Rape case exam delayed

The preliminary exam was postponed for a man charged with rape.

Delbert Nelson Breeding, 30, of Independence Township, is charged with the Aug. 8 rape of a 41-yearold women that occurred in her home in the Oak Park Drive and Maybee Road area.

The exam is set for 9 a.m. Thursday, Aug. 26, at 52nd District Court, Independence Township.

Breeding remains in Oakland County Jail, unable to post the $600,000 bond set at his arraignment by District Court Judge Gerald McNally.

About 3 a.m. Aug. 8, the rape victim woke up to use the bathroom, where she was attacked by a man who had entered by removing a screen window.

She fought off her attacker with a butcher knife, which the man managed to take from her. He then raped her and left the house.

Police later arrested Breeding, who was found in the vicinity of the house. Breeding had a cut hand and fresh scratch marks on his body, and his wallet was found at the scene of the crime.

Breeding was out on bond awaiting trial in connection with a sexual crime that allegedly was committed against a boy in Independence Township in July 1992.

'Found-dog' message omits phone number

Dave Weiler is a little puzzled about a message on his answering machine about his lost dog.

"Barney," his black Labrador retriever, didn't return home Sunday, Aug. 8, after playing with his "dog buddies," said Weiler.

Someone found Barney, who wears a Michigan nane Society tag with his name and number, near I-75 and M-15, according to two phone messages he received, said Weiler.

However, the man who leaves the messages doesn't leave a name or phone number, so Weiler can't call him back.

"I'm at a dead end," said Weiler at The Clarkston News office on Monday.

Weiler, who placed a "lost dog" advertisement in The Clarkston News, didn't know if the man decided to keep the dog, or if Barney left him, too, or what.

All he knows is that he misses Barney and wants him back.

"Barney is wonderful — super personality, laid back, great with kids, lazy," said Weiler. "He's been my bud for two years. He's my best friend."

Weiler said he moved to Holcomb Road, Independence Township, because the 13-acre parcel provided lots of room for his buddy, who likes to play with neighbor dogs.

He hopes the caller calls again, he said.

"I don't know how these people can sleep at night," he said.

O'Neill cleared of campaign charges

BY CURT MCALLISTER Clarkston News Associate Editor

The 1992 political campaign of Clarkston's Megan O'Neill was finally put to rest last month, when the Federal Election Commission rejected allegations that she'd received illegal campaign contributions from her father.

These claims were made by Chuck Forrest of Grand Blanc, who O'Neill defeated in the August 1992 primary for the 9th District seat in the U.S. House of Representatives. O'Neill lost to Democratic incumbent Dale Kildee of Flint in the November general election.

"I feel completely vindicated. It was purely a political move by my primary opponent, who was just trying to stir things up at the time, with unfounded allegations."

During the primary campaign, Forrest repeatedly made claims that Dr. James O'Neill, a Clarkston pediatrician, may have given his daughter contributions in excess of $1,000, which exceeds the limits placed on individual donations. Forrest reportedly cited Megan O'Neill's financial disclosure statement showing as an asset a loan from her parents valued between $15,000 and $50,000.

However, O'Neill's campaign treasurer provided a financial statement to the FEC showing that the loans were made from March 1986 to April 1988, prior to her decision to run for political office.

The FEC ruled that Forrest failed to provide ample evidence for his contribution-based charges against Megan O'Neill. She believes the ruling was appropriate.

"I feel completely vindicated," O'Neill said. "It was purely a political move by my primary opponent, who was just trying to stir things up at the time, with unfounded allegations."

The FEC did agree with one of Forrest's many complaints, however, regarding a missed deadline for the filing of campaign statements. O'Neill said the report was mistakenly filed with the wrong governmental department, making it tardy.

The FEC didn't consider this oversight serious enough to warrant punishment.

Despite being cleared of any contribution-related hijinx, O'Neill was disappointed that the FEC didn't take action against Forrest for allegedly leaking news of his formal complaints to the media. Citing the leak as a campaign violation, O'Neill said the FEC could never track the anonymous call back to Forrest's camp.

Looking to the future, O'Neill said she's uncertain if she'll run for office again. She foresees the next couple of years as favorable to Republicans, based on public opposition to the Democrat's deficit budget-reduction plan.

"From what I understand, the calls to officials were running nearly nine-to-one against the plan, yet the Democrats passed it anyway," she said, "This isn't representative of the people's wishes, and I think the public will repeatedly respond over the next four years."

Clarkston — one year of cityhood

Money a problem; police a benefit, say residents, merchants and officials

BY CATHERINE PASSMORE Clarkston News Staff Writer

About 1,000 people had an anniversary July 1 — but there were no cakes or streamers.

That day marked the first anniversary of Clarkston's cityhood, the day that Clarkston ceased being a village

"We're getting more participation from the community. For me, that is the best part."

Has Clarkston changed since it became a city in 1993? Was it a good year? What are some of the downfalls of cityhood? Seven Clarkston residents, including some government officials, and two business people, talked about cityhood's first year.

Shirley Wilson, who co-owns Creation's Best with Becky Holman, said she personally didn't favor cityhood. "I really didn't feel it was going to harm my business. I just didn't feel it was a necessary step," she said. Clarkston Mayor Sharron Catallo said she supported cityhood from the beginning.

"It seemed like it was the time to do something like that," she said. "It's a more efficient way of running things"

Seven-year resident Anne Knight Weber, who plans to run for a seat on the city council, said she also favored Clarkston becoming a city. "It's important to be the masters of our own fates. I felt it was important that we be separately governed," she said.

THE CLARKSTON Police Department has been at the center of much criticism and praise in its first year of existence. Rumors of a ticket mill, rude officers and illegal arrests Jerry Wilford, a Main Street resident, said he viewed cityhood favorably.

"We're better off to be independent of the township," he said. "We were operating under two governments, and now we're under only one."

Catallo said village and city governments are similar, and she hasn't seen much change in the way things are run as a result of cityhood.

City council member Karen Sanderson agreed, "It's no different than before, which was the intent. As far are I can see, everything has stayed the same."

Although the day-to-day operations haven't changed much, other aspects of this little city have changed.

One of the good things to come out of cityhood is a renewed community spirit.

"People have been interested enough to voice opinions," said Catallo.

She said more people attend council meetings, and a group of citizens has volunteered to improve the playground in Depot Park.

"We're getting more participation from the community. For me, that is the best part," she said.

Jennifer Radcliff, a resident of Clarkston since 1972, said cityhood has "given us a little better feeling about ourselves." She said becoming a city has raised people's consciousness.

Another benefit of cityhood: the police department.

"Having our own police department has been a big plus," said city manager Art Pappas, a 35-year resident of Clarkston. He cited extra patrols and traffic control as positive effects of cityhood.

Some people, however, said the city budget has a few problems — particularly in a few areas.

Weber said, "I was surprised that we would have our own police. Most people are pleased with being well protected but question if it's financially wise."

City council member Steve Secatch said he was worried about the city's roads. "We need to figure out what we're going to do with our roads," he said, explaining that the city doesn't collect enough tax money to fix all of them.

Buck Kopietz, owner of Tierra's Fine Arts for 20 years, said, "We felt that the change would not be viable at the same cost as being a village."

He said road and sidewalk maintenance has suffered over the past year.

He also noted that a possible solution for maintenance could be a statewide road maintenance program for state highways that go through historical districts. However, it requires a 25-percent contribution from the community — a problem for Clarkston.

"The budget is too tight for any of the extras," he said.

Radcliff also voiced concern over the budget but said she knew the elected officials took their responsibilities seriously.

"I'm going to believe they have our best interest at heart," she said.

Pappas pointed out that city residents and council members are still learning.

"I think as you go along, you find ways to tighten up on things," he said.

Register now for Labor Day parade

The theme of this year's Labor Day Parade is a tribute to a Clarkston Mason.

The theme of "Special thanks to Joe Saul" is a memorial to his dedication to Clarkston and the Masonry, according to parade chairman Mike Mosharo of the Clarkston Rotary Club.

The parade takes place at 10 a.m. Monday, Sept. 6, at Clarkston Junior High School. It follows Church Street east to Main Street north, to Miller Road west, ending on Holcomb Road.

Early judging takes place at 8:30-9 a.m. on parade day. Registration is required by 9 a.m. Sept. 2. Awards will be given for president's choice, best float, best costume, and best presentation of theme.

For more information on the parade, call 625-9260 or 634-3268.

Following the parade is the 31st Annual Labor Day Corn Roast at the Campbell Richmond Post 63 American Legion on M-15, Independence Township. It takes place 11 a.m. to 6 p.m., with affordable food, drinks, games, pony rides and more. For more information, call 625-0012

Also after the parade is a fair and antique car exhibit at the First Congregational Church of North Oakland, 5449 Clarkston Road, Independence Township. # Four vie for three city council seats

Three seats are open on the Clarkston City Council this year, and four residents are vying for them.

James Schultz, William Basinger, Steven Arkwright and Anne Knight-Weber have filed petitions to run for the three openings on the council. Arkwright, Basinger and Schultz presently serve on the council.

Knight-Weber, a seven-year Clarkston resident, was a teacher for eight years and now is a full-time mother and community volunteer.

The election, the second since Clarkston became a city over a year ago, is Nov. 2. The winners serve on the council for two years.

Mother says son innocent in Independence rape

BY JULIE CAMPE Clarkston News Editor

The mother of a man charged with raping a 41-yearold Independence Township woman said newspaper articles don't tell the whole story.

"The police are the only ones who give their side of the story," said Mrs. Joanne Davison, mother of Delbert Breeding, who turned 31 in Oakland County Jail Monday, Aug. 16. "Nobody listens to me."

Breeding faces a preliminary exam in 52nd District Court, Independence Township, next week on charges that he broke into a woman's Oak Park Drive and Maybee Road-area home and raped her.

Mrs. Davison said her son didn't commit the crime. She said the Oakland County Sheriff's Department just wanted to find a suspect and also wanted to "get" Delbert.

"The rapist could still be in the neighborhood," she said, explaining that a man with a bike has been sleeping in a field near her house and could possibly be a suspect.

She didn't call police about him, though, because the police haven't returned her phone calls about other complaints in the past few months — such as a bomb in her mailbox three weeks ago, an attempted poisoning of her dog, and a trespasser on her roof, she said.

Further, a Clarkston News article quoted an unidentified woman saying she was a neighbor for 26 years of the Breedings. Davison said that can't be true because she's lived in the area for only 20 1/2 years.

She believes that Delbert is innocent, and the police don't like him, she said.

"They've had it in for Delbert," she said, mentioning one detective in particular. "He's looking to get even with Delbert. They've had a couple of run-ins. ... I just think it's a setup."

This detective, who has ordered Delbert to leave area bars in the area in the past for allegedly harassing women sexually, also "threatened" Davison not to show

Sexual delinquent sentencing on Aug. 26

A 21-year-old Independence Township man is to be sentenced next week as a sexual delinquent.

Joseph Alan Lunsford was charged with exposing himself to women in township shopping areas. After evaluations, Lunsford was categorized as a sexual delinquent, which turned misdemeanor incident exposures into felonies.

He is to be sentenced Aug. 26 by Oakland County Circuit Court Judge Gene Schnelz and faces up to life in prison. He remains in Oakland County Jail, unable to post the $25,000 bond.

up in court during Delbert's cases, or she would be arrested, said Davison.

She said that violates her rights, but nobody will listen. "Judge McNally will never know the truth," she

Davison said her son also is innocent in an unrelated case, in which he was charged with molesting a boy in Independence Township last year.

He was out on bond in that case when he was arrested for the Aug. 8 rape.

"It wasn't true then, and I don't think it's true this time either," said Davison. "He's always been quiet and shy. He's always been honest with me. He always calls me when he's going to be gone."

She said the charges caused him to lose a job at the Lion's Den, and his job at the Silverdome is on hold, pending the verdict. She explained that he had been married once and moved back home when it didn't work out. He was working a lot, helping around the house and at his grandparents' house, attending church at Mount Zion Temple, and was getting his life back in order.

"He was talking about going to college and being a minister," she said.

When the sheriff's detective told her the details of the crime, she knew it couldn't be true, she said.

"That doesn't sound like my son. If he wanted it, there's all kinds of it out there," she said, mentioning women he encounters while working at the Silverdome. "Why would he break into someone's house at 3 in the morning?"

She said she believes her son's story. "He keeps telling me he didn't do it. He cut his hand at the house because I've got blood in my front room and on my stairs. ... He said he was filing a knife."

Though he likes to sing at Karaoke bars in the area, "he wasn't rowdy," said Davison. "I don't think he'd hurt anybody.

"It's just tearing me apart. ... It's a lot of stress to me. It's a lot of stress to my father and mother. My father is 81 years old. She's 75 years old. She believed him last time and gave the $1,000 bond. ... If I lose my parents over this nonsense ... I really needed him home to help me out just to make it."

She said the rape supposedly took place around 3 a.m., but Delbert was at home until about 4 or 4:30 a.m., when he went out on his bike to get a Free Press and a pop.

"I remember because I asked him to please get me a pop, too," said Davison.

The wallet found at the scene of the crime can be explained because he had lost it the day before, she said.

"He has done that before," she said.

When police saw him riding his bike and wearing a brown tie, he was just convenient to arrest, Davison said, adding that the evidence is weak.

"Just like before, all they have is Playboy magazines and hearsay," she said. "If my kid gets out of here, I'm going to leave Oakland County. I can't stand it."

Lt. John Taylor of the OCSD said that the evidence overwhelmingly points to Breeding in this case, that Mrs. Davison has every right to attend court proceedings as long as she doesn't create a disturbance, and that police expect an arrest this week on the bombing of her mailbox.

Little Bud finds help

A little Holly boy and his family would like to thank the community for their help.

Since the story of Jimmy "Bud" Case, 4, came to light, the family was contacted by a woman who works with Fibrodysplasia patients similar to Bud and put the family in contact with a doctor in Pennsylvania.

The doctor referred the little boy to a bone specialist in Michigan who is working to get Bud's condition under control, so he can have surgery. The surgery could take place in six months.

The family said they'd like to extend thanks to people who donated money to Bud. Anyone wishing to make a contribution can mail their checks to: The Jimmy Bud Case Fund c/o Citizens Bank of Holly, Holly Plaza, Holly, Mich. 48442.

Last week someone joked that he would be a good reporter because he had no ethics or morals.

I do have ethics and I do have morals, but sometimes they make the job a little stressful, and they get in the way of doing a "good" story.

My second week on the job, Leslie Allen Williams was found and arrested. I went to the court with all the other reporters and did my job. After the court proceedings, the other reporters and camera crews literally ran after the woman Williams had kidnapped. I can prove it — I have a picture of the episode.

They were hanging on her truck sticking microphones in her face, all wanting to know the same thing - how did she feel. Did they really need to ask that of a woman who just saw the man who kidnapped her and raped and murdered four teen-age girls? Is the viewing public so out of touch with their own feelings they couldn't figure out that this woman felt rage and hatred? But the woman's tears made a great photo; it would sell the story.

Earlier this week I read in another paper about a 4-year-old boy who was bludgeoned to death. The story is that this little cherub of a child was brutally beaten to death for no apparent reason. Instead, the newspaper story mentioned the facts and then described the 13-year-old who had confessed to the Three-fourths of the story talked about this alleged murderer. They said he was little for his age, still had baby fat on his cheeks, what a nice kid he was, barring the fact he killed a neighbor's dog.

The bigger and better picture in the story was the one of the alleged murderer surrounded by police. This boy confessed to killing a small child, and the story seemed to make him a sympathetic character. Who wants to really believe a child could knowingly kill another for no reason?

A couple weeks ago, a woman was raped in Independence Township and I wrote the story. I wrote it straight-forward and without emotion, even though I wanted to cry when the police first told me the story. I have friends who have been raped, and although there are no physical scars, you know that emotionally and mentally they can never be the same.

That was the news part of the story - I can handle that. What I don't like is the voyeurism that is involved with the rest of the story. The comments that supposedly make it a good story.

What do we really need to know about the man who allegedly raped this woman? Should we talk to his pre-school teacher and find out if he was aggressive as a child? How about old girlfriends, playmates, his fellow workers?

Maybe I should try and contact the woman's friends and ask about her. Was she a good student? Was she ever married? Any children? Why in the world was she going to the bathroom at 3 a.m. didn't she know that it could be dangerous to walk around her own house at that time of the night?

The man arrested for the rape hasn't been tried or convicted. He may be innocent, but right now, at this moment, he is in jail on charges that he raped a woman in her own home.

The excuse for the sympathetic stories about the accused and the hounding of the victim is that people need to know about them as individuals, not just statistics. It's a reporter's job to supply that information to the public — whether the reporter wants to or

It is a sick world that revels in the excitement of a rape or a murder. It's disgusting that we want to know every detail about the accused, the feelings of the people who've been victims and where each and every stab or bullet landed.

CHS car policy set too late

Hi! I'm a junior at Clarkston High. Yesterday, I received a letter in the mail about driving to school. It said that only seniors and those juniors with special reasons are going to be allowed to drive to school.

This makes me mad because I have spent my whole summer working to earn money to buy a car. Now that I've finally bought one, I find out I can't drive it to school and have to ride the bus. The whole reason I bought a car was so I wouldn't have to ride the bus.

A lot of my friends bought cars for the same reason. Now we're all stuck with car payments for cars we can't drive to school. I'm sure the school board knew about this decision in June. I wish they would have told us then. Then maybe I could have just saved my money instead of buying a car.

Apology owed

I have truly enjoyed my subscription to The Clarkston News as it keeps me updated on the wonderful town I grew up in 20-odd years ago.

In particular, the incredible articles on Dr. James O'Neill's property in the last several issues have continued to amaze me.

The first articles by Mr. and Mrs. Mark Jones left me wondering where on earth these people came from.

Further articles set my blood boiling. After receiving July 21st and 28th issues, I was elated to see long-time residents stand up to these people, not only for their ridiculous mind-set, but to look further into their demands from a legal sense.

God help our personal rights, not to mention the nation's freedom, if our government ever adopted their way of thinking. To the Joneses, I say this: If your love for nature and all its beauty is so important that you dare publicly ridicule and try to verbally crucify one of Clarkston's finest citizens and community leaders over it, I suggest you offer to buy a portion of Dr. O'Neill's property to fulfill your own personal desires, or go live somewhere

Your pious attempt to make new laws governing a person's personal property is not only unconstitutional, it's downright shameful and rude. You owe Dr. O'Neill and the good citizens of Clarkston an apology.

Jim's Jottings

Ah, the enticement of money

Jim Sherman

Basically, this story is true. I was informed by the teller that it was off the record, but she says that to me when she says, "Hello."

However, just in case someone reads this to her I'm changing some names and locations, but not the point of the story.

Seems my friend, I'm going to call her Irene mostly because Mary is overused by columnists avoiding libel suits, was house-looking during one of those 'rama' weekends.

Irene is an attractive woman, used to receiving double-takes from men over 50 (60?), so she wasn't surprised when such a man started a conversation with her. Shortly after the 'How do you like the weather?' opening, he asked her if she'd like to make $2,000 a month?

Now, Irene spends more than that on lipstick (she's a major friend kisser), but she acknowledged how $2,000 a month would be nice. "What do I have to do, to whom and is this phone soliciting?" she

"No, it's not phone soliciting," he said. The man, whose wife was beside him, said he'd like to meet her in private, and he didn't want to tell her exactly how she could earn this 24 grand a year.

The private meeting didn't set well with Irene, though if boxer Mike Tyson made a sudden move on her in a dark alley I'd bet Irene would have him down for the count quicker than he could say beauty

'Well, if you change your mir 1, here's my card,' he said.

Irene was thankful she had a friend to tell this incident to. 'Friend' took to the money angle, and together they decided to call the man and arrange a meeting in a restaurant at mid-day.

Public place, broad daylight, gotta be safe and legit if he accepts, which he did. "Friend" carried a knife. True. I'm not sure I want to meet Irene's friend.

The man arrived a little late carrying his briefcase and his wife. No, he only carried the briefcase.

Shortly into the conversation, Irene asked, "Is this Amway or Shakley or one of those type deals?"

He ignored the question and brought out a tablet on which he started writing upside down to him, but rightside up to her. (They were facing each other in a booth.)

Mostly he wrote figures. They showed how Irene could easily make $2,000 a month right away, $50,000 by year's end and $100,000 with a little more effort. The wife admitted few made $100,000.

In answer to a certain question from Irene, the man said he couldn't talk about that until their second private meeting.

That did it. This IS Amway, isn't it? Yes! Why didn't you tell me that in the first place? I didn't say it wasn't Amway.

Thus the story ends happily. "Friend" didn't have to flash her knife. Irene didn't have to reveal any of her multiple skills. Amway continues to make a million dollars a minute. Man and wife continue to dream of that $100,000 plateau.

But, somewhere in there is a message. Maybe Amway should work on their sales image. Maybe, just maybe, Amway should give seminars to their salespeople on what to look for when recruiting . . . using Irene as a bad example.

. RUDSIL'S SUBURBAN FACT

You have 417 cable channels, 23 premium channels, 14 pay channels, and there's still nothing on TV.

Concessions necessary

Curt McAllister

Last week, the Clarkston Board of Education decided it was going to hold off on making any cuts to the 1993-94 school budget.

In doing so, they also decided to keep the pay-toplay fee at $80 per sport. This decision came in lieu of an administration recommendation to hike the fee to $140

While the decision to sit and wait on Lansing was noble, the board knows that an increase is inevitable. Sure, the kids can pay $80 now, but what's going to happen when the Legislature finally decides how much they're going to withhold in state aid from the schools?

How easy is it going to be for kids, perhaps a third of the way into the sports season, to dole out another $60 for their sport? Perhaps I should be addressing this to the parents — will you pay extra for services already rendered?

Some of you may not.

I pity the athletic department, who'll have to act as a bill collector in this situation. They'll be the ones who'll have to inform a parent that their child's spot on the squad will be in jeopardy if payment isn't made in full.

According to the administration, they'll be happy to keep the rate at $80 if the Legislature decides to withhold less than $500,000 per year from the district. But if this amount exceeds one half million dollars, they'll suggest a $140 fee per sport again to the school board.

Even more frightful is if the district is socked with paying at least $1 million per year to the state. Then, the recommended cost would jump to $280.

Regardless of the situation, $140 or $280 per sport, I think that the administration should re-consider its stance of no concessions for multi-sport athletes or multiple-athlete families.

At $140 per sport, simple arithmetic will tell you that a child playing three sports a year will have to pay $420 a year to retain his or her active status. But what if there's a sibling just as active? Double that figure and then tack on the cost of equipment.

All of a sudden, parents are dishing out nearly $1,000 a year for their kids to play interscholastic sports. In the long run, this could cause children and parents to pick sports based on economics instead of skill.

I, myself, know of the pay-to-play system because I had to heed by it in the mid-1980s. In Lapeer, we had to pay about $160 per sport, with the third one free. There were also concessions for multiple-athlete families.

Despite these concessions, I still saw several of my friends opt not to engage in sports because they weren't sure they'd get enough "playing time" to warrant such a

Sure, you can argue that the Clarkston area is more affluent than Lapeer County, but such a hike, without concessions, will be just as detrimental.

The loss of formative training and fond memories are at stake here.

Dinner-hour slamming doesn't ring up endorsement

Jim Fitzgerald

Some people just say no. I just hang up. It gives me great satisfaction. At least it did until my wife ruined everything.

Twice last week I hung up on some man who wanted to sell me a Discover Card that's even better, he said, than the marvelous Discover Card I already owned. After hanging up, I cut in half the marvelous Discover Card I already owned.

When the phone rings during the dinner hour, I hang up as soon as I realize the caller isn't someone I know and love. My dinner hour begins at 5 p.m. with taped "Mary Tyler Moore Show" reruns and ends when I go to bed. (Do you know the name of the doctor that Murray Slaughter's daughter dated when she grew up? If so, you are obviously erudite, and I won't hang up on you.)

I hung up on a representative of Detroit Newspapers so quickly I didn't learn whether she was selling the News or Free Press. Never mind that Detroit Newspapers - hereafter known as DN, pronounced "duh" - sells the newspaper I work for. If I lose my salary, I'll still have my principles, not to mention my smugness.

I even concede that, among the dozens of consumer complaints against government and business that I receive every week, there are usually a few aimed at the Free Press. Chuck Flanigan of Detroit, for example, pinpointed several of our east side vending boxes that almost never open, no matter how many coins you insert, or how many times you complain to DN.

Most gripes concern pages cut, smudged, blanked or wrinkled in the middle of paragraphs thereby rendered unreadable. The most articulate message came from Candace Koenig of Royal Oak, with a badly wrinkled page enclosed. She asked for "a free press for my Free Press. ... If you ask your wife nicely, maybe she will show you how to use the iron"

Which cleverly brings us back to my wife and how she took the satisfaction out of my hanging up on dinner-hour phone solicitors. After I slammed the Discover man, she said:

"You wouldn't do that if he were your son or grandson."
Huh?

"That man is just trying to make a living," she said.
"Would you like people hanging up on your son while he was trying to make a living?"

Boy, I really hate that.

"After two of our granddaughters became waitresses, you started leaving bigger tips on restaurant tables," she said. "You'd act the same way if one of our grandsons became a phone salesman."

Geez. I just read about a California man, Glynn (Scotty) Wolfe, who's getting married for the 28th time. I don't understand Scotty at all. I think maybe Scotty was beamed up headfirst into a concrete ceiling too many times.

"Sometimes I think you care more about frogs than people," she said.

Oh Lord. I'd recently charged a Maine hardware store with cruelty to animals for selling live frogs through a vending machine. Those frogs have to be suffering from being treated like gum balls. If they could talk to the hardware dealer, would frogs say the'd prefer to at least be gift wrapped?

"I always listen to what phone solicitors have to say, even if I don't want to buy anything," my wife said.
"That's only polite. That's how I'd like strangers to treat my grandchildren."

So now I have great guilt. I can no longer enjoy hanging up on phone solicitors during dinner hour. In fact, I hope Discover and DN call back so I can apologize.

I also recently read that Burt Reynolds, when he was still living with Jennifer Marlowe, often stayed locked alone in his bedroom for days. I can understand that.

It's not as though Burt were married to Bailey Quarters, or Murray Slaughter's daughter after she grew up.

Rape is serious physical injury

Thoughts regarding the Wednesday, Aug. 11, Clarkston News article "Woman raped in own home":

The line "Neither the woman or man sustained any serious physical injury" troubled me greatly. Let me pose a question: Would both arms being broken be considered a serious injury, or taking a bullet in the leg? How about a knife in the stomach? All serious enough for you?

Now you choose between one of those injuries or being savagely raped, regardless of whether you're a man or a woman.

The horrid and evil cruelty of rape is a ghastly physical injury in and of itself. Its barbaric intent does cause life-long physical and emotional dysfunction and very real pain. Then, of course, there is the real and gruesome possibility of contracting the HIV virus, AIDS. Serious enough physical injury now.

Let us as a community, as parents, spouses, as neighbors, as reporters and law enforcers, bluntly acknowledge that rape is a vicious, heinous act of the darkest and most vile crimes committed against human beings, ever — a very physically injury-laden act of monsters. Rape diseases the moral fiber of our community, our families, our most intimate and private thoughts.

Statistics now show that one out of four women will be raped in their lifetime — a frightening statistic that scars our nation, our community.

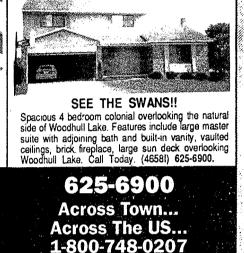

Mothers, daughters, sisters. My 78-year-old greataunt; raped, beaten multiple stab wounds, wrapped up in a piece of carpet and left for dead. She lived for 10 years after the rape.

Laws change, and change is needed in township

BY JANE E. FRICK

In the "Right to property clear and simple" editorial of The Clarkston News, Aug. 11, you explained the simplicity of our legal system and suggested that people not take issue with occurring situations which are legal.

I feel you overlooked an important component of our legal system — the law is ever-changing and needs to be to meet the needs of a changing society.

New experiences or the sharing of a tragic event can make people aware of a void existing in the law. It then becomes the responsibility of those citizens who are aware of the void to inform others and take steps to insure that protection of rights exists for all.

I understand that the sale of Dr. O'Neill's property will include restrictions regarding the size of lots to be developed and the preservation of the natural environment.

However, there probably will be no clause in the agreement that provides for fencing around dangerous retaining basins that developers sometimes create in the process of moving the land. These basins collect silt and sand that can act like quicksand and trap a child or pet or even an adult.

Our family is very aware of this danger and the insufficiency of laws to protect us from it. We lost our dog July 1 when she escaped through an open fence gate and sought a cool place in an area where she has run from time to time.

She didn't know that the land had been disturbed and dangers now lurked in what used to be a rolling meadow. We found her body so firmly stuck in this quicksand-like silt that it took three men working on spread sheets of plywood and a Bobcat tractor to release it.

We were shocked to encounter such a dangerous situation, which had been created through the building of culverts requiring permits from the Department of Natural Resources and Independence Township.

One large culvert directs the new run-off water to this retaining basin, and then another large culvert allows the water to flow into the wetlands after the silt has been filtered out of the water. This meets a requirement (law) of the DNR. But the DNR does not deal with safety or people or pets. The townships have this responsibility.

One law was followed, but our family was still unprotected. No one checked for possible hazards of this changing land. We had the misfortune of being made aware of a real hazard — not to the wetlands but to our children and pets.

Now it is our responsibility to make others aware of what might exist after developers move in with the earthmoving equipment.

No, we are not "basing our objections on legal grounds," and we are not basing our objections on "wishes or whims." There's a place between what is legal and what we wish for. It's a place where a law could be made to protect us from a hazard.

A township ordinance could be passed requiring developers to place a temporary fence around retaining basins they created during construction. Then, as the soil changes composition, it will not be a death trap for children or pets.

I doubt that a law will be passed unless pressure is put on the planning commission to take action. We have been in contact with township officials and two members of the planning commission for six weeks and have not been informed about a resolution to the problem. The developers have discussed the problem.

The people living near Dr. O'Neill's property are concerned because everything will be changed. The best we can do is to become aware of how these changes might affect us and what laws need to be put in place to protect us from the negative effects of the change.

We do not have to be satisfied with our existing laws. We can improve them. In a democracy, the law works for the people, and laws are made by the people. They begin with a problem, followed by a complaint and fact-finding. Then there should be movement toward solutions to the problems, often in the firm of laws.

Right now, in the Deerwood subdivision, we are left with just the problem.

Jane E. Frick resides on Deer Ridge Drive, Independence Township.

14-acre rezoning gets first approval

A rezoning request for a 14-acre parcel on Sashabaw Road received first approval from the Independence Township Board Aug. 3.

The board unanimously OK'd the first reading for a site just north of Maybee Road, to be rezoned from singlefamily residential (R1A) to office service two (OS2). A second reading and adoption are necessary before the rezoning takes effect.

Petitioner Dick Howard plans to develop a small office park, with a possible restaurant on the site. A restaurant is permittable under "office service two" zon-

The office service designation would allow for a building between 80,000 and 100,000 square feet to be built on a parcel of this size. Building department Director Beverly McElmeel recommended the rezoning, saying it would gel with the zonings of surrounding properties. She also said the site had very little potential under singlefamily residential in that busy area.

For example, Terry talks to high school students about shoplifting prevention. Her presentation includes a Loss Prevention Officer from Hudson's and a deputy from the Oakland County Sheriff's Department. They discuss loss prevention measures used by retail businesses, law enforcement responsibility and court involvement.

At the fifth-grade level, Terry offers two presentations. One covers shoplifting only and contains a video, discussions and puzzles pertaining to the subject.

The other presentation is a four-day program covering shoplifting, truancy, vandalism and assault. Terry uses skits (performed by students), puzzles and discussion. On the last day, students are given a questionnaire and an evaluation sheet. The questionnaires are returned to the students. The evaluations are always overwhelmingly positive. The large majority of students say the presentations are worthwhile and would recommend them to other

The automobile was invented, and man walked on the moon; transatlantic wireless transmission began, and the FAX machine became commonplace. She was 40 years old when Franklin D. Roosevelt, running for his second term, whistle-stopped in Detroit.

Last weekend, surrounded by her family, her church and lots of memories, Eleanor Loring Steiner turned 97.

The festivities took place at First Baptist Church in Oxford, where Steiner received a tribute signed by Gov. John Engler in honor of the occasion. Guests sang her favorite hymns and received a booklet detailing her life and times.

Team to hold benefit for Jeremy Leach

Ski club takes third place at invitational

BY JUDY HOGABOAM

The Spray Masters Waterski Club, consisting of numerous Clarkston-area residents, placed third at the Michigan State Invitational and Show Tournament Aug. 8.

During the meet in Climax, each participating ski club performed a one-hour show demonstrating skiing ability, boat driving and overall showmanship. The West Michigan Water Ski Club took first place in this five-team field.

For Spray Masters, Rob Shea of Clarkston started the show with a breathtaking one-ski step-off to barefoot skiing and then completed a dramatic tumble turn. In other words, while barefoot skiing, he spun on his back and returned to a standing position before tumbling backward into the water.

For the first time, the team put three swivel skiers on the water. Laura Wendt of Springfield Township and Mindy and Melissa Kitson of Clarkston joined forces for the first time, competitively.

Another highlight of the show was a slalom ski ballet duet performed by two of Spray Masters' youngest members, Sydney Bassett, 10, and Brenda Shea, 11. Both kids reside in the Clarkston area.

Later, Ben Schneider of West Bloomfield completed a forward jump off the ski ramp, a jump that emerges six feet into the air, while Clarkston's Jeremy Bassett and Brad Shea entertained the audience with a comedy routine in which Brad jumped on Jeremy's back as they toured the lake.

Spray Masters accumulated style points by successfully building a three-pier pyramid, using 11 skiers. Five skiers form the base of the pyramid; four skiers climb onto their shoulders, and two scale to the top to complete the formation.

Besides these stunts, the Spray Masters Skiers perform a variety of acts in their Country Jamboree Show. These acts include: multiple person flag lines, doubles, trios, a six-woman ballet line, a three-man hyrdroslide weave, jump skiing, barefoot skiing, a three-man slalom weave, swivel skiing and several pyramids.

The team practices its acts twice a week on Big Lake, Springfield Township. Spray Masters has been in existence for nearly five years with the ability of their members ranging from "wanna be" skiers to near-professional status.

The team is supported by President Bob Dowling of Fenton.

Other Clarkston-area participants on the team include: Sarah Ashley; Dan and Adrian Bassett; Brian, Laura and Larry Gruber Jr.; Ryan and Allyson Haller; Kathi and Kory Harris; Peter Hogaboam; Mindy and Melissa Kitson; Heather Moore; Kelle Peters; and Nicole Stuk.

On Saturday, Aug. 21, Spray Masters holds a benefit for Clarkston teen Jeremy Leach, who's suffering from leukemia. The show takes place 3-4 p.m. at Lotus Beach on Lotus Lake, Waterford. The public is invited to attend the show, and a donation of $1 per person is requested.

Soccer team searches ranks for scorers

Fall sports preview

BY CURT MCALLISTER Clarkston News Associate Editor

Graduation has been known to make or break a team — just ask Clarkston varsity soccer coach Dan Fitzgerald.

He's going into the 1993 season with a young, inexperienced squad. Worst yet, he won't have Scott Rooney around to put the ball in the net.

"We lost a lot of good players to graduation," Fitzgerald said. "This season, we're going to have to spread the scoring around a little more. Last year, we could always count on Scott (Rooney) or Aaron Phillips for a goal, but now they're gone."

Rooney, an all-stater, scored about 24 goals for the Wolves last season. He continues his soccer career at the University of Dayton this fall. Phillips was also a big contributor last year with about 14 goals.

That senior-laden team had a record of 14-7-1, which was good enough for third place in the Greater Oakland Activities League. However, Clarkston surged in the post-season, advancing as far as the Class A quarterfinals.

This team also picked up its second consecutive district championship along the way.

This season, Fitzgerald has eight returning lettermen to pass along these winning ways to 10 newcomers.

THE CLARKSTON High soccer team will be looking to get a great deal of leadership from its 14 seniors this fall. However, only a couple of these players have experience as starters at the varsity level.

"The number of our returning players is a bit deceiving," said Fitzgerald, "because only two of them have experience as starters."

Fitzgerald is banking on the winning tradition of Clarkston's JV program to prepare the younger players for varsity competition.

Fitzgerald said he'll rely on the senior leadership of Ray Torrance, a midfielder, and Eric Corbett, a defender, this season. Other players expected to contribute include senior defender Matt Little, senior forward Nick Bielak and junior forward J.R. Kirk.

"I'm looking for J.R. to score a lot up front," Fitzgerald said. "He and Bielak have a tendency of always being at the right place at the right time, so we'll be counting on them."

At this time, the coach considers defense to be his team's biggest strength. However, the search for a consistent goalie has him a bit concerned.

"Who our starting goalie will be remains a mystery," he said. "We've got a couple of candidates, but no one has really stepped forward yet."

Looking at the schedule, Fitzgerald is pleased with the fact that the Wolves don't play a GOAL foe until their ninth contest.

"I consider this an advantage because we struggled early in the season, last year, after playing league opponents right away," he said. "This way, we'll have an opportunity to make any necessary changes to our lineup before the league season begins."

Looking ahead to conference play, Fitzgerald sees a wide open race for the GOAL title.

"Brandon is always the team to beat, but they lost a lot of their top players to graduation," he said. "Waterford Kettering looks to be tough, too.

"Our league is strange," Fitzgerald added. "On any given day, anybody can beat anybody. Right now, our weaknesses appear to be scoring and at goal, but this could change at any point in the season."

Independence Township played host to 127 athletes at the Clarkston Area Optimists' Invitational Track Meet July 31.

Youngsters from all over southeastern Michigan traveled to Clarkston High School to compete in this meet, which is the first such event co-sponsored by the Optimists and Independence Township Parks and Recreation Department.

It took nearly 30 volunteers, made up of parents, local coaches, athletic boosters and parks employees, to run the competition.

The day's events featured dashes from 50 meters on up to 800 meters, a 1600-meter run and relays consisting of 400, 800 and 1600 meters.

Pleased with the outcome, the Optimists founder and Chairman Jim Evans has high hopes for future meets.

"We would like to make this an annual event and a highlight of summer fun for

Senkyr takes second at Hershey nationals

A 10-year-old Independence Township boy earned a second-place ribbon at the 19th Annual Hershey's National Track and Field Youth Program Meet last weekend.

Cody Senkyr of Reese Road took second in the 400-meter dash with a time of 65.7 seconds, a personal best. Competing in the boys' 9-10 age division, he was edged out at the tape by Cody Victor of Louisiana.

The top two finishers bested the winning time of 65.8 seconds from the 1992 meet.

Senkyr qualified for the national meet after he won the 400 in 67 seconds at Hershey's state meet July 17. His winning time qualified Senkyr as the fastest boy in the seven-state Great Lakes region and earned him an all-expenses-paid trip to Hershey, Pa., for the national meet.

In all, 384 competitors from all 50 states participated in the meet.

According to coach Jack Leech, the 400 became a two-man race by the second turn as Senkyr and Victor pulled away from the pack. The pair was reportedly neck-and-neck through the final turn, until Victor edged slightly ahead in the final stretch to nip Senkyr at the finish line.

Despite a near miss at top honors, Leech was thrilled with Senkyr's race.

"It was the performance of a lifetime," Leech said. "The conditions were perfect with a fast track and a fast field. Cody came up a little short but only because the other kid ran his race of a lifetime, too."

With the track season now behind him, Senkyr will concentrate on the gridiron as a member of the Clarkston Chiefs little league football team.

Firefighters sponsor blood drive Aug. 27

Hospitals in southeastern Michigan use 1,000 pints of blood a day, and in summer, the blood supply runs dangerously low.

To combat this problem, the Independence Township Fire Department is sponsoring a blood drive 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Friday, Aug. 27, at Station No. 2 at Sashabaw and Clarkston roads.

At this time, critical patient care can be jeopardized, and hospitals are threatening to cancel surgeries because there is not enough blood in the system, according to the American Red Cross.

Two roads on Commission plan

A proposed budget for the Road Commission for Oakland County includes money for two projects in Independence Township.

The budget hearing was planned for 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Aug. 18, at the county commissioners' auditorium in Pontiac.

A copy of the proposed $77.3 million budget is available by calling 313-645-2000.

The $20.8 million Road Improvement Plan portion of the budget includes a half-mile of "safety widening" on White Lake Road, from Andersonville Road to the Grand Truck Railroad track. The project, estimated at $1.015 million, is scheduled for 1994.

Also in that plan is the completion of the "safety intersection" construction on Sashabaw Road at Maybee Road. That $600,000 project is to be finished in 1994.

Money for the projects — and the entire Road Commission budget — comes from Michigan's gas tax, which has not been increased since 1984; federal programs; and local governments.

Council appoints 10 to city posts

The Clarkston City Council approved 10 people to serve various positions Aug. 9.

School board approves two construction bids

The Clarkston Board of Education unanimously approved a pair of construction bids for the new elementary school Aug. 9.

The bids were awarded to The Gilardone Co., for $77,290 worth of site concrete, and Tom's Landscaping, for $108,000 in landscaping. Both bids were the lowest submitted for the required work.

Three bidders competed for the landscaping privileges, while two vied for the right to lay site concrete.

The new elementary school is planned for the corner of Holcomb and Bridge Lake roads, Springfield Township. It will be paid for with money from a $16.1 million bond issue approved by voters last February.

Supervisor position created

Street cleaners and sidewalk repairers soon will have a new boss in the City of Clarkston.

The Clarkston City Council voted unanimously Aug. 9 to create the position of supervisor of the Department of Public Works.

The supervisor would be responsible for completing paper work, setting schedules and overseeing general duties. This person would be paid a lump sum of $500 a year. Resumes will be taken from current DPW employ-

Summer shortage at Lighthouse North

While you're out shopping for back-to-school items, you may want to pick up a few items for the needy in the area

Summer donations are always low at Lighthouse North, and all types of gifts and contributions are welcome.

However, especially needed are: brown grocery bags; a truck for van for the food network; trash bags (large size); one-room air conditioner; canned fruits, vegetables and meats; pasta, cereal and crackers; peanut butter and jelly; diapers; baby formula; baby food; personal grooming items such as toothpaste, toothbrushes,

In addition, volunteers also are needed. People could help by cleaning the Lighthouse building, typing and performing light clerical work, helping in the clothing closet, interviewing clients, and lifting and carrying donations and other items.

Items may be dropped off at Lighthouse North at 5331 Maybee Road, Independence Township. To volunteer, call Judy Chisholm at 673-4949.

Lighthouse North provides emergency food, clothing and assistance to residents of north Oakland County.

CHS alumnus produces dance show

BY CURT MCALLISTER Clarkston News Associate Editor

Over the next couple of weeks, local teens looking to "bust a move" only need to go as far as their TV sets.

Starting this Friday, Clarkston-Independence cable channel 65 will air a half-hour dance show dubbed "Drew's House." This program features 25 local teens bumping and grinding to the latest dance hits.

"'Drew's House" is the brainchild of 1992 Clarkston High grad Andrew Nichols.

The 19-year-old Michigan State University sophomore produced two half-hour segments as part of his internship at the cable station. He's majoring in telecommunications at MSU.

Nichols said he got the idea of a dance show while working at Channel 65, and pitched the idea to director Amy LaValley. She agreed to the in-studio project, giving Nichols free reign over creation and production.

Subsequently, he purchased lighting equipment and props, while renting other amenities such as a disco ball. Other than set design, Nichols considered the gathering of dancers to be the most difficult aspect of the show.

"At first, it was difficult to find any volunteers," he said. "But after hitting up all my friends and some of their friends, I was able to get about 25 dancers together."

Nichols said the show was taped July 27, via three TV cameras in the studio. He served as the show's host by introducing songs and videos, which are seen only by the TV audience.

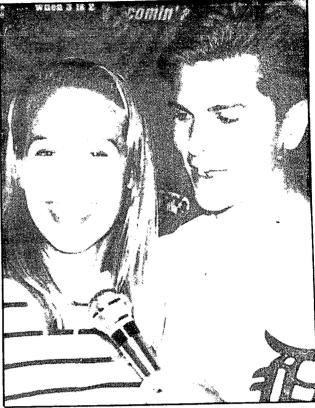

During one of these segments, Nichols and former classmate Jess Killian reviewed a pair of compact discs for the dancers and viewing audience.

The hour-long project eventually was split into a pair of episodes for two week's worth of airing. This Friday's episode begins at 9 p.m. Two other broadcasts are scheduled for 9 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 24, and Friday, Aug. 27.

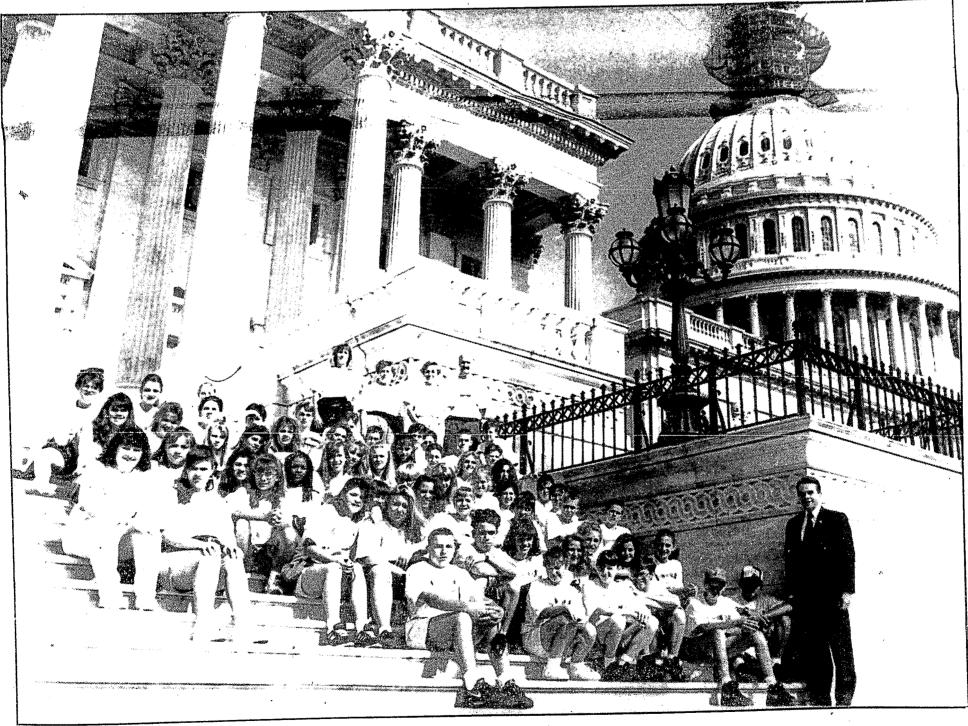

Looking back, Nichols said he was pleased with the endeavor.

"I think it went pretty well, basically," he said. "Considering it was my camera crew and my dancers, the show could have flopped from inexperience, but it didn't.

"Everyone really came together on this project," Nichols added. "It was a great experience and I feel I gained a lot from it."

Mackinac Island's Mission Point

By Don Rush Assistant to the Publisher

Most everyone knows about Michigan's getaway jewel, Mackinac Island. Many, however, may not have heard of Mission Point Resort, on the island's southeast point.

Only about a 10-minute walk from the ever-busy business district, Mission Point allows its guests to enjoy the scenic side of Mackinac. The 235-suite hotel has 17 different types of rooms for rent, ranging from $85 a night to $900.

Mission Point Resort overlooks Lake Huron. About 100 yards from the front of the resort is the lake shore. Wooden beach chairs dot the shore line in front of the Mission Point. Here guests can sip a soda, read a book and watch the freighters go by here. It is relaxing.

That's Mission Point's desired atmosphere: relaxed and laidback. There's no need for formal attire here, even if you plan on a meal at the very nice Point Dining Room.

Mission Point is memorable for two distinctive architectural reasons: 1.) its red roof; 2.) its impressive 16-sided teepee main lobby.

The lobby is made of nine-ton native pine trusses that tower overhead to form the 36-foot high teepee. There are four fire places in the lobby, as well as a library for guest use.

for guest use.

Guests also have access to planned children's activities, tennis courts, exercise facility, game room, onsite bicycle rentals, hot tubs and the outdoor heated swimming pool. There's also a baby sitting service for parents to get away by themselves for a while.

How Mission Point Resort came to be is rather interesting, too. In the early 1820s, Rev. William Ferry built Mission House to house and teach Indian children. He then established Mission Church -- that's why the southeast end of the island is known as Mission Point.

During the 1950s, the Moral Re-Armament came to the Point. The MRA was a multi-national evangelist group promoting love and honesty. Mission Point was to be their world headquarters. From here they would spread their propaganda.

They built their convention center, a sound stage and the main lobby without paid help. Volunteers from around the world did the work. In the lobby there are pictures showing construction.

The lobby was built to fulfill the Indian prophecy that, "Someday on the east end of the Island a great teepee will be erected. All nations will come there and learn about peace."

Behind the registration desk visitors will notice seven colored portraits of Indians -- these were the leaders of the tribes that were to come together under the prophecy.

The sound stage is where most of the 1979 movie, "Somewhere in Time," was filmed. The cast (including Christopher Reeve and Jane Seymour) and crew stayed at the resort, which at the time was called "The Inn on Mackinae."

By 1966 the MRA went back to Europe, and deeded much of the property to Mackinac College. In 1970, the college was sold to evangelist Rex Humbard who maintained the facility as a religious retreat and education facility.

In 1977 the property was sold and became the Mackinac Hotel and Conference Center. It was sold again in 1987 and renamed Mission Point Resort.

On a side note, the resort as well as a number of other businesses on Mackinac, will stay open during the winter. Mission Point will offer winter getaways.

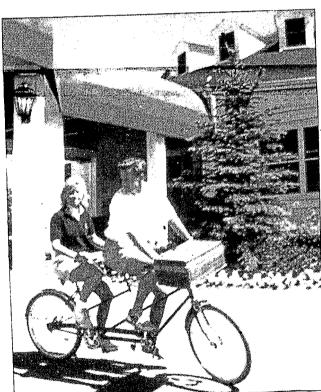

Transportation will be by bikes, foot and horse-and buggy until the snow becomes too deep. When that happens they'll break out the snow shoes, cross-country skis and snowmobiles.

From Oct. 23 through Dec. 11, the resort will have rooms available on Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays in Mission Court. From Dec. 17 through the New Year's holiday, they'll be open seven nights a week.

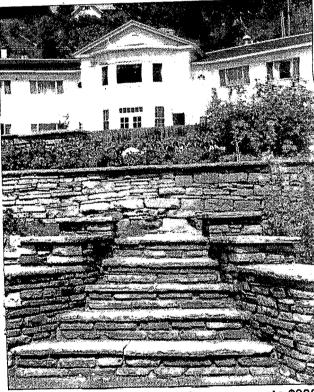

The toll-free number to Mission Point is 1-800-833-7711.

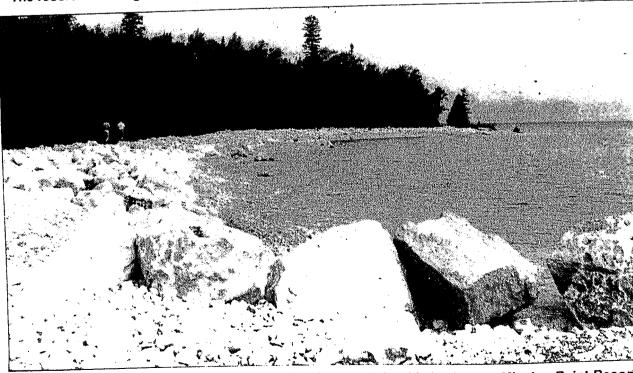

Guests can sit along on the shore, read a book or watch the boats sail by.

The resort has a large selection of bikes to rent.

The most expensive room costs $900.

The southeast end of Mackinac Island is peaceful -- this is close to Mission Point Resort.

Learn to can safely

Just because it's the way mom always did it may not mean your canning method is safe.

"Canning is not a guessing game," warns Sylvia Treitman, home economist for the Oakland County Cooperative Extension Service. "There is a science to safe canning, and following the latest USDA recommendations is essential.

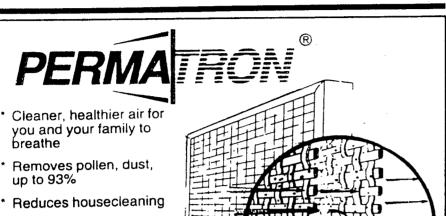

"It's hard to convince old-time canners that home canned foods must be processed," Treitman explains. This is the safe way to can foods, and up-to-date directions are vital.

Safe canning tips

■ Use a new Ball Blue Book (32nd edition) recommended by the USDA (available at local canning supply stores or the Cooperative Extension Service).

- Do not use old hand-me-down recipes. ■ Process all canned foods either in a boiling water bath or pressure canner according to USDA recommenda-
- Use proper equipment recommended by the USDA.
- Take a canning class to learn the safe canning methods.

For free up-to-date canning and food preservation materials and class information, contact the Oakland County Cooperative Extension Service. For other foodrelated questions, call the Food and Nutrition Hotline at 858-0904 weekdays.

IRA AS MORTGAGE SOURCE

THERE ARE BILLIONS in IRA funds that could be used as a source of mortgage money.

27 S. Main, Clarkston 625-9300

Ron Rodda Sales Manager Career in Real Estate? "ASK RON"

QUESTION: Is there a source of big money that could be injected into the mortgage money market?

ANSWER: There is such a source sitting in individual retirement accounts (known as IRAs) which are collecting tax-free income until retirement. I couldn't think of a better use for it. Total assets held in IRA accounts are conservatively estimated at well over $50 billion.

IRAs are a virtually untapped source of real estate investment money which could enter the real estate market in a big way and become a primary source of long-term mortgage funds. Why not let your shelter help acquire your

emystifying college admissions

Applying for college can be one of a high school senior's most daunting tasks. But students can make things easier on themselves if they know how to approach the admissions process, says Ted O'Neill, Dean of College Admissions at the University of Chicago.

The first thing students should know is that the applicant pool of students seeking admission to college has been shrinking over the past three years," O'Neill says. This is good news for high school seniors because it means that colleges must work to attract students to their freshman Classes.

"Highly selective colleges will still be selective," O'Neill says, "but applicants can approach the admissions process with a new sense of confidence and control."

Nonetheless, O'Neill warns against automatically applying to the big-name schools just because you may have a better chance of getting accepted. "The U of C is generally conceded to be one of the finest colleges in the country, but that doesn't mean it's the best school for everyone who could gain admission," he says. "Students too often look at images rather than what a place really is."

O'Neill advises applicants to evaluate their needs and priorities and choose a school that best meets them. "You might be better off at a college that's not on the list of 'Ten Best' because the power and prestige of a place doesn't necessarily relate to the power of your education,' he says. "Those rankings are inherently misleading because the quality of an education is far too complex and diverse to quantify and put in a Top 10 list.

One way to learn about schools and what they have to offer is to take advantage of the wealth of resources that profile colleges. Libraries and bookstores carry a variety of publications that provide information about schools, and now more than ever colleges are releasing videotapes about themselves that are available in schools and at local

Once you have targeted schools that seem appealing, call or write them to request a brochure or viewbook and a catalog. Once students select the kind of school and environment they feel best suits them, they should identify several schools that meet their criteria for a suitable

"People think there's only one college that will meet right for you is to find out for their needs, but that's a myth," O'Neill explains. "There are 3,000 coileges in this country, so it's very likely that more than one place will satisfy each applicant.

"It is worth the work to find a group of schools, perhaps five or six, of varying degrees of selectivity that suit your notion of who you are and who you want to be as a student," O'Neill says. "By applying to several schools that are similar in academic style and student life, students improve their chances of attending a college where they will grow socially and academically. Then, if students don't get into their first-choice colleges, they have good alternatives from which to choose."

One thing that shouldn't necessarily factor into a student's decision to apply to a college is the cost. "The price of an education isn't usually the actual cost to a family," O'Neill says. "You don't need a family fortune to go to an expensive school. Many private colleges have generous aid policies to help families wiith financial need. At the University of Chicago, for example, where we have a need-blind admissions policy, two-thirds of the students receive some sort of assistance with paying tuition and expenses. Don't rule out a college until you learn about its financial aid policies."

Applicants should know that acceptance to college is based on several factors, O'Neill explains, including high school record, writing samples, extracurricular activities, recommendations and College Board scores.

" A common misconception is that SAT and ACT scores make or break an application, but we are more interested in who you are as a person, not how you did during a four-hour period on a Saturday morning, O'Neill says. "Students believe too much in the power of scores, which are rarely the determining factor. Instead, they should concentrate on the courses they're taking, how they're performing and on polishing up the writing sample.

In general, O'Neill says, students should try to have fun with the admissions process. "Try to visit the colleges to which you have applied," he suggests. "Meet with a member of the admissions staff, go to some classes, wander around campus to get a feel for the environment. At the University of Chicago, we encourage prospective students to spend a long weekend tagging along with one of our current students. The best way to know if a place is

New ACLU president hails from Clarkston

A Clarkston-area resident now heads up the American Civil Liberties Union of Michigan.

Micki McWilliams Levin was elected to her post by the organization's board of directors on July 17. She is a psychologist, a lawyer and librarian.

Raised in Rogers City, she resides in Clarkston with her husband, Bloomfield Hills attorney John Grenke, and has a private practice as a clinical psychologist in Bloomfield Hills.

Levin is a graduate of Rogers City High School and of Michigan State University, where she graduated in 1968 with honors in history and education. She has a master's degree in library science from Wayne State University, Detroit, and is a graduate of Wayne State University's Law School. She received her master's degree and Ph.D. in clinical psychology from the Fielding Institute in Santa Barbara, Calif.

In a statement following her election, Levin said, "The gravest threat to civil liberties in Michigan is now occurring in the legislature. The ACLU must maintain and expand our legislative program to oppose pending bills which threaten due process, freedom of choice, privacy rights and First Amendment guarantees of free speech, free exercise of religion and separation of church and state. But we need to maintain the excellence of our legal program and our presence in the judicial system as a major public interest group defending the Bill of Rights."

Levin was a co-founder of the ACLU's Oakland County Branch and served as its president for three years. She also served as Michigan's representative to the National ACLU Board of Directors for seven years.

She is a member of the Michigan Bar Association, the American Psychological Association, Michigan Psychological Association, and the Association of Michigan Women Psychologists.

She has been active in or maintains membership in the National Organization for Women, the Michigan Organization for Human Rights, Earthwatch, the Southern Poverty Law Center, Klan Watch, the National Women's Political Caucus, Michigan Women's Political Caucus and the Mental Health Law Project.

Ask the Therapist Mom lives

alone ...

Garwood

Dear Mr. Garwood:

My mother is 42 and lives alone. Mom and Dad divorced when I was 12. My mother has never remarried. Lately I've noticed that her house is not as clean as usual - dishes, dust, etc. Her social life is not what it used to be. Even our relationship seems to be more distant. I'm beginning to be concerned about her. Worried in Ortonville

Dear Worried in Ortonville:

From your comments regarding your mother's home and social life, I am assuming you feel she's depressed. Certainly, the indicators you have listed correspond to those experiencing a melancholic mood state. The fact that she is in her 40s and has not remarried could also support this. That is, she may be taking the time to reevaluate her life, dwelling on those unattained goals. She is possibly feeling alone and fears the absence of a mate in her later years.

Has your mother complained of any adverse physical symptoms? Is she worried about a chronic or catastrophic illness? Has she experienced recently the loss of a loved one or the loss of some motility or the loss of a job?

Without more information, I'm afraid I cannot provide more insight. Spend time with your mother; speak with her and help her to share her feelings with the expectation she will share with you and provide that insight necessary to you helping her.

Preserve memories for 'Show n' Tell'

Building sand castles on the beach ... Doing the backstroke in a swim team meet ....

Summer passes way too fast for most children, and all of a sudden, it's time to hit the books again.

Many children revel in sharing summer stories with the friends back at school. "Show and Tell" at the start of the school year is the perfect time for kids to display favorite summer memories. Kids can make "Show and Tell" come to life by designing a special posterboard to display summer memories complete with seashells and images of ocean waves, sailboats and rollerblading.

All you need is some glue, a piece of posterboard, felt tip markers, small summer memorabilia such as seashells, magazine cut-outs of summer scenes and, of course, personal photographs.

Follow these simple instructions with your children to create a "Show and Tell" item for both teachers and classmates to enjoy:

■ Collect an array of favorite summer photographs, pools, beaches, summer picnics), seashells or dried flow-

■ Glue the photographs and magazine cut-outs firmly to the posterboard. Delicate items, such as seashells and flowers, require extra care, so be sure to press down on them carefully to make sure they are secure. Ribbons and lace can be glued onto the posterboard as additional decoration.

Once decorations are complete, allow them to dry for about an hour.

■ Using a felt tip marker, write a title for your "Show and Tell" creation at the top of the posterboard.

Siblings, separated in childhood, reunite

BY JULIE CAMPE Clarkston News Editor

It's fitting that Dolly Schenk's family reunion in July took place in Independence Township.

For it was in Independence Township's library that Dolly found her family.

In 1989, she took her son, Frank, to the library so he could work on a book report for a high school class.

Dolly - who was adopted by Joseph and Lucille Renn from a Kansas City orphanage at age 4 1/2 with her brother, Bill, who was 3 — noticed a Kansas City, Kansas, phone book on a library shelf.

She had searched for years for her birth family's unusual name, "Dewdney," with no success and had given up hope of ever finding her birth parents.

But on that day four years ago, she flipped through the Kansas City phone book out of habit — and was shocked to find a listing for "Frank M. Dewdney."

"It's like I'm complete. There's not something unknown."

Dolly Schenk

It turned out to be a long-lost brother -- one of eight brothers and sisters, she later learned. One thing led to another, and she found that her mother, Sarah, had nine children and twice lived in a sanatorium for treatment of tuberculosis. Sarah died of the disease on Christmas Eve

All of the young children had been sent to a Kansas

City orphanage during Sarah's illness, and their father, Frank, never picked them up after her death. He died in The older children ran away from orphanages and were never adopted. Dolly and Bill were adopted after two years in the orphanage and were raised in a stable, happy family of six in Detroit.

Dolly first met her older siblings in a July 1989 reunion in California, where they exchanged stories and tears and laughter.

The met again in 1991 in Texas.

And the latest reunion took place at Dolly's Walters Lake home off Eston Road, Independence Township. In preparation, Dolly painted T-shirts for each member of the clan, with a symbol or nickname for each.

The Dewdney "children" include: George, born in 1928; Arthur, 1929 (deceased); Mary Alice Fisher, 1931, Frank Maurie Jr., 1932; Paul, 1933; John (Jack), 1935; Juanita (Nita) Gargaro, 1937; Dolores (Dolly), 1939; and William (Bill) Renn, 1940.

Also visiting were the Dewdney children's Aunt Alberta and Uncle Paul of California, spouses and nephews, and 12 others, friends of the family.

Paul couldn't make it to the reunion, but the others — from California, Texas and Kansas — enjoyed swimming, cooking on the grill, touring an auto plant, and talking and laughing - lots of laughing.

Dolly said she was surprised and pleased to find that her siblings shared her dry sense of humor.

"We do have a weird sense of humor," she said. And she's also pleased at the bond that's formed between them — filled with pleasure, without competition or resentments, as siblings who were raised together might have.

'We can be friends a little faster this way," Dolly

Since meeting her family, Dolly has found out a few more specifics about her early life. For instance, on the way back from the Texas reunion in 1991, Dolly and her sisters stopped at their former home in a Kansas City orphanage, now a Croatian museum.

Despite the renovations to the building, one scene brought Dolly's mind back to early childhood.

'The only memory I can call my own is looking through this window, looking at kids playing," she said, explaining that the window allowed a person to look almost at the floor level of the kids' play area, even though the area was inside the building.

"I found this one window that had the description in my mind. ... I didn't really remember anything else about it. Of course, it's changed a lot."

She also obtained the phone number of a Croatian nun who formerly worked at the orphanage. She called the Illinois number.

When Dolly told Sister Esther her name, "Dolly Dewdney," the nun responded right away.

"She remembered me and Billy," said Doll all loved Billy. He was spoiled rotten.' Dolly and her sisters also looked at orphanage records at St. John's Parish next door and found a hospital certificate for Billy's birth and other ledger entries - of Billy's baptism and even his wedding, for instance. But she could find nothing about herself.

"I keep looking and looking and can never find anything about myself, anything that (shows) I existed," she said. "I keep looking for myself."

But she has found herself in other ways.

She tried to think back to her life "before finding her family" to compare with her life now and concluded that her life has changed a lot.

"I have a whole family I never had before," she said. "It's impacted my husband, too, because he's got a lot of in-laws now. He's done pretty well. He's helped me a lot."

Her sense of being has changed, she said, trying to

"It's just knowing ... It's like I'm complete. There's not something unknown," she said. "I knew they were out there - I didn't know how many there were," she said with a laugh.

DOLLY SCHENK, who was adopted at age 4 1/2, talks about her third reunion with her recently discovered siblings. The "Dewdney" cian gathered at her Walters Lake, Independence Township, home over the Fourth of July holiday.
