Teen heads to Seattle

Jeremy Leach donates bone marrow to himself

Jeremy Leach went to Scattle Monday for treatment of his leukemia.

In the past six months, the 16-year-old Clarkston High School student went through a search for a suitable bone marrow transplant donor but to no avail.

In Seattle, the youngster is to undergo an "autoiogous transplant," said his father, Joel Leach of Springfield Township.

That means doctors will remove Jeremy's bone marrow, treat it and freeze it. In the meantime, Jeremy will undergo three forms of radiation to rid his body of cancer. Then, doctors will place his bone marrow back inside his cancer-free body.

"The whole ordeal could be three months," said his father. "This is his best chance."

Since Jeremy had to stay as healthy as possible before this procedure, he had to miss a lot of school to limit his risk of becoming ill, said his father.

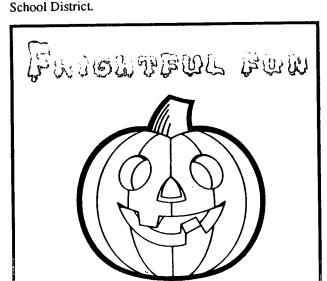

But Katie Freeman and other Clarkston friends gave him a party Saturday before departure.

Joel Leach said he appreciates the help from the community in raising money for Jeremy's medical bills and for being tested for bone marrow types.

He said he's not sure how much of the procedure in Seattle will be covered by insurance. Since the family's medical coverage comes from an HMO (Health Maintenance Organization), it covers medical care received only from "participating providers."

While Joel will accompany Jeremy for the first few weeks, he and his wife, Judy, will take turns being with

Lost cat scam targets advertisements

' An Independence Township man and his family thought they would get their lost cat back when a man called about it - instead they were almost caught in a scam.

The man, who asked that his name not be used, said his cat jumped into the car of a friend one night in July. On the way home, the friend felt something on her legs, stopped the car and saw the cat run out. It wouldn't come back when it was called.

The family put lost cat ads in an area paper and were called by a Pontiac man who said his name was Bill Stevens and claimed to have seen their cat. Stevens said he was calling from a friend's phone and didn't want to leave the number. He told the cat owner that he would meet him and take him to the cat's whereabouts. Stevens mentioned that the cat was at a crack house in Pontiac.

The township resident contacted police, who said not to go to Pontiac.

On another day, Stevens called the man on about a lost dog. At this point, the cat owner became suspicious.

Beating exam delayed

Four men charged with beating a fifth man at a Pine Knob concert have one more month to wait for their day in court.

Brian Podgorksi, 20, Bruce Helm, 19, and Keith Anderson, 20, all of Independence Township; and Ian Morris, 23, of Dryden were charged with assault with intent to do great bodily harm less than murder - a felony punishable with up to 10 years in prison.

The victim, a 31-year-old California man, suffered an open head injury in the Aug. 19 beating during a Foreigner concert at the outdoor music theater.

The preliminary exam began Aug. 30 in 52nd District Court, Independence Township, before Judge Gerald McNally. The proceedings resume at 1 p.m. Monday, He called the other lost pet ads that appeared in the paper with his own advertisement and found that four out of the six had heard from this man, who had also called himself Bill Sullivan

One elderly couple who had lost their dog did meet the man in Pontiac, at the gas station on Woodward and South Boulevard. Stevens took them to an apartment building and asked for $20 to get the dog. He left with the money, and the couple never saw him again.

Another man called Pontiac police about the scam, and an undercover police officer tried to meet Stevens at the station. But Stevens didn't show up.

The Independence Township man said he wants people in the area to know Stevens' ploy, so someone doesn't get hurt.

"As scams go, it's a pretty good scam," he said. The man who calls himself Bill Stevens or Bill Sullivan was articulate and had a different name and job for each

As for the lost cat, it returned home on its own after

Race car driver talks about highs of being sober

BY DEBORAH DZIEWIT Clarkston News Special Writer

Dreams can become a reality if one has patience and stays sober.

More than 70 students from Clarkston, Holly, Bran-

David Rosenblum, a race car driver for Saturn, travels across the country not only to

He doesn't want to see anyone to lose time doing

"I wasted the best years of my life doing drugs," Rosenblum said to the students at the Oakland Technical Center-Northwest Campus. "Before, I was only fantasizing about life; now, I'm living my dreams. And it's all because I got straight."

District buys portable

The Clarkston Board of Education unanimously approved the purchase of a new portable classroom for the Clarkston Community Education Center Oct. 11.

The unit will be bought from the R.J. Taylor Corp.

for $27,782. The district's education center recently received a $45,000 state grant for its Out-Reacher pre-school program for 3-year-olds. This new program requires a separate facility, which will be taken care of with the purchase of the single-unit portable.

He Never Turns Away

They come to him for help when they need it the most. Some numbed by their loss, some shattered, they say:

"This is someone we loved. We entrust him to you." And even when he's faced with the crumpled innocence of the youngest asking, "Why?"-and he has to find childlike words to answer a question that even theologians struggle with-he never turns away.

He gives them the consolation of tradition. He shows them how to accept their tragedy with dignity.

He helps them cope with their grief.

He guides them back to the active world of the living. He is a funeral director. He practices the most emotionally demanding and least understood of all the professions.

He faces up to traumas every day that most people only have to deal with once or twice in a lifetime.

He would never turn away.

He has earned the deepest thanks from anyone who has ever leaned on his compassion for support. Who turned to him and found that he would never turn away.

Our own heroes

Julie Campe

One of the best aspects of working as a journalist in a community such as Clarkston is that you meet good, sometimes heroic, people. You see them at their best.

This community is filled with such heroes—not superheroes who fight crime with sheer strength or stop speeding bullets — but people who fight great odds with courage and sometimes make this a better place because of it. Remember in summer 1988 when that fuel tanker spilled on I-75, between Sashabaw Road and M-15? The highway was closed for hours, while rescue workers evacuated the area (in case of an explosion) and cleaned up the spill and uprighted the While those efforts were heroic enough, one person continued her efforts after the spill.

Bonnie McVeigh, a receptionist in a doctor's office, lived near the spill on Flemings Lake Road. Her water well was within 100 feet of the site, and several neighbors' wells were nearby. Officials told her that state agencies would monitor the water and look for contamination and not to worry.

And at first, she didn't. But she saw that no one was monitoring the water. So, hesitantly, she made a few phone calls — the the state Department of Natural Resources, to a special toxic cleanup company, to the fuel company, to the Department of Public Health.

She found that there had been a "communication mixup" and that no monitoring wells had been installed. In short, no one knew which direction the spilled jet fuel was traveling, and no one knew for sure if her water were clean or contaminated. The jet fuel company told her to stop drinking her water immediately. So Bonnie summoned up her courage (she told us at The Clarkston News, "I've never done anything like this before") and made more phone calls and wrote letters and piled up a hefty telephone bill. It took a whole month, but finally monitoring wells were installed, and she and area residents received bottled water, courtesy of the transportation company that owned the truck that had tipped over on the soft shoulder of I-75 during construction.

As a young reporter, I was impressed with Bonnie's initiative and that fact that she followed her instincts that something was wrong, that it wasn't safe to blindly believe that the state agencies would take care of everything.

She is one whose name I know, whose actions I saw up close. But there are many others ...

Truck protest lacks direction

On Oct. 11, a couple of Clarkston school board members protested the purchase of a new pickup truck by Superintendent Gary Haner.

While a "company vehicle" falls under the parameters of Haner's contract, trustees Kurt Karlstrom and Janet Thomas were upset that the vehicle had been purchased without board consent.

They cited district policy requiring competitive bids for all purchases exceeding $12,500. The policy also requires board approval for expenditures above

In addition to not knowing about the purchase, the two trustees were also dismayed that the Chevrolet's total cost was $21,830, whereas $18,000 is budgeted for the superintendent's vehicle.

Haner explained that, historically, the superintendent's vehicle has been purchased from the John Bowman Chevrolet dealership. He also pointed out the service that Bowman has provided the district, in the way of driver's training vehicles.

Haner also said that the extra $3,830 cost for the truck was covered by the district's vehicle maintenance account. He considered this a fair trade-off, considering the maintenance department will receive this vehicle in two years.

The issue eventually concluded with Karlstrom and Thomas voting against $2.8 million worth of September bills, which included the cost of the truck. The payment of these bills eventually passed 5-2.

It's the right of the trustees to question such a purchase, but we feel they didn't go far enough.

If this sort of purchase conflicts with the district's policy of seeking bids for items over $12,500, it should be examined further.

A new vehicle is only two years away, so the board should decide if it's going to exempt or "grandfather" this particular purchase from the aforementioned policy.

On the other hand, if that's not the case, the board should explicitly state that the superintendent is to seek board approval in two years. A vote of the entire board can accomplish this, one way or another.

By not acting, the board undermines its own authority and sends a mixed message to the public, as well as to the superintendent.

Kerry Kammer, a former Michigan state senator, is presently contemplating a run at Dale Kildee's state senate seat in November, 1994.

Kammer, an Independence Township resident, said he would run as a Republican if he decides to file for the 9th District race. As of now, the 45-year-old Kammer is weighing his options.

Republican Megan O'Neill of Clarkston, who lost out to the Democratic Kildee in 1992, has also vowed to

Jim's Jottings

Option gadgets now vital

Jim Sherman

I'm a long time reader of John Haire's personal column in the Cass City Chronicle. His recent comments on his reactions to options car makers offered through the years reminded me of my own reactions. Here's the way he put it.

One of the Detroit papers ran a feature on hightech gadgets that will appear in new car models now or in the near future.

One of those expected to be available on all GM cars next year, as a dealer installed option, is radio data system (RDS). The rest of the auto manufacturers are prepared to have it in the near future. Its feature is the ability to seek traffic, weather or emergency situations in a community while listening to a cassette. RDS will override the cassette and then switch back when the announcement is finished. Other functions include displaying on a small screen, station call letters, song titles, recording artists, ads, and traffic and weather reports. The unit also makes tuning easier. To add RDS to your system will cost an additional $50 or so.

There are other goodies available now or coming soon that include tires that will go 200 miles after a blowout; radar and laser-guided collision-avoidance systems, and electronic air filter systems that remove pollens, mold and dust while a filter absorbs cigarette smoke and odors.

My reaction to this is the same as it was when many other innovations first appeared in years past.

Chances are you aren't old enough to remember when the first automatic shift came in. Crude affairs they were, too. We owned a 1936 Terreplane (commonly known as a terrible pain and if you owned one, you knew why) that had one on it. Well, not really an automatic. The shift was on the steering column, much like automatics are today. Only you shifted each gear with your fingers instead of a stick on the floor. Tucked away under the seat was a regular stick shift that could be attached in case the new-fangled steering column shift failed to work, a regular occurrence.

Maybe that's why when the first genuine automatic shift appeared, most of my friends and I agreed that we could do a lot of shifting for the number of dollars that an automatic cost at the time.

That same reaction came when power steering first appeared (Why would anyone want that?) and power brakes (Who needs it?) Or air conditioning (I can roll down a lot of windows for the bucks that costs). In the same category, place power windows, power seats, power door locks and special light packages. Buying a car radio was just gilding the lily.

All of these goodies are on the car I drive now and most of them standard, not extra-cost options.

Ask me and I'll tell you that no way will I spend extra bucks for these latest gadgets for cars. But given my track record, I probably will.

And, I suspect, so will you.

Juror 11-211

I have been on call the past two weeks to report for jury duty in Detroit. I was called down twice, questioned by lawyers twice and rejected twice.

The first day I went down, they had us sign in and wait and wait and wait. Finally it was 8:30 a.m., and we watched the "juror film."

The film reminded me of the old movies we saw in health class or driver's education. It was made in the '70s, probably before I was potty-trained, and the main character was an elderly lady with a squeaky voice who knitted while she spouted wisdom about jury duty.

After the film, we waited — and watched daytime talk shows. One show featured couples who had been married for less than a year and want a divorce. About 80 people stared at TV screen like zombies. I'm sure three-fourths of the people don't regularly watch those shows, but we were all mesmerized by them — or maybe we were sleeping with our eyes

A little after 9:30 a.m., they began calling jurors into various courtrooms to be questioned for cases.

I don't remember the name of the judge in the room I was in, but he reminded me of the Wizard in the "Wizard of Oz." I kept hoping that if I were to be on a case it would be in his courtroom.

The room was huge; the windows were mammoth, and the benches were so big my feet barely touched the floor.

There I became Juror 3. After the lawyer thoroughly questioned me about my job, I was excused. I went back to the jury room and waited for a new group number so I could leave.

The second morning (a week later) started just as early, but we didn't have to watch the film. The topic on this day's talk show was a man who kidnapped his daughter because he thought his wife was abusing

I sat next to a woman who knew just about everyone in the room, where they were from and what they did for a living. I was amazed because at that time of the morning, I could barely remember who I was.

Forty-five of us were taken into a courtroom that was smaller than the first one I'd seen, and this judge's voice reminded me of Jimmy Stewart.

I wasn't called right away to be seated, so I had to listen to 32 people answer the same questions: What is your full name? Where are you from? Are you married? What does your spouse do? Do you have any children? What do your adult children do for a living? What is your job? Are you a member of any political or faternal organization? What newspapers and magazines do you regularly read?

We were asked if any family members had every been arrested. And those of us who did had to share these crimes with the group. We were asked if anyone we knew had been the victim of crime, and those people were asked to share the crimes.

I was not questioned in depth about any of my answers but was still excused to go home.

I sighed with relief when the clerk tore up my juror cards and told me I didn't have to come back again — until I was sent a notice in the mail to start the whole process over again.

Wisdom can't keep you from feeling silly

Wed., Oct. 20, 1993 7

Jim Fitzgerald

The youngest grandkids refused to believe I'd never been inside a Taco Bell nor even eaten a taco. They didn't understand how I could possibly deny myself such pleasure. I gave them some words to live by.

I told them about the old man I knew during the Great Depression. He'd never tasted an orange, and when I offered him a bite of my orange, he said no thanks because:

"I love bananas and I feel bad because I can't afford all the bananas I want. I might love oranges, and I don't want to feel bad about them, too."

Those aren't the only words I live by. When I decided, around age 22, that I wanted a career in journalism, several older, wiser people pointed out that I'd never get rich. And I said that was OK because:

"I can already afford more hangovers than I can survive.

It isn't only food, booze and money that have figured in my lifetime of noble denial. I've never bought a state lottery ticket, and the reason is wonder.

Recently there has been much publicity about Michigan dropping the unpopular Bonus Lotto game in favor of a new game called Michigan Lotto. Many people didn't like Bonus Lotto because they could play it only once a week and it cost $2 a ticket. They much prefer to play twice a week for $1 a ticket.

I wonder why it's preferable to pay $2 for two tickets rather than $2 for one ticket. Better odds, right?

No, the chance of winning will be less in the new game, one in 13.98 million. In Bonus Lotto, you could buy only a measly 10.7 million chances and still win once.

I read that the state spent $3 million trying to persuade citizens to gamble on Bonus Lotto, to little avail. The problem, according to the newspaper, was that bettors "could match four or five numbers in the drawing and still win nothing because they hadn't picked the number that popped up on a seventh bonus ball."

Naturally. More words to live by: Seven balls are too

I wonder how a government can possibly promote such a lottery to suck money out of suckers, and at the same time oppose casino gambling, without first issuing each citizen a state throw-up pot with a big 'H' for Hypocrisy printed on

Anyway, the grandkids kidnapped me and plopped me down inside the Lapeer Taco Bell. It turned out to be terribly embarrassing. A couple from Pontiac recognized my celebrated face and approached our table with kind words. I reacted nonchalantly, using my elbow to spill my large Coke all over everybody. Honest.

Emily, 12, said, "Grandpa, children are supposed to knock over their drinks."

Tricia, 7, said: "That couldn't have happened if you didn't take the top off your container. You should always leave the top on and drink through a straw. That's why there's that little hole on top."

More words to live by.

Still soggy, we moved on to a nearby Kmart where Adam quickly disappeared. Please believe me when I say these are the most important words to live by:

Never, ever lose a speedy, nearly-3-year-old boy in a Kmart because he will be too short to be seen above the countertops and he will have just left whichever aisle you

If you want to feel really silly, wander around a large, crowded Kmart hollering, "ADAM ADAM WHERE ARE YOU ADAM." People stare at you. They whisper to each other about you.

It doesn't do any good to ask store personnel if a little boy has reported himself lost because little boys don't know they're lost until they grow big. It doesn't do any good to ask other adults if they've seen a little boy because Kmarts are full of little boys and you shouldn't ask such dumb ques-

After 10 panicky minutes that seemed like 10 weeks, Adam was finally found in the video department, watching cartoons. When I staggered home and described my harrowing experience, my wife said it was all my fault and I should know enough to keep a better eye on Adam.

Words to die by.

Fiscal responsibility in action? Not likely

BY LEE ROGERS

Clarkston schools Superintendent Gary Haner purchased a "loaded" four-wheel-drive, extended cab, pickup truck in September.

As provided for in his recently extended contract, the school district supplies this vehicle (including fuel, maintenance, insurance, mobile telephone) to him for business and personal use. Adding to the purchase price, a camper top was also purchased for the truck.

Bill McGregor, newly elected school board treasurer, made his treasurer's report Oct. 11 with no mention of the about $22,000 expenditure (an increase of over 22 percent above the price of Mr. Haner's previous "com-

As one who recently ran for the school board position claiming to be financially wise and promising to bring fiscally responsible behavior to the district, Mr. McGregor's omission has substantially damaged his credibility as an officer of the public trust.

District policy requires competitive bids and board approval of all purchases over $12,500. Mr. McGregor knows of these policies. Why would he, as treasurer, choose not to question the purchase of a $22,000 vehicle?

Two board members (Janet Thomas and Kurt Karlstrom) were unaware of the purchase price until after the fact. It appears that Karlstrom and Thomas may have been deliberately kept "out of the loop" since most other board members were aware of the purchase.

The budget previously approved for the purchase of the superintendent's new vehicle allowed for $18,000. Board members likely would have argued for a reduction of that amount — if the matter had been brought before the board as policy requires. The $4,000 that was spent over budget was taken from a maintenance budget another practice that I believe was inappropriately done without board approval.

Concern about the provision of such a personal vehicle with district money was discussed openly at the Sept. 13 board meeting. Mr. Haner was likely aware at that time of his new purchase and the opinions of some board members and citizens. Yet he said nothing during or after the meeting to notify the board of the over-budget price of his new vehicle. He chose only to say to a Clarkston News reporter that his current vehicle cost only $18,007.

That figure was provided in response to my suggestion that vans such as previous one cost between $18,000 and $30,000.

Aside from my objections voiced by Karlstrom and Thomas, none of the other five board members said a word about this matter as it was discussed publicly.

It appears that a majority of our school board members have a far different understanding of the term "fiscal responsibility" than those of us who pay the bills through taxes. Mr. Haner showed poor judgment by making this purchase without board approval.

Superintendent Haner showed obvious contempt and disrespect on several occasions as he chided board members Karlstrom and Thomas for challenging the expenditure. I believe that the manner in which he attempted to explain the matter away indicates his failure to grasp the current financial concerns of the community and his unwillingness to be held accountable for his

The district's top administrator attempted to dismiss his failure to follow district policy by saying, in effect, that it had been done before by others. Even if true, that argument is irrelevant. The policy exists for a purpose. Mr. Haner knows that purpose is to prevent the waste and misuse of taxpayer dollars.

The attempts to excuse himself from such performance by reference to others who have committed the same practice was less than honorable. In light of ongoing budget cutting, often at the expense of our students, such arguments are disingenuous.

Mr. Haner further argued that the new vehicle would be used as a maintenance vehicle after two years. Our maintenance department will be most comfortably equipped by 1995. A similar practical maintenance vehicle would cost about $14,000.

It is certainly time to ask some questions of our board. Who is in charge? When is the board going to begin to lead through example? How does an expense such as Mr. Haner's truck benefit the students of our district? What action is going to be taken to assure Mr. Haner's future compliance with district policy? Is a resignation in Failure by the board to pursue this matter will confirm a subordinate position of the board to the superintendent. It will rightly confirm the board's loss of credibility and encourage further misapplication of school funds. Our Board of Education owes this community an honest explanation.

Central fire department dispatch on hold

Independence Township Fire Chief Gar Wilson asked the township board to approve a central dispatch Sept. 21.

Instead, he received permission to move phone lines

Supervisor Dale Stuart told Wilson that the board wouldn't act on the dispatch problem until the 1993 budget for the fire department is set.

In the meantime, the board unanimously voted to move two phone lines to the station behind township hall, so Wilson's secretary can dispatch during office hours.

A central dispatch would free up manpower for the department in the event of multiple alarms, said Wilson. Right now, a firefighter has to be at the station all of the time to answer phones.

Wilson asked the board to approve a trial period with Paramed of Pontiac. Utilizing Paramed after a trial period would cost the department about $15 per call plus a $5,000 start-up fee, which covers computer work. If the township used Paramed, the township would be named in the company's insurance policy.

Originally, 1993 preliminary budget included money for dispatch. The money was removed because officials were uncertain when the program would become a reality.

Treasurer's preliminary exam to continue

A courtroom exam of the former treasurer of an area nursery school continues at 2 p.m. Friday, Oct. 29.

April Merrit, a 32-year-old Independence Township resident, was charged with three counts of embezzlement. Each count is punishable with up to 10 years in prison.

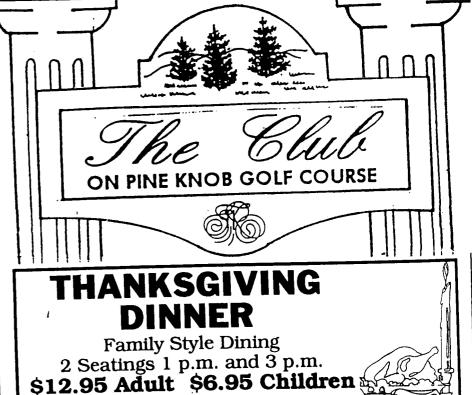

The 2 p.m. court preceding is scheduled in front of Judge Gerald McNally at 52nd District Court, Independence Township.

Merrit was treasurer of Clarkston Co-op Nursery School in 1991. According to the Oakland County Sheriff's report, discrepancies in bookkeeping were found when Merrit was replaced as treasurer.

An investigation was launched in 1991, but because of the detailed work in tracking money and receipts, Merrit was not arrested until Aug. 31, 1993.

She is charged with taking about $1,000.

Teens confess to thefts from cars

Four 15-year-old Independence Township teens have confessed to stealing items from 18 to 25 cars in the past month

According to Detective Dirk Feneley of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department, one of the boys tried to sell some of the stolen items to friends. Police confronted him, and he confessed. Police also spoke to the other boys and are to question one more 15-year-old boy.

The thefts took place in the Chapel View, Deerwood and Hubbard Circle areas.

Some stolen property — including a gun, speakers and stereos — was retrieved from a field off of Greene Haven Drive.

Feneley said that victims have claimed about $7,000 worth of property. Charges against the teens are pending.

All of the boys are at home. Their names are not being released because they are juveniles.

Linksters take second at state

BY CURT MCALLISTER Clarkston News Associate Editor

The Clarkston boys' golf team capped off the most successful season in school history by taking second at the Class A state meet this past weekend.

The Wolves shot a two-day total of 625 at the Forest Akers (Michigan State) Golf Course to finish eight strokes behind champion East Lansing. Clarkston's total also equaled those of Rochester Adams and Bloomfield Lahser, but CHS was given the nod based on a better score by its fifth man.

Individually, Clarkston was led by Jayson Buchmann, whose score of 70, one-under par, after the first day led all participants. He eventually tied for third overall, but his initial play helped the Wolves qualify for the top-10 finals on Saturday with a team score of 311.

"Everyone was happy for him and the way he shot on Friday," said CHS Coach Jim Chamberlain. "I think his play spurred the rest of the team that day and the next."

On Saturday, the Wolves were paced by Jon Dean (156) and Jeremy Jenson (156) who both shot a 77. This duo wound up tying for tenth place individually.

Buchmann shot a 79 that day to give him a two-day total of 149, which was five strokes behind champion Jon Levy of Birmingham Groves. Teammates Corey Bildstein (165) and Ryan Karlstrom (164) each shot an 81 that Saturday.

It was these 81's that allowed CHS to creep into second place.

"Corey and Ryan deserve a lot of credit for not giving up and shooting what they did," Chamberlain said. "Their 81 was what allowed us to take second."

Not counting girls' golf, this was the best finish by any of Chamberlain's link-sters in his 25 years as a coach. Two years ago, Clarkston managed to take seventh in the state finals. Prior to that, an eighth place finish in 1972 was the best any Wolf team had ever finished at the state level.

"This team, by far, is the most talented that Clarkston's ever had," Chamberlain said. "They always came to play."

This season, the Wolves had a dual meet record of 11-1, which included their second consecutive league crown. They won two invitationals and took second at another one. The team also took third at regionals in Port Huron.

Prior to the finals, Clarkston was ranked as high as No. 5 in the state coaches poll. However, this team was unranked when the season began.

"We weren't ranked in the top 10 when the season began because I didn't want to talk them up too much. I really didn't know what to expect," Chamberlain said. "But the coach who runs the polls told me that I could no longer hide this team when the scores started rolling in.

"So, based on their scores and other coaches' comments, we eventually moved up to fifth," Chamberlain added.

Besides a higher post-season ranking, Chamberlain expects individual honors for a couple of his linksters, especially Buchmann. On the season, the junior fared no worse than third place in 13 of 15 events this year. Coupled with a 9-hole average of about 38, Chamberlain said he's a leading candidate for all-state honors.

"No matter where we played, Jayson always seemed to shoot right around par," his coach said," and with his performance at state, he's shown us that he's capable of moving on to the next plateau."

Looking ahead to next year, Chamberlain will lose only one of his top-five players to graduation — Karlstrom. Yet, he's not ready to make any predictions about a possible return to next year's state finals.

"Like I said before, this is a very talented group," Chamberlain said. "I hope they can handle their success with dignity."

Wolves top Huskies; win conference title

BY CURT MCALLISTER Clarkston News Associate Editor

The Clarkston varsity football team made the most of a second chance last Friday, as they beat Pontiac Northern, 21-20, clinching the league crown.

We kind of snuck in," CHS Coach Kurt Richardson said of his team's GOAL title. "Our guys played a great game against a very good football team." >

The Wolves (5-2, 4-0 in the league) were given the opportunity to play for the GOAL championship after previously unbeaten Waterford Kettering was forced to forfeit six previous wins due to an ineligible player on their roster. This turn of events transformed the Clarkston-Northern contest into a showdown for the title, instead of second place.

The host Huskies were the first to score when Edwin Watson ran in from seven yards out on Northern's first posses-

"After that first score, we had to regroup the kids and tell them not to lose their composure," Richardson said. "After that, they did everything that we asked of them, allowing us to play our type of game.'

The pep talk sunk in a quarter later when Clarkston tied the game on an eightyard pass from Kevin Dankert to Pat Mulligan. Minutes later, CHS struck again when Dankert hooked up with Jeremy Fife from 15 yards out. Successful PAT conversions by Kevin Covert gave Clarkston a

The Huskies (6-1, 3-1) roared to life in the third quarter when tailback Thomas Hunt scored on consecutive scoring drives to give Northern a 20-14 lead. Luckily for the Wolves, the Huskies missed the PAT on their second touchdown by Hunt.

The Wolves eventually won the game in the fourth quarter when tailback Joe Davis scored on a two-yard touchdown run. Covert converted the all-important, extra point to give Clarkston the victory.

Offensively, Dankert completed 14 of 20 passes for 127 yards and two TDs. On the season, the senior has thrown for 845 yards, which leads the conference.

Davis had another big day as he rushed for 129 yards on 21 carries. He also leads the GOAL in rushing with 845 yards on 161 attempts.

Just as important was the defense, who caused three turnovers.

"Our defense rose to the occasion," Richardson said. "Getting the big turnover was something that we've been lacking all season and we came away with a few arthe right time."

Richardson cited the play of P.J. Vandermeer, who recorded seven tackles, and his "monster man" John Zamora. Jason Graves also picked off two interceptions for the Wolves.

Clarkston travels to Flint Central this Friday, Oct. 22, to play the undefeated Indians, who are ranked No. 6 in Class A.

CHRIS TANKERSLY battles a Lake Orion player in JV soccer action last week. The Wolves (8-4-2) beat the Dragons, 1-0, on a goal by P.J. Sadows Oct. 13.

Wolves split OT's

For the second consecutive week, the Clarkston girls' varsity basketball team split a pair of games.

On Oct. 12, the Wolves topped Lake Orion, 46-39, in overtime. The visiting Dragons forced the extra stanza when it outscored Clarkston 10-5 in the fourth quarter.

However, CHS went on a 9-2 run in the overtime period to cement the win.

The Wolves were paced by Shawna Greene and Kerry Kelly with 12 points apiece. Anne Brueck added eight points and Crystal Lemke scored six, including 4-of-5 free throws in OT.

The Dragons were led by Melanie Garrard with a game-high 19 points.

Two days later, CHS traveled to Waterford Mott and were downed in tripleovertime, 37-36. The contest was a topsyturvy one, with both teams swapping the lead numerous times.

Tied at 33-33 after regulation, CHS held the ball for the first two minutes of each OT. In the end, the Corsairs outscored the Wolves 4-3, over three periods, to earn the victory.

Clarkston (9-4, 2-3 in the conference) was led by Brueck with 13 points. Erin Patterson also scored 11 points for CHS and Laura Seitz chipped in with

Netters fall at regionals

The 1993 season officially ended for the Clarkston varsity tennis team last week as they fell in regional play.

As a team, the Wolves took seventh place overall in Waterford. The Oct. 15 meet was won by Birmingham Lahser.

In the first round of competition, only three Clarkston players were elimi-

Posting victories were: Mary Schmidt

(No. 2 singles), Amanda Van Klaveren (No. 3 singles), Renee Van Klaveren (No. 4 singles), Carly Kade and Rene Shubert (No. 2 doubles) and Emily Kortge and Jocelyn Stock (No. 3 doubles).

All of these players lost in the second round, however.

This year, Clarkston finished with a record of 6-3 overall and took second place in the GOAL.

IMPORTANCE OF SELLING PRICE

A REALISTIC PRICE is the MOST important factor in selling your home.

Ron Rodda Sales Manager Career in Real Estate!

"ASK RON" QUESTION: Is a realistic selling price more important than good advertising, sales-manship and financing know-how? ANSWER: A realistic selling price is perhaps the MOST important consideration in selling your home. An overpriced home isn't going to make you money—it's going to cost you money. An inflated price tag is a losing proposition for everyone. Advertising and sales efforts can't sell a home unless the price is right. The Realtor can not aggressively promote are sale of property pured out of its comparable class. The buyer, too, lose i confidence in the broker who wastes his time with unrealistic possibilities.

CHS hunts for crown

With one game left in the regular season, the Clarkston varsity soccer team finds itself in control of its own destiny.

If they win, the Wolves (11-5-1, 4-2-1 in the GOAL) capture the league crown. If they lose, odds are the title will go to two-time, defending champ Brandon.

Clarkston plays at Waterford Ketter-ing this Wednesday, Oct. 20.

On Monday night, the Wolves recaptured the league lead by topping Waterford Mott, 4-2. J.R. Kirk scored twice for CHS and Nick Bielak and Derrick Spires chipped in with a goal apiece.

The Wolves benefited from Lake Orion's upset win over Brandon, 2-1, that same evening. The Blackhawks' loss dropped them a half a game behind Clark-

The Dragons have been playing "hot" lately, evidenced by their 3-1 win over the Wolves Oct. 13. Kirk posted the only goal for Clarkston that day.

"Lake Orion has been on a tear lately," said Coach Dan Fitzgerald. "We've been struggling as of late and they took it to us last week.'

Things didn't get any rosier Oct. 16 when CHS played host to undefeated Troy, the top-ranked team in Class A. The Wolves fell 6-1 in that contest.

Bielak scored the lone goal for the Wolves.

Fitzgerald said the win over Mott was a re-assuring victory for his team, with districts just around the corner.

Prior to this game against Mott, I was afraid that we might have peaked a little early, but we played well (against the Corsairs) "he said. "We always seem to rise to the occasion at districts so we'll have to be ready."

Clarkston opens district play against Lakeland next Monday, Oct. 25. If they win this home contest, the Wolves will play the winner of the Milford-Walled Lake Central matchup at WLC two days

Clarkston residents Bret Litra and Jake Gaines helped the USA Patriots win its first hockey tournament of the year last month.

The tournament was held in Sylvania, Ohio, Sept. 17-19. Litra is a winger/ forward for the team and a fourth-grader at Anderson ville Elementary School. Gaines is a defenseman and attends the fifth grade at North Sashabaw Elementary.

The Patriots are a Squirt "A" travel team (9-10 year-olds) and play out of the USA Hockey Club in Bloomfield Hills.

The Opening Face-Off Tournament in Sylvania featured teams from three states. During the weekend, the Patriots beat squads from Sylvania, Grand Rapids, and Evanston, Ill. The Pats played Sylvania again in the championship game and clubbed their hosts 6-2.

In the four victories, the Patriots outscored their opponents 33-4.

Harriers sink Mott

The Clarkston cross country teams earned their sixth victories of the season last week by upending Waterford Mott.

On Oct. 12, the girls' team nipped the host Corsairs 27-30, while the boys' squad won 25-35.

In the girls' race, the Wolves swept the top three spots behind the first-place finish of Anna Vandermeer in 22 minutes, 39 seconds. Stacie Iezzi (22:42) and Stephanie Burklow (23:01) took second and third respectively.

Mott claimed the next six places until CHS' Stacy Patterson came in at tenth

Even in victory, the girls got some bad news when they learned that all-stater Leah Scharl would be lost for the rest of the season, due to a stress fracture in her leg. The junior had been the two-time defending league champion.

With the win, the Wolves upped their record to 6-3 overall, 3-2 in the GOAL, which is the same as the boys' team.

Despite losing out on the top two finishes, Clarkston grabbed the next six spots to earn the win. Curt Duca took third place (17:50) for the Wolves, followed by Torbin Ernst, Jeff Dengate, Matt Warner, Steve Anderson and Jeremy Lafferty.

CHS Coach Mike Taylor was pleased with the boys' performances.

"It was a super team effort," he said. "We knew Mott might take first or second overall, so we ran our most even pace of the year and focused on Mott's other run-

Taylor said all but two of his runners ran their best times of the year, including Duca, who'd just gotten over the flu.

"They simply found a way to win," Taylor said.

Both teams travel to Oxford this Friday, Oct. 22, for the Oxford Invitational.

ALLERGY TIP FOR THE WEEK: Mold Allergy

courtesy of:

Clarkston Allergy & Asthma Clinic, P.C.

Adult & Child Asthma & Allergy Specialists

Affiliated With William Beaumont & St. Joseph Hospitals

Fall is the season when mold sensitive individuals have worsening of their allergic symptoms. This is due to environmental dampness and dying foliage which foster mold growth. Raking leaves, hayrides, visiting apple orchard barns, drinking apple cider, mowing lawns in the fall result in increased environmental mold exposure. Mold is ubiquitous and is found indoors as well. Basement, damp bathrooms, homes on cement slabs, or homes which have poorly ventilated crawl spaces facilitate mold growth inside the home, Dietary mold plays a key role in precipitating allergic symptoms in the allergic patient. Aged and fermented foods such as cheese, yogurt, wine, beer, apple cider, vinegar-containing products (mustard, ketchup, pickles, mayonnaise, salad dressing) are examples of mold-containing foods. Environmental and dietary mold avoidance improves symptoms in the allergic patient.

Boy volunteers for research

BY CURT MCALLISTER Clarkston News Associate Editor

A six-year-old Independence Township boy is volunteering his time and body, so medical experts can learn more about cancer.

Travis Thompson, a first-grader at North Sashabaw Elementary, will be periodically wearing a monitoring device, which measures the levels of electro-magnetic fields that he comes into contact with on an average day.

This project is a joint venture between the National Institute of Health and the Department of Pediatrics at the University of Minnesota. Researchers chose Travis because he's healthy and the same age as another area boy, who is dying from leukemia. Experts are trying to determine how the existence of radon, radiation, pesticides and electro-magnetic fields affect the immune system of Barb Hood, an interviewer with the project, said that Travis will have to wear the monitoring device three times for 24 hours over the next year. She'll also come back to the Thompson home every two months to check a similar unit near Travis' bed.

Hood said that this project encompasses six states in the midwest, with volunteers undergoing similar requests. In all cases, the volunteer is chosen from the same vicinity as a child stricken with leukemia.

Besides Travis, there's also another young volunteer in the Clarkston area, Hood said.

After two and a half years have passed, Hood said scientists will compile their findings and investigate all the variables. "This isn't meant to panic anyone in the areas where these volunteers are chosen," Hood said. "We're just trying to determine how much of a role a child's environment has on his or her ability to fend of diseases."

Panel addresses education in Clarkston

Questions about the future of education in this state and community were part of a panel discussion last Thursday.

Sponsored by SAGE, a local school support group, the evening focused on changes in progress in Clarkston Community Schools, particularly in the middle schools.

David Reschke, assistant superintendent and director of curriculum for Clarkston schools, said the plan is to re-think student participation in the existing program.

The goal is to equalize the educational experience for all students by involving more of them in various programs.

Clarkston Middle School teacher Barbara Glover, another panel member, said it's important that programs meet special needs and abilities of students. She drew applause from the well-attended meeting of parents with the idea that an equal education does not mean each student must have the same educational experience.

Other members of the panel included CAT teacher Susan Banworth, middle school teachers Joanne Stroebel and John Matheus, as well as high school advanced placement teachers Linda Denstaedt, David Bihl and Lydia Kazewych.

Each of them spoke separately about the programs they're involved in and the importance of those programs for the education of Clarkston students.

The presentations were followed by a question and answer period that included a discussion of what will happen to planned curriculum improvements under Gov. Engler's proposed state reforms.

Tindall Road paving on hold

BY DEBORAH DZIEWIT Clarkston News Special Writer

Residents living on or near Tindall Road in Springfield Township should not expect to drive on a paved road anytime soon.

Before the township board can make a decision for or against paving, it needs more information -and that costs money, according to township Supervisor Collin Walls reported Oct. 14 that the Road Commission for Oakland County asked for a topographical survey before it could make a decision on road improvements. Before a survey can be done, the township first needs to find out its cost, Walls said.

The township board also formally accepted a petition that asked Tindall Road residents whether or not they approved of paving the road: 39 said no, while six said

However, Walls said the petition does not specify what the "no" residents oppose: cost, possible loss of frontage or trees, or the paving itself.

In response to residents' and trustees' concerns about loss of frontage and trees, Walls and the township engineer met with the road commission to discuss the possibility of reducing the 60-foot standard for a paved secondary road.

'Until we get more detailed information, the Road Commission could not react to a reduction in the standard," Walls said.

At a special meeting last month, residents found that the project is estimated at $1.5 million.

While the board is not near a decision yet, Walls said it would consider petitioners' opposition if and when it makes a decision.

"It will have bearing, but we have nothing to lose to go ahead and get more information," Walls said.

He expects to discuss the issue more at the next township meeting on Thursday, Nov. 11, he said.

ottom line: Does outcome-based education work? A 22 Wed., Oct. 20, 1993 The Clarkston (MI) News

Editor's note: This is the third part of a series about outcome-based education by reporter Catherine Passmore.

Does it work?

Whether or not OBE works depends on who you talk

Deanna Eberle, a high school math teacher at Ferndale High School for 10 years, taught with OBE practices for two years. She was trained at the Sixth Annual National Outcome-Based Education Conference in Arizona in

The major variance between OBE and traditional practices, according to Eberle, is the amount of time students have to complete a task.

"The difference comes in the amount of opportunity you let the kids have to master the material," she said.

Her students received as many chances as they needed to pass a test. At the end of the school year, her students received an extra three weeks to complete the

Students who passed the tests before the majority of the class took part in "enrichment," while the other pupils were retaught and retested, said Eberle.

The enrichment consisted of more difficult material but was still related to the subject area. Eberle said she made the enrichment fun for students.

"It (was) not a punishment for doing it right the first time," she said.

Eberle said one of the benefits of using OBE practices in the classroom is that students take responsibility for themselves.

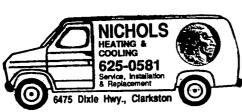

"It takes the focus off the teachers and makes (students) responsible for their own learning. In life, you're responsible for yourself — they need to learn that. Someone's not always going to be there to tell you what to do or when to do it," she said.

She has observed three main drawbacks in the use of OBE practices.

The first — it's a lot of work for the teachers, she said. When retesting a group of students, the test must be different yet comparable to the first test. Eberle worked with a team of other math teacher to share tests and ideas.

Also, students are not accustomed to being selfdirected learners. Eberle said that using OBE practices would be easier if they had been in place since the students had been in kindergarten.

Lastly, the present nine-week grading system doesn't fit into the OBE classroom. Teachers are required to give grades at the end of the year. Eberle said that "incompletes" are sometimes needed and must be viewed by the administration and by parents as a valid grade.

Education report

Eberle said the philosophy of OBE is based in mastery learning, which means teachers tell students: "I want you to learn no matter how long it takes," she said.

Mastery learning began in the 1970s in Chicago. The program was implemented in 1977 and was called a "pacesetter" for the nation.

In 1982, Learning magazine reported the results of the program, saying that many teachers found students who had successfully completed the mastery learning

"It takes the focus off the teachers and makes (students) responsible for their own learning. ... They need to learn that."

program were entering high school never having read a book and unable to read one.

Educator Samuel Blumenfeld reported in The New American that in standardized tests, "Only four of the 64 high schools scored about the 50th percentile, 34 scored below the 20th percentile, and five schools, with a total enrollment of more than 7,500, scored at the 10th percentile (a score students could have achieved by answering the questions at random)."

Some said the problem wasn't the program itself but rather people used it incorrectly.

William Spady and other OBE champions make a connection between the failed program in Chicago and the now highly praised OBE.

In January 1980, 43 people met to form the Network for Outcome Based Education. Most had a background in what was then called master learning. "I pleaded with the group not to use the name 'mastery learning' in the network's new name because the word 'master' had already been destroyed through poor implementation," he said in an interview in the pro-OBE magazine Educational Leadership (December 1992 -January 1993).

Eberle, the Ferndale teacher, agreed that implementation is difficult.

"We tried to follow the methodology (of masterly learning) as best we could," she said. "It's too hard for one person to do all that work."

She said the schedule for math classes is rigorous, and each idea builds on the next. Therefore, if a student doesn't grasp an elementary concept, he or she cannot move on at all. Eberle said she no longer uses OBE practices in her classroom, based on her own decision. But she incorporates some principles. For instance, she allows students who are really trying to learn an extra try at passing a test. (To be continued next week.)

New signs approved

Soon, restaurant-goers who read Chinese will know where to find "nice" and "healthy" food in the area.

Wai Hong restaurant in Independence Town Square received permission Oct. 14 to hang two extra signs on the outside of its building at the corner of Sashabaw and Waldon roads.

The white circular signs will contain the Chinese symbols "Wai" and "Hong," which mean "nice" and "healthy" and are the restaurant's name.

The Independence Township Planning Commission voted unanimously to approve the additional signs.

"It will give him the visibility he needs," said commission member Cecilia Yarber.

The two new signs, along with the current sign, give the restaurant a total of 71 square feet of signage. The township's ordinance allows 72 square feet maximum. Three signs are allowed under the ordinance.

The symbols will be lighted, but board members said that it would not detract from the area.

"It's not going to create a Las Vagas-looking strip," said commission member Holly Stephens.

Two subdivisions to be rezoned

Lake Maria Woods subdivision and Woodglen Estates subdivision soon may be rezoned.

The subdivisions are currently zoned multiple-family residential, though they were developed as single-family communities.

The Independence Township Planning Commission voted unanimously Oct. 14 to recommend that the township board rezone Lake Maria Woods from multiple-family residential to suburban farm residential. The subdivision's new zoning—about 25 acres at Pine Ridge and Ashare, off Dixie Highway—calls for 1 1/2-acre minimum lots.

The commission also voted unanimously to recommend rezoning Woodglen Estates from multiple-family residential to single-family residential. The subdivision's new zoning — about 20 acres at Almond Lane and Woodglen, south of Waldon Road — requires 15,000-square-foot minimum lot sizes.

Township planning consultant Richard Carlisle said he had researched the development of the subdivisions and can't explain why the area is zoned for multiple family use.

Commission members agreed the zoning was strange for the area.

"It's just an odd quirk that they're zoned this way" said Holly Stephens.

The township board must give two approvals before the rezonings take place.

He loves school, being with classmates

Editor's note: The Clarkston News wrote about Tyler Riddle as a baby, when his parents discovered he had Down's syndrome, and later when he entered Clarkston schools at age 5. Here's an update on Tyler.

BY CURT MCALLISTER Clarkston News Associate Editor

At 9 years of age, Tyler Riddle is your typical kid—he loves to play, go to school and tell stories.

Mingling with others in his third-grade class at Bailey Lake Elementary School, you'd never know he has Down's syndrome unless you looked closely.

"Tyler doesn't consider himself different from anyone else in his class," said his mother, Nancy Passmore. "He's been in a normal classroom setting since kindergarten, which has made for an easier transition for him and his classmates."

According to Passmore, Tyler is enrolled in an "inclusionary" curriculum, which has him sharing time between a special needs instructor and his regular third-grade class.

Taught by a paraprofessional, his adapted curriculum includes speech therapy, physical therapy and occupational therapy, which entails fine-tuning his writing, cutting and keyboarding skills. These sessions usually last about two hours a day in the rear of his regular classroom. A majority of his day is usually spent with his third-grade instructor, Nancy Colbert. She teaches him math, science and English. Tyler also participates with his classmates in other activities such as art, story time, recess and music.

Colbert said Tyler has been accepted by everyone in his class, despite the differences in behavior and curriculum

"Basically, he gets along well with everyone in class," Colbert said. "The kids have been very sweet and kind. They didn't expect him to behave like most kids their age at first, so they had a tendency to baby him.

"But as time passed, they're starting to see him as another 9-year-old and are treating him accordingly," she

Passmore said this type of interaction is the best aspect of the inclusionary program.

"I just love the fact that he's included," she said. "By interacting, Tyler learns how to behave in a social situation, and the other kids learn to accept him for who he is, even if he's a little different.

"Some of the the people in my support group warned us not to put him in this type of environment because they thought we were setting him up for failure," Passmore added. "But, in our four years, we've seen nothing but the successes that this type of curriculum can offer."

And along the way, Tyler's made a lot of friends.

"It seems that whenever we go someplace, Tyler runs into someone that he knows," said Kirk Passmore, his step-father of three years. "He's a pretty popular kid."

TYLER RIDDLE, 9, has been prospering from an inclusionary curriculum at Bailey Lake Elementary School. The program allows him to learn with the rest of his third-grade

Kirk said Tyler has also benefited from the friendships he's gained by participating in the Independence Township Parks and Recreation youth soccer league last

"He loves sports," Kirk said. "In fact, he'll soon be playing in a fall basketball class offered through his school's Youth Enrichment program."

"The kids have been very sweet and kind. They didn't expect him to behave like most kids their age at first, so they had a tendency to baby him."

Teacher Nancy Colbert

But Tyler's involvement doesn't stop there, the couple pointed out. He just joined a local Boy Scout pack.
When asked what he'd liked to be when he grows up,
Tyler mentioned being either a bagger, waiter or a hauler

Tyler mentioned being either a bagger, waiter or a hauler like his father, Kirk. Nancy, on the other hand, believes he could be a master story-teller.

"He's definitely a story teller," she said, smiling.

"All he needs is a topic, and he'll take it from there. He's got a very vivid imagination."

At this point, Tyler can read at the first-grade level and do very simple math problems, but his parents won't hold him back because it's uncertain if he'll ever attain a specific level of education. They also doubt he'll ever earn a diploma because it would make him ineligible for classmates, as well as receive extra help in some areas. Here, he's pictured with his parents, Nancy and Kirk Passmore of Independence Township.

state-supported, developmental training until the age of 25.

Yet his mother has high expectations for him.
"He's a very hard worker when he puts his mind to it, like most kids," she said. "Even as a third-grader, we're trying to impress upon him that he needs to learn certain things, so he can ride the bus, live in a house and eventually go to work.

"We're just trying to establish some perspective for him because we won't always be around," Nancy added.

Kirk said he believes his son will one day become an independent person, who can live on his own and hold a job. Nancy also considers marriage as a viable possibility.

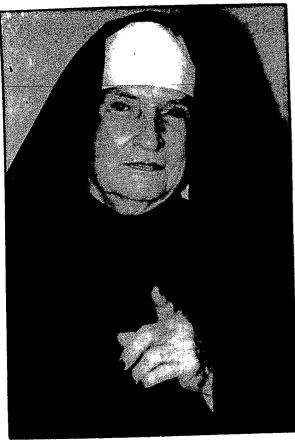

"I'd like to see him have a relationship one day ...

"By interacting, Tyler learns how to behave in a social situation, and the other kids learn to accept him for who he is, even if he's a little different."

Mother Nancy Passmore

even marriage," she said. "He's a loving person, who openly expresses his feelings. He'd make someone a very good husband."

Until that time, however, Tyler said he's content on playing with his friends and working toward earning his

Oakland County pioneers sought

BY VIRGINIA BLOCK

Queries from persons seeking local history backgrounds as sources of information continue to focus on pioneers in Oakland County.

Indirectly, two coming to area Genealogical Societies have reached us, and we offered to give them exposure through this column.

Shirley Wasinger, of Lola, Mont., says "I am looking for information on Charles Sherrill and wife Eliza Melissa Whitcher who were in Orion Township, Oakland County, Michigan, in 1920. Sons Benjamin, born January 1868, Lester Ephraim, born March 14, 1866, and Isaac L., born June 1872, all born in Illinois. Eliza later married Hiram Holton. Are they buried in Orion Township?"

From Mary Jean Brooks of Grand Rapids, she asks for information for William Foote (Foot) and wife Mary Earle who appear to have resided in Oakland County between 1845-1860. One son, William R. Foot, was with Charles Dearing in the 1850 Independence Township (Oakland County, MI) census. In 1860, Mary Foot and her children show up in Kent County, MI. Did William Foot(e) possibly die in Oakland County, possibly the Springfield Township area in the 1845-1860 era?

(We know that Henry Foot was the sexton of Oakhill Cemetery from 1867 to 1906, so we can check for a possible connection there for Mary Jean.)

Sue Fann of Waterford is seeking the burial place of

CRUSHED CONCRETE

Patrick and Catherine Smith Dinnan. Patrick died before 1889 when land was signed over by wife Catherine to only son Lawrence. They were in White Lake Township (Oakland County, MI). Catherine between 1900 and 1910 census. And also would like information on his brother who was at some point in Flint.

Additionally, Sue is looking for the father of Orley Hitchcock, who was born in Vermont in 1813. Orley was the father of Adelia who married Lawrence Dinnan in 1881 in Oakland County, Mich. Orley married 2nd, Olive Leonard, circa 1847, in Macomb County.

Sue, have you tried to find a will for any of these folks? As land owners, they should be found on tax rolls and in probate records with clues to death dates and possibly obit notices.

It should be easy to contact the Historical Society in Rose Township to see if they have any records for Independence Township; likewise, White Lake Township has a Historical Society, I believe.

Many times centennial celebrations are noted in commemorative publications, so check the libraries in those areas, as well.

Happy Hunting.

Ask the therapist

My friend is stuck in a bad marriage ...

Stan Garwood

Dear Mr. Garwood:

I have a good friend who is stuck in a bad marriage. She refuses to leave it because her son has Attention Deficit Disorder, and she doesn't want to rock his world too much. So she and her husband are putting on this brave front for the child.

My opinion, having been divorced with children, is that they probably aren't fooling the kid anyway, and that the pretending is probably doing more harm than good.

What do you think?

Wondering

Dear Wondering:

Children, in order to be emotionally healthy, require an environment complete with security, unqualified love and acceptance, positive attention, appropriate discipline, normal male-female modeling, honesty, encouragement, socialization and education.

As you can see, parenting is an awesome responsibility, integrating total commitment with appropriate

"Bad marriages" are characterized by some or all of the following:

A. Familial tension and stress

B. Parental self-absorption

C. Frustration of successive unresolved conflicts

I am sure I do not have to tell you of how pervasive anxious feelings are. No amount of sheltering can protect children from their being felt. Children may not fully understand the source of this tension, but they know something is not right.

Throughout the period of conflict, this shielding of the children often adds to their anxiety. Their world is disrupted and they do not understand why or for how long. Normally, they would turn to mom and dad for comfort and understanding. But since these parents are incapacitated by their own inner turmoil, the child tends to withdraw and withhold feelings, adding more "fuel to the fire." They, in essence, try to protect the parents from even more pain.

I agree with you that a bad marriage can do "more harm than good," especially when it negates the family security, removes normal channels of communication and promotes fear and uncertainty in the lives of those who can least afford it.

Halloween safety tips

Protect your children from harm on Halloween by following these simple, common sense safety guidelines. ■ An adult should accompany each group of trick-

■ Accept candy only from neighbors you know.

■ Attach bright reflective patches to all costumes to be more visible to drivers.

■ Never allow your children to eat any unwrapped candy or fruit.

■ Make sure the costumes allow for free movement and breathing. ■ Only approach well-lit houses in familiar areas. ■ Use a flashlight or lightstick on your rounds.

Outfits should be non-flammable. Holes in masks should be large enough for wearers to see through easily.

■ Cross streets only at corners. ■ Children shouldn't eat anything until a parent checks it out first. ■ Homeowners also should keep their porch lights on to help light the way for masqueraders, and motorists should exercise caution, particularly on residential streets.

CITY OF THE VILLAGE OF CLARKSTON

29 E. Washington Clarkston, MI 48346 City Council Meeting Minutes October 11,1993

The meeting was called to order by Councilman Roeser at 7:34 p.m. followed by the pledge of allegiance.

Roll: Present: Arkwright, Basinger, Catallo, Roeser, Secatch. Absent: Sanderson, Schultz

Moved by Arkwright, supported by Basinger, "That the minutes of the meeting on September 27, 1993 be approved as submitted."

Moved by Roeser, supported by Arkwright, "That the agenda be approved with the following additions under New Business: garage sale signs and Rudy's Market." Motion carried. Moved by Basinger, supported by Secatch "That the bills for the month of September 1993 totaling $24,618.55 be paid as submitted." Roll: yeas-4, nays-0. Motion carried.

Secatch indicated that interviews had been held for the DPW Supervisor position and a recommendation for niring would be submitted to the Council at the next meeting.

Roeser indicated he would like a copy of all the reports from water testing done by the Health Department of wells within the Village. Pappas indicated that he received copies of these reports at the Village Hall and that he would make them available to Roeser. Selander Miller indicated that the Oakland County Health Department will test wells in the area if people are concerned about contamination from petroleum products. These tests have been performed without a fee.

Jim Smith met with the Council on behalf of his neighbors on Main Street who wish to be connected to the municipal water main. There are seven homes that wish to be included in this project. Smith indicated that he had spoken with George Anderson of the Township, and the project is planned to be started this fall. Smith has received estimates that the cost of connecting each home to the water main would be approximately $3,500. The residents surveyed indicated that they would be willing to pay the associated cost directly. Basinger indicated there were issues that needed to be discussed with the City Attorney, Hubbell, Roth and Clark the city engineers, as well as the Townskin to discusse in the complete force in the complet Township to determine feasibility and associated costs. Basinger and Secatch will look into this immediately because of the timetable on the Basinger distributed a letter to the Council from the Historic District Commission regarding the Historic District Ordinances. The Commission is looking to better preserve the historic nature of the Village by restricting changes made to doors and windows on the facade of homes with a historical designation. This issue will be discussed at the meeting on October 25, 1993 after the Council has time to review the materials

Arkwright indicated that Chief Devore had done some research regarding the Video Incident Capture System (VICS) and that one could be obtained for $1,200 to $2,000. Chief Devore is currently looking for private donations to fund this equipment. It is felt that this system would help curb unnecessary litigation expenses. The Council expressed its approval, particularly if outside funding is available.

Arkwright indicated he would like to see fluorescent signs on Halloween Night indicating that children are out trick or treating. The Council felt that this was a good idea. DPW will make the signs and they will be placed on the traffic control signs that evening.

Moved by Arkwright, supported by Basinger, "That all lot splits be referred initially to the Planning Commission for their review and then on to the City Council for a final decision." Motion carried.

Resolved by Basinger, supported by Roeser, "That the City of the Village of Clarkston accept the Michigan Municipal League's resolution on Unfunded Mandates and that copies of the resolution be sent to Senator Riegle, Senator Levin, Representative Kildee and State Representative Middleton and State Senator Honigman." Roll: yeas-5, nays-0. Resolution passed.

The Council received a request from The Haven for a donation. The council decided there is a fundamental question which needs to be addressed here: Should the Council be spending tax payers money for charitable organizations? Pappas is to look into the restrictions for use of Community Development Block Grants. Should the funding for charitable organizations be spent from this source. The issue was tabled until the November 8, 1993 meeting.

Moved by Secatch, supported by Arkwright, "That the Trick or Treating hour for children be set for October 31, 1993, Halloween Night, from 6 to 7 p.m." Motion carried.

Pappas indicated an issue had arisen about garage sale signs being left on public utility poles. Attorney Ryan will be consulted about our right to take these down at the next meeting.

Robert Esshaki of Rudy's Market met with the Council because he needs to get an easement on the city property between Rudy's and the NBD to place a well, as his well has gone dry. He has already obtained a variance from the Health Department and the proposed placement of the well would be five feet from his building in the second to the last parking spot. He plans to block the well with a cement curb to avoid any damage that might be caused to a car using that parking space. It was suggested that Esshaki contact the Clarkston News which recently drilled a four-inch well, perhaps an agreement can be reached between these two parties and the drilling of a new well can be avoided. Esshaki will look into this, if it is not possible to work this out he will contact Pappas to begin the process of obtaining an easement

Moved by Roeser, supported by Arkwright, "That the meeting be adjourned." Motion carried. The meeting was adjourned at 8 p.m. Jeanne Selander Miller

Free concert features high school vocalists

A free concert shows the best of Clarkston's young vocalists Tuesday, Oct. 26. "Choirs in Concert" takes place at 7:30 p.m. in Clarkston High School's Kirchgessner Theater.

It features the Bel Canto Choir, Mixed Choir, Barbershop Ensemble, Choralaires, Varsity Concert Choir

"All six choirs have gotten off to a wonderful start, with great enthusiasm, demonstrating a huge revenue of talent," she said. Warren said other cultural events and performances are planned throughout the school year, and she'll invite the public to them. "Music is and always will be an integral part of children's education in Clarkston, and I know that it will continue to thrive and be nurished by you, the community and friends of the department," she said. Dance and auction to help Kaitlin

A dinner dance and silent auction in Livonia are planned to help the Davis family with hospital costs for

The Kaitlin Davis Dinner Dance and Silent Auction takes place Friday, Nov. 12, at the Burton Manor at 27777 Schoolcraft Road at Inkster Road, Livonia.

Kaitlin, 2, of Independence Township, was born with small intestines that don't function. She needs a $500,000 liver and small intestine transplant. Pittsburgh Children's Hospital is the only hospital in the country that performs the surgery, with an 80 percent to 83 percent success rate.

Insurance covers only part of the cost of the operation. Without surgery, doctors give her one year to live.

Cost is $30 per ticket and includes live entertainment, dinner and an open bar. Music is provided by Chayn Illuzion and the Obnoxatones.

To purchase tickets for the dance or donate items for the silent auction, call 323-7518.

Donations may be sent to the Kaitlin Davis Transplant Fund, P.O. Box 103, Clarkston, MI 48347.
