Gangs in the 'burbs Denial: it's a problem

Part Two: Codes, conduct, colors

By Don Rush,
Assistant to The Publisher

A local woman turns to police to help her control her son. The teen is unruly, he comes and goes as he pleases.

A local merchant arrives at his place of business early Monday morning only to find he is again forced to repaint -- kids have spray painted cryptic messages on his building.

Police notice a drastic increase in larcenies and breaking and enterings.

What's going on? There's a good chance there's a youth gang in town. A couple of months ago the state attorney general's office reported that 44 of Michigan's 83 counties have gang-related activities.

Unfortunately Oakland is one of those counties. It gets worse. One hundred eleven gangs have been identified in 20 Oakland County communities since the beginning of the year. A number of those gangs have marked their turf in Oxford, Orion and Independence townships.

The law knows there is a problem. Educators know there is a problem -- but some experts say parents do not.

"Denial is the first major problem with gang problems," Larry Gibson, youth officer for the Madison Heights Police Department, says.

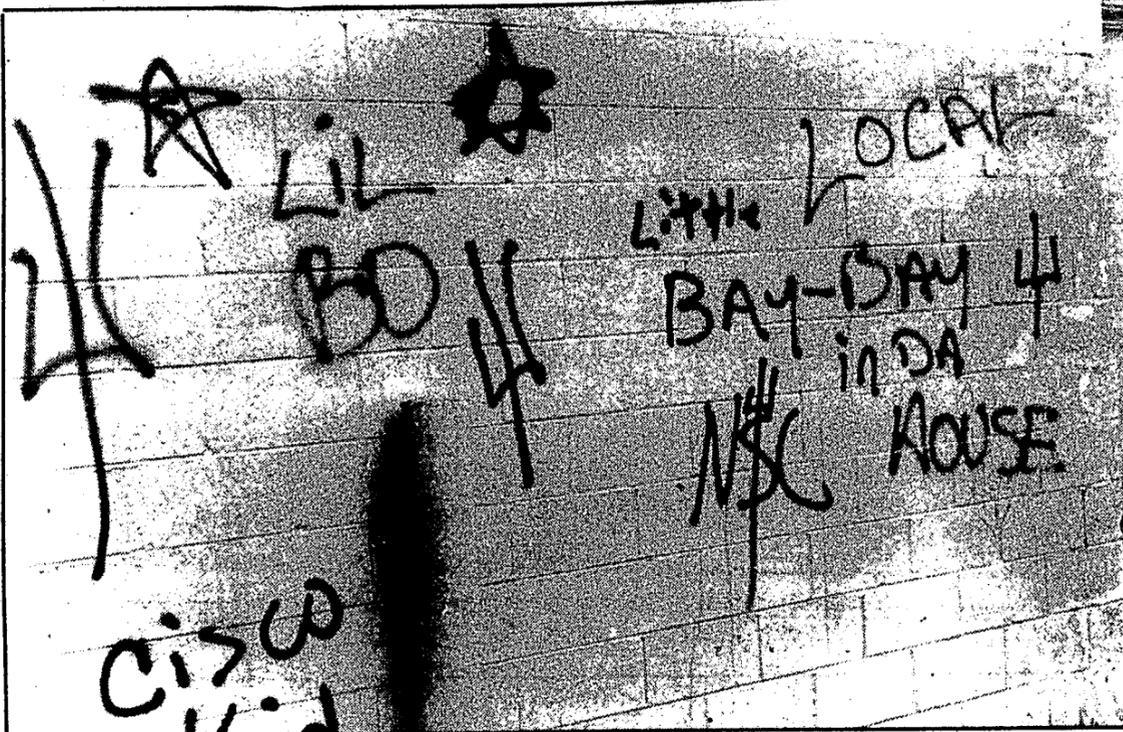

"I don't get mad at people when they deny because they don't know what they're looking at to admit it," he says. "Until people know exactly what it is they are faced with and realize what the beads mean and the jackets mean and the graffiti means, and how to read it, they tend to deny."

Eighteen months ago, police at the south end of the county noticed a trend with youth problems. They found communities were having the same problems with the same kids. At the center -- gangs.

"We formed a mini-ad hoc committee slash gang task force and started to address the problem," Gibson says.

This led Gibson, along with assistant Oakland County Prosecutor Lisa Tomko, to co-author a gang awareness program. They have traced the migration of gangs from Chicago to Michigan suburbs. The program shows how to recognize the signs of gang activities. It has been presented to police and parent groups across the state. Last school year it was presented at Clarkston High School.

Gibson will be at Holly High School talking to that community on October 11. What he gives the community is an education on the colors, codes and conduct of modern day, suburban gangs.

What is a gang?

Gibson and Tomko took a number of definitions and came up with this: A gang is . . .

- 1) . . . two or more people who form an allegiance for a common purpose;
- 2) . . . identifies with, or claims a territory in a community;
- 3) . . . engages, individually or collectively, in violence and/or other criminal activity.

"Number three is important," Gibson says. "It is what separates gangs from other youth groups, like the Boy Scouts."

Where did they come from?

"Our gangs in the suburbs are coming out of Detroit, which (before Detroit) came from the penitentiaries in Illinois, Chicago," Gibson says.

According to Gibson, in 1989 a Latin Count

Calling all cooks

Planning for the holiday songbook/recipe book, which runs annual in The Clarkston News, is underway.

This year, for the first time, the book will include recipes for holiday goodies submitted by local readers. Recipes for this year's book are needed and must be submitted by Friday, Oct. 21.

named Raul Vasquez was killed in Chicago. Members of a rival gang threatened Vasquez's family so they moved the funeral to Detroit.

"They failed to all go back."

From there it has grown. One reason gangs have formed in this area is because their families now live here.

"The kid goes with the family. A minor gang banger from Detroit moves to the suburbs and he wants to be a tough guy. He wants more power and status so he starts a gang," Gibson says.

Because this person has ties to gangs in Detroit, he can call in help.

"In my opinion the most dangerous (gangster) is the loose-knit, suburban wanna-be. A full blown gang banger has already proved himself. A 13-year-old wanna-be is more apt to do a drive-by shooting or cocktail a house because it's going to show how tough he is," Gibson adds.

The four stages

Hardly anything happens overnight. So it is with the birth of a gang in any community. When Gibson speaks on gangs, he tells the community there are four stages they should know:

- 1) Show: graffiti and colors are displayed
- 2) Recruitment: finding members, initiation
- 3) Full Scale Criminal Activity: "They are no longer beating each other up, they're into breaking and enterings, larcenies, drive-by shootings."
- 4) Drug Trafficking/Racketeering

The news in brief

Plea in baby selling

Pamela Williamson and Mark Good pled no contest in 52-2 District Court Sept. 8 to charges they contributed to the neglect of Williamson's 2-year-old daughter. The charges stemmed from several incidents, including one outside Food Town market when Good tried to sell the baby to a passer-by.

The two are scheduled to be sentenced Nov. 7. They remain free on personal bond. Meanwhile, Williamson's jury trial begins Monday in Probate Court to determine whether her daughter should become a ward of the state.

DARE: Teaching kids positive lessons

BY ANNETTE KINGSBURY
Clarkston News Editor

One boy told about an uncle who had already had three heart attacks because of cocaine. Another suggested drug dealers should all be killed. A little girl wondered if drugs really make you feel good.

And these were fifth-graders.

Those serious questions were all in a day's work for Deputy Dave Hernandez of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department. Hernandez is the man responsible for bringing DARE—Drug Abuse Resistance Education—to Clarkston schoolchildren.

DARE is a program that originated in California in 1983 and is now taught across the country, including about half of Michigan's schools. It brings law enforcement into the schools on a regular basis and with a fixed curriculum to talk about drugs.

Before DARE, said Christopher Lewis, DARE coordinator for the Michigan State Police, "We never had a set program or curriculum. And sometimes we did a good job and sometimes we did a bad job."

It was the now-infamous Los Angeles Police Chief Darryl Gates who approached the LA Unified School District about coming up with a curriculum to prevent drug use, Lewis said.

"DARE uses state-of-the-art prevention techniques," he said. "DARE was sort of the key that unlocked the door for law enforcement. Because while we had been invited in before it was on a hit-or-

They get so much of it they're not going to stop.'

DARE officer*

miss basis. And correctly so, because we didn't have any tools to work with."

That is no longer the case, as one day spent with Hernandez reveals. On a recent Thursday, he parked his marked police car outside Andersonville Elementary School just in time to have lunch with fifth-graders.

In the hallway, Hernandez was quickly surrounded by students. "Have lunch with us," one group of girls begged. After learning where they would be sitting, Hernandez got his lunch while the girls got in the cafeteria line.

During lunch he chatted with the kids about what was in his lunch bag. They wanted to know how old his children are (19 and 9). Then the kids went to recess while Hernandez prepared for his lesson.

Reunited back in the fifth-grade classroom of Russ Samuel a short time later, Hernandez got down to business. Each student pulled out his or her DARE workbook as Hernandez reviewed what they'd learned the previous week—the definition of drugs and substance abuse.

Then he showed them an animated film about "The Land of Decisions and Choices." Though it was a cartoon, it dealt with serious topics and showed children helping each other resist the temptation to try cigarettes, alcohol and other drugs. The kids were riveted.

The message of the film was "Drugs don't have any power over you, unless you let them. Oh yeah; and they're illegal too." It was clear by the questions afterwards that the kids had been paying attention.

What's crystal? What did they mean about glue? Why do people sell drugs? Hernandez, 39, didn't shrink from the questions. Rather he answered each confidently and in a way the kids seemed able to understand. It's what he loves about the job.

"It was a job you knew you'd get to work with kids," the 14-year veteran officer said. "It's a good job. I like being in the school. In general the kids like it when you're there. The teachers love it; it's a resource for them."

Hernandez teaches in each fifth-grade class once a week for 17 weeks. He'll visit half of Clarkston's elementary schools this semester, and, if the funding is available, he'll visit the other half second semester. He has other programs for the middle-school and high-school levels.

Hernandez's salary is currently being paid for by the Clarkston school district. Previously it had been split 50-50 between the schools and the township. But a request for an increase in the police millage failed in August, resulting in the township cutting its DARE funding. The question will be back on the ballot in November.

Materials and training are provided by the Michigan State Police under federal drug-free grant money. MSP also provides field assessments of the 430 active DARE officers in the state, as well as troubleshooting.

"I'm not on road patrol right now; I'm strictly in the schools," Hernandez said. "It's a full day. Sometimes you don't have enough time to do everything."

And sometimes you have to deal with really tough questions. That's why Hernandez maintains a DARE box for anonymous questions. Sometimes he has to do one-on-one intervention.

"Sometimes you get some serious questions in there," he said. "If you do, I make sure it gets followed up."

The bottom line is the children learn to be comfortable with a police officer. They learn he's human, not just a uniform; that he's a safe person they can turn to when they are confronted with tough choices. And along the way they learn that drugs can hurt them and that they can be drug free.

And how did he answer the questions the kids asked at the top of this story?

A) As for killing all drug dealers: "That's kind of drastic. What we're going to learn in here is we're going to stay away from him."

B) As for drugs making you feel good, Hernandez asked the kids if they'd ever seen anyone with a hangover. They knew exactly what he meant.

"You may lie to your parents but your body is not going to lie to you," he said. "Your body is going to react when you put a substance in it."

In future weeks, articles will discuss the DARE program at the high school and middle schools

Life is sew challenging

BY EILEEN OXLEY
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Some might say Debbie Marshall is a real stitch. The 36-year-old Clarkston woman recently won a blue ribbon at the Michigan State Fair for a cross-stitched baby quilt featuring a rabbit, a bear, a cat and a duck.

It's no surprise that she chose that project. Debbie, who is learning-disabled, works for Independence Township's parks and recreation department. Part of her week involves working at the senior center, but she also holds a part-time job at Gingellville's Early Childhood Center where she interacts with toddlers.

"I like the little kids a lot," said Debbie. "And I like the senior center, they're so friendly there."

And Gingellville Early Childhood Center director Donna Davis-Daisley says the center is glad to have her.

"She's been here almost a year-and-a-half. She's very nurturing and caring with the very young children. She does a great job and she's very dependable," said Davis-Daisley.

Debbie says she loves the little kids. And they seem to love her.

"One of the little girls [at the Childhood Center] just loves me to death. Her name is Megan ... And Ryan — he gives me hugs every morning; he's so cute. The 2-year-olds — they're a handful," laughed Debbie, her eyes shining.

It hasn't always been easy for Debbie, who describes herself as "a preemie and a slow learner" who was in special education classes throughout her years in Pontiac's public school system.

"When I was a baby, they (doctors) said I would never walk or talk or drive a car.

"But look at me now. I walk, I talk, I gab all the time," she said with another laugh.

The doctors Debbie speaks of were a team of medical specialists from Ann Arbor who her mother Dorothy Marshall says "angered her" when she tried to find out what was wrong with her quiet 5-year-old.

"[Debbie] was just very, very small. She developed very slowly physically. My husband John and I took her to a number of doctors who said it would take time and a lot of care.

"The Ann Arbor doctors told me that she would sit in a swing and swing the rest of her life," Dorothy said.

But Debbie's parents would not accept their prognosis.

"I said 'Absolutely not, I'm going to take her home and see what I can do.' I was so upset and angry I left," she said.

The Marshalls worked with their daughter constantly. And they never treated her any differently than Debbie's two brothers, Danny and Wayne, who have no disabilities.

"I think people don't understand how important that is. You have to live in the real world," said Dorothy. "Debbie's always gone everywhere with us."

Debbie agrees she owes much of that success to her parents, who refused to give up.

"My parents really encouraged me. My mother said, 'Debbie, you're going to walk and talk. I guess one day I just learned how to walk ... And Dad got me a 'Hooked on Phonics' program.

"I came up in my life — I sure did."

Not only did she learn to walk and talk, but Debbie's stubborn spirit kept her going further. She would let nothing stop her.

When she broke her leg severely in high school and couldn't graduate when her classmates did, she finished twelfth grade the following year. Then she worked for the gas company, "opening envelopes and stuff," said Dorothy.

Debbie says she enjoys reading, swimming and playing softball on a league in Clarkston. And she gets up "at 6:15 every morning" for work.

She owes her sewing skills to her grandmother, May Reynolds, who taught her how to work the laborious cross-stitch.

Soon she was so accomplished at the craft, one

Day for remembering forgotten by many

BY ANNETTE KINGSBURY
Clarkston News Editor

Vietnam veteran Phillip Mudge searched all the local papers Friday, looking for some mention of the fact that it was National Pow/MIA Recognition Day in the US.

Instead he found a big, page 3 article in the Detroit Free Press headlined, "Ho Chi Minh: A hero for all times."

Ho Chi Minh was the leader of North Vietnam during the Vietnam War. The irony was not lost on Mudge.

"It's actually a slap in the face of all the relatives of all the victims," he said, sounding at once angry and a bit perplexed. "They forgot national POW/MIA Day and put in a large article about Ho. I don't think anybody I know gives a hoot about Ho Chi Minh."

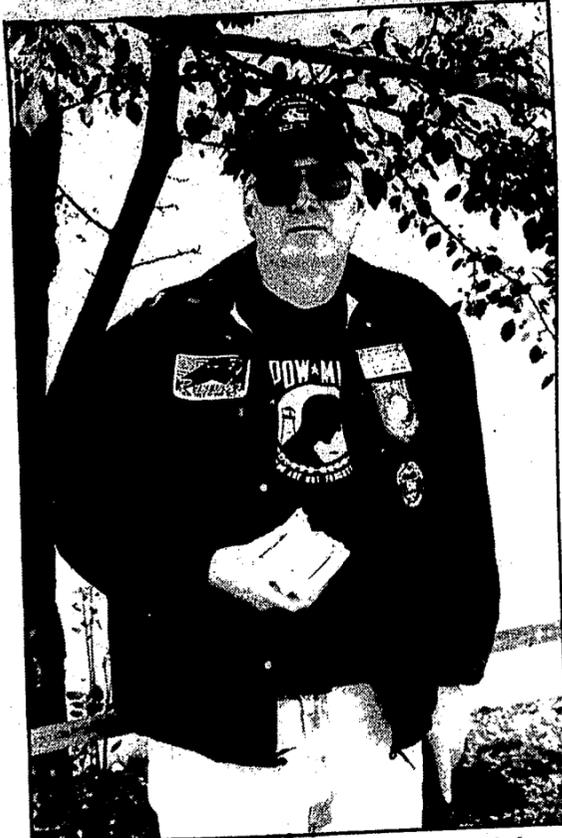

Earlier in the day, Mudge had walked up and down Main Street in Clarkston passing out stickers commemorating the day. Using a cane because of injuries he received during the war, he said he can't march in parades so he tries to get people to remember those who didn't come home as best he can.

The latest figures indicate 2,229 soldiers have never come home from Vietnam, including one from Clarkston, James Devrin Carter. In all, 92,528 servicepeople are still considered missing since World War I, most of them from World War II.

As committee chair for POW/MIA affairs for Oakland County Vietnam Veterans of America Chapter 133, Mudge, of Clarkston, is frustrated there is so little recognition of the plight of his fellow servicepeople. The VVA can't even convince the post office to issue a stamp in their honor.

"They've made stamps on everything but your brother," Mudge said. "They're kind of stuffing the families off."

So the VVA keeps the memory alive in small ways. Last year the local chapter replaced the black POW/MIA flag that had been stolen outside the Independence Township Hall. This year the same design, which came into use after the Vietnam War but is now used to symbolize POW/MIA of all wars, was passed out on stickers. On the back of the stickers is a hotline where families can call for the latest information (202-659-0133).

"Today is the day set aside in our busy schedule to think of those who didn't come back," Mudge said as he paused from his walk. "Ironically, it may be the day we invade Haiti."

As a veteran injured in the line of duty, Mudge has an intensely personal take on US involvement in other countries' affairs. While hoping there wouldn't be any killed or missing soldiers resulting from US involvement in Haiti, he said he was against going in.

"I think there are other ways of doing that," he said. Remembering the sight of a dead US serviceman being dragged through the streets of Somalia, he said, "We tried to feed the people in Somalia and look what they did... I think we should help the Haitian people, but I think there are other ways."

Marking 40 years

Robert F. and Melva (Swartz) Taylor of Independence Township recently celebrated their 40th wedding anniversary at Casa Lupita's Restaurant in Troy.

Joining in the celebration were their children, Mark of Royal Oak, Maria Taylor Keck of Howell, Matthew (Eileen) Taylor of Oxford and Michael Taylor of Independence Township, as well as grandson Nathaniel T. Keck.

The Taylors were married at St. James Catholic Church in Ferndale Aug. 28, 1954.

The word conversation comes from two Latin terms, servare, which means "to keep" or "to guard" and con, which means "together."

Tiptoe through the cow pies

I guess the first thing I would like to say to all you readers or glancers out there is simply "Hi—it's nice to meet you."

Though I'm not a Clarkston resident, it doesn't really matter, because we all share certain experiences. I hope to be able to spend some time with you, once in awhile, reflecting on those things in life that touch me and, in turn, may touch you.

Perhaps something I say will bring a smile, a tear or a question. And, occasionally it may invite disagreement.

I'm telling you right now, that's OK. Because, everyone knows this is a column — an opinion, a point-of view — and not a story.

First, I'd like to briefly tell you a little about myself and my background. I guess "home town" is something we can all relate to, so that's a good place to begin.

I am a Holland, Michigan native who moved to this area in the early '70s after the Vietnam War. My father was a music professor at Hope College and my mom had been a ballet, tap and character dancer at the Edgewater Beach Hotel in Chicago where she met my dad, part of a singing quartet, in the late '30s.

Being Irish in pretty much an all-Dutch community was rough. Everyone used to call us the "Van-Cavanaughs." But it was tolerable.

I got used to having fair—not ruddy—skin and freckles. And when I was a Klompen dancer years later in Tulip Time festivals, I braided my long reddish-brown—not blonde—hair just fine.

Nobody really knew how to pronounce my strange-sounding Celtic name, so I often got "Irene," "Elaine," "Ellen" or "Evelyn."

I changed that for awhile when I got older, returning to the nickname "Miki," my parents had fondly dubbed me as an infant.

At least people were familiar with Mickey Mouse so they didn't have too much trouble with that.

My brother Kevin (also a weird name to Hollanders at that time) and I took advantage of our honorary Dutchness and posed in various boulevards around the city at Tulip Time.

We'd charge 25 or 50 cents to photographers who oohed and aahed as they snapped our pictures—we in stifling multi-layered Dutch costumes. We had a good thing going and, because Kevin was an adorable blond, we had lots of photo sessions and made a bundle.

My mother was responsible for reviving Klompen Dancing, the traditional wooden-shoe dances of the Netherlands, after World War II. Because so many men were in the service, there had not been much of a festival during the war years.

Eventually, by the time I reached high school, there were about 500 girls from Holland's three high schools who participated. We began practicing right after Christmas and had to wear as many as five pairs of socks with our wooden shoes to prevent blisters.

I really enjoyed the dancing which I guess you

Letters to the editor

A good man

Dear editor:

Too many times these days people can only find fault in other people. I want to write and tell your community about a person who works there who is an asset to Clarkston and the folks who live there.

My husband of almost 40 years and I moved away from Clarkston in April of this year after living there for 29 years. He retired after 33 years on the Oakland County Sheriff's Department. We built a new home near Beaverton.

I had the misfortune of losing my husband a month ago. We buried him at Lakeview Cemetery where his father and grandparents are buried. In doing this our family met the caretaker there. His name is Chuck. I don't know his last name. He has always spoken to our family when we have been there and he has seen us.

He does an excellent job taking care of the cemetery. In the old part where my husband's grandparents are buried it looks as nice as the new part. The lawn has always been mowed and there are always water jugs at the water faucets. There are no dead flowers left on the graves.

You can be proud of the cemetery in your town, and the fact that you're lucky to have someone work for the cemetery who cares.

Sincerely,
Carol Hubble

Seeks backers

To the editor,

I am writing to seek benefactor support for a project for the HAVEN. The HAVEN is a domestic violence and sexual assault center in Pontiac.

Over the past two years, I have painted some watercolors that I would like to donate. I have experienced similar experiences as the women who seek help from the HAVEN. These experiences are the subjects of my paintings.

I am looking to get help to get the paintings framed. A tax deduction would be in order.

If anyone is interested in helping me, please contact me after 5 p.m. at 620-8755.

Thank you,

Jim's Jottings

Rocked by the Stones

When the Rolling Stones were at the Silverdome in 1989, Jack Magee took some friends to see them. When describing their experience to Hazel and me he saw we had a real interest.

Jack remembered our look, so when the Rolling Stones returned to Michigan and Spartan Stadium Sept 9 he invited us to go.

Jack, who owns Oxford Barber Shop in Oxford, has a connection to the Stones. His brother, Chooch, has worked for them (particularly Ron Wood) since 1975. When Chooch was in Oxford High School he worked for Hazel and me at The Leader.

Another note about Chooch. He showed us a letter from Governor Engler welcoming "Chuck" Magee to Spartan Stadium. Then came another letter apologizing for the "Chuck." Engler said it was spelled right in his notes, but his aide wanted to "correct" the spelling.

(You can find my major Stones story elsewhere in this paper.)

I'd guess the Stones left Michigan with upwards of $3 million. Seats were $25 to $50. Souvenir sales average $10 per person. There were 58,000 constantly standing fans. I've concluded rock and roll music cannot be enjoyed (wrong word) appreciated (wrong word again) followed while seated.

Actually we did enjoy and appreciate the Stones' spectacular. We were warned of the loudness, and started with earplugs in place. But once in a while we'd take them out to check if the sound barrier was still being cracked. It was.

We weren't aware of the energy and showmanship displayed by these artist-actor-musicians. It's no wonder all the Stones are so thin. They are in constant motion on a 220-foot wide stage.

Chooch, whose title is Back Line Crew Chief, gave us the backstage tour prior to the show. There are millions of buttons for sound blending individual instruments so each player can hear his own music, and millions more buttons to blend all the instruments for the audience.

Computer technology is big stuff at a Stones concert.

Chooch introduced us to all the Stones except Mick Jagger. Jagger walked into the Voodoo Lounge tent and seemed to be checking if refreshments, etc were correct, but looked straight ahead coming and going.

Wood, Richards and Watts gave us their, "Nice to meetcha's," and shook hands, smiling warmly. This Voodoo Lounge tour takes them across the U.S., this fall to Mexico and South America, then there's a month off before going to Japan, Australia, etc.

Working for the the Stones gives Chooch little chance to get to his home in Marquette, which he dearly loves.

But, like the saying goes, 'It's a dirty job, but someone's got to do it,' and Chooch loves working with the Stones, too.

He says the Stones are "just real nice" and "compassionate" people. "They look after me and are friends as well as employers."

I didn't ask him if he wore earplugs.

A look back

15 YEARS AGO (1979)

There are no serious injuries when a Clarkston school bus is struck in the rear Monday afternoon while dropping off some children. All five passengers and bus driver Shawlene Ladd are uninjured. The car's driver, Patricia Morrow of Independence Township, is treated for minor injuries at the scene by Fleet Ambulance attendants.

A three-year teacher contract giving teachers immediate raises of eight and 10 percent is ratified by the Clarkston Education Association and the Clarkston Board of Education. The agreement ends a three-day strike which took place from Sept. 4-6.

A fall series of marching band contests is set for the Clarkston High School Marching Band. The 90-member corps-style group will participate in six competitions as well as march and play at varsity football games this fall.

25 YEARS AGO (1969)

In the first game of the season, the Clarkston Wolves are defeated by Oxford in a score of 26-14. Coach Paul Rakow says he hopes his team will do better Friday when they meet West Bloomfield's Andover Barons.

Story hour begins at the Clarkston Library on the second and fourth Thursdays of each month. Each child will be asked to contribute 25 cents toward supplies for the year. Sponsored by the Clarkston Women's Club, the special hour is from 10:15 to 11:15 a.m. and is available to all children ages four and five who are village or Independence Township residents.

Six grass fires and one lit by a cigarette keep the Independence Township Fire Department busy for a week. The fire caused by a cigarette does $400 worth of damage to one resident's home.

50 YEARS AGO (1944)

A fire that starts in the barn at McNeil's Roadside Market on Friday afternoon totally destroys the building and its contents, despite the Clarkston Fire Department's attempts to fight the blaze. The contents include two tractors, baskets for the fall trade, six tons of coal and a large amount of potatoes. The loss is only partially covered by insurance.

Great buys at Kroger Super Market this week include tasty Frankenmuth cheese for 34 cents a lb., McIntosh apples, three lbs. for 25 cents, and sirloin steak at 39 cents a lb.

"Two Girls and a Sailor," starring Jimmy Durante and Van Johnson, is playing at the Drayton Theatre and "Buffalo Bill" with Joel McCrea and Maureen O'Hara is at the Holly Theatre.

60 YEARS AGO (1934)

David Richard Teggerdine, retired president of Clarkston State Bank, is laid to rest Sunday after passing away at his home Thursday, Sept. 13.

Florence Ethelyn Fiske of Clarkston enrolls with Moody Bible Institute in Chicago for the fall term. Miss Fiske will take an extended course of training in the Bible and learn methods of Christian work.

The Clarkston High School football team will play Brighton Friday beginning their 1934 season. Brighton, a newcomer to the league this year, has a good record.

Major league baseball owners need some of their own medicine

Let's ploy ball.

Ploy? Sure, as Mike Ilitch and some other baseball team owners do.

Let's get together, every baseball fan in the nation, and threaten to never attend another big league baseball game -- or watch one on TV -- unless the owners promise to play a full season in 1995 and let everyone in free to every game.

Also, Cecil Fielder must be dispatched to my home once a week throughout the summer to mow my lawn.

We'd be bluffing. Our threat would simply be a ploy to pressure major league baseball into giving us what we want. I'm not really that lazy; I don't mind reaching into my pocket and pulling out money to pay a lawn-service company to cut my grass.

You say it would pain your conscience to be so devious and manipulative? And besides, it would be a wasted bluff because the owners couldn't possibly be stupid enough to fall for it?

Yeah, it would be fun to tweak them with a dose of their own strategy.

Remember last June, when Mike Ilitch reneged on his vow to never move the Tigers out of Detroit? He said if he didn't get enough public support (tax-funded infrastructure) to build a new stadium downtown, he would consider taking the team to another city.

And I speculated that Ilitch was bluffing, perhaps because he'd read "Baseball Palace of the World," a book about the last year the Chicago White Sox played in old Comiskey Park. According to author Douglas Bukowski, owner Jerry Reinsdorf's ultimately successful battle to get a new ballpark built in Chicago wasn't easy, and he threatened to move the team to St. Petersburg, Fla.

And after winning the battle, Reinsdorf, in a Rotary Club speech, admitted he never had any intention of moving to St. Petersburg; it was just a threat to pressure politicians. "Until we created the fear we would leave, we wouldn't get a new stadium," Reinsdorf said.

Sure. So, moving right along, a few days ago it was reported that Ilitch's personal attorney and Tiger board member Jay Bielfield said Ilitch had toured the stadium in St. Petersburg with an eye toward moving the Tigers there.

Ho-hum. When St. Petersburg built the Suncoast Dome in 1987, it intended to become the first Florida city with a major league baseball team. It hasn't happened yet. As Time magazine reported a couple of years ago:

"Three times the majors took St. Pete to the altar, and three times the town was jilted; first with the Chicago White Sox, then with a prospective expansion team that went to Miami, then with the Seattle Mariners. Says local booster Jack Critchfield:

"We've been used as a nuclear threat to other communities to make them give teams whatever they want."

One thing can be said about Mike Ilitch and his efforts to get whatever he wants for the Tigers: He isn't original.

Right now I'm so disenchanted with major league baseball, I wouldn't care if they moved the entire operation to Russia. I don't want to see the Tigers play in the old stadium or in a new one. I think all the team owners must be taking advice from the same public relations wizards who, a few years ago, advised the Tigers the public wouldn't much care if Ernie Harwell were fired.

But, for those of you who still care, relax. There is no way in hell the other greedy team owners would allow Ilitch to desert Detroit, the nation's seventh-largest television market, in favor of St. Petersburg.

It will happen the day after Cecil Fielder mows my lawn.

Don't Rush Me

By Don Rush

Back to a simpler time

Driving south down I-75 it was slow, hot and aggravating. Traffic moved like it always does on a late summer Sunday afternoon. It crawls.

And the drivers . . . there's always somebody who thinks he (it is always a he -- usually in an expensive car) has been given the divine right to weave in and out and get home 10 minutes faster than everyone else.

I had a lot of time to daydream. I thought back to a simpler time. Back in the late 60s. A time when I could sit in the driver's seat and drive, relaxed. It always seemed cooler then. There was no such thing as Global Warming.

Of course back in the late 60s, I was about five years old and I was in the basement. One of the old basement couches we had was my car. I'd take the cushions and build the driver's seat. One cushion behind me, one on top, resting on the back cushion and the back of the couch. To the left, an orange Hot Wheels track, stuck where loose change goes, was the shifter.

I'd sit, shift and drive. I'd drive to Grandma's house. To the park. Or sometimes I'd just point the front of the car and drive to wherever the road would lead me.

In the daytime the basement was a getaway. A place where my imagination would run wild. The trusty, multi-useful Hot Wheels track would magically become my sword.

"Ha!"

Whack! "Take that!"

And I'd whack at the cold, metal support pole again. Bad guys be damned! Sir Rushalot and his orange blade are back in town. Whack!

Then I'd run and jump into the pile of clothes that had come down the bathroom clothes shoot.

That basement was a nifty place. There was a toy box down there. A place to draw and color. It was a neat place to be . . . in the daytime.

At night, gulp, I didn't like it.

The door to the basement was right next to the door to my bedroom and at night, in bed, I'd cringe at the thought of that door being open. What evil lurked in the dark, damp crypt I didn't know. Never did I want to risk finding out.

Heck, I even made sure when I fell asleep all my limbs were under the covers and squarely on the bed. I slept in the middle of the mattress and wouldn't venture from there.

The light switch was too far away -- next to the door that was next to the door that led down into the basement. I'd just say my prayers and hope for the best. Hope for dawn to come and come quickly.

And there was a big picture window in my room that looked out into the backyard. I don't remember there being curtains on that window. My bed was on the opposite side of the room; when I laid my head down on the pillow I could look straight out into the darkness of the yard.

I could have looked out into the blackness of the backyard had I opened my eyes. I wouldn't do that. I kept them locked closed. I had a dream (I think) once that I awoke and saw somebody looking back at me. It must have been a moonlit night because the face glowed a ghastly white as it peered back at me.

To this day I don't like windows at night. Windows need curtains and the curtains need to be closed when the sun goes down. I get goose-bumps just thinking that somebody may be watching me as I sleep. When I get up at night now I steer away from windows, do my business, get right back in bed, and close my eyes.

It's funny when you think back to the imaginative days of youth, then look back to the present and see some things haven't changed.

I just wish I-75 traffic, on a late summer Sunday afternoon wouldn't have changed either.

Ask the therapist Teens and sex tapes

Stan Garwood, MA, MSW

Dear Mr. Garwood:

Recently I cleaned out my children's rooms and found an "adult" videotape in a box in one of the closets. My 13-year-old son resides with me part-time (I have joint custody with my ex-husband) and I'm assuming he got the tape from one of his friend's father's collections since it appears to be catalogued.

How do I handle this? My friend told me "this is the video age," indicating this is probably a normal part of growing up, similar to young teenage boys sneaking their father's Playboy Magazines in my generation. On the one hand, I want to respect my son's privacy, but on the other hand, I want to protect him by confronting him and telling him either it's wrong to look at women this way, or "I don't want this in my house."

I feel he's awfully young to be watching X-rated movies and I'm afraid he might have friends, many who are younger, over for a "mini-stag party" when I'm at work. I'm also afraid if I allow this by not speaking to him about it, I will be encouraging this behavior. Help!

Signed,
Perplexed Mom

Dear Perplexed Mom:

There are two things to consider in dealing with this issue: One, how well prepared is your son to handle the typical environmental influences and normal developmental factors; and two, has he been sensitized to the rights and feelings of others, especially women.

Your son encounters, on a routine basis, sexually explicit information. Just turn on the soaps! Rent a movie or pick up a magazine! Hopefully, he is aware of how sex is used in advertising, the destructive nature of it. Does he possess a mature outlook or insight here?

Does your son know the difference between genuine love/caring and what is portrayed in these videos? Is he aware of what a small part the sexual act plays when compared to the numerous ingredients comprising a healthy relationship? Can he understand the degrading nature to women this type of media portrays?

As a mother, you cannot change natural, normal sexual development in your son, but you can and should prepare him for the influences he will encounter in life. Ultimately, he has to decide the small things and, as he approaches adulthood, the large ones.

You are not condoning the viewing of this material or pornography by taking no action. For all practical purposes, you do not even know he has this tape in his possession, and you certainly do not want your son to feel his privacy is being invaded, thereby diminishing the trust inherent in your relationship. That is, if he suspects you rifle through his room periodically, your son could possibly perceive a breakdown in your confidence in him and his ability to make good decisions.

In his formative years, you and Dad taught him certain values which serve as the basis for his present decision-making. By critiquing the results of his decisions as represented by articles found in his room, you are saying, "I don't trust you" as well as questioning all the values he has learned at your hands.

I hope this offers some insight and direction in dealing with this question.

Send Stan Garwood your questions at 5854 S. Main St., Clarkston, MI 48346.

Ei-liners From 6A

could compare to folk and square dancing combined. The people just loved us and would stand on street corners grinning and swaying as we kicked and puffed through a series of three dances.

I only had a couple of bad experiences during those three years I klomped. Once, during a sequence of passionate kicking, I guess I was trying to see if I could connect my foot with my forehead.

My right shoe flew off and sailed over the happy crowd, luckily injuring no one. I was fortunate, because all Hollanders know those things can be lethal.

Another time, after I had made the top performing group of Klompen Dancers in twelfth grade, the other 11 members and myself danced at some festival in small-town Canada.

That was kind of a bummer. Previous exhibition groups over the years had performed in exciting areas of the country like Chicago and the Carolinas.

The day started out badly enough, with a tiny parade featuring us, some amateur motorcyclists who attempted to do dare-devil stunts and constantly hit the curb, some Scottish bagpipers who played off key and a few baton twirlers from the local little-majorette "school" who missed nearly every catch.

Then it started to rain — harder and harder.

Our dance performance took place at what we would call in Michigan a county fair, but, being in Canada, I guess you'd have to call it a province fair.

Anyway, we took our places in front of the judges, right after a herd of prize-winning cows had plodded by.

It doesn't leave much to your imagination, does it?

As we kicked mud and cow pies high, and the rain fizzled the starch out of our newly-pressed costumes, there was nothing to do but laugh.

I think a couple of us slipped and fell in the mud-cow pie combination as well.

Looking back to those days in Holland as Eileen (Van) Cavanaugh, I have fond memories — cow pies and all.

Employment among women is up

So far in 1994, the average unemployment rate among women of 6.3 percent is at its lowest level since 1969, according to the Michigan Employment Security Commission (MESC).

In a recently-released report on female employment trends, the MESC reports that over the last two years, joblessness among women has been substantially reduced. In fact, the 6.3 percent growth in female jobholders that occurred between 1991 and 1993 surpassed the 5.5 percent rise in total employment.

"These trends show that the labor market situation for women in Michigan has improved markedly in the past few years," said F. Robert Edwards, director of the MESC.

Another trend pointed out in the report on female employment is that it has become increasingly full-time in the 1990s. In fact, the part-time female work force has shown a decline over the last five years. In a comparison of 1989 and 1993, the number of women holding part-time jobs has decreased from 621,000 to 599,000. As a result, the proportion of female employment that is full-time has expanded from about 67 to 70 percent.

"One encouraging trend that we have found is that the area which has grown the fastest with female workers so far in the '90s has been executive and managerial positions," said Edwards.

MESC says that one reason for this trend is linked to the service industries, which have a large concentration of female workers. Because of the overall expansion in these industries, the employment of women in managerial positions has increased even though management hiring in other sectors has been weak.

The weakest female employment trends, comparing 1989 and 1993, were in sales and factory employment. This is mostly due to the restructuring of retailing and the impact of the recession on factory employment.

Stones'

By James A. Sherman

Keep in mind I favor Tennessee Ernie Ford cassettes and Perry Como concerts.

When I told our 30-something daughter Susan that her mother and I were going to see the Rolling Stones she said, "Good, they're about your age."

After meeting all except Mick Jagger, I say, "Yeah, but we look younger."

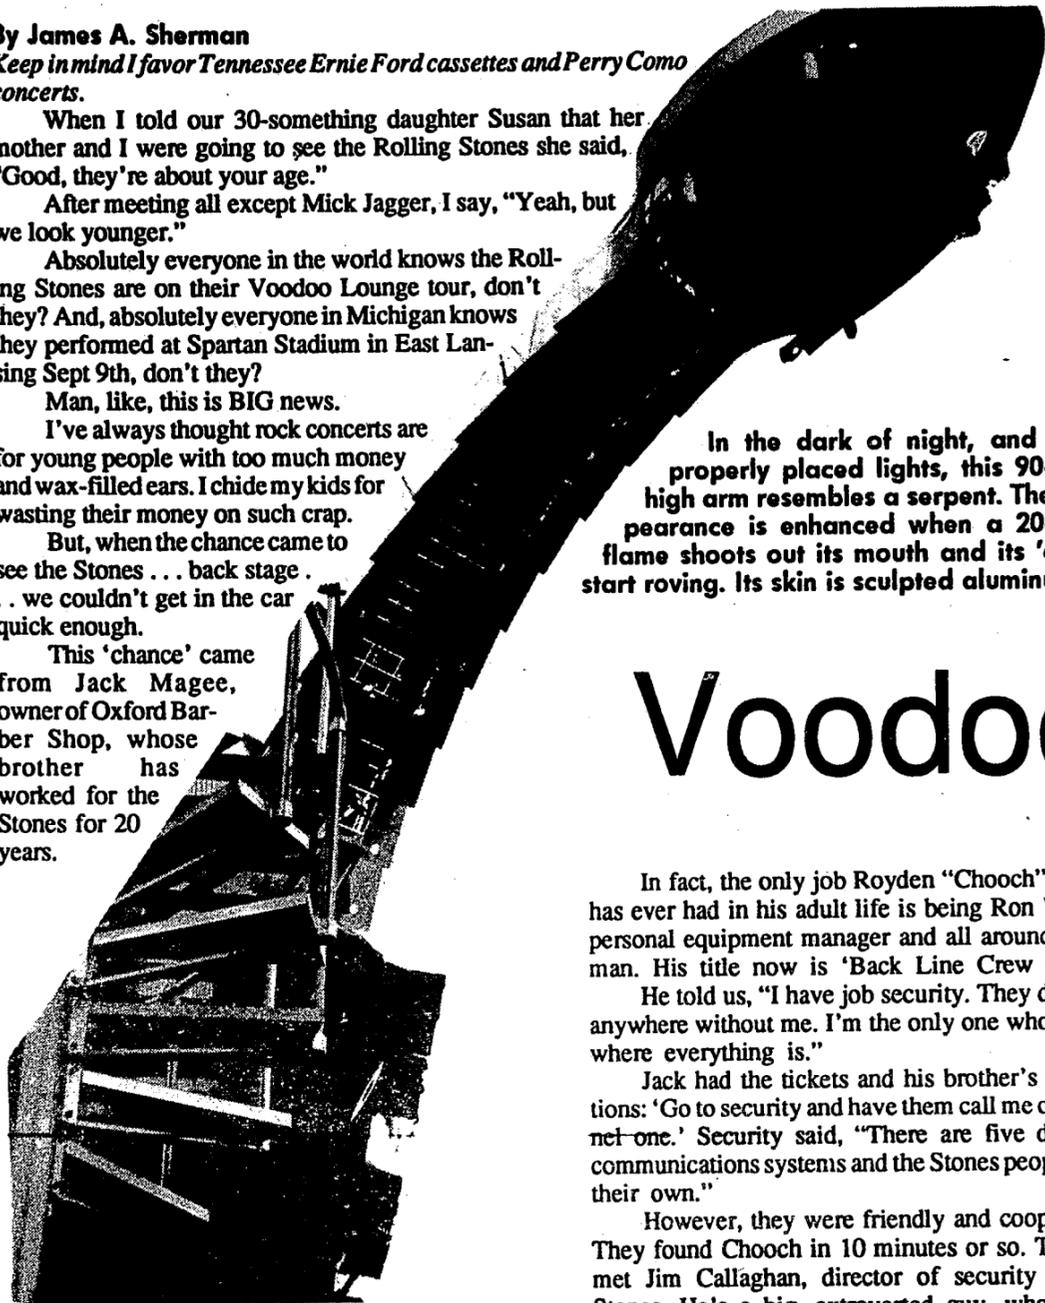

Absolutely everyone in the world knows the Rolling Stones are on their Voodoo Lounge tour, don't they? And, absolutely everyone in Michigan knows they performed at Spartan Stadium in East Lansing Sept 9th, don't they?

Man, like, this is BIG news.

I've always thought rock concerts are for young people with too much money and wax-filled ears. I chide my kids for wasting their money on such crap.

But, when the chance came to see the Stones . . . back stage . . . we couldn't get in the car quick enough.

This 'chance' came from Jack Magee, owner of Oxford Barber Shop, whose brother has worked for the Stones for 20 years.

In the dark of night, and with properly placed lights, this 90-foot high arm resembles a serpent. The appearance is enhanced when a 20-foot flame shoots out its mouth and its 'eyes' start roving. Its skin is sculpted aluminum.

Voodoo Lounge

In fact, the only job Royden "Chooch" Magee has ever had in his adult life is being Ron Wood's personal equipment manager and all around handy man. His title now is 'Back Line Crew Chief.'

He told us, "I have job security. They don't go anywhere without me. I'm the only one who knows where everything is."

Jack had the tickets and his brother's instructions: 'Go to security and have them call me on channel one.' Security said, "There are five different communications systems and the Stones people have their own."

However, they were friendly and cooperative. They found Chooch in 10 minutes or so. Then we met Jim Callaghan, director of security for the Stones. He's a big, extroverted guy, who before getting this job, was a bodyguard to the Pope. Talk about job contrasts.

Besides the Stones' security, of which there are many, there were hundreds of rent-a-cops on the scene. No one went inside the large black plastic covered chain link fence outside the north end of the stadium without passes.

Chooch gave us the grande backstage tour. It's mind boggling the amount of stuff that travels with the Stones. There's a cooking tent, Voodoo Lounge tent and VIP tent. There are dressing room trailers, and trailers for rehearsal, make up and personal relief, and I don't mean port-a-potty style.

The Stones' stage is . . . before I forget, keep in mind that whatever was set up in East Lansing for this concert is done in triplicate. A like facility was being set up in Chicago for the following night, and another one in another city.

The Stones' stage was across the north end, coming to about the 10 yard line. It's 220 feet wide, 92 feet high, uses 170 tons of steel and aluminum and has a sloping floor about five feet above the ground.

Chooch says it takes 4 days to set up, but from the time the show ends to the time all this staging is into the 72 semi trucks is three and a half hours.

It takes him and his crews 52 minutes to dismantle all the sound equipment, pack them in trunks and get them on a truck. They finished an MTV show in New York City at 11:30 Thursday night and had the equipment on an airplane at 2:30 a.m. Chooch got about 2 hours sleep that night, but said other workers got no sleep.

Under and behind the stage is a maze of wires and framing. All electric power for the Stones' concerts is supplied by three of their own generator trucks. The power is all DC, leaving no risk for bad-weather problems. "Boston was a really stormy night," Chooch said, "as about 80 percent seem to be."

All the microphones are wireless and cost about $8,000 each, he said.

Chooch said there are about 80 people - truck drivers, steel crew members and engineers on staff. Then when they get to a town like Lansing they call union headquarters and hire some 180 more.

Seeing we were semi-totally confused, Chooch took us back to the Voodoo Lounge tent. Next door is the VIP tent, where the stars meet and greet. There're local dignitaries, Budweiser representatives (the beer company is a tour sponsor) and well wishers to be stroked.

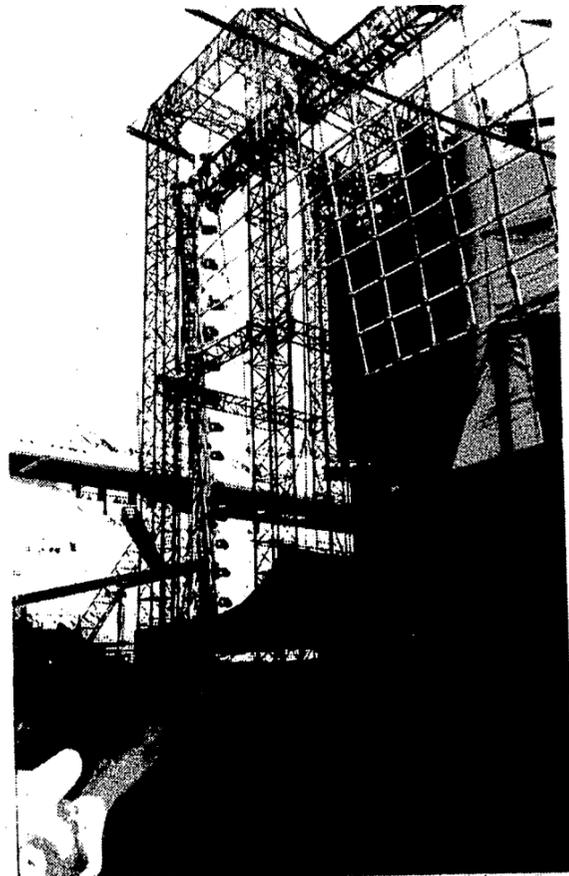

The Lounge tent is for Stones' folks and Stones. Mick Jagger walked through, appearing to be checking to see that everything was properly supplied.

Chooch introduced us to Ron Wood, Keith Richards and Charlie Watts . . . Wow! Are they skinny. And wrinkled a-face.

The Lounge has five video machines, a snooker table and overstuffed furniture in a corner sitting by a large tv.

A special, very nice program is supplied to Lounge visitors. It shows the staff includes 13 catering crews, 9 sound crews, 8 carpenters, 4 chefs, 1

Chooch explains the use of some of the 170 tons of steel and aluminum required for staging the Stones' Voodoo Lounge. Every cross has a computer operated light. The framework also holds the inflatable figures, pyrotechnics, more lights and two sound systems about 40-feet high and 2 feet wide.

Rocks

Chooch Magee asked his brother, Jack-the-barber, to bring his tools 'cause some crew members wanted a haircut. Jim Callaghan, Rolling Stones' security director, gets trimmed outside the Voodoo Lounge with spotlights from the trailer-rest room.

dessert queen and dietician, 6 pyrotechnical crews and assorted other people.

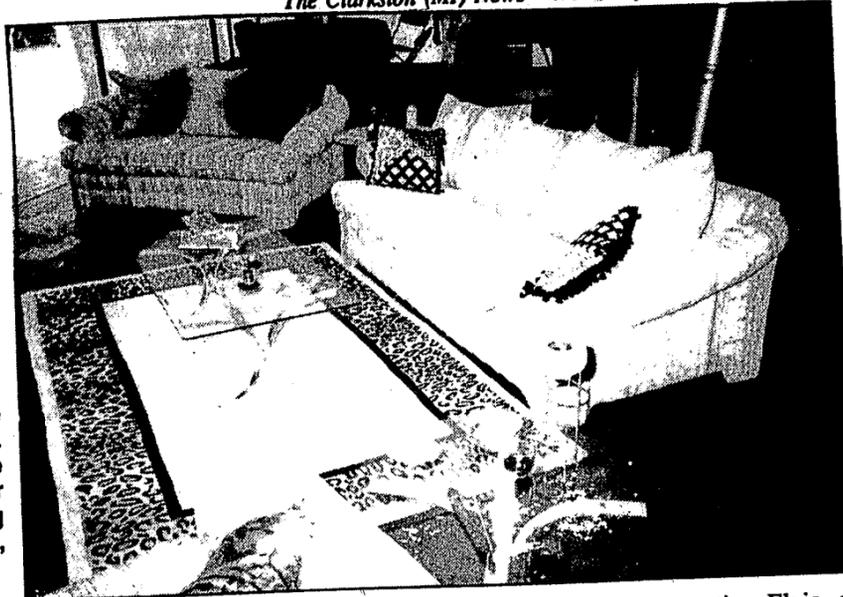

The buffet included marinated lamb chops, chicken breast, swordfish, zucchini, potatoes, salad, numerous desserts and Shepard's pie. Keith Richards loves Shepard's pie.

The warm-up band was on from 8 to 8:45 p.m. It was 9:40 when the Stones' show started. Everyone, all 58,000 was standing and waving arms. The standing, daughter Susan says, is what you do at concerts.

The stadium lights are doused. Spotlights circle. If there were a trademark to this show it would be the 92-foot arm in a quarter circle over the stage. Just before the artists appear a 20-foot flame shoots out the end of this cobra-looking arm. The 'cobra's' eyes circle and WHAMO, the noise begins... both on stage and in the stands.

Our kids made sure we had ear plugs before we left home and Chooch gave us more during the tour. We put them in and took them out for short periods of time during the non-stop 2-hour show, just to reassure ourselves it was really that loud.

It was!

It's an amazing, though loud, spectacle. At one point 10 inflatable balloons representing Elvis, a cobra, unicorn, clown, 10-armed Buddha and top-hatted man, measuring from 12- to 40-feet high are blown up. Then they move to the music. And just like that, they deflate and are gone.

Jagger is in constant motion, running the 220 feet from side to side while singing. No wonder he's so thin. Everyone on stage is constantly active.

Detroit News Music Critic Susan Whitall wrote the names of the Stones' songs played Friday night. She had to have a written list. There is no way anyone could understand Jagger's introductions.

The program tells how they worked on writing their songs. It must have been tough with "It's Only Rock and Roll, But I Like It" and "I Go Wild." Those are the only words in those two songs.

Wood chain-smokes cigarets on stage, while

Richards has the occasional cigaret. I just thought I'd add that, since smoking is prohibited in Spartan Stadium.

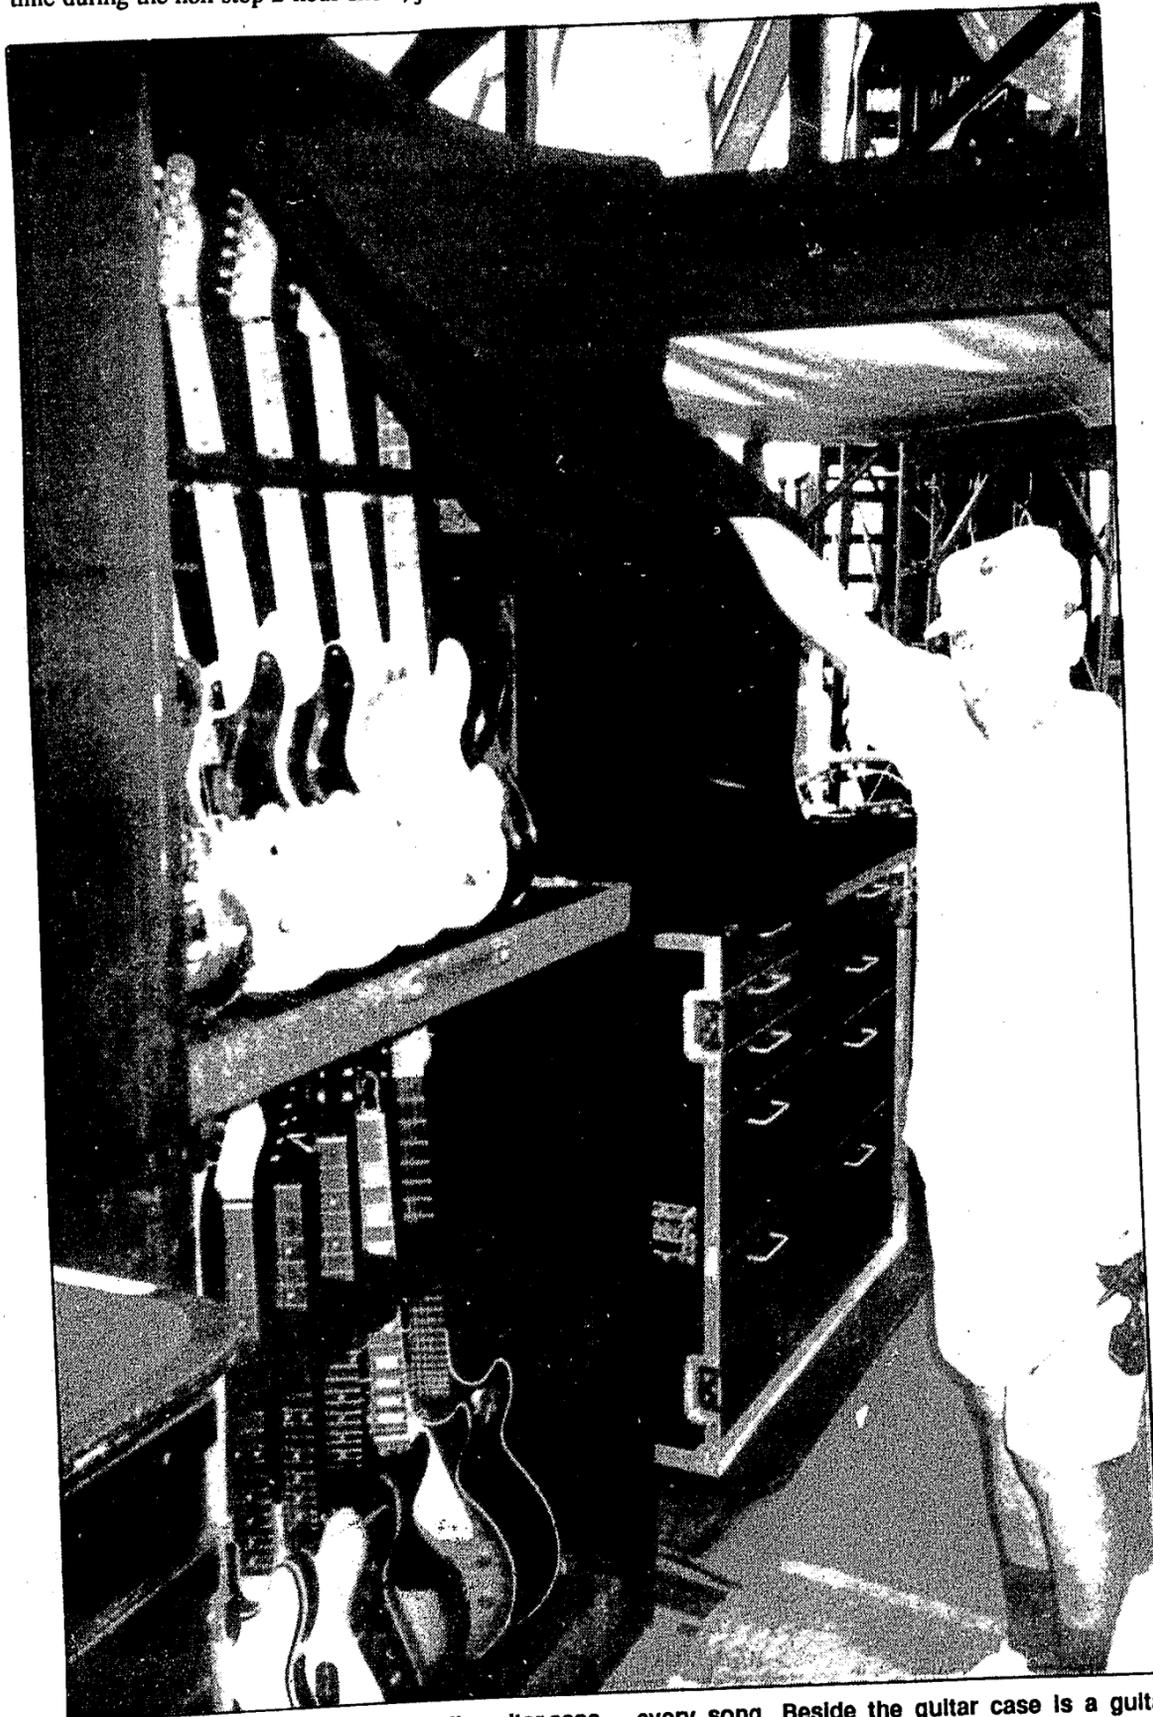

From our position, about 40 rows back from the stage, in one of the hundreds of chairs on the canvas-covered Spartan turf, we saw a well behaved crowd who enjoyed every minute of this exciting, vibrant spectacular.

For just a split second I was so taken up with the mood I thought of trading my ear plugs for an ear ring.

Not!

Chooch Magee shows us Ron Wood's guitar case. One guitar is a Fender Stratocaster. Chooch said in 1955 it sold for $250. The price now is $13,000. Wood and Keith Richards change guitars after every song. Beside the guitar case is a guitar stringing table where Chooch replaces broken strings after every song.

60th anniversary

William and Marion Faff of Clarkston celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary July 2, 1994 at the home of their daughter Joanne (Richard) Miller in Jeromesville, Ohio. The celebration was combined with a family reunion. A noon banquet was held at the new Country Club in Mansfield, Ohio, followed by a trip to the Carousel, where young and old were kids again, if only for a little while. A deck party ended the festivities on July 2. The celebration continued through Sunday, July 3, with the couple being honored at First Assembly of God Church in Mansfield.

Special guests included William's sister Hilda Berg; a nephew, Bill (Marg) from Connecticut; Marion's sister Virginia (John) Keaton from Florida; a son, Michael (Maggie) from White Lake, MI; grandchildren from Ohio, South Carolina, Washington and Michigan; and five great-grandchildren.

William and Marion were married Sept. 15, 1934 at St. John's Church in Royal Oak, by the Rev. Jathoe. The Faffs' children include Michael, Joanne and Sharron (Faff) Weaver of Honokaa, Hawaii. A second son, William David, died in 1943.

The couple has 15 grandchildren and 28 great-grandchildren.

In from the tomato patch

This year's winners in Bordine's Great Tomato Weigh-in claim not to have any secrets in turning out the sizeable supersteaks. First place winner was Michelle Barnett of Lake Orion with a 2.34 pound monster. Her secret? "Just watered it, that's all." She won $100.

Second place went to Zachery Morden, 5, of Holly and Ryan Robertson, 8 of Waterford for their 2.2 pound tomatoes. Each received $50.

Coming in third was Jeff Hoard, 10, of Grand Blanc. He received $25 for his 2.18 pound fruit.

Not all the winners were rookies. Jeff took first place in a previous year, Michelle took a third once before and managed to capture the gold in the last year she could compete, based on her age.

Each year Bordines gives away supersteak tomato plants in the spring to kids up to the age of 12. The kids take the plants home, grow them and bring the fruits back on Labor Day for the weigh-in.

The $40,000 book for teens

BY ANNETTE KINGSBURY
Clarkston News Editor

Putting together the Clarkston High School yearbook is no small undertaking.

Just one yearly edition takes all the efforts of five editors for an entire school year and a budget of $40,000. Some students even attend summer workshops to sharpen their skills. All that for a book students pay around $30 for in the spring, then immediately begin scribbling all over.

But that's as expected. And though their book is considered a fine one, editors Amber Gebrowski and Christy Colbrunn said they want to make it even better this year.

"One of our goals this year is to improve the graphics," Amber said. Both girls attended summer programs. Christy studied computers, editorial design and layout as well as writing at a five-day conference at Herff-Jones, the yearbook's publisher. "I brought back all kinds of information to share with all the staff," she said.

She also came up with the theme of this year's book. It will be called "In the Soup," and will use the letters of the alphabet for graphics. Christy won an award for that idea. This is her first year as editor.

Amber attended a six-day conference at Michigan State University where she studied layout design, leadership and how to be a better editor. This is her second year as editor. She won "best in class" in her workshop.

In all, five editors are responsible for the CHS yearbook, each with her own staff and sections of the book.

"It's a lot of work but yearbook is probably the thing I like best about high school," Amber said. "It's a chance to be creative . . . It's a thing people will remember."

Yearbook is a class for which students receive academic credit. It's taught by Chris Nemisi of the English Department. According to the students it's unlike any other class.

"It's such a close-knit class," Amber said, explaining one reason she likes it so much. But it also has its share of pressure, with deadlines constantly coming and going and students responsible for selling $5,000 worth of advertising to help keep the cost down.

"Sometimes it's scary to go out and sell ads," Christy said. "You have to work with different kinds of people." She said she prefers the design element of the job.

Last week Tony Noto, the school's representative from Herff Jones, visited the yearbook class to present a plaque in honor of five years of collaboration between Herff Jones and CHS.

"They do a big book comparatively," he said of the students' efforts. "They do a nice job journalistically and they stay within budget."

In making his presentation to the class, he said, "We're very, very appreciative of your business and we're going to work harder than ever."

from Los Angeles via Chicago -- in that they use the same symbols and colors.

In the Chicago prisons members of these gangs were not allowed to claim their allegiance. From that they created two 'nations,' Folks and People. These nations are opposed to each other and often clash.

"Think of the Folks and People as nations, and the gangs, like North Side Crips, as a state of their nation," Gibson says.

To determine what nation a gang belongs to look to the symbols of the nation.

"There's a simple correlation to remember," Gibson says, "Bloods are the People, their color is red. The opposite are the Folks, which are Crips. Their color is blue."

Symbolism of the two nations are opposite of each other. The Folks wear their colors, jewelry or hats to the right; conversely, People wear theirs to the left.

In their graffiti, the Folks use the six-pointed Star of David (though there is no religious connection); People use a five-pointed star. If a pitch fork is used, People turn theirs down, Folks have it facing up.

They mark their symbols on their clothing and property, their territory and sometimes themselves.

Next Week: What to look for, from clothing to tattoos.

The Insider

Youth Assistance usage up

BY ANNETTE KINGSBURY
Clarkston News Editor

Call Teresa Blundell an optimist.

While some might say her all-time-high caseload at Clarkston Youth Assistance is bad news, she insists it's good news.

"I've had some people say to me, 'Doesn't that mean things are getting worse?'" Blundell told the annual meeting of Clarkston Youth Assistance Monday at Clarkston United Methodist Church.

"I look at it as people are utilizing our services more," she said. "People are ready to acknowledge their concerns and their problems and they're ready to look outside their own systems for help. Increasing referrals I look at as good news."

Now over 40 years old, Youth Assistance was established by Oakland County Probate Court as a way of dealing with youth before they get into serious trouble and end up in court. Caseworkers are placed in each community by the court. They accept referrals from anyone—parents, police, schools. Funding for Youth Assistance comes from the county and local sources, including local governments and the schools.

Blundell serves the Clarkston School District, which primarily includes youth from Independence and Springfield townships and Clarkston city. Last year she had 117 direct referrals and consulted on 51 other cases, a new record.

Blundell said the types of referrals she is receiving are changing, and that gives her cause for concern. Last year, 14 percent of her referrals were for alcohol and drug problems, 17 percent for retail fraud and other larcenies, eight percent for vandalism, 19 percent for school truancy and incorrigibility, 23 percent for prevention services.

Of those, 55 percent of referrals came from police, 41 percent from schools, 3 percent from parents, and one percent from other sources.

In addition to social workers, Youth Assistance includes a local committee in each community. New officers were sworn in Monday in Clarkston. They are Marian Emery, chairperson; vice chairperson Stan Garwood; secretary Merelyn Mallett; and treasurer Beth Ladd. They will be responsible for local fund-raising and programs.

Oakland County Probate Court Judge Joan Young spoke at Monday's luncheon about the role of Youth Assistance.

"If we can steer (youths) away early and get them the help they need, we know we won't see them as adults (in court) . . . It saves us all a lot of money."

Then she swore in the new officers. In their oath of office, they promised to "put the interests of children paramount in everything you do."

Outgoing chairperson John Lutz said he foresees a lot of work for the committee due to the rising caseload, but said he has enjoyed the 10 years he has worked with Youth Assistance.

"It has been a rewarding inside experience," he said. "I certainly know a lot more about how this organization works."

Get Rudy

A number of people have expressed frustration and anger about the impropriety of having the chairman of the Road Commission for Oakland County representing a developer during a rezoning request before the Independence Township Planning Commission.

But when a Road Commission request for expanded road right-of-way in front of Pine Knob School came before the Clarkston Board of Education, at least one trustee wasn't above suggesting maybe a little clout isn't such a bad thing.

When it became clear during discussion that the board had many questions about the road commission request, the trustee said, "Why don't we hire Rudy Lozano?" The remark brought gales of laughter from those in the know in the room.

No place like home

Former Clarkston school teacher Tony Stachurski, who is now a poet, said recently that after he left the village to teach in "Troy's showcase system" of public schools he realized it couldn't touch Clarkston's.

"Clarkston has a wonderful image. People move out here for two reasons . . . to be with other good families and . . . to hope Clarkston will have an influence on their own children," he said. "The kids out here are smart and well-behaved. Clarkston should count its blessings."

The Insider is a staff-written, humorous look at the stories behind the news.

Heritage Hunt II

By Virginia Block

Labor Day holiday held mixed blessings for us with being able to be a part of a gathering in Lapeer that brought a windfall of family history and records from the Harvey family.

Included are the Arms and Holman ties, while the late Judith Rutherford Harvey had connection to Piatt, Rutherford, Seely and Warner lines.

The Civil War pension application record for George E. Holman, born 25 May 1842, County Middlesex, Ont. He fought in Company G, 7th Inf., of Michigan. Mr. Holman was married first to Sarah J. (Thomas) Hutchins, 6 Oct 1864, at Romeo, Mich. Sarah died on 20 March 1923. Secondly, George married Esther (Perkins) Fullerton on 29 Dec 1924.

From the pension application the documentation reveals that Sarah J. Thomas married George H.

Hutchins on 24 Aug 1859 at Lapeer, and he died in Libby Prison, Richmond, Va., in 1863. He was an Orderly Sgt. of Co. F., First Mich Cav.

From the marriage of George Holman and Sarah Hutchins, there were six children: Lova Etta Holman, who married David J. Herrand; Harriet V., who married Milo M. Stiles; Celia M., who married Frank Groesbeck, and Herbert C., Edward G., and Elmer T. Holman, with no record of who they married. All the children were born between July 1865 and May 1880.

This information was filed with the Dept. of the Interior (Bur. of Pensions) when George Holman signed it 10 March 1915 at the age of 73.

In a general affidavit filed with George states that there is not an existing birth or church record officially and the father's family record (Bible?) was burned in a fire while in the possession of a brother, William Holman.

George states that he was born in Mosey Twp, Middlesex Co., Ont., and his father's name was James Holman, his mother's name was Mary. George lived with his family there until 1856, when in the fall of '56 he moved to the farm of David Allen.

"In July of 1857, I came to Lapeer, Michigan, where I lived with my brother-in-law, Timothy Thomas, until the fall of 1860. I then returned to Mosey Twp. Ont., remaining there until April 1861." Upon returning to Lapeer, George enlisted in the Army Aug. 6, 1861.

It is great to be able to secure any pension applications, but always great to be handed such wonderful family history.

Happy Hunting.

Moving on

Saying goodbye to Clarkston is a difficult thing to do! We're so proud to have raised our family in this community for the past nine years. A million thanks to many of you who have joined me in a high-energy crusade for the children of our community.

There is no better investment of our time and money -- after all, these children are the future of Clarkston and the future of our world!

First a special thank you to all of you who have supported my Discovery Preschool. You truly made a "dream come true" for me and we will always cherish wonderful memories of your children.

Next, thank you to each of our former neighbors. We have been through so much together! We've spanned "anxiously expecting" newborns, toddlers, the big yellow school bus and on to middle school!

Our children have shared everything -- backyards, games, holidays -- even sickness, fights and tears, too. The love and support we gave each other at times of crisis was phenomenal! You helped us through many difficult moments. We will never forget you! I miss the bus stop most of all. The children's smiles and stories each morning got my days off to great starts!

The teachers, staff and volunteers at Pine Knob Elementary gave my children a lasting love of learning. The special efforts you have made will be remembered forever... musicals, programs, plays, art and science days, field trips, Book Buddies, Special Person days. Thank you for touching the lives of my family.

Last, thank you to many people in the community -- church school teachers, Scout leaders, sports coaches, Deer Lake swim instructors and lifeguards, Anne Rose and many years of storytime and summer reading programs, Lynne Conover and many years of Tuning Your Tots to the Seasons and all the staff at Independence Oaks and Indian Springs for fun, family-oriented programs, Anita Evans for violin lessons, tierras and Dr. Chandra, Dr. Calver, Dr. St. Louis and Dr. Krull.

Best of luck to each and every one of you, and we miss you!

of her friends encouraged her to enter the competition at the State Fair.

"I started in the winter and got it finished in August. I had a deadline. At the last minute I said, 'I can't do anything — just needlepoint,'" she laughed.

Debbie met every challenge and eventually her parents encouraged her to get her own apartment. That was seven years ago.

Though her present residence is in Clarkston, an apartment she shares with her cat "Pumpkin," Debbie's first apartment was near Bordine's on Dixie Highway. But she didn't know how to drive.

"My grandma encouraged me. She said [to my mother], 'Dorothy, I don't want her to be like I am.'"

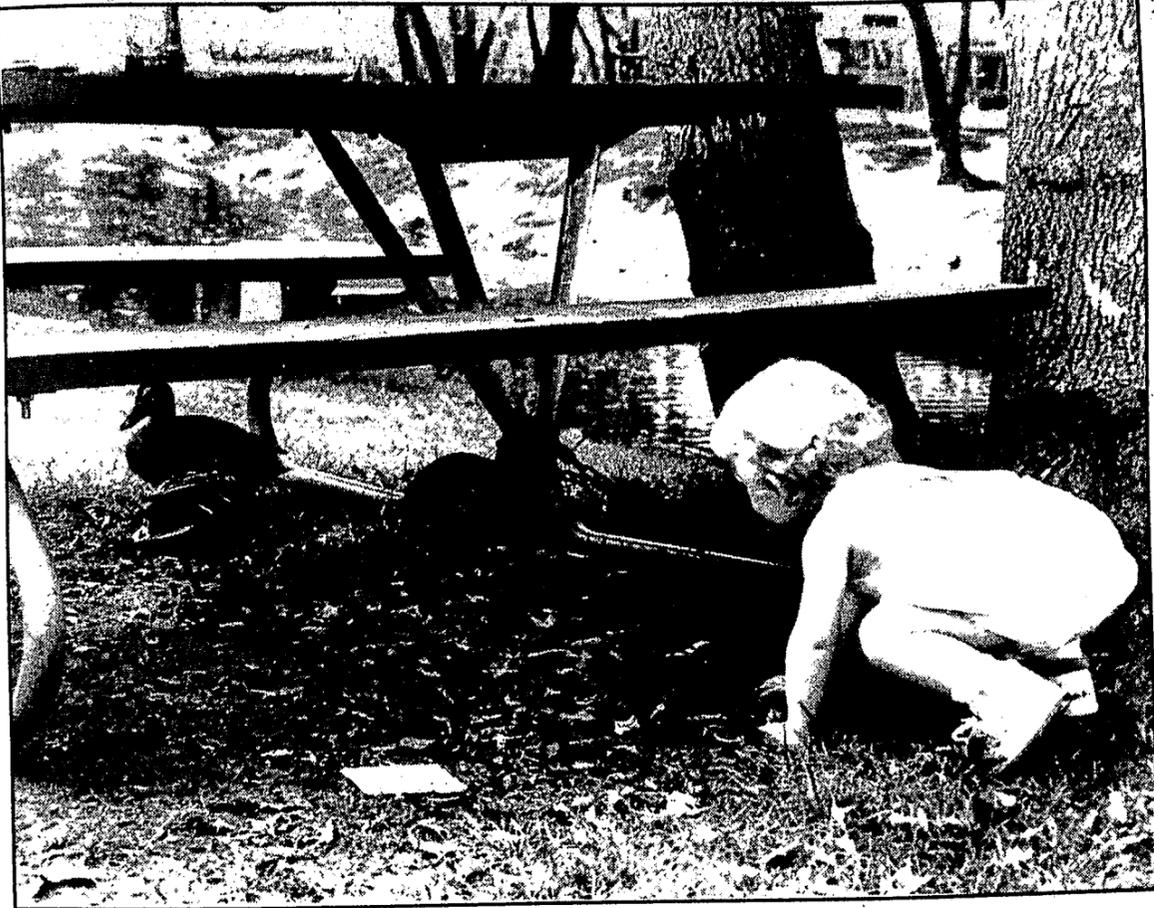

Debbie tackled that challenge too, and soon she passed her driver's education course and began driving.

"I've been driving for three years — no accidents and no tickets... Well, except for one little accident. You don't want to know."

She paused and a mischievous grin spread across her face.

"I woke up at 7:30; I was late for work. I wasn't looking where I was going and I backed out.

"Boom! Right into the mailboxes. They flew across the street. Woosh! One, two, three, four!"

Ellie Collier, age 1, was supposed to be eating lunch Friday in Depot Park. But those cute little ducks were just more interesting and she had to follow them, even if it meant "ducking" under a picnic table. A couple dozen of the hungry ducks were hanging around the park, hoping for handouts on the beautiful late-summer day which brought a lot of people outdoors for lunch.

REAL ESTATE UPDATE

SELL AND STAY

YOU CAN SELL your own home or condo and continue to live there with a sales leaseback arrangement.

Ron Rodda
Sales Manager

Should I go into Real Estate?
"ASK RON"

QUESTION: I would like to remain living in my condo until I retire in two years, but I would also like to sell it now, get the cash and have the sale out of the way. How can I sell and stay?

ANSWER: One way is the sales-leaseback method. Here's how it would work:

A Realtor can find an investor who would like to purchase your unit for future appreciation and tax benefits. Also, it will come with a built-in tenant. You, as the tenant, would pay rent plus all the expenses to run the residence, such as taxes, utilities, maintenance, and insurance. No different than before, except your money is now in the bank.

Comeback downs Northern 14-7

Halftime talk, determination lead Wolves

By Darrel W. Cole
Clarkston News Staff Writer

A second half of "Clarkston football" led the Wolves to a 14-7 win over Pontiac Northern Sept. 16.

Down 7-0 at halftime, Wolves eight-year head coach Kurt Richardson knew his squad was capable of better play. Luckily Northern couldn't capitalize on several opportunities to score despite controlling the ball much of the first half.

"It wasn't the kindest halftime talk I ever gave," Richardson said after a half in which his team had two fumbles, drive-stopping penalties and dropped passes. "We talked about playing to our capabilities and just start going at them."

In the first half, it was Northern which went after Clarkston, now 2-1 overall and 1-1 in the Oakland Activities Association Division I standings. On the team's first possession, after an interception by senior defensive back Jeremy Fife, the Wolves rolled to two first downs but that drive stalled with a fumble.

Northern took over at about the 50 yard line and ran for two first downs, thanks to some poor tackling, to the Clarkston 27. On 2nd-and-9 from the 26, Northern sophomore tailback Tim Smith ran around left end, made some nifty moves and outran everyone to the end zone.

After the extra point was good, Pontiac took a 7-0 lead with 6:23 left in the first quarter.

The Wolves got the ball back but again fumbled. After that, both teams alternated possessions but no one could do any damage. While Clarkston had several big plays negated by penalties, the Northern offense was slowed down by a tough Wolves defense.

Heading into the second half, Richardson said, his team knew it wasn't playing to its potential. Richardson said his seniors play a crucial role in understanding what it takes to win. It's up to them to lead the way for underclassmen, he said.

"We've got a really good, strong number of seniors," he said. "They know what it takes to win and not just from football. Many of them have won in other sports also. Winning breeds more winning."

Whatever came out of the halftime talk worked. The Wolves were determined to dominate the second half. That's just what they did. This time Northern made the mistakes and Clarkston made the plays.

Senior Jason Graves took the opening second-half kickoff to the Wolves' 40 yard line. After one 5-yard rush, a pass interference call moved Clarkston to the Northern 40.

On the next play Graves took the handoff and, with some nice blocks along the way, gained 14-yards to the 26.

Senior fullback P.J. Vandermeer then rumbled for five yards. Two plays later the Wolves ran down to the 11 yard line.

After a 4-yard loss and then gains of two and eight yards, the Wolves found themselves in a 4th-and-3 on the 5-yard line. A Northern offsides penalty gave the Wolves a 4th-and-less-than-1 on the 3 yard line. Senior quarterback Toby Evans, who rotated shifts with junior Jeff Bemis, snuck over for the first down.

Graves, who wound up with 35 carries for 107 yards, then came inches away from scoring on a running play. But he wouldn't be denied the second time and scored with 6:35 left in the third quarter. A 2-point conversion failed and left the score at 7-6.

The drive took up almost six minutes.

SENIOR JEREMY FIFE (#10) dives for Northern tailback Tim Smith as another Wolves defender tries to head him off. Their efforts weren't enough as Smith scored on the 25-yard run. Pictured below, Clarkston runner Jason Graves sets up his blocks, looking for room to run.

From then on the Clarkston defensive line of seniors Joshua Preston, Charles Nolen and Joe Naboychik shut down the run. The secondary of seniors Dennis Wisser, Graves, Fife and junior Ryan Schapman shut down the passing game.

The Wolves intercepted three Northern passes on the day.

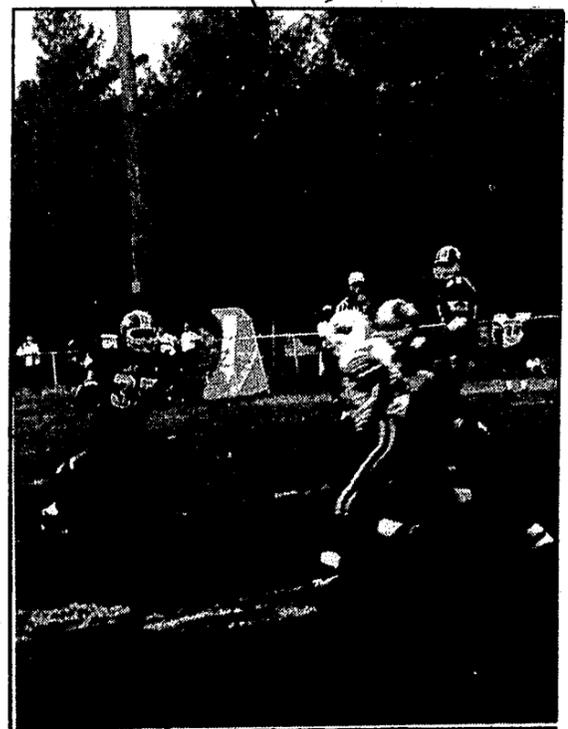

Clarkston got the ball back again with 3:28 left in the third quarter and scored on the same series with 1:12 left to play. The 50-yard scoring drive ended with Graves running for a 4-yard touchdown. Senior tight end Brad Agar caught the 2-point conversion pass from quarterback Evans to end the scoring at 14-7.

Halfway through the fourth quarter the game was postponed due to lightning, but later resumed.

Although Clarkston struggled in the first half, they led Northern in total yardage, 207 to 93. Northern also had nine penalties for 80 yards, compared to Clarkston's four for 25 yards.

Richardson said he was pleased with the second half performance of his team, but that determination must show more often. "We've just got to work on playing four quarters of football."

The Wolves host Troy Athens (2-1 and 1-0 in OAA, Div. I) at home Friday.

The Column

By Darrel W. Cole

"You cannot find a player who ever played for UCLA that can tell you he ever heard me mention 'winning' a basketball game. The last thing I told my players prior to tip-off, before we would go on the floor was, 'When the game is over, I want your head up, and I know of only one way for your head to be up. That's for you to know that you did your best. No one can do more.'" — John Wooden, legendary UCLA coach whose teams won 10 national championships in 12 years from 1964-1975, including seven straight.

Hi. Yes, once again Clarkston News readers will have to get used to a new writer.

But don't feel bad, because I'll also have to get used to you, a new batch of readers.

I know we will have a good relationship. From me you can expect to see that every sport will get equal coverage (as long as coaches call back). It's my job to make sure that happens.

Regardless of wins and losses, each team has a new story to tell each week. There is always a lesson to be learned, a great moment or two, an unlikely hero, or someone who just played a good game.

Be assured I understand sports, the teamwork needed to succeed, the emotions, feelings, pain, anger, frustration, discipline and lessons involved. I've written about high school sports in several communities, from West Bloomfield to Orchard Lake St. Mary's to Lakeland to Lake Orion, to name a few.

In high school I played football, basketball, track and ran cross country. I went on to a junior college and played basketball for two years before transferring to Oakland University and finishing out my academic and basketball careers.

Some coaches consider themselves "players' coaches." In that same respect I consider myself a "players'/coaches' writer." I feel strongly about showing readers there is much more to sports than the final outcome.

In society, winning is everything, but in reality it is secondary. The lessons an athlete can learn are so much more long-lasting. I hope to show through words that these athletes are not to be criticized as individuals who may make a mistake. They should also not be treated as gods or goddesses.

They are simply athletes who need to realize sports and all its glory is short-lived. Only a select few earn a chance to play in college, but many of the lessons can be carried on to life.

Whether these teams win championships or not is secondary to the amount of effort they give when they perform on the fields and courts. Being at your best doesn't always mean winning; it means giving the effort to show you are a winner.

I may not always be praised for my writing, but readers can be assured I will work hard to do the best job I can.

Doing your best is all anyone can ask.

4-0 and ready for league Streak prepares hoopsters

By Darrel W. Cole
Clarkston News Staff Writer

With just two seniors on his team, Clarkston girls varsity basketball coach Larry Mahrle didn't expect to be 4-0.

But thanks to a group of talented, hard working underclassmen, Mahrle's team heads into tough division play with no losses.

"With this young bunch of kids we're ecstatic to be 4-0. When you consider we have league play coming up, this will help us but it will also be a real challenge," he said.

The Wolves played one game last week, beating Lake Orion 46-39 Sept. 13. It was an important win against a similar fastbreaking, pressing team, said Mahrle.

Clarkston was led by sophomore point guard Elissa Shires with 13 points and sophomore center

Carin Kirk with 11 points and 10 rebounds. Mahrle credited Shires and junior guard Leah Howard with playing great "floor games" and controlling the tempo.

"The press eventually wore Lake Orion down and we made some crucial fastbreak baskets. We have a quick team which works hard and our strength is pressing the other team," said Mahrle.

But the 7-year head coach said those same skills will be tested this week when the tough Oakland Activities Association Division I gets underway.

The Wolves get their first real test when they host Rochester at home on Thursday, Sept. 22. Other league powers on the schedule include Troy, Waterford Kettering and Rochester Adams.

But regardless of the results of upcoming games, Mahrle is confident his team will continue to work hard and never give up. "We practice hard everyday and they all have a great attitude. We'll continue to play man-to-man and press the ball."

Club boosts Clarkston sports

Almost 300 members contribute

By Darrel W. Cole
Clarkston News Staff Writer

The proof is in the hallways, on the field and covering the players.

Look at any athletic team at Clarkston schools and you can bet they have been affected by Clarkston Athletic Boosters. Over the 28 years of its existence, the club has provided uniforms, scholarships, scoreboards and buildings to athletic programs.

And like the athletic teams, the boosters club continues a strong tradition at Clarkston. With donations of over $32,000 from June 1993 to June 1994 and about 300 members strong, the club is more than a token organization.

Thirteen-year boosters president Dwight Spiker said the members do have a strong sense of tradition and have seen the positive effect of their work over the years.

"A lot of it is tradition. People do this because they like sports and want to help the kids out," Spiker said. "If you are around this long enough you'll see there are more fans at away games from Clarkston than the host school. Some of these people have been going to Clarkston sporting events since the 1950's, and some of them are in their 70s and 80s. But you'll always see them there watching, like always."

Spiker said the boosters club started in 1966, the very same year he moved to Clarkston. He credits the club's strong member support to successful sports teams and because people want the best for the athletes.

"If we didn't do it, who would? And it's not just parents of athletes who contribute. Now, about half of the members don't even have kids in school," said Spiker, 57, who saw his son and daughter graduate from Clarkston in 1984 and 1981, respectively.

Membership costs only $2 a year and Spiker said the club is now targeting the parents of 7th- and 8th-graders to join and volunteer their services.

The club sponsors several fund-raisers throughout the year. An Oct. 22 craft show is planned and a "get acquainted" membership dinner is scheduled for Oct. 17, 6 p.m., at the high school.

The boosters club efforts are visible throughout Clarkston's sports programs. Two years ago they constructed the $70,000 building near the football fields.

This past year they bought everything from new wrestling, volleyball, track and baseball outfits to sponsoring pom-pom competitions.

And the efforts of the boosters club do not come from just a select few. Spiker said about 30 percent of the members actually volunteer for such things as the concession stands and other projects, while others use their influence to help the club get what they need.

"The people involved come from all different areas of society," Spiker said.

For more information on how to become active in the boosters club, call Spiker at 623-9582.

Other elected officers in the boosters club include vice president Dale Runyan, secretary Linda Roughton and treasurer Fred Jones.

Best-ever finish gives netters hope

By Darrel W. Cole
Clarkston News Staff Writer

The good times might be short-lived for the Clarkston varsity girls tennis team.

A strong week of tennis, which included wins over Waterford Mott Sept. 15 and a strong 3rd-place showing at Fenton Invitational Sept. 17, puts the Wolves in good position heading into some tough matches.

Eleven-year head coach Dick Swartout said his team played well last week but they'll have to do even more to beat upcoming foes Birmingham Groves (Sept. 21), Bloomfield Hills Andover (Sept. 23) and West Bloomfield (Sept. 28).

"It was a good, important week for us. We are in the OAA Division II so it will be a tough league for us, but we have to keep winning the non-conference matches."

Swartout said the class of the Oakland Activities Association Division II is Groves and Andover, which are perennial tennis powers every year.

"I think Lake Orion, who beat us earlier, and us should be in Division 2.5," Swartout joked. "But then again we shouldn't be in Division III either."

Whatever the future holds, the coach said he's pleased with his team's progress so far, especially with so many changes in the lineup.

"We are about where we ought to be at this point in the season. We're starting to play with intensity and the players are getting to where they want to be."

"It's been tough early on because, while a lot of kids are back from last year, they are in many different spots and just now getting used to that."

The Wolves struggled early in the week with a 7-1 loss to Lake Orion Sept. 13. The only winners were seniors Kelley Wall and Renee Shubert in #1 doubles, 6-2, 7-6.

That pattern changed against Waterford Mott as Clarkston won 6-1. But it didn't come easy for Swartout's team, as they had to battle back by taking three three-set matches.

Junior Mary Schmidt, #3 singles player, Kristey Kade, #4 singles player, and the #3 doubles team of Katey Atkinson and Becky Olsen all battled it out for wins in three-set matches.

Schmidt lost her first set 3-6, but came back with 6-2 wins in the last two. Kade won her first set 6-3, lost the second 3-6 and won the third 6-3. Atkinson and Olsen breezed 6-1 in the first set, lost 4-6 in the next and came back 6-2 in final set.

Taking two-set wins were: Renee Van Klavern,

#2 singles, 6-3, 6-3; Wall and Shubert, #1 doubles, 6-2, 7-6; and, #2 doubles of Sam Schubering and Jocelyn Stock 6-3, 6-1.

Swartout was most pleased with his team's strong showing in the competitive Fenton Invitational last weekend, an annual tournament for the Wolves.

Among eight teams, Clarkston finished third, behind first-place Flint-Carmen Ainsworth and Fenton. It was Clarkston's best showing ever.

They might have even finished higher if not for an injury to #1 singles player senior Jody Weatherington. Aftersplitting her first two matches, Swartout said she was injured and couldn't play.

Every other player finished no worse than 4th, led by second-place finishes from #2 singles Van Klavern, #3 singles Schubering and #1 doubles Wall and Shubert.

Taking third-place was #4 singles Jocelyn Stock, #2 doubles team of Schmidt and Kade, and #4 doubles team of Atkinson and Olsen.

Seniors Emily Kortge and Carrie Ruddy, #3 doubles, finished fourth.

Boys take top three spots in dual meet

Girls runners first among 15 teams

By Darrel W. Cole
Clarkston News Staff Writer

It was a day of firsts for the Clarkston girls cross-country team.

The Wolves took first place, beating out 15 other squads, in their first appearance at the Chesaning Invitational Sept. 15. In addition to the team firsts, senior Leah Scharl continued her winning form and won the race.

Not counting league meets, it was also Scharl's first-ever invitational win, according to coach Mike Taylor.

The Wolves dominated the pack, ending up with 52 points, compared to second-place Owosso's 92 and Hartland's 99. Ann Arbor Huron took fourth with 125 points.

Scharl's winning time was 20:58, followed by junior Stefanie Burklow in eighth place in 22:34, junior Anna Vandermeer in 10th place in 22:40. Junior Stacie Iezzi was 17th in 22:56 and sophomore Kristin Maine 18th in 22:58.

After Scharl, Clarkston's next four finishers all ran within 20 seconds of one another.

The top 25 runners received medals.

The girls continued their dominance in a meet against Southfield Sept. 13, led once again by Scharl's first-place finish in 20:28.

After giving up the second spot to a Southfield runner, the Wolves took the next five places. Clarkston managed to have nine runners finish in the top 15.

The boys team didn't fare quite as well in the Chesaning Invitational, finishing eighth among 17 teams.

Junior Brian Ginn was Clarkston's lone medalist, taking 20th in 18:15. He was followed by senior Steve Anderson in 28th in 18:50. Senior Matt Warner came in 42nd in 19:15 and junior Jeremy Lafferty was 50th in 19:31.

Flint Kearsley took first in the meet with 75 points, followed by Ann Arbor Huron with 104 and Hartland with 146.

The Southfield meet wasn't much of a challenge for the boys squad. Ginn (17:53) earned his first-ever win. Warner (18:14) and Anderson (18:40) completed a sweep by taking second and third.

Other Clarkston finishers were: Lafferty sixth in 19:16; junior Tim O'Rourke seventh in 19:37; sophomore Chas Claus ninth in 20:01; and senior Andy Holland 10th in 20:06.

Clarkston's girls and boys teams host the Clarkston Invitational Friday, Sept. 23 and are at Brandon Sept. 27.

Upcoming matches will determine golf's destiny

By Darrel W. Cole
Clarkston News Staff Writer

An Oakland Activities Association Division I tournament victory keeps Clarkston High's golf team on the right track.

In a tight match Sept. 12 against Division I foes Rochester Adams, Troy, Rochester and Bloomfield Hills Lahser, the Wolves' deep and talented squad again showed why they are one of the state's best.

While only four strokes separated the fourth place team from winner Clarkston, coach Jim Chamberlain said his top six players still average better than they shot in the tournament.

But what they shot at the Salem Hills Course was not bad either. Senior John Dean led the balanced attack by shooting a 78. He was followed by sophomore Tim Klimik and senior Jayson Buchmann with 80s, seniors Jeremy Jenson and Corey Bildstein with 81s and senior Myles Mosher with an 83.

The Wolves won again in a dual meet with Bloomfield Hills Lahser Sept. 16, 155-159. Despite the tough match, Clarkston once again had one player lead the pack.

Buchmann was the leader with a 35 while Klimik was next with a 39. Bildstein shot a 40, and Jenson and Mosher shot 41s.

Chamberlain said his players know they should be successful but he only asks them to do their best. "They are a very ability-laden team and those six kids that are playing regularly on the varsity have only a 1/2 shot difference between them all.

"We know what we have to do but we also have a tradition where we want each kid to fulfill his potential, so it's hard to put a finger on what exactly we should accomplish."

The team does have three goals set in stone. The first is to win the league, the next is finish in the top three in the county and qualify for the state finals.

"Those three work hand-in-hand with the other goals," said Chamberlain, noting that his squad has a good shot at a state title after taking second last season.

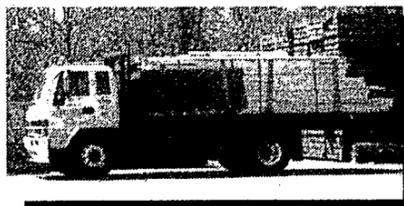

The most challenging part of the season is upcoming for the Wolves with the county meet scheduled for Sept. 26, regionals Oct. 7 and state finals Oct. 14.

The coach would like to see some improvement in certain parts of his players' games.

"I'm very proud of them all; they work hard," he said. "But we still have to work on our course management, setting up and planning our shots better."

Soccer clinic benefits Neon, kids

PROFESSIONAL SOCCER players from the Detroit Neon put on a two-hour clinic Sept. 16 for youth soccer players in the Independence Township Parks and Recreation league. The clinic was held at Clintonwood Park as two players and Neon coach Chris Keenan (pictured front with Neon shirt and sunglasses) gave players pointers on the game. The other players were Paul Kitson (pictured far left) and Collin Jex (far background, left). Keenan said his players are available (for a small fee) throughout the summer. "It's a win-win situation for us. We want to let people know about soccer and about us," he said.

Cider Fest

There was the bad weather, and then there was the good weather.

The Clarkston Historical Society's annual Cider Festival last weekend in Depot Park experienced both the good and the bad of fall in Michigan. But rain or shine, people came.

During Saturday's intermittent rains, crafters, who always come prepared for the weather, were safe inside their small booths while shoppers slogged through wet hay on the ground outside. No one seemed to mind too much as they wandered the park, sampling everything from cider and apple pie to gourmet granola.

You could take home fresh flowers and chat with people from any of a number of local groups, from churches to cheerleaders. And that's perhaps the best thing about small-town fairs. You really get a feel for who the locals are.
