Man shoots ex-wife, self

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Editor

An Independence Township man fatally shot his ex-wife in Pontiac, then turned the gun on himself July 7.

Mark James Scott, 34, of Avalon, Independence Township, and his ex-wife, Sally Joann Scott, 28, were pronounced dead shortly after the shooting at Sally Scott's parents' home on Brooklyn Street.

Detective Susan Brown of the Pontiac Police Department said the deaths are considered a homicide-suicide.

According to witnesses, friends of the family and police reports, Sally Scott had moved in with her parents a week before the shooting and said she was finished for good with her relationship with Mark.

Friends said Mark had threatened to kill Sally's whole family if she left him.

On the day of the killing, Mark had seen his grandfather and a friend just an hour prior to driving to Sally's parents' house. However, they said they suspected nothing.

Woman stable after crash with rescue truck

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Editor

The force of impact between a rescue truck and a car didn't cause the car to hit a building July 2 on M-15. Rather, the driver's accelerator caused the car to continue moving.

The accident — around 5:30 p.m. Friday of the Independence Day holiday weekend — occurred when an Independence Township fire rescue truck was responding to an accident at M-15 and Dixie Highway.

The rescue truck, driven by Jack Bailey, 31, of Independence Township was traveling south in the center lane of M-15 when a car pulled in front of it. The car had been in one of two southbound lanes of stand-still traffic, tied up due to the accident at M-15 and Dixie.

Bailey steered to the left, where there was little traffic in the northbound lanes due to the accident, and struck the car in the left fourth and fifth lanes, pushing the car about 100 feet.

However, when the vehicles separated, the truck stopped, but the car continued forward, crossing a curb, two parking bumpers, a barrel of flowers, and a parking lot before striking the Carter-Reed real estate building.

Investigators think that either the by-then unconscious driver of the car had her foot on the accelerator or that, mechanically, something caused the car to continue accelerating.

After striking the building, the car's tires continued spinning, digging a foot-deep hole before stopping.

Bailey helped the unconscious victim before being treated himself at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, Pontiac. He was released the same day.

The driver of the car, Elizabeth A. Kramer, 34, of the Clarkston area, was treated for injuries at Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital, where she was listed in stable condition

Monday.

The Oakland County Sheriff's Department's investigation is still underway.

An estimate of damage caused to the real estate building was not available at press time. The fire rescue truck damage was estimated at $4,138.

Friends: Mark Scott jealous, short-tempered

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Editor

Friends of Mark Scott, 34, said he had a short temper and was a jealous husband but could be a "great guy on good days."

Friends also said that Mark's ex-wife, Sally Scott, 28, was a "very good mother" and knew how to "dish it out" during fights with Mark.

On July 7, Mark fatally shot Sally at her parents' Pontiac home, then killed himself.

Mark, a construction worker, lived on Avalon, off of North Eston Road, Independence Township.

Friends of the two, who asked that their names be withheld, said they knew Mark had beaten Sally on occasion but never suspected he would kill her.

"John" (not his real name) said Mark was the same about anyone he dated. "Mark, alone, before Sally, was a good person to be with. He was fun at parties," said John.

But he was extremely jealous anytime he had a girlfriend. In fact, in high school, he attempted to kill himself when he discovered that his girlfriend had been dating other people, said John.

Mark was raised by his grandparents, said John, adding that he didn't know why his parents didn't raise him — Mark never talked about them.

"Marsha" (not her real name) said Mark treated women as possessions or property.

But his upbringing may have contributed to his attitude, she said.

John said Mark's grandparents bought a truck and a house for Mark to live in when he graduated from high school. And anytime he got into trouble, they "bought his way out of it."

For instance, they paid fines when he was caught driving with a suspended license. And once, when he became angered over a slow driver in the "fast lane" of I-75 and rammed the car into a ditch, his grandparents paid that fine, too.

Growing up, "he was never punished or corrected," said John.

Marsha said, "Anything he wanted was handed to

"He never thought he had a problem. He always thought he could control it. ... He didn't deal with it."

Friend of Mark and Sally Scott him, and Sally was the only thing he wanted that he couldn't have."

As a couple, they constantly needled each other, said John.

"When I first met her," said Marsha, "I thought she was the wrong person for him. I was wrong. He was the wrong person for her."

"Sally was pretty easy going," said John, "but she ran around with a Bic lighter all the time because she knew what would light Mark's fuse, and she'd light it."

Both drank alcohol and fought a lot. John said he had seen Mark in a rage, throwing things and yelling at Sally. And he had heard that he had pointed a gun at Sally during a fight before.

Mark was a gun enthusiast but recently had sold all of his weapons, said John, adding that relatives don't know where he got the shotgun he used July 7.

Mark was so jealous that he prevented Sally from keeping a job, said John. "He was always harassing her. He always wanted to know who she was talking to or where she was."

Marsha said, "She had to be where she said she would be to the minute, but he could be hours late."

Mark was even jealous when Sally was clogging with her family.

"I liked Mark," said John. "But he was overbearing and abusive. He would actually beat the stuff out of her. ... He was so jealous he stalked her and did a lot of things and lied to me on a lot of occasions. ... I'm the only one who used to condemn him on, 'Why do you hurt the ones you love the most?'"

"He never thought he had a problem. He always thought he could control it. ... He didn't deal with it."

John said he wasn't sure why Sally returned to Mark on occasion but guessed that she was afraid for her family's safety because Mark threatened to hurt them if she left him.

Marsha said Sally, though troubled, was a very good mother.

"She wanted somebody to love her unconditionally, which is what Mark wanted from her, but a baby is different from the way Mark wanted to possess her," said Marsha, adding that she still finds it hard to believe that both are dead.

"It's so unbelievable, a waste of two lives and definitely a waste of the mother. ... I'm glad he's gone — I'm sorry. He took a person away who was a good person who had someone who needed her," said Marsha. "If he had to kill somebody, why didn't he just kill himself?"

ing out of the ordinary.

When he arrived at the Brooklyn Street house, he brought with him a ring and a request that Sally return to him, according to friends of the family. He also promised to change.

Sally, who had given her baby to a friend when she saw Mark arrive, refused, and Mark left, saying he'd be back.

He then took a gun from his van and returned to the house, kicked the door open, and fought with Sally. He dragged her out of the house by the hair; she tried to run away, and he shot her once. He then went up to her and shot her twice more, said, "I love you, baby," then shot himself.

All of the van's doors, with the exception of the driver's door, were padlocked, and friends suspect that Mark had intended to force Sally to go with him.

The baby was unharmed.

Detective Brown said this was a very, very tragic situation, especially with a baby less than a year old.

In murder-suicide cases, she said, investigators pull police reports, find court records, and talk to family, friends and neighbors to find out what happened — and why.

In this case, she said, the "why" is listed as ongoing domestic problems.

Married in 1988, the couple divorced in 1990. Friends said the two reconciled a few times after the divorce and have a daughter, Amber, who will be a year old on July 26.

Despite a history of physical abuse, Sally returned to Mark on more than one occasion, said Brown, explaining that reconciliations are the norm in spouse abuse cases.

"This is a classic example," she said.

She said numerous reports of spouse abuse are filed and are rarely followed up with charges. Even after a prosecutor issues a warrant for arrest, the victim often decides not to press charges, she said.

"It happens so often, it's just disgusting," said Brown. "And it's sad — because the next time, something ugly like this happens."

"Abuse, from what I've seen of it, you respond to the same addresses time and time again," said Brown, adding that some families never call police when violence occurs.

Brown said abuse will recur unless the victim gets away and stays away.

"You can't go back and forth," she said. "If someone is abusive, you can't change them without counseling. And I'm not convinced that that works all the time."

In the Scott case, she said, it appears that Sally had resolved to leave and stay away — but it was too late.

"It's a tragic thing for both families," said Brown. "I feel terrible about it. It's so awful for the mother of Sally to drive home and see all the ambulances and emergency vehicles in the street and driveway. She told me she knew right away what happened."

Brown said police could locate one court injunction, restraining Mark Scott from contacting Sally Scott. But the order, issued by Oakland County Circuit Court Judge Hilda Gage, had expired Sept. 19, 1990.

Sally had contacted Pontiac police Tuesday, July 6, about Mark threatening her. They told her the procedures for obtaining a restraining order, noted that follow-up was necessary, and gave her the phone number of a women's shelter, who told her they could help her on Thursday. The shooting occurred on Wednesday.

The funeral for Sally Scott took place July 10 at St. Trinity Lutheran Church, Sashabaw Road, Independence Township. She was buried in Perry Mount Park Cemetery, Pontiac. She is survived by her daughter, Amber Lynn Scott; parents, Edward and Lola Perry; brothers, Robert and Greg Perry; and sisters, Suzette Barclay and Sandra Bowen.

The funeral for Mark Scott took place at Sparks-Griffin Funeral Home, Pontiac, on July 10. Burial was at White Chapel Cemetery, Troy. He is survived by his parents, Barbara Wolf of Pontiac and James Scott of Harrison; sister, Lori Guigar; and grandparents, Weldon and Ella Huffmann of Auburn Hills.

Spouse abuse can be deadly

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Editor

Spouse abuse comes in two forms — one can be deadly.

Family therapist Stan Garwood, who has an Independence Township practice, said he couldn't comment on the specific case of Independence Township resident Mark James Scott, who fatally shot his ex-wife Sally then killed himself June 7.

But in general, he said, two types of spouse abuse exist.

The first type occurs when two people are arguing and perhaps shove each other or throw something at one another.

In that case, they're trying to win an argument or to release some anger or to make the other person believe he or she is at fault.

"That kind of argument happens infrequently, once a year or every two to three years," he said. "Usually, it's both people touching or pushing."

The second type of abuse, however, can be more dangerous.

In that type, one person — usually someone who has been abused himself or herself — commits acts of violence against another.

During those acts, the person has no control and is filled with rage and anger.

"It's like having two personalities, where they just become enraged," said Garwood.

This person, because of past abuse, knows no boundaries to behavior. He or she might push, shove, hit, throw or use weapons. A lot of times, alcohol or drugs are involved.

And the violence is not going to stop unless the perpetrator gets counseling, said Garwood.

"We find that they don't have the impulse control ... to stop themselves from doing it," he said, explaining that certain patterns are likely to emerge.

"Usually what happens, after a fight, the person will be sorry ... and everything will be fine for a long time," said Garwood. "But later on, it will surface again."

Another factor plays a part in marriages, he said.

"A lot of men feel that the definition of marriage is: 'She belongs to me. I own her.' She's like an object."

In that case, if the wife tries to end the marriage or leave, the husband can't accept it because he believes she "belongs to him," just as his car belongs to him.

Without counseling for the abuser, the abuse will continue, Garwood said.

"Abusers are tough to deal with," he said. "Until he or she can admit that he or she is an abuser, we can't help them."

Since that's usually the case, Garwood said victims of abuse should get help immediately. First, he said, they should call the police and get an injunction through the court system to prevent the perpetrators from contacting them. That way, if the violent person shows up, police can arrest him or her for violating a court order.

Next, the victims should get counseling, which will help them gain strength to escape from their dangerous situation.

Also, the victim should have a system of friends and relatives with whom to stay so the violent person can't find her or him.

The victim can receive help from HAVEN, a domestic violence and sexual assault center. That phone number is 334-1274. The center can provide an actual shelter for the victim as well as counseling.

Boundaries not clear

Julie Campe

Mark and Mary Jones created a stir last Thursday night when they suggested that pediatrician James O'Neill be denied a rezoning of his land.

Their reasoning: His land is beautiful, and he should not be allowed to change it, thereby allowing us all a chance to enjoy it.

Their proposal sounded extreme because it sounded as if they wanted the government to confiscate his property, something we like to think happens only in socialist or communist countries.

The Joneses are not the first to make such claims, but they are the most recent.

However, the Joneses — and others at last week's planning commission meeting in Independence Township — brought up many points that residents, developers and government officials should consider.

Take the example of confiscating O'Neill's property. In this country, we take people's property all the time — for bridges, roads, airports, safety paths, etc.

And we take more than physical property, too. We allow our elected officials to take, on average, about 45 percent of our earnings — in the form of local, state and federal taxes.

And it's not unheard of to stop a parcel's development because of bald eagles or spotted owls, for instance. So what about songbirds, as the Joneses suggest?

The lines demarcating individual rights and the common good are blurred already.

What is the proper balance?

And what about the Joneses' condemnation of some of us? The Joneses said that people move to this community because it's rural — then many cut down trees and brush, mow their huge lawns short, spray chemicals and drive out the very things that made this a rural community in the first place.

Are we hypocrites, saying we want a country atmosphere, then kicking geese off our land?

Is development inevitable? Is development wrong? Is "responsible" development acceptable?

How does the attractiveness of our town contribute to its very demise by attracting more people, more cars, fewer trees and fewer animals?

How do it and other communities contribute to the demise of cities, stricken with blight, due to urban sprawl?

What does it mean that the township's last working farm — Dr. O'Neill's — is on its way out?

This process, this "development," has been occurring for more than a century. Is it worse now only because the symbols of our heritage are disappearing?

This community was founded by farmers and lumbermen, situated around a mill town. There is neither lumber nor grain to mill now.

What is our response to this?

Do we rage at public meetings on rezonings? Do we help the Independence Land Conservancy preserve property tiny bit by tiny bit? Do we ask our government to buy more land as parks? Do we insulate ourselves with work and life and escape now and then up north?

Where do we draw the line? What is the balance?

Letter to the Editor

Sounding off on sound wall

As a resident of Olde Sturbridge Settlement, I would like to respond to certain quotations in the June 22 Clarkston News re: I-75 Sound Wall.

I do not understand how the Independence Township Board came to the decision it did to reject the construction of a sound wall near the northeast corner of I-75 and M-15.

How can one not be convinced that the wall would have a positive effect on the lives of our neighbors, on nature conservatory land and our community? The effect: to separate and protect a residential community and wetlands environment from something as "un-nature-al" as a busy six-lane expressway.

The Department of Transportation approval of the sound wall was made in accordance to accepted standards and criteria at the time of I-75 expansion. Most homeowners were aware of this before becoming homeowners.

For the township board to dismiss the benefits of the sound wall because some of us moved in after the I-75 expansion is an insensitive attitude I would like to eliminate from our local government.

Or was rejection because the wall was perceived as "obscene," as Mr. Dan Travis was quoted? Obscene to whom? Why should the board be so concerned about aesthetics for the thousands of motorists who would drive past the wall at 65 mph in 12 seconds, most of whom don't even live in our community? Whose interests are being served here?

Maybe Mr. Travis could be invited over to my neighbor's for a backyard barbecue (and for another perspective on what is "obscene"). The sound wall will be set well back from the expressway, on the other side of a small ravine, and will quickly become part of the overgrowth.

Or was rejection because, "It would only benefit seven homeowners?" Why would the board choose not to help seven homeowners? And anyway, clearly more than seven families and a wetland would benefit. Would eight families be enough? 10? 20?

And lastly, to compare Clarkston to Taylor because of a sound wall is not only a cheap ploy but an insult to our intelligence (not to mention what the people of Taylor must think). I can only hope that the township board ultimately does not have jurisdiction in this matter.

Jim's Jottings

Jim Sherman

White is right

Everybody knows white is a symbol for purity, cleanliness and right.

Brides wear it. Soap commercials boast it. The good guys wear it. Even Elvis, when he was at his best, wore white.

Besides being a symbol for purity, etc, white is known, by all well-bred, normal human beings, as a beginning . . . an opening to a most welcome season.

White IS summer!

Summer is relax! Summer is fun time. Summer is vacation. Summer is outdoors. Summer is shorts and short sleeves. Summer is convertibles.

Summer is white. White is summer.

I know that. All but two people on earth know that.

Those two people are Elizabeth Iris Young Baldwin and Dr. Fashion. Dr. Fashion writes what he thinks a letter writer wants to read in the Free Press.

EIYB is . . . is . . . well, she's one of those who writes letters to people like Dr. Fashion who will give her the answer she wants.

To achieve her goal and fake innocence she'll even forge signatures or initials. On June 10, 1993 EIYB wrote:

"Dear Dr. Fashion: What are your sentiments on shiny white belts for men? A certain someone says I should throw mine in the garbage--that it's a throwback to the disco/leisure suit era and generally tacky. I need a second opinion from you because I can't accept an amateur's diagnosis.--J.S., Oxford."

Please note the initials are not EIYB.

I'm probably not the only J.S. in Oxford, but I believe I'm the only one who was criticized as being "tacky" for wearing a shiny white belt after Memorial Day in EIYB's presence.

In his reply Dr. Fashion said, ". . . men wearing suits or sport coats with slacks should match belts to shoes. Unless you're a member of a marching band or an Elvis impersonator, the doctor can think of absolutely no reason you should be wearing shiny white shoes, therefore the shiny white belt is obsolete."

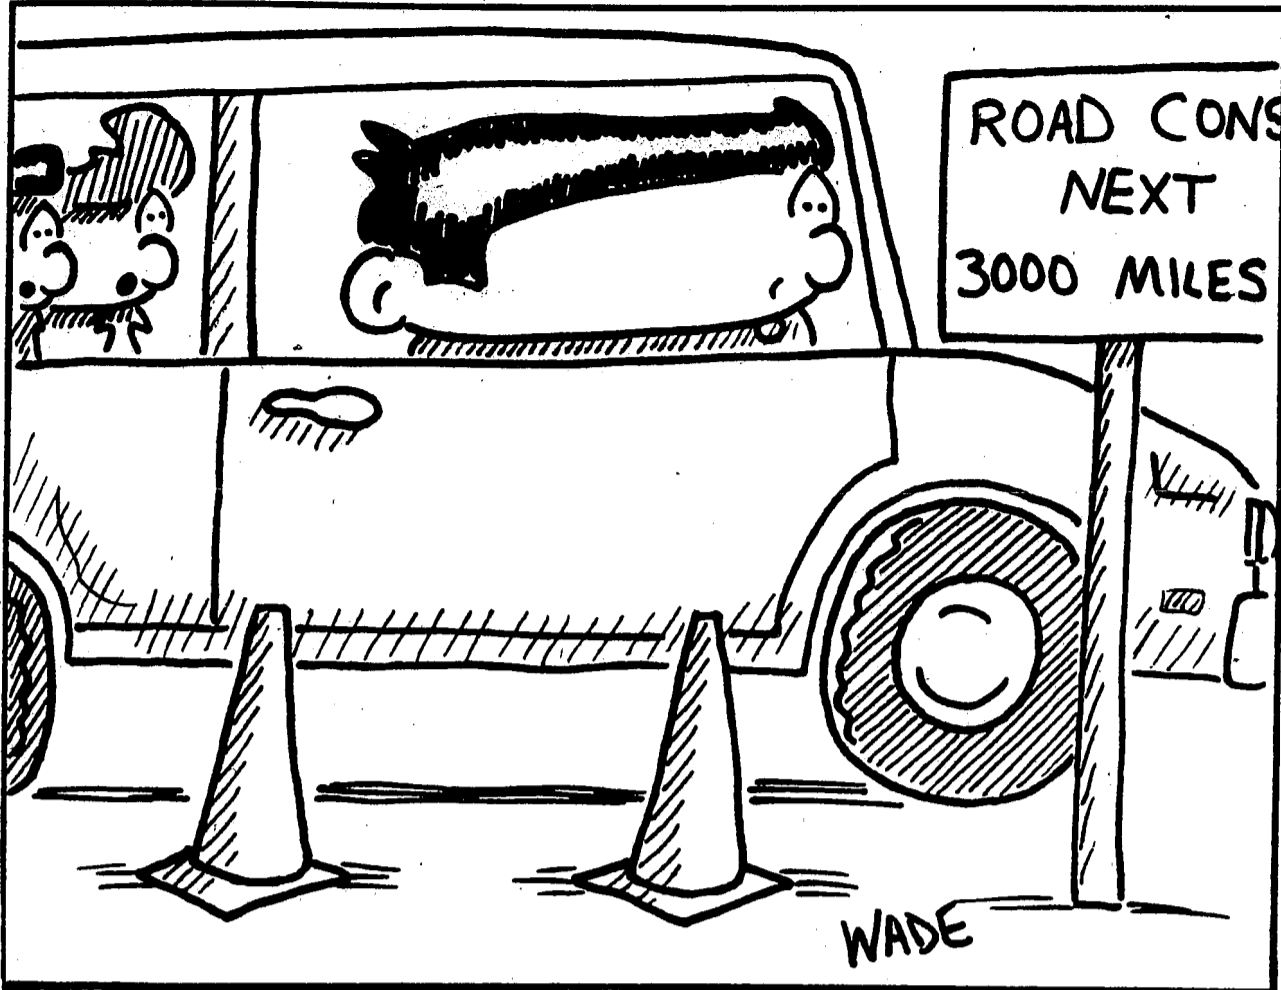

Traditionally, white shoes and belts are fashionable from Memorial Day to Labor Day. They are as welcome as summer, a symbol of warmth, a sign of the wearer's purity.

Another 'please note:' EIYB likes the word "tacky." She should. We were at a fine wedding reception one evening when she donned a pair of old, holey tennis shoes.

She wears her hair Scotch taped-in-place from morning comb to 6 p.m. . . . daily. She wears a Salvation Army reject patch-pattern coat, also daily, and has since I met her in 1955. It was very old then.

This is the same woman I wrote about several years ago who is so neat she makes her husband's bed when he gets up to go to the bathroom at night.

I would also say, "EIYB may have been a joy to her mother, but she's a pain in the neck to me."

Rudsil's Suburban Fact

While on vacation you will visit 152 very long construction zones, 314 rest areas, and maybe one major attraction.

'If it Fitz . . .'

A killing by any other name is just double-talk

Jim Fitzgerald

The little boy, playing war, pointed his toy gun at another little boy and said, "Bang, bang, you're collaterally damaged."

The above paragraph is a rerun from more than two years ago, except then the little boy said, "Bang, bang, you're attrited."

I wrote those words during the Persian Gulf War after hearing the director of operations for the Joint Chiefs of Staff say in a televised news conference that Iraq was being "attrited by our air forces."

Now we are attriting Iraq again, and last week Gen Colin Powell, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, told the world that our attrition was aimed at a military target but there was some "collateral damage."

Powell and other Pentagon big wheels also said, several times, that "civilian risk was kept to a minimum."

After his mother was killed by an American missile, the little boy said at her funeral: "Mom was part of the minimum collaterally damaged to the maximum. It was the same as being attrited."

On this Independence Day, as you may have noticed, I'm exercising my independence to sarcastically disagree with my country's leaders, and apparently with almost everybody living in my country. I'm doing it without fear of being evicted from my country or otherwise punished for disloyalty to my country.

And yes -- don't bother to ask, please -- I am grateful to live in a country where every citizen has the protected right to criticize his country's policies, foreign and domestic. I don't want to live in any other country.

But it is certainly dismaying to realize that practically every citizen, from both major political parties, approves of the U.S. attriting Baghdad, no matter how un-minimum the collateral damage to innocent civilians might be.

It is widely agreed that President Bill Clinton increased his popularity immensely in the omnipresent polls by letting loose the often-indiscriminate missiles. George Bush benefited similarly from Desert Storm.

And, God help us, much of the criticism of the bombing comes from hawks who insist its bang wasn't nearly big enough. William Safire, the erudite columnist with White House staff experience, called it a "pitiful wrist slap."

I call it just one more sad step away from resolving disagreements with words, like civilized human beings, rather than with murderous weapons, like barbarians.

Sure, Saddam Hussein is a bloody menace who richly deserves elimination. So why do we tweak him with conventional "wrist-tap" warfare? Why not threaten him with the big nuclear bomb, to be dropped next week, unless . . . And then drop it if Hussein isn't out of town by sunset.

Wouldn't the huge loss of enemy lives, plus collateral damage, be worth demonstrating that alleged assassination plots against former U.S. presidents will not be tolerated?

No. An almost-civilized world will stomach only so much. Nuclear weapons won't be used in Iraq for the same reason they weren't used in Vietnam; because we aren't that sure we're right. We're sure enough to spend a few hundred lives, but not a few million.

Besides, nuclear war is unthinkable; everyone knows that, right? So let's keep talking in our uncertainty. Eventually some inspired leader will say the inevitable magic words that will settle the argument after lunch instead of after millions have been killed.

Killed, not collaterally damaged. The missile strayed and the little boy was killed, not attrited. Say it plain. Imagine saying it to his mother.

Steaming mad?

Reporter's notebook

What were the crowd's favorite and least favorite Fourth of July Parade entries in downtown Clarkston July 3? Receiving the most boos were cardboard cutouts of President Bill Clinton and his wife Hillary atop the Poolmart float. Poolmart's human-size fish, "Gus," however, received applause. Receiving the most applause were the Clarkston High School Marching Band; the Oakland County Republicans; cute kids and pets dressed in red, white and blue; and some of the amazing floats, such as the Clarkston Band Boosters'.

Did anyone notice the huge Clarkston Area Optimist float, depicting a larger than life Optimist symbol at the Clarkston Independence Day Parade? It was created by Doug Pierson and his committee of one.

Speaking of parades, how do some of those involved choose which group to represent? Roger Diederich, for instance, was seen with the Optimists, but he also could have been with the Band Boosters.

For the curious: OK, OK, here's the answer. For all who caught a glimpse of the car wedged in the doorway of a business on M-15 two weeks ago and had time to notice details (If you were stuck in traffic, how could you not notice the details?), this is why the Oakland County Sheriff's Department vehicles on the scene all had their hoods up: For ventilation. Sgt. James Heiligenthal of the OCSO explained that the cars remain running, so ventilation is needed, especially on these hot July days.

Items for Reporter's Notebook are compiled by Clarkston News staff members.

Curt McAllister

Leaving the nest

A couple of weeks ago, my younger brother, Craig, moved to Orlando, Fla.

Needless to say, it was a pretty sad day in the McAllister family. At age 24, he's the only member of our immediate clan not to be living in Michigan. That means the only time we'll ever get to see him is probably during the holidays.

The move was inevitable. There were too many negative influences for him in our native Lapeer, primarily former high school chums who suffer from the "Peter Pan" syndrome.

I have no doubt he'll do well in Florida. Boasting a college degree in marketing, his drive should land him a job soon enough. Plus, he's a Midwesterner. For some odd reason, folks in other parts of the country believe this to be a perk -- something about our hard-working, middle-of-the-road upbringing, I guess.

Initially, his leaving didn't bother me too much. But the more I thought about it, the more I realized how much I'd really miss him.

Looking back, we had quite an active childhood together. Like typical brothers, we played together and fought together. We both enjoyed baseball and reveled in making our babysitters' earn their money.

During our teen years, we challenged each other in myriad sports. The activities varied from one-on-one basketball in the fall, one-on-one football in the winter, a form of stickball in the summer and nearly year-round foot races.

I can still remember the day he finally beat me in a 60-yard dash in the backyard. Boy, did he rub it in.

Our paths continued to cross in college, when he decided to follow me to Ferris State University. During my last year, we even roomed together off campus. Those were some pretty wild times, much to the chagrin of our neighbors across the hall.

Yep, we were quite the pair. But now he's over 1,500 miles away. I only hope he isn't living it up like a typical tourist. Most Floridians treat the summer like we do the winter -- they stay indoors.

I guess I should send him a case of suntan lotion just in case. Nah, he'd just toss it in a closet or bury it under some dirty clothes. Some things never change.

Miss ya, bro.

Large parcel worth preserving

BY MARK JONES

I am writing regarding Dr. James O'Neill's request to rezone 166.3 acres to 1 1/2-acre suburban farm residential lot sizes.

While in college, I recall examining an old biography of Daniel Boone, purportedly compiled from interviews with those who knew him and his ancestors.

Daniel Boone spoke in awe of his wanderings through Michigan. He spoke of the incredibly lush landscape filled with a phenomenal assortment of trees, plants, animals and song birds. The forests were thick and awe-inspiring.

Since those days filled with sights largely unimaginable to modern man, we, as modern men and women, have spent much of our time developing this property, destroying the forests and the habitat.

Instead of retaining the natural grasses and vines, we import sod and sprinkler systems. Instead of retaining the old-growth forest areas, we cut them down.

I listen with amazement as people complain that they no longer see songbirds. Yet these same people live in suburbs with no natural grass and older trees. These same people cover their sod with chemicals and mosquito sprays.

This is the right formula to get house sparrows and starlings. But it is not the right formula if you enjoy woodpeckers, gold finches, nuthatches, titmice, cardinals, larks and chickadees.

One would hope that our elected representatives and the residents of this area would do something about protecting the undeveloped property of the region.

The rural nature of this area is reflected in the homes among woods, retaining their natural surroundings. It is reflected in the large tracts of undeveloped property, which sprinkle the area.

The township board may say, "We might get sued if we don't do what the developers want to do."

The response should be, "Developers do not run this township."

The public's interest in non-developed property should be an important factor in the formula. The township should use attorneys aggressive enough to protect the public's interest. It would be money well spent.

The area on Holcomb which he wants rezoned is beautiful and stately. It is a harbor for a large variety of wildlife and plants. It is an important aspect of the rural atmosphere of the township.

Dr. O'Neill has offered many years of fine service to this community. Yet he has benefited from a public policy that funds Medicare and Medicaid and has benefited from private insurance programs financed from deductions from our salaries.

His wealth has been acquired, in part, from all of us. We expect physicians to be pillars of the community. We hope that they demonstrate intelligence in matters that touch the public.

On behalf of my family, I wish to express the hope that Dr. O'Neill changes his mind or that the township refuses his request.

Mark Jones resides a few houses away from the parcel proposed for rezoning on Holcomb Road, Independence Township.

Thanks, people

The Independence Fire Fighters Association would like to extend a grateful "Thank You" to all who participated in making this year's Independence Day Parade a successful celebration.

We were proud to have Mr. Harry Fahrmer as our 1993 Grand Marshal. He was the perfect choice to go with the theme of "Volunteers of America," since he is a current volunteer for the Independence Fire Department of 32 years. We hope he continues with us for many years to come.

Our Masters of Ceremony, Mr. Byron MacGregor and his wife JoJo Shutty-MacGregor, did a fantastic job. They are truly a pleasure to work with and add just the right touch to our celebration.

We would like to acknowledge the judges for a fine job, considering they had such difficult decisions to make. Much gratitude to Mr. and Mrs. Mike Darby, Mr. and Mrs. Dave McCarty, and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Neubeck for their contribution in our hours of need.

It is most most important that we recognize all the effort and imagination that went into the entries for the parade. Without your participation, there would be no parade. We hope to have your continued support for many years to come.

Finally, we would like to offer our deepest gratitude to our local merchants who either offered their services or donated funds for the awards. Thank you for your generosity.

Tired lovebird lands on girl's head in Parke Lake

Kady Wyss, 10, of Washington, D.C., won't come up blank when asked to write "what I did during summer vacation" this year.

The youngster and her cousin, Laurie Watt, 9, of Boston, visited their aunt, Mary Beth Huttenlocher of Independence Township, last week.

The girls were swimming in Parke Lake with their Clarkston friend, Jessica Fisher, during a hot July day. Kady was at the end of the dock, when suddenly a small bird landed on her head.

"I thought something was on my head, and I knocked it off with my hand, and it got back on," said Kady, adding that, next, "it got on my hand."

"I let it fly, and it flew into the water, and the dogs were trying to eat it, so I dove into the shallow water and saved it."

Meanwhile, said Kady, "Laurie was standing, yelling at the dogs to stop it."

Kady found the bird and gave it to her uncle, Ric. Ric and Mary Beth "gave it to someone down the street who has a bird cage and a couple of birds," Kady said.

That someone turned out to be Clarkston Mayor Sharron Catalo, who identified the bird as a lovebird.

The yellow and green bird has red over its eyes and a yellow beak, plus "beautiful blue on the wing," said Mary Beth.

The bird-savers hypothesize that someone's pet lovebird somehow escaped. With such strong wind that day, it probably became tired flying across Parke Lake and landed on Kady's head as one of the first places possible.

The girls were swimming on the east side of the lake, which is south of Clarkston Road.

"He's so lucky to be alive," said Mary Beth, noting such dangers as dogs and wild birds that it could have encountered.

After saving the bird, the girls swam some more and visited with their grandmother, Carol Wyss of Evanston, Ill., who was also visiting Mary Beth and Ric.

Anyone with clues about the bird's owners may call Catalo at 625-1440.

One-lot split approved

Gary King of Clarkston Road received tentative preliminary plat approval July 6.

The Independence Township Board approved the plat, allowing King to add one additional home site to his property, which is on the north side of Clarkston Road, east of Pine Knob. Other approvals are necessary before construction can begin.

Phone scam warning

Area residents should think twice about giving credit card numbers over the phone — especially if they don't initiate the phone call.

Sandy Bailey of Independence Township discovered the lesson again first hand Sunday and called The Clarkston News about it Monday to warn others about a scam.

A man with a British accent, calling himself Mike Thomas, called her Sunday evening, said Bailey.

Thomas said he represented Michigan Bell, and in the past 48 hours over $400 worth of long distance and overseas calls had been charged to Bailey's phone credit card.

"He was really slick," said Bailey, explaining that the man was believable.

He asked if any of her family's cards had been lost or stolen, or if she noticed any irregularities on her phone bills.

Bailey said she didn't know, and the rest of her family was not at home.

The man knew her name, address and phone number and asked her for the last four digits on her credit card. Usually phone credit card numbers consist of a personal phone number plus four numbers. Instead of giving the number to him, Bailey asked for his name and phone number and told him she'd call him back.

She then called "0" for the operator and inquired about the call and the excessive use on her credit card.

The operator, said Bailey, said, "We would not have that information for weeks."

The operator called the 1-800 number Thomas gave Bailey and found it had been disconnected.

Bailey contacted the police and the media to inform others about this possible scam and to remind people to be careful.

"I can't believe I'd be the only one he'd have called," she said.

Rebuilt, restored 1966 GTO wins award

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Editor

The shiny gold 1966 GTO in Larry Harris' Allen Road, Independence Township, driveway represents much.

The trophy the car won recently doesn't tell half the story, but it's a good place to start.

Harris, 46, won the Show and Shine Award in the 18th Annual Straits Area Antique Auto Show in St. Ignace June 24-27.

It was the first time Larry had entered the GTO in any show, and he was overwhelmed by winning a trophy, he says.

The show, which attracts 80,000 spec-

"When you do something like this, it's a part of you. It's a reflection of you."

tators and more than 3,500 collector vehicles, is a big one for car buffs, says Harris. And it was even bigger for him. He had worked on the restoration of the GTO on and off for about five years.

"St. Ignace was my goal, to have it ready for that," he says. "To win something out of Ignace is probably one of the biggest things you could ask for. Just showing the car is the major fun. To win a trophy on top of it is the ultimate high."

Harris owns and operates Twilight Limousine with his wife, Denise, and also has been a vehicle builder in the experimental engineering department at General Motors Corp. for 15 years. He's worked for 25 years for General Motors, starting at GM Truck and Bus in Pontiac.

He says his occupation helped him in his hobby.

"I'd have to give experimental engineering the credit for giving me the knowledge and the patience it took to do it," he says.

He spent so many of his after-work hours on his car that the GTO became more than just a car. But Harris stopped short of naming it.

"Denise says we should call it 'Overtime' because that's what we built it with, overtime," Harris quips.

With an all-consuming project such as this restoration, Harris says a person needs lots of help through it.

"Denise was my moral support and backbone through this. She's a sweetheart," he says.

He also credits friends and relatives for helping with such aspects as refitting

LARRY HARRIS prizes the trophy his completely rebuilt and restored GTO won in its first show ever — the 18th Annual Straits Area Antique Show in St. Ignace.

the interior, painting and more.

Harris says his love of cars started long ago.

"Denise says we should call it 'Overtime' because that's what we built it with, overtime."

Larry Harris

"Since I was a little kid, I'd get J.C. Whitney books and build cars in my mind, all the chrome parts ...

"My brother-in-law always had the nice rides, and I thought I'd like to do that sometime. ... I surprised everybody. I surprised myself. I wouldn't bring it out until it was totally finished."

Harris can't pinpoint where it all began.

"It's always been in me," he says. "I've always been fascinated by cars. I told Denise, 'I'm a car junkie because if I was a millionaire, I'd have a whole stall full.'"

The car also serves as therapy of sorts. Harris was part of the Tet offensive in the Vietnam War in 1967-68, serving from age 19 to 21.

"I learned a lot about life in Vietnam," he says, explaining that the number of deaths around him made him appreciate his own days.

But when he returned to the U.S. in 1968, he turned in his gun one day and landed a job at GM the next.

The transition was not easy. He experienced all sorts of strange sensations — what is now known as post-traumatic stress.

"My wife, I thank the Lord for her. She helped through all this," he says.

When a Vietnam veteran jumped to his death off Cobo Hall, something clicked with Harris.

"I thought I was all alone and going crazy," he says. "It's too bad it took the death of someone to help me."

He has learned to cope — mainly by recognizing when he needs to be alone and away from people. That's where the GTO has been helpful.

He can immerse himself into it, and it serves as an outlet and a focus for him.

And so the car is indeed more than a car.

"When you do something like this, it's a part of you," says Harris, looking at the car resting in dappled shade in front of his house. "It's a reflection of you. When it gets a compliment, it's you."

He points out aspects of the car that presented difficulties, such as the hard-to-find "flat" antenna.

As he talks, he places the trophy back on the front seat of the GTO and gently closes the door.

He chats with his visitor, but his eyes show that his thoughts are elsewhere — perhaps in Vietnam or inside the GTO or with his wife Denise — or maybe on his next restoration project — a 1953 limousine.

Clarkston applies for membership in MAC

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Associate Editor

The 1993-94 school year could serve as the swan song for an 18-year-old union between Clarkston High School and the Greater Oakland Activities League (GOAL).

CHS and league rival Lake Orion have applied for membership in the 26-team Macomb Area Conference (MAC). The two schools' athletic departments decided to opt for membership after they received invitations from conference officials earlier in the year. If accepted, membership would take effect prior to the 1994-95 school year.

Both schools attempted to enter the MAC two years ago but were unsuccessful.

Clarkston athletic director Paul Tungate said he supports the switch because it would provide CHS with a higher level of competition.

"The MAC is a class conference, and it'd offer better competition for us," he said. "We've dominated the GOAL the past four years, and during the past eight to 10 years it's either been us or Lake Orion winning the all-sports trophy."

The all-sports trophy is presented to the GOAL member that displays the most athletic prowess during each school year. Points are awarded to a school based on its finish in the standings.

The GOAL presently consists of six schools: Clarkston, Lake Orion, Waterford Mott, Waterford Kettering, Brandon and Pontiac Northern. Brandon is the lone Class B school in the division, while the rest hold Class A distinction.

The GOAL was formed in the mid-1970s, with Clarkston serving as its first member.

The MAC's contingent is comprised wholly of Class A schools. This 26-team field is divided into three divisions, based on the skill level of each school in a particular sport. This way, the competition level remains balanced amongst its members.

"The MAC is a class conference, and it'd offer better competition for us."

Paul Tungate

Among the MAC's present members are Utica High, Utica Eisenhower, Romeo, Chippewa Valley Schools, Port Huron Schools and Grosse Pointe Schools.

Tungate said this new league would allow CHS to play a schedule a little closer to home, particularly in football, where non-conference foes have included the likes of Midland Dow and Garden City.

Tungate expects the MAC's board of governors to decide on Clarkston's application by early August. If accepted, the matter would then go before the Clarkston Board of Education for final consideration.

If Clarkston and Lake Orion were to leave the GOAL, Tungate said the league probably would fold.

"I imagine the remaining members could realign themselves with other conferences such as the KVC (Kensington Valley Conference)," he said.

Bum shoulder hinders DeGain in Germany

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Associate Editor

A couple of weeks ago, 14-year-old Joe DeGain was primed to bring home a medal from the Cadet World Wrestling Championships in Duisburg, Germany.

However, a nagging shoulder injury prevented the Clarkston High School sophomore from competing at 100 percent, causing him to lose in the first round of the 34-country tournament July 3-9.

DeGain, who represented the U.S. as its 182.5-pound freestyle champion, hurt his shoulder at the team's pre-meet training camp in Colorado.

"It was sort of a freak accident," DeGain said. "I was trying to put an over-under hook maneuver on one of my teammates, and when we both went to the mat, my shoulder popped out of place."

Upon examining his shoulder, team trainers tried to talk DeGain out of competing in Germany because of the severity of the injury. However, DeGain refused to rescind his spot and signed an injury waiver, releasing the team from the legal responsibility of further injury.

In the first round, DeGain faced a wrestler from Turkey and took a quick 2-0 lead. However, the shoulder began giving him trouble.

"My shoulder popped out of place at least four times during that match, before finally going dead on the fourth time," DeGain said. "It was pretty frustrating."

DeGain eventually lost 10-2 to his Turkish competitor, who went on to take fourth place overall.

Mike DeGain, Joe's father, said his son was dejected by the loss.

"He was really disappointed that he couldn't go full speed," said DeGain, the varsity wrestling coach at CHS. "But when his shoulder went out, he was like a one-legged man in a kicking contest. There was very little he could have done."

Mike DeGain also feared that his son would have to wrestle again, despite losing in the first round of this single-elimination tournament. Under contest rules, had the Turkish advanced to the finals then DeGain would have been eligible to wrestle again for an eighth-place finish.

"I know Joe was hoping for the chance, but I didn't want to see him injure his shoulder any further," Mike DeGain said.

That opportunity fell to the wayside when the Turkish wrestler lost in the semi-finals.

After the tournament was over, U.S. team trainers instructed DeGain to see an orthopedic specialist about his shoulder. They told him it probably needed surgery, which would put the upcoming football season in jeopardy.

DeGain was slated to vie for linebacker and guard positions on the varsity team this fall.

"I haven't ruled out the chances of playing football yet," he said. "I'll just have to see what the doctors say about surgery."

"At this point, it's not looking good," DeGain added. "I can't do simple arm circles without my shoulder popping out of place."

Despite his injury and the disappointment of not placing at the world championships, DeGain said the entire experience was memorable — especially the training camp.

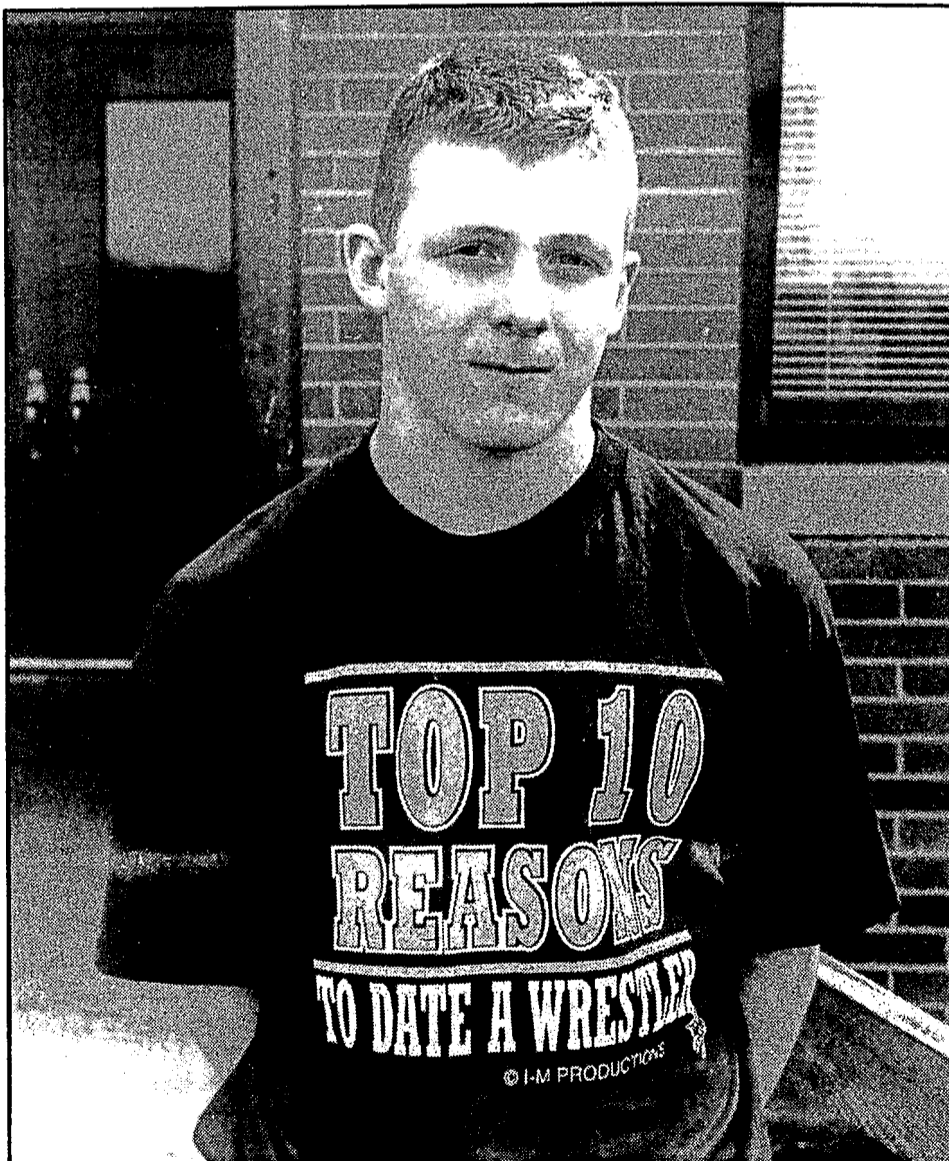

"It was pretty nice in Colorado," he said. "Everyone treated us like gods over there. We were given a lot of free things, and the training center's weight room was incredible. It was 20 times bigger than the one at the high school, full of the most modern equipment."

DeGain said he's already looking forward to next year's Cadet Teen Trials for 15- and 16-year-olds. He figures his experience should give him a leg up on his competition, resulting in a return trip to the world championships.

"I think I can repeat as champion,"

he said. "I know everyone will be up for the meet because the world championships will be in Chicago, on our own soil."

JOE DEGAIN of Clarkston participated in the Cadet World Wrestling Championships in Germany last week. The CHS sophomore failed to place in the 34-country meet, due in part to a shoulder injury sustained at the United States training center in Colorado.

CHS gets new assistant principal

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Associate Editor

Come this August, Clarkston High students will find themselves under the watchful eye of three assistant principals instead of the customary two.

On July 12, the Clarkston Board of Education unanimously approved the hiring of Carol Ann Wilson as the school's third assistant principal. She'll join ranks already occupied by Ginny Farmer and former principal Jim Goebel, who swapped positions with Brent Cooley about three weeks ago.

The hiring of a third assistant principal position was approved by the school board this spring to handle the added work created by incoming freshman.

Wilson was selected from a field of 62 applicants. She has 30 years of educational experience, including more than 10 years at the administrative level.

Until recently, Wilson had been employed as assistant principal at Birmingham Seaholm High School since 1989. Her stint in the Birmingham public school system began in 1963 as a teacher at Berkshire Junior High School. She later moved on to instruct at Seaholm High School and West Maple Middle School.

Her career received a boost in 1981 when she was named district coordinator for modern languages, K-12. She held this post from 1981 to 1989.

Her educational background includes: a bachelor's degree in French and Spanish from the University of Detroit; a master's degree in secondary administration from the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor; and an education specialist's degree from Oakland University, Rochester, in school leadership.

Listed among her many merits are the 1991 Association of Supervisory and Curriculum Development National Dissertation Award and the WDIV-Newsweek Birmingham Educator of the Year in 1989 and 1990.

Wilson became enamored with CHS in 1991 when she visited the school with a contingent of colleagues. Upon learning of a vacancy, she immediately applied for the position of assistant principal.

With the job in hand, Wilson says she's eager for the start of school.

"This is very exciting," she said. "I'm eager to meet the people of this community, who have a reputation for being very family-oriented."

"After 30 years in one district, I look forward to the new opportunities and challenges that await me in Clarkston."

CAROL ANN WILSON was recently hired on as the third assistant principal at Clarkston High.

College pupil seeks aid for foreign study

A Clarkston alumnus is hoping for a little help from his friends — and his friends' friends.

Reggie Reed, 21, a senior at Alma College, Alma, still needs to raise $5,852 of the about $12,000 cost to study in Japan this fall.

The foreign study is required by his major in international business and foreign language (Japanese) at Alma.

The 1990 CHS graduate works in the mortgage division at NBD to earn money and also has worked in the Clarkston community, such as in Tim McCormick's basketball camp. Reed played four years of basketball in Clarkston.

He said he would be grateful to anyone who wants to sponsor him. So far, people already have said they'll help, he said.

"They're just great. They're giving me something now, but hopefully I'll return that to the community in the future," said Reed.

Reed, son of Carolann and James Reed of West Ellis Road, Springfield Township, said he hopes to work in credit analysis in the banking industry when he graduates, then attend graduate school.

To donate, sponsors may send checks to 8569 W. Ellis Road, Davisburg, MI 48350. For information, call Reed at 625-3285 in the evening or 313-828-0960 in the day.

City tax hike OK'd

It's official. Taxes went up in the City of Clarkston.

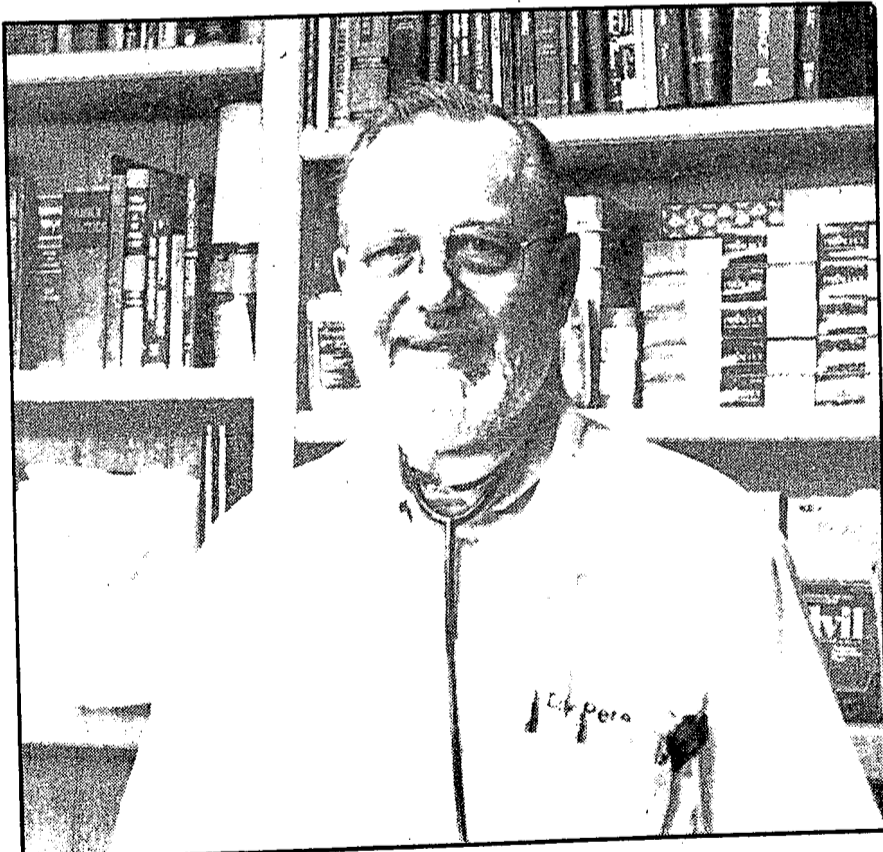

At a July 7 special meeting, the city council approved a resolution to set the millage rate at 12.3 mills for 1993-94, 2.3 mills higher than last year.

The council plans to allocate two mills to the police department and .3 mills for leaf collection.

That 2.3 mills is $2.30 for every $1,000 in assessed property valuation. That means the owner of a $100,000 home assessed at half the market value ($50,000) will pay $115 more in city taxes this year over last year.

The city adopted a $469,000 budget for 1993-94 on June 30. The budget included the revenue from the 2.3-mill tax increase approved July 7.

Theft from baby's grave angers grandma

Clarise Gibson had grieved less than a month over her granddaughter's unexpected death June 15 when a cemetery theft turned her grief into anger.

Gibson, a Springfield Township resident, had erected a $13 double wrought-iron plant hanger at her granddaughter's grave and had hung $20 pots of impatiens from it.

But the pole was stolen from its spot on the "lake side" of Lakeview Cemetery, Independence Township. The plants and a balloon were not stolen.

"It just kind of makes you mad," said Gibson. "It's not the cost. It's the thought. You're dealing with the death anyway. You're trying to make yourself feel better, and this happens."

Her granddaughter, Brandy Mulliniks, died suddenly at 16 1/2 months, and the entire family is grief-stricken, said Gibson.

"She loved flowers. She loved pink. We just tried to do something nice for her — you can't do too much for someone six feet under. I go there every night, and I missed two days, and now it's gone.

"I don't want it back — that's not the point. If some kid took (the poles) home for their mother as a gift, maybe they'll know it came from a baby's grave. ... I just hope that whoever got it enjoys it because she would have enjoyed it if she was here," said Gibson.

Board to reconsider I-75 soundwall

It looks as if a soundwall on I-75 at M-15 is a possibility after all.

After saying no in June, the Independence Township Board voted unanimously July 6 to hear new arguments for construction of a 15-foot soundwall. The board is to reconsider the construction either July 20 or Aug. 6.

In June, the board voted against giving an easement to the Michigan Department of Transportation. MDOT would have built the soundwall on the easement. The soundwall would block highway traffic noise from some of the houses in Old Sturbridge subdivision, north of I-75 and east of M-15.

At that time, a majority on the board said the wall would be ugly and would benefit only a few houses and should be denied.

However, Old Sturbridge residents told the board July 6 that the property belonged to the homeowners' association, not the township.

"If decided properly, the decision falls under the homeowners' association," said Tom Zammit of the homeowners' association. "The ultimate use of the land belongs to the homeowners' association, not the board."

Local teen confesses to hoop damage

A teen-ager confessed to pulling down a basketball hoop in Independence Township July 4.

The Clarkston-area boy, whose name is being withheld because he is a juvenile, was discovered when a Pinedale resident wrote down the license plate number of a car carrying four teen-agers.

The resident witnessed one of the teens pull down a hoop late at night in the neighborhood, then get back in the car, which pulled up to another house. When the boy attempted to pull down that hoop, the resident thwarted the attempt and alerted police.

The Oakland County Sheriff's Department found the car registered to a Williamson residence and arrived at the house just as the boy arrived home. The boy and his parents said the teen would make restitution to the basketball hoop owners.

This summer, about 10 or more hoops a week have been reported damaged in Independence Township. Usually, the damage takes place late at night. Police suspect teens in the cases.

Robin Hill plat OK'd

The owners of the proposed Robin Hill Subdivision, on Oakhill Road, are one step closer to breaking ground.

The Independence Township Board approved the final preliminary plat July 6.

The development is on the south side of Oakhill Road, between Sashabaw and Dartmouth roads. Robin Hill subdivision will have 16 1-1/2-acre lots and paved roads and will be served with septic and well systems.

Deer Lake residents clash over boats

BY DON RUSH
Assistant to the Publisher

Storage is storage is storage—unless, of course, you want to store your boat on Deer Lake. Then "storage" can be confusing.

So it goes with the battle between the Deer Lake Association of Independence Township and five residents of the Village West Condominium development, which rests in Independence Township and the City of Clarkston.

At a July 7 special meeting of the Clarkston City Council, tempers flared and voices were raised over who has the right to store boats overnight on Deer Lake overnight.

Near the end of the discussion, city councilman

James Schultz scolded the audience. "You are at one of our meetings. Show us some respect. ... Act like adults. Ask us to do something; do not yell," he said.

Association members said Village West deed restrictions prohibit residents from storing boats. That means they can't leave their boats in the water overnight, said the Association members.

That's how the lake association defined storage.

However, the five Village West residents disagreed. They can leave their boats in the water overnight because the deed restricts them only from storing boats on condominium property, they said.

"We bought property (in the condo development) this past Christmas time, with the idea it was OK to keep the boats on the lake," Darwin Johnson said. "There will be eight condos when completed; there will be eight boats at most."

The two groups debated the deed restriction's meaning of storage for nearly an hour and a half before councilman Steve Arkwright motioned to table the issue until members of the association give information to city attorney Thomas J. Ryan. Ryan is then to recommend a definition of "storage" to the council.

New golf course owner gets liquor license

The new owner of the Pine Knob Golf Course, The Mansion and LaVeranda restaurants got the nod from Independence Township.

The board approved a Class C liquor license transfer.

The owner, Anthony A. Catenacci of Clinton Township, requested the transfer July 6. He told the board he wants to return businesses to first-class operations.

Renovations, inside and out, are underway for the buildings, and Catenacci said he plans to add another nine holes to golf course.

"I want to make this a premier course in Clarkston and one of the better courses in the country. We're bringing everything back to life," Catenacci said.

The restaurants could open to the public in four to six weeks.

Sewer plans continue, despite cost

Some Waldon Road residents were shocked at the last Independence Township meeting. They cause of their dismay came in the form of money — $10,000, to be exact.

That is the estimated cost each homeowner would pay when the township extends the sewer lines to Waldon Road between Almond Lane and Patrick Court. And it looks as if the extension will take place. The township board voted to accept bids for the project.

The eight property owners who originally petitioned the township for the sewers will make up a special assessment district. They will pay the entire cost, currently estimated at $76,000. The cost of extending the line includes the cost of tearing up and replacing a safety path.

Residents from the district wanted to know why they alone had to pay for the safety path.

George Anderson, department of public works director, answered, "Whatever we tear up we have to replace, whether it's your driveway, the safety path or shrubs. All the citizens of the township paid for the safety path, and we'll have to replace it. All costs in the special assessment district will be borne by the benefiting properties."

The residents from the area were asked if they still wanted the township to proceed with the project. Only one resident said no.

Anderson said the township will seek bids for the project by the end of July.

Traffic signal may come this week

A new traffic light soon will appear in Clarkston. The signal is planned for Main Street at Clarkston Road, said traffic engineer Bill Drongowski of the Michigan Department of Transportation.

Drongowski said the foundation for the light poles was poured July 2 and must cure at least one week. That means the poles and traffic light could be in place this week, depending on the contractor's schedule.

Road widening at that intersection was to begin this week as well.

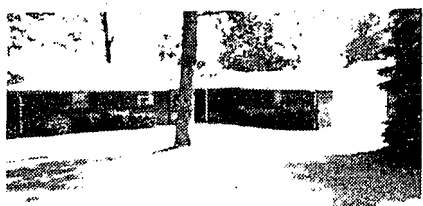

Due to contaminated soil at the muffler shop and a large tree at the house at the southeast corner of the intersection, the widening will be limited.

It will mainly widen the radius, making it easier for vehicles to make a right turn when stopped on Clarkston Road at M-15, he said.

"It's a minor fix-up, but it's going to do wonders for that area," said Drongowski.

He said the Clarkston Village Council requested the traffic light, and traffic studies showed that the volume of traffic at the intersection merited the signal.

Days numbered for 'last working farm'

O'Neill property gains first approval in rezoning; 77 homes possible

BY JULIE CAMPE
Clarkston News Editor

One of the last working farms in Independence Township could be in its final years.

On July 8, the Independence Township Planning Commission voted 5-0 to recommend that the township board rezone the parcel, setting the stage for new houses on Holcomb Road. The township board has the final say in ordinance changes.

Voting yes were Chairman Richard Oppmann, Daniel Travis, Steve Board, Carolyn Place and Joseph Figa. Cecilia Yarber and Holly Stephens were absent from the meeting.

The recommendation followed about an hour-long public hearing filled with sometimes passionate speeches about development and the loss of wildlife and the loss of a way of life.

Rezoning planned for 166 acres

Clarkston pediatrician James O'Neill requested that the township rezone his 166.5 acres on Holcomb Road, north of I-75, from rural residential to suburban farm residential. Rural residential zoning requires 3-acre minimum lot sizes. If approved by the township board, the new zoning would require 1 1/2-acre minimum lot sizes.

O'Neill also owns 150 acres backing up to the Saturn Dealership in Springfield Township and requests that those, too, be rezoned.

O'Neill said that, eventually, he plans to submit a plan to develop the property for secluded home sites, saving wetlands, streams, trees and ponds. He said he

"It's naive to think that this would never be developed. Dr. O'Neill or somebody will develop it. I'd rather see Dr. O'Neill."

~Resident Bob Kraud

plans to remain living on his 12-acre homestead.

Developers Manny Kniahynycky and Alan M. Kiriluk said the whole project could take 10-15 years.

Planner says 77 homes possible

Before the public hearing, planning consultant Richard Carlisle said that subtracting wetlands and other unbuildable acres of the parcel, 112 acres may be used on O'Neill's property in Independence Township. At its current zoning, 37 home sites could be built. After the proposed rezoning, 77 sites would be possible.

Carlisle said that the zoning surrounding the farm varies from rural residential to suburban farm residential.

In Springfield Township, the zoning calls for 1/2-acre minimum lot sizes, while that township's master plan calls for medium density residential, which allows one dwelling unit per 1-2 acres.

Carlisle said both townships' master plans for land use call for the zoning requested by O'Neill.

"The parcels in both Independence Township and Springfield Township portions have unique characteristics certainly worthy of protection," said Carlisle, who is also the consultant for Springfield. "The protection of these natural areas will be a high priority in both townships."

"The developer says he enjoys nature and goes up north to see it. That's just it — you have to go up north."

~Resident Mark Jones

With many wetlands, mostly in Springfield Township, the soil conditions are limited for septic systems. So the large lots sizes requested by O'Neill would well suit that factor, he said.

Holcomb Road, which is gravel after it crosses I-75, "becomes in bad condition in many areas," said Carlisle.

"This proposal won't significantly increase traffic over what could be developed in (current rural residential)," he said.

The real concern, he said, is that the townships should work together to improve Holcomb road, especially since Clarkston Community Schools is building a new elementary school on the same road — in Springfield.

"The new school will have a greater impact than any new development," said Carlisle. He mentioned that a "natural beauty road" status would be a way to save trees along the road.

Carlisle noted that the intent of the township's

"The new school will have a greater impact than any new development."

~Planner Richard Carlisle

master plan is to provide low-density areas north of I-75.

"Low-density development is the best way to preserve natural features," he said, recommending approval of the rezoning.

Physician-farmer addresses people

Before the public hearing, O'Neill addressed the commission and audience.

"This is probably the last working farm in Independence Township," he said, adding that it had 40-some head of cattle, 20 acres of "wonderful sweet corn," farm animals and game.

"We've lived and worked that area for 35 years. We asked to keep this area rural," he said. "No one could criticize more making it higher or lower density than I can."

He said his future plans call for 2.2-acre lots with preservation of streams and wetlands that would give the game and other wildlife a place to live.

Some rail against development

During the public hearing, Mark Jones of Reese Road spoke twice, voicing concern over the loss of songbirds, open space and development in general.

He peppered developers with questions about where they live, whether they've catalogued the wildlife on the property, and whether they intend to turn Clarkston into another Troy or Rochester.

He asked the commission to deny the rezoning.

The land, he said, is "part of my life, part of my existence. I was hoping it would be for my daughter, too," he said. "As far as I'm concerned, this would wreck the neighborhood."

"The developer says he enjoys nature and goes up north to see it. That's just it — you have to go up north."

O'Neill's parcel "is special," he said. "Why should we have to go up north? Why is development inherently good for this community?"

He said he saw new subdivisions going up all over Independence Township, complete with sod and chemicals.

Planners OK rezoning of 166 acres on Holcomb

cals and sprinklers, which push out wildlife.

But on Holcomb Road, it's different, he said. "There's a canopy of trees along the road. That's really neat," he said, adding that the plans sound as if O'Neill's parcel will become "another Deer Lake development."

Later, his wife, Mary Jones, also voiced disapproval of the rezoning.

"I hear Dr. O'Neill talk about sensitivity to this project. ... He said this is one of the last working farms in Independence Township. He owns an absolutely gorgeous piece of property. I think Dr. O'Neill has an obligation to preserve this parcel as a whole. Preserving it means keeping it as a whole.

"I think Dr. O'Neill has gained a lot of money from this community, and I think he should preserve (his land) for the community," she said.

Another Holcomb Road resident said, "When I look out my windows now, it's great to see Dr. O'Neill's cows.

Boy recovers from rattlesnake bite

A 12-year-old Waterford boy was released from the hospital recently after he was bitten by a rattlesnake a week ago.

On July 7, Michael Dalby was bitten on the hand by a massasauga rattlesnake he found on a trail in Independence Oaks County Park, Sashabaw Road, Independence Township.

He was the second child this summer to be bitten by a snake in this area. A 6-year-old Andersonville Elementary pupil was bitten by a massasauga in May at Indian Springs Metropark, Springfield Township. She fully recovered.

The massasauga is a small, gray or brownish rattlesnake usually found in swampy regions in the east and south of the United States. It is the only poisonous snake found in Michigan.

I love it. But will I see rooftops (after the rezoning)?"

Project 'ideal'

Others voiced approval of the rezoning.

Michael Clark of Dixie Highway said, "This will be an ideal project."

He added anyone who moved to the area had to realize that the land would be developed someday in some fashion.

"This township has worked to tighten its ordinances, ... to protect this township," he said.

Charles Porter of Ellis Road said he did not oppose the project and would love to see Holcomb Road paved.

Bob Kraud, who served on the zoning board of appeals under Supervisor Gary Stonerock, said the master plan was developed at that time.

"At that time, the statement was made that this would be the Bloomfield Hills of Oakland county. ... It's naive to think that this would never be developed. Dr. O'Neill or somebody will develop it. I'd rather see Dr. O'Neill," Kraud said.

Developer Kiriluk also responded. "We will develop so you can't tell what came first, homes or trees," he said. "We have a reputation for warning contractors, 'You die if you kill trees.'"

Commissioners OK rezoning

Commission members expressed approval before voting yes on the rezoning.

Chairman Oppmann noted that if the township board approves the first and second readings of the rezoning, a plat or site plan is the next step.

That process covers such issues as buffers between wetlands and development. He said much of that would be covered by the township's wetland ordinance and by the Department of Natural Resources.

Joseph Figa also commented. "It's tough to see large tracts of land that we all love be developed," he said.

To preserve large parcels, communities must buy them as parks or have them donated. As a county parks and recreation employee, he said he worked hard to get grants to purchase Independence Oaks.

He noted that houses in this project probably would cost around $500,000. While glad that most of the natural features would be preserved, he said, "Land that is as beautiful as this probably will be enjoyed by few people."

He said the Independence Land Conservancy is a way to preserve land forever and said O'Neill plans to use that non-profit organization to preserve some of his land.

He also warned the developers to stay far away from the highway. "I certainly do not want to see a sound wall at I-75," he said, referring to a controversial proposal for a sound wall on I-75 at M-15.

Carolyn Place said, "I don't think there's anybody here who would not like to see that parcel preserved just as it is. And unless the state owned it or Independence Township owned it, in this country, a person has the right to develop his property."

She said Dr. O'Neill would develop it in a beautiful and masterful way.

Steve Board said, "Development isn't necessarily inherently good. It's also not inherently bad. ... We're not passing judgments on the owner or the developer. We're passing judgment on a rezoning request."

Daniel Travis said that Fox Hollow subdivision residents called him to register opposition to the development.

"It's always disheartening to see change," he said, noting that "Bridge Valley" on Dr. O'Neill's land is one of only two pre-European parcels in all of Oakland County. He said he hope some of it is preserved.

He noted that even if someone else developed the property, the township ordinances would protect it.

Thendara lot split OK'd

Modifying a consent judgment from December 1991, the Independence Township Board granted a lot split.

The split, granted July 6, included a stipulation that this split would not be precedent-setting.

Richard Raisen, of Sylvan Realty Co. of Clarkston, requested the split for lots in the Thendara Park Subdivision off North Eston Road, north of Walters Lake. Raisen is to pay township attorney fees up to $350.

Teacher copes with kids, Hodgkin's

BY CURT MCALLISTER
Clarkston News Associate Editor

It's safe to say that the past school year was memorable for Bailey Lake Elementary teacher Darcy Burleson. Coupled with the nervousness of her first job and a week-long teachers' strike, the 24-year-old kindergarten teacher was re-diagnosed with Hodgkin's disease.

Hodgkin's is a cancer of the lymph nodes, primarily afflicting young people.

Burleson was first diagnosed with Hodgkin's in March 1991 when she discovered a lump in her neck, which was first thought to be an infection. The lump was

"After I stopped the treatments, the kids helped me chart my hair growth, when I would peel back just enough of my wig for them to see the new hair."

Darcy Burleson

DARCY BURLESON spent her first year as a Bailey Lake Elementary teacher battling Hodgkin's disease. The 24-year-old Central Michigan University grad is presently in remission from the disease, which is a cancer of the lymph nodes.

treated with radiation, which seemed to clear up the problem.

However, the cancer resurfaced again in the fall of 1992. The recent Central Michigan University grad not only feared for her health, but the new job she'd just started in Clarkston.

"At first, I was scared to tell anyone," she said. "Here, I landed my first teaching job, and I thought I'd lose it."

"The district and Doris Mousseau (Bailey Lake principal), in particular, were great," Burleson added. "It seemed, at every turn, my co-workers and friends were there for me."

For the next six months, from November to April, Burleson received bi-monthly chemotherapy treatments at William Beaumont Hospital, Royal Oak. At first, the exposure made her ill, but she eventually got over the side effects.

The treatments also made her lose her blond hair, which soon became one of her class' main focal points.

"Because I wore a wig, they really never believed that I had lost my hair," she said, smiling. "After I stopped the treatments, the kids helped me chart my hair growth, when I would peel back just enough of my wig for them to see the new hair."

"They always asked me to take off my wig, but I had my limits," she said, laughing. "But honestly, my kids were the reasons I got up in the morning. I don't know what I would have done if I hadn't had this job to keep my mind off my troubles."

Burleson said the parents were just as helpful as their children.

"The parents were wonderful," she said. "A few of them helped me create bulletin boards and do busy work after class. It was a great help because my chemotherapy treatments were really draining my energy, to the point where I'd go to bed as soon as I got home from school."

"My kids were the reasons I got up in the morning. I don't know what I would have done if I hadn't had this job to keep my mind off my troubles."

Darcy Burleson

Burleson said the parental support was also evident in other ways.

"After I was re-diagnosed, Mrs. Mousseau and I created a letter, explaining my situation, and sent it off to all my students' parents," she said. "I never had one parent pull their child from my class. I received 100 percent support as well as a lot of get-well cards when I missed time from school."

Burleson said the disease has given her a new perspective on life.

"I definitely have a new outlook on life," she said. "I don't worry about the little things anymore. It's also made me look at people differently. By now, I know who'll stick by me and who'll turn and run."

Burleson takes a blood thinner medicine to stop mass clotting, with a check-up scheduled for July. Because the cancer was caught so quickly the second time, doctors have given her a positive prognosis for the future.

"They told me if I had to get cancer, Hodgkin's was the one because if detected early enough it was curable," she said. "I also had a CAT-SCAN done last February, which showed that all traces of the cancer had vanished."

With a new lease on life, Burleson said she's looking forward to the upcoming school year.

"I'm looking forward to working under the new DAP (Developmentally Appropriate Practices) system for the kindergarten," she said. "It's exciting because I know I'll have more energy this time around."

Ask the Therapist

Is my marriage in peril?

Stan Garwood

Dear Mr. Garwood:

I have been married for 15 years and have two school-age children. We've had some problems recently, and I asked my husband to go to counseling, but he won't. A few months ago, we became friends with a couple from my husband's office. The husband of the couple flirts a lot and tells me how beautiful and intelligent I am — things my husband doesn't take the time to tell me. He kissed me at a party a couple weeks ago, and I found I was really attracted to him. Is this a sign that my marriage is in peril? Should I tell my husband? Maybe this would get him into therapy. Married, with problems

Dear Married With Problems:

You have presented several indicators of a troubled marriage. I will list them as follows and then discuss a plan to address these.

- (1) Marital problems sufficient to require counseling.
- (2) Little positive/ supportive exchange between you and husband.

(3) Your mind set to the point where you are no longer focused on the marriage.

Without further information regarding the "marital problems," it has been my experience that by the time couples feel the need for counseling, the relationship is in a state of deterioration. For most people, it takes a lot to reach out for help. By the time they have arrived at therapy's doorstep, they have attempted a list of unsuccessful remedial approaches.

Human nature requires that we have a positive feeling of ourselves. We cannot develop this in a vacuum, apart from outside input. For the most part, we derive information from what we do and who we are along with the subsequent supportive comments.

I have found that certain individuals are not accustomed to verbalizing these opinions/ feelings. Others know how to, but something blocks them, such as unresolved long-term resentment, disappointment or frustration. I can imagine your delight in hearing how "beautiful and intelligent I am" after months and possibly years of their absence.

Has it occurred to you that you may be looking for answers to a troubled marriage? Why else would you, at this time, allow yourself to consider someone outside of the marriage? "He kissed me. ... I was really attracted to him."

There is no question — marriage counseling is indicated. Both of you should participate. Do not allow your husband's reticence to stop you from beginning. In my experience, spouses usually join in treatment sooner or later.

QUESTION: How do you go about setting a selling price on your house?

ANSWER: The seller or broker MAY set the price, but the buyers in the marketplace actually determine value. Price is vital. An overpriced home can become almost impossible to sell. On the other hand, with too low a price, you are not getting what it's actually worth. A trained real estate agent can be a big help. He or she can establish the value of your property based upon comparable prices of similar homes that have sold in your area. Starting out with a fair price is the most important step in selling your property. Everything else is secondary.

Recipe corner

Great on the grill

This tasty appetizer can be prepared in advance and served later. It can be cooked on a grill or in the oven.

It's also pretty-- it uses tortillas in an unexpected way.

GRILLED CHICKEN APPETIZER ROLL-UPS (Makes 16 appetizers)

- 4 boneless, skinless chicken breasts
- Salt and pepper to taste
- 2 tablespoons olive or vegetable oil
- 2 tablespoons lime juice
- 1 medium clove garlic, minced
- 1 container (8 ounces) portwine or sharp Cheddar cold pack cheese food, softened
- 8 wheat flour or whole wheat flour tortillas
- 1/3 cup chopped green onions
- 1/2 cup sour cream

Cut chicken breasts in half lengthwise. Salt and pepper. Combine oil, lime juice and garlic; marinate chicken 30 minutes or longer. Remove from marinade.

Grill or barbecue chicken 10 to 12 minutes, turning once, until chicken is just cooked through. (Or saute in non-stick skillet 10 to 12 minutes.)

Divide cheese in half; reserve one half. To make each roll-up, spread 1 tablespoon cheese on lower third of tortilla. Lay 1 chicken strip across; sprinkle with a little green onion. Fold in sides of tortilla; roll up tightly. Wrap in foil. (Can be made ahead and refrigerated.)

To serve, warm on grill or barbecue for 8 to 10 minutes. (Or warm in oven at 350 degrees for 8 to 10 minutes.) Meanwhile, combine reserved cheese and sour cream. Remove roll-ups from foil; cut in half diagonally. Serve with cheese sauce for dipping.

CITY OF THE VILLAGE OF CLARKSTON

CITY COUNCIL

SPECIAL MEETING

JUNE 30, 1993

SYNOPSIS

Meeting called to order by Mayor Pro Tem Schultz at 7:35 p.m. followed by the pledge of allegiance.

Roll: Present: Arkwright, Basinger, Roeser, Sanderson, Schultz, Secatch

Absent: Catalo

Arkwright indicated that the minutes of the meeting on June 15, 1993 be corrected to indicate that Arkwright voted against the resolution to levy 12.3 mills for the 1993 tax roll. This changed the vote on that resolution to Yeas 3, Nays 2. The resolution still passed.

Moved by Arkwright, supported by Secatch, "That the minutes of the June 7, 1993 meeting be approved with the afore noted correction." Motion carried.

Moved by Schultz, supported by Arkwright, "That the agenda be approved with the following changes, Deer Lake Residents concerns will be addressed at the July 7 meeting and the Planning Commission and Council salaries be added as new business." Motion carried.

Robert Namowicz met with the Council, representing the Deer Lake Property Owners Association regarding their concern for the health of the lake. This issue will be discussed further at the July 7th meeting.

Mayor Pro Tem Schultz opened the Truth in Taxation Hearing. Basinger made a presentation on the proposed 1993-94 Village Budget. The proposed budget calls for levying 12.8 mills for the village. This represents a 3.4% increase over 1992 based on the same SEV.

The police budget was reviewed with the public.

The proposed police budget is for $156,000. The city expects to collect $28,000 in ticket revenue during 1994-95. This leaves $128,000 costs to be covered. Our previous contract with the Township for police services was for $60,000 annually. This difference of $68,000 is what the costs of running our own police department rather than contracting for the services with the Township, which is no longer an option.

Attorney Ryan addressed the issue of the lawsuit which has been filed regarding the Clarkston police officers. Ryan indicates that the lawsuit is without merit and that our officers acted responsibly. Currently an investigation is pending.

Basinger presented the line item budget. It was projected that the change from a village to a city would provide for $228,161 in increased revenue, as well as $205,433 in increased expenses which leaves $22,728 in revenues over expenses with the changes to a city.

Schultz closed the Truth in Taxation Hearing at 8:55 p.m. and opened up the meeting for public comments.

The issue of the Village West condominiums use of Deer Lake was discussed at the July 7th meeting.

Secatch indicated that the DPW men were spending two days each week cutting the grass and trimming in Depot Park in preparation for weekend weddings in the gazebo. We currently charge only 50 dollars to rent the gazebo. Secatch is proposing that the rate be raised for non-village residents. Ryan was opposed to the idea of having two different rates for residents and non-residents. Secatch will try to quantify the costs associated with maintenance of the gazebo and the park before a rental rate is determined. This issue will be discussed again at the July 12th meeting.

Moved by Roeser, supported by Secatch, "That the agenda be amended to include the approval of the budget." Motion carried.

Resolved by Basinger, supported by Sanderson, "That the proposed budget for Fiscal Year 1993-1994, with revenues totaling $446,580 and expenses totaling $468,844 be adopted." Roll: Yeas 6, Nays 0. Resolution passed.

Roeser indicated that the issue of tree memorials will be addressed as part of an overall land use and landscaping plan for Depot Park.

Council received a letter from BFI, a solid waste hauling service, about providing the entire village with a solid waste removal service. The council indicated most people in the Village use one of two independent companies and most people are satisfied with the service provided.

Resolved by Sanderson, supported by Roeser, "That the Planning Commission be paid for their services in a total of $1,495 and that the City Council and Mayor be paid for their services in a total of $6,925 for fiscal year 1992-93." Roll: Yeas 6, Nays 0. Resolution passed.

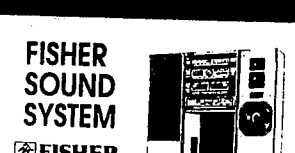

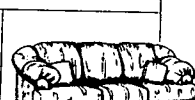

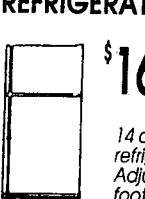

Moved by Roeser, supported by Sanderson, "That the meeting be adjourned." Motion carried.

The meeting was adjourned at 10:10 p.m.

SYNOPSIS
CITY COUNCIL SPECIAL MEETING

July 7, 1993

Meeting called to order by Mayor Catalo at 7:35 p.m. followed by the pledge of allegiance.

Roll: Present: Arkwright, Basinger, Catalo, Roesser, Sanderson, Schultz, Secatch.

Moved by Arkwright, supported by Secatch, "That the minutes of the July 7, 1993 meeting be accepted as presented." Motion carried.

Moved by Sanderson, supported by Arkwright, "That the agenda be approved with the following changes the Planning Commission/zoning ordinance be tabled until July 12, the following items be added under old business: Oakland County Oakland Housing, Plum house, and the attorney schedule. The following item to be added under new business: pending litigation in closed session."

Resolved by Sanderson, supported by Sanderson, "To set the 1993-94 general fund millage rate at 12.3." Roll: yeas 7, nays 0. Resolution passed.

Resolved by Arkwright, supported by Secatch, "To adopt a .5 mills for the sewer debt." Roll: yeas 7, nays 0. Resolution passed.

Robert Namowicz, President of the Deer Lake Property Owners Association, met with council last week and read a prepared statement regarding their concerns about the lake. Namowicz indicated the association has concerns about boats from Village West Condominium Association using Deer Lake. Five of the eight plotted condominiums will be located in the Village. The property owner association would like the council to appoint a representative to the association since the Village owns Deer Lake Beach.

Several other residents of Deer Lake spoke in support of restricting the residents of Village West from docking any boats on Deer Lake. The consensus was that the lake is becoming overcrowded with boats.

Secatch summarized many comments by stating there was a disagreement as to what was meant by boat storage in the Master Deed.

Ryan requested a copy of the Deer Lake Farms deed restriction that pertains to the storage of boats at their out lot.

Basinger questioned if there was any clear legal right that had been violated. This would need to be established before the Council could determine what would be the appropriate course of action.

Chuck Meyers, a Deer Lake resident, indicated he will send the deed restriction information requested by Tom Ryan.

Moved by Arkwright, supported by Sanderson, "That the discussion on Village West boat storage and docking be tabled until further information, as requested, is furnished to our attorney and has been reviewed by council." Motion carried.

Schultz requested that the issue of gazebo fees be tabled until the July 12, 1993 meeting. Ryan indicated that he would not be at this meeting but wanted to state that he felt there should be some rational basis for the ways fees are set. These should not be set arbitrarily but should some way be reflective of the costs associated with park and gazebo maintenance. Charging a higher rate to non-residents may need to be reflective of the higher tax rate that Village residents pay.

Resolved by Secatch, supported by Arkwright, "That the City of the Village of Clarkston is supportive of fair and open housing in our community." Roll: Yeas-Arkwright, Basinger, Catalo, Sanderson, Schultz, Secatch. Nays-Roesser. Resolution passed.

Resolved by Basinger, supported by Schultz, "That the 1993-94 Street Budget be adopted with $30,325 allocated local streets and $45,775 allocated for major roads, for a total allocation of $76,100 for major roads and local streets." Roll: yeas 7, nays 0. Resolution passed.

Moved by Roesser, supported by Schultz, "That a permit be issued to Advanced Environmental, Inc., to test the wells on Robertson Court as they have indicated in their letter of June 30, 1993. This permit is granted with the following stipulations: the well sites will be in the locations indicated in the June 30th letter, the City will be added as a named party insured by Advanced Environmental, Inc., the city will be given keys to the wells so they may gain access and have the right to sample the water at their convenience. Advanced Environmental will provide copies of all environmental reports to the city, Advanced Environmental will post a performance bond, and the permit may be withdrawn if this project does not meet with the approval of Hubbel, Roth and Clark, the City's engineering firm." Motion carried.

Secatch requested an update on the Plum House. Apparently the grass has not been cut, the property owners have been informed by letter. If the grass is not cut then DPW will cut the grass. The property has been zoned residential. A letter will be sent to the property owner to see if any plans are being made to improve or sell the property. If nothing is pending the City will look into having the house condemned.

Moved by Arkwright, supported by Secatch, "To have our attorney attend the second meeting every month and as requested by the Village Manager as opposed to all meetings due to our current budgetary constraints of fiscal year 1993-94." Motion carried.

Resolved by Basinger, supported by Arkwright, "That Council will go into closed session to discuss pending litigation." Roll: Yeas 7, nays 0. Resolution passed.

The open meeting was adjourned at 9:25 p.m. and the closed session was begun.

Resolved by Basinger, supported by Secatch, "That Council will go back into open session." Roll: Yeas, 7, nays 0. Resolution passed.

Moved by Roesser, supported by Sanderson, "That the meeting be adjourned." Motion carried.

The meeting was adjourned at 10:20 p.m.
