

Help wanted with Easter baskets

BY JULIE CAMPE Clarkston News Editor

Cash, canned foods and Easter basket supplies are wanted by volunteers at Lighthouse North.

The non-profit organization, which helps the needy in the north Oakland County area, plans to: fill Easter baskets with food for families and seniors,

provide traditional baskets with all the trimmings for children, and give flowers and cards to seniors. Director Sherry Kaar said they plan to fill about 400 baskets.

In February, Lighthouse North provided 1,389 services, compared with an average of 1,077 services per month in 1992.

"Every year it goes up," said Kaar. "The demands are really great. They just continue to grow.'

Fortunately, area organizations and individuals continue to help. "When there is a need, this community has been great about helping," she said.

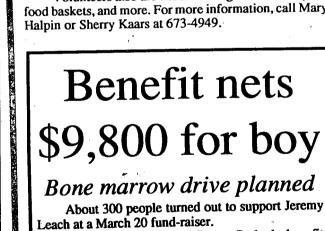

Mail donations to Lighthouse North, 5331 Maybee Road, Clarkston, MI 48346. The money will be used to buy turkeys, fresh fruit and other foods at bulk rates.

If you would like to donate food, Lighthouse needs canned sweet potatoes or yams, dry stuffing mix, canned fruit, cranberry sauce, breakfast cereals, muffin or dinner roll mixes, cake mixes and frosting. Items may be dropped off 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday, through April

For children's Easter baskets, the following are needed: baskets, grass, cellophane ribbon, stuffed animals, coloring books, crayons, small games and toys, candy, story books, and other children's items. They may be dropped off 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday, through March 28.

For seniors, the following are needed: plants, cards, small handcrafted gifts. Cards and crafts may be dropped off 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday, through March 28. Call 673-4949 to arrange plant drop-offs.

Volunteers also are needed to register clients, pack food baskets, and more. For more information, call Mary

Held at Waterford Oaks County Park, the benefit raised $9,800 for the 15-year-old Clarkston High student, who's suffering from leukemia. The dinnerdance was dubbed a huge success by volunteer Brooke McCall.

detective says gangs, more

Since the arrest of "The Family," a Clarkston-area drug ring, residents have been worried that there may be a resurgence of this group.

"The Family has been eradicated; it no longer exists," said Oakland County Sheriff's Department Detective Doug Edgar.

Edgar, who investigated "The Family," said that there is no indication that the group will start up again. Three members - Stanley Watkins, Jason Smith and Philip Laycock — are all serving time at the state boot camp, and Bryce Kidder has pleaded guilty and is to begin his one-year sentence in June.

The OCSD is always on the lookout for future problems.

"At this point none are believed to exist," said Edgar. "To our knowledge, there is no cult/ gang operating in Clarkston with the purpose of selling drugs."

"It was great," she said. "It seemed like everyone turned out on Jeremy's behalf."

The money will go toward the costs of bone marrow testing.

On April 7, the Red Cross and My Friends Care Bone Marrow Transplant Fund will co-sponsor a bone marrow drive for Jeremy.

The drive takes place 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Wednesday at the 1200 building on N. Telegraph Road, Pontiac. Signs outside the building will indicate the location of the blood drive.

Adults ages 18-55 are encouraged to participate in these free blood tests. All participants must consent to being included on a nationwide marrow donar registry, in case they're a match for someone else in need of bone marrow.

For more information on the marrow drive, call 858-0303.

Planners table sign request

It could be a while before the owner of a local Chinese restaurant finds out what he can add to his existing wall sign.

On March 11, the Independence Township Planning Commission tabled a request from Leon Tan, owner of the Wai Hong Restaurant in Independence Towne Square at the intersection of Sashabaw and Waldon roads.

The motion to table was passed 4-3, with Joe Figa, Steve Board and Richard Oppmann voting no. The trio had hoped to deal with the matter that evening.

Tan had asked that two Chinese letters meaning "very nice" and "good health" be crected on opposite ends of his existing wall sign. After a long discussion, it was verified that the addition of two, scaled-down symbols would keep the existing sign in conformity with the township's sign ordinance.

However, Board, Figa, Oppmann and Carolyn Place said they felt that just one letter would serve the purpose aesthetically. Tan argued that the two Chinese letters must appear together or the translation is lost.

Commissioner Dan Travis suggested that Tan come up with a single symbol that would convey his message of "hospitality."

Arkan Jonna, the developer of Independence Towne Square who accompanied Tan to the meeting, said he and the restaurant owner would try to come up with another option. Jonna suggested that the matter be tabled so they could research the matter further.

Used glasses wanted

Some area elementary pupils are helping those with eyesight problems by collecting used and old eyeglasses. The items will be donated to the Rochester Leader

Teens charged with local crimes

BY CATHERINE PASSMORE Clarkston News Staff Writer

Two Pontiac teens face life in prison in connection with four area armed robberies.

Daniel May, 18, and Mickey Petri, 18, have been linked to robberies in Independence Township, Waterford, Rochester Hills and Rochester. The two are also charged with the thefts of two Independence Township cars

May and Petri allegedly stole a car on March 9. It was later abandoned and recovered by the police. Then, on March 16, they allegedly stole another car and are charged with robbing Jerry's Gun Shop in in Rochester and later Carl's Party Store in Waterford.

The next day at 11:45 p.m., the Clark Oil Station at Sashabaw and Pelton was robbed. An hour later, a Total station in Rochester Hills was robbed.

Auburn Hills police tried to pull the suspects over and later apprehended them in Pontiac.

Wanted: Early issues of Clarkston News

If you have Clarkston News issues prior to 1932, you may be able to help preserve the town's history.

The Independence Township Library, with help from an historic preservation grant, plans to "microfilm" every issue of The Clarkston News. However, The News office library begins with Jan. 1, 1932, which was volume III, number 17, of the newspaper. Since records are missing, the exact first issue of the paper is unknown. Estmates put the first issue at Sept. 4, 1931, or possibly Sept. 13, 1929.

Anyone with missing issues of The Clarkston News is asked to contact Mollie Lynch, director of the library, at 625-2212. The issues will be photographed and returned to the owner.

A copy of the microfilm of The Clarkston News will be available for public use at the library.

They were arraigned in 51 District Court, Waterford, March 19, and charged with the armed robbery of the party store. Bond was posted at $100,000.

They were also arraigned the same day in front of Magistrate Dana Fortinberry in 52 District Court, Independence Township. Their bond was set at $215,000. The preliminary exam in connection to the armed robbery of the gas station and the two auto thefts will be March 31 at 2 p.m. in front of Judge Gerald McNally.

Arraignments in for the other robberies will be this week.

Police, local officials say problems are exaggerated

BY CURT MCALLISTER Clarkston News Associate Editor

Since its inception nine months ago, the Clarkston Police Department has dealt with numerous allegations involving the conduct of its officers.

Stories of racism, reckless driving and misconduct during pull-overs have plagued the eight-man force since it hit the streets last July. Chief Robert DeVore said these types of charges are indicative of a small town.

'Criticism goes with the territory," he said. "No matter what you do, you're wrong in someone's eyes. And in a small community like this one, incidents are often magnified."

Allegations of misconduct

One such incident involved area resident Charles Herring, a black Pontiac police officer, who was pulled over for moving violations on three occasions in one week last August. The first two incidents involved the same Clarkston officer, DeVore said, and a heated verbal exchange ensued during the second episode.

Upon request, DeVore sat down with the two men to work things out, but little was accomplished, he said.

"I sat here and listened to them rip into each other all over again," DeVore said. "In my opinion, they both were at fault. They both made some mistakes on the street, and their dispute should have never gotten to that point."

Clarkston Mayor Sharron Catallo said racism was never a factor in this case, as Herring reportedly claimed. "It was an unfortunate misunderstanding and not racially motivated," she said. "Knowing the situation, I'm just amazed that another officer would make these claims. I think hard feelings had a lot to do with it.'

Herring didn't return any phone calls to The News about this matter.

Another incident backfired on the Clarkston Police in February, however, when a Farmington man was ticketed for driving his van too slowly on Holcomb Road. Mark Eiden was pulled over Oct. 27 for driving 17 in a 25mph zone, and he received a citation for impeding the flow of traffic.

Eiden decided to fight the ticket and went before the magistrate on Feb. 2. In 52nd District Court, the officer reportedly said he thought Eiden might have been casing houses, especially since he was driving his van slowly.

The magistrate dismissed the ticket.

DeVore said he knew the ticket was a lost cause from the start.

"I told my officer that it wasn't a reasonable violation and that he wasn't going to win in court," DeVore said. "But, by the time I'd seen the copy, the ticket had already gone to court and it was in their hands.

"My officer went to court and lost it," he added. "In my opinion, it was a bad ticket."

Young and brash?

The officers' youthful ages have also been an area of concern for some residents in the community.

John Flack, manager of the Clarkston Cafe, wrote a and she have a set of the set of

City/village	Police	Population	Area	No. tickets per year	Ticket revenu (February)
Clarkston	Clarkston	1,005	3/4 sq. mile	1,670 (est.)	$2,345
Lake Orion	Lake Orion	3,057	3 sq. miles	1,762	N/A
Holly	Holly	5,590	3 sq. miles	1,668	$1,916 °

letter to DeVore in February after one of the officers allegedly did a U-turn on M-15 in response to a call. Flack said the maneuver almost caused an accident.

"Somebody's got to chill these kids out," Flack said. "These guys are on a revenue crusade instead of a peacekeeping one. They're like loose cannons out there and someone's going to get hurt."

According to DeVore, the average age of his officers

"Criticism goes with the territory. No matter what you do, you're wrong in someone's eyes. And in a small community like this one, incidents are often magnified."

Chief Robert DeVore

is 25. They are all state certified through a police academy. Clarkston's officers also gain an additional six weeks of field work under DeVore, who recently gained field officer training status.

Despite their ages, DeVore said his officers don't deserve the "hot shot" status that's been lumped on them.

When I'm interviewing for new officers, I don't go after people who are badge heavy, with something to prove," he said. "I don't have anyone here who's badge heavy or a ticket monster."

Tom McCloskey, a member of the Clarkston Chamber of Commerce, said he was dismayed by a statement made by DeVore at a recent Rotary Club meeting, where the chief was a guest speaker.

"That evening, Chief DeVore made a comment to the fact that 'there was nights he lay awake sweating bullets over what one of his rookies might do," McCloskey reported. "My God, if he doesn't have faith in them, how can we?"

DeVore admits making the statement, but said it was misinterpreted.

That was in the context to when our agency first began," the chief explained. "I wasn't getting guys with 15 years experience on the street applying for this job, so day.' Catallo also refutes rumors that the police presence is hurting business in the downtown area.

'I don't understand how it could hurt business," she said. "I don't stay out of Birmingham, whose police give tickets like crazy, because I might get a ticket. The presence of police should make shoppers feel more safe."

At a pace of 4.6 tickets per day, Clarkston Police will issue about 1,670 tickets in a year. This is comparable to Holly and Lake Orion police departments, which issued 1,668 and 1,762, respectively, last year.

In retrospect, however, both these departments cover areas of nearly three square miles. The Village of Clarkston, on the other hand, consists of less than one square mile. And in Lake Orion, tickets for moving violations made up less than half the 1,762 total tickets served last vear.

Statistics also show that there's no large margin in the number of people fighting their city-issued tickets, as compared to other local agencies.

"Tickets issued by the Clarkston Police aren't challenged anymore than usual. We find that 60-65 percent of all speeding ticket recipients ask for an informal hearing with the magistrate," said Jill Palulian, court administrator at 52nd District Court, Independent Township. "They're not unique to any other agency, such as the Oakland County Sheriff's Department or the state police, when it comes to the number of contested tickets.

Revenue on the rise

 In terms of revenue generated by tickets, Clarkston City Manager Art Pappas said $7,819.16 has been collected through citations since July 1992. However, the past couple of months have generated nearly half this amount at about $4,540.

Besides waiting until early September for his officers to be radar certified, Chief DeVore attributes the gradual rise in the number of tickets issued and revenue generated on increased manpower and patrols. He said his department has reached its peak in patrol time.

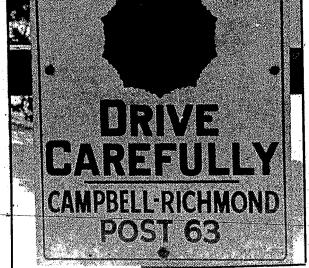

From now on, Pappas believes the city will average about $2,000 to $2,500 per month in ticket revenue. The revenue from tickets is usually obtained from Oakland County a month or two after the citation has been paid, Pappas said.

Catallo said this money isn't used solely to run the police department, which operates on a budget of nearly $135,000.

Oakland County records indicate that the city generated about $2,345 for the month of February through citations. In comparison, surrounding communities report: Brandon, $992; Holly, $1,916; Independence Township, $3,252; Springfield Township, $766.

Each of these communities, except for Holly, are serviced by the Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

Overall, Catallo believes the fledgling police force

SOME SAY this American Legion sign on southbound M-15 at Clarkston's city limits has a more ominous meaning than intended. I had to turn to kids out of the academy.

"So, sure, I worried about them. I worry about them now," DeVore added, "but not because of their abilities. I worry about them because they're like sons to me and I don't want anything to happen to them."

No ticket quota system

De Vore said his department doesn't work on a ticket quota system, regarding moving violations.

"We average 4.6 tickets per day for a 24-hour patrol, and, with most police agencies, I've been told that each officer should write at least two tickets per day for an eight-hour shift," he said. "That's not happening here, and I don't care as long as we're achieving our goal of slowing traffic.

"You hear complaints about the number of tickets we write and I have to chuckle because we're not overzealous," DeVore added.

Catallo agrees.

"I think a lot of people perceive Clarkston as a ticket mill, but that's not true," she said. "The police department issues (4.6) tickets per day, and that's not very many when you consider 17,000 cars pass through the village every is doing a good job.

"I think they've been very effective. They've done what we wanted, in the way of curbing speeding on Holcomb and Main Street," she said. "I've heard a lot of good things about them from village residents."

Looking ahead

Looking to the future, DeVore said he's working on a plan to re-route big trucks away from the downtown area.

"I'm working real close with the (Oakland County) road commission, so we can exclude roads like Holcomb and M-15 from the routes of these big trucks," he said. "There's no reason for these trucks to come through town; it's just more convenient for them. The commission has really been cooperative in trying to help us devise a plan to re-route these large vehicles.

"I'm not so bold to guarantee anything, but by the early summer we should have this problem resolved, so we won't have heavy trucks coming through this town anymore," DeVore added.

SPI names new publisher

BY JAMES A. SHERMAN Clarkston News Publisher

This week the job of publishing this newspaper is in new hands. The ownership hasn't changed, just the person who now has the title of publisher.

Actually, the name of the publisher hasn't changed much. It's Jim Sherman, same as mine. He's our son. Whereas I use my full name, he prefers "Jim" and drops the "Jr" at the end.

Jim, 38, has had no jobs not newspaper related,

Jim Sherman

Brush your pet's teeth 3x weekly with a pet toothpaste.

although he was part-owner of a silk-screen printing shop and is half owner of a sportsman's hunting club. Even in his years at Eastern Michigan University he had a newspapering job, a motor paper route.

He has been publisher/owner of his own newspaper, The Davison (Michigan) Index since 1978, and was that paper's publisher two years prior to that.

Jim was born nine months prior to our buying The Oxford Leader, May 15, 1955. He attended Oxford schools. He learned nearly every job there is in a weekly newspaper office, starting in his pre-teen years.

He stuffed papers, smelted lead, swept floors, took pictures, cleaned presses, delivered papers, etc.

As a publisher he has reported governmental meetings, attended the American Press Institute in Reston, Va., been active in Davison's Downtown Development Authority and involved in other activities.

The Davison Area Economic Development Authority named The Davison Index "business of the month" for February.

The Index is a 9,300 circulation weekly paper with a staff of five. As publisher of Sherman Publications, Inc. Jim will oversee the publication of three weekly newspapers, two shoppers, two monthly papers and a job-printing department, besides continuing to publish The Index. SPI has offices in Lake Orion and Clarkston besides Oxford, and a staff of 44.

He admits, "I'm a little nervous at the prospect, but I'm also sure I can handle the responsibilities and continue to make the company grow with the communities it serves.'

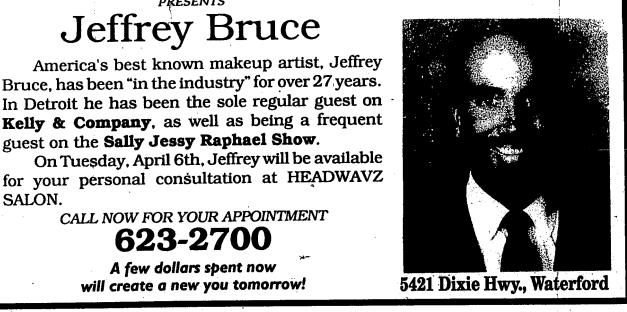

As for me, I'm sure Jim is capable of doing everything I do, and more. He's more aggressive and very aware of the needs of our company and industry.

I will work with Jim in the intitial transition, but will spend less and less time at the offices.

Jim and his wife, Linda, live in Davison. Linda opened her own travel agency, American Travel, in Grand Blanc last year.

Opinions

I've known my sister-in-law Shaun O'Brien since our days at Clarkston High School, so her recent feat should be no surprise to me.

Shaun, who married my husband's brother in California, has always been a one-of-a-kind person.

For instance, though she's a year younger than I, we played on Clarkston's tennis and volleyball teams together, and we may even have played softball together. She was a decent athlete, well rounded. But it was her attitude that stood out. She smiled constantly, worked hard and never complained. She was so coachable.

She was one of those people who did her best and when she wasn't playing cheered on those who were.

In summers, at volleyball camp, for instance, there would be hundreds of players from all over the state. But who would receive the special coach's award at the end of the camp? None other than Shaun. Always.

She accepted it with a smile and an unassuming air, as if what she did or who she was wasn't special enough to deserve an award. We all knew better.

Later, when she became an architect, she again didn't think it was a big deal, though the field still has few females. (She was the first Clarkston female to enroll in drafting classes in junior high school.)

And what inspired her to tackle that challenge? Well, she likes the field, of course. And because she can, she said.

Shaun is quick with a joke and likes to tell stories. However, I heard about her recent story from her dad and her husband.

Almost four weeks ago, she and D.J. recently welcomed their first child into the world — Theodore Christian Campe.

The day before Theo was born, Shaun worked until 6 p.m. at her architectural office. Theo was born around 5 a.m. the next morning, a Thursday. Shaun and Theo returned home from the hospital at 5 p.m. that day.

By Monday, Shaun was back to work, taking Theo with her. He sleeps for three of the four hours before lunch and three of the four hours after lunch, says Shaun, who admits she's fortunate that she can handle child care while at work.

As if that's not incredible enough, Shaun has been working weekends with her husband at a feed cooperative that he manages. And she has continued since Theo's birth (taking off that first weekend, of course).

Spring-like winter

Thank you to the Springfield Township garden store and nursery for adding interest to our long and sometimes difficult winter.

The free seminars on water gardening, herbs and cutting gardens and the yet to be held seminar on color for all seasons, made the winter brighter for both me and my 94-year-old Aunt Miriam. The seminars gave us something to do together as well as add beauty and a spring-like atmosphere to our otherwise shut-in weekends.

The seminars were delightful and refreshing as well as informative. You are truly an asset to Springfield Township and a joy to visit.

> Margaret Bloom, trustee Springfield Township

The Lapeer County Press did a readership survey. Columnist Len Ganeway says he liked the answer to one question in particular. "What do you like most about the County Press?" A reader wrote: "It's inflammable!"

They say history repeats itself, and we should certainly believe it when it comes to taxes. Whenever Congress has raised taxes it has increased spending. History will again repeat.

before tuning in any NBC program. Former NBC correspondent Marvin Kalb, now a teacher at Harvard, says, "Networks do not as a rule distort the news. They report the news. But they do make mistakes." Listen more carefully, Marvin. The networks are putting more and more opinion (which distorts) in "news" casts, sometimes just by voice and facial expression.

So, starting four days after Theo's birth, Shaun has returned to her seven-day-a-week work schedule. (When she has an appointment, Theo goes to work with her husband.)

• Just hearing about it makes me exhausted, especially considering that just a few decades ago, mothers were still in the hospital four days after giving birth.

Of course, a century ago (and even today in some cultures), women went to work immediately after childbirth, carrying their babies on their backs while working in the fields.

As for Shaun, her reasons for carrying on so were typical.

She started her heavy work schedule again so quickly because "I felt good," she said. "And I can, so why not?"

Why not?

Think about it! There has been no president of the United States worth a "Day" since Lincoln.

I heard on a talk show we should have a relationship with our food. Tonight, kiss you veggies.

President Clinton is promising a program to retrain laid off workers. Now a cabinet post will have to be established to determine what jobs have a shortage of applicants. Maybe our country should return to shovels and eliminate bulldozers, do math with a pencil instead of computer, etc.

Looked at the dashboard of a 1993 car recently. With all those gadgets, gidgits and guages it's gotta be tough keeping your eyes on the road.

To me a breakfast without meat is like a day without sunshine. Less enjoyable, less satisfying.

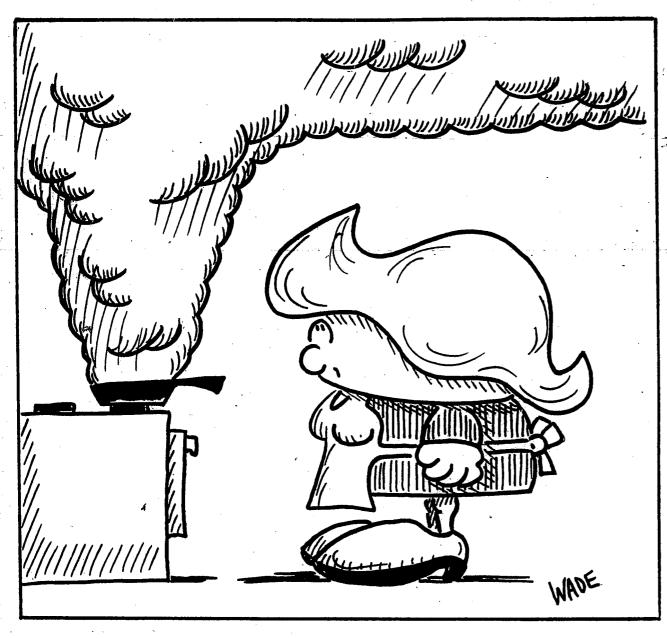

Since NBC admitted fudging the GM truck-crash story on Dateline and the Idaho endangered fish story on Nightly News, I've quit watching Tom Brokaw at 6:30. I also look at what other networks have to offer Funny thing, NBC apologized only after being caught. They didn't initiate the "we're sorry."

I like this advertising copy Richard Lederer has in his book, "Anguished English". "DINNER SPECIALS- Turkey, $2.35; Chicken or Beef $2.25, Children $2." And, this one: "Semi-Annual After Christmas Sale." And, "Illiterate? Write Today for Free Help."

Havenwyck Hospital in Auburn Hills says this about stress: "Ways to control- Talk positively to yourself." Do it out loud and they'll come after you. "Balance your life. Eat sensibly; lower your fat, salt and sugar intake." That would create stress in me. I truly believe in this-control Havenwyck suggests: "Laughter has tremendous health payoffs. RUDSIL'S SUBURBAN FACTS

There is an 84.3 percent chance that those periodic smoke alarm checks will not be necessary.

I have attended many weddings, but this past week I helped to get things ready for one.

My best friend Kim, as some of you who read my earlier column know, is getting married July 10 in Sterling, Ill. Being the maid of honor (and needing a vacation) I volunteered to meet the happy couple in Sterling and help with the wedding plans.

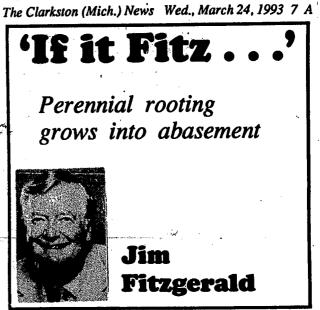

In the seven days it took to pick out the flowers, talk to the seamstress, alter her dress, pick out shoes and host a shower, I learned some very valuable information.

1. When you pick out the material you want to make a dress with, get the dye lot number. Next time you go to the fabric store, they may try to convince sembles Buffalo Bill, unless you want the father to know.

6. Always let the bride make the decisions and back her up 'til your last breath. It's her day.

7. Be polite and send thank you notes to the new in-laws and extended family of the bride. It doesn't hurt to do dishes, set the table or peel potatoes. You get big brownie points with the relatives, and it makes the bride look good, too.

8. The most important decision a bride-to-be has to make about the wedding is who the groom will be. Kim has certainly picked a wonderful and entertain-

A college student recently interviewed me for a paper he's writing on fossil columnists. One question was: "What was your most embarrassing moment?"

I couldn't think of one right off. Stalling for time, I accused the young man of asking an old-fashioned question. Years ago, it was interesting to read about someone's worst embarrassment. But today, according to such celebrity interviewers as Barbara Walters, people want to know the answer to such questions as: "If you were a flower, what kind of a flower would you like to be?"

I would like to be an unpicked flower. Picked flowers are sold cheap to idling motorists at freeway entrances and exits. The people selling these flowers are taking up public space that might otherwise be put to more humanitarian use by people carrying signs saying they are homeless. If I were a flower, I certainly wouldn't want to displace a person who had no place, dis or dat.

Also, I have a feeling that unpicked flowers are much healthier than picked flowers, which is what I tell vegetarians who frown at my pork chop while nibbling on the centerpiece.

My interviewer refused to be diverted by witty but meaningful asides. He said a person my age certainly has had some experiences too embarrassing to forget. I said a person my age is most usually embarrassed when it is publicly revealed that he forgets his phone number and the names of his children. And gradually we moved on to other subjects, which I've forgotten. Two days later, wouldn't you know, the Judge

Two days later, wouldn't you know, the Judge Kimba Wood controversy hit the newspapers, and I was reminded of my most embarrassing moment. It ticked around 35 years ago, and was so God-awful, in-thespotlight embarrassing I can't believe even I, acutely fossiliferous as I may be, managed to forget it.

Syndicated columnist Jeff Greenfield is a good friend of Kimba Wood, the second lawyer to lose President Bill Clinton's nomination for attorney general because of the now-infamous "nanny problem." Greenfield wrote many nice things about Wood, while at the same time acknowledging he probably shouldn't, because journalists should be objective and "separate their personal feelings from their coverage."

"No cheering in the press box,' is still the best rule," Greenfield wrote. And wham, my reddest-blush experience came back to me, vividly but, unfortunately, too late for my student interviewer.

During the first few years of my rural weekly newspaper career, one of my jobs, along with delivering papers and sweeping the office, was writing sports. I covered Lapeer High basketball while sitting at an old-fashioned wooden picnic table placed on top of another picnic table to afford me an appropriately bird's-eye view of the entire gymnasium, which was the size of a birdhouse.

While making notes and taking pictures, I yelled. I loudly rooted for the Lapeer Panthers and against their opponents. I had no idea I was breaking a cannon of journalism that said I should be an objective and neutral reporyou that there is no such color.

2. Always carry a swatch of material and an engagement announcement with you. You never know when you will need these.

3. Shop with someone you think is funny — it makes the time pass quickly, and making the decision whether or not to have stephanotis, carnations or roses for alter decorations doesn't seen so confusing or important.

4. It is not funny to add to a sculpture someone else has made — really it isn't. Jeremy made a sheep out of clay to use as a pattern for a Passover lamb. While he was out of the room Kim and I made an Indian to ride the sheep and little poo-poo piles behind it. He didn't find it quite as humorous as we did.

5. Don't comment that the groom's father re-

Conserved and Antonia some her in the advertise of the Antonia sources of the Antonia sources of the Antonia so ing (oops he hates that word — make that amusing) man. This was the first time I had spent any time with him, and I am proud to have him for a best friend-in law.

one cared. Until one splendid season when the Panthers were much better than usual, and made it to the regional final in the state basketball tournament. It was played in the huge, overcrowded IMA auditorium in Flint. I was seated, along with a dozen other reporters, at a long table close to the court. This was the big time.

Early in the first quarter, a referee blew his whistle, stopping play. No foul was called, and I wondered what was going on. The referee walked over and told me, and all the world. If I didn't shut up my rooting, he said, I would have to go sit in the stands with the rest of the fans. The ones then laughing at me.

That was my most embarrassing moment. Backward and Downward, which is the direction I would gladly have grown if I'd been a flower. A 8 Wed., March 24, 1993 The Clarkston (Mich.) News

From Our Perspective

Less-is-more curriculum

This is Innovation No. 4, from the U.S. News and World Report article, "The Perfect School."

Less-is-more curriculum

Teachers aren't assigned to departments at University Heights High School in the Bronx. And the school's 375 students don't roam from class to class during the day. Instead, the academic school day is divided into two twohour blocks and the faculty is divided into six interdisciplinary teams that spend a semester with 60 students studying themes like the American dream and global citizenry from different perspectives.

University Heights is one of a small number of high schools that are attempting to raise student achievement by teaching fewer subjects more intensively. The curriculum in a typical secondary school is littered with electives, and in many classrooms teachers race from one topic to another in a frenzied attempt to get through overstuffed course outlines by June. A failure to set priorities in the U.S. high school curriculum has resulted, among other things, in textbooks so crammed with topics that they deal with none of them in depth.

"Teaching in U.S. school trivializes by being superficial," says Theodore Sizer, a leading school reformer. "Even in hotshot high schools, the quality of students' writing makes it clear that something is wrong. Kids need to write and rewrite and rewrite. That takes time." Sizer is highly critical of the chaos in the typical curriculum, where "math is unrelated to science is unrelated to French." The solution is to teach fewer subjects in greater depth and better illuminate the connections between them. Says Sizer; "Less is more."

Seeds of learning. This fall, a team of four University Heights teachers and 60 students concentrated on the theme "seeds of change" — the Colombian exchange of plants and animals between Europe and the Americas during the Age of Discovery. The "seeds" — corn, sugar cane, horses — became a vehicle for studying botany, chemistry, geography, economics, politics, math, history, literature and art. University Heights students study a new theme with a new faculty team every semester through graduation.

Lengthier classes and interdisciplinary teaching draw students deeper into the subject matter. "In a traditional curriculum, you memorize Columbus's name and 1492," said science teacher Luis Reyes, a member of the "seeds" team. "Here, students are putting facts together — they understand the relationships of the information they are learning." To students, the University Heights teaching method is more demanding but ultimately more rewarding. "It puts responsibility on you to learn," says junior Amy Sabater.

Measure for measure. This approach to curriculum reform has demonstrable benefits. A study by two UCLA researchers of an interdisciplinary curriculum in 29 Los Angeles schools found that students in the program wrote better than their peers, had a stronger grasp of abstract concepts and, as a group, were absent from school less and dropped out at a lower rate. Such results are another argument against comprehensive high schools and their sprawling course offerings. Says Sizer: "Schools don't need to offer six foreign languages. You learn a language to learn how to see the world through a different linguistic lens. In that sense, it doesn't matter what language you study."

But Sizer's less-is-more philosophy requires teachers who are better grounded in their subject than most now are. Seventeen percent of all U.S. public high school teachers have less than a college major or minor in the subjects they teach most frequently, according to the U.S. Department of Education. That number is much higher among science and math teachers. For an interdisciplinary curriculum to be adopted widely, states would have to drop the requirement that teachers hold a degree in education — and insist instead that they bring a solid academic grounding to the classroom.

Stop loitering, but don't move booths

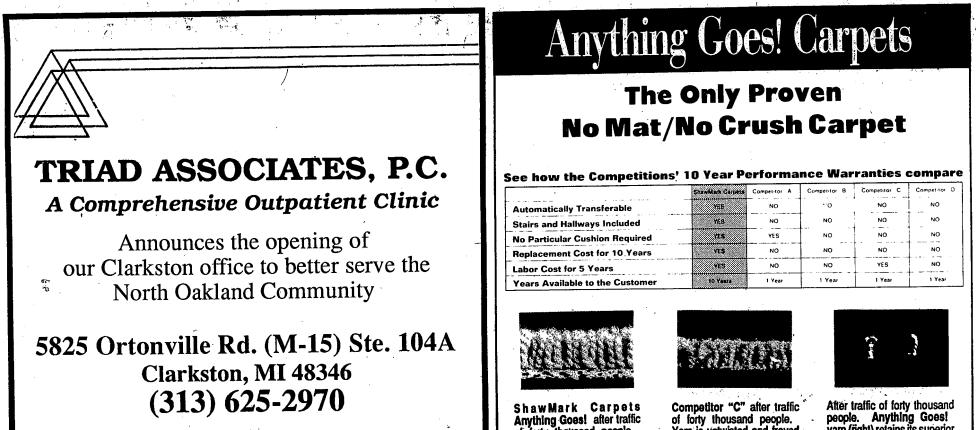

I generally refrain when responding to newspaper articles but felt compelled in this situation.

The case of the teen-agers congregating at the Main Street phone booths late at night intrigued me. The suggestion to remove any or all of the phones as a possible determent made no sense to me at all.

If we as citizens use this mentality to solve the problem, we should be thankful. Afterall, what if they were congregating in the intersection? Would me move the road?

Just nip it in the bud!

Fire destroys Springfield home

It took firefighters an hour to control a blaze that destroyed a Springfield Township home on March 15.

The fire on Hidden Trail was reported at 5:30 p.m. by a neighbor. Fire Chief Marlan Hillman said the neighbor had seen smoke on the way home and thought it may be her house. She noticed smoke at the home across the street, went to see if anyone was home and couldn't see inside because of the smoke.

By the time firefighters arrived, the garage, where the fire began, was gone and the fire had spread up the back of the three-story home. Groveland and Independence Township firefighters assisted.

Hillman said no one was in the house and none of the firefighters were injured while extinguishing the fire. He said the house was a total loss, with $250,000 damage. The fire has been listed as "accidental unknown," since the source couldn't be found.

Tuesday morning the house rekindled from a pocket of fire that had been missed when the firefighters cleaned up Monday. The Springfield firefighters took care of the rekindling themselves with no injuries.

First alarm

Prevent explosions

Would you keep a bomb in your basement, garage, car or inside of your home? The Independence Township Fire Department is sure you wouldn't, but you might be doing something as dangerous without knowing it.

Flammable liquids, such as gasoline, are serious hazards we keep routinely around our homes. A single gallon of gasoline packs the same wallop as 10 sticks of dynamite. Yet we don't' use enough care when using

If I had to explain the process involved in writing a book, I would most closely associate it with the raising of a very difficult child.

In my case, the kid was especially obnoxious, causing me to spend sleepless nights watching after it and tired days catering to its needs.

My friends, Dave and Doug, and I decided it might be fun to write a book about baseball. We considered ourselves fairly knowledgeable on the subject, so armed only with our piercing insight and native wit, we set forth.

Our first problem was the sheer magnitude of the task. We had decided which players were worth writing about. Of course, this only came out to about an even 1,000.

Three people writing about 1,000, with the depth of research involved, was nearly a joke. Our underestimation cost us about one month over our deadline.

Our second adversary was man's best friend, the computer. While Dave and Doug had fewer problems, I was delighted to find that my IBM had a penchant for swallowing whole teams of players which were never seen again. At an outside guess, I wrote the essays on the Oakland A's about three and a half times.

From there, things escalated. We estimate that the book cost about $5,000 to print. I estimate that I spent nearly twice that in the four months when I drove back and forth to Dave's home in Lansing every day.

If you, the reader, were to buy the book, you might read it in completion about four times over the course of several years. I read it 10 times in three days. I now hate to read my own writing. When I write my name on a check, I'm filled with a sense of repulsion. This book has ruined me.

Of course, my rantings shouldn't sway you from purchasing this sage tome. I deeply feel that it shall one day stand as the baseball bible (or at least sell more than 200 copies as it has this year).

In conclusion, I'd like to thank the entire staff of The Clarkston News, first for putting up with my frequent tardiness and absence, and second for allowing me to shamelessly plug my work in your pages.

Anyone can be seriously hurt or killed by flammable liquids. Men and boys ages 9-35 are most likely to be victims. Caution can prevent these accidents.

Some of the most typical accidents involving flammable liquids happen when we use gasoline to clean something or to start a fire, fuel an engine while it's too hot, smoke while fueling an engine.

They also can occur when spraying lighter fluid on a barbecue that's already starting to burn; by storing paint thinner or gasoline in jars and using them in enclosed areas; by using glue, hair spray or nail polish near a lit cigarette or other heat source.

None of these accidents needs to happen if people respect flammable liquids. Remember, when these fuels ignite, they don't burn — they explode. Be extra careful. Don't use or store gasoline or other flammables in an enclosed area or where there are pilot lights or spark sources to ignite them. Keep them stored in containers approved for storage by Factory Mutual or Underwriters Laboratories. Use a tight-fitting lid at all times, and keep the materials where they can't be reached or even seen by children. Never bring gasoline into a house.

Gasoline is not for cleaning. Too often we hear about explosions that happen when someone is cleaning an old motor in a home or apartment with gasoline. Don't do it.

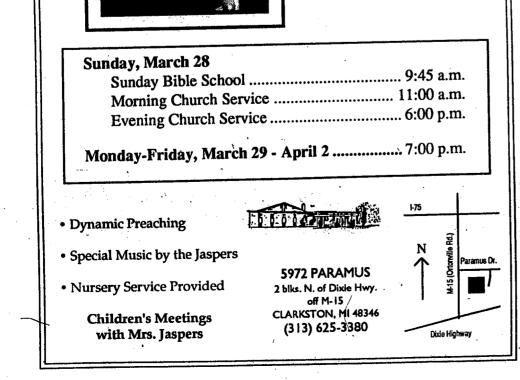

Never refuel an engine while you're smoking or. while the engine is running or still hot from running. Don't siphon gasoline with your mouth --- use a handoperated pump designed for that purpose. Remember, vapors from flammable liquids will drift far from their source without you realizing it, so extend your caution area to a large area around the location of actual liquid.

If gasoline spills on your clothing, wash the garments immediately. Flammable vapors can hang in clothing and ignite or explode later. Letting the clothing dry is not enough.

Don't smoke while using any glue, nail polish or hair spray. Extra care is important when you're dealing with a bomb.

School officials blew it big time

Once again, after much begging, pleading, promising, chastising and confusing the public, the majority of voters caved into these tactics and passed a school bond issue.

History is repeating itself. With new money in hand, the school board votes outlandish raises in pay for administrators.

This happened time and time and time again. And the students end up with next to zilch.

Now who is thinking of the Clarkston students and putting them first?

The administration and board really blew it big time.

The Clarkston (Mich.) News Wed., March 24, 1993 11 A They could have put a feather in their hats, restored trust, admiration and confidence in themselves from the voters had they taken a pay freeze in this economically down period.

and a second s

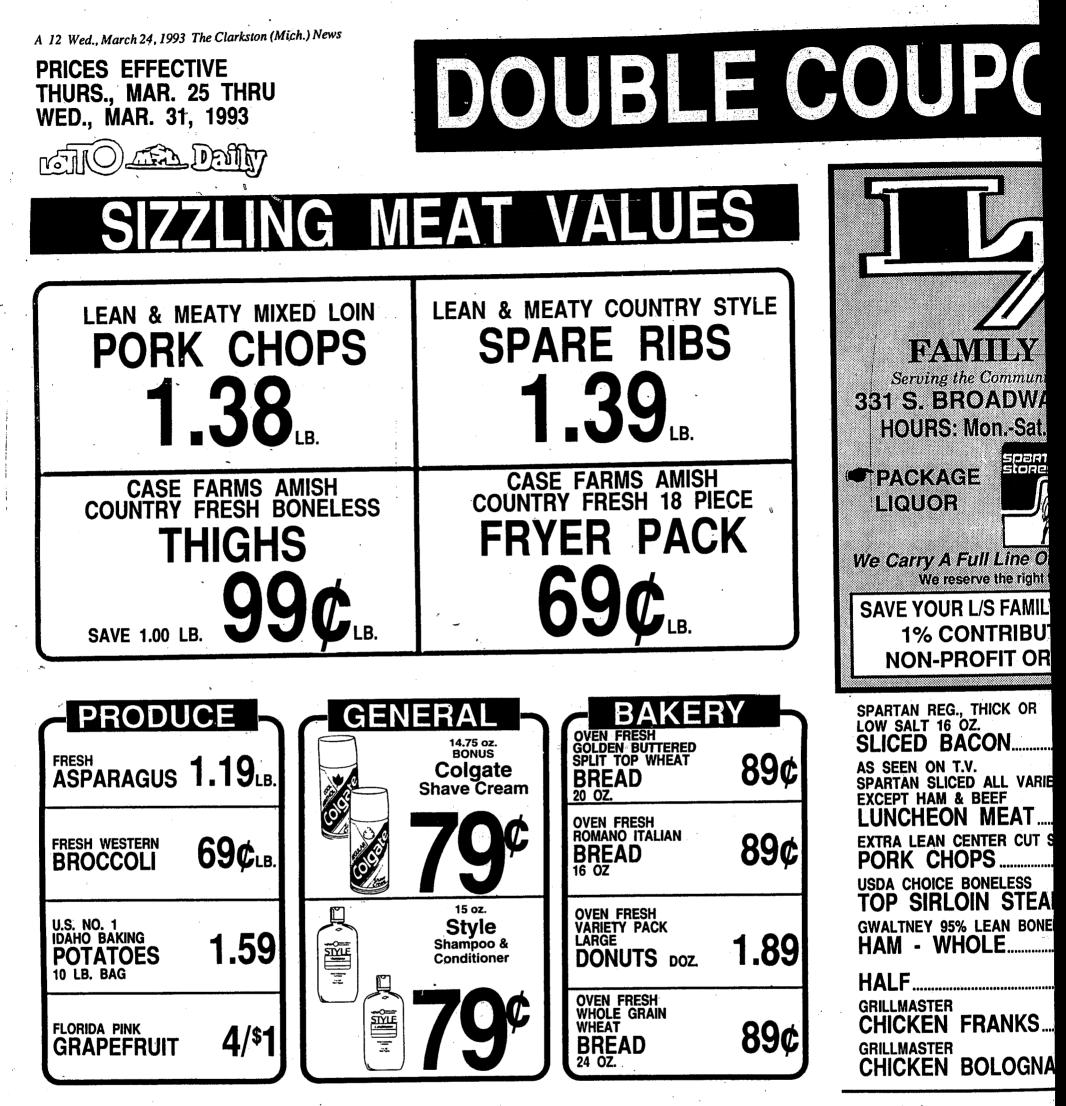

If they had taken a pay freeze, possibly the staff would have followed suit.

I feel that this action would have been a start for the district to dig themselves out of this financial hole and prove that everyone is putting the students first.

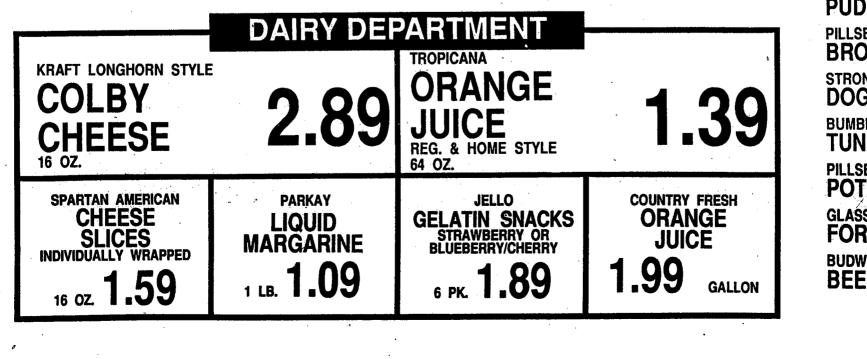

But instead, I feel that very, very, very shortly the process will once again begin. The voters will be approached for more money for operation and maintenance with more begging, pleading, worthless promises, chastisement and confusion, so that administrator and staff wages can be raised again while the rest of us are losing jobs, remain on fixed incomes, take freezes and even cuts in pay in order to keep a job.

Five teams claim league championships

The Independence Township Parks and Recreation basketball league came to a close this past weekend with five teams claiming divisional titles.

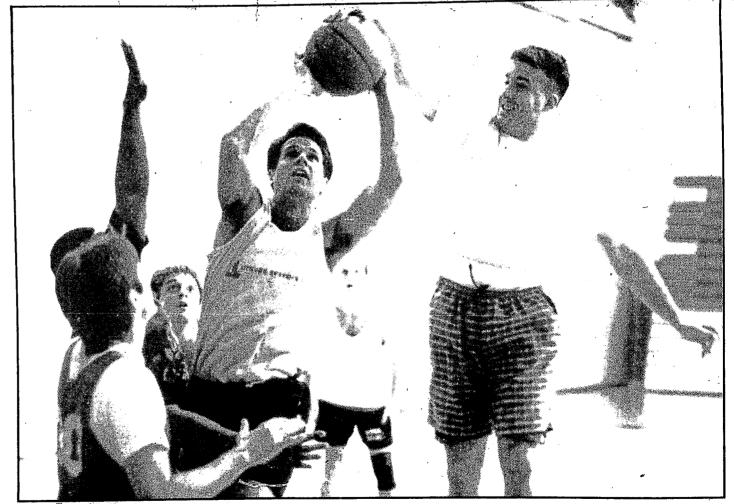

The top four teams in each division participated in a playoff, with the winners meeting in the finals on Sunday.

In the Pony League finals, the Young Guns defeated the Sugar Hill gang 65-47. Dan Scheib paced the Young Guns with 18 points. Other top playoff performances were turned in by Eric Ryan of Pigzz in Space with 20 points and Ryan Karlstrom with 17 points for the Guatamala Rainbows.

In the adult league, Ted's beat Huttenlocher Insurance in the lower division finals, 63-59. Ted's was led by Scott Falconer with 27 points.

In the mid south division, Village Place trounced Buddys, 66-44.

In the mid north division, Pontiac

Local woman finds success in running

Dental hygienst to compete at Boston Marathon

BY CURT MCALLISTER Clarkston News Associate Editor

A wise man once wrote that "middle age is when the best exercise is one of discretion."

Apparently, he never met Darlene Smith.

At 48, this Clarkston resident is one of the area's most successful road racers, as well as an experienced triathalete. What's even more remarkable is that she started training only three years ago.

"It started when a few friends and I decided to train for some triathalons because we were impressed by these multievent competitions like the Iron Man," Smith said. "We figured it would be a great way to get into shape and compete at the same time.

"I just never dreamed I'd be so successful at running," she added.

Since 1990, this local dental hygienist has competed in nearly 50 road races, capturing some sort of award at each competition. Regardless of the distance, she usually places first in her age group (45-49) and takes home the master's division trophy for all female competitors over 40 years of age.

Two of her biggest victories include taking first in her age division at the Volkslaufe Run in Frankenmuth and winning the master's trophy at the 1992 Bobby Crim Run, Flint. Her impressive finishes last year were also cited by Michigan Runners Magazine, an annual publication which covers the state's road racing scene.

She was mentioned three times in three different distances for her age group. "It was a big thrill for me," she said,

"considering I'd just started running competitively two years prior."

Smith also fulfilled a dream this past fall when she ran in the 26.2-mile Detroit Free Press Marathon. Even though it was her second marathon ever, she placed seventh in her age group and earned a medal.

DARLENE SMITH, 48, of Clarkston is a very active person. Her athletic endeavors include road racing and triathalons.

ers. Later this summer, she'll also compete in the Great Lakes Team Relay July 16-18.

This competition features several 10person teams running from Tawas City to Empire. The three-day race covers nearly 325 miles.

Besides road racing, Smith intends to continue competing in Olympic-style triathalons, which include a one-kilometer swim, a 30-kilometer bike ride and a 10kilometer run. Training every day at her health club, Smith follows a regimen of

"I've already participated in one longdistance triathalon, which is about half an Iron Man, so I know what to expect," she said. "But, by working full-time, it'd be hard to sufficiently train for an event of that magnitude.

"A lot of variables would have to fall into place for this to happen, but anything's possible," Smith added.

Better yet, she qualified for the Boston Marathon in the process.

"I just made it," she said. "You had to finish in under three hours and 54 minutes to qualify and I came in at 3:53.

"The conditions were terrible that day — cold and rainy," Smith added, "but qualifying for Boston made it all worth while."

Smith said she's honored to be running in the country's most celebrated marathon, which is slated for April 19. "I'm really looking forward to it," she said. "It's the goal of any long-distance runner. It'll definitely be the place to be."

She also runs 30-40 miles a week in and around the Clarkston area.

Wrestlers fare well in Ohio

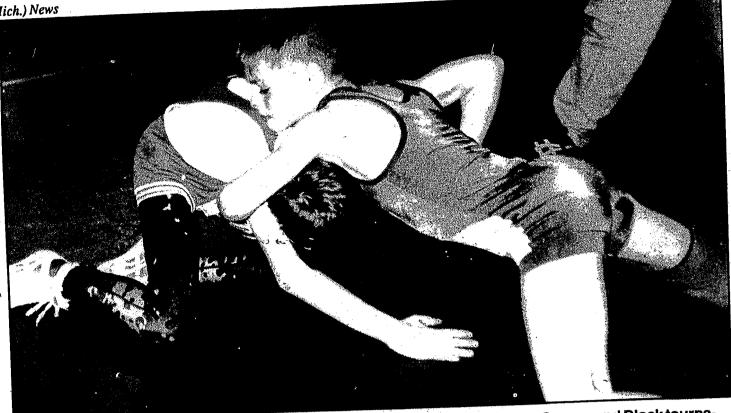

The Clarkston Wrestling Club took 20 of its members to Liberty Center, Ohio, for the Orange and Black individual tournament and came home with seven trophies.

Held March 19-20, the meet involved 550 wrestlers from nearly 70 clubs in Michigan and Ohio. Wrestlers earning first-, second- and third-place honors were awarded trophies for their efforts.

Chris Webb at 64 pounds, Dave Endreszl at 67 pounds, and 74-pound Ryan McAleer won their respective divisions and were given 19-inch championship trophies. This trio had to wrestle between five and seven matches to earn the top award.

Second-place trophies were collected by Andy Auten, 91 pounds, and 185-pound Mark Kotschedoff. Ryan Victory, 78 pounds, and 130-pound Scott Labrie took home third place trophies.

Other Clarkston finishes included: Eric Losee, 77 pounds, seventh; David Geliške, 88 pounds, sixth; Ryan Mick, 91, fourth; Richard Geliske, 98, sixth; Franco Vega, 105, fourth; Robert Geliske, 106, fifth; Mark Endreszl, 113, seventh; Jay Richardson, 120, fourth; Chad Auten, 130, fifth; Josh Lafferty, 130, sixth; Jeremy Lafferty, 140, seventh; Jason Frack, 140, eighth; Adam Griffith, 170, seventh.

Turner wins; Broncos lose

Junior Keith Turner of Clarkston and a member of the Western Michigan University men's tennis team won his doubles match March 21, as the Broncos lost to Northern Illinois University 5-2.

Playing at No.2 doubles, Turner and partner Les Smith defeated thier opponents 8-6. The doubles were played in a pro set format where the winner is the first one to eight in one set.

Turner has a 12-11 overall singles record and a 12-8 doubles record. Western, 8-3 in dual meets this season, will host Northwood Institute Saturday, March 27.

Reed earns postseason honors

Reggie Reed of Springfield Township was lauded recently at Alma College's basketball team awards banquet.

The Clarkston High alumnus was named the team's top defensive player, while sharing the captain's award with teammate Colon Lewis.

Reed, a junior, was given honorable mention status on the All-Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association team this season. He led the conference in freethrow shooting and ranked among the leaders in three-point accuracy and scoring with a 12.1 average.

The Scots were 9-16 on the season.

ERIC KLEMM, 11, placed third in the Michigan Elks "Hoop Shoot" Finals. The sixth-grader at St. Stephen's Lutheran School in Waterford made 19 of 25 free throws.

He shoots; he scores; he wins

Eric Klemm shot 19 free throws and placed third in the Michigan Elks "Hoop Shoot" contest.

The sixth-grader at St. Stephen's Lutheran School in Waterford is the son of Paul and Tina Klemm of Bronco, Independence Township.

During competition at Rochester-Adams High School Feb. 13, each of the children were allowed 25 free throws. The three with the top scores were awarded trophies.

The contest marked the third round of competition in the 21st Annual Elks National Hoop Shoot Contest. It was originated as a local youth program by Corvallis, Oregon Elks in 1946, and is in its 21st year of national competition.

Over 125,000 boys and girls participated in Michigan this year in 75 local Elks Lodge cities statewide, and over 3 million will participate nationally.

Think!

The Oakland County Sheriff's Department was tipped off about a party that required a cover charge and would include underage drinking.

According to the invitation that was faxed to the OCSD, the party was to be March 19 at a home on Sashabaw Road. Party-goers were asked to pay $5 if they were going to drink alcohol and $3 if they weren't.

In an effort to stop the party, the police contacted the 17-year-old host and told him that they knew about the invitations. The Birmingham youth told police that he had recalled the invitation and was having about 20 people over for pizza and pop. The police told him that deputies would go by the house on March 19 to make sure he was telling the truth.

On that night, police found 30-40 cars parked on the lawn around the house and over 100 teens drinking alcohol. The kids were all sent home after they were checked out by the police, and the host was issued a ticket for violating the township's host ordinance, which holds the host responsible for underage drinking.

Board OKs bond sale

The Clarkston school board unanimously approved the sale of $22,100,192 in bonds March 22.

The money from these bonds will be used to pay for the projects covered under the $16.1 million bond issue passed last month. The remaining $6 million reflects existing, outstanding bonds from other bond issues, such as the $5.2 million proposal passed in 1988.

The projects covered under the most recent bond issue include: the construction of a new elementary school at Holcomb and Bridge Lake roads, renovating all existing school buildings and upgrading the computer labs in all the schools.

The bonds were sold to Kemper Securities, Chicago, which in turn will sell them to market investors. The schools will have to pay 5.83 percent interest on the bonds to a holding bank. The district is scheduled to pay on these bonds until 2016.

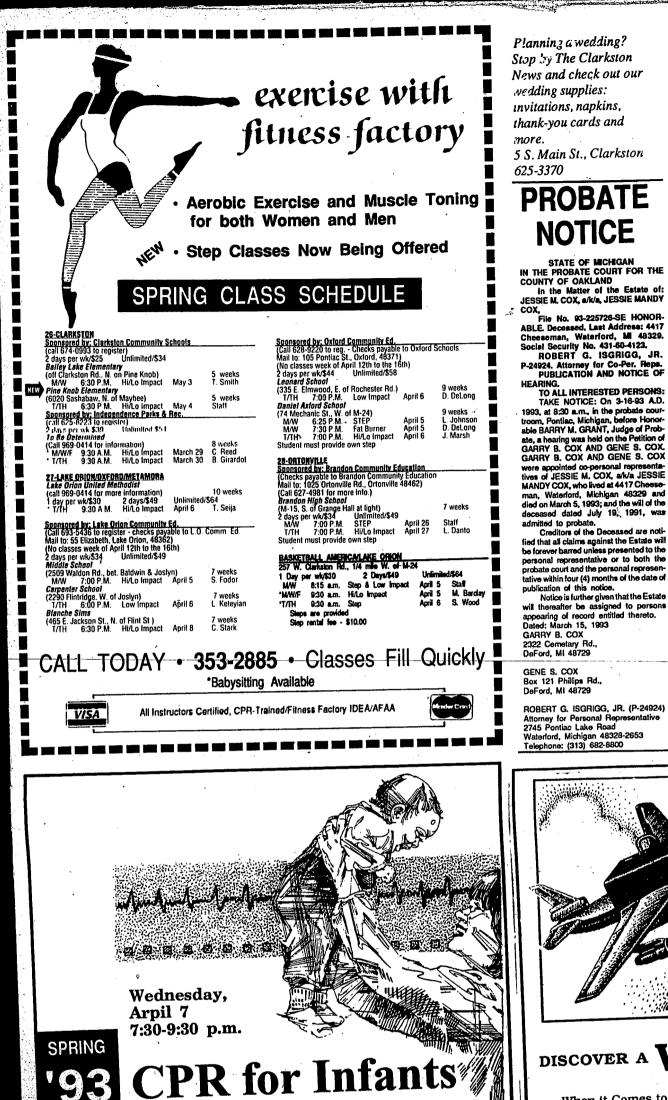

Clarkston schools should receive the bond money by April 7, said Steve Lenar, deputy superintendent of business and operations.

Two men arrested in Springfield

Two Detroit men were arrested while traveling through Springfield Township this past weekend.

According to reports at the Oakland County Sheriff's Department, the men were arrested March 14 on two separate charges.

The day before, one of the men, who is 42, reportedly duped a cashier at Papa's Pizza on Dixie Highway, Springfield Township, into giving him back nearly $20 too much in change.

Police spotted the pair's car the next day and pulled them over for questioning. While frisking the men, police discovered that the 46-year-old man was carrying a .22 caliber hand gun, which wasn't registered under his name.

Both men were arrested and taken to the Oakland County Jail. They're names will not be released until they are charged.

The 42-year-old man faces a charge of larceny under $100, which is a misdemeanor. His partner faces a charge of carrying a concealed weapon, which is a felony.

Board sends property tax letter to Engler

The Independence Township Board has sent a letter to Lansing urging leaders to remedy the state's property tax quandry.

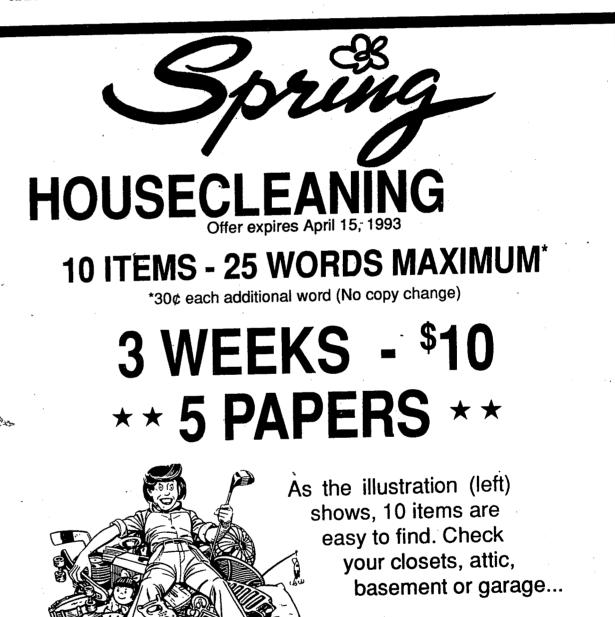

Proposed by Trustee Daniel Travis, this resolution was unanimously approved March 16. A copy was sent to Gov. John Engler and all state legislators.

The letter reads:

"We, the elected representatives of Independence Township, do most vigorously protest the means and method of property taxation in the State of Michigan as detrimental to the economic, health and welfare of our community residents.

"We respectfully request, immediate corrective legislation to be enacted to alleviate the onerous burden of escalating and economically unsound taxes which deny growth, deny job creation, and deny incentives to invest in our homes, our businesses, our township, or this state's real property without excessive penalty. Taxes are forcing residents and especially retirees to leave their homes and this state. Taxes deny the young an opportunity to own homes.

"We acknowledge your prior diligence and request urgent and responsive proactive efforts to affect a fundamental change in tax law which will save our future."

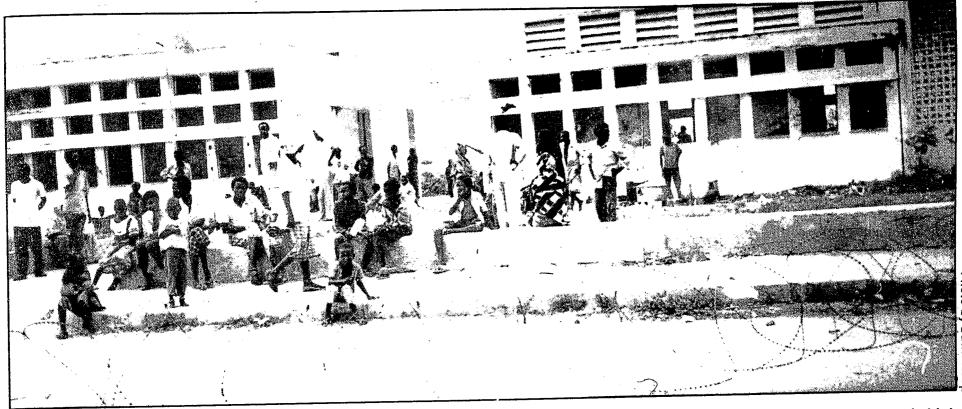

Jail term continues for man convicted of fondling boy

A 58-year-old Independence Township man is halfway through his one-year sentence for fondling a boy and giving alcohol and cigarettes to minors.

Eugene Anthony O'Rourke pleaded guilty to one count of second-degree criminal sexual conduct, two counts of contribution to the delinquency of a minor, two counts of providing alcohol to minors and two counts of furnishing them with tobacco.

O'Rourke furnished two boys, ages 5 and 7, with about a half-ounce of vodka each and an undetermined number of cigarettes. He also fondled one of the boys through his clothing. Neither boy was physically hurt.

He was sentenced to one year in the Oakland County Jail and five years probation by Oakland County Circuit Court Judge Richard Kuhn in August 1992. then call 628-4801 625-3370 693-8331 • AD-VERTISER • THE OXFORD LEADER THE CLARKSTON NEWS/PENNY STRETCHER • THE LAKE ORION REVIEW

SOMALIANS line up for food outside the perimeter of a U.S. Army compound in Mogadishu. Pfc. Dawn Koop said people who lived in the outskirts weren't so lucky to have access to food. Water, too, was in high demand and was stolen from Army trucks.

From scorpions to dust, soldier copes in Somalia

BY JULIE CAMPE Clarkston News Editor

Children stole water. Scorpions appeared from nowhere. Soldiers took new anti-malaria pills. Dust permeated everything.

And Dawn Koop, 23, was in the middle of it all. The former Davisburg-area resident is a private first class in the U.S. Army, stationed at Fort Drum, N.Y. When she joined the military in October 1991 at age 21, she didn't expect to experience all that she has so far.

The Clarkston News

Wednesday, March 24, 1993 Section B Page 1 ReflectionS

She was sent to Griffiths Air Force Base after Hurricane Andrew hit Florida. And at 2 a.m. Jan. 1, she flew to Somalia, where she worked in Mogadishu, as part of a United Nations humanitarian mission.

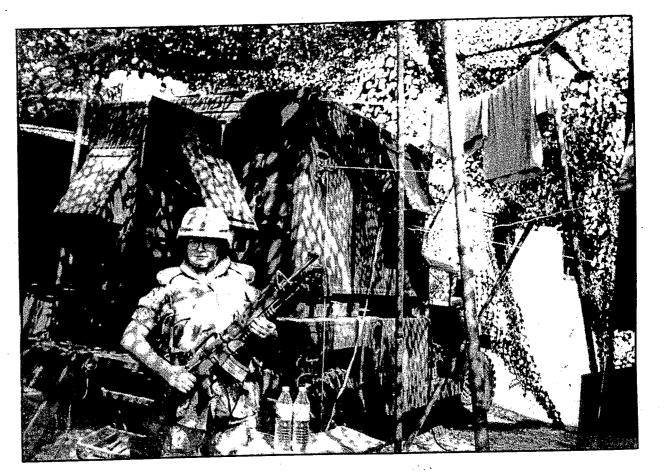

After witnessing much, she just as suddenly was sent home for a weekend in February, when she shared her story with The Clarkston News, before being whisked to Korea.

In Mogadishu, the Somalian people were in relatively good condition, said Koop. Medical attention was hard to find, as was food. But at least there was food. In other parts of the country, the people were not so lucky, said Koop.

Her impressions of the country come from her view worked within the from a distance. Most of the u Army compound in the city. The weather was beautiful, she said. But dust was everywhere, which made her marvel at how clean the women kept their brightly colored clothing. The children were tough but well behaved. They rummaged through Army garbage bags, looking for the remains of MREs (meals ready to eat). "They know you can't fire at them," she said, explaining that soldiers were told not to give their 3,000calorie meals to the children because it could harm them. After starvation situations, special care must be used to feed people, she said, adding, though, that soldiers often gave away their chocolate or flavored beverages. Children also stole water from moving trucks. "They're quick," she said.

DAWN KOOP, 23, earned one brief weekend home between assignments in Somalia and Korea. Here she poses with her family. Many of the Somalians spoke a little English, and all knew at least something about America.

"They knew Michael Jackson, Rambo and Bush," she said. "A lot of them, when you'd drive by, the kids would say, 'Yea, USA.""

Most of the adults said nothing. However, when children tried to beg, the adults would scold them and pull (See SOLDIER, next page) DAWN KOOP, 23, poses under camouflage netting with all her "gear on and ready to come home." And sniper fire was common, as was rock-throwing. Teen-agers usually were responsible for the rocks, said Koop.

'I got hit in the head," she said. "Some were afraid we were there to take over --- we blocked off some of the land. They're afraid in the long run that we'd stay."

She made friends with some --- through wire encircling the Army compound.

"They wanted me to take my hat off, and they'd say, 'Oooh!' at my hair," said Koop.

With delays in mail service, Koop's family read news reports and watched television closely to find out something about Koop's stay in Mogadishu.

Her mother, Sharon Coleman of Waterford, said, "I was so upset because the situation over there is pretty rough. But I was also proud. ... I was proud that I had a daughter who was doing something beneficial in the service. The fact that they were there to help them get food kind of brightened up (the situation).'

Koop's sister, Pam Vega of Springfield Township, also kept abreast of the situation. But she was confident in her sister's ability to take care of herself.

"We figured that of any of us girls, she is the one who could deal with the hardship," said said. "She's the tomboy."

Her mother agreed. "She's a strong person. She's tough inside. She has a soft heart, but she knows how to handle it."

Koop said she handles it as well as her fellow soldiers. They play jokes on each other; they keep busy, and they do what they have to do.

"I get mad if I feel they're treating me like I can't do it because I'm a female," she said, adding that it doesn't happen too often.

She and her fellow soldiers were the first humans to take a new anti-malaria pill, which worried her mother, but not Koop.

While already highly trained in the Army, Koop still learned a lot in Somalia. For instance, she knows how to handle unexpected scorpions, how to clean using packaged wipes and no water, how to go without sleep to get the job done, and how to maintain, despite seeing others in grave danger.

One little girl had an open sore on her foot that Koop knew would receive no medical attention and could kill her from infection. Koop lost her appetite, and the image remains etched in her memory.

She also noted the sad irony of one incident. One very hungry man salvaged an MRE and began eating it. However, he soon discovered it contained pork, and, as a Muslim, he couldn't eat it.

"He spit it out and buried it," said Koop. While Korea is an entirely different situation, Koop

"It's nice having a change — I like change," she said.

As in Mogadishu, Koop expects to keep busy. "There's always so much to do, I'm never bored."

"I don't know what to do with my life to tell you the truth," she said, adding that her service will provide college money that she'll probably use.

Wherever she is, her family is sure to keep track of her.

"All the nieces and nephews are fascinated, no matter what age," said her sister.

Millstream Engagements

Mr. and Mrs. Everett Fredericks Jr. announce the engagement of their daughter, Tandy Rene, to Scott F. Shepard, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Shepard of Lake Orion. The brideelect is a 1990 graduate from Clarkston High School and is pursuing a career in medical assisting. The future bridegroom is a 1989 graduate from Lake Orion High School and is employed at Lake Orion Equipment Rental. A Sept. 11, 1993, wedding is planned.

MacLennan, Loe exchange vows

Nancy MacLennan and Joseph P. Loe were married May 9, 1992, at St. Paul Lutheran Church in Royal Oak.

The bride is the daughter of Dan and Elaine MacLennan of Clarkston. She is a 1986 graduate of Clarkston High School and a 1987 graduate of Pontiac Business Institute of Oxford. She is a processor at Great Lakes Mortgage Co., Birmingham.

The groom is the son of Joseph L. Loe of Waterford. He is a graduate of Waterford Kettering High School and is a fabrication leader at Superior Cam, Madison Heights. Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white organza gown, with a full circular skirt ending in layers of lettuce-leaf ruffles on the hemline and around the edge of the chapel-length train. The neckline, bodice and sleeves were trimmed with silk-thread Venice lace and adorned with sequins and pearls. The shoulders were trimmed with ruffled organza, and the back waistline was accented with a satin bow. Her bouquet featured silk flowers shaped in a heart.

The maid of honor was Kerri Bartlett of Clarkston. Attendants were Karen Jameson (bride's sister) of Pontiac, Teresa MacLennan (sister-in-law to bride) of Waterford, and Jacqueline Peca of Waterford. The groomsmen were John Rizzo II (brother-in-law to groom) of Highland, John Rizzo III (groom's nephew) of Highland, David Maclennan (bride's brother) of Waterford, and

Senior parties planned

Two celebrations are in the works for Clarkston High seniors.

Planning is underway for the Senior Dinner and the All-Night Post-Graduation Party, and community members are asked to help by donating prizes or money.

The Senior Dinner takes place June 13 at Mount Holly, with the theme: "A Little Help from our Friends." Along with dinner, seniors can watch this year's video yearbook and enjoy other entertainment.

The All-Night Post-Graduation Party takes place June 16 at Deer Lake Racquet Club, following commencement. It includes games, live entertainment, swimming, racquet sports, food and prizes.

For more information or to donate, call Principal Jim Goebel at 625-0900.

CHRIS FREED, 8, inspects his car on the sidelines of the Pinewood Derby competition March 18.

AFTER AN HOUR or two, the Cub Scouts' Pinewood Derby can become tiring for onlookers, such as Jenna Jackson, 4, and her parents, Joe and Cathy. The family came to watch Joey Jackson race his first Pinewood Derby car. (Photos by Julie Campe)

Derby time

PAUL Mueller, 8, is congratulated after winning a trophy for the best-looking car. The Bailey Lake Elementary pupil made his Pinewood Derby car "look like a tank." He said he was "very happy" to win the trophy Thursday at Springfield Oaks Activity Center. STARTER Bob Way of Den 4, Pack 341, lines up the cars before their official start.
