Jurassic snow?

Kyle, Eddie and Jessica LaFoy and "Dino"

Kyle LaFoy and his son Eddie, 7, of Independence Township, knew just what to do with that first sprinkling of snow that fell New Year's Eve. The result was "Dino," a snow sculpture created the next day that resembles the Flintstones' pet dinosaur. "We tried a snow man last year, but that didn't turn out as well," Kyle said.

While mom Theresa was out shopping Kyle and Eddie spent over two hours creating Dino as little sis Jessica peered from the family's living room window. Kyle said the sculpture is reinforced by two-by-fours lodged within the dinosaur's tummy. He and his son used shovels, hands — and some of the next-door neighbor's snow. "We rolled lots of snowballs from there," Kyle said.

Fatal accident may have involved alcohol

One man is dead and a woman is in critical condition at Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital as a result of a car accident shortly before 11 p.m. Sunday on Maybee Road.

Rick Allen Fortin, 34, of Clarkston, was dead at the scene of the two-vehicle crash near Waterford Rd. According to the Oakland County Sheriff's Department, he was a passenger in a 1995 Chevy Blazer which was eastbound on Maybee when it crossed the center line and was struck broadside by a 1989 Chevy pick-up truck.

The driver of the Blazer, a 31-year-old Clarkston woman, was reported in critical condition Monday at POH. The OCSD would not release her name, but said alcohol may have been a factor in the crash, which is still under investigation.

The driver of the pick up, John Schoolfield, 42, of Waterford, was also injured. He was listed in stable condition Monday at POH. According to the Independence Township Fire Department, two people were trapped in vehicles and had to be extricated.

Deputy Thomas Poulin of the OCSD crash reconstruction unit said Monday he didn't yet know the result of blood alcohol tests on the female driver.

Fortin was employed as a test driver for Milford Proving Grounds and owned and operated Clover Lawn Care. He is survived by his parents, Ronald and Barbara; children Joshua, Wayne and Nick; siblings Terri and Todd and his wife Jody; grandfather Henry Fortin; and special friend Ann Linseman.

Funeral services will be Thursday at 10 a.m. at Lewis E. Wint & Son Trust 100 Funeral Home; visitation will continue today (Wednesday) from 3-5 and 7-9 p.m. Burial will be in Ottawa Park Cemetery.

Board passionate about new high school

But don't forget younger kids, one trustee says

BY ANNETTE KINGSBURY
Clarkston News Editor

There was only one item on the agenda Monday night for the Clarkston Board of Education. It looked pretty cut and dried—formally accepting a facilities study the board had already reviewed at an earlier meeting.

But the discussion became heated when one trustee mentioned that he hoped the board wouldn't forget the elementary students in its rush to build a new high school.

Trustee Kurt Karlstrom raised his concern that by the time elementary enrollment could next be addressed, those schools might well be overcrowded. The opening of Springfield Plains Elementary this year has alleviated the crunch, but projections show elementary enrollment will continue to grow for the next few years before leveling off.

The facilities committee's report, presented last month, suggests asking voters for a new high school first due to serious overcrowding at Clarkston High School now. Then, once that issue is approved, the committee recommends coming right back and asking for elementary improvements, including possibly another new school.

The board has scheduled a bond issue for the June ballot for the new high school and renovations to the old high school, which will replace Clarkston Middle School. According to figures presented Monday night, those two projects will total nearly $60,000,000, including over $5 million for renovations at the current high school.

Trustee Sheila Hughes was upset that discussion about the elementaries might sidetrack the high-school proposal.

"I think the urgency right now is to get this community to understand the need for this high school," she said. "This high school is four years past due."

Trustee Janet Thomas pointed out that since the current CHS is larger than will be needed for a middle school, some overcrowding at the lower grades may be alleviated by sending more students to the high school. Hughes pointed out that once a new high school is built, Clarkston Middle School will be vacant too.

"We have to have another building," Thomas said. "The high school is the easiest way to go because

The news in brief

New hours at City Hall

Until further notice, new office hours at Clarkston's City Hall will be from 1 to 3 p.m. daily. City Manager Art Pappas will be available during those hours at the office which is located at 375 Depot. Residents may also reach him by phone from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at either (810) 625-1559 or 625-3770. The new hours are temporary until Pappas can evaluate the vacant position left by former secretary Lillian Bauer who resigned Dec. 30. Pappas said he needs to decide whether he needs daily or part-time assistance. He plans to fully move to the office sometime this month and says he'll set some regular hours soon.

Part-time DPW worker hired

Bob Pursley, Clarkston Department of Public Works supervisor, announced that Clarkston resident Dave Stover has been hired as a new part-time DPW worker. Stover, who was hired Dec. 21, has experience in snowplowing and lawn service. Pursley said he may hire an additional worker from a list of six applications the department has received.

Library to open on Sundays

The Independence Township Library will begin Sunday hours Jan. 15.

The library will be open 1-5 p.m. Sundays beginning that date. The rest of the week hours remain the same: 1-9 p.m. Monday-Tuesday; 10 a.m.-6 p.m. Wednesday-Thursday; Friday 1-6 and Saturday 10-2.

Mistake on tax form

The Michigan Treasury Department has announced that it goofed on the new state income tax return.

On line six, where the Mi-1040EZ asks for adjusted gross income, it tells the preparer to go to line four on the federal 1040EZ. In fact, the number should be pulled from line 3 of the federal form.

The state form is used by single income-tax filers who claim no deductions against their income. All the instructions that accompany the form make the same mistake, according to Thomas Hoatlin, Revenue Commissioner.

"If the taxpayer uses line four from the federal return, they will be inserting the wrong information necessary to complete the Michigan tax form," Hoatlin said.

Corrections to affected returns will be made when returns are processed, Hoatlin said.

No parking on Depot disobeyed

Clarkston Department of Public Works Supervisor Bob Pursley said last Wednesday that the orange cones placed in the first two parking spots on the east and west sides of Depot off Main Street have been repeatedly removed. The cones were used to prohibit parking after the spaces were found to be in violation of state vehicle code. Clarkston's city council voted to remove the spots at a previous meeting. Pursley will put up wood barricades to thwart parking until he can re-mark Depot in the spring. He said he will talk to Clarkston police about ticketing those who try to park there.

Student lives 'ready-to-wear' life

You've seen the movie but for one Clarkston teen, fashion is a job

BY ANNETTE KINGSBURY
Clarkston News Editor

Darla Hernandez looks a lot like a lot of other girls at Clarkston High School.

With her long, dark hair, slim figure, blue jeans and rapid-fire speech, she could pass for your average American teen most of the time. But her life these days is anything but average.

Darla, 16 and a junior at CHS, commutes between Clarkston and New York City, where she is pursuing a modeling career. Last summer she spent the whole school break there, returning to Clarkston to jump into pom-pon squad camp, then returning to her solo apartment in NYC. She admits it sounds glamorous, but says in reality, it's a lot of hard work.

"I love the stage," she said. "The third word I said was 'actor.' It was Mom, Dad, and actor."

At the age of 10, Darla was named Little Miss Kids of America Pre-teen at a pageant in Saginaw. She loved being on stage, but "I knew I didn't want to do pageantry forever." Her mother, Linda, a former Miss South Carolina, began taking pictures of Darla around to local modeling agencies, and by the age of 11 Darla began modeling in print advertising for large companies like K-mart and Sears. She also did some runway modeling.

A year ago she went to New York City for the first time, "to scope out agencies and see what kind of response I got," she said. "I got a real good response."

The moment school got out in June, Darla returned to New York with her mother, got an apartment, and began the rounds of making auditions—"go-sees," she calls them. She was able to get enough work to cover expenses and then some, freelancing rather than tying herself to one agency.

After about three weeks, her mother returned to Michigan, leaving Darla to pay her own bills and make it to her own appointments on time. However, the building she lived in was women-only, many of them other models, some as young as 13, with meals provided.

"It was like a dorm; my mother felt comfortable leaving me there," Darla said. But it was still big-city living.

"It's a very busy life; it's a very fast-paced city," Darla said, clearly relishing the experience. During her time there, Darla modeled for big fashion buyers like Macy's and Bloomingdale's. She also did a charity benefit for actress Kathleen Turner, and filmed a commercial now being shown on MTV in some markets. She went back in November to model in a runway show for designer Etienne Aigner, where she was the youngest model, doing 11 shows a day.

"It was exhausting but I really learned and it was such a great experience," she said.

Rather than get a big head about her life, Darla seems to have kept her feet squarely on the ground. She knows it won't last forever. She knows she has no control over whether she gets picked at a particular audition. She knows completing her education is important too.

"It's a difficult process, maintaining a well-balanced life," she said. "I know modeling can fizzle out at any time. The most important thing to me is family, then grades, then my friends. It's real hard to balance."

Darla Hernandez

'I know modeling can fizzle out at any time.'

Darla Hernandez

Though Darla misses school sometimes, teachers load her up with homework and expect her to keep up. "What's good about all the teachers is they're not treating me any different from anybody else," she said. "It's a lot of catching up but I'm persistent." She maintains a 3.1 grade point average, and goes to church and does charity work with her family.

Darla said she plans to move to New York after graduation and enroll in a city college there part-time so she can continue modeling. She will study communications with an eye toward a career in television broadcasting. And she'd like to try her hand at acting.

"I like modeling enough to see where it goes," she said. "But I definitely want an education. (Modeling) is like a stepping stone. It definitely helps in other careers."

Even though she's met some famous people and counts supermodel Linda Evangelista as a role model, Darla said her friends and family keep her grounded.

"I think I've experienced a lot more than a lot of kids my age. I paid my phone bills, I did my laundry . . . I don't want to have to depend on anyone for anything."

She said she sees that fierce sense of independence in other models and gets her own from her mother, who she also counts as a role model.

"She has her own job, her own stability. She's instilled in me that you don't have to depend on anyone." But she's not the typical stage mom, Darla said.

"It's how bad I want it is how they're going to support me."

Dog attacks family's animals

Three sheep and a game hen were killed and two more sheep were expected to die from an attack by a dog Friday on Reese Rd.

Dan Maloney, who owned the animals, said his son David, 29, arrived home to find a gold-colored chow inside the family sheep pen eating a dead sheep which had apparently been killed near the fence. Another, larger dog was standing outside the fence, apparently unable to get in.

David entered the pen and was himself attacked by the dog, but fought it off with a stick, he said. The dogs escaped.

The investigation has been turned over to Oakland County Animal Control by the sheriff's department. An Animal Control spokesperson said Monday morning her department had just received the complaint and had not yet responded.

Dan Maloney said this isn't the first time he's had animals killed by dogs. He said about a half-dozen dogs run in the area, and last year he had 14 chickens and a lamb killed in two separate incidents. He said he'd never seen the chow before that was blamed in the latest incident. In one earlier incident, a dog scaled the fence to get inside.

The chow was wearing a license tag, according to Maloney, and animal control will be able to determine if any similar dogs are registered in the area. But proving which dog is responsible may be impossible.

The Maloneys raise the animals as a hobby. "The game hen—that was a beautiful bird," Dan Maloney said. "It was something to see . . ."

"There's nothing you can do to make it more secure unless I buy a guard dog."

Clerk protests overbilling by attorney

Says he exceeded his own estimate without permission

BY DARREL W. COLE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Independence Township normally does not pay more than the approved, estimated cost for consulting fees.

In most cases Independence Township consultants don't charge the township if their costs exceed the estimate they originally submit to the township board, according to township clerk Joan McCrary. But last month, specially-hired consultant Roger Timm of Dykema Gossett charged the township twice the amount he was approved to spend.

Timm's services are considered unique because he was hired to investigate the township's investments, which have decreased in value by over $4 million since 1990. He was directed to complete his investigation as soon as possible.

In August, the board approved his hiring with a ceiling of $5,000 to be paid. Timm came back with a bill of about $13,000, but at township officials' urging, reduced it to $10,000.

On Dec. 20 the board voted 6-1 to approve the payment of Timm's bill because the majority said it "had to be done." But McCrary voted against the payment because, she said, it was just too much and, compared to other township consultants, is not common practice.

"That's why I was so upset because we don't let others do this," said McCrary. "Normally it would come back to the board if it wasn't what was originally quoted and if the consultant really felt it was necessary. But they usually stick to the bid first proposed. In most cases the consultant eats the costs."

McCrary said she understands Timm's case was a special circumstance but she doesn't like the idea of any consultant charging twice the amount they originally estimate.

She said when a cost estimate is given the consultant has to follow the budgeted amount. "When we (the board) say the bond amount, for example, is $1.5 million, they can't say it's now $1.7. When we sued the city (of Clarkston) Fisher (township attorney Gerald) came back with a much higher cost than we expected but he took the losses because we just didn't couldn't afford it. Once a budget is set, it's set."

Township to charge for emergency services for drug, alcohol incidents

BY DARREL W. COLE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Drunk drivers involved in accidents, be prepared to whip out the cash.

In Independence Township anyone with an illegal blood alcohol content involved in an accident must now pay for any costs incurred by the township.

The township's emergency services will respond but the drunk driver involved in the accident will eventually have to pay for the costs of such a rescue.

Township supervisor Dale Stuart said this ordinance amendment will help recover the expensive costs of rescues that are caused by drunk drivers.

"This gives the authority to the judge to order recovery of costs during sentencing," said Stuart. "It allows us to have a more efficient way to deal with the costs caused by drunk drivers."

The township board of trustees was expected to adopt the 3-page ordinance amendment at its Jan. 10 meeting.

The person will be responsible for costs incurred for the use of police, fire fighting, emergency medical and rescue services. In order to be responsible for such costs, the driver must have a blood alcohol content of .07 or higher or be under the influence of controlled substances.

"Such person's operation of a motor vehicle which proximately creates or causes any incident or accident resulting in an emergency response," will be liable for costs, the ordinance states.

Stuart said the costs of such emergency responses are expensive. The average cost for the fire department on one emergency run is about $900.

The costs can also include salaries and wages of personnel responding to the incident, salaries and wages of township personnel engaged in the investigation or supervision, costs connected with the administration and provision of chemical tests of blood, breath or urine, and all costs related to the prosecution of the person causing the accident.

Heroes come in all sizes

In his family's eyes, boy, 8, saved his mother's life

BY EILEEN OXLEY
Clarkston News Staff Writer

J.R. Ostrand gave his mom the best Christmas present ever — he saved her life.

When Teri Ostrand began to feel dizzy the afternoon of December 18, the Andersonville Elementary third-grader said he was scared. Though Teri often has headaches coupled with kidney problems and other medical troubles, that day she seemed to be in unusual pain. She had trouble breathing and asked J.R. to open the door so she could get some air.

After she collapsed upon the couch in tears, she closed her eyes. J.R. called his father John, who was working at GM Truck and Bus in Pontiac.

"He called around 1:30 and said, 'Mom fell asleep on the couch and she's making a funny noise in her throat. I can't wake her up,'" John said, shaking his head. As he retells the tale, John clutches his trembling hands, remembering the awfulness of that moment.

"My boy's quick thinking at eight years old saved his mom's life."

John said after calling 911 he flew down I-75 "with flashers going and horn beeping." When he arrived a half hour later at the family home which is on a remote farm in Davisburg, paramedics were already there.

"They went out the door as I came in the driveway," he said.

Teri was conscious, but had her eyes closed, in pain.

When John arrived at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Pontiac, he found his wife being prepared for a CAT scan. A short time later the problem was found — a brain aneurysm that was close to exploding.

"A woman in the emergency room said it was a good thing somebody was at the house," John said.

Teri spent the next 11 days in the hospital and underwent two surgeries. During the first the aneurysm was clamped off and drained. The second operation, two days later, allowed doctors to further drain the aneurysm which was located on the left side of Teri's brain.

A JOB WELL DONE: John Ostrand shakes his son J.R.'s hand, remembering how he saved his mother's life a week before Christmas.

Teri had to spend Christmas Day in the hospital and family members brought her a present. But she actually celebrated it New Year's Day after she came home and family members John, J.R., daughter Devon, 16, and John's mom Dorothy were present.

Recovery is one step at a time, with Teri getting stronger every day. A physical therapist makes periodic trips out to the house to help Teri regain her speech and memory which have been diminished since the incident. She is most concerned about the lack of a full head of long blonde hair, some of which had to be removed in order to do the surgeries.

"I'm waiting for more hair," she said with a confused ... she might call people different names. She knows me, but she calls Devon 'J.R.' and all ... We want to get her back the way she was.

"But she's alive."

The family has been told that if Teri makes it through the first six weeks she will most likely regain all that she's lost.

Now, four weeks later, Dorothy says, "I think every day we see some improvement in her."

Everyone at the Ostrand home is pitching in to help. Dorothy, Devon and John perform many of the household duties, while J.R. says he brings his mom "drinks and stuff." He also carries on with his regular chores of feeding the chickens and dog, getting the mail and taking the trash out.

When you ask the quiet eight-year-old what he likes best about his mom, he says he remembers all the times she's baked birthday treats for school. He was scared when it all happened, but said he had no problem knowing what to do.

"I didn't know if she was going to stay alive," he said.

J.R. — short for John Ryan — says he enjoys reading and playing with Legos. He's already made up his mind to become an engineer when he grows up. Though he saved his mom's life, he's says he's told only a handful of friends.

"I told my teacher," he adds, modestly.

But John is quick to praise his son.

"I think Teri will be OK, thanks to the little guy here.

"He's a hero to us," he said with a smile.

'He's a hero to us.'

weak smile, after coming in to sit on the living room couch.

John looked at his wife affectionately. The couple have been married for 21 years.

"The doctors told us that was the best place to have (a brain aneurysm). It causes the least amount of damage," John said. "It's hard," he added. "She gets

A weekend cruise

People. They were everywhere and I wanted to leave even before we got to the showroom floor.

But for the second time in a week, some friends and I cruised through the massive amounts of people and cars at the North American International Auto Show at Detroit's Cobo Center. The show itself is a sight to see, but the crowds of people made this second visit a little more hectic.

The first time I visited was during the week's press days. Since they were specifically for the media, there were no lines or crowds to battle through. I felt like a kid let loose in a toy store because I sat behind the wheel of every convertible I could find (the free snacks weren't bad either).

I'm not much of a dreamer when it comes to cars, but cruising through the show with free rein can sure change that. And I'll admit the Cadillacs, Lamborghinis, Mercedes Benz and Jaguars held my imagination for a few hours.

But personally, I'm a practical car looker. Hot rods, concept cars and sporty little off-road fashion statements don't impress me. For one, I wouldn't want one. Secondly, I couldn't afford one, which is as good a reason as any to avoid them.

I'm a proud owner of a 1992 Saturn (three years and no problems) so my mission statement was clear: compare the similarly priced vehicles at the show.

For sure, most people at the auto show come to observe and sit in the cars they may never have a chance to otherwise. And that's fine. But others, including myself and two women in my group, were looking for practical and affordable cars.

And we weren't disappointed. Despite a lack of publicity, there are cars at the show priced from $9,000 to $13,000. Just right for a college student, someone just starting out in the working world, for a family's second vehicle or someone with a limited budget.

It's a perfect time for buyers to compare costs, comfort (provided you can cut in line, or in order to avoid confrontation, push your friends out of the way) and car styling in one place. And compare my group did, except the two men in our group who own manly trucks with four-wheel drive.

One car company that specializes in making cars affordable as well as reliable is Saturn, which in 1994 was one of the top ten selling cars/trucks in the U.S. But other car makers can also compete with Saturn as far as pricing is concerned. Dodge has the Neon, Chevy has the Geo and now Pontiac has the new, sure-to-be-hot Sunfire, not to mention Honda's fair-priced vehicles, including the Civic.

For the other two men in my group, trucks and "big vehicles" were the preferred objects of their affections. Any vehicle with an "a" in one of the last two letters — as in Toyota, Honda, Mazda or Nissan — didn't even get a second glance. But vehicles with names such as Blazer, Explorer, Hummer and F150 received many approving grunts.

Finally, after all this comparison viewing, we eventually managed to weave our way through the showroom to the exits, leaving the crowds and cars far behind. Favorite cars? We all decided on a few, but, just like the kid in the toy store, you want to take everything home.

Student wants to know about Clarkston

Dear Editor,

I am a fifth-grade student at Philip J. Reilly Elementary School. It is a tradition in fifth grade to write a state report. I chose Michigan as my state. I am interested in learning more about your state. I am writing to ask you to publish my letter in your local newspaper in hope that I might receive a response from your readers.

I am interested in learning all there is about Clarkston. I know I can learn a lot from books, but to hear it from the people is the best kind of learning. Any letters with stories, experiences, feelings, etc., would be very helpful.

By printing this letter I hope to receive information about Michigan and Clarkston to help complete my report. And, who knows, I might be lucky enough to make a few new friends.

Please send letters, information and anything else you feel will help to make my report a success.

Sincerely,

Of dead men and history

Maybe it's the old, musty smell. Maybe it's just my fascination with old things that have been put on a shelf.

But I just love rummaging through the morgue. And, having worked at a newspaper for the past decade, I've had my share of doing that.

The morgue I'm talking about, of course, is the one we have here at the office. No sulfursmells or body parts in a jar here; just old, bound copies of our newspapers. There is something about the sense of history, written down on yellowed pages that I love.

Oh sure, we have our newspapers on micro-film. (We have copies here, at the University of Michigan, Central Michigan University, the local library and at the State Archives.) But I don't much like going through the micro-film. There's nothing special about that.

For me there is something special about actually touching something that was current knowledge then, but now only a memory to some, and nothing to most.

Recently, I had the task of looking something up for a couple that was doing family research. They were from out of state (we get a lot of requests from people out of state doing genealogical stuff). Anyway, I ran across an interesting article on the front page of the April 2, 1909 Oxford Leader. The five-decked headline read:

LINCOLN GUARD
Civil War Veteran Passed Away.
One of Detail Who Guarded Lincoln's Body.

For a history buff like me this was like unearthing a valued treasure — a person from this area associated with the guy, who some call the greatest president this country has known, was astonishing. At least to me.

The guard was William Henry Brokenshaw, who died at his home in the village of Oxford, March 27, 1909, aged 68 years, 10 months and 10 days."

Brokenshaw left his parents' Groveland Township farm at the age of 18, and moved to Clarkston. There he learned the trade of shoe making, "which occupation he followed for seven years."

He married Caroline Bird on August 24, 1862. Four days before St. Patrick's Day, 1865 he enlisted in Company H, 24th Michigan Infantry.

"He had the honor of serving on the detail that guarded the body of Abraham Lincoln while it lay in state at Springfield, following the assassination of the Great Emancipator. He stood at the head of the casket from sunrise until sunset the day the body lay in state."

After the war he moved his family to Ortonville. He worked on a farm there, and then in the foundry business. In 1894 he moved to Oxford and purchased the Commercial House. This was a hotel. He sold the business in 1900 because of his and his wife's failing health.

That's the cold, short, to the point information on Brokenshaw. But there is something more. Something that adds a little color to his life. Something you find in death notices of yesteryear and not of today.

One of the interesting things about reading old, community newspapers is the writing style. Nowadays journalists are taught to (but, many times don't adhere to) write neutrally. Back then, whatever was on the writer's mind was put in print. Here's what the publisher/editor/reporter wrote of Brokenshaw:

"Deceased was a kind husband and indulgent father, entered into all his undertakings with enthusiasm, was honest and honorable in all his dealings and despite the pain which racked his body for years was genial with all."

Do you think the writer liked this guy? I'd say so, and I'd hate to see what he wrote about the person he didn't like.

The local history lesson is over for the week, folks. You can put your pencils down, there will be no test.

15 YEARS AGO (1980)

Though Independence Township's board decides Dec. 6 to dissolve the local police department and contract with the Oakland County Sheriff's Department, it votes to maintain the local 16-member reserve at last night's township meeting. The reserves are praised for parade and school coverage and the Pine Knob Music Theatre traffic control contract paid for by Pine Knob. Trustee William Vandermark says the cost of maintaining the reserve programs is minor.

Conrad Bruce, Title IX co-ordinator and administrative assistant for personnel services, says sex discrimination in Clarkston schools is diminishing. Title IX, which details federal anti-sex discrimination guidelines, was introduced in 1972 to fight bias and stereotyping of both boys and girls. Clarkston schools assistant superintendent Mel Vaara says the one change to yet take place is the implementation of co-educational gym classes.

25 YEARS AGO (1970)

Because five Republicans file for three vacancies on Clarkston's village council, there will be a primary election Feb. 16. However, there is no contest for the offices of president, clerk, treasurer and assessor. Those who respectively fill those posts are Donald Cooper, Art Pappas, Mary Ann Pappas and Ralph Thayer.

Building in Independence Township dipped lower during the month of December, says the Township Building Department. Only 12 permits are issued with December building valued $51,000 less than in November when 19 permits were issued.

50 YEARS AGO (1945)

Community girls are reminded to "get your man" for the Sadie Hawkins dance tonight at the Clarkston school. Walt LaPlant's orchestra will provide music and the dance is open to everyone in the community.

The first selection of books for the new school library is made by the elementary library board at the home of Mrs. Leslie Shanks Monday night. By the time the new books are delivered the room should be finished.

The Andrews Sisters and Leo Carillo star in "Moonlight and Cactus" at the Drayton Theatre and "Dead Men's Eyes" with Lon Chaney and Jean Parker is playing at the Holly.

60 YEARS AGO (1935)

At the annual meeting of Clarkston State Bank Tuesday, it is reported that the bank had a good year in 1934. Deposits increased $71,778.90, bond investments by $67,876.61 and ordinary loans were increased by $2,338.35.

Waterbury's Home Market lists Saturday specials: fresh ground beef, two pounds for 25 cents; lean short ribs, a pound for 10 cents; and Vegetole shortening, two pounds for a quarter.

Playing at the Holly Theatre the month of January are Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy in "Babes in Toyland," Francis Lederer, Joan Bennett, Mary Boland and Charlie Ruggles in "The Pursuit of Happiness," Claudette Colbert and Warren William in "Cleopatra" and Joan Crawford and Clark Gable in "Forsaking All Others."

Ridiculous warrant justifies grumpiness

On March 22 last year, Ken and Penny Reed bought a new car, trading in a 1984 Buick Century registered in Penny's name. In November, a bench warrant was issued for the arrest of Penny Reed for not paying two tickets written against the Buick seven months after the Reeds no longer owned it.

Ironically, the tickets -- totaling $130 in fines -- were for parking the car with a 'For Sale' sign in the window in Sterling Heights, which has an ordinance against such entrepreneurship.

Obviously, some sort of paper mistake had been made. It probably involved the dealer's report to the Secretary of State that the Buick title was transferred to a new owner. The Reeds had clearly done nothing illegal, and a simple phone call, or at least a letter, would easily get the law off their back, right?

Of course not. Or I wouldn't be writing this column about how soon the public should start screaming about getting jerked around by public employees. I would have screamed sooner than Ken Reed did.

Reed milks cows for a living, in Owosso. The bench warrant came from District Court 41A in Sterling Heights. Reed phoned the court and explained the situation. He was told to appear in court with proof he'd traded the Buick, and a judge would quickly dismiss the warrant.

Right then is when I would have started screaming. It's a 160-mile round trip between Owosso and Sterling Heights. Why couldn't a court employee simply phone the Secretary of State and the car dealership to determine the car's ownership? That's what I did, and it took only a few minutes.

But Ken Reed isn't an old grump like me. He appeared in court at 1 p.m. Nov. 15 as ordered and had to wait two hours before Judge Thomas McDonnell called his case. According to Reed, the judge would only accept his plea -- not guilty. McDonnell refused to consider Reed's documented explanation and ordered him to pay 10 percent of a $650 security bond and return for trial at a later date.

"The judge said that court employee shouldn't have told me I could settle the case on one trip by proving we didn't own the car," Reed said. "I didn't have $65 cash and I had an awful time persuading them to take my check."

"I can't believe the way I was treated. I'll never again go to court without a lawyer, no matter how innocent I am," Reed said.

I talked with 41A District Court employee Shirley Wagner, not the same employee who gave Reed the instructions subsequently quashed by Judge McDonnell. But Wagner said she would have given Reed the same instructions. She said she would ask the judge to call me, but he didn't.

A spokeswoman for Herron Auto Sales in Warren told me Herron sold Reed's old Buick to a Warren man on Oct. 1, reporting the title transfer to the Secretary of State the same day. But the Secretary of State insists the transfer wasn't reported until over a month later, on Nov. 4. Regulations require the report within 15 days of the sale. The anti-'For Sale' tickets were written Oct. 22 and 29.

Whatever, the foul-up was certainly not Ken Reed's fault.

With the help of an attorney for the Automobile Dealers Association of Michigan, Reed ultimately got his case dismissed.

"When I asked for my $65 back from the court, they said no, because it was needed to cover court costs," said Reed, who wasn't responsible for one cent in court costs.

Reed, finally getting appropriately grumpy, continued to demand his money. "They finally said it would be mailed to me in three to six weeks," Reed said last week.

Onward and Upward, but first you have to shift out of reverse.

Something's wrong with this picture

I've been putting off my gripe about traffic court way too long. Now it's time to speak up.

It's time to speak up for the average violator -- little folks like me who get an occasional speeding or parking ticket.

Some of us I think try to pull a fast one over police from time to time. We glance in the rear-view mirror, look back over our shoulders, check out both sides of the street and rev our motors through the "exit only" strip of the mini-mall parking lot.

Sometimes we're caught red-handed by the sudden appearance and sound of blue and red flashers and wailing behind us.

"Who me? Naw, he couldn't have seen me! Must be that guy in the Honda!"

Alas, that's what happened to me a few months ago. It was one of those days, you know, where you wake up with a headache and the day goes downhill from there.

My then 12-year-old son Tyler was sick -- HOW sick I'll never know -- but, he did miss the morning at school. Of course, he did have that all-important science test at 1 p.m. and I had to run -- I say RUN -- him to the middle school after spending two hours in the doctor's waiting room watching babies drool on Fisher Price toys and another 20 minutes at Perry's waiting for Amoxicillin.

I only had about 15 minutes to get him there so, yes, officer, I probably did speed just a little, fueled by caffeine, nerves and motherly love.

I still can't believe that cop pulled out of nowhere along Joslyn Road. I tried every ploy I could think of.

● "No, officer, I didn't know I was going (yeeek) 10 MILES OVER. I NEVER speed!"

● "Can't you give me a warning? I don't have any points on my driving record (which is true)."

● "If you go the limit everyone tailgates you or honks at you and that could cause an accident."

Then, the truth -- stretched a little and spoken with great emotion, imploring eyes and wringing hands.

● "My son was sick, I was just trying to get him to his science test. Oh, jeez! Look! It's 1:05! He's going to miss it [you blankety-blank]!"

Finally, begging and groveling.

● "Please, oh please. Just give me a warning. (Sometimes uttering this a second time works.) I PROMISE I'LL NEVER DO IT AGAIN!!"

Of course, nothing worked and the granite-faced police officer calmly wrote me a ticket, saying I could contest it.

"I WILL!" I snapped angrily, snatching it.

I did have my day in court at a formal hearing where I could "admit responsibility with explanation."

Translated that's "Guilty, but give me a break." First, I talked to the emotionless court-appointed attorney. Who could blame her attitude. She probably dealt with millions like me every day and woke up with headaches too. She said she'd try to "get me off" with probation which meant I'd have to pay the stiff $70 fine, but wouldn't get any points on my driving record if I stayed clean for a year.

Clean? I felt like I should be in a police line-up.

As I sat in the courtroom quaking in my heels, I noticed a guy quaking in his Reeboks. He managed a wan smile in my direction and said he, too, had a speeding violation he was contesting.

Well, what happened next is really the gist of this story.

Two people went before the judge on drunk-driving charges.

The first was a blonde with ratty hair who chomped gum all through the attorney's statements. The way the judge smiled -- compassionately -- made my jaw drop. She had to do some community service, that was all. She looked bored and continued chomping.

The second, a man, was even worse. It was his second drunk-driving charge and he had a woe-is-me

School superintendent Gary Haner

There are seven people in our community who deserve to be recognized. Recognized because they put themselves on the line every month to serve the community of Clarkston. Recognized for working tirelessly to improve and direct the education of our children. Recognized because January is School Board Recognition Month!

In their monthly meetings, Clarkston school board members set goals for learning, put policies in place to guide students and staff, oversee educational programs, approve budgets for school district needs, and make decisions that affect the quality of life in Clarkston.

These major responsibilities mean that board members must be informed and knowledgeable about the many issues surrounding education. From student achievement, test scores and discipline, to the school code, new state funding programs, and millage and bond issues -- school board members must keep themselves up-to-date on every aspect of overseeing schools.

Of course, our seven school board members wear many other hats. They are moms and dads, financial experts, husbands and wives, accountants, attorneys, managers and employees. They are ambassadors, lobbyists, legislators and advocates for children. They are communications links within our community. They serve on committees, make speeches, join community organizations, attend local, county and statewide school board meetings, and juggle busy schedules.

Meet your board members. And please remember to thank them for taking on a tremendous task.

Thomas L. Howard, president
Mr. Howard, an attorney, has served on the board for six years and has been president two times. His current term expires in 1996. Howard has four children, two of whom have graduated from Clarkston High School. He and his wife, Connie, have a bustling home in the country - complete with horses. Bill Craig, vice president

Mr. Craig brings a working knowledge of technology to the board with his experience as a general manager of education accounts at Ameritech. He and his wife, Marie, have two children in the Clarkston schools and both have given extraordinary volunteer hours to further educational quality. Craig was elected in 1993 for a four-year term.

Sheila J. Hughes, secretary

Mrs. Hughes is a Clarkston High School graduate and has been devoted to schools as a parent volunteer, on election committees, and re-elected to the board in 1994 for a second term. She and her husband, Jim, have two sons.

William D. McGregor, treasurer

Mr. McGregor is the associate controller at Henry Ford Health System and was elected to the board in 1993 for a four-year term. He and his wife, Linda, have three sons in Clarkston schools and have been active volunteer parents.

Barry D. Bomier, trustee

Mr. Bomier is a regional director at EDS specializing in public relations. As a parent volunteer, he has spent many hours on school issues, from election work to PTA issues. He was elected in 1994 to fill a two-year vacancy. He and his wife, Gae, have two daughters in Clarkston schools.

Kurt G. Karlstrom, trustee

Mr. Karlstrom was elected in 1991. He brings his experience as a purchasing manager for Anderson-Cook to the board of education. He and his wife, Carol, have three children in the Clarkston schools.

Janet R. Thomas, trustee

Mrs. Thomas will celebrate 20 years of service to Clarkston in 1995! The longest-serving board member, she was elected in 1994 to the board of Oakland Intermediate Schools. Her contributions are numerous, not the least of which is the historical perspective she brings to board decision-making, as well as her financial expertise as an accountant. She and her husband have four children.

CHS life by Amber Gebrowsky

'In the soup' with Barry Manilow

"At the Copa, Copa Cabana, music and passion were always the fashion..."

It's not every day that one can hear Barry Manilow melodies drifting out from a classroom at CHS. Many students may not even know who Barry Manilow is, so it's even more unusual to hear them singing the words to the 1993 "Copa Cabana" remix right along with Barry. Then again, it's not every group of students that equal those found on the yearbook staff.

The staff serves as the eyes, ears and voice of CHS as it covers and records an entire school year. It's not an easy task, for gone are the days when high school was the center of your average adolescent's life. Jobs, families and community events must be represented on the pages of a book that once only covered classes, clubs and dances. Yearbooks must cover not just school, but a student's entire life.

Still, the staff accomplishes this with a sense of humor as well as responsibility. If an average Clarkstonite had entered room 111 on the night of the last yearbook deadline, a tribute to disco would not have been the only thing he would have found. Yes, a silver, multi-faceted Christmas tree ornament, strongly resembling a disco ball, was displayed on several occasions. However, this was only to relieve stress.

Looking past the disco inferno, intense work was in progress. pages in the sports and junior sections were being completed, along with lessons in organization and precision. Many see a yearbook as a collection of pictures and memories; it is much more than that. Quotes must be gathered, articles and captions must be written, and everything must be typed into the computer in the exact way it is to appear in the book.

Students complete layouts from top to bottom. Even if they have had no computer experience, they learn the details of word processing and desktop publishing. No matter how shy a student may be, he or she still has the responsibility of interviewing his or her peers.

In the case of the junior section, students are responsible for matching their classmates' individual pictures with their proper names, then typing the over 300 names in alphabetical order. As was the case on the last deadline night, one picture in the wrong place can mean that hundreds of others are out of order. This generally prompts savage, anxiety-ridden beasts to appear, that even the music and passion of the "Copa Cabana" can't soothe.

People poll

By Eileen Oxley

What do you like about winter?

ZACHARY CRANE, FOURTH GRADE: I like it because you can go sledding with your neighbors and go to parties at other people's houses at Christmas. Also, I like to drink hot chocolate.

EMILY BOOSE, FOURTH GRADE: Because everybody's happy and because you can play out in the snow with your friends. I like it because it's Christ's birthday at Christmas.

DANIEL STREBY, THIRD GRADE: I don't like it when I have to shovel my driveway and sidewalk. But, otherwise I like it because I get to sled and stuff.

KAITLYN SITAR, FIFTH GRADE: I like it because you can sled and ski and it means Christmas is close. And I like having snowball fights. I don't like walking home after school, so I like it when they close school.

All students are from Clarkston Elementary.

Winter registration begins at community ed

Registration is underway for the winter semester of Clarkston adult and community education, where classes begin January 19.

STRIVE alternative high school has limited openings for the third term, which begins Jan. 23, for both residents and nonresidents of the school district. Teens age 16-19 who are interested in completing their high-school careers through STRIVE must go through an interview and screening process. Call 674-0993 for an appointment.

Adult enrichment and leisure class registration continues through the semester. Two new offerings this semester are cross-country ski lessons and downhill ski for adult beginners.

Cross-country ski is a one-and-a-half hour class offered with Independence Oaks County Park that will introduce the sport. Learn about proper clothing and equipment, diagonal strides, techniques for getting up and more. A $15 fee includes ski rental ($10 for non-rentals). One session is offered on three different Saturdays, Jan. 21, 28 or Feb. 4. All begin at 9:30 a.m.

Downhill ski will feature Pine Knob ski instructors teaching basic fundamentals, including turning, chairlifts and speed control. Lift tickets ($12) and ski rental ($12) are paid to Pine Knob prior to lessons. Classes are for five weeks on Mondays beginning Jan. 23 from 7-8 p.m. (arrive about 6:30 to dress to ski). Fee is $30.

In other activities:

- Adult enrichment still has a few tickets for

Teens to see pope in Manila

Rich Warchuck and Angela Venegoni left Jan. 6 for Manila, the Philippines, to participate in World Youth Day 1995 with Pope John Paul II.

Rich and Angela are members of St. Daniel Catholic Community and made the pilgrimage with 40 other young people from the Archdiocese of Detroit.

"We were in Denver in 1993 and met people from all over the world," Rich said. "I still correspond with some of the kids I met in Denver. This time I'll know more what to expect and probably will get even more out of it."

Rich is a junior and Angela is a senior at Clarkston High School. They were looking forward to their first trip to a foreign country. Their itinerary includes a tour of Manila, a canoe ride to Pagasanjah Falls, a visit to a small volcano, discussions on ecology and fellowship with participants from all over the world.

The high point will be the closing liturgy with the pope on Sunday, Jan. 15.

At school

● Baker College has announced the President's and Dean's List for fall, 1994.

At the Flint campus, Denise Young of Clarkston made the President's List, meaning she earned all A's while taking at least 12 credit hours.

Making the Dean's List (3.5 or higher GPA) were Mary Lynn Burk, Cameron Hahn, Anita Klein, Heather Main, Kimberly Mallory, Deborah Matthews and Karen Short, all of Clarkston. Making the list from Davisburg were Candace Wargiela, Rachel Wargiela and Tammie Williams.

At the Auburn Hills campus, Michael Allen, Terri Banks, Victoria Rose, Clara Shampine and Denise Young of Clarkston and Dana Rose and Janet Ward of Davisburg made the President's List.

Paige Avallone, Holly Taylor and Debra Wurm of Clarkston and Michelle Gragg, Jennifer Moriatry and Denee Smith of Davisburg made the Dean's List.

White-Mikaelian speak vows in Detroit

Nicholas P. and Nancy E. (White) Mikaelian were married November 12, 1994 in a double-ring ceremony officiated by Father Michael J. Hollahan at St. Paul's of the Cross Monastery in Detroit.

A reception followed at Vladimir's in Farmington Hills and included 300 guests.

The bride was given away by her father, Ronald White. She wore a satin wedding dress that featured a sequin and pearl Alencon lace bodice and carried a bouquet of roses, orchids, greens and baby's breath.

She was attended by her sister, Susan E. White of Clarkston, as maid of honor. Bridesmaids included Michelle Hilliker of Kalkaska; Lisa Mikaelian, sister of the groom, of Canton; Amie Pifer of Mt. Pleasant; Lisa Kozierowski of Clarkston; Tracy Vorhoff of Detroit; Carrie Sue Marchesotti of Wayland; and Michelle Mikaelian, sister of the groom, of Canton. All wore hunter green gowns that featured velvet bodices and taffeta shirts and carried a bouquet of white roses, greens and baby's breath accented by green satin ribbon.

The groom's attendants included Kelly Sopo of Detroit as best man and Richard White, brother of the bride, of San Antonio, Texas; David Collins of Westland; Dean Carney of Westland; James Paul of Denver, Colorado; Ian Krause of Canton; Daniel Baker of Denver; and Scott Maguldi of Canton.

Gianni Marchesotti of Wayland and Dan Hilliker of Kalkaska served as ushers. Andrew Hilliker of Kalkaska was ring bearer and Cinda Sopo of Detroit attended as flower girl.

Nancy is a graduate of both Clarkston High School and Ferris State University. She is employed as a travel agent at Uniglobe Arboretum Travel in Farmington Hills and is the daughter of Ron and Judy White of Clarkston.

Nicholas is a graduate of both Plymouth Canton

Developers get tax credit for apartments

Federal program helps working families

BY DARREL W. COLE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

The people hoping to live in the under-construction Bridgewater Apartments are supposed to be receiving a break.

But to many a $467-a-month rent payment is not a break. Bridgewater, located near Maybee and Sashabaw roads, will not have federally subsidized tenants, although renters do have to meet certain qualifications to live there.

Michael Jacobson, vice president of C.E.D. Developers, said his company is the only financial beneficiary of the project. The program is under federal regulation and is called low-income housing tax credit.

In other words, by building the apartments under the federal guidelines, CED receives a federal tax credit and helps out low-income working people.

In order to qualify for the housing, prospective tenants must make between $20,000 and $35,000 a year. The unit rent prices are $467 for a one-bedroom, $559 for a two-bedroom and $647 for a three-bedroom, not including utilities.

Jacobson wants it made clear that none of the tenants will receive any government subsidy.

"The tenants are required to demonstrate the ability to pay rents. This is a program where some working people can rent new apartments that they couldn't afford to do otherwise."

Township planning consultant Richard Carlisle agrees. He said the 264-unit complex is a quality project and specifically set up to help out people who work, but struggle to make ends meet.

"It is a below-market rate for rental property but the product meets and exceeds all the township standards."

Jacobson said in order to qualify for the government tax credit his company first had to submit a project plan and receive government approval.

CED, based out of Orlando, Florida with offices in Livonia, has developed similar apartments in several states and in Shelby Township, Westland and Lansing.

City spends 10 grand to fight B & B

BY EILEEN OXLEY
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Clarkston City Attorney Tom Ryan initially thought the City of Clarkston spent between $3,000 and $5,000 fighting a bed-and-breakfast issue.

He was off by five grand.

Ryan told City Manager Art Pappas that the city has spent a total of $10,497.50 battling three lawsuits filed against the city by residents Buck and Joan Kopietz since 1991.

Several people who attended Clarkston's city council meeting Oct. 10 asked that Ryan report back the amount of taxpayers' money spent on the case since its birth.

The legal fees have been spent over a period of three years and "go way back to when they (the Kopietzes) first started this with the ZBA (zoning board of appeals)," Pappas said Friday.

The Kopietzes have spent approximately $25,000 fighting the case since their proposal to establish a bed and breakfast inn on N. Main Street was denied by the ZBA three years ago. The couple want the inn on the first floor of the former Goyette Funeral Home which they purchased in 1991.

The funeral home formerly functioned under a grandfather clause that allowed it to continue its commercial use in a residentially zoned neighborhood. When the Kopietzes purchased the property they applied for permission to do modifications and change to another non-conforming use in order to operate the bed and breakfast.

A favorable ruling from Oakland County Circuit Court Judge Hilda Gage on Sept. 26 overturned the ZBA's decision to deny remodeling of the proposed inn. Since then, the city has asked Judge Gage to reconsider her decision.

Both the Kopietzes and Ryan say they are still awaiting an answer from Gage. If she denies the city's request Ryan maintains the city will go to the Michigan Court of Appeals.

Both sides attribute the delay to slowdowns within the court system over the holidays.

"A lot of cases in Oakland County need to be heard," Ryan said.

Joan Kopietz said she feels the bottom line is people's fear of other homes on Main going commercial if the bed and breakfast is approved.

"They think that if (the ZBA) allows this, it will have a domino effect," she said.

After two days cooped up inside due to sub-zero windchills, Brett Kenerson, 9 (center) and his friends at Bailey Lake Elementary School were glad to be outside Friday in the new snow. Brett said he'd spent the previous two days' recesses playing games at his desk, and didn't mind the cold and wet--not one bit.

Charge dismissed in downtown shooting

BY EILEEN OXLEY
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Anthony Joseph Uhler, who was charged with felonious assault and reckless discharge of a firearm causing property damage Dec. 16, was freed from the first charge during a preliminary exam held Dec. 29 in front of Judge Gerald McNally at 52-2 District Court in Clarkston.

Uhler's attorney David Byrwa said the felony charge was dismissed "because all the elements of the crime were not met. The prosecution has got to prove a number of things."

Uhler, 24, allegedly fired a semi-automatic weapon six times within a second-floor apartment area where he lives above the Clarkston Cafe Dec. 10. The gun shots caused an estimated $50 worth of damage to walls. He was arrested by Clarkston police at 9 p.m. on an outstanding civil warrant and sent to Oakland County Jail where he posted bond.

No one was injured. The gun was turned in to Clarkston police by Uhler's wife two days later.

Uhler was arrested by the CPD Dec. 16 on a warrant issued by the Oakland County Prosecutor and arraigned before a District Court magistrate on both charges.

Oakland County assistant prosecuting attorney Susan Chrzanowski said Friday that the alleged victim of the assault, Jeffrey Fisher, a next-door neighbor of Uhler's, testified at the preliminary exam.

Fisher, whose son George Hutchinson is a boyhood friend of Uhler's, said the three men had been drinking Jack Daniels and playing cards since noon the day of the shooting in Fisher's apartment. Fisher said he remembered Uhler waving a gun around after an argument between the two men became heated, but recalled nothing after that.

Chrzanowski said that in giving his testimony, "(Fisher) looked at me and said, 'I am a heavy drinker. I have a severe drinking problem. I blacked out and I do not remember anything.'"

She added that although several people heard shots, including Hutchinson's girlfriend who was studying in an adjoining room, no one witnessed Uhler firing the gun. But Chrzanowski said property damage clearly indicated Uhler fired shots inside both his and Fisher's apartments.

"(Fisher's testimony) did not establish felonious assault because (Fisher) has no recollection of what happened in the event," Chrzanowski said. "It was more or less somebody getting drunk and more argumentative."

Uhler is scheduled for a pre-trial on the second charge, a misdemeanor, Jan. 20 at 8:30 a.m. in front of Judge McNally. The charge carries a maximum sentence of up to one year's imprisonment and/or a $500 fine.

board meetings are expected in January and February to meet with the architect and go over specific numbers.

Yet to be determined is whether the June bond issue will be one all-or-nothing question or several separate items. Parent Cheryl McGinnis, a member of the facilities committee, said she hoped the board wouldn't try to ask for too much the first time.

"I think it's essential you don't bog down your bond issue with 100 million kinds of dollars," she said. "I think we concern ourselves with the biggest issue, and pursue the high school as the facilities committee recommended."

Timetable discussed in search for police chief

BY EILEEN OXLEY
Clarkston News Staff Writer

A proposed chief of police search schedule for the City of Clarkston may make the hunt easier.

Councilman Steve Arkwright, council police liaison, drew up the schedule to aid council in its search for a new chief to replace Robert DeVore who resigned Dec. 3. Currently Sgt. Scott Dickey is the officer-in-charge.

Arkwright's schedule, which he presented at Monday night's council meeting, details a step-by-step plan which includes advertising, a resume deadline, setting up a special police interviewing committee and listing dates for final interviews and selection.

"The interviewing committee needs to set up guidelines — what we're looking for in a chief," Arkwright explained.

Arkwright says the city has already received four applications, but will begin advertising in various police-related publications and the Michigan Municipal League in order to gather a wider range of applicants.

Though Arkwright initially set Feb. 10 as a deadline for resumes, several council members thought that wasn't enough time.

"That seems a little short," Councilwoman Karen Sanderson said.

Arkwright agreed. "I think maybe you're right... I think from the time (advertising) hits the press, a month is sufficient," he said.

There was also some discussion about whether Clarkston needs a full- or part-time chief. DeVore worked full time.

"I'm not sure if we want a full-time or part-time chief," Arkwright said.

City Manager Art Pappas said Tuesday that hiring a chief part- or full-time could depend on the age, experience and needs of applicants.

"If it was a retired person, maybe he'd just want to put in administrative stuff... If it was a young guy, maybe he'd want health benefits," Pappas said. "It would depend on individual needs."

He added that medical benefits might be more important to a younger versus retired person. The city's salary for a police chief is $30,000 with medical benefits from Health Alliance Plan.

City attorney Tom Ryan, who was present at the meeting, suggested that council check with the Michigan Municipal League for advice on a more detailed job description.

"They know our municipality size and what we should be looking for," he said.

Ryan also suggested that council push the application date back to March 1.

Mayor Sharron Catallo thought it was necessary to establish some criteria to select a new chief. She also gave Arkwright a go-ahead for getting ads in by the next council meeting scheduled for Jan. 23.

A Feb. 10 deadline for resumes was dismissed as too early since the city hasn't yet advertised for a police chief.

In other council action:

● Council passed a motion 6-0 to spend $150 more on top of an original estimate of $1,700 to cut down a dangerous tree limb on S. Holcomb that is in the right-of-way. Councilman Steve Secatch was absent. Councilman Doug Roeser said the other alternative would be to have Oakland County remove the tree, but that they would cut it completely down to the ground. "We want to trim it and keep it," he said. The additional funds will come from city beautification.

● Roeser has written guidelines for gas mileage for city employees and will make a copy to send to Pappas.

● A gypsy moth resolution where Oakland County will share expenses with the city in spraying to eradicate destructive larva is being considered. Sanderson is working with volunteers to take inventory on the amount of infestation through counting and setting traps. The cost of spraying is $30 an acre, the investment needed from the city. Ryan said he is not sure council has the budgeted funds. Sanderson will have her findings in by the next meeting to see whether the city has enough larva and is eligible for the county's help. The deadline to notify the county is Feb. 1.

● An ongoing problem with a blue spruce that is taking over a light on Middle Lake Road was discussed. Department of Public Works Supervisor Bob Pursley has not moved the light two poles down as planned because a resident has complained. Council decided to have Secatch talk to the resident.

● Council passed a motion 6-0 to adopt a Road Commission for Oakland County resolution to support the state in passing a gas tax.

● Bids on the old police car have ranged from $300 to over $1,200, said Pappas. Council passed a motion to sell the car to the top bidder, 6-0. Pappas will also specify a time period in which to pay.

● The city water hearings scheduled for Jan. 23 and Feb. 27 were discussed. Council will put notices in the paper to make residents aware of the hearings. City clerk Jeanne Selander Miller also suggested that ballot language be approved before a vote on city water is taken March 7. Pappas said he will call a representative from the engineering firm of Hubbell, Roth and Clark and ask for ballot language.

● Signage for the new Olde Apothecary Antiques mall was found to be in violation of Clarkston's zoning ordinance. The ordinance states that any new sign must be approved with a building permit. Pappas said the sign is in violation because the new owners did not apply for a variance and must go before the zoning board of appeals to do so.

Pappas said he sent a registered letter to one of the owners notifying him that the sign could not be interior-lit and its dimensions could be no more than 12 square feet. After he informed the owner, he noticed the sign was lit anyway. The old Hallman's Apothecary sign was interior-lit because it was grandfathered in before the current ordinance was adopted. Pappas will call the owner and ask him to remove the interior lighting or go before the ZBA.

Non-injury accident on Michigamme.

TUESDAY, JANUARY 3, a Clarkston woman forgot her purse in a shopping cart outside a Dixie Hwy. store. Two hours later when she remembered it, it was gone.

A drivers license left in a car parked at Clarkston High School over the weekend was stolen.

Malicious destruction of a lawn on Pineridge.

A resident reported a stolen mobile phone, but he wasn't sure exactly when or where it was stolen.

Possible stalking on Pine Knob Trail.

A Davisburg woman brought what she thought might be drugs to the substation for analysis.

A door was kicked in but nothing appeared missing at a construction site on Windy Knoll Ct.

The window of a 1989 Jeep parked on Parview was smashed and a stereo and two speakers were stolen.

A Clarkston woman was treated and released at St. Joseph's Hospital after being injured in an auto accident on M-15. The driver of the car which rear-ended her car, an Oxford man, was ticketed.

Non-injury accidents were reported on Middle Lake Rd. (two), Elk Run, Stickney and Dark Lake Rd.

A Clarkston man was treated and released at St. Joe's after the car she was driving on Sashabaw Rd. was hit by a driver who slid during a turn. That driver was ticketed for excessive speed.

A Green Haven resident reported suspicious phone calls that led her to believe she was the victim of a credit card scam. She told police she had two separate calls asking for personal information. When she tried to verify one call she was told the company had not called her.

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 4, an 18-year-old Waterford man was ticketed for being a minor in possession at a gas station on Sashabaw Rd. after a deputy saw him place two beer cans on the ground outside the car in which he was a passenger. The deputy said there was also an open beer in the car along with a 12-pack. The youth said he paid someone $5 to buy the beer for him.

Larceny of a man's jacket worth $480 from a home on Oak Park.

Non-injury accidents were reported on Dixie Hwy. (five) and on Hurd.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 5, three tires and rims were stolen from a new Corvette in a Dixie Hwy. parking lot. The car was damaged in the process.

Police were called to a possible drunk driver on Sashabaw Rd. and ended up arresting a Clarkston man, 47, on three outstanding warrants. He was also ticketed for having open intoxicants in the car, driving with a suspended license, and parking in a handicapped spot, where police found him. A bottle of vodka was found in his pocket when he was arrested.

A 1989 Jeep parked on Guyette had a window broken but nothing appeared taken.

The windshield and a window were smashed on a Dodge Van parked in a Dixie Hwy. lot. The van was ransacked but the thief could only come up with two bags of returnable bottles, which were stolen.

Non-injury accidents were reported on M-15 (two), on Sashabaw and on Royal St. George.

FRIDAY, JANUARY 6, non-injury accidents were reported on Sashabaw (two) and on Clarkston Rd.

Police were called to assist firefighters responding to an automatic fire alarm at a dentist's office on Sashabaw Rd. When they got into the building, they found water leaking through the ceiling.

Dog complaint on Hadley.

Larceny of a license plate from a car parked in a Dixie Hwy. parking lot.

A 22-year-old Clarkston woman was taken for $950 when she agreed to cash a check for a man she hardly knew at her credit union. The check turned out to be forged.

SATURDAY, JANUARY 7, slippery conditions were blamed for three one-car auto accidents, reported on Clarkston Rd., on Sashabaw and on Dixie. No one was injured. Other non-injury accidents were reported on White Lake and on Sashabaw.

Harassment on Andersonville Rd.

SUNDAY, JANUARY 8, threatening phone call on Stevens.

A Michigamme resident reported a car crossed her yard and knocked over a pine tree. Three other trees had been damaged in earlier accidents. The sheriff's department recommended she contact the Road Commission for Oakland County about the road hazard.

A deputy was called to destroy a deer with a broken leg in a Shappie yard.

The Oakland County Sheriff's Independence substation has responded to 261 calls this year through Jan. 8.

Students win grant

The Sashabaw Middle School environmental club, "Students for a Better World," has won a grant in the national "Kids Growing up with Dutch Bulbs" program.

SMS was one of 160 recipients out of over 900 applicants. The grant provides 252 assorted Dutch flower bulbs, direct from the Netherlands, for planting in the Cougar Pride Patch at the school.

Students in the club have been working with autistic students in a number of projects, including turning the school's courtyard into a garden/classroom, dubbed the Cougar Pride Patch. Staffers Ellen Whitehead and Margie Russell are the students' advisors.

The grant was sponsored by the Mailorder Association of Nurseries of Maryland and the International Flower Bulb Center and the Dutch Bulb Exporters, both of the Netherlands.

Rash of thefts at ski resort

The ski corral, a free, secured area for dropping off skis and snowboards at Pine Knob, is available nights and weekends.

But for some reason, perhaps a line they didn't feel like waiting in, a number of people chose not to use the corral Saturday. And a number of them got their equipment stolen.

The Oakland County Sheriff's Independence substation took reports from six people Saturday between the hours of 6:30 and 11:40 p.m. about equipment stolen from various unsecured areas around the ski lodge. Another report was taken regarding a break-in of a vehicle in the Pine Knob parking lot, where a window was broken and skis taken.

Lorna Morton, a Pine Knob employee, said the corral is free and open to skiers weekends and evenings. Skiers are given a numbered pin and must return the pin in order to retrieve equipment.

"A lot of times there is a line," she said when asked why anyone would choose not to use the corral. "I make my children wait in line."

Two youngsters thought they would outsmart potential thieves by separating their skis. Each left one ski in one place and its twin in another. But thieves took one of each of their skis anyway, perhaps mistaking them for a pair.

And it didn't seem to matter how long the skis were left unattended. One person reported leaving skis unguarded for only two minutes. The OCSD is investigating.

Necessity frees us from the embarrassment of choice.

Years from now, the '95 yearbook, entitled "In the Soup," will be something cherished by hundreds of the then CHS alumni. The friendships, memories and wisdom contained within its pages will serve as a concrete reminder of one of the best times of many people's lives.

Even with these great demands, the yearbook is completed in approximately seven months, while the average coffee table book may take five to 10 years to complete. The same coffee table book may be published by a middle aged, college-degree-holding adult. "In the Soup" is produced by high school students who, at most, have three years of experience. And, how many other books attempt to compare a high school to a bowl of soup? Not many.

All things considered, if the yearbook staff, once dubbed the Dawg Lb. by former staff member Bob Brazier, and now quite possibly Clarkston's own chapter of the Barry Manilow fan club, needs a little '70s revival for inspiration, so be it.

basset hound expression on his face. I'm sure he was sorry, but he could have killed someone.

And what I never would have guessed happened right in front of me. The judge not only lessened the man's sentence, but wore that same understanding expression on his face. And then, I assume, he tried to "connect."

"Where do you work? GM? For 13 years? Well, I guess I can understand why you might need a few drinks after work. Ha-ha."

I just couldn't believe it. When the judge delivered his decision in my case, which was what the attorney asked for, he couldn't have been any grimmer had he uttered, "The prisoner will hang by a rope until she is dead dead dead."

Excuse me, but something's wrong with this picture. The courts will walk, not the extra mile, but many miles with someone who's truly committed a crime. But for us, the average offenders, we get the book thrown at us.

Sometimes you wonder, maybe crime does pay. Scary thought, isn't it?

Young skiers hope to start another streak

In season's first week, teams split two meets

BY DARREL W. COLE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Karla Russell is one of a kind among her boys and girls ski teammates at Clarkston High.

Russell is the only senior among eight girls and eight boys on the ski team.

But regardless of the teams' youth movement, big things are expected from both squads.

Last week both teams, despite little practice time and a long holiday vacation, performed well in two meets at Pine Knob. On Jan. 3, the boys finished second in a five-team giant slalom tournament while the girls took third place. On Jan. 5 the boys and girls teams beat Detroit Country Day 10-29 and 15-22, respectively.

Although neither meet was indicative of the Wolves potential, first-year coach Thom Halsey was pleased with the early season performances. And even with such a young team, Halsey knows the talent of his skiers runs deep.

"It's a real new team with a new coach," said Halsey, who is a professional ski instructor and runs a ski clothing business out of his home. "We lost 10 of our 15 varsity skiers from last season so we know we don't have much experience. Actually we only have four juniors (one on the boys team) and the rest are sophomores."

Because both teams are talented and deep Halsey is carrying eight skiers on each squad, although only six can compete during meets.

Beth Eby prepares to smash this set from Nickie Winn (#15).

"We'll rotate them in each meet because they are all real consistent skiers."

BOYS SQUAD

Last season the boys team was undefeated at 7-0 in the Southeast Michigan Ski Association and Halsey expects the same to happen this season, led by junior Paul Rumph and sophomore Jason Callahan, a transfer from Milford High School.

Rumph, who took third at the giant slalom tournament and second at the Country Day meet, has shown he is a leader on a young team. "He has really taken over the leadership role for us," Halsey said.

Callahan, who became eligible for the Country Day meet, went out and took first place. He could blossom into the team's strongest skier. "Jason could be tough as the season gets going," said Halsey.

Other skiers that performed well at last week's meets include B.J. Rumph (6th at tournament), Chris Evans (8th at tourney) and Dave Brown (3rd overall at Country Day meet).

GIRLS TEAM

After finishing last season at 3-4, Halsey expects better results from the girls this season.

He said the first two meets showed the depth of his skiers, and that could be a big help down the stretch.

His three top skiers all performed well in both meets last week. Heather Unsworth was seventh at the tournament and took first against Country Day. Jennifer Trepte finished eight in the tourney and second against Country Day, and Sara Hoemke was ninth in the tourney and third against Country Day.

NEW COACH, NEW BEGINNING

While the athletes will be experiencing growing pains, so will Halsey, who was an assistant last season to head coach Judy Roeser, who coached about seven years. Halsey's immediate goals are to get Clarkston skiers back into the state finals.

"It's been a strong program for a long time and we had been in the state finals for 11 straight years up until last season. Clarkston is a ski area so we have kids who are already involved in the sport," Halsey said.

While Halsey admits winning is the ultimate goal, he said he can be patient with his first team because they have time to improve. "We knew we had some talent coming up but it will still be a growing season. We know we have them for a few years anyway."

"My first goal is to develop the athletes right and, secondly, win, but I also tell the kids things are much more fun when you win."

Halsey may be in his first year as varsity head coach, but he's no stranger to skiing or to the athletes he now coaches. As a certified instructor of the United

Netters stomp Brandon in final set

It started out as a challenge for the Clarkston Varsity Volleyball team, but ended up as an easy win.

The Wolves struggled early but overpowered Brandon in two sets 15-13, 15-2 on Jan. 5 at Clarkston. In the first match, the Wolves struggled early on and were down 6-0. After a Brandon timeout, Clarkston's players woke up and showed they were not about to quit.

CHS came back to score seven straight points on several well-executed plays. Brandon then took a 9-11 lead just before a Clarkston timeout. Once again the break awakened the Wolves and they battled back to a 13-13 tie.

From there, senior tri-captain Beth Eby, junior Nickie Winn and junior Stephanie Giroux overpowered the shorter Brandon squad.

In the second set, the Wolves' talent and teamwork began to show through as they took leads of 7-0 and 10-2. From there Clarkston substituted liberally and still managed to hold Brandon to two points.

Clarkston received solid performances in both sets from Winn, senior tri-captain Carey Haven, Giroux, junior Lisa Herron and Eby.

Coach Gordie Richardson could not be reached for comment on the week's other games.

On a down note, senior tri-captain Megan Jones, described as the team's emotional leader by Richardson, is lost for the season following surgery on her calf to remove a non-threatening growth. Jones has had pain in the leg for some time and it was only recently that doctors discovered the growth (the size of a grapefruit) in her calf. It was removed several weeks ago.

Mike DeGain took one look at the 16 teams in the Jackson tournament and decided he'd add four senior wrestlers to his "B" squad.

In the meantime, the other half of the team was sent to the South Lyon Invitational.

On that Jan. 7 day, the Clarkston wrestling team took first at South Lyon and a very respectable fifth at Jackson.

"We did pretty well at the Jackson tournament. The competition was tougher than we expected but in both meets we had some kids come through for us when we needed it the most," said DeGain, Clarkston's wrestling coach.

In a quad meet Jan. 4 the Wolves beat Rochester Adams 66-6 and Royal Oak Kimball 54-15.

But DeGain was most impressed with the team's performance at both tournaments during the weekend. He said the high finishes are a real boost, especially to some wrestlers who got a chance to show their talents.

Sophomore Dave Ziemann performed exceptionally well and won his first varsity tournament at South Lyon (See Wrestlers of the Week).

Also performing well at South Lyon were sophomore Ryan Mick, first in 112-pound weight class (See Wrestlers of the Week), Scott LaBrie and Chad Auten, third place, and Gordie Golec, fourth place.

Senior co-captain Armin Michelsen once again dominated the 172-pound weight class and finished first.

Clarkston took three first-place finishes at Jackson, led by strong first-place performances from senior co-captain Corey Grant, Jesse Laycock and P.J. Vandermeer.

All three had to beat tough opponents on the way to their wins. Grant went through five 1994 state qualifiers and beat an undefeated wrestler in the last seven seconds to come from behind and win his finals match.

Laycock also beat an undefeated wrestler in his finals match, while Vandermeer beat four state qualifiers on his way to a title.

Other top finishers at Jackson include senior Brett Rebb, third place, and Mike Underwood and Joe Roy, who took sixth place.

The bad news out of both tournaments was the fact Auten broke a bone in his hand and junior Joe DeGain didn't compete because of two ankles he sprained two weeks ago. Coach DeGain said his son might sit out this week also but the extent of Auten's broken hand is unknown.

"He could be back but it depends on what kind of cast he needs," coach DeGain said, who noted Auten is having a great year, which included a win at the county championships. "This is the type of thing the kids will have to overcome together. Joe Roy was a regional qualifier last year and could step in. We'll just have to pull together."

The team's win at South Lyon may have been the most impressive because only one Clarkston senior competed in that meet, compared with four at Jackson.

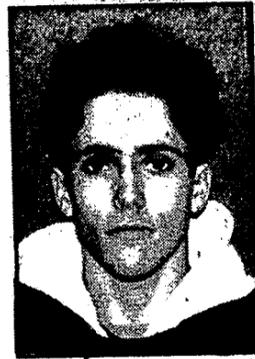

"It definitely gave us some confidence as a team because it was basically the underclassmen that came through," he said. "We have five real strong seniors that we rely on this season, but a win like that is even good for next season. I'm pleased the kids came through like they did."

The squad will try and carry that confidence into two more meets Jan. 14. The "A" team will head out to the Detroit Catholic Central Invitational to battle such state powers as Bedford, Livonia Stevenson and Fowlerville, while the "B" team will head out to a tournament at Lake Fenton.

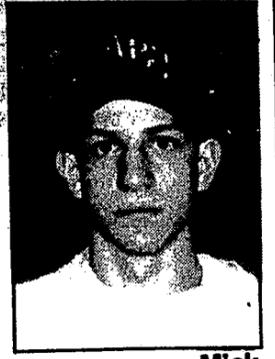

The Wolves also host a quad meet Jan. 11 at 5:30 p.m. against Troy and Pontiac Central.

So far in the early season DeGain is pleased with the team's effort. "Everyone is wrestling hard and their work ethic has always been there. We'll try to maintain that and then pick it up once the end-of-season tournaments begin."

Wrestlers of the Week

Ziemann

Mick

Sophomores Dave Ziemann and Ryan Mick are Clarkston's Wrestlers of the Week for coming through and leading their team to the South Lyon Invitational championship.

Ziemann won his first varsity tournament in exciting fashion. After trailing in his finals match, he got the win by scoring with only five seconds remaining. The win was pivotal for the team title.

"Dave is only in his second year of wrestling so he tends to make some minor mistakes. But he really comes after people and never lets up. He came up big for us at South Lyon," said coach Mike DeGain.

Mick also had an important first-place finish in the 112-pound class because he normally wrestles at 119. "He did the work necessary to get down to the weight for the team's sake," DeGain said.

"Ryan is a very consistent wrestler who has great stamina. He is strong and constant for the whole match."

Halsey takes over ski program

State Ski Association and instructor at Pine Knob and Mt. Holly, skiing is a way of life.

Halsey has coached many of his and other schools' athletes through the Thunderbolt Training Centers, a training program for young ski racers, which are run at Mt. Holly and Pine Knob.

The last time Clarkston won a state title was in 1981. Qualifying for the state finals and winning it all is something Halsey wants to accomplish.

"The program has a long tradition of strong ski teams and I know I have to make sure I step up to the challenge."

One of the challenges facing Clarkston and most high school ski teams will not come on the slopes. The high costs associated with the sport makes fundraising a must.

"Ski racing is different than any other high school sport because you are away from school and because of the expenses involved. You have to provide your own equipment and buy a season pass (to Pine Knob)."

Halsey said his team has been trying to raise

Wolves undefeated at 6-0 and 1-0 in OAA

BY DARREL W. COLE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

It was a great week for Clarkston basketball. But it could have been better, according to coach Dan Fife.

The Wolves beat Southfield Lathrup 62-51 Jan. 3 and then defeated Rochester Adams 78-69 Jan. 6 to improve to 6-0 overall. Fife was happy with the wins but also said his team still needs to play better defense.

He pointed out that the Wolves' second half performance against Adams was not what he expects.

The Wolves were outscored 16-11 in the third quarter and 24-22 in the fourth. Clarkston was able to keep the lead thanks to a first half in which they outscored Adams 45-19.

"Sometimes what I see during the game doesn't look as good when I look at the game film after," said Fife. "We gave up too many easy baskets and our half-court defense wasn't as alert, didn't communicate well and didn't pressure the ball enough."

Fife said Adams matched up well with Clarkston's small, quick team and those similarities gave them some problems in the second half. "This was one of the few times we matched up well with a team height-wise," said Fife. "We have to play that kind of defense to win, but they (Adams) are a lot like us and we gave up too many easy baskets."

It was also a rare win for the Wolves, who hadn't beat Adams in the past two seasons.

Junior Tim Wasilk came up big for the Wolves by scoring 25 points, including five three-pointers. Wasilk hasn't been scoring as much as last season because of injuries and a more balanced Wolves scoring attack but he showed against Adams he is capable of 20-point nights any time.

Providing the spark once again for Clarkston was senior point guard Jeremy Fife who scored 19 points and dished out 14 assists. His brother Dane Fife chipped in with 15 points on 7-of-14 shooting while senior center Brad Agar scored 10 and senior Jason Graves five.

The win puts Clarkston at 1-0 in the Oakland Activities Association Division I.

Clarkston jumped out to an early 20-10 lead against Southfield Lathrup. That lead turned out to be enough as Lathrup kept it close and was outscored by only one point in the final three quarters.

"They were physically bigger and better than us but I think our kids had more discipline. They are as talented a team as we'll play all year and they will beat plenty of teams down the road," Fife said.

But, like the rest of Clarkston's schedule this season, there have been no easy foes.

Against Lathrup, Jeremy Fife once again led the way with 17 points, while brother Dane had 15 and Wasilk scored 14. Graves continued his solid season with 11 points.

While coach Fife is proud of his team's 6-0 record he knows this year's tough OAA Division I will test his team every week. "The whole idea of the new league was to put the best teams together and that's what has happened. This year you have to be concerned with all the teams we play."

The offensive output has been solid this season but coach Fife said some of the players may be looking too much to Jeremy Fife to make things happen. Because Jeremy is the team's floor leader other players sometimes don't look for their own offense.

Overall coach Fife has received solid contributions from the entire team, including senior Pat Mulligan who has "provided great defense off the bench."

Junior Ryan Schapman is still trying to fit in to the team's system after transferring from Imlay City before the school year began. As Schapman continues to adjust he will help the team more and more because he has plenty of talent, Fife said.

Another junior, center Jeff Mull, came up big against Adams with four points and crucial rebounds in relief of Agar. "It's hard to replace Brad in there because he has been so steady for us but we have to give Jeff some minutes and he's done a good job for us," Fife said.

Regardless of where the players fit in, coach Fife said they are understanding of their roles and fit in to the team concept. "Our kids all have roles on this team and they know them."

Her Troy Athens squad won state title

Clarkston teacher named top CC coach

BY DARREL W. COLE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Clarkston High School boasts the state's top high-school cross-country coach.

But the twist is she coaches for Troy Athens. Debbie Zonca, a teacher in the high school's math department at Clarkston, is also the boys and girls cross-country coach for Athens.

Debbie Zonca

In her recently completed sixth year as coach, Zonca led the girls squad to the state championship, the boys team to a 13th-place finish. She also earned the Michigan Interscholastic Track Coaches Association award as the Michigan Coach of the Year.

It's a strange position for Zonca, a former All-State runner in high school at Sterling Heights and track and cross-country runner at Western Michigan University. At Clarkston she is surrounded by a countless number of coaches who are also teachers. And because she coaches at a Class A school, the students also bring up her split allegiance.

It's all in fun but Zonca wants it made clear where her heart is.

"I'm definitely a Wolves fan, except when it comes to cross-country and track (which she also coaches). I always tell the kids that I'm more blue and gold (CHS colors) than red and gold (Athens colors)."

Zonca takes pride in how far the cross-country program has come at Athens in her six years there, but she is also perfectly happy teaching at Clarkston. "I've enjoyed my five years here very much. The teachers, the students and all the people ... it's like a second home for me."

Zonca lives in Sterling Heights and first taught for two years at Sashabaw Middle School before moving to the high school.

Her team's rise to the top isn't surprising considering the effort she puts into the program, and, most importantly, the athletes. Her success can be traced to a firm belief that the team must be like a family. If that's the case, then Zonca is the head of the household.

As a coach she knows it's important to continue getting freshmen into the program and communicating with each athlete.

Much like a college coach, she says she writes letters and phones eighth-grade students to let them know they are wanted on the high-school team when they become freshmen. She attends many junior-high and middle school meets so the athletes are familiar with their future coach.

During the season, Zonca will often write notes to each runner regarding their performance before and after a meet. During the off season, she expects them to "log" a certain number of miles and send updates in the mail to her every few weeks. She also has her girls and boys team captains try and meet with the team at least once every two weeks.

It takes a dedicated athlete to compete and succeed in cross-country. But Zonca said her teams are successful because they are not only dedicated to their sport but "just like a family."

"The hardest thing in cross country is getting the younger kids to come out because many fear the long distance," Zonca said. "When we have ninth-graders on the team we want to make it enjoyable for them."

But that doesn't mean the youngsters can slack off. Zonca said it's the team's upperclassmen that have to set the example of hard work, teamwork and dedication.

"I will teach anyone that wants to learn, but in the end the runner must be doing it for themselves and their teammates. They won't have a million fans and won't get a lot of press and it's a very difficult sport mentally and physically.

"When the season starts they are a team, but when it ends they are family."

With 38 athletes on the girls and boys team this past season, Zonca had her hands full. But she says winning brings more kids out.

Her team philosophy is to improve on weaknesses during the season, and peak in the final three weeks, which includes the division meet, regionals and the state finals.

In her first year coaching at Athens, the boys team won only one dual meet and the girls team barely had a complete team.

This past season the boys were second in the OAA Division I, were regional champions and are considered the most successful boys team in Athens history. Besides winning the state title, the girls team won every meet they were in except the West Bloomfield Invitational.

Teaching at Clarkston High, Zonca can see firsthand why Wolves teams are so successful in many sports.

"These coaches have built a lot of tradition here and there is an emphasis on sports," she says. "Success breeds success and the athletes all want to continue that each year. These coaches, for the most part, have stayed here and built the programs to where they want."

REAL ESTATE UPDATE

HANDY WORK VS RENT

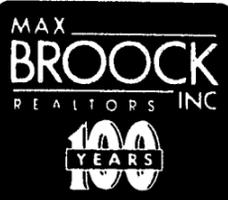

WORK PERFORMED by a tenant should be paid for by the job, not as a substitute for rental payment.

QUESTION: I rent out apartments in a building I own. One prospective tenant has offered to do carpentry work and repair work in place of rent. Is this a good idea?

ANSWER: My advice is to stay away from it. Rent is rent and repairs are repairs. Don't mix the two. Any work performed should be compensated on a fee-for-service basis. If you accept services in lieu of rent, you may be asking for problems and misunderstandings.

When you buy rental property for investment, rent out to tenants who can afford to pay the rent in real money. Any other type of arrangement is risky.

A great time to be in D.C.

Clarkston man describes mood as 'giddy'

The Clarkston (MI) News Wed., Jan. 11, 1995 7 B

These must be heady times indeed if you're a Republican in Washington, D.C.

A former Clarkston resident who was just appointed press secretary to Michigan's ranking Congressman, said the excitement is palpable and he's just happy to be a part of it.

"People are still just giddy; we're real excited and real happy," said David Woodruff, a 1989 graduate of Clarkston High School who now works for Rep. Fred Upton (R., St. Joseph).

Woodruff, the son of Nancy Woodruff of Clarkston, graduated in May, 1993 from Alma College with majors in political science and economics and a minor in Japanese. "I knew I didn't want to be a lawyer or a teacher," he said. He had worked on his college newspaper and radio station and had a hankering to get into politics.

He also had some college friends in Washington and after serving an internship with Rep. Pete Hoekstra, he got a job with Rep. Ernest Istook of Oklahoma doing constituent support work.

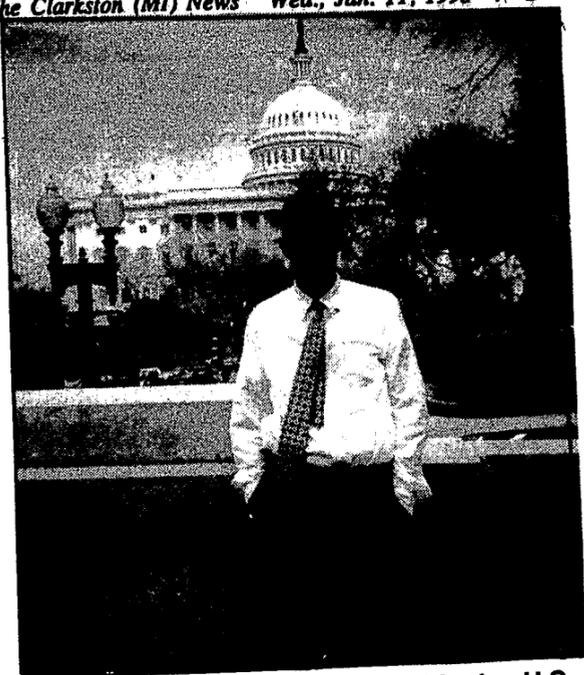

"That was my first real job on the Hill," Woodruff said. He was named press secretary to Upton last week. He's living on Capitol Hill just a short walk away from work. A mountain biker, he said he's seen President Clinton out jogging on more than one occasion.

Calling himself a lifelong Republican, Woodruff expressed a lot of enthusiasm for the current party leadership.

"Mr. (Newt) Gingrich has a lot of great ideas. We're real anxious to get to work on the Contract with America... I really want to see our agenda done."

Woodruff, 23, isn't shy about saying he hopes to be a politician himself one day, but won't make any predictions or say specifically what job he is aiming for. But he sounds like he feels he's part of the system.

"It's just real fun to work here and turn on CNN and see what you've done all day," he said. "I really want to see our agenda done."

Some adults love toys too

BY ANNETTE KINGSBURY
Clarkston News Editor

It was just by accident that Jim and Patsy Carlson first saw, and fell in love with, antique toys made by Schoenhut, a Philadelphia maker of painted, wooden, jointed toys.

What they were really looking for at the time was carousel horses. But as many a collector will verify, one passion leads to another.

"We've always liked wooden, painted toys," Jim Carlson, promoter of the annual Clarkston Toy Show (scheduled this year for Jan. 21) said. When the Clarkston residents first discovered Schoenhut, "We really wanted to investigate what it is, like you'd buy a house... We'd read as much as we could, study as much as we could."

That passion for antique toys is what led Carlson to take over presentation of the Clarkston Toy Show four years ago. The shows have been a Clarkston staple for the last 10 years, he said, held at first in the VFW hall. When Carlson took over, he moved them to the Knights of Columbus Hall on Maybee Road.

One visit to the Carlsons' house provides ample proof of their affection for antique toys. Every room is filled with rare and beautiful pieces. Books for research fill shelves. Several Siamese cats and a dog seem not to mind sharing space with a carousel horse and several antique rockers.

Patsy Carlson shows a visitor the original prices in a catalogue of Schoenhut toys. One tiny piece sold for 10 for $1 in the 1920s. "Now you'd pay $300-$500 for that, and gladly pay," she says. She and her husband are authors of a price guide on the company found inside a book entitled "Collecting Toys" by Richard O'Brien.

Over 40 dealers will appear at this year's Clarkston Toy Show, some specializing in transportation toys where demand has been strong for the past decade.

A tiny Schoenhut piece which sold for 10 for $1 in the 1920s now goes for $300-$500. Larger pieces are in the thousands.

Exhibitors catering to the automotive collector include David Hudson of Westland and Wade and Rosemary Bartenbaker of Waterford, who specialize in cast iron automotive and horse-drawn toys, along with early board games and dolls.

Ed and Orvil Thomas of Lansing will bring mechanical and still banks, as well as TV character toys from the early '60s. The latter are popular with baby boomers, who still remember the TV shows.

Also on display will be early tin toys and wind-up toys, early farm toys, pull toys, candy containers, dolls, doll furniture, model trains, cap guns, early GI Joe and Disney. Toys will mostly span 1890-1960, with some later toys also possible, based upon demand. Reference books and price guides will also be available.

Patsy Carlson holds a Schoenhut figure from the Teddy Roosevelt in Africa set made for about 2 1/2 years between 1909 and 1911.

"We try to make the majority of toys antique," Jim Carlson said. "We really work hard at policing so we don't have new toys... We've tried to carry the entire spectrum of what people will buy."

Collectors should find items in all price ranges, whether you're looking to spend $20 or $2,000.

"I think you'll find people at the less than $100 level, then others at less than $500, less than $2,000," Jim Carlson said. "The person who collects at the $5,000 level, he or she may not find as many pieces to buy."

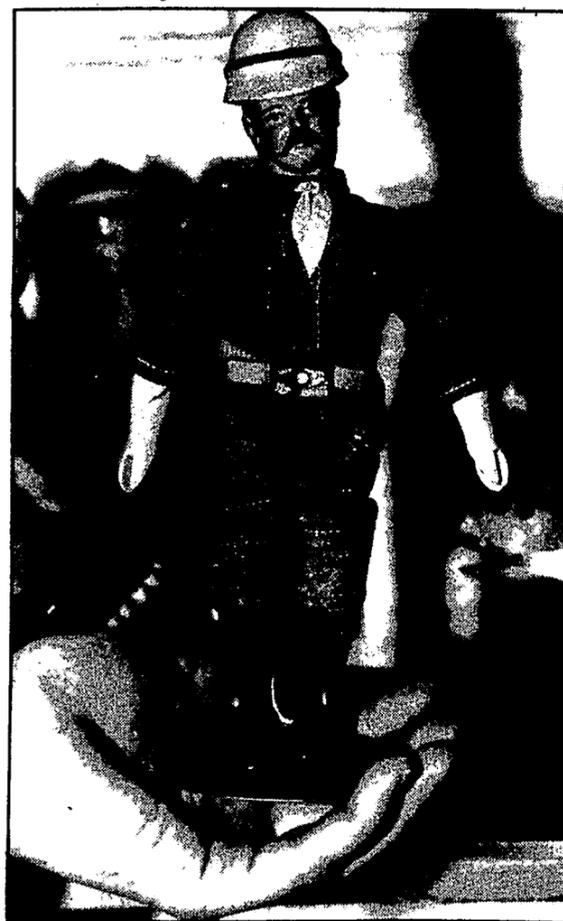

Collectible toys are hot with lovers of antiques and folk art right now, and Carlson said he believes that stems from an appreciation of the craftsmanship that goes into each piece, as well as some nostalgia. He suggests that collectors buy what they love and consider themselves lucky if it turns out to be valuable later on.

"You really have to have that gut liking of it and not treat it as an investment," he said. "I think it's absolute luck if it happens (to appreciate in value). You always have to buy things from the heart and worry about it as an investment secondarily."

In addition to perhaps finding that special toy, Carlson said a lot of people come to the show to enjoy camaraderie with other people who share their passions. About 500 people come to the show each year.

"We've tried to make it a quality toy show," he said. "You end up seeing folks that are as crazy as you are."

Admission to the Clarkston Toy Show is $2. Hours are 9:30 a.m.-3 p.m. The Knights of Columbus hall is located at 5660 Maybee Rd. just east of Sashabaw.

Wrong Social Security number could delay refund

An incorrect Social Security number could cause needless delays when you file your 1994 federal income tax return.

"It is very important that every Social Security number on your federal tax return be correct," said IRS district director Arlene Kay. "This year we will verify the Social Security numbers of every taxpayer, their spouse and their dependents with Social Security Administration records. If a name and number do not match, it will delay the refund."

"We will also look closely at returns that claim refundable credits, such as the Earned Income Credit, to ensure that the taxpayer is eligible for the credit and that it has been computed correctly," said

Kay. "Taxpayers should review the rules for claiming dependents and credits before filing their returns to avoid additional delays."

Kay said the closer scrutiny is part of the IRS' efforts to prevent refund fraud. "Every bank and financial institution requires proper identification to withdraw money," she said. "We believe we should do no less before monies are paid from the Federal treasury."

"Taxpayers and dependents who do not have a Social Security number or are unsure of their number should contact the Social Security Administration before filing their return," she said. "They can call SSA toll-free on 1-800-772-1213."

Awesome Aussies!

A visit with the Living Science Foundation is always a special treat. But it almost didn't happen Friday at Bailey Lake Elementary School.

The teachers and their animals from the foundation spent an hour trapped on a freeway after a truck accident. But though their visit was delayed, they stayed late to make sure all the students got to see their friends from Australia—Sydney, the carpet python, a wallaby, a shingle-back skink and an emu.

The teachers from the foundation brought the animals into the classrooms, one at a time, so each student who wanted to could touch them and see them up close. Most kids wanted to pet every animal, even the scaly looking skink or the slithering python.

Fourth-grader Emily Murdock was asked what it was like to touch the python. "It's OK!" she said with enthusiasm.

In addition to the touchy-feely stuff, though, the students learned and demonstrated their knowledge of the animal kingdom. All the Foundation handlers are either certified teachers or biology majors who have experience working with children.
