Mired in it Mud, mush and muck

Potholes, puddles, mud and more have been on the minds of many area residents recently.

Winter precipitation and the spring thawing and freezing patterns have resulted in record-breaking poor road conditions, said John Joy, spokesman for the Road Commission for Oakland County.

The Road Commission averages 250 calls a day about road conditions, he said.

"This is the worst these gravel roads have been in 20 years," he said. "They're like Jell-O."

Barbara Doerr of Rattalee Lake Road knows just what he means. She has called the Road Commission, as well as the Independence Township supervisor, The Clarkston News and anyone else who may be able to help.

A few years ago, she was driving slowly down her road when her car fell into a pothole, rolling over and

Smoking in bed results in fire

A house fire on Clarkston Road caused about $8,000 to $10,000 damage March 31.

About 4 a.m., Independence Township firefighters were called to the scene after a woman awakened in her basement bedroom and realized her bed was on fire.

According to police reports, the woman said she had been smoking a cigarette in bed and thought she had put it out in an ashtray.

She and the other occupants escaped the burning house before firefighters arrived. The fire was extinguished without injury to firefighters.

The woman and her daughter, who was asleep with her in the bed, were treated for burns on their feet and smoke inhalation at North Oakland Medical Center, Pontiac.

District gains additional staff for 1993-94

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Associate Editor

Come next fall, an additional counselor and assistant principal will join the staff at Clarkston Senior High.

The Clarkston Board of Education unanimously approved these two positions March 29.

These new jobs were part of an administrative staff package that included 23 new hires and the start of a new kindergarten-based program. Everything in this recommended package, except the counselor and assistant principal positions, were approved at the March 22 meeting.

The costs of the new districtwide program and added positions is estimated at $525,000. According to Superintendent Gary Haner, these costs have already been figured into the draft of the 1993-94 school budget.

According to district officials, 135 new students are expected to enter Clarkston schools next school year, making personnel additions a top priority.

The new Developmentally Appropriate Practices (DAP) program is scheduled to start in the fall. This new Man goes to trial for shooting

An Independence Township man will stand trial for assault with intent to murder.

Anthony Dove, 21, was charged with three counts of assault with intent to murder in connection to a Dec. 28, 1992, drive-by shooting. He is also charged with possession of a controlled substance.

Three men testified in 52nd District Court, Walled Lake, that Dove shot at their car as they drove on Highland Road near Williams Lake Road in White Lake Township.

The date for the trial, which will be before Judge Barry Howard in Oakland County Circuit Court, has not been set. If convicted, Dove faces up to life in prison.

approach to teaching will do away with developmental kindergarten classes, by allowing all students to progress at their own rate.

This program is designed to carry over into the first and second grades as well. It entails a lot of hands-on and cooperative learning practices. From now on, all kindergartners and their parents will undergo a pre-registration orientation instead of kindergarten screening.

With this new program, 10.5 DAP classroom aides will be hired to assist teachers.

Other approved staff additions include: two elementary classroom teachers, three elementary media specialists, one secondary teacher, one-half special education teacher at Bailey Lake Elementary, one teacher of the autistically impaired at CHS, one paraprofessional for the autistically impaired at CHS, one custodian/maintenance worker and one high school hall monitor.

On March 22, the school board tabled the matter of hiring a new counselor and assistant principal at CHS until they were provided further information of their necessity.

The following Monday, CHS Principal Jim Goebel and SJHS Principal Jean Lange spoke in support of the two staff additions.

Goebel said both positions were necessary to accommodate the 440 ninth-graders going to the high school next fall. He said about 1,710 students have already enrolled at CHS for next fall and that the existing counselors and two assistant principals would be overwhelmed.

In comparing Clarkston High to other districts, Goebel stated that both Troy and Troy Athens high schools employ four assistant principals to handle each school's 1,600-student populations.

Lange said the two positions, especially assistant principal, were vital to maintaining order.

Correction

The Clarkston Area Optimists' thank-you advertisement in the March 24 Clarkston News should have included Runnin' Gear and The Hairbrush Co.

"Seventy percent of what an assistant principal does is related to discipline and supervision," she said. "You can't have a school unless you have control over chaos. We're talking about bare bones here ... not frills.

"We need this person for lunch duty, supervision of games and everything related to a school's basic function," Lange added.

Ultimately, the board agreed and approved the two positions.

Gravel roads 'like Jell-O' in townships striking a tree, rendering her unconscious.

"I have bad knees to this day" from the accident, said Doerr, who's lived in the area for about 15 years.

She fears other accidents or tragedies could occur because of the road conditions this year.

"We're retired," she said. "If we needed medical attention, we'd probably die before they'd get an ambulance up and down the road."

Rod Pierson, who drives the grader in Independence Township, said Doerr has a point.

"These roads are in worse shape than they've been in three or four years," he said, while stopped on Rattalee Lake Road to talk to a photographer.

Though his objective that day was to "take the tops off the bad bumps" and let as much water off the road as possible, it was a nearly impossible task.

"There's nothing you can do with wet roads," he said. "They're all bad."

Kevin Bickerstaff, supervisor of Clarkston Community Schools' bus garage, said his department, too, was having problems.

"The roads are terrible," he said. "It's not the Road Commission's fault. That's just the way the weather came in and out."

Bus drivers have complained of sore backs and arms, and some students have bumped their heads on the windows when the bus rocks back and forth in potholes.

One bus was stuck up to its axle in the middle of Pine Knob Road, just north of the Bailey Lake Elementary School driveway. Bickerstaff said it would be better for drivers if some roads were closed to traffic.

"It's tough," Bickerstaff said. "The drivers are really putting up with some tough conditions."

According to Joy, the problem is widespread throughout the state, though northern Oakland County is the worst in his jurisdiction.

"Folks are just coming unhinged," he said, adding that a Brandon Township road is posted with his name and phone number in huge letters, telling drivers to call him at the Road Commission to complain.

However, until the water either evaporates or makes its way through the soil and into the water table, road grading or graveling won't help, he said. (See related story.)

"I understand the frustration of the customer, but there's nothing we can do to dry out the roads," said Joy.

WHEN WARM weather hits, the Road Commission for Oakland County bumpy grades gravel roads in the area. Here, Rod Pierson drives the grader on Rattalee Lake Road, which traverses Independence and Springfield townships.

Mother Nature makes mushy roads

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Editor

Mother Nature or the lack of money — or both — is to blame for the sometimes impassable gravel roads in the area.

Area residents can blame Mother Nature for the "strange" spring, which has turned firm gravel roads into mush, said John Joy, Road Commission spokesman. Or

"We're really stuck in this really strange kind of spring."

Spokesman John Joy

they can turn to the Legislature, which controls the amount of gasoline taxes and license fees that are returned to the Road Commission for Oakland County for road maintenance.

Mother Nature produces wet spring

Mother Nature provided Oakland County with 4 1/2 inches of rain in late January, followed by freezing temperatures, then 9 inches of snow in February, followed by 55-degree temperatures in mid-March.

That, said Joy, resulted in a layer of gravel, clay and dirt floating on a chunk of ice 8-12 inches thick.

"We're really stuck in this really strange kind of spring," he said.

"Normally, water leaches through to the water table. But (this year) it can't get through the ice. There's ice everywhere," said Joy. "What we're hoping for is three to four days of breeze and sunlight, so the water will go up and evaporate."

"Even if we were to dump load upon load of gravel, it would float to the left and the right, and there would be nothing in the middle," he said. "The nature of the water table in Oakland County is such that from Oakland (Township) up and over to Rose (Township), there's lots and lots of water up close to the ground, and it's frozen."

And the problem "constantly compounds itself," he said, adding that road conditions are the worst they've been in 20 years.

More people have moved out to the rural areas, which means more traffic and more road damage. On average, 1,000 more residents have moved to each township per year in the last 20 years, he said.

Money woes: roads low priority

Add to that the fact that Oakland County's portion of state gasoline taxes has not increased since 1984, and there's not much money to keep up with road demands, he said.

When people call to complain, Joy said, "the conversation always begins, 'I pay all these high property taxes, and my roads are terrible.' Well the property taxes pay for schools, police, fire, recreation and county government. You're not doing diddly-poooh for roads."

The Road Commission for Oakland County maintains 1,000 miles of gravel roads and 2,400 miles of roads total (second only to the Michigan Department of Transportation).

With a $70 million annual budget, $30 million is used to match federal funds for construction. Of the $40 million remaining, 95 percent is used for road maintenance — the same amount as in 1984.

"This is the time for those folks who are angry about roads to sit down and write letters to their legislators," said Joy.

Only they can reallocate the amounts, he said.

Even so, improving roads would be costly. It costs $8,700 per mile to grade a gravel road, he said. It costs $800,000 per mile to pave it.

In the meantime, residents should resign themselves to the conditions and practice patience. Even Road

By paying property taxes, "you're not doing diddly-poooh for roads."

Spokesman John Joy

Commission employees know first-hand about frustrating roads.

"We've had gravel trucks stuck up to the axle," said Joy.

And for those who want to know which is the best route to take on their gravel roads, Joy had this advice: "If it's gravel, it's some form of not good."

Passover observed

The Jewish festival of Passover is observed this year from sundown Monday, April 5, through sundown Tuesday, April 13.

Passover commemorates the liberation of the Jewish people from Egyptian slavery, about 1280 B.C., and the resultant Exodus of the children of Israel from Egypt.

Moses, as leader of the Jewish people of Egypt, asked Pharaoh to "let my people go." When Pharaoh refused, a series of 10 plagues, each one worse than the one before, were brought against the people of Egypt, but each time Pharaoh refused. The 10th plague was the death of all first-born males in Egypt. The angel of death slew every first-born Egyptian male but "passed over" the homes of the Jews.

In their haste to leave Egypt, the Israelites did not have time enough to let their dough for bread-baking rise. To this day, unleavened bread is eaten during the eight days of Passover.

Art not a frivolous extra

From the "New Edition" dance moves to origami, art was celebrated by students at two elementary schools this week.

The children and teachers at Bailey Lake and Clarkston Elementary schools spent Friday, April 2, learning about art while having a lot of fun.

The children chose from classes such as juggling, karaoke, ballet, pottery, cross stitch and watercolors. The diversity of the classes not only illustrated a variety of art forms but the uniqueness of each child and the expression of that individuality.

Tolstoy once said, "Art is not a handicraft; it is the transmission of feeling the artist has experienced."

Art is not a frivolous extra; it is an important part in the development of a child. It is more than Christmas ornaments and paper turkeys; dance, the theater and music give children the outlets they need to express their thoughts and emotions.

We applaud Andersonville Elementary School for starring the Festival of the Arts Day a few years back, which inspired other schools to follow suit.

And we applaud the parents and teachers for allowing this wonderful day to happen, for helping, and for realizing that art, fun and learning can go hand in hand.

Jim's Jottings is on vacation.

About staff editorials

We at The Clarkston News realize that an important duty of a newspaper is to provide more than just the facts found in news stories.

Since we're out there uncovering the news, we get an inside look at the issues. In our staff editorials, we will give our opinions on those issues, just as other writing on this page — letters and columns — also offers opinions.

We leave the editorials unsigned because we've written them as a staff. Every week, we talk about the issues and take notes on everyone's opinions. Then one of us writes it and the rest of us change it until we're all satisfied.

While our opinions aren't always unanimous, our editorials reflect the majority views of the staff. If the staff splits evenly on an issue, we'll write two editorials on the subject.

We welcome your response to our views.

The trade-off

Knee-deep in mud we stood, The Thinker and I. We were splattered with it, our hands numb from the cold. We had just spent an hour or so trying to dislodge my car from the muddy road, where its axle was stuck on a solid ridge of mud, the wheels seemingly dangling free in ruts in the road.

It was The Thinker's only day off from work this week, and though he loved the outdoors, I knew this wasn't his idea of getting in touch with nature. Not even the worms were out today.

Well, nothing to do but call a tow truck, we figured, gathering our shovel and other wares. We sloshed toward our house around the corner and eyed the other two routes to the outside world. One was clearly impassable — I wouldn't have been surprised to see geese in the pond that covered the road. The other had been passable the night before, though our cars dragged on the bottom the entire way and cars either stuck or parked blocked much of the road, which is why we tried our third and last route on this day.

Just then, we heard the approach of a truck, followed by a police car, behind us. They slowed to a stop at our car suspended in the chocolate pudding road. The truck backed up, shifted gears, and roared through the mess on one side of our car, rocking back and forth the entire way.

The police car did not attempt the feat. The Thinker went back to talk to the officer. I soon followed and walked up in time to hear the officer say, "Some people are so ignorant. They'd want me to give you a ticket for parking in the middle of the road."

The Thinker's smile faded.
"Some people have a degree in ignorance, I think," continued the officer.

It turns out he was on his way to answer his umpteenth complaint about residents parking in the roadway, apparently obstructing traffic. However, he said, the road was impassable, and some people's driveways were impassable — what else were they supposed to do?

He shook his head.

No, sir, he said. In some ways it gets worse every year. New people move out to the country and expect the roads to be like Troy or wherever it is they came from. They have to realize — this is the trade-off. If you want country, you get country roads.

He had already called a tow truck for us, which could take a half-hour or hour or more to arrive because of the distance and the sheer number of calls received by the company. The officer decided not to risk taxpayers' money trying to get around our car. He turned around to find another route.

Soon after he left, a pickup pulled up, slowed and stopped. The driver, smiling with a toothpick in his mouth, rolled down his window and grinned.

"Looks like you're stuck," he said, smiling broadly.

We nodded.

"Yup. I lived for 23 years on dirt roads," he said smiling even more broadly. "My wife and I finally had enough. We moved last year."

However, he still traveled some of the worst roads because he took care of the farm in front of which we were stuck.

"I get a kick out of city people moving out here, thinking they've got this beautiful location. They're always surprised in the spring," he said, still smiling.

He offered to pull us out with a tractor, but the tow truck soon arrived.

The two in the tow truck were dressed in heavy rubber boots and rubber pants. They had been traveling from call to call that day to pull stuck vehicles out of the mud. We were lucky the police officer had called for a tow truck, said the one in charge. Otherwise, we would have had to take our place in line, and we could have waited another hour or two or three.

He nearly had become stuck himself. "We almost lost it a mile back. We lost the headlights of the truck behind us. He's probably still there," he said.

In all, it took the crew about an hour to free our vehicle. There were many problems — no firm ground, nothing to hook on to at the front of our car, a challenge finding a way around our car to pull us out from behind.

In the midst of it all, a UPS truck (with a ground-to-axle clearance of about two feet of which I became instantly envious) drove up, surveyed the situation and said he would find another way out. "I'm in a hurry," he explained.

Eventually, it all worked. We drove our mud-glazed vehicle and selves home, resolving that on the next day, we probably would join the parked cars a mile down the road and would simply walk to and from our car each day.

I'm not sure if it's a fair trade-off.

Fed up with crime

This is a frustration letter. For lack of any other available options, I am writing our local paper to vent my steam.

I have always been real proud to say we live in Clarkston, but at the moment I'm mad as a victim of petty crime.

This morning my son reported that his basketball rim was yanked down, making it useless — which is bad enough, but this is the third time we will have replace it (the first time, the whole pole was destroyed, costing $150 to replace).

There's more: two summers ago, our 2-year-old daughter's turtle sand box was lifted out of the back yard after the sand was dumped in my garden. Plus her plastic slide was taken.

This past Labor Day weekend, my husband had wheels and tires removed from his vehicle, which was parked in our driveway. We even had a garbage can complete with garbage lifted off the street one morning!

If you add up the cost and inconvenience, it amounts to one big headache. But what bothers me the most is the motivation for crime. And I am aware it goes on in all communities, but it's a sad symptom here at home.

'If it Fitz . . .'

The special moments can get a little messy

Jim Fitzgerald

She had no way of knowing it, but Catharine Rambeau's timing was extraordinary, "A masterpiece of euphemisms" is what she called the newspaper ad she mailed me, and it arrived only one day after I'd been forced to deal with the messy truth that those euphemisms shielded.

You may recall that Rambeau, now writing a book in Florida, formerly wrote splendid movie reviews for the Free Press. Which reminds me - last month, because of my age, I was nearly banned from seeing a movie. Honest.

I thought you could only be too young to see certain "adult" films. But it seems you can also be too old. Looking at all our white hair and wrinkles, the ticket-taker warned my wife and me, "This movie might be too violent for you." I thanked her for not saying it might be too sexy.

She said she wasn't kidding, several elderly people had fled halfway through this movie, complaining about blood and gore, and she wanted to spare our weak old stomachs the upset. We gained admittance only after I explained that I'd carefully read the reviews and was prepared for excess violence, and my wife never looked at the screen anyway because she was too busy making sure I didn't grab more than my fair half-share from the communal tub of popcorn.

The movie was "Reservoir Dogs," one of the best I saw in 1992. There is indeed a lot of bleeding, shooting and slashing, but in a bungled-jewel-heist context so well-written, directed and acted that I didn't mind feeling like throwing up.

I won't go near the typical Stallone Schwarzenegger movie because the violence is so boringly overwrought and stupidly selective, I want no part of an exploding world, or city block, so unrealistic that everyone on the scene is killed except those named Arnold or Sylvester. In "Reservoir Dogs," there are blessedly no wisecracks before murdering and no inane implication that violence doesn't really hurt - devastate - if you have pure motives and greased muscles.

But wait, where was I before I used Catharine Rambeau as an excuse for preaching about movies? Oh, yes; she sent me a newspaper ad. The headline said: "An adorable new porcelain doll by Elke Hutchens capturing a special moment in the life of a little boy."

What special moment?

In smaller type, it said: "There's nothing more appealing than a young child trying to be grown up. Sometimes it takes every ounce of determination a little tyke can muster...but it's worth every bit of the effort just to see Mommy and Daddy so proud...The minute you see Brian's winsome face and the wishful expression in his big blue eyes, you'll recognize Elke Hutchens' magical ability to evoke the innocence of little children. Just look at the way he's sitting, with his little mouth set and his chin cupped in his hands."

Where is Brian the porcelain doll sitting, so determined, so wishful?

He is sitting on a toilet, with his pants down around his ankles, trying to take a...trying to have a bowel movement.

"What next," Rambeau asked, "Barbie gets PMS?" Sure, and the first symptom will be ads saying Barbie's Mommy and Daddy are so proud she's finally cranky.

By coincidence, I read about Brian on the john soon after my first lengthy stint as baby-sitter for Adam, my 26-month-old grandson. Instead of making me proud, he handed me a clean diaper and plopped on the floor on his back. The kid was smart enough to realize he needed clean pants, smart enough to go fetch them, and smart enough to assume the changing position. But, unlike a porcelain doll, he wasn't smart enough to give a signal that would have avoided the whole mess in the first place. I don't know why.

I do know that, as instructed by his mother, one euphemism was used in requesting Adam's cooperation in not soiling the carpet. Instead of ordering him to lift his dirty rear, I chirped: "Buns up!"

It worked. But it was not a special moment.

Paddles and freshman blues

Just last week, I was daydreaming at a Clarkston school board meeting about how much school has changed since I was a kid.

Yeah, I know, I should've been reporting instead of daydreaming, but there was a lull in the action.

For some reason, the board was haggling over the merits of whether to provide each classroom at the new elementary school with its own private bathroom. A few trustees began reminiscing of their days as students and how a trip to the bathroom could be an adventure, so it got me thinking.

For some odd reason, I started recalling my own elementary school years.

Other than the students' fashion sense, I think the classrooms of today resemble those of my childhood.

The walls are still adorned with colorful and informative visual items to stimulate the learning process, and the "3 Rs" are still the main focus of education.

However, something is missing — the paddle. Up until the mid-'70s, nothing struck fear into the hearts of students like the paddle. Back then, a lot of teachers adhered by the creed "Spare the rod, spoil the child."

At my first elementary school, the most imposing paddle belonged to my third-grade teacher, Mrs.

Dockham. Luckily, I was her pet, so she never used that big sucker on me. It looked like a cricket bat with holes in it.

And she had a swing Cecil Fielder would be proud of.

Nope, I never got the paddle until I was a sixth-grader. Matter of a fact, I was the very first student to get paddled at my new elementary school in 1976. This particular teacher used a ping-pong paddle on me.

I always wondered why they didn't erect some sort of "bronze butt" award to me at that school. Shouldn't being No. 1 merit for something?

Lately, I've been contemplating the Clarkston school district's ninth-grade move, scheduled for next fall. And all I can do is pity those poor kids.

Because now, they'll know what it truly means to be a freshman.

For years, Clarkston's freshmen never had to undergo "The Freshman Experience" because they ruled the roosts at the junior high schools. Now, they'll come to understand the true meaning of "bottom of the food chain." I only hope Clarkston's upperclassmen are more mature than the ones I had to deal with at Lapeer East.

A kid can only endure so many "swirlees" and "binders" in one year.

Confusing thoughts about Clarkston

A few weeks ago, as we were reading the morning paper, my husband looked up from the business section and deadpanned, "Well, now you definitely won't want to move. ... Hudson's (at Summit Place Mall) has plans to undergo major renovation."

OK. So I have been known to shop until I drop. Everyone is entitled to one vice, and it's not like I smoke, bowl or listen to country music.

He went on to read aloud an excerpt of the article, which said the upgrading would appeal to a more upscale demographic area, such as Clarkston.

Reading certain columns in The Clarkston News, I got the distinct impression that the majority of people who live in this area are either out of work or on fixed incomes. Whenever I have asked people around here why other areas perceive Clarkston as affluent, they answer that the affluent are really just a handful of residents.

I'm not a brain surgeon, but something just doesn't jive here. Does this mean that the demographics experts had us confused with some other place? Does this mean that Hudson's just had more money that it knew what to do with, so the bigwigs decided to upgrade for a select few customers?

While I'm on the subject of confusion, I've got another one. I've been reading the editorials in The Clarkston News about how awful it was that the school board gave the school superintendent a whopping 3.5 percent pay raise.

Someone correct me if I'm wrong here. Since the state has consistently taken money from our school district without much warning or concern, it's only fair to make the teachers and administrators bite the bullet by giving them zilch. After all, if the community is growing, and we have to build new schools, and our state-mandated taxes are too high, why should we support these administrators, as well?

I'm just wondering though. When our best administrators (the ones who have been turning out champagne students on beer educational allowances) leave or burn out, will we find other bright, talented people to replace them — you know, people like the rest of us, who are content to work only for "psychic" pay?

And when we hire this fine assortment of male and female versions of Elmer Fudd, are we going to be content to entrust them with the ongoing financial balancing act of educating the kids of Clarkston?

One last confusing note ... while on the school bond campaign trail last January, my neighbor and I went door-to-door to ask for support of the new school.

We came to one of the more modest-looking houses in the particular subdivision, where we stopped and rang the doorbell. To our surprise, Gary Haner appeared at the door.

After we left the doorstep, my neighbor remarked, "Gosh, from the columns I've read in The Clarkston News about all the money this guy's got to throw around, I expected lakefront property."

I replied, "You must be thinking of someone else." Very confusing, indeed.

Planners act like local dictators

When I read in March 24 The Clarkston News about the township planning commission's debate as to whether it should allow Mr. Leon Tan, owner of Wai Hong Restaurant in Independence, to add two Chinese characters to his sign — even though there was no question of the sign conforming to the township sign ordinance — I first thought, "How ridiculous for these public servants to be wasting their time and our money on such foolishness."

On second thought, however, I became outraged that these "unelected officials" would assume to dictate to a local businessman and taxpayer not only the size of the sign over his restaurant but the content as well.

Are we living in the United States of America in 1993 or on some medieval serfdom? If what they are doing to the business owner is legal — it shouldn't be. In any case, it is wrong.

My husband calls this sort of thing micro-management, but I call it dictatorship by government committee.

From what I read in the paper, I got the impression that the planning commission would have thought the Chinese characters for "very nice" and "good health" would have looked nicer if they had been written in English instead of Chinese. Perhaps Independence Township should change its name to Liberty Township because an "L" is more pleasing to look at than an "I."

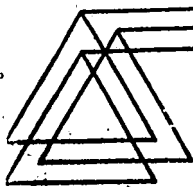

I have attended a few planning commission meetings and have observed that this practice of demanding strict compliance with the commission's idea of local standards of beauty most often under the aegis of our "unholy sign ordinance" has brought numerous business owners to their knees once they realize they will not get an OK to continue to do business until they bow down and kiss the gowns of these commissioners.

I have concluded that we don't even need a planning commission. In the time I have lived here, they have spent most of their time making a master plan, which they then turn around and ignore whenever it suits them to do so.

I'm sure Mr. Tan will succeed in changing his sign. Since what he wants to do conforms with the ordinance, the commission cannot prevent it. I would hope that they would not attempt to take the case to court at our expense.

My own suggestion would be that he find some Chinese characters that say, "the planning commission is a dictatorial beast." They would not understand, and he would have the last laugh after all.

Lighter recalled

Polyflame Concepts USA, Inc., and Philip Morris USA recently announced a voluntary nationwide recall of a promotional cigarette lighter called the "Party Lighter," or "Night Lighter."

The lighter is not defective and is not dangerous when used as intended.

The recall is in response to concerns raised by Gloria

Schaffer, commissioner of consumer protection for the state of Connecticut, who believes the cigarette lighter is attractive to children and therefore poses a safety risk.

The Federal Consumer Product Safety Commission has been notified of the recall and fully informed of the details regarding the Polyflame/Philip Morris recall plan.

The lighter was attached to two-pack, five-pack cartons and carton offers of Marlboro cigarettes, which were available at retail outlets during 1992. Small quantities were also distributed to adult smokers at local promotional events since 1990.

The lighter is made of transparent plastic and contains light emitting diodes (LEDs) that flash when the lighting mechanism is depressed. The lighter is embossed with a Marlboro logo.

Consumers who possess either the "Party Lighter" or "Night Lighter" should keep them out of the reach of children.

Consumers should then immediately call 1-800-241-9005 for information on how to return the lighter. The 800 number will be operational between 6 a.m. and 10 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Consumers should not mail the lighter until they have contacted the 800 number and have received postage paid packaging material appropriate for sending the lighter through the mail. Consumers who call the 800 number and return the lighter will receive a $5 check.

"All our promotional offers, including this one, are intended for adult smokers," said Steven Parrish, senior vice president, external affairs, at Philip Morris.

"But because of the concern expressed by the commissioner, we are taking the extra precaution of voluntarily recalling both the Party Lighter and the Night Lighter," he said.

"This lighter, like any other lighter or matches, must be kept away from children," he said. "We urge all consumers who currently have a Party Lighter or Night Lighter to call 1-900-241-9005 as soon as possible."

The above information was provided by Independence Township Professional Firefighters Local 2629.

Letter to the Editor

He understands planners, retailer

Last Friday, I stopped by Wai Hong Restaurant. Leon Tan, the owner, gave me a copy of a letter regarding the planning commission's decision on the sign changes he wished to make. I am writing to express my position on this issue.

Being in the shopping center development business, I understand the commission's actions. It is of the utmost importance to build centers that are both physically and environmentally appealing.

To the retailer, signs are one of the most important aspects of their business because the image they portray has a direct impact on their success.

Through the guidance of the township planner and planning commission, Independence Town Square has proved to be our most attractive and successful shopping center.

At this time, I would like to thank the planning commission for the guidance they provided during the planning process of this development. They are one of the best and most professional planning commissions I have had the pleasure to work with.

Incentives for good teaching

This is Innovation No. 6 from the U.S. News and World Report article, "The Perfect School."

Incentives for good teaching

Marsha Flores is a top special education teacher at Sunnyside High School in Tucson, Ariz. Her classroom skills have earned her two promotions in recent years and added $3,900 to her yearly salary, bringing it to $32,000.

The rewarding of Flores' talents would be unexceptional in most fields, but in public school teaching it amounts to heresy. In the vast majority of school systems, tradition and union contracts dictate that teachers be paid strictly on the basis of the college credits they have amassed and the years they have spent in the classroom; the quality of their teaching is ignored.

As a result, school reformers argue, teaching often fails to attract and retain talented people who reject the notion of being paid the same salary as an incompetent colleague down the hall. The Sunnyside Unified School District and 20 others in Arizona are in the vanguard of a movement to tie pay and promotions to performance.

Professional pride. Marsha Flores earned her promotions and a fatter paycheck by climbing a four-rung "career ladder" introduced in 1985-86. The opportunity to win promotions and take on new responsibilities without having to leave the classroom for school administration has improved teachers' morale and elevated teaching's status.

"Being paid on how well you perform rather than how long you've done something adds legitimacy to the profession," says Sunnyside English teacher Jim Heintz. "Not all teachers are equally good, and it is archaic to think they are."

The career ladder also has required Sunnyside and other schools to scrutinize their teachers' work far more carefully. Traditionally, teacher evaluation has been superficial and arbitrary in many U.S. schools, with principals doing little more than sticking their heads in classrooms once or twice a year.

At Sunnyside, teachers attempting to advance face four classroom inspections by teams of trained evaluators that include teachers from other schools. They are also judged on the quality of their academic planning and on various evaluations of student progress through their course work.

Arizona's teacher ladders are fulfilling their aim of attracting and retaining talented teachers. A study of the Mesa Unified School District, Arizona's largest, found that the district's career ladder played a key role in reducing the rate of teacher attrition from 10 percent in 1980-81 to 4 percent in 1990-91. The improved teaching talent isn't gratis. Arizona is spending $24 million this year on career ladders, which involve 9,400 — 29 percent — of the state's teachers.

States such as South Carolina and Kentucky, meanwhile, are introducing schoolwide incentives to ensure that principals and teachers who are granted greater authority over their schools are held accountable for their performance. Each Kentucky school will receive a "benchmark" grade later this month, based on student test scores and factors such as attendance, dropout rates and the percentage of students who make a successful transition to further schooling or work.

Teachers in schools that improve their performance on these measures over the next two years will be eligible for at least $45 million in bonuses. Schools that don't improve face state sanctions, and their teachers risk loss of tenure, mandatory supervision and even dismissal. Ultimately, the state is authorized to shut down failing schools. Says Principal Lennie Hay of the Brown School in Louisville: "The new benchmarks have kind of upped the ante for all of us, in a real specific way."

Kite-flying tips can prevent accidents

It's hard to resist the tug of a warm spring breeze on the string of a kite.

But it's a safe bet that your kite will soar higher if you avoid tangling with Detroit Edison's utility poles and electric lines.

Detroit Edison offers a few simple rules to help you stay safe while having fun:

- Select a good, level, open space. Wires, poles, trees, large stones, ruts and ditches can cause injury.
- If a kite becomes lodged in a high tree, utility pole or wire, don't try to get it down. If kites or other objects are caught on Detroit Edison wires or poles, call the utility at 1-800-477-4747.
- Don't fly kites in threatening weather. If a kite is hit by lightning, its wet string will conduct electricity.

- Use light-weight wood for kite frames.
- Use strong, dry cord for kite string. Don't use kites containing metal or wire parts. Metal and wire serve as conductors when they come in contact with electrical equipment. In addition, exposed nails and pins may injure hands and arms.
- Be cautious of sudden wind gusts that can knock you off balance. Also, wind gusts can pull the kite cord quickly through your hand, causing burns.
- Avoid traffic areas such as streets, highways and railroad rights-of-way.
- Don't fly kites from rooftops or other elevated structures unless they are protected by enclosures high enough to prevent a fall.

Boy, 9, wins medals at Canadian meet

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Associate Editor

Third-grader Dennis Muha made a big impression on his classmates last week, when he brought his medals to school.

Wearing them proudly around his neck, the Clarkston Elementary student told his friends of his exploits at the Windsor Classic Indoor Games March 26-28. That weekend, Muha, 9, won three medals and set a bantam record in the shotput.

This meet was the boy's first-ever competition for the physically challenged, since losing the ability to walk last year.

Muha was born with spina bifida, which is the imperfect closure of part of the spinal column. The end result to being born with this disease is usually paralysis.

Despite being born with this congenital defect, Muha was able to walk freely up until last April. He became paralyzed during a "tethered cord release" operation, which was meant to release pressure to the brain stem and allow the spinal cord to elongate as the boy grows.

Despite his paralysis, "Dennie" remains in great spirits, says his mother, Linda Muha.

"He's just amazing," she said. "The way he took the news surprised everybody. The first thing he wanted to do was go back to school, so he wouldn't fall behind."

During the past year, Muha has made great strides in his rehabilitation, which he undergoes three times a week. Bound to a wheelchair most of the day, his treatments include working with leg braces and a cane.

Muha's anxiousness for involvement also spurred his parents to enroll him with the Sterling Heights Challengers. Practicing once a week, this club prepares its members for upcoming competitions for the physically challenged.

Linda said her son has caught the "competition bug," due to his recent success in Windsor.

"He really loved participating and winning those medals," she said. "He can hardly wait until the next meet."

At the Indoor Classic, Muha won his age division in the shotput with a meet-record toss of about 2.5 meters. He also took third-place medals in the 60-meter and 400-meter wheelchair races.

Linda credits local teacher Steve Himburg with enhancing Dennis' performances in Windsor. The Clarkston Junior High School instructor loaned Muha his own pair of wheelchair racing wheels, prior to the meet.

"Everyone in Dennie's division had their own racing wheelchair, except him," she said. "Because of the sheer weight of a conventional wheelchair and its wide tires, he was put at a disadvantage.

"Mr. Himburg's wheels definitely helped," Linda Muha added.

The family is trying to raise funds to buy Dennis a racing wheelchair. However, these ultra-light racers are far from cheap, costing about $2,000.

Role players are Wolves' top concern

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Associate Editor

The Clarkston varsity girls' soccer team won't be lacking for individual talent this spring.

They've got three All-GOAL players coming back, including the Wolves' top scorer in 1992.

However, coach Dan Fitzgerald is concerned with finding solid role players to fill out the rest of his starting lineup.

"We've got a lot of inexperienced players on the squad this season," he said. "We lost a lot of good role players to graduation, so my top concern is finding people to fill these spots."

Fitzgerald has nine seniors on his 1993 roster, but many of them played junior varsity soccer as juniors in 1992. He expects only half of these seniors to play consistently, so he's looking to his underclassmen for help.

"We've got several good juniors on the team, along with a couple of athletic sophomores who are picking up the game quickly," Fitzgerald said.

This season, the Wolves will rely on the feet of center Carrie Millen. A first-team All-GOAL selection in 1992, the junior led CHS in scoring with nine goals and eight assists.

Senior Sadie Caruso is also back after a three-goal, nine-assist performance in 1992. She was a second-team all-conference selection last year.

Lisa Brososke, a junior, will be Clarkston's top defender this year. Last season, her efforts earned her All-GOAL honorable mention recognition.

Other players Fitzgerald singled out were: sophomore Audrie Schlaf, defender; senior Amy Wiitala, defender; and junior midfielder Gabrielle Bielak, who had three goals and two assists in 1992.

Juniors Kim Forbes and Michelle Schroeder are expected to battle for the position of goalie.

Last year, the Wolves finished second place to Brandon, with a record of 10-5. Again, Fitzgerald considers the Blackhawks as the team to beat.

"Historically, Brandon has been one of the top teams in Class B, and they should be very strong again this year," he said. "After them, I'd say all the rest of the teams in the league are about even."

"This year, we could finish anywhere between second and fifth place," Fitzgerald added. "It's all up for grabs."

The Wolves' next game is April 19 when they host Waterford Kettering.

Netters hope to challenge Lake Orion for GOAL title

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Associate Editor

Loaded with experience, this could be a banner year for the Clarkston boys' tennis team.

The Wolves boast seven seniors with varsity experience, not to mention the return of their most valuable player.

Last year, CHS compiled a 7-3 conference record and finished second to undefeated Lake Orion. Clarkston coach Dick Swartout expects CHS and the Drag-

"I think we've got a good shot at the league title. It'll probably come down to Lake Orion and us in the end."

Coach Dick Swartout

ons to duke it out this spring.

"I think we've got a good shot at the league title," Swartout said. "It'll probably come down to Lake Orion and us in the end."

Swartout will rely heavily on the play of junior Bobby Brazier, who won the league's No. 2 singles title last season. His outstanding play earned Brazier team MVP and most improved player honors in 1992.

This year, Brazier will move up to No. 1 singles.

Swartout has three seniors also slated as singles players, but he's uncertain of their seeds. They are Craig Coxen, Marc Chamberlain and Jon Tan.

Coxen took fourth place at the GOAL meet last year at No. 3 singles, as did Chamberlain at No. 4 singles. Tan was a doubles player in 1992, earning Second-Team All-GOAL honors at No. 2 doubles.

This year, Swartout will count on four seniors for his doubles teams. They include Josh Surre, Jeremy Doty, Matt Babcock and Brendan Kelly.

Thus far, the coach is uncertain of the partners and seeds of his doubles squads.

The Wolves first dual match of the season is April 21 when they host Lake Orion.

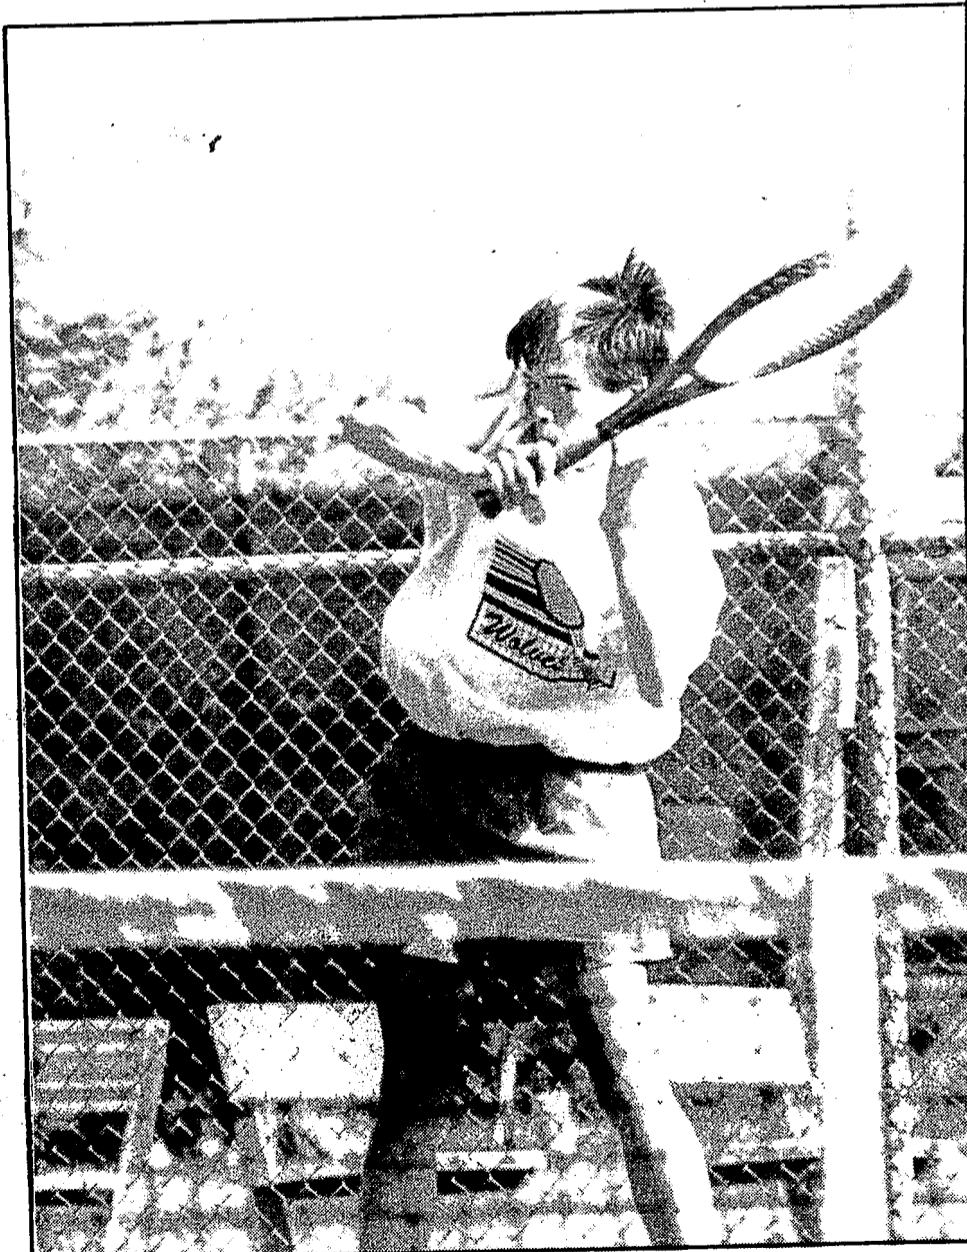

Turner, Broncos post victories

Junior Keith Turner of Clarkston went 3-1 last week as the Western Michigan University men's tennis team defeated Northwood and Grand Valley State universities.

Western topped Northwood 5-4 and GVSU 9-0 in dual matches in Kalamazoo.

Playing at No. 2 doubles, Turner and partner Les Smith defeated Northwood's No. 2 doubles team 7-6, 1-6, 7-6, and Grand Valley's Al Adams and Steve DeRose 6-2, 6-1. At No. 3 singles, Turner beat Grand Valley's Doug Daugherty 6-0, 6-1.

Turner has a 13-12 overall singles record and a 14-8 doubles record for the 10-3 Broncos.

Second best

DUGAN FIFE and the rest of the Michigan Wolverines had to settle for second best Monday night as they fell to North Carolina 77-71 in the NCAA title game. A reserve guard, Fife was often seen on national TV cheering on the Fab Five. The Clarkston freshman averaged just under two points a game this season for the 31-5 Wolverines. (Photo courtesy of the Michigan Wolverines team trading card set)

Clarkston's Birtsas released by Detroit

Clarkston native Tim Birtsas found his stay with the Detroit Tigers to be a short one.

The 32-year-old left-hander was released this week after Detroit signed south-paw pitcher Wally Ritchie to a minor league contract. Due to an abundance of left-handers, the Toledo Mudhens cut Birtsas.

Birtsas was signed to a minor league contract a few months prior to spring training.

The Michigan State alumnus posted a 14-14 record and a 4.08 earned-run average in 138 games with Oakland (1985-86) and Cincinnati (1988-90). He last pitched with Japan's Yakult Swallows in 1991.

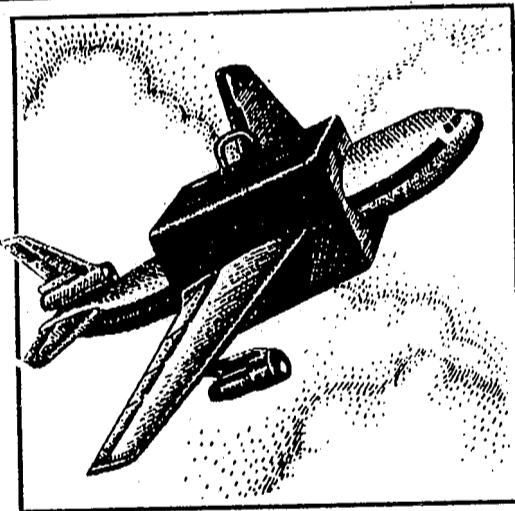

McChesney gets state AAU award

Clarkston High School senior Alyson McChesney has received the Chairman's Gold Star Award for being a member of the AAU girls' basketball program.

McChesney, along with other AAU athletes, were honored at a banquet in Grand Rapids March 28.

This award is for graduating seniors who've participated in AAU programs throughout the years. McChesney plans to attend Oakland University, Rochester, next fall on a basketball scholarship.

CARPETMASTER'S CARPET TIPS

GETTING DOWN TO BASICS

It's time to get carpet smart. As you choose your new carpet, you may be tempted to buy on the basis of color alone. But remember, quality determines the overall look and life of your carpet.

Use these guidelines to choose a quality carpet based on its pile density and fiber.

Carpet pile is the yarn on the face of the carpet. A quality carpet is marked by a firm, dense pile. To check a carpet's density, bend a corner of the carpet and see how much backing shows. The more backing that shows, the less dense and durable your carpet.

While most consumers seem to equate a bulky, soft feel with quality and performance, the most durable carpets have tightly twisted yarns densely packed into the carpet.

The introduction of stain-resistant carpet has expanded today's decorating options. You're no longer as limited in your choice of color and style. While all carpets will require general maintenance and cleaning, lighter-colored carpeting will require more maintenance than medium to darker shades.

At Carpetmaster our experts can help answer all of your questions, so you're sure to get the right floor for your needs.

If you have questions about purchasing your floor covering, call 627-4974 or write Carpetmaster, 1591 M-15, Ortonville, 48462.

A winning derby duo

WINNERS of the third annual Pioneer Club's Pinewood Derby March 27 were Alan Coy and his grandfather, George Thompson, both of Clarkston. The event was held at the Clarkston Community Church of God. Alan won trophies for best design and fastest car in his age group, K-3. The youngster also won a plaque for having the fastest car of all 29 entries. George won best design in the adult group and a second-place trophy for speed.

Hitter earns state mention

Heather Steinhelper capped off a terrific senior year by being named to the Class A all-state volleyball team.

The middle hitter earned honorable mention honors from the Michigan Interscholastic Volleyball Coaches Association, after leading the Wolves to league and district titles this season. Her other post-season honors include: team MVP, first-team all-conference, first-team all-region and a member of the Region 15 & 16 Dream Team.

During her three-year stint as a varsity player, she set seven school records. This year, Steinhelper recorded 410 kills, 186 points scored, 180 assists, 142 kill tips, 110 kill blocks, 49 serving aces, 89.7 percent serving and a 48.8 percent kill percentage.

Defensively, she added 99 digs and an 89.9 percent serve reception rate.

The 5-10 star will be attending Ferris State University, Big Rapids, next fall on a volleyball scholarship.

Family skate night planned

A Family Fun Skate night is planned during Easter spring break in Springfield Township.

It takes place 6-9 p.m. Thursday, April 15, at Springfield Oaks Activity Center, 12451 Andersonville Road.

The event is open to all ages, but children under age 12 must be accompanied by an adult. Registration is limited to 150. Cost is $2 if registered by Friday, April 9, and $3 on-site.

The Family Fun Skate night includes roller skates and in-line skates, contests, games, complimentary beverage, bag of popcorn, door prizes, music and more.

The skate night is part of the nationwide Fuel for Fitness program designed to improve youth and adult fitness levels by providing information and activities at the community level.

For more information, call the Springfield Parks and Recreation Department at 634-0412 or Oakland County Parks and Recreation at 858-0916.

CHS graduates end OCC season

A pair of Clarkston High graduates have concluded their season with the Oakland Community College men's basketball squad.

Sophomore Bill Knight ended his two-year career at OCC by posting some impressive numbers. For the season, Knight averaged: 53 percent shooting from the field, 70 percent from the free throw line, four steals, nine rebounds and 10 points per game.

Freshman Mark Galbraith averaged: 55 percent shooting from the floor, 75 percent from the free throw line, two steals, seven rebounds and six points per game.

The Raiders ended their season with an overall record of 15-13.

Company wins state environmental award

Clawson Tank Co. of Clarkston was named a statewide environmental quality award-winner March 30. The Michigan State Chamber of Commerce honored Clawson Tank as the top winner in southeast Michigan in the category of companies employing more than 100 workers. The Springfield Township company was honored for developing a newly patented Liqui-Vault system, which makes it possible for communities, businesses and government agencies to safely store gasoline and other flammable, combustible and hazardous liquids.

Liqui-Vault was designed with safety first in mind. It is a leak-proof steel tank inside a thick, architecturally pleasing, concrete vault. Each system is equipped with electronic leak detection and monitoring systems, as well as filling and dispensing spill safeguards.

"Governing and regulating bodies and many tank owners themselves are growing leery of underground storage of hazardous liquid and (are) seeking above-ground storage alternatives," said Chuck Harding, Clawson Tank president. "The above-ground tank may be visually inspected as often as necessary to minimize environmental damage from leaks and spills."

Clawson Tank was among 16 winners announced at the Chamber's seventh annual Environmental Regulations Conference in Lansing. Companies were judged on criteria including: innovation, creativity, community involvement, research and jobs created or saved.

Honored nationally

Michael P. Spillum was recently honored with The President's Cabinet Award for outstanding achievement as an agent for The Equitable Life Assurance Society.

He works at the Hobbly Agency of the Equitable, headquartered in Troy. The award was presented at a formal reception at the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club last month.

Spillum has 15 years of automation sales experience in the Detroit market. He became a registered representative and financial services manager with The Equitable in 1992, specializing in retirement and estate planning and general insurance.

M. Spillum

Since joining The Equitable last year, he has gone on to become one of few nationwide to receive the President's Cabinet Award.

A long-time Clarkston-area resident, Spillum is a member of the BPOE, American Legion, and Clarkston Rotary Club (where he was recently named president-elect).

Weekend thieves hit Saturn dealership

BY CATHERINE PASSMORE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

The damage of 33 new Saturns last weekend may not have been a random incident.

Sgt. Kerry Krupsky of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department said that over the weekend quite a few dealerships in the I-75 corridor were hit. Those included a Ford dealership in Pinconning, where 50 cars were damaged, and a nearby General Motors dealership, where 17 cars were ruined.

The 33 Saturns were in the back lot of Saturn North on Dixie Highway, Springfield Township, when someone broke into them. The thieves took the AM/FM cassette or compact disc players. Krupsky estimated the damage and loss to be over $15,000.

The back lot is lighted, but since the incidents took place either late Friday night or early Saturday, no one was around to notice what was happening, said Krupsky.

Krupsky speculated that more than one person was involved in the thefts. An auto theft expert told Krupsky that the thieves "are so good, they get in and out of the cars faster than you think they could."

The items stolen show the thieves also knew what they wanted. "This indicates a rather professional operation," said Krupsky. "They know what they want and how to get it."

Even though the thieves took 33 radios, the joke may be on them. Radios in Saturn cars can only be installed in another Saturn car. They look the same as any other car radio from the front, but the wires won't connect to another kind of car.

The North Oakland Auto Theft Unit is investigating the theft at the Saturn dealership.

Greek getaway trip to repeat — three times

If you missed the winter Greek Getaway trip in January, you still have a chance to explore Greece inexpensively in the next year.

Tom Wilford, formerly of Clarkston, and his wife Carrie organized the January trip for 42 people, which included 22 Clarkston-area residents. And the Cleveland couple is offering three more trips through 1994.

The two wrote columns for The Clarkston News while traveling the world a few years ago.

Carrie, who lived in Greece while working for Citibank, said the Clarkston travelers who accompanied them to Greece in January had a great time.

"The whole group from Clarkston was really fun," she said. "It went really great."

She said it was an opportune time to visit the country because it's still warm, prices are great, and there are no crowds.

Two teens arrested

Two Clarkston teenagers, ages 17 and 18, were arrested for shoplifting at the Foodtown store in Oxford Friday. The two were seen by an employee loading merchandise into a baby stroller and diaper bag. When apprehended outside the store they admitted their crimes. Most of the $200 worth of items taken were not food, but included cigarettes, music and towels. Police are seeking felony warrants. "I didn't think I'd be arrested," the girl told police in her statement. "Next time maybe I'll think twice."

Those from Clarkston who participated were: Lucia and Jerry Wilford (Tom's parents), Oscar and Marlene Lidstrom, Gary and Barbara Zabel, Karen and Allan Ronquillo, Irene Long, Joann and Al Schwartz, Janet Rose, Barbara Reed, Chris and Paul Shull, Amy Henderstein, Diane McMillan and Dana Pedlaw, Lucille and Walter Richley, and Tom and Gail Hanson.

Tom and Carrie coordinated all the travel and accommodations arrangements, but for the most part, people were on their own to explore, said Carrie.

To make things a little easier, she arranged for a group trip to Athens (including an optional trip to the back part of the Acropolis and optional Greek dancing at night) and a one-day three-island cruise to the islands of Aegina, Poros and Hydra.

Two incidents stand out, said Carrie. One, her mother-in-law fell ill and had to undergo emergency surgery while on vacation, and her father-in-law was a hero one day when he spotted somebody who needed rescuing in the choppy water.

Other, less dramatic adventures occurred daily, she said.

According to Carrie, "highlights of the classical tour consisted of visiting the impressive Corinth Canal, visiting the ruins of Mycenae and the Beehive Tomb, visiting the Theatre of Epidaurus where the acoustics to this day are exceptional and productions are still held every summer, staying overnight in a beautiful town on the water of Nauplion, touring Olympia where the Olympics started, and visiting an incredible museum there as well as staying overnight in Olympia, touring Delphi which included a visit to one of the best museums in Greece to view the bronze "Charioteer" and overnighting in Delphi in the mountains, and visiting a Byzantine monastery on the way back to Athens."

If enough people are interested, Tom and Carrie plan to offer an open house in June to tell Clarkston-area residents about three upcoming trips. The dates include: October 1993, Greek Isles; January 1994, Greek Classical Tour; May 1994, Greece Isles (two islands).

For more information, call Carrie and Tom at 216-943-6703.

BRITTANY Harris and Village Bookstore owner Georgene Sloan pose for a photo on Main Street, Clarkston. Brittany, 11, is the local and national winner of a letter-writing contest for kids.

Student's letter quickly, nimbly wins top award

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Editor

Though Jack is nimble and quick, he likely burned himself jumping over the candlestick.

At least that's how Brittany Harris sees it.

The 11-year-old fifth-grader of Springfield Township wrote a letter to Jack Be Nimble, Candle Stick Jumper, and won a local and national award in the process.

She asked Jack, "Are you getting tired of burning yourself? Then try our new improved items."

Her letter listed (and illustrated) such candlestick-jumping aids as shoe springs, magic candle, crunchy candles cereal, fireproof suit and more.

Brittany said she was excited and surprised to hear that her letter won first prize. Her previous letter-writing experience includes corresponding with her cousin Whitney Rynex, 6, in Longwood, Fla.

Brittany and classmates in Mary Schulte's class at Andersonville Elementary entered The Jolly Postman Letter-Writing Contest sponsored by the Village Bookstore in downtown Clarkston.

Based on the children's book by the Ahlbergs, the contestants were asked to assume the identity of a nursery rhyme character and write a letter to another character. Publishers Little, Brown and Co., Boston, awarded one $15 gift certificate (to be used on books) to one winner per store across the country.

Brittany, who wrote her letter on behalf of The Jack and Jill Candle Company, won the Village Bookstore award.

What's more, she also was chosen by the publishers as one of 10 nationwide winners, earning herself another $50 book certificate.

She and the other nine winners are now in the running for the grand-prize award of a custom-made soft sculpture of the fairy-tale character of the winner's choice — and a $100 certificate for books. "The Jolly Postman" authors are to choose the top winner.

Brittany, who likes to read, write, swim and collect trolls, said her favorite subject in school is not English. Rather it's art.

"I like to draw," she said.

Perhaps her artistry helped her letter to Jack Be Nimble jump to the top.

Inventors creatively solve everyday problems

If you've ever been annoyed by missing remote control devices, beach towels that won't stay put or hard-to-find hair accessories, then you may want to talk to a few young inventors at Clarkston Elementary School. Fourth-graders in Natalie Hewko's reading class recently focused on the theme: "Battle of the Wits."

Out of this came "solving everyday problems creatively." And that was each pupil's assignment.

Not only did each student think up a problem and a solution, but each also created the actual solution.

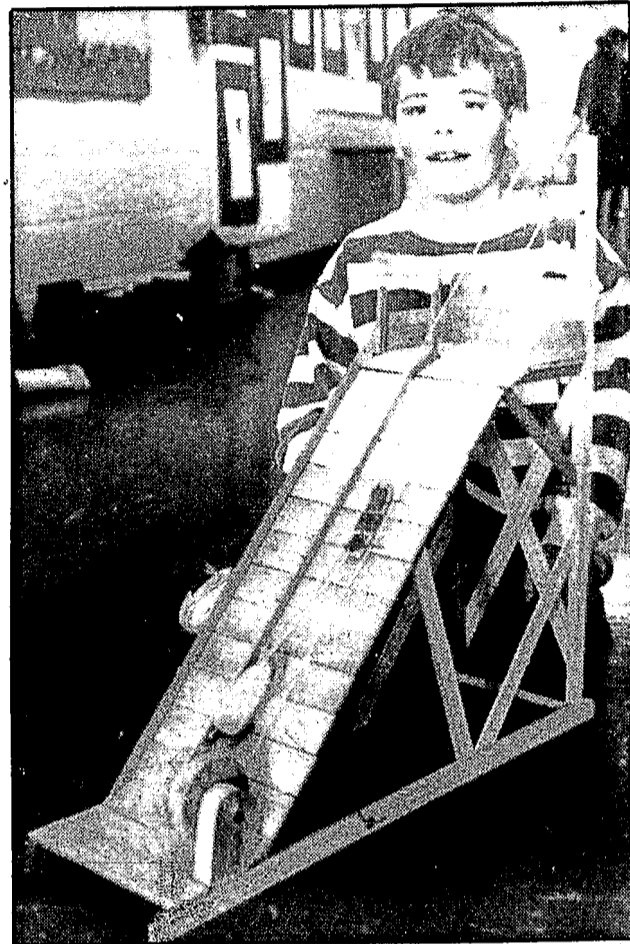

Kimberly Burleigh, 10, invented the Dog Walker 2000 (with two speeds) because her energetic wheaten terrier Corky, 8, was sometimes troublesome to walk, she said. Her invention — fashioned out of a vacuum cleaner — actually works, though not too well on Corky, who became a little hysterical when he realized he was attached the loud Dog Walker 2000.

"He cracked the back of the (papier-mache) head — he's scared of the vacuum," said Burleigh.

Burleigh's model on display at school used a stuffed dog for demonstrations.

Michael Katnik, 10, invented The Sled-o-matic, which he displayed with a scale model.

"When I go sledding, I have a big, steep hill, and my legs would always get tired," explained Katnik about his inspiration.

MICHAEL Katnik, 10, a fourth-grader in Jennifer Robbin's class, built a scale model of his Sled-o-matic, which solves the problem of carrying a sled up a steep hill after each slide down.

His contraption uses a pulley system to carry the sled up the hill. The sled automatically disengages at the top.

"My dad helped me," said Katnik, who pointed out one of his invention's best features. "It's low to the ground, so you don't get your jacket caught."

Ben Banworth's Stay Tuned device could be marketable in the Clarkston area. It's designed to hold television guides and remote controls "because they always get lost," according to his diagram. One advantage, the remote controls always point in the right direction.

Sarah Voss' Throw Me Not could help many parents. Her suction-cup device is designed to prevent youngsters from, say, throwing a spoon off their high chair trays.

With a little mass production, Erin Wilke's Super Barrette Babysitter could be a hit with the younger set in town.

Created out of brightly colored Tinker Toys, it holds all sorts of hair accessories and includes ribs to hold barrettes. It could be a contender for Clarkston's annual fall Crafts and Cider Festival.

Then there's the Stay Put Beach Towel, created by Ryan Brown, who looked ahead to warmer weather for his idea. Actually, a friend of his mother's suggested it, he said.

It's a normal beach towel with Velcro strips at the corners, which hold a weight made of a balloon filled with flour. If you plan to do this yourself, make sure you don't get any water in the balloon — otherwise it will become hard, warned Brown.

Scott Gordon solved the problem of deciding what to wear in the morning with his Next Day Clothes Organizer, which includes pouches for socks, underwear and accessories, and a hanger for the other items. The trick: choose your clothing the night before and place the items on his contraption.

While all of the inventions were original (most even worked), Kiley Banycky may have invented the most popular problem solver.

Her Lazy Kids companions consists of a basket attached to the top of a remote control car. The diagram warns that it doesn't go upstairs, but it may go down, and boasts, "You'll never have to carry your stuff again."

Pastor provides ice rink for neighborhood kids

When the teens in neighborhood wanted to make an ice rink, the Rev. Barry Pendley made the idea a reality.

Pendley, 26, is the youth pastor at the First Baptist Church on Paramus. The ice rink, with hockey goals made by his brother Brian, is in the side yard of the church.

"After it took off, people were on it all the time," said Pendley, laughing because the rink didn't really work until February.

Pendley grew up in Independence Township and was graduated from Clarkston High School. After receiving a bachelor's degree from Maranatha Baptist College in Wisconsin, he was a youth pastor in another church for a year and a half. He then worked in the hotel business for a while before getting back into the ministry.

He is now pastoring at the church he was raised in. "It's different being your family's pastor," he said, noting there are four other ministers in the same circumstance in the area.

His youth group with averages 30 teens a week. He has an open policy about their activities and encourages teens from the neighborhood to participate.

He plays arena football and street hockey in the church with anyone who comes in. The youth group and their friends just returned from a ski trip.

Pendley encourages the teens from the area to utilize the church and participate in all of their activities.

"If we were here to be our own community ... why have a church?" he says.

AN ICE RINK on church property is a good way to keep neighborhood youth busy, says youth pastor Barry Pendley, who constructed the rink and hockey goals with help from his brother, Brian. Pendley also likes to play other sports with neighborhood kids.

Mouth-watering meatloaf

Meatloaf lovers may want to try this mouth-watering recipe, which comes from "Fifty-Two Meat Loaves" (Simon & Schuster) by Michael McLaughlin.

THE DREAM LOAF

(Serves 6 to 8)

- 1/2 stick (4 tablespoons) unsalted butter
- 1 1/4 cups finely chopped onions
- 1 medium red bell pepper, finely chopped
- 1/4 cup sliced green onion
- 2 garlic cloves, minced
- 2 eggs, beaten
- 1/3 cup canned beef broth
- 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
- 1 tablespoon hot pepper sauce
- 1 tablespoon soy sauce
- 1 pound ground beef
- 1/2 pound ground pork
- 1/2 pound veal
- 4 ounces Monterey Jack cheese, grated
- 3/4 cup saltine cracker crumbs
- 1/2 cup ketchup
- 5 slices of thick-cut bacon, halved crosswise

1. In a large skillet, melt the butter over medium heat. When it foams, add the onions, bell pepper, green onion and garlic. Cover and cook for 5 minutes. Uncover and cook, stirring often, for another 4 to 5 minutes, or until the vegetables are lightly browned. Remove from the heat and cool to room temperature.

2. Position a rack in the middle of the oven and preheat the oven to 350 degrees. In a medium bowl, whisk together the eggs, beef broth, Worcestershire sauce, pepper sauce and soy sauce until well blended. In a large bowl, combine the ground beef, pork and veal with the onion mixture, cheese and cracker crumbs. Mix lightly but thoroughly. Transfer the meat mixture to a shallow baking dish and shape it into a loaf about 3 inches thick; smooth the top with the back of a spoon. Spread the ketchup evenly over the loaf. Arrange the bacon strips atop the ketchup, overlapping them slightly if necessary.

3. Bake for about 1 1/2 hours, or until an instant-reading thermometer inserted into the center of the loaf registers 160 degrees. Let the loaf stand on a rack for 10 minutes before slicing.

MARK STONE, a senior percussion major at the University of Michigan, performs a song on an African drum. Stone spent a year in Ghana learning African music. He was part of a series in multicultural learning at Clarkston Elementary School.

WILL BLIESATH (from left), Dustin Gray, and Josh Gardiner clap and dance to African music in their Clarkston Elementary classroom. The boys, along with other Clarkston students, took advantage of a humanities grant awarded by the Michigan

Humanities Council to improve multicultural education. The student also are pen pals with inner-city children and have given presentations on famous people from various ethnic backgrounds.

Getting a bit of culture

The kids at Clarkston Elementary School are getting a little culture.

They aren't listening to classical music and appreciating Monet through. The Michigan Humanities Council awarded Clarkston Elementary School $1,500 to improve the multicultural education for the students.

Through the program, third- and fourth-grade students explore the culture and contributions of Americans of various races.

The children are pen pals with children at an inner-city school, and they have presented oral reports and independent studies of famous people.

As part of the learning experience, Mark Stone performed songs on various African drums for the children.

Stone, 22, is a senior at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor. He was a valedictorian graduate of Waterford Kettering.

A percussion major, he spent 1992 in northwest Ghana learning African music. Stone spent time there since the marimba, the instrument his emphasis is on in college, originated in Ghana.

While at the Clarkston El., he demonstrated various instruments for the children, taught them African songs, and let them try their hand at dancing while he sang for them.

Poetry Corner

Concept

By Tom Erickson

GOD took the concept
Of man, of woman
And all of the beautiful wonders of this World and he said to himself,
"If man ever conceivably becomes bored
With this planet that I give him,
Bored with goals to attain,
I should give him something more difficult
To reach."

GOD thought to himself
Then taking in one hand,
He gathered all of man's hopes, dreams
And wishes then threw them into the night's sky.
These, man; I give to you ...
You shall call them "Stars,"

Stars, to be representative
Of man's and woman's hopes and dreams.
Out of reach, I cast them into the Night's sky so that you will know
To always look for the shining light, the positive,
The good things in life and realize
Without dreams, wishes and hopes
That there is darkness and the void of emptiness.

There are a million paths
That I give you to follow,
The one that you choose freely will be the right path
For you as long as you remember
To just keep looking up for my light.
A light that I will place along with the millions
Of hopes, dreams and wishes of mankind.
For there too you will find my wishes, hopes and dreams
To be a light, a guiding light for all of mankind
To follow ...

Tom Erickson resides on Hubbard Road, Independence Township.

TIM HESS concentrates while in ORFF music class. Along with ORFF music the children could learn keyboarding and bells.

DONNY STEIN and Jeff Ginn learn the art of clowning at Clarkson Elementary's festival of arts. The day of learning allowed the children to experience first hand the various forms of art.

Art for learning's sake

JUSTIN GAY, Ben Bean and Ryan Gilford try out their musical talents with their rendition of "Houñd Dog." The art day was the first for Clarkston Elementary and included classes in theater, music, movement and arts and crafts. (See page 20 A for pictures of art day at Bailey Lake.)

JENNIFER ROBBINS, a teacher at Clarkston Elementary, busts a move in the street dancing class. The teachers learned along with the students in classes such as origami, mime and new wave ballet.
