Township adopts $13 million budget

Look-alikes

DANIELLE WEDDLE, 7, and Taboo of Independence Township won the judges' award for Pet-Look-Alikes on "Kelly and Company." Danielle said she has always wanted to be on "Kelly and Company," a morning talk show on ABC-TV in Detroit. She said the best part was standing by John Kelly. Danielle wrote a letter and sent a picture of herself and Taboo and was chosen as one of five finalists to appear on the show. She said she and Taboo are alike because they both have brown hair and brown eyes, and they were born on the same day — one year apart. "I'm her baby, and she's my baby," said Danielle.

Board Nov. 2.

The budget shows total expenditures next year to be $13,123,169. That's a decrease from last year's expenditures of $13,179,389, according to Kerry Donahoe, township finance director. The 1993 fiscal year revenue was $13,096,140.

The decrease is due — in part — to fewer expenditures planned for the Downtown Development Authority Fund, said Donahoe. He explained that DDA projects are paid for by "capturing" part of the property taxes within DDA boundaries. Since the state eliminated property taxes for education, school money won't be captured by the DDA in 1994 and won't be spent.

Even though the township is to spend less money overall in 1994, it will spend more money in a few areas.

Increased budgets include: the general fund, up by $46,073; fire fund, up by $260,937 (due in part to the new fire station); police funds up by $31,129; library fund up by $39,277; and safety path fund up by $9,233.

The estimated fund balances as of Dec. 31, 1993, are the following: for the general fund, $200,000; fire fund "draw-from" fund balance, $46,237 (after a new life truck is purchased); police fund balance, $10,000; library, $80,000; and safety path, $135,000.

Revenues for the 1994 fiscal year are expected to be Currently, about 17 percent of the average property tax bill goes to the township. The rest goes to school districts and the county.

At the public budget hearing, Vince Parris of Eston Road said some township services should be privatized to save money.

Parris, parks and recreation director in Davison, suggested that the township solicit bids from private companies for snow removal, mowing and maintenance, with the work going to the lowest bidder.

He said that after privatizing lawn mowing in Davison, his department saved $3,700 in one season.

Donahoe said the township can't sub-contract for certain services because of union contracts.

Three items in the general fund budgets were reduced for the 1994 fiscal year.

Community Promotion — the amount the township contributes to groups such as Lighthouse North and SCAMP — was reduced by about 33 percent ($5,000). The Tri-Party. Agreement for road improvement was reduced 29 percent ($10,000), and spring cleanup was reduced to one day. These services may be restored if more money becomes available.

The township's largest fund — the general fund — is used to pay salaries, maintenance of the township hall, parks and recreation, senior citizen programs and the upkeep of Lakeview Cemetery. Total general fund expenditures for 1994 is budgeted as $3,645,369.

The general fund receives revenue from property taxes, licenses and permits, state-shared revenue and other sources.

A list of revenues and expenditures for each township fund follows:

General fund $3,645,369 Revenue: $3,645,369 Expenditures: Fire fund $1,792,468 Revenue: $1,792,468 Expenditures: Police fund $1,433,412 Revenue: $1,433,412 Expenditures: Library fund $501,316 Revenue: $501,316 Expenditures: (See BUDGET, next page)

B&B battle resumes Tuesday

BY DEBORAH DZIEWIT Clarkston News Special Writer

The battle continues as Buck and Joan Kopietz try once again to get approval for a bed and breakfast facility on Main Street.

Clarkston's Zoning Board of Appeals meets 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 23, to either approve or disapprove a change of use of the former funeral home.

Currently, the property is zoned single-family residential; however, the funeral home was allowed to operate as a business due to a "grandfather" clause.

The Kopietzes have worked two years to get the zoning changed to a non-conforming use, so they can go forward with their plans for a bed and breakfast.

They filed two lawsuits against the ZBA's decisions. The court remanded the ZBA's motions and asked it to redetermine whether or not a bed and breakfast is not a more appropriate use than a funeral home.

"How can a funeral home be more appropriate?"

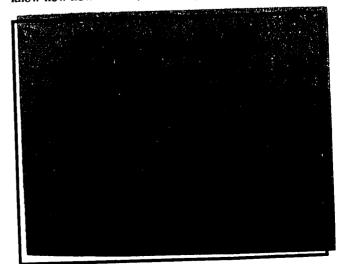

Joan Kopietz said. "With the change, it would be taking a more intense use to a less intense use."

And if the board turns down the request again, it must give legitimate reasons why a bed and breakfast is not more appropriate than a funeral home, according to

The Kopietzes said they hope that doesn't happen and expect their supporters to be at the meeting.

"I hope people get out here and let them (the board) know how we feel," Joan Kopietz said.

Stalker pre-trial delayed

The pre-trial of a Pontiac man charged with stalking his ex-friend at an Independence Township residence is set to continue this month.

Patrick A. Lafluer, 21, was charged Aug. 16 with aggravated stalking, a felony punishable with up to five years in prison and/ or a fine of $10,000.

Lafluer's pre-trial began Oct. 15 in front of Oakland County Circuit Court Judge Deborah Tyner. It was adjourned until Oct. 29 and then postponed to Nov. 19 at 8:30 a.m.

Aggravated stalking occurs when stalking violates a court order, is not the first offense, or includes threats of violence against the victim, the victim's family or a member of the victim's household.

Lafluer had been charged with assault and battery and, as part of his bond condition, was barred from contacting his ex-girlfriend.

Fourth-grade teacher Clarkston Elementary School More than 20 years experience

I grew up on the sparsely populated plains of South Dakota and attended a one-room school, which housed grades 1-8. Lest you think that I am about to fossilize, South Dakota had one-room schools well into the '60s. That's the 1960s.

Getting an education at Nelson School No. 34 was an interesting and unique experience. A teacher could expect low wages from the school board and high anxiety from trying to corral and educate 20 or more youngsters ranging in age from 6 to 16. Such a divergent school population and myriad demands and tasks created a swinging door of teachers coming and going. Some of us more irreverent "scholars" would place bets on how long the next teacher would last.

But then along came Mrs. Bodie. I didn't know it then, but she would become the most influential teacher I ever had. Immediately we know she wasn't one of those two-year certificate teachers looking for a rich sod buster. She had a different purpose altogether. Mrs. Bodie was there to create order out of Chaos. Mrs. Bodie was there to teach, and teach she did.

Yes, she taught us the 3 R's, but she had a greater vision for us than just book learning. Mrs. Bodie taught us the importance of respecting others no matter how different they seemed to be. She made it OK to believe we could be anything we wanted to be.

Though strict and demanding, she had a wonderful sense of humor and never embarrassed us or put us down. We knew the line she drew was fair and consistent, but we also know what to expect if we chose to cross that line.

When I decided to go into education, I thought of Mrs. Bodie. She was all of the things I believe a teacher should be.

In today's fast-paced society, her educational tree still bears fruit. Believe in yourself, respect others, ask questions, never stop learning, don't be afraid to dream, and be honest with yourself. This is her legacy. It has influenced my philosophy of life and my philosophy of teaching. Thank you, Mrs. Bodie, wherever you are.

A salute

American Education Week Nov. 14-20 serves to spotlight education across the country, and The Clarkston News decided to help in the effort.

We invited a few teachers from Clarkston schools to answer one of three questions. Those who answered the first question appear in this week's Clarkston News. Responses to other questions will appear in following Clarkston News issues.

The idea for a national education week came about in 1919, when representatives of the National Education Association and the American Legion met to discuss ways to generate more public support for education.

Draft boards had discovered that about 25 percent of America's World War I draftees were illiterate, and some 29 percent were physically unfit.

Dec. 4-10, 1921, became the first American Education Week, with the NEA and American Legion as sponsors. One year later, the U.S. Office of Education joined as a sponsor, followed by the National PTA. Today, the U.S. Department of Education and 11 national organizations cosponsor the week.

"He almost had me convinced to join the religious order of the Christian Brothers (who are all high school teachers), but I couldn't quite buy the concept of celibacy. So I went to college, became a teacher, got married, and my wife and I had four children.

"In the past 30 years, there have been some days when I second-guessed myself about being an educator; however, I really can't imagine myself doing anything more rewarding than working with young people. My career has been both a pleasure and a privilege."

Norma Stalions Special ed. teacher Sashabaw Middle School 25 years experience

"When asked to write about the teacher who most influenced me, Miss Ima Hook came rushing to mind, even though it has been 40 years since I first took a seat in her classroom.

"On the surface, Miss hook would not be expected to be one's favorite. She had gray hair (worn in a bun), steel-rimmed glasses, and a practiced stern look when seen marching down the hall. Her lot in life was to teach Latin, which even then was known as a 'dead' language.

"I signed up for the class because I heard she took one of her classes each year to her cabin and that it was a lot of fun. I'd never been to a cabin. I thought maybe my class would be the one to get lucky.

"Until I walked through Miss Hook's door, I was a 'world class' underachiever. I put forth only enough effort to keep my mother from falling into a deep depression, and my father from deciding I should be grounded until age 21. Miss Hook changed all of that. She was just full of miracles.

"She was unorthodox in her approaches. On the first day, I asked to sit by my friend. That was alphabetically incorrect. Also, I was carrying the reputation of being head and shoulders above 90 percent of the student body in the "chatting to one's neighbors" department. However, she did not tell me I couldn't sit there. She told me to study the first chapter and that she would give me a test the next day. If I passed it, I could sit at her desk if I wanted. I STUDIED! I passed. For the next three years, I sat next to whomever I wished.

"Also, she solved my other problem. I could talk as much as I wanted. It just had to be in Latin. I became fluent very quickly. So did the rest of the class. We all helped each other, so we could talk non-stop. She had a firm grasp on cooperative learning.

"She was a tricky woman. She found out not only what I'd work for in her class, but in the other teachers' classes as well. At first, I performed for rewards. Then I performed to please her, and then I performed because it pleased me.

"She showed an interest in what I did when I was out of school. She was my friend. She was my mentor. I know my life would be quite different if it had not been for her.

"I'm sure I was not the only one Miss Hook placed on a different path. God knew what he was doing when he made her a teacher!"

"Thinking back on my years in school, I was fortunate to have a long list of very skilled, creative and inspiring teachers that left their mark on me. My high school writing teacher, Ms. Bright, and my high school government teacher, Mr. Dain, shone brightest among these. I fondly remember Ms. Bright's tremendous capacity to bring writing to live for me. Her expectations were high, and her students stretched and grew to meet these goals. I could feel her support as I reached for greater heights. She died recently, at a fairly young age, and I remember my first reaction being one of sadness for those students who would never be touched by her skillful hand.

"I also vividly remember Mr. Dain. I would watch him from my front-row seat, in awe of his ability to captivate his students in the learning process and his natural humor and warmth that endeared him to all. 'Oh, if I could weave these two teachers into one — that's the teacher I would like to be!'

"And so, as my former students visit me and share the impact I had on their lives, I beam with pride and say a private thanks to Ms. Bright and Mr. Dain." The Clarkston (MI) News Wed., Nov. 17, 1993 3 A

"When I was at Michigan State, we spent many hours together on the field and in the classroom. Coach Litwhiler was a master at working with people and students and handling players. He was a very positive influence on me, telling me that he liked my teaching techniques - breaking down skills - coaching ability. He told me he didn't have a doubt that I would be successful in teaching and coaching. Coach Litwhiler asked me to start working for him in the Michigan State summer baseball program. This has been my summer work for 23 years. I still look forward to it this summer.

"I was invited to Danny's retirement party from Michigan State. Ron Frazier was in attendance (head basketball coach at University of Miami). Ron played for Danny at Florida State. When Ron spoke to the people that evening, he said even though they won the World Series, he thought so much of Coach Litwhiler tonight, 'I would have been present for this event even if I had to walk to East Lansing.'

becoming an elementary teacher. She was knowledgeable and disciplined. She laid out parameters as well as nurtured. It was her work with me that started me toward teaching.

"I am proud to be a teacher. I truly enjoy working with students in discovery, in learning. Teaching is an honorable and difficult process. It is extremely rewarding, particularly when the children of children you have taught start coming through your class.

"The major changes in education relate to the changes in society, particularly when schools reflect the society for whom they work. More responsibilities for child rearing, for social interaction, for activity, for special needs students, for counseling, are being made by society; and there is less willingness for all people to bear the burden of supporting the added responsibility. The present problem in the state is the unwillingness of the public to provide support for its demands."

attributes as a fine person and a fine teacher — always prepared, under control, compassionate and fair with all of her students. Each and every one of us felt like we were always being treated in a special way. I guess what I remember most was her warm smile as she greeted everyone each time you saw her anywhere. She inspired us to learn, to do well in school and be good citizens.

"She continued to help me choose a career, a college after high school, and assisted me many years later to find a teaching job back in Michigan after living out of state for 10 years. My most influential teacher is well known and loved in Clarkston as Marilyn Hanson, retired teacher and counselor from Clarkston High School. Thanks, Roots!"

Engler School Reform Plan explained

Editor's note: This is the first installment in a story about the proposed school reform plan. The rest of the plan appears in following issues of The Clarkston News.

BY DOUG CARLSON

I recently obtained a copy of the 54-page "Engler Plan to Reform Michigan Schools" from state Rep. Tom Middleton.

As I read through the plan, it became more and more obvious to me that it contains many, many features that the average person knows nothing about. All we seem to hear about is: 1) how will we pay for it, and 2) schools of choice/ charter schools. There's more to it than that.

I'd like to bring these additional features to your attention, so you might have a better feel for the potentialities of this entire program. I won't even mention how the plan will be financed since the media have beaten that issue to death.

In addition, I won't go into the plan's introduction, which discusses functional illiteracy in the United States, how we trail other industrialized nations, etc. You've all heard those horror stories, I'm sure.

However, the introduction does include several charts, which provide an interesting perspective on how the Michigan educational system seems to stack up alongside six other industrial states (Ohio, Illinois, Indiana, Minnesota, Iowa and Wisconsin). The charts indicate the fol-

- 1. Per Pupil Spending (1991-92)
- Michigan ranks second among the seven.
- Iowa ranks last.
- 2. Midwestern Teacher Salaries (1992-93)
- Michigan ranks first.
- Iowa ranks last by a wide margin.
- 3. Math SAT scores (1991-92)
- Michigan ranks fifth.
- Iowa ranks first.

School reform plan

- 4. Verbal SAT scores (1991-92)
- Michigan ranks fifth.
- Iowa ranks first.
- 5. Administrators As a Percent of Teachers
- Michigan ranks first by a wide margin.

You can draw your own conclusions from this data. Clearly, Gov. Engler has drawn his.

Introducing the plan, Gov. Engler wrote the follow-

Michigan's children are 25 percent of our population — but they are 100 percent of our future. That is why our children deserve the very best we can provide for

To accomplish that goal, I am submitting a farreaching comprehensive plan to improve Michigan's public schools. My plan is centered around four fundamental principles:

- mempowering children,
- mempowering families,
- mempowering teachers,
- mempowering taxpayers.

Children will be helped through the setting of higher, world-class academic standards and greater safety and discipline inside the classroom. A statewide foundation grant will also ensure that each and every child in our state receives the very best education possible.

Families will be helped by giving parents a seat at the table and more input into their child's education. Families will have more choices than ever before, including the choice of charter schools, and a building-bybuilding report card that provides them with performance and quality information on schools in their area.

Teachers will see order and discipline restored to their classrooms, fewer cumbersome rules and regulations, increased professional opportunities, and a greater use of technology to assist them in their efforts to teach

And taxpayers will know that they are getting the most value for their hard-earned money. That includes the largest property tax cut in Michigan history, amounting to billions of dollars. Taxpayers will also benefit from cost containment measures.

(To be continued next week.)

District to consider new policy language

Clarkston schools officials are considering re-wording an existing policy to avoid future dilemmas involving superintendent vehicle purchases.

On Nov. 8, the school board reached a consensus that Policy 6320 be reviewed by the administration, with a recommendation for re-wording to be presented at a future meeting. The topic was brought up by Trustee Bill

This issue stems from the Oct. 11 meeting when two trustees criticized Superintendent Gary Haner for purchasing a truck without consulting the board first. Citing district policy 6320, Trustee Kurt Karlstrom said that competitive bids should've been obtained and presented to the board before the $21,830 purchase took place.

Under the superintendent's contract, Haner is allowed a company vehicle every two years.

Haner said he hadn't followed the policy entirely because of the long-standing history surrounding vehicle purchases and the tradition of purchasing vehicles from local dealer, John Bowman Chevrolet.

The gift

When I interview Clarkston students, we usually talk about their favorite teachers — and I'm happy to report that probably every teacher is named "favorite" by at least

But these students and I also talk about the "best" teacher they've ever had. Often, "best" is not the same as "favorite.

Those most often named "best" usually include only a select few, such as Mrs. Glover, Mr. Mackson, Mrs. Denstaedt and a few others. But one name crops up with such fervency and quickness that this teacher must truly have a gift.

Unwaveringly, if a student has taken world history or media classes at Clarkston High, then he or she names Bill Genshaw as the best teacher.

Since it's National Education Week, it's fitting to talk about him now.

Since he teaches only electives, most students have not taken his classes. I, myself, was in only his media class many years ago.

But the description of him below comes from his world history students, some who are now in college who still call him the best teacher they've ever had.

When describing him, most students begin with the atmosphere.

In Dr. Genshaw's world history class, students know that what he's saying is important, that history is important, that nothing else at this moment is more important.

It begins the second the bell rings. Dr. Genshaw already will have taken attendance, and he closes the door and gets right to the lesson.

He is completely focused. The class is silent, and soon the stories begin. He walks around the room while he talks about Rollo the Berserker, Charlamagne or about World War II. His eyes — while they include everyone in the room — are looking inward. His concentration is complete.

With his words, with his intensity, he makes a person see a Nazi concentration camp, feel the tragedy of all of those lost lives, hear the squeals of bombs in London, and feel the choking sensation of gas.

The students are as intense as he. They forget to take notes. They are not listening this attentively to ensure they'll get an "A" on the quiz coming up. No, they are listening with all of their power because the stories themselves are important. There is truth in these words. There is meaning in these words.

When someone in the hall knocks on the door, the students are as disappointed in the interruption as Dr.

His concentration broken, he storms to the door, throws it open and glares at the intruder, who quickly, timidly finishes business.

Then, it's back to the lesson of the day.

The students in the room vary. This is not a required class, so "brains" sit next to "burn-outs" who sit next to "jocks." But they are all the same to Dr. Genshaw.

Earlier, he would have passed out the previous week's quizzes, handing each paper to each student, with a smile or shake of the head for each, depending on the grade. He expects only the best.

He would be surprised to know that some of his Astudents are D-students in other classes. He only knows that a student who receives a "D" on one of his quizzes did not study. Dr. Genshaw would be very disappointed in such a quiz and would expect the student to perform all the better on the next quiz to compensate.

Between classes, in the crowded hall, students notice when Dr. Genshaw whisks past them. He still is focused inwardly, deep in thought. Some want attention. "Hi, Dr. Genshaw!" they shout. He looks in the general direction of the greeting and smiles. But did he really see them? Does he know their names when they're not in their assigned seats at their assigned hour?

It doesn't matter.

What matters is that they know him and, more importantly, that they remember his words and the lessons he teaches in the too-short period in class.

School board to face bid policy

Remember the conflict over the school superintendent's truck a month ago? The school board deserves credit — members are going to face the issue head on soon. The conflict arose when Clarkston Board of Education trustees Kurt Karlstrom and Janet Thomas protested the district's bills when they discovered that the superintendent had purchased a $21,830 vehicle without board approval and without taking bids, as required by school policy.

Superintendent Gary Haner said he didn't follow the policy because superintendents had never followed the policy in the past, as far as he knew, and no one had ever protested. He explained that the school superintendent — even before his time — normally bought a car from a local dealer, who provides driver education cars for the schools. Further, he said, he bought whichever vehicle the district would need as a "fleet" vehicle in two year's time.

The board — and Trustee Bill Craig — deserve credit for bringing up the policy again. The board asked school administrators to review the district's bid policy. If re-wording is necessary, the administrators are to recommend a change to the school board, which may approve or disapprove policy changes.

So one way or another, the board is to make it clear — for the future — whether or not the superintendent must gain board approval and must let bids for vehicle purchases.

ZBA: Use courage in B&B decision

Sometimes, serving on small-town public boards and commissions is more difficult than serving in larger towns.

No matter how you vote, someone is likely to be unhappy, and that someone is likely to be your neighbor.

With that in mind, we recommend a few tips for Clarkston's Zoning Board of Appeals, which meets at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 23.

On the agenda: the hottest topic since Clarkston's cityhood — a proposed bed and breakfast facility on Main Street.

The ZBA's task: To decide whether a bed and breakfast is more appropriate than a funeral home on the parcel, which is zoned for single-family residential use. The funeral home was operated by the Goyettes under a "grandfather clause" because it had been a business before the land was zoned for single-family use. The new owners — Buck and Joan Kopietz had three choices: Continue funeral operations on the site, use the building and lot as a single-family residence, or use the property for something "more appropriate" than a funeral home.

They chose the latter — and have been denied permission at several steps by Clarkston officials.

One hitch — they needed the ZBA's opinion on the "appropriate" question, but the ZBA never officially voted on it.

This summer, a judge ordered the ZBA to issue a verdict, with full explanation either way.

In our opinion, a bed and breakfast facility would clearly be more appropriate in a residential areathan a funeral home. The B&B — with only a few bedrooms — would generate less traffic, fewer Main Street traffic tie-ups and fewer interruptions at night. Mostly, the three to four cars generated by a B&B would be weekend guests.

Even if the ZBA doesn't agree, it should keep the following in mind. ■ Have courage. It's hard to speak out when next-door-neighbors will be unhappy with your decision. Most will respect you, if you have good reasons to back up your decision.

■ Remember that the issue isn't: "How many people favor a B&B in Clarkston?" Rather the issue is: Would a funeral home or bed and breakfast be more appropriate in the residential Main Street?

■ Don't be confused by people arguing that a decision in favor of the B&B would condemn all of Main Street to convert to such establishments. This is a unique case. It's an existing business in a residential area. If the Kopietzes' neighbors asked to create a B&B, you can tell them no — the circumstances are not the same.

■ Don't let personal feelings about the Kopietzes interfere with this decision. It doesn't matter whether you like them personally or dislike them personally. Your decision will remain, regardless of who owns the building in the future.

■ Most of all, breathe deeply. And know that the meeting will end, and the end will be known.

Hours too short

Imagine, if you will, a department store in a new mall and spending millions of dollars to decorate and stock it, then limiting store hours to 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. four days a week.

What if an auto dealer built a new show room and opened it to the public for three days, and the hours were curtailed those days.

Picture a new supermarket open three or four evenings a week.

Can you imagine fine buildings being built and then stocked, staff and hours being reduced because funds were not available because too much was spent on the structure? Management would look stupid, and rightly so!

Well, that seems to be the situation at the glorious edifice known as the Independence Township Library. We have a marvelous facility with staff cutbacks, book cutbacks and hours of operation cutbacks.

I would say the library is now like a Cadillac with a Yugo motor — all show and no go!

Now, here I am wasting my time penning these thoughts because the library is closed this evening. I'm writing this on Monday, Nov. 8, at 8 p.m. My son called the library at 6:30 p.m. and got a recording saying that hours Monday and Tuesday were 1-9 p.m. We drover over to find a closed library. So here I sit with pen in hand.

This letter is by no means an indictment of the library staff. Those gentle people are most gracious and

Great loss

When Lou (Louis) Goldfaden passed away recently, the Clarkston area lost a great friend.

Lou owned Wonder Drugs at the corner of M-15 and Dixie Highway for years and retired when he sold it. He was very well thought of by his employees and his customers.

He was a great boss. He was easy going and was a good person to work for. He did a lot of behind-the-scenes stuff that people never knew about. He helped people if they couldn't pay, it didn't matter. He hired people if he thought they needed a job.

He considered the personal kind of contact of the people who came in there. He was a one-of-a-kind person and will be missed.

The old home town paper

Jim Sherman

Years ago Edgar A. Guest wrote the poem, "The Hometown Paper." The copyright was held by The Washington Star Syndicate, Inc.

Another poem about hometown newspapers has been in circulation quite some time. The copy I have came from Loretta and Hi Terry from the Hemphill (Texas) Reporter, January 1982.

The Terrys were long-time residents of Leonard. They wrote at the time, "everything stops when the (Leader) arrives until we both have read it."

For those who love to get their hometown newspaper, here's "The Old Home Town Paper."

There's a little town newspaper Which I always like to git; There's a lot of information To be found in readin' it. An' a lot o' wit an' wisdom An' a lot o' good advice, So I never put it by me Till I've read it over twice.

Oh, it tells about the weather an' it tells about the crops;

About staff editorials

We at The Clarkston News realize that an important duty of a newspaper is to provide more than just the facts found in news stories.

Since we're out there uncovering the news, we get an inside look at the issues. In our staff editorials, we will give our opinions on those issues, just as other writing on this page — letters and columns — also offers opinions. We leave the editorials unsigned because we've written them as a staff. Every week, we talk about the issues and take notes on everyone's opinions. Then one of us writes it and the rest of us change it until we're

While our opinions aren't always unanimous, our editorials reflect the majority views of the staff. If the staff splits evenly on an issue, we'll write two editorials on the subject.

We welcome your response to our views.

Same flawed logic keeps coming back

Jim Fitzgerald

No, no, no. No matter how many times sportswriters and broadcasters say it happened, it didn't. By winning the World Series last year and again this year, the Toronto Blue Jays did not win "back-to-back" championships.

Also, there'll never be a prize fight card in which two women will fight a bout "back to back" with a bout between I've preached it before, and I'll have to preach it again, because, when the subject is sports, no one pays any attention to me. I'm not sure why. It probably has something to do with circumstances such as which occurred last week when, in a room full of my relatives and so-called friends, a young, uninformed boy asked if I played on the football team when I attended Michigan State University.

Everyone except the boy fell on the floor laughing, as though the world's funniest joke had been told. I couldn't make my high school football team when only 11 boys and a gimpy cat tried out for it. Even I was convulsed at the suggestion that I might once have had sufficient ability to be categorized with subsidized athletes who attend classes at big-jock universities simply because that happens to be the same place they play football, rather than the vice-versa situation that applies to nontelevised school games and students with identifiable necks and scant muscles.

When I was young enough to play sports that required physical dexterity, if not thick thighs, I was best at jacks. But that didn't stop me from becoming a big enough baseball fan to realize that, no matter what your favorite sports columnist writes, there are never back-to-back batters in the same

"Back to back" is a poker term. If you have the queen of hearts face down under the queen of clubs face up, you have back-to-back queens. They are facing in opposite directions. If they were headed in the same direction, they would be front to back, or back to front.

Visualize a pistol duel. The two participants begin back to back and walk off in opposite directions. If two baseball players batted back to back, one would face the pitcher and the other would face the catcher. Maybe one could run to first base, and the other to third?

The same rational reasoning applies to scheduling. Games played in 1992 are follwed by games played in 1993, with all those games headed in the same direction, toward 1994. So if the Blue Jays win the World Series for two successive years, they win back-to-front championships.

Lord, if Toronto wins again in 1994, you won't say they won back to back to back, will you?

As for prize fights, recently my favorite newspaper contained this paragraph: "In the first female fight at the Palace, (Christy) Martin pummeled Beverly Szymanski in a first-round knockout to the delight of 15,262 fans.

Again, I've preached it before, and I'll have to preach itagain: Professional boxing isn't a sport, it's a sleazy racket based on barbarity. What else can you call a game where the sole objective -- unlike any real sport -- is to make money by knocking your opponents unconscious while the crowd roars for blood? Boxing should be outlawed along with cockfights and feeding Christians to lions.

I've never blamed the fighters for risking brain damage in hopes of winning thousands, maybe even millions of dollars. I might do the same thing if I were muscled and hungry enough. But I've never understood the sappy spectators who pay all those dollars for the pleasure of seeing two men sock each other.

And now we must face the fact that so-called civilized people are also delighted to pay to see two women sock each other.

Rabid feminists might say Onward and Upward, another victory for sexual equality.

I say it's now possible for a mixed pair of socks to score Backward-to-Downward championships. عاجه فضعه بالأطاعة منام فأنوب بغيث الباعثيثان بإستادات والمتراد والإسان

Priceless help

On Friday, Nov. 5, Clarkston Elementary held it's 4th Annual Festival of Science day. A program like this would just not be possible without the help of many volunteers.

Twenty presenters and more than 40 parent volunteers gave their time to organize and work for our students. We cannot put a value on what their volunteer service has meant to us this day. Indeed, it was priceless.

We thank you, one and all, for making a difference in our children's lives.

Public praise well deserved

I just want to thank Neil Wallace for taking the time to write and publicly thank Laith, Robert and John for making their Clarkston market the meeting place that it is.

Going into the store is like a family visit. Robert is never too busy to stop and play with my son. His genuine interest in his customers is what makes shopping in the store formerly owned by Rudy Schwarz one of the best-kept secrets in Clarkston.

As Neil pointed out, we are indeed very lucky to have Robert, Laith and John running the market and for making their store the cheerful meeting place that it is. Kudos to them!

Kid talk Catherine

An almost daily occurrence in our office is the "Cute Kid Story."

Most of the children in my mother's day care can speak and are great fodder for laughs and sweet stories.

Then, there are the children at church who have great lines. And every once in awhile, a great kid story falls into my lap.

For example, I was shopping in a department store for Christmas gifts, and two saleswomen were talking about a child who had been lost that morning.

The lady who found the crying child asked him what his mommy's name was, and the little boy replied, "Mommy."

Trying another approach, she asked, "Honey, what does your daddy call your mommy?"

She said the little boy thought for a second and answered, "The boss."

On the same vein as mommies, one of the 3 (almost 4)-year-olds who my mom watches, had no clue until last week that "Barb" is my mom.

He and I were discussing something, probably whether or not he could watch a videotape, and I said I'd ask my mom.

He furrowed his eyebrows and asked, "Who's your mom?"

I was surprised because he has been coming to our house almost every weekday since he was 8 weeks old. When I informed him that Barb is my mom, he laughed and said I was teasing him.

"If Barb isn't my mom, then who is?" I asked

"I don't know. I'm never here when she picks you up at night," he replied.

On to daddies ... my sister taught Sunday school a few weeks ago and had the 5-year-old class. To protect the innocent child (and her mom and dad), we'll say her name is Jane Smith and her father is George

My sister asked Jane to sit down by saying, "Miss Smith, please sit down,"

Jane told my sister she was not a Smith. My sister explained that because George Smith was her father that made Jane a Smith. Jane then told the class that George was not her father.

Knowing the Smith family quite well, Diane realized this was a stage and played along. She asked Jane who her father was. Jane answered, "God is my father, not George."

Funny how this message got through so clearly, yet "don't hit your brother and sister" takes a lot longer to learn.

Kentucky murder case postponed to January

BY CATHERINE PASSMORE Clarkston News Staff Writer

A Clarkston-area teen accused of the March 25 murder of a Kentucky woman will have to wait until January for his trial to begin.

Kentucky State Trooper Johnny Collins said the capital murder trial of Robert McMahan, 19, resumes Jan. 11, pending the acquisition of out-of-state witnesses.

McMahan is charged with the death of 51-year-old Diana Jean Buamgardner of Smith, Ky. Buamgardner was beaten beyond recognition with table legs, stabbed more than once with a screwdriver, and later doused with kerosene and set on fire.

If McMahan is found guilty of murder, he could face the death penalty.

He is also charged with first-degree burglary, second-degree burglary and first-degree arson. A Pontiac teen, Larry DeClue, is also charged in the murder.

In September, Harlan County Circuit Court Judge Ron Johnson ruled the two teens will be tried separately to ensure a fair trial. He cited the death penalty punishment as the primary reason for the action.

Michael Taylor, McMahan's attorney, told the Harlan Daily Enterprise that efforts to subpoena witnesses from Michigan have been unsuccessful.

Taylor said a third Michigan teen, Donald St. Peter, came to Kentucky with McMahan and DeClue and is crucial in the trial.

St. Peter has refused to voluntarily return to Harlan as a witness.

Witnesses are paid $5 per day plus mileage.

"He was the most crucial of those we subpoenaed," Taylor told the Enterprise. "He wasn't involved with the murder, but he has knowledge of everything up to it and surrounding it."

Also subpoenaed is the chief of police of Waterford, who is asked to provide background records on McMa-

"This is a capital case; the penalty can't be any greater. We can't leave any stone unturned," Taylor told the Enterprise.

City-township contract details to be 'ironed out'

BY DEBORAH DZIEWIT Clarkston News Special Writer

Township and city officials are trying to iron out details of an intergovernmental contract that includes fire protection, library services and a division of assets.

After operating under a verbal agreement for a year, Clarkston and Independence Township officials agree that $270,000 of assets are to be divided between them. They also agree on the city's cost of fire protection and library services, provided by the township.

However, they disagree on the methods and length of payments and have yet to resolve these issues.

Officials from both parties informally met Nov. 5 to "iron out" some of the points of the verbal agreement

"Sometimes it can become a big problem, but with us, there has been no gnashing of teeth."

City manager Art Pappas

that was made during meetings on June 15, 1992, and Nov. 11, 1992, according to Art Pappas, city manager.

After Clarkston became a city, officials agreed that the township owed the city a percentage of its assets since city residents had paid for them out of their township

"The CPA's derived a formula which determined what percentage the township assets that the village residents had paid for," Pappas said.

The township also agreed to furnish fire service at the same rate that township residents now pay.

"The village will pay the equivalent of 3 mills and a 10 percent administrative fee based on SEV's," said Dale Stuart, Independence Township supervisor.

One mill is $1 for every $1,000 in assessed property valuation. In Michigan, property is assessed at half its market value.

For library services, the arrangement is much the same with the 10 percent administrative fee plus 0.7 mill that city residents pay.

However, at the Nov. 8 city council meeting, not all council members agreed on the details of the verbal agreement.

"I have a hard time accepting a 10 percent administrative fee. ... It seems excessive," said councilman Steve Pappas said the 10 percent fee covers hidden charges within the administrative structure that cannot be accounted for directly.

Both sides hold different opinions about the over the length of payments.

City officials said they believed that a four-year payment plan was arranged and agreed upon, while Stuart said the matter was discussed but never agreed upon at the City council members also expressed concern over the millage rate levied vs. the millage rate voted for contract services.

But each agree that the differences can be resolved, including those concerning the method and time of payment, the interest to be charged and questions regarding the safety path.

"Sometimes it can become a big problem, but with us, there has been no gnashing of teeth," Pappas said.

The township agrees. "With discussion, there are ways to resolve it," Stuart said. "All terms and conditions that we agree to and are agreeable will be put in writing."

Schools deemed drug free

From here on out, all buildings in the Clarkston school district have been deemed "drug free school zones."

The school board unanimously approved the new designation Nov. 8.

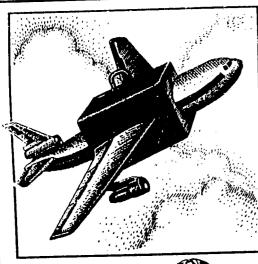

With the passage of this resolution, the board agreed to pay for $35 signs at each site. The money is to come from the district's current building and site budgets.

In addition to the value to local law enforcement, this initiative will also support the health curriculum and D.A.R.E. program, said school officials.

These drug-free zones are a result of Public Act 12, 1988, also known as the Drug Free School Zone Act. It provides for enhanced punishment for drug offenders who distribute to or who use children or who operate near school property.

Block grants: So much money,

BY DEBORAH DZIEWIT Clarkston News Special Writer

Clarkston and Springfield Township officials are trying to find good uses of grant money.

But that's easier said than done. Communities who wish to receive Community Development Block Grant money must meet strict guidelines, according to Steve Brudzinski, public information officer of the Oakland County division of the program.

Brudzinski said Community Development Block Grant money (CDBG), which comes under the jurisdiction of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, can be used:

to help low- and moderate-income people,

■ to prevent or eliminate slums and blight, or

■ to meet an urgent community need.

However, Oakland County communities usually fall under the first qualification.

"The paramount objective is to help low-income to moderate-income people," Brudzinski said. "There are two ways that a community can benefit: 'Areas benefit,' when a whole block or group qualifies' or 'activity benefit,' where individuals qualify under the guidelines.

A block grant can be awarded to a neighborhood if 35 percent of its residents fall under the low-to moderateincome level, which is determined by the U.S. Census Bureau, according to Brudzinski.

In the City of Clarkston ...

Clarkston received notification that it no longer qualifies for area benefits, which would entitle it to use money for projects such as street repair, cutting trees, sewer or water installation.

When it qualified with an area designation —on the west side of North Holcomb Road — the city used some of its money for tree trimming and sidewalk repair, said Art Pappas, city manager.

We can spend it on making the city more handicapped-accessible, such as redoing corners and building ramps," Pappas said.

City councilman Steve Arkwright would like to see a percentage of the $8,000 go toward buying playground equipment and improving Depot Park.

However, Arkwright's proposal met a few stumbling blocks.

Depot Park sits on a "100-year" flood plain, making it ineligible under CDBG guidelines. However, Arkwright said there might be a way around the guidelines by completing eight steps so the park could become eligible for the money.

Arkwright said he hopes to convince the officials who allocate the block money that the park would be a good use for the money.

"We are trying to take these steps now. Improving the park would benefit the entire community," he said.

"If there is no other place the community wants to use the money, we ought to be able to use it there," he said.

Clarkston CDBG hearing

The city council set a public hearing for 7:30 p.m. Monday, Nov. 22, to discuss the park and other possible uses for the money, which is required under CDBG guidelines.

In September, safety officials determined that some of the playground equipment did not meet current safety. standards and was removed.

Arkwright said he and a committee formed to improve the park hope that park not only will meet safety standards but also will meet standards of the American Disabilities Act.

In Springfield Township ...

On the other hand, Springfield received word that a section of the township qualifies under the "neighborhood classification," according to the Census Bureau's 1990 figures

With the new designation, township Supervisor Collin Walls suggested that a portion of the $40,000 it could receive be used to help buy a new fire truck or to make

so few options

improvements on the fire station located within the designated area. However, the township found that the money could not be used in that way.

We thought that the area designated would be eligible for general benefit such as this," said Nancy Strole, township clerk.

"However, under the guidelines we would have to show that the fire truck or improving the fire station would benefit just those in the designated area," she said. "We could not guarantee that, so that proposal ended in File 13 (the wastebasket)."

Springfield CDBG hearing

Since the township board had no other recommendations, nor did residents who attended the Nov. 11 public hearing, a special hearing is to be held at 7:30 Tuesday, Nov. 23, at the township hall. The board and the public are to consider other suggestions for the money's use, Strole said.

Community service

Communities can use up to 40 percent of their allocation toward community service, which includes service organizations. Each community received grant requests from Haven, Northwest Oakland Community Services, and Oakland County Center for Open Housing.

In years past, each community contributed to Lighthouse North, Neighbor to Neighbor and Youth Assistance. Clarkston and Springfield have yet to make a final decision regarding an allocation for the organizations.

In order to be considered for CDBG money, applications must be received by the Oakland County office by Dec. 3 if the communities want to use the money. However, each community has yet to make a decision on what or how to use the money.

Chips flip over local gymnast

BY CURT MCALLISTER Clarkston News Associate Editor

Two years ago, Theresa Campanaro's gymnastics career was in doubt following a serious knee injury.

Today, the Central Michigan University freshman finds herself amember of the most celebrated recruiting class in school history.

Campanaro, a 1992 Clarkston High grad, signed with the Chippewas after coming back from a torn anterior cruciate ligament in December, 1991. Prior to the injury, Campanaro had amassed an impressive resume of gymnastics achievements.

These credits included: sixth place in the all-around Level 10 state championships (1991), second place finishes at the State Judges Cup and Wolverine Classic meets in the all-around (1991), named a 1991 United States Gymnastics Federation regional qualifier, and recognized as a national qualifier by the United States Independent Gymnastics Club (1989-91).

It was these types of accomplishments that first caught the eye of CMU Coach Jerry Reighard.

"Mostpeople might look at her resume and not think twice about it," Reighard said. "But in gymnastics lingo, these are very impressive credits."

Yet, when Campanaro injured her knee on a tumbling exercise, requiring a 13-month layoff, college coaches hedged in pursuing the Clarkstonite.

"Coach Reighard started recruiting me after I came back from my injury," Campanaro said. "He wanted to make sure that I could still perform."

Reighard still saw promise in Campanaro and asked her to come to Central, albeit not on a scholarship.

"We were most concerned with Theresa's injury and how it had set her back, but I knew she still had a great deal of potential that had yet to be tapped," the coach said. "Matter of a fact, she just started practicing without her supportive brace, which is a major accomplishment.

"I see her having a great collegiate career here," Reighard added.

For the past four seasons, Central Michigan has won the Mid-American Conference championship. However, they lost five seniors last year, forcing the coaching staff to recruit on a national level

And what they ended up with was their own version of the "Fab Five." Besides Campanaro, Central was able to sign state champs from Washington, Utah and Michigan. The final freshman was a state runner-up from Illinois.

"We've definitely bolstered our team for the future, but this class could come in and contribute right away," he said. "This team has the potential of making it five (MAC titles)."

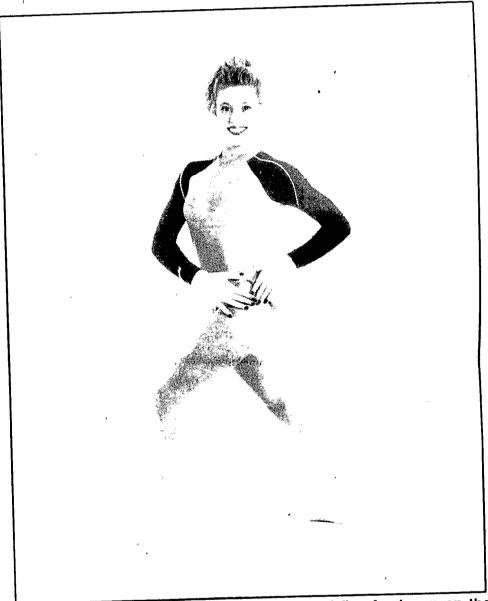

Campanaro, whose competed individually since the age of 10, has had to adapt to a new way of training in college.

"The training has been a lot harder than I expected," she said. "College gymnastics is also more of a team sport, where everyone relies on one another."

When asked if she had any collegiate goals, Campanaro pointed to the MAC

"Besides winning the team title, I want to place in three of four events," she said, naming off the bars, balance beam and floor exercise. "This could be tough, considering the talent on this team."

The Chippewas' season kicks off with an inter-squad meet Dec. 11 in Mount THERESA Campanaro of Clarkston is one of five freshmen on the Central Michigan University women's gymnastics team.

Twelve CHS gridder's named all-league

After claiming a league championship, the Clarkston varsity football team capped off its season by having 12 players earn All-GOAL honors.

Six players were named to the allconference team, while six more received honorable mention status.

The all-conference selections included: quarterback Kevin Dankert, wide receiver Pat Mulligan, tailback Joe Davis, defensive back John Zamora, lineman/linebacker Dion White and nose tackle/kicker Kevin Covert.

Dankert ranked as the league's top passer this season by hitting 99 passes out of 169 attempts for 1,027 yards. The senior threw for eight touchdowns while running for four more, including a two-point conversion.

Mulligan, a senior, was the team's top receiver this year. He snared 28 passes for 306 yards and three touchdowns.

Davis was the GOAL's No. 2 rusher, behind Edwin Watson of Pontiac Northern. The senior rushed for 998 yards on 198 attempts. He scored 11 touchdowns on the ground and one through the air. As a receiver, he caught 13 passes for 145 yards.

Davis set the school record for most carries in a game this season, by lugging the ball 37 times for 217 yards against Lansing Sexton. He also returned three kickoffs for a total of 45 yards.

Zamora ranked third on the team with 24 tackles and was credited with 11 assists. He also recovered one fumble on a blocked punt, which the senior returned for a 38-yard TD.

White anchored the offensive line from his guard position. Defensively, he registered two tackles this year.

Covert recorded 15 tackles, six assists and one fumble recovery on defense. He also booted 11 extra points and two field goals for the Wolves.

Those players named to the honorable mention team included: receiver/defensive back Jeremy Fife, linebacker

Brian Bologna, guard Brett Rebb, tight end/linebacker Rusty Mitcham, linebacker P.J. Vandermeer, and linebacker Mark Kulka.

At the team banquet, several other awards were presented to members of the 6-3 squad. Davis was named the offense's most valuable player, while Zamora was tapped the defensive MVP. Dankert received the Coaches Award for offense, while Covert was given one for his defensive contributions.

Fife received the Heart Award, while tackle Bob Lipinski was cited as the Wolves' top scholar-athlete. The Most Improved Award went to two players, linemen Josh Preston and Joe Naboychik.

'The Fridge' should offer a chilling, thrilling ride

The first refrigerated toboggan slide in the state, "The Fridge," is presently under construction, with an opening date targeted for early 1994.

In August, the Oakland County Parks and Recreation Commission approved construction of site improvements and amenities, including a 4,000-square-foot warming building at Waterford Oaks County

Construction of the two-flume run, refrigeration, and slide platform is under contract to Ice Systems of America.

Toboggans will whisk riders 1,000 feet at speeds up to 30 mph. The Fridge will accommodate 30 toboggans per 10minute period. Each toboggan seats four people.

Individuals will pay one ticket price for unlimited rides. Parking is free.

The 4,000-square-foot warming shelter planned for the site will feature heated restrooms, a fireplace, food concession, an indoor viewing area and an outdoor observation deck.

The park will also offer a children's sledding area. Platform tennis courts (the winter version of tennis) are available at the adjacent Court Games Complex.

Winter special events such as snowshoe races, ice carving and snow sculpture contests, dog sled demonstrations, marshmallow roasts and other family-oriented activities will also be hosted at the tobog-

Money for the $1.7 million project will come from capital improvement dollars set aside over the past four years and a $250,000 grant from the Michigan Recreation Bond Fund. Cost for the project is under the projected estimate of $2 million.

For more information, contact the Oakland County Parks and Recreation Commission at 858-0906.

Kara Glowaz of Clarkston capped her collegiate tennis career at Ferris State University with two more league champi-

The senior captured her second straight singles title in the number four slot when she defeated Amy Cook of Oakland University (6-4, 6-2) in the championship flight. Glowaz later combined with teammate Carol Tawney at No. 3 doubles to earn her second consecutive Great Lakes Intercollegiate Athletic Conference title in doubles

The team of Glowaz/Tawney topped Brenda Patrick and Connie Herman of Saginaw Valley State University (6-1, 6-0) in the finals.

The Bulldogs finished the regular season with a 9-0 record enroute to their 10th straight GLIAC title. FSU also extended its conference dual match streak to 72, a record that dates back to Oct. 15,

Local skiers rank among state's best

Six local youths have been cited by Coca Cola, Inc., for being among the best ski racers in the state.

The Clarkston racers have all been rated in Coke's Jr. NAtional STAndard Race (NASTAR) top-10 rankings for Michigan. These youngsters' race times rank among the best for their individual

The award-winning skiers include: Crissy Jackson (7-9 age group), third in state with a handicap of 27; Matt David Evans (7-9 age group), fifth in state with a handicap of 21; Robert Allyn (10-12 age group), 10th in state with a handicap of 19; Kyle Russell (13-15 age group), fourth in state with a handicap of 7; Paul Rumph (16-20), ninth in state with a handicap of 9; Becky Rumph (16-20), sixth in state with a handicap of 18.

The Rumph siblings registered their times while skiing in Keystone, Colo., while the rest of the skiers participated at the Pine Knob Ski Resort, Independence Township. Handicaps are given to all racers who take part in the public NASTAR races, and skiers can earn gold, silver or bronze medals every day they race. Last season, nearly 300,000 people raced at NASTAR courses across the country.

Clarkston's winning racers turned in their times last season, which ran from November to March.

NASTAR was introduced in the winter of 1968-69 and is recognized as the world's largest and most popular recreational ski racing program. NASTAR is open to the public and is available all season long at Winners are listed on special rankings posters distributed nationwide.

Man awarded elk permit

Homayoun Eghbalian of the Clarkston area recently received a license to hunt elk in northern Michigan.

Eghbalian will have the opportunity to shoot either a male or female elk with his "hunter's choice license." Randomly chosen by the Department of Natural Resources, he's one of 54 Michigan residents to be given this privilege, while 141 other citizens are allowed to shoot only an antierless elk.

This week-long hunt takes place Dec. 7-14. This year's elk hunting areas include: Emmet, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Otsego, Montmorency, Presque Isle and Alpena counties.

The incidence of latex allergy is increasing, especially in health care workers who wear latex gloves. The reactions may range from contact dermatitis to death for anaphylaxis. Once a person becomes allergic to latex, repeated exposures only lead to worse allergic reactions. Persons who are allergic to latex may have reactions to airborne exposures such as being in a room when a balloon is blown up or when another person puts on latex gloves. Latex particles are easily aerosolized. Allergic reactions to latex have occurred after exposure to rubber gloves, condoms, toys, and dental prophylaxis cups.

Nordic ski patrol needs volunteers

Individuals with an intermediate skiing ability and first aid knowledge are needed for the Oakland County Parks' Nordic Ski

The parks are now recruiting volunteers to patrol at Addison Oaks near Oxford and Independence Oaks near Clarkston. Patrollers work four-hour shifts on weekends and holidays.

"The patrol provides first aid and rescue services. Members also educate park visitors about safe skiing conduct," said Ray Delasko, Independence Oaks parks supervisor. "New members are trained with a certified ski patroller and work shifts with that individual until they become both comfortable and knowledgeable with their duties as a nordic ski patroller."

Addison Oaks features more than 12 miles of trails for novice to advanced skiers. Night skiing is offered on a lighted, 1.5mile trail Friday and Saturday evenings and during special events.

At Independence Oaks, skiers can nic trails that are a challenge for novice, intermediate and expert skiers alike. Trails are marked and groomed at both parks. Additionally, the sites offer rental ski equipment, concessions and heated areas for respite from the cold.

Oakland County Parks also offer marked trails (not groomed) for skiing at four golf courses, including White Lake Oaks near Pontiac, Glen Oaks in Farmington Hills, Red Oaks in Madison Heights and Springfield Oaks in Springfield Town-

In exchange for 40 hours of service, volunteers receive an annual Oakland County Parks' vehicle sticker good for entry to Addison Oaks, Independence Oaks, Groveland Oaks near Holly, Orion Oaks in Orion Township and Lyon Oaks in Lyon Township.

Individuals interested in joining the Nordic Ski Patrol can call Independence Oaks at 625-0877 for more information.

Lapeer East uses height to knock off hoopsters

BY CURT MCALLISTER Clarkston News Associate Editor

It was a classic matchup of David versus Goliath, as Lapeer East tussled with diminutive Clarkston Monday night.

However, in the end, the Eagles stood tall as they knocked off the pesky Wolves, 59-52, in the first-round of districts.

In a battle of size against speed, the host Eagles pounded the ball inside to their front court players, while Clarkston scored from the perimeter. East owned a 30-19 halftime lead, but the Wolves stood fast, slowly chipping away at the deficit.

With four minutes remaining in the fourth quarter, the Wolves had pulled to within four points of the Eagles, due to some deft three-point shooting from Laura Seitz and Anne Brueck.

Sensing a shift in momentum, East went back to its inside game, which was anchored by 6-2 center Amanda Behrenbrinker. The all-state candidate scored a majority of the Eagles' points down the stretch to seal the victory.

CHS Coach Larry Mahrle said Behrenbrinker's play late in the fourth quarter proved to be the difference in the

"At one point, with us down by four, Behrenbrinker got three consecutive offensive rebounds before finally scoring," he said. "They just happened to get some crucial rebounding at the right time. They're a very good team."

Behrenbrinker paced the Eagles (20-1) with 21 points and 17 rebounds.

Clarkston (12-9) was led by Brueck with 18 points, including four treys, and five steals. Fellow senior Laura Seitz added 12 points, while Kerry Kelly and Shawna Greene dumped in seven apiece. Kelly was also CHS' top rebounder with

Despite the loss, Mahrle said he was proud of his team's resiliency.

"This game was indicative of the way they played all season; never giving up, he said.

Prior to districts, the Wolves had run their winning streak to three, with a pair of victories last week. CHS defeated Waterford Mott, 46-44, and Pontiac Central,

Against the Corsairs, Clarkston was led by Laura Seitz with 11 points and Erin Patterson with 10. Versus the Chiefs, the Wolves again were paced by Seitz and Patterson with 15 and 12 points

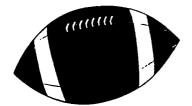

Mahrle said his team's overall record is a bit deceiving, considering that the largest margin of defeat was a mere six points to Waterford Kettering.

"A few breaks, here and there, and I feel we could've had an outstanding record, but that's basketball," he said. "This team lost six seniors to graduation last year, forcing us to go to a smaller, quicker lineup. But there was never a game that we were out of, which speaks a lot for the girls' character.'

He Never Turns Away

They come to him for help when they need it the most. Some numbed by their loss, some shattered, they say:

"This is someone we loved. We entrust him to you." And even when he's faced with the crumpled innocence of the youngest asking, "Why?"-and he has to find childlike words to answer a question that even theologians struggle with-he never turns away.

He gives them the consolation of tradition.

He shows them how to accept their tragedy with dignity.

He helps them cope with their grief.

He guides them back to the active world of the living.

He is a funeral director. He practices the most emotionally demanding and least understood of all the professions.

He faces up to traumas every day that most people only have to deal with once or twice in a lifetime.

He would never turn away. He has earned the deepest thanks from anyone who has ever leaned on his compassion for support. Who turned to him and found that he would never turn away.

Marketing mayhem

JESSICA GILLIS laughs as she throws a pie in the face of Daniel Manthei, principal of Oakland Technical Center-Northwest. The pie served as a reward for students after a fund-raiser for UNICEF. Marketing students offered 16 buckets—each named for a staff member. Students put money into the bucket of their choice. Manthei and Doug Pierson, assistant principal, "earned" the most money and a pie in their face. Maria Foster, teacher of the marketing class, said students raised $156 for UNICEF. Board nixes Tindall Road paving due to costs

BY DEBORAH DZIEWIT Clarkston News Special Writer

Some Tindall Road residents got their wish after the Springfield Township Board decided not to pursue paving the gravel road.

The board decided the project was too expensive after it received a $38,794 engineering bid for the first stage. That included a topographical survey, existing right of way, easement lines and grading limits.

Last month, the board asked Orchard, Hiltz & McCliment, Inc., to outline the costs to reconstruct and to pave Tindall Road. The Road Commission asked the township for the information after an October meeting with township Supervisor Collin Walls.

Many Tindall Road residents opposed the project. In a special meeting in August, those opposed did not want to see the road widened, fearing the road would become a superhighway for gravel trucks and speeders. Other reasons for not paving the road included loss of frontage and cost to residents.

However, some said they would agree to the project if the road did not have to meet the road commission's 60-foot right-of-way standard.

But in the end, board members could not justify

"I personally do not see a reason to gamble $38,000 on this project," Walls said. "Even if we went ahead and had the topographical work done, it would not guarantee that the road commission would agree to change the

Those who favored the project will be sent a copy of the engineering firm's estimates and other material relating to paving the road, Walls said.

If those residents decide to pursue paving on their own, they must turn in a petition and go through public hearings before the board can make a decision.

If this project is to go forward, those who are in favor must collect signatures from 51 percent of those who live on Tindall Road, Walls said.

Recollections

AUDREY JOCKWIG, 90, was a guest speaker at Andersonville Elementary Nov. 5, when she was invited to talk to students in Gloria Lacey's third-grade class. That day, the elderly Lapeer Township resident, who is the grandmother of teacher Jessie Hirr, reminisced with students about life in the 20th century. Jockwig spoke of her rural

Young leaders tackle tough problems at Summit

BY KIMBERLY DEACON AND JULIE DRALLOS

On Friday, Nov. 12, students in the Interact Club at Clarkston High and six other schools in southeastern Michigan participated in a Youth Summit.

Sponsored by United Way, the Summit's purpose was for students who displayed leadership qualities to work together and come up with new ideas to help solve problems of negative peer pressure and stress. Working together, we developed new programs and ideas to present to the Board of Directors at United Way.

Activities included in the Summit lock-in were raffles, recreational sports, games and guest speakers, including Lomas Brown of the Detroit Lions and Hayes Jones, an Olympic gold medalist.

Being with other students provided an opportunity to learn about other ways of life and discuss social issues facing teens today.

The lock-in was coordinated by Michael Martinez, Jackelyn DeJesus and members of United Way Youth Advisory committee: John MacLachlan, Trevor Sanford, Kathryn Tovar and Michael Vickers. The students' ideas will be presented to the directors at the next meeting. Hopefully, they will be taken into consideration and given funds to develop more programs targeting youth.

Overall, we felt the Summit was well organized and provided a basis for channeling new ideas, learning more about the problems kids face today, and speaking out and being heard.

Kimberly Deacon and Julie Drallos are freshmen at Clarkston High School.

Sixth-graders learn about selves, world through sculpture

BY DEBORAH DZIEWIT Clarkston News Special Writer

Sixth-graders in an exploratory art class are getting a little extra enrichment this year.

With the cooperation of art teacher Sally Lindeman and Principal Vince Licata, two artists - Marianne Bernard and Annette Fisher — are showing students different art media that the schools are unable to provide in regular classes.

The Clarkston Middle School sixth-graders were split into four groups, with each marking period kicking face they wanted to create, usually starting with the nose. Bernard reminded students that while they were free to experiment, they should remember that clay is a three-dimensional medium. Bernard said she hopes that by working with clay or the other media the students will use, students will walk away and look at people differently

Students will go away not thinking that features are perfect," Bernard said. "But whatever they chose to do, (See SCULPTURE, Page 7B)

Students are given two days of instruction and time to complete their "portraits," which is the theme for the year-long project.

The first group of students began with clay, with later groups trying out ink, block printing and and drawing as a way to make their portraits.

Students started out with softball-size brown blobs of clay, where Bernard and Fisher suggested they mold the clay into disk shapes.

'Don't hate the clay," Bernard said.

Once they had their disks ready, students kneaded and pulled the disks into a shape they thought suited the

The Clarkston Foundation began in 1989 by community residents who saw that money was needed for worthwhile projects in science, arts and other

The primary goal of the foundation is to provide specific grants for arts, sciences and other programs that can be offered to students. The programs otherwise would not take place due to lack of money, according to Bob Olsen, president of the foundation.

The foundation — which began with a negative balance — now has close to $40,000 to use to provide educational opportunities for students in the Clarkston area. The foundation's fund-raisers earned that amount. The foundation gave $6,223 — so far — for the Wilfred J. "Bill" Revoldt, 78, of Clarkston died Nov. 11, 1993.

Mr. Revoldt was retired from Square D. Electric and was a member of the Waterford Eagles Aerie #2887. He was an avid bowler and bowled in the Young At Heart and the Centurial Kegglers leagues.

He is survived by his wife, Leona; son, James; stepson, Marvin and his wife Maxine Kipp; nine grandchildren; 18 great-grandchildren; and sisters, Gladys Demeter and Ruby Garfield.

The funeral took place Nov. 13 at the Lewis E. Wint and Son TRUST 100 Funeral Home, Clarkston, with the Rev. Richard C. Nelson officiating.

Burial was at White Chapel Cemetery, Troy.

Memorial contributions may be made to Hospice of Southeastern Michigan or a charity of choice.

Recipe corner

Nutty and nice

This fowl is more than fair. It's nutty and nice, for dieters and others, when you pour pistachio sauce over the chicken.

Pistachios are high in fiber and low in saturated fat -- and contain no cholesterol. This recipe uses them to add a unique taste to chicken.

CHICKEN WITH CALIFORNIA PISTACHIO SAUCE

Makes four servings 2 whole chicken breasts, skinned, boned and halved 1/4 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper

1 tablespoon oil

1/2 cup orange juice

2 tablespoons water

2 teaspoons balsamic vinegar 2 green onions, thinly sliced

1/4 cup coarsely chopped, natural California pista-

Pound chicken breasts to 1/2-inch thickness. Season with pepper. Saute in oil 2 t 3 minutes on each side, or until browned. Add orange juice, water and balsamic vinegar and simmer covered for 10 minutes. Remove chicken to a platter and keep warm.

Add green onions and pistachios to pan and cook over medium heat until slightly thickened. Pour the sauce over chicken and serve.

Essay wins top award in nation writing.

her efforts.

Shylynn L. Jones

Her essay, "What Living in America Means to Me," was named best essay in the nation by the American Legion Auxiliary National Americanism

Committee in Pittsburgh, Pa. Jones, 15, also won honors in local and state competitions before earning the top award in the nation.

Her essay follows.

What Living in America Means to Me By Shylynn L Jones

Living in American means a lot to me. I know of the sacrifices our veterans made to keep American free, and I think that is one of the reasons I like living in America; I have rights, and I am free.

I have freedom of speech, freedom of religion and the right to bear arms to protect my family and self. In America, if things are not the way you want, you have the right to protest or write your Congress or Senate to change

I wrote to complain about the flag issue. Even though I am not old enough to vote, I know my letters could help to stop the burning of the flag.

Without the men and women who fought for this country, all our freedom would be gone - and that thought scares me the most.

Living in America means I can become a doctor or lawyer or even the president of the United States. Being an American means the door of opportunity is open to me. All I have to do is study and work hard, and I can be anything I want to be.

I see on the news, all the time, about this or that country at war and about the unrest overseas. That is when I am really glad to be living in America. I know we have our homeless and hungry here, but there are so many people and volunteers to help them. I am not saying those people do not suffer, but in other countries, I believe there is a lot more suffering. I saw pictures of starving children and adults that made me sick. So that is another reason I am glad to be an American because, at least here, there is help if you ask.

Another reason I am glad to be living in America is I can go outside and play in the parks or take my little brother for a walk. Even though there is danger, I have never been shot at or had much to worry about.

My father is in the U.S. Navy. That in itself has let me see a lot of America and the different cultures. Americans are people from all over the world whose ancestors or themselves have come to the greatest country in the world to live, and they brought some of their ancestry with them. But no matter what your culture or ancestry, if you work hard and study hard, you can be successful.

So in summary, what living in America means to me is I am free, and I can have all the success I earn. In America, I can love who I want, no matter what color, and believe in the God I choose. Living in America means freedom and peace to me.

everyone is successful wherever they go with their piece of work."

Students' inspiration came from many sources. "My dad loves to collect clowns, so I thought I would make him a clown face," Jeff Callees said. For another it was pure emotion as she pulled and pinched a woman's face out of the brown clay.

"This began with a feeling. Yesterday people were bugging me, and it made me so angry," Tiffany Shaver said.

Fisher and Bernard offered students different tools to experiment on their portraits, including a garlic press, which made thin strands of clay for hair and beards. Other kitchen tools included cheese shredders, slotted spoons and toothpicks.

Bernard, who wrote the application for the grants, said she hopes this experience opens the students' eyes to the world of art.

"This is a safe place to take risks by making something permanent," she said. "It is a lot of risk to do something like this, and everybody sees it — but there is no grade and no awards, so everyone is successful."

To offer the program, the school received a $500 grant from Very Special Arts Michigan and $400 from the Clarkston Foundation. The money pays for artists' fees and material costs.

"The purpose is to make arts available to all people, regardless of any disabilities, so this general education program can benefit everyone," Bernard said.

The goals include support of programs in dance, drama, literary arts, music and visual arts and to use artsrelated activities to integrate persons with and without

The Clarkston Foundation (see related story) supported the project for many of the same reasons.

"We are a group of citizens who try to provide educational special opportunities for children in arts and sciences," said Bob Olsen, president of the foundation. "Or anything non-regular that the schools would be unable to fund. ... It's our way to tell the children that we

Whooping cough incidents on rise

Incidents of whooping cough or pertussis have been on the rise since the beginning of 1993.

Pertussis is one of the vaccine preventable childhood diseases in which unvaccinated infants and children are those who are most at risk.

The disease begins with an irritating cough that turns into spasms of coughs in a few weeks. A high pitched "whoop" develops which can last for weeks. Other symptoms include cyanosis or blue spells, vomiting and difficulty breathing after a coughing spell. Pneumonia and death can result.

Health officials said that infants should be given the complete set of shots, which begin when they reach 2 months. The pertussis vaccine is given with diphtheria and tetanus vaccines in one shot. The child receives the next shot at 4 months, then 6 months and the last when he or she reaches 15 to 18 months. When the child reaches kindergarten age, a booster shot will be given.

Your schools: An inside view

Her father taught independence, self-motivation

SOME MAY recognize Trudy Locher's voice she's the announcer at Clarkston track meets. The school secretary also fits in classes at Oakland Community College.

Name: Trudy Locher

Family members: Sons, Chris, Jeff and Stephen and daughter, Heather.

Residence: Clarkston resident for 27 years.

Job title: Secretary at Clarkston Elementary School. Job duties: Secretary to the principal, student services, purchasing and receiving, typist for Autistic Program, receptionist, clerk, nurse, mother, etc.

Volunteer activities: Clarkston Athletic Booster member, track announcer

Biggest challenge at work: Trying to get everything down with high efficiency and good quality.

Favorite part of job: Dealing with the students and parents is my favorite perk of this job. I have met wonderful people and created friendships with families. The kids make you feel special.

Favorite sport: Track

When not working, may be found: Attending Oakland Community College, at football games and just around town. If I had three wishes: 1. Good health and prosperity for my children; 2. More hours to my days; 3. More money! Last book read: "Principles of Management" — required for my management course. Best advice: Don't tell me not to burn the candle at both ends — tell me where to get more wax!

Worst advice: Take your time — it will all get done. Ten years from now: I hope to have my degree in office administration and be an office manager.

On my first day of school I remember: Working in the school teachers' lounge because they were remodeling the office. I was unsure of myself, didn't know what to do, and received special help from Bill Potvin.

Most admired person: Rosemary Lewis — she is the most kind, caring person I know. Rosemary knows the meaning of friendship and always makes others feel

Person, book, event, etc., that most influenced special. me: My father taught me to be independent and selfmotivated. If you want something, don't be afraid to try. Favorite saying about children or education: Give a little love to a child and you get a great deal back.

Other: During the last 10 years as a secretary at Clarkston Elementary, I have seen the dedication of the teaching and support staff. The many extra hours that they put in on a day-to-day basis is something that isn't commonly known by the community. Teaching doesn't stop once the children go home. Lesson plans need to be drawn up, books in the library need to be catalogued, student information needs to be inputed into the computer, and much, much more.

As a parent you don't always see the whole picture. As an employee you do. This makes me appreciate all those people who are connected with Clarkston schools and the educational field.

CITY OF THE VILLAGE OF CLARKSTON

375 DEPOT ROAD CLARKSTON, MI 48346 City Council Meeting November 8, 1993

The meeting was called to order by Mayor Catallo at 7:40 p.m. followed by the pledge of allegiance. Roll: Present: Arkwright, Basinger, Catallo, Roeser, Sanderson, Secatch.

Absent: Schultz.

Arkwright and Basinger were given the Oath of Office and were sworn in as Council Persons for a term of two years expiring in November 1995. The Council extended their congratulations to the two returning council members. Schultz will be sworn in at the next

Moved by Arkwright, supported by Secatch, "That the agenda be approved with the additions of Asset Division and Contracts and Robert Reznick the new police hire." Motion carried.

Moved by Sanderson, supported by Basinger, "That the bills submitted for the month of October, totaling $20,056.60 be approved for payment." Roll: Yeas-6, Nays-0. Motion carried

Basinger expressed concern about the alley behind the Calrkston Cafe, that there is a blind spot at the corner of the alley and where it exits on to East Washington. Many members of the council agreed that this was a dangerous intersection particularly for people using the sidewalk. Basinger suggested that this alley be made one way exiting only to the south onto Church Street. This was referred to Chief Devore Pappas recommended that the leaf bags be sold at cost next year. Council members indicated that this was a reasonable suggestion.

will send a thank-you note to Bob Glover and Sharon Catallo for the Halloween safe driving sign which they donated to the

Susan Basinger met with the Council regarding proposed changes in the Historic District Ordinance. Mrs. Basinger indicated there had been modifications made to a historic farm house on South Main Street. The original windows were replaced with smaller windows. On this particular home the type of window is one of its only distinguishing characteristics and to make this type of change may keep it from being designated a contributing structure to the historic district. Our current ordinance does not address making changes such that the windows or doorways would be made smaller. Mrs. Basinger indicated that the entire Historic District Commission is disturbed by these changes and are concerned preserving the architectural integrity of other historic homes in the community. She indicated that the Commission is now using Federally established guidelines and standards in evaluating changes that are proposed by the homeowners of historic homes. These guidelines and standards are more restrictive than our current ordinance. The Commission tries to persuade homeowners to comply with the Federal guidelines and standards but without changes in the ordinance the architectural integrity of the historic home is at risk. Members of the Commission would like the Council to consider changing the ordinance to restrict the use of siding materials on the street facing facade of historic homes. The Council will review materials prepared by Mrs. Basinger and will discuss the possibility of changing the ordinance at the next meeting.

Pappas indicated that he checked with our insurance company about using students from the Youth Assistance program in community service. The insurance company indicated this was not a problem.

The students are referred to Youth Assistance for non-violent problems and are not felt to be a threat to the community. The students community service would involve such things as weed pulling and street sweeping. They would be under the supervision of the DPW Pappas indicated that he spoke with our engineer, Gary Tressel, to get an estimate on the cost of extending the Independence Township water main throughout the Village and providing the community well water to all Village residents. Tressel estimated it would cost between three and four million. George Anderson from Independence Township estimated the cost at two and a half million. The Council decided to hold a public hearing on the matter in February. Notices will be sent out with the next sewer bill. This issue will need to be resolved by a special election.

The issue of asset division with Independence Township and the contracting for fire protection and library services remain unresolved. The Council believes that an agreement had been reached and approved by both boards at meetings held on June 15, 1993 and November 11, 1993. Notes taken at the township/city meeting held on November 5, 1993 indicate discrepancies in what our City Council understood the agreement to be. The delay in receiving a written agreement from the Township is holding up our audit report. We are currently waiting for this proposed contract from the Township, When this agreement is received the Council will address any discrepancies and concerns with the Township Board. These concerns are in the areas of the millage rate levied vs. the millage rate voted for contract services, the additional 10% administrative fee for these services, the terms under which the City's assets will be repaid; what is the period of time in which this debt will be repaid and what is the rate of interest which will be paid upon this debt, information is needed detailing the costs of the White Lake Road safety paths and reclarification of the previous contract regarding repayment of this debt by the City.

Resolved by Roeser, supported by Sanderson, "That the $771.00 that the City of the Village of Clarkston receives through the SMART program be allocated such that $386.00 be allocated to Independence Township for the senior citizen transportation and $385.00 be allocated to the SCAMP program to provide transportation." Roll: Yeas-Pappas indicated that our CDBG application is due December 1 6, Nays-0. Resolution 1993. There is $8,000 to be allocated and a maximum of 40% can be used for community services. Arkwright indicated he would like to see the money used in the playground improvement project. Arkwright has been in contact with the people who administer this project for the county. Depot Park is in a flood plain and therefore is ineligible for use of CDBG funds in this location. There are steps that need to be gone through to be able to use this money in this location. The American Disabilities Act requires that parks and playgrounds be accessible to the physically challenged. Arkwright is proposing that the CDBG funds be used to fund new playground equpiment that can be used by all children, physically challenged and able bodied. Selander Miller is meeting with the sales person for the playground equipment who is assisting the committee in equipment selection and the development of the plan. This meeting will take place this week and the equipment selected will meet the ADA guidelines. The Council will hold a public hearing on the use of the CDBG funds at the November 22, 1993 meeting as stipulated by the CDBG Administration to circumvent the flood plain restrictions.

The issue of extending vacation benefits to part-time DPW workers was tabled until the next meeting.

Arkwright indicated that Chief Devore had hired a new part-time police officer, Robert Reznick. Moved by Roeser, supported by Sanderson, "That the meeting be adjourned." The meeting was adjourned at 9:55 p.m. Jeanne Selander Miller

Store owner celebrates 20 years of business

BY CURT MCALLISTER Clarkston News Associate Editor

Over the past 20 years, the Clothes Tree has been party to recessions, a burglary and two years worth of construction on Dixie Highway.

Yet, despite these hardships, Anna Morgan's business remains one of the area's most popular clothing stores.

The Clothes Tree was originally the brainchild of former Independence Township resident Juanita LePere, who opened the store on S. Main Street in summer 1973. Morgan, an Independence Township resident, was hired as a sales clerk, after serving a short stint at the now defunct Alvin's clothing store in Pontiac.

Four months later, Morgan bought the store from LePere, who decided to spend more time with her family. After the purchase, Morgan admits that she was a little overwhelmed by her new enterprise.

"Coming in, I knew absolutely nothing about business or buying in general," she said. "So I just dove in, hoping to learn as I went along.'

Among these new responsibilities were her trips to Detroit, where she'd order various lines of clothes from pushy salespeople.

"I really had a hard time picking up on the jargon of the business from these hard-selling sales people," she said, smiling. "But, today, I can relish in the fact that I've outlasted all of these sales people and most of their companies."

After surviving a recession in the mid-1970s, brought on by the Middle East Oil Embargo, the Clothes Tree was struck by tragedy in 1980. Morgan's store fell victim to a full-fledged burglary, which nearly wiped her out finan-

Morgan, now of Waterford, said she contemplated closing the Clothes Tree until her sister-in-law, Betty Bell, donated the money necessary to re-open the business and move it to the Waterfall Plaza, Waterford.

ANNA MORGAN, 59, is passing the 20-year mark as owner of the Clothes Tree, which

Following five successful years, Morgan doubled the size of her store in 1986. She was ready for continued prosperity, but two obstacles cropped up in 1987 — a stock market crash and the widening of Dixie Highway.

Morgan said the latter almost did her in.

"The widening project was devastating to all the businesses along Dixie because it took so long to complete," she said.

Yet the Clothes Tree persevered. Today, Morgan has reduced the store's size to cut costs. With the reduction of space, the store now resembles the same business she initially moved into in 1981.

"The customers seem to like our new look because it's cozier," she said.

Despite these recent renovations, the Clothes Tree's interior is still adorned by numerous photos of Morgan's family, which remain a topic of conversation.

"A lot of customers have commented on my shelf full of pictures," she said. "They like the shelf because it gives the store a personal touch."

This is also evidenced by a large, framed photo of Morgan's 2 1/2-year-old granddaughter, Helen Jackson, which hangs above the cash register.

Exterior-wise, the Clothes Tree is adorned by a piece of nostalgia — the original store sign designed by LePere.

Morgan credits her staff of three employees for the success of her business.

"I wouldn't be able to run the store without the staff I have here. They're like family," she said of the trio, who've logged a total of 28 years working at the Clothes

Looking back, Morgan said she'd take the chance of becoming entrepreneur all over again.

"I wouldn't change a minute of my life," she said. "With each setback, I've grown and become a better person, and I think the business has improved as well."

Pride in our ancestral ties often leads us on trails that cost more and more as we pursue the efforts required to document the relationship (or kinship).

Those dedicated to recording their findings for future generations will find mixed blessings as the revelation comes that not all were "heroes or heroines."

More than likely, the long lost, or hard to find family link can be located in the unlikely places such as church directories (membership lists often include pictures, school annuals or student rosters) and newspapers.

Few people realize that a letter to a library will usually result in a reply informing the writer of the existing newspapers on file. The earliest newspapers were weekly editions that carried "happenings" for all the area communities, and reported local news of its people, as well as state and national news, but especially the advertising of local merchants, doctors, lawyers and "legals" from the courts.

Oakland County was once half the size of the lower peninsula, believe it or not, but would explain why the very, very early folks could be hard to find in the county as we envision it today. With records officially beginning to be kept in 1867, we learned that many of those records were not forced to be turned in, so here again, the newspapers are

The Pontiac Area Historical and Genealogical Society is once again offering its Pioneer Settlers' Certificate if your family was in Michigan before 1887. At $5 per certificate, these make excellent gifts for about everybody, from grandchild to "shirttail cousins."

Documentation required would be birth, death certificates, marriage records, showing lineage from applicant to "settler," with access to documentation submitted previously, and on file, if certificates have been issued to folks sharing family ties.

So many letters received in the 12 years of writing Heritage Hunt now provide answers that have been found. and we are in the process of organizing these letters by year, alphabetically (by writer's name). If you still need information, and wrote previously, let us know - there are lots of answers to be found.

We need your input as to where we can best serve your area of search, within our own collection of material.

THE VOLVO 940. AFFORDABLY PRICED AT $22,900.

(LEISCOPETHEYDON'TSETHEAD)

While keeping up with the Joneses may not be your main occupation in life. it's certainly nice to know you're driving a car whose assumed value far exceeds its price. Given the 940 Sedan's long list of amenities and standard safety features (anti-lock brakes, driver and passenger side supplemental restraint system with dual air bags), such a perception hardly seems surprising. So why not see us for a test drive? We won't say anything if you won't. VOLVO Drive safely.
