Schools move to privatize some services

BY ANNETTE KINGSBURY
Clarkston News Editor

By fall, Clarkston school superintendent Gary Haner expects to have the entire student transportation department in the hands of a private contractor.

Though the concept hasn't formally come before the board of education yet, Haner is waiting for proposals from two transportation companies—Ryder and National—to give him a firm idea of how much money the district can save, perhaps as much as $250,000 a year.

The move comes after the board voted, back in December, to support a change in busing from three tiered to two tiered, to facilitate a schedule change supported by the faculty. A change to two-tiered bussing would allow all elementary schools to begin and end at a common time, likewise both middle schools.

"I know this is a point of interest on the part of the (school) board," Haner said. "I'm very confident the board is at least interested in receiving proposals."

But the change to two-tiered busing would mean a decrease in hours and benefits for bus drivers and require the district to spend about three-quarters of a million dollars expanding its bus fleet, something the district can't afford.

A new state law which takes effect April 1 allows school boards to impose privatization without agreement from the unions at the bargaining table. Public Act 112 of 1994 states that collective bargaining shall not include "The decision of whether or not to contract with a third party for one or more noninstructional support services; or the procedures for obtaining the contract; or the identity of the third party; or the impact of the contract on individual employees or the bargaining unit."

"I know there are a lot of districts in this process now," Haner said. "The legislature put school districts in control with that legislation."

Transportation employees were stunned by the news. Several spoke about a meeting between Haner and the staff on condition of anonymity.

"As soon as he said the word 'privatize' nobody said a word," said one employee. "It was a pretty wild meeting. There were some angry people."

"This is not the first time privatization has been mentioned," another employee said. "It was mentioned a year ago. This time it was more than mentioned; it was a threat . . . This is big time; we can't stop it, I'm sure. But I feel the public needs to know."

Haner said he felt the meetings he had with the transportation department and other employees went well.

"Bear in mind they (the transportation department) are the ones that have been told they probably won't be working for us next year," he said.

Some of the details

- In addition to privatizing the transportation department, Clarkston school superintendent Gary Haner is hoping to privatize the management of the building, grounds and maintenance department as well. Two companies, Marriott and Servicemaster, have been invited to submit informal proposals. If the change is made, supervisor Dave Blehm would be the only employee displaced, Haner said. Blehm has been promised a job with the district if he's not hired by the contractor to continue as manager.

- Transportation supervisor Kevin Bickerstaff has been guaranteed a job for two years with the district. All other transportation employees will have an opportunity to interview for jobs with the contractor.

- The change is expected to take place this fall.

- Advertised bidding has not taken place. Rather, several companies were asked to submit informal proposals. They have been narrowed down to two for maintenance and two for transportation. When proposals come in they will be reviewed by a committee.

- Benefits of privatization include cost savings and increased efficiency for the school district. The estimated cost of retirement contributions for the transportation department alone was $136,188 this year. Employees will have to face the interviewing process with a new company and loss of their state retirement.

Summer preview

Clarkston Middle School eighth-graders Brian Welbourn (left) and Ben Gray got their skateboards out for a little sidewalk surfin' one day last week. With the ice finally gone and the temperatures soaring, last week was a great time for just enjoying the out-of-doors.

The news in brief

B&B wins again

The City of Clarkston has lost another round in court over a proposed bed and breakfast on North Main Street.

The city's request to Oakland County Circuit Court Judge Hilda Gage that she reverse her judgement of Sept. 26 in favor of the bed and breakfast was turned down March 13. Gage's ruling overturned a Clarkston zoning board of appeals decision to deny owners Buck and Joan Kopietz a continued non-conforming use for their property. The Kopietzes bought the property in 1991.

City attorney Tom Ryan said he will recommend to city council at the next meeting on March 27 that the city take the case to the Michigan Court of Appeals. But Joan Kopietz said their Waterford-based attorney Phillip Adkison has advised them to "get your house done, get your final inspection and apply for an occupancy permit." Kopietz added that she is "optimistic" and "looking at having the bed and breakfast in a month."

Springfield clean-up day

Springfield Township will host a clean-up day on Saturday, April 29 from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Springfield Oaks Youth Activity Center, 12451 Andersonville Rd. Verification of township property ownership or residency is required to take part. Fees will be $1 per car, $5 for a pickup truck and $10 for larger trucks.

For more information call John Lamberton at 625-4802 or 634-3111.

OCC millage fails

The one-mill increase sought by Oakland Community College went down to defeat at the polls last week, 22,969 to 18,555. Voters in the Clarkston school district were overwhelmingly opposed to the millage, voting 1,090-598 against it.

Bicyclist hurt

A 13-year-old Clarkston boy was in stable condition Monday at Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital after being struck by a car while crossing Clintonville Rd. with his bicycle Sunday.

The boy, the driver and a witness told an Oakland County Sheriff's deputy that the boy didn't look for traffic before crossing the street. The driver of the car, a Clarkston man, said he braked hard but was unable to avoid the collision.

Accident site familiar

The Oakland County Sheriff's Department is investigating a serious injury accident which occurred March 16 at the exact same site as a fatal accident January 9.

Frank Robledo, a 35-year-old from Allen Park, was injured when the pickup truck he was driving eastbound on Maybee Rd. went off the south side of the road. The truck came back on the road, crossed over the center line and struck a westbound van driven by Dean Werre, 45 of Rochester Hills, manager of the Clarkston Damman Hardware store. Both drivers were injured. The Independence Township Fire Department also put out a fire in the van's engine compartment.

As of Tuesday, Werre had been transferred out of the intensive care unit at Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital and was in stable condition. Robledo was discharged from the hospital March 18.

On January 9 a passenger in a Blazer was killed after the vehicle was hit broadside, but police believe alcohol was a factor in that accident.

Dying with dignity

Hospice volunteers ease the pain for patients and families

First in a series

BY EILEEN OXLEY
Clarkston News Staff Writer

She is 86 years old and short of breath. Congestive heart failure keeps her on oxygen most of the time.

She has had a full life, raising eight children, singing with her husband and coordinating plays at the Pontiac Church of God.

But now Martha Bennett is nearing the end of her long productive life. And her family wants to be with her, making the most of the time remaining.

That's why her daughter, Peggy Riggs, has chosen hospice, a home-based health care system that meets the needs of both family and patient.

"In October she still lived in Allen Park in her apartment. She was very ill and had lost a lot of weight," Peggy said. "We wanted to bring her here."

That's when Bennett's doctor stepped in and inquired about hospice. He was referred to Cranbrook Hospice Care in Bloomfield Township. The concept sounded very appealing to Peggy and her husband John.

"A nurse came out and interviewed us. It's been wonderful for the care and help. Even if we had to call in the middle of the night, they would be there for us. With different things going on with her heart and pulse, it was really scary for me at first. They've been so reassuring," Peggy said.

Hospice, a concept for end-of-life care for the terminally ill, is growing in number and popularity. Nationally, it has more than doubled since 1983, with 150 new programs being added each year.

The emphasis is on care, not cure, and focuses on pain and symptom management. Staffs composed of physicians, nurses, social workers, clergy, home health aides and volunteers collaborate on an individualized plan that meets the patient's needs. And both patient and family are included in the decision-making process.

"I think the real goal of hospice is to allow people to live as comfortably and independently as possible in the time they have left, surrounded by those they love, in the place on their choosing," Nancy McHugh, volunteer supervisor for Cranbrook Hospice, said.

"Hospice focuses on life, not death. And the role the volunteers play is so crucial in a program like ours. We're able to provide a much greater level of support because the role of volunteers is to enhance the quality of life for both the patient and the family."

Candy Cruz (left) shares some humor with Martha Bennett, whom she visits as a hospice volunteer each week. The hospice staff functions like a SWAT team for the terminally ill. Nurse Diane Scafidi is at right.

Two of those volunteers, Clarkston residents Chris Kevern and Candy Cruz, help the family of Martha Bennett in Ortonville. They come and go with their respective schedules. A couple of weeks ago they met for the first time, during an interview at Carol's Village Grill in Clarkston.

"Hi!" said Cruz, an energetic woman with a perky ponytail. She hugged her fellow volunteer. "Did you finish that baby sweater? I see your name on the schedule."

Both Cruz and Kevern have lost dear friends. That's one of the reasons they were drawn to hospice.

"I had a dear friend who died and I was impressed with the (hospice) program," Kevern, a former home economics teacher, said. "It was so family-centered—whatever the family needed ... I read an article in a brochure and said, 'I'd like to do this, get involved.'"

But Cruz's experience wasn't so wonderful.

"I also had a dear friend that died. We were not aware of hospice. She died in the hospital, not where she wanted to be."

Cruz, who had nursing aspirations, attended a cancer-care conference at Michigan State University and connected with Cranbrook Hospice, which was represented. It definitely provided the catalyst. Now Cruz is in her final year of nursing school at Oakland University — and her goal is to become a hospice nurse.

"Hospice was the reason I decided to go back to school," she said.

"It's not only a neat program — it's a needed program," adds Kevern.

Kevern spends Mondays with Bennett and Cruz, Thursdays. During the day home health care aides and nurses also arrive to provide their services. John Riggs, whom Peggy describes as "a wonderful house-husband," is there most of the time. But sometimes he needs a break. That's when volunteers provide respite, another hospice offering.

As volunteers, Kevern and Cruz do whatever is needed to make Bennett's life more comfortable — and enjoyable.

"She finishes eating breakfast and I take her to the bathroom and then back into her wheelchairs and into the family room to her recliner. She'll ask for a pillow under her feet, a lap robe and a pillow at her back. She very often dozes," Kevern says.

"I must talk too much, because she sleeps for 20 minutes when I'm there," jokes Cruz.

Both Cruz and Kevern connect with her also.

Bennett and Kevern share a love of stitchery, and though Bennett no longer sews (she used to make all her children's clothes), she loves to hear about Kevern's knitting. And she and Cruz share a love for animals — and humor.

"They're always laughing when I come in. They share a lot of humor together. They're always cackling before I leave," John said.

"When everybody started coming out, it was very confusing. There were all these people," Peggy said. "Mom picked up on Candy right away. The nurses are nice and, of course, the doctor comes out ... but the volunteers — it takes a gifted person to do this kind of work."

"I enjoy seeing all of them," Bennett said. "They don't act like they're afraid of me or anything."

The Riggs feel secure that their beloved mother is in good hands, allowing her to live the rest of her days in dignity and comfort. Allowing them to be a part of her life.

"I don't even know how hospice began, but it's God-sent," Peggy said.

"When you're in this situation, you think, 'My God, what am I going to do.' And they show up. It's been a blessing to all of us."

4 levels of hospice care

Hospice is a covered benefit under Medicare, Medicaid, Blue Cross/Blue Shield of Michigan and many private insurance plans. It follows a design that includes four levels of care:

Routine home care: Care is provided in a patient's own home or a home-like setting, such as a nursing home with which the hospice agency has a contract.

General in-patient care: Care is temporarily transferred to a hospital or nursing home setting when the patient's symptoms cannot be managed at home. Once the crisis has passed the patient returns home.

Respite in-patient care: Care is provided in a nursing home (under contract) when family members or the primary care give need relief.

Continuous care: Round-the-clock nursing care is available for several days when symptoms have gotten severe and require continuous care to get them under control.

Trash haulers ready for new law

Leaves, grass no longer accepted at state landfills

BY ANNETTE KINGSBURY
Clarkston News Editor

Nothing signals the changing of the seasons more than the smell of burning leaves. To some it's a sweet smell, to others an allergic nightmare.

But there's something a bit different about this spring. The state of Michigan will no longer allow leaves, grass clippings and other yard debris to be accepted at landfills and incinerators. And in the city of Clarkston, burning of yard wastes is illegal, though it's allowed in Independence Township on certain days. Will the ban on landfills mean more burning? Local officials don't seem to think so.

Art Pappas, city manager of Clarkston, said the city is making no special plans for dealing with leaves and grass clippings because independent trash haulers seem to have it under control. He's already been notified by his own trash company, Smith Disposal, as to how to handle yard wastes under the new law.

Both Smith Disposal and Clarkston Disposal will continue to collect leaves, grass and brush, but some new rules must go into effect to separate them from the rest of the household trash.

Clarkston Disposal is telling customers they must bag leaves and grass in clear plastic bags, according to dispatcher Rob Lipset.

"We're going to offer composting services," Lipset said. The company, which was recently bought by Sanifill Corp. of Houston, owns Citizens Landfill in Grand Blanc where yard wastes will be accepted for composting April through November.

Brush must be cut to five-foot lengths and tied in bundles. Any clear plastic bag will do for the leaves and grass. And lest anyone think they can sneak one by the trash collectors, "They'll be able to tell by the weight" of the bag, Lipset said. "We actually face fines if we dump them in landfills."

At Smith Disposal the same system will be in effect. Smith will also sell biodegradable clear bags to its customers. The yard wastes will be taken to the Highland Township compost yard, according to manager Ken Smith.

"If there is any compost mixed in the dark bags it will be left at the curb," Smith said.

Both companies are holding the line on prices until they see how things work out, even though they will be sending extra trucks out onto the street.

"We're in a bind because we really don't know what it's going to be like," Smith said. "Whenever you have to send an extra truck out it's costly."

Both companies said they've been receiving many phone calls from customers concerned about the new law.

Composting workshop

The Eastern Michigan Environmental Action Council's meeting March 28 will feature a talk on composting.

The talk will address the fact that beginning March 28, Michigan landfills and incinerators will no longer accept yard waste, based on a new state law. The meeting begins at 7:30 p.m. at the Cranbrook Institute of Science. Reservations are not required but are appreciated; call (810) 258-5188.

"I think it needs to be done," Smith said. "If compost can be used in other areas it should. The problem is there are not a whole lot of compost sites. And then there's the cost factor."

Last year, Smith said, dropping off material for composting was more expensive than taking it to a landfill. Still, he's philosophical.

"Any time you can reuse something and keep it out of a landfill we should be encouraging it." He hopes more people will buy mulching lawn mowers and help curtail the problem.

Meanwhile, in Independence Township, residents will continue to be allowed to burn on the first and third Tuesday, Thursday and weekend each month. The township doesn't offer any composting program of its own because of cost.

"We've been looking into it but I don't visualize it for quite some time," said Linda Richardson of the Independence Township DPW. "Being a small municipality, you'd almost have to get six or seven townships together."

At one time the fire department was considering a ban on all open burning, said fire chief Gar Wilson. A committee of residents and fire officials came up with a compromise plan to limit burning to eight days a month. That allows people who have allergy or other breathing problems to go away for the day if necessary.

"I've noticed a big change in the air around here," Wilson said. "What people are doing is coming up with less and less that they have to dispose of... People are more conscious now."

Health-o-Rama returns

Health-o-Rama, a free health screening day, will make its annual visit to Independence Township Friday, March 31 at Church of the Resurrection on Clarkston Road across from the Independence Township Library.

Site coordinator Mary Jane Chaustowich said a wide variety of health services will be available, including blood pressure, vision, dental and height and weight screening. Some additional services are available for a nominal charge.

For $15, patients can have a 22-part blood panel of tests, including cholesterol, glucose, good and bad cholesterol, hemoglobin, and kidney and liver functions. For $25, men over 40 can have the prostate PSA blood test. "It's to men what a mammogram is to women," Chaustowich said. There is also a take-home kit to test for colo-rectal cancer for $5.

"If there is something noticeable in your blood tests they call you and tell you to get to your doctor immediately," Chaustowich said. "In most cases you get your results back in two weeks."

Health-o-Rama hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. It is a popular event and is especially busy in the early hours, Chaustowich said. She advises avoiding coming in the first hour. The blood tests only require a four-hour fast, she said.

Man stable after fire

Investigators checking whether oxygen tanks contributed to fire

BY ANNETTE KINGSBURY
Clarkston News Editor

A 52-year-old Independence Township man was in fair condition Monday at the University of Michigan Hospital recovering from burns he received when his house caught fire March 15.

Ronald Strevel, who was already ill before the fire, was burned "from his chin to his knees," according to a report filed by the Oakland County Sheriff's Department, which is investigating the blaze at a log home on North Eston Rd. Strevel was on liquid oxygen at the time of the fire, but investigators are not saying yet whether the oxygen was the cause of the blaze.

Strevel's wife, Sandra, 45, was treated for smoke inhalation at Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital. She told police she heard a noise from the living room, where a hospital bed was set up for her husband. She then heard him call her, and when she entered the room she found him on the floor with his pajamas on fire. The air mattress on his hospital bed was also on fire. She threw a blanket over him to try to put out the flames, then attempted to drag him outside. Two other people helped get the couple out of the house.

"We know the fire originated at the bed," said OCSD fire investigator Jim Lehtola. He said both residents smoked, but Ronald Strevel had reportedly not smoked since a recent hospitalization on a respirator. Mrs. Strevel told police she only smoked outside. Oxygen tanks are considered a fire risk should a spark or flame occur.

Independence Township Fire Chief Gar Wilson said one oxygen tank in the house exploded, providing more fuel for the fire. The wood house was also highly varnished. Two hours after the fire was reported, only a brick chimney and some of the charred logs remained of the home, which a neighbor estimated was built in the 1940s.

Two hours after a fire was reported at this home on North Eston, this was all that remained.

Bands score a quadruple

Clarkston High School took four bands to this year's annual district band festival and may have set a record.

According to director of bands Cliff Chapman, all four bands received Division I ratings, the highest available. He thinks it's the first time it's been done by one school under one director.

"We're very proud of that," Chapman told the board of education at its March 13 meeting. He said the band was accompanied by many parents.

"The arena of parent support, school support in the community is broad. It goes with us as it does with the (athletic) teams."

Assistant superintendent Dave Reschke, said he and his family spent Saturday, March 11, speeding from a varsity basketball playoff win to the band festival. Each was in a different city.

"As a Clarkston resident I was just beaming," Reschke said. "If we would just watch our kids, the community has so much to be proud of."

Pulling the trigger

Two lives shattered.

And, like the ripples resulting from a stone thrown in the water, other lives affected.

Family, friends, you, me.

All because somebody snapped.

John Schmitz apparently reached his breaking point after being ambushed on the "Jenny Jones" show by Scott Amedure, a homosexual who claimed to have a crush on him.

Three days after the show's taping, he allegedly shot Amedure after finding a provocative note on his door.

Are we, the TV audience, guilty as well?

The fatal shooting of Amedure has raised many questions. And, alas, like many misfortunes in life, no one has the answers.

But most people have at least grappled with the possibility that the talk show was partially responsible.

I'm one of them.

By insulting our intelligence and feeding us smut, they have made us unwilling—and unwitting—participants in events that shape people's very lives.

They and we have turned us into victims as well.

Because we choose to watch, as much as Schmitz chose to kill.

How many guests have undergone therapy, divorce, beatings—and now murder—because we can't get enough of this sleaze?

We're addicted to it and we're hypnotized by the exaggerated, the obscene, the unparalleled, the gaudy.

More than that, we're manipulated.

By supporting Jenny Jones, Jerry Springer, Rolonda and other tasteless programs by our viewing, we are conditioned, like Pavlov's dogs, to salivate every time we see the tease of commercials.

And we channel surf until we find the most tantalizing.

"You had sex with her mother, your cousin, her best friend—AND you tested HIV positive?" gushes the host in mock horror between the mid-day news and the afternoon's first soap opera. Whetting our appetites on another station is a hostess informing us that, if we tune in at 3 p.m., we can learn what it's like to be the child-of-a-biker-living-a-life-of-promiscuity-on-the-road.

"What's next?" said a fellow reporter last week, joking about a future topic, wearily. "Talk show hosts interviewing sleazy talk show hosts?"

Many gay activists think the murder took place over the hatred of homosexuals. But I don't think so. I think you could pit just about any group against its weak impulsive moment, and—voilà—you have the murder of an innocent man.

Believe me, I'm not condoning Schmitz's actions. I'm saying he's responsible for them.

But perhaps we helped him pull the trigger.

And, though spokespersons for "Jenny Jones" say those guests targeted on the show were informed that their secret admirer might be male or female, I can't help feeling the show's partly to blame—for its lack of ethics and love of greed.

If you tune in to these programs on a regular basis, you may be guilty as well.

If so, I can only hope you're tossing and turning in your sleep—along with "Jenny Jones."

Letters to the editor

School pool expensive, dangerous

I believe a swimming pool in the school system would be extremely expensive and could be a nightmare.

I feel the school system doesn't seem to be able to keep our school structures in good condition, much less maintain a pool at the high school, too. And how much more of an expense would be incurred if a pool is built? Would the school system want a drowning because of an unsupervised pool?

I feel for the age of our high school building it is in sad shape. I really don't understand where all the upgrading monies go. I feel the money apparently is not being spent wisely.

And as for needing a school pool for rehab, our son broke his femur in an accident in 1973 when he just turned 13. He was in traction for one full month and then in a body cast for two-and-one-half months. We purchased a bicycle rear wheel stand for $19.95 and made his bicycle into an exercise bike to build strength back into both of his legs.

Since the accident he has hiked Philmont Boy Scout Camp, played competitive team baseball, many times rode in two-day bike rides for charity, did a lot of mountain biking in Colorado when he lived in Denver, does downhill skiing and cross-country skiing.

Thanks for being a helping hand

What a changing world we live in, and with those changes come challenges every day. Young people are shooting each other in our streets; our government and the business community are struggling to define responsibilities for healthcare coverage; young adults entering the workforce are not adequately educated and prepared for available jobs.

What a comfort it is to know that we have an organization like United Way of Oakland County to help us along the way. No matter what our situation, if we are poor, if we are ill, if we are comfortable or healthy, United Way has a way for us to give help or get help.

Your donation will touch one in four Oakland County residents. It will help hundreds of children in need of guidance, or food, or a place to feel safe while parents are at work.

When we reach out to one individual, we embrace all humanity. When we open the eyes of one child, we broaden the possibilities of every generation. When we lift the burden of one family, we raise the hopes of our entire community.

Thank you for being one of our helping hands.

Sincerely,
Tom Kimble

Or, do you, too, have thoughts like:

- I wish the cyberspacers, technocrats, etc would invent a television clicker that would allow us to fast-forward live newscasts past O J, anything to do with the other Simpsons as well as Roseanne and all baseball "news."

- Those cardboard advertisements in the pages of magazines are getting more plentiful and more annoying. Same for those illegitimately folded sheets that wrap halfway around comics in Sunday papers.

- No one, no matter what he or she might tell you, has a clue to where the information superhighway is going. It's like those who lead us down that highway are the same people who recommend buying stocks just before a company goes into bankruptcy.

- Pay-in-advance gas stations are a pain to avoid, there is more junk mail than ever and turkey sold in the supermarket deli never tastes like leftovers from the Thanksgiving bird.

- Driving on re-newed and upgraded roads, like Silverbell and Waldon, is a pleasant experience. The work of the engineers, contractors and inspectors really shines in the finished product. They blend so well we immediately forget what the roads were like before.

- Weekend days seem to last only about half as long as workdays leaving us without the planned fishing, golf, tennis or movie trip.

- Isn't it amazing how many gambling dollars there are? The get-rich-quick disease is so very contagious, yet the cure is as easy as looking at bankruptcy figures or talking to addicted poor.

- You don't suppose all these lads who wear their baseball hats backwards are concerned with getting "farmer's neck," you know, wrinkled and leathery? Nah!

- Let's all get together and tell restaurant owners to not re-fill catsup bottles more than three-quarters full. And, they should pound out a quarter of each bottle, like we have to, when they bring out new full bottles.

- One more suggestion for restaurateurs: cut your expenses by not buying parsley for looks. My eggs and sausage look just fine without the greenery. Put parsley on the menu and see how many order it. Then chefs will know exactly how their customers feel about their "bit of green."

- Before you scoff at China's establishing a sperm bank for yaks, realize these banks expect to return $1.06 million to the economy in six years. Yuck it up for yaks.

A look back

15 YEARS AGO (1980)

Parental protest is the focus at a public hearing Monday night. A proposed boundary change that would affect about 180 Clarkston school district pupils draws heated comments. The boundary changes are tentatively approved and designed to get sixth graders out of Clarkston Junior High and back into elementary schools.

The last remains of the local police, the animal control officer, is voted to go at last week's Independence Township board meeting. Citing high expenses, the board decides to rely on services provided by Oakland County Animal Control. The office will end June 30.

The newly formed Wolverine Wrestling club seeks members for the free-style organization. Clarkston High School wrestling coach Rick Detkowski says the club is open to ninth- through twelfth-graders and will help anyone who is planning to wrestle for the high school in the future.

25 YEARS AGO (1970)

The Clarkston Village Council goes on the record at its Monday night meeting, favoring an alley near the west end of the parking lot at Washington and Main. If approved, it will most likely be a 20-ft. right-of-way running directly north from the Washington street lot entrance and would continue to the north line. Two parking places in the lot would have to be eliminated.

Clarkston High School's varsity debate team goes all the way to regional competition in its 1969-70 season. This year's topic is "Resolved: congress should prohibit United States unilateral military intervention in foreign countries." The team's coach is Allen Bartlett.

Only village clerk Art Pappas will receive an increase in pay next year, going from $600 to $720 a month. The Village Council decides his position is probably the only one that has had an increase in work load during the year. All other elected officials' salaries remain the same.

50 YEARS AGO (1945)

Clarkston will host an Achievement Day for 4-H clubs on March 28. Rochester's Adams School will host one the day before. Nearly 500 boys and girls will attend who have worked on projects that include Clothing, Handicraft, Victory and Conservation.

Two big features are presented at the Holly Theatre: "Ever Since Venus," starring Hugh Herbert, Ann Savage and Glenda Farrell and "Bermuda Mystery," featuring Preston Foster and Ann Rutherford. "Till We Meet Again," with Ray Milland and Maureen O'Hara, is playing at the Drayton, along with "Sons of the Desert," starring Laurel and Hardy.

This week Kroger's offers sirloin steak at 38 cents a pound, Sunkist oranges, five pounds for 54 cents, Kroger's Spotlight Coffee, a three-pound bag for 59 cents, and two loaves of Kroger's Clock Bread for 19 cents.

60 YEARS AGO (1935)

"Spooks," a mystery farce in three acts, is presented by The Junior Play of Class of 1936 in the Clarkston High School Auditorium on Friday, March 29. The cast of characters includes Bartlett Mann, Eileen Johnson, Erma Conklin, Clare Rasmuson and Duane Hursfall.

Motion pictures playing at the Holly Theatre include Robert Young and Betty Furness in "The Band Played On," Jackie Coogan and Randolph Scott in "Home on the Range," Gary Cooper and Franchot Tone in "The Lives of a Bengal Lancer" and Shirley Temple in "The Little Colonel."

Saturday specials at Waterbury's feature fresh side pork, 21 cents a pound, a dozen cans of Armour's Pork and Beans for 55 cents and pink salmon, two cans for a quarter. Waterbury's delivers twice daily, at 11 a.m. and 3:30 p.m.

Surprise gift for wife nipped in bud

Of the several gifts I gave my wife on her recent birthday, she was most grateful for — and surprised by — the single red rose I handed her in our motel room. Which was embarrassing for me, because there was a slight misunderstanding. Maybe not so slight.

Misunderstandings happen. Earlier that same day, in fact, our daughter Ferd had misunderstood a huge newspaper headline that caught her eye from across a room.

"At first I thought it said 'Bombs Get Fired' and, because the type was so big, and the headline was on the top of the front page, I thought it was the start of World War III," Ferd said.

How silly. Bombs aren't fire, they're dropped. TV anchors get fired. The headline said: "Bonds Gets Fired."

In my archives, there are several front pages from the 1941 week when the United States entered World War II. None of the headlines are much bigger than the ones that Detroit's two daily newspapers gave Bill Bonds for being fired by Channel 7 for drunken driving.

Which, in view of today's cultural climate, isn't really surprising, of course. What's really surprising is that last week, when Oprah Winfrey bravely revealed she used cocaine about 20 years ago, stores were not closed and flags were not lowered nationwide.

Now, let's return to the celebration of my young wife's birthday. I began the day by personally encouraging our great-granddaughter and youngest grandson to rip open my beautifully-wrapped gift of clothing that was shopped for and wrapped by Ferd because shopping and wrapping make her father's socks shrivel. My wife said thanks a lot.

For dinner, I took her to Hemingway's, a West Bloomfield Township bar and restaurant that is most easily reached by being born there. But it was worth the map reading and wrong turning because the evening's marvelous entertainment was provided by an old friend who left Detroit in favor of northern exposure several years ago.

I mean Phil Marcus Esser, once the Detroit area's favorite folk singer and provider of great musical shows (remember his wondrous Jacques Brel production with Barbara Bredius?). Esser is done producing resort entertainment in the Traverse City area and has moved to Livonia with his wife, Susan, who continues as Ross Perot's chief representative in Michigan.

Phil plans to work days for FOCUS: Hope and sing nights nearer, my God, to thee and me. He's at Hemingway's Thursday through Saturday until April.

Esser is the only strummer who can play the right kind of guitar to go with his voice and choice of songs. My wife thanked me with a kiss for bringing her and Phil together again for her birthday. I pretended to be embarrassed by her gratitude.

Moving on to the nearest motel, there was the rose incident, and the embarrassment was real.

After visiting the bathroom, I handed her the rose, apologizing that it was artificial. She said she didn't care. She said she could hardly believe that I went out and bought her a single rose for her birthday. She said that was much more romantic than ordering a dozen delivered by a florist.

I said gosh, it was really nothing. She gave me a big hug. I said there was something I had to ask her. She smiled and said go ahead.

My question went like this: I don't travel a lot. Do all Holiday Inns, or only the one in Bloomfield Hills, put an artificial red rose inside the extra roll of toilet paper?

Don't Rush Me

By Don Rush

Arbitrary and useless thoughts

The only problem with getting new carpeting is that it's new carpeting.

Just when you get comfortable with the old stuff, it is time to get new stuff. We just had carpeting put down in the room we remodeled -- it's berber (?) carpeting, whatever the heck that is.

Now that we have the new carpeting, it has to be treated as such. You just can't walk across it. You have to stop at the entrance way, slip off your shoes, then proceed.

You can't just sit down on the floor with a bowl of spaghetti and enjoy it while you watch the evening news. You have to be very, very conscious of what you're about to embark on, and the fact that you may spill or splat tomato sauce.

You also have to block the entrance off so the dog doesn't track mud in there.

It is not very relaxing. It looks good, but it's hard to enjoy like the old stuff. I know our canine friend Mickey doesn't like the fact she can't sniff around in there.

As the years go by I'll surely come to accept it and even get used to it . . . and right about then it will be time to replace it. Sometimes there is no justice in this world.

Sometimes I find it amazing what politicians will say, just to be partisan. Recently a Democrat congresswoman, expressing her opposition to welfare reform, said that this new Republican congress is making life too hard on kids. She added something to the effect that America is now the land where we "eat our" young.

Give me a break. When I saw that on television, I wanted to ask her where that is happening?

About this school lunch controversy, how come everybody says the Republicans are cutting the amount of money spent? They have actually planned a 4.5% increase in spending on this program -- this is, however, less of an increase than the Democrat controlled congress planned (and less than a percentage point from the increase in the president's budget).

Also, what's wrong with the states being in control of their school lunch programs. As it is, about 2/3 of every dollar spent by the federal government on welfare goes to bureaucrats, 1/3 to those who need help. It seems to me that if the states were in control there would be a little more accountability to the people. Maybe we can get that number up to 50/50.

Parents will not let their kids go hungry and if the state messes up, those in charge will be in the parents' sight.

Politicians like being politicians and the more local the more accountable they are. If they want to continue to politic, they'll watch their "Ps" and carrots.

CHS life by Amber Gebrowsky

A meal fit for a king

Imagine that you have just finished an extravagant, 12-course meal. Your palate has experienced many different flavors, some delicious, some slightly unpleasant. Overall, however, the meal was a success. Your stomach is full, and a smile plays upon your lips.

Removing the slightly soiled linen napkin from your lap, you are ready to leave the table. However, one thing must happen before you can go. You must pay the bill.

If I compare the 12 courses of this meal to my 12 years of education, I reach the conclusion that senior year is the time to savor that after-dinner mint and request my check. As I look around at those sitting at the table with me, I realize one thing: this dinner, this senior year, is expensive.

As I move toward the end of the school year, more and more dollar signs begin to flash before my eyes. It seems as if almost every time I turn around, there is something else to buy. Every now and then, I'm tempted not to turn around any more.

I think it really all began last summer, with the flood of college brochures that filled my mailbox on a regular basis. If you have not had this exciting experience, BEWARE. My mailbox, which once seemed innocent enough, almost became my worst enemy. There were days when I easily received more than a dozen pieces of mail from colleges. I wouldn't be surprised if I ended up with enough paper to equal a small rain forest.

All those college brochures meant one thing: college applications. And college applications meant one more thing: processing fees. While I'm sure there were at least 20 colleges I was interested in, I quickly realized that I needed to be a little more selective with my choices. Financing my college education would be plenty--financing a slew of applications would be a bit much.

Throughout the rest of the fall, there were senior pictures to pay for, a cap and gown deposit, Homecoming and senior sweatshirts.

Moving on to second semester, there were graduation announcements to order. This is no simple task, mind you. Besides the announcements, there are name cards, open house cards, thank-you notes, and more envelopes than you can ever imagine. The cost of all these quickly adds up.

Now, as spring approaches there are more things to pay for. AP exams cost $72 per exam, which is incredibly expensive if you are taking three or four tests. Spring break is just around the corner, another expense for students who plan to travel. Prom isn't far off either, with money needed for tickets, apparel, hair and nail appointments and flowers.

Then there will be open house expenses, and throughout the summer I'll need to gather things for college. If only I had been born with a last name like Rockefeller . . . maybe this wouldn't seem so overwhelming.

Still, this isn't a meal I would have traded for anything. As I get ready to leave the table, I find myself reflecting on one of the best meals I have ever had. Every now and then, I tasted a little something I didn't like, but for the most part, everything was cooked to perfection.

Expensive as it was, the food was good. I'd like to speak to the chef and get a few of the recipes. And for the waitress, I can guarantee a generous tip.

Ask the therapist by Stan Garwood, MA, MSW, DCSW

Dear Mr. Garwood:

I've recently moved in with my boyfriend, and my mother, who is very religious, disapproved of this decision. Since I've told her she has not contacted me by phone or mail so I have tried to call her several times and she refuses to talk to me. We were once very close and therefore I am concerned that this will ruin our relationship. I am 26 years old and feel I am both mature and responsible enough to make such a commitment to my boyfriend. How can I make her see that this was not a decision meant to hurt her but one to make me happy?

Signed,
Missing Mom

Apparently, your mother is upset with your decision. This is brought home to you through her actions of avoidance and withdrawal. If your mother was willing to verbalize her feelings, she might state her disappointment, how fearful she is of you getting hurt, or how wrong she considers co-habiting without benefit of marriage.

In your interpretation of her actions you express the belief that she has taken it personally. Without further information, I cannot comment on this. However, if by chance, your mother feels disappointed in your judgment and/or that it is wrong morally, present your view to her in written or auditory form. Write her a letter or record your message on a cassette tape. Let her know you wish to discuss it further, with emphasis on her being provided the opportunity to present "her side."

If and when she responds, encourage the expression of feelings, especially any disappointment, concern, etc. Let her know you respect her views. Work to get her to see your maturity, adult chronological age and need for you to direct your life, wrong or right. You are responsible for your decisions and will live with their consequences. You, like your mother, will make mistakes in this world. We all do! What's important is that we learn from them.

If your mother worries about you getting hurt, describe the precautions you have taken toward preventing this. Normally, you wouldn't have to do this if your mother knows you well enough. However, anything you say will help to reassure her and thus, reduce her anxiety.

Time may be the "order of the day" while you're patiently awaiting her response. Allow her the necessary space and interval for her to assimilate what she has heard and then the courage to respond. You may want to try an "intermediary." This person could be a family member, e.g., aunt, sister, or a friend to break the deadlock by reaching out to your mother, helping her vent some and encouraging her to work it through.

In the end, mom needs to "let it go." She must come to the realization you are not attempting to hurt her and that your living style should not influence her relationship with you.

Good luck in reaching your mother and recementing your relationship.

Have a problem you'd like Stan Garwood to discuss? Write him at 5854 S. Main St., Clarkston, MI 48346.

Was a talk show to blame fore Scott Amedure's murder?

JILL GOSS, CLARKSTON: Yes. I think it's sad that the talk shows have gotten so sleazy and competitive with others. I get tired of turning on the TV and hearing these things that are nobody's business.

KEN PETERSON, CLARKSTON: No, I don't think they're responsible. It was the actions of the individual who did the shooting. He made the choice.

MICHAEL KRIEGER, ROYAL OAK: No. I think people are responsible for their actions, but I don't think it would have happened without the appearance on the talk show ... Rather than buying a gun, I'd ask the person to leave me alone.

BOBBI GILBERT, WATERFORD: I don't think so. But I think the talk shows are out of order, that the shows will do anything for ratings and money.

LISA DUNLAP, ROYAL OAK: No, but actually I think the talk show brought it to a head. It probably would have happened anyway because a lot of people are homophobic in this world.

An independent consultant said the district can expect to save $250,000 a year by privatizing the transportation department. The plan will only be abandoned if it isn't economically sound, Haner said.

"The driver here is money, on two counts. Will it save us money, period? And secondly, we are building in the proposal for two-tier busing. We cannot afford two-tier busing within our present resources."

Haner said private companies have several advantages over school districts in providing transportation. They buy large fleets of buses, and so can negotiate better prices. They can depreciate the buses on their taxes. And they do not have to pay the 14 percent contribution to the state retirement system.

The contract will likely call for the winning bidder to purchase the district's existing buses, all parts and supplies and lease the school bus garage. Haner said money from that part of the deal will go into a savings account until the first contract expires, probably in five years, to make sure the system is working. If it isn't, the district will have the money to buy back the buses.

All existing employees will have the opportunity to interview for the new jobs, Haner said. "A national statistic is that 90 percent are rehired," he added.

Ron Howard, senior regional manager for Ryder, said drivers will be offered jobs if they pass drug and criminal background checks and other company requirements.

"Our goal would be to hire the local employees," he said. Ryder currently has 350 school districts under contract, he said, including Pontiac. All but a handful are non-union. He said drivers can expect to make the same hourly wage but have a slightly lesser benefit package.

One school employee called the move union busting. "He (Haner) reached inside CLASP (the union representing the transportation department and some other non-instructional staff), drew one group out and said 'I'm going to privatize you because you're the bad guys'... We're not getting a lot of support from our union (Michigan Education Association)... MEA doesn't know what to do about it."

Trade in kids shoes-- get a break

During March and April, Clarkston Stride Rite, a children's shoe store on Dixie Highway, will be accepting used but wearable children's shoes for donation to Lighthouse North.

In exchange for the donations, customers will receive a certificate worth $5 off on a new pair of Stride Rite shoes at any participating store.

Clarkston Stride Rite owner Rod Lema said this is the first time the event, cosponsored by WNIC radio, has been tied into a charity.

"We've been getting a good response," Lema said. "People like it because they feel like they're doing something good. They've got these shoes laying around. Plus they get the coupon. It's kind of a win-win situation for everybody."

The key to the project is working is that the shoes must be wearable.

"We want to make sure they can be used," Lema said. Children's shoes of any brand will be accepted.

Last year Lighthouse North was the beneficiary of a collection of used athletic shoes from the Runnin' Gear store on Dixie Highway. However many of those shoes were adult sizes.

There are some limitations on the offer call the store at 625-1019 for more information.

Mr. and Mrs. Brian Baert

Bricker-Baert wed in Clarkston

Brian and Joan (Bricker) Baert were married June 25, 1994 at St. Daniel Catholic Church in Clarkston. The Rev. Msgr. Robert Humitz officiated during the double-ring ceremony attended by 200 guests.

The bride was given away by her father Dennis Bricker. She wore an ivory brocade floor-length gown with a scoop neckline, fashioned with pearls, short puffed sleeves and a sweeping chapel train. Her veil was accented by pearls and secured by a tiara of pearls and crystals. She carried a bouquet of calla lilies, peach roses, spray orchids and ivy.

She was attended by her sister, Laura Bricker of Yale, as maid-of-honor. Bridesmaids included Mandy Bricker of Yale, her sister, and Kristin Baert Brandenburg of Milwaukee, WI, sister of the groom. All wore floor-length sheath gowns with peach lace and puffed sleeves, highlighted by short trains made of peach satin. They carried bouquets of white lilies, peach roses and spray orchids.

The groom was attended by his brother, Kevin Baert of Clarkston, as best man. Groomsmen were Martin Brown of Clarkston and Mike Glennie of Atlanta, GA.

Mark Brandenburg of Milwaukee served as usher.

Music was provided by Chris Heber, organist, Brian Moon, trumpet player, and Charlene Sonneberg, vocalist.

A reception followed at Lapeer Country Club.

Brian is a Clarkston High School graduate and attended WMU where he obtained a BS in broadcast communications. He is employed as a duplication technician for Grace & Wild Studios in Farmington Hills. He is the son of Paul and Karen Baert of Clarkston.

The couple honeymooned with a one-week Caribbean cruise. They reside in New Baltimore.

Vines-Lang

Ronnie and Agathe Vines of Clarkston announce the engagement of their daughter, Heidi, to Paul Lang, son of Frederick and Nancy Lang of Big Rapids. The bride-to-be is a 1987 graduate of Clarkston High School and a graduate of Michigan State University where she obtained a BS in physiology in 1991 and a master of arts in counseling in 1993. She is employed as an educational counselor at Ferris State University. The prospective groom received a BS in biology from MSU in 1991. He is attending Ferris State and expects to graduate in May with an OD (Doctor of optometry) degree. The couple met while attending MSU. A May 1995 wedding at St. Peter's Lutheran Church in Big Rapids is being planned.

Neadow-Sutherland

Amy and Don Neadow of Clarkston announce the engagement of their daughter, Holly Ann, to Donald Francis Sutherland, son of Mary Ellen and Don Sutherland of Clarkston. The bride-to-be graduated from Oakland Community College and works as a registered nurse for William Beaumont Hospital in Royal Oak. The prospective groom attends Center for Creative Study College of Art and Design. A May 1995 wedding at Christ the Redeemer Catholic Church is being planned.

Downtown businesses discuss an association

BY EILEEN OXLEY
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Downtown business owners don't want to see Clarkston become a ghost town.

With malls and development growing outside city limits, shoppers often follow.

That's why Tierra Fine Jewelry store owner and Clarkston resident Buck Kopietz wants to start a business association composed of retailers and Realtors — to draw those shoppers downtown.

Approximately 15 downtown retail businesses were represented during a special meeting held at the Clarkston Cafe on March 14.

"This was basically to have all the retailers get together and discuss their problems," Kopietz said. "It was primarily a venting session to discuss whether or not there should be an association and who to invite. The consensus was to invite all businesses a week from Tuesday (March 28) at 8:30 a.m. at the Clarkston Cafe."

That meeting will also include real estate companies in the downtown area.

Kopietz said the number one issue — and problem — expressed at the first meeting was parking.

"It's the main gripe. We have to make sure the parking ordinances are being enforced. But they're not," he said. "People are parking over their two-hour limit in some spots. They're parking in two-hour parking and staying there all day."

"What's going to happen when we have more traffic and more people stopping in town?"

Another topic discussed was advertising. Kopietz believes a downtown directory would help shoppers find their destinations and inform them of others. It could be handed out at each business location.

He would also like to see a billboard on I-75, welcoming folks to Clarkston and its downtown shopping area. And he'd like to see special downtown

Retailer Buck Kopietz knows Clarkston like the back of his hand. He's hoping to start a downtown events like sidewalk sales, outdoor antique shows and "moonlight madness sales" — along with a more attractive streetscape.

His wife Joan, who owns Tierra with him, complained that the city has spent $25,000 in streetscape studies since their business has been in town, "but they've never done anything. Where are the barrels?"

She said Clarkston's Farm and Garden Club — and not the city — have been maintaining the flower barrels along Main each year.

Though Buck Kopietz says some business owners are members of Clarkston's Chamber of Commerce, he feels they deal with business on "a more general basis in the township."

"There are special needs in the downtown area," he said.

Kopietz is not new to the idea of a business association. It's been tried before in Clarkston, but has never lasted. He thinks there are a variety of reasons why.

"When we had strong retail downtown, we had a strong business association — That was six or seven years ago," he explained. "Then we lost retail businesses that were active in the association for a whole variety of reasons — competition outside the downtown area, parking problems ... Revitalizing a downtown is a very difficult thing."

Malls were partially responsible, he feels, for enticing shoppers. But that's changed, he says, with the trend toward "strip malls" which have the variety of the big malls but are closer to home.

Diane Brozovich, who has co-owned Coach's business association.

Corner for 21 years, attended the meeting and was glad she came.

"It's really good to see people come out and get into town participation like they did years ago," she said.

Carol Moreno, broker for Morgan, Moreno and Milzow Real Estate, expects to attend the next meeting where discussion about a downtown business association will continue.

"I would be very interested in supporting something," Moreno said. "Obviously Clarkston is a growing community. I understand how the city is dealing with their parking. We're trying to work with the parking situation."

Moreno said her business recently added a lower level which provides easier access for customers to the city parking lot off Depot.

Neil Russo, manager of NBD on Main, said he hopes business owners will bond together to solve their problems. He attended the first meeting.

"A couple of people said 'my business, what I do,' instead of looking at it as a 'we.'"

Russo agreed his number one problem is parking. And he feels, as other downtown businesses do, that he needs the city's support.

"I think we should make the council aware of some of the problems we as business people face on an ongoing daily basis and ask for their assistance to help us resolve some of these problems ... It should be in a cooperative, reasonable way, not confrontational.

"That's how I view the downtown business association," he said.

Clarkston landlords sell Industry building

BY EILEEN OXLEY
Clarkston News Staff Writer

An attempt to oust Industry from its nook on S. Saginaw resulted in its operators signing papers to buy the building.

Industry's operators from National Entertainment Corp. agreed to purchase the building, which houses the popular Pontiac nightclub, from Russell and Gretchen Schulte, landlords and Clarkston residents, Monday afternoon.

The action ended a week-long trial in a stuffy courtroom at the 50th District Court in Pontiac in front of Judge Christopher Brown, that began March 13.

The Schultes tried to evict Industry because the partners had not paid 19 months of rent, amounting to $76,000. But Industry claimed they have spent $90,000 in repairs, taxes and insurance, with another $50,000 of repairs awaiting. They say they put the rent money in escrow and drew from it for expenses because the Schultes would not pay them.

"It's a great victory for the landlords," Blair McGowan, one of Industry's operators said. "Now we'll have to pay the taxes and insurance."

His brother, Mark McGowan of Detroit-based law firm Plunkett and Cooney, represents the partners who own and operate six venues including Pontiac's Industry and 7th House and St. Andrew's Hall in Detroit. They also present concerts at the Phoenix Center. Industry, known as one of Michigan's most successful nightclubs, is estimated to draw 5,000 patrons a week at $3 per head cover charge.

The Schultes say Industry paid rent for the first year it opened, beginning in 1991, after 30 months of waiting for a liquor license transfer. But they claim it was all downhill from there.

"Then it seemed whenever the rent was due, there were all kinds of excuses," John Rowland, Waterford-based attorney for the Schultes, said.

For example, when the Schultes sent roofing and structural contractors out several times to make repairs, the contractors were denied access to the building. Industry partner Charles Gates said that was because they "showed up unannounced."

"The landlords are supposed to make an appointment, call ahead and let us know," he said.

But Rowland, said, "They wouldn't let (the contractors) in. They'd say, 'It's too late' — then go do the work themselves."

Rowland said many checks for repairs were simply made out to cash.

"I think they're sharpies. Nightclubs are very trendy. I think they're making a lot of money right now. They're trying to maximize their profit," he said.

The final settlement was $20,000 down and $4,000 a month for 70 months or "a note for $205,000," Blair McGowan said.

The trial was expected to continue Monday with final summations by both attorneys and a six-member jury reaching its verdict. But Rowland and Mark McGowan were "rolling the dice" well before noon.

"I think they're all ready to listen to John (Rowland) because he would have eaten them alive," Russell Schulte said mid-morning.

When asked how he felt about the final deal he answered, "Ambiguous. It's one of those things. I think we would have prevailed, but we might still be in bed with them. That's all we need ...

"We get rid of the taxes, the insurance crap — and them," he said.

Gretchen Schulte referred to the settlement as "a big weight being lifted off our shoulders."

"We are out from under the lease from hell," she said, adding that she and her husband would be glad to get back to their family business near the Oakland-Pontiac Airport.

The Schultes, residents of Clarkston for 23 years, own Metro Aircraft Instruments in Waterford which does overhauling, repairing and selling of aircraft instruments. The Industry property is the only commercial building investment they have ever made, buying it for $150,000 in 1980. Prior to Industry it housed a performing arts theater and two unsuccessful nightclubs.

Gretchen said she doesn't regret the experience of owning the building.

"We were there from the beginning and had a good time."

Blair McGowan said Industry's operators felt "sky-high" as a result of the settlement.

"It's a great day for Pontiac. The real winner in this situation is Pontiac."

Blair said Industry would hold a special party Friday night to celebrate the purchase. Free admission, including 19 free micro-beers on tap, will be offered from 8 to 10 p.m.

Core curriculum or no core curriculum?

While legislature fiddles, district does its work

BY ANNETTE KINGSBURY
Clarkston News Editor

Though the Michigan legislature doesn't seem to have made up its mind, the Clarkston board of education is going on the assumption that it will still have to implement a mandatory core curriculum.

The board approved policy changes Monday night which include the adoption of a core curriculum based on the model developed by the state board of education.

"Our district will proceed as if it's going to happen," said assistant superintendent David Reschke. "I'd be amazed if the State of Michigan could function without a school code. We do get a number of kids who move from school system to school system. There should be some consistency."

He confessed to being surprised at Governor Engler's State of the State address in January, in which Engler brought up the idea of scrapping the state school code. State legislators originally reacted with caution to the proposal, but last week the Senate Education Committee held hearings on the repeal of the code.

"I believe there'll be some form of core curriculum," even if the school code is abolished, Reschke said. If the state model is not mandatory, he believes several other models will be offered for districts to choose from.

As things currently stand, core curriculum is scheduled to be required for school accreditation beginning with the 1997-98 school year. It is expected to include language arts (reading and writing), math, science and social studies, Reschke said.

Despite some early protests, it appears many educators have come to accept the idea of a statewide core curriculum as a way of guaranteeing all state students will meet the standards of potential future employers when they graduate.

"It can't hurt us; it's a good solid curriculum," Reschke said.

The package of policy changes the board approved Monday night includes much more than core curriculum. "Most of these we've already been functioning under; there were no surprises," Reschke said. They include:

SCHOOL IMPROVEMENT: Language adopted requires that each district-wide school improvement plan include building-level decision-making, goals based on academic outcomes, curriculum aligned to the goals and use of community resources and volunteers.

CHAPTER I: Federal funds will be used as available to augment the education of educationally disadvantaged students.

DUAL ENROLLMENT: High-school seniors will be allowed to enroll in college classes while still enrolled in Clarkston.

SEX EDUCATION: Instruction in reproductive health is required, including AIDS and the use of abstinence as a preventive method. The board accepted as policy the state board of education's guidelines.

"This language fits where we've been for three or four years in Clarkston," Reschke said. "We have had a real strong reproductive health curriculum. All of our current work came from a committee that's been in place since the day it was required. That group has consistently supported the state's abstinence message."

STUDENT ASSESSMENT: The board included the Michigan Educational Assessment program (MEAP) test as part of its assessment process, but also included portfolios, exams and writing as acceptable examples of how a student is performing. The policy also requires that students who do not achieve satisfactory scores on their 4th- or 7th-grade MEAP tests be offered special help.

"We've used our at-risk money to begin that," Reschke said. Each school currently has math and reading support teachers and science will be added next year.

ANNUAL REPORTS: The district agreed to include information based on gender, race and socioeconomic status in its annual report.

Sewer lines to stay south of I-75

Line extension has board worried about growth

BY DARREL W. COLE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

New plans for sewer extension have some Independence Township officials worried it will cause more development.

Those concerns were brought up after the township board of trustees was presented with an updated master water and sewer plan, with a main purpose of defining reasonable limits to water and sewer extensions.

And while township Department of Public Works Director George Anderson said the new study can be used by the planning department as a way to control density, board members still had concerns.

The board took no action on the plan at its March 7 regular meeting but recommended more discussion and some additional language be added.

According to the plan, the boundary for the sewer and water line is Clarkston Road, east to Clintonville, south to Eston, and east to the township line.

Township planning consultant Richard Carlisle said the boundary lines are reasonable but nothing will stop developers from trying to get sewer and water line extensions. He said that is why the new plan requires planning commission and township board approval for any deviations from the planned boundaries.

"You (the board) will be pressured to extend the lines in the future, and there has even been pressure now, but for the first time in many years you can set the policy," said Carlisle. "This plan puts the decisions in the hands of the board."

Township attorney Gerald Fisher said, "I am in favor of this because it is an official statement of board policy. The concern about future nibblings needs to be addressed with some additional language and how criteria is to be set that will allow such nibblings."

Fisher was directed to study and recommend additional language for the plan.

Township clerk Joan McCrary and trustee Mel Vaara both expressed concerns that the new plan will still open up development in the north section of the township.

Specifically, McCrary doesn't like the idea of the sewer line extending north past I-75 on M-15.

"To me that opens up property to the west whenever you go beyond I-75," McCrary said. "I thought we were never going to go beyond I-75 ... and I won't support it."

Township engineering consultant Randall Ford said the extension past I-75 doesn't mean the line will keep extending west. He said the capacity of each extension is limited and will restrict any more developments that would want to hook up.

Trustee Vaara said it seems the north end of the township grows more and more each year. "I just hate to see more and more development to the north.

When's it going to stop?"

The water and sewer master plan will be reviewed more but must still be approved by the township board before it is adopted.

Clarkston Police

TUESDAY, MARCH 14, larceny of jewelry was reported by residents on Buffalo. The CPD says there are no suspects at this time and the incident is under investigation.

THURSDAY, MARCH 16, an unknown complainant notified police of suspicious persons in the Depot Park gazebo. No one was found when an officer arrived.

Clarification

● A story on water contamination that ran in March 1, contained an incorrect word. Michigan Department of Natural Resources geologist Terri Golla was quoted as saying "We're bailing out [residents'] wells every week." Golla was referring to monitoring wells, not residents' wells.

REAL ESTATE UPDATE

PRICE OUTWEIGHS INTEREST

IT'S THE FUTURE SELLING PRICE—not the future interest rate which determines profit.

27 S. Main, Clarkston
625-9300

QUESTION: With interest rates so changeable today, can you still expect to make money on the purchase and sale of real estate?

ANSWER: OPEN LISTING: The current interest rate only reflects the monthly cost of carrying the mortgage. It's the future SELLING PRICE, not the interest rate which determines the profit on a sale. As I stated, the interest rate concerns only the cost paying the loan.

Real estate will never be lower in price than it is today. Every economist I've read or listened to agrees that if inflation continues, the price of real estate will stay in the forefront of this price rise. So, you can expect a well bought piece of property to increase in value.

We've changed

more than our name.

For years you knew us as Pontiac General Hospital. But we've changed. Last January, in addition to our new, private, non-profit status, we became North Oakland Medical Centers. More than just a hospital, North Oakland Medical Centers has evolved with the changes in healthcare and the needs of our communities.

From our main campus and Emergency Trauma Center to our 16 outpatient sites, over 400 physicians provide personalized care in specialties ranging from family practice to neurosurgery. You'll find us close to home with our 24-hour Urgent Care Center, innovative community health programs and the county's only in-school Teen Health Center.

Leaders in progressive cancer care, pain management, maternity services and neonatal intensive care, our staff members find compassion as important as competence.

North Oakland Medical Centers.
 Behind the name stands a collection of unique individuals who are dedicated to working together for your good health. Some things never change.

Sheriff's log for Independence Township

MONDAY, MARCH 13, non-injury accident on Dixie Hwy.

Larceny of two batteries from a piece of construction equipment on Holcomb. Thieves did $200 worth of damage removing the batteries, which are valued at $500.

Malicious destruction of property at a park on Maybee. A thief kicked in a storage building's door but nothing appeared taken.

Threatening letter on Cobden.

A windshield was smashed on a car parked on Hubbard Circle.

A 16-year-old boy playing in Cecelia Ann said a truck came at him after he tried to get out of the way.

Breaking and entering of a safe at a Dixie Hwy. business. There was no sign of forced entrance to the building. Cash totalling $570 was taken.

TUESDAY, MARCH 14, larceny of a paddleboat on Sashabaw. The owner said he had just pulled it onto shore the day before.

Assist to the Sterling Heights Police Department in recovering a runaway on Snowapple. The 15-year-old boy had run away to a relative's home.

Hang-up calls for the last two weeks on Everest.

Larceny of four rings valued at $1750 from a bathroom on Mary Sue. No adults were home at the time but some children were.

A window was broken on a mobile home on Joy and three guns and a VCR were taken.

The hood was opened on a car parked on Pine Knob Rd. and two belts were cut.

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 15, a Clintonville resident saw someone going in and out of the woods nearby and called police. After a chase a Pontiac man, 34, was arrested on several outstanding warrants.

A Troy woman, 27, said she was assaulted as she tried to repossess a rental car from a 38-year-old Clarkston woman on Pine Knob Rd.

Malicious destruction of a mailbox on Deer Lake Rd.

The trunk emblem was stolen off a 1994 Cadillac. Three boys invaded the home of a fellow Clarkston High School student and took a fifth of liquor, a watch and a camera before departing. The homeowner said it wasn't the first time the three, ages 15 and 16, had taken things from his home.

A 22-year-old Clarkston man was taken to the Oakland County Jail for two outstanding warrants after his arrest on Dixie Hwy.

A Clarkston Middle School student parked his unlocked mountain bike at the school, went to class, and returned to find it missing from the bicycle rack.

Obstructing a fire truck on Indianwood Rd. The driver of a fire truck working on a fire on N. Eston Rd. reported that a white Jeep refused to let him by as he was returning from a fire hydrant to the scene of the fire with a truck full of water. The truck had its emergency lights and horns on at the time. The driver reported the Jeep driver made an obscene gesture before driving off.

THURSDAY, MARCH 16, one person was injured in a three-car accident on Maybee. There was also a non-injury accident on Maybee.

A motor home on Sashabaw was ransacked and a radio, VCR and TV were taken.

Domestic violence on Dartmouth.

A Clarkston woman, 30, is suspected of cashing two bad checks at a store on Dixie.

Two Flint men, both age 30, were arrested after a traffic stop on I-75 when they were found to be in possession of suspected controlled substances. The driver had three bags of suspected marijuana, the passenger some suspected cocaine. They were stopped for speeding and having an improper license plate. The car was impounded.

A car fire on Waldon East Circle was thought to be accidental.

FRIDAY, MARCH 17, non-injury accident on Waldon.

Larceny of several earrings and rings, along with their case, from a home on Wellesley. The owner said she had been looking for them for a month and now suspects some workmen.

An Oak Park resident reported hang-up calls over the past year, including four today.

SATURDAY, MARCH 18, non-injury accidents on Foster and on Oneida.

Fifty tapes were taken from a 1991 Geo on Timberwood Ct. after someone cut the rear window.

Assault and battery in the drive-through line of a restaurant on Dixie. Two men who appeared to be intoxicated allegedly got angry when the girls in the car in front of them refused to pay attention to them. One girl said she was slapped.

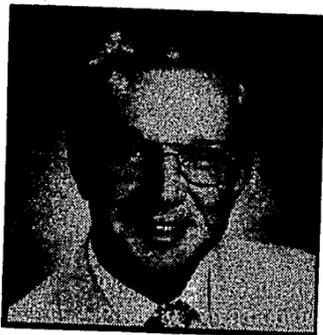

Harassment on Wellesley Terrace in an ongoing dispute over dogs running loose. One resident said another resident left a container full of dog feces at his door.

SUNDAY, MARCH 19, non-injury accident on the I-75 ramp at M-15.

The windshield on a 1994 Ford Probe was broken on Ortonville Rd. The driver thought perhaps someone had shot at her car.

Felonious assault with a vehicle on I-75. A Holly woman said the driver of a white minivan tried to block her, threw a can at her, followed her off the freeway and onto Dixie, where he rammed and pushed her. The whole thing was witnessed by another driver, who got the license plate number.

The Oakland County Sheriff's Independence Township substation has responded to 2,279 calls this year through March 19.

One of America's greatest citizens, a man loved and respected throughout the world, was born in poverty and illiteracy, when he was a young man, he became a merchant, but adversity overtook him and he had to file for bankruptcy. He then studied law, but was unsuccessful. He joined the Army as a captain but upon returning from fighting the indians, was demoted to private. When he believed things to be at their worst, the woman he loved died.

All the failures suffered by this man strengthened him to become

CHS beats Pontiac Northern, Walled Lake Central for regional Quarter-final loss ends Wolves season

BY DARREL W. COLE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

For three quarters the Clarkston Wolves basketball team did what many thought they couldn't do: hold the lead against Detroit Pershing.

But the Doughboys, who have been in the Class A finals three straight years, needed only a few minutes to retake the lead and eventually win the quarterfinal matchup, 59-50 March 21 at Ferndale's jam-packed gym.

The loss wasn't all bad as the Wolves finished the season at 24-3 overall, and among Class A's elite eight.

Clarkston struggled early in the first quarter and was down 12-6 with less than two minutes left, but came back with two Ryan Schapman 3-pointers and a Tim Wasilk steal and layup to bring the Wolves within one, 15-14.

The rest of the first half was a dogfight, as the deafening crowd cheered good plays by both teams. By halftime, the Wolves were ahead 26-25, and led the entire third quarter, including a seven-point lead at one point.

With a 41-37 lead, Clarkston tried to keep the Doughboys at bay but a few untimely offensive rebounds and key shots helped the lead evaporate. Pershing finally took the lead, 43-41, with just under six minutes left and never let the Wolves back in.

Despite Clarkston's size disadvantage, Wasilk and freshman Dane Fife kept their team in the game most of the night.

Dane Fife led all scorers with a game-high 25 points, including 6-of-6 free throws. Wasilk scored 11, including three 3-pointers, and Schapman added six.

While the Wolves ponder their next step, it looked as if a regional championship was never in doubt last week as they stomped Pontiac Northern 59-41 March 15 and then crushed Walled Lake Central 69-40 March 17.

In winning coach Dan Fife's first regional title in 13 years, the Wolves were focused, intense and in control of both games from start to finish.

"We've been bridesmaids for years but these kids have high expectations of themselves. They just always seem to go beyond what everyone else thinks of them," said Fife.

The coach admits he felt enough pressure to win his first regional for everyone. "If the players didn't feel it, I did," he laughed.

Although he says the regional championship — Clarkston's first since the 1970s — is great for the program, this season's players deserve all the credit. Coach Fife said it's the character of this team that makes them unique and champions.

"I surely can't take credit for that, a lot of it is from the kids' parents. This team, the way they play, you want so much for them to do well," he said.

"This group of seniors (and some juniors) gave this school its first regional title and first football playoffs since the '70s and the first-ever OAA title.

The Clarkston Wolves celebrate their first regional title since the 1970s with an easy win over Walled Lake Central March 17. In the regional opener CHS dominated rival Pontiac Northern just as easily.

These kids just don't come around every year."

Hard work, dedication and believing in themselves has carried the squad to an incredible season, coach Fife said.

In the finals, Central decided to try and beat the Wolves at what they do best; pressure the ball and get easy baskets. But Clarkston was too much to handle and guards Jeremy Fife and Tim Wasilk consistently sliced past Central defenders to set up easy shots for teammates.

Although the Vikings showed great intensity to start, they couldn't keep it up for four quarters, turning the ball over themselves and showing their frustration, while Clarkston players kept their poise.

With just over two minutes left in the first quarter the score was 4-6 with Clarkston on top. But that scoring drought soon ended as the Wolves tightened up their own defense and began to break down the intense Central press that featured double teams as CHS guards crossed midcourt.

Thanks to the press-breaking of Wasilk, a junior, and Jeremy Fife, a senior, freshman forward Dane Fife hit two three pointers to move the Wolves ahead. After Dane's last triple, Central called timeout with 1:37 left in the first and the score 12-4.

After that timeout it was more of the same as the Wolves ended the first with a 16-8 lead. The second quarter was much the same with Jeremy and Wasilk slicing through the defense finding open teammates and precise ball movement in the half-court offense. After the first half the Wolves were up 14-34.

With just 3:50 left in the third quarter Clarkston was ahead 18-47. After the third quarter the Wolves were up 20-52 and from that point on substituted freely.

CHS began the game riding the hot shooting of Wasilk and Dane Fife, who scored 16 and 21 points, respectively, and then relied on defense to create easy baskets later on.

Senior forward Jason Graves was next in scoring with eight points while Jeremy had six points, nine assists and five steals.

Central, which plays the same style of game as Clarkston, kept to what helped them to an 18-6 record this season. But that philosophy hurt them against

Runner seeks pledges to help Leukemia cause

Sandy Smith ran in high school, and in college. She's always wanted to see Alaska.

So when the opportunity came along to run in the Mayor's Midnight Sun Marathon in Anchorage to benefit the Leukemia Society of America, she packed her bags, even though she's never run that distance before. Now all she needs is some sponsors.

Smith, a veterinarian and Clarkston-area resident, hopes to run in the June 17 race. The catch is that in order to get her free seat on a plane to Anchorage, she needs to raise $3,000 in pledges, $2,000 of it by April 28.

Smith did her undergraduate work at Albion College, then attended veterinary school at Michigan State University. She's run in the Bobby Krim race, and says in college it wasn't unusual for her to go on 20-mile training runs.

"But certainly I was 20 years younger (then)," she said. "It's certainly going to be an adventure." Her mother will accompany her on the trip and they hope to get in a little sight-seeing after she recovers from the marathon.

Leukemia is a form of cancer that kills more children than any other disease, according to the Leukemia Society of America, Michigan Chapter. Twenty years ago there was no real treatment, however today 73 percent of patients with the most common form of leukemia can survive at least five years. The disease also kills adults, with over 50 percent of all cases occurring in people over 60.

If you'd like to pledge to help Smith make her dream trip, call her at 623-6106. Or send a check to her at 4125 Airport Rd., Waterford, MI 48329.

Official MHSAA tournament ball donated by Wilson

Wilson Sporting Goods has been selected to provide the official Michigan High School Athletic Association tournament balls in baseball, softball and tennis through the 1996-97 school year.

Most importantly, the supplies are provided free to the MHSAA.

Under the terms of the agreement, Wilson will provide the complete supply of baseballs and softballs necessary for each level of those tournaments, a total of 263 dozen baseballs and 132 dozen softballs. In tennis, Wilson will provide 396 dozen balls, approximately half the total needed for all levels of the MHSAA Boys and Girls Tennis Tournaments.

The arrangement represents a direct savings of approximately $20,000 to the MHSAA, which has previously purchased and supplied baseballs and softballs in those tournaments, and reimbursed host sites for the purchase of tennis balls in that sport. All balls will be marked with the MHSAA logo.

The MHSAA had been considering adoption of tournament balls in seven sports, but Executive Director John E. "Jack" Roberts did not recommend any such action with respect to basketball, football, soccer and volleyball. In all, the proposals presented by five manufacturers in those four sports represented a value in excess of $100,000 in balls and cash, but Roberts said he did not find the perfect "ingredients" to make a recommendation.

DCD all star

Abby Marsden of Clarkston qualified for the state ski meet and was all-division, all-region and all area this year representing Detroit Country Day's varsity ski team. Marsden, a senior, is also active on the yearbook staff, ceramics club and peer intervention staff at Country Day. Her favorite place to ski is Mt. Hood, Oregon and she'd love to meet Picabo Street. Marsden's most embarrassing moment in skiing came when she tried to go off a jump "and I crashed so hard that even my boots came off." Her entire team was watching. She said she plans to attend college "somewhere with snow."

Focus leads Wolves over Northern

Clarkston.

That pressure had no effect on Jeremy, nor any other Wolves in the pack. "I really wasn't worried about Jeremy against their press," coach Fife said. "But I was concerned how our other guys would handle it."

Between Jeremy, Wasilk and junior Ryan Schilling, who came into the game late, the Wolves had no trouble.

Coach Fife firmly believes his point guard son is having one of the finest senior seasons of anyone he has ever coached. "He's just been great this season and some seniors I've coached may have had as good of years but none have had any better seasons."

The grudge match between Pontiac Northern in the opening round of regional play at Lapeer East wasn't all it was supposed to be. The Wolves led the entire game and, most impressive, were in control the whole way.

Northern attempted to slow the game down by playing a half court style but the Wolves countered that with crisp passing and penetration to the hoop. Despite giving up too many offensive rebounds in the first half, Clarkston played great team defense and never gave the Huskies good looks at the basket.

Wasilk, as he has done throughout districts and regionals, started off his team with an impressive shooting display. Jeremy was also able to find Wasilk and Dane open for buckets for an early 12-4 lead. After taking an 8-14 first-quarter lead, junior guard Ryan Schapman took over the second quarter.

The first time he touched the ball he hit a three-pointer, and then, a few minutes later, he hit another one. After some solid pressure defense by Jeremy and Wasilk, the Wolves got another bucket from Schapman for a 14-23 lead.

With 30 seconds to go in the first half, the Wolves held the ball for the last shot. It worked to perfection as Schapman was fouled on a three-point attempt with less than a second left.

Schapman calmly made three straight free throws to give his team a 28-16 lead.

Also playing well in the quarter was Graves who caught some sweet passes from Jeremy for buckets and worked hard on the glass. Senior Toby Evans had to come in for Dane, who picked up two fouls, with over five minutes left in the second and he did a solid job as well.

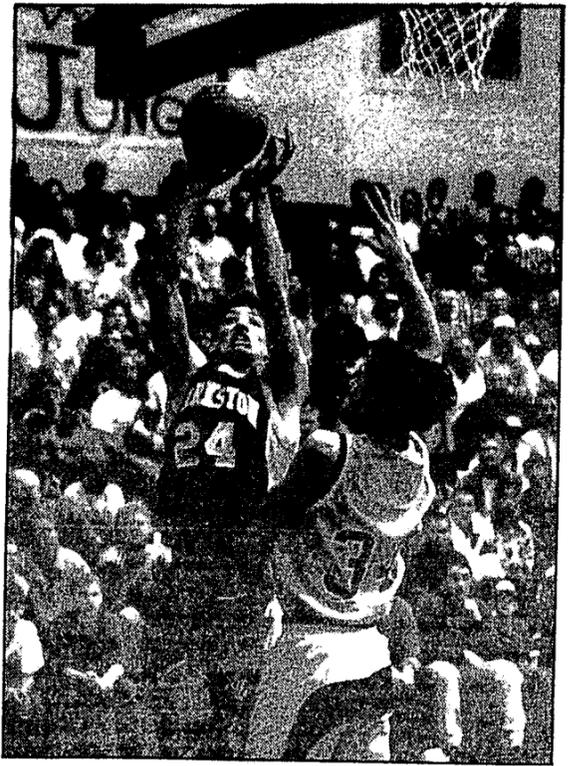

Clarkston pulled away even more in the third quarter and led 40-24.

Schapman led his team with 19 points, including four three-pointers while Wasilk had 11 and Dane Fife scored eight.

Besides the excellent play of the starters, which includes senior center Brad Agar, coach Fife said the entire team performed well. Senior Toby Evans came off the bench to play extended minutes in both games, relieving Dane Fife who ran into foul trouble both times.

On a disappointing note, senior guard Pat Mulligan couldn't attend the regional title game because he was home sick with the flu.

Senior forward Jason Graves scores a layup for two of his eight points against Walled Lake Central March 17.

Clarkston teens say 'listen to me'

Winners of oratorical contest announced

BY EILEEN OXLEY
Clarkston News Staff Writer

When Sashabaw middle-schooler Jennifer Gifford said, "Listen to Me," she wasn't talking about herself.

She was speaking for endangered animals like the blue whale and bald eagle.

"We need to listen to the animals so we'll be able to enjoy them in the future," Jennifer, 14, said at SMS last week, after winning first place in the girls division of the Clarkston Area Optimist Club Oratorical Contest.

The contest, sponsored by the Optimist Club, was held Feb. 22 in Clarkston High School's Kirchgessner Theater. There were first-, second- and third-place winners in the boys and girls divisions.

The theme this year was "Listen to Me," open to personal interpretation by the young contestants.

"That's pretty much all they had to go on. They were allowed to structure a piece based on that concept," said Dave Reschke, Optimist Club vice president and assistant superintendent of Clarkston schools.

Reschke said 27 teens registered for the contest, but only 14 competed, six boys and eight girls.

"The kids that wound up speaking did a nice job and delivered their pieces well. We of the Optimist Club were all impressed. They were all very unique.

"Some of the kids talked about listening to elements in nature. Others asked adults to listen to what kids in our society have to say — that they should listen to younger people even though they don't vote yet. All the kids thought it was important to listen to humankind, to slow down and think, that there's a lot to be learned by listening to each other," Reschke said.

SMS eighth-grader Jennifer Gifford listens while Ben Ness, also an SMS eighth-grader, ad-libs a speech. Both were first-place winners in the Clarkston Optimist Club Oratorical Contest.

Though Jennifer admits she's shy, she wasn't a victim of stage fright when delivering her speech. She attributes that to being a veteran of piano and dance recitals.

Ben Ness, an energetic SMS eighth-grader who won first place in the boys division, had no problem either. He admits to being a ham at heart. But the 14-

"When you listen you should use your whole body. If you're really listening you'll use good eye contact and concentration — not flail your arms around. That's distracting. Concentration is important."

Other winners in the boys division included Clarkston Middle School seventh-grader Andrew Szykula, second place, and SMS seventh-grader Brent Griffith, third place. SMS Sixth-graders Lyndsey McCleary, second-place, and Diana Baer, third place, placed in the girls division.

Judges were Greg Seaman, Clarkston High School teacher and co-director of the Forensics Team, Deborah O'Dell, Clarkston High School teacher and co-director of the Forensics Team, Deborah Wilson of the Reminder Newspaper and Tom Howard, attorney and president of the Clarkston Board of Education.

Kids who competed were coached by CMS principal Vince Licata and Roxanne Reschke, Oakland Schools consultant for gifted and talented programs.

Jennifer and Ben will go on to compete in the regional competition hosted by CHS April 8.

year-old said he was a little nervous after listening to the others, labeling them "pretty good."

"I've always been able to speak in front of crowds. We had a forensics unit for a week. It was good in terms of technique and we learned it's important to have a style," he said.

In his presentation Ben focused on the need for people to listen to each other.

"We can't learn without listening," he said.

Phoenix homes: largest in Tri-state area

Phoenix Homes of America is entering its ninth year in business and celebrating with the addition of an energetic, knowledgeable new vice president of sales and marketing, Curt Norwick.

The family-run Oxford-based enterprise has grown to become the tri-states largest builder of industrialized, non-conventional housing.

One key to the company's success is that it strives to take the stress out of building a new home.

Unlike with ordinary home construction, with Phoenix you don't have to contend with building crews schedules. You know exactly what you're going to get and it will come in at the price promised.

That's because Phoenix offers alternative, industrialized (modular) housing. This doesn't mean a mobile home; it means a stick-built house constructed from scratch in a controlled, factory environment.

"The concept of the industrialized home is perfect," said Phoenix Homes owner Jim Siudara. "I have 200 carpenters who build your home in a plant where it literally shines every day. We don't have to put up with weather delays; we don't have to put up with thieves. We don't have cost overruns. It's amazing how efficiently a system runs when your workers never run out of materials or have the weather to contend with."

Manufacturers and styles abound in this growing field. Locally, Phoenix Homes is the No. 1 builder who can make it happen for you.

"I've built homes in just about every area of Oakland, Lapeer, Genesee and Macomb counties," said Siudara, who has been named Builder of the Year for the past three years by Heckaman Homes.

Norwick said positive customer response has brought countless new sales.

"We are currently designing our 346th home and are proud of the very positive 'word of mouth' advertising we achieve," Norwick said. "Our customers are happy. We've got their trust and a great product."

With industrialized homes from Phoenix Homes, there are more than 80 models to choose from ranging from 1,000 square foot Cape Cods to 3,200 square foot, four-bedroom colonials with 2 1/2 baths. And the selection grows constantly.

"If I do not have a model of the exact house you're looking for, chances are I have built that home for someone else," Siudara said. "I know they'd be happy and proud to show you the quality and workmanship of the house they're living in."

Siudara predicts as much as 90 percent of the new housing market will be in industrialized housing in the

It looks like a house because it is a house, but it's one of the many manufactured homes Oxford's Phoenix Homes has sold. The homes are built in a near future. Public awareness of the product is growing. And that has caused Siudara to increase his sales staff to meet customer needs.

Norwick's job is to help meet those growing customer needs.

"This industry is still in its infancy," he said. "In the South and East, they are building 7,000 square foot, million dollar English Tudors. We can't wait for them to offer these in Michigan."

People are just beginning to learn that industrialized housing doesn't mean drab housing or trailers. It just means modern technology.

"To build a house correctly, you have to give someone 100 percent effort and attention," Siudara said. "You are directing them in a large investment. I don't just sell you a product and say, 'Good luck and goodbye.' I really take pride in what I do. That's why I give each house my all."

Curious customers can witness the manufacturing process by touring the Heckaman Homes plant in Indiana. Buyers can select from all the major brands of carpeting, cabinetry, roofing, shingles, vinyl flooring or windows, then sit back and relax while Heckaman begins the construction process.

Your custom home will arrive freshly painted, carpeting and all, exactly to your specifications with occu-factory and placed together on site to save you weather worries and the hassle normally associated with building.

pancy 30 days after site work has been started.

"On the designated day, we can watch it arrive," Siudara said. "Building a home this way is 80 to 90 percent faster than stick-building, with 20 to 40 percent savings in cost."

Siudara lives in the area and has experience in rehabbing and conventional stick-building, but industrialized housing is all he does today. He handles everything from banking to the site work. Phoenix builds 30 to 40 houses a year.

He's willing to work with the do-it-yourselfer who wants to save some money. "About a third of my customers have the ability to do something on their own, such as electrical or plumbing. If you can save some money, I'm all for you. I'm willing to supervise to make sure there are no mistakes. It's a very large investment. If I can help, I'm all for the customer."

Siudara prides himself on happy clients.

"My reputation as a builder is solid. That's why I'm No. 1," Siudara said. "I have many friends. I don't consider them customers because I give them the personal touch."

Phoenix Homes is located in downtown Oxford in the Acheson's Building (above the former Village Gift Shoppe.) Models are shown by appointment. Call 628-4700 for more information.

Summer travel info.

Planning a summer getaway? The new Michigan Summer Travel Guide and Calendar of Events is available now from the Michigan Travel Bureau.

The guide lists over 1,100 events across the state, including performing arts, festivals, craft fairs, fishing tournaments, boat races, classic car shows and county fairs. The booklet also includes a guide to state parks.

For a free copy, write P. O. Box 3393, Livonia, MI 48151-3393 or call 1-800-5432-YES.

Beginning April 1, a new hotline for recorded messages on summer activities in the state will become available. Call 1-800-644-8644.

Biking season brings dangers

With Spring just around the corner, bike riders will be jumping at the chance to ride on clear streets and sidewalks. Biking has become a popular past time in recent years, whether just casual riding or serious trail riding. But the Michigan State Police say bikers of all ages need to be aware of biker safety, especially the importance of wearing helmets.

In 1993, 804 bicyclists were killed in bicycle crashes, mostly involving motor vehicles. Head injuries are the most serious injury type and the most common cause of death among bicyclists. For survivors, even mild and moderate injuries can be disabling and long lasting.

Thirty-eight percent of bicycle deaths involve riders 15 or younger. The death rate rises rapidly beginning at about age 6 and is highest among 11- and 13-year-olds. Helmets provide an extra measure of safety for all riders. The state police say parents should be especially adamant about their children wearing safety gear when riding.

Obituaries

Elwin Blanchard

Elwin L. Blanchard, 59, of Sturgis died March 15, 1995.

He was preceded in death by his father, a nephew and a niece.

Mr. Blanchard was born in Sturgis, where he lived most of his life. He worked as a truck driver for Vanguard Industries in Colon, MI for 19 years. Prior to that he was employed at Central Transport, Sturgis, as the office manager. He was a member of First Church of God in Sturgis and the Knights of Pythias, Phoenix, Lodge #171, where he served in a variety of offices, including past chancellor commander.

He is survived by his wife, Joyce; two daughters, Julie A. Blanchard of Flint and Patti J. Blanchard of Benton Harbor; a son, Terry L. (Roberta) Blanchard of Clarkston; three grandchildren, Christine and Jennifer Blanchard and Amanda Clay; his mother, Ruth Blanchard of Sturgis; a sister, Ruth Ann (Charles) Sprowl of Sturgis; three brothers, Donald Blanchard of Taylor, LeRoy Blanchard of Three Rivers and Jack Blanchard of Sturgis; and several nieces and nephews.

Funeral services were Saturday at the Hackman-Foglesong Funeral Home in Sturgis with the Rev. Douglas Carr, First Church of God, officiating. Interment was in Oak Lawn Cemetery in Sturgis.

Memorials may be directed to the family.

Ada Chester

Ada M. Chester, 81, of Grand Rapids, formerly of Clarkston and Harrisburg, IL, died March 13, 1995.

She was preceded in death by her husband Thomas and daughters, Edna Mae and Betty Jane.

Mrs. Chester was a former nurses aide at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Pontiac.

She is survived by a son, Thomas C. Jr. (Diane) of Waterford; a daughter, Karen Sue (Larry) Blehn of Grand Rapids; 10 grandchildren; and 13 great-grandchildren.

Funeral services were March 17 at the Lewis E. Wint & Son Trust 100 Funeral Home in Clarkston with Pastor Michael O'Mire officiating. Interment was in Perry Mt. Park Cemetery.

Elizabeth Guzek

Elizabeth E. "Betty" Guzek, 64, of Lapeer, formerly of Clarkston, died March 19, 1995.

Mrs. Guzek was a member of the Immaculate Conception Catholic Church in Lapeer and a former choir member and church library assistant at St. Daniel Catholic Church of Clarkston.

She is survived by her husband Francis; five sons, Stephen (Debbie) of Lapeer, Michael (Laura) of Davisburg, David (Dorothy) of Oxford, Thomas (Ruth) of Goodrich and Patrick (Cheryl) of White Lake; a daughter, Christine (Daniel) LaBarge of Waterford; 14 grandchildren; several nieces and nephews; a brother, Ray Gorden of Wisconsin; and a sister, Margaret Owen of Texas.

Mass of the Resurrection will be held tomorrow (Thursday) at St. Daniel Catholic Church. Interment will be in Oakland Hills Memorial Gardens.

A scripture service will be held today (Wednesday) at 7:15 p.m. at the Lewis E. Wint & Son Trust 100 Funeral Home in Clarkston. Friends may visit at the funeral home from 3-5 and 7-9 p.m. today and Thursday at the church, from 9 a.m. until time of service.

Memorials may be made to the American Heart Association of Michigan.

Margaret Osborne

Margaret Osborne, 72, of Clarkston died March 18, 1995.

She was preceded in death by her husband Junior, daughter Sally and grandson Scott.

She is survived by two daughters, Linda Osborne of Clarkston and Sharon Short of Lake Orion; eight grandchildren; two great-granddaughters; and a brother, Jack Harwood of Argentine, MI.

Private family services will be held at a later date.

Funeral arrangements have been entrusted to the Lewis E. Wint & Son Trust 100 Funeral Home in Clarkston.

Memorials may be made to the American Heart Association of Michigan.

David Stewart

David P. Stewart, 83, of Rogers City, formerly of Clarkston, died March 20, 1995 after an extended illness.

He was preceded in death by three sisters.

Mr. Stewart was born in Clintonville and graduated from Clarkston High School in 1929. He received a degree in business administration from the Ferris Institute in Big Rapids in 1931. After marrying Frances Marshall in 1934, the couple made their home in Clarkston. Mr. Stewart was employed as a supervisor with General Motors in Pontiac for 40 years.

He was a member of the Waterford Lodge 3810 of the BPOE, a life member of Lodge 360 of the Free & Accepted Masons of Clarkston, active with the Clarkston Methodist Church and a former councilman and clerk for the Village of Clarkston.

Following Mr. Stewart's retirement, he and his wife Frances spent winter months in Clemont, Florida until 1977. They moved to Rogers City where he was a member of the Westminster Presbyterian Church and an active supporter of the Huron Sports Boosters Association.

He is survived by his wife Frances; a daughter, Shanna (David) Nadolsky of Rogers City; three grandchildren, two great-grandchildren; and several nieces and nephews.

A private graveside service at Memorial Park Cemetery officiated by the Rev. Lois Gillaspie is being arranged by the Bill Brietzke Funeral Home in Rogers City.

Edison awards grant

Margie Russell (right), of Sashabaw Middle School, received a $250 mini-grant from the Detroit Edison Foundation for the environmental club she and teacher Ellen Whitehead co-sponsor at the school. The money will be used for an outdoor living classroom for hands-on student activities. Pictured with Russell is Carla Gibbs of Edison.

Our contest winner

Shellie Kent's luck may have just turned. The Clarkston post office employee, who not to long ago said she never wins anything, stopped by The Clarkston News last week to pick up her winnings in our license plate logo contest. Kent had to hurry in and pick up her gift certificate, good for dinner for four, because she was about to leave for Maui on a trip she won through WRIF radio. "Everybody at work's really giving me a hard time about it," she said. She is pictured with her two children, Jameson, 3 and Spencer, 6 months. Her winning slogan, by the way, was "All 4 Seasons."

Merit finalist

Benjamin DeGrow of Clarkston is a National Merit Scholarship finalist. The senior at Springfield Christian Academy is the son of Raymond and Sandra DeGrow. He plans to attend Hillsdale College, where he has received a half tuition scholarship. He plans to study history, especially American history, and hopes to eventually teach at the college level or do research. A student at Springfield Christian since preschool, he has been active in the drama club and orchestra and is president of the student assembly.

State parks halt camping reservations

Centralized reservation system coming

Good things come to those who wait — like campsites at Michigan State Parks.

Reservations at Michigan State Park campgrounds will not be accepted until April 17, when a new centralized reservation system will provide "one-stop shopping" for Michigan State Park campers.

Campers will be able to use a toll-free number to reserve campsites at 90 campgrounds in the Michigan State Park system. Once this toll-free number is installed, campsite reservations will no longer be taken at individual state parks.

The temporary moratorium on campsite reservations is necessary so that reservation forms taken prior to March 13 can be entered into the new system. Reservations mailed to state parks will be returned to the sender after this date.

"We apologize to our loyal state park visitors for any inconvenience caused during this moratorium," OJ Scherschligt, Chief of the Department of Natural Resources Parks and Recreation Division, said. "When the new system goes on-line, we plan to fulfill our promise of providing a convenient, efficient service to assist you with all of your vacation plans."

Campers should not be concerned about losing a site at a state park during the moratorium, as other campers will not be able to make reservations during this time.

In addition, multiple telephone lines will be available to accommodate the large volume of calls expected when the system is ready.

More detailed information on the toll-free number will be released close to the start-up date.

Bailey Lake: Rap is in; just ask these kids

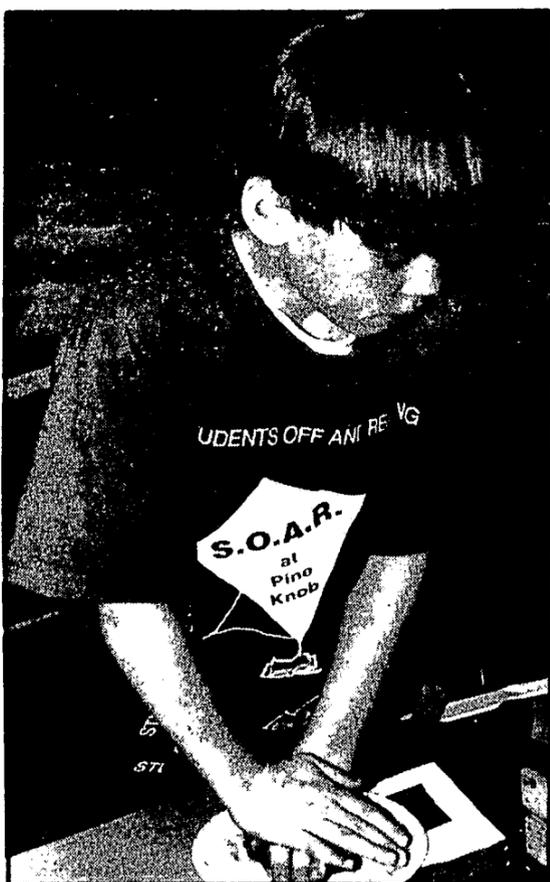

If you ask the kids at Bailey Lake Elementary School what kind of music they like, odds are they'll say rap.

That was the inescapable conclusion at a dress rehearsal for last week's combined talent show and ice cream social.

A sampling of students who performed in the show revealed that quite a few did dance numbers to rap songs. There was also a representation of heavy metal and pop. The students enjoyed singing, dancing, reading poetry, playing piano and doing magic for their peers.

Pine Knob: Leaping leprechauns!

Chris Sanderson leans on shamrock-shaped cutter to form his pancake.

Joi Bonot wore a green shamrock headpiece as she worked on her potato pancake.

Scott Barker uses math for problems that have to do with potatoes.

Little green footprints could be seen on the floor at Pine Knob Elementary School Friday. It was St. Patrick's Day and rumor had it a leprechaun had visited. He left his footprints behind, and his shadow could be seen on one window, so everyone was sure he would be coming back.

Meanwhile, the students busied themselves with lessons based around the potato, once the staple food of Ireland. They used their skills in math, writing and other areas and even got to make their own potato pancakes.
