Getting good MEAP scores can be done with effort, Clarkston Elementary learns

BY ANNETTE KINGSBURY Clarkston News Editor

"The whole art of teaching is only the art of awakening the natural curiosity of young minds for the purpose of satisfying it afterwards."

—Anatole France
Clarkston Elementary School principal Dr. Elaine
Middlekauff likes to think of her students as stars.

A bulletin board in a school hallway bears the names of students on cut-out paper stars—one student, one star. Last fall students put their names on the stars, along with their thoughts on doing well on the mandatory MEAP (Michigan Educational Assessment Program) tests. It was all part of the school's preparation for the tests.

And when the tests were graded, the students had brought their scores up in dramatic fashion, with 100 percent passing the science test, 96 percent passing the math test, and 89 percent passing both parts of the reading test. That was up from the previous year's scores of 89, 68.8 and 68.8, respectively

(A spokesperson for the state Department of Education said Monday statewide scores by individual school are not yet available, so it's unknown how Clarkston Elementary stacks up against other schools.)

Though Middlekauff will tell you the stars didn't do it alone, the idea was just part of a plan she and her staff used to engender success on the tests, which measure students (fourth-graders take the math and reading tests, fifth-graders take the science test) against state expectations in each of the three fields.

"It's the first year we've done such a focused preparation for the test," Middlekauff said. "It's the first time we've told them how much their effort counts.

Before the tests were administered, the school staff got parents involved in creating a relaxed atmosphere for their children. They also got students and staff to buy into the idea of creating a quiet atmosphere in the building during testing. But perhaps most importantly, through academic review and confidence building, they got the students to believe they knew the material they would be tested on and had no reason to panic about the test.

"As a group we felt we were definitely improving each year and we were going to do a leapfrog,"

No pay raises for township elected officials

All other township nonunion workers get raises, benefit enhancements

> BY DARREL W. COLE Clarkston News Staff Writer

Independence Township's 21 non-union employees will receive better benefits in 1995.

The benefits package includes the township's six department heads, three elected officials and 12 non-union staff. Township supervisor Dale Stuart said the new package can be provided by the township at a minimal cost.

"These people are high-quality workers and to keep them you have to provide them with better conditions," Stuart said. "These are ways we can do that."

In addition to the increased benefits, department heads received a uniform 4 percent salary increase, while non-union staff received raises between 2.6 percent and 4.2 percent.

The largest monetary raise ($1,975) went to fire chief Gar Wilson while the lowest monetary raise was $875.

The only township employees not receiving a raise were the elected officials. Stuart said the decision to keep their salaries the same as 1994 was made by him, treasurer John Lutz and clerk Joan McCrary.

First city water hearing Monday

The first of two hearings scheduled to determine resident interest in a community water system will take place Jan. 23 during the Clarkston city council meeting beginning at 7:30 p.m.

Residents will have a chance to express their opinions on the over-$2-million system that will, if implemented, cost the average Clarkstonite about $430 a year for 20 years. There will also be expenses for hookup, running the line from main to house and plumber services.

Clarkston City Hall is located at 375 Deport St. A second hearing will be held Feb. 27, with a city water vote planned for March 7.

The suspect, a 30-year-old woman from Pontiac, allegedly has confessed to keeping cash she was supposed to have deposited since October. The cemetery is owned by the City of Pontiac but is located on Dixie Highway in Independence Township.

This is not the first meeting about gangs held in Clarkston. It will cover the warning signs, as well as actual gang activity.

Stamps are in

The US Postal Service says despite some early problems, there is now no problem purchasing stamps bearing the new postal rates.

Thomas Newman, Royal Oak District Manager, said last week that the three-cent "G" rate make-up stamps are now available throughout the 480/483 ZIP code areas. "Additional quantities are being received daily and we will be able to meet the increased demand for these stamps," he said. "There is no shortage of the 32cent 'G-series' stamp . . .

"We are trying to make the rate transition as smooth as possible for our customers. To ease the long lines created by the heavy demand for these stamps, lobby directors will be stationed in many of our post offices to assist customers."

Crake re-elected

Larry Crake (R., Waterford) has been reelected chairman of the Oakland County Board of Commissioners. Crake, who represents southern Independence Township, will now serve his fourth consecutive term as chairman.

At the same time, Ruth Johnson (R., Holly) was re-elected commission vice chairperson, also returning for her fourth year in that position.

Lawrence Obrecht (R., Orion), who represents part of western Independence Township, was named chairman of the public services committee.

County seeks candidates

Oakland County is seeking candidates to fill a vacancy on the five-member personnel appeal board, which acts as final arbiter for employees who appeal disciplinary actions.

Meeting are held during regular business hours and scheduled as needed, usually two to four times a month. # Record numbers for building permits

Trend in Independence and surrounding area is for more growth

BY DARREL W. COLE Clarkston News Staff Writer

Independence Township's 295 building permits issued in 1994 blew away 1993's mark of 258.

And while all counts aren't in, the township's building department has felt the effects of increased population and growth. Much of that is due to the many areas of undeveloped land and the rise of the Chrysler Tech Center in Auburn Hills, as well as other industries.

In fact, the township will soon be hiring a fulltime zoning enforcement officer for the first time because the job has become so big. In the past, the township's building inspector also handled zoning enforcement. Now both positions will be full time.

The growth spurt hasn't just affected Independence. Surrounding townships such as Springfield and Orion have also experienced heavy growth.

Building permits issued in Independence have steadily increased from 137 in 1991 and 197 in 1992. The township record for permits issued was 318 in

No pay raise for elected officials

"We didn't feel it was appropriate at this time to receive a pay increase," Stuart said.

The township's expected 1995 non-union payroll is $888,655, a 3.5 percent increase from 1994.

The township's union employees' contract expires at the end of 1995.

The benefits

The 21 non-union workers will receive several new benefit adjustments starting in 1995. The changes are as follows:

● Pension continuation — This new policy will allow continued pension contribution during long-term employee disability. Stuart estimates this will cost the township about $50 or $60 per month extra for all employees.

● Spousal disability — A married employee can receive this new policy when his or her spouse becomes disabled. The policy will pay a disability benefit of $1,000 per month when an insured spouse can no longer live independently. The benefit can be used to pay for home care, housekeeping services, day care for children or whatever is needed in such a situation.

Stuart said this policy will cost between $30 and $40 per month for all non-union employees.

Optical insurance — This policy costs $4.19 per non-union employee or $11.49 per family each month

• The township also offers a $400 dental care reimbursement with a one-year carry over.

Stuart said this change is "not significant now because we don't have anyone close to retirement yet." When someone is ready to retire this new benefit will cost the township about $60 per month, per department director.

In order to qualify, the employee's age and years of service must equal at least 80. For example, the person could be 55 years old with 25 years of service, or have a higher age and less seniority. The minimum seniority requirement is 15 years and the person is required to be enrolled in Medicare A and B at age 65.

Cramlane, Waldon residents get drainage relief

BY DARREL W. COLE Clarkston News Staff Writer

Flooded ditches on Cramlane and Waldon roads won't be fixed with resident's money or the developer that caused the problem.

Instead the Independence Township Board of Trustees voted unanimously to apply for a 50/50 county drainage payment plan. Under the program, the Road Commission for Oakland County and the township will each pay half the costs. Township consulting engineer Randy Ford of Hubbell, Roth & Clark said the drainage project will cost about $50,000 total.

Ford said the development of Waldon Woods on Waldon Road has caused the flooded ditches because the ditches were clear before that development was built in the summer of 1990. Waldon Woods is an 18-acre subdivision with 38 lots.

Ford said about 13 homes are affected by the flooded ditches.

Supervisor Dale Stuart said this type of problem should have been avoided. "We have to be much more careful and see the impact on surrounding property by new developments. We should have seen this problem ahead of time but we didn't."

Ford said several meetings have been held with the developers, residents and township officials. He added that Waldon Woods developer Mike Hofer was never required to put in off-site improvements at the time of development but has tried to help with the situation.

"Over the past year and a half, we have examined every possible solution to this problem, but to no avail," said Ford. "It is too late to require off-site improvements by the developer, even if we could have required it. It is not fair to expect the residents to pay for drainage improvements when they didn't cause the problem."

Other township board action Jan. 10

Anyone with an illegal blood alcohol content involved in an accident must now pay for costs incurred by the township. The ordinance amendment also applies to a person under the influence of controlled substances.

When such a person is charged with being under the influence, the judge, at the time of sentencing, may include any costs owed to the township.

Forty acres of land located on the east side of Sashabaw Road (across from Sashabaw Creek Meadows), north of Clarkston Road was approved for rezoning from rural residential (three-acre lots) to suburban farm residential (1 1/2-acre lots).

Petitioner Stulberg Northwestern Communities, Inc. received township planning commission approval based on a master plan agreement and desired Sashabaw Corridor planning.

Appointments set for boards, commissions

New faces in some township roles

BY DARREL W. COLE Clarkston News Staff Writer

Dale Stuart wants everyone to have a chance to serve the community.

To help serve that purpose, the Independence Township Supervisor selected seven new members to various boards and commissions. The township board of trustees approved the appointments at its Jan. 10 meeting.

Stuart said rotating various members gives other citizens a chance to be a part of the governmental process.

Newly appointed members include: Todd Moss (formerly of the zoning board of appeals) to the planning commission, replacing Cel Yarber; Dr. George Krull, Charles Cederman, Frank Millard and Jeffrey McGee to the zoning board, replacing Denise Schons, Nancy Ward, Moss and Mel Vaara; Hank Hogan to the board of review, replacing John Dunlop; and Dave Wagner to the safety path committee, replacing Dave Yarber.

Re-appointments to various boards include: Sharron Santala and Gerald Carney to the board of review; Larry Rosso to the safety path committee; Daniel Travis, planning commission; Richard Ayers, Forrest Milzow and Bruce Harlton to the DDA; and Robert Vandermark, cablecasting board.

The construction board of appeals includes Mark Christie, Russ Walker, Therm Nichols, Tim Palulian and Roger Grant

Most of the terms expire at the end of 1996 or 1997.

Heritage Hunt

By Virginia Block

Letters sent from California, Texas, Wisconsin and especially Ohio reach us as many seek ancestral ties of early pioneer Oakland County families.

Most recently, we have received the anticipated arrival of material from Gertrude Bruno, who wrote us months ago seeking help on documenting her folks with the sumames of Burt, Peacock, "Hannah Ward Howe," Mattison and others.

Delay in receiving the material was due to illness of Mr Bruno, who had to undergo bypass surgery before he must have further surgery later this month for an aneurysm in the abdomen.

What one realizes at this point, that 2 years ago we were faced with the same situation in our spouse, and the necessity to do in-depth research of death records of the parents, grandparents and greatgrandparents, or further back if death records can be found, to document for future generations a clear picture of their genetic health picture. We are pleased that Trudy Bruno is sharing all this to help.

Once again we return to the subject of your health, as we learn to our sorrow of illness robbing so many of our friends and relatives of time to enjoy life, when being knowledgeable would be beneficial to you and your family in the future.

We find many of you fighting the "stress" syndrome that comes from daily living. Deluged with TV commercials selling a "healthful way of life," we content ourselves with the thought that they mean their messages for "the other guy." Any doctor requires as much "family medical history" as you can provide, whenever you start any treatment.

Allergies can be traced back for four generations, bronchial asthma also for the same four, diabetes on both sides of my husband's family and the maternal side of mine.

"PMS," while not labeled as such, has appeared in each generation of females for five traceable lines. Not to be ignored is the number of heart attacks, strokes and related diseases found in both sides of the families of both Mr. B and me.

A book mentioned here, early in the appearance of this column, was the basis of our developing a "health family chart." If you are concerned about tracing the health of family members having diabetes, heart problems, cancer, and other genetically connected ailments, we will be happy to hear from you. Meantime, we will get on with helping Trudy find the answers to her Pontiac ancestry.

Happy Hunting.

Two-tier busing will hurt drivers

I would like to express my opinion on twotier busing. I understand the teachers' need for universal planning time. What I do not understand is why they have to get it by going to two-tier busing, thereby literally destroying the livelihood of the Clarkston bus drivers.

Many other surrounding school districts have universal planning time for teachers and they were able to accomplish it in such a way that two-tier busing was not necessary. Is it really necessary in Clarkston? Aren't there other alternatives?

As we, the bus drivers, stated in the newsletter we deliverd to all non-administrative employees, two-tier busing will be devastating to the bus drivers of Clarkston schools. We received absolutely "no response" from any employee group. It is very hard for me to believe that an employee group in our district could lose their benefits, have their working hours cut in half, lose a credit year toward retirement, and have no care.

Where is our union? Where is our coalition? Where are our teachers? We need to be concerned about each other. Remember Pinckney?

Appreciates story

Dear Ms. Oxley,

Thank you for writing the article on the Oakland County map that appeared in your newspaper's December 28, 1994, edition. I was pleased to see that Lester Smith received the recognition he deserved for making such a generous donation to the citizens

In appreciation for the importance of Mr. Smith's gift, money was found to conserve this valuable example of 19th century cartography. The map is now at the conservation lab, and should be available for public viewing in its refurbished condition sometime this spring.

Again, thanks for paying tribute to one of your kind and deserving Clarkston area residents.

Sincerely, LeRoy Barnett, Ph.D. Reference Archivist Department of State

Jim's Jottings

By Jim Sherman

Lawn & garden storage, my way

Last fall I clipped a couple articles on lawn and garden tool storage for next spring's use. In rereading them I know my cynical thoughts were predominant at the time.

World renowned gardener, writer, pitchman Jerry Baker wrote of 'storing tools' in his "On the Garden Line" publication.

Nancy Szerlag, wrote November 26 for the Detroit News as "a Grosse Pointe free-lance writer and avid gardener."

Both said we gardeners should clean and lubricate or paint our tools before putting them away for winter. We should wash off all the soil and rust, then coat them with paint or WD-40.

The only part I agree with is the putting them away for winter. I say, before putting them away strike them against a stone or cement to remove any dirt. Let 'em rust. We gardeners get tired of or break tools long before any rust out.

Baker says axes, shovels, hoes, clippers and lawn mowers should be sharpened and put in order during stormy days of autumn and winter.

On stormy autumn days we normal gardeners are on the golf course. On stormy winter days we're either inside where it's warm and comfortable or out moving the &#*+# stuff.

Szerlag says for servicing your lawn equipment, "Your best guide is the owner's manual." Yeah! Right! Owner's manuals are for whimps. Owner's manuals, if kept, are seldom findable, seldom understandable and have more warnings than "Drain gas from the tanks of garden equipment," Szerlag wrote. I've been running power lawn equipment for over 40 years. Once, only once did something not start from stale gas. Look at all the time and trouble I've saved in those years by just shutting off the motors when I'm done.

Szerlag also suggests we check the spark plug for burned points or pitted marks. "Clean and adjust or replace it."

I say, come Spring, give the motor a couple ulls. If it doesn't start, take out the plugs, spray in some ether, replace plugs and give a couple more pulls. If it doesn't start, repeat that step and add a lot more ether. Spark plugs are built to last a long time

Wash the air filter in detergent and water, rinse and dry thoroughly; saturate the clean filter with a few drops of 10W-30 oil; and blot with a rag before

That is not my advice. I take out air filters, knock them against my hand, give them a quarter turn and replace 'em. And, like I said, I get tired of equipment long before I get rid of them for failure.

"Cold temperatures can cause oil to break down in winter, so plan to change the oil next spring," Nancy Szerlag says.

On this we agree.

Pine Knob is planning to implement a permanent 12-ride amusement park in addition to its music theater. Timothy Palulian, building and planning commission director of Independence Township, says the conceptual plan is "standard fair—bumper cars, octopus, scrambler and ferris wheel." Palulian says Pine Knob also wants to have a two-car gondola that will transport patrons to and from the Hamburger Mansion. Pine Knob will present a conceptual review of the five-acre site plan to the Independence Township Planning Commission meeting Jan. 24.

Though the Michigan Educational Assessment Program reports that Clarkston fourth- and seventh-graders are performing well above state averages on reading and math tests, tenth-graders fall below on the math portion. The report made to the Clarkston School Board Monday shows that 49.5 percent of the district's tenth-graders achieve at least 75 percent of the educational objectives tests. The statewide percent is 49.8. William Potvin, director of planning and evaluation for the district, says reasons for the low scores include students' negative attitudes toward the testing and not lack of ability.

Independence Township receives a new ambulance service located at the Clarkston Professional Building on M-15. Riverside Ambulance service includes a paramedic unit on duty 24 hours a day. In addition to Independence, it will cover Springfield and Brandon townships.

A new state law allows local units of government to remove abandoned, condemned buildings that are potentially dangerous. A house in Independence Township that has been abandoned for years was not able to be removed until now because its owners, who have long since moved, might carry an insurance policy. As long as specific steps are followed, such houses that pose a threat to the health and welfare of residents may now be destroyed.

Pictures of the World War, including battlefields where our men have died, will be shown at the Clarkston Methodist Church Friday evening, commencing at 8 p.m. They have been gathered over a period of many years and hopefully will impress young people with the horrors rather than the glamour of war. Admission is 15 cents for adults and 10 cents for children.

Presents weren't important this year

On Christmas morning, after all the literally dozens of great gifts for her four children had been unwrapped, my daughter collapsed in terrible pain and was rushed to the hospital

The two oldest kids watched in terror as their father and I half-carried their mother to the car.

Scary Christmas.

Only a few minutes later, in the emergency room -- to show you how screwy a columnist's mind works -- I told myself I'd sort of discovered the moral to the story of the waffles and strawberries.

There are mornings in my life when there's no resisting the urge to speed to the nearest Big Boy restaurant for crisp waffles covered with fresh strawberries and whipped cream. One of those mornings occurred a few days before Christmas.

And the waitress said they were out of strawberries. How about applesauce, or just plain maple syrup? No, dammit, I had my taste buds set on strawberries.

But I didn't curse out loud. As learned long ago from my mother, I quickly reminded myself of all the starving children in wherever. I swallowed my grief and constructed an entirely different breakfast.

Eggs up, nice and runny, on crisp white toast. Crisp bacon. Crisp English muffin with strawberry jam. I love crisp. And a large glass of milk.

The waitress wrote it down and departed. Only to return in a quick minute.

Fresh strawberries had just arrived on a truck, she said. I could have my original order.

Wonderful . . . except . . . wait . .

Now my taste buds were set on runny eggs and all that crisp toast and bacon. Forget the strawberries and waffles that lured me from home in the first place. I stuck with the second order. The waitress looked bemused.

And, as I fed my fat face, I thought: "There's probably a moral here somewhere. When I get time, I'll look for it."

Back to the emergency room Christmas morning. For most of her thirtysomething years, I've called my youngest daughter Ferd, simply because it rhymes with her brother, Nerd. Her real name is Christie and, in my very biased opinion, she is the world's greatest mother. She certainly didn't deserve to be separated from Emily, Tricia, Adam and Elaine on Christmas Day, and vice

I couldn't rid my mind of the frightened looks on Emily and Tricia's faces when their mom slumped to the floor, moaning. I dreaded returning home to tell them whatever the doctor said, probably that they wouldn't be seeing their mother for a few days, at best.

More than I've ever wanted anything in the world, I wanted the clock to tick backward, and for Ferd to never have gone to the hospital.

But then her husband wheeled her through a door, and she was smiling. A kidney stone had blessedly passed. She was much better for now and could return home immediately, less than an hour after we left.

More than anything I've ever enjoyed in the world, I enjoyed watching the surprised delight on her children's faces when she came through the door. They couldn't believe Mom was back so soon. They couldn't hug her Talk about the greatest Christmas present ever received. Ferd gave it to the members of her family this Christmas, right after giving them their biggest scare.

The moral is that you think waffles, strawberries and whipped cream are the best until you think of something better

Dozens of great presents are nice, but Ferd's children could think of something much better -- Mom coming home from the hospital on Christmas.

Don't Rush Me

By Don Rush

Double dose of bad news

I have written this column prior to the governors "State of the State" address.

There is something terribly wrong with some of the things going on in Lansing. At the same time Gov. Engler was bashing the Feds for dumping unfunded mandates onto the states, his Michigan Department of Transportation Director was telling local governments to get ready: if you want your roads fixed don't look to Lansing.

While not exactly an unfunded mandate from Lansing to the local units of government, it sort of is: communities need to keep their roads safe and smooth. Currently they get a portion of the funding to do that from the state. Just because the state funding goes, the road problems follow suit.

I get a little queasy when I read MDOT Director Patrick Nowak saying, "We are going to have to look to local governments to get their funding locally."

And that statement really isn't the one that makes my wallet scream in agony; it's when you add that to the rumors we're going to get a new gas tax hike in Michigan.

That looks bad.

I guess that means, besides that big north/south road, with an "M" in front of it that runs through our town, local taxpayers will have to shell out the dough to repair the rest of the roads.

So much for that 50 percent property tax cut we got last year.

It wouldn't be so bad if the money that was taxed here in Oakland County stayed here. Unfortunately we live in an area lovingly referred to by the rest of the state as a "donor" county. Which means, because we have more people and more money, we foot the bill for the areas in the state that don't.

Ain't that right neighborly of us.

I know, I know: I'm being cynical. And I know that local communities currently do make special assessment districts for projects like road paving. I just hate to see taxes go up, while funding gets cut. There's something about that formula that doesn't work.

I think we need to make it clear to the state: if you're going to raise the gas tax -- don't cut the funding to local counties, townships, cities and villages.

If you're going to raise the gas tax and still cut us out of the funding pie, make that gas tax hike local -- if it's levied or collected in Oakland County, let it stay here.

In other words, keep your fingers off it,

So, I wonder what the Gov's gonna' say? More than that, I wonder if I'll have new fodder for next week's trip into the wonderful world of Don't Rush Me-dom?

Stay tuned.

Responsibility

I'm writing this from the comfort of my bed, where I have decided to spend the day. Although I , have exams this week, I have made today Irresponsibility Day, which, with luck, will appear on all calendars in 1996.

There is an Edgar Allen Poe story that opens "Since the world began, there have been two Jermeys." To fit my purpose, I want to change this line to "Since the world began, there have been two responsibilities.'

The first type of responsibility we will simply call the "good" kind. Cavepeople were masters of good responsibility. They concerned themselves with the basic actions necessary for their survival. They did not care whether their cars started or if they got a prestigious job with which they could buy their cavebabes fancy jewelry. They simply lived day by day doing what they wanted as long as they had enough to eat.

The other type of responsibility is what we shall call the "bad" kind. Bad responsibilities are anything one feels one must do in order to uphold our delicate balance of social productiveness. A perfect example of bad responsibility is a man who feels he must become a doctor solely because his father was a doctor, as was his father before him and his father before him. An honorable example of a man capable of avoiding the ties of bad responsibility is male clarinetist Steve Bernard who simply couldn't care less. (Happy now Steve?)

Basically, a good responsibility is anything that makes people happy or helps people who are in need.

If the person sitting next to you at the movies started choking on Good-n-Plenties and you knew the Heimlich maneuver, then it would be your good responsibility to save the person's life. A bad responsibility is something that someone told you to do and you don't like doing it, but you don't have the guts to quit. I know for a fact that ignoring the orders of people who think they're the boss will not cause the world to implode, sending the disobedient into pits of unending despair. The worst thing that will happen if you take charge of your own life is losing the respect of people who didn't respect you anyway.

The border between good and bad responsibility is very fuzzy. As I lie in bed watching General Hospital, I try to analyze the characters according to the fulfillment of their responsibilities. I ask myself important questions like: Did the Quartermains get all their money because they thought it was their good responsibility to be successful and feel good about themselves? Or is it their bad responsibility to impress their fellow Port Charles socialites with their wealth? And why don't they ever have brain surgery on that show?

I have a dream that someday America will turn into a modern caveman anarchy where responsibility is found only in folklore. When that happens, I will sit on the beach smoking and eating fish sticks until I die and nobody will say a word. (The strange thing is that I think smoking is gross, but I guess ideals are warped

Now that I can't think of anything more to write, I am going back to sleep in hopes that my history exam will take itself.

Would you vote for a new high school?

STOUT, CIRCLE CLARKSTON: No. I'd oppose it. Any assessment in taxes above what I is not pay worthwhile. It would be contrary to what I feel is right. They'd have to get the money from somewhere.

NANCY RODDA CHERRYLAWN INDEPENDENCE TOWNSHIP: Yes. The schools are real important and it's a fine community. investing in the schools is one of the best ways to invest in the community.

MARK KETTNER, KING, DAVISBURG: Yes. I think the facilities outdated present students. If you look at all the elementary schools, projected number of students through growing, a new high school becomes a necessity.

TOM GOLDNER, E. CHURCH CLARKSTON, No, don't think they've managed to take care of what they have.

JENNIFER HARDY COTTONWOOD OURT CLARKSTON: Yes. I'm a Clarkston High School graduate from '87 and it was well needed then. It was overpopulated. We were overgrown for the school.

Hocus on the Family

James Dobson, Ph.D, presented by First Missionary Church, Clarkston

QUESTION: We have a 1-year-old daughter, and we want to raise her right. I've heard that parents can increase the mental abilities of their own children if they stimulate them properly during the early years. Is this accurate, and if so, how can I accomplish this with my baby?

DR. DOBSON: Research indicates that parents can increase the intellectual capability of their children. This conclusion was one of the most important findings derived from a 10-year study of children between 8 and 18 months of age. This investigation, known as Harvard University's Preschool Project, was guided by Dr. Burton L. White and a team of 15 researchers between 1965 and 1975.

They studied young children intensely during this period, hoping to discover which experiences in the early years of life contribute to the development of a healthy, intelligent human being. The conclusions from this exhaustive effort are summarized below as reported originally in APA Monitor.

1. It is increasingly clear that the origins of human competence are to be found in a critical period of development between 8 and 18 months of age. The child's experiences during these brief months do more to influence future intellectual competence than any time before or after.

2. The single most important environmental factor in the life of the child is his mother. "She is on the hook," said Dr. White, and carries more influence on her child's experiences than any other person or circumstance.

3. The amount of live language directed to a child (not to be confused with television, radio or overheard conversations) is vital to the development of fundamental linguistic, intellectual and social

4. Those children who are given free access to living areas of their homes progress much faster than those whose movements are restricted.

5. The nuclear family is the most important educational delivery system. If we are going to produce capable, healthy children, it will be by strengthening family units and by improving the interactions that occur within them.

6. The best parents were those who excelled at three functions:

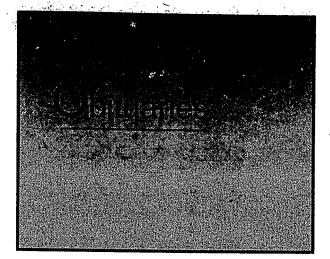

A. They were superb designers and organizers of their children's environments.

B. They permitted their children to interrupt them for brief, 30-second episodes, during which personal consultation, comfort, information and enthusiasms were exchanged.

C. They corrected their children when necessary, while simultaneously showing great affection for their children.

These conclusions are exciting to me, for I find within them an affirmation and validation of the concepts to which I have devoted my entire professional career: the dedication of mothers during the early years; the value of raising children; the stability of the family, etc.

These questions and answers are excerpted from the book "Dr. Dobson Answers Your Questions." #### BY ANNETTE KINGSBURY Clarkston News Editor

The military vehicle made famous by Desert Storm made a stop at Clarkston High School's auto shop last week.

The Humvee, or Hummer, as it's called in civilian circles, has been described as a Jeep on steroids. One look at its wide body explains the descriptive name. It was brought to CHS by Army recruiter Sgt. Phillip Molangi so auto students could get a look at it and so he could talk about careers in the Molangi picked up the Hummer in Jackson, then drove it to Clarkston via the freeways—not the kind of surface it was meant to drive on.

Army's star vehicle not a great freeway ride, driver says

"It earns it's pay in the mud," he said. "It's not a highway vehicle. at 50 miles per hour it's tough to steer."

Though not a mechanic, Molangi was able to answer the students' questions about the Hummer, since every Army unit has at least one and operators must know how to do routine maintenance.

After being briefed on the vehicle and the opportunity for college in the Army and asked not to "tweak the knobs," students in Joe Choma's auto technology class climbed all over the Hummer, turning in the gun turret and peeking under the hood. "Listen to this baby purr," one student said when Molangi started it up.

Choma said that the Hummer was substantially different than other vehicles the students had worked on in class because it had a diesel engine.

That's not the only difference. The body is made of Kevlar, the same material used in bulletproof vests and airplanes. Molangi said it repels bullets under a certain size, and the vehicle can be equipped with bulletproof windows as well. The model used in Desert Storm, he said, could roll over a land mine and get its passengers home safely. "The king of the hill of four-wheel drive vehicles," he called it with obvious admiration.

Molangi said that as a recruiter, he is interested in speaking to vocational classes because the Army offers a special test, the Armed Services Vocational Aptitude Battery, which can offer up to 75 percent of college tuition to students who score well enough. "Since we're here, of course, we tell them about the military, especially auto careers because the Army can definitely help," he said.

Students plan city of the future

BY ANNETTE KINGSBURY Clarkston News Editor

The city of the future will have cars that can drive on rubber tires, or on steel tracks. Recycling will be big business, and trash output will be low. Traffic will be computer controlled, so there will be no traffic jams, even though cars will travel much faster.

At least that's according to three students at Cedar Crest Academy, a small, independent private school on Dixie Highway in Springfield Township.

The students are participating in a contest called the Future City Competition, which will be held Thursday at the Henry Ford Museum in Dearborn. Ryan McCleary, Jeff Dupuis and Tim Julian, all 12, along with their math/science teacher, Leslie Baron, and Cadillac engineer Chris Sulek will present a model the three boys have built and talk about their vision.

The boys have been working on the project since November, when they sat down at a computer and, using a program called SimCity, designed their very own Upper Peninsula city. Then, with limitations on size and how much money they could spend, they began in December to build a scale model of part of the city. The third phase of the competition includes a 500-word essay describing the model and focusing on recycling in the city.

They will compete in the Detroit region all day Thursday (only seventh and eighth-graders are eligible). The winner will advance to national competition in Washington, D.C. Feb. 22-25. The event is sponsored by the National Engineers Week Committee in cooperation with the MATHCOUNTS Foundation and the National Science Educational Leadership Association. The Detroit regional competition is coordinated by the Society of Manufacturing Engineers

A few minutes with the three Cedar Crest students makes it plain the boys have put a lot of thought into their project, not to mention hard work—more than they expected. Last year the average team spent 14 hours on the project, they said; they've spent at least 50.

"It just seemed like 100," said Jeff, sounding weary. "We were really fortunate on the access to power tools. A lot of people don't have that."

The students' city features a mix of housing that is both expensive (on the water) and less so; buildings both contemporary and traditional; and is at once high tech and earth friendly.

Some of their futuristic ideas:

● Car-railers: Cars running on four rubber wheels and four steel wheels. "It's very effective," said Tim. "We figured you'd probably be going a lot faster and with that we have a computer controlled traffic system. Cars will travel equal distances apart so there's no accidents."

● A large police station that doubles as a city hall. "The police do a lot more things than just fight crime in our city," Tim said. They'll be responsible for the computer-controlled traffic system, among other things, so they've been given a lot of space.

● Taking mined-out shafts and turning them into giant composting facilities. They are filled with waste, capped tightly, then the methane gas that is produced is captured and sold. The compost left behind is used at the large greenhouses in the city.

• A roofing material made out of recycled products that will preserve buildings for hundreds of years.

• "As opposed to having giant cooling towers, we run (waste) hot water under the streets," Tim said. "It will melt the snow. We're just using something we already had."

"All the buildings will run on hot water heat," added Ryan.

"We were thinking of some of the ideas before we designed the city," Tim said. "We're trying to make things that sounded reasonable. Last year I was not impressed with one group that said they found a bacteria on the moon that ate all their garbage."

The three students said that even though Tim's brother was in the competition last year they had no idea how much work was involved. Each is also involved in extra-curricular activities (Scouts, hockey and curling) and had to sacrifice a lot. But all agreed it was worth it, win or lose.

"We're trying to live up to what they did last year but we feel the competition will be a lot harder this year," Tim said. Last year's Cedar Crest team won an award for having the best essay and won a trip to Houston, even though they didn't win the overall contest.

"I think it will take the judges a long time because I think we're going to see some good models," said Jeff.

Sulek, who designs electronic systems for airbags at GM's Cadillac Luxury Car Division in Flint and is a nine-year GM employee, said he's been impressed with the students.

"These kids are really talented and I just wanted to show them the excitement of that kind of profession," Sulek said. He also remembers his own involvement with projects in school. "I found them to be something very worthwhile."

Sulek acknowledged that engineering is competing with the more "glamour" fields children see on TV every day, such as lawyers, doctors, etc. He hopes

Good news on MEAP

Middlekauff said. "We'd focused on the parents, we'd focused on the staff; we really hadn't focused on the students and their role."

It sounds simple enough—in the words of science coordinator Pat McMillen, "If you work very hard and keep you mind focused you can do anything

Last week the students got to celebrate their accomplishments with an afternoon of fun at the school. The collective pat on the back took the form of a pizza lunch, make-your-own ice cream sundaes and a fun assembly which also snuck in a few messages about self-esteem.

"It's very rare to have an entire class do what you did," said Dr. Mike LaBay, deputy superintendent of schools, in addressing the assembled students. "Continue to work hard. Working hard and learning is fun, and the more you learn the more you'll have fun in life.'

'One-hundred percent effort is what counts.'

Dr. Elaine Middlekauff Principal

Clarkston Elementary

Then the students were entertained by former music teacher Jerry Jacoby, who sang songs about "It's cool to be good" and "I follow directions" which were really a lot more fun than the titles might Jacoby involved the students in many of the songs and had his audience rolling on the floor. The good messages he snuck in probably registered on some subliminal level, but the kids didn't seem to mind—they were having a blast.

The special afternoon was compliments of Middlekauff and the school's business partner, Food Town market, which supplied the ice cream. Middlekauff told the students they'd earned it with their hard work and dedication.

"It's really great to be able to celebrate that effort equals achievement," she said. "Everybody tries to figure out how to help our kids do better . . . Everyone says let's pay attention to the kids . . . It's a lesson that's more than just a MEAP test; it's a lesson for

On Tuesday, parents were scheduled to attend a meeting at the school to receive their child's individual MEAP scores and talk about the strategy and how it paid off. Middlekauff will also be taking her show on the road, networking with other principals in

"We all share a common goal of helping our kids do well," she said.

Middlekauff hopes that now that a precedent has been set, Clarkston Elementary will continue to do well on the MEAP tests. She'll face a big challenge next year, when a revised science test is scheduled to debut. She expects science scores to go down around the state, including her school, but isn't concerned.

"I think they are going to be up for the challenge," she said. "They're going to feel good about testing; they're going to feel good about the level of support, even if the questions are different . . . Onehundred percent effort is what counts."

Influence peddling?

At the Jan. 9 school board meeting, the PTA Council, in honor of School Board Recognition Month, gave each trustee a gift certificate for dinner at Mesquite Creek. That prompted one audience member to ask what the board's policy on accepting gifts

No one seemed to know. Superintendent Gary Haner said he'd look into it. The concern voiced by the audience member seemed to be that the PTA Council often comes before the board asking for various things and shouldn't be allowed to give gifts, which might influence decision making.

It can't happen here

This from our "Only in Clarkston" files: The Clarkston News has received several calls from residents in the Sashabaw/Maybee area concerned about what they fear is subsidized housing going in behind the former Food Town store.

However a check with the township's planner and the builder of the apartments reveals that to live there, you must be working and earning between $20,000 and $35,000 a year. While renters will not receive government subsidies for their $467-$647 per month rents, the builder will receive a tax credit for building "below market" units.

Lucky?

New business owner Ron Hunt already has an anecdote about Olde Apothecary Antiques' shop cat Skinny, Skinny, a not-so-thin feline whom Hunt once rescued from starvation, has hairballs just like any other cat. Hunt said the precocious kitty is now a good-luck charm as well as an adept mouser.

"Skinny had a hairball and jumped up on an antique table. She threw up. Somebody bought the table yesterday," Hunt quipped. He added that Skinny can have hairballs wherever she wants to from now

Officer leaves his heart in Clarkston

BY EILEEN OXLEY
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Harold Rossman, who has been a Clarkston police officer since November 1993, made a tough decision and turned in his badge Monday.

Rossman began part-time for the CPD but stretched his job to full time in May. He said a better salary with more benefits lured him to his new position with the Wayne County Sheriff's Department, where he began Tuesday. It'll definitely help his family, which includes his wife and small daughter.

'I hate to go. I enjoy being here. I knew what car everybody drove.'

"I hate to go. I enjoy being here. The town's fine. But as a career—no. It's not a place for a career, it's a place to start one. "It's time to move on," Rossman said, leaning on the office counter shortly before he left City Hall for the last time Monday afternoon.

Though the amicable Rossman admits working in Wayne County will be a definite challenge, he'll miss Clarkston and his role with the CPD, which has become more than his job description says.

"It's more than writing tickets and protecting the community. I knew what car everybody drove," he laughed. "I knew people in the community."

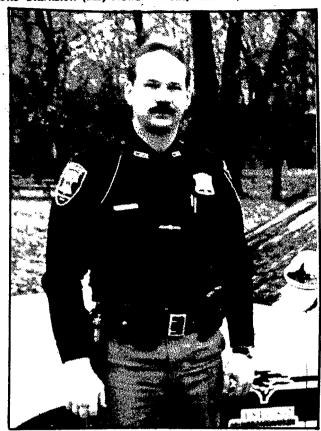

He paused to reflect on an incident that happened before Christmas. He referred to it as one of the perks he gets with his job which makes it all worthwhile. Because he knows there are folks who sometimes view police officers as "the bad guys" and don't see the good things they do.

"This little girl gave me her school picture all wrapped up like a present — it was so cute — just for something I did."

Rossman said he put a stop to some older girls who were bullying the youngster.

"I guess I was her hero. She'll remember that for the rest of her life. There's a little girl now who thinks highly of cops," he said with a smile.

Got a story idea?

FORMER CPD OFFICER HAROLD ROSSMAN says he'll miss the city and its residents.

Barn stands in the way of progress

BY ANNETTE KINGSBURY Clarkston News Editor

On a clear fall day, the stillness on Pine Knob Road is broken only by the inquisitive 'moo' of a cow who spies a visitor, and the occasional creaking of an old windmill. Though a weathered, wide-planked barn is just about falling down, it's still in use, as is a nearby corn crib. Peacocks and a pony roam the land, which is still farmed.

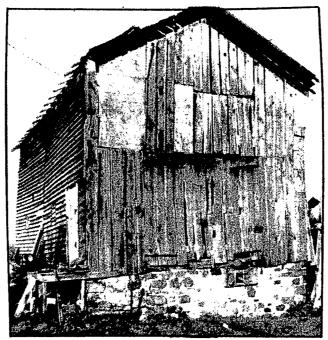

Forty years ago when Alvina Wentz moved to this spot, the land around her was much the same as hers is today. In addition to raising 10 children there, she and her husband raised cows, corn and hay on their 15 acres of land. But over the year the neighbors sold out to developers. Now, Wentz's way of life is being threatened by developers who need access to the land behind her for new subdivisions.

Wentz appears to have lost a court battle with Clarkston Holdings, which said the barn sat in the middle of an easement to its property. The developer wanted the barn torn down so he could access the easement. His property surrounds Wentz on three sides.

Oakland County Circuit Judge John McDonald recently issued an opinion that will make neither side happy, according to Wentz's attorney, Greg Need. The judge said that though the easement isn't where the developers thought it was, the barn is a dangerous nuisance and must come down. And he said both sides should share the cost of its removal. The final judgement is still pending.

Wentz said it's not the cost of the teardown, which she says she can afford; it's the principal.

"We're not going to let him (the developer) tell us—that's why we're fighting," she said. "He thought he could come in here and run the neighborhood."

The exact vintage of this barn on Pine Knob Rd. is unknown.

The dispute can be traced to old, incomplete property records. Unbeknownst to the Wentz family, when they bought the land the barn was straddling the property line.

Surveys weren't routinely done back then, she said. The adjacent property has changed hands several times over the years, but Wentz had an agreement with a former owner that always covered her—until now.

"There are two issues involved," Need said. "One is the barn and whether it can stay. The second is whether there is a valid easement that would go right through the barn. That would give access to Pine Knob Road to the developer.

"It e..ded up being a very confusing and complicated situation. The easement doesn't end up where the parties intended it."

Need said the easement is not the developer's only access to Pine Knob Road. The judge and attorneys for both sides visited the site before the opinion was rendered. The attorney for Clarkston Holdings did not return numerous phone calls from The Clarkston News.

Perhaps the other issue is the disappearance of farmland from the landscape. In Michigan, where agriculture is the second-largest industry, farmland decreased by 34 percent, or 5.6 million acres, between 1954 and 1974. That loss was greater and faster than any other Great Lakes state, according to the Michigan Society of Planning Officials.

Meanwhile, the state's farm population is aging, and 57 percent reported a net loss in 1992. Less than half said they didn't have outside employment.

The MSPO blames, at least in part, the migration of people from urban areas to the suburbs.

"In the last 35 years, over one million people have left central cities. Suburban areas grew 20 percent in the last 20 years while urban areas only experienced a one-percent growth," the organization said in its recently published Agricultural Trends Fact Sheet.

As she watches new homes go up in the Pine Knob Country Estates development behind her, Wentz, a widow for the last three years, acknowledges she's had offers to sell her land for development.

"People have asked but I'm not selling," she said

No disguise can long conceal love where it exists, or long feign it where it is lacking.

Larceny from an auto on Rioview. A thief put a Tracker parked in a driveway up on cinder blocks and attempted to steal the tires. He was seen by a neighbor and fled with only the center caps and lug nuts from one side of the car. The neighbor gave chase and was able to give police a good description. The next day they stopped a car matching the description and found the driver, a Waterford man, with a lug wrench in his possession.

A Dearborn man was injured when he reportedly rear-ended the car in front of him on northbound I-75 doing about 50-55 mph. He was ticketed.

The Oakland County Sheriff's Independence substation has responded to 462 calls this year through Jan. 15.

Township puts sheriff's sub-station up for sale

Three buyers have shown an interest in the current Oakland County Sheriff's sub-station, located on M-15, just north of Dixie.

Independence Township Supervisor Dale Stuart said there have been no formal proposals submitted but he will let the board of trustees know when and if that happens. The Independence Township Board of Trustees gave approval in November to build a new fire/police sub-station near the burned-down district court on M-15.

That means the current sub-station needs to be sold. The township pays about $40,000 a year for the building, which used to be a bank.

At the Jan. 10 township board meeting Stuart said he will wait 30-45 days for one of the three groups to make a bid. If they don't submit a proposal, Stuart said the township could advertise on its own.

Special goose season opens

A special 30-day Canada goose season to control local goose populations is scheduled in Michigan for Jan. 7-Feb. 5, the Department of Natural Resources announced.

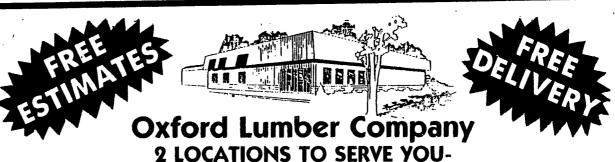

The area open for hunting includes public and private lands south of a line from Port Huron through Grand Rapids. The bag limit is two per day.

The DNR recorded over 100,000 Canada geese in the state during a survey Dec. 12-16, down about 35,000 from a year ago.

"The snow and cold temperatures recorded during Dec. 7-14 this year caused many geese to pull out and head south," said Jerry Martz, waterfowl specialist with the DNR. "The birds that stayed here will be roosting on open water, especially along river systems, where they can fly out to corn stubble or unpicked corn. If snow cover stays light and January temperatures don't get extremely cold, hunting could be better than last year. Hunters will have the best long-term success if they hunt the fields and avoid disturbing the birds on their water roosting sites. When hunting on private lands, hunters should always get permission from the landowners."

Conditioning proves key to winning

Wolves beat West Bloomfield, Rochester

> BY DARREL W. COLE Clarkston News Staff Writer

Patience.

For the fast-paced Clarkston boys basketball team patience on offense hasn't been needed. But the Wolves showed they could adapt to a half-court game in a win over West Bloomfield Jan. 10.

Clarkston followed the pace set by the big West Bloomfield squad, ran patient offense and made the shots when needed.

"That team made us move the ball around," said coach Dan Fife. "The thing is we've had good teams in the past that didn't have patience, but in this game we passed the ball around eight or nine times before shooting. We were down 8-0 to start but the kids didn't panic."

The Wolves kept pressuring the slower and bigger West Bloomfield team and went into halftime with a two-point lead. In the third quarter Clarkston's athleticism finally got to West Bloomfield. After a slow first half the Wolves opened it up with a blazing fast break and intense defense.

"I just told the kids I was happy at halftime. They just had to keep the press on and once we got going they (West Bloomfield) panicked."

The Lakers were frazzled and frustrated with Clarkston's pressure and couldn't stop senior point guard Jeremy Fife's penetration, which led to several easy baskets. By the end of the third quarter the Wolves had a double-digit lead and the game was Junior Ryan Schapman came up big for the Wolves with seven points, including five in the decisive third quarter. Freshman forward Dane Fife also played well along with junior Tim Wasilk, who notched six points in the first quarter to keep his team in the game.

"That game was pretty much us physically wearing them down. They were strong kids but I think our athleticism and conditioning paid off for us," Fife said. "They became very methodical after a while."

Clarkston next took on rival Rochester Jan. 13 and won convincingly 56-42, although the game was much closer than that for over three quarters.

The Wolves took a 30-23 lead after the first half and held Rochester at bay the rest of the way, especially in the fourth quarter.

The Rochester game was unique because several Clarkston players compete in AAU competition with several Rochester players during the summer.

While the offense wasn't totally in gear because of Rochester's tough man-to-man defense, Fife said his defense once again came up big.

"Our kids once again won in a different way. But defensively is where we are real consistent. We really have to push the ball up and hope for easy baskets because we really don't have the size to score inside," said Fife.

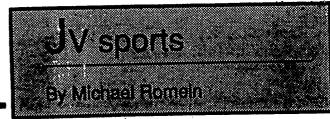

Against Rochester, Dane Fife scored 19 points and senior Brad Agar added 12. Jeremy Fife scored 10 points, handed out 11 assists and had seven steals. Senior Jason Graves scored eight points.

The Wolves are still undefeated at 7-0 overall and 2-0 in the Oakland Activities Association Division I. Clarkston is also rated #6 in Class A.

"We just have to keep in mind that we're the number one team to beat in other teams' minds and they will all be looking for us," Fife said.

In your face defense was given to senior Brad Agar by this West Bloomfield defender during the Jan. 11 game. Agar did a solid job of defending West Bloomfield's 6-foot-8 sophomore center and helped his team to a victory.

Clarkston youth wrestling club

The Clarkston Wrestling Club, for ages 6-14, performed well at two tournaments in the last two weeks.

In a novice tournament two weeks ago, Paul Gibbs (52 pounds) took first in the 8-and-under division while Greg Kiester (71 pounds) won the 11-12-year-old division.

Also performing well in the 8-and-under division were Tom Sweetman (61 pounds), third place, and David Bryan (52 pounds), second place.

Reilly Holzer also finished a strong second (119 pounds) in the 11-12 division.

Basketball

The Clarkston junior varsity basketball team won two games this week, raising its record to 6-1 overall and 2-0 in the Oakland Activities Association.

On Jan. 10, the Wolves played at home against West Bloomfield and won in a rout, 51-31. Then on Friday, Clarkston won again, this time in a close one over Rochester, 39-38.

This week, the Wolves played at Davison on Tuesday and will play on Friday, Jan. 20 at Troy.

Injuries slow wrestling squad

BY DARREL W. COLE Clarkston News Staff Writer

Take away three county champions from any wrestling team and chances are they won't win many tournaments.

That's exactly what happened to the Clarkston squad as they finished a distant fifth at the Detroit Catholic Central Invitational Jan. 14. County champions Chad Auten (broken hand), Joe DeGain (sprained

Intense skiers improve, win

BY DARREL W. COLE Clarkston News Staff Writer

They're taking it personally.

Clarkston ski coach Thom Halsey has eight varsity skiers on both the girls and boys teams, but there is only room for six skiers to compete in each meet. Rather than sulk about taking their turn to sit out, Clarkston skiers have worked even harder to earn a spot, according to Halsey.

"They are a very competitive group even though they are so young," he said. "We have eight skiers now but at the end of the season they all know we can only take the six best times. They've taken it real personal and are pushing each other."

Both Wolves teams won two dual meets last week. The boys beat Lake Orion Jan. 9, 15-19 and Bloomfield Hills Lahser 10-26 on Jan. 10. The girls squad beat Orion 16-21 and Lahser 17-19.

For the boys, sophomore Jason Callahan remained undefeated and won both meets. "He's doing extremely well this season and will get better," Halsey said.

But more surprising so far has been the skiing of sophomore Chris Evans. Since the first week of the season he has gotten stronger every meet. Against Orion he finished third and took second against Lahser. "He had some bad luck early in the season but he could be one of our top racers," the coach said.

In the Orion race, junior Paul Rumph finished fourth and Kyle Russell was sixth. Against Lahser, Gary Pochmara was third and Russell fourth.

The girls squad also had strong performances last week, led by lone senior Karla Russell who took first against Orion and second against Lahser.

"She did a fantastic job and really showed that she can be a leader," said Halsey.

Rounding out the top Clarkston finishers against Orion were Heather Unsworth, second, Jennifer Trepte, fourth, and Katie Atkinson, ninth. Top finishers against Lahser were Unsworth, third and Sara Hoemke, fifth.

With little practice time in because of the weather, Halsey said he is extremely pleased with both teams' performances. "We've got a long way to go and a lot of improvements can be made, but basically we've done well so far."

By the time February rolls around Halsey said he hopes his team will be in top form. Until then, both teams face some tough upcoming meets.

The girls' biggest test will come against Cranbrook-Kingswood Jan. 30 while the boys will face off against a tough Rochester team Jan. 23.

The JV teams also have a big upcoming meet in the Don Thomas Cup.

ankles) and P.J. Vandermeer (disqualified in first round for illegal take down slam) all missed the meet.

"We were behind the winner by 30 points without any of those guys," said coach Mike DeGain. "If you put one back in, we're right there."

In a match against Troy Jan. 11, Auten and Joe DeGain didn't wrestle and the Wolves came away with a close 35-31 win. "Troy has a good team and sometimes with certain teams they match up well with you. They were second at Oakland County so it's no surprise they are good," the coach said.

The Wolves also shut out Pontiac Central, 78-0, in the tri-meet.

DeGain said regardless of the team's injuries, he's proud of the way they have all responded to the adversity in the past few weeks.

"They are overcoming things real well," he said.
"We like to win but we also can't expect some of the kids to step up and surprise us every week."

Two matches against Troy proved pivotal. Senior co-captain Corey Grant won a close overtime match and Jeremy Lafferty was in control of his match until he got caught in a headlock and was pinned.

Winning for the Wolves were: Senior co-captain Armin Michelsen (185 pounds), Jesse Laycock (126), Grant (142), Scott LaBrie (160), Vandermeer (172), Ryan Mick (112) and Brett Rebb (215).

Grant (134) and Michelsen (172) won the Detroit Catholic Central tournament, while Rebb (185) took second. Also placing high were Mick and Jeremy Lafferty in third place, Laycock, fourth and Joe Roy (142), sixth.

Auten, who broke a bone in his hand a few weeks ago, could be back in a few weeks but it may be longer, according to DeGain. Joe DeGain could be ready for the Clarkston Invitational Jan. 21 but that is also questionable.

Wrestlers of the Week

Michelsen

Lafferty

Armin Michelsen and Jeremy Lafferty are Clarkston's Wrestlers of the Week for their performances in the Detroit Catholic Central tournament.

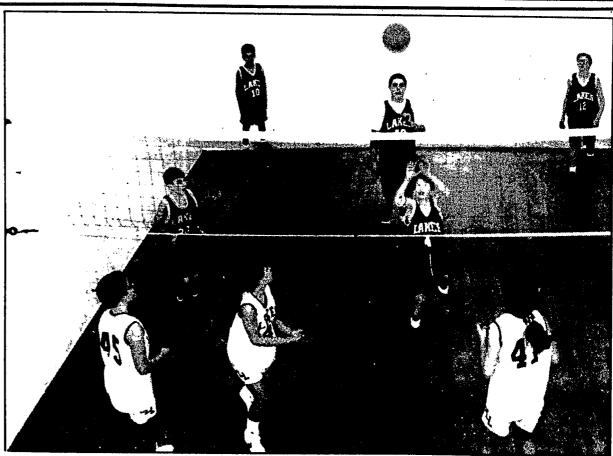

Michelsen earned his 100th career win with a first-round victory in the Jan. 14 tournament. The senior co-captain continued winning and out-wrestled five state qualifiers on his way to the tournament title.

"He won without too much problem," said his coach, Mike DeGain. "He really goes out and doesn't play around. He works hard and is real business-like. Armin is more of a technician in his style. Although he is strong his wrestling ability is his strength."

Lafferty finished a strong third place at the tournament. Coach DeGain said the Detroit tournament is one of the toughest in the state and Lafferty's performance was one of his best of the season.

"He's shown improvement all year and continues to work hard to get better," the coach said.

Struggles haunt volleyball team

BY DARREL W. COLE Clarkston News Staff Writer

Gordie Richardson says its a number of "little things" that keep his team from winning matches they should.

But the Clarkston girls volleyball coach can't figure out why his team keeps making the same mistakes over and over. At 5-6-5 overall, Richardson and his team expect much more.

Last week, the Wolves continued their inconsistent play with a Jan. 9 tri-meet loss to West Bloomfield, 8-15 and 13-15 and Holly, 10-15 and 9-15. On Jan. 12 against Royal Oak Kimball, the Wolves again fell 12-15, 15-10 and 5-15.

"We're trying to work hard and the team aren't slackers," Richardson said. "But we don't have that killer instinct. Some teams never seem to come together but our kids all get along real well. They are a great bunch of kids.

"When we get out of sync we don't seem to pull together as a team ... I'm not certain what it is yet but I don't think we've found our niche as a team."

Richardson said he's not sure if it's a lack of leadership or just not being mentally focused. But he does know that with 10 returning letter winners from last season, he didn't expect his team to be only .500.

One weakness the team has is serving. But in addition to that, Richardson said they seem to make mental mistakes at crucial times.

In the Kimball match, for example, the Wolves were tied 2-2 in one set before Kimball reeled off a 12-2 run. Eventually Kimball won, but of their 15 points, 12 came from errors on Clarkston's part.

Although Clarkston hasn't played to its potential, the opponents they have faced are no slouches either. West Bloomfield is 15-1 and Kimball checks in at 8-1-1s

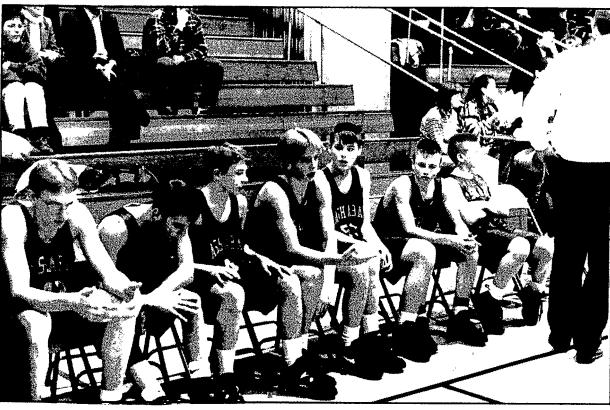

But Richardson said those records don't mean much because each time his team was just as good. "We just haven't been consistent."

Through it all, Richardson said some of his players have performed well, especially junior Nickie Winn, and senior co-captains Carey Haven and Beth Eby. Of Haven and Eby, Richardson said, "They have been steady but I think they are frustrated too because of their own play at times and the team's."

Two of the season's most improved players have been junior Lisa Herron and senior Margie McNeil.

"Lisa was outstanding in all areas last week and Margie is one of the more pleasant surprises so far this season." Richardson said. ...

The Wolves face Troy Jan. 19 in a pivotal match for both teams. After that they will compete in the Grand Blanc Invitational on Jan. 21.

Collecting turned to craving for antique dealer

BY EILEEN OXLEY Clarkston News Staff Writer

For Jon Abbott, Clarkston is not a one-horse town.

Abbott, 60, has been collecting carousel memorabilia since he first got hooked at a collectibles auction over 20 years ago.

But he admits he's always been a sucker for collectibles.

"I come from a family of pack rats. A family of savers, that's all," he quipped in typical deadpan fashion, puffing on a cigar like George Burns.

His most stunning pieces are "standers" — carved wooden carousel figures "that didn't go up and down."

He didn't know it then, but when he purchased the first figure, a horse, for his insistent wife Barbara at that auction, he had acquired a grand outer row stander carved by the prestigious Charles Looff factory. Three years later he found out during the 1974 National Carousel Association's convention in Flint

Soon he and Barbara, whom Abbott calls "the doll person and cookie jar lady" because she collects those things, were learning everything they could about antique carousels. They added other figures to their collection, not only horses, but a pig, cat, goat and "running rooster."

One of their favorite pieces is a Muller deer that currently graces the Abbott living room.

"I had it refinished. The colors are authentic. This is one of three in the world," Abbott explained proudly.

But establishing his own no-care menagerie wasn't enough. He and Barbara satisfied their antique carousel addiction by buying not one, but two full-fledged carousels. That's when the Clarkston couple Continued on 7B

A horse of a different color: Jon Abbott is proud of his stander steeds.

REAL ESTATE UPDATE

WILL TITLE DEFECT AFFECT SALE?

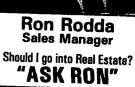

ENCUMBRANCES will not prevent a sale. They can be paid off or transferred with the title.

27 S. Main, Clarkston 625-9300

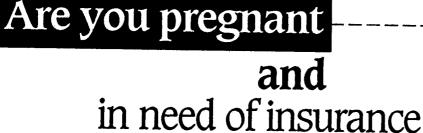

QUESTION: What is an encumbrance on the title of property and does it mean that the sale will not go through?

ANSWER: An encumbrance is any claim or charge attached to real property. It may lessen the property's value or impair its use, but it doesn't mean that the title cannot be transferred. Liens, easements, licenses or encroachments are among the most common.

A lien is a claim that provides security for repayment of a debt. Liens are usually paid and released at the closing. Easements (like a power company's right to cross a property to service electrical lines) are usually transferred with the title.

"Roomers" was an ambitious skit with a cast of 14 about a flea-bag rooming house (photos above and at right).

The world's surliest bank teller (right).

Students improvise between skits.

The influences of Monty Python's Flying Circus and Saturday Night Live were everywhere Friday as the Clarkston High School drama club presented its sixth annual Theater-a-Thon in the school audito-

There was music, there was comedy; there was the well-rehearsed skit and the improvised filler. Whatever a theater buff might have been looking for was provided by the over 30 students who worked on the production, which ran about six hours.

In one skit called simply "Money" a man walked into a bank to be greeted by the surliest of all tellers one holding a gun. However, by the end of the encounter, when he learned there were no fees, the customer had decided maybe the place wasn't so bad after all, even though the teller demanded his "personal dignity" as collateral.

Master of ceremonies Jim Territo promised no OJ Simpson jokes, and filled in admirably on the piano as an accompanist and when a little time was needed between skits. There were also raffles, and who could forget the sight of Kyle Chadrick trying to tell jokes with his mouth taped shut.

glory days is now silent except for the rustleof wind and chirping of birds.

But Abbott is still collecting.

He owns and restores Rolls Royces, has a Norman Rockwell collection, including covers from The Saturday Evening Post, and boasts authentic signatures from every US President except Bill Clinton. But that, he says, is Clinton's fault, not his.

"He's not signing ANYTHING," Jon grumbled. "I'm negotiating. I told him I'm not a dealer, I'm a collector ... "I gotta have him. I'll have to wait till he gets out of office."

His most valuable signatures are those of Washington, Lincoln and Kennedy, but Abbott notes the latter's illegible penning.

'Kennedy was such a miserable writer," he snorts, scrutinizing the framed script.

"He just scribbled — worse than a doctor."

Love of geography pays off

Tim Hess is the winner of this year's annual Geography Bee and Clarkston Middle School.

A seventh-grader, Tim said geography is his best subject. "I just look at maps when I'm bored," he said. "And I travel a lot."..."

So far his travels have included the Bahamas, Florida, Arizona and New England. But none of that could have helped him with the question that won the Bee for him—What sea do you cross to get from Poland to Sweden?

Give up? The answer is the Baltic Sea. Tim said he knew that from his map reading.

"Actually I was looking at a map the night before (the Bee). I was just looking at Europe and I just noticed it. I knew the Baltic Sea was north of Poland."

That question was one of three Tim and the runner-up were asked to answer and determine the winner of the Bee. The runner-up got two of the three questions right, missing the one about the Baltic Sea; Tim got all three right.

Since winning his school bee, Tim has taken a written test to see if he makes it into the state Bee. If he scores among the top 100 in Michigan, he moves on to the next round in Lansing.

Edison says work is done

Citing an improved service record in 1994, Detroit Edison said last week it has completed a three-year program to improve service at a cost of $236 million.

The program has cut both the number and duration of power outages, bringing the length of the average outage to 67 minutes, the company said. During the work over two million trees were trimmed to prevent branches from interfering with electrical lines.

CITY COUNCIL MEETING MINUTES JANUARY 9, 1995

The meeting was called to order at 7:35 p.m. by Mayor Catallo followed by the pledge of allegiance.

Roll: Present: Arkwright, Basinger, Catallo, Roeser, Sanderson, Schultz.

Absent: Secatch.

Moved by Arkwright, supported by Sanderson, "That the minutes of the meeting held on December 12, 1994, be approved as submitted." Motion carried.

Moved by Sanderson, supported by Arkwright, "That the agenda be accepted with the following additions: signage for the new antique shop and a closed session following the meeting to discuss pending litigation and the following deletions: asset division and appointments to the planning commission, ZBA, and the Board of Review." Motion carried.

Resolved by Basinger, supported by Sanderson, "That the bills submitted for December 1994 totaling $37,197.28 be approved for payment." Roll: Yeas-6, Nays-0. Resolution passed.

Roeser indicated that there is a limb on a tree, in the right of way, in front of 49 S Holcomb which if it falls will go through the roof. This is on a county road and if the city contacts the county there is a good possibility that they will take down the tree as opposed to trimming just the limb.

Resolved by Roeser, supported by Arkwright, "That an additional $150 be added to the previously approved $1,700 for tree trimming so the tree in front of 49 S. Holcomb can be included in this winter's tree trimming project." Roll: Yeas-6, Nays-0. Resolution passed.

Roeser indicated that he has some thoughts on the gas mileage guidelines. He will have his notes distributed with the next packet for discussion at the next meeting.

Sanderson indicated that her son Rob would do the egg mass count for Gypsy Moths to determine if the City needs to participate in a Gypsy Moth resolution program and if we would qualify for participation and partial reimbursement in the Oakland County program. Sanderson will report back at the next meeting.

Pappas indicated that he had heard from a resident on Middle Lake Road. The street light which is being covered by a blue spruce is in the right of way in front of this resident's home. It was discussed by the council at our last meeting that Detroit Edison would move the light two poles down for approximately $360. This would improve the lighting on Middle Lake Road and would preserve the tree. The resident does not want the light moved. She would like to see the top of the tree cut off to expose the current light. The matter will be discussed with Secatch at the next meeting. Pappas will call Edison to determine the cost of providing an additional light down the street.

Resolved by Sanderson, supported by Basinger, "That the Road Commission for Oakland County's resolution be adopted. See Attached." Roll: Yeas-6, Nays-0. Resolution passed.

Ryan discussed the letter regarding the recall procedure with the council. It was determined that the council was comfortable with the current recall procedure and that no action would be taken in this matter. Ryan will discuss this with Mr. Fisher when they next rneet.

Arkwright discussed the proposed schedule for the Chief of Police search. Arkwright will contact the Michigan Municipal League to determine the minimum qualifications to post in the ad. He will also determine closing publication dates for the MML and the Michigan Chiefs of Police Publication. Ads will be placed for this position and resumes will be accepted for one month after the first ad runs.

Pappas indicated that he had received seven bids on the 1991 Caprice police vehicle. The bids ranged from $300 to Resolved by Arkwright, supported by Schultz, "That the highest bid for the 1991 Caprice police vehicle be accepted. Payment is due within 5 days in American Funds in the form of a certified or cashiers check or cash. No personal checks will be accepted." Roll: Yeas-6, Nays-0. Resolution passed.

Pappas indicated that the tax collection for the schools will take place annually, in the July tax statement. He indicated that the split between the December and July statements should be Public Hearings are set for January 25, 1995 and February 27, 1995 to discuss connecting with the Independence Township water system. Pappas will contact Gary Tressel of Huble, Roth and Clark to see if an engineering representative can be present at these two meetings and to obtain sample ballot language. Selanin preparations for the Special Election.

Mrs. Lillian Bauer, retired as the Village Secretary on December 31, 1994 after 14 years. She will continue to do the gazebo rental from her home. Pappas will contact her to determine a date for her retirement party. The Mayor will select the gift.

Pappas will be moving his office from his home to the City Hall. He will be available daily from 1-3 p.m. He will get back with the council with future needs.

The sign at the new antique shop in town is out of compliance with the sign ordinance. Pappas will send a letter to the owners indicating there need to discontinue lighting the sign internally. They are entitled to apply for a variance with the ZBA.

Resolved by Roeser, supported by Basinger, "That the Council go"into closed session." Roll: Yeas-6, Nays-0. Resolution

He's got the look

Model makes it into the acting world

BY EILEEN OXLEY Clarkston News Staff Writer

He's got the Tom Cruise eyes, the Christopher Reeve grin.

But Steve Dombrowski wants to be more than just another pretty face.

He's wanted to be an actor ever since he can remember. But it took him a long time to take the plunge.

"I know I always wanted to do it, so I feel I'm sort of behind. I was very shy ... I'm STILL really shy," said Dombrowski, 22, with an easy smile.

Apparently that stage fright disappears when he's in the spotlight. He first found that out when taking a theater class at Oakland University after he graduated (cum laude) from Clarkston High School in 1990.

"It was my first chance to be on stage in that theater class. They didn't prepare the scene. They just gave it to us. Afterwards they said, 'You're pretty good,'" he said, smiling modestly.

Dombrowski figured modeling was a good stepping stone toward his desired acting career. So he left for Chicago, portfolio in hand, for a shot at success within the Windy City.

"To get into acting I thought you had to do modeling. A lot of people started that way, like Ted Danson," he said.

'I think there's a difference between performing and acting.'

Steve Dombrowski

When he showed a talent agent his portfolio he was told he "had the look" that was hot for modeling. But he was also advised to pursue his acting dream.

"They said, 'Don't worry about the print stuff— Just go for acting," Dombrowski said.

"Those were the words I needed to hear."

Soon he found himself posing for Crowley's, AT&T and Ford Motor Company. That led to commercials and bit parts in television and movies.

"People say I look about 13 there," Dombrowski said, pointing to a recent spread in a Crowley's flyer that shows his chiseled profile and back as he poses in a Michigan jacket — with longer-than-usual locks. Around him are teen boys, girls and a baby, all dressed in sporty duds. His comments dispelled any notion that modeling is always glamourous.

"I had to have that haircut. I was also in 'Unsolved Mysteries' at the time (where he played a seminary student). It was summer. I was really sweating in that jacket and that little baby wouldn't cooperate," he chuckled, shaking his head.

Dombrowski's wholesome but versatile looks have propelled him into a variety of TV and movie personas — for Henry Ford Hospital (a basketball player), New York Carpet World (an installer and shopper), Gardner White Furniture (a salesman and customer), Chevrolet (a customer) and an AIDS public service announcement (a movie patron). His most recent commercial is a racing MTV-like shot for Oakland Community College. He plays a leather-jacketed student who narrows his eyes and points to the viewer.

"Hey you, sit down and listen up! Even a guy like me knows a college education plays a real important part in your future," he growls—definitely un-shy-like.

"I'm pretty proud of it," he admits.

In films like "Zebra Head," an Oliver Stone production, he knows just when he pops up as a high school student extra.

"I say, 'There I am! I knew exactly where I was," he laughed. He also played Dabney Coleman's son in "Judicial Consent" — but never got to meet him.

"He (Coleman) gets killed. I had to be there for the trial and at the funeral. I didn't say anything," he said.

Presently Dombrowski is the star of "Been Caught Stealin'," a film by independent company Silo Productions.

"I play Rick, a thief. He's away at college. Stealing is something that makes him feel worthwhile. His roommates look up to him. After he steals something of value to one of his roommates, time stops. He's the only one that's [not frozen] — and then everything Rick touches disintegrates. It's like a lesson," he said. The movie isn't finished and Dombrowski says he gets calls occasionally, asking if he's available for continued filming.

Today, he looks out the window at the dreary snow-less afternoon.

"We have to match part of (the movie) for a fall look — right now it's perfect. Maybe I should call him (the director)," he muses.

Though Dombrowski says he's enjoying the movie, he prefers the continuity of live theater.

"It's a continous flow. You feed off what you get. With filming a movie, the camera is not a real person. It's not live, it's more technical. With theater there's a person (director) there. On stage, you do what you want to do and respond off of that. Film's harder," he said.

Dombrowski has been training and working with a Royal Oak theater group known as "The Studio Actors Group," dubbed by members as "The Studio on Washington" because it's located on Washington Avenue. This weekend he's featured in "Run, Don't Walk," a collection of four short plays by area playwrights. From the Actors Group, as well as from other theater groups and workshops, he's learned what he calls the "craft" of acting.

"I've really learned a lot ... It really teaches you to be real, not this hammy stuff. I think there's a difference between performing and acting."

In one of the short plays he portrays Billy Fields, an ex-football player. He's presently working out on the Stairmaster, "doing pushups and stuff" and lifting weights. Dombrowski's so in character that he talks as if he really IS Fields.

"Oh, I'm sorry, I thought you knew I was speaking as though I WAS Billy," he laughed, after there was some confusion as to whether he, Dombrowski, was a former football player.

"I watch football more now," he said, admitting he's never been much for sports.

"Barry Sanders, you know, he's a running back. Billy Fields is a halfback — He could have been Barry Sanders," he said, with a toothsome grin.
