'We'll have enough time to do what we have to do after March 15'

Despite ballot vote, Clarkston will need more

BY ANNETTE KINGSBURY
Clarkston News Editor

Whether Proposal A passes or fails March 15, Clarkston Schools will still have to ask for a millage renewal this year.

State Rep Tom Middleton (R, Brandon) said last week neither Proposal A nor the back-up plan take schools entirely out of the millage business. However either plan will impose spending controls on school districts that have been absent until now.

"We're going to control growth," Middleton said. "We (schools) have been growing eight to 10 percent a year. They (schools) are going to have to say hey; the citizens of this community didn't get eight percent, 10 percent raises; they got two percent. You've got to think of the taxpayer."

Middleton, who favors Proposal A over the back-up plan, said there is no going back to the old system—it's been wiped off the books.

"If A fails and B is unconstitutional (as some say and even Governor Engler admits is a possibility) we have nothing. It's too late to add new taxes for last year, according to the Headlee Amendment. That's not an option any more. We have given people property-tax relief and there is no way to get back to the old system."

Middleton said it's "terrible" that all of Clarkston Schools' operating millage expires this year. "It's very, very unfortunate," he said.

Some voters may think the March 15 election negates the need for a millage election come June. Not so.

"I think the confusion will be when we come back for more mills," said Steven Lenar, Clarkston Schools' Deputy Superintendent for Business and Operations.

"Some of the same laws still apply. We can't levy millage without authority. So we will be back for more millage, not necessarily for enhancement, but to get back up to those levels (already approved)."

Clarkston Schools officials must wait for the outcome of the March 15 election before formulating their own millage request. That's because the amount they'll have to ask for to get a renewal will vary depending on whether Proposal A passes or fails.

Under Proposal A, homestead owners will be assessed six mills for school operating expenses. That is considered a state tax and does not require a local vote. All other property owners will be assessed 24 mills. The difference, 18 mills, is considered a local tax and must be voted on for a renewal.

"We're going to be asking homeowners to vote on these 18 mills," Lenar said. "It's not going to affect you, but I need your vote to tax the businesses."

Under the back-up plan, homestead property will be taxed at 12 mills; all others at 24 mills. Twelve mills is considered a local tax.

However the non-voted county-allocated millage (currently 7.8 mills) will be subtracted first. So the district will only have to ask for 16.2 mills on non-homesteads and 4.2 mills on homesteads for a renewal.

Either way, it's a sizable chunk of the school district's operating budget.

Lenar said the Board of Education will probably decide at its April meeting how much millage to ask for. "We'll have enough time to do what we have to do after March 15," he said.

There has been no discussion so far about enhancement, or additional millage, he said.

Mishap at intersection

Four-car crash injures two

Two women were injured in a four-car accident on Dixie Highway at M-15 Tuesday.

The accident occurred at 2:11 p.m. when Mickey Carion-Peters of Holly ran a red light and drove into traffic turning left onto Dixie from M-15.

According to Deputy Bill Duggan of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department, Peters was stopped for a red light on northbound Dixie when the right-turn arrow came on, she saw traffic moving and drove straight.

Peters, who was driving a GMC Jimmy, hit a Chevette carrying Tom and Patricia Vanderbilt of Waterford. The Vanderbilt car went out of control hitting a parked vehicle in the fast lane of northbound Dixie. That car, a Buick, was driven by Dawn Sullivan of Davisburg.

Peters then hit a car driven by Opal Johnson of Clarkston who was turning south from M-15 to Dixie Highway.

Johnson and Peters were taken to Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital; the Vanderbilts and Sullivan were not injured. All participants were wearing seatbelts.

Peters was given a ticket for failing to obey a traffic signal.

Briefly . . .

Legislature extends affidavit deadline

The Michigan legislature passed a bill extending the March 1 deadline for filing homestead affidavits to May 1.

The affidavit is required under the state's new property-tax law, which establishes different taxing levels on homestead and non-homestead properties.

Property owners filing the affidavit on their homesteads will be taxed six mills for school operating taxes if Proposal A passes March 15. If it fails, homesteads will be taxed 12 mills. In either case, properties for which affidavits are not received will be taxed at a higher rate.

Last chance for Optimist tickets

The Clarkston Optimist Club's biggest fund raiser of the year is fast approaching.

The ticket deadline for the March 19 dinner/dance/auction is this week. The price of $35 per person gets you into an evening of cocktails and raffle at 6 p.m., dinner at 7, followed by a live auction and dancing.

The event takes place at Deer Lake Racquet Club, 6167 White Lake Rd., Independence Township. For questions, call 625-1129.

Millage questions and answers

The following information was taken from material provided by the state House Republican Programs and Research Section. The questions and answers are among material being distributed by Republican legislators.

Q: Which mills are local mills and which mills are state mills?

A: Under Proposal A, the state will levy six mills on all property, the local district will levy 18 mills on non-homesteads only. Therefore homesteads will not be subject to any local taxes for school operations.

Under the back-up plan, the local district levies 12 mills on all properties; the state levies an additional 12 mills on non-homesteads. Therefore the tax on homesteads for school operations is all local millage.

Q: How is enrichment millage (millage above what the plan already provides) levied?

A: Under Proposal A, the local school district may levy up to three new mills for up to three years with voter approval. After 1996, local districts may no longer levy enrichment millage. Beginning in 1997, only the intermediate school district could levy up to three mills, with voter approval.

Under the back-up plan, enrichment may be levied by either the local district or the ISD, with voter approval.

If the ISD levies the millage, the money is pooled and distributed on a per-pupil basis throughout the ISD.

If the local district levies the new millage, it is sent to the ISD and distributed there on a per pupil basis to all the districts within the ISD

He Never Turns Away

They come to him for help when they need it the most. Some numbed by their loss, some shattered, they say: "This is someone we loved. We entrust him to you." And even when he's faced with the crumpled innocence of the youngest asking, "Why?"-and he has to find childlike words to answer a question that even theologians struggle with-he never turns away. He gives them the consolation of tradition. He shows them how to accept their tragedy with dignity. He helps them cope with their grief. He guides them back to the active world of the living. He is a funeral director. He practices the most emotionally demanding and least understood of all the professions. He faces up to traumas every day that most people only have to deal with once or twice in a lifetime. He would never turn away. He has earned the deepest thanks from anyone who has ever leaned on his compassion for support. Who turned to him and found that he would never turn away.

Author to students: you can write

BY ANNETTE KINGSBURY
Clarkston News Editor

When Tom Birdseye was growing up, he thought writing was a chore. That if you didn't have perfect spelling and punctuation, you didn't have the gift. Writing was just torture teachers had erected as a roadblock on his way to becoming an NBA star.

But now, at the age of 42, Birdseye finds himself the author of nine published books, with more on the way. He's given up teaching elementary school to write full time. Even he seems a bit amazed by it all.

"There's lots of reasons people don't like to write," he told students at Bailey Lake Elementary School last week. He visited all five Clarkston elementary schools as part of Authors' Week festivities.

"A lot of people think it's the most complicated thing they do at school," he said. "And when I was your age, I agreed."

While he nurtured dreams of being a basketball player, Birdseye's left-handedness and difficulty learning to read made school less than fun.

"My papers were a mess," he admitted. "So many red marks all over them pointing out all the mistakes I made . . . You know teachers; they make you do stuff you don't want to do."

But somewhere along the way, someone helped him learn to read. He didn't say so, but perhaps that's why he visits schools now, to pass on what he has learned about making writing fun.

"Look around you for story ideas," he said. "Write about things in your life. You can still use your imagination. But write about what's important to you."

Birdseye tailored his presentation to the age-group he was speaking to. With younger kids, he showed slides of the illustrations from his books and read aloud from them. A soft drawl emerged as he got into the rhythm of the lines. You could almost hear guitars strumming in the background.

With older students, he talked about how he turned real-life events from his own childhood in Kentucky and North Carolina and from his students' lives in Oregon into stories. Indeed, the transformation from a little boy who'd rather shoot hoops to a professional who writes six to eight hours a day seems complete.

"It'd be like if you ate breakfast, came to school and wrote all day long and did nothing else . . . year round, summer too," he said. "To most it sounds disgusting." Remarkably, his accent disappeared as he grew more serious.

But he also regaled the students with his childhood exploits and those of his students—fort building, blowing soda-pop bubbles out your nose. He had them giggling all the way through. But he always returned to the topic of writing.

"You can be a lousy speller and be a writer," he said. "That's not why we read books. Stories are about people; they're about characters, ideas; they're about feelings . . . Good stories begin right in front of you. They begin with your own life."

Birdseye, who was chosen to visit Clarkston schools by the district language arts committee, didn't begin writing until he was in his 30s. He discovered he had a neighbor who was an author, and she encouraged him to take a night class. Four years later, his first book appeared in print.

He's also spent a year in Japan teaching English. Now he, his wife and two children, ages 8 and 4, live in Corvallis, Oregon.

"This is not just something I can do; anybody can do this," he said. "It's like basketball. It takes time, it takes practice, it takes work . . ."

"Next time you sit down to write, think about something that comes from your own life . . . People are interested in reading about that."

Bailey Lake Elementary School will be ordering copies of Birdseye's books for students. For more information call the school at 625-2812.

Three names turn to one for M-15

BY CATHERINE PASSMORE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

M-15, Ortonville Road and Main Street are the same length of asphalt — soon they may have the same name.

A resolution to change the road's name to Main Street on either side of the City of the Village of Clarkston has been sent to the state legislature by the Independence Township Board.

If the name change is adopted the road north of Clarkston will become North Main Street and the road from Dixie Highway to Clarkston will become South Main Street.

According to Steven Seacatch, who has been investigating the name change, the township would have to request the Michigan Department of Transportation change two street signs.

Michigan Bell would be notified to change ad-resses on the 9-1-1 screen. Driver's licenses can be changed free of charge and there would be a lull so residents can use up their bank checks.

Property titles would not be affected since land is identified by sidwell numbers and not addresses.

In other action:

● Teresa Blundell of the Clarkston Area Youth Assistance presented 1993 statistics to the Board. She worked with a total of 168 cases and 24 teens completed 745 hours of community work. "I consider it not only a busy, but a productive year," she told the board.

The board approved $5,360 in funding from the township for the 1993-94 CAYA budget.

● Bids are being accepted for 280 dozen softballs for the summer leagues sponsored by Independence Township Parks and Recreation. The balls are a budgeted item for the department.

● The first reading of a rezoning for Woodglen

Estates, at Waldon Road and Almond Lane, from multi-family residential to single family residential was approved. The subdivision had already been developed as a single family subdivision.

● Part of Lake Maria Woods Subdivision, on Pine Ridge Road, may be rezoned from multi-family residential and office to suburban farm residential. According to township planner, Richard Carlisle, said that the property should have been rezoned in the 1980s, but for some reason it hadn't. The subdivision is developed with 1.5 acre lots. A first reading of the proposed rezoning was approved by the board.

Team teaching is their goal

'Middle School' more than name change

BY DEBORAH DZIEWIT
Clarkston News Staff Writer

When the Clarkston school district changed its junior high schools to middle schools, it meant more than a name change was underway.

For the past year, a team made up of 18 educators and parents split up into four teams has been studying current and future middle-school philosophy and practices, with the school board's support.

"The board has in the last five years made a significant commitment to implementing the middle-school philosophy at the sixth- and seventh-grade levels," Gary Haner, superintendent, said.

However, when the ninth graders moved to the high school last year, a more complete change-over began to kick into high gear.

"As long as the ninth grade was housed at the middle school, we were never going to achieve true middle-school instruction," Haner said.

And just what is that, exactly? "A middle school is designed to truly facilitate the movement of kids and maturation from elementary to high school," Haner said.

"There's more communication between departments and you have a program more focused on children, rather than curriculum and instruction, with heavy emphasis on exploring areas that will become areas of intensive study in high school."

By contrast, he defined a junior high as "just younger kids being run through a daily agenda virtually identical to a high school."

Last month Dave Reschke, assistant superintendent of curriculum and development, outlined preliminary recommendations of the advisory team and how they could be implemented. Design teams are expected to be formed to finalize the recommendations and do a cost/benefit analysis.

Those who worked on the middle-school study agree that sixth-, seventh- and eighth-graders require that "the learning environment be sensitive to the particular developmental characteristics of pre-adolescent and adolescent youngsters," the report said.

"It is the time of puberty, period," said Jean Lang, Sashabaw Middle School principal.

"These kids are going through their secondary sex-characteristic changes, their hormones are changing.

"They are quirky, one-half child, one-half adult."

In order to meet the challenges and differences middle-school students pose, changes in curriculum and teaching methods have already been implemented or are expected to be changed so that the transition from middle school to high school can be made more easily.

"We were once considered mini high schools," Lang said. "Our formats were similar to high schools with a tight, inflexible curriculum where it was not a friendly environment for risks."

The curriculum today reflects a more student-friendly approach. Included are four, 10-week exploratory classes which give students a hands-on approach to learning. The classes include art, technology, home skills and language.

"These classes serve to extend student skills into more areas; to provide fun and discovery experiences and to open areas of the curriculum (to them)," Lang said.

However, the biggest change proposed by the proposal would be to change to a team style of teaching.

"It's the major tenet to middle-school philosophy," Vince Licata, Clarkston Middle School principal, said. "Teaming sees the connection of the subject areas and plans interdisciplinary units that would overlap."

Teachers would plan lessons together and reinforce common themes in math, science, social studies and language arts.

In the team approach, perhaps 150 students would be grouped together in one block. They all would have the same classes and the same teachers for the school year. Students would find themselves in a more close-knit circle of peers and teachers.

"This would be nurturing and protective for the kids," Lang said.

The school district is now looking for ways to incorporate the team approach, which traditionally means hiring extra faculty to compensate for the extra

In Focus

By Annette Kingsbury

The 1960s: those were the days

Probably every kid ever born hates it when a parent launches into a story that begins "When I was your age" or "In the good old days."

We've all heard them. With my folks it was the usual "I walked three miles to school each way in the snow." One high-school senior I know said his father added the word "naked" to that scenario. The poor kid believed him—the first time.

Not being a parent myself, I have no one to bore with such musings, but that doesn't mean I never wax nostalgic. Recently, I heard a radio commercial advertising the return of the Broadway musical "Hair" to Detroit, and I caught myself with a big grin on my face as the strains of "Aquarius" drifted over the air waves.

What is it about that time that is so special to those of us of a certain age? Though I never saw the stage play, just hearing the music transported me back to the summer of 1969.

It was the summer American astronauts first walked on the moon, at the Sea of Tranquility. It was the summer of Woodstock, the rock concert that epitomized forever the "flower child" way of life.

All this exuberant optimism took place during the height of the Vietnam War. Richard Nixon was in the White House (Watergate was still a couple of years off) and that fall would see the country's largest anti-war demonstration in history.

Maybe it was because of the war, maybe despite it. But there was an incredible atmosphere, that what you said and did could really make a difference.

Things are different today. Today's youth have serious concerns about just making a living. They are confronted with a new disease for which there is no cure, and they are rightly concerned about the environment and staggering national debt their elders have left them.

We Baby Boomers have changed too. Maybe it's just a function of getting older, but I'm amazed when, listening to the news, I find myself thinking we should bomb the Bosnian Serbs into oblivion. I feel helpless to stop people from hurting each other both at home and abroad.

I remember my younger sister asking me one time to go to Washington D.C. with her for a demonstration. She knew I'd been to the big one in 1969. But by the time she was ready for activism, I had lost it. I mumbled something about wondering if it really makes a difference.

Just where did we as a nation lose the optimism that we could make anything happen, if our cause was just? For that was indeed the prevailing mood of the 1960s.

It was "the dawning of the age of aquarius." All things were possible.

So now I wonder, should I go see "Hair?" Will I leave smiling, or will I be depressed for the "good old days?" Days that will never come again, at least not in my lifetime.

Boy, does that make me sound old!

Prop A fairest for kids, homeowners

If you are among those who have complained long and loud about property taxes in Michigan, especially the uncontrolled growth in assessments, you have no choice but to vote yes on Proposal A March 15.

Sure, the plan to change the way we pay for schools has some flaws, but we have come to believe after talking to government leaders and a lot of reading that it is the best alternative available at this time.

Proposal A offers a cap on assessment growth. This provision changes the Michigan constitution and must therefore be voted on by the people; that's why it is not part of the back-up plan.

Residents of Clarkston and most other school districts in the state will see their school operating millage drop from near 40 to six. That doesn't mean schools will be out of the millage business; they will still have to ask for renewals (for Clarkston that will come this June); they will still have the right, for the next three years, to ask for up to three more mills.

But consider the whopping decrease in property taxes that will take effect this year. Most of us will make up for it with a two-cent hike in the sales tax, a tax which will also be collected from tourists and from residents who somehow avoid income taxes.

The loss of deductibility on federal taxes has concerned us. But we have finally come around to Governor Engler's way of thinking; that it's better to have $100 in your pocket in the first place than to have a $30 refund from Washington.

Proposal A also holds down the state's single-business tax, a tax which has been called a serious problem for Michigan's economy for years. The back-up plan would raise the SBT.

Don't be misled by those who would tell you there is a third option. Should Proposal A be defeated, there is a good chance the back-up plan will be challenged in court and found unconstitutional; even the governor admits that. Some people say things would then return to the former system.

But that's not true. The former school-finance system has been stricken from the books. If A fails and the back-up is unconstitutional, it's back to the drawing board.

And who wants that? Who wants a return to the status quo, to double-digit assessment increases and annual fights for school millage, with no limits on spending?

The new system limits school spending as a portion of all state spending, something it never was before. It begins to put an end to the terrible disparity between rich and poor when it comes to educating our children.

We've got to give it a try. Vote yes on Proposal A. AK

Whatever your opinion the polls open at 7 a.m. and close at 8 p.m. Get out and vote!

Jim's Jottings

1,300 miles of I-75

By Jim Sherman

Along with everyone else who has driven to Florida lately, I'd love to have the orange barrel contract for just one year. If I can't have that, give me the concrete barrier contract. I-75 is under construction.

I found the 'reduce speed,' 'merge left,' '45 mph,' and 'construction ahead' signs really work at slowing traffic . . . slowing from 75 mph to 71 mph. That's ok, most of the time there were no workers in the construction zone anyway.

There are around 160 exits off I-75 in Tennessee. About 150 of them have multiple opportunities for obtaining gasoline, fast food and lodging.

The same collection of advertisements continue the length of the route, only some offer more selections.

I wondered about the worth of these 'corners' when a gasoline storage tank leaks and the environmentalists get involved and the property is condemned making it unmortgageable and costing too much to clean up.

Just a thought, since we've had similar situations all over Michigan.

Drivers can spot the logo stir-stick signs for miles, which is another reason billboards aren't needed. However, I like reading billboards if for no other reason than giving interest to unscenic scenery. Please bring back the Burma Shave signs!

Weigh stations are also a welcome sight on this boring route. They gave me the opportunity to think, but not say, comments about why we (Hazel was with me) should check our weight.

Sure would be nice if factory owners would make their name prominent for the traveling public, and even more nice if these owners would list some of their products.

For instance, aren't you as curious as I about what a company named GROD makes? At least they have made their name prominent. Now, what does Copeland do? Takata? Mazda . . . no, I know that one.

Towns aren't as imaginative as they could be with their water towers. The Orange is good. There was one in Georgia that looked like a vadelia onion. Perrysburg, Ohio people painted on theirs. One just inside Kentucky, going south, has "Ya'all" on it.

This was our first and maybe last drive to Florida. It wasn't bad, but unless we take more time and drive 2-lane roads to see the people, I think we'll fly. 1,300 miles is a lot of sitting.

Final note. We have a condo in Carefree, Arizona, where we hear 'water shortage' continuously. Well, the shortage is in Florida, too. There are lawn watering and car washing days, and on Sanibel Island, no one is allowed to even plant grass.

So, if you want to leave the white and get to the green, don't go to Sanibel Island.

Letters to the editor

They're voting yes for proposal A

Dear Editor,

On behalf of 11,000 businesses in Southeast Michigan, the Greater Detroit Chamber of Commerce urges a yes vote for Proposal A on the March 15 ballot.

A yes vote for Proposal A would bring balance to Michigan's tax structure, thus improving Michigan's business climate and creating jobs for Michigan residents. Defeat of Proposal A would place Michigan's tax structure at a severe disadvantage, particularly in comparison to other states, thus making Michigan less attractive for business investment and development. Defeat of Proposal A would mean fewer jobs for Michigan residents. Proposal A relies on a sales tax of 6% while the statutory or "back-up" plan would raise the income tax to 6%.

State must fund schools; Proposal A is best

Dear Editor,

Last week Jim Brennan wrote a letter regarding both Proposal A and the statutory backup plan. He recommended that the citizens of our area vote against the ballot plan and then join him in taking the statutory plan to court.

Last year the legislature passed Public Act 145 which eliminated the use of local property taxes for the funding of schools. If Mr. Brennan's group is successful in achieving their above-stated objectives, he will have eliminated all local funding for schools, which is equal to approximately $6.9 billion. By following this plan of action, the children in our state will be left with minimal funding to pay for their education, approximately 30 percent of what they currently receive. It would be impossible for most, if any, schools to continue.

As citizens of Michigan, we must be responsible

If Proposal A fails, the statutory plan will automatically become law and increase Michigan's income tax by 30% to 6%, the highest flat rate income tax in the nation. City of Detroit residents would pay a combined state and local income tax of 9% and non-residents working in the city, 7.5%. In addition it would increase the Single Business Tax by 17% (2.35% to 2.75%). It does not have the constitutional guarantees that are embodied in Proposal A, and would impose significantly higher property-tax mills on homesteads.

Sincerely,
Frank E. Smith
President
Greater Detroit
Chamber of Commerce

enough to provide an education for the youth in our state. Proposal A is the best alternative for accomplishing this goal. Feel free to call me at home (810) 628-4511 or in Lansing (517) 373-1798 for more information. Please remember to vote on March 15.

Sincerely,
Tom Middleton
State Representative

Vote yes on 'A'

Vote yes on Proposal A and you're voting yes for Michigan. There are good and bad parts to both proposals; however, Proposal A is far and away better for real estate and Michigan business in general.

If it Fitz

By Jim Fitzgerald

After 45 years,
it's end of the line
for a worker-boss rift

A former Detroit coworker wrote from Germany to exclaim that last month in a Hollard airport he overheard a stranger call me "the Fitzgerald kid." Which was startling because I'm usually called the old poop.

Maybe it's a trend. My youngest grandson calls me, "the boy one," which I'll explain later. First, you have to read how, long after my father's death, I learned he cared more about my bloody fingers 45 years ago than I thought he did.

I was touched, even though I also learned that Dad's concern cost me a reader, which I can never spare.

Keep reading, this will soon make sense, which I also can't spare.

Bill Mitchell used to be a Free Press reporter, before being promoted to high-powered electronic news executive, stationed in California with a fat traveling allowance, which is how he ended up in Amsterdam waiting for a flight to Munich.

When he overheard my name mentioned and longevity shrunk, Mitchell said: "I was tempted to interrupt and announce, hey, I used to sit next to the Fitzgerald kid. But I kept my mouth shut on the theory that I might hear something interesting. Which I did.

"First guy says, 'I gave that kid a job a long time ago at the Coca-Cola bottling plant in Port Huron. Kid didn't last one day. He went home and told his father that I oughta be investigated by the state for working people so hard."

I remember, although I swear I lasted two days. It was 1949, between college terms, and my job was removing four bottles of Coke at the same time from the end of a conveyor belt that crashed them on the floor if I didn't stay on my toes, which several of the bottles crushed.

I have tender patties, barely able to operate a manual typewriter. God didn't make them to simultaneously clutch the necks of two bottles between the fingers of each hand. The bottle caps tore my skin, and it was the resulting blood that I showed my father when explaining why I'd given up Coke. He compassionately said he hoped I found another job before I starved to death all over his basement floor, where I slept.

The plant owner who hired me was Joe Stowe, now 85, retired and still living in Port Huron. Because we hadn't talked in 45 years, Stowe was probably surprised when I phoned last week to threaten to sue him for slandering me in a Holland airport last month while he was exchanging "do-you-know-him" questions with another tourist from the Detroit area, and Bill Mitchell was eavesdropping.

Stowe good-naturedly recalled being bothered when my father accused him of using slaves to bottle pop. "I was new in town then and didn't want to get a bad reputation." In fact, he said, years later when I began writing for the Port Huron Times Herald, and then the Free Press, and his wife said he should read my column, he refused on general principles.

Anyway, I was so pleased to hear Dad had confronted Stowe on my behalf, and that Stowe still called me a kid, I generously called off the lawsuit. The statute of limitations has probably run out anyway, although I've never understood how statutes can run.

As for 3-year-old grandson Adam, the words "Grandma" and "Grandpa" are so similar they're interchangeable to him. So, when discussing Grandpa with his parents, Adam makes himself perfectly clear by calling me "the boy one."

At 67, it's nice to be called boy and kid, and to be reminded that my dad loved me, even if I did have to sleep in the basement.

Don't Rush Me

By Don Rush

Prop A: what's a boy to do?

All the ad campaigns, pro and con, negative and well, negative about next Tuesday's election has got the good folks of Michigan confused and angry. It also has people calling me and asking lots of question.

I'll tell you all, as I have told everyone who ventured to ask me my opinion. I am angry as the rest of you.

Both options, whether we vote for them or not, seem to be a tap dance. Taxes are not going down, they are shifting and going up. So much for fiscal responsibility.

Besides a more fair property tax, I believe people wanted accountability. Accountability not only with schools -- which they can get locally -- but with our elected officials in Lansing.

I believe people are cynical about Lansing types now more than ever. What we have now is another lesser-of-two-evils vote. That's all we get nowadays. If it's not George Bush versus Bill and Hillary, it's nothing.

I for one am tired of it, and I for one will seriously consider the Libertarian party. Democrats and Republicans -- they all can be lumped together. I've talked to those Lansing types and when you cut away the partisanship, they say parts of the school finance packages were put in for political reasons. Not that it was good for the state, but rather to re-elect or have somebody ousted. This is election year politics at its best, which is the worse we can hope for.

That said, I'm definitely just a step above my dog Mickey when it comes to cerebral comprehension on most things. I am not proud; I don't think my understanding of all of the ramifications of these two plans is any different. I've gone back and forth on this thing.

Vote yes. No, vote no. No, yes.

My head's swimming now just thinking about it. I didn't know which way to vote -- but, I did the math and for our household, we will do better with Proposal A.

I still don't like it, but with head hung low, I will vote for A. I know, I've sold out for the money. Shame on me. But, the statutory plan seems the eviler of the two evils.

At least we have a say with A (blackmail though it is), not so with the back up plan.

With either plan schools will be funded to the tune of something like $10 billion (which is about a billion more than the schools asked for). Schools will have their money either way, but it will not be on the backs of property owners as much as it is with Proposal A.

And, if we get the back up plan, and the taxpayer groups are able to get it null and voided because it is unconstitutional, what happens then to school financing... they will have close to zero dollars.

What's a boy to do? How about starting to think about recall.

Indoor Super Fair returns to Pontiac Silverdome

The world's largest indoor carnival is returning to the Pontiac Silverdome for 10 big, fun-filled days Friday, March 18 through Sunday, March 27.

All of the magic of a fair midway is recreated in the comfort of the Silverdome with over 50 attractions which include carnival rides, games, arcade, exhibits, and delicious carnival food. Rides include the Himalaya, Scrambler, Tilt-A-Whirl, Super Loops, Bumper Cars, Gravitron, Giant Wheel, Wipe Out, and many more plus a wonderland of rides for the small kids, too. This year's fair will also feature an educational petting farm.

The price is $10, but $1 discount coupons will be available at Hardee's and Big Boy restaurants throughout the Metropolitan Detroit area. The doors will be open from 4 to 10 p.m., Monday through Thursday, 4 p.m. to midnight Friday, noon until midnight Saturday; and noon to 10 p.m. Sunday.

A special "Employees Nite" promotion will be offered to companies within the Detroit area offering great savings to their employees on Monday through Thursday, March 21 through March 24. For details, contact the Pontiac Silverdome at 858-7358.

Indoor Super Fair is the concept of Super Fairs, Inc., which has produced the event for 20 years. Its inception was in Tulsa, Okla., but now has grown to several cities throughout the United States and Canada including the Superdome in New Orleans, Hoosierdome in Indianapolis, Skydome in Toronto and Metrodome in Minneapolis.

See faculty run

A very warm thank you to the Clarkston community for their support of the Parent Volunteer Organization's first annual Super Hooper basketball game, held Feb. 26 at Clarkston High School.

Rarely does the community get a chance to view the faculty in such a light-hearted manner, and a good time was had by all.

If you missed the fun this year, join us next year for a re-match.

Meadow Brook Theatre presents The Last Days of Mr. Lincoln

History is repeated at Oakland University's Meadow Brook Theatre as Abraham Lincoln, Mary Todd Lincoln and John Wilkes Booth take the stage in the world premiere of Charles Nolte's "The Last Days of Mr. Lincoln."

Performances will run Tuesdays through Sundays, March 17 until April 10.

Ticket information is available at the Meadow Brook box office at (810) 377-3300. Tickets may also be obtained at any Ticketmaster outlet or by phone at (313) 645-6666.

"The Last Days of Mr. Lincoln" depicts the events which took place in Washington D.C. from Lincoln's Second Inauguration on March 4, 1865 to his death little more than a month later.

Among the intriguing events and subjects which will be dramatized include the background of John Wilkes Booth and his reasons for committing such a heinous crime; Mrs. Lincoln's negative public image resulting from her bizarre spending habits, concerns over how she raised her children and unreasonable jealousy over her husband; and the assassination itself.

Also portrayed will be Lincoln's final hours, the death of Booth and the trial of the co-conspirators.

In most cases the lines spoken will be the actual words of the historical characters being portrayed.

In addition, period photographs and music will be blended into the production to further enhance the atmosphere experienced in the spring of 1865.

The author and director of this work, Charles Nolte, has created other memorable plays for the Meadow Brook stage including his adaptation of "A Christmas Carol" and last season's "The Strange Case of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde."

planning time needed. Principals Lang and Licata said they fear the expense will prevent the schools from hiring new teachers in the next year or so.

But that hasn't stopped them from exploring other alternatives.

"We can do this in small steps," said Licata. "We could creatively plan how to have the time to plan together without spending money we don't have."

The teams also explored appropriate school activities and made recommendations they believed would suit the needs of the students.

The study recommended that activities must meet "academic, social, emotional and physical needs of students" and that they must be "student centered, student directed and student planned." They must also be risk free and open to all students. Many of the activities already reflect these recommendations, according to Lang.

Social and sports activities also came under the scrutiny of the study teams.

Surveys will be conducted to analyze which activities best serve the student's needs, Reschke said.

But whatever activities and educational methods are chosen in the long run, students will come first.

"Central to the middle-school philosophy is participatory and hand-on experience," Lang said.

A night to remember Parents honored, Wolves win 90-54, GOAL title won

BY DEBORAH DZIEWIT
Clarkston News Staff Writer

The Wolfpack swept through the starting gate at full tilt Friday night against the Brandon Blackhawks. The varsity Clarkston cagers never stopped until they had a 90-54 victory.

With the win, the Wolves improved their perfect Greater Oakland Athletic League record to 10-0, and their overall record to 18-2.

Against Brandon, the team played with its usually tenacity.

"We played smart and we pushed the ball down the floor," Dan Fife, coach, said. "We made good decisions all night."

With the win, the Wolves became the undisputed league champs and must prepare for the road ahead to district play.

"We're looking forward to the districts and we are getting ready to play," Dan Fife, varsity coach, said. "We're eager to start the tournament."

District play for Clarkston starts Thursday at Lapeer East. The Wolfpack will play the winner of the Lapeer East/Lake Orion game. Tip-off for the Wolves is 7 p.m.

Against Brandon, Brad Agar, the 6-foot-4 junior, led the pack in scoring, scoring 12 of his 18 points from the free throw line. Senior Rick Vollmar scored 17 points with one slam dunk to his credit. Tim Wasilk tossed in three three pointers and ended up with 11 points. Guard Jeremy Fife scored eight points and had eight assists.

John Weeks, a senior, scored 8 points with going two for two at the free throw line. Josh Watson tossed one in and was one for two from the line. Jeff Mull, a 6-foot-4 sophomore, scored four from the floor and Rusty Mitcham fine tuned in two three pointers. J.R. Kirk, a 6-foot-6 junior, made three baskets for six points. Toby Evans swished in two from the foul line and Pat Mulligan made a basket for two points.

Wolves spike their way to regionals

BY DEBORAH DZIEWIT
Clarkston News Staff Writer

By the week's end, Clarkston's varsity volleyball team held not only the league title but the district championships in their hands.

Not only did the Wolves win the GOAL championship, they beat three teams to win the district championship at CHS.

The Wolves, 9-1 in GOAL, and 12-1 overall, will go against the county's number one team, Bloomfield Hills Marian High School to start regional play.

"We made great strides last week. We played sharp and focused," Clarkston Coach Gordie Richardson said.

The team started district play by downing Lakeland 15-11, 15-12.

Christa Herron, a 5-foot-8 senior lead the team in hitting, making 13 of 14, with eight kills. Sophomore Lisa Herron, a sister, made nine of 10 with seven kills. Junior Carey Haven hit 13 of 15 with six kills and Lisa Goforth made nine of 12 with four kills.

Continuing the strong offensive attack, the Wolves hit 90 percent of their serves. Goforth, a 5-foot-6 senior, served eight for eight with one ace. Nickie Winn, a sophomore was 14 of 15 with four aces, Lisa Herron was 11 of 12 with two aces and Christa Herron was also eight for eight.

Andrea Slavin was seven for seven and Stephanie Giroux was six of six. Each scored an ace apiece. Nickie Winn made 17 assists.

The team's defense kept up the pace with Goforth coming up with seven digs. Slavin came up with 14 of 14 service receptions while Christa

Herron was eight for eight and Giroux was five for five.

By the game's end, Clarkston won, 15-11, 15-12.

"We really played well for the whole match," the Wolves coach said. "It was an important victory for us."

The Wolves next opponent, Waterford Mott, took the match to three games, but in the end, the Clarkston held firm and came out victorious, 15-4, 13-15, 15-12.

"It was real tight. When you get into this type of play, if you lose, you are done," Richardson said.

Haven lead the offensive team with 16 of 19 serves with nine kills and Slavin made seven of 10 with three kills. Freshman Megan Bergman, just moved up to varsity was four of four with two kills. Haven and Lisa Herron each had three blocks.

Goforth, Lisa Herron and Beth Eby each had three aces, Christa Herron and Slavin made two and Giroux made one. Winn again was high in the assists with 10.

Slavin, Giroux and Lisa Herron each pulled out four digs with Goforth making 10 of 12 service receptions and Giroux hitting seven of nine.

Not losing sight of their goal, the team had one more to go before they could claim the title district champs.

They beat Waterford Kettering 15-13, 15-12. Again the girls served near what Richardson said wins games -- 89 percent.

Christa Herron lead the offensive with 10 of 13 with five kills. Haven made 11 of 13 with four kills. Lisa Herron, Goforth, Giroux and Winn served 100 percent with Herron scoring with five aces. Again Winn was there with 11 assists.

The Wolves' defense never let up with Goforth making seven digs, Lisa Herron and Slavin coming up with five.

Not letting the Captains' serves go by, Goforth was 13 of 13, Slavin seven of eight and Giroux five of six.

The first week of March will be remembered as everything coming together for the team.

Focus is what the team will concentrate on now as they prepare for Friday night's 6 p.m game against Bloomfield Hills Marian High School -- the number one team in Oakland County -- at Lakeland High School.

But Richardson said his team will be ready. "We'll give 'em a little what for."

MARCH 2:

Last Wednesday's game against Brandon started the Wolves down the winning road to district play.

By the end of the three-game match, Clarkston reigned as league champs by beating the Blackhaws 15-9, 12-15, 15-10. Their only match loss coming from Lake Orion early in season play, Clarkston now held a 9-1 GOAL record.

Haven made 23 of 27 hits with 11 kills, Slavin was 10 of 15 and six kills and Goforth was 10 for 10 with five kills. Christa Herron made 11 of 13 with five kills. Goforth served 14 of 15 with four aces. Winn made 17 assists.

Wolves' defense heated up with Slavin coming out with seven digs, Lisa Herron with six and Goforth and Christa Herron each making four.

Goforth was 100 percent in service receptions making 21 of 21.

Clarkston boys finish first in state finals

Two Clarkston-area boys helped the Lakeland Hawks to the state championships in Squirt "A" travel hockey.

Nicholas Turner, an honor student at Andersonville Elementary, and Mike Cholette, an honor student at North Sashabaw Elementary, were on the team which finished 5-0-0 in the state playoffs at the Lakeland Arena in Waterford.

During the five-game series, Cholette made one goal and had one assist. Turner made four goals and had one assist.

Two other Clarkston-area boys also participated in the games, but did not advance to the finals. The best two teams out of each bracket advanced to the finals.

Bret Litra, a student at Andersonville, and Jake Gaines, a student at North Sashabaw Elementary, both of the USA Patriots, won the District Four championship last week with the record 4-0-0.

Individuals or teams can sign up and fight multiple sclerosis by seeking pledges. Money raised will be used for research into the cause and cure for MS, information and referral, recreational, educational and counseling programs, support groups and medical equipment loans and purchases.

Race sponsors will provide rest stops every 10 to 12 miles along the route, professional bike mechanics, transportation of overnight gear, medical support and five meals during the two-day tour.

Prizes will be awarded to teams or individuals who turn in the most pledges.

For more information about the race and registration, write Michigan MS 150, 26111 Evergreen, Suite 100, Southfield, MI., 48076-4481.

Diver takes a first

John Sajdak, 16-year-old Independence Township resident, took a first in diving at the Catholic League swim meet, Sunday at the Royal Oak Dondero High School.

The former Sashabaw Middle School student scored 330 points for the Brother Rice team, which ended with a total of 409 points for the meet.

The team remained undefeated for the year and holds a 14-0-1 record. Brother Rice is ranked the number one-swim team in the state and will go to the state meet in Ann Arbor.

What's Las Vegas? Pick an adjective

By James A. Sherman

It's been at least a dozen years since Hazel and I visited Las Vegas. My how things have changed.

But, we probably could have made the same comment if it had only been two years since a last visit.

It's hard to tell if growth brought change or vice versa.

A person can throw a lot of adjectives in when writing about Las Vegas.

It's dynamic, exciting, controversial, false, Disneyish, confusing, magnetic, extravagant, cheap, expensive . . .

More than anything else it's attractive and attracting.

Las Vegas hosts more conventions than there are days in the year. Admittedly, some have few attending, but the recent electronics show brought 150,000 visitors.

The 1990 census gave Las Vegas 258,000 residents. New Years weekend between 250,000 and 300,000 passengers went through their McCarran International Airport. Talk about activity!

We asked how casinos found people to work these extra busy days. No one gets the night off.

New Years Eve day 35,000 cars came to Las Vegas just from California. Taxi is the best way to get around the city and they were stymied. Cab drivers told us, and it was easy to see anyway, city road planners have not kept up with developers . . . if indeed it could be possible.

In a matter of a few months in 1993 10,431 hotel rooms were opened. That brought the room total to 87,300. One hotel, MGM Grand Hotel & Theme Park, is humongous with over 5,000 rooms. A short distance away the Luxor opened and just down the street came Treasure Island with 2,400 and 2,600, respectively.

The whole thing is mind boggling. The Luxor, a giant Pyramid, was built in 18 months. The theme is Egyptian. Robert Lewis Stevenson

Treasure Island is also a new treat in Las Vegas. This full-size pirate ship is small compared to the one behind us. There were just too many people to get a good picture. Starting at 3:30 p.m. a movie-like pirate scene takes place every couple hours with cannons roaring, etc. New Years Eve it was shown on national television. The detail in this man-made creation is outstanding. The ships couldn't look more authentic, and maybe they are.

Entertainment is the fastest growing business in America would be amazed at his book's namesake at Treasure Island. The MGM is Wizard of Oz.

The only negative thought I had was that it could all be too Hollywoodish . . . sticks and paper mache . . . replaceable, quickly.

But, build it and the people will come. MGM's Theme Park limits attendance to 7,500. Adults are $25, children $20. It's been full every day since it opened the middle of December.

The new Treasure Island has a moat with two full size pirate ships, complete with cannons for showtime. They were on national television New Years Eve. The ships do battle, catch on fire, sails tumble, sailors all from masts and one ship sinks; all out for public viewing.

The Luxor has several 20-person barges that take people around the inside on a river. The walls are ancient history of King Tut, etc. sculpted and painted.

Across from MGM is The Excalibur that features a renaissance festival where you tear meat from a turkey (or whatever) with your hands during dinner while knights joust on horseback a few feet away.

These places are huge. Excalibur employs 3,500 people, MGM 7,300. It takes 20 people a week to wash one side of the Luxor. The Luxor has 2,400 slot machines, the MGM more than twice that.

These new hotels emphasize activities for children. "Bring the family." A family that gambles together, stays together, maybe.

While what I've outlined on these hotels is interesting, the most fascinating display was at the older, often added to, Caesar's Palace.

Thankfully we had previous Caesar visitors, Tom and Irene Schable as tour guides or we'd surely been lost at Caesars. The place is a maze. But they got us to "The Forum" for the show.

In the middle of a large lobby is a fountain with four life-size statues. Perched, seated, in the center is Bacchus, Greek God of Wine. All the figures look like concrete, solid, immobile.

On the hour thunder roars and lightning cracks across the high, domed ceiling.

And, Bacchus starts to talk and move his arms. His belly shakes, his eyes blink, his teeth show. The concrete comes to life. Absolutely amazing and magnetic.

I think that's supposed to help loosen purse strings, because halls leading away from The Forum are lined with very expensive shops.

We were with friends who had celebrated New Years in Las Vegas several times. It was our first. They recommended the San Remo Hotel 'because it's smaller.' In Las Vegas it's small, but with 600 rooms it is larger than the Holiday Inn, Fairfield Inn and Courtyard in Auburn Hills combined. Their rooms total 472.

Our room was $80 a night, but $25 rooms are available. Meals can vary in price as much as rooms.

We left Las Vegas with one prevailing thought . . . there is a recession in the United States. . . that many people can spend that much money ($40 for a Barbra Streisand t-shirt) and gamble and party 24-hours a day . . . there can be no recession.

A snapshot picture of the MGM Grand Hotel & Theme Park cannot do it justice. The MGM lion's head is huge. One entrance to this 5,000 room hotel is the mouth. Just inside is the Wizard of Oz facsimile. The stormy sky, forest, yellow brick road, Dorothy, Toto and the guys are all there. Barbra Streisand was to make her much ballyhooed appearance the day we were there. People were lined up 3-wide for a hundred feet at each of three booths selling shorts ($40), pictures, champagne ($75), champagne ($70) glasses, etc. The space given to gambling was so huge . . . well, one friend said he left a blackjack table to go to the bathroom and couldn't re-locate his table.

Moviegoers always have opinions. Does Tom Hanks of "PHILADELPHIA" stand a chance to win the OSCAR for BEST-ACTOR against Liam Neeson in "SCHINDLER'S LIST?" Can Jane Campion become the first woman to win as best director for "PIANO?"

If your hunches are correct, you could win the first-place prize of 50 movie tickets to the OXFORD TWIN CINEMA and dinner for 2 at LONG BRANCH (value $250.00) in the first annual CLARKSTON NEWS and the Oxford Twin Cinema's Oscar Dinner Contest or you could win 20 movie tickets and dinner for 2, a $115.00 value as second place finisher.

Diabetics sought for Harper Hospital studies

Staff from the Diabetes Research Program at Harper Hospital, a member of the Detroit Medical Center (DMC), are seeking individuals with diabetes to participate in the study of a new medication which may slow or even stop the progression of peripheral neuropathy, the most common symptomatic complication of diabetes.

Peripheral neuropathy is a condition in which nerve fibers carrying messages about temperature, texture and pain from the extremities to the brain are damaged. The condition causes a "pins and needles" feeling, pain and eventually numbness of the skin, leading to an increase in risk of injury -- especially to the feet. These injuries may lead to infection, gangrene, and even amputation, most commonly of the toes and feet.

According to George Grunberger, M.D., director of the Diabetes Research Program, "This new medication -- acetyl-L-carnitine -- is a component of nerve tissue naturally produced by the body, but found lacking in many patients with diabetes."

Individuals with diabetes who are 18 to 70 years of age and are experiencing mild pain, numbness and/or tingling below the ankles are being recruited. The Diabetes Research Program will cover all expenses associated with participation in this study. To volunteer or obtain further information, please contact The DMC Referral Service, 1-800-666-3466.

The DMC, the academic health center for Wayne State University, operates seven hospitals and a variety of outpatient centers throughout metropolitan Detroit. The DMC has over 2,500 licensed beds and 3,000 affiliated physicians.

Wild west show in Auburn Hills

The Coca-Cola Classic Royal Hanneford Circus and its tribute to the wild wooly west comes to The Palace of Auburn Hills for 10 shows Wednesday, April 20 through Sunday, April 24.

The Royal Hanneford Circus, legendary for its three-ringed spectacle of death-defying stunts and animals of all shapes and sizes, goes west this year with a colorful tribute to the cowboys, cowgirls and Indians that made up the wild west.

The show begins with cast members dressed in brilliantly colored western costumes in a first-class "How the West was Won" western extravaganza. The opening number features cowboys, cowgirls, feather-bonneted Indians, trick roman horseback riding, rope spinning, whip and even an old-fashioned shootout, Hollywood style.

The Royal Hanneford Circus continues its tradition of bringing audiences the most daring in live entertainment with the Welde's Dancing Bears, the Hanneford Circus' herd of elephants and the Hawthorn Golden Tigers under the brave direction of Susan Lacey and featuring "Kalif," a rare and majestic white tiger. Aerial elegance is highlighted above with the Bizarro Duo and Wild West Dance Hall Maidens.

QUESTION: How can I buy a home as an investment and increase its value for resale?

ANSWER: Seriously consider prospecting for "diamonds in the rough." Older homes in solid neighborhoods may be priced below the market because of their condition. Profitwise, nothing comes close to rehab in the area of multiplying resale profits-provided the improvements have been well thought out and costs carefully controlled.

A couple of thousand dollars improving the right home could show over $10,000 worth of increase immediately. However, never over-improve a house above its comparable market value.

Engler speaks

Here are some questions put to Governor Engler about Proposal A when he spoke recently in Oakland County, and his answers:

● What will happen to downtowns which have tax-increment financing districts which are currently under bonded indebtedness?

Engler: "I would certainly not agree downtowns have been damaged. TIFAs can certainly continue... You still have the ability to capture millage."

Engler said $62 million has been appropriated for the first year to help pay off TIFA debt, with additional money promised for the second year of the new plan. "It won't pay it all but it's a start," he said. "There needs to be some implementing legislation but we've approved $62 million."

● I paid property taxes in February. Will I get a refund if Proposal A passes?

Engler: "You pay property taxes on a calendar year, so you've only paid 1993 taxes." Though the ballot proposal won't be decided till March 15, if it's successful, there will be a full year of tax relief, he said.

● Is the proposed cigarette tax - increase on all tobacco?

Engler: Yes. And six percent of the tax is earmarked for improving health in Michigan.

● Is all of the two-cent sales-tax increase guaranteed to fund schools?

Engler: "Yes. It's not 90 percent; it's 100 percent."

● Will Proposal A fund outcomes based education?

Engler: "No, under any mandate from the state... Outcomes are not mandated. This has nothing to do with the ballot proposal. It's a separate issue but it comes up a lot."

"We have tried to stay out of setting mandates in local curriculum... I will work to assure that we do not."

They'll be there

Within my husband's group of friends I could almost be considered the new girl on the block.

However, in the five almost six years we have been together that "new girl" name should be holding less and less water each time the group meets.

But if I compare how long the Big Clarkston Chillers of mostly forty-something men and women have known each other, it will probably be a long time before I can consider myself a real member of the group. I don't have the history this group holds.

For the most part, they all grew up in Clarkston, went to school in Clarkston, and graduated from Clarkston.

As children, many knew every bump in the road and every tall tree to climb.

Today, many have made their homes in the Clarkston area, with their children now going through the school system.

Of course a few members have moved out of the area. Some are on second marriages. Some are just having babies.

Some have seen career changes or salary increases.

And I'm sure when they look in the mirror, they don't see the same face or same body reflecting back from the mirror. Wrinkles now characterize their faces.

Despite distance and differences, the Big Clarkston Chillers still get together.

New Year's Eve parties, birthday parties, it's-hot-outside parties and let's-beat-the-winter-blahs parties.

Last weekend it was a going-away party for a couple transferred to Oregon.

Most everyone showed with a dish to pass and a favorite beverage to drink. Kids were left home. Classic Motown played on the CD player. Soon I knew everyone would be dancing in the hallways and singing with the Karaoke.

For some things never change. But the woman who was leaving for Oregon feared what kind of changes would occur during the years apart.

She has nothing to fear as part of this rare crowd. No matter the distance or the differences they will always have time for friends — friends that span the past and I'm sure into the future; no matter the changes time and distance etches into our hearts and minds.

They will be here.

By Catherine Passmore

What really matters

My favorite song this week is one I heard on a sample tape.

The part that grabbed my attention goes something like this — There's only one thing that matters in life, despite of the way it may seem. It's not when your born, it's not when you die, but what you have done in between.

Those words have been gnawing away at all my excuses for not doing things — I'm too busy, I don't have the money to donate, I'm young now — I'll volunteer and give when I'm older.

I'm reading a book by Tony Compolo which offers suggestions on how to help the world around you. These are things that you (and I) can work into our budgets and time pressures.

■ Volunteer at a pregnancy center or offer your extra bedrooms to pregnant teens who can't live at home. You will help them through the toughest part of their lives.

■ Tutoring children, volunteering at schools or community centers, or becoming a foster parent will improve the lives of numerous children.

■ Make regular visits to the elderly in your area — at nursing homes and in their homes. Take your children for the older person to hold and talk to, take senior citizens places and involve them in events and tasks whenever possible. Older people have much love and wisdom to share if they're given the chance.

■ Become involved in the lives of the sick and dying. Build relationships with patients and their families through hospice services or in hospitals. AIDS patients are really in need — not only are they dying, but most of society still fears their disease.

■ There are about four million homeless people in our country, one-third are children. Volunteer to prepare, serve and clean up after a meal once a month. Donate clothes, books, cleaning supplies and food to area shelters.

■ If you're really adventurous, take a week's vacation to help Habitat for Humanity — a group that builds homes for poor people — or start your own chapter in the area. Write Habitat for Humanity, Habitat and Church Streets, Americus, GA 31709 for more information.

■ Those in prison need love and support in their lives. You can visit or write prisoners and their families, donate books and magazines, organize a holiday party or volunteer with a chaplain to lead a Bible study.

■ Take a class, go to the theater and enjoy the arts. You need time to relax and learn. Go to an unfamiliar place and stay among people from other areas and cultures. When you make friends with people with cultures you've never experienced before prejudices can melt away.

No one remembers when Albert Einstein, Harriet Tubman or Ben Franklin were born or when they died — but their ideas and actions have influenced the world. Maybe, in our own small way, we can too.

Volunteers needed for hospice

Hospice of Southeastern Michigan's North Oakland team needs volunteers, especially during the day, and has scheduled volunteer training courses for March. Three Monday evening classes will be held on March 14, 21 and 28 from 6 to 10 p.m. Participants must attend all three sessions.

Classes will meet at the Hospice offices, 1695 Woodward Ave., Suite 208, Bloomfield Hills (east side of Woodward just north of Square Lake). Anyone interested in becoming a Hospice volunteer is invited to attend. There is no charge, but advance registration and an interview are required.

Volunteers help Hospice of Southeastern Michigan provide compassionate care for the dying. Patient care volunteers help patients and their families by running errands, lending support and being a friend. Additional training prepares volunteers to perform simple patient care tasks such as transferring patients and assisting with meals.

Volunteers can also take additional training to participate in the Hospice bereavement program, making calls and visits to families after a patient's death and helping with bereavement support groups.

"On-call" volunteers are willing to be called whenever a patient or family has a need for their special skills or talents. Services include driving, barbering and hairdressing, lawn care, snow shoveling and simple home maintenance.

Anyone over the age of 16 is welcome to volunteer. At this time, Hospice has a special need for volunteers to work during the day. However, many assignments are for evening and weekend work, so students and people who work during the day shouldn't hesitate to volunteer.

Hospice of Southeastern Michigan, the largest hospice in the Midwest, opened in November 1980 to provide a compassionate setting in which terminally ill individuals can die with dignity. Hospice is

A Story About the Earth

If I could give the world a gift I'll tell you what I'll do. I'll give peace on earth or maybe love. I'll pick up the environment and put up signs that say "Don't pollute the earth," and if I see someone dropping litter, I'll tell them to pick it up because I wouldn't want anything to happen to the earth. If something happened it could pollute lakes or ponds or maybe the whole earth. Maybe one day it would work out but for now, we're all trying to pick it up.

The end.

(By Autumn Garrison a second-grade student. She won first place in the Primary Division of the Reflections Contest.)

If I Could Give the World a Gift

If I could give the world a gift
I wouldn't give it any cash.
I would probably pick up some of its trash.
I might give it a field of dreams.
Or maybe even some big blue streams.
I would love to give it all these things
Because it's not a job for kings.
But first I have to finish school
So I can use my mind as a tool.
When I grow up some of these things I will do
Not just for me, but for you too.

(By Kelli Morton, a fifth-grade student. She won first place in the Reflections Contest Intermediate Division.)

Gifts of words, music and sight

Photos, drawings, songs and literature expressed the gifts students would give the world in the 1993-94 PTA Reflections contest.

Children in kindergarten through high school were able to complete in the contest with divisions for literature — poetry, prose, drama, stories or lyrics — original music, photography and visual arts. Winners were chosen from each school in various age categories. Winners are eligible to compete at the state level.

First place winners are as follows:

Visual Arts

Primary (K-3) — Jim Shanks
Intermediate (4-5) — Angela Macy
Junior High (6-8) — Jessie Doyle

Literature

Primary — Autumn Garrison
Intermediate — Kellie Morton
Junior High — Adrienne Verla

Music

Primary — Dana Christensen
Intermediate — Kathleen Moniaci
Junior High — Gena Benson

Photography

Primary — Shawn Verla
Intermediate — Keith Maciowski
Junior High — Kathy Kopec

The Reflections programs is presented in an effort to encourage interest in fine arts.

If I could give the world a gift, it would be . . . TIME

The reason I would give the world a gift such as time is because I hear people say, "There is so much to do in so little time!" All I want to do is slow it down so people can enjoy their life more.

There are many ways in which time passes too fast. Here are just a few:

A busy mom wants to rock her baby and enjoy the moment, but before you know it, the baby is not a baby anymore.

You're so excited about Christmas. You do so many things preparing for the big day. Then BOOM it's here and gone.

A person is dying of cancer in the hospital and they know it. They just want enough time to see their family once again to say, I Love You!

A pet that you've loved for awhile runs in the road and is hit by a car and killed. You wish that you had time to say goodbye.

It's summer and you see the beautiful roses blooming in your yard and you think to yourself, "Tomorrow I'll pick some and take time to smell the roses." But, tomorrow it storms and the roses are all gone.

See what I mean? I guess if I were to give the gift of time to the world, I'd tell everyone to stop and think about your priorities and take time to enjoy what you love.

(By Adrienne Verla, a sixth-grade student at Sashabaw Middle School. She won first place in the Reflections Contest Junior High Division.)

The bride, daughter of Dale and Deborah Stuart of Independence Township, is a C.P.A. at Public Accounting Firm. She is a 1984 graduate of Clarkston High School and a 1988 graduate for Michigan State University.

The 1 p.m. wedding was officiated by the Rev. Roger Allen and the Rev. Philip Thomas, uncle of the bride, and attended by about 300 people. Tulle was draped in the center aisle from pew to pew and tulle bows were placed on candelabras and the archway.

The bride wore a finger-tip length veil on a beaded and sequined head piece. Her gown was white with an open heart design on the upper back at the neck, and a chapel-length train made of satin and lace. The bodice and long sleeves were sequined and beaded. The full skirt and train were beaded and sequined with open cut detailing on the train and a scalloped hemline. Her silk floral bouquet was of white lilies.

Matron of honor was Dawn Wyatt of Auburn Hills and maid of honor was Danette Stuart of Independence Township, both sisters of the bride. Their late sister, Doreen, was remembered in the printed program and by a vacant spot in the bridal party line up.

Cynthia Vanaman of Clarkston and Joni (Collier) Kurtz of Rangor, Penn. were also attendants. They wore dark iridescent purple dresses that had lace overlay on the bodice and elbow length puffy sleeves. They carried long-stemmed silk floral bouquets.

Hanna Wyatt, niece of the bride, and Meghan Erznosnik, cousin of the bride, were the flower girls.

NEWLYWEDS: Mr. and Mrs. Kirk Traver

Joshua Wyatt, nephew of the bride, was the ring bearer. The flower girls wore identical long white lace tiered short sleeve dresses. They wore a white flowered wreath on their heads with long white ribbons down the back.

The best men were Scott Traver and Todd Traver, brothers of the groom. Gary McGee, Jeff Bell and Mike Duggan, friends of the groom, were the other attendants. Randy Wyatt, Mike Garcia, Mark Ellis and Steve Ellis were ushers.

A reception followed at the Rochester Hills Golf and Country Club. The couple planned to honeymoon in Myrtle Beach, but because of Hurricane Emily traveled to New England. They now reside in Clarkston.

Students work together for planet earth

BY ANNETTE KINGSBURY
Clarkston News Editor

An orca whale named Princess Angeline may well be the beneficiary of a unique collaboration at Sashabaw Middle School.

Students in the environmental club, called Students for a Better World, are joining forces with students in the autisticly impaired program to make earth-friendly products under a company called New Eden Products. It's a school production from start to finish.

SMS already has an area dedicated to production work, called 321 Productions, where AI students can

'We try to educate the school about recycling. I think the kids are more aware today and they want to do stuff.'

Jennifer Fogleman

get real-life job experience. So when the environmental club was looking for a way to make some money, it was a natural fit.

Under the leadership of sponsors Ellen Whitehead and Margie Russell, the students formed Eden Products to make and market bird feeders, tote bags, t-shirts, earth jewelry and canvas lunch bags. Many will be decorated with a logo designed by SMS student David Haverstick.

The students received grants from the Clarkston Foundation and Detroit Edison's Energy and the Howard Padgham of Clarkston has been elected a trustee of Lawrence Technological University in Southfield.

Padgham is an executive engineer for LH car programs at Chrysler Corp., where he has responsibility for all engineering aspects of current and future versions of the mid-size, four-door sedans.

Padgham has a BS in mechanical engineering, an MAE from the University of Michigan and an MBA from Michigan State. He began his career with Rolls Royce Ltd. in 1954. He joined Dodge Brothers in England in 1964 and has continued with Chrysler since 1969.

Environment migrant program to purchase initial supplies. All proceeds will go to support environmental programs, such as the Orca Adoption Program of The Whale Museum in Washington, and other projects chosen by the students.

"321 Productions does work for companies in the community," said Russell, who teaches the program. Among their projects are labeling for a granola company and recycling of trays for a drug company. "It's not pre-vocational, it's vocational work. A good portion of special education students participate."

They will assemble the products designed by the environmental club. In some cases, recycled components will be used, such as plastic ink tubes from school Risograph machines. In other cases, shop students will participate, such as cutting wood parts for the birdhouses.

"At the beginning of the year we decided what we wanted to do," said Jennifer Fogleman, a seventh-grader and project manager for New Eden Products.

"We wanted to raise money. We adopted a whale and we give to other environmental groups... We are trying to work to adopt a wolf with part of the money. We're going to use part of the money to buy flowers for the courtyard."

The students hope to be ready to sell their products through a catalogue by Earth Day and will have a booth at a community Earth Day festival April

This is the second year for the environmental club at SMS. Though the club is small (15 students) they are involved in recycling paper and cans at their school and last year planted a tree on the grounds. They are also involved with the Independence Land Conservancy, helping to inspect one of the Conservancy's 12 parcels of land each year.

"We try to educate the school about recycling," Jennifer said. "I think the kids are more aware today and they want to do stuff."

"I've been interested in the environment since second grade. My parents have always been but I had a teacher who was and she made us real interested."

The club is also spearheading a district-wide seed-collection program called Seeds for Africa. They have delivered a box to each school where students can drop off garden seeds through mid-April for delivery to sub-Saharan Africa, where they will help families grow their own food. That project got started with a donation of 1,800 seed packets from Bordines.

"We hope to expand after we get going," Jennifer said. Meanwhile, they get periodic newsletters about Princess Angeline, who swims in the Pacific and has a calf who is as yet unnamed.

"Our object is not to make money," said Whitehead. "Our object is to spread the word."

New ice shanty law on April 1

A new state law regulating the placement of ice shanties for fishing on public waters will take effect April 1. The law, 1993 P.A. 274, will replace existing legislation enacted in 1943, and contains major changes in requirements and oversight.

"This new legislation will address long-standing concerns of local units of government regarding the safety of water bodies within their jurisdiction, while providing ice anglers with definite guidelines to follow as they participate in this type of sport fishing," DNR Director Roland Harnes said.

Anglers will be required to have the name and address of the owner permanently affixed to all sides of the shanty in legible letters not less than two inches in height. It will no longer be permissible to place the information on a board or similar material and then attach the board to the shanty.

Shanties placed on Upper Peninsula waters and waters of the Great Lakes adjacent to the Upper Peninsula must be removed prior to midnight on March 31 of each year.

Shanties placed on the ice in Oakland County, or adjacent Great Lakes waters except Lake St. Clair, shall be removed from the ice by midnight of March 1 of each year.

After these dates, a shanty may be used in fishing but must be removed at the conclusion of each day's fishing activity. In all cases, shanties must be removed earlier if ice conditions become unsafe.

In an effort to make the use of ice shanties as uniform as possible across the state, the new law prohibits a local unit of government from regulating the placement, use, marking or removal of ice shanties, and will void any ordinances, rules or regulations currently in effect.

Persons violating the provisions of this law will face a fine of $100 to $500, imprisonment up to 30 days, or both. If a violation of this law results in a shanty falling through the ice, the owner will be liable for three times the cost of shanty removal.

Concert postponed

Music lovers will have to wait a little longer for a concert from the Clarkston Conservatory of Music.

The March 13 concert has been postponed to a date yet to be announced due to Ivan Rouse's health problems.

Childhood emergencies

It's 2 a.m. and your child is running a fever of 102 degrees — do you call a doctor or ride it out?

Clarkston pediatrician James Shaya, M.D., F.A.A.P., will advise parents on recognizing emergency situations, what to tell the nurse or doctor when you call and home treatment supplies to keep on hand.

Children's Medical Emergencies is the second session in the Independence Township Library's Practical Parenting series will be March 22 at 7:30 p.m. at the library.

Romance and unions

The eternal battles between management and labor and man and woman get put to music in The Pajama Game presented by students at Clarkston High School.

When Sid Sorokin (Ryan S. Moore), the new forman of the Sleep-Tite Pajama Company, runs up against Babe Williams (Sarah-Lyndsey King), the head of the Union Grievance Committee, sparks fly and romance is in the air. The romance between Hines (John Dugan), the efficiency expert, and Gladys (Gina Gerke), the boss's secretary only adds to the passion of this musical. All of the romance is complicated by a long-standing union management dispute over a needed seven-and-a-half cent raise.

Performances are March 24-26 at 7:30 p.m. and March 27 at 2 p.m. in the Kirchgessner Auditorium.

Workshops help research

BY VIRGINIA BLOCK

Workshops to aid your research are often too far away, too expensive or scheduled when time does not allow one to consider attending.

One session has been held for the workshops offered by the "O.P.C." (Older Persons Commission) of Rochester, with two more due. Twenty-eight people turned out for the March 4 event, from 10 a.m. to noon; some just beginning, others far advanced but up against a stone wall. Preregistration is required but there is no fee.

The Pontiac Area Historical and Genealogical will be offering an improved, well stocked library for anyone's use by the end of April. Meanwhile, you are invited to come in Monday, Tuesday and Friday from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. to check us out.

The subject of the International Year of the Family will continue to be the "Focus on the Family" idea.

Our March 10 meeting will be exploring the various kinds of library services (i.e. Library for the Blind, the County Government Library, Legal Library, etc.) nearby, where clues can be found to "missing" kinfolks.

The meetings are held for the public at no charge, on the second Thursday of each month (except July and August) at 7:30 p.m. at the Pontiac Public Library, 60 E. Pike St., Lower Level. You'll be welcomed.

Any information is being hoped for by Winnie Cosand of Eastpointe area on her great-grandmother Delores Henrietta Langdon who died ca. 1917-1919 and is buried in Troy Union Cemetery.

Delores Henrietta was married to: King, 2nd to Gardiner and 3rd to Langdon.

There are no cemetery records to provide any shred of information and lack of a death date hampers any search for an obituary. Does this bit of information ring a bell for anyone?

A neat idea that was a great icebreaker for the class in Rochester provided a new way to share your identity (even though we had name tags), as teacher asked each person to give married name, maiden name and mother's maiden name, in turn.

The menfolk were requested to give the maiden name of their grandmother and three surnames quickly gathered great interest from all, as familiar possible "ties" were formed.

We invite you to send in your own query to us, because we have a large collection of family group sheets to check against for your lines.

We know time is precious, so maybe "armchair genealogy" is still in vogue for those homebound or short of funds to get to the state library, Fort Wayne, or Salt Lake.

It all starts with you anyhow, so let's get started. Happy hunting.

Women's place in business growing

The growth rate of women-owned businesses was more than four times greater than the rate for all businesses from 1982 to 1987—up 57 percent, the Census Bureau says. Women own 30 percent of the nation's businesses, with receipts totaling nearly $280 billion, about 14 percent of the total in 1987.

The median earnings of women who worked year-round and full-time increased by 1.3 percent between 1991 and 1992, according to the U.S. Census Bureau. During that time, women's median earnings rose to $21,440, while men's remained unchanged at $30,358.

Women are not equally represented in all professions, according to the U.S. Census Bureau. Women continue to be overrepresented in clerical and service occupations, where they make up 77 percent of the workforce, and underrepresented in production, craft, repair and labor occupations, where they make up 9.5 percent.

Marriage is being delayed while women go to college or establish themselves in the labor force. The proportion of women ages 25-29 who have never married tripled in the past 20 years, from 11 percent in 1970 to 33 percent in 1992.

U of M goes on line

University of Michigan scientist Perry Samson wants to bring the world of weather to the desk of every elementary and secondary school student in Michigan.

With support from the National Science Foundation, Samson and his U-M students are developing a full-color interactive software package called Blue-Skies that will provide access to U.S. Weather Service databanks and environmental monitoring data from space satellites.

"Weather is the one area of science that affects everyone every day," Samson said. "It's a great way to bring science into the context of each student's daily life, and help students understand the long-term changes taking place in Earth's climate and environment."

With Blue-Skies, an Apple Macintosh personal computer, a high-speed modem and a standard telephone line, Michigan students can track approaching storm fronts, check on local weather conditions around the world, monitor the growth of the ozone hole over Antarctica, study acid rain changes in North America during the past decade, and see pictures taken from space satellites within the past hour.

"Blue-Skies gives students the tools they need to explore hundreds of real-time weather and environmental images," Samson said. "The software was designed to provide a user-friendly interface, so students with a minimal computer background can find the information they need."

According to Samson, the National Science Foundation will use Blue-Skies and the state of Michigan as a demonstration of how computer networking technology can help integrate aspects of science education reform. The goal of Samson's Weather Underground project is incorporating computer technology into the elementary and secondary school science curriculum.

Michigan school students will access Blue-Skies through MichNet -- a statewide computer network. Once they are logged onto MichNet, students also will be able to use Internet -- the international computer network that links scientists and researchers all over the world.

"We want to develop a wide variety of activities on Blue-Skies that will help students see science as something they can use every day," Samson said. "Students will record and enter local temperatures and precipitation amounts into Blue-Skies. Their data will be combined with data received from the National Weather Service, so students will see their own school displayed on Blue-Skies' new interactive weather maps. We also plan to conduct statewide competitions between schools for the most accurate weather forecast."

Currently, Blue-Skies is only available for Apple Macintosh personal computers, although an IBM-PC version of the software will be available later this year. Hardware requirements, in addition to the Macintosh, are a color monitor and a high-speed modem (9,600-baud or faster), and a telephone line installed in the classroom.

"The school system can purchase all necessary hardware for about $2,000," Samson said. "We have even established a computer loaner program for teachers who want to try Blue-Skies for a short period to demonstrate the value of a computer hook-up to administrators or parents."

"Our goal is to help Michigan students become active participants in the collection, reporting and analysis of weather and environmental information as it happens," Samson said.

Blue-Skies was one of several educational software packages featured Feb. 24-26 at a National Science Foundation-sponsored conference on education reform held in Washington, D.C.

CLARKSTON

CITY OF THE VILLAGE OF CLARKSTON

375 DEPOT ROAD
Clarkston, Michigan 48346
CITY COUNCIL MEETING MINUTES

The meeting was called to order at 7:37 p.m. by Mayor Catalo followed by the pledge of allegiance.
Roll: Present: Arkwright, Basinger, Catalo, Sanderson, Schultz, Secatch.

Absent: Roeser
Moved by Arkwright, supported by Secatch, "That the minutes of the meeting on February 14, 1994 be approved as submitted." Motion carried.

Moved by Sanderson, supported by Basinger, "That the agenda be approved as submitted." Motion carried.

The Public Hearing was opened at 7:40 p.m. to discuss the possibility of connecting Village residences and buildings with the Independence Township water system. A presentation was made by Tom Bihl, an engineer with Hubbell, Roth and Clark. Mr. Bihl indicated that there were a number of contaminated wells along Main Street that were going to be connected to the Independence Township water supply by the extension of the water main down Main Street. This project is being funded with Federal money because of the contamination. There are also homes on Wompole with contaminated wells which are currently receiving bottled water which are not currently slated to be included in this project. The wells have been found to be contaminated with ethylene glycol and freon. Residents who are hooked up to the Township water supply will also have their wells capped to prevent further use of the contaminated water.

This project will extend the Township's water main down M-15, on the North side of the Village, between Robertson Court and Washington.

The City Council is entertaining the idea of making water available, to all businesses and residences within the Village, through the Independence Township water system. This would require extending the 12-inch water main down M-15 to the South side of the Village where the water main currently extends as far as Paramus. There would also need to be a connection to the East on Clarkston Road and one to the West on White Lake Road. Eight inch main would be extended down residential streets throughout the Village. Fire hydrants would be approximately every 400 feet and double hydrants would be placed in the downtown area.

The project costs have been estimated under two different scenarios. The first scenario assume that all residences and businesses are hooked up at the same time. The total project costs are projected at $2,360,000 or approximately $5,900 to $6,500 per customer.

The second scenario assumes the water mains are extended but not all customers hook up at the same time. The costs of extending the water main in this scenario are estimated at $4,400 to $4,900 per customer. Under this scenario, the customer would decide when they wanted to hook up to the water main and a $1,200 to $1,400 connection fee would be charged at that time.

The financing for this project could be handled through bonds for a period of 15 to 20 years. If a 5% interest rate is assumed the average home with a SEV of $60,000 could expect to pay approximately $300 per year. The cost of water will depend upon usage, but was estimated at between $20-$30 per month.

Gar Wilson, Fire Chief for Independence Township, indicated that the ISO, which sets fire ratings for the insurance industry, recently regraded the Township's fire services. The services were upgraded from a Class 8 to a Class 5 because of the extension of the new water system. A Class 5 rating is given to dwelling within 1000 feet of a fire hydrant. The Village currently is rated as a Class 9. An Ortonville insurance agent indicated that on a home with a $150,000 value where the home owner's premium was decreased from $627 to $400 annually when the community was regraded from a Class 9 to a Class 5.

The Township's water is supplied from multiple sources. The water is tested weekly at each source for fecal coliform counts or bacteria and is tested every six months for other contaminants. If one of the water sources is found to be contaminated it is taken out of the system. The Township uses both an elevated storage system as well as an in-ground storage system. The Township currently provides water at between 60 and 65 pounds of pressure. Most wells operate between 20 and 40 pounds of pressure. Most of the residents of the Township still use water softeners and filtration systems but there is thought to be less rust in the system than in most individual wells.

The meeting was opened for public comments.
The Council thanked the public for coming and will keep them posted as they further explore this issue. The Public Hearing was closed at 8:50 p.m.

Tom Ryan will review our wetlands ordinances and bring them into compliance with the state's wetlands ordinances by June 1994.

Resolved by Sanderson, supported by Schultz, "That a payment of $200 be authorized for membership fees for the Traffic Information Association." roll: yeas-6, nays-0. Resolution passed.

The request for $200 by Common Ground of Birmingham was denied. The Council acknowledged that they provide a needed service but that the Village was already supporting other organizations that provided some of the same services in closer proximity to the Village.

Resolved by Arkwright, supported by Secatch, "That the council go into closed session to discuss pending litigation." Roll: yeas-6, nays-0. Resolution passed.

The council went into closed session at 9:05 p.m.
Resolved by Arkwright, supported by Schultz, "That the council go back into open session." Roll: yeas-6, nays-0. Resolution passed.

Resolved by Sanderson, supported by Basinger, "That the mediation award in the Vernon case be accepted, as discussed in closed session." Roll: yeas-Basinger, Sanderson, Schultz, Secatch; nays-Arkwright, Catalo. Resolution passed.

Moved by Arkwright, supported by Secatch, "That the meeting be adjourned." Motion carried.

The meeting was adjourned at 9:35 p.m.

RESOLUTION OF TOWNSHIP BOARD

REGARDING 114 ACRES IN SECTION 36

RECITATIONS:
Having had no earlier occasion or reason to do so for more than 20 years, the Township Planning Commission, in a series of meetings during the past several months, studied the 114 acres of property in Section 36 of the Township which is the subject of the Singer-Kaplan Consent Judgment, entered in 1973.

As part of the study, the Planning Commission received input from its professional planning consultant, from the superintendent of the Clarkston School District, from its former planning consultant, Mr. Larry Burkhart, and the Planning Commission examined the prospect of developing the property for various uses, including the possibility of mobile home park use.
