Water back on; other problems found

BY ANNETTE KINGSBURY Clarkston News Editor

The drinking water at Clarkston High School passed its latest coliform bacteria test Monday. But three of six water samples taken in July failed tests of the copper level, a county health sanitarian said Tuesday.

The federal government began mandating tests for copper and lead in all wells serving over 25 people last year. Steve Presby of the Oakland County Health Department said Clarkston schools failed to submit samples during the first two mandatory testing periods. When they submitted samples for the third period in July, water from CHS exceeded the copper level. At Clarkston Middle School, one of five samples exceeded the lead level. At the Oakland Technical Center Northwest, one of four samples exceeded the lead level.

An elevated level of copper in the body can causenausea and diarrhea. Lead is well known for its toxic effects on the human body, including damage to the brain, red blood cells and kidneys.

"Most samples were within limits," Presby said.
"I understand they are in the process of retesting."

The good news is the coliform problem which shut down the drinking-water supply at CHS last week did not originate in the schools' wells.

"The wells were producing acceptable sample results. The distribution system was implicated in the indicator," Presby said. "The indicator bacteria was found in the distribution system, not in the well."

Since the problem was discovered during routine testing last week, the wells have been rechlorinated.

"That's a kind of standard thing to do when indicator bacteria is found," Presby said. "The concept there is chlorinated water gets in the system via the wells and is distributed throughout the building and that sits. And then the system is flushed."

Two samples were taken at least eight hours apart after the flushing. Both came back clean.

It's not the first time CHS has had a problem with its water distribution system. Lenar said that about three years ago, an outside system hooked up to water athletic fields had improper backflow protection and contaminated the system. Again, the wells were found to be fine.

This time, Presby thinks the cause may be different. "There was chlorine in the dosing tank but not in the water supply," he said. He stressed that is a preliminary report and not final as of presstime.

It had been six months since the CHS water system had been tested for coliform bacteria, Presby said, even though the school is supposed to be on a quarterly reporting schedule. Checking on other schools in the district, Presby found that Clarkston Middle School and Pine Knob Elementary were last tested in April; Andersonville in May, and Bailey

Lake in November. Sashabaw Middle School and North Sashabaw are on city water so testing is not the district's responsibility.

The testing for lead and copper content became mandatory as of 1993, and according to Rich Overmeyer of the state Department of Public Health, Clarkston schools were named on a long list of well owners who did not meet the first testing deadline.

"We did not at the time have records they had sampled," Overmeyer said. "We have since come up with a sample on Clarkston Elementary at least."

According to Lenar, that testing has now been done for all Clarkston schools. However the first samples from CHS again turned up some problems, so new samples were taken.

Both Overmeyer and Presby said their departments are being flooded with well reports and have a hard time keeping up with all the paperwork. In addition, some reports are sent to the county, some to the state, and some to the federal Environmental Protection Agency, adding to the confusion. Therefore, well owners are not always notified when their reports are overdue.

"Our program here is understaffed for that level of activity," Presby said.

Noting that 900 well systems were listed as missing the first federal testing deadline, Overmeyer admitted that the list may have contained errors. The list was eventually whittled down to 600.

"I know there were enough errors to go around in terms of reporting," Overmeyer said. "There was a lot of room for improvement."

He said the state is now contracting with county health departments, including Oakland County, to handle the lead/copper reports:

"It's a very complex regulation and it's not the only one the schools have to deal with. There's a host of new monitoring introduced recently. It's pretty tough. By and large, the schools are good about monitoring. It's the complexity of the laws."

Who will be king?

THE THREE SENIOR CANDIDATES for Homecoming queen, (from, left) Jenny Schultz, Kelly Raup and Jill Attaman, get ready to announce to the student body who the Homecoming king is, but first they have to ham it up a bit. The three ladies swayed back and forth over the three candidates before finally landing on Mark Ryan (left). Then the roles were reversed and the ladies sat down. For more photos and details on Homecoming events, see page 16A.

The news in brief

CDBG funds at $76,647

Independence Township citizens will get a chance to comment on how $76,647 of Community Development Block Grant funds will be spent.

A public hearing is scheduled for Oct. 18 at 7:30 p.m. at the township annex, 90 N. Main Street.

Block grant funds are given by the federal government to assist communities in low-income areas. The funds can also be used to benefit senior citizens and/or the handicapped.

Halloween hours

Independence's Halloween hours are set for 6 to 7 p.m., the same as last year.

Flemings speed

The Road Commission for Oakland County will review a reduction in speed limit for Flemings Lake Road.

The Independence Township Board of Trustees has formally requested the speed limit be lowered on Flemings to 25 mph. The speed limit, west of Sashabaw, is needed because many residents in the area say cars travel too fast, causing a safety hazard for children.

Conservancy to meet

The Independence Township Land Conservancy will hold its annual meeting Monday, Oct. 17 at the township library, 6495 Clarkston Rd. Anyone interested in preserving and conserving open space, marshlands and woodlands is invited to attend. Membership is $5 for an individual, $10 per family and $100 lifetime. Call 625-8193 or 625-1627 for more information.

People for Police schedule picnic

People for Police, the group formed to promote passage of a police millage Nov. 9 in Independence Township, invites the public to a picnic Sunday, Oct. 23 from noon to 3 p.m. at Independence Oaks County Park's Twin Chimneys Pavillion. Admission is $10 per person or $20 per family and includes hot dogs, cider and doughnuts. The Oakland County Sheriff's Marine Division will be present with a display, as will the DARE program.

In addition, People for Police has also scheduled its second meeting for Wednesday, Oct. 19 at 7 p.m. at the township hall, 90 N. Main St. The public is again invited to attend.

Detour delayed

A detour announced last week for sewer work on Maybee Rd. has been delayed.

Thomas Blust of the Road Commission for Oakland County said the contractor on the sewer work informed him last week that the original schedule will not be met. The work had been scheduled for Oct. 10-28.

The contractor gave no new starting date.

Clarkston band excels

The Clarkston High School Marching Band took four awards at the 15-band Livonia Franklin Invitational last weekend.

Clarkston placed in the march and maneuvering categories and won for best winds and best performance.

Let's do lunch

Kids aren't nuts about school choices

BY EILEEN OXLEY and ANNETTE KINGSBURY

Third-grader Amanda Settles thinks the macaroni and cheese offered in her school's hot-lunch program "looks like rubber." But she likes the breaded chicken

Her lunch mate, third-grader Dana Geiger, agrees. "The macaroni and cheese is the worst, but the best are the Mexican tacos."

Last Friday Amanda chose a hot dog because she didn't like anything else on the menu which featured a chicken salad sandwich and daily alternatives — the hot dog or a chef-like salad. Dana brought her lunch, but buys it when the school offers favorites like the tacos.

National School Lunch week is being recognized from Oct. 10-14, with Wednesday designated as "National Hot Lunch Day." A special treat of roast turkey, mashed potatoes with gravy, a homemade roll and escalloped apples will be the featured menu.

But if you talk to the kids, it may not be a reason

In visits to two schools in the past week, students gave mostly unfavorable reviews to school lunch selections. Maybe that's to be expected.

However a week's worth of elementary school lunches were faxed to David Klurfeld, chairman of the Department of Nutrition and Food Science at Wayne State University who analyzed them. While the menues looked good on paper, Klurfeld pointed out a few nutritional concerns.

"The proteins go sky-high to 138 percent (of the recommended daily allowance)— in one meal alone That's 1.3 times what you would need in a day," Klurfeld said. But he added that statistic might include milk offered on the menu which, besides calcium, is high in protein. Kids in Clarkston schools are able to select orange and apple juice in lieu of homogenized, 2percent and skim milk or 1-percent chocolate milk.

The rest of Klurfeld's findings showed meals tended to be low in polyunsaturated fat but "higher in saturated fat than they should be." Cholesterol levels were good, vitamins and minerals fairly high but sodium levels "are higher (at 66 percent) than I'd like to see," Klurfeld added.

Findings also showed a high percentage of selenium, which Klurfeld says is "nothing to worry about," especially because it's currently "speculative that selenium reduces the risk of cancer."

In all, Klurfeld says Clarkston schools hot-lunch menus generally follow a long-standing philosophy that meals should be arranged from the five basic food groups. And commercial preparations like those of school hot lunch programs vary little from school system to school system, averaging only a 20-percent difference between the most unlike menus, he said.

Klurfeld based his findings on regularly offered foods like chicken nuggets and pizza, which happen to be favorites among Clarkston Elementary kids.

Klurfeld said it's also important to consider another factor when estimating how much nourishment kids are actually getting — how much goes into

A visit to the Clarkston Elementary School cafeteria Friday revealed that most kids brought their lunches. Tables were littered with brightly-colored boxes during each period with fewer kids eating from the school's recyclable Styrofoam plates.

Some students had their own sparkling opinions about the hot-lunch food.

"It's nasty," said Kyle Post, a fifth-grader. When asked if he could put that in gentler terms, he said, "It's not very eatable."

"They use yellow cheese on the Fiestada and everybody's afraid to try it," fifth-grader Alicia Lair said. Most students interviewed said they liked the school's chicken nuggets, nachos and Little Caesar's Pizza, which is offered one day monthly. eteria Friday. Both youngsters ordered hot dogs, a daily alternative, "because we didn't like the stuff that was today," Alayna said.

Whitehead, Clarkston Elementary custodian, says he sees a lot of food tossed into the big trash cans in the school's cafeteria.

"I went up to one kid who was dumping a whole sandwich still wrapped in plastic. I said, 'You're gonna throw that whole sandwich out?' and the kid said," I told my mom not to give me the brown bread," Whitehead laughed. Many kids "eat the fruit and roll and throw the rest away," he added.

'If they do (bring money) they'llthrow their lunches away and buy snacks.'

parent Cheryl McGinnis

At Clarkston High School on Monday, students were faced with choices of a hot dog or sub sandwich in the hot-lunch line, leftover Little Caesar's pizza in the a la carte (a cook said it was the first time frozen, leftover pizza had been tried and it didn't go over very well), line, turkey, peanut butter or egg salad sandwiches in yet a third line, or a salad bar, which is available every day.

Even with all those choices, a visitor couldn't help noticing how many students weren't buying. One said the reporter had picked an especially bad day

"I normally have hot lunch but there's nothing good," said Rachel Lambourn. Instead, she purchased a nutty bar, potato chips and chocolate milk. She pointed out that the pizza was leftover from Thursday, didn't look good, and she wasn't interested.

"If they had chicken nuggets I'd buy lunch every day," said Thomas Graves, who skipped lunch Monday. "I only eat chicken nuggets and nachos."

A safer Haunted Forest returns Lenar turns down job in Pinckney

BY EILEEN OXLEY Clarkston News Statt Writer

Though Independence Township Parks and Recreation director Ann Conklin says the township's Haunted Forest will be safe this year, the "freak accident" on Oct. 23 last year may never be solved.

That's when a 15-year-old Clarkston High School student, who was volunteering at one of the stations, was found with a noose around his neck in the gallows scene.

According to Det. Chuck Young of the Oakland County Sheriff's Independence substation, the youth "was supposed to make believe he was a goul.

"He just made it a little too realistic," Young

The teen was discovered lying unconscious on the ground between groups of visitors walking through the Forest. He was collared and given oxygen by emergency medical technicians and taken to a nearby hospital where he was immediately put on a respirator and sedated. At that time his parents requested that information including his name not be released to the Conklin said last week that "the boy was OK and back the next Saturday." She added that the youth had no recollection of the incident.

Monday, Conklin's opinions were confirmed by the boy's mother, who did not wish to be named.

She said her son "showed up the next weekend" and that "he went (back) with his dad and (those working at the Forest) had a big cake for him.

"We just had to leave it as an unsoloved mystery. We're not upset because the outcome was fine," she

Police records support the conclusion that the incident appeared to be an accident.

"(The boy's volunteer) group is participating again this year," Conklin said. "That particular station was eliminated. We had a free-hanging rope we're not using that this year."

This year's Haunted Forest will have 12 stations, including "Jurassic Park, "The Wizard of Oz," "On Broadway" with characters from "The Phantom of the Opera" and "Cats," "The I dams Family," a cemetery with ghosts and goblins and a shrinking

"We're also going to have a 'Welcome to Kalamazoo' station. Hint: Elvis has been sighted there," Conklin said.

The forest, again sponsored by Parks and Rec, is located at Clintonwood Park, 6000 Clarkston Road, between M-15 and Sashabaw. Dates are the last two weekends of the month, Oct. 20-22 and 27-29. Tours run every five minutes starting at 6:30 p.m. and ending at 9:50 p.m.

Advance tickets are $3 per person and may be purchased at the Parks and Recreation Department Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. On site tickets at $5 per person will be sold at the softball field concession stand at the park on a first come, first serve basis.

Refreshments including cider, doughnuts, caramel apples, coffee and candy bars will be available.

Conklin would like people to know they have nothing to worry aboutat this year's Haunted Forest. Though last year's unfortunate incident happened, Conklin said it had no affect on continued "To be completely honest, we didn't have less participation after that ... We're going to take the same safety precautions we did last year," she said.

Just say 'no'

Clarkston schools' deputy superintendent for business and operations Steven Lenar was offered a job in Pinckney, but has apparently turned it down.

A Pinckney schools' spokesman said Lenar was offered the job of director for business and finance at a salary of $67,000. "However it's my understanding that Steve has turned down the job," Ron Miller of Pinckney said Tuesday morning.

The subject was raised by resident Kurt Shanks at Monday's Clarkston board of education meeting. Shanks said he'd heard a radio report about the job offer Monday morning and wondered what provisions Clarkston schools had made to replace Lenar. But Clarkston superintendent Gary Haner made it clear Lenar was staying.

"We've got the cart before the horse," Haner said. "Mr. Lenar is an employee and to the best of my knowledge is to remain an employee."

Lenar was in attendance at the meeting but had no comment other than to say, "I'm here tonight."

Gravel company gets wishes; residents mad

BY DARREL W. COLE Lake Orion Review Staff Writer

Salem Gravel will have to operate its gravel mining plant under new restrictions, which doesn't appearse some residents.

The Independence Township Board of Trustees, at its meeting Oct. 4, approved an amendment to Salem Gravel's consent judgment by a 7-0 vote.

The aggregates facility is located in the corner of Dartmouth and Oak Hill roads, and owned by Burroughs Materials Corporation of Michigan.

While several residents at the meeting were concerned that mining operations are noisy and too close to their homes, township attorneys said they have done all they can.

"We've had a number of discussions and based on the comments made by the public we have met with the plant operator to address some of the concerns," said attorney Gerald Fisher. "But obviously we couldn't meet all the concerns."

Board members and attorneys assured residents the changes will benefit them by resricting hours of operation and assuring the mining won't creep any closer to their homes.

Some of the consent judgment's provisions include:

That on or before June 1, 1998 Burroughs shall cease mining aggregates from any portion of the west property.

That portion of the west property being used for transporting, processing and stockpiling shall be totally reclaimed on Nov. 30, 1996.

The site access road from Oakhill Road shall be reconfigured to prevent right turns from the site by Jan. 1, 1995.

Burroughs shall be responsible, with permission from the county road commission, for installing "no truck traffic" signage east of the site entrance on Oakhill.

The over four million tons of gravel on the east property can be mined up to Nov. 30, 1995. Materials taken from the east to the west property must also be sold off during 1996.

The hours of operation for aggregate sales are 7 a.m. to 5 p.m., processing and stockpiling gravel 7 a.m. to 6 p.m., mining or extracting shall be conducted from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m., equipment and repair is to be done from 7 a.m. to 10 p.m.

County announces tax hike

BY ANNETTE KINGSBURY Clarkston News Editor

A Truth in Taxation hearing will be held Thursday which will allow Oakland County to raise taxes $4.2 million for the coming year.

Under state law the hearing is required by any taxing authority if it intends to collect more dollars that it collected the previous year. And based upon the recommendation of Oakland County Executive L. Brooks Patterson, that's exactly what the county commission intends to do.

The vote to hold the hearing broke down along party lines, with only the two Democrats on the commission voting against it. The hearing will be held at 10 a.m. at the Commissioners' Auditorium.

Commission chairman Larry Crake (R., Waterford) said taxpayers will pay the same millage rate they paid last year.

"Last year we cut $25 million," he said. "This year we're looking at the possible expansion of the jail. That could cost millions of dollars."

He also said the budget contains a proposed pay hike for county employees of up to four percent. "I don't know if that's going to go through," he said, adding that employees didn't get a raise this year. In addition, the county will be adding a new circuit court judgeship January 1. Though the state pays the judge's salary, Crake said the county must pick up the tab for the 11 employees it will take to support that judge. Price tag: $1.2 million.

"Figuring just inflation, inflation is three percent. We're only really realizing two percent," he said. "We cut $25 million last year; I just don't see where we can cut any more."

Democratic commissioner Lawrence Pernick of Southfield disagrees. "Oakland County government stands alone in establishing its budget and then raising the taxes needed to fund the budget rather than determining an acceptable tax burden and building the budget around available revenue," he said in a statement faxed to reporters.

The county's total budget is $400 million. Of that, Crake said, only $130 million comes from taxes. The remainder comes from fees and fines.

If the tax hike is approved, property owners whose state-equalized values rose this year will pay

Sometimes there are stories that reporters work on but which never make it into the paper. That happened just last week.

A parent called saying a child walking home from school had reported an abduction attempt. Police had been called in and an investigation was under

I spoke to the sheriff's department and the child's mother and was ready to write the story when, at the last minute, I got a call from the detective on the

It seemed the case had been solved. There hadn't been an abduction attempt after all. A woman was simply looking for her own son when she inadvertently, and very unfortunately, scared the poor boy walking home alone.

Everyone loves a happy ending, right? So what's wrong with this picture?

From all I can gather, Clarkston is as safe a place to raise your kids as you're going to find in 1994. There's very little crime, the streets are safe and parents do a good job of watching over their precious little ones. Still, everyone knows that you can never be too careful. Adults know that opportunists lurk ready to prey on anyone they can overpower. It's a sad fact of life that children, from a very tender age, need to be equipped to deal with threats of all kinds against their safety.

So schools and parents teach kids not to go with strangers. How to recognize a stranger. How to say no. To run to a safe place and tell someone when you feel threatened.

That's exactly what that little boy did last week. Faced with a car stopping near him on the street where he was walking alone, the car door opening, he bolted, jumped a fence and got safely home.

"He did the right thing," several deputies said. Still, for whatever reason, he apparently overreacted and was scared to death.

When I was a kid growing up in another safe suburb, my grandparents lived just down the street, only eight houses away. I can remember that whenever I went there for dinner and had to walk home in the dark, I was always terrified and ran all the way. Despite the fact that my grandmother had her porch light on and was watching me, and my mother had her porch light on at the other end, I always arrived home

I never felt afraid during the daytime, though. Bike-riding the whole length of the street was no problem, as was walking to and from school. I don't remember hearing all the scary warnings kids get today. Today in the neighborhood where the incident happened last week, parents can't help feeling more cautious. Some are picking their kids up from school. The PTA Council is even talking about starting a neighborhood watch program.

"In this neighborhood we are still very cautious," one parent said. "Even though the case is closed, a lot of us are acting more cautiously."

And though that's wise, it still makes me sad.

The morning I heard of the death of Ivan Rouse I saw the school children in their annual march up Main Street to learn about their town. Then I realized this year they would not be stopping at the Clarkston Conservatory of Music.

Already much has been written and said and thought about Ivan, but his measure is the role he played in helping to make Clarkston a special place to be. In that sense, he will always be with us and a part of this community for a

Love our colors

Three days in the bright sunshine on colorful fall days on the "Sunrise side" of the state renews one's belief that seasons 'make' Michigan glorious.

We played 72-holes of golf at Lakewood Shores in Oscoda, and every time I hit an errant shot, which was quite often, I just looked up at the changing colors. They have great calming power.

Losing a few bucks by shooting a round of golf in the 90s is much easier to take when the sun is high, the leaves brilliant and your golf opponents don't giggle.

Getting three great days together in the Spring and Fall in Michigan is our reward for putting up with some sunless, dull days of winter and early Spring.

I really love how nature colors our trees in the fall, and the way I play golf I get to see a lot of those colors at very close range.

I just about forgot I had a recipe for cooking venison steak. This being bow and arrow season maybe it's a good time to give it to you.

It comes by way of brother-in-law Ronald Smith, who clipped it from the Cheboygan Tribune's "Old Timer & His Lore" column.

Venison Steak

About all you have to do here is cut off a hunk from the hind leg that's about an inch thick and toss it into a skillet of hot grease, preferably leftover bacon drippings from last year's deer camp.

When the meat hits the pan throw in a couple handfuls of cut-up onions; of course, use lots of salt and pepper, and cook the whole shebang over a very

You can tell if the fire's hot enough by how far the grease splatters. Don't over-cook venison -usually five minutes on the fire is enough.

Now, sometimes an old buck can be pretty tough. If that's the case just keep chewing; it'll strengthen your jaw muscles so you'll be better able to tell your share of lies about your hunting exploits. * * *

According to my Webster's Ninth Dictionary, 'shampoo' is an action: "to wash (as the hair) with soap and water."

So, why do the makers of hair soap think they should be able to change the meaning of the word to shampoo? Dial doesn't have a problem with advertising their bar as Dial soap, but when they put it in a plastic bottle they call it shampoo.

I don't think its right, whether it's Dial, P&G or Ivory. Is the bar soap different than liquid 'shampoo'? My hair squeaks the same whether I use solid or liquid.

And, is there really any difference between body lotion and hand lotion?

I think our government should look into these things . . . and get out of Haiti.

A little thing called attitude

The other day a flyer was going around the office. It was titled, "Attitude." It was written by Charles Swindoll.

Here's how it goes:

"The longer I live, the more I realize the impact of attitude on life.

"Attitude, to me, is more important than facts. It is more important than the past, than education, than money, than circumstances, than failures, than successes, than what other people think or say or do.

"It is more important than appearance, giftedness or skill. It will make or break a company . . . a church . . . a home. "The remarkable thing is we have a choice every day regarding the attitude we will embrace for that day. We cannot change our past . . . we cannot change the fact that people will act in a certain way. We cannot change the inevitable. "The only thing we can do is play on the one string we have, and that is our attitude . . . I am convinced that life is 10 percent what happens to me and 90 percent how I react to it. And so it is with you ... we are in charge of our attitudes."

Pretty simple and I guess pretty much to the point. How you react to something is what is impor-

I should have remembered that when Des and I and Tom and Jenny Roberts went to Mt. Pleasant last weekend.

Mt. Pleasant, home to Central Michigan University, is where Des and I went to college. We conned Tom and Jenny to go up with us to watch the Central/ Western Michigan football game.

We were excited to go . . . from April or June when we arranged the weekend, all the way up the road to Mt. Pleasant.

I couldn't wait to get up there and re-trace the steps of my old stomping grounds. To feel the crispness of the air and think about things I hadn't thought about since I left nearly 10 years ago.

And, I wanted to go to the Pub -- Sir Richard's Pub. In my memory the Pub was a dark, smoky, loud, small, crowed place. A place where you were lucky to find a seat. A place where if you found a seat you might just carve your name in it, the table or on the wall.

I wanted to get in there and wedge into a booth and remember.

When I went to open the door to let Des and the Roberts inside it was locked.

What!?

"Don," one of the three said, "the door's over

Oh, no. Change. The Pub had changed and it was now a sanitized, diner-looking place called Shabooms.

We walked in anyway, but, needless to say, I didn't react too well to the change. We easily found a seat in the expanded, roomy and well-lit place and ordered some adult beverages.

A band started playing -- there was never a band here before -- and all the college kids started shuffling through the doors.

Though their hair was funny and they had body parts pierced and ringed, they looked at us -- at me -like we were from Mars.

I must have been weeping in my glass.

"Don, nothing stays the same."

Yeah, I know, even my hair is turning gray, but why did my college town have to change?

Epilogue; though rain threatened through the entire football game, "suriny" Kelly/Shorts Stadium was packed with 27,000 football spectators. Central won and the weekend was very fun.

It's all in the way you look at things. Things change and you got to roll with the flow. It's a little thing called attitude. I'm glad I realized that.

Engler rolls up sleeves, tries to play John Wayne

On our TV screen, Gov. John Engler was wearing a plaid shirt with the top button unbuttoned, both collar points buttoned down over no necktie, and both cuffs unbuttoned with the sleeves rolled up about halfway to the elbows. He was walking slowly down the middle of a small-town street, and I immediately suspected the worst.

"Don't worry, I'm keeping my eye on those buttons," wife said.

Of course, that's her job.

Most people watch TV for entertainment or information. My wife watches it in the hope of uncovering unsolved mysteries. She is continually saying such words as: "One second ago, that woman's dress was buttoned up to her neck, but now it's open to her shoes. How come?"

Or: "When that man put his glass down, it was full, and when he picked it up, it was empty. Why?"

When we were first married, I tried to reason with her. When she accused CBS of not telling the whole story, I speculated that while the camera was pointed briefly elsewhere, a prop man merely sampled the man's drink sneakily, or tied the woman's shoes intrusively.

But now, all these years later, I've come to realize my public-spirited wife is simply trying to keep the networks honest, for the greater good of all of us. So, during an internationally important sitcom, when she points out a woman's bun that a second earlier was a ponytail, and a second later became a ponytail again, I keep my mouth shut and smile so understandingly, you can hardly hear my Anyway, it was Engler's TV location, not his vacant buttonholes, that concerned me. I knew it was a campaign commercial, and there was obviously no way to demonstrate his earnest competence without including rolled-up sleeves and loosened collar. But Engler's rugged appearance in such a pioneer, hitching-post setting was frighteningly reminiscent of a John Wayne one-man posse.

I was afraid Engler was risking soiling his new shirt by trying one-handedly to capture all the white-collar crooks not out of town by sundown and dress them in appropriately-lettered uniforms -- perhaps "HFA" for House Fiscal Agency -- so innocent taxpayers could run from them.

I got a good clue when Engler looked into the camera and said: "My parents were farmers and they taught me to work hard, tell the truth and keep my promises -- And welfare's a two-way street -- you should work for your benefits."

That was the message: Traffic goes both ways on Engler's televised street, and he wants us to know he's not afraid of a head-on confrontation with big-shot industrialists whose welfare payments are called tax breaks. Engler's rolled-up sleeves make it easier for him to insist that wealthy business executives must pay for their benefits by picking up trash along suburban roadsides on weekends.

Also, because of his heritage and plaid shirt, it/goes without saying that Engler will never hesitate to say that. corporate farmers who collect government subsidies for growing nothing are no different than hamburger-flippers who collect unemployment subsidies for flipping nothing.

The commercial also shows Engler being friendly with his mother, and picking up his young niece while laughing.

My wife said she thought she saw a mental health clinic that was open when the commercial began but closed after Engler walked by, leaving dying patients in

I told her that was really stretching reality beyond the point of nausea, and maybe she could get a job writing campaign commercials.

The election better hurry up and get here. My TV throw-up pot overfloweth.

QUESTION: I keep hearing that it is unwise to get too carried away with the successes of your kids, but I can't help it.

Is it wrong for me to feel a sense of fatherly pride when my son succeeds in basketball? How can I not care about the quality of his performance?

DR. DOBSON: There's nothing wrong about feeling good about the successes of our children. The problem occurs when parents care too much about these triumphs and failures . . . when winning is necessary to maintain their parents' respect and love.

Boys and girls should know they are accepted simply because they were created. That's enough.

I'm reminded of John McKay, the former football coach from the University of Southern California and a former National Football League coach. I saw him interviewed on television at a time when his son, John Jr., was a successful football player on the USC team. The interviewer referred to John's athletic talent and asked Coach McKay to comment on the pride he must feel over his son's accomplishments on the field. His answer was most impressive.

"Yes, I'm pleased that John had a good season last year. He does a fine job, and I am proud of him. But I would be just as proud of him if he had never played the game at all."

Coach McKay was saying, in effect, that John's football talent is recognized and appreciated, but his human worth does not depend on his athletic ability to play football. Thus, his son would not lose respect if the next season brought failure and disappointment.

John's place in his dad's heart was secure, being independent of his performance. I wish every child could say the same.

It only takes one wheel

Heather Pritchard got a very special birthday present in August from her aunts and uncles—a unicycle. She didn't ask for it. Never had ridden one. But the 12-year-old Sashabaw Middle School student has taken to the cycle with ease.

Perhaps her gymnastic training has helped. A seventh-grader, Heather has been studying gymnastics since she was 5 and competing for four years on a Waterford Parks and Recreation gymnastics team. She does the uneven bars, the balance beam, the vault and the floor exercises.

Her mother chronicles her adventure.

"I got her the helmet and the whole gear but she never really fell," said a surprised Rhonda Pritchard. "She got it on the second day."

ON the first day, Heather was assisted by two helpers who helped her stay upright. The second day, with her helpers gone, she used a broom handle between her hands to help her balance. So far, she's limited to going in a circle. "I did peddle backwards once," she said.

Though Heather used to bike ride daily, watching her on the unicycle one quickly realizes it's a whole different ball game. There are no brakes, no handlebars to help you steer, nothing to lean on for balance. "You've got to sit up straight," she said.

TUESDAY, OCT. 4, a two-car accident on Main, south of Clarkston Road, occurred when one vehicle rear-ended another. A citation for hazardous action was issued to the driver of the rear-ending car.

A larceny of telephone circuit boards was reported by the owner of the two pay phones located on the southwest corner of Main. The owner had reported his phones were out of order on Sept. 27. When a repairman showed up to fix them on Oct. 4, it was discovered the circuit boards, each valued at $800, had been stolen.

THURSDAY, OCT. 6, an accident was reported on Main, south of W. Washington, when a vehicle hit a parked car while backing into a parking space. No tickets were issued.

Though she's new at it, Heather Pritchard makes riding a unicycle look easy.

By Amber Gebrowsky

At 7:30 a.m., October 4, approximately 80 seniors walked out of Clarkston High School. A major protest, perhaps?

Not quite. In fact, not a single administrator tried to stop the students. As members of the Senior Intensive and Advanced Placement English classes, they were merely off for an annual writing field trip.

"Our goal was to get students outside. We wanted to kick their imaginations out the door and allow them to loosen up with their writing. We wanted them to create some drafts and not worry about perfection," said Senior Intensive teacher Claire Needham. She, A.P. teacher Linda Denstaedt, and writer Nancy Ryan lead the students on a hike through Clarkston.

On the hike, Needham helped students complete a writing exercise as they observed homes located on Holcomb. Denstaedt instructed students as they wrote at Depot Park and Deer Lake Beach, and Ryan assisted students as they wrote while exploring Lakeview Cemetery.

These writing exercises were structured to allow students to create three poetry drafts using images generated from observations of real life, the connection of seemingly random objects, and narrative voice.

While the early morning field trip proved to be hoods, the cold weather did not stop them from enjoying the experience.

"My favorite part was definitely walking around the cemetery, looking at headstones and wondering about the people, their lives, and their families," said Amanda MacLachlan.

During this part of the trip, students were expected to use narrative voice to create a monologue based on a character created from the details listed on a headstone. The assignment further required students to write as if the character were still living, with no mention of his/her death or funeral.

"It got my mind working and inspired me to write," added MacLachlan.

A second aspect of the field trip may have surprised several Clarkston residents as they stepped outside to retrieve their morning newspapers and found students sitting on their sidewalks. Students were asked to observe the concrete details of a house and make conclusions about them in order to create a family who could live there.

Ryan Bauer said, "I liked the part of the trip where we wrote poems about the house on Holcomb. It was easy to relate to -- you were writing about somebody in your community."

A third component of the day allowed the seniors to collect a series of descriptive images from Deer Lake Beach and Depot Park. After collecting a number of images, the students shared them with their classmates, jotting down those that they particularly liked.

Kristine Bania said, "I really enjoyed that part of the trip. You were able to take note of things you don't normally stop to think about."

To complete the assignment, the students were asked to use several of the images, along with the following words: whir, needle, cliff, mother, voice, cloud, blackberry, and lick to create a poem.

Three hours later, the students returned to CHS, eager to warm their chilled fingers and toes, but excited about what they had learned. After experiencing a sampling of the life of a writer, these English enthusiasts now had new ways to deal with writer's block. When inspiration is needed, the entire world is at their disposal.

Farmer's dog becomes a star

BY ANNETTE KINGSBURY Clarkston News Editor

It started out that Nick Nichols' barn was going to be used as a backdrop for a catalogue photo. It ended up instead that his dog took center stage.

Nichols, owner of Oak Haven Farm in Groveland Township and operator of the produce stand on the Bordines' parking lot, tells the story this way: Last spring, around planting time, a photographer came by, liked his barn, and asked if he could use it for a shoot for the Carhartt catalogue. Carhartt, maker of sturdy work clothing, was well-known to Nichols, who said he's worn their clothing for years.

"Our barn's been used for three or photo ads," Nichols said. So the request didn't surprise him much. "Then they called back and wanted to know what size clothes I wore," he said. When the photographer arrived, "The one pair of britches fit me and the rest is history.'

The photo that was eventually shot was used on the cover of the catalogue. The barn is barely seen and Nichols' face really isn't visible. It's his Labrador, Oakie, which takes center stage.

As Nichols tells it, Oakie came running toward him in the middle of the shoot. When he tried to shoo him away, the photographer said, "Oh no; leave the dog." Since Oakey's face is very light and Nichols has the typical farmer's tan, it's Oakie who's in the limelight.

Since the catalogue came out, the pair have been photographed by local newspapers, and always, Nichols' said, Oakie gets the better exposure.

"My wife says, 'I'll have to make an appointment to see you and the dog; everybody wants to see you." At least he gets paid—in the form of Carhartt clothing-for his work. Another shot, of Nichols heaving a bale of hay into the barn, was used by the company as a poster.

Nichols is a former construction worker who moved to the country to raise horses before turning to farming. "I always said I would never even have a garden when I grew up," he said. "I tried it once 20 years ago; the pheasants tore up the com and I said, 'That's it.'"

He was persuaded to try again after finding out how expensive it was to keep horses. The first few years they had to give the com away.

"One year we gave away hayrides; you buy an apple, you get a hayride," He said. "People flocked."

During October, Oak Haven Farm, located at Grange Hall and Dixie, will again offer its popular Harvest Days weekends 1-7 p.m. Nichols sees the event as an almost nostalgic view of small-farm life.

"Some day it just won't be around," he said. As for the farming life, Nichols said he's never been sorry he left construction.

"I've never had an ear of corn call me up in the middle of a thunderstorm because a shingle blew off," he said. "You don't have any complaints . . .

I hate to say we fell into it (farming); maybe we were predestined."

A clarification

Last week's article on the police millage issue may have been confusing. Here are the numbers involved.

In August, voters in Independence Township approved a 2.3032 police millage renewal but rejected a .4468 mill increase the township said was necessary to maintain the current level of

In light of the rejection, the township laid off one officer. In addition, DARE funding was cut, so the DARE officer is now being funded by Clarkston schools and is off road patrol.

Now the township is asking for the .4468 mill again plus an additional .25 mill. If both proposals are approved, the total police millage would total 3 mills.

ALL INTEREST PAID or received on a mortgage loan must be reported to the IRS.

27 S. Main, Clarkston 625-9300

QUESTION: I sold my home and helped the buyer finance it by giving him a second mortgage. The monthly payments include both principal and interest. How does this effect my income for tax purposes?

ANSWER: The repayment of principal is not income, it is the return of money loaned. However, the interest portion of the payment check IS income and must be reported as taxable income.

How does the IRS find out if you earn interst? Simple! In order to get a tax deduction, borrowers must report interest paid on all loans and identify individuals (home sellers as well as banks) who give mortgage assistance.

Local man honored by university

Though he's not really a theatre-goer, Dennis K. Pawley of Clarkston was honored by Oakland University Sept. 29 as a plaque bearing his name was fastened to a seat at Meadow Brook Theatre.

Seat F114 was designated the Dennis K. Pawley chair just in time for the opening of the theatre's 29th season. It was the first production Pawley had ever seen there.

OU president Sandra Packard praised Pawley, executive vice president of manufacturing for Chrysler and an OU alum, and his wife Carlotta for extraordinary efforts on behalf of OU and the theatre.

Pawley's efforts were instrumental in a recent gift of $130,000 from Chrysler to the theatre. In addition, the Pawleys were chairs of the 1993 Meadow Brook Executive Committee, a group of volunteers from industry and the community which annually raises $500,000. He is also a director of the OU Foundation, the private, fund-raising arm of the university.

Pawley attended Pontiac Northern High School and has lived in the area most of his life. He said he "returned" to Clarkston in 1989. A member of the OU Charter Class of 1959, he graduated in 1982 with a degree in human resource development.

"I've just been associated with the university in a zillion different ways since I was a student," he said. That includes lecturing on campus and interacting with professors at Chrysler and in the community, he added.

Pawley has watched and worked as OU has grown. "When I went out there there were only two buildings, North Foundation Hall and South Foundation Hall," he said. "It's a great thing for our area, and it adds to the stature of Oakland County."

Incidentally, this is only the second time a seat has been named for an individual at Meadow Brook. Alice Kilburn, the late mother of longtime Meadow Brook director Terry Kilburn, had a seat named in her memory in March upon Kilburn's retirement.

From left, Jamie Burr and Elizabeth Dabczynski, both of Clarkston, practice for the big show along with Sara Tarp, Megan Cole, Brittany VanDenkleboom, Brittany VanDermear and Tyler Schneider. All are age 5 or 6.

Court takes jurisdiction over ch

BY ANNETTE KINGSBURY Clarkston News Editor

Probate Court Judge Sandra Silver took jurisdiction over two-year-old Autumn Williamson last week after hearing testimony that her mother Pamela had drug and alcohol problems and no stable housing.

The little girl was taken into custody by deputies from the Oakland County Sheriff's substation in August after employees at Food Town heard a man offer the baby for sale to passers-by. The employees said they had repeatedly seen the baby in what they called "dirty" conditions come into the store with her mother, who never bought food.

In testimony in her own behalf last week, Pamela Williamson said she bathed her daughter every day and was never homeless. However a pediatrician doctor saw her in March, 1994 and at other times.

Pamela Williamson also testified that she has two other minor children, neither of which live with her. A 6-year-old girl lives with her father, custody of a 4-year-old has been granted to a friend of the child's father in Midland County.

Williamson said she walked to Clarkston from Pontiac this summer on several occasions to collect bottles at Pine Knob. Then she would take the bottles to Food Town to cash in. "I never stayed in a tent," she said. Her only other source of income at the time was food stamps, she testified.

Attorney Daniel Bates, the guardian ad litem for Autumn, said the trial was just the first phase in deciding Autumn's future. The next step is the "best interest" phase, in which more witnesses can be called before the judge decides final custody.

"The court found there was reason for sending the case to the best-interest phase," Bates said. "The court had to find there was a statutory basis (for removing custody from the mother) . . . We're looking at it from a different angle now."

Bates said he has been in contact with Autumn's foster mother and that the baby is doing very well.

"If you want a little good news, she's gained weight, she's playing, she's doing very well in foster care," he said. "She gained four pounds in the first four weeks in foster care. She hadn't gained any weight in the last six to eight months. So you can see what was going on. It's very heartening."

Meanwhile, Pamela Williamson and Mark Good, the man who allegedly tried to sell the baby, are awaiting sentencing November 7 in 52-2 District Court. Both pled no contest to contributing to Autumn's neglect.

School board considers more buses testified that Autumn was poorly nourished when the Twenty-five subdivisions and 99 streets never see a school bus in the Clarkston school district, and that number is only expected to grow in coming years.

That was the news Monday night when the Clarkston board of education heard a report on bussing by transportation director Kevin Bickerstaff and deputy superintendent Steven Lenar.

Lenar said in the 1988-89 school year, there were only eight or nine subdivisions where buses didn't travel. "As our district has grown, the list of subdivisions we don't go into has grown too," he

That doesn't mean all those students are walking to school. Rather, it means they are walking out of the subdivision to a bus stop, where they are picked up. Many of the subdivisions are multiple family areas, such as condominiums, mobile home parks and apartments. Some have private roads.

In all, Clarkston schools bus around 3,800 children every day, Lenar said. That is accomplished in three shifts, but the board is looking at going to a twotier system for academic reasons. That would allow both middle schools, for example, to start school at the same time.

"We would have to put on the road about 12 more buses minimally to meet our current needs," Lenar said. That would not add routes, only change start times. He indicated that whether the district bought or leased buses to accomplish the change, it would cost about $100,000 per year.

Lenar plans to present a complete report on the two-tier busing system to the board, possibly at its November 7 meeting.

In other action at Monday's meeting:

- The board agreed to purchase a dump truck not to exceed $25,000 from the general fund.
- Approved student field trips, including one to Paris, France in April for French students.
- The board heard a proposal to realign parking and driveways at Clarkston Elementary and Middle schools, but no action was taken.
- ♠ A request from the Road Commission for Oakland County for additional easement on Sashabaw Rd. in front of Pine Knob Elementary was
- A part-time elementary physical education teacher was approved due to increased enrollment.
- The board voted unanimously (trustee Bill Craig was absent) to join two class-action lawsuits, with expenditures to be limited to $5,000. The suits are being brought in response to several guilty pleas in cases related to price fixing on school buses and

 The board held two closed sessions, one to discuss possible litigation, one to discuss property acquisition.

Charities get together for Christmas giving

Human-service agencies are banding together to make sure all families in northern Oakland County have a pleasant Christmas.

Lighthouse North of Clarkston is one of the agencies which will consolidate registration and procedures for families requesting holiday assistance. The agencies have agreed to all use the same forms and put information on a common data bank to be administered by the United Way.

In the Clarkston area, families (including those working with Lighthouse North) are asked to sign up only at St. Anne's Catholic Church, 825 S. Ortonville Rd., Ortonville. Signing up at more than one agency will result in disqualification. Holiday sign-up is scheduled for Oct. 17, 19 and 21 between the hours of 10 a.m. and 2 p.m.

To sign up bring identification for everyone in the home, such as Social Security cards, proof of income for everyone over 18, and proof of address.

Questions on the new registration procedure will be answered by calling 456-8800.

Homecoming fun begins

It was just the first day of spirit week at Clarkston High School but you could tell the excitement was already building toward the weekend.

Monday morning students packed the gym for the annual "tapping" ceremony, whereby the Homecoming court is announced. It's not as formal as the name might sound.

Members of the court are announced one at a time. Each time, a student is sent into the bleachers to find the next student. Some kept the suspense building by taking a circuitous route. Joel Sanford, for example, wandered the bleachers from top to bottom, accompanied by thunderous drums, even though Mary Forbes was standing on the gym floor.

It's all part of the fun and afterwards, when Jill Attaman and Mark Ryan were announced as king and queen, they were mobbed by friends. They'll have a whole week to enjoy the honor, returning Friday in fancy dress for the queen's assembly.

The weekend will be packed with Homecoming activities. On Friday, there will be a tailgate party from 4:30 p.m. till game time, when the Clarkston Wolves take on Rochester Adams at 7 p.m.

Across the street at Clarkston Middle School, the second annual Cow Pie Carnival will be held at 2:30 p.m. on the tennis courts. A $5 ticket will buy

Lt. Governor comes to call

Lt. Gov. Connie Binsfield came to town Oct. 5 to praise Independence Township for being a "family friendly community."

Binsfield, chairperson for the Michigan International Year of the Family observance, came to Bay Court Park and praised the community for building the playscape with all volunteer labor. She gave township supervisor Dale Stuart a plaque in honor of the occasion.

Walking with a cane because of what she called "an old football injury," Binsfield met with members of the Young Optimist Club before speaking before gathered dignitaries.

"I don't think there is anything more significant than what you just finished here," she said. "Because it took a whole village . . . That's why it was so successful; you all cooperated."

"I cannot think of a better place to have a gathering about the family than at this park," Stuart said in introducing Binsfield. "This playscape was the coming together of this community like never before." He gave Binsfield a plaque bearing a photo of the playscape. Parks and Recreation director Ann Conklin told Binsfield how local schoolchildren had raised over one million pennies for the playscape.

Binsfield, Michigan's Mother of the Year in 1977 and a former legislator, said chairing the Year of the Family has been the most rewarding of her jobs in

"We didn't have a big conference in Lansing," she said. "We asked you to do things in the community... Those are the things children will remember and carry on to the next generation."

Cars stolen

Two cars were stolen from the same street the same day in a rash of car thefts last week in Independence Township.

On Oct. 3, a 1985 Mercury Grand Marquis was stolen on Monterey. On Oct. 4, two cars were taken from Lancaster Hills, a 1979 Corvette and a 1992 Jeep. A third car, a 1986 Firebird, had its steering column broken in the parking lot of Pine Knob Elementary School but was not stolen.

On Oct. 5 a 1988 Bonneville was stolen from the park-and-ride lot on Sashabaw near I-75. A thief also tried to steal a 1991 Chevy S-10 pick-up truck from the same lot, but was unsuccessful, damaging the steering column in the process.

Lt. Doug Hummel of the Oakland County Sheriff's Independence substation said the cases have been turned over to the OCSD auto theft unit. There are no indications yet the thefts are related, he said, "but I would guess some of them will be related."

On Friday, deputies were called back to Lancaster Hills, but this time it was to recover a stolen car. A 1981 Buick reported stolen in Pontiac was found with its steering column broken and the radio missing.

Gangs in the 'burbs How to combat the proble

By Don Rush Assistant to The Publisher

Through the ages knowledge has been a most powerful weapon. Armed with information many battles have been fought and won. When combating the problems of youth gang activity knowledge is also crucial.

It is not just parents who need education, it is the entire community, from law enforcement to educators. Once the community educates itself and can recognize the problem, it can act.

The first three parts of this series were written to help educate the community. How to recognize a problem; how to identify individuals who may be involved with gang activity. Now we move to what can and is being done.

Parents

"I'm not an expert by any means," Oxford and Lake Orion policeman Jerry Narsh says. "I'm just trying to collect information. What, where, with who?"

Like many law enforcers, Narsh has seen a pattern of crimes. In his communities he's seen the rise of graffiti, more breaking and enterings, more larce-

"Communities — residents — should be aware of what is happening around them. When they see something they should inform us so we can start an investigation, track what is going on," Narsh says.

Parents, he adds, need to recognize what is happening in their homes. "Does your kid have a new group of friends that are unknown to you? Is there a change in activity? Who are these new friends? Listen to your kids. Look for red flags," he says. "You may want to resist the idea your kid is a gang member. Just remember dues have to be paid when they join. The kids may not know this, the parents may not know this."

The dues he alludes to includes run-ins the law and even violence against them by other gangs, from their own gang. Last year in Oxford there was a gang related drive-by shooting. Nobody was hurt. In Independence Township gang members from Waterford chased another teen to a car wash and beat him with two-by-fours.

Police

By the time police become involved laws are being broken. And, not just of the serious nature. These very simple laws, if enforced, can help curtail gang-related problems.

In Oxford, Orion and Independence townships there are curfews. Kids, 16 and under, are not supposed to be out alone without good reason from 10 p.m. to 6 a.m.

In Orion Township Oakland County Sheriff's deputies are cracking down. If they see kids out after the curfew they approach them. The first time the children are warned; from there the fines start, up to $100 and cost of prosecution (see related article).

"Anytime we can ticket them we do, whether it's for a curfew violation or anything else. We're trying to let them know we are out there," says Oakland County Sheriff Deputy Lt. Bruce Naile.

It's the same in Independence Township.

"The problem is being addressed," says Oakland County Sheriff Detective Chuck Young. "We're keeping files. We're staying on top of it. We know what to look for and where they hang out."

Prosecution

Oakland County Prosecutor Dick Thompson is taking a stand. "He's basically adopted a zero tolerance policy," assistant prosecutor Lisa Tomko says. "He's been very supportive of my training (about gangs) and that of other prosecutors. Mr. Thompson has said there will not be gangs in his community."

Law enforcement agencies, along with the prosecutor's office, have formed a loose-knit gang task force to trade information and observations.

"Usually when there is a meeting planned we send lien messages (via computers) inviting anybody who can come to come," Tomko says,

The prosecutor's office has asked local law enforcement agencies to make references about gang information on police reports. The information can be as vague as a person has identified another as being in a gang, or as precise as direct signs like gang symbols.

'We definitely rely on the police departments," she says. "Once a police officer has made that indication of any gang involvement we look at it very closely."

Tomko says that information is passed to the referees and judges in the court proceedings. Prosecutors then ask for stiffer penalties and sentences.

"Once they are in the court and we know they are involved, we are not going to tolerate it," Tomko says.

Should parent or teacher groups want more information on gangs they can contact the prosecutor's office. Tomko and Madison Heights Youth Officer Larry Gibson have co-authored a guide on how to recognize gang problems. The Oakland County Prosecutor's office phone number is 858-0656.

Curfew helps curb activity

An old law has helped control a new kind of criminal in Orion Township.

A 10 p.m. curfew for children 16 and under has been in effect in Orion since 1971. Now that ordinance helps Oakland County Sheriff's Deputies deal with gangs and some of their associates.

"We're enforcing that ordinance more rigidly, especially because of the activity of some of these kids," says Lt. Bruce Naile, commander of the Orion station.

The ordinance also puts a little more responsibility back on the parents."

Deputies say the same teens continually violate the ordinance and it gives officers a means to let the kids know they're being watched. Deputies don't ticket teens the first time, but when the youths continually ignore the curfew that changes.

Many who show up in reports time after time are in the so-called North Side Crips (N.S.C.) gang.

The ordinance states children are prohibited, unless accompanied by a parent, guardian or custodian, from wandering, strolling or loitering in public places from 10 p.m. to 6 a.m. They can be out if performing a duty for parents, returning home from a job or some other function.

Violators are ticketed and a court could fine the person between $25 and $100, costs of prosecution and/or imprisonment in the county jail, not to exceed take the child home.

In many cases the deputy on patrol will simply transport the child to the sub-station and call parents to.

Naile also says the curfew helps act as a preventative measure against gang activity. "Anytime we can ticket them we do, whether it's for a curfew violation or anything else. We're trying to let them know we are out there."

The N.S.C. originates out of Pontiac and has been increasingly active in the Orion area in the last 5-7 months. Naile says the North Side Crips placed a "recruiting bulletin" on a wall at Lake Orion Middle School. The notice has since been taken down.

Crimes related to N.S.C. are painting their gang signs or member nicknames on buildings, curfew violations, and several reports of harassment and threats.

Naile says there have been some reports that these gang members are threatening other kids who won't join, or who want out.

Just because the crimes have not been of a dangerous nature, Naile says his department suspects this same group is responsible for some of the numerous garage and shed robberies in the area in the past four

In most of the robberies, thieves steal tools, tool boxes and various other equipment. Naile suspects the thieves have a buyer willing to pay for the goods.

Naile adds these same kids caused trouble in Orion before they joined this gang. "I don't know whatreason they had for joining, but we take it serious and are watching them."

Residents rattle council over B&

BY EILEEN OXLEY Clarkston News Staff Writer

Clarkston city council's meeting room was filled to capacity Monday night as nearly 20 concerned residents gathered to address the continuing battle of a proposed bed and breakfast inn on Main Street.

Several people were polite but opinionated as they and council members bantered back and forth over the issue.

Before council barely got started, Buck Kopietz, who sat next to his wife Joan, stood up and interjected with a speech, imploring council to consider their arguments before they followed the night's meeting with a closed session to discuss their next move.

Council and Clarkston city attorney Tom Ryan were to discuss askingOakland County Circuit Court Judge Hilda Gageto reconsider her recent favorable ruling on the bed and breakfast. They would also discuss the possibility of appealing Gage's decision by taking it to the Michigan Court of Appeals.

"I'd like to make a few comments ...," Buck began. He reminded council that three years ago he and his wife had come before the city with an up-front proposition about the bed and breakfast inn.

"You expressed no opinions and told us to go before the ZBA (Zoning Board of Appeals)," Buck said.

"It was like talking to the wind," Joan added. Buck said that he and Joan had then interpreted the ZBA's favorable 5-2 vote as a go-ahead for the project. . Councilman James Schultz, chairman of the ZBA, disagreed. "The ZBA said, 'Don't depend on it," he said. But Buck reminded council that former Clarkston village president Carol Eberhardt had stood up at the end of that meeting and said to the ZBA, "If you have objections, let (the Kopietzes) know now before they spend the money."

Many residents also stood up and expressed concerns — about continuing to spend their money.

"Is a decision going to be made in the (closed) session?" resident David Bihl asked council. "Are we going to go to the appeal? It's an expenditure of public funds. As a citizen I am concerned about spending."

Others like resident Robin Nance were concerned about the commercial use, siding with the Kopietzes.

"Personally I would rather see a bed and breakfast unit than a rental unit; as a business it would have to ba taken care of," she said.

One lone Clarkstonite, Barbara Thompson, stood up and disagreed.

"I think we're missing the point — that if weallow businesses to come in, any house along the residential strip on Main will be allowed to have a business." she said.

But Eberhardt, who spoke up in favor of the Kopietzes Monday, summed up the feelings of most attending residents best.

"It is time to stop debating because everyone is not going to agree. Strike a compromise in some way and get on with it," she said.

Tuesday morning Clarkston city manager Art Pappas said at the closed session council had decided to "go ahead and go back to Judge Gage and see if she'll change her mind.

"If she maintains that decision, (council) would have to go to appeals court," he said.

Pappas added that he would "find out how much money we've spent on the attorney so far" and have the results prepared for council's next meeting Oct.

In other council action:

- Feedback about the possibility of a city water system was presented to council by several Clarkston residents. Council decided to spend approximately $500 to have engineers from Hubbell, Roth and Clark do a firmer estimate of the cost to implement a system. Clarkston city manager Art Pappas said Tuesday that council would put up a vote to people at a special advisory election probably "not until the first of the year." At that time residents could decide between three possibilities: to have the main lines put in with the option to hook up, to have all residents hook up at the same time, or to not change to a city water system at all. Pappas cited the main concern to residents would be, "How much is it going to cost me?" Council passed a motion 7-0 to have engineers do the estimate.
- DPW supervisor Bob Pursley reported to council that all planned local and major road repair has been completed. Final costs for Miller Road were $1,900. Pursley also asked council to consider estimates on a new DPW truck needed for services like city salting and plowing. He said the cost to purchase a new truck would be around $60,000. The present 12-year-old truck is "nickel-and-diming us," Pursley said. He will leave the matter to council for discussion. Pursley also said the Depot Park playground's new slide, sod and three benches would be installed soon.

- Council passed a renewal of the SMART agreement 7-0 which uses allocated money for transportation programs for senior citizens and SCAMP bus tickets.
- The asset settlement agreement between the city of Clarkston and Independence Township is awaiting finalization from township supervisor Dale Stuart. Stuart hopes to review the agreement over the fire protection and library contracts and the White Lake safety path. If agreeable, he hopes to have it signed by council's next meeting.

 Council passed a motion to buy radar equipment for the new police car, 7-0.

 Discussion of the purchasing, wetland and historic district ordinances was tabled until the next meeting.

SCAMP hires new leader

BY ANNETTE KINGSBURY Clarkston News Editor

A former teacher who also has experience in the business world is the new executive coordinator of SCAMP.

Geraldine Batt comes to the non-profit organization, which provides summer camping opportunities for children with special needs, from Weight Watchers, where she spent seven years in training, sales and service.

"The thing that made this job very appealing to me was the combination of my background in education and my business experience," she said.

On a very personal level, Batt knows what it's like living with disabilities. Her husband, Roy, is a quadriplegic from a car accident seven years ago. He's retired from his teaching job in Birmingham and does volunteer work in his former district.

The mother of three grown children, Batt is a graduate of Southfield High School. She received a BS in education from Western Michigan University and a master's in education with a counseling major from Wayne State University. She taught in Southfield and Warren Consolidated schools and subbed extensively in Waterford. She now lives in White Lake

After spending so much time in the structured corporate world of Weight Watchers, "I wanted a change," she said, "to get back in education and use my business experience and do something for people with special needs." In addition to her new job, she will continue to manage her husband's home health care program.

Batt was selected after a search committee advertised for a replacement for Bunny Newmarch, who left SCAMP to work for Clarkston schools. After two rounds of screening applicants, three top candidates were interviewed by the SCAMP board.

"She had a lot of experience at Weight Watchers working with individuals and groups," said SCAMP board president Bob Cook. "That's a little bit of what this job does. She was very upbeat."

SCAMP's offices are housed in Clarkston schools Special Services building, adjacent to the high school. There is no financial link between the two organizations, although they serve the same population.

SCAMP was originally a state-funded program but became privately funded and operated when state funding stopped. The North Oakland SCAMP Funding Corporation was founded in 1977 to support the summer camping program. It is overseen by a 17-member volunteer board.

Campers pay tuition and fund-raisers are held all year to supplement those funds and provide SCAM-Perships. Over 300 children are now served each summer. Last year the day camp was held at North Sashabaw Elementary and Sashabaw Middle School.

"The children are selected from special ed. teachers," Batt said. "They really have never turned anyone away."

Several major SCAMP fund-raisers are wellestablished, include the popular summer home tour, a golf outing in July and a walk. The walk was previously held each October, but has been moved to spring.

SCAMP will also be selling Christmas cards, mugs and gift baskets this holiday season. The baskets include locally produced foods and gifts. Batt hopes to get the products into some local retailers in time for Christmas shopping. Call her at 625-3330 for more information.

"I'm looking to grow," Batt said. "I think the fund-raisers we presently have are strong. It's a very strong foundation to begin with."

Batt is aided by Newmarch, who, although she no longer works for SCAMP still works in the same building, and by SCAMP secretary Leslie Hallman.

"The people are very warm and friendly," Batt said. "I've received a tremendous welcome. I have a lot to learn but it's been a very positive experience.

"I have unlimited goals."

Choirs to perform

Six different choirs are preparing for their annual fall concert at Clarkston High School, scheduled for Thursday, Oct. 20 at 7:30 p.m. in the school auditorium.

The performance will include the Bel Canto Choir, a 36-voice volunteer choir which meets after school; the Barbershop Ensemble, a 36-voice allmale choir which is also an after-school club; the 35voice Mixed Choir; the 27-voice Choralaires; the Varsity Concert Choir, with 54 members; and the Madrigal Singers, with 16 members.

"The concert will offer a variety of music that will demonstrate the accomplishments of these choirs already this year," said director of choirs Grayce Warren. "The department is off to a good start with high enthusiasm and a great deal of individual and collective talent."

Admission to the concert is free but donations will be accepted.

Kids aren't nuts about school lunches

Rachel Dalbo, who bought the salad bar, said that's her usual choice. "It's safer that way." Juniors Rhonda Ledwell and Janelle Hanson both chose chicken-noodle soup, which they said they buy every Monday.

Rachel Lambourn said her parents always make sure she has lunch money but they have no idea what she eats at school, often junk food.

The availability of so-called junk foods at the schools is a sore spot with some. At CHS, students line up to buy canned soft drinks, candy bars, chips and doughnuts at a counter separate from the hot lunch or a la carte lines. At the elementary schools, students are allowed to buy two such items every day.

Although less junky items like pretzels and juice are available, others like candy bars, ice-cream items and "Little Debbie" cakes are snatched by firstthrough fifth-graders. Some adults don't feel that's a good idea, including a lunch-room worker who did not wish to be named.

"I see a lot of the little kids buy those 'Little Debbie' cakes — it's like all sugar," she said.

A Clarkston Elementary teacher, who also wanted to remain anonymous, said she even sent out letters to all her students' parents notifying them of

"I said, 'I hope you guys realize there's nothing of nutritional value on that cart," she said. The teacher also slammed the school system's use of the cart as "a money-maker," overriding the concern of good nutrition.

Linda Nester, director of food service for Clarkston schools, said the plan to offer two items was an administrative decision that resulted from a "a real good consensus" among school officials. "They thought they could live with two," she said.

Nester added that parents should be aware of what their kids are spending their money on. She said Clarkston Schools has a new meal plan that will be effective in 1998. It will incorporate "30-percent or less calories of fat," she said. A nutrition education plan will be included.

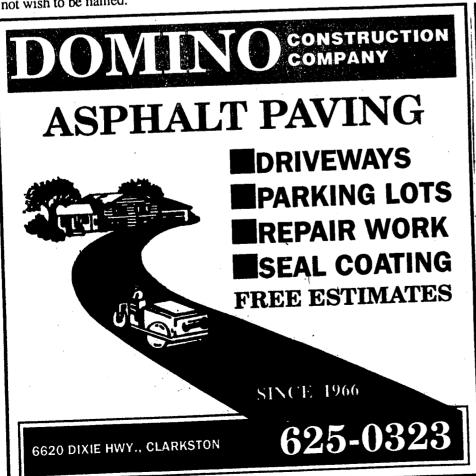

"It will train parents on how to teach the kids better," she said.

Parent Cheryl McGinnis said she doesn't take any chances with her elementary-age children-she doesn't let them go to school with money in their

"If they do they'll throw their lunches away and buy snacks," she said.

McGinnis said she though the hot lunches offered were good, but sounded resigned to the choices kids are likely to make. "I think (the schools) do a pretty good job on balancing nutrition, but when you offer the snacks . . ."

Second half explosion keeps gridders on track

BY DARREL W. COLE Clarkston News Staff Writer

Fourteen minutes before the game against Bloomfield Hills Lahser, the Clarkston football team was already in control.

Just as they do before every game, the Wolves players go through a few drills, fire one another up, and stretch out. After many minutes of spirited warmups, the players run to the end of the field, and then calmly gather in two single-file lines.

From there they walk to the locker room. No sound is heard from the now emotionless players, except that of their cleats tapping on the pavement.

The control demonstrated by the Wolves as they walked calmly and quietly to their locker room was similar to the way they won 25-0 at Lahser Oct. 7.

Although the Wolves had only a 9-0 lead after the first half, the coaches and players knew they were in control. And they showed just how much they were in control by extending that lead to 22-0 after the third quarter.

"We really weren't sharp in the first half but we got better in the second half," said coach Kurt Richardson.

Richardson said his team didn't change its game plan in the second half, but did come out with more of an "attitude." While the offense struggled at first, the defense accomplished its goal and shut out the 2-4 Lahser Knights.

The first half was mostly uneventful, but the Knights, who were also celebrating Homecoming, moved the ball effectively against the Wolves defense.

But Clarkston defenders put the clamps on when they needed to.

After Lahser failed to convert a 4th-and-1 on their first possession, the Wolves took over at the Lahser 40-yard line.

After senior tailback Jason Graves ran for eight yards, senior quarterback Toby Evans completed a seven-yard pass to senior receiver Jeremy Fife for a first down on the 25.

The Wolves failed to gain any yards after three yards, putting them in a 4th-and-10 situation. On 4th down, Graves took a delayed hand-off from Evans and, with great blocking ahead of him, ran 20 yards to the 5 yard line.

On first down Graves ran for two yards, and then rumbled in for a three-yard score on second down.

Graves' extra-point kick was blocked, giving the Wolves a 6-0 lead with 5:40 left in the first Lahser returned Graves' kickoff to their 21-yard-line. The Knights then drove the ball with strong running and a good option quarterback for the next four minutes.

The Wolves finally stopped them when Lahser was forced to punt from the Clarkston 44 yard line.

From there, both teams traded possessions. The Wolves were helped with some strong punting from junior Marcus Teague, keeping Lahser backed up.

Clarkston finally scored again after a five-play drive ended with Graves' 38-yard field goal for a 9-0 lead with 52 seconds left.

That score was set up with a great 51-yard run by senior fullback P.J. Vandermeer. Vandermeer, who is a great blocker, showed his running skills on the play as he set up his blocks near the line of scrimmage, broke outside, faked out a defensive back and sprinted down the sideline until he was caught.

Fifteen minutes before game time the Clarkston football squad gathers together near the sideline, ready to walk into the locker room. The Wolves cruised to a 25-0 win over Lahser Oct. 7.

In the second half, Evans got back on track with a 6-yard TD run to put the game out of reach.

Then Graves once again did his thing with a 35-yard punt return for a touchdown. In the fourth quarter Graves kicked another field goal, this time from 19 yards out Graves rushed for 180 yards on 13 carries in the game, leading his team to a 230 to 96 advantage in rushing yards.

Fife also came up big with four catches, while junior defensive back Ryan Schapman made several big plays.

But Richardson said one of the keys in the Wolves' 5-1 season has been the steady improvement of the younger players. With such a senior-dominated squad, the coach said the underclassmen need to improve also.

Two of those improving players have been junior linebackers Joe DeGain and Rich Warchuck.

"We were talking about improvement being something you strive for not only to get better for this year but you also need to see it for the future. Those two weren't even in the picture at linebacker to begin the season and now they are," Richardson said.

One group of players who consistently dominate is the Clarkston defensive backfield. "It may be the best defensive backfield I've ever coached here," said Richardson, head coach for eight years.

That group of hard-hitting players includes Schapman, junior Tim Wisser, senior Pat Mulligan, Fife, Graves, junior Tim Wasilk and junior Jeff Bemis.

While the wins keep piling up for Clarkston, they remain one game behind Troy in the OAA's Division I. The Wolves are also rated #3 in their region. The top four rated teams make the state playoffs.

The next three games against strong teams Rochester Adams, Alpena and Lake Orion are must wins, according to Richardson.

"If we lose one of them we are probably out of the playoffs," he said.

Clarkston's next opponent on Oct. 14 is Rochester Adams. Adams, 4-2 overall, is a tough division foe that has a potent running attack.

The Adams game is also Homecoming night for Cagers stung by controversial call

BY DARREL W. COLE Clarkston News Staff Writer

Sometimes it's just not fair.

The Clarkston girls basketball team works hard, hustles and never gives up in games or practice. But sometimes great attitudes don't mean winning seasons.

Girls coach Larry Mahrle said his team does everything well except shoot the ball. That was evident last week as the Wolves beat West Bloomfield by nine points Oct. 4, followed by a controversial one-point loss to Royal Oak Kimball Oct. 6.

The loss to Kimball shouldn't have been.

With time running down and Clarkston ahead, Wolves coach Mahrle called a time out. Although he and his staff knew he had that one time out left, Kimball's official game scorebook said they had none left.

But Mahrle said a previous time out was charged to the wrong team.

"They actually charged an earlier time out to us. Needless to say the other coach knew it but didn't admit it," Mahrle said.

Despite Mahrle and his staff arguing the point, and Kimball's coach lying about the incident, Kimball was awarded two technical foul shots and ended up winning the game because of it.

Mahrle said in all his years of coaching, he's never seen that happen. He said it was especially bad because it was the first time his team played at Kimball in the new OAA division.

The Kimball coach later admitted in another newspaper that he did know a technical shouldn't have been called.

Out of all the controversy, he hopes his players can learn by last week's game.

"You just tell them that that's how life goes sometimes. I'm always saying to them basketball is a lot like life because sometimes things aren't always fair. I hope in the long run they learn that."

The Wolves will get another shot at Kimball when they visit Clarkston Nov. 8.

What's most painful for the coach and players is that the team deserves to win because they are so dedicated to the game.

"These kids work hard every day in practice and that's why you wish you could get a win," Mahrle said. "People are amazed the kids work so hard and ask me how they keep it up."

But it's no surprise to Mahrle because each player competes for the team.

An example of their great attitude is senior cocaptain Kerry Kelly's determination. The forward has a torn ligament in her knee but continues to play with the pain.

"She's been basically playing on one leg and will probably have surgery after the season," the coach said.

This week the Wolves play at Pontiac Northern and host Waterford Kettering.

Runners follow pattern at county meet

BY DARREL W. COLE Clarkston News Staff Writer

It could have been better, but it also wasn't bad for the Clarkston girls cross-country team.

The girls squad came in a respectable 7th place out of 33 full teams and six partial teams at the Oakland County meet. They were led by senior Leah Scharl's 6th place finish in a time of 20:13.

The boys squad didn't fair as well, however, finishing 22nd out of 37 full teams and two partial

Besides the Oct. 9 county meet, the boys and girls squads also participated in a dual meet against Birmingham Seaholm Oct. 4.

GIRLS RUNNERS

Although co-coach Mike Taylor was happy with the girls' performance at the county meet, he said they could do even better. Their 260 points put them far behind county champ Troy's 48 points (five runners in the top 15).

But more importantly the Wolves finished just one place behind Milford (220 points), a team they will have to beat in the regionals in order to qualify for the state meet. Also in the way are Brighton and Grand Blanc, both of whom defeated Clarkston earlier this season.

Clarkston's top finishers after Scharl in the county meet were: Junior Stefanie Burklow, 44th in 21:49; freshman Elizabeth Cook, 61st in 22:17; sophomore Kristin Maine, 74th in 22:33; and, freshman Megan Plante, 75th in 22:34.

The girls squad continued to show their depth in the dual meet against Seaholm, winning 26-33, and improving their dual record to 6-0 overall, 3-0 in the Oakland Activities Association Division II.

Scharl led the way once again, taking first place in 20:06. She was followed by Burklow's fourth place. Maine, Cook, Plante, sophomore Liz Vandermeer and freshman Emily Hogan took the next five places, from 6th to 10th place.

On a sad note, Plante was lost for the season when she broke her leg playing soccer this past weekend.

BOYS RUNNERS

At the county meet junior Brian Ginn led his team with a 52nd place in a time of 18:08. Senior Brian Warner also ran strong and took 59th in a time

But after that the times fell off. Senior Steve

Some of the Clarkston girls cross country runners get ready to practice last week. The has remained undefeated this season at 6-0 and 3-0 in the OAA. The key to the season has been a competitive and supporting team.

Anderson was 134th in 19:09, junior Tim O'Rourke was 15th in 19:27 and junior Jeremy Lafferty was 157th in 19:31.

In the boys county meet, Lakeland repeated as champions, with Milford finishing second.

The boys did better in the dual meet against Seaholm, winning 23-40. The victory improved their record to 1-2 in the OAA Div. II and 4-2 overall.

Ginn ran a great time of 17:49 to finish second overall while Warner was also impressive with a time of 17:57, good for third place.

Other Clarkston finishers include Anderson fifth in 18:52 and O'Rourke sixth in 18:54.

Sophomore Jayson Scheiderer may be out for the season with an upper leg injury.

The Wolves' next meet is Oct. 11 at Independence Oaks with Waterford Mott and Lake Orion.

Golfers ready for state finals

BY DARREL W. COLE Clarkston News Staff Writer

Clarkston golfers spent this week working on their games, preparing for another showdown at the state golf finals.

After a second-place finish last season, the Wolves golfers know they have the ability to compete once again. Coach Jim Chamberlain said his players have the experience, talent and mental toughness to win, it's just a matter of putting it all together for the Oct. 14-15 finals.

"On any given day I've had one of six different kids taking medalist for me. They all have the ability," he said. "It's been a week of hard work for us. We're directed now and know what we have to do."

The Wolves qualified for the state meet, to be held at Forest Acres, MSU's course, in Lansing, by taking second to rival Rochester at the Oct. 7 regionals. The top three teams qualified for the state meet.

The Wolves finished with a 316, behind Rochester's 309 and ahead of Grand Blanc's 317.

"We didn't play very well for us but we got what we wanted," Chamberlain said.

Leading the way for the Wolves was senior Jayson Buchmann with a 74, followed by a strong tournament from sophomore Tim Klimek, who shot

"We normally don't expect a sophomore to do that forus but he is capable and was the medalist at the Troy Invitational," the coach said. "It's to our benefit that we have kids that can all play."

The Wolves' other top shooters at regionals were seniors Corey Bildstein, 81, Jeremy Jenson, 83, and Jon Dean, 85.

Chamberlain said the high individual scores weren't normal, but a few of the players got off to bad starts and couldn't fully recover.

The course at MSU is not unfamiliar to Chamberlain or his players. In August the squad played on the East course and shot a 305.

The Wolves will be battling 24 other regionalqualifying schools, including Rochester, Milford, Traverse City and Portage Central.

The first day is crucial for Clarkston. Fourteen teams will be cut after the first day of play. On the second day the final 10 teams will battle it out for the top spot. The final score will include the first day's total.

The state finals start at 10 a.m. Oct. 14. The best way to Forest Acres is to take I-75 to I-69 west to the East Lansing exit. The course is on Harrison Road.

Golfer of the Week

Jason Buchmann is Clarkston's Golfer of the Week for his score of 74 at the regional meet Oct. 7. The senior is a 4-year varsity golfer and as a freshman he was 10th overall in the state finals. Last year Buchmann shot a low round of 1-under 70 and was 4th overall in the finals. "He's been a solid player for us for a long time."--- By Coach Jim Chamberlain.

Despite record, kickers on pace

BY DARREL W. COLE Clarkston News Staff Writer

It's been a learning season for the Clarkston boys soccer team.

And after a 4-7-2 start, coach Dan Fitzgerald isn't pleased with his team's record, but knows the players are learning from the losses and continue to get better.

"We've done all right so far," said Fitzgerald, the fourth-year coach. "We're playing stronger teams now. Last year we won the GOAL and would have probably won it this year too but I tell the kids the program will be stronger.

"The guys have been playing hard and we have lost about five or six games by one goal."

Fitzgerald said once his team starts winning those close games, wins will come easier.

Coming off a 15-5 season, Fitzgerald still has high expectations and he knows the tough schedule will prepare his team for districts.

Last week continued the tough season for the Wolves as they lost 1-0 to Rochester Oct. 4 and tied Fenton 1-1 Oct. 7.

Junior Derrick Spires scored for the Wolves against Fenton. Fitzgerald said Spires and goalie Shane Collier had two strong games last week.

For now, Fitzgerald said his team is focusing on the districts Oct. 24 at Walled Lake Central. Other teams include Grand Blanc, Waterford Mott, Waterford Kettering, Milford and Lakeland.

Fitzgerald is glad some of his tough regularseason foes like Troy, Rochester, Rochester Adams and Troy Athens are in another district.

With a 1-6 record in OAA's Division I, the Wolves will be looking to the future, working to become one of the top teams.

This week the Wolves host Troy and play at Royal Oak Kimball, the only team Clarkston has defeated in Division I this season.

Recreation roundup

Swartout's squad readies for regionals

BY DARREL W. COLE Clarkston News Staff Writer

With a busy week behind them, the Clarkston girls tennis team will now focus on regionals.

The Wolves finished the year at 5-7 overall and 0-5 in the tough Oakland Activities Association Division II.

Last week the Wolves finished the regular season by losing four matches and took last in the division tournament Oct. 6 at Troy Athens.

Clarkston lost to Rochester 8-0, Bloomfield Hills Andover 6-2, Troy Athens 6-2 and West Bloomfield 8-0.

But coach Dick Swartout said it wasn't a complete lost week for his squad. "We had five tie breakers against West Bloomfield and lost a lot of three-set matches. It was like that in other matches also, so we were competitive."

Winning against Andover was junior Mary Schmidt at #3 singles, 6-2, 7-5, and Sam Schubering at #4 singles by default.

Against Athens the Wolves got wins from the #1 doubles team of seniors Renee Shubert and Kelley Wall, 6-3, 5-7, 6-3. The #2 doubles team of Jocelyn Stock and Kristy Kade also won a close one, 7-5, 2-Swartout said the OAA coaches will be meeting 6, 6-3. Nov. 2 to discuss possible new division alignments. almost assured a last-place finish, considering the powers they had to compete against.

"I'm sure a lot of the other coaches are calling for changes also but then again I'm not really sure we should drop down to three (Division III) either. Somehow, We'll have to make some changes," he said.

The regionals are set for Oct. 14 at Farmington. Swartout said his team may do better there than they did in the division tournament.

"You have Lahser there but after that there is Northville and Walled Lake Central, but not a lot of others. A lot of it really depends on the draw we get, so who really knows?"

Trick or Treat Street Oct. 29

Sweetwater Trail captures Michigan's history

BY EILEEN OXLEY Clarkston News Staff Writer

"The searchers all say they' d have made Whitefish Bay

If they'd put fifteen more miles behind her ... And all that remains is the faces and the names Of the wives and the sons and the daughters." --From "The Wreck of the Edmund Fitzgerald," Gordon Lightfoot

And the artifacts.

There are some of those left too from the Edmound Fitzgerald, the worst shipwreck disaster of the 1970s that killed all 29 crew members on board.

Soon travelers will be able to enjoy those pieces of the past at Whitefish Point's Sunken Ship Museum on Lake Superior as well as other historic treasures, thanks to a new route established by the Michigan Historic Preservation Network.

The project detours motorists off state highways to visit old harbors, lighthouses and other historic sites along Great Lakes coastlines. It's been a labor of love for MHPN members, says Jennifer Radcliff of Clarkston, MHPN president.

"If people only knew they could enjoy Michigan's maritime history as much as its automotive history ... How many lakes we have and how much water we have in them ...," Radcliff said. "The allure of maritime history is very compelling. We've got a wonderful treasure here. We (the MHPN) like to put our feet in it."

A pilot program began last spring to locate various historic sites along Lake Huron between Alpena and the Mackinac Bridge, but the MHPN hopes to continue the project until it covers all of the state's 3,200 miles of coastline. It's even looking for historic homes to be used as bed and breakfast inns for travelers.

POINT IROQUOIS LIGHTHOUSE on Whitefish Bay in Lake Superior is another historic resource the MHPN hopes to offer on its Sweetwater Trail. Photos courtesy of Art Easterbrook, U.S. Forest Service

Soon the same kind of research — identifying other historic areas — will begin from Mackinac to Sault Ste. Marie, continue across the UP and finish with the "Sunset" or western Lake Michigan coast-

"The goal is for the resources to be wrapped into a regional plan, to be part of the data that goes into making decisions. Historic resources should be protected," Radcliff said.

She hopes that some of those historic resources will give income to areas that lost their lumber and forest industries — and water transportation to railroads.

"Many communities that owed their existence to maritime transportation are in poor economic shape - unless development and tourism has caught them," Radcliff said. She cited Petosky and Traverse City as two examples of successful development.

"We need to find out where (historic resources) are, give them a value and put them into service for tourism as a master plan ... By protecting resources, we can give them back to the community," she said.

Radcliff says MHPN has talked to the Michigan Department of Transportation about posting Sweetwater Trail signs with state trunkline signage advertising MDOT's Circle Tour.

"The Circle Tour pulls people through the state, but not close to the coast," Radeliff said.

People will come away with a strong sense of how our water and land relate to each other.'

Mike Saunders, MDOT heritage route program manager, said Radcliff's been told she can post her signs "at points where our trunklines intersect with her routes. She can have what we call a trailblazer or logo sign. The Circle Tour designates the routes that run along the Great Lakes — anything that touches them in Minnesota, Wisconsin and Canada. Jennifer's program dovetails with ours very well. She'll have local loops off of it."

The only other state to have developed a similar plan is New York. There the Seaway Trail covers 450 miles of Lake Erie coastline along New York and Pennsylvania.

Though financing for the project has been created within MHPN's budget, Radcliff hopes a future funding base will come from organizations like the DNR and community foundations.

Radcliff says the Sweetwater Trail follows a pattern set by Michigan's earliest settlers.

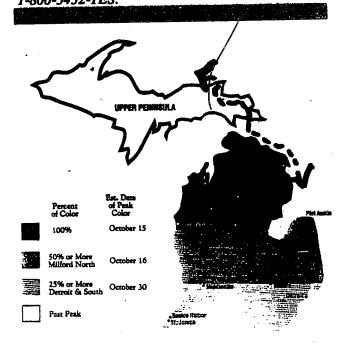

ROUND ISLAND LIGHTHOUSE, on the Straits of Mackinac, is one of Michigan's historic resources.

"The way an Indian would have used a trail, it's not separated. They could take you over the water and around a wet meadow...

"People will come away with a strong sense of how our water and land relate to each other. And part of that is the enjoyment of historical resources, not just natural ones," she said.

Good news, Michigan motorists. The state's color will still be peaking this weekend. Call (800) MI-4-FALL (644-3255) in the U.S. and Canada for a recorded Michigan fall color conditions and events report, updated on Thursdays. Call the Michigan Travel Bureau for information about historic sites at 1-800-5432-YES.

MICHIGAN'S FALL COLOR REPORT looks good for the weekend. The dotted line shows the first part of the new Sweetwater Trail, to be implemented next spring.
