Total crime up in 1993

BY CATHERINE PASSMORE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Robbery, criminal sexual conduct (CSC) and larceny decreased last year in Independence Township, while arson, aggravated assaults and vagrancy increased.

Comparisons of 1992 and 1993 crimes in Independence Township show offenses were up 3.2 percent from 10,444 in 1992 to 10,782 in 1993.

Lt. John Taylor of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department said high percentages in incidents like vagrancy — there were 10 incidents in 1993 but a percentage increase of 233 — tends to throw the total percentage off.

Along with vagrancy, crimes with a high percentage increase included arson, which climbed 83.3 percent from six incidents in 1992 to 11 incidents in 1993, and forgery and counterfeit, a 125 percent increase from four to nine incidents.

Taylor reported more high profile crimes were down in 1993.

"The things that really attack the citizens, the things that concern them the most are down," he said.

Taking a dip in 1993 was CSC — which includes rape — down 66.7 percent from 12 to three incidents. "That's something very significant to me," said Taylor.

Robbery fell 42.9 percent from seven incidents to four; and burglary fell 21.6 percent from 167 to 131 incidents. Larceny was also reduced from 596 to 580 incidents, and vandalism went down from 433 to 356.

"All in all, I think we've had a good year. I think we're doing a good job," said Taylor.

City ponders water costs-- and how to pay

BY DEBORAH DZIEWIT
Clarkston News Staff Writer

City Council began testing the waters over whether or not to go with a community water system.

In a public meeting Monday night, city engineers from Hubbell Roth and Clark presented preliminary cost estimates for two options which would tie residents to Independence Township's water system.

One proposal would extend a water main down Main Street by tying into the township's systems which are already in place north and south of town.

It would leave residents with the choice to hook up or not. However, it would require all Main Street businesses to be connected.

"You could go with a water main now and tie it over when they (residents) have the need with the exception of the downtown," said Tom Biehl, an engineer for HRC.

Estimated cost would be $1.75 million with residents paying $4,400 to $4,900 either through an ad valorem tax or special assessments.

The other option presented included a complete city system which could cost an estimated $2.06 million. Residents could pay $5900 to $6500.

Gar Wilson, Independence Fire chief, said the plan, which includes the installation of fire hydrants, would lower residents fire protection costs.

Despite the savings, one Overlook Drive resident didn't agree.

"What advantage is it to hook up and spend the money other than fire protection?" Robert Suran asked.

In addition, residents who attended the meeting questioned the need and cost for a community water system in Clarkston.

"I'm opposed to spreading the cost to everyone who doesn't have a problem," Jim Brueck of Middle Lake Road said. "We could be looking at a $5 problem and a $1 million solution."

Residents in favor of a system regardless of the cost came from the north end of town where contaminants have been found and still pose a problem of unsafe drinking water.

This spring, 26 residents along North Main will receive township water due to contaminated wells. The state awarded the township grant money to pay for the extension to the water main.

Some of the residents' wells on Robertson Court and Miller Road have shown signs of contamination;

The news in brief

Absentee ballots available for March 15 election

Michigan residents who won't be able to go to the polls for the March 15 statewide election on school funding can receive absentee ballots until March 12.

In Independence Township, the clerk's office will be open Saturday, March 12 from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. for absentee ballot applications.

In the City of the Village of Clarkston, there will be no Saturday hours, but absentee ballots are available by calling the clerk.

In Springfield Township, Saturday hours are 8:30 a.m.-2 p.m. But clerk Nancy Strole advised not waiting till the last day.

"The last thing we want is for people to be disenfranchised," she said. "It happens every year."

County schedules hearing on solid-waste plan

The Oakland County Board of Commissioners will take public comment on proposed amendments to the solid-waste plan at a hearing scheduled for Thursday, March 31 at 7 p.m. at the Commissioners' Auditorium, 1200 N. Telegraph, Pontiac.

The county is trying to come up with a revised plan after the last plan failed to be ratified by a majority of municipalities. The plan must show how the county plans to take care of its garbage-disposal needs for the next 20 years.

A copy of the amendments is available at the Solid Waste offices, 1 Public Works Drive. Written comments may be submitted until March 30.

Language dropped from federal education bill

Language in a federal education bill which appeared to require certified teachers for home-schooled children has been dropped.

According to a spokesman for Rep. Dale Kildee (D, Flint), an amendment to HR6, a bill covering federal aid for schools, has been adopted by the U.S. House.

The amendment drops the requirement that home schools and private schools use only state-certified teachers. Such decisions had previously been up to the states.

The language was amended to clarify the intent of the law to keep teacher certification a state issue.

HR 6, the Elementary and Secondary Education Act (ESEA) is required to be reauthorized every five years. It includes such programs as Chapter I reading assistance funds and most other aid to schools, which are set to expire at the end of the year.

Woman charged

Julie Witenton, 33, of Clarkston has been charged with prescription drug fraud in 52 District Court.

Detective Dirk Feneley of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department said Witenton allegedly called in a prescription to an area store and tried to pick up the drug Feb. 1.

She waived her preliminary exam and will be arraigned in Circuit Court by visiting Judge Balkwill. As of press time, Witenton was in the Oakland County Jail unable to post a $5,000 cash bond.

Proposal A comes down to personal cost

With just about two weeks to go till the vote on Proposal A, the proposal has pulled ahead in the polls but many people have yet to make up their minds.

Besides coming down to a choice between a sales-tax increase and an income-tax hike, Proposal A is also an issue of trust. With the legislature continuing to fine tune the proposal, some people wonder whether either choice has the stability to stand the test of time.

However Rick Simonson, Oakland School's assistant superintendent and lobbyist in Lansing, feels the legislature has done a pretty good job in fashioning a new school-finance plan for Michigan.

"On a scale of one to 10 I give the legislature eight or 8.5," he said. "I did not think it was always possible. I had my doubts about whether school districts in Oakland County would survive... In the end, leveler heads prevailed."

Groups such as Oakland County Taxpayers have assailed both Proposal A and the backup plan, taking Governor John Engler to task for backing down on a campaign pledge to cut property-tax assessments 20 percent. Engler says Proposal A offers more, and Simonson seems to agree.

"Don't let anybody con you into believing there isn't significant tax savings in this proposal," Simonson said. "There is."

Whether A passes or fails, schools will receive the same amount of money next fall. The choice, then, is between hiking the sales tax by another two cents per dollar or increasing the income tax. Only financial issues will be on the ballot.

"This is shifting rapidly from an issue about education to an issue of pockets," Simonson said. "People are saying, 'My school's going to be OK; how's it going to affect me?'"

Historically, according to Simonson, the sales tax has been more stable than income tax. Though income tax has grown more than inflation, it is subject to more ups and downs and can therefore be considered less stable as a way of funding schools.

As Simonson sees it, both Proposal A and the backup plan have their good and bad points, but both restore funding cut last year. And some details remain to be worked out, such as money for Downtown Development Authorities.

The ballot

When voters go to the polls March 15 to vote on Proposal A, six points will be listed in the proposed constitutional amendment. They are:

- A limit on annual assessment increases for each parcel of land to five percent or inflation, whichever is less. When a property is sold or transferred, it would be reassessed to show current market value.
- A sales tax increase. All of the increase is earmarked for schools.
- An exemption for school operating millages from the uniform taxation requirement of the Constitution. This allows homestead properties to be taxed at a lower rate than other properties.
- A requirement that to change school operating millage rates, a three-fourths vote of the legislature is required.
- Property taxes, which were wiped out by the legislature, must be partially restored.
- Laws enacted as a back up to Proposal A, including an increased income tax, must be nullified.

Homeowners insurance costs may drop, thanks to new rating

BY CATHERINE PASSMORE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Next time you talk to your insurance representative, you may find you are in line for a reduction in your fire insurance.

In September 1993 the Independence Township Fire Department requested Insurance Services Office (ISO) to evaluate a reclassification of township fire insurance grading — and the scores are in.

Chief Gar Wilson announced classification has improved from class eight to class five in areas served by an acceptable water system.

Property is classified from one to 10, with 10 being property farthest from a fire department and a dependable water source.

A homeowner-type fire insurance policy could decrease between minus 16.8 percent and minus 23.1 percent depending on the type of structure.

Wilson said the general rule is that properties south of I-75 and those newer subdivisions in the north will have a rating change.

"The key is, if you have a fire hydrant within 1,000 feet of your house or business, you're a five," said Wilson.

A class nine continues to apply to those properties located more than 1,000 feet road distance from a fire hydrant, but within five road miles of one of the three township fire stations.

The change from eight to five does not affect property insurance premiums for properties with sprinklers.

The change will affect other typical commercial properties by about minus 23.7 percent. However, variations in construction, occupancy and private protection may result in increases or decreases from the average.

The reclassification evaluation can only be done once every 15 years because of the time and cost involved. ISO was in the township for three weeks in September gathering information and final results were not returned until Feb. 16.

Wilson said each resident should contact their insurance company at the time of renewal to see if the new ratings affect their rates. The new ISO ratings went into effect March 1.

New academy may come to Clarkston

BY ANNETTE KINGSBURY
Clarkston News Editor

A new math/science academy dubbed "awesome-tech" by one educator may be about to become a reality—right here in the Clarkston School District.

School boards from the districts of Clarkston, Holly, Lake Orion, Oxford, Pontiac, Waterford and the Oakland Intermediate Schools will meet in a joint session to hear a proposal for the new school March 7.

If there's a consensus to go ahead, a committee which has been working on the plan for the last eight months will begin looking for a site.

One location currently under consideration is the Oakland Technical Center-Northwest on Big Lake Rd. According to Michael LaBay, Clarkston Schools' Deputy Superintendent for Instruction, there's room at the building for next fall's proposed freshman class.

"It (the proposed academy) is not only a high school, it's a demonstration site," LaBay said. "Staff from any of the northern school districts could go to receive training."

Funding would come from each school district's per-pupil money. Since students would attend the academy for a half-day each school day, their home districts would send one-half of their funding to the academy, plus a small additional amount ($100-$250) per student.

Other funding would come from the state in the form of vocational/technical funds which are currently sent to the Intermediate School District, and from a business-school partnership called Future-Vest.

For the first year, about 50 students and two teachers are planned. "The building pretty much has to be donated," LaBay said, because there's no budget for rent. Though there are several empty school buildings available in Pontiac, renovation costs would be prohibitive, he said.

The first year budget is currently estimated at $265,000. Within five years, when the school would be up to full enrollment, the budget is projected at $1,132,969.

"Our ultimate dream is to have a facility where the community and participating teachers will see innovative instruction methods and practices," LaBay said.

Each district would select the students who would attend. "It won't necessarily be the highest achieving students in high school," La Bay said. "We're going to try to entice students who wouldn't ordinarily be drawn to science and technology . . ."

"We have studies that show girls don't volunteer for science and technology classes as much as boys do. So there may be more girls than boys . . . These are kids that have the ability to achieve in science and math but haven't been turned on to it."

The OTC-NW is owned by Oakland Schools. It currently houses specialized vocational classes for students in a variety of fields, including advertising design, dental assisting, auto mechanics, office practice, cooking, construction and maintenance.

Nevertheless, LaBay said there's a negative perception attached to the school.

"Some people in Clarkston feel the voc. center is a less academic center," he said. "By having an academy there it would strengthen our belief there are many good programs there."

One unique aspect of the proposal is its partnership with businesses. The partnership would benefit both the school and local business.

"Science, math and technology are supply-intensive," LaBay said. "It costs a little more to teach kids than it does language arts or social science. That's why we're very interested in the partnership area.

"Business and industry usually replace their technology items quicker than schools. But the equipment could still be used by schools."

"I thought it was very futuristic," said Meg Bliesath, a Clarkston High School senior who is a member of the committee.

Bliesath said that although CHS currently offers a good selection of classes, the academy would offer "just a stronger program, more hands on ideas."

"It's different just sitting in a classroom than doing hands-on."

Renovations complete

"It's done! It's done!" said an obviously elated Claudia Jakus, owner of Clarkston Travel at 6 North Main St. The building she occupies has been undergoing renovation since May and is finally done. Jakus said the work was done based on a study by the city, which suggested returning the facade to its historical correctness.

Cable TV gets price controls

BY ANNETTE KINGSBURY
Clarkston News Editor

Last fall, cable TV subscribers were told by the government their bills would shrink. For many, it never happened.

Now the government is trying again. Last week the Federal Communications Commission voted to lower cable prices by an average of seven percent, effective in May. Cable operators aren't happy.

"It's hard to tell what's going to happen with individual customers," said Mike Cleland, general manager of TCI Cablevision of Oakland County. "We do know we're going to lose money again with this new round of regulation."

The new law comes just as the U.S. Department of Commerce released information showing the cable industry as a whole showed a 10-percent increase in revenues in 1993. Cleland said the numbers are misleading because federal price regulations didn't take effect until September.

However at that time, some prices were increased while others were decreased. Customers saw new line items on their bills for cable converters, remote controls and other services which had formerly been included in their basic monthly rate.

TCI is the largest cable TV company in the world, according to USA Today. Cleland said they have 59 percent penetration in Clarkston but he doesn't feel lower prices will bring in more customers.

"I think the price is fair now for what we provide," he said. "We've taken one hit to our business already; now we're going to take another at a time when we need to invest... Revenue is going to go down."

The FCC's action so shocked Wall Street that a planned merger between TCI and Bell Atlantic Corp which would have been the biggest telecommunications merger in history was called off.

Cleland said it will be at least a month before subscribers will see notices in their monthly statements detailing rate changes. For now he wouldn't speculate on exactly what the changes would be.

"I do know it's going to hurt us," he said. "We feel it's a little punitive."

Foot chase leads to arrest for theft

A two-hour foot chase led to the arrest of a 34-year-old Springfield Township man who is charged with stealing a snowmobile.

Robert T. Weiner was arrested early Friday morning after eluding police for over two hours. Police say he stole a 1994 snowmobile worth $7,000 from a residence on Oak Park Street.

Detective Dirk Feneley from the Oakland County Sheriff's Department said that deputies noticed the snowmobile traveling north on Sashabaw Road at about 100 mph around 3 a.m.

The snowmobile turned onto Flemings Lake Road and then came back to Sashabaw Road. By this time, the snowmobile had been reported stolen and police began to follow it. Brandon Township police were called to assist.

Weiner was found walking on Sashabaw Road and the snowmobile was discovered behind the Crackerbarrel store on Sashabaw and Seymour Lake roads.

Police chased and searched for Weiner for two hours. They found him hiding in an empty trailer in the storage lot of Sashabaw Meadows.

He has been charged with larceny over $1,000 — a felony punishable with up to five years in prison. His preliminary exam is March 4 at 11 a.m. in front of Judge Gerald McNally.

Walk for warmth

A couple hundred people turned out to raise money for winter utility bills for the needy Feb. 19 in downtown Pontiac.

The event was the "Walk for Warmth" sponsored by the Oakland Livingston Human Services Agency and co-chaired by Detroit Lion Chris Spielman and Pontiac Mayor Charlie Harrison.

Walkers collected pledges in advance in support of OLHSA's effort to help pay winter utility bills for the needy.

Last year OLHSA received 2,423 calls for help with bills during the peak season. This year's record cold was expected to bring more of the same. The goal was $20,000, and OLHSA said it appears they have met that goal. Pledges are due by the second week in March.

In Focus

By Annette Kingsbury

Who speaks for the kids?

When our founding fathers wrote that "all men are created equal," did they ever stop and think about children?

Here it is, nearly the 21st century, and we still treat children like chattel, like property. Legally they have about as many rights as dogs. Hurt someone else's dog, pay a penalty. Hurt your own dog, there's no property crime so there's no crime at all.

Many states now have their own equal rights amendments, which guarantee the rights of all kinds of groups, including women and ethnic minorities. Yet everyone has forgotten about children.

These little people, who didn't ask to be born, don't vote, don't have money and have no legal standing are continually trampled over by our legal system. And there's no end in sight.

The latest example is the little Deckerville girl who we now know has led a torturous life. After her abuse was reported, people began coming out of the woodwork saying they knew something was wrong.

They reported her outdoors at all hours of the night, not allowed inside, no matter what the weather. They reported her begging neighbors for food. They reported her showing up at school filthy and hungry.

At one point a teacher actually took her home, washed her and gave her clean clothes, but no one took it upon themselves to rescue her from her horrible plight, not even Social Services.

So I find myself wondering: Why didn't someone just take her home one night when she was locked out of her home? Would I have? And what would have been the consequences?

Ironically, the law protects the guilty until their guilt is proven beyond a reasonable doubt. But it does nothing to protect the innocent. Anyone who might have taken matters into their own hands could have suffered legal consequences, even while the perpetrators of this little girl's nightmare did not.

In order for this to stop, our laws must recognize that children have rights too. They have the right to shelter, food and clothing, to nurturing both physical and spiritual. They have the right to expect adults to protect them from harm.

We keep hearing from judges and social workers that their hands are tied. Well darn it; let's do something to untie them. Our representatives in Lansing and Washington need to write laws that will work.

Look at some other areas. Domestic violence by one adult against another is so rampant that Michigan passed an anti-stalking law. Previously police agencies were reluctant to get involved in domestic cases because women were unlikely to prosecute. Now they have a law that allows them to prosecute without the victim's cooperation.

Look at the war we've waged on smoking, and it's worked. Smoking is way down.

Obviously when we put our minds to something we can get it accomplished. But the biggest hurdle is deciding it's a problem in the first place. Only when we all recognize that kids are people too will something begin to happen.

Letters to the editor

Column didn't tell whole story on 'A'

Dear editor:

I am writing to comment on an article written last week by Don Rush which pertained to the upcoming ballot proposal. In his article, Don correctly stated that if the ballot proposal passed, the state would levy six mills of property tax on all properties, and if the ballot proposal failed the state would be levying 12 mills on non-homestead properties.

However, before finishing the full explanation for the property-tax burden which will be experienced by homeowners, he questioned whether the statutory plan might actually offer a lower property-tax rate. By posing this question in the middle of his article, he made it seem as though that might be the extent of property taxes, that no local mills would go into effect.

I believe it is only fair to report what the homeowners would actually experience in property taxes, as opposed to misleading them into believing there would be less. Under the ballot plan, the combined local and state property tax would be six mills on homesteads and 24 mills on non-homesteads. Under the statutory plan the combined local and state property tax would be 12 mills on homesteads and 24 mills on non-homesteads.

When the legislature passed Senate Bill 1, they eliminated almost $7 billion worth of local property taxes. In order to both refund schools and not violate the 1978 Headlee Amendment which puts limits on state taxes, some of the burden for school funding must be considered local revenue.

Though I realize the March 15 ballot proposal raises many questions, it is the best choice for the residents of our community and the state. Please feel free to call me at home (810) 627-4511 or my office in Lansing (517) 373-1798 with any questions.

Sincerely,
Tom Middleton
State Representative

Club was a hit

My two sons recently participated in the Clarkston Middle School Bowling Club. It was a fun and educational experience for the children. There was a great deal of preparation and planning that went into the club including the bus transportation to Cherry Hill Lanes.

I would like to thank Miss Czarniecki, Mrs. Preuss and Mrs. Daniels for the time and effort put into making this bowling league possible.

Don't Rush Me

Optimism, it's a wonderful thing

Last Tuesday I tripped down memory lane. I was a last-minute, fill-in judge for the Clarkston Optimists' Oratory contest.

Five young ladies and five lads from the Clarkston area, aged 11-15, were to expound on the subject of "Optimism -- The Right Stuff."

What started me trippin' was when I walked through the front doors to Clarkston High School, something I hadn't done in a good many years.

When you walk into the school there to your right is the lunch room/study hall.

I remember the time when Tom Roberts brought in smoked sucker for lunch. He had it wadded up in about three feet of tin foil. We all, Dave Moss, Mark Reene, Scott Ferguson and others watched, wondering what Tom would pull out. When we saw what it was, he asked if anybody at the table wanted any; everybody just looked at him.

Tom was always polite.

Across the hall from the cafeteria is the theater, and that's where the optimistic speeches were to be given. That's also the place where I learned to give a "speech." Right down in front of the long, thick curtain and stage is where these young people spoke. Right where I had in front of my speech class and teacher, Ma Gibson.

That's where any similarity between myself and these young people parted ways. As I watched, listened and judged, I couldn't help but marvel. They were professional. Spoke well, were mature and had depth of thought.

I was the guy who gave a speech with a towel wrapped around my head, as the great swammie Donuldo Rushola. I conned little Merci Sanchez (affectionately referred to as the Little Aztec) to be my lovely assistant. She was to introduce me, open the curtains in the middle and usher me in. I came out from the side.

It was cheese-ball stuff, Abbott and Costello at a very low maturity level. I had a sheet draped over my shoulders and for my demonstration speech showed the class how to do card tricks.

While the young people for the contest obviously put time and great thought into their four-minute speeches, mine were shallow and hastily put together. I gave speeches like, "I was once a pyromaniac."

I'd write them third hour in D.J. Marsh's woodshop office, practice them and have it polished enough to give seventh hour.

To get the class' attention for one speech I calmly walked up, sat down my note cards, looked the audience in the eye and screamed at the top of my lungs.

No, I was not up to par with the young folks I saw last Tuesday night. All those who participated should feel good. They did a wonderful job. I left that theater smiling.

I got in my car and wondered how I would expound on "Optimism - The Right Stuff." The only thing I could think of would be to sing the first verse of High Hopes, with the ant, the plant, the ram and the dam. Then I sang that verse all the way home, just like I thought Frank Sinatra would. I was feeling good.

Optimism is a great and powerful tool. Hopefully they can keep that spirit with them. Hopefully they'll keep spreading it around to the rest of us just like they did that night.

Breaking up is hard to do, but sometimes perks are great

Twice this month, at Detroit Symphony Orchestra concerts conducted by the marvelous Neeme Jarvi, I have plainly heard the sound of one hand clapping.

What I would like to hear is the sound of one pop-up toaster popping.

Married life hasn't been easy since my wife suffered broken bones in a November auto accident. Among other terrible inconveniences, I have to make my own toast. God help us all. I'm not suggesting I might as well be divorced, but an estrangement might be nice.

I say that because a recent, richly informative news item said: "A Detroit lawmaker absent most of the last four months reappeared in the House on Tuesday, saying he had been trying to reconcile with his estranged wife and asking colleagues for understanding and forgiveness."

Democratic state Rep. Nelson Saunders is the veteran absentee, and I sincerely hope his domestic problems have been solved. Also, I sincerely hope my bosses noted this legislative assurance that marital problems are a valid reason for an employee to miss work for four months without getting fired or losing pay.

Divorce and otherwise fractured relationships have become so commonplace that, had my wife left me last year, I wouldn't have asked my employer for more than two months off with full salary and benefits so I could be financially comfortable while spending all my time seeking a reconciliation.

But if state taxpayers can give one of their employees four paid months off to revive marital bliss, my employer -- who is richer than most taxpayers -- certainly wouldn't want to be seen doing any less for me.

Also, I hope my coworkers noticed that none of Saunders' fellow lawmakers stood up and said hundreds of taxpayers experience marital separations every day, and few of them get a four-month paid vacation to write to Ann Landers, so it is outrageous to force taxpayers to do unto a public employee what no private employer does unto a taxpayer.

Likewise, if I succeed in embarrassing my employer into treating me like a state representative, I don't want to hear any of my newspaper colleagues complain about my getting paid for doing nothing for four months. It wouldn't be that big a change, anyway.

I plan to propose full paid estrangement to my wife as soon as she gets off the phone. I suspect she will applaud the idea, even though her broken hand is still in a cast.

She'll do it, as at DSO concerts, by pounding her thighs with her only healthy hand. I recently read someone is selling a cream that allegedly reduces the size of thighs. If, after her mending is complete, my wife has slimmer thighs, I will be the only person standing outside Orchestra Hall selling hand casts.

As for toast, several surprises awaited my injury-prompted return to the kitchen after a long absence, and the most disconcerting was we no longer own a pop-up toaster.

We have something called a "toaster oven," big enough for 20 loaves of toast. It has many dials, lights, temperature settings and stupid options. I cannot make it toast bread the way I want it, when I want it. If the elimination of the pop-up toaster is progress in homemaking, Betty Crocker will soon be baking cakes in a crematorium.

With toast, of course, there's the egg. My wife cracks it against the sink, which can be done with one hand, and I separate the broken shell, which requires two hands. She then wipes the remaining yucky stuff off the inside of the shell, which requires one finger and a stronger stomach than mine.

We are a team, by God, pending estrangement.

Seeking 'Sweet Pea'

The Clarkston News is looking for the owners who picked up their dog at the Clarkston Police Department a few weeks ago. She was an older small brown and white beagle, who spent over three months with the department. We would like to run a story about the owners and "Sweet Pea." Please give us a call at 625-3370.

Letters to the editor

There is a third choice

Proposal "A" and the "blackmail" backup statutory plan do not represent a choice between the sales tax and the income tax, nor the Democratic plan versus the Republican plan. They represent the actions of an arrogant and deceitful government who, having lost fairly several elections in the past, is now trying to force you to accept a massive tax increase and the loss of your constitutional right to tax limitation and tax fairness.

The uniformity clause in the constitution is destroyed by Proposal "A" and seriously violated by the statutory plan. This includes both the uniformity of property assessments and property-tax millages levied.

Both proposals immediately discriminate against business people, renters and other people foolish enough to have invested in Michigan. Under Proposal "A," they will pay 4 times the property tax of single-family owners, twice as much under the "blackmail" plan.

All of this is supposedly being done for education and school-finance reform, neither of which is accomplished by either proposal! The funds behind each student will still be unequal and the little education reform involved pushes us further down the path of outcomes-based education and school intervention in student privacy and parental rights. The funds raised by these proposals are not earmarked for K-12 education. They may be used for higher education and school employee retirement costs, the proportion of which will be determined by the legislature.

You do not have to choose the lesser of these two evils! Defeat Proposal "A" at the ballot and support Taxpayers United in mounting a legal challenge to the unconstitutional and illegal statutory plan. Then support the simple constitutional 20% property tax reduction contained in Senate Bill 667.

Jim's Jottings

Future of weeklies good

Our Michigan newspaper convention was a month ago, but a couple things speakers said may be of interest to non-newspaper types.

You probably already know most daily newspapers and many weekly newspapers are losing readers. We blame television, too many outside interests, too many who just can't read and many who are too lazy.

One speaker was Phil Meek, a chief bean counter for Capitol Cities. Cap Cities owns a half dozen newspapers, several radio and television stations and the ABC-TV network. Meek's background includes being publisher of the Oakland Press, a Cap Cities property.

It came as a surprise to me when he said radio is losing news listeners faster than newspapers. And, fewer and fewer are watching network news.

He says the tabloid programs like A Current Affair and Hard Copy are being watched . . . with viewers thinking they are getting all the news. Or at least all the news they need.

I can understand about listeners not getting news from radio. Occasionally I turn on FM stations and am disappointed that they carry no news at all. It's true of some AM's too.

Meek had an encouraging word for the future of weekly newspapers, of which Cap Cities owns several.

He said, "Weekly news (the hometown stuff we carry) is difficult to get anywhere else. Well run weeklies will be better off than dailies in 10 years." Now, if we can just qualify as a well run weekly.

Meek was introduced by Bruce McIntyre, publisher of the Oakland Press. During the intro McIntyre held up a book given him by Meek . . . "Double Your Profits."

I priced it. The author no doubt doubled his profit; it costs $25.95.

We're going to hear a whole lot more about the recently introduced federal budget than we care to. Through it all remember this . . . These are Pres. Clinton's figures: . . . Washington will take in $1.342 billion during that fiscal year and it will spend $1.518 billion.

And all the time the administration will be boasting about reducing the deficit.

Be careful what you believe

This weekend I heard a most profound thing — "If you control what the people see, you control what they think. If you control what they think, you control what they do." It was spoken by the fictional editor of a fiction newspaper and it scared me.

It is so true that what people see and hear — especially in the news — shapes their views into whatever the powers that be have decided they should believe and think.

Tonya Harding — misunderstood kid or ice queen?

Nancy Kerrigan — hero or spoiled brat?

What happened to Nancy is news. Tonya's alleged involvement is news. Tonya has been tried and convicted of a crime she hasn't been charged with and Nancy is close to being canonized.

From the moment the incident happened we've been told that Tonya is guilty, she's a witch, she doesn't deserve to go to the Olympics — on and on. One show even had a so-called friend describe how Tonya's brother sexually assaulted her and then he mysteriously died a couple months later.

Not one newspaper, not one television show simply said "This is what happened, this is what people around both of the say, be adults and make up your own mind."

Take for instance the 1993 crime statistics for Independence Township; if I were to have reported that arson was up 83 percent and vagrancy increased 233 percent in one year visions of a homeless person on each doorstep and a town in flames would dance across your mind.

If I added to the statistics interviews with crime victims, charts, a photo or two of a person on a bench or a home in flames eventually you may believe you live in the most dangerous community in the county. If we ran hyped-up stories about the high increase in crime in Independence Township weekly and in editorials called for an increased police force and budget — eventually people would follow along and raise their voices with me.

In reality, there were 11 arsons in the township and 10 people ticketed for vagrancy and violent crimes and burglaries were down in 1993.

I never fully realized what "The pen is mightier than the sword" meant. Editorials have got us into and kept us out of wars. Pictures and stories have caused us to spend billions on third world countries. And, as soon as more than one paper or news show tells us that blue hair, one tooth and a tattooed parrot on our chest is in fashion, there will be a mile long line at the beauty shops, dentist office and tattoo parlors.

Paulson at Holly Hotel

Comedian Pat Paulsen returns to the Holly Hotel Friday and Saturday, March 4-5 for four shows.

Pat and his wife, Noma, recently released two videos highlighting special "bits" from Paulsen's appearances on "The Smothers Brothers Comedy Hour," and "The Pat Paulsen Half-Hour Comedy Hour," from the 1960s and 1970s. Both videos will be available for sale following each performance.

Reserved seat tickets for all of the Pat Paulsen shows are $12 in advance, with limited, non-reserved seats available at the door for $14, if available at show time.

Teacher's success inspires walkers

When Jeanne Rosinski started walking, she was 100 pounds overweight and had trouble sitting in an airline seat.

Today she leads classes in walking and race walking and has been named Prevention magazine's Walker of the Year. She'll bring her story and her technique to a series of classes sponsored by Clarkston Community Education this spring.

"I did it without dieting," Rosinski said of her weight loss. "That's really what a lot of the class is about. Let's get off dieting and do this in a sensible way."

The first class covers motivation and everything you need to know about walking—shoes, how much is necessary to start a program, technique. The second class you start walking, everyone at their own pace.

"It's the time you put in more so than the speed at which you do it," Rosinski said. "Many people who take the class are out of shape; they can't walk a half-mile."

At the end of each class, pupils will learn proper stretching. "I work on a lot of walking-specific techniques," Rosinski said. "Most people don't know how to stretch, or if they do they stretch muscles that have nothing to do with walking."

On the last night, each student will receive a personalized walking program so they can continue their program without Rosinski looking over their shoulder. However she said many people repeat the class, preferring to walk in a group.

While walking is easy and anyone can do it, it's the motivation that comes hard for some. That's where Rosinski comes in.

"I tell everyone if you can shop for an hour you can walk for an hour," she said. "I'm trying to teach them endurance; it's a mental thing. It's not speed; it's just doing."

For more information on the class, call Clarkston Community Ed. at 674-0993.

Clarkston Optimists choose top orators

The virtues of living an optimistic life were heard Feb. 22.

That's because 10 area students participated in the Clarkston Area Optimist 8th Annual Oratorical Contest, at Kirchgensner Theater, Clarkston Senior High School.

The participants gave four-minute speeches with the theme, "Optimism -- The Right Stuff." Points were given, in part, on appearance, continuity, and clarity. Points were deducted if speeches were longer or shorter than four-minutes, if speakers identified themselves or if they didn't have the correct introduction.

Amanda Mack, 15, of CHS, last year's winner for the girls won again this year. Schuyler Edwards, 11, of Clarkston Middle School was the boys winner.

Mack used metaphors and examples of nature -- we're optimistic about spring, because we endured winter; Edwards quoted Helen Keller and told of American leaders who used optimism as a tool to succeed.

Mack is the daughter of William and Gail Mack. Edwards' parents are Bruce and Dori Edwards.

Other participants were, Kelly Banks, Megan Plante, Kimberly Stumph, Rachael Tobel, Bill Kalush, Steve Hyer, Ben Olive and Jeremy Roughton.

Help for parents, fun for kids

BY ANNETTE KINGSBURY
Clarkston News Editor

"Parents are the bones on which children sharpen their teeth"—Peter Ustinov.

If that sentiment seems all too real, a half-day session on parenting may be just the ticket.

Clarkston Community Education has gathered local experts from a wide variety of fields for a morning of parenting workshops for parents and fun activities for their kids.

The first-ever Family Day is sponsored by Community Education in conjunction with Youth Assistance, Clarkston Special Services, Clarkston Optimists and the PTOs.

"A lot of requests have come in from parents in a lot of our programs," said Jeanne Molzon of Community Ed. "I really feel there's very little for young parents in this community to obtain parenting skills, except by the seat of their pants."

For a minimal cost of $6 per person (scholarships are available), parents will be able to select two or three sessions spread out over the morning. Their children will select from activity packages aimed at specific grade levels.

For parents, 40 workshops will be available in topics ranging from preparing healthy meals, teaching appropriate behavior and tips for single parents to financial fitness and dealing with stress.

Kids' activities include creative movement, collage making, storytelling, music, art, science, magic, writing, sign language and many more.

"The instructors we feel are real good at stimulating kids self-esteem," Molzon said. At the end of the morning, parents and kids will get together for some joint activities and door prizes.

"We're hopeful this will become a yearly event," Molzon said. "We're really appreciative of all the support of people willing to give of their time on a Saturday."

The ambitious event was spurred somewhat by the success of Community Ed.'s "Super Saturdays" which about 200 children regularly attended. Molzon is hoping for the same kind of turnout.

Teresa Blundell of Clarkston Area Youth Assistance said the program will have something for all parents, not just those experiencing parenting problems.

"It would be important for parents from all backgrounds to attend," she said. "Parents in any situation will find something."

Family Day will run from 9 a.m. to noon on Saturday, March 12 at North Sashabaw Elementary School, 5290 Maybee Rd. Pre-registration is required; deadline is March 3.

For scholarship information or to register call Molzon at 674-3141.

The Norwegian way

North Sashabaw Elementary teacher Jayne Bannister has a little fun with Mike Cholette, allas Thor, last week. Bannister spoke with students about her Norwegian heritage in honor of the Olympics, which were held in Lillehammer, Norway. Each child received the name of a significant person in Bannister's or the country's life. Mike is wearing a handknit Norwegian wool sweater.

Chamber needs bowlers

The Chamber of Commerce needs bowlers for its second annual Scholarship Fund Raiser April 17 at Cherry Hill Lanes, North.

Proceeds will go for two $500 business scholarships and awarded to two Clarkston area seniors.

A donation of $20 per person or $75 for a four-person team will cover shoe rental, three games, pizza and salad, and prizes.

Living Textbook Day

March 9, 1994

On "Living Textbook Day," take the time to join this newspaper - and more than 25 other newspapers across Michigan - in celebrating Diversity. Many of the following newspaper-based activities will help you do just that. Teachers and parents are encouraged to use newspapers as the primary instructional tool and teach lessons from the ones offered here.

"Living Textbook Day" will increase student awareness and perception of the newspaper, and at the same time reinforce skills being taught in the classroom.

Primary School Students

- ▼ Cut out 3 pictures of crowds. Count the number of people in each picture. Discuss how each person is different. What can you tell from their facial expressions?
- ▼ Locate articles and photos that show people exercising good health habits; do the same for poor health habits. Write a paragraph suggesting how these people can exchange the negative health habits for the positive ones.
- ▼ Cut out 5 advertised items that cost between 1 cent and 99 cents. Tell what coins you would use to make exact change for each item.
- ▼ You're going on a field trip tomorrow and you've been chosen to plan the activities. Go through today's newspaper and choose one event or activity for the afternoon and another for the evening. Decide where you'll eat dinner and what to bring. (How much money? What kind of clothes?)

Upper Elementary School Students

- ▼ Comics often poke fun at people and situations. Search your newspaper's comics for stereotypes of groups of people. Discuss with your friends or classmates how such a comic strip might offend someone.
- ▼ Find the listing in your newspaper that gives the rate for subscriptions. What is the average cost of a newspaper, given those rates? How much would it cost if purchased during the same period -- say, a month -- if you bought it at the newsstand at the cover price? Now figure out how much today's newspaper costs per page, both at the subscription and newsstand prices.
- ▼ Leaf through your newspaper and find a news story that really interests you. List characters, where and when the story takes place, and what happens in the end. Now describe the problem, how the characters react to it and how it is solved. Now use your imagination to create a fictional version from the main story's facts. Write your story in narrative form.
- ▼ Look for articles in your newspaper about wildlife or wetland conservation. Write a paragraph explaining what wildlife or wetland conservation is. Next, write an editorial taking a position on the wildlife or wetland issue that you've selected.

Middle School Students:

- ▼ Compare the temperatures of two cities in other states. What are the differences between their high and low temperature forecasts? How would you graphically illustrate this? How might the severity of the seasons be different in those cities? What land formations or bodies of water might affect the weather? Locate the cities on your newspaper's weather map and name the states that they're in.
- ▼ Search your newspaper for advertisements featuring people from various minority groups. Why is it important for people in minority groups to see people like themselves in advertisements for things such as clothes, restaurants and furniture? Discuss with your fellow students.
- ▼ Search your newspaper for ads and stories about ethnic restaurants in your city. Make plans to go try one. Write a restaurant review about a meal you had in a restaurant.
- ▼ A new family is moving to your community and its members don't know anything about it. Would your community be a good place for a family of five that includes a daughter three years younger than you, a child your age, a son three years older than you, and two parents in their early 40s? Using words and pictures from today's newspaper, prepare a collage telling them about your area. Give each family member a good reason to want to come to your area. What would you put in a welcoming basket for each member of this family?

High School Students:

- ▼ Using movie and TV ads and reviews taken from your newspaper, categorize the amusement interests of American society. Discuss the implications of these interests. Do current movies and network television programs accurately reflect the values of contemporary American society?
- ▼ Determine how much money you would make if you sold a car listed in the classified section and made a 13% commission. Find the car you would like to sell and compute the commission you would make.
- ▼ Your advertising agency has been hired to promote a new product: The Amazing New Lumpthumper! Write a brief press release telling what the Lumpthumper does, who can benefit from owning it and how it was developed. Draw a picture of the Lumpthumper. Use that information to prepare a display ad for a local store that is selling the Lumpthumper.
- ▼ Your rich uncle who you never met and didn't know existed just died and left you $25 million. But there's a catch! You must spend $20 million solving problems described in today's newspaper. Find five problems you would like to have your money help solve, and tell how you would spend that $20 million. Which problem would be the easiest to solve? The hardest? Now tell what you would do with your $5 million. Include a trip to someplace described in today's newspaper.

Grapplers tough, head to state meet Saturday

BY DEBORAH DZIEWIT
Clarkston News Staff Writer

It came down to seven Clarkston wrestlers vying for a chance to become regional champions at the MHSAA Lower Peninsula Individual Tournament held Saturday in Clio.

Thirty high schools sent more than 50 grapplers to meet the challenge of a title and the right to go the individual state tournament in Battle Creek Saturday.

When the dust settled, three Clarkston wrestlers earned a trip to the state meet, winning their final matches by decisions.

Joe DeGain, weighing in at 189 pounds, claimed a regional title by placing first in his weight class.

"He beat the kid that beat him at districts last week," said head coach Mike DeGain.

At 125 pounds, Corey Grant fought to a third-place finish and won a trip to state.

Armin Michelson, a 152-pound junior, finished third after winning his first round match by an injury default. He also will represent Clarkston at the individual's.

None of the matches came easy while grappling on the black mat in Clio's high school gym.

"All the matches will be tough today," DeGain said. "Nothing will be easy."

Ryan Mick, Jack Dyer and Brett Rebb each were one match from winning a position to state, with Rebb's match going down to an overtime decision. Joe Roy also wrestled.

Wolves chalk up two, ready for districts

BY DEBORAH DZIEWIT
Clarkston News Staff Writer

While a blizzard raged outside, the Wolves were warming things up in the Pontiac Northern gym last Friday night when they pulled an overtime win 62-60.

With the victory, the Wolves for all intents and purposes can be called league champions as they go to a 9-0 GOAL standing and hold on to their No. 6 ranking in the state in Class A.

The No. 1 team in Oakland County played a mean first half by leaving the floor with a 10 point lead. Northern played for minutes without making a basket, but that was sure to change. A team that is ranked No. 3 in the county and No. 9 in the state was sure to give the Wolves a fight.

"The momentum shifted the second half," said Coach Dan Fife. "Northern made a run and caught us."

It didn't surprise the coach.

"With their speed and quickness and add the three point shot and a couple of turnovers ... the game can change quick," he said.

But Clarkston never gave up, when in the last seconds, Rick Vollmar tossed in a couple of free throws to put the Wolves ahead by 2.

Vollmar lead the Wolves scoring attack with 22 points. Tim Wasilk tossed in 15 points, Jeremy Fife made 10. Brad Agar scored 8 and Jason Graves contributed 7 points.

FEB. 22: The Wolves pulled out all the stops with a big victory against Waterford Kettering 79-48.

Brad Agar scored the first basket within the first seconds of the game, and the team never stopped — offensively and defensively.

By the end of the first quarter, the scoreboard read 27-8 which predicted the outcome of the game.

"We played with such an intensity," said coach Dan Fife. "It was so high, it definitely determined the outcome of the game."

Three players scored in double digits. Sophomore Tim Wasilk scored 17 points, Senior Rick Vollmar made 20 and Agar tossed in 14 points.

Jeremy Fife, a junior, made 11 assists and scored eight points, senior John Weeks ended the night with six points, junior Jason Graves and sophomore Jeff Mull each came up with four points. Junior Charles Kirk Jr., Senior Rusty Mitcham and Pat Mulligan each scored two points.

The Wolves kept nipping at Kettering's heels until the game was finished.

"Our guards put tremendous pressure on Kettering," Coach Fife said. "They would deny them the ball, break their pattern of play. We had the mental edge. We eliminated them."

MAR. 4: Friday night's game against Brandon should be icing on the Wolves already perfect GOAL record. It will also be parents' night at the hometown gym. Players and cheerleaders will be introducing their parents during halftime for the last game of the season.

District Playoffs begin next week, with Clarkston drawing a bye. They play the winner of the Lake Orion - Lapeer East game on Thursday, March 10.

JV: Coach Tim Kaul expected Northern to be quicker and his team would have to pick up the pace. The Huskies came out to a fast lead and they never gave up. The JV's lost 79-53.

JV: For the JV team, winning came after a stint in overtime play. They won 54-53 with Justin Morgan playing a big game. He scored 31 points and made six three-pointers.

Jamie Churchill and Bryan Dankert each scored nine points with Dankert making the point that gave the team the win in overtime.

Super Hoopers win the first annual "Super Hooper" tournament Saturday night. The winning teams follows: Price is Right, Beavis

Butzine, 5 Foul Herzog, Geri Lil Shaq Mitzel, The Gorilla Goebel, Coolman Cooley, Crafty Bronson, Shyster Tice, Don't Squeeze the

Harmon Sage, Moe Ziegler, WW Wyniemiko, Tricky Ricky Porritt, Old Man Muczynski and Ringer Fife and varsity cheerleader.

Staff hoops it up to benefit students

BY DEBORAH DZIEWIT
Clarkston News Staff Writer

By the end of the final buzzer, the score read Super Hoopers 63, Junior Varsity Players 62. Yet who really won at the Parent Volunteer Organization's "First Annual Super Hooper" basketball game, which pitted middle school against high school staff, was left in the air. "I can't tell who who really won," said Marsha Combs, who is coordinator of fund raising and special activities for PVO. "There was some creative stuff done with scoring." Head basketball coach and "ringer" Dan Fife was prevented from shooting a free throw when "3 Point Peariso" clubbed him with a Tonya Harding-type baton which sent him limping to his chair. Other plays were not so cold and cruel. Some of the players were given special privileges.

Jean Lang, principal of Sashabaw Middle School, who wore a knee brace, was given six free throw attempts for each foul made against her. However, she missed every one.

But winning wasn't the most important feat the PVO wanted to accomplish. The money it raised by admissions, T-shirt sales and a bake sale will help schools and students.

"We will give to the Media Center, the Senior All-Night party and a few small scholarships with what we earned," she said.

Fans filled in half of the CHS gym for Saturday night's performance while faculty, staff and administrators from the high school and Clarkston Middle School and Sashabaw Middle School displayed their basketball skills.

JV and varsity cheerleaders also were on hand to lead the crowd in cheers. The Pom Pons and baton twirler Carrie McAlister performed during half time. McAlister also sang the National Anthem before the start of the game.

Superintendent Gary Haner served as announcer, Neal Granlund as time keeper, Jan Modesitt as score keeper and Paul Tungate, athletic director, as supervisor.

It's hoped this game started a tradition.

"I had teachers after the game stop me and say, 'I play next year,'" Combs said. "Everybody seems to agree that we should do it again."

Basketball league offers kids more than skills

BY DEBORAH DZIEWIT
Clarkston News Staff Writer

For 12 years, many Clarkston school children have devoted part of their Saturdays during the months of January and February to basketball.

As part of the nine-week Bud McGrath Basketball League, third-to-eighth graders play hoops under the guidance of varsity basketball players.

"It's a way for the kids to play and have fun," said varsity basketball coach Dan Fife. "It's not highly competitive and it exposes the kids to playing the game."

The program began with 40 children and has swelled to 340 boys and girls this year.

"The varsity players grew up playing McGrath," Fife said. "And sometimes they are heroes to the little ones, and they have a chance to play with them and watch their heroes."

This interaction Fife believes makes them better players. Moreover, players do not get stuck playing one position because of their size or ability.

"Just because a kid is bigger or taller does not mean that he will always play center," Fife said.

Watching as they play ball year after year, Fife said he can often times foresee what kind of future player might be coming up the ranks.

"I see how competitive they are and I see their work ethic on the court," he said.

The children are separated by ages and play within their age group. Each hour, beginning at 10 a.m. and continuing through 6 p.m., new teams play.

Varsity players take four-hour shifts to coach or referee. But it's not all work and no play. After the last McGrath player leaves, it's their turn to play.

"After all, this is where they started," Fife said.

Some things never change

Dark blue-and-gold uniforms looked different from the red-and-white uniforms of my once home town team.

Not only the color, but the style has evolved from mid-thigh shorts to those that hang down to the players' knees. Haircuts are a little different too.

Mascot names involved animals with wet black noses and a lot of fur. Up north in Benzie County, we were called the Huskies, while here it's the Wolves.

But I didn't know what kind of changes had occurred since I last attended a high school game.

I questioned what kind of differences and similarities I would find as I covered the Wolves' basketball games last week.

I knew Clarkston ranked number three. I knew the team hadn't lost a GOAL game yet. I knew the coach's son played — the second son of three to play for the Wolves.

I did not know Coach Fife. Many people told me that he is like an institution, an icon, THE BASKETBALL COACH of all basketball coaches. But that didn't tell me which one of those men in dark blue sweaters down by the sidelines was the coach.

I didn't know any of the players' names except to read them from the roster.

So when I first walked through the doors, I first was swept away in memories and similarities.

School spirit and support surged throughout the gym and washed over me as I walked on the hardwood floor. The cheerleaders reminded me when I was one of the girls on the sidelines, jumping, twirling, flipping and yelling as the varsity boys ran down the court blocking, shooting and scoring.

But that trip down memory lane lasted as long as I saw one cheerleader do a couple of back flips in a row (I'm lucky that I can still do a pretty decent cartwheel.)

The action of Rick Vollmar, Brad Agar and Tim Wasilk (how quickly I learned their names) as they scored basket after basket grabbed my attention and brought me back to the present. I watched guard Jeremy Fife dribble the ball down to the home court giving his teammates play signals much like Isiah Thomas does for the Pistons.

But what really touched me was the crowd, the support the teams, and not only the basketball teams, receive from the Clarkston people.

Parents, grandparents, uncles and aunts, friends, big people, little people — all there to cheer the team on to victory. Even the student Jungle II sitting up near the top of the stands, rattling their plastic milk jugs and chanting their battle cries, all contribute to the spirit that permeates the sporting events, whether here or away.

It was the one thing that truly has not changed. School spirit and pride in your hometown, in your team crosses all ages, all sexes, all differences.

And for that I'm thankful.

CHS grad ready to play ball

A 1993 Clarkston graduate will travel to Florida with the OCC Lady Raiders to play baseball against top-rated Division I and Division II teams in the country.

JV ski team win lights up future

The future looks bright if Thursday's junior varsity ski meet is any indication of what the upcoming years hold for the varsity ski team.

The JV boys took first overall and the girls a second in a meet that sent close to 200 freshmen and sophomores — 135 boys and 60 girls — to Mt. Holly.

"We did very well," said coach Judy Roeser. "Our future is in these kids."

Twenty-three teams from schools that compete at Mt. Brighton, Alpine Valley, Mt. Holly and Pine Knob participated in the day meet. Six of eight CHS JV boys made the top 30.

Freshman Chris Evans shussed to a first place finish and a gold medal with a time of 42.37 down the GS course that was fast and newly dusted with a couple of inches of snow.

Teammate, Mike Auger, a freshman, not far behind with a time of 43.07, placed third. Gary Pochmara, 12 seconds behind Auger skied to a fourth place finish. Dave Brown, another freshman, came in 28th with a time of 45.53.

The second boys team came in ninth overall. Kyle Russell placed 19th with a time of 45.06 and Brian Carnes came in 23rd with a time of 45.30. Kyle Spout skied a 47.43 placing him 57th and Steve Hawkins skied a 50.73 to a 97th place finish.

The girls team, composed of five freshman, finished second overall with Katie Atkinson placing second and receiving a silver medal for her 43.23 finish down the hill.

Kelly Banks also received a medal for her eighth-place finish with a time of 43.82. Sarah Fenton came in 14th with a time of 44.72, Melissa Kipson, 29th with a time of 46.93 and Kim Atkins, 41st with a time of 48.54.

OLHSA offers home safety help for seniors

Senior citizens, age 60 and older, who live in northern and western Oakland County are eligible to receive home safety devices from the Oakland Livingston Human Service Agency.

Devices include tub mats, smoke detectors, electrical cords and strips, throw rug backing and step strips, and are installed by senior safety workers.

"Falls are the number one cause of deaths in the home, and if OLHSA can prevent even one fall or accident with this program, then we are successful in our efforts," said Randy Block, OLHSA senior services director.

The Senior Home Safety Program began in June of 1993, and since that time, has installed over 1,700 devices in over 560 homes. The program is also the largest home injury control program within the six county area.

Seniors may apply for safety device installation over the phone, by calling Pauline Kenner, senior home safety coordinator, at 858-5184.

Brian Saulter is charged with possession of a fire arm while intoxicated and reckless discharge of a firearm — both are misdemeanors punishable with up to 90 days in jail.

Detective Chuck Young of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department said Saulter used the gun to get guests' attention Nov. 24 after a fight broke out at his party.

Saulter's preliminary exam is March 17 at 8:30 a.m. at 52nd District Court, Independence Township. He is out of jail on $500 personal bond.

FRIDAY, FEB. 25, police responded to an accident at the corner of M-15 and Washington Street. No one was injured.

No one was injured in an accident reported in front of Rudy's Market on M-15.

SATURDAY, FEB. 26, a South Main Street credit union's awning was damaged when someone backed into it.

Builder deemed incompetent

A 38-year-old Clarkston-area builder has been sent to Clinton Valley Center after it was determined he was incompetent to stand trial.

Fredrick Handley was arrested in March 1993 and charged with larceny by conversion and fraudulent use of a builder's trust fund.

Handley allegedly was contracted to build a house in the Heather Lakes subdivision and filed bankruptcy before the job was complete. According to Detective Chuck Young of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department, about $40,000 was missing.

Handley pleaded not guilty by reason of insanity at the time of the arrest. He underwent forensic testing which determined that he was not insane at the time of the crime, but he was not competent to stand trial at this time. Handley is contesting the ruling of his competency.

Young said Handley will stay at CVC until he is deemed competent to stand trial.

Bad checks buy cars

A 30-year-old Berkley man allegedly bought used cars throughout the county with bad checks.

According to Detective Chuck Young of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department, Gregory Creer purchased a 1989 Ford for $2,800 in Independence Township in December. The personal check he gave the owner bounced.

Young said Creer bought cars the same way at least seven times in Auburn Hills, Waterford, Rochester and Pontiac. He was arraigned in Independence Township Feb. 9 on charges of no-account checks — a two-year felony — and false pretenses over $100 — a felony punishable with up to 10 years in prison.

Creer waived his preliminary exam and was bound over to Circuit Court. He will be arraigned before Judge Barry Howard March 7 at 8:30 a.m. Creer is in the Oakland County Jail.

Cars damaged, reward offered

Seven cars in Independence Township and the City of Clarkston were damaged in a two day period and police are offering a reward for information.

According to Det. Dirk Feneley of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department, the windows of seven vehicles were shot at and damaged by a BB gun.

The first incident was reported on Wellsley Terrace on Feb. 26, police say it happened between 1 a.m. and 9 a.m. Next, a car was reported damaged at Pine Knob Ski Lodge at 3 p.m. The rest of the township complaints — on Lingor, Cherlane, Paramus and at Clarkston High School — were reported Feb. 27.

A seventh damaged car was reported on North Main Street, Clarkston. The Clarkston Police Department report indicated the incident took place around 11 p.m. Feb. 27.

A $100 reward is being offered by the Oakland County Sheriff's Department for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the responsible person or people. If you have information about the incidents call 620-2470.

Italian Olympic skier has Clarkston family

When Deborah Compagnoni skied for the gold medal last week in Lillehammer, she had relatives in Clarkston and Waterford rooting for her.

Compagnoni is the cousin of Dave Compagnoni of Clarkston and his father, Louis Compagnoni of Waterford. Though neither has met her, they were rooting for her just the same.

"It was exciting to see her," said Dave's wife Teresa.

"We're pretty proud of her," said Louis. "She carried the Italian flag in the opening ceremonies."

But winning the gold medal in the giant slalom didn't come easy. The skier has had operations on both knees and missed the 1988 Olympics due to injury. In 1992 in Albertville, she won the gold but tore up a knee the next day.

Even the off-season hasn't been uneventful. She nearly died from an intestinal blockage in 1991.

When not skiing, Deborah Compagnoni waits tables at a hotel owned by her parents in the Italian Alpine village of Santa Caterina. Her sport has brought her to the U.S. but her relatives here didn't know about it in time to see her.

"We're very proud of her," said Louis Compagnoni. "The whole family is."

Guest commentary

Ask the therapist / Stan Garwood, MA, MSW

Ask the therapist:

Dear Mr. Garwood:

My widowed father lives alone. He is getting older and can no longer maintain his home and yard by himself. He pays someone to help him, but the chores are still too much. He refuses to move to a smaller home. Though he doesn't pressure me to help, I feel guilty that I can't do much more than visit and help once a week, as I work long hours, have a family and a home of my own to maintain, and live an hour away. I hate to see his home deteriorate around him. I am the only one of his children to still live in the state (I'm his son). Do you have any suggestions to cope with this?

Signed,
Feeling Guilty

The question you pose has to do with independence and security versus safety and adequate living conditions. You seem worried that your dad's home will be "deteriorating around him" which addresses the issue of an environment conducive to healthy living. I am assuming that he has resided there for an extended length of time, providing a comfortable, consistent environment.

Although your obligation to him and his health and safety increases as his ability decreases, your best judgment must prevail. Since "he pays someone to help him," your father may be thinking that he is keeping up with his homeowner's obligations. He also may not share your view that his home is deteriorating.

I assume your dad feels comfortable and secure in "his home" and wishes to remain there as long as possible. Discuss your concerns with him. Overlook those features which are not health or safety threatening.

You may learn that your father feels he has a handle on all of his responsibilities. This would reduce your guilt feelings and the need to spend extra time. On the other hand, he may welcome practical holiday gifts such as: roof repair, furnace cleaning, room redecorating, house washing or repainting, fireplace cleaning, washer repair, etc.

("Ask the Therapist" by Stan Garwood, MA, MSW, will appear on a regular basis. All questions regarding family issues, emotional or psychological problems, marriage and divorce, etc. are welcome. Please submit them to The Clarkston News, 5 S. Main. Garwood will answer them in the order of their postmark.)

Dear Feeling Guilty:

Your dilemma is more common than you think. This developmental phenomenon in which roles are reversed and the child begins caring for his parent is one we will all have to address sooner or later if our parent or parents are with us into their latter years.

QUESTION: Is the practice of selecting a home for sale from the classified ads a sensible one?

ANSWER: Scanning the real estate ads can give you some idea of house values. However, sale prices don't mean much without seeing the house. These and other particulars are available from your Realtor, plus one other important service. Your Realtor can help you spot a good buy BEFORE the house comes on the market and is advertised.

He or she can also give you professional assistance in negotiating a fair offer. Some houses may seem underpriced until you take a closer look. Others may be overpriced by sellers.

City ponders water

however, the state money could not be stretched to extend the water main except along Main Street.

One resident said he thought wells should be dug deeper to avoid possible contamination instead of installing a water system.

However, Bruce Whitmer said his well is 150 feet deep and has been declared contaminated after the state tested the area for five years.

A Wompole Road resident, whose well is fine now, said he would like more research to be done.

"I'm not saying to be careful not to spend my neighbor's money. For those with shallow wells, they will have to drill new ones," David Beal said.

"I know my well is not free. I do pay electricity. If it costs me $300 a year in electricity, yet if we go to the water main and it costs us about the same per year and I see my insurance go down . . .," he said.

After listening to resident's concerns, the council agreed that more information was needed.

A questionnaire could be sent out to residents asking for the depth of their wells and if they would oppose or support a community water system in Clarkston. The council made no decisions. City Manager Art Pappas said that it would be on the next city agenda.

Mayor Sharron Catalo said she was sure that there would be more public meetings before any decision would be made one way or the other.

"We are just testing the water," Catalo said.

Area teen honored for volunteerism

BY CATHERINE PASSMORE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Jodi Gorham of Independence Township is quick to tell you that she is just as normal as the next 19-year-old. Even so, those teens weren't honored by the United Way for their volunteerism.

Gorham, daughter of Judy and Robert Gorham,

"When I feel bad about something, the best thing I can do is help someone else."

Jodi Gorham

was presented the Heart of Gold/ Young Metro Volunteer Award Feb. 22 at a luncheon in the River-view Ballroom of Cobo Hall.

The YMV awards recognize outstanding young adults for exemplary volunteer service to their community. The four winners were chosen from 41 nominees because of their commitment, dedication and character in helping others.

"I'm not really big on awards," Gorham said modestly.

The Sienna Heights College, Adrian, freshman said that she has received numerous plaques and certificates, but they are all stored away.

Gorham helped create the Children's Forum of the Michigan Association for Emotionally Disturbed Children (MAEDC) and served as its first chairwoman. The Children's Forum offers children with serious emotional problems an opportunity for mutual support, to learn from each other and to advocate for themselves and other children with similar problems.

Gorham caught the attention of MAEDC while in the hospital for her own emotional impairment.

The children at the hospital had a Youth Advisory Board which would take ideas and complaints to the administration, citizen board and parents. Gorham was nominated president of the advisory board twice and carried the patients' concerns to others, which is when she was heard by MAEDC.

They liked what they saw and heard and invited her to be part of the Children's Forum. Gorham had a major role in writing the Children's Forum booklet, "What Hurt, What Helps," and she is a spokeswoman for the group. She has spoken at local, state and national conferences.

Gorham's volunteering began as a student at

Become a mentor

Be a positive adult role model for a child, age 5 to 16, by becoming a one-to-one mentor.

Oakland County Youth Assistance will train adults to be mentors in their program. You can choose training on March 12 or March 26; both sessions are from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

The training sessions will be held at the Oakland County Courthouse, 1200 North Telegraph Road. For additional information, call Oakland County Youth Assistance at 858-0041.

JODI GORHAM, 19, of Independence Township was honored with the United Way for Southeastern Michigan's Heart of Gold/ Young Metro Volunteer award Feb. 22.

"I'm normal. I go shopping, I get into trouble and I don't always get all A's,"

Jodi Gorham

Oakland Catholic High School. She volunteered with the Marine Division of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department, was a member of the National Honor Society and worked with emotionally impaired toddlers at the Fairlawn Center Growth Center.

While at college she volunteers in the emergency room at Bixby Hospital and, with the students in her sorority Phi Sigma Sigma, she helps the National Kidney Foundation.

When asked why she volunteers she said, "When

Support new parents

Remember the overwhelming joy after the birth of your first baby? How about the confusion?

The Parenting Program at William Beaumont Hospital, Royal Oak, is looking for parents to volunteer support for first time parents in the hospital, in homes and in parent groups.

Volunteers visit new mothers in the hospital twice a month to explain the Parenting Program, offer emotional support by calling weekly to answer questions and visit homes to demonstrate parenting skills.

Volunteers must complete eight three-hour training sessions and commit to the program for one year. After training, volunteers spend six to 12 hours a month with new parents and attend monthly parenting volunteer inservices.

If you are interested, call the hospital at 551-1455 to schedule an interview. Training sessions are held three to four times a year.

I feel bad about something, the best thing I can do is help someone else. It fills an empty hole in your heart."

Gorham is also a member of Gamma Beta Phi, an academic society, and Beta Beta Beta, the biology academic society. She works part time in retail. The pre-med student says she has to spend a lot of time studying.

"I'm normal. I go shopping, I get into trouble and I don't always get all A's," she said.

After college Gorham hopes to practice medicine as a missionary in a third world country before coming back to the United States to set up a practice in family medicine.

Park system honored

The Oakland County Parks and Recreation Commission was recognized recently for its "green approach" to Christmas tree recycling.

The park system was doubly awarded by the Michigan Parks and Recreation Association and the Public Relations Society of America - Detroit.

The Oakland County Parks earned MRPA's 1993 Innovative Park Resource Award for its annual Christmas tree recycling program. The award is given annually for an outstanding maintenance program.

More than 15,000 Christmas trees have been recycled by the parks in three years. The chipped trees are used on park trails and for mulch and compost materials.

PRSA's Citation of Excellence was presented to the Oakland County Parks for its work in promoting the 1993 Christmas tree recycling drive.

The tree recycling program was developed to reduce the increasing numbers of Christmas trees dumped annually in public landfills, educate the public about the need to recycle, enhance awareness of the Oakland County Parks system and promote Christmas tree recycling in the private sector.

Heritage Hunt

BY VIRGINIA BLOCK

Back in 1971, we were lured to the Toledo Public Library (that's not its true listing in the phone book) out of curiosity. Passing a bakery in Maumee, Ohio named Mrs. Piatt's Bakery, we made a call to the proprietor to inquire as to a possible family link to my husband's mother, whose maiden name was Piatt. The visit to the library resulted in the discovery of "the genealogical part."

Moving back to Michigan in 1973 resulted in our seeking the nearest locations where we could continue our search. The "L.D.S." on Woodward in Birmingham (actually Bloomfield Hills) was a must, we were told, so there we went.

Ruth Keith was on hand as the volunteer, and there began our first lesson in "learning the ropes." Ruth was responsible for the beginning of that library, relating to us later, that a shoebox of documental information gathered on her own family was the basic reason for the start of her dedication. As a member of the Mormon Church, it was required that 4 generations of the members' ancestors be furnished to the Salt Lake City Church.

Ruth's untimely passing saddens those whose lives she touched. Her quiet gentle ways personified the love she shared for all of her fellowmen. We know the legacy she leaves for her time spent on Earth will stand forever as a tribute to a friend to us all.

As she was a past president of the Pontiac Area Historical and Genealogical Society, we mourn Ruth's passing deeply and will miss her. Rest in Peace, dear friend.

"Mosher and Hutchinson Connection" is the title of a 47-page collection of lineage charts prepared by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Mosher of Pleasant Hill, Ohio. Many Oakland County family names are found in the first charts, and we are grateful but mystified as to who the donor of this fine book turns out to be.

They kindly left it with the library in Pontiac for us and it was published so recently that the charts are

The Clarkson (MI) News Wed., March 2, 1994, 5: B dated Feb. 10, 1994. A few surnames from Ohio areas include RAWLINS, RIDDLEBARGER, LUTHER, ASHTON, LEFFERSON, WATERHOUSE, SALE, SLACK, OVERDIER, CHANEY, WALK, FETTERLY, COLE (OAKLAND COUNTY), HOTCHKISS, CHANDLER, ANTHONY, WINLOW, BENSON, WALKER, SHERMAN, WRIGHTINGTON and POTTER, and this is only Chart 2.

As collateral lines branch out from the MOSHER-HUTCHINSON lines on Chart 1, the extension of lines through marriages. If you can tie into even one of the lines listed, we'd like to hear from you.

Since there are 45 more pedigree charts, perhaps you can help fill in some of the blanks for Joseph Mosher. We thank him for the tremendous help his work provides, and to the one who gave it to us.

Happy Hunting.

OSCAR DINNER AND MOVIE CONTEST MAY WIN $250.00 WORTH OF MOVIE TICKETS AND DINNER FOR 2

Moviegoers always have opinions. Does Tom Hanks of "PHILADELPHIA" stand a chance to win the OSCAR for BEST-ACTOR against Liam Neeson in "SCHINDLER'S LIST?" Can Jane Campion become the first woman to win as best director for "PIANO?"

If your hunches are correct, you could win the first-place prize of 50 movie tickets to the OXFORD TWIN CINEMA and dinner for 2 at LONG BRANCH (value $250.00) in the first annual OXFORD LEADER and the Oxford Twin Cinema's Oscar Dinner Contest or you could win 20 movie tickets and dinner for 2, a $115.00 value as second place finisher.

Here's how to enter: Fill out the entry form and attach it to a postcard or the back of a sealed envelope. Don't put it inside the envelope and don't send letters. We won't open envelopes. You may enter as often as you wish.

As soon as the OSCARS are presented on March 21st., we'll sort entries. The entry with the most correct answers (including the tie breaker) and the earliest postmark will win first-place prize and the entry with the most correct answers and the next earliest postmark will finish second place prize.

If more than one entry has the same number of correct answers and the same early postmark, we'll select winners by random drawing. Employees of Oxford Twin Cinema and Sherman Publishing Co. and their immediate families are not eligible.

Closing date and time for entries to be received by March 15th, 1994.

Art volunteers needed

You don't have to be an artist to volunteer for the Art to the Schools Committee — you just have to like art.

The committee is a volunteer outreach program of The Detroit Institute of Arts. The DIA Department of Education staff trains volunteers to pass knowledge along to area school children in grades 4, 5 and 6.

Applications to join the fall class for the Art to the Schools program are now being taken. For more information, call Nancy Jones at 833-7975.

Volunteers must possess no criminal record and be willing to donate their time to help children in Oakland County's poorest census tract. Contact Myra at 332-6101 weekdays between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m.

TOMAS ESCAMILLA, 6, hefts his bowling ball down the lane with a side throw.

PBA hopefuls

About ten children, ages three to six, began their bowling careers in January with bumper bowling.

The children play ten frames once a week at Cherry Hill Lanes North on Dixie Highway. They learn how to throw the ball — with some adult help — and experience the anticipation of the ball hitting the pins.

With bumper bowling, every throw hits a pin because the gutters are blocked. This helps to boost the children's athletic confidence.

COOL and collected, Shayne Taylor, 3, shows the usual excitement of a seasoned bumper bowler. Most of the children weren't as excited as their adult companions when the ball hit the pins.

Lee earns license

Richard A. Lee

Richard A. Lee of Clarkston earned his master electrician license Feb. 24, 1994 at the age of 23.

The 1988 Our Lady of the Lakes graduate received his early electrical training at Northwest Vocational Center. He apprenticed for the required four years and received his journeyman card in 1992. In 1993, Lee received his builder's license.

Electricians are eligible for the master electrician license only after two years as a journeyman.

He works at Lee Contracting with his brothers Edward and Joseph.

Catallo named division manager

Clarence G. Catallo, executive vice president and director of PaineWebber's North Central Division, was promoted to Central Division manager.

His new appointment was made in conjunction with the restructuring of PaineWebber's nationwide retail branch system. He will oversee 73 retail branches, located in 15 states, housing 1,325 investment executives.

Catallo joined PaineWebber in 1988 as senior vice president and manager of the North Central division. He and his wife Sharron reside in Clarkston.

The builders' show goes beyond products and services

Most people hear that the 76th annual International Builders Home, Flower and Furniture Show is coming and visions of power tools, windows and screwdrivers dance through their heads. Well, that's part of it, but there's so much more to experience when the show opens March 19 at Detroit's Cobo Conference-Exhibition Center.

"You'll discover how to make your home and garden into a showplace," said Robert R. Jones, president of the non-profit Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan. The Cobo show is the largest show of its kind in the midwest. BASM is the event sponsor.

The Metropolitan Detroit Landscape Association will bring a touch of Texas with its Riverwalk Gardens. A 400-foot-long river which replicates the beautiful river gardens of San Antonio will run through Cobo Center surrounded by 86,000 square feet (nearly two football fields worth) of landscaped gardens.

Two national celebrities will make appearances at the Cobo Builders Show: Beverly DeJulio, widely known as Ms. Fix-It (March 24-27) and Gary Koller, a guest host of PBS's popular "The Victory Garden," (March 19-20).

DeJulio shares her expertise on the popular Discovery Channel's "Easy-Does-It" television program. Koller is senior horticulturist at Harvard University's Arnold Arboretum, a member of the faculty at Harvard University's Graduate School of Design and a partner in a thriving landscape design firm in Boston. Koller inspires people to make the most of their own gardens without hiring professional designers.

Over 100 of the Detroit area's Professional Allied Florists Association members and area FTD-40 shops will display floral arrangements for the honor of capturing the "Best of the Show Award" presented by the Society of American Florists. This year's themes are "Dinner for Two" (featured on actual table top settings), "The Pleasures of a Garden," (dish gardens) and "Country Western."

One lucky showgoer will win $10,000 by estimating the correct number of nails in the House of Nails. The Treasure Chest contest will award prizes including a 1994 Chevy Blazer.

And finally, a Utica couple will tie the knot on one of the bridges across the indoor river on Wednesday, March 23 at 4 p.m.

Exhibits at the Builders Show will showcase the latest technology, products and services for kitchens, baths, doors, windows, yards/gardens, financing, remodeling, arts and crafts, decorative accessories, appliances, furniture, heating and cooling. Show attendees can pre-qualify for a mortgage, sign up for an account or withdraw money from the ATM at Standard Federal Bank's exhibit.

Hours are 2-10 p.m., Monday through Friday; noon-10 p.m. Saturdays; and noon-6 p.m. on Sundays. Admission is $5.75 for adults; $3.50 for seniors and children 6 to 12; and free for children under 6. Family tickets are available at Farmer Jack/A&P for $8.

Entertainment with your sun in Key West

Island is Florida's prime place for people watching

Visitors don't flock to Key West for the beaches. The southernmost point in the U.S. is surrounded by a rocky coast created when the island was artificially enlarged.

Rather, people come for the people-watching and the nightlife. And there's plenty of both.

The tiny island enjoys warm, sunny weather; lush, almost tropical foliage; historic restored homes and an international flavor. It's heritage includes Cuban (only 90 miles away) and Bahamian natives, who brought with them their food and architecture.

Key Westers seem to know how to have a good time. Every night before sunset, the locals and the tourists gather at Mallory Pier for a sunset celebration. You may have seen the sun go down before, but never like this.

The pier is filled with musicians, fortune-tellers, The Cookie Lady, jugglers, and Dominic and his circus cats. Everyone passes the hat.

The entertainment begins well before sundown. Then, as the sun sets on another perfect day in paradise, there is a round of applause.

Key West is further south than Freeport, the Bahamas, Los Angeles and the French Riviera. It's also as far away as you can go to get away from it all and still be in the U.S. Perhaps that contributes to its end-of-the-world, frenzied sort of appeal.

Whatever the reason, the atmosphere is infectious and unlike anywhere else in Florida. Once you've been in Key West for a few days, sunning on its beaches by day and partying in its cafes by night, it's hard to say goodbye.

For information on Key West accommodations, call the Key West Chamber of Commerce at (305) 294-2578.

Baseball's best in Florida

If you're a diehard baseball fan, there's no better place to see the game than in Florida during spring training.

It's not just because you've got a better chance of shirt-sleeve weather in March. Many fans go because they get to rub elbows with their heroes, chatting with them as they go in and out of the park and getting autographs and pictures.

The Detroit Tigers make their spring home in Lakeland, an inland city in the central part of the state near Orlando. Though the city doesn't have a whole lot to brag about, when the Tigers are in town the center of activity is tiny Joker Marchant Stadium.

At this little jewel of a stadium, all the action isn't necessarily on the field. You can be in the middle of a game when relief pitcher Mike Henneman walks through the stands, cuddling his infant son. Or you can chuckle when, at the start of each game, the announcer gives game-time temperature both in Lakeland and in Detroit (invariably drawing a round of applause).

Of course the games don't count, but the fans don't seem to mind. Some even keep score. Many more just bask in the sun and trade observations on manager Sparky Anderson's latest phenom.

The Tigers open their grapefruit-league season this year on March 4. Tickets to Lakeland games are now available, for the first time, through Ticketmaster.

For information on lodging, call the Lakeland Chamber of Commerce at (813) 688-8551. The Tigers' phone number in Lakeland is (813) 499-8229.

Visit the 'White Queen' of the Gulf

You haven't experienced everything Florida has to offer until you've been a guest at "The White Queen of the Gulf," the Belleview-Biltmore Hotel and Spa, near Clearwater.

The largest occupied wood structure in the world takes you somewhere else in time, when people dressed for dinner and strolled the verandas on a hot summer night.

Begun in 1895, the hotel has struggled to maintain its graceful ambiance over the course of a century. But since being placed on the National Register of Historic Places, it has undergone restoration in the millions of dollars.

Today, old photographs line the halls. High ceilings, white-painted woodwork, chintz upholstery and table linens are among the elegant touches that have been retained. The overall effect is stunning.

The hotel, which isn't on a beach, has all the other amenities you'd expect: indoor and outdoor pools and whirlpools, exercise facilities, massage, golf, tennis, restaurants, room service, gift shops.

You can feel comfortable sitting poolside in your swimsuit. But men can't have dinner in the dining room without a jacket and tie, and that says a lot about the place. You expect to see Victorian ladies, their skirts rustling, coming around the corner at every turn.

Why is that so appealing? Perhaps because it's such a rare commodity in these busy times. Nobody has time to pamper themselves. Basic courtesies are often overlooked. To have all that going on at once is the ultimate luxury.

Of course all that luxury has its price. The Belleview-Biltmore is listed as "very expensive" in the guidebooks. When you add on meals, which are also expensive, and Florida's hotel taxes, it can add up in a hurry.

But it's worth it. Forget Disney World, Epcot Center and Busch Gardens. If you're looking for a vacation that is truly relaxing, this is the place to go.

For more information, call the Belleview-Biltmore Hotel and Spa at (813) 442-6171.

MEMORIUM: David Carter March 4, 1993

God saw you getting tired And a cure was not to be So he put his arms around you And he whispered, 'come to me' With tearful eyes we watched you And saw you pass away We all loved you so dearly But could not make you stay Your tired heart stopped beating And now your body lay at rest God broke our hearts to prove to us That he only takes the best.
