for building maintenance.

More importantly, it would have shown leadership — for the next round of contract talks and the next budget.

The rebuttal that teacher contracts set the trend for other union negotiations is not valid in this case. The bottom line is that the school district doesn't have enough money for this.

Tough times require tough decisions, and the school board was elected to make tough decisions.

For the next fiscal year, our board will face perhaps their toughest decisions: which programs to cut and which teachers to lay off.

Smaller raises now would have helped a lot later.

Jim's Jottings

Did you hear the one about ...?

Lakeville's John Patrell often starts a story by saying, "If you've heard this one, don't stop me 'cause I want to hear it again."

That's the way I feel about a couple stories I read (and am repeating) in Rudy Petzold's new book, "Reflections of a Country Publisher." Rudy's the former publisher of the Tuscola County Advertiser in Caro.

A fiery young evangelist was holding revival services in a big Atlanta church. Every pew on the main floor and on the two side balconies was packed and his silver-tongued preaching had "amens" and "hallelujahs" rising from every part of the church.

Especially fascinated by the handsome young man of God was a pretty young lady seated in the front pew of the right balcony, who jumped up repeatedly to vocalize her support. As the evangelist made an especially soul-stirring point, she jumped up excitedly and shouted, "Amen, Reverend, right on!"

But as she jumped up, she lost her balance and fell over the balcony railing. Luck was with her, though, and her dress caught on one of the church's huge hanging chandeliers. And there she hung, precariously high over the congregation, swaying gently back and forth.

The alert young preacher saw the young worshiper's compromised situation and issued a stern warning: "Any man that looks at that woman will be stricken blind!"

Little Johnny, who had been dragged to church by his folks and was totally bored, nudged his buddy, Sammy, and with his palm over his left eye, grinningly announced, "I think I'll risk one eye!" Rudy also offers this one: One Sunday afternoon an old Scottish farmer and his wife took a drive in the country. They passed a rural airfield with a big sign advertising plane rides. Never having flown, they decided to check it out.

So the Scotsman went over to the plane where the pilot was leaning against the fuselage, obviously having a slow day. When the pilot told him the rides were $253 a person, the farmer slowly started to walk away. Seeing another potential customer leaving, the pilot hollered to the Scotsman to return.

"Hey, farmer," the pilot offered. "I'll make you a deal. If you can take the whole ride without saying a word, the ride will be free. But, say one word, and it's $5 a piece.

The thrifty Scotsman couldn't turn down such a deal and agreed. So the pilot, the Scotch farmer and his wife climbed into the old plane.

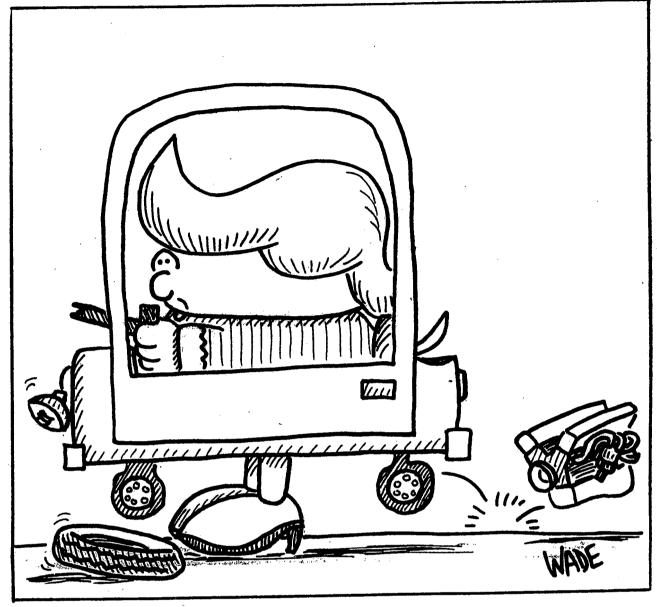

The pilot of course, had no intention of not getting paid, dhuckled and proceeded to give the Scotsman the plane ride of his life, certain to shake a word out of him. He soared up in the sky and promptly put the plane through several acrobatics.

Soon the pilot was getting a bit queasy himself and having heard not a word from the Scotsman, gave up and landed the plane.

As the pilot and the Scotsman climbed out of the plane, the pilot expressed his admiration, "Farmer, I've got to hand it to you. You've got courage. That was a wild flight, but you never said a word through the whole trip."

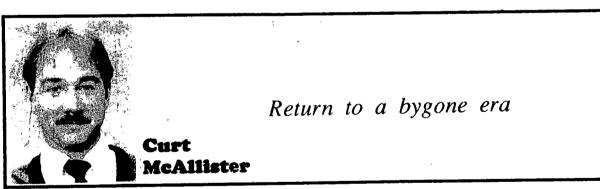

"Aye, laddie," replied the Scotsman, "but you nearly had me there when the old lady fell out!"

RUDSIL'S SUBURBAN FACTS

Your car will not break down until 4.68 minutes after your warranty expires.

It's time to dig those bell-bottoms and beaded necklaces out of mothballs because the 1960s are back.

That's right, America is going back to the future about 30 years. The "Me Generation" is getting a taste of the "Age of Aquarius," and they apparently like it.

Now, being 27 years old, I can only recall bits and pieces of the '60s. I remember things like the music, the first lunar landing and the clothes. And, oh, do I remember those clothes.

Besides our prehistoric ancestors, has man ever been adorned in such ugly fashions as the '60s and '70s? I don't think so. Plaid suits, platform shoes and bell-bottom pants were the rave.

And, now, they're back. For some reason, the fashion world has decided to look back, instead of ahead. Bell-bottoms, one-piece pants suits and tight-fitting tops exposing the midrift, ala Cher, are popping up in some of the chicest women's shops.

As formen, shoulder-length hair, long sideburns and goatees are being flaunted by some of Hollywood's leading young actors.

The music industry is also reflective of this trend. Arguably, the two hottest groups in music right now are Boyz 2 Men and En Vogue. Their lyrical styles and choreography are very similar to The Temptations and the Supremes, who reigned at top of the charts 30 years ago.

Even our new president, Bill Clinton, is trying to bring back some of that '60s charm to his administration. Inspired by President Kennedy as a boy, the new commander in chief used similar mannerisms and emotional speeches to propel himself into the Oval Office. He's even taken the slain president's desk as his own, moving it back to the Oval Office after nearly three decades.

And have you noticed all the Vietnam comparisons that analysts are making in regards to a possible military presence in Yugoslavia? Let's not forget that airlifts and advisors are how we got initially involved in that Conflict almost 30 years ago.

Now, I'm not saying that a step backwards isn't good once in a while. It allows us to see where we've been, while contemplating our futures. Heck, I'd loved to have paid a quarter for a gallon of gas or seen the Beatles in concert.

But I'll be darned if you ever get me in a plaid suit again.

'If it Fitz ...

Nothing to fear

Jim Fitzgerald

What with President Bill Clinton coming to my neighborhood today, it's a good time to admit to my nanny problem: I slept in her bedroom for 18 years.

Admittedly, there has been scant indication that Clinton intends to appoint me to a high-level position. But you never know. Not having a law degree, or shark's teeth, I'm not eligible to be attorney general. But certainly my 42 years in the newspaper business qualify me to deal with the press as chief White House spokesman.

That's the job Marlin Fitzwater performed for George Bush. It bothered me that Fitzwater's mouth is nearly as vertical as his nose. I don't mean to be unkind; few of us are Tom Cruise. I was born with a weak chin myself, and through the years it has never strengthened, even as it multiplied.

Certainly a person with an uneven smile is capable of keeping the world abreast of the news, even if his teeth are stacked instead of abreast. A crooked grin can be charming. But it seemed inappropriate for the person assigned to talk to the nation for President Bush on TV for four years. If you wanted to read Fitzwater's lips, you had to lie on your side.

Now, speaking for President Clinton, we have a young man named George Stephanopoulos, who wears his hair in front of his face, like Michael Jackson. Naturally, this similarity raises a question concerning Stephanopoulos' crotch, which isn't the name of a trendy bar and grille in Greektown.

Does he grab it? During televised press conferences, only the people in back of Stephanopoulos' lectern know for sure. Which might make you wonder why the whole world doesn't chip in and buy Jackson a lectern to get behind when he's posing for holy pictures at the Super Ironically, when I was a small boy I had the same problem as Stephanopoulos, the man I would replace in the White House.

Sixty years later, I still have dreams in which my mother yells: "Jimmy, brush your hair out of your face!" That was in the uncivilized days when uncombed, unbarbered hair was regarded as sloppy, not cool. Today, my wife never says a critical word to our grown son, who gets his hair cut once a year, with a scythe.

All of which brings us to my nanny problem. For a while in the early 1930s, the Fitzgeralds could afford a $6-a-week, sleep-in nanny, whom we more often called a

Then came the Great Depression, my father's business failed, and it was good-bye to maid and baby-sitting service. But, even though no one except me slept in the former "maid's room" for the next 18 years, it was never called anything else.

"Jimmy sleeps in the maid's room," family members said, with no regard for the damage that such a designated temporary living arrangement did to my psyche, which wasn't a lawn mower. How come I didn't have a room of my own, but a long-gone maid did? Where would I sleep when she returned, in the storm cellar?

As the years passed, my family kept saying Jimmy slept in the maid's room, no matter who was listening, and my reputation undoubtedly suffered. There were surely many partially informed onlookers who believed a 13-year-old boy was sharing a bed with the hired female help. And some of those shocked onlookers could still be alive today, subject to questioning by White House investigators.

The president should have a spokesman whom the press can look straight in the eye without first raking him. If Clinton is considering me as a replacement, I want him to understand that, during the Great Depression it was really the economy, stupid.

Clinton should understand how important it was for my mother and father to maintain the hope that prosperity would return someday, along with the maid. That's why the maid's room was never mine. But I never had the maid, either.

As for the later years, when I had my own home and children, there was no nanny or maid. My wife did all the child care and vacuuming.

Come to think of it, I still sleep in the maid's room.

Letters to the Editor

If not us, who?

There are many people who complain about our educational system and compare it to others around the world and how our students just cannot compete in a 'global" marketplace.

The complaints are legitimate; the solutions may not be. There are many schools, both public and private, which consistently produce qualified young men and women who are well prepared for college and beyond.

Educational excellence is based on a conviction on the part of administration, teachers, parents and students that the goal of education is the development of the whole person, not simply the completion of a task. There is value to learning — period!

Reading, writing and arithmetic are important, but so are the development of creative abilities, imagination and, for some of us, the religious traditions of our lives.

Our educational quest will not change with more government intervention, but a concerted effort on our part to change our way of thinking about education from functional to holistic. Business leaders on the local and national level must equally become involved in the efforts of schools. Their support is vital to the success of this conversion.

If we are willing to be role models for our children, our children will follow. They follow music and sports stars because there are no other role models for them. That is our responsibility! For if not us, who? If not now, when?

An answer

Catherine Passmore raised a question in her column on page 7A of the Feb. 24 edition of The Clarkston News.

I believe the answer is that we are in a society that is focused on self gratification. No rules or regulations. My satisfaction, my needs, my self expression, I am my own god. Forget about self discipline or self control because that might inhibit my self-esteem!

It is interesting that we can support a "Just say No" campaign when it comes to drugs, but when it comes to something that can be equally as harmful (and in some cases more harmful due to the psychological implications), we don't want to say, "No." We want to say,

If you had knowledge that a potential sex partner had AIDS, would you honestly believe that you could have 'safe sex" with that person?

And, yes, the Bible does teach us how to live in a way that will benefit ourselves as well as those around us. The Bible can bring us life in more than one way. Some may think that I am some religious fanatic. They can think what they want, but just think, what if the Bible is true? The consequences are more severe and longer lasting than

Raises amazing

Isn't it amazing? On Feb. 1, the Clarkston school district did not have enough money for maintenance of the schools and had to ask the voters to pass a bond issue for this.

Then on Feb. 8, the Clarkston Board of Education has enough money to agree to a 4.5 percent salary increase (more than the cost of living) along with other monetary improvements with seven unions. Just amazing.

Special thanks

On Sunday evening Feb. 7, seven dedicated staff members of Clarkston Junior High were working, preparing and decorating the school for the annual Theme Posters, bows and notes on all the lockers were just part of their efforts to get the message of "Reaching for Respect" across to the students Monday morning.

As parents taking part in this project, we were so impressed with the selfless time and energy this wonderful group presented. We were thrilled our son would be sharing in the thoughtfully planned week.

To Hanna Spencer, Stacey Schepers, Betsy Patterson, Jan Downs, Marge Dever, Vince Licata and Joan Hessell: a very special thanks for caring about our kids. We certainly appreciate it.

youth assistance groups

The Holly and Clarkston Area Youth Assistances were each awarded $2,500 by the Springfield Township Board.

On Feb. 11, the board voted unanimously to split its $5,000 budget for Youth Assistance down the middle for the two organizations.

Youth Assistance is an organization dedicated to preventing juvenile delinquency.

Manager hired to oversee construction

BY CURT MCALLISTER Clarkston News Associate Editor

Clarkston Schools has employed two county-based companies to act as the district's construction manager for the next two years.

A.J. Etkin Construction and the O'Brien Waterford Construction Co. signed a contract with the township Feb. 22. They'll be in charge of construction and renovation projects covered under the recently approved bond issue.

Their joint venture as construction manager was unanimously approved by the school board.

A.J. Etkin Construction, Farmington Hills, is one of the largest construction companies in Michigan. It presently has construction dealings with the Dearborn, Rochester and Croswell-Lexington school districts.

O'Brien Waterford was involved in the district's last successful bond issue, a $5.2 million renovation package

The two companies are jointly contracted for a sum not to exceed $640,000.

Last month, area voters approved a $16.1 million bond issue, which includes construction of a new elementary school, renovations and repairs to existing buildings, and upgrading the computer labs at all schools.

As construction manager, these two companies are in charge of: overseeing all blueprints and budgetary decisions, construction schedules, cash flow, the bidding process and surveillance of all work sites. As Tom Landry of A.J. Etkin explains, "We'll be the eyes and ears of the school district" during the construction process.

According to Superintendent Gary Haner, the construction manager cannot bid on any of the projects.

Despite their authority, all vital decisions, such as building configurations and major expenses, must be approved by the school board.

According to school officials, the planning process has already begun. The district's architectural consultant, Greiner, Inc., has begun surveying the site of the new elementary school.

Greiner, who's already under contract with the district, will be in charge of designing the new school, as well as other renovation blueprints. Greiner designed the new South Lyon High School.

Clarkston's new 500-student, elementary school is planned near the intersection of Bridge Lake and Holcomb roads, Springfield ownship. This building is to be completed by August 1 94.

City's noons may change from sounds of silence

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI Clarkston News Staff Writer

Jennifer Radcliff hopes to hear the same old tune at noon

Radcliff, who lives on Main Street, Clarkston, questioned the Clarkston City Council Feb. 22 about the absence of the traditional noon siren in downtown Clark-

The siren, located at the Independence Township Fire Department on Church Street, has been discon-

Radcliff said the noon blast is a Clarkston tradition. "As an historian and long-time resident, I'd hate to lose that," she said.

The siren was first used in 1952 to sound the alarm for volunteer firefighters. Fire Chief Gar Wilson said the siren is worth $300 to $500.

City board of review dates scheduled

If you have a question regarding the value placed on you property, the Clarkston Board of Review has set dates to review them.

The City of the Village of Clarkston Board of Review meets at the city hall, 375 Depot Road, 9 a.m. to noon and 1-4 p.m. Monday, March 8; 1-4 p.m. and 6-9 p.m. Tuesday, March 9; and 9 a.m. to noon and 1-4 p.m. Monday, March 15.

Any question about the value placed on your property may be reviewed with the assessing department. After reviewing, if you wish to appeal the assessment further, arrangements may be made for an appointment before the Board of Review by calling the Oakland County Equalization Division at 858-1861 or 858-1862. Use the parcel identification number when referring to your property so that your records can be quickly located.

The siren is owned by Independence Township, but Supervisor Dale Stuart has stated that the township would be willing to give it as a gift to the Clarkston Community Historical Society or some other non-governmental organization.

Clarkston Mayor Sharron Catallo said the siren is an important fixture in the downtown area.

'You know that I'm in favor of it. I really miss it. I live close enough to really, really hear it, but I do miss it,"

The council at first discussed where the siren could be relocated but later agreed with a suggestion by Rad-

"I think it's best for the siren to stay where it's at," said Radcliff.

The council decided that the matter should be first discussed by the historical society and then be put on the March 2 Independence Township Board agenda.

As of Clarkston News press time, the board's decision was not known.

Pre-festival concert features nine choirs

Top-notch vocal talent is on display 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, March 10, at Clarkston High School's Kirchgessner Theater.

The free "pre-festival concert" at the high school is a chance for six CHS choirs, two Sashabaw Junior High choirs and one Clarkston Junior High choir to perform before they compete March 18 in Howell.

In Howell, the choirs take part of the district choir

Grayce Warren, CHS vocal music director, coordinated the combined concert with directors Becky Linder of Sashabaw and Danielle Blanchard of CJHS.

Warren said the concert was a good learning experience for the vocalists.

"It's an opportunity for each choir to hear the different levels and literature," she said.

American History Month

The Liberty Bell, which hung in the Pennsylvania State House, was in use for almost 95 years: 1753-1846. It drew Philadelphia citizens to the public reading of the Declaration of Independence. It tolled solemnly during funeral services for John Marshall, chief justice of the United States. It was used annually to celebrate the anniversary of George Washington's birth. In 1846, a wide crack made the bell unusable.

He Never Turns Away

They come to him for help when they need it the most. Some numbed by their loss, some shattered, they say: "This is someone we loved. We entrust him to you."

And even when he's faced with the crumpled innocence of the youngest asking, "Why?"-and he has to find childlike words to answer a question that even theologians struggle with-he never turns away.

He gives them the consolation of tradition.

He shows them how to accept their tragedy with dignity.

He helps them cope with their grief.

He guides them back to the active world of the living.

He is a funeral director. He practices the most emotionally demanding and least understood of all the professions.

He faces up to traumas every day that most people only have to deal with once or twice in a lifetime.

He would never turn away.

He has earned the deepest thanks from anyone who has ever leaned on his compassion for support. Who turned to him and found that he would never turn away.

Howell sweet it isn't

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI Clarkston News Staff Writer

The final equation: 152 equals 34-26.

A crucial loss in the 152-pound division helped eliminate Clarkston from a state final team wrestling berth as Howell topped the Wolves 34-26 in the Class A regional finals Feb. 24 at Howell.

Clarkston reached the finals by crushing Flint Kearsley 51-12. Howell demolished Pontiac Northern 66-4.

Both coaches agreed that the turning point of the night was when Howell 152-pounder Brad Barron pinned Jason Roughton in 56 seconds.

"It was 152," said Howell coach Dan Minock.

"That's a 12-point swing," said Clarkston coach Mike DeGain, who has moved up Roughton to 152 to face Barron. The move-up benefited Clarkston's Jake Briggs, who topped Matt Clark 12-4 in 145-pound action.

The pin of Roughton, a state individual qualifier, was not without its controversy. Some Clarkston wrestlers and fans thought Roughton's shoulder was well off the mat.

Minock, who called the match "a big break," said he couldn't see the pin in detail.

"I couldn't tell. It was all the way over on the other side of the mat," said the Howell coach.

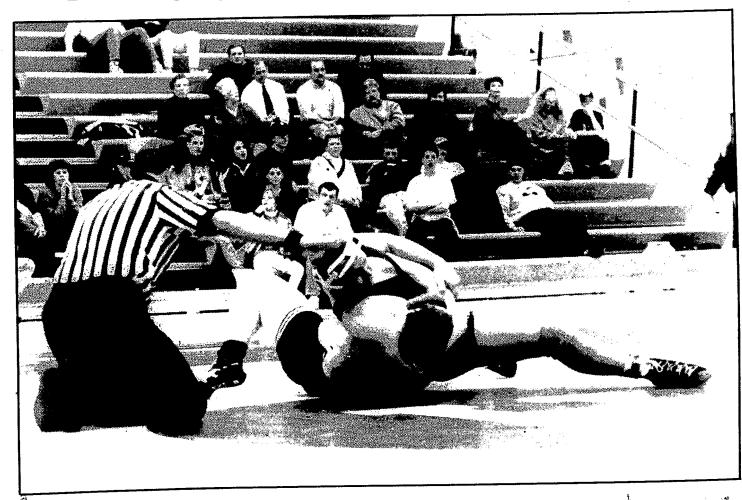

Clarkston wrestler Jerry Anderson didn't think Roughton was pinned but also said a team has to look past such calls and rally.

"You can never blame the officials. You have to overcome it," said Anderson.

Anderson also pointed out a few other key matches.

"We got stuck at 25 and we thought we'd get 30," said Anderson.

Howell 125-pounder Matt Schroeder pinned Jeff Farrand in 58 seconds, and WOLF heavyweight Jon Roy takes on Earl Christy of Howell. Roy pinned Christy at 1:54.

130-pound Adam Arnold edged Clarkston's Steve Locher in a 2-0 decision. Those two losses occurred after Clarkston had taken an early 9-6 lead.

The match opened with Howell's Tyler Rosen (1-3) winning on a void.

But Clarkston's Chad Auten (112) defeated Rob Wend 8-4, and then Wolf Brett Walter (119) pinned Pat Esper at 5:18

The win by Walter (replacing teammate Corey Grant who was disqualified from arguing with a referee in a previous match) was a special effort, especially since he had not wrestled for a month because of illness and not making weight.

Howell (20-1-0) regained the lead with the Schroeder and Arnold victories, but Clarkston took it back with three straight wins of their own.

Armin Michelsen (135) got past Kdon Le Chevalier 10.4; Anderson (140) toppled Ryan Lang, and Briggs followed with his win.

Barron's pin of Roughton was the first of four straight wins for the hosts, which clinched the team victory.

After Barron pinned Roughton, Bob McKenney (160) defeated P.J. Vandermeer, 15-7; Marc Allen (171) edged Joe DeGain; and Jason Steinacker (189) pinned Steve Hunkele at 5:36.

Clarkston heavyweight Jon Roy closed out the night by pinning Earl Christy at 1:54.

Wolves send four grapplers to state finals

BY CURT MCALLISTER Clarkston News Associate Editor

Seven Clarkston varsity wrestlers went to Bay City, and three returned as regional champs.

Jerry Anderson (135 pounds), P.J. Vandermeer (160) and Jason Roughton (145) all took home first-place medals Feb. 27.

In all, four Wolves have qualified for the individual state championships in Battle Creek March 12. Steve Locher (130) took third-place honors in his weight division.

The top four wrestlers in all weight divisions qualify for the state finals.

"They all wrestled well," said Coach Mike DeGain. "We were real close to have more than just the four going to state."

DeGain said all seven of his regional qualifiers advanced to matches where a victory would have meant state qualification, but three Wolves fell from final-four status. They were Joe DeGain (171), Jake Briggs (140), and Jake Brent Hummel (152)

With the state finals more than a week away, DeGain said he isn't going to train his quartet of finalists any differently from before.

"We won't be making any type of changes," he said. "We're going to go with what got the guys to this point."

Looking ahead, DeGain feels his wrestlers have a shot at making good showings in Battle Creek.

"I've seen the pairings, and I think all our wrestlers have a very good chance at doing well," he said. "When it comes to the state finals, it's all up to who gets up on the right side of the bed in the morning to who'll finish high. That's how evenly matched the wrestlers are at a meet of this magnitude."

DeGain thinks experience should help seniors Roughton and Anderson excel at the meet.

"They've both been here before and know what to expect," he said. "I don't see why they can't improve on last year's showings."

Last year, Roughton took second in the state at 140 pounds, while Anderson garnered a third-place finish at 130 pounds.

Wolf skiers get cold shoulder in Marquette

BY CURT MCALLISTER Clarkston News Associate Editor

The Clarkston boys' ski team traveled to the state finals with high hopes, but came home with an 11th-place finish instead.

Untimely falls and tough competition kept the Wolves at the bottom of the 11-team competition, said Coach Judy Roeser.

"We didn't do as well as we wanted," she said. "We had some of our skiers fall

"If you look at it optimistically, we're still the 11th best team in the state."

Coach Judy Roeser

early on, and Traverse City (High) was just incredible. They have a strong tradition in skiing and it showed that day."

Traverse City eventually captured the boys' title March 1.

Jennifer Curd, the lone representative from the girls' squad, also had a disappointing day. After taking fourth in the slalom at regionals, the senior was disqualified after falling in her first run in Marquette.

In their slalom, the boys couldn't fare any better than a 37th place finish by Brian Bovee (89.3 seconds). Other Wolf finishes in the event included: Dave Hartke, 40th (90.53); Mike Kozlowski, 45th (96.05); and Scott Trim, 47th (96.35).

The giant slalom didn't prove any kinder as a 37th place finish by Trim

(70.4) was the highest place the Wolves could muster. Other scores included: Bovee, 50th (73.14); Kozlowski, 51st (73.15); Hartke, 54th (73.54); Paul Rumph, 55th (73.63); and Brian Meloche, 61st (76.84).

Despite the boys' last-place finish, Roeser was still proud of their efforts and season. "Anytime I can get a team to the state ski meet, it's an honor," she said. "I'm really proud of the team, even though things didn't go the way we wanted them to

"If you look at it optimistically, we're still the 11th best team in the state," Roeser added.

Northwood stays in touch with Hovanec

BY JAMES GIBOWSKI Clarkston News Staff Writer

Jason Hovanec never touched a football during his three-year varsity career at Clarkston.

But that didn't stop Northwood Institute in Midland from getting in touch with the 6-4, 240-pound offensive tackle.

Hovanec has received an athletic scholarship from the college, signing the official papers Feb. 24 in the Clarkston High School library.

Hovanec's dreams came true.

"It's always been a dream," he said.
Hovanec, the second Wolf gridder to receive a scholarship (linebacker Steve Black plays at Central Michigan University next year), said he knows one of his skills that especially impressed

Northwood

"They liked me because of the speed of my feet," said Hovanec, who was also offered a scholarship at Wayne State University, Detroit.

Northwood offensive line coach Shannon Griffith said Hovanec's signing filled a need

"Our highest priority is offensive linemen," said Griffith. "We felt he had all the necessary skills to be a college lineman."

Griffith never saw Hovanec live in action but watched him on film in a game against Ypsilanti.

Clarkston head football coach Kurt

"They liked me because of the speed of my feet."

Jason Hovanec

Richardson said most spectators hardly notice lineman, but the films pick up their every move.

"The linemen never get recognized. That's where game films are so important," said Richardson.

Hovanec, whose scholarship totals $7,000 his first year but could increase in succeeding years, was originally interested in studying architecture or engineering but has decided to study computers since Northwood is mainly a business school.

If he has any problems with his studies, he can always get advice from his father, Mel, who owns a Clarkston-area computer business, Universal Data.

What does Richardson think about Hovanec never touching the football while at Clarkston?

The coach smiled and then said, "He'll probably not touch the ball again for four more years."

Clarkston draws Romeo in district basketball opener

The Clarkston varsity basketball team could find its road to a fourth consecutive district championship a littlier bumpier than years past.

This year, the Wolves enter a very competitive field, where two other teams own better overall records — Lapeer East and Holly

However, the host Eagles have drawn the Bronchos in the first round of the tournament, meaning one of these bullies won't be around to hassle the Wolves.

Clarkston has drawn Romeo, a team with a similar record, 12-7.

The district pairings are as follow:

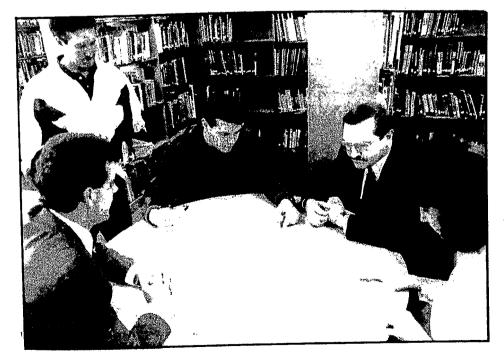

Monday, March 8 — Clarkston vs. Romeo, 7 p.m.

Tuesday — Lapeer East vs. Holly, 7 p.m.

Wednesday — Lake Orion vs. winner of Romeo/ Clarkston, 7 p.m.

Thursday — Lapeer West vs. winner of Lapeer East/ Holly, 7 p.m.
Saturday — Championship game, 1 p.m.

JASON Hovanec signs his letter of intent to play football with Northwood Institute next fall. Witnessing the signature (clockwise from Jason are) parents Ruthmarie and Mel Hovanec, Northwood Institute offensive lineman coach Shannon Griffith and Clarkston head varsity football coach Kurt Richardson.

CHS sails past Captains

BY CURT MCALLISTER Clarkston News Associate Editor

Clarkston took yet another step toward challenging for the GOAL title, with a 56-40 victory over Waterford Kettering Feb. 26 in varsity basketball.

The win over the Captains sets the stage for a showdown with league-leading Pontiac Northern this Friday night in Pontiac Northern (9-0 GOAL, 15-1 overall) defeated Clarkston (8-1 GOAL, 12-6 overall) earlier in the season for the Wolves' only league loss. The two schools split close games last year to earn a share of the league title.

Coach Dan Fife was pleased with the way his team fought off a determined Kettering squad.

"I'm pleased with our play," Fife said. "Kettering is a tough place to play, and their team is getting better with each

"We knew we had to win if we wanted a shot at a share of the league title." he added.

The Wolves and Captains played an evenly matched first quarter with Clarkston holding a slight 16-15 edge. The second quarter belonged to Wolves, however, as they held Kettering to only five points, taking a 32-20 lead into the half.

In the second half, the two teams played close, but Kettering wasn't able to overcome the deficit amassed in the second quarter and fell to defeat.

With the loss, the Captains dropped to 2-6 in the GOAL, 8-9 overall.

The Wolves were paced by seniors Matt Underwood and Nick Shires with 18 points a piece. Sophomore guard Jeremy Fife chipped in 10 points in the win.

Fife attributed defense, offensive patience and good shot selection as the keys to Clarkston's victory.

With the team surging, you'd think Fife would be confident with Pontiac Northern coming to town. Yet the coach remains reserved.

"I don't know if confidence is the right word," he said. "All I know is that I'm pleased with the team's play up to this point. With these kids, I don't think people expected a lot out of them, but we're in a position to grab a share of the title.

"That says a lot for the seniors and the players' characters," Fife added.

The game is expected to be a sellout, so patrons are encouraged to come early to buy tickets. The JV contest begins at 5:30 p.m.

Dance your way to fitness

Aerobics and dancing classes are offered this spring in Springfield Township.

Aerobic classes are offered 9:45-10:45 a.m. Wednesdays and Fridays, March 17 through April 28, at the Hart Community Center, Davisburg. Sign-up for one or two days a week. Fees begin at $20. Registration is required by March 10.

Line-dancing classes take place noon to 1:30 p.m. Wednesdays, beginning in March, at the Hart Community Center. Classes begin when a minimum number of 11 people have signed up.

Instructor Kathy Newman suggests participants wear leather-soled shoes. The eight-week sessions costs $42.

Register for classes at the Springfield Township Parks and Recreation office, 495 Broadway, Davisburg. For more information, call 634-0412.

School counselors — growing in importance to students

The role of the school counselor has grown immensely over the past decade.

Besides being an important helper who guides the student through career and college choices, curriculum selections and aptitude tests; the counselor is also a link for support services in mental health, crisis intervention, private therapy, family counseling and other social services. From responsibility to relationships, counselors aide the developing child in a variety of ways.

In our '90s world, these services have become more critical, and school systems everywhere recognize the need to support each student according to his or her needs. Such support enhances — and in some cases makes possible — the child's education.

Since last September, the Clarkston school district has been reviewing counseling services at the secondary level (middle schools and high school). Teachers, administrators, parents and counselors - under the leadership of Michael LaBay, deputy superintendent of instruction - have re-examined our services.

The team goals are to identify where the gaps are in Clarkston's counseling services and how we can fill them in. Oakland University's Dr. Howard Splete has been a consultant in the study.

An important part of the committee's work is to look at existing standards for secondary counseling as defined by the Michigan Comprehensive Guidance Program.

This Michigan "Model" is based on the Missouri (Gybers) program, widely viewed as the cutting edge in counseling standards. The Michigan-Missouri models identify four counseling service areas. Each of these areas is being examined by our committee as we restructure Clarkston services. The service areas include:

■ Individual planning. Activities that help all students plan, monitor and manage their learning as well as personal and career development. Includes appraisals of abilities, interests, skills and achievement; advisement and involvement of student and parents to meet student's needs; placement, transition plans, course selection, portfolio, career exploration, technical selection, college selection, and financial aid.

■ Guidance curriculum. Structured developmental experiences which are presented systematically from kindergarten through grade 12. Organized around three major areas: career planning and exploration, knowledge of self and others, education/ career-technical development. Includes classroom and group activities.

Responsive services. Activities which meet immediate student needs that might require counseling, consultation, referral or information. Available to all students and often student-initiated. Includes consultation with parents, teachers, administrators and community agencies: personal counseling on a small-group or individual basis for students expressing difficulty with relationships or development (i.e. divorce, loss and grief, new student orientation); referral to deal with crises such as suicide, violence, abuse and terminal illness.

■ Systems support. Management activities that establish, maintain and enhance the total guidance and counseling program. Includes activities in the following areas: professional development, staff and community relations, consultation with teachers, advisory councils, community outreach, program management and operations, and research and development.

It's fairly obvious that the Michigan-Missouri standards are high. We want Clarkston schools to meet these standards for all of our students.

Gary Haner is superintendent of Clarkston Community Schools.

From Our Perspective

Slashing bureaucracy

Doug Carlson

This is Innovation No. 2 from the U.S. News and World Report article entitled "The Perfect School."

Slashing the bureaucracy

Last spring, on the recommendation of a panel of Ohio corporate leaders, the 50,000-student Cincinnati public school system slashed its administration by 51 percent. Sixty-five positions, from assistant superintendents to supervisors, were abolished, saving the city $16 million over two years. In Baltimore last summer, school officials turned over the physical plant operations of nine public schools to Johnson Controls, a for-profit company that is maintaining the schools with fewer staff members.

One of the major obstacles to quality education has little to do with teaching and textbooks. Public schooling's vast infrastructure - from those who change the light bulbs to the bureaucrats who push the paper — has grown so unwieldy and idiosyncratic that is more often a hindrance than a support to education. Around the country, educators are scrutinizing everything from plumbing to supply requisitions, looking not only to stretch scarce tax dollars but also to improve morale that has been deflated by frustrations over the bales of red tape.

Distorted power

It is not just the size of the public education infrastructure that reformers find maddening; some of it is corrupt or just plain bizarre. For example, buried in the widely publicized Chicago School Reform Act of 1988 was a clause giving Chicago principals the authority to have keys to their schools; in the past, only janitors had keys, and they had the right to deny keys to their principal. A recent report by the Texas Auditor's office identified $640 million worth of inefficiencies in the state's public schools. It cited one Texas county that had 12 school systems -- with 12 school boards, 12 superintendents and so forth — that together enrolled only 5,000 students.

Despite the huge sums of money involved, financial accounting is a low priority in education. The Texas audit revealed that more than half of the state's 135 largest school systems had no internal auditor on their payrolls. "Many school systems have no idea how their money is spent in schools," says Robert Martin, an education expert at the U.S. Chamber of Commerce. "I can't believe that we've been making decisions in a $240 billion industry without that information."

In contrast, privatization is cutting red tape in Baltimore — and making schools more attractive places for teaching and learning. Shards of glass no longer litter the playground at Harlem Park Middle School, and the graffiti are gone from the walls. Bathrooms have soap and paper towels once again. Repairs that in the past took two years are now completed in days. Johnson also plans to invest heavily in state-of-the-art lighting and heating and cooling systems, having calculated savings (and profits) of $100,000 yearly on heating and cooling alone.

Educators view the assault on red tape, inefficiency and corruption as a way of paying for the substantive educational reforms that are so desperately needed. Cincinnati, for example, is putting much of its $16 million windfall back into a new social-studies curriculum and other instructional projects. On average, only 60 percent of public school funding is spent on instruction in schools, according to a new study by researchers Bruce Cooper and Robert Sarrel.

Many reformers see central office cutbacks as part of a larger philosophical shift. "We had too many people creating too much paper," says Cincinnati's Superintendent J. Michael Brandt. "If you let principals and teachers make decisions, you have less need for central administration telling you what to do."

Cultivating creativity

Cultivating creativity is perhaps the single most important boost any parent can give to their child's education.

Children who learn to tap their creativity have a natural advantage in learning and in school. So how do parents "pass this on" to their children?

To learn more, parents are invited to hear educator Lynn D. Proegler discuss techniques parents can use to cultivate creativity.

The presentation, offered free to parents, is sponsored by SAGE. It takes place at 7 p.m. Wednesday, March 10, at the Sashabaw Junior High library classroom off Maybee Road, Independence Township.

Proegler is the coordinator of the Center for Talented and Gifted at Eastern Michigan University, Ypsilanti.

American History Month

On Sept. 4, 1774, 55 representatives from 12 colonies gathered in Philadelphia for the First Continental Congress. Their meeting was not held in the State House, but in the smaller Carpenter's Hall.

Choosing that building was significant, for it contained no vestiges of British influence and was conceived and built by master craftsmen. In that building, all delegates were aware of those who worked with their hands, as well as of those who owned estates or held business interests.

District Court, Independence Township, on Feb. 26 on a bench warrant for failing to appear on a minor traffic violation, according to Detective Joe Duke of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

Upon the arraignment of the minor charge, Magistrate Dana Fortinberry continued the $100 bond set by Judge Gerald McNally. Strunk couldn't post bond, so Fortinberry order the deputy in the court house to take him into custody until he could be transported to the Oakland County Jail.

Duke said the the deputy placed Strunk in the court house lock up and returned to the courtroom to testify on another case

Allegedly, Strunk then forcibly kicked open the detention door, causing extensive damage, and escaped. He was apprehended at his house about 20 minutes later.

He was charged and arraigned on a four-year felony of malicious destruction of property over $100, and also escape from lawful custody, a two-year felony. Bond was set for $5,000 on each count. As of Friday he was at the Oakland County Jail, unable to post bond.

Strunk's preliminary exam is set for 9 a.m. March 8 before Judge McNally.

Tips for tracing family roots

BY VIRGINIA BLOCK

"Beginning Genealogy" is often intimidating to those wanting to document, purely for their own need to do so, the story of their family.

Delay in getting started many times costs us the opportunity to find valuable information.

The urgency to make contact with your most elderly family members supercedes any other and dictates the plan for your future success in compilation of your personal story.

Arranging to use a tape recorder, even a video tape, will catch many clues missed if just jotting down fragments of conversation with pen and paper.

If the desire to do a complete medical family history for future generations is the primary need, the video tape gives the opportunity to capture the visual aspects, and to collect data from more than one family member.

Reporter's notebook

During discussion of downtown Clarkston's noon siren at the Feb. 22 Clarkston City Council meeting, Clarkston resident Jennifer Radcliff quoted Fire Chief Gar Wilson, "People who are used to living in the city don't understand that you really don't have to pull over to the side of the road when the noon siren goes off,"

Items for Reporter's Notebook are compiled by Clarkston News staff members.

Self affirmation becomes a direct result of starting, with us to explore our personal history, and those whose lives provide us with the facts.

Even being adopted, which used to halt research early in the quest for documentation, is no longer a barrier to locating needed medical hereditary data.

Indeed, finding answers to serious medical problems benefits all of us in research being conducted with help from family histories.

You have to start with yourself, naturally. Listing your parents and known grandparents is usually not any

The birth dates, names (maiden for females) place of birth, death, (christening and church affiliation), places of residence need to be recorded on a "family group sheet."

To aid your efforts, we will give you a sample copy if your request is accompanied by a self addressed, stamped envelope.

Through this column, we will take you step by step through the process of writing your own personal story.

Gathering of material is begun by asking for answers to the questions you have regarding blanks on the group sheet following your attempts to fill it in.

It is always important to list (on the back of your group sheet) where, when and from whom you find your information — in other words, "Cite your source."

Patient meets his bone marrow donor

BY JULIE CAMPE Clarkston News Editor

The past two years have brought a lot of revelations to Steve Conley, 38, and his family.

The Hummingbird Lane, Independence Township, resident has faced death — and so far has won — and has discovered the strength and love in friends and family — and in a complete stranger.

It is the stranger who Steve can't stop talking about, especially since he met her for the first time, exactly one year after his successful bone marrow transplant. The marrow came from her: Carolyn Llorens, 33, of Atlanta.

It all began in August 1990, when a blood test in Steve's routine physical showed he had cancer — chronic myelogenous leukemia.

He had no symptoms. But tests showed immature white blood cells multiplying out of control in his blood stream, which eventually could hamper his healthy blood cells from doing their job.

At Harper Hospital, Detroit, in September, he began

"We thought about her a million times over the year. What do you say to someone who's saved your life?"

Steve Conley

an oral-type medicine to keep the cancer under control until a bone marrow donor could be found. He still had no symptoms.

He learned that his type of cancer would never go into remission. So without a bone marrow transfusion, he did not know how long to expect to live. Other patients had lived up to five years, 10 years and even 20 years.

"At the time, I had no insurance," said Steve, who now owns his own business — Showcase Apparel — and is a park deputy for the Oakland County Sheriff's Department. His friends eventually raised $23,000 through a golf benefit for him.

CAROLYN Liorens and Steve Conley share a laugh over a gag gift of two bones in two coffee cups during a party celebrating Steve's successful bone marrow transplant from his donor, Carolyn.

The donor search began in December 1990. None of his siblings matched. Seven others did not match. The national registry of donors showed four other possible matches. In August 1991, further tests showed that one of those four people in the U.S. matched perfectly.

The bone marrow transplant process can be risky for the cancer patient, so Steve and his wife, Cindy—a mortgage processor for Republican Bancorp Mortgage, Bloomfield Hills—delayed the procedure.

"We decided to wait until after Christmas because of the risk involved," said Steve, explaining that he wanted a happy holiday with his children, Jordan, 8, and Chelsea, celebration party one year after a successful bone marrow transplant, with marrow from Carolyn.

"If things progressed, I'd say, 'Go ahead,'" he said.

"I just didn't want my kids to grow up thinking Christmas is a terrible time of year."

While Chelsea was too young to understand, Jordan knew his father was sick.

"We never pulled any punches with the kids," said Steve. "They knew when I went to the hospital, I might not come back."

On Jan. 14, 1992, Steve began seven days of chemotherapy, designed to destroy his own bone marrow, leaving him without an immune system. The risky part began at this point. If the bone marrow donor were to change his or her mind before the transplant nine days later, Steve could die. Or if he were to contract an infection during that time, he would have no white blood cells with which to fight it.

(See DONOR, Page 3B)

Donor: 'The payback is so great'

Carolyn Llorens, 33, was just as pleased to meet Steve Conley as he was to meet her.

An architect who begins medical school at Emory University, Atlanta, in July, Carolyn said she originally had entered the national bone marrow registry when a little boy in her state needed a transplant.

She didn't match the little boy but was thrilled to be able to help someone else later, she said.

"I don't know why I did it really," she said in a phone conversation from Atlanta. "I had heard of the bone marrow transplant. ... When I look back, I really think it was fate"

She pointed out that there's a one-in-a-million chance that her bone marrow would genetically match perfectly with Steve's.

That and the fact that they have become strong friends makes her believe "it was meant to be."

She, too, was excited to meet Steve but didn't let her hopes get too high.

"I really had no idea that I'd be as crazy about him as I was," she said. "The emotional end of it ... I just feel like I found the other half of my family. I'm an only child, and I feel like I found my brother."

She likes Steve's entire family. "It's just been wonderful. Cindy (Steve's wife) — her strength through the whole thing has been a lesson to me and my husband."

Carolyn, the mother of one, said she would recommend being a donor to anyone who has the opportunity. She described the physical requirements as slightly more than giving blood.

She said she went to the hospital in the early morning and spent 1 1/2 hours under general anesthesia while three incisions on each hip were made. Through those incisions, they take enough bone marrow for the transplant.

"It's not fun a few hours afterward," she admitted. "You're pretty sore."

But that soon subsides. And there are other benefits.

"They treat you like a queen in the hospital," she said.

By the next day, she was out of bed and on her fect. "By Monday, you're pretty much ready to do anything, though you're walking around like an old person. You feel tired," she said.

But that, too, goes away. And then she was left with the knowledge that she may have saved someone's life.

"I would do it again a hundred times," she said, adding it was frustrating waiting an entire year to meet Steve and to know his status.

As a recipient, Steve receives the same allergic responses as his donor — so Carolyn knows exactly what "The feeling is like nothing I could ever imagine. It was the high point of my life."

Carolyn Llorens

will make Steve sneeze.

"I feel so bad about that," she said.

But knowing Steve and his family and friends has added much to Carolyn's life.

"I'm not letting him get away," said Carolyn. "I call him all the time and write him. He and Cindy are coming to visit. I hope we stay in touch the rest of our lives."

And she is grateful for the opportunity to help.
"The payback is so great," she said. "The feeling is like nothing I could ever imagine. It was the high point of my life."

Patient meets bone marrow donor

Steve still had no symptoms from the cancer, though he later lost hair from the chemotherapy.

"I was never sick," said Steve. "I never missed work. I worked until 6 o'clock the night before I went into the hospital."

And everything went smoothly. The donor came through, still anonymous through American Red Cross policy; the Jan. 23 transplant went as planned.

"Then it was just a matter of waiting," said Steve. He was isolated to avoid contamination. He was taking immuno-suppressant drugs, so his body would be less likely to reject the donor's marrow.

He had no adverse reaction to the new marrow, which coincidentally matched his own blood type. He was introduced to residents at the hospital as a textbook example of a bone marrow transplant.

Then — an infection from the catheter set in, prolonging his hospital stay, which proved to be the toughest challenge for Steve.

"The hardest part was going 56 days without seeing the kids," he said.

Through it all, family and friends helped. Steve's

"She's just an unbelievable person. ... After meeting her, one of my friends said, 'It's like kissing an angel."

sister took care of Chelsea; Jordan's hockey teammates provided rides for him; Cindy and Steve's parents provided rides to and from the hospital, as well as lots of moral support. Friends cleaned house and did yard work.

'It's unreal the amount of support we've gotten from everybody," said Steve.

Cindy concurred. "We couldn't have done it by ourselves.

They also received some good advice along the way. "A friend with acute leukemia said, 'You can't let it dominate you," said Steve, who took the advice.

"I would not allow it to do it to me," he said. "I never, ever gave in to the fact that I'd die from this leukemia. And I'll tell you what, it could still get me. ... But to this day, I don't think of it."

But he did a lot of thinking about that stranger who had shared her bone marrow with him. Through the Red Cross, he knew her first name, nothing else.

"We thought about it a lot," he said. "But it's really hard to write a letter - because they're censored for one year — to someone who's a complete stranger.

"We thought about her a million times over the year. What do you say to someone who's saved your life? We kept wondering what she would be like, where was she from. We tried to guess with our friends.'

One day, he went to the hospital for a blood "workup" and at the same time signed consent forms so that when one year had passed, he could find the identity of his donor, if she were willing.

He later found that Carolyn had signed consent forms the very same day in Atlanta. When the Red Cross faxed him her name and phone number later, he was ecstatic and a little nervous.

With all of his imagining, what if she were nothing at all what he expected? But he took the plunge.

"I called and, ironically, she was doing her interview to get into medical school that day," he said, adding that she was accepted.

"We were both relieved that we both wanted to meet and talk," he said.

They set up a meeting time. Carolyn and her husband, Hector, would fly in for the weekend for a one-year anniversary celebration of Steve's transplant. About 70 people would gather at Mesquite Creek restaurant in Independence Township for the event.

Steve was not to be disappointed in this perfect stranger. After meeting her, she was no longer a stranger, but she was still perfect in his eyes.

"She's just an unbelievable person," said Steve. "She considers herself luckier than me. If you'd have given her a million dollars, she wouldn't have liked it as much as the fact that she was chosen.

"After meeting her, one of my friends said, 'It's like kissing an angel.'

There's something about her personality that's infectious. It just brings a smile to your face to see her. She's so giving and so caring. There's nothing in this for her. She did it for nothing but the goodness in her heart."

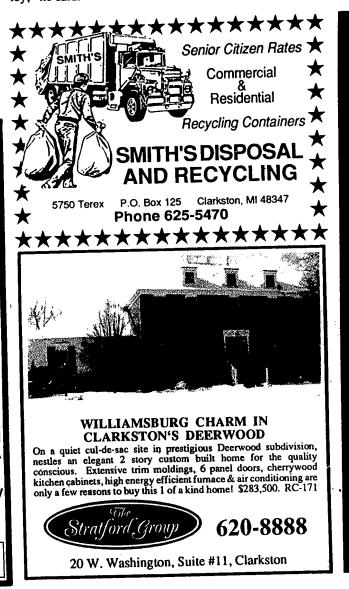

His wife Cindy agreed. "If there could be a perfect person, it would be her," she said. "She's just a wonderful person."

Steve and Cindy liked Carolyn's husband, Hector, just as much, as did their friends. The Conleys and the Llorens plan to visit each other again and call each other often. The friendship has expanded to include each other's "Her mom writes my mom — my mom writes her mom," said Steve.

All of this goodwill stems from that stranger from Atlanta, said Steve.

"She's the hero. This story is not about Steve Conley," he said.

Dental Care

Your pet's teeth are an important part of keeping your pet

- Gingivitis (or red inflamed gums) will cause tooth loss. Tartar & plaque build-up will cause gingivitis & bath
- Tooth loss will allow bacteria to enter the gums and the blood supply of your pet. This could lead to septicemia, which will cause heart problems & liver or kidney failure. GOOD DENTAL HYGIENE IS NEEDED FOR ALL PETS!!
- Brush your pet's teeth 3x weekly with a pet toothpaste.
- Use dental exercise toys, rawhides, gumbones, nylabones.
- Have your veterinarian exam your pet's teeth routinely!!

I Fail to Understand ...

By Tom Erickson

Binding together tightly, my hands, With leather straps and rubber bands. You make my love, But a one night stand. I fail to see the humor, You seem to understand. Gripping tightly your blue crayon, You draw a picture that you call, "Love and Man." Pictures you place into art galleries ... Collect the valuable trophies, From pictures you say you draw freely By hand ... Setting me free. You dye me hair blue ... Something that you say, Will always remind me of, YOU!

Tom Erickson resides on Hubbard, Independence Township.

Rockin' and reading

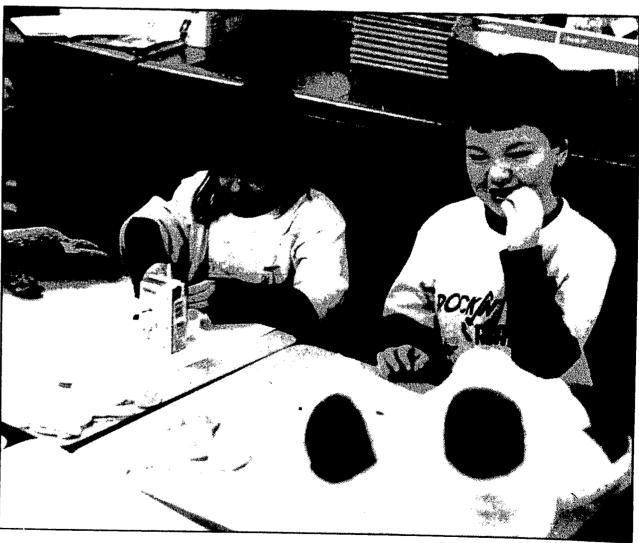

TEACHERS and students alike kicked off "Rockin" and Reading" month at Andersonville Elementary with an assembly that featured a variety of reading-inspiring songs. Throughout March, pupils will be given a number of free periods to read. They

of the supplement of weight

could see their room numbers on "gold records" if they excel in amassing a lot of books. (Photo by Curt McAllister)
