Courthouse called a total loss

Tenants searching for new digs,

The mechanical room of the 52-2 District Court building was protected by sprinklers. Unfortunately, that's not where fire broke out Devils' Night on Lorac St.

Since the rest of the building was not protected by sprinklers, as allowed under building codes, it was the sound of breaking glass that apparently triggered a burglar alarm and sent police to the courthouse, where they saw smoke and flames indicating a fire well under way.

Independence Township Fire Chief Gar Wilson said he requested the entire building be sprinklered when it was built in 1986. However BOCA building codes, used by the township and many other municipalities, allow a choice of either firewalls or sprinklers. So firewalls were allowed.

In addition, Wilson said he requested that water be brought back to the building as soon as it became available. That was never done, so firefighters had to run hoses from M-15 back to the building to fight the fire.

The alarm was received by the fire department at 12:34 a.m. Monday. Cpl. Scott Dickey of the Clarkston Police Dept., who heard the report on his radio, was the first to arrive.

"Dickey was within a block and waited for the county (sheriff's dept.)," Clarkston police chief Bob DeVore said. "They went up there together and then saw smoke."

Because the burglar alarm had gone off, police checked the outside of the building but found no signs of forced entry or broken outside windows. They speculate inner panes were broken by the heat of the fire.

By the time the fire department arrived, at 12:37, both floors were engulfed in flame, according to fire marshal Neil Ashley. Firefighters from Brandon, Orion, Springfield, Waterford and Holly all assisted in either fighting the fire or filling in at fire stations around the township.

Crews were still putting out flames at 8 a.m. as employees of companies located in the building began arriving for work.

Jim Ford, owner of Ford and Associates, a manufacturers' rep., said he was allowed to peek in his office door and see it was a total loss.

"I probably can't replace anything," he said. "I have a safe in there; I just hope that's intact." He said he had just moved into the building in March.

The news in brief

Vote Tuesday

Polls will open at 7 a.m. Tuesday, Nov. 8 as Michigan voters elect a governor, congressman, US senator, state representative and senator and county commissioner. In addition, Independence Township residents will decide the fate of a police tax-increase request, and city of Clarkston residents will elect three councilmen and a mayor.

Absentee ballots may be obtained by those not able to vote at their precinct on election day. For an application, contact your local clerk's office. The last day absentee ballots may be mailed out is Saturday at 2 p.m. However, those qualified to vote absentee ballot may do so in the clerk's office until 2 p.m. on Saturday.

Polls close at 8 p.m. Tuesday.

No challengers for city seats

Clarkston city council members Karen Sanderson, Steve Secatch and Doug Roeser and Mayor Sharron Catalo, whose terms expire this year, have no challengers with the Nov. 8 election, said Clarkston city manager Art Pappas Monday. No petitions have been filed and "the only thing people can have is a write-in," Pappas said.

Council members Bill Basinger, Steve Arkwright and James Schultz will serve another year, their terms expire in 1995. Newly-elected officers take their places Monday, Nov. 14.

City to conduct hearing for block grants

The City of the Village of Clarkston will hold a public hearing on Monday, Nov. 14 at 7:30 p.m. at the City Hall, 375 Depot, for discussion of Community Development Block Grant funds. The hearing is open to all interested persons who may comment orally or in writing on suggested uses for CDBG funds during the 1995-96 fiscal year. The projected amount of grant funds is $8,000.

Players' second stop is "Smoke and Mirrors"

The Clarkston Village Players' second production, "Smoke and Mirrors" is a mystery/comedy with a twist. The plot involves a playwright who's jilted when a director commercializes his play into a movie. The two decide to kill off the leading man but "the audience is fooled in what takes place and what actually happens," says Mel Case, producer.

The play, directed by Don Foster, stars Tom Logan as Clark Robinson, Chuck Miller as Hamilton Orr, Irene Hengstebeck as Barbara Orr, Jesse James Lundy as Sheriff Leroy Lumpkin and John Gifford as Derek Coburn. It runs Nov. 4, 5, 11, 12, 17, 18 and 19 with showtime at 8 p.m. except Thursday's performance which begins at 7:30 p.m. For information and tickets ($8 for Fridays and Saturdays; $6 for Thursday) call (810) 625-1826 or 625-2511.

Do they look like bad guys?

Assistant principals say discipline is just part of what they do

BY ANNETTE KINGSBURY
Clarkston News Editor

If you get in trouble at Clarkston High School, chances are you'll have a chat with one of the school's two new assistant principals, Ron Santavicca and Robert Camaiani.

But the two, who have long careers in teaching, appear anything but intimidating. Though their jobs involve handing out discipline under the school code, both say they spend a lot of time working with kids in other settings where they can get to know them better.

"We try to get involved with kids that are involved in clubs," Camaiani said. "The more kids we can work with, the more effective we feel we can be."

"We all try to attend athletic events and concerts," Santavicca said. "We're visible. We're not just the bad guys."

Days start early at CHS—6:30 a.m. to be exact.

One minute you can be praising a student. The next minute you have to switch gears to become someone different.

Ron Santavicca
CHS assistant principal

The two assistant principals oversee the parking lot, the attendance office, take turns on lunch duty, and have academic responsibilities as well, serving as administrative liaisons to various departments and helping develop curriculum. They are joined by assistant principal Ginny Farmer and principal Brent Cooley in running the high school.

"We put in a lot of extra hours," Camaiani said.

"We use after school to put in parental contact."

"There is no end of the day," Santavicca said.

"It's a job that—you live it. Officially it's 6:30-4, but you never see that."

Santavicca taught in Clarkston schools, as an industrial arts and driver education teacher and department head since 1967 before being named assistant principal this summer. He received his BA from Eastern Michigan University; his MA from Michigan State University, and his administrative certification from Oakland University in 1993.

"I did have a very busy life but I wanted a change," he said. "It was a commitment not only I but my family made. I had to go back to school to get my administrative certification."

Camaiani came to Clarkston this fall from Ferndale, where he had been an elementary school principal since 1991. Before that he was an elementary principal in Dearborn Heights, assistant principal at a high school in Texas, and a teacher, counselor and coach in several other public and private schools dating back to 1975. He earned BS and MA degrees from Eastern and his Ed. Specialist degree from the University of Michigan.

Camaiani and his wife, who teaches elementary music, just added twins to their family Sept. 29. They also have a daughter, 3.

"You work hard but you can certainly accomplish balance in your work and family life, like everybody else does," he said. "I really enjoy the challenge."

Both say they must be flexible in their jobs, tolerating constant interruptions in the 1,728-student school.

"Most of my day is interruptions," Santavicca said. "Nothing is stagnant. It's just constant change. The day goes by so fast . . ."

"One minute you can be praising a student. The next minute you have to switch gears to become someone different."

"The important thing is we're all consistent. But we keep individual families and students in mind," Camaiani said. "We try to make decisions that will help the family in the long run."

tant principals at Clarkston High School.

The administrators realize some problems come with having an overcrowded school. Halls are tightly packed. Because the cafeteria is too small, seniors are allowed to go out for lunch. Sometimes they don't come back.

In addition, many students come from homes where both parents work. There's no one at home to supervise if a student is suspended. Therefore, the administration is considering starting up an in-school suspension program.

"Rather than send a kid home for a day where he's going to watch TV all day . . . he still has to get up early in the morning and come to school," Santavicca said. The proposal has not yet been funded.

Though they are enjoying their new jobs, Santavicca and Camaiani said they have no interest in becoming a high-school principal, thank you very much:

"This is big enough for me," Santavicca said. "I think I have the right tools to do what I'm doing. I don't see myself as a principal."

"I guess we're both very happy in the job we have," Camaiani said. And he's found what he was looking for in coming to Clarkston.

"Families are very supportive," he said. "There's a sense of community pride that you sense when you talk to parents. And that helps."

Proposed downtown deli has hearing Thursday

BY EILEEN OXLEY
Clarkston News Staff Writer

A recent proposal made by a Clarkston resident to start a restaurant in the former Hallman Apothecary has encountered roadblocks from Clarkston's Zoning Board of Appeals.

Scott Adams, who co-owns a diner in Waterford and who has restaurant experience — "everything from a busboy to general manager" — wants to start his own establishment, a low-fat, low-cal, deli-type eatery in the vacated building.

But, because of last Thursday's ZBA meeting, Adams says his proposal can't be accepted until the ZBA comes back with reports from its city building inspector, engineer and attorney.

Adams requested a use change from a pharmacy to a restaurant, and parking variances. But he said there is nothing in the ZBA's ordinance that specifically names a restaurant under commercial use.

"It's not spelled out," Adams said. "If a pharmacy goes in there they can automatically be approved." Adams added that Hallman's, a former pharmacy, was "grandfathered into" the ordinance.

ZBA chairman James Schultz said yesterday that the information from city engineer Gary Tressel, city building inspector Sy Stone and city attorney Tom Ryan is needed before "we can see what kind of impact on the community this (business) would have."

Adequate parking is a major consideration, he added.

"There's supposed to be so much additional parking ... If (Adams) was moving in with a small restaurant it would make a difference. But he wants to use the whole building. What he described as a small deli was, in fact, a full-fledged restaurant. With Carol's Village Grill, the Clarkston Cafe and Rudy's, it affects more parking spots," Schultz said.

Schultz added that the parking lot in back of businesses on the east side of Main Street "belongs to the (Clarkston) Cafe, but a lot of people think they can park there."

One thing Adams and Schultz do agree on is lack of enforcement involving illegal parking in public lots.

"If business parking spots were enforced we wouldn't have this problem," Adams said.

But he also added that he feels the ZBA may want "only one kind of business."

"If they decide not to grant this now, then what kind of business will they let in?" he said.

Maggie McKinney, who owns the vacated Hallman Apothecary building with her husband Richard, said Monday that she was also surprised at the ZBA's reaction.

"I'm a little surprised. (City Manager) Art

Pappas tells me there's no problem with parking, but retailers tell me there is. We were just a little shocked last Thursday. We weren't there, but we heard about it. We didn't think there was a problem.

"We're trying to be sensitive to the needs of Clarkston. We would hate to lose that spot to an (office) business."

A ZBA meeting takes place tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. at the Village Hall, 374 Depot Road, with Adams' case tentatively scheduled. Schultz says he hopes city officials will return their findings.

Man pleads guilty to utility theft

BY EILEEN OXLEY
Clarkston News Staff Writer

As he and his men were digging out the rubble from the courthouse fire Monday, Det. Dave Row of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department Fire Investigation Unit paused to give an update on the Larry Hatcher case.

Row said Hatcher pled guilty to a public utility fraud misdemeanor charge in Independence Township's 52-2 District Court before Judge Gerald McNally Oct. 20.

He added that because of the 52-2 District Court fire, Hatcher's probation officer was unavailable for phone contact and he was uncertain as to Hatcher's sentence — a maximum of 90 days in jail with a $100 fine.

"I think there's probation involved, but I know (Hatcher) was ordered to make restitution to Detroit Edison," Row said. He added that the amount charged for the electricity stolen at his Harding Street home was $310.

The lesser charge is one of two. Hatcher is scheduled to appear before Judge Robert Anderson today at 1 p.m. in Oakland County Circuit Court. He faces a felony charge, also public utility fraud, which could earn him a stiffer sentence: four years in prison and/or a $2,000 fine. Restitution to Edison for the stolen energy used in his Waterford home is expected to be "over $1,200," Row said.

Hatcher was indicted by a U.S. District Court grand jury on Aug. 31 and charged with two counts — manufacturing and distribution of marijuana. Though U.S. Drug Enforcement agents raided the house he rented in Waterford on Aug. 16 and found a sophisticated hydroponic grass-growing operation with 154 plants, it's also suspected "(Hatcher) had a small one in Independence," Row said.

The stolen Edison energy was allegedly used to support the pot business. Independence Township firefighters figured that out when they fought the Aug. 18 blaze that did $40,000 worth of damage to Hatcher's township home. They noticed wire bypassing the Edison meter and found the same situation in Waterford.

Row says arson is strongly suspected.

"We're still looking for information on who might have set the fire. There's a reward for up to $5,000 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of people involved in the fire," he said.

Road commission says no on speed-limit request

BY DARREL W. COLE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Independence Township officials want some help, but they aren't getting it from the Road Commission For Oakland County.

The latest township request for a speed limit reduction on Flemings Lake was turned down by the RCOC. The denial continues a string of requests made by the township on behalf of residents which have been turned down.

"A lot of these denials don't seem to make any sense as to why they are turned down," said township supervisor Dale Stuart. "The criteria they say they use are national safety standards but it doesn't seem it gets applied to specific circumstances."

One specific example that has frustrated Stuart is the request for a stop sign on the street that travels through Heather Lake, a subdivision off Clarkston Road. The street goes straight through the subdivision without one stop sign. There are several intersecting streets along the way.

"It's really a thoroughfare because this is the only paved road while the others traveling the same direction are graveled. I can't understand why a stop sign was turned down; it's obviously a dangerous street," he said.

Stuart said the township board can only listen to people's concerns and then formally ask the county to make the changes requested. Most of the requests to the RCOC have been for speed-limit reductions, like that on Flemings, or placement of stop signs at perceived dangerous intersections.

"The explanations to the people are not satisfactory. I can talk to them (road commission) and call them, and have done that. But they decide what happens," Stuart said.

CHS student life

By Don Downey

Winning spirit runs deep

Three cheers for Clarkston! The boys golf team won the state championship, the varsity football team is in the playoffs, and the marching band went to the state finals (again). I hope the whole year goes as well.

When I was at Eastern Michigan University last weekend watching the bands compete I thought to myself, "What a great school I come from. We aren't the richest or the biggest or the best recognized, but we're always a threat to whoever we compete against."

Our marching band at CHS doesn't have all the fancy props and equipment as the other schools, but we still get invited to the state finals year after year. I think the reason we always end up on top is because the band, like the football and golf teams, realizes that it doesn't matter what the other schools do, as long as we do our best.

I wish everyone could have that attitude on an individual basis. Too many people refuse to take responsibility for themselves, which is why they cannot reach their goals (and in some cases put forth the effort to even think up some goals). Cynicism and pessimism aren't going to disappear overnight, but they can be defeated little by little. If you get a bad grade in a class, don't sneer and say, "What a dumb teacher; I hate him." Instead take credit for your mistake and get on with life.

The football team wouldn't be anywhere near as good as they are if they had that poor attitude. If there's a bad call or they mess up a play, you don't see the team throwing childish temper tantrums and saying, "Hey, that's not fair, boo-hoo."

You can't be a winner unless you realize that your wins and losses are simply a reflection of how much you cared. You won't be a loser if you accept your losses as an opportunity to try harder the next time.

If you ever need help to understand the winning spirit, pride, or dedication, just look at the teams at Clarkston High School.

The Insider

Who's ducking who?

On Oct. 13 a story hit the newswires that Clarkston's own congressional candidate, Megan O'Neill, was accusing her opponent, incumbent congressman Dale Kildee, of ducking debates.

In fact, it was O'Neill who refused to commit to a recent debate sponsored by the American Association of University Women of Lake Orion/Oxford. Kildee committed immediately upon being asked, but it took O'Neill several weeks and the imminent cancellation of the event to decide she'd attend.

Who's a wimp?

Ken Linenger, brother of astronaut Dr. Jerry Linenger who talked to Clarkston elementary school students Sept. 12 while aboard the space shuttle Discovery, had this to say about his sibling:

"He's usually pretty rough and daring about things. But the day before the lift-off we went body-surfing in the ocean and he was taking the little wimpy waves. He said it wouldn't look right if an astronaut broke his arm before blast-off."

Letters to the editor

Vote for millage

As an Independence Township businessman and resident, I would like to encourage everyone to support the police millage Nov. 8.

Although many residents do not like to admit it, Independence Township is no longer an isolated township, far away from the problems of the cities. Instead, we have grown to be a part of suburbia, with all the potential traffic and crime problems that come along with it. In the past, the outstanding efforts of the Oakland County Sheriff's Dept. have allowed us to keep up, but I fear that without this millage, we will no longer be able to do so.

The policy of the Clarkston Area Chamber of Commerce is not to take an official stance on ballot issues. However, as its president, I feel it important to point out the importance of a strong and well-manned police department in keeping our business community strong. More importantly, as a father of two, I want to live in a community where my family is as safe as it can be.

I urge everyone to vote yes for the police millage on Nov. 8.

Sincerely,
Don Brose

Offended by ad

To the editor:

I am offended by Dale Kildee's latest attempt at negative campaigning. His television ad claiming that his opponent favors selling guns to children is just as insulting to the voters as it is ridiculous. Does he actually believe anyone would buy this kind of outrageous mud-slinging? Does he actually believe these ads are going to buy him votes? Try again Mr. Kildee, you just lost mine!

Sincerely,
Carrie Thomas

Don't Rush Me

By Don Rush

At least you can still speak your mind here

It's good to know some folks out there still like me. Heck, some have called in to say I can still live in America even if I do believe taking guns out of the hands of law-abiding people means only criminals will have guns.

Growing up, I often heard what today is one of my father's favorite quotes (he's got a bunch). This particular quote goes like this: "At least in America you can say what you want, even against the president or government, without fear."

He grew up in a time when the big socialist/communist experiment was in full-swing in Europe. It was known in many fascist and totalistic governments that people who spoke out of line were often not seen from or heard from again.

America was different. In those countries criticisms were only spoken in hushed voices, in groups where the words wouldn't get out to the streets.

In America we were taught to speak our minds, to debate. It was one of the corner stones of our nation. Were it not for our forefathers disagreeing with the government of the time, we'd still be saying, "God bless the Queen," and flying the Union Jack on our flag poles.

It's a curious and scary thing when people tell you to find another country because you state your beliefs that the government is doing wrong by its people.

This happened recently in the well-publicized California case. You remember this one: where the people in a neighborhood actually had the gall to openly oppose the government putting up a housing project across from their homes. Because the people spoke out, the Federal government told these folks to turn over all written material they had gathered, and threatened $500,000 fines if the folks continued to oppose the building.

What is happening in this country, the land of the free and the brave, when you can't speak your mind without fear of people telling you to shut up and get out?

I was taught that in America we recognized that each individual was sovereign. Individuals could do what they wanted as long as they understood when exercising their rights they didn't infringe on the rights of others.

I guess this may be changing in America. I don't know what the kids are being taught in school these days. Maybe conformity. Maybe to do just what the government tells them to do, because, well, the government would never do anything bad, or wrong to us.

I hope this isn't the case. I hope the kids are still taught to love and respect the ideals and principles of America. I hope they are taught it is okay to disagree and that debate is a wonderful thing.

I don't want mind-dead robots out there. I want people to question what they read in print, what they hear on radio and see on television. Remember: there are lies; damnable lies; and statistics. I want them to read history, expand their minds and to know the learning process never ends.

I want kids to know the world doesn't owe them anything; not one red cent. Another quote from Pops Rush: "It's a big, bad bear out there and it's always going to try and knock you down. If you want something you have to work hard to get it, because it won't be given to you."

There's a challenge in that. Challenge and fighting for what you believe in are the hallmarks of what has become the greatest nation on earth -- the one we're living in right now.

If you read American history you come to find this has been the way for us. We're not a "pure" people, we're mutts. And, like mutts we have to fight a little harder for the things we desire. Get knocked down, get back up. It is the way for us.

If I had the chance, I guess I'd tell kids never give up. If someone tells you your beliefs are wrong and that you should shut up or leave, tell them, no, I'm staying and I'll continue to say what I believe.

For, isn't this still America?

15 YEARS AGO (1979)

Independence Center, due to close officially Nov. 16, is no longer operating. The center's board of directors votes to dissolve the organization Oct. 9. Sashabaw United Presbyterian Church has been notified it can reclaim the building which it contributed for the center rent-free.

Pine Knob loses ground in its battle for a 22-story hotel when the Independence Township Zoning Board of Appeals rules the official township zoning map in error. The ZBA removes lines showing most of the property hotel site zoned for multiple family dwellings.

The Clarkston Raiders youth soccer team, 9- and 10-year-olds division, finishes on top against the Clarkston Green Giants with a 3-0 score after the final game of the season Sunday. The League is sponsored by the Waterford Parks and Recreation Department and organizes teams for players ranging in age from 7-15.

The Clarkston schools teachers contract is still unresolved, says Floyd Vincent, assistant superintendent of Clarkston Schools and one of the negotiators. Vincent says both the Clarkston Board of Education and the Clarkston Education Association have agreed to accept board attorneys' decisions after the final contractual language of the arbitration clause has been reviewed. No word has been received indicating when the final agreement will be reached.

Susan Lynn Griffiths of Clarkston receives a Daughters of the American Revolution Award. The DAR Award is given each year to a senior girl who has demonstrated outstanding qualities of dependability, service, leadership and patriotism. Susan is a varsity cheerleader, member of the National Honor Society and class treasurer. She will enter a state competition in January.

The Clarkston Village Players hold rehearsals for their first melodrama of the season, "Pure as the Driven Snow" by Paul Loomis. The production will run Nov. 7, 8, 14 and 15 at the Depot Theater.

A prank bell-ringing in the belfry of the old school building is the only dark incident on Halloween night. A wire attached to the bell is found long enough to give its ringer a chance to be in perfect seclusion. *Before the die is cast, read
the warnings*

After wearing a new shirt for the first time for most of a day, I accidentally found a little printed warning stuck deep in a corner of the only pocket. It made me feel like the flip side of a person who removed the "Do Not Remove" tag from a new chair before reading it.

The tag remover does something he's been warned not to do. According to my shirt warning, I hadn't done something I'd been warned to do, and now it was too late.

Life is not always easy.

The message in my new shirt pocket was: "The dyes in this garment are the best available because of the intensity of the color. A slight transfer might occur to other articles of clothing if worn before laundering. We recommend that this garment be laundered separately before the first wearing. It will retain its bright color and only excess dye will be removed."

But I'd worn the shirt for 12 hours before learning that I was threatening the inside of my pants and the outside of my underwear -- and how about my skin? -- with excess dye!

Besides, whoever heard of such a thing? I wouldn't buy a suit that I had to send to the cleaners before I could wear it. I wouldn't buy a car that I had to have towed to a service station before I could drive it.

If a shirt should be laundered before it's worn, it should be laundered before it's sold.

Don't misunderstand, but I'm not one of those fastidious people who wear a garment only once before having it washed or dry-cleaned. It is strictly against my principles to perspire, especially while working, so I feel sanitarially safe in wearing a shirt several times before dropping it in the laundry basket.

Also, because I own many shirts, all hanging unwrinkled in a closet, it is not uncommon for several weeks to transpire between each wearing of each shirt, and if I hadn't been fortunate enough to stumble upon the printed warning in a seldom-used pocket early on, it is easily conceivable that I could have worn my newest shirt for as long as a year, off and on, risking exposure to excess dye Lord knows how many times before risking its loss in the great black hole of my wife's washing machine, and perhaps never learning why my pants, underwear and skin were discolored, off and on.

(Honest, I don't even perspire when I write sentences that long.)

Whom to complain to? The larger tag inside the collar says the shirt is "Authentic shirtwear by Van Heusen," a long-familiar name in American clothing stores. But the smaller tag says "Tailored in Egypt."

Does that mean the same as made in Egypt, or are baggy shirts shipped from the United States to Cairo for tightening? I don't know, but I'll certainly ask the next sphinx named Van Heusen I meet.

Incidentally, this shirt is the plaid, outdoorish type I never wore when I lived in a downtown Detroit high-rise, but now often wear since moving into a house I had built in a small town, woody area.

When you build a home at my advanced age, for only two occupants, with no mortgage, it can be much smaller than the house you may have built 30 years earlier when all the kids were still home. Certainly ours is considerably smaller than the house next door, containing four of our grandchildren, their parents, cat, dog and frequent overnight guests.

Nevertheless, our place cost around $130,000, and my wife and I are quite proud of the high-ceiling living room with fireplace, electronic den, guest room, two-car garage and glassed-in back porch with a door opening onto the path leading to the grandchildren's swimming pool.

All of which I mention only because 3-year-old grandson Adam recently gave a tour of his property to several birthday party guests. After showing his home and yard, he guided the group into our new home.

"This is my cabin," Adam explained.

Heritage Hunt II

By Virginia Block

Cemetery searching often finds us facing abandoned, weed-covered family cemeteries whose caretakers have, too, passed on, taking the only knowledge of each place once revered with them.

The relocation of many graves where "progress" has dictated moving many "family" cemeteries has resulted in some cases of loss of identity of those in unmarked graves. Cremation leads to yet another mystery, while fairly new in today's world.

Still another answer we found recently was to check our publication listing those buried in the Oakland County cemetery. In 1989, while searching at "Eastern Michigan Asylum" (today simply known as Clinton Valley), records were found. Inmates of the infirmary (for those in the "poor house," or "poor farm,") the earliest dates connected with the infirmary (or hospital) appear to be 1879.

Only seven flush grave markers were found, all with dates after 1963. The 3x5 cards providing these records appear to have been done by a social services department, however, rather than "death records" we expect to find elsewhere.

The major fire many years ago in the State Archives created a tremendous loss of early records of all kinds, and will never be replaceable, except by those lucky enough to have family records or obituaries to serve as documentary evidence of their relative.

Many times fraternal organizations owned private cemeteries and a family member who belonged to any one of the Elks, Moose, Masons, Grange, or a score of others might hold records, as well.

Before Social Security existed, many of us knew that churches were the best source of finding a lead to our missing relative since newspapers carried the news of a passing, and usually named the place of the service, and the minister performing the services.

We hope you also are checking carefully for the clues to be found in the stories about "Uncle Charlie" who died "out west" or on a visit to another relative, because more often than not, he or she was buried where they died, unless it was close to their home.

We will check the cemetery book, if you have a name and date, but don't forget the S.A.S.E.

Happy Hunting.

from the heaviest damage, said his office nevertheless was ruined by water.

A few court employees set up temporary shop in the sheriff's substation across M-15, answering questions from the public as best they could. Court safes were recovered from the fire and most records were on computers, according to Lt. Doug Hummel, substation commander.

Fire ruled accidental

Sgt. Robert Gohl of the sheriff's department fire investigation unit said Tuesday he believes the fire was electrical in nature. He noted that plastic, recessed lighting had dropped, melted, to the floor.

"We believe there had been a fire burning for some time in the dropped ceiling in the second floor," he said. He thinks the fire started on the first floor in the area of the civil magistrate's office.

Even though there was a phone call at 1:33 a.m., in which a woman gave names of four people she said started the fire, Gohl believes it was accidental.

"Unfortunately it happened on Devils' Night," he said. "We'll do some follow up on the call. But she said, 'We can tell you who set the church on fire.' They didn't even know what building it was. I'm wondering if it was, 'It'll be fun to do.'"

Richard Ayres, one of the owners of the building, said he doesn't know the extent of the loss but hopes to rebuild within six months.

"I just thank God no one was hurt and it happened when no one was in the building," he said. He said plans had already been submitted to the township to bring water to the site, probably at the same time the new township fire hall is built nearby.

Meanwhile, many of his tenants have found temporary quarters elsewhere around town. Most of their phones are being forwarded to new locations, so clients who need to reach them can continue to call the old numbers.

Dr. Romuald Szymanowski is temporarily forwarding calls to Dr. George Krull's office in Clarkston. Dr. Barry Breidenbaugh's number is also being forwarded, though he had not yet located a new space as of Tuesday morning, employee Joan Price said. "I'm calling patients myself to let them know to reschedule," she said.

"Right now you're talking to us out of my living room table," Wayne Carlson of Jim Powers and Associates said Tuesday morning. "We hope to have an office by the end of the week in downtown Clarkston."

The Chamber of Commerce will be relocating to Lighthouse North, Donna Hyniger said.

Ayers lamented the loss of his tenants, saying he understands most of them can't wait for him to rebuild.

"There's empty spaces all over," he said. "Unfortunately we'll lose those tenants forever. They're probably going to sign a lease where they are now. I'd love to get them back."

Court relocates

District Court will be temporarily relocated to the former Oakland County Prosecutor's offices at 230 Elizabeth Lake Rd. in Pontiac, about one-eighth mile east of Telegraph Rd. Installation of telephones and computers and structural changes are already underway.

Meanwhile, court sessions, except for felony cases, have been suspended indefinitely. Felony charges will be heard at other divisions of 52 District Court.

Traffic tickets should be paid by mail to the address listed on the citation. Prisoner information should be directed to the police department that handled the arrest, or the Oakland County Jail.

As soon as phone service becomes available, the following numbers can be used for information:

CRIMINAL MATTERS: 625-4888

CIVIL MATTERS: 625-4994

TRAFFIC MATTERS: 625-4880.

Focus on the family by Dr. James Dobson

Question: What is the most difficult period of adolescence, and what is behind the distress?

DR. DOBSON: The 13th and 14th years commonly are the most difficult 24 months in life. It is during this time that self-doubt and feelings of inferiority reach an all-time high, amidst the greatest social pressures yet experienced.

An adolescent's worth as a human being hangs precariously on peer group acceptance, which can be tough to garner. Thus, relatively minor evidences of rejection or ridicule are of major significance to those who already see themselves as fools and failures.

It is difficult to overestimate the impact of having no one to sit with on the school-sponsored bus trip, of not being invited to an important event, of being laughed at by the "in" group, waking up in the morning to find seven shiny new pimples on your bumpy forehead, or being slapped by the girl you thought had liked you as much as you liked her.

Some boys and girls consistently face this kind of social catastrophe throughout their teen years. They will never forget the experience.

Dr. Urie Bronfenbrenner, eminent authority on child development at Cornell University, told a Senate committee that the junior high years are probably the most critical to the development of a child's mental health. It is during this period of self-doubt that the personality is often assaulted and damaged beyond repair.

Consequently, said Bronfenbrenner, it is not unusual for healthy, happy children to enter junior-high school, but then emerge two years later as broken, discouraged teenagers.

I couldn't agree more emphatically with Bronfenbrenner's opinion at this point. Junior-high-school students are typically brutal to one another, attacking and slashing a weak victim much the same way a pack of northern wolves kill and devour a deformed caribou. Few events stir my righteous indignation more than seeing a vulnerable child being taught to hate himself and despise his physical body, and wish he had never been born.

Domination of Orion leads to playoffs Graves (234 yards), linemen lead the way

BY DARREL W. COLE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

In the end, all that mattered for the seniors on the Clarkston football team was the win.

After a season-long struggle to make the state playoffs, the Wolves finally succeeded in their task. And thanks to an exemplary cast of seniors, Clarkston has its first playoff team since 1977.

The Wolves dominated No. 4 ranked (Class A) Lake Orion from start to finish in a 33-0 win Oct. 28. The win put the Wolves in second place in the region rankings and sets them to play Monroe at home Nov. 4 at 7:30 p.m. in the first round of the Class AA state playoffs.

If they win, the Wolves will play the winner of the Southgate Anderson vs. Troy game in two weeks. Troy beat Clarkston in the first game of the season, 14-6.

Lake Orion qualified for the playoffs in Class A even with the loss.

Clarkston coach Kurt Richardson, in his eighth year, also qualified for the playoffs for the first time as a head coach. Richardson said his team's success this season has a lot to do with the senior class.

"For this game we (the coaches) really didn't have to say a whole lot. They were ready, they wanted it," he said.

But each game this season has been do-or-die for the Wolves since that opening-game loss to Troy. For that reason Richardson said his players deserve tons of credit.

"These seniors are a great group of kids. They are a special group. They hang tight, lead and do everything you'd want them to do. They have taken all we've asked of them and done it," Richardson said.

"They've stayed focused. And that's hard when you are eight games away from your goal. But with each game this season they've learned to adapt to a lot of situations and they learn from what has gone wrong in the past."

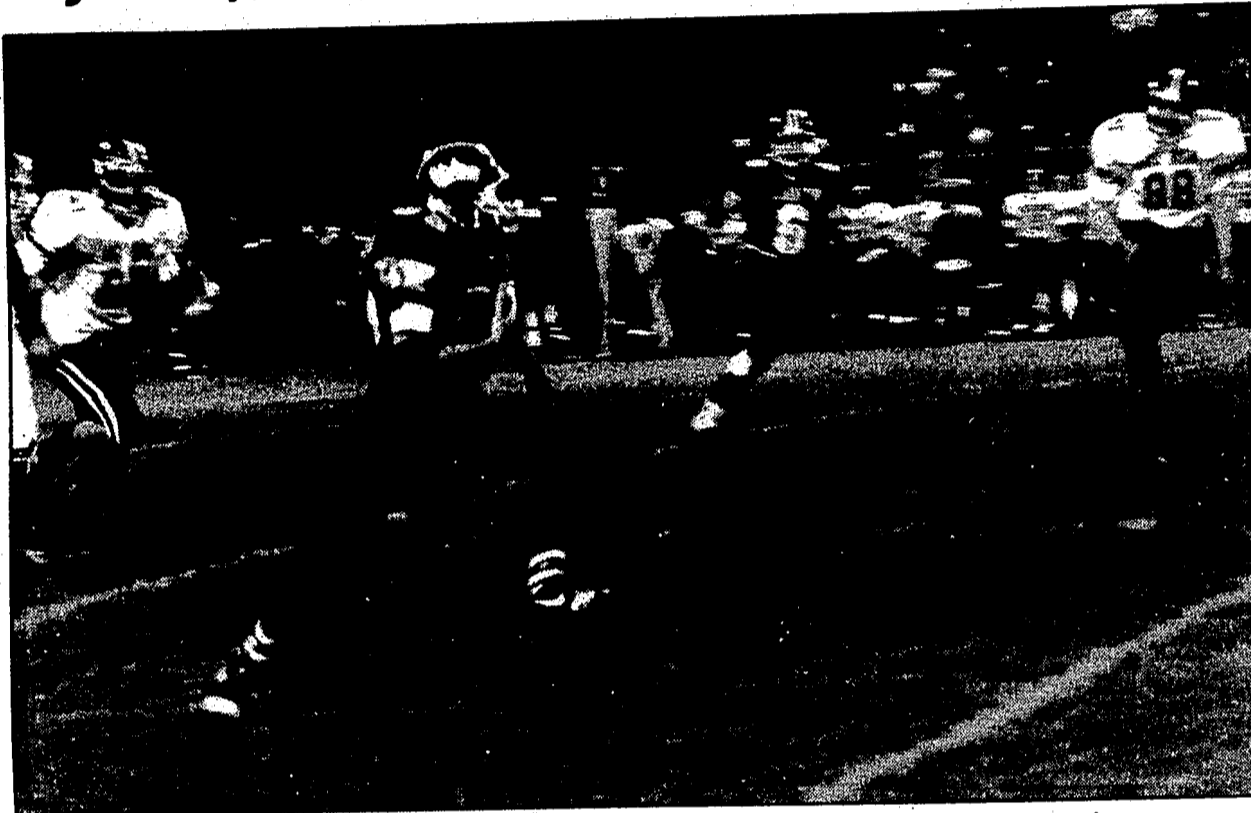

Against Orion, the game turned the Wolves way right from the beginning. After driving down to inside Orion's 10 yard line, the Wolves turned the ball over to the Dragons.

But Lake Orion's junior tailback Dennis Mahan fumbled on the next play and Clarkston recovered.

The scoring onslaught began as senior tailback Jason Graves scored on a 7-yard run, with just over three minutes left in the first quarter.

With a dominating offensive line and Graves running as strong and determined as he has all season, Clarkston continued to shut down Orion's offense with an intense pass rush and hard hitting.

By halftime, the score was 28-0. And Graves proved he is one of the state's best runners with more spectacular touchdown runs of 56, 49 and 25 yards. On each run, the offensive line created a nice hole and Graves did the rest, shedding tacklers and making defensive backs look lost as he sped by.

In all, Graves had over 230 yards at halftime, before finishing with 234 overall. He also kicked two extra-points and kicked a 26-yard field goal in the fourth quarter.

Graves played only briefly in the third quarter and sat out the fourth.

While the offensive line overpowered the much-bigger Orion defensive line, the Clarkston defense also effectively shut down Orion's 1,000-yard rusher Mahan.

"He's the kind of back that likes to bump it outside but our kids really shut him down," Richardson said.

The defense was helped along with great plays from Josh Preston, Chad Chandler, Charles Nolen, Brett Rebb, and others.

But just as it's been all season, Richardson said the Wolves have come this far because of a true "team" concept. He said everyone from assistant coaches to underclassmen has been dedicated to getting better and making the playoffs.

He gives credit to assistant coaches Gordie Richardson, Rich Porritt, Phil Price, Steve Pearson, Mike Stefanski and Doug Trozak.

"They've done a great job and deserve some credit. I'm lucky to have those guys because I know a lot of coaches who struggle to find good assistants," Richardson said.

But making the playoffs shouldn't come as too much of a surprise to Clarkston fans. In compiling a career record of 48-24 in eight seasons, Richardson has also won three league titles (1987, 1990 and 1993).

"We've been so close to making the playoffs before. That also makes this a great feeling."

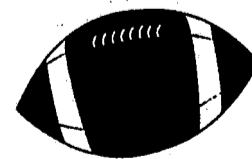

Richardson was an assistant in the Wolves program when they last went to the playoffs in 1977.

Playoff game set for Friday at home

Tickets for the Clarkston vs. Monroe Class AA football playoff game will be on sale between 10:30 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. Nov. 4 at the CHS gymnasium.

The game is scheduled for a 7:30 p.m. kickoff Nov. 4 (tickets can also be purchased at the gate). The cost is $3 per person and no passes will be accepted because the event is sponsored by the MHSAA.

Low finish at regionals

BY DARREL W. COLE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

It looked like the girls cross-country team was on a roll and only getting better.

But a disappointing 4th-place regional finish ended a season of high team hopes for the Clarkston girls squad. Cross country co-coach Mike Taylor said the boys squad also didn't perform up to expectations with a 12th-place finish.

Taylor said he knew the girls team was ready mentally and wanted to qualify as a team, but just wasn't prepared physically.

"We were prepared emotionally but several runners were flat physically for this race and as coaches we will accept part of the responsibility," said Taylor.

Although the team didn't perform up to standards, Taylor said senior Leah Scharl and junior Stefanie Burklow were outstanding on a difficult course. Both qualified for the state meet, to be held at Christian High School in Plymouth this weekend.

The girls team missed qualifying for the state meet by taking fourth overall with 121 points, among 14 teams. Brighton was first with 48 points, Milford second with 102 points and Pinckney third with 109 points.

The boys team finished 12th with 329 points. First place went to Lakeland with an incredible 25 points (their five runners took third to seventh place), Milford was second with 71 points and Brighton third with 104 points.

The top three teams qualified for the state meet.

Qualifying for the state meet were Scharl and Burklow, who finished second and 15th, respectively. Coach Taylor said both runners performed well.

Scharl finished the grueling course in a time of 19:58, just six seconds behind meet champion Katie Szopo of Brighton. Burklow finished a strong 15th to earn her medal.

Other girls finishing the meet include sophomore Kristin Maine, 23rd in 21:43, junior Stacie Iezzi, 36th in 22:05, junior Anna Vandermeer, 49th in 22:52, freshman Emily Hogan, 59th in 23:05, and freshman Elizabeth Cook, 62nd in 23:09.

Leading the way for the boys squad was junior Brian Ginn, 36th in 18:10. He was followed by senior Steve Anderson, 51st in 18:54, senior Matt Warner, 66th in 19:03, sophomore Chas Clause, 80th in 19:29, junior Tim O'Rourke, 96th in 20:10, senior Andy Holland, 97th in 20:17, and freshman Jeff Hopcian, 102nd in 20:33.

WHAT'S NEXT

Boys expected to compete were Hopcian, Claus and sophomore Nick Chaffin.

Girls competing include sophomores Stacey Devos, Maine and Tracy Warner, and freshmen Cook and Hogan.

season, came back after being down 3-1. Just before halftime Clarkston scored to make the game 3-2. With about three minutes left the Wolves then tied the game at 3-3.

"We did have some opportunities to win it before overtime but couldn't get the ball in the net," the coach said.

Fitzgerald said he hopes his team will work hard on their own during the summer because they can compete against OAA Division I teams, as evidenced by seven one-point games this season.

"I think some of the guys can see they need to work in the off-season," Fitzgerald said.

All-OAA selections will be made this week.

"It's frustrating sometimes, but they're a good group."

Coach Ray's comment aptly fits the team. They are a good team, but occasionally can't get it together. That wasn't the case last Tuesday, when they totally trounced Troy. The final score: 40-22. Everyone played very well that game.

On Thursday, I had the good fortune to attend the home game versus Rochester. Even though at half-time the girls had a 23-13 lead, the frustration set in, and a disappointing loss resulted. The Wolves lost, 40-36, though they played well.

The girls' record now stands at 8-7. Better luck next week.

As a side note, congrats to the varsity football team. GO WOLVES!

In soccer, one goal is a lot to overcome.

While the Clarkston boys squad came back from a 3-1 deficit against Lakeland in the second round of districts, they eventually lost 4-3 in sudden-death overtime.

"We really didn't play well," said coach Dan Fitzgerald, about his team's play in the Oct. 26 home match.

"Lakeland had one guy who really took it to us. he scored three of their goals."

Wolves battle in losses

Better shooting would mean more wins

BY DARREL W. COLE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Losing is never easy, especially if it's for the first time in 17 years.

But that's how long it's been for Clarkston girls basketball coach Larry Mahrle. Before coaching the girls for the last seven years, Mahrle coached the boys squad for 10 years. In all that time he never had a losing season.

At 6-10 overall, a below .500 record could be a possibility. And although the young, inexperienced Wolves have given their all in practice and games, it seems they always fall short of winning.

Last week, the Wolves lost two more close games. On Oct. 25 they lost 43-36 to Troy Athens and on Oct. 27 they lost 42-32 to Rochester. Both teams have a combined record of 21-11.

The season's final four games don't look any easier for Clarkston as they face more powers in Rochester Adams, Troy and Waterford Kettering.

Mahrle has said all year his players work hard, but struggle to score points. Adding to the team's struggles is the season-ending loss of point guard Elissa Shires. "It's really hard to get anything going with her gone," said Mahrle. Shires broke her hand in a game two weeks ago.

Against Athens, the Wolves almost pulled off the upset but shot a mere 6-of-24 from the free-throw line.

The Wolves were led in scoring by senior Kerry Kelly with nine points.

Clarkston stayed with Rochester for one half but "we missed too many crucial baskets at crucial times," the coach said.

"When you shoot and miss with no one on you ... you really have to make those shots."

At the half the Wolves were down by only three points but Rochester pulled away with a 14-7 third quarter. Clarkston was led by Nickie Winn's eight points.

Shooting is the key this season. Mahrle said if his team had shot just 35 percent in their games so far, they would be 14-2 overall.

The Clarkston boys cross-country team was undefeated in the GOAL meets. All-League in the GOAL meet went to Jason Wenger, 3rd in 17:05; Kellie O'Neill, 5th, 17:37; Paul Brisson, 6th, 17:38; Jim Haviland, 7th, 17:48, and Todd Wozniak, 8th, 17:58

The varsity football team lost 21-14 to Marine City and finished the season at 6-3. Quarterback Dugan Fife and running back John King led the Wolves in a comeback, but fell just short.

The girls varsity hoops team crushed Lake Orion 62-28 led by Susan McKoin's 20 points, Rhonda Jokisch's 19 points and Jenny McChesney's 10 points.

Ten years ago (Oct. 31, 1984)

CHS football coach Walt Wyniemko's team lost 12-10 to Avondale, despite third-string quarterback Erik Kline's strong play which almost led the Wolves to a comeback win.

Girls cross country runner Kathleen McInnis, a sophomore, took second place in the regionals

The CHS girls hoops team lost 59-42 to an undefeated Waterford Kettering team. The Wolves were led by Wendy Learnmont's 15 rebounds and five points. Senior Kim Ottman had 11 points before leaving the game due to a shoulder injury.

Fifteen years ago (Oct. 31, 1979)

Senior football players Scott Hines and Brent Davies were named Players of the Week as selected by coach Walt Wyniemko. The defensive stars made key plays in a 14-6 win over Rochester Adams. The Wolves are 3-5 overall.

Girls basketball player Jane Acton, the team's sparkplug, returned to practice after a severe ankle sprain sidelined her for several games.

JV football wins six straight

Team effort, determination overcome 0-3 start

BY MICHAEL ROMEIN
Special to The Clarkston News

Clarkston's JV football team capped off an outstanding season last Thursday with a 27-6 victory at Lake Orion.

Clarkston scored on two touchdown passes from Dane Fife to Brad Conley and one to Chad Bailey. Fife added another rushing score to assure the victory. The Wolves also avenged an 8-0 loss to the Dragons last year.

The victory was the sixth in a row for the Wolves. However, the season got off to a dismal start. Losses at Troy, at Lansing Sexton and at Pontiac Northern left the Wolves 0-3. But they did not give up.

They came back to beat Troy Athens the next week, and things began to look better. They followed this win with victories over Ann Arbor Huron, Bloomfield Hills Lahser, Rochester Adams, Alpena and finally Lake Orion.

"I am really proud of them for hanging in there," Coach Steve Himburg said. "They are a great bunch of kids."

On offense, the Wolves played extremely well the entire season. Jeff Long led Clarkston in rushing with 822 yards. Fife was the leading passer, throwing for 918 yards. The leading receiver was Conley with 23 receptions and seven touchdowns. Overall the leading scorer was Long with 10 touchdowns. In addition, the offensive line played very well, creating holes and protecting the quarterback.

"The defense played a big part in the last six games," said Coach Himburg. "However it is hard to mention one man because the whole unit played so well."

Long led the team in tackles with 79. As a group, the Wolves recorded two shutouts, over Huron and Lahser.

The future looks bright for next year's varsity squad. "I think they'll do real well as juniors and seniors. They are already looking forward to next year," Coach Himburg said.

(Thanks to Dan Campbell for his weekly reports on the game results. Thanks to Coach Himburg for his comments and the season's final stats.)

Drama Club presents 'The Outsiders'

The age-old story of the conflict between high-school social groups will be brought to the stage by the Clarkston High School Drama Club this month. "The Outsiders" by S.E. Hinton will be produced Nov. 17-19 at the CHS theater, the first of five annual productions by the club. Tickets are $3 for students and senior citizens, $4 for other adults. Performances begin at 7 p.m.

"The Outsiders," which has been made into a movie, tells of the conflict between the greasers and the soshes. "It's about kids working in conflict between a two-caste system," Tice said. "It's a chronicle of a young man's life through a month or so. The philosophy is that everyone is the same; everyone is dealing with the same type of problem . . . We can have good people and evil people in both classes."

Busting middle-school myths

In seventh grade, kids are already misinformed on drugs

Last in a series on DARE

BY ANNETTE KINGSBURY
Clarkston News Editor

Officer Dave Hernandez has his work cut out for him.

Monday, on the first day of the DARE drug-abuse program at Sashabaw Middle School, about half the 50 seventh-graders in his class said they agreed with the following statement: "Getting drunk sometimes to celebrate a special occasion is OK."

Granted it was only the first day of class for these students, who were last exposed to the DARE program in fifth grade. But Hernandez, an Oakland County Sheriff's Deputy assigned to teach the DARE curriculum in Clarkston schools, had to remind the kids that drinking any alcohol at their age is illegal.

The seventh-graders will spend the next two weeks, one hour per day, in the DARE program. According to teacher Bev Bronson, they're receiving the DARE classes as part of their required one-semester health class. During the second semester, they'll replace health with gym.

"I'm not here to get names; I'm not here to get you in trouble," Hernandez said at the beginning of his talk Monday. He reminded students not to mention any names, and not to make fun of each other so everyone would feel free to get their questions answered.

"Ask me anything you want during the next two weeks," he said. And he reminded them that DARE would be part of their grade in class, so homework and participation would be required.

The first day started with a test to determine just how much each student knew. Of 21 questions, students typically got as many as 10 or 15 wrong.

Questions centered on the definition of drugs, as well as gangs, vandalism, controlling feelings, the importance of friends, alcohol labeling, secondhand smoke and juvenile crime.

"Last time I saw most of you guys it was in fifth-grade," Hernandez said. "A lot of things have changed. Since then you're more mobile. You're probably going to parties; you're probably going to the mall with your buddies."

"Now that you're in these things you've got to know how to behave. You can't act like you're in fifth grade; you'd get laughed out of the place."

The students were seated at large tables to facilitate group work. Students will discuss book work in small groups and come up with consensus answers. They'll also engage in role-playing later in the class.

For the first day, though, Hernandez did some review of what kids remembered and laid the groundwork of what was to come.

"The main message I want you to hear is it (drug use) is a choice and you're going to make it," he said. "It get real complicated but it comes down to you making a choice."

Police millage holds fate of DARE

The future of the DARE program in Clarkston is one of the issues at stake in a millage increase being requested by Independence Township on the Nov. 8 ballot.

The township is requesting a .4468 mill increase to maintain the current level of police services. The same question was put before the voters in August and was turned down, though a renewal was approved.

Since then one deputy has been laid off. The DARE program is temporarily being funded by Clarkston schools this semester. The school board voted earlier to fund it for the first semester, hoping the township would pay for it the second semester as it has in previous years.

The ballot question will read: "Shall the Charter Township of Independence be authorized to levy an additional 0.4468 of one mill for a period of four years to partially finance police services, commencing with the December 1994 levy?"

The increase will cost the owner of a home with a market value of $150,000 about $33.50 per year. The increase will generate $286,383 per year for the township, which contracts with the Oakland County Sheriff's Department for police services.

Scary but oh-so-sweet

Vampires, witches and all sorts of scary little people filled the halls of Springfield Plains Elementary School Saturday for the annual presentation of Trick or Treat Street by Independence Township Parks and Recreation.

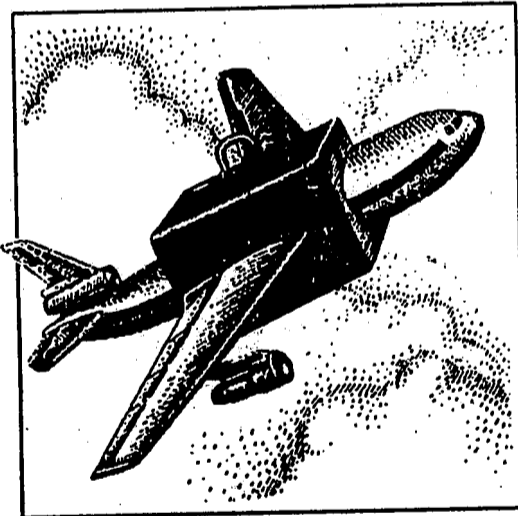

The event is so named because outposts are set up throughout the halls which look like miniature buildings. Seated inside each building is a senior citizen ready and waiting to hand out candy. The kids just roam the halls, stay warm and dry, and get all the candy they could possibly want.

But just in case they didn't get enough sugar trick-or-treating, they could decorate cookies in one room or just plain pig out on gooey sweets in another. It was enough to make a dentist smile or a nutritionist say, "Ooh—that's scary."

Chamber hosts business expo

Exposing hundreds of people to your product in a matter of a couple of hours for about a $100 investment would be considered a good deal by most businesspeople.

That is exactly the opportunity the Clarkston Chamber of Commerce is offering to local businesses with its eighth-annual Business Expo, scheduled for Wednesday, Nov. 9 at Spring Lake Country Club, 6060 Maybee Rd.

The Expo allows businesses, whether they are Chamber members or not, to display their wares in a comfortable setting and socialize with other people in the community.

"It's to promote the businesses of Clarkston," said Expo chairperson Carol Cantor, owner of Carol's Flowers. "It's a social occasion and a business event."

The Expo runs from 6 to 9 p.m. and will include free hors d'oeuvres, a cash bar, a disk jockey and door prizes. Participating businesses will be set up at tables displaying their products. The public, not just business owners, is invited to the free event.

"It's aimed at the community at large," Cantor said. "And there is a lot of networking going on among Chamber members."

Cantor stressed that anyone can get a booth, not just Chamber members. Cost is $100 for members, $150 for nonmembers for an eight-foot table; $50/$75 for a four-foot table.

As someone who has exhibited in the past, bringing in her silk flowers as well as fresh, Cantor said it's a good way for people to see her work.

"I do get a lot of business out of it. Last year we had 750 people come, not counting the exhibitors. They just get to see what I do."

"Everybody I've talked to says it's good advertising. To get 700 people into your business in three hours is hard . . . And the food is excellent."

Cantor said every exhibitor will donate a door prize. Advance tickets are free at the Chamber office, Parks and Rec. and some local businesses.

For more information call the Chamber office at 625-8055.

Sign law ignored in political season

Almost everyone has been breaking local sign ordinance laws. And even after the Nov. 8 election, you can bet they will still be in violation.

Both the City of Clarkston and Independence Township have ordinances dealing with the amount of time political signs can be put up. But, because of a lack of enforcement capability, both ordinances have been largely ignored.

Independence Township's ordinance states political signs can only be put up two weeks before the election date, and must be taken down one week after.

Clarkston's ordinance states signs can be up two weeks before and two days after an election.

Two weeks before the Nov. 8 election was Oct. 25. Citizens in Independence who have signs posted have until Nov. 15 to take them down, while Clarkston residents have until Nov. 10 to take them down. So far in this election season most people already ignored the Oct. 25 date.

Independence Supervisor Dale Stuart is asking residents to take responsibility on their own and obey the ordinances.

"We really can't enforce every instance but we are asking people to help us out," he said.

In addition to municipal ordinances, Detroit Edison recently sent out a press release reminding people to keep signs off utility poles.

"For our linemen, political signs attached to poles represent a safety hazard," said James Connelly of Detroit Edison. "Nails and staples can pierce gloves and injure hands, and the posters pose a hazard for linemen climbing poles."

The Clarkston News

Wed., Nov. 2, 1994

BY DARREL W. COLE
Clarkston News
Staff Writer

The following is an edited transcript of the Megan O'Neill - Dale Kildee debate which took place on Oct. 27 at Oxford High School.

The debate was sponsored by the American Association of University Women. It featured 17-year incumbent Congressman Dale Kildee (D-Flint) against challenger Megan O'Neill (R-Clarkston).

Another challenger, Karen Blasdell of the Natural Law Party arrived only in time for closing statements.

Opening remarks

MEGAN O'NEILL: — I served on the White House advance team for President Bush and during this time I assisted in many of his domestic and foreign trips and it gave me the encouragement to first run for this office in 1992.

It also compelled me to run again this year because I share the same concerns many of you have over the direction this country is headed in, particularly under a Clinton administration. Under this administration we have seen an ever more intrusion of government in our lives.

Instead of a tax cut for the middle class as promised we saw the largest tax increase in the history of our nation which included a tax on Social Security for those that made $34,000 a year. Certainly not a tax on the rich. We've seen an erosion of constitutional rights, inconsistent foreign policy and attempts to put all of health care under direct control of the government.

This agenda has been strongly supported by my opponent, including the most disturbing legislation of all, the so-called $30 billion crime bill. Let me tell you about this bill in reality. There is not enough money for 100,000 officers and it is completely inadequate.

In reality my opponent has a reputation against real, tough, crime fighting measures, including real truth in sentencing. He voted against the death penalty for drug offenders and voted for the racial quota system for people on death row. I have made a pledge on what I will support once I am in office. I have signed the "Contract With America" and real crime fighting legislation.

That is why I have the support of many crime fighters in Oakland County. I believe the role of government should be very limited in our lives. It should be simply to provide what we as individuals cannot provide, our national defense, trade, infrastructure, etc. and not to over-regulate and overburden.

cratic ship and no longer has voter support.

KILDEE: I vote what I think is best for my district. I have supported him (Clinton) when he was right and voted against him when he was wrong and that is true of every president I've served under.

I vigorously opposed Clinton on NAFTA, I oppose him on abortion, Somalia, I opposed him bitterly on Haiti, and I had a knock-down, drag-out struggle

Who will go to Washington?

DALE KILDEE: Ask yourself which candidate can best represent this district in Washington D.C., who can best represent the people dependent on the auto industry. Let's face it, the economy of this district rises and falls with the auto industry. I understand that importance.

The health and future of this 9th District depends on educated and trained people, and as chairman of the education sub-committee in Washington I authored the four most significant education bills in the last Congress. It was my responsibility to get those bills through Congress right to the President's desk.

I did that by learning in the Michigan legislature, working with both parties. I served under Governors Bill Milliken and George Romney and I was trained to work with both parties.

For these education bills, I turned to ranking Republicans in my committee and worked with them. And when the President proposed to cut dollars to most of schools in this district, I said no to the President of the U.S. and I won. How was I able to do that? Because when I work with Democrats and Republicans alike the children are better off for it.

Ms. O'Neill mentioned I voted to tax Social Security. Well, Ms. O'Neill, I taught history and was a history major. It was Ronald Reagan in 1983 who pushed the bill through to tax Social Security, and I, Dale Kildee, voted against the whole bill. He started that.

Q: Some political insiders have described Ms. O'Neill and Mr. Kildee as the "poster children" for their respective parties.

Ms. O'Neill is described as the classic Reagan-Bush Republican who has followed the Republican national trend, focusing on getting rid of "tax-and-spend" liberal Democrats.

Mr. Kildee is described as the classic liberal Democrat, except for his stance on abortion, who has fought hard for the environment and supported several of President Clinton's policies.

Ms. O'Neill's critics say she has jumped on the Republican bandwagon and is being led along. Mr. Kildee's critics say he is on a sinking Demoin the back yard of the White House, where he walked away from me. I didn't co-sponsor his health-care bill because it was too bureaucratic.

I voted against him and with Republican leader Bob Michel when the President wanted to give most-favored-nation status to China and I voted against him when he wanted to lift the embargo on Vietnam.

O'NEILL: I'd like to first address Mr. Kildee saying that Ronald Reagan taxed Social Security. In 1993 you did in fact vote for tax on Social Security.

Also, you do fit the profile of the liberal tax-and-spend Democrat and you have voted for every tax increase while in office unless it was for national defense or the super collider. I on the other hand am not part of the Republican party in every step and I oppose NAFTA which the Republican party strongly supported, and I took a lot of heat for it.

Q: Ms. O'Neill, you missed about half of the last 25 votes (on computer record at Independence Township) and you said part of it was due to the fact you were with the advance team and the rest you'd have to check on. Have you done so?

O'NEILL: The Independence Township said the information was not presented clearly. I do know I voted in general elections, but I did travel a lot when I worked with Bush. I may have missed a few special elections along the way.

KILDEE: I have a lifetime record of voting. I cast my first ballot when I was 21 because back then you couldn't vote when you were 18. I voted when I was in Pakistan, overseas. I got absentee ballots and you can get that anywhere in the world.

In the Congress of the U.S. I now have the highest voting record. I have 99.7 lifetime voting record, which is 100 percent in the last 8 years. It's one measure for a member of Congress and one measure of a citizen and how they assume the responsibility of voting.

Q: Clarify your position on abortion.

KILDEE: I am the only candidate in this state endorsed by the national and Michigan Right To Life. I find abortion a terrible thing and I have a 100-

Crake confident about state of county

District 1

BY ANNETTE KINGSBURY
Clarkston News Editor

The incumbent chairman of the Oakland County Board of Commissioners is being challenged for his seat by a political newcomer from Waterford.

Tina Vargas, a native of Puerto Rico with a long career in human services, is the Democratic challenger to Larry Crake, owner of 300 Bowl in Waterford.

Crake, 53, has been on the commission since 1986 and in business for 30 years. Vargas has a BA in psychology and graduated magna cum laude from Oakland University in 1981. She is a vocational evaluator at Jay Shop, Inc., a vocational rehabilitation center for disabled adults in Pontiac.

She is also a member of the Oakland County Community and Minority Affairs Council and a founding member of the Hispanic Alliance for Leadership Opportunities. She's lived in Oakland County since 1955.

Larry Crake

TOP CONCERNS FOR THE COUNTY IN THE NEXT TWO YEARS: "Solid waste, mass transit, Community Mental Health."

WHAT WOULD BE YOUR TOP PRIORITY, IF ELECTED: "A final solution to the solid-waste problem."

WHY ARE YOU THE BEST CANDIDATE FOR CLARKSTON/INDEPENDENCE: "I have 30 years experience as a business person, eight years as a county commissioner and three years as chairman of the board."

HOW DO YOU FEEL THE RELATIONSHIP BETWEEN THE COUNTY EXECUTIVE AND THE COMMISSION IS WORKING? "Some time has been required to get the commission and the county executive to pull together. At the same time, I believe we have an excellent relationship."

WHAT ARE YOUR MAIN CONCERNS FOR NORTHERN OAKLAND COUNTY? "Possible siting of a new landfill."

SAY A FEW WORDS ON EACH OF THE FOLLOWING:

FULL MANAGEMENT OF MENTAL HEALTH: "I feel the right choice was made to go full management. We will see very positive results in the next year."

THE SHERIFF'S DEPARTMENT: "The sheriff has control of his department. He has responded favorably to the problems of this last year."

THE COUNTY SOLID WASTE PLAN: "We have a very approvable plan and I expect the state to go along with it."

COUNTY GOVERNMENT'S FINANCIAL HEALTH: "Oakland County is in excellent financial shape. I have great confidence in our management and budget divisions."

"We'll probably end up with an $8 million surplus in 1994 but we're going to apply that to jail overcrowding. It's a one-time thing."

Tina Vargas

Vargas cites her parents, founders of Pontiac's Puerto Rican community and the state's first indigenous Hispanic Pentecostal churches, as influences on her life.

"My candidacy for a seat on the Oakland County Board of Commissioners is a fresh expression of a family tradition of community service spanning two generations," she said. "I'm simply following the deeply grooved footsteps of a very exemplary couple."

'Oakland County is in excellent financial shape.'

Vargas is a graduate of the Mexican-American Legal Defense and Education Fund's Detroit Leadership Program, and was a fellow of the Michigan Political Leadership Program at Michigan State University. She drafted her first grass-roots petition in the early 1970s and has been active in community affairs ever since, she said.

Vargas did not respond to The Clarkston News questionnaire.

Meet your state senate candidates

MAT DUNASKISS

Residence: Lake Orion

Age: 43

Occupation: State Senator for the 8th district
Length of time in the community: Lifelong resident

Family: Wife Diane and three children
Clubs and Organizations: Member of Oakland County Chamber of Commerce, Jaycees, Optimists, St. Joseph's Usher Club, Knights of Columbus, Lake Orion Lake Association

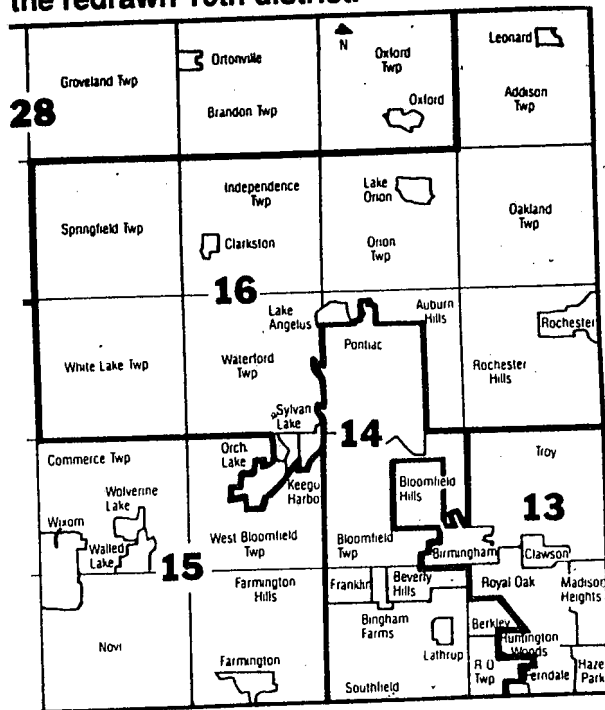

Why running for office: "Two years ago the Governor and the Republicans in the State Legislature began to carry out an agenda of change in Lansing, an agenda that includes shrinking the size of government, cutting taxes, passing tough new laws to protect victims' rights, and setting up new and innovative ideas to improve public education in this state. I want to complete that agenda as your State Senator."

Important issues to work on if elected: "If elected, I will make it my personal priority to continue to get the government out of the lives of our families. I will support legislation that strengthens the family, not the government. As Chairman of the Senate Technology and Energy Committee, I will also be working to update the Michigan Telecommunications Act, which I wrote and introduced in 1991. This revision will be vital to keeping our state competitive and on the leading edge of new technology."

Feelings on growth in Orion Township: "I feel growth in Orion Township is very important to the vitality of the area. While we welcome opportunities to expand, we also need to make sure that this expansion is matched by an adequate infrastructure and that we do not jeopardize our wonderful natural resources, like Lake Orion and Bald

Mountain Recreation Area."

KEVIN F. KELLY

Residence: Lake Orion

Age: 39

Occupation: Self-employed marketing consultant
Length of time in the community: 12 years

Family: Wife Cindy and one son

Clubs and organizations: March of Dimes, Boy Scouts of America, United Foundation, Holy Trinity

Why running for office: "I feel that it's time the citizens in the 16th District have a change. The present State Senator has been in Lansing for the past 14 years. My opinion is that he has lost touch with the community. It's time for a non-career candidate to bring fresh ideas for the district."

Important issues to work on if elected: "I would work on improvements in the quality of education in the public school system. I would also work on reducing crime and making criminals serve their complete sentences, with no early releases."

Feelings on growth in Orion Township: "I feel that the local government should plan in advance for growth, i.e., make sure roads, sewer/water, schools, etc. are in place before massive change takes place."

O'Brien

Judge of Circuit Court

Former cop versus farmer in House race

BY EILEEN OXLEY
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Tom Middleton, the down-to-earth Republican who's been a familiar face around the 46th District for the last few years, is being challenged by Democrat Steve Allen, a Pontiac attorney who has 14 years experience as a tough, crime-fighting cop. The race is on between the homespun farmer and the urbane lawyer. Here are brief summaries of each candidate, followed by questionnaires.

Tom Middleton

Born and raised on a farm, State Rep. Middleton (R-Ortonville) certainly shares Scarlett O'Hara's concern that land matters. A 3 1/2-year member of the House, Middleton not only cares what affects the family Berry Farm in Lake Orion, but spreads that concern — like the jam that comes from Middletons' bright red strawberries — across the state.

The sunny-dispositioned Republican who's often spotted strolling down Main Street and lists his home phone number, cites the environment and education as two top priorities. He's part of a land use task force to get legislation through for land use, takes a firm stand for property owners' rights and supports Michigan's charter school law.

Middleton's been an Ortonville resident since 1984 with wife Kathy and has two children. He backs up his Honest Abe reputation with a philosophy he's always lived by:

"If you always tell the truth, then you don't have to remember what you said."

Here are his responses to questions concerning the 1994 race.

Q: Why are you running this year?

A: "I am running for re-election because I want to help make a positive difference in the future of our community and the entire state of Michigan. In the 3 1/2 years which I have served the people of the 46th District, I have been able to make improvements in some vital areas. However, I am now all the more aware of the need to continue strengthening the economy, fighting crime, protecting the environment and improving education. I will be a leader in these areas, and want to continue my work toward the goal of improving our community."

Q: What are your top two concerns for the state during the next two years?

A: "The upcoming years will be critical to the proper implementation of the Proposal A. initiative. We need to ensure that the education dollars are allocated in the most effective method and that the goal of education equity is strengthened, not diminished.

"The Solid Waste Management Act, Public Act 641, was improved last session, but I will continue to work at correcting the problems we face with landfills in Michigan. Currently neighboring states, as well as Canada, use Oakland County and the entire state as a dumping ground for their solid waste.

Rep Tom Middleton speaks to kids from Clarkston's Young Optimist Club.

Michigan is home to not only the Great Lakes but the largest system of inland lakes in the nation which makes this objective all the more important."

Q: Your top priority if elected?

A: "It is important that we continue to promote the growth of the state's economy in the future. Michigan has made strong improvements, but we must continue to encourage current and new businesses. By doing so, we will help to create high quality, well paid jobs in our area.

"As a member of the House Committee on Appropriations, a major part of my job is to ensure that the state revenues are spent wisely and effectively."

Q: Please state your opinions on the following: revisions of state taxes under Proposal A.

A: "The 46th District is a big winner under Proposal A. We have a growing student population and an abundance of homeowners who paid high school taxes. Proposal A. reduced our property tax bill by more than 50 percent for homeowners in our area and over 10 mills for non-homesteads. At the same time it provided school equity.

"I believe that the large margin of the individuals who voted for Proposal A were sending a message to lawmakers that they strongly oppose an increase in the income tax.

"Proposal a will help encourage our state's senior citizen population to retain their Michigan residency."

Q: What's your opinion of recent changes to law governing public employees?

A: "This legislation leveled the playing field between the school boards and teacher unions. Helping school boards to explore cost saving initiatives is important because of the passage of Proposal A. which will limit the rate of growth of school budgets in the future. This measure also gave teachers more power over the direction of their unions."

Q: What's your stand on abortion and parental consent?

A: "I am opposed to abortion, particularly as a means of birth control. I believe that choice should come before conception. I feel differently in cases where there was no choice as with rape and incest. I voted in favor of parental consent.

Q: What do you think of privatization as a way to downsize state government?

A: "Privatization has resulted in improved quality and cost efficiency in many cases and should be expanded in appropriate arenas. It is not always the best method of reducing government waste, however. Strong leadership and restructuring of governmental departments can be a very positive way to meet this goal."

Q: Your opinion on charter schools?

A: "Michigan's charter school law is one of the best in the nation. It, along with the school-funding reform, will go a long way in increasing competition and thereby improve the quality of education. Since tax dollars are paying for education, parents should be able to select the public school of their choice."

Q: Give the state government a grade for its performance in the last two years.

A: "I give it a 'B.' We have lowered taxes several times, done well in providing tax balance and stability to education, have reduced the number of individuals on welfare and improved the unemployment rate. We also dealt with issues of medical malpractice and insurance reform. Strong anti-stalking laws were enacted and we have begun to deal with the issue of the increasing crime population.

"There is still much work that needs to be done, by helping Michigan to decrease its dependency on the auto industry and to increase diversity in the business base."

Q: Why are you the best candidate for Clarkston/Independence Township?

A: "I am a lifelong resident of north Oakland County and care deeply about the welfare of this area. I have worked very hard to establish a strong line of communication with the residents of our community. I listen to citizens' concerns daily, through visitors at my local office hours at the township hall, at civic functions and organizations and from individuals who write or call my office. I also publish my home phone number and have had a very open line of communication to area residents."

"Many of the opinions and concerns which have been expressed to me are now incorporated into Michigan law. My assignment to the House Republican leadership team and to the Committee on Appropriations have allowed me to be very effective in representing the needs of our community."

Steve Allen

If you see a bicycle coming down your street, Steve Allen (D-Ortonville) says don't worry — it's not the Wicked Witch of the West. Allen bought a used girl's bike with a quaint wicker basket (perfect for stuffing with campaign literature) which he pedals from door to door. It's all a part of his effort to meet and greet as many people as possible within the 46th District.

One of Allen's main concerns is that America doesn't uphold its democratic values.

"A democracy breaks down if its citizens don't have a choice. It's important that citizens have a choice. The older I get, the more I realize how important this is," he says, describing himself as a "conservative, mainstream person — what Nixon called the silent majority."

A former police officer who spent 14 years with the Oakland County Sheriff's Department with experience in both undercover narcotics investigation and alcohol enforcement, Allen naturally has many concerns about crime.

Other priorities are statewide plans for landfills and Michigan's crumbling infrastructure. Allen, 46, has lived in Brandon Township for 10 years. He and his wife Jami have two children.

Here are his answers to the questions addressed.

Q: Have you held public office(s) previously?

A: "I have been a candidate for public office before but I have never held a public office."

Q: Why are you running this year?

A: "I am running for this position because I want to represent the people in the 46th District. Additionally, democracy can only work if people have a choice on election day."

Q: You top concerns for the state in the next two years?

A: "My concerns for the 46th District are:

"1. To insure that the district is zealously represented in Lansing;

"2. That the educational finance restructuring initiated under Proposal A will be completed;

"3. That we develop a coherent plan for the punishment and rehabilitation of those persons convicted of crime, rather than just building more prison space;

"4. That we develop a coherent statewide plan for solid waste disposal; and

"5. That we take the necessary steps to repair and replace our crumbling road system."

Q: Your top priority if elected:

A: "To develop and implement solutions for the problems as set forth above."

Q: Please state your opinions on the following:

Revisions of state taxes under Proposal A:

A: "The revisions of the school finance program are based in part on illusions, at least to the extent that $600,000,000 is predicted on Keno and budget cuts. It is only a matter of time until the state has to confront the anticipated shortfall in revenue which resulted from Proposal A."

Q: Recent changes to law governing public employees:

A: "The whole purpose underlying employment law is to add stability to the workplace environment and to provide a method for resolving disputes that arise in the workplace. The changes disrupted the mechanism that had been developed over a period of years and has created a situation where the parties no longer have to bargain in good faith with respect to the conditions and issues pertaining to employment. The changes were not only disruptive but unnecessary in light of the fact that it has always been illegal for public employees to strike in Michigan. The prior law allowed the employer to terminate any employees engaged in a strike. The changes in the methods which were utilized to change the law was an example of partisan politics at their worst."

Q: Abortion and parental consent:

A: "I have never had to confront the issue of abortion on a personal level and if confronted with the issue, I do not think that I could go along with an abortion personally. But I feel that the decision of QUESTION: Should I sell my home through a local or out-of-town Realtor?

ANSWER: If you want to sell at the best price, in the shortest time and with the least inconvenience, your choice should be the local Realtor.

He or she knows the pulse of the local market and the buying trends for each neighborhood and will be able to advise you accurately on the best selling price. Buyers usually go to the Realtors located in the town in which they want to buy. This means your local Realtor will have more prospects to look at your home. Also, a near-by Realtor can show your home more frequently and conveniently for all concerned.

County employee wants 'Commish' job

District 2

BY ANNETTE KINGSBURY
Clarkston News Editor

A county employee is challenging incumbent Donna Huntoon for her job as Oakland County Commissioner for District 2.

Dean Mersino, 49, (D., White Lake) is a street sign installer for the Road Commission for Oakland County and president of AFSCME Local 92. He is also vice president of Michigan AFSCME Council 25. It's his first shot at elective office. He and his wife Bev have lived in the township for 18 years.

Huntoon, 64, (R., White Lake) has been on the Board of Commissioners for five years. She is a former White Lake Township trustee, precinct delegate and member of the building authority. She is the mother of one and has lived in White Lake for 54 years.

The job of Oakland County Commissioner pays $22,565 per year, plus benefits. Terms are for two years.

The candidates answered the following questions put to them by The Clarkston News.

Donna Huntoon

TOP CONCERNS FOR THE COUNTY IN THE NEXT TWO YEARS: "Community Mental Health and crime control. Crime is already coming up and spreading into the southern part of our county."

WHAT WOULD YOUR TOP PRIORITY IF ELECTED: Crime control.

WHY ARE YOU THE BEST CANDIDATE FOR CLARKSTON/INDEPENDENCE: "Because I understand local issues and give full-time representation to my communities (though) the job is considered part-time."

HOW DO YOU FEEL THE RELATIONSHIP BETWEEN THE COUNTY EXECUTIVE AND THE COMMISSION IS WORKING? "I think on a whole, great."

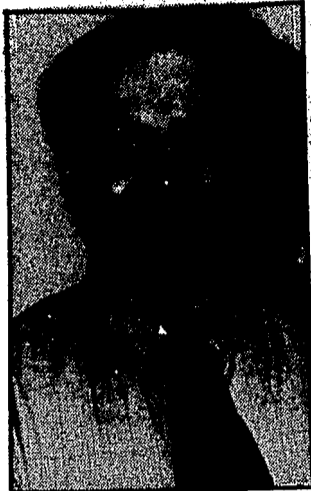

WHAT ARE YOUR MAIN CONCERNS FOR NORTHERN OAKLAND COUNTY?: "Growth in an orderly manner, roads, sewers in environmentally sensitive areas."

SAY A FEW WORDS ON EACH OF THE FOLLOWING:

FULL MANAGEMENT OF MENTAL HEALTH: "Now that we have an expert in finances looking after their budget, things are looking better. We need to update our thinking on management and we will do fine. The state and county need to abide by the contract."

THE SHERIFF'S DEPARTMENT: "The county growth is putting a strain on the department. We need to expand services to our communities . . . If I could find a surplus I'd sure give it to the sheriff's department."

THE COUNTY SOLID WASTE PLAN: "It's coming along fine. There is more to be negotiated and it is expected to be negotiated (later this year)."

Dean Mersino

Donna Huntoon

COUNTY FINANCES: "Sitting on the finance committee, I see need for tightening our belts. We will always stay within a balanced budget. We are constantly coming up with innovative ways to do so . . ."

"We could be faced with a large shortfall again next year. Approximately $4 million is brought in due to new growth. When you have new growth, you have to provide services . . . We can't go into a deficit spending situation."

Dean Mersino

TOP CONCERNS FOR THE COUNTY IN THE NEXT TWO YEARS: "Maintaining essential county services without raising taxes, and finding sufficient funds to repair and improve county roads."

TOP PRIORITY, IF ELECTED: "To restore bipartisan teamwork to the county commission. I think citizens are sick and tired of partisan wrangling."

WHY ARE YOU THE BEST CANDIDATE FOR CLARKSTON/INDEPENDENCE: "My service as a local union president and as an executive board member of Michigan AFSCME Council 25 has given me experience in budgeting, enterprise management, and as a member of a legislative body. I will be an effective representative of the people of my district, and I will bring a fresh approach to the county commission. I am committed to the bipartisan approach to resolve important issues, and I will work to restore civility to the board of commissioners."

HOW DO YOU FEEL THE RELATIONSHIP BETWEEN THE COUNTY EXECUTIVE AND THE COMMISSION IS WORKING?: "It could be much better. Several times this past year it seemed like a 'food fight' was going on at the court house between various factions on the board and the county executive."

WHAT ARE YOUR MAIN CONCERNS FOR NORTHERN OAKLAND COUNTY?: "Finding the money to widen and improve our overcrowded roads, and increasing sheriff patrols to help fight the recent rash of violent crimes."

SAY A FEW WORDS ON EACH OF THE FOLLOWING:

FULL MANAGEMENT OF MENTAL HEALTH: "The state has returned many individuals in need of mental health services to our community, but they haven't provided sufficient resources to support such services. We should insist that the state play fair and fully fund the services which they mandate that county government must provide.

"Closing mental health institutions helped Engler balance the state budget, but he merely transferred this cost to county taxpayers. I don't think it was helpful to add a large number of former mental health inmates to the unfortunate masses already roaming the streets."

THE SHERIFF'S DEPARTMENT: "Policies governing the use of prisoners outside of the jail need to be tightened to eliminate abuses such as those recently reported in the news. Also, the jail needs to improve its system for tracking the status and time served of those who are charged with multiple crimes."

THE COUNTY SOLID WASTE PLAN: "The county needs to inform citizens about the coming crisis in solid-waste disposal and find a way to gain citizen cooperation including increased recycling."

COUNTY GOVERNMENT'S FINANCIAL HEALTH: "My opponent recently voted with the Republican majority to override the Headlee rollback of county millage. I would have opposed this increase in county taxation because no proof was presented that the additional $4.25 million is needed to pay for essential county services. Apparently this added tax revenue will be added to the county's surplus—just to make the county executive look good."

Convention would open up constitution

Proposal A

BY DARREL W. COLE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

To convene or not to convene. That is the question.

While many organizations and groups have come out against a constitutional convention, others say it might not be such a bad idea.

On Nov. 8, Proposal A will ask if "a convention of elected delegates shall be convened in 1995 to draft a general revision of the state constitution for presentation to the state's voters for their approval or rejection?"

While the question to voters will be a "yes" or "no," many think a maybe would suffice.

The Michigan Chamber of Commerce is against such a constitutional convention because the cost of holding one would be over $20 million. They also say the current 31-year-old constitution serves the state well.

"As this year's March 15th vote on the statewide property tax/school finance ballot question demonstrated, individual elements of the Constitution — even the most important ones — can be changed by the voters without an open-ended effort at overall constitutional revision," says Robert S. LaBrant, general counsel for the Michigan Chamber.

Included in holding a constitutional convention would be selecting delegates, with special primary and general elections, in each of the 110 state house

A historical perspective

The current state constitution includes a provision that forces the question of holding a constitutional convention be put on the ballot every 16 years.

The last time the convention question came up in 1976, voters rejected it. The last convention took place in 1962, 52 years after the last convention.

At that convention, several changes were made, including streamlining the state government into 20 departments, which eliminated 130 agencies; the governor and state senators' terms were changed from two to four years; general elections were moved to the fall, as well as other changes.

Since 1962, 18 amendments have been made to the constitution, upon voter approval.

and 38 state senate districts.

"The convention itself could drag on for nearly a year. Then another election would have to be held to ratify or reject the convention's work.

"There is a danger that single-issue zealots of any ideological stripe could seize control of the convention process and rewrite the Constitution to their own narrow ends. The risks of a new convention far out-weigh the potential benefits," said LaBrant.

But while there is strong sentiment that a convention is not needed, the Mackinac Center For Public Policy, a research and educational organization in Midland, says there are at least three reasons to vote yes.

George C. Leef, an adjunct scholar with the Mackinac Center, said there is room for improvement in the constitution for better protecting citizen's rights against state infringements. His "wish list" for a Constitutional Convention contains three specific proposals.

Those three concerns which should, but may not be looked into if a convention were approved, include:

1) The constitution ought to contain a provision declaring that the state shall not dictate the terms of private contracts. For example, the state constitution now demands sellers of private insurance to require customers to buy a range of coverages, some of which they may not want or need.

2) The constitution should protect educational freedom. Many parents send their children to private schools while others teach at home. Regardless, these same parents are compelled to pay fully for public systems because the Constitution says tax dollars cannot be used for non-public education. Leef says changing the laws to allow some tax dollars to support alternative education would do justice for parents and promote competition.

3) The constitution should contain strong protections against regulatory "takings" of private property. Too many people in Michigan are prevented from doing anything with their land because of regulations (rules on wetlands, for example), according to Leef. He says by writing clear protection for property owners into its constitution, Michigan could lead the way for resolving this nationwide problem.

Heavy support for Proposal B

Could hurt some uninformed defendants, opponents say

Proposal B

BY DARREL W. COLE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Proposal B, which will restrict a criminal defendant who pleads guilty from an appeal, is too long in coming for citizens and courts, according to supporters.

Oakland and Wayne county prosecutors support Proposal B, as well as Sen. William Van Regenmorter (23rd District), chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee. All supporters of the proposal say while it is tough on defendants who plead guilty, it also still gives them a chance to appeal, under certain circumstances.

If the proposal passes, the defendant can still file a petition with the Court of Appeals for leave to appeal. The defendant can describe why they were mistaken when they confessed guilt, or why their sentences are illegal. If they are correct the Appeals court will grant relief.

Prosecutors in Oakland and Wayne counties say Proposal B is fair. It is not fair, however, as is the case now, for automatic appeals to be filed in every guilty plea case, because the law dictates.

Sen. Van Regenmorter said in a 10-month period, between 1991 and 1992, the Court of Appeals traced 1,103 cases that were appealed. Of that, a total of nine were reversed.

"It (appeals after guilty pleas) happens all the time and a large number of appeals take up our appellate division," said Larence Kozma, Chief of Legal Operations for Oakland County Prosecutor's Office. "It takes time from prosecutors, three panel judges for the appeals court and then a written decision must be rendered. The criminal has nothing to lose in an appeal."

The passage of Proposal B will hopefully cut down on those meaningless appeals where guilty defendants have no basis for an appeal.

"This will lessen the load for the appeals court and taxpayers," he said.

While passage of Proposal B will toughen up the court system, Kozma said it's still fair for criminal defendants. "Guilty pleas can still be appealed if the court says, 'Yes, you didn't get a fair shake.' This proposal is not all bad for the defendant."

Clarkston resident Fred Neumark, a Troy-based attorney who specializes in criminal appeals, said he agrees with the basic concept of the proposal but it will hurt some defendants.

"My personal feeling is it is something I can vote for because the right to appeal is being abused, and I see it in my everyday practice," said Neumark, with the law firm Neumark & Simmons.

"But I also run into people who would be hurt by this because some criminal defendants just don't know their rights and aren't advised as well as they should be."

Neumark said the first-time criminal may be talked into taking a guilty plea by his or her attorney, but may not be aware he has the right to ask for an appeal.

"If 'B' passes, I think the effects will be felt by some who don't have the experience in the criminal justice system. The first-time offender won't know to appeal that he got bad advice from an attorney," he said.

Insurance changes back on ballot

Proposal C

BY PEGGY MURRAY
Oxford Leader Staff Writer

Voters will be asked next week if they're willing to trade their unconditional right to sue for pain and suffering damages and give up unlimited medical coverage in exchange for reduced auto insurance premium rates.

Proposal C is a complex plan pulled together by a bi-partisan group of state lawmakers to curb the ever-increasing costs of auto insurance.

Just how insurance rates should be lowered for Michigan motorists has been one of the most controversial, partisan topics to face the Legislature in decades. Democrats and Republicans claimed the other party was pandering to special interest groups — trial lawyers or insurance companies.

This is not the first time voters have been given a say on how their insurance rates should be cut. In 1992 a proposal crafted by AAA, the state's largest auto insurer, was defeated by more than 60 percent of the voters.

Proposal P provides stable park funding

Proposal P

A proposal to establish a Michigan State Parks Endowment Fund, increase the maximum allowable amount of funds in the Michigan Natural Resources Trust Fund and eliminate the diversion of dedicated revenue from the Michigan Resources Trust Fund.

Proposal P provides $10 million annually to a newly created Michigan State Parks Endowment Fund using oil and gas revenues from state-owned lands.

The Fund provides a long-term source of funding. It will be constitutionally protected from all government diversions. The money in the fund will be required to be used to improve maintenance, security, cleanliness and expand activities and visitor services.

Proposal P will also prevent further money diversions from the Natural Resources Trust Fund. It will keep oil and gas revenues for natural resources.

NRTF was established in 1976 to underwrite purchase of land for state parks, state recreation areas, state game areas, and for local recreation projects like bike trails, fishing docks, playgrounds and boat access sites in all parts of Michigan.

Over the years NRTF funds have also been used to finance programs unrelated to natural resources, including the diversion of $20 million annually for the Michigan Strategic Fund to pay for economic development programs.

If P passes, $10 million of that $20 strategic fund money would go to the endowment fund; $10 million goes directly into the trust fund.

The law establishing the trust fund set a cap of $200 million on its principal. Proposal P would allow that cap to be increased to $400 million.

Approval of Proposal P would not increase any taxes.

By Elaine Stieb
The Lake Orion Review

After that proposal's failure, and after years of gridlock, lawmakers were able in March 1993 to pass legislation acceptable to members of both political parties that would cut insurance rates. However, the plan still had opponents who rallied to put the measure before voters in the form of Proposal C.

The new ballot question would:

- reduce auto insurance rates by an average of 16 percent for six months. But, insurance companies could be exempted from rolling back their rates if they can prove a hardship to the state insurance commissioner. After six months any company could raise its rates;

- reduce personal injury protection (medical coverage), now unlimited, to $1 million. Those who want more coverage would be able to purchase up to $5 million worth, but at an added cost;

- limit benefits for those injured in auto accidents and set fees for doctors and hospitals;

- prevent drivers who are uninsured or more than 50 percent at fault in an accident from suing and collecting damages. Set higher standards for recovering damages for pain and suffering; and

- allow rate discounts for drivers with good records. It also gives breaks to those whose vehicles are equipped with safety features such as air bags and anti-lock brakes.

Groups supporting Proposal C are capitalizing on voter anger over frivolous lawsuits, especially those by convicts.

Televised advertisements show the parents of a teenage girl killed by a drunken driver reliving the loss of their daughter. The man convicted of killing the girl is now suing the girl's family, the ad states. Proposal C would prevent such lawsuits because the drunken driver was more than 50 percent at fault in the crash.

Opponents of Proposal C say that kind of case is extremely rare. In fact, victims of drunken drivers are the ones who would lose most under the proposed changes, they argue.

Mothers Against Drunk Driving officials criticize Proposal C, saying a few years of medical care for a critically injured accident victim could easily exceed the $1 million coverage provided by the proposal. Besides, they argue, the plan will do more to increase insurance companies' profits than to cut motorists' premiums.

Plan supporters, such as the Michigan Citizens for Insurance Reform — which includes insurance companies, small businesses, emergency physicians and numerous other business-related groups — say the opposition is misleading the public and trying to block "real reform."

Michigan Citizens for Insurance Reform representatives say the plan is a bipartisan effort that will give voters a chance to control their auto insurance rates. Under Proposal C, insurance rates would be rolled back by an average of 16 percent, which is nearly a $700 million a year savings, proponents say.

percent voting record against abortion.

O'NEILL: But you didn't answer whether you support fetal tissue research or not.

KILDEE: Thank you, I didn't know we had a new questioner.

I did vote for fetal tissue research and the national and Michigan Right To Life knows it, and still gave me 100 percent voting record. After the fact of homicide and vehicular manslaughter, I think we should use fetal tissue if that can save someone's life.

O'NEILL: I don't support abortion even in the case of rape or incest. The Right To Life community is very upset with Mr. Kildee because of his fetal tissue votes. I support abortion only if the mother's life is in danger.

Q: Did the Crime Bill go too far in restricting sale of automatic weapons?

O'NEILL: They are not assault weapons. In 1934 a bill was passed to restrict the sale of fully automatic weapons. You cannot purchase them today unless you have a special permit for that. A criminal doesn't respect the law and they convert semi-automatic weapons into assault weapons. The problem we face is crime, it affects all of us. You saw it with the tragic murder recently in Oxford.

But let's address the real problem, let's keep people behind bars. Let's not take away our Second Amendment rights and think that a criminal is going to worry about what type of weapon he uses when he commits a crime. We've got to protect all of our constitutional rights.

KILDEE: I will always defend your right, my two sons' rights, my brother's right to bear arms.

My two sons are in U.S. Army. They know how to use a weapons. One son has five guns, four long guns and a handgun. One son is in Alaska in a Rapid Deployment Unit and he could be anywhere in the world at any time. His wife knows how to use that gun. I'll always defend his right, my other son's right and your right to bear arms.

I sat down with my sportsmen, my police and weighed everything back and forth and concluded that there is no need for an AK-47, for an Uzi, a streetsweeper, and I believe that strongly. And that's the difference between Ms. O'Neill and me.

In the bill, we listed 651 guns by name and brand specifically so the bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms could never touch them. We did that because we believe you have the right to have those arms, for self-defense, sport or for hunting.

Q: Federal mandates such as Americans with Disabilities Act place a financial strain on local communities which have to find the money to comply with the restrictions in those bills. How do you feel about the federal government placing such mandates on the community without providing funds to do so?

O'NEILL: If there is no money there can't be any mandates. I sent out a survey to communities in my district and City of Rochester said they paid $1.1 million to comply with federal mandates in 1993. It's very easy for Congress to say we support this and then pass the cost on to us. They did this with the crime bill. We'll add a 100,000 more police, but you pay for it. No money, no mandate. It's killing our system.

KILDEE: I also believe that and that's why I co-sponsored the bill with Republican friends which would have addressed that, but it was killed in Senate by Republican Bob Dole.

We should fund mandates and I believe that, but I think we have to make an exception with civil rights. States should uphold the rights of citizens whether you are Catholic, Afro-America, Chinese or handicapped. Everyone has civil rights, and states should be doing it with their own dollars. I think we can put up dollars, but I am not going to hold back and deprive you of your full civil rights because we don't have the federal dollars.

Q: Many people are disgusted with the bickering and fighting in Washington and have lost faith in government, especially politicians. How can you restore the confidence in those voters who feel so disenchanted with politicians and the government?

O'NEILL: Gridlock is a real problem and that's why we need people with different backgrounds and different experiences, with real-world experience. That's why you get congressional politicians that hold their cards to vote a certain way. We have a Democratic Congress, Democratic Senate and Democratic President, and yet they (Democrats) still complain that there is gridlock. I think it's just an inability to get things done.

KILDEE: — The best way to break gridlock is with what I call my three C's. Conscience and Constituency are on the same level. Conscience tells you to do what your constituents want and need.

The lowest "C" is caucus or party. We had three resolutions on Haiti. One authored by two Democrats and one by Bob Michel, Republican leader. I voted with Michel because his resolution was the strongest one and expressed my views.

When I put together the formula to save the school districts here in this area on Chapt. I, Title I, I worked with a Wisconsin Republican, from a suburban-rural area, and we put together a formula that won by two votes in committee and most of the Democrats voted against it. With a Democratic-Republican coalition we carried it all the way through congress.

Q: Do you or don't you support universal health care? If not, what type of plan would you work for?

O'NEILL: I don't support government-run health care but I understand we need it for everyone. A national system would increase costs for everyone. I strongly support a system which allows the person to choose their physician and not according to government bureaucrats.

KILDEE: I did not co-sponsor the national health care bill because I was concerned it was too front-end loaded. I do believe in universal health care. We have some people in our district who get offers for better jobs but can't make the move because they have a child that has a terminal disease and a new insurance won't accept the child. I told President Clinton we need to fill in the gaps that concern people if we are to have a universal system.

Q: The "Contract With America" is a Republican-led legislative agenda, signed by among many others, Megan O'Neill, which highlights a ten-point program including a balanced budget amendment, welfare reform, term limits, etc. Explain your thoughts on this and what it means to voters?

O'NEILL: This was developed over a 10-month period and we got the input and support of over 60 percent of Americans. I, along with many other Republicans, pledge that I will support these ideas in the first 100 days of Congress. We promise to debate these ideals.

KILDEE: The key to this "contract" is it's a fraud. What are the keys? Their proposal will not get a balanced budget. Republicans had chances to do that. When George Bush left, the deficit quadrupled. In the Bush-Reagan era, a Democratic-led Congress spent $60 billion less than what they asked for.

Lawyer challenges Middleton for House

whether or not a person has an abortion is a personal decision and as long as abortions are legal I will not intervene in someone else's personal decision. With respect to parental consent involving abortions, I believe that parents should be involved in such important decisions involving their children."

Q: Privatization as a way to downsize state government:

A: "Historically, government contracts have been utilized as repayment for political favors. One of the primary problems with privatization is the inability to monitor the decisions allowing such contracts. Further, there are certain aspects of government which are inappropriate to be performed by private enterprise."

Q: Charter schools:

A: "I am opposed to the utilization of public funds for private schools to educate our children in grades K through 12."

Q: Give state government a grade for its performance in the last two years:

A: "The state should receive a grade below average. Our method that we utilized to dismantle the mechanism for school finance was irresponsible at best. It forced the citizens of the State of Michigan to choose the least onerous of two evils in order to put a financing plan back in place. Citizens should not have a gun held at their heads when making those decisions, especially when it has been the state government's responsibility from the beginning and the state refused or neglected to confront the problem in a responsible manner.

"Our infrastructure is crumbling, as evidenced by the deplorable condition of our roads and the bridges. At a time when we cannot begin to afford to keep our road system in proper working order, there are elected officials in state government considering using our tax dollars to support the rebuilding and relocation of Tiger Stadium and another sports arena in the City of Grand Rapids.

"We have incarcerated people until we have inmates coming out of our ears at a cost of $35,000 per year (per inmate) and we still have the highest crime rate of any country in the world. We have failed in our attempts to deal with the issue of crime.

"Finally, at a time when our elected officials should put partisan differences aside, state government is still involved in political gridlock which has afflicted our national government for a period of time. This state is overdue for elected officials who will work for consensus, not conflict and to solutions for the many problems that confront state government.

Q: Why are you the best candidate for Clarkston/Independence Township?

A: "I have training and experience which is beneficial for the position of State Representative. My fourteen years as a police officer with the Oakland County Sheriff's Department gave me not only a unique perspective of the crime problem but it also gave me an insider's perspective as to how government functions. My training and experience as a lawyer with a general practice has developed my skill as a zealous representative on the behalf of others. Finally, I am a life-long resident of North Oakland County, having been raised in Drayton Plains, residing in Brandon Township for the last ten years and being assigned to the Springfield-Independence area as patrolman during part of my tenure as a sheriff's deputy. I have the dedication, energy and desire to represent all people of the 46th District and to remain in contact with the constituents during my term of office."

For the birds

Carver creates the real decoy

BY EILEEN OXLEY
Clarkston News Staff Writer

John Hyde's property is covered with birds. But they're not the kinds of feathered friends you think.

Above a sign that reads "The Hydes" sits a mallard. A Canadian goose perches atop the Hydes' mailbox, while another greets visitors from a big Welcome plaque next to the front door. Great Blue Herons peek from a picture window.

John, aka The Clarkston Carver, creates decoys that are both useful and decorative in a special workshop filled with the smell of freshly sanded wood. And sometimes his work even extends into other areas of the Hydes' comfy Cranberry Lake home, like the "game" room where shelves of decoys are displayed.

"When he started to carve, no one ever played pool again," quipped Dorothy, his wife of 50 years. She nodded to the evidence of fresh wood shavings on the family's pool table.

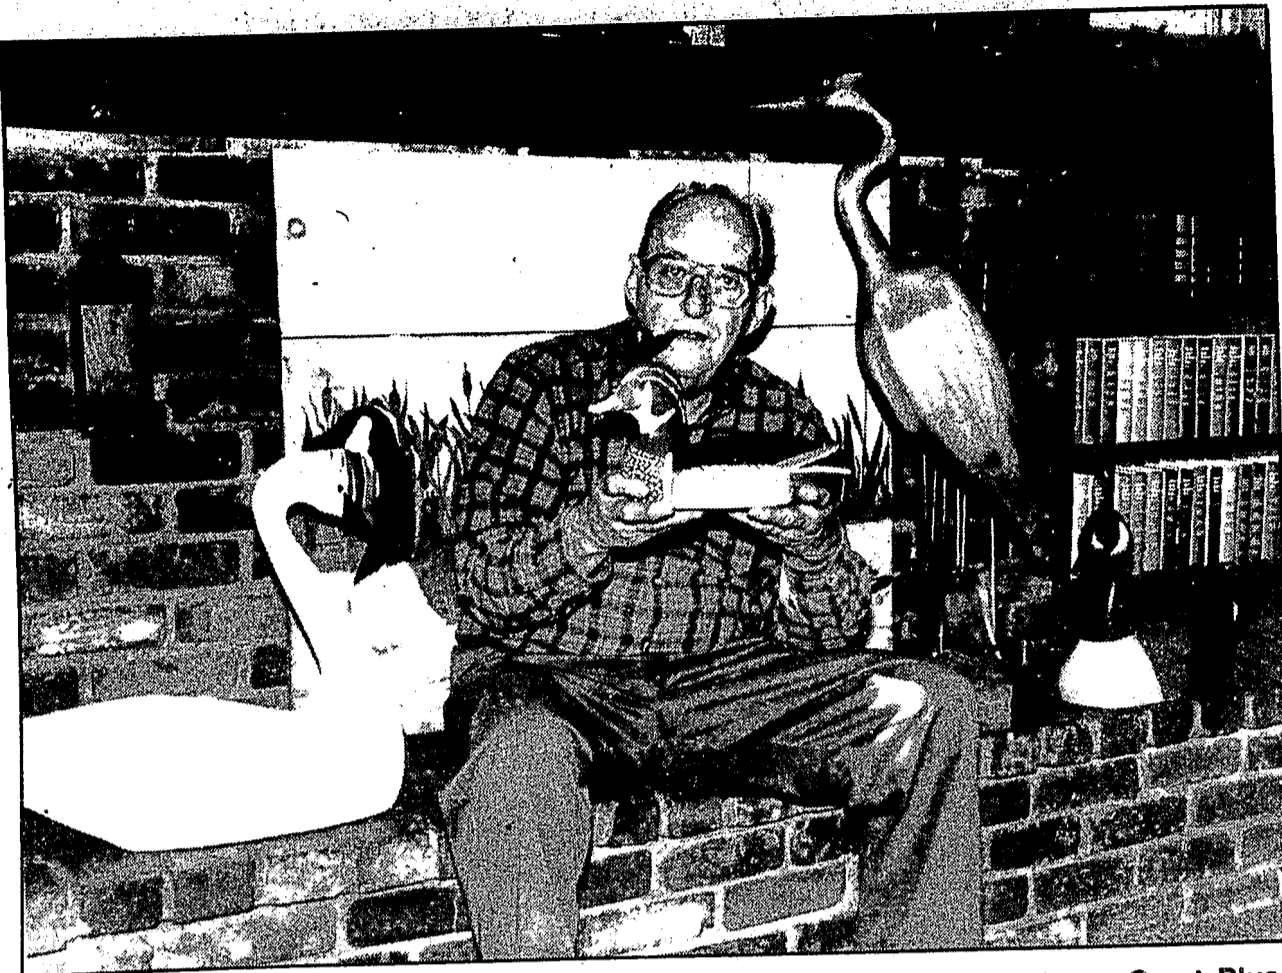

As John began to shape a small piece of wood for the next decoy, he talked about his craft, smoking a pipe that would remind one of Norman Rockwell.

"This sanding bow allows flexibility," he said, demonstrating a handmade wooden bow fashioned with cloth-backed sandpaper. "You can't buy these."

He winked. "Did you know in the 15 or 1600s they used a leather strap? They put honey and sand

USING A HANDMADE SANDING BOW, John begins to shape a decoy.

FANCIFUL FOWL grace the Hydes' fireplace. John scrutinizes a male wood duck with on it—that was the first bow. Furniture makers used these."

John uses a variety of tools, everything from the handmade sander to a pneumatic drum sander, wood rasps and emery cloth. He hones his final product with "a dentist's drill because you can't carve this hard wood with a knife." After five or six coats of lacquer, he polishes each piece with fine steel wool and waxes it.

"It brings out all the various grain definitions," he explained. "All they are is a refined version of a hunting decoy," he added modestly.

For serious hunters who purchase many of his products, he is careful to rough the birds' backs to resemble texture "like a feather." That's to stop any reflection the sun might have on water covering the decoys.

"The reflection would scare them (the ducks)," he said. "I use a rasp—like this. I really tear these things up."

John said he makes 32 different styles of decoys. He used to do 30 Michigan craft shows a year in areas like Marquette, Escanaba, Kalamazoo and Jackson. He still enters a few like Clarkston's Craft and Cider Festival and Ann Arbor's Summer Art Fair. At present he is readying for a November show in Holly. John says it's ironic how his hobby got started. As a salesman who began working for Industrial Chemicals in the '50s, he met his mentor Ben Schmidt accidentally.

"I was a young guy and I loved to hunt ducks. I had a pretty good workshop in those days. Decoys were so expensive and I thought—Heck! I can make my own."

"I was just driving [in Centerline] one day and saw this little dusty store. Ben had 'em (decoys) in the store window."

After paying Schmidt a visit, John learned he was "one of the most famous decoy carvers that had ever lived."

"Pretty soon I'm carving a decoy that looks like a Ben Schmidt decoy," he laughed.

John worked with Schmidt, learning the secrets of successful decoy carving. Schmidt's decoys once retailed at Hudson's for $8 apiece.

"That was a good deal in those days. Now they're worth $1,500 apiece if they're in mint condition," he said, shaking his head.

Soon, John had developed his own style after turning down Schmidt's offer to be a partner because feathered friends, including a Great Blue Heron, around him.

he felt he wouldn't be able to support Dorothy and their two young sons, Gregory and Larry, on a woodcarver's income.

So, he continued carving as a hobby—and, after retirement a few years ago, it became profitable.

'I was a young guy and I loved to hunt ducks. I had a pretty good workshop in those days. Decoys were so expensive and I thought -- Heck! I can make my own.'

John Hyde

Today, orders pile up for his ring-necks, bluebills and mallard ducks as well as loons, swans and graceful herons. And instead of old cedar telephone poles that used to be free and plentiful, John orders special woods such as yellow birch and bleeding heart cedar. Heavier creations result from exotic woods like padouk from Burma and wenge from the Belgian Congo.

He's especially proud of two special styles—back- and breast-preeners. The natural poses result from ducks preening their feathers from "an oil gland in back of the tail."

"If they didn't, they'd sink. Nobody, as far as I know, does these poses," he said.

Prices vary, ranging from $50 for a small decoy to $225 for one of John's larger, more exotic birds.

The whole family has been supportive. Dorothy books shows and Gregory and Larry learned carving when they were "little shavers and followed Dad down to the basement," Dorothy said. Some of the decoys are kept natural while others are painted by Dorothy and the Hydes' daughter Kathy. Their grandchildren "love to pet" the finished products.

Though John considers himself a duck carver first and foremost, he has attempted other animals like a squirrel for a woman who wanted one sitting on a hand-woven basket. And displayed on one of the shelves is a loon with its mouth open, "waiting for his meal," John said. He's created several of these. "It took him longer to carve the fish than the ducks. And you never heard such language either," Dorothy said.
