Clarkston High football players pile on before the start of their second round playoff game against Troy Nov. 12.

Great season ends at 9-2

They expected better, but not many others expected as much.

The Clarkston football team closed out its 1994 campaign with a hard-fought, 14-0 loss to Troy Nov. 12 in the second round of the state Class AA playoffs.

The Wolves also began the season with a loss to Troy, but in between they won nine straight games, knowing that with each win their dreams of a playoff appearance grew.

But, in the end, the team's determination and hard work led them to their first playoff appearance since 1977.

See Sports on page B 1 for more on the Wolves' great season.

City plans water vote

BY EILEEN OXLEY
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Sometimes timing is everything. And time is something the City of Clarkston doesn't have much of if it wants to implement a city water system before rates go up.

At Monday night's meeting, council faced facts about raising the money when engineer Gary Tressel from Hubbel, Roth & Clark produced firmer information.

For the past few months council has been discussing the possibility of a city water system, since the results of a city water interest survey were evaluated by Councilwoman Karen Sanderson. From the data collected, council has determined a system might be necessary from resident feedback about bad wells and contamination.

There are several ways the city could go in borrowing the funds.

Tressel checked into Farm Home Administration grants and loans, but said it would be almost impossible to obtain a grant because "unless you are under a court order or have an income less than $32,000, it would be very unlikely you'd get a grant."

That leaves the city two choices — financing the project through a loan, FHA or bank, or collecting the money through a general obligation bond.

Councilman Bill Basinger said it would cost the city about $2,200,000 to install water mains and hydrants without taking the service to property lines, which would cost another $350,000.

By borrowing, it would cost the average prop-

Police could still be shortchanged

Unless state law is changed, new millage won't take effect until 1996

BY DARREL W. COLE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

In hopes of restoring two positions in the sheriff's department, Independence Township voters approved a .4688-mill tax increase Nov. 8.

But unless the state legislature acts quickly, the police budget may be shortchanged for another year.

Current state law says any new taxes must be levied no later than Sept. 30 to take effect on the December tax bill. An amendment under consideration in Lansing would allow municipalities, such as Independence, to levy a later, voter-approved tax increase on the December tax bill, thereby restoring much-needed funds for the 1995 budget year.

If the Senate Finance Committee doesn't act on the proposal (with Governor John Engler's OK), in time for the December tax bills, the township won't be able to collect its new millage until 1996.

"If the state approves the law, it would allow us to reinstate the one (road patrol) officer and we could keep the DARE officer on. If not it could have a serious effect and we may not be able to do any of that," said Independence Township Supervisor Dale

The news in brief

Thieves cash in

It's not the first time the Fraternal Order of Eagles Hall on Maybee Rd. has been broken into, but the thieves hit the jackpot Nov. 7.

Someone pried a rear door and disabled the alarm at the building, then went from room to room searching for cash. About $7,000 was reported missing from a safe, another $1,170 from a strong box in another room. Games inside the building also had their cash boxes raided but nothing other than cash was stolen.

According to a report filed with the Oakland County Sheriff's Independence Township substation, the robbery is similar to one reported at the Eagles hall in September. The investigation continues.

Wrong place, wrong time

Altercations that arise from traffic disputes are all too common these days. But a Pontiac man must be smarting after deliberately damaging a car right in front of an Oakland County Sheriff's deputy.

As the deputy from the Independence substation told it, he was stopped in traffic on Dixie Hwy. near Andersonville Rd. when he saw a man exit a car carrying an aluminum baseball bat, walk up to the car behind him and hit it with the bat, denting it.

The deputy had both drivers pull over. The driver of the dented car, a 17-year-old Clarkston boy, said the other man had been speeding. The first man said the Clarkston boy had been tailgating. The bat-man was ticketed.

ILC elects officers

Tom Stone has been re-elected to serve another term as president of the Independence Land Conservancy.

Also returning for another year are vice president Frederick Roeser and secretary Thomas Bullen. The new treasurer is John Dryer.

In addition, the directors of the conservancy have been increased from three to five. They are Robert Beattie, Mary Beth Huttenlocher, Thomas Pytel, James Reed and Mel Vaara.

The ILC's next meeting will be a board workshop Saturday, Dec. 10 at 8 a.m. The public is invited to attend. For more information call Stone at 625-8193.

Chamber of Commerce moves

After losing its office to the courthouse fire, the Clarkston Chamber of Commerce has found temporary quarters at Lighthouse North, 5331 Maybee Rd. Mail and phone calls should continue to be sent to the old address and phone number, and will be forwarded. Members who have questions should call Donna Heyniger at 625-8055 or Don Brose at 623-7900.

You gotta have art

The Icky Bug Man says so

BY ANNETTE KINGSBURY
Clarkston News Editor

Ask a child if he or she has heard of Ralph Masiello and they'll probably look puzzled. But ask them if they've heard of the Icky Bug Man, and chances are they'll know exactly who you mean.

Masiello is an artist who parlayed an interest in biology and his natural artistic talent into a career illustrating children's books about bugs and other animals. But judging by an appearance at Bailey Lake Elementary School Nov. 10, he may have missed his true calling—stand-up comedy.

Wearing a name tag which read simply "Icky," Masiello had second-graders, their teachers and their principal, Chris Turner, in stitches as he illustrated for them in a most humorous way what a career in art is all about.

He began by teaching the kids how to sign Icky Bug Man in sign language. Then he spun the tale of his life.

"When I was growing up in Massachusetts I liked to draw a lot but I thought I was terrible; I thought I stunk," he began. "I don't want to be an artist; they're wacko. I'm an artist now. I'm wacko. And I'm proud to be wacko."

It was his kindergarten teacher who first recognized his artistic talent and predicted he would grow up to be an artist. "I wanted to be a doctor," he said.

He arrived in high school still planning a medical career. Since there were no art classes in his high school, "They made me think art wasn't very important. If they didn't teach it, it couldn't be important."

As he told his tale, Masiello brought in examples of the uses of art in everyday life, such as in architecture, clothing design, even toilets.

Icky takes to the easel to show just how easy drawing is.

Ralph Masiello, alias the Icky Bug Man, uses Bailey Lake second-grader Zach Olinger as a guinea pig during his talk about art and design.

"It's kind of like a sculpture that you're using for something," he told his laughing audience. "Did you know somebody somewhere had to draw a picture of Zach's underwear?" he continued, using student Zach Olinger as a guinea pig. "If there are no fashion artists that can design Zach's clothing he'd be standing here naked." The kids roared.

Despite the laughter, Masiello drove home the point that art is important, and he did so in a very memorable way. His own talent was finally discovered in college, where instead of just taking notes during biology dissections, he would draw pictures to help him remember better.

"I didn't think they were very good; I didn't think anyone would see my notebook," he said. "But somebody did... They said, 'You should be studying art'... My kindergarten teacher had been right."

Masiello eventually transferred to the Rhode Island School of Design where he studied illustration. Now, in addition to the Icky Bug books, he also does magazine and book jacket illustration, greeting cards and fine art. "I get paid to do that, too," he said.

Though he's a natural, Masiello pointed out that a lot of research goes into his drawing. Illustrating one Icky Bug book takes one to two years of research and drawing.

"The first place I ever go is not to my drawing table; I go to the library," he said. "Then I'll go to a scientist; maybe a scientist will have a real one (bug, animal, etc.)."

He told a hilarious story about looking for an example of the world's largest frog, the goliath frog. Unable to find one, the book's author went to Harvard and found a scientist who had one preserved in formaldehyde. As Icky tells it, the scientist took out the frog, carried it to a copy store, threw it on a copy machine, photo copied it and sent the image to Masiello. His interpretation of it can be seen in The Frog Alphabet Book.

Masiello couldn't let the kids leave without showing them just how easy it is to draw. Turning to a large sketch pad, he took them step by step through drawing a beetle, then a spider. He made it look easy, and when the allotted class time was over, the kids were still drawing. Though they'd been mightily entertained, they were too busy to clap.

"They're going to all be going home drawing, and that's what it's all about," principal Turner said.

Appropriately enough, Masiello's next project is a book he's doing on his own called "The Icky Bug Man's Way to Draw Icky Bugs."

"I want you to use your own creativity," he told his young pupils. "Don't just do what I do."

Middleton looks back to election, ahead to new term

BY EILEEN OXLEY
Clarkston News Staff Writer

For Tom Middleton, the day after the state's general election wasn't a time to rest on his laurels.

The re-elected Republican was up and running Wednesday, talking to folks from the 46th District and making plans to attend the Clarkston Foundation's Annual Luncheon at noon.

He stopped by The Clarkston News mid-morning to share his trip to Lansing and his reflections on Proposals A-P, challenger Steve Allen, mud-slinging and the future.

First, wasn't he exhausted?

"No, 'cause you're kind of wired — it gets the adrenaline going. I'll crash in a couple of days," Middleton laughed, and referring to the recent onslaught of rain, quipped, "I was going to pick up my signs today but they're all wet."

Middleton said he and wife Kathy had returned to their Ortonville home around 2 a.m., after sharing in the victory celebration in Lansing. They enjoyed a joke between Governor John Engler and newly elected U.S. Senator Spencer Abraham.

"Probably just before 11 p.m. Engler and Abraham came in with Michelle (Engler, who had triplet daughters Sunday). They were really happy and said everything was going good at this point. Spence said if John would help him get elected he'd help John change diapers."

"I didn't know that the Republicans had gotten control of the House. I found out at a meeting (Tuesday morning)."

Middleton said it wasn't until the last count came in for incumbent Sandy Hill of the 47th District in Genesee County that the Republicans knew they were "over the hump."

"She was 13 down when the last poll came in — then she won by 70 (votes)," he said.

Middleton, who is also a farmer, said he agreed with the majority of voters on all four proposals, although he argued the positive points of Proposal C which, if passed, would have reduced auto insurance rates.

"The catastrophic claims portion will probably go up from $110 to about $150 as that pool needs more money. I know I'm going to get all kinds of phone calls — I'll have to say, 'Well, you voted against it,'" he shrugged.

As for the other three proposals, Middleton agreed B was necessary to "correct a wrong," P would provide a parks fund and not "cost the people anything" and A, which would have called for a convention for revision of the state's constitution, wasn't necessary.

"We didn't need to rewrite the constitution. It would have been a mess. I'm glad it failed," he said.

Middleton said he was looking forward to his continuing role in the 46th District. Missions he hopes to accomplish are legislating for land use and pushing for traffic lights on M-15.

STATE REP TOM MIDDLETON chats with a guest at the Clarkston Foundation's Annual Luncheon Wednesday.

"Land is a big priority," he said.

When asked about the "promised" traffic light at Seymour Lake and M-15, Middleton said Michigan Department of Transportation will have it in "some time this month," with a passing lane added later. A needed light at Oak Hill probably won't be implemented until next year because of lack of time before winter hits.

Concerned about growing development in the area, Middleton said Brandon Township's population is expected to double from 10,000 to 20,000 by the year 2010.

M-15, he said, could be widened to as many as five lanes to Genesee County's border.

"Then it goes into Sandy Hill's district and that's her problem," he laughed.

Though Middleton didn't have anything good to say about his challenger, Democrat Steve Allen, who lost in the 7,669-2,488 race, he didn't have any mud to sling either. And he commented on this year's election, described as the meanest, hitting-below-the-belt campaign ever.

"The tighter the race is, the worse it gets, and this race was very tight," he said, shaking his head. "But I wish we could have them without it (mud-slinging)."

"But when you look at history it worked, darn it."

Board awaits playground report

School officials were expected to meet Monday to discuss recommendations by the district's insurance carrier that some playground equipment be removed from elementary school playgrounds.

Deputy superintendent Steven Lenar told the Clarkston board of education Nov. 7 that the insurance company's report on an inspection of all playground equipment had been received and listed 54 items that required some kind of attention. Some were for outright removal. Others listed remedies, such as more cushioned fall zones, that would allow the equipment to remain in use.

"We're trying to prioritize," Lenar said. "There are some items that he has called for their removal. . . We will begin with that."

The insurance company report was not available as of presstime. Lenar said he would come back to the board in December with a more detailed report, including cost estimates for the work.

Meanwhile, he said some of the work can be done by school staff this fall. The insurance company has given the district 60 days to respond to the report.

"Some of these pieces were very expensive," Lenar said. "The rules have changed; liabilities have changed. The insurance company says it has to come out."

Lenar said teeter-totters could become a thing of the past. Swing sets will remain, but with better fall zones. Any equipment removed will have to be discarded, he added, since it's unsafe to be used elsewhere.

"The district can't afford, once we know it's inappropriate, to keep it there," he said.

The insurance carrier has also suggested improvements in the district's accident reporting and follow-up system, Lenar added.

"It's been a real good process," superintendent Gary Haner said.

In other action at the Nov. 7 meeting:

- The board voted to purchase copy equipment from low bidder Stockton Office Systems at a cost of $112,640 for each of the next four years. That's based on an estimated number of 8.8 million copies per year.

- The board approved first readings of policy changes based upon new state legislation. The new policies affect alternative high school, student supervision and well-being, grading, graduation requirements, food service, charter schools and asbestos, among others.

- The board voted to expand the dental assisting program at the Oakland Technical Center Northwest from part time to full time, based on enrollment. Funding comes from Oakland Schools.

- The board voted to purchase a used pick-up truck for the OTCNW. Funding comes from Oakland Schools.

Sub pay increased

In an effort to make Clarkston schools more attractive to substitute teachers, the board of education voted to raise their pay at its Nov. 7 meeting.

The full-day rate for a sub is now $62, up from $57, where it's been for the last two years, according to superintendent Gary Haner.

"We're trying to look at all the options to be competitive," said assistant superintendent Duane Lewis. "Dollars by themselves won't do it (but) the district we're competing directly with we're behind on dollars."

"We're also looking at ways to reduce the demand for subs," Haner said. "We're already experiencing days without enough subs."

Jennifer Sommers and Stephanie Elliott estimate the weight of a pumpkin.

On October 20, students at Pine Knob Elementary School carved the curriculum into a new shape.

Fourth-grade students traveled from room to room studying math, literature, music and drama as they relate to pumpkins. At the day's end, all agreed that pumpkins are good for more than just pies and carving.

In Focus

by Annette Kingsbury

Happy days are here again

As Ross Perot might say, that giant sucking sound you heard last Tuesday night was the sound of all the Democrats being sucked outside the Washington, D.C. beltway.

And now that the Republicans have a majority in both houses of Congress, I figure prosperity should be just around the corner. I've had this "happy feet" kind of feeling. Think I'll go out and celebrate.

After all, they've been telling us for months that it's only those dog-gone Democrats who tax and spend, who create gridlock in the Congress, who raise taxes on the middle class. Since I'm firmly in that classification, I'm going to stop worrying now.

The bottom should start falling out of my taxes any time now, and I should be on easy street from here on out.

The Republicans have promised to balance the budget, cut taxes and not touch entitlements. Though I'm a long way from retirement age, I guess I can stop worrying that there won't be any Social Security around for me when I grow old. Ditto the fact that I don't have a pension; the Republicans will soon take care of that by creating tax advantages for me to obtain one. That's the American way, isn't it?

I'm sure they'll do away with the marriage penalty on federal income taxes, and they'll bring interest rates back down where they belong. When I sign my tax return next year, I'll be smiling.

Then of course they'll pass term-limit legislation, so all those new guys who just got elected won't be around clogging up the Capitol when they're way over the hill, like some of those Democrats who got bounced last week.

I can't wait till all that bad stuff passed under the Democrats gets repealed—the family leave act, gun control, cable TV regulation. We can stop worrying about universal health care now too—none of that will be coming any time soon.

Based on Tuesday's results, Americans are sick and tired of being told there's anything wrong with this country. Of having to listen to a bunch of baloney about how millions are uninsured, millions more live in poverty. I'm OK, you're OK. Anybody got a problem with that?

But seriously folks, I hope the Democrats have learned something from this bloodbath. That once in a while, fresh blood has to be allowed into the capitol, term limits or no term limits. That you can't keep foisting the same tired people off on a constituency taken for granted. For when the people get tired enough of the same old same old, they will vote the incumbents out.

If the Democrats take that lesson to heart, then something good could come of last week's election. But it won't be without a struggle.

"There is nothing more difficult to take in hand, more perilous to conduct, or more uncertain in its success, than to take the lead in the introduction of a new order of things," Machiavelli said.

And it's still true today. Just ask Bill Clinton.

Letters to the editor

To Ivan

One of the earliest memories I have of Ivan Rouse is of riding around the streets of Clarkston in one of his "puddle jumpers" as he tooted the horn, slammed on the brakes, learned out the window and inquired of a bewildered stranger if he knew the way to Clarkston. After that person would wave his hand and say, "This is it," he'd drive on to the next startled stranger and ask the same absurd question. Of course, I could barely keep a straight face.

Now, looking back, I'm amazed that Ivan could even find a stranger in Clarkston, because as I eventually learned, Ivan knew everyone.

His ability to make an event out of something as ordinary as driving through town a wild and memorable experience is the key to why he managed to live such a remarkably full life. He was, of course, more alive than anyone I've ever encountered. Although he knew well that life could be dull, it made him determined that it wouldn't be, and it never was, if Ivan was there.

He saw each experience, every encounter as an opportunity for a creative event. He had this great ability to turn up the volume of life so that you were sure to hear it resonate in his presence. Ivan also created a whole language of his own and lived in a world of his creation that just happened to include hundreds of people. He created a world where spontaneity, joy and, of course, laughter were as much a component of the atmosphere as oxygen.

And Ivan did not limit his friendship to a chosen few. Rather, he was egalitarian; he was generous with himself. He could as easily be seen rubbing elbows with the cultured elite at the opera as he could be seen sharing fellowship over a cup of coffee with some poor lost soul at the village bakery.

To me personally Ivan was a most precious and loyal friend for nearly 20 years. If I had never met Ivan, I would in some essential way not be the same.

That we somehow managed to cross paths in this lifetime I'll always treasure as a rare, precious gift. I'm sure many of you felt the same.

So I'll say farewell Ivan, you'll be missed. Even you might have known that our lives would simply not be as bright without you and your great, booming, wild laughter.

Doing Mayo Clinic

Wednesday, November 2: Here we are at Mayo Clinic, Scottsdale, Arizona.

Nothing to get alarmed about. It's just that Hazel's had a nagging sore shoulder, then back, then hip thing for a while, and, since the clinic is handy, with Mayo's great reputation, she agreed to try it.

Mayo Clinic was started in Rochester, Minnesota by brother doctors William and Charles in 1914. Mayo Scottsdale opened in 1987. There is also a satellite in Jacksonville, Fla.

It took a week to get an appointment and an hour to check into this facility for "adult outpatients." Doctors are salaried and practice in teams.

It's a friendly place, lots of smiling help, starting with the two people inside the front door who offer directions.

One might get the feeling after filling out all the initial forms that you have diagnosed yourself -- over 100 yes and no questions.

More plush seats are available in waiting rooms on the five floors than there are in a 6-movie theater. Patients do a lot of waiting. There are also plenty of magazines to read, however; I read a June 1990 date on one.

After the 9 a.m. meeting with a doctor who talked, prodded and maneuvered her limbs, Hazel and I waited another hour for an X-ray (11:30), waited another hour for a blood test, waited until 2:00 for therapy and waited until 4:10 for consultation.

The next day it was 9 to 4:30 with lots of waiting, including an hour and a half to get a urine bottle, and the next day at 3:30 with only a half hour wait. It's easy to see why Mayo Clinics have hotels built nearby for patient 'convenience.'

In the end the answer to Hazel's pains is exercise, something we all know we need and few of us do regularly. Naturally, we put off exercise... after a few days it ain't fun no more.

Mayo is probably an exciting place for medical types. One Mayo physician had been in space with a patient who, for examination, had to be tied down to keep from floating away. Mayo leases transmission space on a satellite to communicate between clinics. Their researchers have won the highest awards for their discoveries.

Waiters read a lot and Mayo provides a medical library and lots of reading material about itself; like, Dr. William was graduated from U of M medical school in 1883, Dr. Charles from Northwestern in 1888.

Eating at Mayo's cafeteria has its drawbacks. One gets the guilts in ordering things like sweetrolls, eggs and other high-sugar, high-cholesterol foods.

But when I ordered a "garden burger" at 10 a.m., hoping my doctor back here would learn about it, I was told I could only order breakfast until 11:00. So, I ate a granola bar.

15 YEARS AGO (1979)

Clarkston school superintendent Milford Mason is awarded a three-year contract which boosts his current salary to $42,300, a figure 9-percent higher than his former annual pay of $38,800. Mason's contract has been renewed annually during the three years he's held the school's top position.

Police advisory board member Charles Whitlock resigns from Independence Township's five-member board after charging it with "inept handling of police matters."

25 YEARS AGO (1969)

A dozen residents protest a Clarkston Village Council's decision to grant a drain from Deerfield Farms subdivision to the north end of Mill Pond.

Former Clarkston High standout Chuck Granger, who attends Oakland Community College's Highland Lakes campus, is expected to give the basketball season a lift this year. The 6-foot-4-inch Granger is one of the biggest men on coach Lynn Reed's team. Reed says Granger "has an excellent shot at a starting assignment."

The more "Canadian" connections that appear, the more we find the need to delve more deeply into Native American research, adoption and relevant topics to aid the reality of "everyone being family."

Last time, we mentioned some new titles purchased for the library of Pontiac Area Historical and Genealogical Society and we are delighted that so many people that have seen them find them useful now. We anticipate the growth of interest on the part of parents of the first graders in Crofoot Elementary School in Pontiac who recently began a venture in family history as part of their "Year of the Family" project.

Ninety-plus students will become the youngest "researchers" we know of, but are certain their principal, Dr. Donald Robinson, will find the family shared event will be beneficial to all.

The spring seminar in Canada we mentioned previously will be held May 19-22 in Chatham, Ontario, featuring Dean Jacobs, executive director of First Nations Heritage Center, at the Walpole Island Reserve near Wallaceburg, conducting a session on First Nation records and how to access them.

Dr. George Schwitzer will lecture on Revolutionary War and War of 1812 genealogy. Kenneth Bagnell, author of The Little Immigrants, the orphans who came to Canada; Rene Jette conducting a session on Dit names and accessing French resources and participation on a panel featuring living history, Gordon Hillman, offering 10 hours of computer conference workshops, Ryan Taylor, librarian of the Allen County Library, Fort Wayne; Tony Burroughs offering "Tracking Down Slave Owners," is president of Black Roots in Chicago; Charles L. Blockson, curator of the African American collection at Temple University in Philadelphia speaking on the Underground Railroad; and these topics and well known teachers make up the list of 30 presenters that include many Michigan participants, as well.

A service flag bearing a star for every boy or girl in the service of the country who are members or have been guests at the Clarkston Baptist Church will be dedicated Sunday. The ceremony will be opened with the unveiling of the Service Roll and the reading of the names of all those represented on the flag.

The Insider

Fanatics

Oakland County north of Pontiac has the well-deserved reputation of being a Republican stronghold. But interestingly, in last week's general election, fully 22.6 percent of the voters who went to the polls in Independence Township cast a straight Democratic party ticket.

Voting machines, anyone?

When the Village of Clarkston became a city, it took on a whole bunch of new responsibilities related to elections. Nevertheless, the city never bought any voting machines.

But help may be at hand. In the most recent newsletter of the Michigan Township Association, Erie Township is offering used voting machines for $50 each. Better yet, Rochester Community Schools are offering voting machines free to anyone who will cart them away.

If it Fitz

By Jim Fitzgerald

If you're telling your story, George, why not tell it all?

Quick, pass me my throw-up pot.

At his tearful news conference Nov. 8, MSU football coach George Perles said: "I had three years left on my contract, and I wanted to coach three years. I couldn't, so I was fired. That's a breach of contract. Those are clear, clear facts."

It is hard to believe that Perles actually had gall enough to whine that MSU broke his employment contract. Also hard to believe is that no sports writers, in several pages of reporting and commenting in Wednesday's Detroit newspapers, mentioned that Perles broke his own employment contract when he took the MSU job in 1982. Maybe they'll get around to it later.

Or maybe, because I'm an MSU alumnus long disgusted with my alma mater, my memory of Perles' smelly hiring is unusually good, not to mention unusually bitter. Whatever, the clear, clear facts are these:

Twelve years ago, when MSU needed a new football coach, it wasn't necessary to buy expensive help-wanted ads. George Perles had been publicly begging for the job for years, so all MSU had to do was call George up and offer him $95,000 a year.

Except MSU subsequently also had to pay $19,000 to a Philadelphia law firm for arranging a $175,000 payoff to quash a $1-million lawsuit filed by Perles' ex-employers against MSU for luring Perles into breaking his contract with them.

You can read all about it in old newspaper clippings. And in future newspapers, you may well read that Perles sued MSU for breaking his contract in 1994. You may well read that he won a settlement huge enough to make the $194,000 cost in 1983 look like very tiny peanuts.

Remember, MSU is a public university spending public money that doesn't look like peanuts to most members of the public when they pay taxes.

While thumbing through those old newspaper clippings, I found it refreshing to reread a letter written to the Detroit News by Peter Fletcher, who was an MSU trustee when Perles was hired. An Ann Arbor businessman and prominent Republican activist, Fletcher has long been one of my favorite users of words. Read them and then try to keep from choking the next time you sing the MSU fight song:

George Perles lied to MSU officials about his legal availability to fill their coaching job, and university administrators were oscitant enough to let Perlesgate engulf them into producing a sorry chapter in Spartan sports history.

All of this is public knowledge because I flatly refused to go along with a shabby court-approved gag order designed to cover up the payment of $175,000 in hush money. All concerned were finally compelled to account for every wasted penny from the public purse on this pignskin idiocy.

Gridiron glory cannot return to East Lansing until those in charge resist the temptation to relinquish ethics and integrity in return for purported autumnal Saturday afternoon ecstasies.

In case you attended college on an athletic scholarship, or are an ignorant columnist, I'll tell you I had to consult a large dictionary to learn what Fletcher meant by saying university administrators were "oscitant" when they paid the penalty for Perles breaking his contract. It means they were drowsy enough to yawn, or lazy enough to be stupid.

No one could possibly be surprised that MSU is once again providing an oscitant solution to a problem in the athletic department. My alma mater has a long history of being jock stupid.

It's a sad situation that won't improve until MSU leaders wake up and realize it's a university, not the Detroit Lions, and a science or literature teacher is supposed to be more important than the third assistant trainer in charge of pulled groin muscles.

The other side of food service

On any given day, the Clarkston Community Schools food service department serves over 3,500 student lunches! Headed by food services director Linda Nester, the staff squeezes lunch into a 1-1/2 hour window of time -- serving, making change, cleaning up, and good-naturedly managing the delivery of hundreds of lunches.

But there's more to it than the actual lunchroom scene. Preparing for daily lunches consumes hours of planning, piloting, evaluating, and refining the food services function. When you look behind the scenes, you see a department devoted to improvement and innovation.

Food service has already spent two years working on the reduction of fat and sodium in the school lunch. The United States Department of Agriculture will impose mandatory reductions in 1998, but we are already working to meet those new standards.

Our food is baked, not fried. Pans are lined, not oiled. Food production is salt-free and shakers are limited in the secondary food lines. Cooked ground beef is rinsed to remove fats. Kitchens are ordering more fresh fruits, vegetables and multi-grain breads, and we serve low-fat white, 1% chocolate, and skim milk daily.

In the elementary schools, three main choices are offered each day along with vegetables, fruit and milk. Special days like lucky tray day, sticker day, and birthday-of-the-month are designed to provide lunchtime variety and encourage participation. Little Caesars Pizza Days are popular in all schools even though the lunch is 25 cents higher (special pizzas specify heavier crust and more cheese to give kids plenty of bread and protein).

A-la-carte items are additions to the regular lunch, and food service workers try to offer them after children have eaten. Some a-la-carte foods are offered as a dessert option, but they also include healthy snacks like pretzel rods, fruit juice, and string cheese.

At the secondary level, several daily choices are offered including combo lunches, soup and sandwich, or salad bars. A fresh paint and decorating job at Clarkston High School has enlivened the overcrowded cafeteria, although large student numbers jam the service.

To aid Clarkston and other Oakland County districts in nutrition planning, the Oakland Schools

Intermediate District analyzes our menus regularly, providing data on sodium and fat content and making suggestions for improvement when appropriate. The software program -- called "Nutritionist 3" -- knows how we prepare our food and what brand names we purchase, so it can efficiently compute averages in a weekly or daily menu. Working cooperatively as a county, Oakland districts have been very progressive in their move to more nutritious lunches.

Overall, our food service is a balancing act. Because it is self-supporting, the department walks a tightrope between income and expenses, just like any business. Over the last 10 years, federal support has been reduced, USDA bonus commodities have vanished, and costs have increased dramatically. The challenge is to provide nutritious food that kids want at a reasonable cost to parents.

To keep itself in the black, Clarkston food service participates in a county-wide bid for all grocery and paper supplies and cooperatively purchases milk, bread and ice cream products with four neighboring districts. It also adds to income with a growing catering department, concocting hearty lunches for staff meetings and baked goods for special occasions.

CHS student life By Don Downey

Don't burn out on school!

Trigonometry, n., 1. The administration's way of punishing us. 2. A waste of time.

My trig class has recently started verifications, which are huge problems that take up reams of paper, that are written like a cross between Greek and Hieroglyphics. These monsters made even the smartest kids in my class raise their eyebrows in anxiety.

I used to wonder how many people I'd have to knock off to be valedictorian.

Each verification takes an average of 10 minutes to complete. The homework would have taken me about five hours, but about halfway through I said to myself, 'I'm not going to spend my only free day doing math.' So I started timing myself. Any problem which I could not finish within five minutes received a big "?" and I moved on. I've always thought that anything that can't be done in five minutes is just not worth doing.

People who know me well are probably going to come up to me and say, "Don, I read your article;

what were you talking about? You care about school as much as anybody."

I reply, "I still care about school, I just don't let it torture me anymore."

When you look at some of the people at my school, you have to wonder how they hold onto their sanity. They get themselves so worked up over every test and quiz that it's amazing they don't just collapse. As for myself, I used to wonder how many people I'd have to knock off to be valedictorian.

After a test is taken, a teacher will usually go over the answers soon afterward. It drives me crazy when the teacher gives an answer and half the class goes "YEESSS!" and the other half starts moaning like a bunch of malnourished cows. Getting an answer (or many answers) wrong on a test isn't the end of the world. Sometimes I want to go up and yell, "IT'S OVER! THERE'S NOTHING YOU CAN DO ABOUT IT!! YOU'VE HANDED IN YOUR ANSWER SHEET! TOO LATE!"

For every person who doesn't care enough about school, there is someone who cares too much. I wish there was a happy median where everyone had the same GPA and everyone was satisfied with their abilities. High school, and life for that matter, is too short to live in constant competition and fear of failure.

Stuart. The .4688-mill increase would raise about $274,000, according to Stuart. That would be enough to restore the patrol officer position, which costs about $70,000 and the DARE program, which costs about $75,000. The extra funds could also be used to combat an expected police budget deficit of about $120,000 by the end of 1994.

The road patrol officer has already been cut, but the second officer, who teaches the DARE drug program in Clarkston schools, has been removed from road patrol. His position is currently being funded by the school district so he is used exclusively in the schools.

Stuart said he has written letters to several representatives and Governor Engler. "I've just tried to explain why it's critical that this law gets approved."

The .4688 increase will cost the owner of a home with a market value of $100,000 about $22 per year.

New fire hall causes cash concerns

Board wants financing assurances

BY DARREL W. COLE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

All agree plans for a new fire station/substation must continue.

But what concerns the Independence Township Board of Trustees is how the new building is to be paid for. On Nov. 10, the board was presented with two separate proposals on the site located near the burned courthouse on Citation Drive (off M-15).

The over three-year-long plan to build the fire station/Oakland County Sheriff's substation needs to move forward, according to the board, although some trustees have concerns about the costs.

Trustee Jeffrey McGee said, "I want to know if we can afford this in the future. I have a great concern that we'll go ahead with this motion without the proper backing."

"We discussed in the early days this costing about $1.4 million," and now its around $1.8 million, said trustee Daniel Travis. "Dale (Stuart) says we can't spend this amount and Joan (McCrary) says we can. We need to know now exactly how much we can spend."

Architect Dennis Dundon presented two proposals to the board at the Nov. 10 special meeting. The two proposals were requested by the board in order to look at building and cost alternatives.

Both Scheme A and Scheme B are relatively the same except for a few changes. Both proposals include a fire station and substation.

Scheme A would cost the township $1.758 million and Scheme B would cost $1.810 million. The original proposal, presented to the board in October, would have cost $1.950.

The two new proposals were requested because the original included a $150,000 cost for a retaining wall in the parking lot. That cost was taken out after architects reconfigured the site, eliminating the need for the retaining wall.

While there is still some concern about financing, the board favored Scheme A. The drawback to Scheme B (18,292 square feet), according to the board and Dundon, is that the substation would be located under a wing of the fire station. In Scheme A (18,205 square feet), the substation is located in the back of the building.

Dundon also said the roofing design for Scheme

B's three buildings is not preferable, while the "architecturally-sound, unified design" of Scheme A is better.

Scheme B also would require the substation to be built, something the board may vote not to do due to cost restraints, because it is under the building.

By not building the substation with Scheme A, the township could save about $345,000. By building the wing, but leaving it unfinished, the township would see an $86,000 savings.

"There are a lot of other options without doing everything there at once," said Supervisor Stuart, who has said in the past the township can only afford $1.6 million for the building. "We do have to look at what we can afford and what makes sense now. The only thing that makes sense in my mind is moving forward now with the fire station first."

The board was expected to review building costs at its Nov. 15 meeting.

According to figures provided by clerk McCrary, costs for a $2 million building, at 6.75 percent interest each year for 10 years would end up costing about

New building land costs

The proposed site of the new fire station/substation will cost Independence Township $307,000.

Although the three lots haven't been purchased as of yet, township supervisor Dale Stuart said the agreement is set to go as soon as building plans can be finalized. The land, located near the burned-down courthouse on Citation Drive (off M-15), is currently owned in a partnership by several individuals.

Township officials are proposing the building include a four-bay fire station and a section for the Oakland County Sheriff's substation.

Stuart said the land cost is not included in the building's projected cost of around $1.7 million. That money is already set aside for in the fire department budget, from past carry-over funds and with funds from the department's 1995 budget.

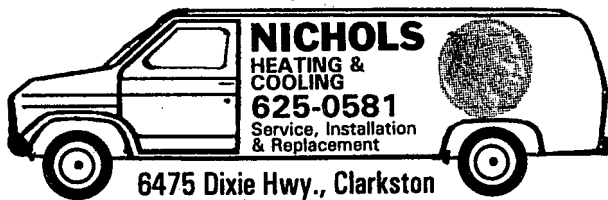

The current sheriff's substation in Independence is located off M-15. The township pays about $40,000 a year (principle and interest only, and not including operation costs) for that building.

Over $300,000 is left to pay on the substation, but it would be less if it is paid off early.

SKUTTLE SELF ADJUSTING MAKE-UP AIR CONTROL MODEL 216

Today's well-built homes are heavily insulated and have well-sealed storm windows and doors. It is difficult to replace the air used by your furnace, hot water heater, fireplace and ventilating fans. These appliances attempt to pull unfiltered outside air through cracks around doors and windows, causing uncomfortable drafts. The Make-Up Air Control eliminates these drafts by slightly pressurizing your home. It eliminates drafty, unfiltered air by passing outside air through your furnace filters before it is distributed through the home. You enjoy fresh, clean outside air.

Township has $76,647 in new block grants

BY DARREL W. COLE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Everyone needs some funds and Independence Township aims to please.

With a 1995-96 Community Development Block Grant fund allocation of $76,647 the township is able to support several projects and charitable organizations. The township board of trustees allocated almost 32 percent ($24,359) of the total funds, which are dispersed between June, 1995 to May, 1996, to five different charitable organizations.

Home Chore will receive $10,000, up from the $5,000 they received last year. Lighthouse North was allocated $5,200 while Clarkston Area Youth Assistance and Haven will receive $3,000 each.

The CDBG program is sponsored by the federal government (the funds are dispersed through Oakland County) to aid areas of a community with low-to-moderate income families, handicapped, elderly and others. In order for the funds to be used in these areas, the community must prove the area falls into one of the categories.

Township treasurer John Lutz, who directs the community development program for Independence, said one of the challenges is finding ways to use the government funds.

"We have a number of programs and projects we fund but it's hard to spend it because we don't have many areas that qualify," he said.

Based on the 1990 census, Lutz said the township doesn't have any areas which qualify as low-to-moderate income. As in years past, the township has used the money for other purposes.

● Library — $8,431 to install railings on steps, sign and post handicapped parking, telecommunications for the deaf and dial access.

● Parks Handicapped Accessible — $7,664 to help Sashabaw Plains meet American with Disabilities Act requirements.

● Senior Center — $9,197 for new tables and chairs.

Under the federal guidelines, CDBG funds can also be used for such programs as emergency home help for low-income families, township planning studies, libraries, parks and senior centers.

$2.6 million. Each year the fire department fund will pay between $180,000 and $217,000 of the payment, and the police fund between $40,000 and $48,000. The yearly payments will be between $222,000 and $266,000.

The debt payment would also be offset with an expected $12,500 yearly increase in state equalized value for homes in the township, according to township figures.

Board members, including Stuart said they are concerned because the ability to pay is based on a best-case scenario.

"There are a lot of considerations," said Stuart. "We are banking on the fact that we'll get maximum millage renewals every year and that if all these other scenarios (such as SEV increases) work out right we'll be able to do it."

The 1995-96 CDBG funds will be allocated as follows:

● Planning and Management — $15,329 for a complete master plan study, historic preservation study and an update of the township's design guidebook.

● Emergency Rehabilitation Program — $7,664 to assist low-to-moderate income families with emergency home situations.

Fun for a cause

Tom Lowrie of Lowrie's Landscape and Wendy Halsey, branch manager of Lighthouse North, chat about a check Lowrie is handing over. The check was for $500 raised at Lowrie's annual adult Halloween party. Lowrie said the party is an annual event but this was the first year donations were raised for Lighthouse North.

Clarkston Foundation gives out grants during annual luncheon

BY EILEEN OXLEY
Clarkston News Staff Writer

TENTH-GRADE STUDENTS FROM THE FUTURE PROBLEM-SOLVING CLUB who have benefitted from Clarkston Foundation's

Some folks admit they have a problem saying yes to volunteer work that might drain a few more minutes of their precious time.

After all, Americans' lives are so fast-paced they haven't much left to give after a long workday.

Jim Evans says he was one of those guys. And when Clarkston Foundation president Bob Olsen approached him, he felt like running the other way.

"I would have blown Bob off if I could," admitted Evans at the end of the Foundation's Annual Luncheon last Wednesday.

CHS PRINCIPAL BRENT COOLEY displays the scholarship plaque that will hang on the CHS Wall of Fame.

"Even though I didn't want to join because it was one more thing — I did. I found working with you team members was fun and I said, 'You know, I could do a little bit more.'"

That attitude seemed to prevail at the luncheon which was attended by members who, through the Foundation, donate their time and help to fund "a wide variety of children's programs in the arts and sciences," says the 1994 Annual Report. Grants are given to students in programs "worthy of presentation, but unable to be offered ... due to financial constraints."

During the luncheon's welcome, Olsen remarked that he too "couldn't say no (to) the schools and the kids."

Another one of his comments was timely after election day.

"We need young people to watch the old ones in Washington," he quipped.

That caring seemed to be reciprocated as Clarkston High School students from both the yearbook staff and future problem-solving club told how the foundation's help was appreciated.

"We learned about making a good yearbook and a goal was set to create an award-winning yearbook in two years," said CHS senior Christy Colbrunn, who attended a yearbook workshop at Alma College last summer.

Thanks was also given from Clarkston Community Education director Marilyn Allyn and alternative high school student Jason Sheilds who received a grant in behalf of STRIVE (Students Trying and Reaching Individual Victory through Education) students commissioned to create a clay mural.

Part two of the luncheon involved a dedication of the coming year to Ivan Rouse, founder of the Clarkston Conservatory and "Clarkston's Music Man," who passed away recently. Family members accepted the award.

In addition, plaques were presented to Carol's Village Grill ("our unofficial office away from home," joked Olsen) and CHS principal Brent Cooley, who accepted a science and fine and performing arts scholarship award plaque.

president Bob Olsen

The 1993-1994 student scholarship award recipients are Chris Lewis (fine and performing arts) and Dave Hartke (science), whose names are the first to be engraved on the plaque which will be incorporated into CHS's "Wall of Fame."

Another special presentation was made to Natalie Hewko who received the "Exemplary Teacher of the Year" award. In her acceptance of the honor

Obstacles slow White Lake Rd work

BY DARREL W. COLE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

For almost two years, Independence Township officials have waited for work to begin on White Lake Road.

While problems and obstacles continually arise in the project, township supervisor Dale Stuart said it's been his goal to keep the pressure on the county to get the loose ends tied up.

"There's so many different people with their fingers in this that we'll get 12 steps done and them run into a wall," he said. "We continually meet with the road commission to resolve issues, like dealing with easements, moving the Buckey Drain and other issues. It's all we can do is try and go after everything."

The White Lake Road project, between Dixie and Andersonville, is part of Downtown Development Authority plans and has a price tag of around $3 million. Some of the improvements include adding safety paths, road paving and other improvements, storm and water drain improvements, etc.

While DDA funds are set aside for most of the project, the federal government has awarded a grant for the project from Clement Road south to Andersonville.

The grant will pay 80 percent of those costs, the county 10 percent and the township 10 percent.

Road improvements from Clement to Dixie will be funded through the DDA.

While Stuart said the grant will not be taken away, numerous complications have arisen in the project as a whole. He said the only thing he can do is continue to get the problems solved one by one.

There is also debate raging in the state legislature about how to handle DDAs. Lawmakers are currently deciding whether to allow DDAs to receive funding through municipalities, or abandoning the concept even further. Township officials expect answers in a few months.

Clarkston Foundation hosts annual meeting

Hewko said, "It is most gratifying when one's efforts and contributions are recognized and appreciated not only by one's professional superiors, but also by the leaders of the community."

Hewko added that she was accepting the award "also on behalf of all the other deserving Clarkston teachers" and added, "especially elementary teachers," as Olsen called out, "There you go!" A few members' eyes were misty.

As Olsen presented 11 grants for the 1993-1994 school year, recipient representatives accepted the checks. Total grants for the year were $9,961.25.

Near the luncheon's close, Evans surprised Olsen with a plaque too. Since Olsen steps down from his post in January, Evans, who is currently secretary, will succeed him.

After Olsen thanked him for the plaque, Evans said he would continue the Foundation's fine work.

"I'm going to be looking for ways ... I'll be working to put our children into Harvard and OCC as well," Evans said.

"Do we want the arts and the sciences? If we don't, we'll never progress ...

"We can't let apathy win."

Only time lost in ballot shortfall

BY DARREL W. COLE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

It was 6 a.m. by the time Joan McCrary and other election workers got to bed Nov. 8.

The election not only took a long time to conclude but was even more difficult for the Independence Township Clerk because several precincts ran out of pre-printed ballot forms.

Election workers were forced to make photo copies of ballots and count them by hand because some precincts ran out of the pre-printed ballots.

"There was probably 300 township-wide," said McCrary, who emphasized everyone's vote was counted, although the pre-printed ballots were counted by machine. "The ballots were exactly the same. The only difference is it (photo copied ballots) can't be electronically read."

McCrary said there were some pre-printed ballots left over in some precincts, while others ran out. "We were very happy with the turnout (about 53 percent), but in precincts where we normally have larger turnout, we didn't, and in smaller precincts we had large turnouts."

QUESTION: I am trying to sell my own house. I have a good prospect, but he wants me to give him a written warranty guaranteeing the condition of the major systems, such as electrical, plumbing, heating, etc. What should I do?

ANSWER: Even though the doctrine of "let the buyer beware" prevails in real estate, there are examples of sellers who have unwittingly given buyers written warranties regarding the condition of their properties. Some have had inevitable and costly legal repercussions.

There are many firms across the nation willing to provide this service at a fee. Don't try to do it yourself.

Across the US, land trusts are sprouting

Nearly 1,100 local and regional conservation groups, known as land trusts, are rapidly protecting land in communities across the country, according to a new survey by the Land Trust Alliance.

The survey shows that in the last four years, the amount of land U.S. land trusts like the Independence Land Conservancy helped protect grew by more than a million acres.

The Land Trust Alliance surveyed local and regional land trusts—nonprofit organizations that protect land directly, usually by buying it or placing conservation easements on it. Some results:

- Land trusts have helped protect 4.04 million acres—an area larger than the state of Connecticut—including over 1,300,000 acres since 1990.

- Land permanently protected through conservation easements—voluntary agreements with landowners that permanently conserve their land—has grown from 450,000 acres to 737,000 acres.

- The number of land trusts is increasing at a rate of close to one a week. Half of all land trusts now in existence have been formed in the last 10 years.

- Michigan now has over 28 land trusts, such as the ILC, with over 23,000 acres protected.

"The Independence Land Conservancy owns outright or has conservation easements for 19 parcels, comprising over 200 acres of land conserved in our township," Tom Bullen, the secretary for the ILC, said. The ILC was one of Michigan's first, founded in 1972.

Survey figures were released at the nation's largest land conservation conference, the seventh National Land Trust Rally, in Chattanooga, TN recently. Bullen, of Clarkston, represented the ILC at the event, where more than 700 land-trust professionals, volunteers, conservationists and government personnel learned the latest in the innovative and often highly technical conservation techniques land trusts use.

Bullen, a lawyer in Clarkston, said that the agenda at the rally included discussion of subdivision developments where "greenways" were set aside and often linked with other subdivisions or open space to provide walkways and protection of forest stands or wetland areas. He said he hoped that the Independence Township Planning Commission would embrace these concepts "before it is too late."

"The future of successful natural resource conservation rests with private citizens working in association with each other and with government agencies, conservation groups, corporations and other landowners," said Mollie Beattie, director of the US Fish and Wildlife Service. "The growth of land trusts is a sure sign this spirit of partnership is taking root in America."

Hocker calls the land trusts philosophy of voluntary, common-sense land conservation a key to their success.

"Whatever their methods, land trusts are protecting land for the enjoyment of everyone," she said. "It's a very populist approach to conservation."

Typically, land trusts work closely with willing landowners to help them develop a voluntary plan for conserving their land. Land trusts often buy land or accept it as a donation. However, of particular significance is their growing use of conservation easements.

A conservation easement is an agreement between a landowner and a land trust or government agency to which the landowner permanently restricts development and use of his land. Conservation easements allow landowners to protect their land while continuing to own and use it, and to sell it or pass it along to their children.

Of critical importance to some landowners is the fact that easements lower land's market price and the eventual estate taxes on it. An easement may make the difference between children needing to sell land to pay the taxes or being able to keep it as it is.

The ILC is a volunteer, non-profit organization always needing new members and new ideas. It continues to seek gifts of conservation easements, Bullen said. Anyone interested in joining may contact Bullen or Tom Stone, ILC president. Both are listed in the phone directory.

Types of Land Protected

Percentages of land trusts reporting that these types of land are protection priorities.

"People are forming land trusts like ILC because they want to safeguard the open spaces that make their communities and neighborhoods liveable," said Jean Hocker, Land Trust Alliance president.

"They refuse to let short-sightedness cheat them out of their heritage, and that of their children. And they are not waiting for someone else to take action; they're doing it themselves. Land trusts give people a choice. And they're choosing for conservation."

Government agencies and the business world have recognized the potential of this type of conservation.

Hail to the Chiefs

Letter to the Editor:

On November 2, 1994, the Clarkston Chiefs had their sports banquet closing out the 1994 season. As in any event that is housing hundreds of parents, siblings and guests, some of the speakers were hard to hear in the outer perimeters of the huge Springfield Oaks Activity Building. This small inconvenience did not seem to dampen the enthusiasm of the football players and cheerleaders who had come to celebrate the end of another long and successful season.

As a parent of one of the varsity players that was ending his football days as a Chief, we were especially proud and thankful for this occasion. It seemed like just yesterday that Nick went to his first week of training. It was affectionately called "hell week" by those who knew best. Anyone that survived those first few weeks was given a uniform and became a Clarkston Chief.

I am sharing this nostalgic memory with the community here to let you know that this 100% volunteer organization does, and can, enhance every family that has young kids that enjoy sports. Aside from the large group of boys that turn out to participate in football, we have one of the largest cheerleading and pom-pom groups around. It is to my total amazement how this organization has not only grown and maintained a caring and supportive atmosphere for all the kids that come day in and day out to practice, but acts as a surrogate family to so many of us, including parents and siblings.

When Nick joined the Chiefs, it took us awhile to "join" too. We had our son, Grant, die just a couple of years before. We were still walking around in half a daze and were not really ready to jump into the whirlwind of activities these parents and coaches put together through the season. Nick threw 150% of his body and spirit into each practice and game. We knew this group of parents and coaches in charge were doing the same.

It has been a total pleasure to have been around this kind of commitment... and friendship that these Clarkston residents share with each other. These group of leaders have not only my family's gratitude and respect, but also the respect of the surrounding communities. The efforts of the players, cheerleaders, coaches and parents are something in which the entire community can take great pride in!

Thank you to all that have been involved in the past and present. To the new families entering the program, I hope your experiences will be as fortunate as ours. My husband and I would like to say thank you, Chiefs!

Sincerely,

Mike & Michelle Upchurch

Genealogy intriguing, and never-ending

To the Editor:

I am including this with my subscription, as I am not quite sure which department to address this letter to to give hope to anyone starting out in genealogy with little or no information.

All I knew for sure when I started on my genealogical hunt was that my grandparents names were Zina Kendall and Maggie Ramsey. That they might have been born in Pennsylvania. I did know for sure that my father was born in Warren, Ohio, Trumbull Co. There was some vague information that I did get from my father before his death in 1977.

I wrote hundreds of letters and sent in a number of queries. There was no luck there. My Kendalls seemed to be very elusive as well as an isolated clan, just as the Ramseys that I am connected with are.

When I was a very young girl, I can vaguely remember visiting Pennsylvania. So last April I took a journey to the Keystone state and not only did I get through the brick wall that I had run up against with the Kendalls but found the Maynards that I had been looking for.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE...
ADVERTISE WHERE IT PAYS!
625-3370

Some of the mysteries of my Dad's information are beginning to unfold. Now I find that I am not only looking in Pennsylvania and Ohio but also Minnesota, California, and Iowa. Also the surname of Fish.

I found that genealogy is not only very intriguing but never-ending.

Sincerely,

E. Diane (Kendall) Garten
Clarkston

City to put water issue before residents

erty owner of a $120,000 house about $430 a year for 20 years and approximately an additional $1,500 one-charge fee to hook up.

Councilman Steve Secatch said Tuesday that residents could expect to pay, on top of the $1,500, additional fees for running the line from the main to the house ($5 per foot) and an average of $100 for plumber services.

To do the basic installation of water mains and hydrants, Tressel suggested that borrowing six to seven mills over a 20-year period might be the best choice.

"If you can sell your bonds in the 6-percent range, you're better off because of extended interest," Tressel said.

Tressel's comments inspired some lengthy discussion of how to provide information to residents and whether they might support a bond.

"I don't think with 7 percent you'll get people to pay it," Councilman Steve Secatch said and suggested "a citizens' group to push it."

Some council members suggested information be sent to residents with their sewer bills, but that was dropped when Councilman Doug Roeser finally broke through the ambling discussion.

"Shouldn't we have a public hearing first? We've got a lot of solid information now," he said.

Councilwoman Karen Sanderson agreed.

"In all fairness to people, I think we should have a public hearing so all the correct information gets out," she said.

After concern was expressed from some council members who felt too many residents might be out of town during the winter, it was nevertheless suggested that the city hold two public hearings, followed by a special election during the first three months of the new year.

Tressel thought that was a good idea and would give engineers enough time to assess the topography and draw up blueprints so, if city water is implemented, "we can be actively working from the first of June to the first of July."

Councilman Steve Arkwright made a motion to hold two public hearings on Jan. 23 and Feb. 27, with a special election set for March 7. Council passed it 7-0.

When called Tuesday morning, Basinger said he wanted to be sure people understood that "no decision has been made.

"There are so many nebulous things right now," he said.

But he pointed out certain positive factors including "collateral benefits.

"It lowers the cost of house insurance because you have hydrants and it increases public safety and the quality of the water," he said.

And because Clarkston would hook up with Independence Township's water system Basinger added, "We might be able to lower access fees because we'd be providing water to other parts of the township," he said.

"We would loop the service from the north to the south and the east to the west sides of town," Secatch said Tuesday.

"But it's not our decision. We're just saying somewhere down the road we're going to need it," Basinger said.

Secatch said he agreed with Basinger.

"Let's just get water in the streets and let people tap in when they want to," he said.

In other council action:

- Council passed a motion 7-0 to take $900 from the city beatification fund to add to the $800 tree maintenance budget balance for the purpose of city tree-trimming. Councilman Doug Roeser said he had received an estimate of $1,700 to do the work.

● City clerk Jeanne Selander Miller reported that the city's system of voting had gone well during the state election Nov. 8. Selander Miller said the city saved about $440 by using paper ballots. The city spent $160 for 800 paper ballots and used about half of them. Computer ballots cost 75 cents per ballot, "so that would have been $600 for 800. It's a cheaper system and it won't break down," she said.

● Secatch brought up the condition of the asset settlement, which has not yet been signed by Independence Township Supervisor Dale Stuart. City attorney Tom Ryan will send a letter to the township board and Stuart requesting action or explanation.

● Councilman Steve Arkwright has received an estimate on the police car and feels the city may be able to sell it with bids starting from $750. Council will advertise the sale in several publications.

● City clerk Jeanne Selander Miller said the sod, slide and benches are still not installed in the Depot Park playground. "It is embarrassing to all the people who worked," she said. Steve Secatch said he would again approach DPW supervisor Bob Pursley and other DPW workers and ask that the work be completed by Nov. 26.

● The city's purchasing ordinance has been revised and returned to council from city attorney Tom Ryan. Council passed a motion 7-0 to accept the ordinance, which will take effect in 20 days. A procurement administrator will be appointed.

● A mileage allowance for city employees was discussed and tabled. Attorney Ryan advised that a model policy be set before before voting.

● Volunteers are needed for a study of a new treatment that may stimulate normal hair growth in most men who are balding.

As part of a nationwide study, board-certified dermatologists at the Centre for Dermatology and Plastic Surgery hope to reverse hair loss in men suffering from male pattern baldness, the most common cause of bald spots, receding hairlines and thinning hair in men.

The medication being tested is the first treatment for hair loss available in pill form.

Two plays key to Troy's 14-0 win

Journey ends for over-achievers

BY DARREL W. COLE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

There were no big plays left in the Clarkston football team as they lost 14-0 to Troy in the second round of the state playoffs Nov. 12.

After relying on an explosive offense in the past few games, the Wolves couldn't break away from a hard-hitting Troy defense in the long-awaited rematch.

"We changed some things up in the second half and went with more of a power game," said coach Kurt Richardson. "Jason (Graves) was real close a few times to breaking one but just couldn't get away."

Richardson said the team was disappointed by the loss because they expected to go farther, but said he's proud of them because of the character they showed throughout the season.

"They are a great group of kids and they played their hearts out. Nobody gave them a chance to do anything when the season started."

A senior-dominated team quickly led the way for a great Wolves season. Richardson said the seniors exemplified the type of athlete he hopes will continue to come out of the program.

For the eight-year coach, saying goodbye won't be easy.

"That's what hurts most, not so much that the season's over, but that your connection with them is gone. They are such an outstanding group, not only as athletes, but as people too. I think that is what's hardest," about the season being over.

In the Troy game, two crucial mistakes cost the Wolves, as they ended their season just as it began; with a loss to the Troy Colts (Clarkston lost the first game 14-6). A blocked punt was returned for a Troy touchdown in the second quarter and, in the fourth quarter, the Wolves were penalized for too many men on the field, just as Troy was about to punt the ball away on fourth down.

The last mistake, which came with seven minutes left in the fourth, allowed Troy to get the ball back for a first down on Clarkston's 26-yard line. Four plays later the Colts scored their second touchdown of the game.

With five minutes left, the Wolves didn't have enough time to score, and Troy's defense stayed tough.

The first big play of the game was made by Troy's special teams unit. On the second play of the second quarter, the Wolves were forced to punt from their own 33-yard line. Troy defenders came in hard to block the punt and got it.

The Colts ran back the loose football 10 yards and scored.

Clarkston's offense was limited by a tough Troy defense. Although they got 11 first downs, they never posed a scoring threat.

Senior tailback Jason Graves ran well once again but could not break the big play as he has in almost every game this season. With Troy defenders keying on him the entire game, he ended up with 95 yards on 26 carries. His longest run was 16 yards.

Senior quarterback Toby Evans rarely had time to pass and was constantly pressured. He ended up 5-of-22 passing for 36 yards, was sacked three times and forced to run out of the pocket on many other occasions.

Senior receiver Pat Mulligan caught three passes for 17 yards.

The defense, which was without senior noseguard Josh Preston because of a knee injury suffered in last week's win over Monroe, performed well for most of the game. Senior defensive backs Ryan Schapman, Dennis Wisser and Jeremy Fife continually made their presence felt with hard hits all over the field.

At 9-2 overall the Wolves earned their first playoff appearance since 1977, thanks in large part to a senior group of players that will not soon be forgotten.

Their leadership, determination and desire carried the rest of the team to nine straight wins after the opening loss to Troy. Richardson hopes those qualities rub off on next season's team.

"We'll have to bust our butts in the weight room. But the biggest thing we'll need is leadership. We'll lose so much that someone will have to step up," he said.

Toby Evans, senior QB, gets ready to hand off to sr. FB P.J. Vandermeer.

Victory in first round of districts

Naboychik's two free throws with :07 wins it

BY DARREL W. COLE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

The defense never rests.

Despite big losses to overpowering foes and a continuous lack of offense, the Clarkston girls basketball team always gives an effort.

Their hard work shows up with intense defensive efforts. That was never more evident than in the team's 36-32 first round district win over Lapeer West Nov. 14.

The win sets up a Nov. 16, 6 p.m. second round district game vs. Lapeer East (15-5 overall) at Romeo High School. If Clarkston wins that game they play for the district championship Nov. 18 at 6 p.m.

The Wolves, as they have throughout the season, played tough defense, especially in the final quarter. The difference this time was they won the game also.

The senior duo of centers Kerry Kelly and Sarah Antonazzo set the pace defensively by holding West's 6-foot-3 center, Emily Berman, to no points in the fourth quarter. She only scored 11 points, after scoring 29 points in a game last week.

"Those two may not show up in the stats every week but they really gave us an effort. Holding their big girl down was the key for us," said CHS coach Larry Mahrle, whose team is now 9-12 overall while West finishes at 12-9.

"We know districts are tighter and defense really stands out now, especially at crunch time. It all depends on defense and we can play defense."

But in addition to a strong defensive game, the Wolves also received two pressure free throws from sophomore point guard Sue Naboychik with seven seconds left, putting her team up by four points. Naboychik also hit a crucial three-point shot earlier in the fourth to keep West at bay.

Mahrle said Naboychik has done a great job since taking over the point guard duties for the injured Elissa Shires (out for the season with a broken bone in her hand). "She's just been playing a great floor game for us lately."

Naboychik and junior Crystal Lemke scored 10 points while junior Nickie Winn added nine points. Junior guard Leah Howard scored six points and also played strong defense.

The Wolves held a 19-13 first half lead and held off West in the third quarter. Clarkston outscored West 10-8 in the final quarter.

On Nov. 8 the Wolves beat Royal Oak Kimball 39-21, avenging a controversial early-season loss. Mahrle said defense was again the key, led by Antonazzo, Naboychik (six steals) and Howard.

Naboychik led the team with nine points while Lemke added seven.

Clarkston then tangled with state power Waterford Kettering where they lost big. But Mahrle said despite having to face powerful teams like Kettering and Rochester Adams, his players never give up on themselves.

"They realize that against some teams we are just outmaned," he said. "But they still go in there with the idea they will work hard. This win tonight (against West) was an example of that attitude."

All-OAA soccer, team leaders

BY DARREL W. COLE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Senior Ryan Schilling and junior Derrick Spires were named to the 18-member All Oakland Activities Association Division I soccer team.

Clarkston varsity coach Dan Fitzgerald, whose team finished the season at 5-12-2, said both players had outstanding seasons.

Schilling, a midfielder, started on the varsity as a junior last season. "He's a hard-working player who always gives it his all," said the coach.

Spires, a defender, is the team's most experienced player. As a freshman he split time on the JV and varsity squads, then started as a sophomore. "He's the most skillful player on our team," Fitzgerald ald said.

Team leaders in total points, goals scored and assists are as follows:

- 1) Spires, 18 points on 6 goals, 12 assists.
- 2) J.R. Kirk, sr., 16 points on 11 goals, 5 assists.
- 3) Schilling, 12 points on 2 goals, 10 assists.
- 4) Ben Gabriel, jr., 10 points on 4 goals, 6 assists.
- 5) Brian McGeough, freshman, 5 points on 3 goals, 2 assists.
- 6) Matt Wenger, sr., 4 points on 3 goals, 1 assist.
- 7) Phillip Ratliff, jr., 4 points on 2 goals, 2 assists.

Goalkeeper Shane Collier, a senior, had two shutouts on the season and a 2.16 goals-against average.

Freshmen runners set records

Seniors Matt Warner and Leah Scharl were named most valuable runners for the boys and girls cross-country teams, respectively.

Warner was behind junior Brian Ginn in most races, but his leadership and example were his most important contributions to the team, according to coach Mike Taylor.

Scharl recently finished 5th in the Class A state meet, setting a senior time record in the process, and the second best in Clarkston history.

But in addition to the senior leadership, several freshmen also made their marks this cross-country season.

At the girls freshman/sophomore meet held recently at Lakeland High School, Clarkston took second out of four teams.

Three freshmen girls excelled this season, helping the team to a 6-0 record. Megan Plante, Elizabeth Cook and Emily Hogan all ran well enough to get their times among the top 10 in freshmen history at CHS.

Plante's time of 21:12 at the Cavalier Classic (Sept. 2) was good enough for 4th place on the all-time freshman list. Cook has the 6th-best time among freshmen with a time of 21:52 at the OAA meet on Oct. 22. Hogan's time of 22:38 at the freshman/sophomore meet is good enough for 8th all time.

Sophomore Kristin Maine also put her name in the record books with a time of 21:31 at the OAA meet, good for 10th all time on the sophomore list.

Boys runner Jeff Hopcian, a freshman, ran the 3rd-fastest time in CHS freshman history with a 19:59 at the freshman/sophomore meet.

Girls basketball

The Clarkston JV girls basketball team lost its final two games of the season last week, to finish with a record of 10-10.

On Tuesday, the Wolves lost a close game to Royal Oak Kimball by the score of 35-33. They were led by Colleen Stumpf with 11 points, and Kathy Eby added nine points.

Then on Friday, the Wolves lost to Waterford Kettering in their final game, 40-35. Stephanie Vogler and Stumpf led the Wolves with eight points each.

(Thanks to Coach Charlie Shires for the scores each week throughout the season.)

Girls basketball

As I talked to Coach Ray for what was to be the last time, I knew I would miss these Friday morning chats. But still, I got the trash, and here it is.

Tuesday, the Lady Wolves felled the Royal Oak Kimball team 39-21 in a very well-played game. Their record went to 10-8. "The girls played real well," Coach Ray said.

Thursday, yet another heart-breaker loss to the first-place Kettering girls, 29-28, brought the girls' final record to 11-8.

"We just couldn't convert," Coach Ray said, referring to three missed free throws in the final minutes of the game.

It matters not now. The final whistle blew, the final buzzer sounded and the last basket swished. But the memory still lingers of Coach Ray and his freshman Lady Wolves.

A last hurrah

Cheerleaders give their last football hoorah at the Troy vs Clarkston game Nov. 12. Above right, senior tallback Jason Graves gets through a massive hole created by his steady offensive line in the 14-0 loss to Troy. Graves, with the help of good linemen and blocking backs, had a spectacular season as he gained over 1,500 in 11 games, to go with 23 touchdowns. He also kicked field goals and extra points.

Do you think the power shift in Washington will be good for your business?

SHEILA RITTER, CO-OWNER OF CLARKSTON AUTO WASH CO., CLARKSTON: "I think the business climate in Clarkston is good and growing. I don't think Clinton in office or Engler in office has made much of a difference. Growth in the township will allow our business to do well."

DOUG METZGER, CO-OWNER OF THE PRINT SHOP, CLARKSTON: "Yes. The main thing everyone is going to see is more free enterprise. Business is encouraged by this change. Now, with Republicans in control, there's going to be less taxes against business. That's why we're really positive about this change."

CAROLE TEZAK, SALES CLERK FOR WATERFORD HILL FLORIST & GREENHOUSE, WATERFORD: "No. I think Republicans are for big business, not small. I don't think anything will change. It didn't change the last time the Republicans were in control. We've got tariffs on flowers. As far as I'm concerned the Republicans have never helped us — Nixon and right on down."

MARC COOPER, PRESIDENT OF THE IMPRESSIVE TYPE, WATERFORD: "Yes. I think it's going to be good for business. I think Republicans have done a lot for small business. Engler, with both the House and Senate, should be able more now. He's lowered the taxes for small business already. With economic improvement we've seen a lot of growth in our business."

This week's question was asked of business owners at the Clarkston Chamber of Commerce Expo

Putting kids first is what these programs are all about

In every county in this country, there is a pecking order of responsibility as to what should be done to preserve the future of our children, to protect. The first line of defense is the parents; then the schools.

But in the final analysis, when things slip through the cracks, when promises are not kept, when love is not given, it is the probate courts of this country that must come to the rescue as the final place of help for troubled kids and dysfunctional families.

Here in Oakland County, the Oakland County Probate Court has a tradition of investing heavily in volunteers to expand the manpower to get the job done. Every piece of research of any substance today cries out for a substantial, huge expansion of the pool of caring adults who might serve as mentors and role models to kids in trouble.

The Oakland County Probate Court mobilizes volunteer manpower through a number of programs. The most visible and extensive is its Oakland County Youth Assistance Program which has citizen-action, volunteer task forces at work in all 26 school districts in the county.

The activities of these volunteers include organizing parent-education workshops, raising funds for summer camp scholarships, helping send kids to summer camp, providing new skill-building scholarships to improve self-esteem, sponsoring teen recreation centers, and putting into place a special Big Brother/Big Sister mentoring program called PLUS (People Listening, Understanding and Sharing). Also affiliated with Youth Assistance is the Volunteer Case Aide Program, which matches kids, who are wards of the court, with caring adults who serve as friends and role models.

Another important aspect to the court's use of volunteer manpower is its CASA Program (Court Appointed Special Advocates) which visit homes, take testimony, and assure that the guardianships of minors and adults are diligently monitored for the safety of all concerned. A guardianship review consists of visiting the residence of the young ward, interviewing the ward and the guardian, and submitting a written report to the Court with the findings of the review person and a recommendation on the need to continue the guardianship.

The most recent venture of the Oakland County Probate Court, which promises great returns for all citizens, is the newly organized Probate Court Citizens Advisory Committee chaired by Dr. James O'Neill and Renee Machler. The efforts of the Citizens Advisory Committee are directed in areas of public information and advocacy, juvenile affairs, generation of resources for special needs, and special attention to the needs of senior citizens, mental health problems and guardianships.

Altogether, the court can boast of close to 1,200 active volunteers occupying many positions and carrying out many tasks for the good of all citizens of Oakland County.

To become a volunteer, call 858-0041.

CLARKSTON

CITY OF THE VILLAGE OF CLARKSTON
375 DEPOT ROAD
CLARKSTON, MI 48346
CITY COUNCIL MEETING MINUTES
OCTOBER 24, 1994

The meeting was called to order at 7:35 p.m. by Mayor Catallo, followed by the Pledge of Allegiance.

Roll: Present: Arkwright, Basinger, Catallo, Roeser, Sanderson, Secatch.

Moved by Arkwright, supported by Secatch, "That the minutes of the meeting on October 10, 1994 be accepted as submitted." Motion carried.

Moved by Sanderson, supported by Secatch, "That the agenda be approved as prepared with the following additions: Appointment to the Historic District Commission, Purchasing Ordinance, and Halloween Hours." Motion carried.

Secatch indicated that he has requested a bid for building a wheelchair ramp to the gazebo. He indicated that this was a potential project for the CDBG funds.

Sanderson indicated that there may be a need for a light near the bridge on the south side of Depot Park as the area is very dark. Pappas will check into the cost.

An engineer from Hubbell, Roth and Clark presented a revised estimate of the proposed community water system. The estimate was for complete water services to the downtown business and water service to the residential property line. The estimate was for $2,550,000. Basinger indicated that he would prepare a spread sheet giving a couple different scenarios to determine what the millage rate would need to be levied to fund the project and what the individual homeowners could expect to pay annually. The engineers indicated there may be potential funding from the Farm Home Administration (FHA). They will look into this and report back to the Council.

The owner of Rudy's Market is having his employees pick up trash that accumulates on Mill Street. There seemed to be consensus among the Council that this is helping. The owner of Rudy's Market indicated that he was having plans drawn up for a fenced area to contain trash cans on Mill Street which would not interfere with the parking. Secatch and Arkwright indicated they would like to see the plans at the next meeting.

Roeser presented the new tree policy for the planting of Memorial trees. The policy also includes a map which identifies what types of trees can be planted and where.

The Council has still not received the contracts from Independence Township regarding the division of assets. Pappas indicated that he has had to file for an extension for this year's audit because the books cannot be closed without the asset division. Tom Ryan will be instructed to contact the Township to determine the status of the contracts.

There will be a dinner meeting at the Vocational School on November 2, 1994. The City Council, the Clarkston Community School Board, the Board of Trustees from Independence Township and Springfield Township will attend.

There was discussion on the disposition of the 1990 police vehicle. This will be readdressed at the next Council Meeting. Mayor Catallo will try to determine the value of the vehicle based on the Blue Book.

The parking problem on Depot Road was discussed. The engineer from TIA will be invited to the next Council Meeting to provide clarification and some recommendations regarding parking throughout the Village.

Moved by Arkwright, supported by Secatch, "That DPW remark the parking on Depot Road and eliminate the first two parking places on both sides of the road as soon as is possible." Yeas-6, Nays-2, Roeser, Sanderson. Motion carried.

Chief Devore will inform the local businesses of the reasons for the parking changes.

Sanderson and Tom Goldner, both of E. Church, indicated that they have counted the school buses which travel down Church Street, which is approximately 150 buses each week. These buses are not picking up children in the Village. The children in the Village who attend the public schools walk to school. It was proposed that an alternate bus route be established, such as Middle Lake Road or to take Waldon Road to M-15. Pappas will send a letter to the Superintendent identifying the problem and requesting an alternate route.

Moved by Schultz, supported by Sanderson, "That Don Wayne be appointed to the Historic District Commission." Motion carried.

The purchasing ordinance was reviewed. The following revisions were discussed: The City Manager and/or the Mayor will be the procurement administrator, department heads may make purchases up to $100 and a receipt is necessary for reimbursement, purchases from $100-500 require prior approval of the procurement administrator, purchases from $500-1,500 require prior council approval and may or may not be bid, purchases over $1,500 require three bids and prior council approval. The purchasing ordinance will be returned to Tom Ryan for revision.

Moved by Sanderson, supported by Schultz, "Trick or Treat in the Village will take place from 6-7 p.m. on Monday, October 31, 1994, Halloween Night." Motion carried.

Resolved by Roeser, supported by Basinger, "That the Council go into closed session to discuss employment contracts." Roll: Yeas-7, Nays-0. Resolution passed.

The Council went into closed session at 9:35 p.m. Moved by Roeser, supported by Sanderson, "That the Council go back into open session." Motion carried.

The Council went back into open session at 10:15 p.m. Moved by Roeser, supported by Sanderson, "That the meeting be adjourned." Motion carried.

The meeting was adjourned at 10:18 p.m.

The not-so-secret garden

Middle-schoolers build living classroom

BY EILEEN OXLEY
Clarkston News Staff Writer

"If I have a spade," (Mary) whispered, "I can make the earth nice and soft and dig up weeds. If I have seeds and can make flowers grow the garden won't be dead at all — it will come alive."

from "The Secret Garden," Francis Hodgson Burnett

With hands, hoes and hearts, students and staff from Sashabaw Middle School are literally digging in to transform a neglected courtyard into a place of beauty and purpose.

The dream began when school secretary Ellen Whitehead, who heads the school's environmental club, Students for a Better World, noticed an overgrown area to the back of the school's cafeteria and thought it would be an ideal project for her club kids.

"Teachers and kids kept saying, 'We would love to be able to use this,'" Whitehead said.

With the help of Margie Russell, who teaches autistic children, the two began brainstorming ideas for the planned "living" classroom.

There were endless possibilities.

Art students could use the area for an outdoor studio. Language students would find the peaceful setting conducive to reading. Science students might start a compost pile and study how matter decomposes and returns to the earth.

The list grew longer and longer. But before their dream could become a reality, the two staffers knew a difficult task lay ahead.

"I wish you could have seen it before we cleaned it up. It was an overgrown mess," Whitehead laughed.

"Everything was all weedy, overgrown and trashed," Russell added. "It was Mrs. Whitehead's idea to do this work bee. She got the environmental club all worked up."

The bee was held on Oct. 15 to begin the painstaking job of clearing and weeding the area which is approximately the size of an average classroom. Kids and parents of club members, LINK aides (general education students who volunteer their time to special ed. youngsters) and Russell's students spent the sunny afternoon pulling weeds, raking, digging and generally rearranging Mother Nature.

'It's going to be real cool. I can't wait to see the fountain.'

student Matt Smith

"It was so amazing. The kids have gotten so excited about fixing this place up," Russell said, beaming. The area was dubbed "The Cougar Pride Patch" by student Felicia Nelson who won the name contest at the school.

A raised garden bed was constructed that the school hopes to use for a year-round project. Vegetables will be faithfully tended by SCAMP (a summer camp program for special needs children) youngsters in the summer and harvested by middle-schoolers in the fall. Sunflowers planted across the wall will feed and encourage birds.

The large cement planters that have quietly stood for years will become "aesthetically pleasing" when they're transformed into a fountain and a pond stocked with water lilies, said Whitehead. She and Russell thought of adding goldfish but scratched the idea.

"The goldfish might get eaten. But hopefully we're creating an environment where birds and small animals come in," she said.

Industrial students will build benches where students can sit and study, relax or "come out of the cafeteria to get some fresh air," Whitehead said.

Another big project she hopes to implement is the compost heap. The location is perfect.

"We can dump the garbage from the cafeteria into the compost pile," Whitehead said.

Like nature itself, the garden will be ongoing and need continuous funds. Students plan to raise herbs and flowers for potpourri that they will make and sell to keep the Pride Patch going. Last year they sold hand-made environmental products on Earth Day and this Christmas season a Holiday Boutique is planned.

Grants are filtering in as well. The project has already received two from the Clarkston Foundation for landscaping needs and an outdoor kiln. And 250 "beautiful" spring flower bulbs, says Russell, have been donated by the National Garden Association.

Whitehead and Russell have applied for future grants from the NGA, the Detroit Edison Foundation and the State of Michigan where a teacher mini-grant is available for Russell and her special education students.

"We're talking about getting the (special ed.) kids involved in vocational things so they can become contributing members to society," Russell said.

"Through hands-on, assembly-type jobs like, be helping us put these products together (like the potpourri) so we can use the profits for the garden," Whitehead added.

They also expect donations to come from groups such as the PTA and student government.

The teachers hope to sow the seeds of learning and creativity — and harvest enthusiasm. Already, that seems to be working.

"It's going to be real cool," said Matt Smith, a LINK aide. "I can't wait to see the fountain."

Students plan Holiday Boutique

Sashabaw Middle School students will be making products from recycled materials they hope to sell for gift-giving during a "Holiday Boutique" Dec. 5-9 from 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Unique items from the students' line called "New Eden Products" feature holiday shoe planters filled with poinsettias or Christmas cacti, candy in recycled milk cartons, jewelry made from clay beads and photo buttons.

A "Mr. Potato Head" pin will be hidden inside a box of candy each day. From the five daily winners, a lucky winner will be drawn Friday and receive a real "Mr. Potato Head."

All profits go to help environmental causes including the Cougar Pride Patch. For more information call SMS at (810) 674-4169.

Clarkston Chamber puts on the ritz at annual expo

Spring Lake Country Club was filled to capacity Nov. 9 as over 700 people viewed the work of nearly 60 exhibitors at the eighth annual Clarkston Chamber of Commerce Business Expo.

With music to entertain them and lots of food, guests could chat with business owners and lots of food, guests could chat with business owners and lots of food, guests could chat with business owners and lots of food, offer and about how business is doing. It was definitely the place to see and be seen on a damp fall night.

Expo chairperson Carrol Cantor said the roadblock on Maybee Rd. didn't appear to keep anyone away.

"I think we had more this year than last year," she said of the turnout. "Last year was our first year at Spring Lake. Also this is the first year we've had free tickets and lots of promotion about the Expo. We worked very hard in promoting it. It definitely does pay."

Cantor said she was pleased with the way the evening went.

"The music creates a good atmosphere. I consider it an event. You're not going to sell a lot of things but you're going to meet a lot of people. We try to create a class atmosphere."

Cantor said the country club filled up a lot faster this year than last, which she credited to good word of mouth from last year. Indeed, the Expo appeared to be busiest in the first hour, when it was wall-to-wall people. Some guests walked around carrying roses and carnations that had been given away by exhibiting florists. Other free samples abounded, from cosmetics to coffee.

Cantor, who has chaired the Expo for the last two years, said she'll be back again next year.

NOTE: Each exhibitor at the Expo offered a free door prize to one lucky guest. The winner of The Clarkston News door prize, a free, full-page ad, was Dale Sheets, owner of Servicemaster, a commercial cleaning service located in Clarkston.
