Traveling balloon forms Clarkston link

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Editor

A pink balloon with a purple ribbon caused a stir in Mio last week and may have instigated a friendship. Jack Eiden, who moved to Mio four years ago after living for 26 years in Independence Township, said a friend, Gertrude Rickabus, found the balloon and immediately showed it to Jack.

She knew he'd be interested because attached to the balloon was the name and address of a Clarkston man, Joe Angelosanto.

The balloon was in good shape and was still inflated when Gertrude found it Tuesday, April 13, said Jack. "She was really shocked and amazed to see it — the fact that it came that far unscathed," he said. "It landed in her yard that morning."

Jack, too, was amazed to see it.

"We're old Clarkstonites, and it kind of gives you a funny feeling," he said. "No matter where you are, you're not far from home. Something like this just gives you a little tingle."

In addition to Joe Angelosanto's name, the balloon tag read, "Jesus Christ is risen today," giving Jack the idea that the balloon was launched on Easter Sunday, two days prior to Gertrude's discovery.

He soon called Joe, who was thrilled to hear from him. Joe and fellow parishioners of Holy Spirit Church in Highland launch balloons each Easter Sunday, and Joe had never received a response.

"I was surprised," he said. "I never figured anyone would find it. I just thought it would fall somewhere."

Better even than the news of the balloon's journey was the conversation with Jack, he said.

"We got a chance to share a lot of things — we have a lot in common," said Joe.

For instance, both are Catholic, both enjoy the Clarkston area, both believe strongly in their faith.

When Jack found out that Joe's wife Katie was pregnant, he said he would say a novena every week. "I'm going to pray for you guys," he told Joe, who added, "He even invited us up."

Joe said, "It's nice to find sensitive people like that who care."

Giant garage sale, car wash help in London trip

Area residents can help send a student to London by going to a garage sale or having a car washed.

The Clarkston High School Band has been asked to perform in the January 1994 New Year's Spectacular in London, England. This prestigious opportunity is an exceptional event celebrating the New Year and over 400 years of history in the City of Westminster. The CHS band is one of 25 bands from the United States invited to participate.

The cost of the trip, while at a reduced rate, is still beyond the reach of many of the students. To help make sure all students can participate, the Clarkston Band Booster Organization is holding various fund-raisers.

One of the fund-raisers is the Giant Garage Sale at the high school 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, April 24. Any donations of new or used items can be dropped off at the school any time after 3 p.m. on April 23. To arrange for a pickup, call Sue at 625-8053, Pat at 625-3061, Marla at 625-7067, or Rhoda at 625-5760.

In addition to the garage sale, band students are taking pledges for a "free" car wash 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday, April 25. Fred Ritter, owner of Clarkston Auto Wash, is helping the band in its effort to raise money for its London trip.

Field fire traced to boys, 11 and 14

Two young boys won't be playing with fire anymore after a blaze they started went out of control.

According to an Oakland County Sheriff's Department report, the two Springfield Township boys, ages 11 and 14, started a fire in the field behind Andersonville Elementary on April 14.

A neighbor noticed the boys and went out to investigate. By that time, the fire had gotten out of hand. The woman helped them extinguish the flames while her daughter called the fire department.

The boys left the scene without telling the woman their names. The police were able to find them later, however, and spoke to them and their parents about the incident.

The kids were helpful to the police and reportedly remorseful. No charges will be brought against the pair.

Owners fight over sale of golf course, mansion

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Associate Editor

The owners of the Pine Knob Country Club and Pine Knob Mansion are in the midst of a legal battle.

The three trustees of the Harley J. Robinson Trust want to sell the businesses to Anthony Catenacci for about $5.7 million. However, a fourth partner, Jim Albright, a Bloomfield Hills businessman, refuses to go through with the transaction.

The trio of David Stone, Albert Papa and Mitchell Hanna filed a lawsuit against Albright in Oakland County Circuit Court March 30. Linda Kopietz, secretary and treasurer of Pine Knob Country Club and Mansion, is also named in the lawsuit.

This three-man trust and Albright each own 50 percent of the stock in the country club and the mansion. The trust also has about a 75-percent interest in RAB Properties Limited Partnership, which owns the undeveloped property near the golf course.

Albright has a 25-percent interest in RAB.

Man found dead in hunting blind

A Springfield Township man was found dead in a hunting blind two days after he was reported missing.

According to the Oakland County Sheriff's Department report, Wayne Vernier, 44, of Canterbury Circle was found dead from a self-inflicted gunshot wound at a hunting blind in Ogemaw County on April 15.

The April 13 missing person report was filed by his daughter in Springfield Township, who told police she feared her father may harm himself. The report said the man was going through a divorce and had left the house with two guns.

When he didn't show up for work on April 13, the daughter called the police.

This vacant property, including the mansion and golf course, are subject to foreclosure by Michigan National Bank because two multi-million dollar loans are presently in default. Two $7.3 million loans were approved in 1988 by Michigan National Bank to Pine Knob Country Club, Inc., and RAB.

Both loans matured December 1992, causing the mortgages to go into default, making foreclosure proceedings imminent.

The owners also have not paid any real property taxes on the land since 1990. If this problem isn't cleared up, the golf course property will be auctioned off at a delinquent tax sale on May 1.

The trust wants to sell to Catenacci to pay off their loans to the bank and take care of its delinquent property taxes. They also want to dissolve the Pine Knob Country, Inc., and Mansion, Inc., in order to liquidate their assets.

Albright wants to try to buy out his partners' shares in the property, but he's yet to make a $500,000 deposit as Catenacci has.

The three plaintiffs want the court to dissolve Pine Knob Country Club, Inc., and Mansion, Inc., remove Albright as an officer and director of the corporations, keep him from transferring any of the property, and move forward with the Catenacci agreement.

The matter has been forwarded to Judge John N. O'Brien, but a court date has yet to be set.

Board supports POW-MIA stamp

We have the young Elvis, the wood duck and famous comedians on stamps. Now people are asking for a POW-MIA stamp.

In fact, the Springfield Township Board received a resolution from the City of Novi that urges the postmaster general to issue a commemorative stamp for the POW-MIAs.

The resolution stated that the stamp "is issued in honor of those who were willing to make the supreme sacrifice for their country and to show their families that they are not forgotten."

The board unanimously supported Novi's resolution. The resolution will be forwarded to the postmaster general, the president, senators Carl Levin and Donald Riegle, Rep. Joseph Knollenburg, state Sen. Jack Faxon, state Rep. Willis Bullard and other communities.

Hillman estimated the structural damage at $10,000, and noted the family has had to temporarily move out due to electrical and plumbing damage.

Police reported finding a match on the basement stairs, but Hillman said they do not suspect arson.

Earth Day helps town, environment

This Thursday, April 22, marks yet another observance of Earth Day.

Surprisingly, this special day has been around for decades but has only gained widespread attention the last couple of years. This can be attributed to Americans' heightened sense of concern toward the environment, and our attempt to preserve it for future generations.

Unlike other special days, the observance of Earth Day has no set guidelines. The amount of time and effort is up to the individual.

It can range from cleaning up undesignated dump sites along back roads to picking up the litter on or around one's property. Some folks even go as far as sifting through dumpsters to dig out recyclable items made of plastic, aluminum or paper.

Regardless of the chore, Earth Day is a time to take pride in one's neighborhood and lend a helping hand to Mother Nature. So chip in. You'll be glad you did.

About staff editorials

We at The Clarkston News realize that an important duty of a newspaper is to provide more than just the facts found in news stories.

Since we're out there uncovering the news, we get an inside look at the issues. In our staff editorials, we will give our opinions on those issues, just as other writing on this page — letters and columns — also offers opinions.

We leave the editorials unsigned because we've written them as a staff. Every week, we talk about the issues and take notes on everyone's opinions. Then one of us writes it and the rest of us change it until we're all satisfied.

While our opinions aren't always unanimous, our editorials reflect the majority views of the staff. If the staff splits evenly on an issue, we'll write two editorials on the subject.

We welcome your response to our views.

Weekly loss

Julie Campe

Iva (Sommers) Caverly died last week. We received the obituary on the day she usually called us.

I guess that's why it was so hard to believe — and why I'll miss her.

For as long as I've been working at this newspaper, Iva Caverly has been a part of it. She called us weekly, sometimes more than once a day, as she read her way through The Clarkston News, sometimes asking for each member of the staff as she read their stories.

We knew she called as she advanced page by page because 1) she told us, and 2) her comments began with Section A and gradually went to Section B.

Sometimes she called to ask a question ("Is this rezoning for the west or the east side of Sashabaw Road? And is that new subdivision planned for the same side as the Smiths' old house or is it near where the old orchard used to be?").

Her thorough reading definitely kept us on our toes. If we left out a word or a fact, she would know and call us.

Usually, our brief accounts of happenings were not enough for her, for the stories never included every detail. Iva knew because Iva herself knew every detail.

Often she would call just to share those details. Though sometimes exasperating, her stories usually were interesting.

She had a wealth of knowledge about Springfield Township, where she and the rest of her Sommers family was raised (and where she attended a "country" school), about gardening and nature (ever talk to her about "Bittersweet" — the bright orange berry that grew near her house and grows naturally along country roads in Michigan? All I know about the vine comes from her), about the Caverly family ("My husband Al is not from that Caverly family, though many people think so."), about I-75 ("I remember when the state took half my land to build that highway. I hated it then, but I sure do love it now," she proclaimed many times at public meetings).

For Iva, her telephone was a link to the world. In conversation, she often mentioned her phone calls to Michigan Department of Transportation engineers, for instance, from whom she knew the road construction schedule, or from a government official, who told her the timetable for certain projects. Often, she knew the news before we did.

Many officials knew her, which can be considered a credit to her. She knew how to get information and answers and exercised that knowledge and her right to that information.

A few years ago, her phone calls became less frequent, and we learned she had been hospitalized for heart trouble. As soon as she was well again, though, her calls became regular.

Yes, Iva was an eccentric. But what kind of world would it be without good-natured eccentrics, those people who challenge us to see things from a different perspective?

And what will The Clarkston News be like without its weekly phone call from Iva Caverly?

Sadly, we will find out in the weeks to come.

Jim's Jottings

Touring Arizona

I've been told (warned) many times not to drive a rented car into Mexico. That in mind I tried to vision the parking lot we used 10 years ago as we headed south out of Tucson on I-19.

The vision never came. I got in line, like all good Americans, and, bingo! I was in Nogales, Mexico, pronto.

This was the beginning of a 5-day tour of Arizona. Hazel and I planned for the last days of March. If you remember our driving desires it's back roads, no freeways. I-19 is a freeway.

Ah, well. Hazel wanted to shop Nogales for some pottery. Now, Nogales is not my kind of place. It's narrow, very dirty streets with street hawkers, open front mini-stores, alley shops and masses of people.

Hazel shopped and bargained . . . and bargained and bargained. She didn't find her pottery, but she did find a few tokens for the grandchildren. Later we went back into Mexico south of Yuma (San Luis, Mexico) and found the pottery.

It's hard to find something nice to write about Nogales. The sidewalks are trip-traps. The products are inferior. Nothing is clean unless it's a drug store.

However, the people are not unfriendly. And, the stores give job opportunities to young people. Most knick-knack shops have young, not too serious people doing the negotiating.

We had no trouble going into or coming out of Mexico, only the slow moving exit line.

Just to be fair, Nogales, Arizona isn't a whole lot cleaner than its namesake to the south.

We had a great 'find' for a night's rest in Tubac, AZ. The sign read, 'Burro Inn, next right.' The motel and restaurant has two live burros as a welcoming committee.

Each motel room has two carrots, one for each burro. Oh, yeah, we saw something while we were there that leads us to believe there will be three burros for greeters next year.

Four coyote pups played outside our door the next morning.

Tubac is a quaint, tourist-type town . . . you know the type, over-abundance of galleries. But, it's rather new with Old West-Mexico architecture. Worth a stop.

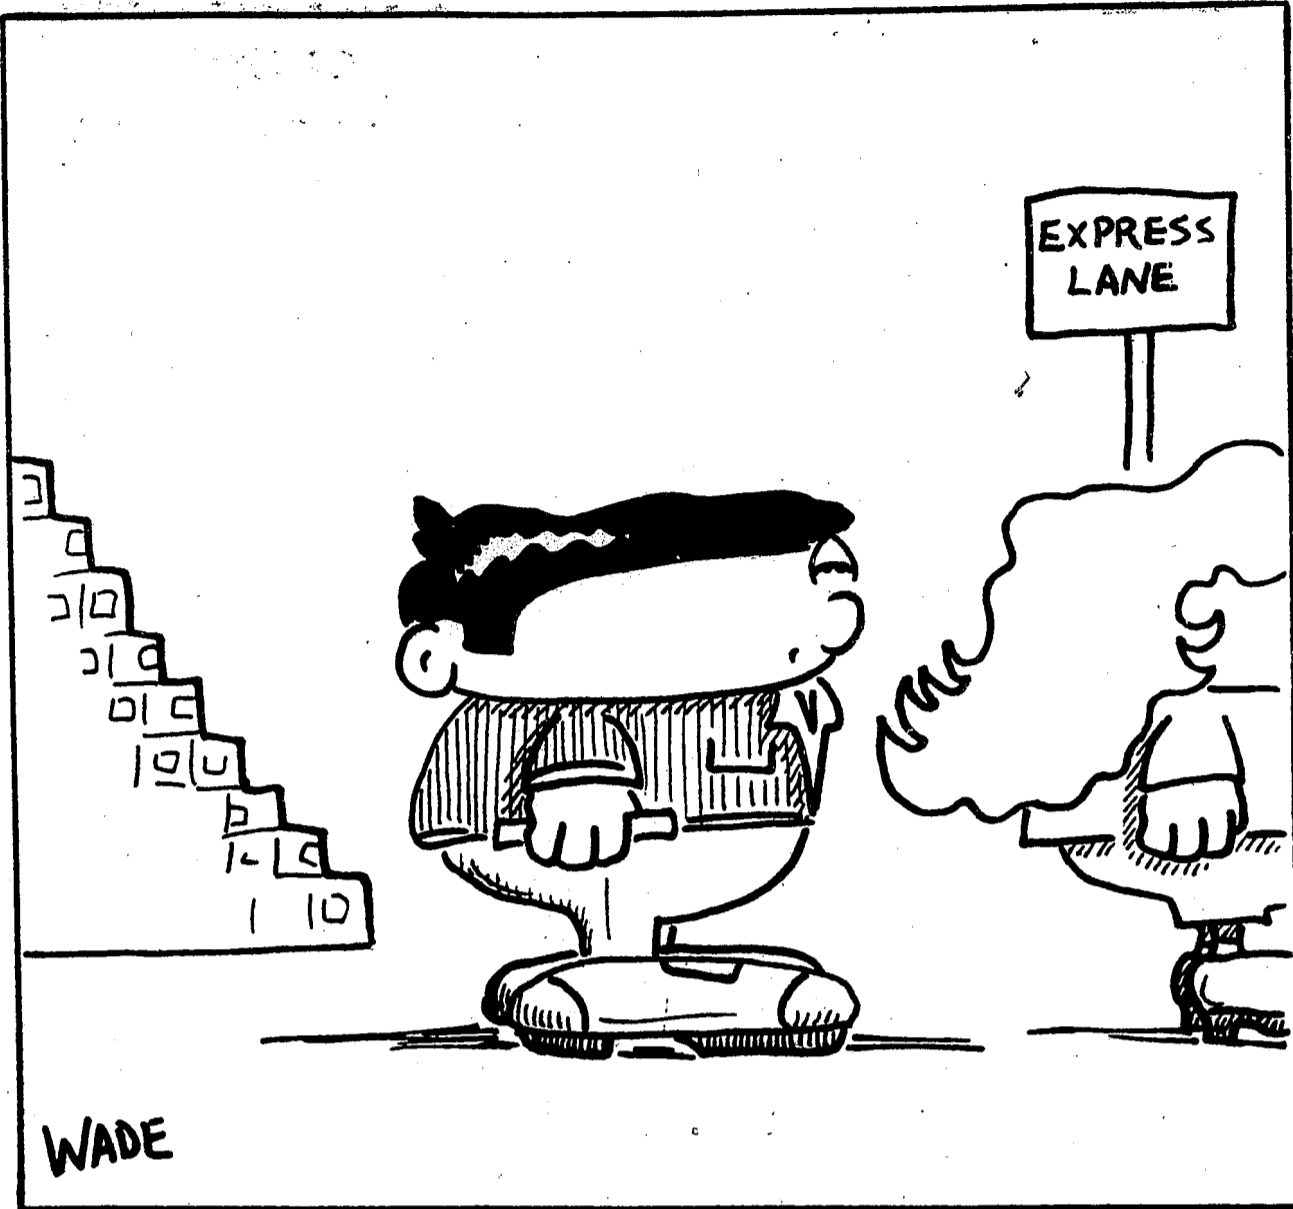

On to Patagonia and a bird sanctuary. This is Arizona's fourth largest tourist attraction, we were told. Most of it was impassable because of flooding. We talked to two men looking for a green-throated kingfisher. I wanted to tell them to watch the Amos and Andy show.

Hazel and I saw a grey squirrel and a horse laying down. Good bye Patagonia, hello Sonoita.

Sonoita is a wide spot in the road that has a stop sign. Hazel's idea of a stop sign is one that reads "antiques."

We'll stop here on this tour and warn you, we'll continue the trip next week.

Uncivilized gamblers devalue a best friend

Jim Fitzgerald

For me, there are few disgusting truths more unbelievable and depressing than the fact that there are many so-called civilized human beings who enjoy watching two dogs fight to a bloody death.

Fighter dogs are bred and trained for no other reason than to maim and kill each other while people cheer and bet money on which of their best friends will die first.

It makes a guy feel silly for protesting the more subtle cruelties to animals. (A steel trap hidden in the underbrush is subtle compared to shooting a pheasant thrown in front of your gun by the bartender-gamekeeper at the hunt club.)

Rodeos, horse races and animal acts make me twitch and cringe.

I wouldn't want some clown sitting on my back, digging spurs into my ribs and beating me on the head just because some greedy jerks had $10 on my nose.

I wouldn't want some muscle-head cowboy jumping on my neck, wrestling me to the ground and tying my hands to my legs just so he could pound his chest and collect $500 prize money.

I wouldn't want to be fed on the sly, a hunk of fish after every trick, to fool a paying audience into believing I flopped through hoops because I was playful, not hungry.

But these would be minor irritations to a fighter dog. His job is to enter a pit with another fighter dog and fight to stay alive. If he survives to fight another day, more bets will be placed on him. If he loses, he can't complain about the refereeing. He's probably dead.

These dogfights are illegal, but thousands are held in the United States every year. The owner-gamblers even have an underground national magazine - or at least they did several years ago when I saw its editor, a bearded cretin named Pete Sparks, on a TV talk show.

Sparks defended organized dogfights by saying: "It's just another sport, like horse racing." (Which is something for you Sport of Kings fans to think about as you chew on your pari-mutuel tickets.)

The erudite Sparks also pointed out that the losing dog doesn't necessarily die. His owner can throw in the towel if the owner doesn't mind being a humiliated quitter. The dog, of course, doesn't have anything to say about it.

But what do dogfight fans have to say? I can almost understand the motive of the promoters; they do it for money and are only a little worse than prizefight promoters who at least can plead that their gladiators have a choice and are paid with more than dog food.

But what about the people in the dogfight audience? What do they say in their defense when I say they are ignorant, blood-thirsty jerks who should be ashamed of themselves?

I'd really like to know. On April 7, investigators from the Michigan Humane Society broke up a pit bull fight in the 9300 block of Sylvester on Detroit's east side. No arrests were made, and at least 40 spectators fled the scene. I wish one of those 40, or any other dogfight fan, would write me at the Free Press, 321 W. Lafayette, Detroit 48226.

Neighbors said there are dogfights every week at the Sylvester address. The Humane Society says lately there has been an increase in the number of pit bull fights locally. So surely there is at least one reader willing to explain why these pit bull fights aren't an inexcusable, outrageous cruelty to animals.

It is assumed, of course, that any true dogfight aficionado would be proud to sign his name to his opinions. It won't be published or otherwise revealed without permission; I'm not trying to get you arrested or to collect the $1,000 reward the Humane Society is offering for information leading to the conviction of whoever staged the April 7 fight.

All I want, sincerely, is someone to try to convince me that I'm wrong to believe Albert Schweitzer was right when he said that until man learns compassion and reverence for all life, he cannot call himself civilized, nor can he be expected to show sufficient compassion for his fellow man.

All I needed to know I learned from Angella

Four years and two degrees later, the thing I find most useful from my college years wasn't found in a textbook.

The greatest thing I learned in college was "Get to know ya" — a game that my friend Angella Matson introduced me to my junior year.

In this game you ask questions to the others you are with, and with their answers you get to know a little bit about the people around you.

We were in SAGA (the cafeteria) trying to waste time between classes. One of us could have been skipping (it wasn't me, Mom), or we may have come from a chapel that talked about the evils of gossiping and were silent because we had nothing to talk about — whatever the case, in order to entertain us, Angella said she knew a game.

She started us out easy, "If you could live anywhere, where would it be?" At the time mine was probably Chicago — but my roommate's was Montana. What can you tell about us from that?

It went on from there, each of us asking a question and having the others answer it.

Some of the favorites were: "If you could have lunch with any historical person, who would it be?" — I'm fascinated with World War II and said Hitler, I believe everyone else picked Jesus or a Bible prophet.

"If you were to have dinner in a dive, who would take?" I said Ernest Hemingway. Angella said me (I didn't know if I should take that as a compliment or not).

I have played this with my family on trips in the car. With questions like "What is your most embarrassing moment?" (Mom's is the best). By asking their favorite things, I have learned things about my parents and brother and sister that I will always keep in my heart.

Someday I'll be old and gray; then I can tell my own grandkids about the Mio Pond incident, and they'll know a little bit more about my parents.

In this job, the practice of coming up with off-the-wall questions has served me well in various interviews that haven't gone the way I expected. Plus, it's a fun way to pass a Tuesday evening while we're laying out the paper (by the way, if Julie could be any fictional nanny, it would be Mary Poppins — see what I mean? You learn a lot from this game).

Now that Jim is living in the great Northwest, I have the honor of doing Photo Inquiry every week; the practice around tables in SAGA has really paid off. "If you could do anything you wanted and would succeed, what would you do?"

Letter to the editor

Thanks, Doug

For months I have meant to write a letter to thank Doug Carlson and the Citizens for Fiscal Responsibility in Government for their efforts to bring attention to more responsible ways to educate our children.

The letter from Lauren Carlson (April 14) gave me a push I needed.

It is rather easy to sit down and spin off a melodramatic, heart-rending letter lambasting the scoundrels who refuse to relinquish unlimited funds to those benevolent school administrators whose only purpose in life is to keep our young children from walking the streets of Clarkston with a tin cup.

Those who benefit from the ease of having unlimited funds will sing praises to the understanding letter-writer. All of us know how easy it would be to manage our households and businesses if money were no object.

It is quite a different matter to go out and dig up the numbers and facts that point out where the management of our school system could be improved and to recommend and support solutions other than more money. There is no single source of accurate information on cost/benefit analyses of education systems, and it takes a lot of time to read periodicals, request reports, make phone calls and to interpret the data. Few people were willing to take the time to be well informed.

Since it is safe to assume that we are unlikely to see a big surge of individuals pouring over statistical data, I would be willing to work with a small group of people to develop a simple report card for the school administrators to publish at the end of the year.

The report would be a fill-in-the-blanks type format related to costs, usage of facilities, test scores, drop-out rates, etc., that would be easy for anyone to read and compare with the previous year's data. We wouldn't need to wonder about the veracity of numbers that are thrown out in the heat of election campaigns.

Thanks again to Doug and his group for taking the road less traveled.

HEARTWORM TESTING?

Heartworm is a deadly disease transmitted to dogs via mosquito bites. It can be prevented by annual blood testing and administering preventative medicine to your pet.

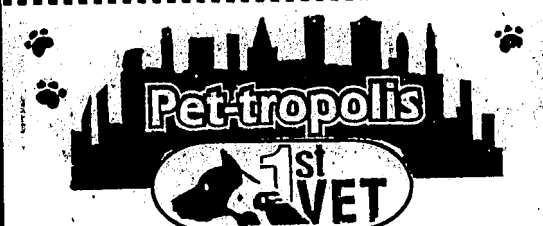

There has been a noted increase in the amount of "occult" (undetectable) heartworm disease in dogs.

In many cases adult worms in the heart, go unnoticed because they are not producing the microfilaria (off-spring) for which your pet is currently being tested.

It has been discovered that the advancement of heartworm preventatives has resulted in the sterilization of adult worms in the hearts of some pets.

The recommendation of the American Heartworm Society is the administration of an antigen test, recently made available to detect the existence of these adult heartworms. So make sure your dog receives this "occult" test!!

Choice and competition

This is Innovation No. 8 from the U.S. News and World Report article entitled, "The Perfect School."

Choice and competition

This week and next, 800 or so parents planning to enroll students in the Cambridge, Mass., schools next fall will stop by one of 10 locations around the city to record their preferences. By late February, officials will pair the students with schools, granting 90 percent of families their first, second or third selection.

School choice — permitting students to select the schools they attend rather than assigning them to "neighborhood" schools — has become a huge and divisive issue in education. Claiming that competition is a key to improving public education, some choice advocates have pressed for vouchers to publicly fund private education, a notion that is essentially untested in the United States. Others have promoted the idea of permitting students to travel between school district in search of stronger schools, a policy that has had a poor track record. But a third type of school choice, one that requires students within a public school system to select the schools they attend is proving to be a valuable reform, in Cambridge and elsewhere. Well-designed "intradistrict" choice plans spur improvement and innovation in schools and help motivate students and teachers.

Cambridge's choice plan confronts schools with a clear proposition: Offer a strong program or risk having disgruntled parents vote with their feet. "You have to constantly prove yourself," says Don Watson, principal of Cambridge's Tobin School, a 700-student concrete and cinder-block fortress in a middle-class neighborhood. Tobin has created three special programs to attract students: a computer-oriented "school of the future," an enrichment program for disadvantaged children and a progressive elementary program. Programs that fail to attract student are allowed to contract, making way for more popular alternatives.

The pressure that choice puts on educators in Cambridge stems from the fact that the city's families are required to select schools. In voluntary choice programs like Minnesota's, by contrast, fewer than 2 percent of the state's students participate; such programs consequently have been a lot less effective in spurring schools to improve themselves.

The Cambridge model produces the benefits of competition while avoiding the likely pitfalls of publicly funded vouchers for private school parents: a transfer of public money to existing private schools that would not stimulate any new competition among schools; educational "triage" in the inner cities, with students left behind in public schools ending up worse off, and a significant amount of fraud and abuse.

Public school choice in Cambridge, by contrast, increases students' and teachers' stake in their schools, motivating them to work harder. The city's dropout rate has declined from 9 percent to 2 percent a year since the introduction of school choice a decade ago, and daily attendance is over 90 percent, high for an urban school system. Teacher absenteeism is 5 percent, low for an urban school system.

The Cambridge choice plan also encourages parental involvement in kids' schooling — a key educational ingredient. The percentage of the city's students attending public vs. private schools has risen from 80 percent to 88 percent since choice was introduced.

Public school choice isn't likely to work well in sparsely populated rural communities where there are few schools to choose from. Even in cities and suburbs, choice works only when there are real differences between schools. Before implementing what's probably the nation's best-known intradistrict public school choice plan, the superintendent of Community School District 4 in East Harlem, N.Y., encouraged groups of teachers to open a wide range of innovative programs in the district. Today, there are 53 "schools" housed in the district's 20 buildings. Choice goes hand in hand with other reforms like teacher autonomy and smaller specialized schools.

Adequate transportation and parent information are also important to making choice work. The Cambridge bus budget increased by about one third with the introduction of choice. The city staffs a full-time information center in six languages; it conducts 10 information nights around the city, and its 14 schools sponsor 200 tours a year. Each school also has a full-time parent coordinator.

Choice hasn't been a no-cost quick fix in Cambridge. But it isn't prohibitively expensive either. In all, the city spent $1.4 million on choice in 1992, out of a total school budget of $71.5 million.

teller, “I need $500 worth of nickels and $200 worth of Tasmanian Traveller’s Cheques,” so I realize we’re going to be there for awhile and I take out my copy of, “WAR AND PEACE,” and start reading from chapter one, knowing that I’ll have plenty of time to finish and probably be able to solve a few Agatha Christie murder mysteries as well, and then two hours later, I hear that same teller say she was taking lunch and would return in another hour, so I tried to duck out of the way of all the flying paper and pen missiles shot from the people behind me, when I noticed a different teller window had been opened, so I stepped up, getting ready to hand over my simple account transfer from savings to checking to avoid an overdraft on my last three checks, when the woman who had just asked for all that change and foreign traveller’s cheques cut right in front of me and barked at the newly opened window, “I wanted Canadian nickels, not American!” so I waited another hour for the teller to check with the manager who okayed the transaction and watched as the nickels were counted out, and then one of the bank officers announced that it was closing time and no more banking could be done that day, so I figured right then and there, that there must be a better bank where they remember what service means...

Collecting toys

Specialized toy figures
a favorite to collect

BY JIM CARLSON

Do you remember the clowns and elephant pictured in the last column?

These figures were produced by the A. Schoenhut Co., Philadelphia, Pa. Schoenhut began producing toy pianos in 1880. The factory made doll houses, numerous advertising pieces and finally in 1903 shifted some production capacity to producing items for a "Humpty Dumpty" circus.

The figures pictured are Schoenhut circus clowns and Schoenhut glass-eyed elephants.

The clowns are typically 8 inches tall and attired in brightly colored costumes with predominantly white and red colors. At times, blue and yellows were used. The earliest clowns were produced in 1903. Production continued through 1933, when the factory closed.

The glass-eyed elephant was produced from 1903 through 1918. From 1919 through 1933, painted eye animals including elephants were produced.

The Humpty Dumpty circus includes performers, wagons, animals, clowns, ringmasters, tents and numerous accessories.

Our favorites are glass-eyed animals that are pre-1918 and several specialized figures that look like the photograph shown.

For the next column, here is a photograph that some readers may recognize. Do you know who this is?

Students sing the praises of reading

Clarkston Junior High Mixed Chorus I members really know how to bring a song to life.

Dressed as a variety of storybook characters, they performed a song for the young and young at heart.

"A book is a buddy, a magical friend ... a gift I can open again and again" was one of the positive points the song made about the importance of reading. To drive the point home, students passed out gift-wrapped books to their younger family members.

The ensemble, directed by Danielle Blanchard, was one of three choirs participating in a Dessert Recital Night on April 1. Students had an opportunity to perform some of the songs of small ensembles that participated in the recent Michigan School Vocal Association festivals.

Teen drivers crash more than older motorists

Teenage drivers are more than twice as likely to be involved in a traffic accident compared to motorists ages 45-54, according to a recent study conducted by Michigan Association of Insurance Companies (MAIC).

Statistics in the report also indicate that young driver crashes tend to be more deadly.

About 19 percent of drivers ages 15-19 are involved in a traffic accident each year, according to Terry Buckles, president of MAIC. By comparison, only 7 percent of 45- to 54-year-olds are involved in a roadway crash annually.

Drivers ages 20-24 have lower accident rate than do teenagers — 13 percent annually — but are still more crash prone than older motorists. The rate of accident involvement declines gradually until drivers reach the age of 75.

Buckles also noted that 15- to 24-year-old drivers have a greater involvement in fatal accidents than most other age groups. Only those drivers ages 75 and older are involved in more deadly crashes each year.

"Younger motorists are having more accidents and more costly accidents," Buckles said. "That is the reason they pay greater premiums for car insurance than most motorists. The higher price is a reflection of higher insurance pay out."

A younger person who is the principal driver of a motor vehicle typically pays 40 to 200 percent more for coverage than older drivers, according to the MAIC report. This surcharge is reduced as the driver grows older and is generally discontinued by the insurance companies at or before age 25.

Premium surcharges are generally much lower for young drivers who use the family car only occasionally. These typical range from 20 percent for 24-year-olds to 90 percent for 16-year-olds, but they vary from one insurance company to another.

The insurance spokesman offered the following suggestions for controlling the cost of auto insurance:

- Drive less — rates are determined by the amount and type of driving you do. Select your car carefully — rates are based on its cost, reparability and performance characteristics.

- Coordinate personal injury protection (medical coverage if you have other accident and health insurance.

- Choose higher deductibles on collision and comprehensive coverages. Consider a more-economical type of collision insurance, but make sure you understand when you are covered and when you are not.

- If you have an older car, consider dropping both collision and comprehensive coverage.

- Drive carefully. Most traffic tickets and at-fault accidents automatically increase your rates.

- Ask about special discounts. Most companies offer rate discounts for safety belt usage, anti-theft devices and insuring two or more vehicles under the same policy.

MAIC is a non-profit public information organization that sponsors consumer information and education programs, including driver safety presentations in Michigan high schools.

JOE DEGAIN will be representing the USA in an international wrestling tournament in July.

Wrestler to represent Team USA in Germany

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Associate Editor

Very few athletes are given the opportunity to represent their country in international competition and wear "USA" across their chests.

Now, you can add Clarkston's Joe DeGain to the list.

The 14-year-old freshman earned a spot on the U.S. Teen Wrestling team by winning the 182.5-pound freestyle championship at the Cadet World Teen Trials this past weekend in Evanston, Ill. With the victory, he's qualified for an international teen meet in Duisburg, Germany, July 3-9.

Held on the campus of Northwestern University, the Cadet tournament featured wrestlers, ages 15 and 16, from all 50 states. DeGain was able to compete because he'll turn 15 this year.

DeGain defeated four opponents to win his weight class. During these matches, he claimed one pin, two decisions and one sudden death victory.

Ironically, the 11-9 overtime victory came in the finals against Ron Pleinis of Maryland.

"It was a pretty tough tournament, especially the final," the Clarkston Junior High student said.

DeGain will travel to Colorado June 27-July 3 for an Olympic-style training camp. From there, the 11-man team will fly to the Fatherland.

When asked how it feels to represent the U.S., the soft-spoken DeGain couldn't help but beam.

"I'm really excited to be going," he said. "It's going to be awesome."

His mother, Donna, on the other hand, is still on "cloud nine."

"I'm ecstatic," she exclaimed. "It's not everyday that your son gets a chance to represent the United States in a world tournament. We spent a couple of hours calling people about the news."

DeGain's parents are presently calling travel agents to see if they can afford to fly to Europe to watch their son compete.

It's been a busy wrestling season for DeGain thus far. He's a member of the CHS varsity squad, which captured league and district titles this year.

In his first season with the Wolves, DeGain went 29-18 and set a freshman record with 21 pins. Wrestling at 171 pounds, he won an individual district championship and took second at the GOAL meet.

Two weeks ago, he took third place at the AAU National Wrestling Championships in Des Moines, Iowa.

With these credentials, you'd think the world was DeGain's oyster. Come July, however, he'd probably trade that oyster for a gold medal wrapped in red, white and blue.

Hockey player, 15, wins prestigious award

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Associate Editor

What does Clarkston's Chad Theuer have in common with Detroit Red Wings' Keith Primeau and Dino Ciccarelli?

All three are recipients of the most valuable player award from the prestigious Kamloops Hockey Tournament in British Columbia.

The CHS sophomore won the award this past weekend as a member of the Fraser Falcons. The 15-year-old center averaged two points and two assists in seven games for the third-place Falcons.

Twenty-four teams and over 300 hockey players participated in this renowned Canadian tournament.

Theuer said he felt fortunate to have his name alongside past MVPs like Ciccarelli, Primeau and Los Angeles Kings center Jimmy Carson.

"It feels good to see your name on the same trophy with so many great players," he said.

Besides being named MVP, Theuer was named to the tournament's first-team all-star squad. In all, he brought home a tournament MVP plaque, an all-star jersey and two game-MVP medals.

His name will be inscribed on a big trophy along with past winners. This trophy is kept in Kamloops.

This was Theuer's first year with the Falcons, who belong to the teen-based Michigan National Hockey League. Fraser took second place overall, behind state champion Little Caesars.

Following a 20-game regular season, Theuer ranked second in the league in scoring. He collected a total of 30 points by scoring 17 goals and dishing out 13 assists.

Theuer has been playing hockey since he was 6 years old. His father taught him the basics of the game on the pond behind their Pheasant Run, Independence Township, home.

He took up organized hockey at 8 and has been winning awards and turning heads ever since. He doesn't participate in any other sports because hockey is a year-round endeavor, with league play and numerous tournaments.

The 5'8", 170-pound Theuer considers speed to be his greatest asset and he

"It feels good to see your name on the same trophy with so many great players."

Chad Theuer

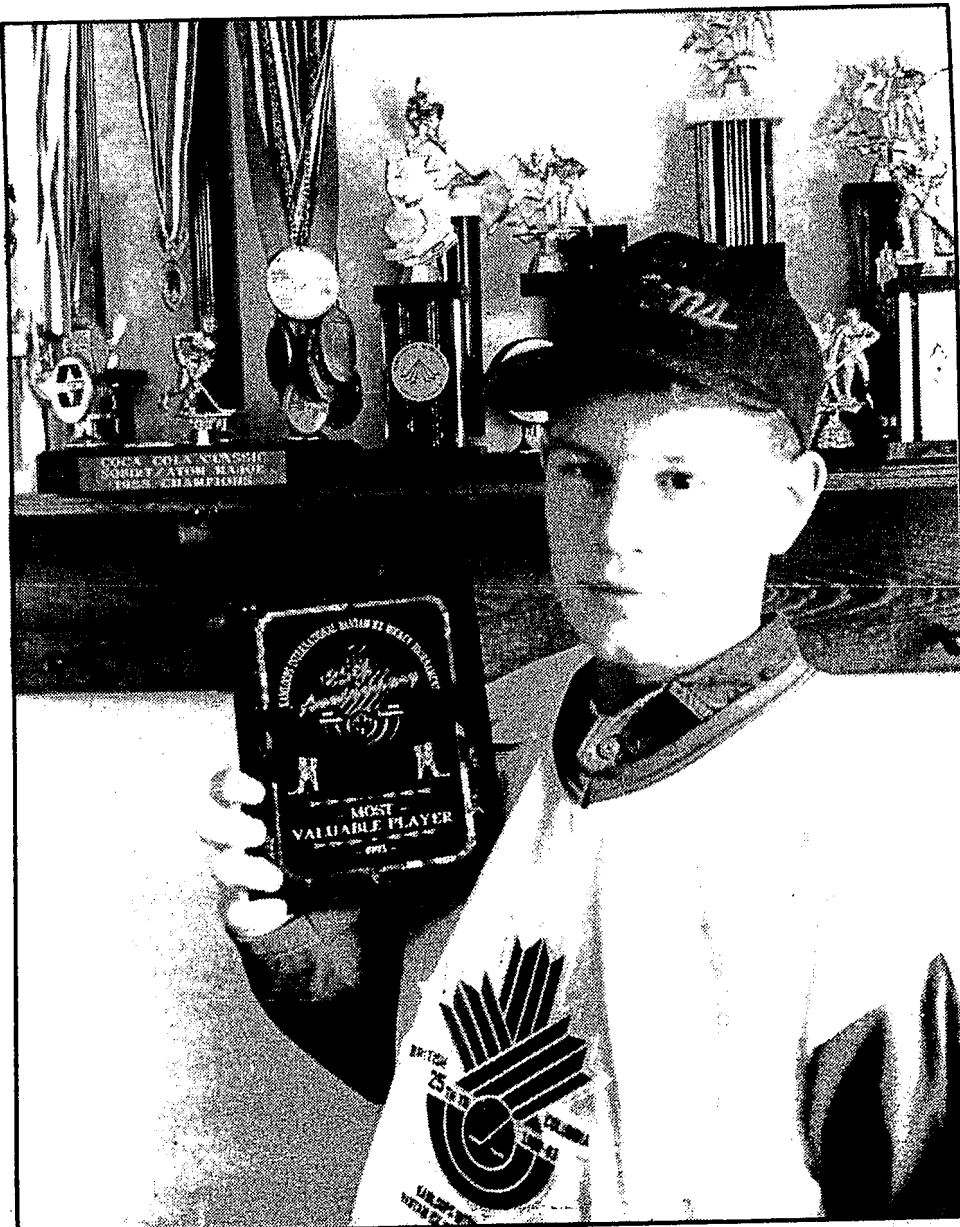

likes to pattern his game after New York Rangers' star Mark Messier.

This summer, Theuer will be lending a hand to youngsters around the country as a traveling instructor with the Turcotte hockey school, which was founded by a professional hockey family.

Theuer said he'll probably continue to play with Fraser until his senior year. By that time, he hopes to have caught the eye of some college scouts, preferably at Lake Superior State University.

After that, the professional ranks are a possibility, he said.

"Everyone dreams of playing in the NHL," he said, "but I'll take it one step at a time and see what happens."

CHAD THEUER of Clarkston was named the MVP of the Kamloops Hockey Tournament, considered one of the finest in all of North America.

Michelson finds success with the Tar Heels

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Associate Editor

At the University of North Carolina, the basketball team is used to hoarding all the attention.

But the Tar Heels have an impressive wrestling program, which includes budding stars such as Clarkston's Damon Michelson.

The 1991 CHS graduate recently completed his first full season of collegiate wrestling for the Atlantic Coast Conference champions. Wrestling at 190 pounds, the red-shirt freshman amassed a record of 15-9 and captured third-place honors at the ACC championships.

Michelson won the 171-pound individual state title his senior year at CHS and was captain of the Wolves' state championship team.

Damon Michelson

Looking back over this past season, Michelson was admittedly pleased with his performances.

"I'm pretty happy with the way I wrestled this year, considering it was my first," he said. "It's been a lot tougher than I thought it would be, though. At this level, the competition is considerably better, so every day is a challenge."

"Caliber-wise, it's totally different from high school (wrestling)," Michelson added.

If being a first-year wrestler wasn't enough pressure, this season Michelson had to overcome a series of nagging injuries.

"I dislocated my shoulder last year, and it never healed totally," he said. "But I didn't want to miss another year of wrestling, so I dealt with it. Besides, I could beat our other 190-pounder, bad shoulder and all, so the coach stuck with me."

The Tar Heels finished the year ranked 15th in the country, and Michelson said the team has a number of good, young grapplers coming back next season.

"We're returning a lot of good wrestlers next season, including four or five red-shirts who could've battled for starting spots this year," he said. "By the time next year's pre-season poll comes out, I wouldn't be surprised if we're ranked in the top 10."

Springfield offers aerobic classes

With summer just around the corner, most folks are concerned about how they'll fit into last year's bathing suits.

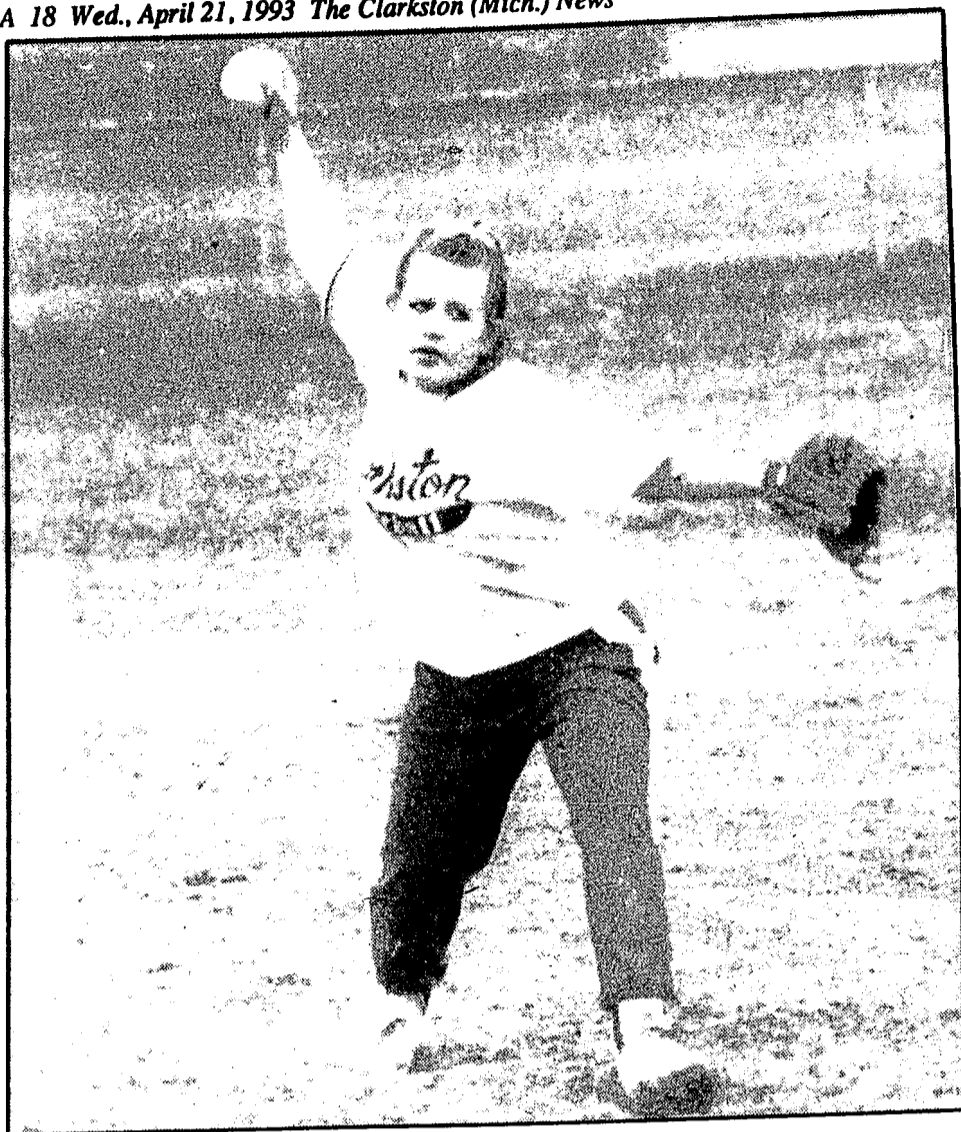

With this in mind, the Springfield Township Parks and Recreation Department is offering a five-week aerobic class, beginning April 29. The classes take place 7:45-8:45 p.m. Thursdays at the Hart Community Center, Springfield Township.

People of all ages are welcome. The participation fee for the entire program is $12.50 per person. Payment is due by the first class.

For more information, call 634-0412.

Bearing down

JV softball pitcher Cathy Podzikowski and her teammates fell half an inning short of a win April 19, when their game against Lapæer East was rained out in the bottom of the fourth. The Wolves play Pontiac Northern at home on Thursday. The JV soccer team (right), on the other hand, completed their rain-soaked game against Waterford Kettering and won 4-2. Bryn Allyn scored all four goals for the Wolves (1-1).

Tips make golf a safer sport for everyone

Golfers teed off on 29 new courses in Michigan last year, the most courses in the country, followed by Florida with 23 new links.

Rounding off the top five were Indiana, Ohio and Illinois. Until 1992, Florida claimed the largest number of new courses for the last seven years, according to AAA Michigan.

Michigan ranked second in 1992 for the number of new courses under construction, with 40. The state ranked fourth in total courses, with 779, and fourth for number of golfers, with 1.4 million.

Close to 18 percent of Michigan residents over age 12 play golf, 6 percent above the 12 percent national average.

As the sport continues to grow in popularity, so does the chance of golf-related injuries. In 1992, there were 35,218 golf injuries nationwide. AAA Michigan recommends that golfers heed the following safety tips:

■ Yell "fore" if your ball heads in the direction of others.

■ Don't hit a shot onto the green until the group ahead has departed.

■ Drive golf carts at safe speeds.

■ Never walk ahead of a player lining up a shot.

■ Never golf in a thunderstorm. If stranded, get away from clubs, carts and remove metal spiked shoes. Seek shelter in a low spot, away from high or lone objects, such as trees.

■ Do stretching exercises before golfing to keep muscles limber and prevent strains.

■ Drink plenty of water in warm weather. Wear a hat and apply a strong sunscreen.

Turner still paces Broncos

Keith Turner of Clarkston, a member of the Western Michigan University men's tennis team, won two matches last week as the Broncos beat Valparaiso University 5-2 and Eastern Michigan University 5-2 in dual matches.

At No. 2 doubles, Turner and partner Les Smith beat Valparaiso's and EMU's squads by an identical score of 8-4. Turner, a junior, lost both his matches at No. 3 singles, however.

The CHS graduate has a 30-23 overall record this season, including 17-8 in doubles play. The Broncos are 13-3 overall and 2-0 in the Mid American Conference.

Advance registration for the Walk/Run is accepted until April 30 at $10 per person. After the 30th, the fee is $15. All who register will receive a T-shirt and a pancake breakfast following the event. Ribbons are awarded for the first three finishers in each age category.

On the day of the event, registration begins at 8 a.m. The run starts at 8:30, with the walkers to follow. The four-mile course begins at the Mill Pond Park, proceeds west down Broadway, north on Eaton, east on Rattalee Lake Road, south on Tindall, west on Broadway and back to the Mill Pond Park.

The event will be held rain or shine. Proceeds help support the Springfield Township Parks and Recreation Department. For more information call 634-0412.

Big buck

THIS state-record buck was claimed in Independence Township last year when area resident Connie Glenn hit it with her pick-up near the Cracker Barrel on Sashabaw Road. Dressed out at 394 pounds, it was the biggest deer ever recorded in Michigan. The Cracker Barrel will display this trophy for a while, in conjunction with the store's 10th anniversary. QUESTION: My Realtor says there are ways I can help finance the sale of my house. I thought financing was the buyer's problem?

ANSWER: Financing the purchase of a home is not only a problem for the buyer-it also concerns the seller. If the buyer can't get financing-there is no sale.

If anybody knows where and how to get mortgage money, our agency does and we'll be happy to walk you through the steps. We also can suggest alternate methods of putting together a satisfactory financial package.

Seller-aided financing can be an added selling tool and may be just what is needed to complete the sale.

Fourth-grader honored for her creative writing

A story written by a fourth-grader from Andersonville Elementary was selected to represent Clarkston schools in the Michigan Reading Association's spring publication.

Jade Jackson, daughter of Lanny and Tina Jackson of Springfield Township, was honored at the annual MRA Conference in Grand Rapids March 16.

Each year the Readers and Writers Committee of the MRA give each school district the opportunity to submit one student-authored piece of prose or poetry to be included in its spring publication called Kaleidoscope. Below is Jade's story.

By Jade Jackson

One day Joshawa was walking home from school and he noticed a path that led into a big forest. The forest was very unusual: the trees were either broken off or looked like ashes.

"There must have been a fire here!" Joshawa said.

Joshawa wondered if he should take the path. Then he decided to try it. He would have to try it quick so he wouldn't be late for dinner.

Joshawa started on the path. Later, after five minutes of walking, he looked back and there was no way out!

Joshawa was scared, but he wouldn't give up. He wanted to find out what was at the end of this path. Joshawa turned back around and saw a light that he had never seen before. It was a bright yellow, so yellow and bright it blurred his vision. Joshawa ran up to it, then he saw what it was. It was beautiful ring with Joshawa's initials JTT (Joshawa Joseph Taylor).

"I wonder where this came from?" he asked.

Joshawa put the ring on his finger and magically appeared in the most beautiful rainforest. He heard a noise. It was the rustling of a bush. Joshawa hid behind a tree quickly as a baby lion came out of the bush. He peered around the tree and saw the baby lion.

"Oh, no, what will I do?" Joshawa said to himself.

The baby lion walked around the tree and saw Joshawa. "I'm dinner alright!" Joshawa said in fright.

Then he remembered what he had learned in science class. If you leave animals alone, they will leave you alone. Joshawa walked away and the lion followed him. What was he supposed to do?

Then Joshawa heard something. "Joshawa, Joshawa."

It was his mother calling him. "Joshawa, wake up, dear."

Joshawa woke up. "Where am I?"

"You are at home, dear," his mom replied.

"But, but ..." he stammered.

"Shh dear, it was only a dream. Now get up. It is time for school."

"OK, Mom," Joshawa said, just as he looked at the ring on his finger. He smiled to himself and got ready for school.

JADE JACKSON, (center), a fourth-grader at Andersonville Elementary, was honored at the annual Michigan Reading Association Conference in Grand Rapids March 16. Also

Earth Day a good time to begin compost pile

To observe Earth Day this week, it might be a good idea to start a compost pile — if you haven't already done so.

Maybe more people don't compost yard wastes because they don't like the sound of "compost pile."

Such a simple name, so common — so earthy. Not trendy or high-tech at all.

So why change it? Would "heat-activated biological resource recycling mound," though accurate, really be an improvement?

The truth is that a compost pile is a fairly simple thing to build and maintain, says Tom Stebbins, master gardener specialist at Michigan State University, East Lansing.

It converts grass clippings, yard waste and other landscape leftovers into a nutritious soil amendment for flower and vegetable gardens and landscape plants. In so doing, it recycles the nitrogen and other nutrients that plants need. If it's plowed or spaded into the soil, it can improve soil structure, improve drainage in heavy clay soils and increase water-holding capacity in light sandy soils.

To make this wonderful stuff, you must first build a structure to contain the raw materials. You can buy ready-made bins or build an enclosure out of cement blocks, logs, treated boards or wire fencing.

Place the enclosure where it won't be the focal point of your landscape, Stebbins suggests.

"Though a properly managed compost pile doesn't smell and doesn't lead to problems with rodents or other animals, it won't win any beauty contests," Stebbins notes. "For the sake of good relations with your neighbors, it's a good idea to place it in a secluded spot where it won't be an eyesore."

Begin building the pile by spreading 2 to 6 inches of grass clippings, plant remains from the garden, leaves, coffee grounds, potato parings and other organic material. Shredding leaves and other coarse materials will speed decomposition.

"Be very choosy in selecting kitchen wastes to go into the pile," Stebbins advises. "Avoid meat scraps or grease, which may attract dogs and raccoons, and large amounts of garbage that might appeal to rats."

Cover the organic materials with 1/2 to 1 inches of topsoil or a couple of bushels of composted materials from someone who already has a compost working. This provides the microorganisms (bacteria) that do the work of decomposition.

To hasten the process, add one or two cups of a high-nitrogen fertilizer or a shovel full of livestock manure to each layer of raw materials. Aged manure is preferred if you have a choice, Stebbins notes — fresh manure tends to be somewhat aromatic.

Adding nitrogen or manure is especially important if you're composting sawdust, paper and woody plants, which are low in nitrogen. Nitrogen feeds the soil bacteria. Increasing the amount of nitrogen available speeds up the process.

Thoroughly mix and moisten the layers and leave the top of the pile flat or slightly saucer-shaped, so rain will percolate down through it rather than run off. You may need to water the pile in dry weather.

A compost pile is a fairly simple thing to build and maintain.

Continue to add organic material, fertilizer and topsoil whenever you have enough material to make a new layer.

The most difficult part of managing a compost pile is stirring it. Stirring is not necessary, Stebbins notes, but it does make the pile work faster and the materials decompose evenly, so the whole pile is ready for use at once.

One way to handle the stirring is to use two bins and simply move material from one bin to the other.

How long does composting take? Because the bacteria work faster during warm weather, a pile started in the spring will produce finished compost more quickly than one started in the fall. A pile that contains extra nitrogen and gets stirred every few days will work faster than one that contains only soil and organic material and doesn't get stirred.

"For example, a pile made with two parts shredded organic material and one part manure, watered thoroughly and turned every three to four days, will compost organic waste in about two weeks," Stebbins says.

Though a pile that heats up that quickly can reach the high temperatures (140-160 degrees) needed to kill plant disease organisms, Stebbins advises against composting diseased plant material.

"If the organisms survive the pile, spreading the compost on the garden will reintroduce the diseases," he explains.

The above information was provided by Outreach Communications, Michigan State University, East Lansing. For more information, contact L. Johnson at 517-336-1555 or T. Stebbins at 517-353-3774.

Library to give WOLF a chance

Independence Township has agreed to give the Wayne-Oakland Library Federation (WOLF) one year to prove itself, or the local library may drop from its membership ranks.

On April 6, the township board unanimously approved a one-year compromise imposed by the Library of Michigan Board, in order to stop a dispute between WOLF and Metro Net.

The Metro Net alliance consists of seven southeastern libraries, including Independence, who are dissatisfied over the archaic services of WOLF. This group wants to start up a new, cooperative organization.

WOLF's services include book ordering, loans, processing, cataloging and consultation. It serves nearly 60 libraries in the metro area.

The new compromise has WOLF providing its members with additional services, while re-distributing some of its membership money.

For example, the Metro Net libraries may use 90 percent of their state-allocated swing aid for a technology project, whereas before the money would have been absorbed by WOLF for operational purposes. Swing-aid is money from the state designated to be used for cooperative services like WOLF.

The amount and usage of related membership money has been one of Metro Net's biggest concerns.

At the end of this probationary year, the Metro Net libraries will have the following options: to stay with WOLF, request the formation of Metro Net with the Library of Michigan Board, become independent or join another cooperative organization.

Reunion brings '70s band together

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Editor

About two decades ago, five Clarkston High School graduates found themselves making music together.

EL. D. Allen became known for strong harmonies, singing oldies and Motown all over the Oakland County area.

In the 1970s, they were popular at the Deer Lake Racquet Club, the Deer Lake Inn, the White Lake Inn, Oxbow Pavilion and more.

But time passed, and the band split apart, the musicians going their own way, as band members do. Soon, years had passed — 16, in fact.

Then Rick Molter, an area musician who was not a member of EL. D. Allen, had an idea. Why not have a reunion? So he called the members, and they all agreed. Rehearsals began soon after.

The last few weeks haven't been easy. Since the EL.

MacAlpine, Dave Mielke, Mark Harington and Joe Gates.

D. Allen days, each musician has evolved in his own way. But an upcoming performance means a return to the oldies, such as "Cool Jerk," "Soul Man," "Some Kind of Wonderful," "Brown-Eyed Girl," "All Shook Up" and "Sarah."

"It's going to be fun," said Joe Gates of Pine Knob Road, a 1967 CHS grad. "It's going to be nerve wracking. ... This next rehearsal is going to be very important."

The big event — a free reunion party for band members and their former fans — is planned for 8 p.m. Sunday, April 25, at The Front Row on Dixie Highway, Waterford Township.

In addition to Gates, other band members (all early 1970s graduates) are Mike MacAlpine of Waterford, Terry Stevenson of Waterford, Mark Harington of Troy and Dave Mielke of Independence Township. (Steve Carrie will sit in as drummer, since Harington now plays the keyboard.)

Gates explained how the group formed.

"I ran a carpet-cleaning business," he began, explaining that his Dixie Highway office included apartments above it.

Soon, Stevenson moved in, followed by Harington, then Mielke.

They all were musicians and began playing together. One day, "they needed a bass player," said Gates, explaining that they showed him how to play.

"I picked it up and found out I could play it."

Soon, with the addition of MacAlpine, EL. D. Allen was formed. The name comes from the initials of the members' middle names.

"We had a pretty good following," remembered Gates, adding that it was fun.

That's why Molter's idea of the reunion was such a good one.

"All of us were starting to drift away," he said. "Rick's always doing fun little things like this."

MODESTY Forbids, a Clarkston-based Irish folk music group, opens for Patrick Street, a four-member group from Ireland. The concert, presented by Possum Corner Traditional Music Association, takes place Thursday at The Strand Theatre in Pontiac.

Meeting on summer care, camp for kids

Parents who are looking for fun child care for their youngsters this summer should plan to attend a meeting next Wednesday.

The eight-week summer program is a partnership between Independence Parks and Recreation and Clarkston Community Education.

Community education's Kids Connection (latch-key) program provides child care 7-10 a.m. and 4-6 p.m. during summer. Between 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., the children attend summer day camp, offered by parks and rec.

At the meeting next week, parents can find out all the details about the program — and they can register that evening, which means they won't have to make separate trips later.

CITY COUNCIL
MINUTES OF REGULAR MEETING
APRIL 12, 1993

Meeting called to order by Mayor Catallo at 7:35 p.m.
Roll: Present: Arkwright, Basinger, Catallo, Roeser, Schultz.

Community education at a glance

Celebrating midlife

If you'd like to get beyond the black balloons that say "Over the Hill" and consider the challenges of the middle years, this class can help explore the opportunities for second adulthood. Psychotherapist Margaret Devereaux teaches the session 9-11 a.m. Saturday, April 24, at the community education center. Fee is $14.

Intermediate WordPerfect 5.1

This class, with limited enrollment, covers using macros, merging documents, working with columns, assembling documents, sorting and more. The six-session course takes place 9 a.m. to noon Saturdays, beginning April 24, at the community education center. The $92 fee includes book.

Beginning sign language

This class helps bridge the gap between the deaf and the hearing. It teaches the manual alphabet and vocabulary and discusses the deaf culture. The eight-session course takes place 9-11 a.m. Saturdays, beginning April 24 at the community education center. The fee is $38.

Kids Connection summer program

Parents who want information on the summer day care and day camp offered by Kids Connection and Independence Parks and Recreation should attend this meeting at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, April 28, at North Sashabaw Elementary School. Registration is accepted at the meeting.

Local artists' work in Rochester Hills

A Clarkston-area resident showcases her paintings at Rochester Hills City Hall through April.

Delphine Miller's exhibition is part of the Art in Public Places Program sponsored by the Paint Creek Center for the Arts.

On display are 15 paintings ranging from traditional landscapes to rhythmic abstractions — in watercolor, mixed media and oil.

Miller loves to paint landscapes because she lives in the country surrounded by so much space, she said. Most of her landscapes on display are painted in the area near her 100-acre horse farm in the Clarkston area.

Miller's paintings may be seen 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday at the Rochester Hills City Hall, 1000 Rochester Hills Drive (off Avon Road). For more information, call 651-4110.

SEVERAL kids, grades K-5, enjoyed the warm weather April 14, as they participated in a rollerblading/ skating event put on by Independence and Oakland parks and recreation departments. This two-hour skate around at Clintonwood Park included street hockey, obstacle courses and scooter rides. Here, kids play street hockey to help pass the time during their spring break vacation.
