School board sets March for bond election date

BY ANNETTE KINGSBURY Clarkston News Editor

After learning that a new high school could cost $53 million, the Clarkston Board of Education agreed Monday night to schedule a bond election for the project in March, 1995.

The board heard a presentation from its architects, Greiner, Inc. which showed the costs of the three high schools built in Michigan in the last four years. Greiner spokesman Ton Chen then extrapolated how much a new Clarkston High School would cost, accounting for variables such as inflation and unionized building tradesmen. He came up with a figure of $36 million for the building construction, including $5.5-$6 million for a pool. Other costs include property acquisition, new athletic fields, furnishings and technology.

The district is considering a 109-acre site on Flemings Lake Rd. which includes about 15 acres of wetlands, Chen said. He said the district would have to pave the road and extend water and sewer one-quarter mile to the site.

If the bond issue is approved in April, construction could begin in January, 1996, Chen said. The new school would be expected to open for the fall,

1988 semester

The total amount which will be asked for has not yet been decided. Two committees are updating facilities work from the last bond election. The board is expected to consider asking for money to renovate existing buildings along with the new high school, but hasn't decided whether that will be a separate ballot proposal or part of the same question.

After the presentation, the board agreed by consensus (no formal vote was taken) to stick with Greiner for the project. Chen said the company would work with the board in designing a high school that would meet the community's specific needs.

"I encourage you not to go back and duplicate somebody else's school," he said. "I would encourage you to look at your curriculum, what the visions are-down-the road... Program area is a lot/more important than choice of (building) materials."

Under questioning by trustee Janet Thomas, Chen said his firm has learned from its mistakes in past building projects and will do a better job of communicating with the board.

Greiner built the new Springfield Plains Elementary School and is currently doing renovations at the high school, which will become a middle school if the bond issue is approved.

Homeless mom wants to tell her side of story

BYANNETTE KINGSBURY Clarkston News Editor

Pamela Williamson plans to take the stand in her own defense Thursday as her child-custody case continues in Probate Court.

Williamson is the allegedly homeless mom whose two-year-old daughter was taken into custody by Oakland County Sheriff's deputies after the two were seen repeatedly at Food Town Market in Independence township, where Williamson went to cash in bottles.

Williamson has already pleaded no contest to child neglect charges in 52-2 District Court. That case stemmed from the alleged offer by a friend of hers to sell the baby to passers-by. She is awaiting sentencing on that charge.

During testimony Monday in Probate Court in the custody case, social workers testified that Williamson was referred to a program called Families First through the Judson Center in Royal Oak after her daughter was hospitalized in October, 1993 for failure to thrive. She was underweight, had webbed fingers (a sign of fetal alcohol syndrome) and was diagnosed a psycho-social dwarf with severe global delays.

Family service worker Lisa Rodriguez said Williamson found an apartment and during an intensive four-week program was coached in nutrition and personal care for her daughter. She was taken shopping for supplies and food and her daughter was enrolled in a Pontiac schools program for preschool, developmentally delayed children.

"Isaw great improvement once Pam was moved," Rodriguez said. However later, at a follow-up visit, Rodriguez said she found a man passed out on the apartment floor and Williamson refused to let her see the baby. She immediately notified DSS.

The man on the floor was Mark Good, the same man who pled no contest with Williamson to child neglect charges. Williamson was later evicted from the apartment.

Protective Services worker Darrin Ford said locating Williamson became a problem after that. "That's one of the main problems; we can't find her

The news in brief

Leaf pick-up scheduled

The city of Clarkston will provide a pick-up of bagged leaves at curbsides on the following Saturdays: Oct. 22 and 29 and Nov. 5. Residents must pack their leaves in clear plastic bags, which are available in the city office at 375 Depot Road Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. Bags will be sold in multiples of 10 and 25 with a charge of $2 for 10 bags and $5 for 25.

Last day to register

The last day to register to vote in the November 8 general election is Tuesday, Oct. 11. The Independence Township Clerk's office takes registrations Monday-Friday, 8 a.m.-5 p.m.

Counterfeit bill passed

What appears to be a bogus $20 bill was received by a cashier at the Big Boy restaurant on Dixie Highway Sunday. Detective Chuck Young of the Oakland County Sheriff's Independence Substation, said he will be turning the bill over to the FBI to see if it matches bills found in a recent counterfeiting arrest in the Detroit Metro area.

Homecoming wants you

The Clarkston High School Homecoming Parade, scheduled for Saturday, Oct. 15 at 10 a.m., is looking for participants.

Anyone wishing to advertise a business, make a float, throw candy or otherwise have fun is invited to meet at the Clarkston Middle School parking lot at 9 a.m. that day. The parade will go through downtown Clarkston via Church St. and Main St.

Paintings speak for rape victim

'You just go on'

BY EILEEN OXLEY Clarkston News Staff Writer

The shadow outlined in the doorway of Lorraine's bedroom was nameless and faceless.

But Lorraine Snapp will never forget it.

He was the person who took away her dignity, robbed her of her sanity - and violated her body in a cruel act of rape as she lay innocently sleeping in her apartment 22 years ago.

No, Snapp will never forget the worst nightmare of her life.

As she tells her story today, her face is drawn and pale. Though she has long recovered from the shock, she still remembers the pain, humiliation and unspeakable terror.

And always will.

"He had one hand over my mouth and a knife at my throat.'

Lorraine Snapp

"I was an independent working girl, living on the ground floor," said Snapp, who was 25 at the time. "He came in through the window while I was sleeping. He had a knife and threatened me. Before he stole things and left, he told me not to move or call the police.

"He had one hand over my mouth and a knife at my throat."

Snapp paused to take a deep breath.

"To tell you the truth, I was so afraid this man was going to mutilate me. I thought the person was going to be a 'chalk mark' like they used to have on 'Columbo,' you know — all these crazy feelings were going through my head.

"I shut my eyes and prayed inside, saying the Twenty-third Psalm.

"I didn't want to see [him]."

When it was over and Snapp dragged her painful body over to a bedside phone, she said the police at the other end acted like "they didn't believe me.

"I guess it was because I wasn't hysterical; I was in shock. I guess I sounded dead calm."

The police also weren't much help after they dropped her off at Royal Oak's Beaumont Hospital, leaving her there abruptly and telling her she'd have to find her own ride home. "They treated me like dirt," she said. "People at the hospital gave me sodium pentothal because I wasn't talking. Then the police told me I'd have to move, because 'he' might be back."

To Snapp, that was "the only kind thing the police did." But afterwards, they came repeatedly into her office at work and interrogated her. She finally told them to drop the case. Today, Snapp has been through much more and is a survivor, of not only rape, but clinical depression and divorce, although she feels the two have nothing to do with the rape incident. CIL.

"What helped me was a therapist — and I was seeing my husband-to-be and it was a positive experience. I told him (I was advised by doctors not to) about the rape and he didn't ditch me for it. He didn't say, 'You're finished' or 'You're dirty.""

Now an artist who hopes to complete her degree at the Center for Creative Studies in Detroit someday, Snapp spent the last two years creating abstract paintings that depict various feelings, including the rape. Most have to do with women's experiences of domestic violence, loneliness, losing someone dear and certain feelings she feels many women might be able to connect with.

"They aren't anything graphic, like two people trying to kill each other. They're only on an emotional level," she said.

Snapp organized various simple watercolors in front of her. In the background, hanging on her living room walls, were her striking oils, depicting various landscapes and still lifes.

These watercolors were very different. As she placed them on the floor around her, she handled them carefully, like delicate friends.

"They have a lot of black in them," she admitted, pointing to each one. "This is "Choice," this "Hate." This is titled "Mourning," painted after I lost a close friend. and this is "Burns," painted after I was burned.

Snapp also painted one called "Suicide" when, at one time, she thought there was no way out of her depression.

'If I could touch one person through my painting, that would be wonderful.'

Lorraine Snapp

"I've been through some dark and lonely times," she said, shaking her head. "It was therapeutic doing these and a real challenge to put something that's real abstract into color and position."

Snapp says she wants to donate her paintings to HAVEN (Help Against Violent Encounters Now) in Pontiac, an agency in Oakland County that deals with domestic violence and child and sexual abuse and offers shelter to women in crisis situations.

During this interview, Snapp got a return phone call from a HAVEN worker who asked if she wanted to use her paintings as a fund-raiser. Snapp said HAVEN could use her paintings as they wished. Her only hope is that they touch someone.

"I just thought they might hang them around. I would like help getting them framed.

"But I'm not trying to do anything for me. I'm just trying to help anyone like me who's experienced something similar. I want to share through my painting, not through talk.

RAPE VICTIM LORRAINE SNAPP was assaulted 22 years ago. Today Snapp, a Clarkston artist, hopes her abstract watercolors depicting various emotions of women in crisis, will connect with those who view them. While she holds a masterful oil to her right, in her other hand is "Rape," one of the watercolors she hopes to donate to HAVEN.

"If I could touch one person through my painting, that would be wonderful," she said.

When Snapp talks about rape, she speaks as clearly as the red, black and blue watercolors on her "Violation is assault. They (the rapist) would assault an 80-year-old woman, a 17-year-old girl, a 5year-old child ... "

And, indeed, the experience is something she has no choice but to accept — and remember.

As with many rape victims, it still haunts her and is always ready to resurface.

"One night my son came home and had the hallway light on and I saw this figure back-lit again and I started to scream."

Soon after, Snapp told her son, the oldest, about the rape. She has also told her other son and daughter. "I just saw this book at Border's [Book Store] called 'The Second Rape,' and I thought, 'Oh, God

"I don't' think you ever really recover. I think you just go on," she said.

For more information on rape call the HAVEN business line at 334-1284 or its 24-hour crisis line at 334-1274.

Tax rates lower for 1994

Independence doesn't go for override

BY DARREL W. COLE Clarkston News Staff Writer

Independence Township homeowners will save about $7 for the 1995 fiscal year, thanks to the township board and the Headlee Amendment.

Because of the Headlee Amendment to the Michigan Constitution, township millage rates are automatically reduced each new tax year if property values rise. If a township wants to keep the millage rates from being reduced, it's required to hold a Truth-in-Taxation hearing and/or place such a rate rollback on the ballot.

Had the township board asked for a Headlee Override homeowners would have paid an average of $7.42 more in the 1995 fiscal year, according to township financial director Kerry Donahoe.

Supervisor Dale Stuart said, "We did this because we are trying to operate the township within our means with the revenue we are given by the people and allowed by law. If we wouldn't have done this it would have raised the tax rates."

The township has an operating millage rate of 7.4983, with a debt millage rate of .3790, which totals a rate of 7.8773.

Millage rate decreases from the 1993 tax year to the 1994 tax year are as follows:

- The general fund, 1.1702 to 1.1523 mills.
- Fire fund, 2.9490 to 2.9039.
- Safety path fund, .3949 to .3889.

The reduced rate for the above three funds is 4.4451 mills. Without the decrease, the millage rate would have been 4.5141.

The decrease does not affect the police millage rate of 2.3032 or the library rate of .75 because they were approved by voters in August.

The township's debt millage rate also remains at .379 mills.

Although the Headlee Amendment does save homeowners money in the long run, taxes will increase for the 1995 fiscal year, due to the township's rapid development.

"The SEV on the average home has increased because of the new construction and the high prices of the new homes," Donahoe said.

The average state equalized value of a home in Independence Township is estimated at $60,576. Based on that SEV a homeowner would pay about $477 in fiscal year 1995, according to Donahoe.

In 1994, the average home's SEV was $57,800 for a homeowner tax of $460.

The approved 1994 tax rate of 7.8773 would generate $5.049 million dollars for the township.

Lawsuits possible in investment debacle

The Independence Township Board of Trustees met in closed session to discuss possible litigation against people and/or companies involved in the township's investment in Collateralized Mortgage Obligations.

Supervisor Dale Stuart said "I can't comment on the content of the meeting but I will say we met for the purpose of receiving information to let the board know what our options are as far as litigation."

The township's investment four years ago in CMOs was illegal under state law, according to Richard Baldermann, Administrator of the Local Government Audit Division for Michigan's Department of Treasury.

Township attorneys are investigating the township's investment policy and the transactions and circumstances which led up to investing over $600,000 in the illegal CMOs.

M-15 topic of MDOT meeting

A public meeting on M-15 highway improvements soon turned to a discussion about the new traffic light at Deer Ridge Subdivision.

On Sept. 19 Michigan Department of Transportation officials, Ortonville officials and residents met at Brandon High School to discuss the growing traffic problems on M-15. But some Clarkston residents at the meeting soon turned the tables and questioned why MDOT put the traffic light at M-15 and Deer Ridge, north of I-75.

Residents said the light is placed in a dangerous place, between two hills, making it difficult for vehicle to see.

MDOT spokesman Myron Frierson said the light was put up about over a month ago because of citizen demand and it was an appropriate place to put one.

Due to M-15 traffic concerns another light will be installed at M-15 and Seymour Lake Road, possibly in November.

MDOT has held similar meetings about M-15 (mostly regarding the Davison area) in the past year. The very preliminary plans call for widening and resurfacing M-15 from Davison to Clarkston possibly taking as long as seven years before construction would begin,

Rezonings stir neighbors

BY DARREL W. COLE Clarkston News Staff Writer

Trust is one quality some Independence residents don't have in the applicants for two separate rezoning requests.

The township board of trustees passed the first readings of two separate rezoning requests at its Sept. 20 meeting. But residents told board members they are worried the rezonings will cause major traffic problems and the developers won't remain true to their word about the type of development plans proposed.

The first request will rezone 88 acres on the southeast corner of Indianwood and Eston roads from rural residential (R-1R) to suburban farm residential (R-1C), reducing the requirement from 3 acre lots to 1.5 acre lots.

The second request would rezone 25 acres north of Maybee, adjacent to Hi-Wood Village Subdivision, from single family (R-1A) to multi-family residential (R-2). The original request would have allowed about 35 single family homes. This request will allow over 100 multiple family units.

Township planner Richard Carlisle said both rezoning requests were approved by the planning commission because they followed the township's master plan and the density of the surrounding area is similar similar.

Board members said neither applicant is bound by any of their proposed plans for the sites. Traffic, development plans and other issues will be addressed at the time of site-plan reviews in front of the planning commission and the board.

The second reading and final adoption of the rezonings will be presented to the board at its Oct. 4 meeting

Residents in the Bird Land Subdivision, east of the 25-acre rezoning, said they are concerned about traffic congestion and preservation of the over four acres of wetlands and woodlands.

Ken Barks, a Bird Land resident, said "When this was at the planning commission residents packed in, but the people's concerns were shot down."

"This rezoning will affect the Bird Land area forever and I ask this be referred back to the planning commission," said resident Charles Newman.

Board trustee Bruce Mercado agreed with residents, saying all their concerns should have been dealt with together as a planned unit development, rather than separately.

"I really feel uncomfortable about this," said Mercado, the lone dissenter in a 6-1 vote. "The board should look at what this could become."

Fred Ritter, who requested the rezoning, said he has been a strong community-minded businessman for many years and wouldn't be a detriment to the area.

"I've been here since 1966 and we've been good residents. We are not going to do anything to harm anyone. These units will have owners of condos and not renters," said Ritter, whose property is surrounded by commercial land to the west off Dixie Highway and M-15.

The 88-acre rezoning request (with a proposed 36 homes) is opposed by residents in the subdivision located east of the property. The main concern is that Mountain View Street extends into the proposed property and may be hooked into the the new subdivision.

Residents said since Mountain View is paved it will be used as a shortcut by the new homeowners. A representative for the petitioner, JAC Construction, said "We would not connect to the stub, but it can't be guaranteed," because this is only a rezoning and road layout has not been determined.

Crop walk réturns

Crop is the name given to community fundraising events sponsored by Church World Service, an international food relief agency. Money raised by Crop walks is used to provide food, medical care, disaster relief and self-help development efforts to need people throughout the world.

Twenty-five percent of all money collected in Clarkston stays in Clarkston to help those in need. Again this year, Lighthouse North will benefit from the walk, as will Pathfinders to Opportunity, Inc.

Pathfinders is a non-profit corporation established in 1992 by parents, educators and others for the purpose of identifying and developing opportunities for young adults with disabilities in Clarkston.

Churches participating in this year's Crop Walk include Calvary Evangelical Lutheran, First Congregational of North Oakland, St. Daniel's, Clarkston United Methodist and Free Methodist, Sashabaw United Presbyterian and St. Trinity Lutheran.

Anyone interested in walking is invited to call their own church or one of those listed. Registration begins at 12:30 p.m., followed by a

As Ronald Reagan would have said, there they go again.

Our legislators acted swiftly and in near unanimity last week, passing a bill that guarantees that students who bring guns into schools will be kicked out. And they'll stay out for at least 180 daysguaranteed.

The theory behind the law is that it will make schools safer for everyone. I have no argument with that.

Some of the very same legislators who voted for this bill also tried to outlaw Super Soaker water guns, on the grounds they were dangerous. Yet they refuse to outlaw any type of gun or ammunition for adults, because of our constitutional right to bear arms.

Excuse me . . . I'm confused.

Isn't the rhetoric we always hear that "Guns don't kill people; people kill people"?' If that's true, why doesn't it apply to schoolchildren? Where in the Constitution does it say that only people out of school have the right to bear arms? And why is it OK for a 16year-old to carry a gun off-campus, but not on?

It's just another example of the eroding rights of kids, if you ask me.

But seriously, don't you sometimes wonder about the logic? How can these legislators speechify about how kids shouldn't have guns in school, but wax poetic about their right to keep and bear arms outside of school? Do their constitutional rights end at the schoolhouse door?

You have to wonder if it's confusing to the kids, or are they so conditioned to be told "no" to everything that they take it all in stride?

Guns kill people. They shouldn't be in schools. But they'll hurt you just as surely at home or driving on M-15 as they will in the Clarkston High School parking lot.

How many times do we have to hear stories about children finding daddy's gun at home and shooting someone by accident? Me personally, I've heard that story way too many times.

I know the argument—"Outlaw guns and only outlaws will have guns." But no one has been able to convince me that making it harder to buy and sell guns is a bad idea.

Guns are dangerous weapons, period. That's the lesson we should be teaching.

Friends experience enlightening episode

When you go shopping, does it make any difference whether you're black or white? After their experience at Oakland Mall, two white teenagers think the answer is

They are Melissa Penz, 16, of Sterling Heights and Greg Belprez, 18, of Clarkston. On the afternoon of Sept. 15, outside the Eddie Bauer store, they were approached by a black woman, around 30, seeking help.

She immediately assured Penz and Belprez that she meant them no harm, but they suspected a scam when the woman said she needed $5 or $10 to buy antifreeze for her

I don't blame the pair for being wary. Several times I've heard similar smelly stories, from both minority and white strangers, in malls and on downtown streets. I just kept walking. No one is going to con me.

But Penz and Belprez were more polite. Although doubtful, they listened as the woman pulled a pair of pants out of a bag. They appeared brand new, never worn, with no tags removed. The woman said she'd recently purchased them as a gift for her husband but now, for an unstated reason, wanted to return them for a refund. Obviously, the desired exchange became more important when her car began to steam and she discovered she didn't have enough money for antifreeze.

But, the woman said, Eddie Bauer had just refused her because she didn't have a receipt. She asked whether Belprez and Penz would take the pants into the store and try for better luck.

As Penz later told me, she and her friend were puzzled. She described the woman as neatly dressed and apparently sincere. If Eddie Bauer's policy was no refund without a receipt, why would she and Belprez have any more success than the woman had?

But, while the woman waited outside, Penz and Belprez gave it a try. They were given the purchase price -$38 -- for the pants, with no trouble, no receipt.

When we gave the woman the money, she was so grateful she insisted we keep most of it, because she only needed enough for the anti-freeze," Penz said. "When we refused, she asked our names and said she'd name her first two children after us."

Penz said the woman gave her name, but they later forgot it. The woman never mentioned racial discrimination, Penz said. She apparently took it for granted that two white teenagers would understand why they might be treated better than a black person.

Penz, who works part-time at a nearby shop, said she's noticed that some black people are employed in the Bauer store, but none were present that afternoon. She was dismayed at the apparent racial discrimination, Penz said, and that's why -- following the suggestion of one of her Sterling Heights High teachers -- she contacted me.

I'm not naive. Despite evidence to the contrary, I realize it still could have been a scam. The pants could have been shoplifted. The woman could have been confikids would never accept an award. dent that those nice would work? At Eddie Bauer corporate headquarters in Seattle, Public Information Manager Karen Peck said policy is that refunds are made without a receipt with very few exceptions, usually based on suspected fraud, and never based on race. Peck said she'd questioned all but one employee present that afternoon in the Oakland Mall Bauer store, and none could recall the incident described by the two teenagers.

On the flip side of naivete, I've heard enough complaints from black people to realize they are often the victim of stereotyping. A store clerk, stung by one black person, treats all blacks like potential crooks. But all whites aren't stereotyped because of one white criminal.

More government waste

Why is it we can go to the moon, but we can't feed the starving people of this nation?

How many times have you heard this? Me, about a thousand times too many. The simple answer is the way the good ol' federal government works. Remember back in the 1980s when Coleman Young was still mayor of Detroit? They had a warehouse full of food to give to the needy, and it sat. Unused, wasted.

Waste is a big thing in government. When they say they cut so many billions of dollars off the deficit, what they really mean is they cut so many billons of dollars off their already increased budget. In other words, the spending still goes up a tremendous amount, but they can still go back home and say they "cut" the budget.

We got a newspaper in the mail the other day the Government Waste Watch paper put out by the Citizens Against Government Waste. I flipped through the pages and stopped at page five. Here's what I

In this year's National Endowment for Humanifound. ties there is budgeted:

1. $400,000 to study "The expressive culture of the San Blas Island, Panama."

2.$300,000 to write "The History of Electrification in Portland, Oregon." 3. $171,720 to compile a "Historical Dictionary of American Slang." 4. $160,000 to compile "The Atlas of Historical County Boundaries." 5. Up to $129,000 to create a database of

6. Up to $125,000 to compile a Sino-Tibetan Gregorian Chants. Etymological Dictionary and Thesaurus.

7. $105,000 to write "A History of American

Communes, 1965-75."

8. $60,000 to study labor activism in the Soviet Union, 1918-1929."

9. Up to $25,676 for a critical review of Islamic Documentaries, 1980-1993.

10. $14,000 to study "Depictions of Daily Life in the East German Cinema, 1956-1966."

11. $14,000 for the project: "Deadbeats, Drunkards, and Dreamers: the Problem of Failure in the United States, 1819-93."

Some simple addition and division and I come up with a total spent here of $1,474,396. If we were to divide that by $3.00 (the rough cost of a Big Mac) we could give 491,465 people one meal.

What's more important, knowing Gregorian chants or feeding our people?

When you have billions of dollars to spend, a million here or a million there isn't much, but gee whiz, why does the federal government keep asking us to dig deeper?

Heard this morning on the radio: "... after the government was overthrown in Haiti ..." Isn't that a change of recent history?

I seem to remember that the government there stepped aside, stepped down. There wasn't a shot fired. No soldiers rushed the government headquarters. How can a government be overthrown when the leader of that government wasn't even forced to leave the country? How can that government be overthrown when that leader states he's planning to run for office?

I know it is a little, nit-picky thing, but words mean a lot. You would think the folks at CNN would know better.

But, then again, maybe they don't.

Your finances

James B. Kruzan, CFP Does the early bird get the worm?

When people plan and invest for retirement, the decision of when to begin taking Social Security benefits eventually comes up. Social Security is an important source of retirement income for many individuals and, therefore, the decision of when to take these benefits can make a big impact on retirement income.

A retired worker who is fully insured can elect to start receiving benefits at any time between the age of 62 and 65 (or even later). Benefits can start as early as 62, but if you so elect they are permanently reduced by 20 percent. Here is where the question arises. Is it better to start taking checks at a reduced amount or wait until normal retirement age and receive full benefits? Before addressing the inherent problems with this empirical question, let's look at some of the factors and considerations.

The early bird who decides to get the worm first gets three years' worth of checks - 36 payments - that the sleeping bird will never see. Thus, it will take some time for the total benefits of the person who waits until age 65 to catch up to those of the early collector. Further, for those born after 1937, normal retirement age is being extended. Normal retirement age is currently age 65, yet due to the Social Security amendments, full benefit age will be raised gradually in two stages until eventually reaching 67 in 2027. Thus, the early bird will receive even more checks than the retiree who bides his time for full benefits.

If the early bird did not need the benefit income and chose to invest instead of spending the checks, the investment income would partially offset the reduced yearly benefit as well as extend the catch-up period for the age 65 collector. Sounds like most people would opt to be an early bird.

There are other factors to consider (as always). Working an extra three years will probably increase the patient retiree's benefits. This is so because more earnings will be credited toward the Social Security account. Chances are that old low-earning years will be replaced in the benefit equation with a current high credit year. These higher benefits will then shrink the catch-up period.

Delaying retirement benefits beyond 65 until age 70 will also increase the size of the benefit due to a credit provided by the Social Security Administration for such patience. Further, for those born after 1937 who choose to begin receiving benefits at age 62, the reduction-in-benefits penalty is further stiffened from 20 percent to an eventual 30 percent in 2022. The hare will feel the tortoise closing even quicker.

Taxation of benefits may also enter the picture. Poor timing of Social Security and other income may result in a good portion of early benefits being subject to inclusion in income and painfully taxed. On the other hand, a lower age 62 benefit may mean that the taxpayer will not meet the "combined income" threshold for benefits inclusion.

Empirical studies have been done which generally arrive at the same conclusion. Early bird collectors are ahead of the game for about 12 to 15 years and then are left behind the higher benefit collector. Thus, where a person is in good health and foresees another 10+ years of retirement life, it is probably better to defer taking benefits until normal retirement

Of course, a universal rule for when to take benefits is impractical. Depending upon an individual's circumstances, it might make more sense to begin taking benefits as soon as possible regardless of the net economic benefit in the future. This brief article is no substitute for a careful consideration of your unique personal situation. Before making any

CHS student life

A day of music and pride

By Amber Gebrowsky

Last week as I was walking through the crowded halls of CHS, I felt a tap on my shoulder. Turning around, I faced a fellow student whom I had never seen before, but who nevertheless had a question for

What does that mean?" she asked, referring to the back of my sweatshirt, which read, "Just don't Drop It—CHS Color Guard 93."

Slightly surprised by the question, I replied, "Well, the color guard is part of the marching band. We're the ones spinning the flags on the football field at half time. As far as the "Just Don't Drop It" part, we don't want to drop our flags."

"Oh," she replied, and walked away, still with a rather confused look on her face.

I don't know who this individual was, or why my sweatshirt was intriguing enough for her to question me about it. However, I do know that if she had attended the Clarkston Marching Band Invitational this past Saturday, she would have no question as to what color guard was. Sixteen bands, complete with guards, were on display.

The day was truly a momentous one for CHS. Over 1,000 cars parked at our school, full of family, friends, faculty and band alumnae not just from Clarkston, but from the many other schools that attended the invitational. These music enthusiasts filled the permanent bleachers at the football field,

The musicians themselves covered the campus, looking for places to warm up and practice. Band members could be found in the gym, the bus garage parking lot, and even the fields behind the school. For everyone, a true feeling of excitement filled the air.

The day began early for our band, as we reported to the high school at 9:15 a.m. From this early hour until 9:15 p.m., the band grew, perfecting their marching and music, and more. As the day wore on, more than just blisters were formed; friendships and a feeling of family formed too. As our feet pounded the pavement of our practice field and our horns sent music soaring into the air, I was reminded of what marching band is all about.

For myself and many others, marching band is more than just an activity; it is a way of life. When I step onto the football field with my flag in hand, I lose my identity as an individual and become part of something much bigger—a tradition of excellence that has existed for longer than I've been alive

Looking at the band alumnae who attended the invitational, I am amazed at the pride they still display for their alma mater. However, it really isn't that amazing, for what they were once part of the CHS marching band—is one of the largest collections of pride, discipline and enthusiasm our community has to offer.

As I realized all this, it was sad to also realize that as a senior, this was my last Clarkston Invitational. Next year, I will join the alumnae, cheering from the sidelines and becoming a part of the legend and tradition that must be carried on. However, for the simple fact that this is something I am able to realize, I know that while this was my last home invitational, it was by far the best.

Gangs in the 'burbs

Parents: you need to pay attention

By Don Rush Assistant to The Publisher

If there is a youth gang problem in an area, it needs to be addressed: by police, educators, and of course, parents.

"The parents I deal with in court are oblivious to what goes on under their noses," Lisa Tomko, of the Oakland County Prosecutors office says.

In the last 18 months Tomko has seen many oblivious parents in court, as she works in the juvenile law system. While a majority of the children involved with gangs come from broken or bad situations at home, it is not that way all the time.

"Generally speaking, the kids I see are the kinds of kids who are not getting the attention, affection, self-esteem at home. Some kids start school doing real well, then fall off. Maybe they're not good in athletics or at school, and that's what they're expected to be doing all day long, and they can't do it.

"Then they go home and fight with their parents. So they don't want to be there either," she

These kids may then turn to youth gangs to find

"You let them go out and they are doing all these things under your nose, they're going to end up in court and the prosecutor's office is not going to tolerate it."

--Lisa Tomko, assistant prosecutor, Oakland County

what they are lacking from their home life. "The gang provides their ultimate sense of loyalty. It becomes their family," Tomko says.

A parent's first reaction right now might be panic -- my kid's a gang member, he wears baggy clothes, or he has an earring. Parents should be cautious.

"You don't want to label a kid a gang member just because he wearing a Starter jacket," says Larry Gibson, Madison Heights Police Department Youth Officer. "Be careful."

Gibson and Tomko have co-authored a program detailing what to look for, how to recognize a gang member or gang activity.

Here's part of the information Tomko and Gibson have collected.

Clothing, dress

Remember everything has a meaning that is meant to be noticed by other gang members but not by the public.

There are two "nations" of gangs who are rivals; the Folk Nation and People Nation. Gangs of the Folk Nation give signals from the right side; the gangs of the People Nation use the left.

Colors: while gangs are not restricted from wearing any color, they usually stick to the same colors as their peers. Folk Nation members are more apt to wear blue and white; conversely People Nation gangs tend to wear red and black.

These colors are found in their clothes, jewelry, even shoes and shoe laces.

Hats: members of the Folk Nation wear baseball hats with bills pointed to the right; members of the People Nation wear theirs to the left. There may be gang writing on the inside or outside of the hat.

Bandanas: while no longer very popular with the gangs in Los Angeles, Calif., gang members here can still be found with them.

The bandana is a way to "fly the colors" -- almost like a flag. It will be the color of the gang and can be either worn on the head, on the correct arm, or stuffed in a belt loop or in a pocket so the color can "fly."

Pants: members of a gang can do a number of things to show they belong. They can cuff the correct pant leg, or hang out the correct pocket. The cuff or pocket may or may not be colored or marked with gang names and symbols.

'You don't want to label a kid a gang member just because he's wearing a Starter jacket.'

Larry Gibson, youth officer

"They leave their pockets out," Gibson says, as a way to fly their color. If they see a cop they can shove it back in quick."

Sagging pants -- the style where pants are worn low -- was a style that started in prison and adopted by gangs, Gibson says. Members of a prison "harem" would wear their pants this way to be "bid on" for sex by other male inmates.

"I bet a lot of kids didn't know that," he says.

Jewelry: common are beaded friendship bracelets. Members of gangs wear their color on the correct wrist. There are beaded rings and necklaces, too.

Shoes: look for either the right (Folk) or left (People) tongue hanging out, or colored shoe laces on the right or left shoe . . . the color will be the gang's color.

Hair: some gang members cut their gang symbol in their hair. Some streak their hair the color of the gang, or put colored beads, rubber bands or barrettes in their hair.

Tattoos: "are an extension of graffiti, only on their body. There usually isn't a side correlation—just anywhere they can hide it from their parents," Gibson says.

Tattoos can be colorful, or self-inflicted. Gang members may carve their gang nickname into their body, or if they are a girl, the name of their boyfriend -- the scar tissue serving as the tattoo.

A spider web between the thumb and forefinger means that person, "is caught up in the system," and has a criminal record.

A tear drop coming out of the eye can show respect for a fallen member, or the gang banger has killed somebody.

Parents, pay attention

Jerry Narsh, a police officer in both Oxford and Lake Orion, says parents need to pay attention to their children

"They need to listen to their children, be aware of who their friends are. As parents we want to trust our kids. We want to resist the idea that our kid may be a gang member," he says.

Law enforcement officials suggest parents pay attention to the clothes their kids wear -- is there a pattern of certain colors, do their friends all wear the same colors?

Listen for the names. Do your child's friends only call him a certain nickname, are the friends only called a certain nickname?

Parents should be aware of gang symbols, or cryptic messages on clothing and school work.

"You get to be a teenager and you think parents should stay out of our life. 'Let me do my own thing, don't bug me Mom and Dad.' So the parent thinks, 'Well, gee, my child needs his privacy.' That is being derelict. You need to know what your child is doing. They are still children," Tomko says.

"You let them go out and they are doing all these things under your nose, they're going to end up in court and the prosecutor's office is not going to talerate it."

tolerate it."

Poet's writing is search for truth

BY EILEEN OXLEY Clarkston News Staff Writer

Though Tony Stachurski retired from the public school system a year-and-a-half ago and now concentrates on writing poetry, he has never really stopped teaching.

That was evident on a recent Friday night at the first Writers' Reading Series held at the L.A. Cafe and Java Coffeehouse in Waterford.

Stachurski, a former Clarkston schools science teacher, not only began the monthly poetry-reading programs to showcase featured writers like Linda Nemec Foster and Lawrence Pike (who appeared that Friday), but to give aspiring poets the spotlight in an open mike that follows.

Near the end of the night, earringed college students Guy Whittaker of Ortonville and Michael McCrary of Lake Orion nervously began a duet. While Whittaker expounded on love and youthful angst, pushing his scarlet-dyed hair away from his eyes anxiously, the calmer McCrary strummed his guitar softly.

Several times Whittaker hoarsely whispered, "Chorus," and McCrary's music would swell, adding emotion to the reading. When they finished, the young men's faces beamed as diners clapped and Stachurski smiled.

Theirs was the only performance to include music and Stachurski was quick to comment.

'When I'm finished with one (poem) I've gone 15 rounds with it.'

Tony Stachurski

"Lyric poetry comes from the word 'lyre,' an ancient musical instrument. Originally poetry was sung to the lyre. And so, that's where 'lyrics' comes from," he said. He encouraged the young men to "do more and come again."

It was almost like he was back in the classroom.

After he left Clarkston to teach in what he calls "the showcase-system" of Troy public school, Stachurski said he realized it couldn't compare with the experience he had in the village.

"The kids out here are smart and well-behaved. Clarkston should count its blessings."

He added that, although he taught science to several grades, the junior-high students were favorites.

"It's what I loved best — it was so much fun. My seventh-graders were interested about what they were learning."

But though he had an excellent rapport with his students, Stachurski expected them to behave.

"I would say, 'You'd better be paying attention—and as much as I am—or somebody is going to leave," he laughed.

And he also has more than faint praise for Clarkston's teachers. Leaning forward and meeting your eyes with his piercing own, he wants to make sure YOU'RE paying attention.

"I have never met anybody in Clarkston that had [his or her] feet upon the desk."

For awhile, during his years at Troy, Stachurski taught evening English classes at both Oakland Community College campuses in Auburn Hills and Royal Oak. But he never seemed to have enough time to pursue his writing.

After retirement that changed.

"I'm very conscientious and I hadn't been able to spend a lot of time writing, because teaching took so much time," he said.

A REFLECTIVE MOMENT finds poet and former Clarkston school teacher Tony

The first poem he fell in love with was William Wordsworth's "Daffodils." Then, in college at Wayne State University, he was fortunate to have W.D. Snodgrass, a Pulitzer Prize-winning poet, as his professor.

"I was lucky. I liked him and therefore I started to really like poetry — so I started writing."

He wound up graduating from Wayne State with three degrees, a bachelor's in science and both a B.A. and master's in English.

Now, Stachurski says he wakes up every morning and writes for awhile, whether he feels like it or not.

"I get up religiously and write from nine to one

The Ferris Wheel

By Tony Stachurski

From some carnival lot, the galaxy reels, Cast off long ago like an old ferris wheel,

Axle-sheared, its dusty star-bulbs blinking around Like the tired carousel of the spheres. Up and down,

Only stopping to drop the dead off As we rock in our hard, wooden chairs at the top,

Watching in fear, the whole void below, Straining our eyes for the guardian angels aglow

The park entrance sign. Again, with a whoosh in Passing planets and moons like saucers and cups

And comets whiplashing like wild roller coast

Crowded with faces still horror struck. Stars

Everywhere like old Roman Candles fizzle away As we turn from the darkness and pray,

Clutching each other, uneasy and cold, Drifting deeper and darker into the unknown, each day, Monday through Friday. I even keep pen and paper at my bedside.

With blue cotton candy stuck in our hair, The smell of stale popcom still in the air. Stachurski reading selections from one of his favorite writers, poet Charles Bukowski.

"And I'm not one of these people who takes an hour to write a poem. When I'm finished with one I've gone 15 rounds with it," he laughed.

Stachurski said many of his poems reflect "spiritual struggles" or a searching for truth. But they don't have answers to life, only questions. They are, though, definitely metaphysical and introspective

"I would always pose this question to my students," he said. "Do you think life is good, evil or indifferent?"

"At best I find it to be indifferent. The world is indifferent to us. There could very well be a malicious aspect to life sometimes. Somebody may be pulling the strings on us."

Does he believe in God or an afterlife?

"I can't get the final answers," he said, thoughtfully. "I hope so. But I guess I feel if there is a God, he must be crazy," he laughed. "I guess, to me, there's no religion higher than the truth. And I want to know what that is."

Stachurski is quick to point out he is an "upbeat person," trying to get as much as possible out of life while he travels "down life's road." That includes learning to play jazz guitar, something he's always wanted to do.

"If the world someday slows down and adds one more hour, that's something I want to do," he laughed. His other loves — playing handball, dancing, traveling, and playing the accordian — are present passions.

"A lot of people don't have passion. And many have regrets. I don't want to be 70 or 80 and say 'I screwed up."

"Not 'going for it' is one place I don't want to be in."

Which is one reason Stachurski has found a niche with his writing — and his support for fellow writers and travelers.

He's ready for more of the journey — into the great wide open.

"With all my poems, I try to put into feeling what I know. Anybody who's after the truth knows what I mean," he said, with intensity.

"If you have the courage to get into that ship and sail across that very dangerous ocean of truth, sharks or whatever ... you have to have the courage to face up to what you find."

Playgrounds come under scrutiny

BY ANNETTE KINGSBURY Clarkston News Editor

The "monster piece" may be the most popular piece of equipment on the Pine Knob Elementary School playground. But to Penny Shanks, it's a nightmare.

Shanks, a member of the Clarkston schools PTA Council, is concerned about the height (16 feet), the lack of a cushioning area beneath it for falls, a metal arm sticking out to support it, and lots of other things.

In a nutshell, the monster doesn't meet any of today's standards for playground safety as defined by the US Consumer Product Safety Commission. But it's not the only one: Many pieces of equipment on Clarkston school playgrounds have problems, according to a presentation Shanks made to the board of education recently.

Shanks gave the board an overview of government standards for just one area of playground safety—fall zones—then showed videotape of Clarkston playgrounds. The contrast was startling.

"When we first attacked this as a study, we really felt we had grabbed the bear by the tail," Shanks said. "Where do you start?" So the PTA Council decided to concentrate on just one safety concern, fall zones. That is, the area under a piece of equipment where falling children are likely to land.

On a recent tour of the Pine Knob playground, Shanks pointed out the lack of cushioned fall zones. She also turned up a broken teeter-totter seat, a loose screw and a piece of glass on the playground. As children played, she pointed out concrete footings that are now sticking out above ground level and hard surfaces where swinging kids could fall.

"We feel very strongly if you are asking kids to come out there you have to take some ownership," she said. While not singling out Clarkston, she said that statewide, "Some districts are more inclined to see playgrounds as fluff."

Perhaps that's at least partly because of a recent state law which says districts cannot be sued for playground injuries. It may also be because much playground equipment is donated, usually by PTAs.

In Clarkston, more injuries happen inside the buildings than on the playground, according to Deputy Superintendent for Business and Operations Steve Lenar. "But yet they want to focus on the outside," he said. "It is frightening when you look at some of the equipment. We're in the process of completing an audit."

The audit was undertaken, Lenar said, because of some concerns raised during the last school year. "I have no idea what kinds of problems we have," he said. But he agreed the playgrounds need updating.

At Pine Knob, parts of the playground date to the school's construction in the 1960s, others have been added as recently as last year. But even the newer additions, such as an asphalt walkway designed to provide a dry path to and from the building which was paid for by the PTA, doesn't meet safety standards, Shanks said.

"This is school improvement planning," she said. "It's just very frustrating that we're not always generating the information we need."

While everyone seems to agree that there's room for improvement, cost is the big obstacle. Lenar expects his playground audit to be ready by November 1 but it's unknown how the necessary repairs will be paid for. Shanks said just putting a cushioned fall zone under the monster at Pine Knob could cost $4,000.

Despite the consensus, Lenar would like the PTA Council to allow the audit to be completed before making statements about the condition of the playgrounds.

"The PTA people are not specialists in this area," he said. "They can show the obvious but they don't know the technical details... There are some issues there we need to take care of right away. But on the other hand, it's like other issues we have to take care of."

Some equipment may have to be closed and removed as a result of the audit, Lenar said. Money for such work could come from the building and maintenance budget. Big ticket items could come from leftover bondissue money, superintendent Gary Haner said earlier.

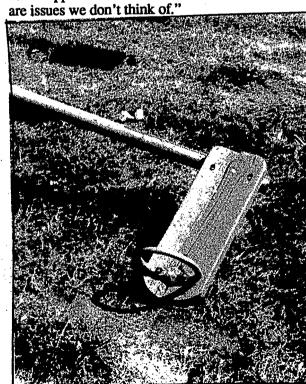

"Once that comes in and we see how big a beast we're talking about we may have to approach the board," Shanks said. "PTAs can't raise that kind of funds."

Lenar said he doesn't foresee doing away with recess at any school, no matter what the audit report says. "Jump ropes and kickballs are still pretty safe," he said. "It's just a matter of time for kids to burn off activity."

Despite her concerns, Shanks doesn't want recess to shut down either. "But we need to address it now," she said. "We don't have 10 years to wait with some of this equipment."

Adding to the situation is new regulation which is expected to be handed down next year on handicap accessibility to playground equipment under the Americans with Disabilities Act.

"That will take some serious looking into," Shanks said. "We really need to have parents of handicapped children on committees because these are issues we don't think of."

This seat was swinging free on another teeter totter.

Council confused by survey

EILEEN OXLEY Clarkston News Staff Writer

When councilwoman Karen Sanderson presented the findings of a city water interest survey to Clarkston's city council Monday night, it was a mixed bag of opinion.

Out of the approximately 400 surveys sent in early summer, 168 were returned and those showed everything from "emphatic yes's to emphatic no's to everything in between," Sanderson said.

Most residents who responded reported having outdoor wells but, surprisingly, others stated theirs were indoorsin basements. And although complaints included rust in the water, sulfuric smells and contamination reports from five residents, the chief concern was the cost of hooking up to city water.

"I'm surprised more people weren't concerned about the quality of their water," Mayor Sharron Catallo said.

Most (103) reported their water as being "good" while only 34 residents checked the "poor" category.

Because of the many different kinds of responses, some council members said they didn't know if a complete city hook-up would ever be agreed upon.

"I don't know where we're going to go with it, personally," Catallo said."There's not an overwhelming number in any direction."

Councilman Steve Secatch agreed and he offered a suggestion.

"The people with the most contamination might want to petition council just to do their street. To get everybody in the village to put in ... I think it'll be hard," he said.

Meanwhile, City Manager Art Pappas said he would investigate the previously discussed costs of a community water system. And he will also check into whether full or partial hook-up is the most feasible. He hopes to present facts and figures to council at its next meeting Oct. 10.

Three residents who were concerned about their wells came to hear the survey results, including David Bihl who lives on Wompole. Wompole is just north of Clarkston Road and near N. Main where residents recently hooked up to Independence Township's community water system because of contamination problems.

Bihl, who presently has a shallow well, is concemed about constructing a deeper one. And he doesn't want to do it if the city decides upon a community water system.

"I don't want to put in a three-inch well and possibly hit contamination — Do you take the chance?" he said. "I could go from good water to bad water.

"I have a neighbor who had to have her water tested three times before they told her it was OK -That scares me."

Pappas expressed concern.

"Once you hit a contaminated main, you're done." he said. In other council action:

 Major and local road repair was discussed. Councilman Steve Secatch said that contractor Larry Bonds, who did the repair, failed to contact council after doing the first phase. Council had set a $3,000 mark for the end of that phase. Instead, Secatch said Bonds has done $8,900 worth of work, $2,000 for local and $6,900 for major roads, without keeping track of the spending. Though council has cash reserves "to cover it," said Secatch, many members were angry about the situation. Councilwoman Karen Sanderson suggested that the problem was a "verbal" agreement. "Everything should be in writing," she said. Secatch will meet with Bonds to get an estimate for the remainder of the road work which needs to be done on Miller (see related story on 15A).

. Council passed a motion, 6-0, in favor of hiring part-time crossing guard Elwin Hale at Middle Lake and M-15. Hale replaces James Watson who will serve as a substitute guard on that corner. Councilman Bill Basinger was absent.

 Concern over the unlit American flag in Depot Park was discussed. City manager Art Pappas said he called Heritage Flag Tuesday to check "flag etiquette" and was told "theoretically" flags should be lit at night. The park's flag is kept flying around the clock. Pappas said he will discuss the possibility of hooking a light to a utility pole to spotlight the flag at the next council meeting.

Traffic protest

BY EILEEN OXLEY Clarkston News Staff Writer

Mickey DeLong, a resident of Miller Road, says she thinks there must be "truck route" signs on her street.

Of course, she says that with tongue in cheek. Residents who live on that road say they want to keep non-local traffic, including big, noisy commercial trucks, out of their peaceful neighborhood.

"Everybody considers this their straight shot [to Holcomb and Dixie] and they are indignant to anyone who interferes with it," said Miller resident Vicki Garlitz. Vicki and Steve, her husband, also don't like the fact their 13-year-old son can't Rollerblade safely. There aren't any sidewalks on the north side of the

Trying to put up with noise, dust and congestion has been a bitter pill. But the folks on Miller refuse to swallow it.

That's why Miller resident Tom Garrett got a petition together to get stop signs posted at Glenburnie and Miller a few months ago.

But Garret and his neighbors say they won't stop there. The stop signs have only minimized the ongoing speeding problem. Now they want more curbing of that and other traffic problems down the 25 mph street.

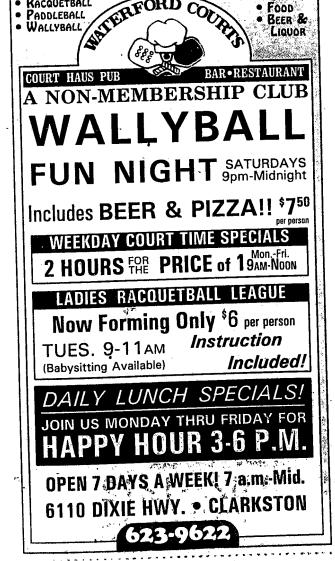

"The stop sign stops speeding but ... There's more noise stopping and starting ... Garbage trucks go through here at 4 or 5 in the morning, but they're not ours ... I feel Miller road has always been the forgotten street in this village ..., " were some of the complaints from various Miller neighbors who gathered on the lawn next to resident Tom Garrett's home Friday evening.

"I don't think this is a new problem; it's always been here, said Garrett, who, with his wife Debbie, has been a Miller resident for four years.

Folks on Miller say the volume of traffic down their street is steadily increasing each year. Much is due to the commercial and non-local vehicles that use Miller as a short cut to avoid the congestion on M-15 and the next three lights through town at Clarkston,

BASKETBALL

RACQUETBALL

CONCERNED MILLER ROAD RESIDENTS say they won't stop fighting for more traffic controls on their street. Standing next to a stop sign they got installed at Glenburnle

Washington and Waldon roads.

The problem is how to stop it. And different people have different answers.

Clarkston Police Chief Robert DeVore thinks the problem can best be solved by dealing with the traffic pile-up at Clarkston and M-15 during especially heavy hours of the day for motorists coming off the expressway (I-75).

They need to put a left turn arrow there so people can turn off M-15 and avoid the bottleneck. People getting out of work don't want to sit there," he said.

DeVore has contacted Bob DeCorte, director of engineering at TIA (Traffic Improvement Association) of Oakland County to do a thorough study. DeCorte will in Clarkston in a couple of weeks to begin an evaluation of the Miller Road problem.

"I contacted MDOT (MIchigan Department of Transportation) and told them I'm going to do a study," DeCorte said. "We'll do traffic counts, timing of the signal and turning movements — how many cars can't make it through that light. We'll plug the results into a computer software program that determines the levelofservice as to how well it's working atthat intersection.

"The study will look at the number of vehicles lined up in the southbound turn lane and the time they spend waiting."

DeCorte agrees with DeVore that the posting of

"no through traffic" signs wouldn't help because Miller is a public road and citations can't be issued.

"To strictly attempt to reduce traffic [on Miller] defeats the purpose of using a public road. If a sign is put up, is that through traffic or not? They (drivers) could turn on Glenburnie and be a second-block resident," he said.

DeCorte said he would also be looking at criteria such as accident experience and general environmental factors such as treesand mailboxes — to determine if, from the TIA's perspective, there is indeed a problem. He will send the results of the evaluation to MDOT which, he says, will assess the Clarkston councilman Steve Secatch, who works as a liaison between council and the DPW, says so far the city has spent $8,900 of its road maintenance funds during an extensive street repair project this summer. Miller, he says, still needs about $1,400 worth of work.

He feels much of Miller's demise is due to the traffic problem which causes an almost vicious cycle.

Secatch offers several solutions: "Put 'no right turn' signs (for southbound M-15 traffic) in for certain hours, like 7-8 a.m. and 3:30-5:30 p.m. when traffic is heaviest — people going to and coming home from work. Set police radar during the busiest times of the day. Or enforce the 'no through trucks' sign posted on Miller."

Though there is no sign at Miller and M-15, which Garrett says wasprobablytakendown temporarily duringwaterpipe installation along M-15 this summer, there is one at Miller and Holcomb.

"I sympathize with the people on Miller. I know they get an awful lot of traffic," Secatch said.

Clarkston police Cprl. Mark Ladetto doesn't think Secatch's suggestions will work.

"If you post a 'no right — or left — turn' between certain hours it won't work; it'll cause more of a bottleneck through town and besides people won't even notice it for a couple of months," he said. Ladetto added that he has done some radar on Miller and found no significant speeding problems. There isn't enough time between stop signs to speed.

He feels that, frankly, Miller Road residents may have to live with their problem.

"When your town is wedged in between three main arteries of traffic — Dixie, M-15 and I-75 you just have to expect it," he said.

Some residents like Rita Chisholm, who has lived on the north side of Miller for 62 years, agree

"It's heavy everywhere in town ... There's traffic, but where isn't there traffic?" she said.

And DeLong, who has lived here 30 years, thinks the problem is progress.

"This used to be a nice quiet little village." realize it can't be that way anymore," she said.

But Garrett disagrees.
"People either accept it or they speak up like we're doing," he said.

Guns + school = expulsion

New state law is already policy at CHS

BY ANNETTE KINGSBURY Clarkston News Editor

Last year a student was caught bringing a gun into Clarkston High School to sell to another student. Both students were expelled; neither has returned to the school.

A new state law passed by the legislature will make such expulsions mandatory for a minimum of 180 days. It will not, apparently, change the way such incidents are handled at CHS.

According to principal Brent Cooley, school policy already calls for expulsion, subject to the approval of the board of education. In his nine years in the district, Cooley said the board has never failed to expel a student when such a request has been made.

"There is zero tolerance at Clarkston High School for weapons," Cooley said. "It (the new law) is not going to change things because that is already our policy.'

In the last nine years, Cooley said 12 students have been expelled from CHS for either weapons or drug violations. "I can't recall a situation where a youngster didn't want to get back in school," Cooley said. "The board is concerned about their welfare in certain conditions the board may allow for readmission the next year."

Under the new law, which was passed by the Michigan legislature last week and expected to be signed by Governor Engler, expulsion is automatic if a gun, a knife with a blade longer than three inches or any switchblade are brought onto school grounds. Students who commit arson or rape on school grounds will also be automatically expelled.

For students in grades 6-12, expulsion is for a minimum of 180 days. For grades K-5, the expulsion is for a minimum of 90 days. Students may petition for reinstatement after the expulsion is served, and it would be up to the school board to make the decision and set any conditions for return.

Even if the child is under 16, the age below which Michigan students are required to be in school, Cooley said the district is no longer responsible for their education once they are expelled. In Clarkston they are not allowed to enroll in alternative high school in the district during the expulsion.

'There is zero tolerance at Clarkston High School for weapons.'

Principal Brent Cooley

"The board of education has the authority to expel any student regardless of age," Cooley said. "We really need to change (student) behavior. I think it's incumbent on the school to create circumstances for readmission."

State Rep. Tom Middleton (R, Ortonville), who voted for the new law, said he feels it will help achieve a secure environment in the schools.

"Students and teachers have a right to a secure learning environment without the threat of violence interrupting their education," he said. "This legislation sends a powerful message to students who endanger themselves or others by bringing a gun or students and teachers," Middleton said.

In last year's incident at CHS, the student who brought the gun in was charged with a misdemeanor and sentenced to probation and a fine, according to Oakland County Sheriff's Deputy Dave Hernandez.

Hemandez said he hasn't yet seen the new law he supports the idea.

"The law, I imagine, has good intent," he said. knife to school.

"These are tough penalties but the frightening increase in the number of weapons incidents in our schools and the rising number of young people killed by senseless violence makes this firm stance necessary. Young people must get the message that no weapons will be tolerated on school property or at school functions."

Middleton said the new law requires that an expelled student be referred to an appropriate social services or mental health agency within three days. It apparently would allow students to attend alternative high schools or private schools during the suspen-

"Every right is being made to protect the rights of students accused of breaking the weapons law, but those rights must be balanced with the rights of other

Background checks now required

BY DARREL W. COLE Clarkston News Staff Writer

Background checks for prospective employees of Independence Township's Parks and Recreation Department may soon become law.

Under a proposed ordinance amendment, parks and rec volunteer coaches and prospective employees would be subject to the check. Township attorney Gerald Fisher recommended the item be tabled at the Independence Board of Trustees meeting Sept. 20.

Fisher said there are other guidelines he wants to include in the ordinance before its adoption. The board could vote to accept the amendment at its next meeting Oct. 3.

In a letter to board members, Ann Conklin, parks and rec director, said there already had been an unwritten policy of making background checks, in cooperation with the Oakland County Sheriff's Department. Recent state legislation mandates communities adopt a local ordinance allowing such background checks. The sheriff's department requested the ordinance amendment.

Conklin said the background check is essential because many of the coaches and employees in the department work closely with children.

The amendment states no person shall be "hired or contracted to serve the parks and recreation department in a capacity which may regularly or occasionally involve direct contact with children, including, all employees, coaches, umpires, counselors, and the like, if such a person shall have been convicted of any offense concerning or involving: minors, controlled substances, morals, and/or violence."

Other Sept. 20 board action:

 Final adoption was given to update electrical and fire codes. In addition, an ordinance was adopted which states the township is responsible for administering and enforcing building, plumbing and mechanical codes.

Both ordinance adoptions are required by state and federal laws.

 The proposed Strawberry Hills Subdivision, located on M-15, was given final plat approval, provided $5,800 be placed in escrow.

The escrow account will ensure the developer takes care of three concerns brought up by township consultants.

The items which need to be addressed before construction are: Joints must be sealed in the safety path/sidewalk, irons and monuments need to be installed, and silt restoration must also be completed.

When the items are completed the escrow account will be returned.

• Residents in the Bow Pointe Special Assessment District will get to pay their first SAD payment later than originally planned.

The original Aug. 1, 1994 payment due date is now changed to Dec. 1, 1994. The change was made because of three reasons: No summer tax bill, the SAD plans, bids, etc. have not progressed in a timely fashion, and the now-defunct offer of a manufacturing plant in the Bow Pointe area was taken back.

 Thomas McDonald beat out several others and was hired as the Fire Department's new driverengineer. His first day will be Sept. 30.

Heritage Hunt II

By Virginia Block

A gift of love that holds treasures for so many comes when any relative passed us "their side" of the family history, but in the case of our editor, Don Rush, the copy of the Jones-Taylor genealogy is a real labor of love, covering 15 generations.

"Grandma Rush," nee Mildred Fletcher, is the maternal progenitor and leads us through the 4-part book that includes Part One - the Jones ancestry beginning with Frederick Harley Jones of Saline, Mo. Part two furnishes the maternal line, Hazelwood, of Grandpa Jones. Third generation: Alonzo Jones married Elizabeth Hazelwood and James T. Taylor wed Julia Ann Hicks. Thereafter, woven into the Jones-Taylor lines follow the Taylor ancestry and lastly the 4th part details the Hicks family.

Documentation includes copies of Civil War records for William M. Taylor. Previously, records for service of William Taylor (who served in the American Revolution and was related to Zachary Taylor) is documented. Loads of census records, will extractions and other reference sources of all 4 families provide a very definitive picture of the intermarriages between these aforementioned family lines.

Moreover Virginia, North Carolina, Kentucky, Tennessee, Missouri, Illinois and several other states are "home" to the various families, before they came to Michigan. There is a world of information to sift through but very helpful in the presentation.

Don, you are a lucky young man to be so fortunate -- but now let's go forth in search of Grandpa Rush's history as well. Clues to his family living in certain geographic areas and time periods, and their marrying into the resulting parental pattern that Don was born into, will begin the path to "discover."

Since we are provided a copy of the lengthy recordings and findings there is an opportunity to share the ties to many (more than a hundred) spousal surnames that include a Pendleton line that at least two friends need to be able to share.

Milestones At school

● David R. Orr of Clarkston, a senior studying electrical engineering, made the Dean's List for summer quarter at Michigan Technological University. The list requires at least a 3.5 grade point average.

Timothy Hale of Clarkston was among Oakland University students in the Gold Key National Honor Society who traveled to San Francisco recently to receive the Key Chapter Award. Golden Key is a non-profit academic honors organization. Membership is by invitation only to the top 15 percent of juniors and seniors in all fields of study.

● Janae Cooley and Amy Flores are the recipients of Honors Scholarships from Kalamazoo College. Nominees were selected from new students admitted to the school based on academic accomplishment as well as extra-curricular achievements. Both are graduates of Clarkston High School. Janae is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Brent Cooley. Amy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Genaro Flores.

● Charles Graham and Timothy Szykula of Clarkston High School and Benjamin DeGrow of Springfield Christian Academy have been named semifinalists in the 1995 National Merit Scholarship competition. The semifinalists represent the top one-half of one percent of each state's graduating class. The students now continue on in competition for a total of $26 million in scholarships.

Brown-Wiedemann

Ronald and Suzanne L. Brown of Clarkston announce the engagement of their daughter, Serena L., to John T. Wiedemann, son of John T. and Margaret Wiedemann of Clarkston. The bride-to-be is a 1987 graduate of Clarkston High School and a 1992 graduate of Western Michigan University where she received a B.S. in interior design. She is employed as a designer by Harley-Ellington in Southfield. The prospective groom is a 1982 graduate of Clarkston High School and graduated from Michigan State University in 1987, obtaining a B.S. in mechanical engineering. He works as a sales engineer for Whitesell & Associates in Grand Blanc. A February 1995 wedding at St. Daniel's Catholic Church is being planned.

Stone honored by OCC

Oakland Community College honored Dr. Thomas Stone as a distinguished emeritus at Excellence Day observances Sept. 16 at the Troy Marriott.

Stone, of Clarkston, was one of four faculty and two staff members to receive the honor. He is a retired counselor at the school's Royal Oak campus who still teaches math part-time.

Stone received BS, master's and doctoral degrees from Wayne State University. He worked for OCC full time for 24 years before retiring in June, 1993. Over the years he taught math, sociology and psychology, was an admissions counselor for 10 years and an education counselor for 14 years.

A 22-year Clarkston resident, he is also president of the Independence Land Conservancy.

The recommendation for Stone's award states the following, in part: "He was committed to providing our students the best service and services possible. He was our expert in the use and development of computer career services. We would always turn to him for his incredible ability to analyze situations and formulate strategies from working with students to implementing new initiatives. He has a great sense of humility and fairness... He always had the ability to seek out and value each member of the department's opinion, voice his own opinion, and then accept the group decision—an unusual characteristic of someone with such strong and acknowledged leadership because she moves," he said. He said the baby did not attend classes regularly and is no longer enrolled in the program.

"I know that she was not evicted because of rent," he said. "She was evicted because of unauthorized persons living in the home."

Her ADC, which had been paying her rent, was closed when she failed to turn in the required paper-

Police, EMS workers and employees of Food Town also testified as to their concerns for the child. Store employees saw her daily in what they described as filthy conditions as her mother and two men came in to cash in bottles.

Prosecutor Edward Cibor said it was clear Williamson knew how to take care of her daughter, she just failed to do so.

"The department (DSS) was there; the department tried to get the mother to follow through. But she didn't," he said. "As soon as the department steps back . . the mother changes all of that. Not anyone else; the mother."

On Tuesday, a doctor from North Oakland Medical Centers testified that when she examined the baby, she found her to be suffering from malnutrition and severely underweight.

The prosecution rested its case Tuesday. The trial will resume Thursday at 9 a.m.

WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 21, family problems on W. Church. When an officer arrived at 12:40 a.m. he found an Ohio woman staying with her parents because of marriage problems. Her husband had driven from Ohio, arriving around midnight, and talked of killing himself if he was denied seeing his wife and son.

SATURDAY, SEPT. 24, a Clarkston man was arrested for drunk driving on northbound M-15 near Robertson Court.

SUNDAY, SEPT. 25, residents on N. Holcomb, plagued by a fallen tree with one limb containing a giant bee hive, called officers. With the help of two other residents. the officer removed the limb and carried the boxed bees to a wooded area.

MONDAY, SEPT. 26, a Waterford man with two outstanding warrants, one each from Grand Blanc Township and Bloomfield Township, was arrested. He was ticketed for DWLS and a "no turn on red" violation at M-15 and W. Washington.

Positives come from two defeats

Doubles team excels

BY DARREL W. COLE Clarkston News Staff Writer

At least it wasn't a shutout.

That's what Clarkston girls tennis coach Dick Swartout expected in matches against division powers Birmingham Groves Sept. 21 and Bloomfield Hills Andover Sept. 23. But rather than go winless against the two teams, they lost by identical scores of 6-2 in each match.

And the good part for Swartout was his squad had a chance of doing even better.

"From three singles on down we were very competitive," he said. "We did well because the doubles teams are playing a little better than the others."

The Wolves had an even better chance to win against Groves but close three-set-matches at #3 singles and #3 doubles ended up in losses.

Winning against Groves was the #1 doubles team of Kelley Wall and Renee Shubert, 6-4, 6-1, and the #2 doubles team of Jocelyn Stock and Sam Schubering, 7-6, 7-5.

The Andover match saw Mary Schmidt win at #3 singles, 6-2, 7-5, and Sam Schubering win by default at #4 singles.

The Wolves showed they can beat other teams in a 8-0 defeat of Waterford Kettering Sept. 20.

Winners against Kettering were: #1 singles Jody Weatherington, #2 singles Renee Van Klavern, #3 singles Schmidt, #4 singles Kristy Kade, #1 doubles Wall and Shubert, #2 doubles Schubering and Stock, #3 doubles Emily Kortge and Carrie Ruddy, and #4 doubles Kate Atkinson and Becky Olsen.

Swartout said he was proud of the way his athletes performed last week because they weren't expected to come close to Groves or Andover. The Oakland Activities Association Division II will remain tough each week, but Swartout said he is confident his team will always give an effort.

"It's hard the rest of the way but the kids are still working hard," he said.

Jody Weatherington, #1 singles player, looks to return this practice shot before the Birmingham Groves match Sept. 21.

Number two doubles player Renee Shubert waits between points during the Groves match.

Offensive line dominates from beginning to end Gridders offense improves with win

BY DARREL W. COLE Clarkston News Staff Writer

They just wouldn't quit.

Even after Troy Athens scored on a 97-yard opening drive, Clarkston football players never let down. Their determination was evident as they ended up dominating the remainder of the Sept. 23 game, winning 42-14.

"We told the kids before the game that we were obviously the better team but we had to come out and play like it," said coach Kurt Richardson. "We let down a little when they scored first but came back later"

It could have been a disastrous game to start with, especially after the Wolves were stopped on a 4th-and-goal at the Athens 3-yard line, setting up Athens' first score.

But rather than let down, the Wolves came back with a scoring drive of their own, going 72 yards in under two minutes, tying the score a 7-7 early in the second quarter. Senior fullback Rich Bevins scored from 2-yards out.

The Wolves defense held Athens on the next possession and the offense, thanks to the skills of senior tailback Jason Graves, scored again.

Graves scored on a 45-yard run on the first play. "I think we got back in it when we scored right away, stopped them and then scored again just as fast," Richardson said. "I think the kids then realized we should win."

The Wolves didn't stop with a mere 14-7 lead. Before halftime, senior quarterback Toby Evans again directed the offense and threw a 14-yard touchdown pass to senior receiver Jeremy Fife.

Graves scored a short time later on a 6-yard run, giving his team a 28-7 lead at halftime.

The second half was much the same. Clarkston promptly took their first possession of the half 53

We have to win the war in the trenches because we have the weapons on offense to do some damage.'

Coach Kurt Richardson

yards, capped by a 19-yard TD run from Graves.

After that score the Wolves pulled their starters. Athens scored its final touchdown in the fourth quarter. Wolves junior Ryan Schapman ended the scoring with a 1-yard run:

The key to the game was the play of the offense, especially the all-senior offensive line of center Brett Rebb, guards Dion White and Joe Naboychik, tackles Jeremy Coolidge and James Bullock, and tight end Brad Agar.

Richardson said the offensive line and quarterback play set the pace of the game.

"The offensive line had an outstanding game. They really dominated.

"We worked on them all week and it will be a key the rest of the way out. We have to win the war in the trenches because we have the weapons on offense (running backs and receivers) to do some damage."

The main weapon all season has been Graves. He had another spectacular game (with great blocking from senior fullback P.J. Vandermeer) against Athens with three TDs and 170 yards rushing on 17 carries.

But it was Evans' play that lifted the Wolves to victory. He finished 9-of-17 passing for 129 yards and one TD. It was his leadership that allowed the Wolves to gain over 300 yards of offense.

"He made good choices whether it was throwing or running," Richardson said.

That offensive balance will be a point of emphasis for the rest of the season. "We're going to try and throw more," Richardson said. "We want to work towards having that balance on offense and open it up a little bit more."

With a Friday, Sept. 30 game against Oakland Activities Association Division I foe Rochester, Richardson wants his team to remain focused.

"We're almost there but to continue to beat people we need to continue to play mistake-free football."

JV Football

Clarkston's JV football team won their first game of the season Sept. 22 in a 26-0 shutout of Troy Athens.

Jeff Long led the Wolves to a 14-0 halftime lead with two touchdown runs. Jason Frack returned a punt for a touchdown also.

The JV squad is 1-3 overall and play their fifthstraight road game Sept. 29 against Ann Arbor Huron.

JV Hoops

The Clarkston JV girls basketball team lost by 11 points to Berkley Sept. 20.

But the Wolves bounced back with 30-27 win over Rochester Sept. 22.

This week, the girls play at Troy Sept. 29.

Freshman sports

By Kit Cischke

Think the varsity and JV football players are the only ones out there? Think again. Clarkston High School also has a freshman football team that plays on Thursdays. They have the same schedule as the JV team, but play at 4 p.m. According to the schedule, they play Ann Arbor Huron this Thursday at Huron.

Even though Clarkston has a reputation for excellent basketball, those star hoopsters don't just "poof" into existence for their games. The freshman girls team is the proving grounds to weed out the weak and leave only the strong to move on to the higher planes of existence—not that the freshman girls are lowly—to take the place of the graduating girls to continue the tradition of excellence.

Mistakes mean close losses

BY DARREL W. COLE Clarkston News Staff Writer

It was a week of close games and poor shooting for the previously-undefeated Clarkston varsity girls basketball team.

Wolves coach Larry Mahrle said shooting troubles and turnovers led to losses against Berkley Sept. 20 and Rochester Sept. 22.

Mahrle said his young team (only two seniors) finally showed some inexperience after starting out 4-0. But he also said they know how to win, and can't use that as an excuse.

"We are young but we already squeaked out a couple of other games. Now we are in a very demanding league and it gets only tougher."

Against Berkley, the Wolves lost a low-scoring 30-28 game, led by junior Nickie Winn's 14 points.

"We didn't shoot real well, had some offensive breakdowns and made a lot of mistakes. But basketball is a funny game because we had a chance to win at the end and just couldn't pull it out."

Although the Wolves lost by over 10 points to Rochester, Mahrle said his team had a chance to win at the end.

"It was much closer than the final score because we were down by only four points with four minutes to go," he said.

A big factor in that game was the 24-6 foul differential, in favor of Rochester. "You just can't be that one-sided in fouls and expect to win the game."

But once again, Mahrle said turnovers hurt his team's chances.

As the opponents get tougher, Mahrle said the mental mistakes must be reduced. But regardless of the mistakes, the coach said he team never stops giving 100 percent.

"They don't give up and are looking forward to the rest of the season. I believe that the hard work and effort will eventually pay off for them," he said.

Clarkston tennis player Kristy Kade, a sophomore, reaches for this shot just before her #4 singles match against Birmingham Groves Sept. 21. The Wolves squad lost 6-2.

Two seconds might as well be two hours for junior Brian Ginn.

While Ginn's two-second runner-up finish to Bloomfield Hills Andover's Tony DeMarco doesn't seem like much, in cross country it's a lifetime. But Ginn wasn't the only Clarkston runner who lost by a narrow margin.

Senior Matt Warner came in fifth, just eight seconds behind third place, and six seconds behind

Despite the strong finish by Ginn and Warner, the Wolves lost their first dual meet of the season, 22-33 on Sept. 20. Clarkston's boys cross country team is now 3-1 overall. Other top finishers for Clarkston were: senior Steve Anderson, seventh in 19:10; junior Jeremy Lafferty, ninth in 19:18; senior Andy Holland, 10th in 20:02; and, junior Tim O'Rourke, 12th in 20:12.

The girls squad fared much better against Andover, winning easily 19-40.

Leading the girls squad once again was senior Leah Scharl in first place, easily outdistancing her nearest competitor by 52 seconds. Scharl ran the race in 21:19.

But it wasn't only Scharl who dominated. After Andover's Jessica Fields captured second, the Wolves took third through seventh place, led by junior Stefanie Burklow (22:43), freshman Elizabeth Cooke (23:11), sophomore Kristin Maine (23:27), junior Stacie Iezzi (23:27), and freshman Megan Plante (23:28).

Men's 30 & Over 4-on-4 Basketball League

It's back! Independence Township Parks & Recreation's very successful four-on-four men's 30 and over basketball league. The courts at Sashabaw Middle School are perfect for four on four: not too short, not too long, just the right size for a great workout! League will be held on Tuesday nights beginning October 11. Game times are 8 p.m. and 9 p.m.

Adult volleyball leagues

Parks & Recreation will be starting adult volleyball leagues in early October. The leagues will include men's, women's and co-rec divisions. Leagues will play on Wednesday and/or Thursday

For additional information on any of the above, call the Parks & Recreation Department at 625-8223, Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Raymond Eby

Raymond J. Eby, 53, of Clarkston died Sept. 22, 1994

Mr. Eby was employed as manager for Coldwell Banker, the Michael Group, Waterford office. He was a former vice president of the Evening News Association, Director of Operations at the Detroit News, Vice President at the Denver Post and Publisher/Owner of The Township Times in Saginaw Township.

Mr. Eby was also a member of Calvary Lutheran Church in Clarkston, president elect of the Auburn Hills Rotary Club, a charter member of the Clarkston Optimists and a veteran of the U.S. Army, having served as a 2nd Lieutenant in Vietnam.

Mr. Eby bought The Township Times after a long career in newspapers which began as a carrier.

"Printing was always a part of his life since he was 13," said his wife, Jan. "At 13 he published his first newspaper, a neighborhood newspaper." Mr. Eby sold ads, wrote articles, printed on a borrowed mimeograph machine and delivered the paper around his Chicago neighborhood. For his efforts, he was named "Boy of the Community" and rode in the St. Patrick's day parade in 1955. He discontinued publication when high-school life became too busy, but was hired as a correspondent by the Southwest Times.

While living in Saginaw, he was a member of the Saginaw Symphony Board and the Saginaw Zoological Society. He later sold The Township Times and began his real-estate career. He lived in Clarkston for 16 years and is described as a sports nut whose only hobby was his family.

He is survived by his wife Jan; four sons, Matthew, David, Daniel and Stephen; two daughters, Elizabeth and Catherine; and a brother, Kenneth Eby.

Ray Eby

Funeral services were Monday at Calvary Lutheran Church with Pastor Robert D. Walters offici-

Memorials may be made to Jan Eby for the benefit of the Ebys' six children.

Everett Fredericks

Everett M. Fredericks, 76, of Clarkston died Sept. 24, 1994.

Mr. Fredericks was a retired sgt. detective from the Oakland County Sheriff's Department and served as Ortonville's police chief for many years.

He is survived by his wife Jessabelle; a daughter, Patricia (Colin) Shier; three sons, Everett (Marilyn) Fredericks Jr., Joseph(Shirley) Fredericks and Karl Fredericks, allof Clarkston; eight grandchildren; a great-granddaughter, Taylor, and three sisters, Virginia Hazzard of New Jersey, Dorothy (Bob) Wilson and Connie Fredericks.

Funeral services were Tuesday at the Lewis E. Wint & Son Trust 100 Funeral Home with the Rev. Douglas R. Trebilcock officiating. Burial followed in Lakeview Cemetery.

Mary King

Mary Louise King, 59, of Clarkston died Sept. 21, 1994.

Mrs. King was a member of Mt. Hope Lutheran Church in Pontiac.

She is survived by her husband Earl; two sons, Earl Jr. (Kathy) King of Waterford and Charles (Debbie) King of Waterford; two daughters, Beverly (Bill) Van Curler of Clarkston and Lisa (Tom) Ash of Indiana; six grandchildren; a sister, Shirley (Carl) Fenner of Flint; and a brother, Donald Adams of Goodrich.

Funeral services were Saturday at Mt. Hope Lutheran Church withPastor Harold Drumm officiating.Burial followed in Ortonville Cemetery.

Memorials may be made to the National Kidney Foundation of Michigan.

REAL ESTATE UPDATE

AVOID SELLING PROBLEMS

TRYING to sell their own homes, without a Realtor can create many unwanted

27 S. Main, Clarkston 625-9300

Ron Rodda Sales Manager

Should I go into Real Estate? "ASK RON"

QUESTION: I want to sell my house but worry if I'll be swamped by curiosity seekers; if my time and lifestyle will be tied up showing the house and making financial negotiations. How can I avoid these problems?

ANSWER: Don't be a FSBO (For Sale By Owner). Sell it the professional way. Ally yourself with a professional Realtor who will show your home only to qualified buyers, capable of completing the transaction.

You will be transferring the problems to your Realtor's shoulders. Also, you'll probably come out better financially. That's why over 85% of home sellers sell through professionals.

Recall on child safety seats

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration has announced a recall of over 300,000 child safety seats produced by the Evenflo Juvenile Fumiture Company.

NHTSA has found a problem with the buckling system of Champion Model 224, Ultara I Model 231 and Ultara II Model 232. Owners should contact the manufacturer toll-free at 1-800-837-4002 to find out how to fix the problem.

The Michigan State Police Office of Highway Safety Planning reminds drivers that child safety seats should not be used if:

• the seat does not have a label stating it meets all federal motor vehicle safety standards.

● the date of manufacture is before Jan. 1, 1981.

the seat has any cracks, warping, bending or signs of tampering.

the seat has any missing parts, or if any parts look excessively worn or used.

If Fellini were still around, he could have made it into one of his typically surreal movies.

The Clarkston Marching Band Invitational Saturday night at CHS was an interesting place to be. Sixteen high school bands converged on the school grounds to perform and be judged on their marching and musicality.

But while that was going on at the athletic field, there was another whole realm of activity going on all around. Here came silently stepping a row of young ladies in white, frilly dresses. There a row of xylophones was hammering out Gershwin. In a far field an entire band marched silently; in yet another spot, a band went through a full rehearsal.

"There's bands everywhere," one student remarked, and she wasn't exaggerating. All this activity was going on side by side, and each band seemed to be oblivious of the others, each centered on perfecting its own performance. Under beautiful fall weather, it was a sight to behold.

The event was hosted for the 17th year in a row by the CHS band boosters, who do the behind-thescenes work to make it come off smoothly. Saturday they could be seen selling food, directing traffic, and peddling memorabilia all evening.

"It's our major fund-raiser," said booster Christine

The evening kicked off with the Star Spangled Banner played by the CHS brass quinter called Solid Brass. Then, the first band (Dondero) marched onto the field. Thereafter, every 15 minutes another band took the field like clockwork.

Since the CHS band wasn't playing until 9 p.m. (an exhibition, since they cannot compete in their own invitational) members could be found in the stands checking out the competition during the evening. The fans were appreciative—quiet during the performance, then applauding wildly between num-

The CHS band will begin its competitive season this weekend at West Bloomfield. As they strut their stuff, the judges will walk around the field, checking them out from every angle. They'll be looking at marching and maneuvering, difficulty of music, percussion, visual appeal and the color guard.
