Engler touts 'A' in Oakland County

A full house of about 300 Oakland County residents, businessmen and government leaders heard Governor John Engler extoll the virtues of Proposal A Feb. 17 in Rochester.

Calling it a less-than-perfect plan, Engler said voters must decide between a higher income tax and a higher sales tax on the March 15 ballot, and not get distracted by outside issues not directly related to the finance plan.

"I think for a long time in Michigan we've had a property-tax burden that's excessive, out of control," he said. "What took place in 1993 was fundamental change . . . the most sweeping change in a century in Michigan. There were times it was so tough I wasn't sure we were going to get it finished."

After brief remarks, Engler took questions from the crowd, which grilled him on the specifics of the ballot plan. He was also challenged by the Oakland County Taxpayers Association, which accused him of backing away from campaign promises, and by a West Bloomfield woman on the topic of outcomes-based education.

Engler announced that a proposed tax on real-estate transfers had been reduced by the legislature, from two percent down to .75 percent. That brought a sigh of relief from real-estate people.

There was some upbeat economic news as well. Engler announced that the state recorded a surplus in 1993 of $212 million, "which we didn't spend. We put it in the Rainy Day Fund." That's up from a $1.8 billion deficit in 1991.

'There's only one cloud on the horizon, and that's to make the wrong choice on March 15.'

Governor John Engler

"And that was accomplished with no reduction in the education budget during that period," he said. "We reduced state agencies and shrunk government."

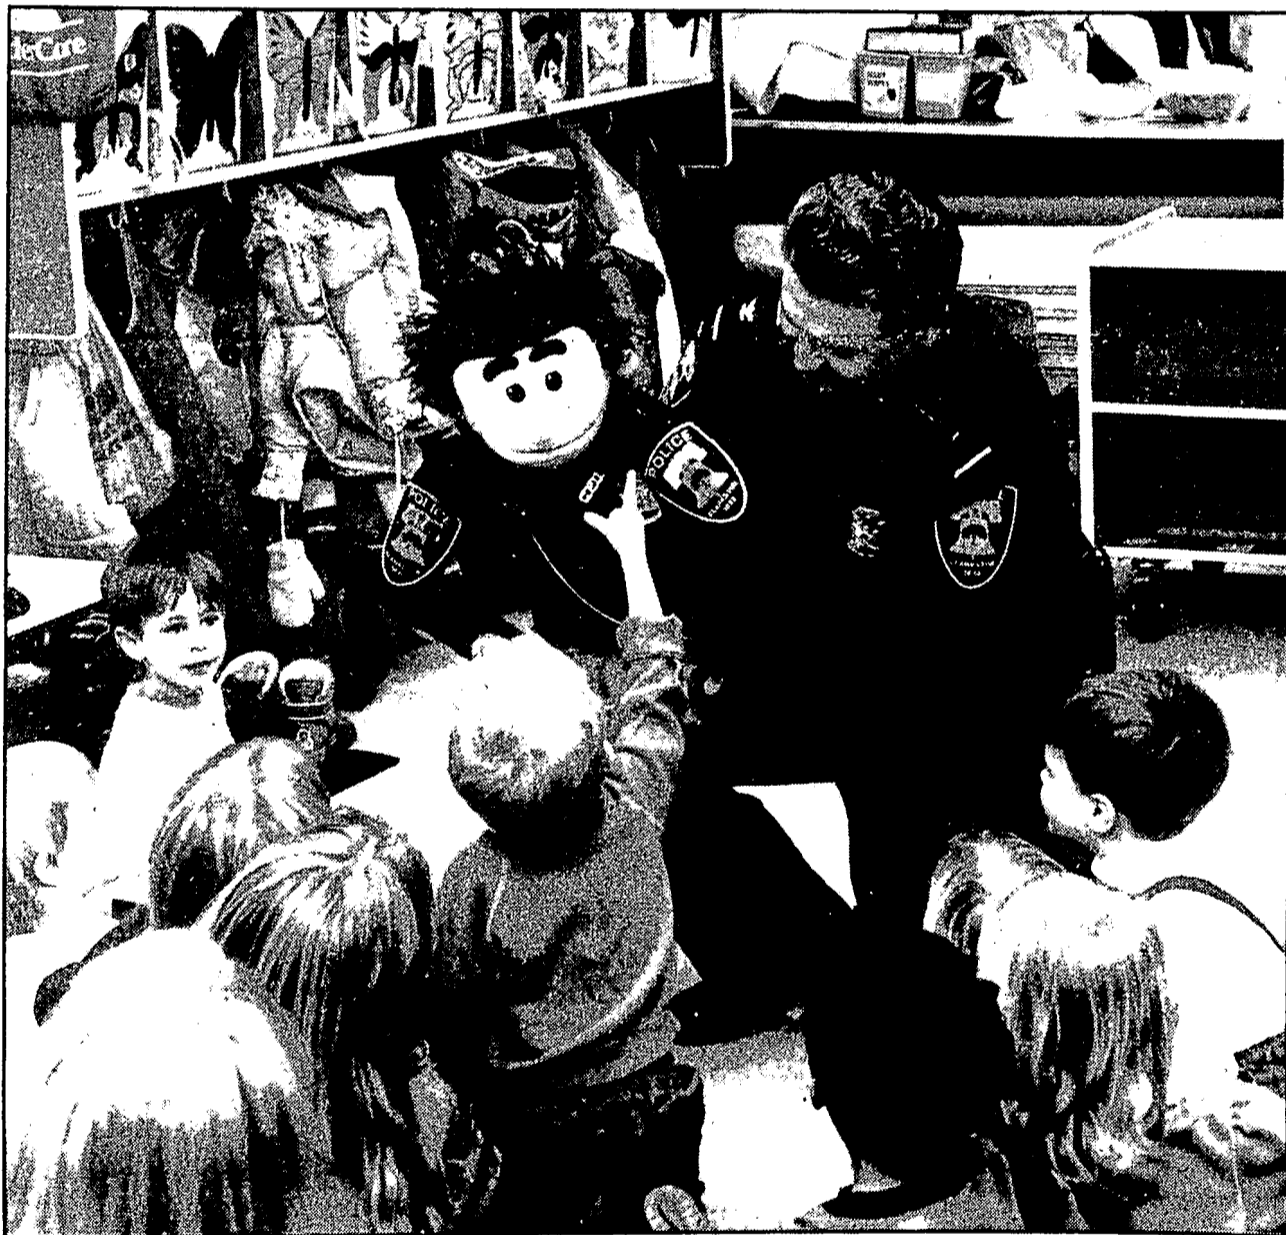

Engler said he favors Proposal A over the backup plan because it will make Michigan more competitive economically in the Midwest and the world.

"We've tried proposals in the past. What happened in 1993 was an opportunity to start from scratch, so that's what we did," he said. "There were times we said if we could just get a 20 percent (assessment) cut through. Then people pointed out well, what if assessments go up 10 percent this year and 10 percent next year? So we went for an 80 percent cut."

Engler said Proposal A offers the best protection for taxpayers because it includes an assessment cap and dedicates the sales-tax increase specifically to education. Both are guaranteed by the state constitution.

However since the backup plan is not a constitutional amendment, its provisions are subject to change if the need arises or the political climate changes. He also said the backup plan is bad for the economy.

"No economist has stood up and made the case that higher incomes tax is the way to go," he said. And he admitted after the speech that the backup plan could indeed be found unconstitutional if challenged in court, as promised by Taxpayers United.

Clarkston's chief of police Robert DeVore and his puppet Herbie show KinderCare children that there is nothing to fear.

Herbie lends a helping hand

Police officers can be your friend is the message that Clarkston's police chief Robert DeVore and his puppet Herbie demonstrate to children at the KinderCare Learning Center on Airport Road.

DeVore takes Herbie, who is dressed in a Clarkston police officer uniform, on the road with him when he visits classrooms in the area.

"The idea is to make children not afraid of us and that we are their friends," DeVore said.

The chief warned the children to seek help only from officers who are wearing uniforms. He also asked them if they knew the definition of a stranger. They all agreed that strangers were people they did not know.

DeVore showed the 3- to 11-year-old children the equipment an officer normally carries including handcuffs, whistle, baton, radio and a gun.

Equipment failure puts Sashabaw in the dark

A malfunction in some pole-top equipment is blamed in a power outage affecting Detroit Edison customers Sunday morning. According to an Edison spokesman, power ceased for about 1,400 customers along Sashabaw Rd. between Clarkston and Maybee roads at 8:55 a.m. It was restored at 1 p.m.

College jobs on June ballot

When voters go to the polls in the regular June 13 school election, they will be voting for two seats on the Oakland Community College Board of Trustees. Anyone interested in the six-year seats must file a nominating petition by April 11. Call 540-1540 for more information.

Affidavit deadline may be extended

After creating a near-panic among residents and local assessors, the legislature is taking action to extend the deadline for filing a new homestead affidavit.

A bill to extend the March 1 deadline to May 1 passed the Michigan House Taxation Committee Feb. 16. It was expected to be taken up by the full House Feb. 22, where overwhelming approval was expected.

The affidavit is required under a proposed new state tax law which establishes different taxing levels for homestead and non-homestead property.

Children found home alone

BY DEBORAH DZIEWIT
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Two Clarkston parents were expected to be in court Tuesday after police found their two children home alone Feb. 17.

After an anonymous tip, Lt. Mark Ladetto discovered an 8-year-old girl and 6-year-old boy had been left alone by their parents for more than 12 hours.

According to the report, Ladetto interviewed neighbors who said the parents left the children often and for long periods of time.

"From what Ladetto told me, the neighbor said it happened all the time," said police chief Robert DeVore. "She said she often took them in and fed them and had them spend the night."

The parents have not been charged by police; however, the children are now with an aunt and the case is under investigation by Oakland County's protective services.

DeVore said this wasn't the first time the parents have been under investigation.

"Protective Services knew about these kids," he said. "The worker on the case said that she told them (the parents) that she would file a petition to remove them from the home if she had another complaint."

Information regarding the charges and court time was not available at press time.

Kammer brings experience to race

By ANNETTE KINGSBURY
Clarkston News Editor

Kerry Kammer knows politics.

The former state senator, who was first elected to the Michigan House in 1974 at the age of 26, has decided he'd like to give government another try. He's announced his candidacy for the Ninth Congressional District seat currently held by Dale Kildee, a Flint Democrat.

In the Republican primary, Kammer, who lives in Independence Township, will be going up against Clarkston resident Megan O'Neill. Both have name recognition.

"There's a part of me that always missed it (politics)," he said from his campaign headquarters on Dixie Highway last week.

Since leaving politics after a failed run at the governor's office (as a Democrat) in 1982, Kammer has concentrated on running several businesses and watching his three children grow up.

However during that time, Kammer has been able to look with pride upon the legislation he left behind. Several of his bills were enacted into law and are still in use today, including the Land Trust Act and the Rainy Day Fund.

"I had one of the best legislative records when I served in the Senate," he said. Though he was a Democrat at the time, he said he's always been a fiscal conservative, as shown by the Rainy Day Fund, which allowed the state to set aside money in good years so taxes wouldn't have to be raised in bad years.

Governor John Engler spoke of the Rainy Day Fund just last week, while in Rochester touting Proposal A. He said the state showed a surplus for 1993, which was deposited into the Rainy Day account.

"It manifests fiscal conservatism," an obviously proud Kammer said. "It's been enormously successful."

Kammer is also proud of his environmental record. The Land Trust Act captures money from oil and gas leases, puts it into a trust fund, and the proceeds are used to buy land for public use.

"If I never do another thing I'm always going to have the remembrance" of that law," Kammer said. "I can't drive across this state without seeing Kammer Land Trust Fund acquisitions."

Kammer and his family live on 45 acres on Perry Lake Rd. He says he loves the outdoors but isn't an environmental radical.

"I've always considered myself a conservationist, not a preservationist," he said.

Kammer's wife Carole is the past treasurer of the Clarkston Foundation, where she still serves on the board. She has also worked on the high school all-night party committee and is a member of The Clarkston Historical Society.

The Kammer family has three children. Son Shea, 18, is a Clarkston High School grad and a freshman at the University of Michigan. Daughter Claire, about to turn 16, is a student at Marian High School. Daughter Nora, 14, attends Clarkston Middle School.

Ironically, back in 1992, Kammer was an avowed Democrat for O'Neill, according to news reports of the time. Now he's hoping to beat her for the Republican nomination.

"I was a very conservative Democrat," he said. "Budget stabilization isn't a liberal notion . . . I had moved a great distance from the leaders of the party."

So much so, he says, that after he lost the race for governor, Richard Headlee called him up and asked him to be his running mate.

"I will never forget that gesture, and it was really from there that I started to help Republicans," he said. He bristles at the suggestion that he's only recently flip-flopped his party allegiance, as suggested by the Oakland County Democratic Party.

"I think my record stands for itself," he said. "Those charges are absurd. Do this; don't take my word for it. Talk to people who were there."

Kammer is now focusing all his attention on Kildee, declining to talk at all about O'Neill, whom he must first beat in the primary. O'Neill won the primary two years ago in a four-person race.

"I believe in new leadership for this district," he said. "I have to direct all my attention on him (Kildee). I think you win primaries by demonstrating what you're for, not what you're against. The important thing is for people to know what's in my heart."

Kammer is optimistic the people's desire for change will carry over from the 1992 election, when 110 new members were elected to Congress. This year, he said, about 35 members are retiring.

"We have an opportunity to have well over 50 percent of the body be new," he said. "I think that's exciting. We're going to have the potential to change the way Congress operates."

However he doesn't plan to make Congress his life's work. "I don't consider myself a career politician," he said. "I'm excited about the opportunity to shape public policy . . . (but) I don't want to be there on a long-term basis."

O'Neill hopes second try will be the charm

It's an all-Clarkston-area race so far.

Megan O'Neill, a lifelong Independence Township resident, is making her second run for Congress this year.

She said she owes it to her supporters and the Republican Party to try again for Congress, now that so many people have come to know who she is and what she stands for.

Two years ago she won the Republican nomination in a four-person race but lost to incumbent Dale Kildee in the general election.

O'Neill, 32, said it was a "bit of a surprise" when Kammer, a former member of Democrats for O'Neill, decided to run against her as a Republican. Despite Kammer's legislative history, she feels her name recognition is stronger.

"The name recognition is still very, very strong," she said. "Whenever I'm out campaigning a lot of people recognize the name or they recognize me."

O'Neill works in case management for Clarkston Medical Group. She is a graduate of the University of Detroit, where she majored in biology and later took graduate courses toward an MBA.

She also studied Russian at Oakland University, which later led to her campaign work for the Bush campaign in Moscow. She's also a member of the Clarkston Foundation.

She feels there are differences between herself and Kammer. "I've always been a conservative Republican; there's never been any doubt," she said.

And she feels Kammer's former work as a lobbyist may be held against him by the voters.

"I'm young, I'm new, I come from the private sector. That's what voters want," she said. "If they dislike politicians they probably dislike lobbyists even more."

Mining time may be extended

BY CATHERINE PASSMORE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Residents talked about noise, dust, water and pot holes — but no concrete decision was made about extending the time Burroughs Material Company can mine gravel.

Because the economy has slowed sales and production, Burroughs went before the Independence Township Board Feb. 15 to ask they be allowed to continue mining until Nov. 30, 1995. They would reclaim the land by June 30, 1996.

The board did not vote on the extension. They decided, in a 6-0 vote, to have consultants explore the subject and report back with their findings.

Burroughs, of New Hudson, mines gravel on sections one and two of the township — Dartmouth and Oakhill roads.

The company has been operating under a consent judgment since 1988. That decree states mining on the east side of the development must be completed by Nov. 30, 1994. Reclaiming of the land would be done Nov. 30, 1995 and sales could continue on the west side until 1996.

Residents told the board work goes on at the mine from dawn to dusk, and trucks from independent companies travel on and destroy area roads.

Officials told residents to call if the work went too late in the evening or if trucks illegally used the road. Members of the board said the company had been responsive to inquires and problems in the past.

Other action:

● About $9,000 in Community Block Grant Funds were reallocated to help pay for a township base map. The money had originally be slated for housing rehabilitation ($6,000) and the Consortium for Human Development ($3,000) which has moved out of the community.

● Mel Vaara, Ann Conklin and George Anderson were appointed to a committee which will determine if snow removal from safety paths is needed. If it is, they will recommend ways to maintain the paths throughout the winter.

● Final preliminary plat approval was given to the King Subdivision. The one-lot development is located on the north side of Clarkston Road, east of Pine Knob Road.

● Gerald Carney and John Dunlop were appointed to the Independence Township Board of Review.

● Members of the Board of Review will receive $120 for an eight-hour day or $60 for a half day.

● A motion to designate $275,000 of the Fire Fund Balance for station improvements (the new fire station) was approved.

Stonehedge reviewed by board

Minus a golf course and with added homes, an amended plan for Stonehedge (formerly Country Club of the North) was presented to the Independence Township Planning Commission Feb. 17.

The 805-acre development is located at Clintonville and Waldon roads and flows into Orion Township — 180 of the acres are in Orion. No action was taken concerning the development, but board members were able to voice their concerns and comments.

As Country Club of the North, 450 living units were planned for Independence Township and two golf courses were mapped out. There would have been no homes in Orion.

The new plan calls for 495 units in Independence Township, 36 in Orion Township and only one 18-hole golf course.

Petitioners describe the development as an "upscale, club house, gated community with a golf course." Homes in the community may begin selling at $300,000.

There are multiple stages the new plan must go through, with this review by the board as the first. There must be a formal hearing, a recommendation to the township board to amend the plan, and then more detailed plans have to be approved further down the road. The original development had been in the planning stages about three years.

Board members voiced concern about the stress such a large community may place on the public schools. They encouraged the developer to talk to Clarkston Schools officials before their next meeting.

Other concerns included the effect of extensive travel on dirt roads and which roads should and could be paved. The impact on police and fire services was also discussed.

Other action:

● The final site plan for phase two of Northcrest Manors was approved. The 24.86-acre development is located at White Lake Road and Northcrest Village Drive.

● A recommendation to rezone a 1.52-acre lot on the east side of M-15 from Planned Shopping Center to Office was sent to the Independence Township Board. By rezoning the property, it would become conforming to the zoning ordinance. A Planned Shopping Center zoning requires 5-acre lots.

Officer honored by MADD

BY DEBORAH DZIEWIT
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Mothers Against Drunk Driving appreciates Clarkston's Corporal Scott L. Dickey's efforts against those who drive intoxicated.

The 26-year-old officer made 18 alcohol related stops last year. He was recognized for his efforts to get drunk drivers off the roads at MADD's Sixth Annual Lifesaver's Awards Banquet held Feb. 15. Forty other Oakland County police officers also received the Lifesaver Award.

While some might say the figure is low, Chief Robert DeVore says Dickey is doing a good job at making Clarkston's streets safe from drunk drivers.

"We have to remember that this is a small community, DeVore said. "If we were larger, his numbers would be 60 to 70 stops. So for a community of this size, it's good."

A graduate of Macomb Community College and now working towards a bachelor's in criminal justice, Dickey works the midnight shift and hears many excuses when stopping someone he suspects of drunk driving.

Not driving "OK" is what usually tips Dickey off that a driver might be under the influence.

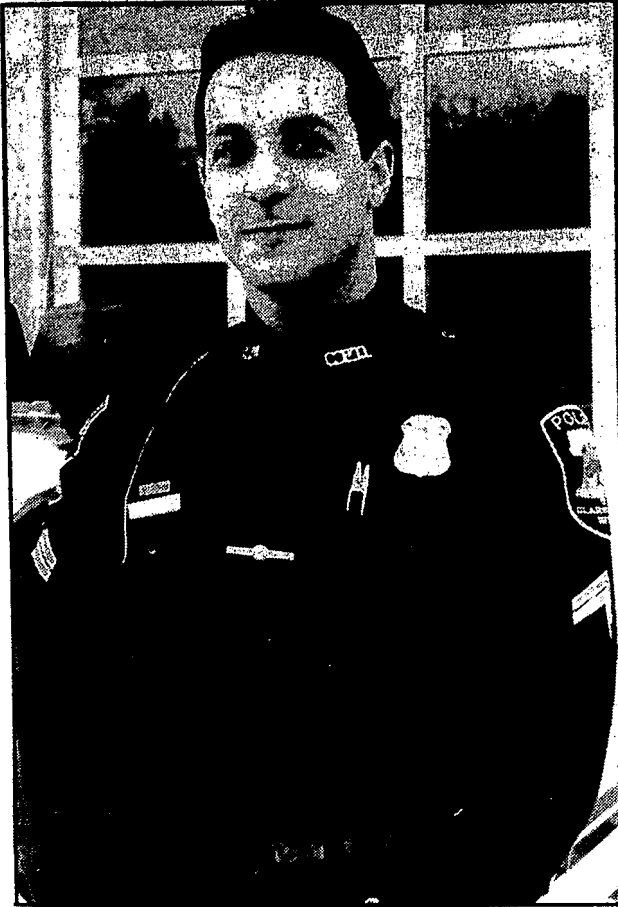

"They say 'I'm not too drunk to drive,' or, 'I'm driving OK,'" Dickey said. "One driver was driving north in a south-bound lane."

Whatever the excuse, MADD wants drunks off the road.

"We recognize the departments and their officers for all the OUILs and OUIDs they bust and keep off the roads," said Nina Shaouni, administrative assistant for MADD. "With every person off the roads that is drunk is less danger to society."

Clarkston's police department also received a $500 check from MADD to put toward buying their patrol cars an in-car video camera which costs $1800.

The camera will be used to record officers' stops as soon as the red and blue lights are switched on. But the department is short of its goal.

"We have $700 to $800 in donations and we're $300 to $400 short," DeVore said. "If anyone wants to donate, they can call me."

People with no jobs, no credit or bad credit can get loans.

Qualifying for loan can be difficult under any circumstances, but it's particularly challenging for these people. Firms that lend money to poor credit risks sometimes ask for as much as $15,000 in collateral to ensure they are covered against loss.

Clock needs work

BY DEBORAH DZIEWIT
Clarkston News Staff Writer

The Main Street clock has begun to show what time and weather can do.

The large wood ring that holds the glass face in place has begun to deteriorate to such a degree that some area citizens are concerned.

"It needs to be fixed," said Neil Russo, NBD branch manager. "We noticed some while back that it's getting pretty bad. We're worried it won't make it through the winter."

The bank and township have asked wood workers to submit bids to replicate and replace the ring.

"We would like to see maybe two or three sets made so that every year we can take one out and replace it with another," John Lutz, Independence Township treasurer, said. "The used one would then be refinished so that it would not decay."

To pay for the work, Lutz said the township, NBD and the city would contribute a third of what it would take to fix it.

"It's an attractive land mark and should not be let go," Russo said. "And it does keep good time."

Two injured in crash

Two Independence teens were injured in a two car accident on Maybee Road on February 13.

Nicole Rouse, 16, and Stephanie Rouse, 18, were treated and released from Crittenton Hospital after the 4 p.m. accident. Both girls were wearing seatbelts.

According to a report by the Oakland County Sheriff's Department, the 1987 Chevy driven by Nicole turned left on to Sashabaw Road and ran into a second vehicle.

The vehicle, a 1983 Buick, was driven by Mark Thompson, 33, of Independence Township. Thompson was not injured in the accident.

No tickets were issued.

Journalism sans checkbook

We're all sick, I think, of turning on the news every night and hearing about Michael Jackson, Tonya Harding, and the Bobbitts.

But after watching Public Television's "Frontline" program last week on so-called "checkbook journalism," it's clear to me these kinds of stories won't be going away any time soon.

Frontline showed just how much the mainstream American media are struggling to react and keep up with tabloid-style newspapers. For the tabloids, money is no object when on the trail of a hot story.

The recent Michael Jackson scandal was used as the prime example. When the story first broke, the National Enquirer (which, by the way, is the richest paper in the country according to Frontline) immediately put 20 reporters on the case.

Some went to computer databanks, some began knocking on doors in California. Between those two groups, they were able to find the name and address of someone to whom Jackson had recently transferred some property. They immediately had a reporter knocking on that person's door.

They also began chasing possible sources, offering large sums of money for inside information. One self-described private detective who showed up in California, ostensibly to investigate the case, was inundated by so many media phone calls his hotel had to put on two extra operators.

He showed the Frontline camera one message which said, "We will pay any amount." All this, and no one really knew if he had any information at all.

Frontline also interviewed one traditional print reporter. When she went knocking on someone's door asking for an interview, she was turned down cold. Apparently she forgot to bring her checkbook. The source had already decided to talk to Diane Sawyer.

Why does all this matter? It's this kind of journalism which tarnishes all media types and makes everyone wary of even speaking to a reporter. That might sound like I'm complaining, but after all it lends the impression that all reporters are after nothing but sensationalism.

A few weeks ago I was sitting in a public meeting in which, after an attorney made a statement, a trustee said to him, "Oh, now you'll be misquoted in the paper." Later in the same meeting, she said, "Now you're going to be quoted." It seemed clear to me she didn't know the difference.

If you're a TV news watcher, ask yourself: When was the last time you heard in-depth reporting on Proposal A, or any topic you choose.

Here at the Clarkston News, we don't have 20 reporters to stick on a story. Heck--we don't have 20 reporters period. We don't pay for stories. We have to dig for information, and I assume that's true at any newspaper--except the tabloids.

Until and unless that changes, expect to see a continual flood of sensational crime stories dominating the news. As long as it sells, it will continue to run. Stop buying it and watching it, and maybe it will stop.

Letter to the Editor

Supports O'Neill

Dear Editor,

Please join me in supporting Megan O'Neill, candidate for United States Congress. Megan, a Clarkston native, is the most intelligent and personable individual with many conservative qualities and ideals.

Megan's character remains uncontested and she will remain true to her word. She has an excellent grasp of the issues facing this country and will work hard to bring true reform to government.

As a longtime administrator of Clarkston Community Schools, I feel she has demonstrated a real commitment to education by her work with the Clarkston Foundation for the enhancement of public education, and the University of Detroit's President's cabinet which provides academic scholarships to students. Megan O'Neill is most worthy of our support as a "true Republican campaigner" over any Democrat that might be campaigning as a Republican.

Dr. L.F. Greene
Retired Superintendent

What a stupid thing to do

By Jim Sherman

You must have days when you kick yourself for being so stupid. I had one Sunday.

It had to do with a spare tire, and not the one around my waist.

During my 20-plus years of snowmobiling I've trailered my machines north every year except last year when I was recovering from back surgery.

I know you haven't asked, but my back is fine now. Digging out snowmobiles is a real test.

Until three years ago I hauled my machines with a used trailer. Knowing it was used I always carried a spare tire. The habit stuck with the new trailer the first two years.

Then stupidity took over.

We were pulled into the toll booth at the Mackinaw bridge and the alert money-taker asked, "Do you know you have no tire on the back wheel of your trailer?"

"No, I don't know that, but I do now," I said.

I was entering the stupid-kicking stage. That tire has had a slow leak for over a year. I even had it repaired once. I pumped it up the day we left for up north. I pumped it up Saturday before coming home.

I even carried a can of instant-flat-fix and a small pump.

But I didn't carry a spare tire.

It's 50 miles from our place to the bridge. We

As our senator in Michigan's legislature, Mr. Kammer has compiled an impressive record. He demonstrated unyielding support for public education and school children's programs. His other triumphs included the creation of the Budget and Economic Stabilization Fund, more commonly known as the "Rainy Day Fund," and the establishment of the Kammer Recreational Land Trust Fund.

Kerry Kammer is a fiscal conservative with high ethical standards. He has the perfect blend of talent, intelligence and experience to make a difference in Washington and for the citizens of the 9th District.

Having said that, I ask Mr. Kammer's opponents to challenge him on the issues. I challenge them to attack his promise to fight for lower taxes or on the issue of protecting the environment. Mr. Kammer's opponents would serve the citizens of the 9th District well if they would abandon the failed "low road" of political campaigning. The "low road" of half truths and innuendoes only insults the citizens of the 9th District. Mr. Kammer's opponents should be challenged to join Mr. Kammer on the "high road" in the discussion of the urgent issues on the minds of voters of the 9th District.

With best regards, hadn't gone far when I decided I'd put in the canned-air-goop just to assure a full tire all the way home.

Oh, in case you haven't figured it out, this is a two axle, 4-tire trailer . . . the kind that costs $3.50 to take across the bridge.

What to do? Is one tire strong enough to do the job? Will the wheel be ruined? Can I buy a tire in Mackinaw City?

No! There is one mechanic in town and he doesn't work on Sunday. How about Indian River, 25 miles down I-75? There was a glimmer of hope at Burt Lake Marina, but they didn't have our size . . . naturally.

Should I test that single tire another 25 miles to Gaylord? What would I do if that one blew out? What to do?

Then I remembered Hazel's nephew has a big lot on Burt Lake. I pulled into his yard, backed into a snow bank and left that sucker right there . . . still kicking my stupid self.

Back home I checked. Yes, the spare tire is still in the barn, right where I left it.

I've tried to rid myself of blame. Why didn't someone remind me? Do I have to think of everything myself? Certainly a tire should last more than 2,500 miles. It's the manufacturer's fault.

Ah, but no. It was just another thing to put on the growing list of stupid things I've done.

Oxford Bank sets another record

Oxford Bank Corp., the holding company for Oxford Bank, reported its net income for 1993 was $1,974,000 or $12.34 per common share. This figure was 9.30 percent more than the company's income of $1,806,000 ($11.29 per share) in 1992. Earnings for 1993 set another new record high for the company, which has now reported record earnings for 11 consecutive years.

Randall G. Consequently, our interest margins improved while we kept our overhead expenses under strict control."

Its subsidiary, Oxford Bank, is Oakland County's oldest commercial bank and has been locally owned and operated since it first opened for business in 1884. The bank has full-service offices in Oxford, Clarkston, Lake Orion, Oakland Township and Ortonville.

Friend won't be part of smelly cover-up

At the Michigan Press Association convention in Grand Rapids in January, a newspaper publisher and I were discussing recent important advances in the field of journalism as they relate to the development of intellectually viable solutions to the world's most vexing problems. While pondering, I looked down at the floor and suddenly thought of something unusually interesting, prompting me to sagely observe:

"You probably don't have a sock drawer, do you?"

The publisher conceded he had no need for a sock drawer because he never wears socks.

I have adjusted to a world without a Soviet Union and without two separate Detroit newspapers on weekends. I've grown used to the idea of my tax money being spent to aid the formerly dirty rotten Russkies' economy. I no longer curse futilely while separating the Sunday paper into two piles, one to be read and one to be dumped, with the separating and dumping taking longer than the reading.

But I'm not sure I could adjust to a world without my sock drawer.

A sock drawer is about all I have. The rest of the dozens of drawers in our bedroom belong to my wife. The mirror on top of one chest of her drawers gives me the same sort of deal. It is adjusted to accommodate everyone who lives in our home that is my wife's height. Only the two of us live there.

To tie my necktie in front of this mirror, I have to kneel down.

To alter this mirror so that it faces toward a 6-foot man, you have to wedge something behind it. A rolled-up pair of socks does the trick, so if I didn't have a sock drawer, I suppose I could keep all my socks behind the mirror.

My sock drawer is in the little nightstand on my side of the bed, farthest from the bathroom. I put my money, jewelry and other valuables on top of it, except when small wandering grandchildren are visiting and I don't want my cash flushed down the toilet, so I hide everything in my sock drawer under the socks.

Without a sock drawer, how would I protect my treasures? If I put them behind the mirror with my socks, the mirror would tilt up too high and I'd have to hang from an overhead light fixture to tie my tie.

Incidentally, my publisher-friend is not unique in never wearing socks, no matter what the occasion. State Sen. David Honigman, R-West Bloomfield Township, often wears no socks to work in the Capitol, and U.S. Rep. John Conyers, D-Mich., has also been sighted similarly bare-ankled at formal political functions where it's unusual to see a man without a suit coat and necktie.

You might wonder why I've identified the senator and congressman but am withholding the name of the sockless publisher. Is this some sort of comradely vindictive discrimination against politicians who are sometimes reluctant to give us journalists the cooperation we require to do our jobs, which is to make them look like fools?

No. The only reason I'm granting the publisher anonymity is I want to tell you what he said to his mother when she complained about him never wearing socks, causing her to never complain again. And his nice wife would be embarrassed to have my readers know the extent of her husband's independent spirit of fashion.

Despite what you might suspect, I'm not envious of men who have enough nerve to flout clothing conventions, especially at newspaper conventions. I like to believe I have an equally cavalier attitude. It's just that I've tried wearing hard shoes on my soft bare feet, and it hurts too much.

Which is why I was awed to hear what the publisher said when his mother said his sockless feet didn't look so good at a dinner party.

"Mom, at least my socks match my underwear," he said.

Ouch. No drawer drawer, either.

Ballot plan leaves 'em guessing

Just when you thought it was safe to make up your mind about Governor Engler's March ballot proposal . . .

A little bird from Oxford Township flew into our office the other week. In her hand she had photocopies of the House Taxation Committee Staff's "Comparison of the School Finance Plans," dated January 7, 1994.

Virginia, she's the bird, is concerned about the way the Ballot Plan and the Statutory Plan have been presented.

"From all I've read in the papers we either have a state property tax of 6 mills or 12. That's not the way I read it," she said.

She then proceeded to walk me through the comparisons -- one particular comparison. That between the state property tax liabilities between the plans.

I'm going to copy, word for word, from the committee's comparison.

Ballot Plan: A state tax would be levied at a rate of 6 mills on all property. A law increasing this limit would require a 3/4 vote of the legislature.

Statutory Plan: A state property tax on non-homestead property would be levied at 12 mills, with homesteads exempt. A law increasing this limit would require a majority vote of the legislature.

Read those two again . . . okay, doesn't that say if you vote for Proposal A, you automatically get a 6-mil state property tax on your home. That's the bird's contention. If we get the statutory plan we get zero mills worth of state property taxes on our homes -- "a state property tax on non-homestead property at 12-mills, with homesteads exempt." That's what it says, doesn't it?

Here's what the comparison says on Local School District Taxes.

Ballot Plan: Local school districts would levy a tax of 18 mills if approved by the voters, with homesteads exempt. A law increasing this limit would require a 3/4 vote of the legislature. These mills would be subject to Headlee rollback requirements.

Statutory Plan: Local school districts would be allowed to levy up to 12 mills on all property, with a vote of the people. In addition, school districts, with the approval of the voters, could become charter authorities, so that their millage would not be subjected to renewal. A law increasing this limit would require a majority vote of the legislature. These mills would be subject to Headlee rollback requirements.

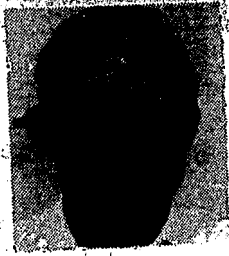

Confusing?

The bird's voting "No" on the ballot plan. And, I must admit, I'm probably going to do the same. Like most folks in Michigan, including those in Lansing, we really don't know what's going on.

The Gov. is saying one thing, tax groups are saying another, read the plan and you may come up with something different. It's confusing, and what's worse is the brain trust (?) in Lansing feels it can change the rules as it goes just to make sure the ballot plan passes.

If they can change one rule, phrase or meaning of any of the plans, why can't they change another, or another or another?

Something smells in Denmark and I cannot put my finger on it . . . and that stinks!

Proposal A protects taxpayers

By Doug Carlson

I've recently received a variety of literature regarding the March 15 ballot plan, better known as Proposal A.

We've all heard more than we care to about the sales tax, income tax and property tax (6 mills vs. 12 mills).

However, there are other factors to be considered that are less well known, but equally important. I'd like to bring four of these to your attention so you can think about them prior to March 15.

● The Effect on Lakefront Property Owners: David C. Maturen, president of Maturen & Associates, Inc., is a licensed real estate broker, state-certified real-estate appraiser, and Level III certified assessor.

Mr. Maturen recently wrote an article in The Michigan Riparian regarding the ballot plan vs. the statutory plan. Following is a portion of what he wrote:

"Riparian property owners in specific have borne the brunt of increasing assessments as compared to other residential property. Double-digit assessment increases and assessment increases twice that of non-riparian properties have been the norm rather than the exception lately. Thus the property-tax issue is of significant importance to those who reside permanently, or seasonally, on the many bodies of water in this state.

"The ballot plan constitutionally caps assessment increases on each individual parcel of property at 5 percent or the rate of inflation (CPI) whichever is less (until the property is sold or substantially changed).

"The statutory plan has no assessment cap at all. With the likelihood that double-digit assessment increases will continue to occur for riparian properties, having the effect of negating substantially the recent property tax cut."

The other three items that I felt would be of interest to you are as follows:

● The Effect on Senior Citizens: Once again, only Proposal A provides a cap on future tax-assessment increases, helping to ensure that no seniors (or anyone else) will be taxed out of their homes.

It's true that the statutory plan increases everyone's personal exemption on their Michigan income tax by $900, but this seems like a small offset when compared with the uncertainty of uncapped future tax adjustments. And don't forget that the Michigan income tax rate would go from 4.6 to 6 percent, the highest flat rate tax in the country.

● The Effect on Local Governments: If the ballot plan passes, the cap on SEV increases of 5 percent or the rate of inflation (whichever is less) will help hold down local government tax increases. However, because the cap does NOT affect new construction, and because property will be reassessed upon its sale, local governments generally will continue to see revenue increases somewhat higher than the rate of inflation.

The statutory plan contains no SEV caps, doing nothing to hold down local government spending.

● The effect on raising taxes for additional school spending: If voters want to raise taxes on themselves, they may do so under both proposals to a limited extent.

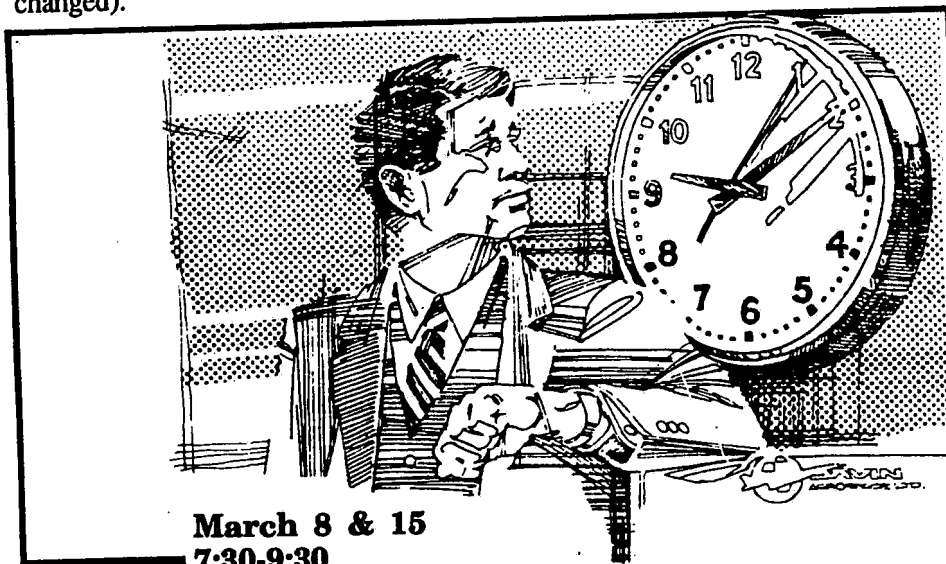

Under Proposal A, a school district can seek up to 3 mills more for up to three years. Voters would have the final say. Starting in 1997, however, local districts could not raise taxes unless voters in their entire intermediate school district went to the polls and voted to raise their property taxes by up to 3 mills - no more - with the revenues split evenly among students with the ISD.

Under the statutory plan, Clarkston Schools OR the Oakland Intermediate School District could ask for voter approval of a combined amount of between 2 and 6 mills.

It's apparent to me that the ballot plan provides protection against skyrocketing assessments that caused this problem in the first place. The statutory plan offers no such protection.

Vote YES on Proposal A.

Nature group tries to keep land wild and free

A 20-acre parcel of wetlands north of Clarkston could be saved from future development if an Oakland County organization has its way.

The Michigan Nature Association holds an option to buy the piece for $40,000 from the Barry Young development company by June 1, 1994.

The land borders M-15 five miles north of Clarkston and a now closed gravel pit. The land surrounding the wetlands is designated to become home to several condominium units.

"It's not the disaster it sounds," said Bertha Daubendiek, executive secretary-treasurer of MNA. "All the sewage will go toward the old gravel pit and the run off will be taken care of so that it does not harm the wetlands."

However, MNA needs donors to buy portions of the land which host trilliums and marsh marigolds.

"We are not connected with the government and do not use a penny of government money," Daubendiek said. "Our organization is made up of mostly of volunteers."

An acre of the Brandon Township land, including the money-raising costs and a 30 percent endowment for care, costs $3,225. Smaller or larger pieces can also be bought.

Trying to save Michigan's wild places from development is nothing new to the MNA. In 1960, it bought its first piece of land in Macomb County. Today, 7422 acres in 51 counties have been estab-

Its goal is to raise $500,000 over the next three years to buy more land.

"Much of this is concentrated in the northern part of Oakland County where a study recently showed that development by 2010 would eat up another half-million acres of southeast Michigan," Daubendiek said.

Skiers DQ'd for state meet

By DEBORAH DZIEWIT
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Like Picabo Street in the Alpine combined but only in reverse, Clarkston skiers just couldn't ski fast enough to come out on top at the regionals held at Mt. Holly Thursday.

For the first time in years, the Wolves will not be sending the team or an individual to the state meet at Crystal Mountain. The boys team came in fourth overall and the girls finished eighth. Only the top two teams qualify for state.

The morning competition between 14 high schools in southern Michigan began with the long and snaky giant slalom event while the temperatures began to sneak in the 50s.

Top seed and senior Mike Kozlawski placed 13th, Paul Rumph skied to a 24th slot, while Brian Bovee came in 32nd and Eric Bauer finished 39th.

The Clarkston boys came out of the GS event with 108 points. Dave Hartke placed 46th and B.J. Rumph tied for 76th. Team totals are based on the top four finishes of each team.

"We worked hard all year on GS. It looks so simple but it takes more technique to do it well," Judy Roeser, ski coach, said. "You have to be able to ski the flat and use the edge to pick up the speed."

The girls also found that they could not get up the speed on the GS course.

Sarah Hoemke came in 25th, Carrie Millen placed 29th, while Kristi Stuetzer skied to a 35th place finish. Heather Unsworth placed 42nd, which brought the morning GS total in at 131 points. Karla Russell finished 44th, while Lisonn Hutchinson placed 45th.

By the afternoon, the snow began to soften from the direct hits of the winter sun. The boys turned through the shorter slalom gates well, but again not fast enough to place high enough for a trip to state. Kozlawski turned in a fifth, Dave Hartke an 18th, Paul Rumph a 20th, and Brian Bovee skied to a 30th-place finish.

The girls' individual scores for the slalom event were not available because of a computer printout error. However, Hoemke, Millen, Stuetzer and Unsworth scored a combined total of 131 points.

"The slalom was our event," Roeser said. "We came out second, but it was the GS that sent us back. We are weak in GS and strong in slalom."

While the varsity season is finished and most of her team will graduate come June, Coach Roeser remains optimistic about next year.

"Only two of my varsity skiers will return," she said. "However, we have lots of resources in our junior varsity team. There is a lot of hope for the future."

Spikers beat, but not down

BY DEBORAH DZIEWIT

The Wolves growled but did not bite as the varsity volleyball team lost to West Bloomfield 7-15, 9-15.

"Our biggest problem was errors," said coach Gordie Richardson. "We had 19 attacking and 13 blocking errors."

The girls gave away points or side outs and had five serving errors which proved to be the why to their loss in the non-league game Monday night in Bloomfield, Richardson said.

"I don't know what happened," he said. "We were flat."

Senior Christa Herron returned after a three-week injury leave and helped the team's offensive attack with four kills. Beth Eby, a junior, also came up with four.

Eby led the team in serves, making nine of 10 with one ace. Christa served a perfect six for six and sophomore Stephanie Giroux also served 100 percent, going five for five.

The spikers played a stronger defensive game. Giroux came up with 10 digs. Senior Lisa Goforth made 10 of 11 service receptions and Giroux came up with nine of 10 attempts.

Grapplers make it to regionals

BY DEBORAH DZIEWIT
Clarkston News Special Writer

Clarkston's wrestlers made up for last Thursday's team district loss when seven wrestlers qualified for the individual regional tournament.

In the district individual tournament held Saturday at Rochester Adams High School, 18 teams competed for the first four places in 13 weight divisions to enable them to go to the regionals held in Clio.

Freshmen Ryan Mick (103) and Armin Michelson (152) each captured a district title in their weight class.

Mick won his match on a pin and Michaelson defeated his opponent 5-3 and was an indirect sweet revenge from Thursday's matchup.

"Armin beat the kid that beat the kid that he lost to Thursday," said coach Mike McGain. "Indirectly he was avenged."

Saturday's successes took away some of the

Under Construction

By Catherine Passmore

It's genetic

Although I know I am an intelligent person, there are some parts of my personality that may give people the impression I'm an air head.

I used to think that that personality quirk must be some recessive gene because neither of my parents have the problems I seem to — or so I thought.

For example, I get lost easily. I have lived in Clarkston all of my life (except while in college) and still have to really think about where to go. I couldn't understand why I would have this problem when both of my parents can tell anyone how to get anywhere in the tri-county area.

On our last trip to Washington D.C. I found my answer. It was our second day of sightseeing and one of the buildings on the schedule was the Treasury Building. We got off the tram in front of the building and we followed dad up the many steps to the door. It was locked.

We blindly followed my father, who said he knew where he was going, around an entire city block trying to find an entrance to the building. By the time we got to the third side, we didn't care what was in the building, it was the principle of the quest.

Back to where we began we looked around and to our amazement, there was a sign and arrow pointing to the basement door. It lead right into the building and onto the tour.

I also get myself into situations that it seems no one else could, such as being robbed by a woman with purple hair and gold teeth at 3 a.m. in St. Louis — and she didn't even have a weapon.

In the past week, both of my parents displayed tendencies to get into strange situations too.

Sunday, we were getting ready for church when the electricity went out. My mother was done getting ready, my sister was close and I had just gotten out of the shower. I went back to bed while the other two left.

After a couple minutes, my sister and I heard pounding downstairs and thought my mom was fixing something. When it didn't stop, Diane went to see what was up and found our mother standing on the back steps — she had locked herself into the garage.

She said she locked the back door as she left, because she thought we had both gone back to sleep. She closed the door and hit the button for the garage door and nothing. She went to ring the doorbell and nothing. So she began to pound on the door which we took for some pre-church handyman work around the house.

I can't blame my situation solely on my mother. A couple weeks ago she and my dad went to the mall and when she went into a store, he decided to look at the car show.

Mom said when she came out of the store, my dad was nowhere to be found. She started walking when she heard a tapping sound and turned to see her husband of 30 plus years sitting in the backseat of a car — he had locked himself in with the childproof locks.

Mom has said it took a lot of willpower not to just leave him there — but I suppose he would have kept tapping and drawing attention to the scene if she hadn't helped him.

I am glad I don't have to go the road of a supposed air head alone.

AAA gives sober message to drivers

If you're between the ages of 16 and 19 and drink while you drive, your chances of being involved in a fatal crash could be as high as 90 percent.

This is one of several sober statistics young drivers will learn this summer as part of a joint driver's education program announced by AAA Michigan and the Oakland County Health Department.

Driver's education instructors throughout Oakland County will use AAA's alcohol awareness package, "If you drive...what about drinking?"

"In Michigan, traffic crashes are the number-one cause of death among people aged 4-44," said Regional Community Safety Coordinator Steve White. "Of these, roughly half are alcohol-related. If we can teach young people the importance of remaining sober behind the wheel, many lives could be saved."

Since Jan. 1, 1992, Michigan has tough new drunk driving laws which require, among other measures, destruction of the driver's license at the time of arrest for drunk driving. The new law also requires a mandatory 30-day license suspension for even a first conviction of drunk driving and harsher penalties for repeat offenders.

"In Michigan, the legal level of intoxication is .10 percent blood alcohol level (BAL)," said White. "Unfortunately, many people can begin to experience loss of judgment and low sensory response with as little as a .05 percent BAL. In many cases, just one drink could impair the ability to drive and lead to an arrest."

The average cost for a drunk driving conviction (fines and attorney fees) is $4,000 plus increased insurance, which can add up to three times your current premium for a three-year period.

Never say never

For years I avoided it. I told others that I would never do it.

I should have known better and not said never because I am now the Clarkston News sports writer for the time being.

As a new hire at the Clarkston News, I thought I had my beat all figured out. I would write news, features and a weekly column.

After all, it's what I focused on all of my college career and also what I did here. News and features are what I enjoy writing. It is also where I feel my strongest abilities exist.

With the recent changes, we found ourselves short a sports writer. We are now a staff of all women when Annette Kingsbury was named editor and Curt McAllister left.

Somehow, those above me believe I can do this job. Perhaps they got the impression that I'm suited for the job because I pump iron to work out and I peddle a cycle.

Now, I know some women might rise and think that I'm against women in the locker room.

Dead wrong. If a woman has the interest and the ability — all the more power to her. What worries me is MY ability to write about basketball, wrestling, skiing and volleyball in a way that won't disappoint the readers and the fans of the Clarkston's Wolves.

I am not a devoted sports nut. I do follow some teams — but only sporadically. I do read sports pages and have a few favorite writers — Mitch Albom and Charlie Vincent who rank right up there for daily reading.

However, reading a sports page is one thing while writing sports is totally foreign game to me.

Now I will have to know how and why of Clarkston teams victories and defeats. I will have to know weight classes, seeds, giant slalom, slalom, defensive moves, fouls, digs, kills.

But as the Clarkston sport teams rise up to the challenge and as our American athletes take on world competitors to win a gold — I too will take up the torch and write sports.

Just allow me a few extra time outs, a few extra seconds and don't toss me out of the ring yet while I learn the ropes.

ON OSTEOPTOSIS

In what has been termed "the single most important discovery in osteoporosis in the last decade," Australian scientists at the Garvan Institute of Medical Research in Sydney identified a gene they say can determine a person's risk of developing this disabling disease. Researchers say the gene produces a receptor protein in the body that helps vitamin D transport bone-enriching calcium into bone cells. People with a version of the protein produced by a specific variation of the gene had significantly lower bone densities than those born with another version of the gene. With more study, scientists believe a simple blood test can be developed that could predict early in life if a person is susceptible to osteoporosis. Preventive strategies would include exercise and consuming a diet rich in calcium, phosphorous and vitamin D.

Do you know someone who volunteers time or talents to a good cause? We'd like to hear about it. Give us a call at The Clarkston News. 625-3370.

SKUTTLE SELF ADJUSTING MAKE-UP AIR CONTROL MODEL 216

Today's well-built homes are heavily insulated and have well-sealed storm windows and doors. It is difficult to replace the air used by your furnace, hot water heater, fireplace and ventilating fans. These appliances attempt to pull unfiltered outside air through cracks around doors and windows, causing uncomfortable drafts. The Make-Up Air Control eliminates these drafts by slightly pressurizing your home. It eliminates drafty, unfiltered air by passing outside air through your furnace filters before it is distributed through the home. You enjoy fresh, clean outside air.

A Sashabaw Road resident reported mail tampering after she say teens at her box. She said her children have been waiting for packages that haven't arrived yet and was suspicious about the teens.

Thursday, Feb. 17, an Amy Drive resident reported an argument and physical fight with her boyfriend. The fight took place in Southfield and she was told to report it to police there.

The front emblem of a 1977 Oldsmobile was stolen while the car was parked at Lingor residence.

What's in a name?

Is the road leading from Dixie Highway into downtown Clarkston Ortonville Road, M-15 or Main Street?

The Independence Township Board will conduct a public hearing March 1 to hear comments and objections to changing the street's name from Ortonville Road to Main Street.

The name change would include the part of the state highway within the township boundaries. Specifically, the portion south of the Village of Clarkston would become South Main Street, and the part north of the city and south of I-75 would be North Main Street.

At the conclusion of the hearing, the board will consider taking action, which may include recommending the name change to the Michigan Department of Transportation and the Michigan legislature.

The meeting will be at township hall and begins at 7:30 p.m.

QUESTION: I am looking for a good buy in an older home. I saw one in a good location but the inside was a mess. Everything was dirty and unkempt. Should I forget it?

ANSWER: Don't be turned off too fast. Look beyond the mess.

Don't let your first impression deter you from seeing the IMPORTANT features of a house. The structure of the house and the general layout may be in excellent condition, easily convertible to your own desires.

If the house is sound and has the features you want, you may find that the poor housekeeping will work to your price advantage.

Survey shows readers like hometown news

By ANNETTE KINGSBURY
Clarkston News Editor

Clarkston News readers who responded to a recent survey were vocal about what they like and don't like about their community newspaper.

Though many of the respondents said they liked everything about the newspaper, some were vocal about what they perceive as serious shortcomings.

Publisher Jim Sherman Jr. said he decided to conduct the survey after he took over as publisher in early 1993. As he began meeting people in the Clarkston area, some told him they felt the newspaper was missing its target audience.

"I was at a Clarkston Optimist meeting and then at the Clarkston Chamber business expo," Sherman said. "I was told by two different people that the majority of the readers were older or, like me, DINKS—double income, no kids.

"If that was the case I thought we were missing a large part of our readership. I thought we needed to look at the community differently. Are we on track or are we not on track?"

The survey showed that news about government, crime and development are generally more well-read than news about school-related events. However, school-board news was also well read, as were general people-oriented feature stories.

"I read a local paper for local news and I think the Clarkston News does a good job of this," one reader

Most Wanted Downtown Business:

More Restaurants

wrote.

Complaints ranged from ink that rubs off on the hands to late delivery to a lack of cutting-edge, unbiased news reporting.

"With the animosity of this community toward its schools, citizens need to be informed of both sides," one reader wrote.

The survey also questioned readers about their shopping habits, asking how often they shop downtown and what new ventures they would like to see there.

"As a member of the business district, we also wanted to see what our readers thought about downtown," said Don Rush, assistant to the publisher of Sherman Publications, Inc.

Some respondents cited parking problems and high prices as reasons they don't shop downtown. Better signage and a general sprucing up were mentioned as well.

"Make the downtown alive again," one reader wrote.

Others said they patronized Clarkston merchants in an effort to keep the downtown business district alive.

The number-one new business readers wanted to see in Clarkston was a new restaurant. Many readers mentioned specific chain-type restaurants they'd like to patronize. Many other service-type businesses were also mentioned, such as a shoe repair, barber, hardware and auto-type store.

On balance, most readers said they like the small, hometown atmosphere they find in Clarkston and in the Clarkston News. One reader summed it up nicely.

"Clarkston is like a big family. We have lots of disagreements and squabbles but we consider our community very precious. Think of yourselves as a big newsletter between family members."

Artist brightening walls, homes

BY CATHERINE PASSMORE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

When David Yarnell attended the Apostolic Christian School in Pontiac his art adorned the walls and bulletin boards. Now, he professionally paints murals in homes.

Yarnell, 29, began to paint murals full time after he was laid off from his commercial artist job in September.

"I've always liked it (painting murals) as a hobby. It was just so relaxing, so enjoyable, I just kept doing it," he said.

He took art classes in junior high and commercial art classes at the Northwest Vocational Center in Springfield Township after high school graduation.

He said his father is artistic and most of his nine brothers and sisters are artisans in some fashion.

After a summer of commercial art classes, he began an apprenticeship at a studio in Troy. He was later hired and worked there until 1993.

DAVID YARNELL poses with his three-year-old daughter Cassie. Being able to spend time with Cassie and her sisters, Tiffany and Heather, is an added bonus of working for himself, he said.

ONE of the murals that David Yarnell has painted adorns a nursery. Along with cartoon characters, he paints sports figures, landscapes and holiday scenes as murals.

Yarnell said he illustrated magazine advertisements, brochures, billboards and car catalogues for the company.

After his layoff he said he realized the studio work in the automobile business is shaky and he was skeptical about being brought back. "So, I've decided to make a go of it on my own," he said.

for his sister-in-law's nursery. It was of cartoon characters and he also paints sports figures, landscapes and holiday scenes.

"My commercial art experience has helped me with my techniques," said Yarnell.

He learned some tricks of the trade that he's incorporated into short cuts in painting. He can usually complete a room within a week.

There are a couple reasons he enjoys working for himself. He can set his own schedule and that allows him to spend more time with his wife Tamara and their three daughters — Tiffany, 4, Cassie, 3, and Heather, 20 months.

"I wouldn't trade it," Yarnell said.

Although he concentrates on murals, Yarnell is completing a banner for a builder and has painted backdrops for a magician. He also paints and sells contemporary fine art on stretched canvases.

Yarnell can be contacted at 394-1305.

Doug Carlson carries and loads cases of empties from Mesquite Creek each Friday and Monday and unloads the bottles at area grocery stores. The money received is used by Lighthouse North.

Little things mean a lot

BY DEBORAH DZIEWIT
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Collecting bottles brings more than dimes to Lighthouse North — it has paid heat, telephone and electricity bills.

Mesquite Creek Steakhouse owners Brian Hussey and son Brian went to Lighthouse North on Waldon Road, asking what they could do to help with the organization's heat bills.

"They had a unique idea about how to raise money to pay our heat bill," said director Sherry Kaars. "Many people don't think of heat, electricity and telephones as something to fund. They think more of client-orientated emergency things."

The Husseys donate all of the restaurant's returnable beer bottles to Lighthouse North.

"It's a good charity and it works well for everyone," said the younger Hussey.

Each Monday and Friday, volunteers pick up the bottles from the restaurant located at 7228 Ortonville Road, clean and sort them and take them to area food stores.

"It usually takes five to six hours twice a week," said volunteer Doug Carlson, who replaced Jack and Dorothy Nicol for the winter. "I take them to the A&P, Krogers, Food Town or J and J's."

The money received from the returns is given to the organization which helps it buy the needy food and clothing.

Since the collection drive began last spring, Lighthouse North has received over $6600.

"We're thrilled with the results," Kaars said. "It's great that we have the volunteers that are willing to do this and for Mesquite Creek to come up with the idea."

Taylor, Forster engaged

Arnold and Jeanee Taylor of Clarkston announce the engagement of their daughter, Sarah, to Matthew Forster. Sarah will graduate from Calvin College, Grand Rapids in May with a bachelors of fine arts. Matthew is the son of James and Catherine Forster of Independence Township. He is a senior at Oakland University, majoring in English. Both are 1990 graduates of Clarkston High School. A May 1994 wedding at First Baptist of Pontiac is planned.

How you can become a bone marrow donor

Those ages 18-55 are eligible to be a bone marrow donor.

It requires a blood test, usually through a special bone marrow blood drive conducted by the American Red Cross.

The results are entered into a national registry of donors. If a donor matches a patient, further testing takes place to identify antigens on the donors' cells. The antigens recognize and reject foreign tissues, so if they don't match the patient's they're likely to be rejected by the patient's body.

What donors can expect ...

If the donor is a match, he or she may be contacted to arrange a donation of bone marrow.

With the donor under general anesthesia in an operating room, marrow is withdrawn from the donor's hip bone using a special syringe and needle. The needle puncture sites will be tender for about a week.

Some mild stiffness and tenderness will last for a day or so, but this discomfort can be lessened through exercise and low-dose pain medication. Donors are usually discharged from the hospital the next day.

About bone marrow ...

Bone marrow is the spongy tissue inside bones that manufactures various components of blood and the immune system: red blood cells, white cells and platelets.

In the case of leukemia, usually the white blood cells become malignant. Since restraints on their growth are lost, leukemic white blood cells multiply at a rapid rate, which hinders the production of normal blood cells by the bone marrow. If untreated, it can lead to progressive disease and death.

Chemotherapy drugs can destroy these malignant cells but are destructive to the normal marrow cells, as well.

Why transplants may work ...

A bone marrow transplant allows very large doses of drugs to be given to defeat the disease, then restores the patient's bone marrow to permanent, adequate production of all the normal components of blood. Transplantation takes place after chemotherapy radiation and other treatments have eradicated the leukemic cells from the patient's system and have suppressed the patient's immunity to donor marrow.

The transplanted bone marrow cells seek out their place within the patient's bone marrow and actually begin to produce a whole new population of blood cells. When the marrow successfully engrafts and the leukemic cells do not recur, the patient has a chance for chemotherapy-free remission and survival from leukemia.

For more information, call the National Marrow Donor Program at 1-800-654-1247 or the American Association of Bone Marrow Donor Registries at 1-800-7-DONATE.

Get physical at North Sashabaw fair

"Let's Get Physical" is the theme of North Sashabaw Elementary School's annual school fair Saturday, March 19.

The fair will feature a silent auction, moon walk (inside the gym), games, general store, handcrafted items, face painting and cake walk. The event is sponsored by the PTO; chairperson is Terri Bendes.

Donations are currently being sought from the community for the silent auction. Donations already include a weekend in a Boyne-area condo, Rollerblades and passes to the Buick Open Golf Tournament. But auction co-chairs Cheryl McGinnis and Robin Brose are looking for more.

"A good amount of the effort we put toward the silent auction is directed toward computers (in the schools)," McGinnis said.

"We don't want people to think this is only for people with kids in school. This is . . . to see what's going on in the schools."

The theme is part of the PTO's emphasis on fitness at North Sashabaw. Students have a walking program available during their spare time, and the PTO is interested in building a fitness course outside the school.

"We are asking for support for silent auction donations from area business," McGinnis said. Crafters and other residents with anything to donate are also encouraged to do so.

All proceeds will benefit PTO activities, which include, besides computers, playground upkeep, curriculum aides, field trips, and supplies.

Hours for the fair are 11 a.m.-3 p.m. at the school, 5290 Maybee Road.

If you'd like to donate something to the auction, call McGinnis at 623-9105 or Brose at 623-2047. Any business making a donation will receive a notice they can put in their store window.

For more information about the fair, call Bendes at 673-7779.

Natalee McGinnis, 5. American Fitness is donating several one-month club memberships and some clothing to the silent auction.

Hurry spring with flower show

Some of the area's best flower arrangers will converge on the Pontiac Silverdome March 3-6 for the Federated Garden Clubs of Michigan flower show. Among them will be Clarkston resident Barbara Folden.

Folden, a member of the North Oakland Arrangers Guild, has two entries in the show. She's been perfecting her skills for about 20 years and learned the skill from her mother, who judges and teaches the art.

"It's not traditional flower arranging like you see in a flower shop," Barbara Folden said. Rather, it's like interpreting a theme, using flowers among the materials.

"They give you a title... they give you dimensions of design or a niche or a background to fill, and if it's traditional, contemporary or abstract," Folden said.

In order to come up with original designs, Folden said she haunts garage sales and stores, looking for bargains she can use. Often she borrows. She's accumulated enough to fill an attic; her mother has a barn full.

The theme of this year's show is "Anywhere I Hang my Hat is Home." Count on seeing a lot of hats along with the flowers as exhibitors choose from categories entitled "Where did you Get that Hat," "Put on Your Gardening Hat" and "A Tip of the Hat."

The flower show is being held in conjunction with the Michigan Home and Garden Show. One entry fee gets you into both shows. In addition to the flower arrangements, a horticultural division will feature succulents, herbs, topiaries and living wreaths. Fifteen gardens will be created inside the show and lots of spring flowers are promised, along with an English Conservatory greenhouse, a cascading water river bed and other unique architectural accents. Lectures and demonstrations will be provided daily.

The Michigan Home and Garden Show and the Federated Garden Clubs of Michigan District One Flower Show will be held Thursday, March 3 through Sunday, March 6 at the Pontiac Silverdome. Admission is $6 for adults, $3 for kids 6-14, 5 and under free. Discount coupons are available at Big Boy restaurants and Amoco gas stations.

Ann Arbor Flower Show highlights classic design

A breath of spring past will waft through the air when the 1994 Ann Arbor Flower and Garden Show unveils gardens fashioned from history books, fairy tales and grandparents' memories.

The Matthaei Botanical Gardens of the University of Michigan will present the best of the old and new in gardening March 24-27 at the Washtenaw Farm Council Grounds. Clarkston's Barbara Folden will exhibit at this show as well as at the Silverdome March 3-6 (see main story).

The Garden's fifth-annual show, "Once Upon a Time," will feature more than 500 exhibits, French parterre garden pathways between buildings and an antique garden furniture and accessories market.

Visitors will enter past brick pillars down a pathway leading to a gazebo and fountain inspired by the town square in Marshall, Michigan. Inside, eight fully landscaped gardens continue the theme of classic gardening styles.

Hours for the show are 9 a.m.-9 p.m., March 24-26 and 9-5 March 27. Advance tickets are $7 ($8 at the door) for adults, $3 for kids 4-12, kids 3 and under free. Advance tickets are available at Kroger stores.

The Washtenaw Farm Council Grounds is located at 5055 Ann Arbor-Saline Rd. Parking at the show is $2; visitors are encouraged to use shuttle buses from Briarwood Mall at $1 per person, round trip.

Learn to breastfeed

Teaching the technique of breastfeeding is the mission of Nature's Way Breastfeeding Clinic.

The clinic, located at 1550 N. Woodward in Birmingham, is open Mondays from 3:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. and Thursdays from 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

Mothers will receive the help of certified lactation consultants from ST. Joseph Mercy Hospital. These registered nurses are trained in breastfeeding techniques. They will teach participants the proper way to breast feed, answer questions, deal with problems including return-to-work issues and provide support and education.

Art volunteers needed

You don't have to be an artist to volunteer for the Art to the Schools Committee — you just have to like art.

The committee is a volunteer outreach program of The Detroit Institute of Arts. The DIA Department of Education staff trains volunteers to pass knowledge along to area school children in grades 4, 5 and 6.

Applications to join the fall class for the Art to the Schools program are now being taken. For more information, call Nancy Jones at 833-7975.

Fund fun at tax time

Tax time can be taxing enough without having to worry about figuring out how to report the sale of a mutual fund on your tax return. All in all, it's really not that complicated, so let's take a look.

In order to compute the gain or loss on the sale of a mutual fund, you must start with the amount realized on the sale. That's usually pretty simple, it's the amount of the check you received or the amount of the credit to your account. Remember, switching from one fund to another is taxable.

Your basis in a fund is a bit trickier to calculate. To calculate basis (other than gifts or inheritances) start with the amount that you originally invested. Add to that amount any subsequent purchases and any reinvested dividends. The reinvested dividends on municipal bond funds provide additional basis.

If you sell 100 percent of your position, the calculation of gain or loss is easy, simply subtract the basis from the amount realized on the sale. If the sale is of less than 100 percent of your holdings, things get a bit trickier. There are three basic methods available to allocate basis. First, you may, in writing, specify which shares are to be redeemed. IRS record keeping rules make specific identification difficult for most mutual fund owners. If not specifically identified, shares are deemed to be sold on a first-in-first-out basis. Mutual fund owners who have their shares held by the fund and who have purchased shares at different times and at different prices may use the average cost per share. There are two methods to compute average cost.

Under the "single category method," the basis in the shares is spread over all shares, regardless of when acquired. For purposes of allocating between short and long term gains, shares are deemed to be sold on a first-in-first-out basis. Under the "double category" method, shares are divided between those owned for more than 12 months and those owned less than 12 months. Averages are kept for both categories. After shares have been held for 12 months, the shares are moved from the "new shares" category to the "old shares" category and the averages are recomputed. The taxpayer may choose whether he is selling "new" shares or "old" shares.

For example, you invest $1,000 in the XYZ fund (with a 5.75% front end load) on January 1 of 1991 and 1992. The information regarding the fund is summarized below. In February 1992 you redeem $1,000 worth of the fund. Under the first-in-first-out method, the gain is $89. Under the specific identification method, the total gain is $79. Under the single average method, the gain is $87. Under the double average method, the total gain is $83.

Date	Share Price	Shares	Dollar Amount

Get some free tax advice

Swamped with tax questions and don't know where to turn? Help is only a phone call away!

For the seventh consecutive year, the Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants is sponsoring its annual "Ask-a-CPA" call-in days. This program provides taxpayers the opportunity to have their federal and state tax questions answered free by certified public accountants.

Taxpayers with questions may call these numbers on the following dates:

•Saturday, February 26, from 9 a.m. - 4 p.m.,

(616) 771-6680 or (616) 771-6678.

•Saturday, March 5, from 9 a.m. - 4 p.m., (313) 855-2288; and •Sunday, March 6, from noon - 4 p.m., (313) 855-2288.

Individuals may call as often as they wish; however, they are limited to two questions per call in order to accommodate as many calls as possible.

The MACPA maintains offices in Farmington Hills and serves nearly 13,500 CPAs in Michigan through its educational and professional programs.

Don't wait until April 14 to hire an accountant

By the Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants

If you are considering hiring a certified public accountant to prepare your taxes, the Michigan Association of CPAs recommends that you begin your search for the help right now.

Not all CPAs are created equal, and those that may be the most qualified to prepare your return could be unavailable if you wait until your tax return is due.

Determine your needs

To ensure that you hire the right CPA, consider the complexity of your tax return. Do you have a home-based business? Have you had large capital gains or losses in the last year? Did you experience a large casualty loss in the past year? Do you have rental property? If so, try to retain a CPA who has experience dealing with these kinds of issues.

Even if your needs are not complex, you may still find the help of a CPA to be cost effective if you have experienced a major lifestyle change, such as retiring, divorcing or assuming full-time care for a relative. Additionally, if you think the new tax law will result in significant changes to your tax liability, it may benefit you to obtain assistance.

Shop around

If you've never hired a CPA to prepare your taxes before, you can start searching for one by contacting friends and associates who may have similar incomes or be involved in similar lines of work. You can also check with your local chamber of commerce, as well as civic and church groups for names of qualified CPAs. Finally, ask other professionals you know, such as bankers, attorneys and insurance agents for referrals.

Once you've obtained a few names, try to call or personally interview at least three different CPAs. This will enable you to assess differences in style, capabilities and fee structures.

Check backgrounds

During the interview process, you'll want to learn as much as possible about the preparer's professional background. Find out whether the individuals work as tax preparers full-time or part-time, the number of years of experience and their level of education. You'll also want to ask about their memberships in professional associations.

Also, don't be shy about asking a prospective CPA for the names of clients you can contact. Find out from past clients how satisfied they were with the work performed and whether it was done in a timely manner.

Discuss fees

The cost for preparing your tax return can range anywhere from under $100 for a short-form return to thousands of dollars for a complicated return. Find out whether your CPA charges on an hourly basis, uses a lump sum, or bases the fee on the number of tax forms that need to be completed.

To assist your CPA in determining a fee, you may want to provide him or her with a copy of your tax return from last year, pointing out any differences in your financial or tax situation.

The Michigan Association of CPAs emphasizes that any good CPA will want to find out how much you can contribute to the tax preparation process. If you can identify the tax issues that need to be addressed and have well organized tax records, a preparer can work more efficiently and cost-effectively.

Welsh wear the leek on March 1

Welsh-Americans across the nation will celebrate St. David's Day on March 1. While almost everyone wears a bit of green on March 17 to help the Irish commemorate St. Patrick (born a Welshman), the patron saint of Wales is less widely recognized. Yet with over two million Americans claiming Welsh ancestry - including Hillary Rodham Clinton, Bob Hope and Richard Nixon - it's time to give St. David his due.

Dewi Sant (as the Welsh call St. David) was one of the most influential monks of the sixth century, the founder and bishop-abbot of the See of St. David's. A descendent of the Royal House of Gwynedd, the year of his birth is uncertain, possibly 520 A.D., but the date of his death is assumed to be March 1, 589.

There is no authentic account of his life and much of what is known is thought to be legendary. In a manuscript dated in the early 10th century, he is referred to as a spiritual leader of the Welsh. Another writer, in the following century, states that from ancient records at St. David's Cathedral, many of them in the Saint's own hand, David founded many monasteries; performed various miracles and healed the sick; and made a journey to Jerusalem. He was an eloquent preacher and led a hard life with his fellow monks. Another report states that David was consecrated Bishop by the Patriarch John III, and that the portable altar stone, now in the south Transept of St. David's Cathedral in Wales, was the Patriarch's gift to him.

He attended the celebrated Synod of Brefi, and was instrumental in refuting the Pelagian heresy which the Synod had been convened to suppress.

Legend tells that a milk-white dove descended and rested on his shoulder as he spoke, and the dove is often used in representations of the saint.

Saint David was canonized by Pope Callixtus II as the Patron Saint of Wales in 1120. Today, his relics may be seen in St. David's Cathedral in Pembroke, South Wales, the longest continuous cathedral settlement in Great Britain.

When the Welsh celebrate St. David's Day, they often wear a leek to symbolize their Welsh identity. The leek represents the honor of the role it played in the battle of Heathfield in the seventh century, when the Welsh defeated invading Saxons. Following the advice of St. David, Welsh troops wore leeks in their helmets to differentiate them from their enemies. Even today, the leek adorns the caps and tunics worn by the Welsh Guards and the Prince of Wales.

Heritage Hunt

By Virginia Block

Finding a list of soldiers stationed with the 19th Infantry, U.S. Army, stationed in Puerto Rico in 1898 is going to provide some folks with proof of service in the Spanish-American War for their ancestors.

While we have no idea who compiled this list of names of 141 soldiers that were members of Company H, in Mobile, Alabama, 1 May 1898; 19th U.S. Inf, Captain Charles B. Hall was the chief officer in command. Then followed 1st Lt. Thos. E. Hanson; 2nd Lt. Fred G. Louton; Sgts. Tarbert, Morton, Stukey, Uhrig, Click; Corp. Shephard, Propper, Lightburn, French, Brown, Artific Knoll; Wagoner Hartman; Musicians Tunney and Jacobs.

Unfortunately we are unable to read the name of compiler of this record book, but believe it to be John W. Wulff. The roster of privates is listed by last name only, but we will be happy to check it for anyone, because many names familiar to us of those searching the surnames listed may find a long lost military record.

The first half of this treasured notebook is filled with poetry that the author uses to tell the story of the war. The first is entitled The Maine Disaster, 4 stanzas long, written at Coamo, Puerto Rico, 31 Dec 1898. Next is "On San Juan Hill," by Robert Burns Wilson, 3rd is titled "My Battered Old Canteen," written at Coamo, 22 Jan 1899, Sunday p.m. 4th was "In the Guardhouse," followed by "The Old Knapsack," 6th "The Song of San Juan," 7th "Hell and Spain," 8th "Manila," 9th "Eight Miles to Siboney," 10th "Hobson's Choice," 11th "Peace," 12th "Last Taps," 13th "The Cowboy's Dance," and 14th "The Recruit's Prayer."

Each poem is a story of the life of a soldier, and the battle to survive the horrors of war.

In our records of military burials in Michigan cemeteries, while there were found many 19th Infantry soldiers of the Spanish American War, we only found one belonging to Co. H., that was Alfred Clark, buried in Constantine.

Marjorie Lockhart would like help from anyone researching the Madill name. Her father Samuel Madill, born in Cheboygan in 1885, died in 1957. Her grandfather Benjamin Madill was from Canada and great grandmother was Elizabeth Thompson. We hope to find more help for her, checking the Canadian Atlases for the counties of York and Ontario.

In our book, "People of Ontario, 1600 to 1900," we find both a Benjamin and Samuel Madill listed, which looks encouraging for her.

We will check the above books for anyone letting us know where you need a summary located in Ontario in the 300 year listing or you may search in our library.

Happy Hunting!

Correction: In last week's Heritage Hunt the name PLATE should have been PIATT.

OSCAR DINNER AND MOVIE CONTEST MAY WIN $250.00 WORTH OF MOVIE TICKETS AND DINNER FOR 2

Moviegoers always have opinions. Does Tom Hanks of "PHILADELPHIA" stand a chance to win the OSCAR for BEST-ACTOR against Liam Neeson in "SCHINDLER'S LIST?" Can Jane Campion become the first woman to win as best director for "PIANO?"

If your hunches are correct, you could win the first-place prize of 50 movie tickets to the OXFORD TWIN CINEMA and dinner for 2 at LONG BRANCH (value $250.00) in the first annual CLARKSTON NEWS and the Oxford Twin Cinema's Oscar Dinner Contest or you could win 20 movie tickets and dinner for 2, a $115.00 value as second place finisher.

Here's how to enter: Fill out the entry form and attach it to a postcard or the back of a sealed envelope. Don't put it inside the envelope and please don't send letters. We won't open envelopes. You may enter as often as you wish.

As soon as the OSCARS are presented on March 21st., we'll sort entries. The entry with the most correct answers (including the tie breaker) and the earliest postmark will win first-place prize and the entry with the most correct answers and the next earliest postmark will finish second for the second place prize.

If more than one entry has the same number of correct answers and the same early postmark, we'll select winner by random drawing. Employees of Oxford Twin Cinema and Sherman Publishing Co. and their immediate families are not eligible.

Closing date and time for entries to be received by March 15th, 1994.

Bob Is Back!

Bob Hahn is back in town. A lifetime Clarkston resident, Hahn graduated from Clarkston High in 1985, earned his bachelor's degree from A.S.U., and has recently completed the N.A.D.A. Dealer Training Program. He now joins his father and brothers in the Hahn Management Group as a Sales Representative at Quality Pontiac.

"My dad has been in the car business for 35 years," Hahn said. "He bought his first dealership right here in Clarkston before I was born. My brothers and I grew up in the business, doing everything from washing cars to painting the parking lines on the asphalt."

"Now I've got my chance to sell. Think I have something to prove? You bet!"

"Come see the kind of deal I can work for you."

We are SIDING and GUTTER Specialists
We are not a Jack-of-all-trades. We can not guarantee you the absolute lowest price, as we will not sacrifice the quality products or workmanship that you deserve. But what we will guarantee is an honest and fair price with products and workmanship of the highest quality. We also do our own work. We don't get your job and sub-contract it out, or sell it. So if you are only looking for the cheapest way out, call someone else who claims they can beat any price. If you are looking for an honest and fair price, quality products and workmanship, dependability, and someone that will still be here after your job is completed, give us a call. Helping you make your home the one you've always dreamed of is what we do.

Classical Cut-Ups

Children, ages three to six, were introduced to Haydn, Beethoven and Vivaldi last week.

Interacting with classical music was part of the class Classical Cut-Ups which was taught by Marci Walsh and sponsored by the Independence Township Library.

The children pretended to be bouncing bees to Flight of the Bumblebee, "slept" through part of Papa Haydn's Surprise Symphony, and became princes and princesses on their way to a picnic during Vivaldi's Spring.

Walsh, of Walsh Works Music, presents classes on multi-cultural and classical music to children.

MARCI WALSH and her class of Classical Cut-Ups use a sheet to make the sound of a thunder storm while listening to Tchaikovsky. The class was sponsored by the Independence Township Library. Walsh, of Walsh Works Music, has a series of presentations on multi-cultural and classical music that she performs with children.

ANTHONY PACELLA, 5, and others mimic the audience at a Franz Joseph Haydn concert. Concert-goers would eat large meals before a concert and then fall asleep to the beautiful music. In Papa Haydn's Surprise Symphony, there are loud parts to startle sleeping patrons awake.

DANIEL ASHBY, 3, and Lauren Harvey, 4, carefully bump into each other and other children while listening to Flight of the Bumblebee. (Photos by Catherine Passmore)

LAUREN PIEDMONT, 5, puts together her imaginary peanut butter and jelly sandwich while listening to Antonio Vivaldi's Spring.
