Lenar gone

Deputy superintendent for business to leave county

> BY ANNETTE KINGSBURY Clarkston News Editor

Steve Lenar, Clarkston schools' deputy superintendent for business and operations, cleaned out his desk Friday.

Lenar said he has a new job as Director of Administrative Services with the Bay-Arenac Intermediate School District. He'll report there after four weeks vacation.

"It's better in many ways, it's a better opportunity," Lenar said of his new job. The Muskegon native had a job offer from Pinkney late last year but turned it down after word of the job leaked out via radio reports. Superintendent Gary Haner said Monday he had known at least since October that Lenar was jobhunting.

Teens face arraignment in bomb charges

Trouble on wheels

Last Wednesday afternoon, Clarkston High School students heard a motivational speaker talk to them about making good choices. "You don't have to be a genius to figure out what at-risk behavior is," he said.

sheriff's deputies. Earlier Friday, deputies had received a tip in connection with the bombing of a mailbox. They now know the two cases are related. Officers searching the bus, including a state

With an audience packed with employees and after two and a half hours of discussion, the Clarkston board of education voted 5-2 Monday to reorganize central administration in a way that many fear sets the stage for privatization.

Trustees Barry Bomier and Kurt Karlstrom voted against the reorganization, saying they had not been provided enough information by supervisor Gary Haner, who made the recommendation. The reorganization removes oversight of transportation, building and grounds from the business office and gives it to the new Director of Auxiliary Services. Linda Nestor, the current Supervisor of Food Services, will assume the new position and receive a pay increase as well as a secretary to help with her new workload.

But on Friday, 10 CHS students were stopped on Dixie Highway in a bus that was later found to contain materials for making explosive devices. Up to five of the students were expected to be arraigned Tuesday on charges they built and set off explosive devices in Independence Township.

The bus was pulled over by Clarkston Police Friday after the Oakland County Sheriff's Dept. broadcast a warning to be on the lookout for a bus bearing the name of Faith Baptist Church. A resident had seen the bus leaving a field off Clintonville Rd. where explosive devices had been found in a play fort.

An investigation revealed that a boy who used the fort found explosive devices rigged to the top in an apparent attempt to blow the roof off, according to police dog trained to uncover explosives, tound gunpowder residue and some wire, as well as some suspected marijuana, a marijuana pipe and some beer. Deputies also recovered several pipe bombs at the site of the fort.

According to OCSD Detective Chuck Young, all of the materials are locally available and, in the case of the gunpowder, legal to purchase by anyone 18 or older. All of the students are at least 17.

Young said the bombs could have been very dangerous if they had exploded close to anyone.

"They fragment very badly; they could have killed them," he said. "The cap comes off like a large bullet and the pipe fragments."

The lengths of pipe were filled with gunpowder and had a hole drilled in them to hold the detonator wire. The wire, when touched to a battery, would set off the explosion.

See BUS, page 18A

The Deputy Superintendent of Business and Operations will become the Director of Business Services with a pay decrease to reflect the loss of those responsibilities. In addition, the position of Supervisor of Accounting has been eliminated.

As Director of Auxiliary Services, Nestor would oversee several departments targeted by Haner for privatization. Proposals are currently being sought that would turn complete transportation services and See OFFICE, page 18A

The news in brief

Parent to Parent meets

Clarkston Parent to Parent will present a program called "Parenting an Alcohol and Drug-Free Child in the '90s" tonight at Clarkston High School's auditorium. The meeting begins at 7 p.m., with speaker Bill Oliver scheduled to begin his talk around 7:30. He will talk about the need for a strong parent network aimed at intervention to make peer pressure a positive force, rather than a negative one.

Tickets are $2 at the door. For more information call Marsha Combs at 625-7693 or Pam Bills at 625-1373.

Armed robbery at store

A 21-year-old woman working alone at a Dixie Highway convenience store was the victim of two robbers, one carrying a gun, Thursday.

The woman told police she knew the minute she saw the men she was in trouble. One had a black headband covering his nose and mouth and was carrying a sawed-off shotgun, the other had a ski mask over his face. Both had their sweatshirt hoods pulled up over their heads. The two demanded money and she gave them $329 from the cash register. They also took lottery tickets and left without further incident when she told them she could not open the safe. The Oakland County Sheriff's Department is investigating.

Karlstrom not running

Incumbent school board trustee Kurt Karlstrom said he will not be running for reelection this June, when his term expires.

However, Janet Thomas, whose term also expires, said she has collected enough signatures on petitions and expected to turn them in Monday. The only other announced candidate is Kurt Shanks, who filed petitions last year but withdrew from the race.

The district does not keep records of who takes out petitions, only who turns them in, a spokesperson said Monday.

Plastic drive continues

Students at Clarkston Elementary School have collected over 40,000 plastic jugs--but that's not enough.

The students and PTA are seeking even more plastic bottles in an effort to win a free play structure valued at $10,000 made of recycled plastic. It would replace a structure removed from the school playground due to safety concerns.

A collection container has been placed outside the school by Clarkston Disposal. Anyone may drop off plastic gallon and half-gallon milk, water or juice bottles that are rinsed, crushed and lids removed.

Deadline is April 28. Last year it took 39,000 jugs to win the contest, but the PTA expects it to take more this year. They've promised the students a huge summer party if they win.

Summer travel ideas

The 1995 edition of "Michigan Travel Ideas" will soon be on newstands, inside the May/June issue of Midest Living Magazine.

The Michigan Travel Bureau produced the 132-page supplement and will have copies of it available to those who request it. It features dozens of cities, small towns, attractions and activities for summer fun in Michigan.

A young family receives hospice bereavement care after their loved one dies

Last in a series on hospice

BY EILEEN OXLEY Clarkston News Staff Writer

Kassandra Ogans remembers a joke her father played on her just like it was yesterday.

"He smashed my doll's head in and said, "Your doll's been in an accident," she giggles. "I laughed so hard I fell right off my chair — that chair there." She points.

But then the 9-year-old's delicate features change. A storm of tears begins to form in the corners of her eyes.

"I miss my daddy so much," she whispers, crying softly.

Kassandra's father Larry died more than a year ago from lymphoma, a form of cancer. He was 36.

But Kassandra, as well as her mom Kym and little brother and sister Charlie and Karrissa, have been helped by hospice --- not only during Larry's illness, but through a continued bereavement program.

The Ogans' story began two-and-a-half years ago, when Larry, a builder, began experiencing pain in one of his legs. After a series of misdiagnoses, the couple were told Larry had cancer.

"He found out in July (1993) and he only made it to February," Kym, 28, says quietly, lighting a cigarette because talking is difficult.

The next months were an ordeal for the entire family. Larry was in and out of St. Joseph's Hospital in Pontiac, began to have seizures, underwent radiation treatments — but most of all, experienced great pain.

thing they gave him was Tylenol." At one point her husband, angry, said to his doctor, "What do you want me to do --- take the whole bottle?"

"All he knew was he hurt," Kym says.

Kassandra, too, remembers the nightmare. She would often keep her dad company, sometimes during the middle of the night, and had to dial 911 once when he experienced a seizure.

"It was Christmas time ... I was just about to kiss him and say good-night and all of a sudden he fell down. I didn't know what to do. I woke up my mom and called 911."

After several months, Kym was confused and weary. Finally, she called Dr. James O'Neill, who had taken care of both her and Larry since they were small and to whom she now entrusts the care of their three small children. O'Neill suggested she call Cranbrook Hospice.

Little did they know Larry was very near the end.

"Hour by hour his personality, his being Larry, was different. He was up all night and he was in horrible pain," Kym says. That was Thursday, two days before he died. That night, Kym says, he "took baths all night and lost the use of his legs.

"Everybody was pressuring me to take him to "He hated the hospital," Kym said. "The only the hospital. I couldn't do anything. I couldn't make Kassandra and Karrissa the pain go away or make him comfortable --- but I couldn't put him in the hospital either. Larry said, 'If you put me in the hospital, I'm never going to talk to you again."

Wed., April 5, 1995 3A

After the call to Cranbrook Hospice on a Friday, a team of two staff members arrived quickly.

"They asked me, 'Do we need a hospital bed, do we need this and that, do you agree to this and that."

They also included Larry in the decision-making, explaining who they were, what they were doing and what they would give him for pain.

"They told me what to look for, all night. Once he fell asleep from the pain medication they gave him, he hadn't looked that comfortable in years," Kym said.

"That was it — he never woke up."

Larry died the next afternoon. Both Larry's and Kym's families were able to be there, in the Ogans' home, while the children stayed with friends and family.

But afterwards, the pain hit hard.

"I didn't come back to this home for three days --- I was too scared," Kassandra said.

Hospice continues to support the Ogans now through a bereavement program.

Many times Cranbrook Hospice waits a few months to offer bereavement care --- after the shock worn off and many people really begin to grieve. But, in keeping with the hospice philosophy of individualized care, sometimes help is needed immediately, says Cranbrook Hospice bereavement coordinator Jean Kraemer, MA, LPC.

Bereavement Programs

• A Support Group for Young Women Whose Husbands have Died: Women, 45 years and younger, find support with others who are grieving the loss of a spouse through death, in monthly meetings.

Children's Grief Workshop and Adult Support Group: An eight-week program for children, ages 5-12, helps kids cope with the loss of a loved one. Through art, storybooks and play, this group helps children learn about their feelings, understand and remember loved ones.

• Grief Counseling: A member of the bereavement staff contacts you a few months after the death of your loved one to arrange a time to visit. Contact, including visits and phone calls, help provide support and assist in understanding the grief process, and continue throughout the year.

• Volunteer Support: Volunteers provide additional support by being compassionate listeners for those who are grieving.

• Monthly Bereavement Letters: During the 12 months following a loss, those who are bereaved receive letters that support and explain the grief process.

• Community Referral Service: Cranbrook Hospice provides contacts and listings of support groups in your area.

Help Through Education: Cranbrook Hospice has materials on grief available for use in the form of books, pamphlets, articles and videotapes.

"With the Ogans, we intervened right away and Kym wanted it right away, because small children were involved," Kraemer said.

Like hospice care in the home, bereavement can continue to "make those visits ... and help them to understand what's common in grief," Kraemer said.

Kym and her children also received help from hospice outside the home.

While Kym attended a support group for young women whose husbands have died, Kassandra and Charlie, 5, participated in an eight-week children's grief workshop that helped them to understand and share their grief in a child's own way.

Downtown

Business owners stress unity

BY EILEEN OXLEY Clarkston News Staff Writer

The good old days.

Clarkston business owners hope to start them again with a downtown business association that, in addition to sidewalk sales and moonlight madness, would focus on common problems.

The first meeting was a good beginning, drawing 15 retailers to the Clarkston Cafe March 14 for an initial discussion. It was decided to send invitations to Realtors and other downtown business owners for the second meeting on March 28, also at the Cafe.

The number of participants who showed up doubled the first gathering and an hour-and-a-half discussion focused on event-planning, advertising and promotion and dues and financing.

Buck Kopietz, who initiated the meetings, began by talking about parking problems.

"Parking's always been a problem. At one time there were 30 businesses and only 117 parking spots in town. Retail has to have spaces that turn over every 15 minutes to a half-hour," he said, as others nodded.

As the meeting progressed, officers were elected, including Kopietz, of Tierra Jewelers, president; Carroll Harris of Clarkston Cafe, vice president; Sue Gahan of Old Apothecary Antiques, secretary; and Neil Russo, of NBD Bank, treasurer.

Most of the meeting was like that — Jovial and earnest about jump-starting commitment to another organization like the ones in the past that had begun with gusto and eventually petered out — due to lack of continued participation.

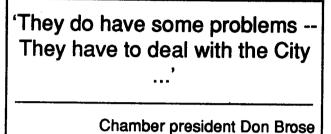

"Let's just do it and be committed," said Milieu owner Denise Howard.

Future annual events that might encourage visitors to shop downtown include the Home Tour, Scamp Walk, Fun Days, Concerts in the Park, and the Crafts and Cider Festival. Some participants thought an antique show either alone or in conjunction with Crafts and Cider might be a good draw. Howard thought it would be wise to plan early for any event so those participating wouldn't feel "under the gun. "You either do it right or you don't do it at all," she said.

Aftermore discussion, participants unanimously elected Howard as events chairperson. Howard then brought up "the billboard idea," discussed at the previous meeting, to advertise downtown Clarkston to motorists cruising I-75.

"People will say, 'Let's go check out this little historical village," she said.

Members agreed to pay $25 as an initial fee, with possible "special assessments for special events." But most felt monthly dues were too much to ask and hope for.

"I don't think $25 a year would scare anyone, but $25 a month — you may have some trouble," Olsen said.

Russo thought it timely to select a name. After a vast array of suggestions — which often became wordy — it was finally decided to call the group Clarkston Downtown Business Association.

Before that decision was made, participants disagreed on the boundaries and who to include. Olsen wondered about "peripheral businesses."

Shirley Wilson of the Parsonage thought membership should be open to everyone.

"We're all trying to do the same thing."

But Kopietz and others stressed the focus of the downtown area and its own unique problems.

"There is a Chamber of Commerce ...," Kopietz said.

A motion was made — and carried — to include those businesses along Main and side streets that extend from Dixie Highway to I-75.

A person who did not wish to be named said he felt participation would — again — dwindle because of business owners he labeled as "non-progressive" types.

"They don't want to spend the money for advertising and other things," the person said.

Some of Clarkston's Chamber of Commerce members were asked if they thought the association might have an impact on them.

"We don't feel threatened ... I don't see it as competition. Very few people in the downtown area are Chamber members," Don Brose, the Chamber's president, said. "Our Chamber of Commerce is designed to promote businesses in the whole area — It's more general.

"They do have some problems — They have to deal with the City of the Village of Clarkston ... If they need any help from the Chamber, we're glad to help them."

Tom McCloskey, former director of the Chamber of Commerce, said a previous Clarkston business association functioned as a sub-committee under the Chamber. But he agreed the needs of the immediate downtown area are much more specific and need to be addressed within a smaller group.

"They have a different set of issues. They're a small group. It's a good focus group for good, localized problems and that's a good thing."

Asked what he thought of the geographical boundaries set by the group, he answered, "You want to be as inclusive as you can, but not so inclusive that you diminish your impact. It's a tough call."

McCloskey said he agreed with business owners' complaints about the growing headache of parking problems within the downtown area. Because of its enormity, discussion about the problem was tabled till the next meeting, 8:30 a.m. Tuesday, April 11 at the Cafe.

"The city has come up with some issues that are an attempt to claw the people in business," McCloskey said.

Woman sentenced to 2-21 years in check fraud

BY ANNETTE KINGSBURY Clarkston News Editor

Dawn Marie Kelley was sentenced to 2-21 years in prison last week for making life miserable for a woman she resembles and stiffing local businesses with thousands of dollar worth of bad checks.

Kelley, 33, of Clarkston, was sentenced by Oakland County Circuit Court Judge Steven Andrews March 28 after pleading no contest to 13 charges she forged and cashed checks in someone else's name. She was also convicted of being a habitual criminal since she had been convicted of similar charges in 1986. In that case she paid $30,000 in restitution.

For her look-alike victim, Linda Gamble of Springfield Township, it's the end of a long ordeal.

'I am gladit's over with," she said. "I feel bad for the little girl (Kelley's daughter). It's not real easy seeing your mom go to jail. But I do think she (Kelley) brought it on herself."

Kelley opened bank accounts in Gamble's name, then wrote $20,000 worth of checks to various businesses using Gamble's driver's license as identification. Gamble lost her driver's license at a local bank and police theorize Kelley found it. The two resemble each other, police said.

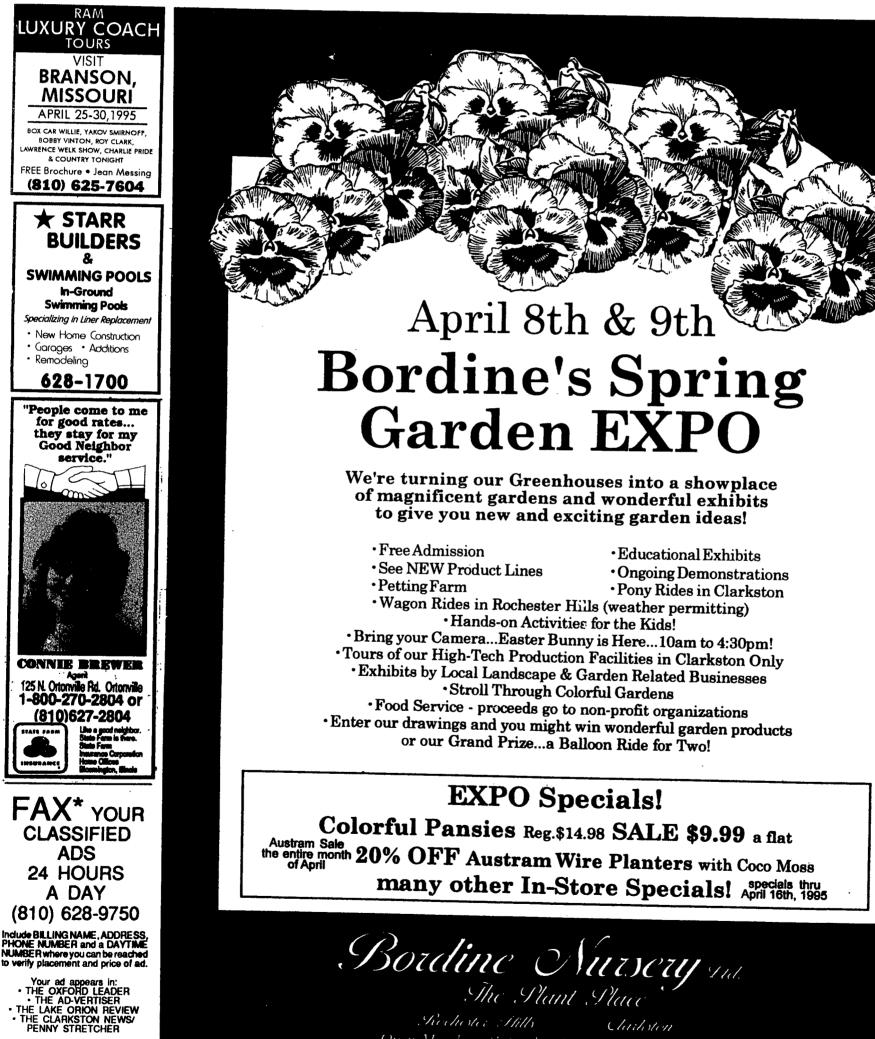

Kelley will have to pay restitution as well as serving her time. She also faces a civil suit Gamble has filed against her. Gamble wouldn't comment on the suit.

Though she said she's "happy with" the sentence Kelley got and is relieved her ordeal is over, Gamble said the conviction was still a sad occasion.

"You don't stand up and clap when someone goes to jail. She's got a 12-year-old daughter and her parents were there."

Ei-liners By Eileen Oxley Give me an "L!"

I'll be the first the admit I'm not a member of the "I Worship David Letterman" cult.

One of my friends has tapes and tapes of his shows and my daughter stays up well past high school bedtime hours — if there is such a thing — to watch the Big D.

But I thought the goofy-toothed host of "Late Night" was the best thing to ever happen to the "Academy Awards" last week. It was almost more of a treat to watch him than the sex parade of stars stuffed in evening gowns and tuxes.

Even the embarrassing silences — that are as much a part of the show as the ad nauseam of presenters — were relieved by Letterman's characteristic guffaws.

Like Gump's box of chocolates, you never knew what you were gonna get. But then, that's part of the Letterman charm.

There was Tom Hanks, aptly positioned in the front row, obviously expecting to travel to the stage for Best Actor.

Everyone knows that category is about the last shtick of the night and most people are yawning — so Tom was ready to go. He was either in the wrong place at the right time, or the right place at the wrong time, or it was staged (most likely the latter).

But it worked when Letterman summoned him up to assist with a "Stupid Pet Trick."

After Tom helped him to roll out the canine's carpet, people applauded as a skinny mutt chased his tail. The more they applauded, the faster the dog circled — thus Letterman's gift of a not-so-stupid pet feat.

(Lettermanalso did a mock-wipe of pet poo off the carpet before it was rolled up.)

Besides Letterman's Top Ten List — this one, how to know the movie you're watching isn't an Academy Award nominee — the funniest sequence was his man-in-the-cab sketch where he interviewed various taxi drivers. It should have received its own special award in film editing.

Hitting with his best late night shots, he asked them (with a hint of sadism) if they remembered the old movie, "Taxi Driver," had them repeat "Hakuna Matata" — over and over — from "The Lion King," wondered if they preferred "Goobers" or "Raisinettes

Editorial

Board ignores own rules

The Clarkston Board of Education is routinely ignoring its own bylaws when it comes to sticking to its agenda and reporting discussion items in the minutes.

An examination of the board's policy manual and by-laws last week revealed the following wording:

"The board shall transact business according to the agenda... The order of business may be suspended at any meeting by a majority vote of the members present..." (Section 166).

"The board of education recognizes the value of public comment on educational issues and the importance of allowing members of the public to address themselves on district matters ...." (Section 167,3).

The minutes must show "as a minimum ... topics of presentation and discussion and any decisions made ..." (Section 168.1).

"The board declares and thereby reaffirms its intent to (A) maintain two-way communications with citizens of the district. The board shall keep them informed of the progress and problems of the school district...(C) acting as a truly representative body for citizens in all matters relative to the programs and operations..." (Section 123).

The board violates its own policy by holding discussions which are not on the agenda and which are not then recorded in the minutes. These are done at the end of closed sessions, late at night, when the public has gone home.

Both superintendent Gary Haner and the trustees must share the blame. Haner initiates the discussions. None of the trustees moves, as required by the by-laws, to suspend the agenda. No one amends the minutes to include the discussion. No one, apparently, thinks anything is wrong.

The Clarkston News

That is until last Monday, when several trustees complained that the only discussion they'd had on privatization of school services and reorganization of central office was in one of these unannounced sessions. However, none of them had ever complained before about taking part in those sessions.

You can't have it both ways. Either you enjoy being able to discuss district business in the dark, or you protest. Almost certainly the Clarkston school board isn't the only one to engage in practices skirting the Open Meetings Act, but they may be the first one to do so, then talk about it in public.

It is such actions that make residents distrustful of the district. And who can blame them, when it's obvious the superintendent doesn't trust some board members, and vice versa?

Such an atmosphere at the top of any organization must filter down. And that can't be good for the educational process. And isn't that what school boards and administrations are supposed to be here for? AK

'Haire' line on gambling

By Jim Sherman

I'm a semi-faithful reader of John Haire's "The Haire Net" column in the Cass City Chronicle. John's been that weekly newspaper's publisher longer than I've been around these parts.

I particularly liked what he had to say recently about a proposed 36-state Indian-run lottery, which was . . .

"There are worse ways than casino gambling for sucking the hard earned dollars from families and individuals, many times the very ones who can't afford to lose.

Money better used for food, clothing and shel-management company.

If the lottery flies, gamblers will be able to bet through a toll-free telephone number in the area covered, which includes Michigan.

Callers will be able to use credit or debit cards to buy chances at the jackpot, which almost certainly will be 5, 10 or 20 times larger than the Michigan Lotto.

What's to keep a minor from grabbing a family card and charging a few thousand dollars to it for ucces? Nothing!

Michigan and other states are objecting strenuously to the plan, for obvious reasons.

(all but one liked the wrinkled confections)" and inquired if anyone had ever told them they resembled famous actors.

But the best part of this clip had Letterman asking a driver if he enjoyed movie popcorn.

Yes, he answered.

"Would you like to have some of it now?" Letterman inquired.

That's where the editing was at its best. The next shot revealed Letterman and the driver, buried up to the waist in buttered popcorn, munching happily, quietly.

In my opinion, I'd have to say David Letterman is even better than past hosts like Bob Hope and Billy Crystal.

Necessary comic relief that made the endless evening tolerable.

Even enjoyable.

ter. Money gambled trying to find the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow.

Now casinos are fairly adept at siphoning dollars from the wallets of the players, and if you've been around them, chances are you've witnessed one or more who have lost their bankroll and perhaps the grocery money for next week.

Everything in a well-run casino is designed to make you relax and feel carefree. It's an unreal world, as any visitor can attest. What could be more damaging than that?

The saving grace of casino gambling is that at least the players have to go where the gambling is to lose their money. And if the gambling is confined to the Indian reservations, it takes even more effort to toss away your money.

But the Indians intend to make it easier. An Idaho tribe has a plan for a 36-state mega-lottery. It will be under the direction of the Coeur d'Alene tribe and Unistar Entertainment, Inc., a Denver-based Every dollar spent on the Indian lottery will be deducted from the total wagered on the Michigan Lotto.

The Indians have received court sanction for conducting business the way they want to in lands that have been set aside for them in treaty agreements.

Does that right include soliciting gambling money from citizens in their homes and not on the reservations?

Several states are ready to challenge the case in court. There's no guessing about one aspect of the case. The lawyers will have a field day with this one.

It's one time that the way our courts and lawyers operate will be a benefit to all of us who think that a 36-state Indian lottery is a bad idea.

If it goes to the supreme court, it will be years before a decision is reached and the games could begin."

A look back

15 YEARS AGO (1980)

Final plans for a 12-ride amusement park at Pine Knob are ready to go before the Independence Township Planning Commission. If approved, construction could begin immediately. Timothy Palulian, township building and planning department director, says the former '20s theme discussed at previous planning commission meetings is not evident on the final site plans, but "what it looks like is they're going to asphalt a certain area adjacent to the music theater and bolt the rides down."

Clarkston's Village Council votes unanimously to proceed with court action, forcing the last remaining 17 village homes with septic systems to hook up with the sewer line. Village President Fontie Apmadoc says those residents will be given 30 days to receive sewer hook-up permits and have 90 days to complete the tiein.

The Clarkston Business Association hires an advertising firm to bring more shoppers downtown. Retail Market Group of Southfield will program, organize and promote campaigns to increase business through a variety of channels. Association president Carol Eberhardt says a yearly plan will be developed to outline "special sales, events and holidays to determine the best type of advertising."

25 YEARS AGO (1970)

The formal dedication of the Independence Township Library is set for Sunday and will kick off the celebration of National Library Week. The event is the culmination of a 15-year dream spearheaded by the Clarkston Women's Club and supported by the Jaycees, Rotary Club and other organizations and individuals. The first Clarkston library was established in 1954 in an old school house on Main Street.

A facelift is scheduled for Woodhull Lake Subdivision Saturday. Residents, Jaycees, Camp Fire Girls, Cub Scouts and others will assist in a spring cleanup that will remove burned-out and derelict property as well as 10 old cars. A truck will also be provided by Sam Allen's junkyard to assist in the operation. A committee has been formed to clean up the area in order to return the property to its original beauty.

Clarkston High School students will attend Rossini's "Barber of Seville," this year's offering from the annual Overture to Opera, at Lahser High School in Bloomfield Hills April 15. The Overture is a unique Detroit cultural project that is a prelude to the annual Detroit visit of the Metropolitan Opera under the auspices of the Detroit Grand Opera Association.

AIDS Awareness Week

disease that we've heard about since 1981.

I read with interest that in those 14 years 6,337 cases of AIDS were reported throughout the state. Most of the reported cases (4,366) were concentrated in the Tri-county area (Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties).

A further breakdown showed that in 14 years 620 cases were reported in Oakland County -- over half (355) of the victims have died.

This week I read news reports on AIDS -- the victims by the population and found that percentage drops to .00023.

I crunched those numbers because rarely does the public get a true picture. It seems reporters and editors today go with what numbers they're given without any question. And, whenever we hear or read of AIDS the word epidemic is associated.

AIDS/epidemic is the message we have received for the last five or six years. Anybody that contradicts or questions that is labeled as somebody hateful.

I am in no way hateful. This column is not (I

Names hurt slashers in U. S. House

The Clarkston (MI) News, Wed., April 5, 1995 .7

Which is worse, having to crawl on your belly, or being the offspring of unwed parents?

That's a reasonable question to ask following the declaration by 82 U.S. House Republicans that it is "a reprehensible and unforgivable insult" to be called "reptilian bastards."

That's what Detroit lawyer George Bushnell called some House members in a speech at the recent American Bar Association national convention. And the 82 Republicans were so outraged, they sent Bushnell a letter demanding his resignation as president of the association.

Bushnell responded that his remarks were aimed only at House members who want to slash federal funding for legal services provided for poor people. He hasn't resigned yet.

And none of the 82 learned lawmakers explained whether they were most upset at being called snake-like, or illegitimate. Or is it the combination - a serpent whose mother and father never exchanged wedding vows --- that angered them into calling the insult not only reprehensible, but also unforgivable?

In the 1950s, as a newspaper ad salesman, I annually staged a promotion in which merchants gave valuable ---and well-advertised --- merchandise to the first baby born at the local hospital every New Year. The only stipulation was that the infant's parents had to be married to each other.

Also, every week my newspaper listed in the Births column the names of every local newborn and his or her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Blow. But if there was no Mr. and Mrs., there was no birth, as far as the newspaper was concerned. The editor didn't want to embarrass the bastard's relatives, who were grateful for no publicity.

Those were the days when pregnant unwed girls were often shipped out of town, to live with relatives or friends until the bastard was adopted or brought home with some brilliant explanation --- "Look what Aunt Bessie found in the mail!" --- that fooled no one. There was no greater shame than a baby born out of wedlock.

But today a bastard could be elected president. Better late than forever Neanderthal, we finally realize how unfair it is to brand and exclude an innocent child as "illegitimate" and therefore unacceptable.

Also, it has become politically correct --- and popular with many celebrities --- to put off the wedding ceremony until the offspring grow old enough to be a bridesmaid, or to give his mother the bride away to his dad.

Or forget the wedding forever. Who cares if your mom and dad never marry each other, and perhaps marry Uncle Joe and Aunt Jane instead? This is a free and fair country that welcomes alternative lifestyles.

Snakes, too. Any animal-rights activist worth his picket sign will tell you it's unfair and ridiculous to say reptiles are automatically more evil or repulsive than, say, a dog, or a lion, or a congressman. So what if they slither instead of walk? How would you like to be hit in the head with a stick just because you had to slither to get anywhere?

Obviously, it was not reprehensible and unforgivable for George Bushnell to call some U.S. House representatives reptilian bastards. He shouldn't feel compelled to resign as ABA president.

The news report also indicated that for every person with AIDS, five to 10 people are HIV positive.

Since I love to crunch numbers to get more useless numbers, I whipped out my handy-dandy Texas Instruments TI-766 III solar calculator. I called Oakland County to get their latest population figures, which were from 1992. In 1992 the county's population was 1,118,611.

Armed, I started pressing buttons and crunching numbers.

I multiplied the number of cases for Oakland County over the last 14 years (620) by 10 for a worst case scenario, then divided by the total population for 1992.

If there are 10 HIV positive people in the county for every person with AIDS, then the percentage of the population affected is .0053 -- half of one percent. If you go with the reported number of cases and divide it out the percentage goes to .00055. I went one step further, and divided the number of living AIDS repeat) not about hate. It's about following like sheep, or questioning. The hair on my back is not shaved to make sweaters, so I must question.

I believe research into this disease should and must continue. I do not believe in the word epidemic as it relates to the general public and AIDS.

The news report I saw stated 85 percent of the cases in the Tri-county area were men. And, 84 percent were caused from direct homosexual and intravenous drug activity (51 percent homosexual activity, 28 percent intravenous drug activity, five percent resulted from homosexual and intravenous drug activity).

Yes, we need to be wary of this disease. Yes, we should find ways to eradicate it. No, we should not be led to believe that the sky is falling and that life as we know it will end unless we continue to increase monies spent on/and about AIDS.

(If you want to do more math the state's population is 9,496,147.)

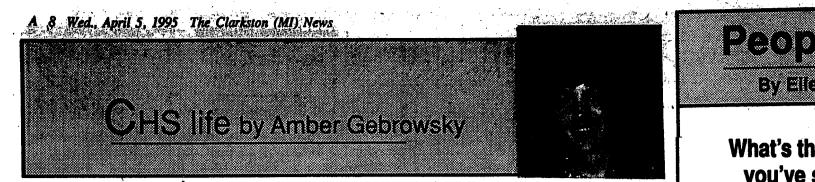

And those 82 House Republicans should find something better to do than insult snakes and bastards by comparing them to lawyers.

For example, speaking of name-calling, a newspaper recently reported that the Women's Tennis Association Tour turned down an attractive $10-million global sponsorship by Tampax for "fear of endless jokes, bad puns and snickering men."

To point out the stupidity and inequality of such a sexist attitude, Congress should pass a law limiting beer sales and advertising at all male sports events to once a month.

We're not a dime a dozen

OK, here's the thing. I don't sing very well. I 'certainly don't sing well enough to perform a solo while dancing on a stage in front of an auditorium full of people. Therefore, I admire those in the spring musical, including senior Maria Fifelski, who did just that.

Last Saturday evening, as I sat in CHS' beloved Kirchgessner Theater for a performance of "Bye Bye Birdie," I was amazed by the audience. For one thing, this was a sold-out show. For another, nobody questioned the value of the performance we were about to see. Instead, I was asked several times if this was my first time seeing the show. The room was filled with a level of excitement and excellence that made this musical something an audience member would love to see more than once.

However, even as I sat enjoying the antics of Jimmy Territo, Emily Franson and Ryan Seaman, I couldn't help but feel that something was wrong. As I looked around me, I began to realize exactly what it was.

The Kirchgessner Theater may be beloved, but it was also extremely crowded. Somehow, the beauty of the music, acting and enthusiasm just didn't match the room that it was housed in.

On the one hand, I'm glad we even have a theater at CHS. There are other high schools in the state that would be doing the same performance in a gym or cafeteria. However, this is not an excuse. My classmates and I are existing in a building that was at most meant to hold 1,200 people. CHS currently houses nearly 1,800. Now, if we were just another school, maybe this could be accepted. However, there is something extraordinary going on at Clarkston that just doesn't match the building we are in.

Look at our sports teams. We had a football team that made it to the second round of the state playoffs. Our wrestlers finished as the second-best team in Michigan. Our golf team was the state champ. Our basketball team made it to the quarterfinals, creating a frenzy as it did so. At the end of their season, tickets for the games sold out within 20 minutes, and rumors of ticket scalpers surfaced. The Wolves became, in their own way, more popular than the pros.

Our performing arts department boasts equally high levels of greatness. All four concert bands from CHS received first-division ratings at district festival. Many of these same students competed at district solo and ensemble festival, and over 80 went on to the state level.

Our varsity concert choir also took a firstdivision rating at its festival. Twelve vocal music events went from district solo and ensemble to compete at a state level. At both choir and band concerts, one is lucky to find a seat. Musicians and friends from across the state come to experience the magic of Clarkston's music.

And that's not all. Our school has a brand new, yet very competitive, forensics and debate team. We have a new school newspaper and a yearbook that is becoming competitive for state-level awards. Eighty-three juniors and seniors carry a 3.7 GPA or higher. One-hundred-thirty-eight students are not only athletes, but on the honor roll as well.

Mention the fact that you are from Clarkston to someone from another school district, and he or she is impressed. I truly do attend one of the best schools in the state. With all of our accomplishments, we've proved that it is the people, and not the building, that make a school. Still, when you have a record as impressive as ours, wouldn't an equally impressive building be nice?

QUESTION: Sometimes I feel as though my children fight and argue as a method of attracting my attention. If this is the case, how should I respond?

ANSWER: You are probably correct in making that assumption.

Sibling rivalry often represents a form of manipulation of parents. Quarreling and fighting provide an opportunity for both children to "capture" adult attention. It has been written, "Some children would rather be wanted for murder than not w at all."

behavior unprofitable to each participant.

I would recommend that you review the problem (for example, a morning full of bickering) with the children, and then say, "Now listen carefully. If the two of you want to pick on each other and make yourselves miserable, then be my guest (assuming there is a fairly equal balance of power between them). Go outside and fight until you're exhausted. But it's not going to occur under my feet anymore. It's over! And you know I mean business when I

What's the best movie you've seen within the last year?

KEVIN SCHANG, PINCKNEY: "The Lion King." I took my kids to see it. It was a nice, wholesome film the kids could watch. Plus, I'm a big Disney fan.

MICHAEL ESSHAKI FARMINGTON HILLS: "Before Sunrise." It's about a couple that meet on a train and spend the day in Venice. In the end, they have to go their separate ways. Nobody I've ever talked to has ever seen it.

DAWN KOSINSKI, CLARKSTON: "Forest Gump," because it really hit home. It was different than any other movie that was out this year. It was funny and heartwarming.

JEVIN TAPPERO, CLARKSTON: "Pulp Fiction." I saw it three times. If it's a good movie, I'll see it several times with different friends to get several different reactions. I've seen Toward this end, a pair of obnoxious kids can tacitly agree to bug their parents until they get a response — even if it's an angry reaction.

One father told me recently that his son and his nephew began to argue and then beat each other with their fists. Both fathers were nearby and decided to let the fight run its natural course. During the first lull in the action, one of the boys glanced sideways toward the passive men and said, "Isn't anybody going to stop us before we get hurt?"

The fight, you see, was something neither boy wanted. Their violent combat was directly related to the presence of the two adults, and would have taken a different form if the boys had been alone. Children will often "hook" their parents' attention and intervention in this way.

Believe it or not, this form of sibling rivalry is easiest to control. The parent must simply render the make that kind of statement. Do other?"

Having made the boundaries clear, I would act decisively the instant either boy returned to his bickering. If I had separate bedrooms, I would confine one child to each room for at least 30 minutes of complete boredom — without radio or television. Or I would assign one to clean the garage and the other to mow the lawn. Or I would make them take a nap. My avowed purpose would be to make them believe me the next time I submitted a request for peace and tranquility.

What is most surprising is that children are happiest when their parents enforce these reasonable limits with love and dignity. Instead of wringing their hands and crying and begging and screaming (which actually reinforces the disruptive behavior and makes it worse), a mother or father should approach the conflict with dignity and self-control.

Letters to the editor

Parents, wake up!

It is hard to believe the adult population of Clarkston still has their heads buried in the sand when it comes to the activities of their teenage children.

PARENTS, WAKE UP! Alcohol and drug use are on the rise. In a survey taken at Clarkston schools a few years ago it was found that an average of 55 percent of eighth-graders had used alcohol in the past 12 months and by the time they were seniors the average had increased to over 80 percent.

It is not that other child that is drinking illegally, using drugs, or sexually active. It is not your neighbor's child, one of those bad kids or losers, nor is it only those young people involved in the bus incident over the weekend. That child is my child. That child is YOUR child. That same kid who is on the honor roll, plays baseball, basketball, cheerleads, or wrestles; plays in the band or sings in the choir, works after school and helps old ladies across the street. You know, that really nice kid that you have reared and love.

Unfortunately nice kids have been known to make bad decisions. They lack experience and knowledge. It is also a time to impress friends and stretch their wings of independence. Not always a safe combination.

In one week many of these young will be leaving home for spring break. Fun in the sun! Booze! Drugs! Sex! WOW, FREEDOM! Wow; pain, humiliation, rapes, unwanted pregnancies, STDs, AIDS, death.

To think he had so much to look forward to. She was so young, fresh and innocent. And now . . . And now . . .

Cast, crew give Oscar performances

Last weekend, many academy awards for "Best Performance" could have been handed out at the CHS production of "Bye Bye Birdie." All the cast, crew and orchestra put their hearts and souls into every performance and they were truly superb.

They are a very devoted group — spending weekends and countless hours after school to perfect their talents.

A very special thanks to Jeff Tice, Grayce Warren, Marilyn Kettler and Cliff Chapman, who help inspire these dedicated students. You were all wonderful — thanks for putting on "A Happy Face" for us all.

Not to worry

In reference to the bad pavement on Maybee Road near Waterford Road, I called the Oakland County Road Commission last fall and complained.

They said something would be done about it and I should receive a letter explaining the situation. Nothing happened for a period of time, so I called them back. The lady that answered the phone was very rude, evidently because I had the nerve to call a second time. This time she advised me that my message would be passed on to another department.

So, just to let you know, everything will be OK, I should be receiving a letter any day now explaining the situation.

Write a letter!

Gordon Mason

Cost vs. benefit

Dear editor,

The high costs and risks of a high school swimming poll identified in a recent letter to the editor are undeniable. However, let's also consider as a community whether the benefits would justify the costs.

A comunity or high school pool could provide residents with additional recreational opportunities, teach residents skills that save lives in potential drowning situations, give students additional constructive activities, improve the lifetime health and exercise habits of those who utilize the pool, allow the Clarkston schools to add swimming teams to its fine athletics program, provide leadeship experiences for student instructors and lifesavers, and increase confidence levels of children (and others) who learn how to swim.

The community needs more information about the pros and cons of a pool before being able to make an intelligent decision. We have only scratched the surface so far, and any additional information would be welcomed. Once all the facts are on the table, we can determine the will of the people and move on.

> Respectfully submitted, Floyd Hirsch Independence Township

State should take control of system

It seems to me that it's time for the State of Michigan to take control of the South East Michigan Transportation System and combine Detroit's system with the outlying counties systems. Because funds to both systems are provided from the gasoline taxes the state should have this power.

Until that happens I say NO to property taxes to support duplicate routes in Detroit.

Grieving family finds help through hospice shared stuff. At the end of two weeks we had pizza," Kassandra says, smiling and remembering. "All the kids had lost their dads. I took my Pinocchio doll Dad bought me that plays, 'When You Wish Upon a Star ..."

Kassandra also received help from Cranbrook Hospice bereavement volunteer Cheryl Wilson, who provided companionship one-on-one.

Kraemer explains this special concept of bereavement care.

"By providing a compassionate adult, Kassandra would be able to share her feelings freely. Because it might make Mom or Dad upset, children are sometimes more comfortable with someone whose grief wouldn't get triggered," Kraemer says.

Charlie, too, received a special volunteer. He connected with a young man, Matt Kalasky from Michigan State University, who was a summer intern with Cranbrook Hospice. Kalasky headed a children's grief workshop and offered bereavement support as a volunteer. Matt's service to the Ogans went far beyond the norm, says Kym.

"There aren't many young college kids who

A special book helped 9-year-old Kassandra Ogans share her feelings after her father died. The first page says, "I wish my dad would come back. I loved him very much." would have done for us for nothing," Kym said. "Matt mowed the lawn for us all summer. Charlie clung to him. When he went back to school (in the fall) he came over and spent a couple of days playing with Charlie."

Though little Karrissa, then 1 1/2, did not participate directly in a bereavement care situation, nevertherless, toddlers — even infants — can experience grief, Kraemer says.

"We do believe that toddlers and infants grieve too. We have a saying, 'If you're old enough to love, you're old enough to grieve," Kraemer says.

Information from Cranbrook Hospice supports this.

"The bereaved toddler needs one-on-one care 24 hours a day. Make sure someone she loves and trusts is always there to feed her, clothe her, diaper her and play with her. Unless she is already comfortable with a certain provider, now is not the time to put her in day care," states a passage from literature available through Cranbrook Hospice.

It has been over a year since the Ogans lost their husband and father. They still maintain contact with Cranbrook Hospice, whose volunteers continue to help.

"They signed a card on the anniversary Larry died," says Kym, adding that she still receives calls from Kraemer and Wilson.

Kym has moved her work home so she can care for her children. The days and nights are still hard.

"For months I cried every time it was garbage day ... I don't miss him any less. He was my best friend. I grew up with him.

"You put the kids to bed and you're alone," she says.

Kraemer says Kym's feelings are typical.

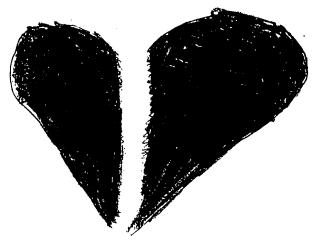

"The death of a loved one puts you on a different road forever." And she stresses the importance of not rushing the grieving process.

"We never say 'grief recovery,' or getting over it."

Because last year's Father's Day ironically fell on Larry's birthday, Kym and her children celebrated in a very special way. One of the inclusions in hospice bereavement is remembrance.

"We lit candles and sang, 'Happy Birthday.' We tied up helium balloons and sent them up, you know, to heaven. They caught wind and we watched them until we couldn't see them anymore," says Kym.

"That was a message we sent to Larry." For more information on Cranbrook Hospice and all its programs, call (810) 334-6700.

Independence Township

Getting 'vision' down on paper

BY DARREL W. COLE Clarkston News Staff Writer

Independence Township is striving for a "Vision of the Future."

Supervisor Dale Stuart said the township must now plan for its future by "learning from others, evaluating where we've been and where we want to be."The movement begins with updating the township's master plan, as well as creating a steering committee, that will spearhead "Independence 2020."

This new way of planning received its introduction at a special joint meeting of the board trustees, planning commission, zoning board and other township employees. The meeting was held March 27 at Spring Lake Country Club (dinner provided) with a movie and presentations by township consultants and Stuart.

The first order of business was a 30-minute film presentation entitled "Vision of the Future." Afterwards, township consultants Thomas Biehl (engineer), Richard Carlisle (planner) and Jerry Fisher (attorney) made a presentation on how they can contribute to the township's future planning.

Carlisle, of Carlisle & Associates, presented the township's plan on how "Independence 2020" will be achieved. He said through a steering committee, study groups, the township board and planning commission, citizens and consultants and staff, the township can develop a master plan that will provide a statement of goals and policies, both long and short term.

He said the goal is to begin the process by April and have a final report by March of 1996.

Stuart told the gathering of about 25 this effort will take a lot of hard work from many people in the township.

"I ask you to commit to this next year so that 25 years from now our children can look back and say what happened back then was right," he said.

Carlisle's presentation consisted of showing how the township can develop a master plan using a variety of resources. The various committees and study groups will consist of many township officials, employees and citizens.

The steering committee will be made up of the township supervisor, planning commission chairman, two board trustees, one Clarkston schools representative, one Clarkston City representative and the chair of each of the six study groups.

Each study group will consist of one trustee and five to seven members from the community, business, township employees or some other appointed/elected position.

The six study groups will come up with goals, policies and strategies for each of the following categories: Residential land use, commercial and industrial land use, transportation, utilities, community facilities and services, and historic, rural, open space and natural resource preservation.

In the past several months the township has been looking towards such "future" planning. Several months ago The Clarkston News wrote an article about the newly-developed "Historic and Rural Preservation Plan" developed for the township. In the last month the township's board of trustees discussed plans for a possible regional sewer system in the Sashabaw Corridor area.

Both those plans are small parts of the township's new planning strategies.

In the next few weeks Stuart said he hopes to have more of an idea of when the "Independence 2020" plan will be begin.

Walk and roll for SCAMP

Clarkston SCAMP will host a day of family fun and fitness Sunday, May 7 in Depot Park in downtown Clarkston.

Dubbed Walk and Roll, the annual walk-a-thon has been expanded to invite bikes and wheelchairs to take part in routes of one, three or eight miles. The event raises funds for SCAMP, a non-profit organization which provides summer camping opportunities for children and young adults, ages 3-26, with special needs.

All ages are welcome to participate; wheelchair racers who need assistance should call Geri Batt at 625-3330.

T-shirts will be given to all students with pledges of $50 or more or adults with $100 or more. Anyone who can't make time for the walk is invited to make a tax-deductible contribution. Anyone so pledging $100 or more will get a shirt that says, "Too rushed to walk, but I supported SCAMP in a special way."

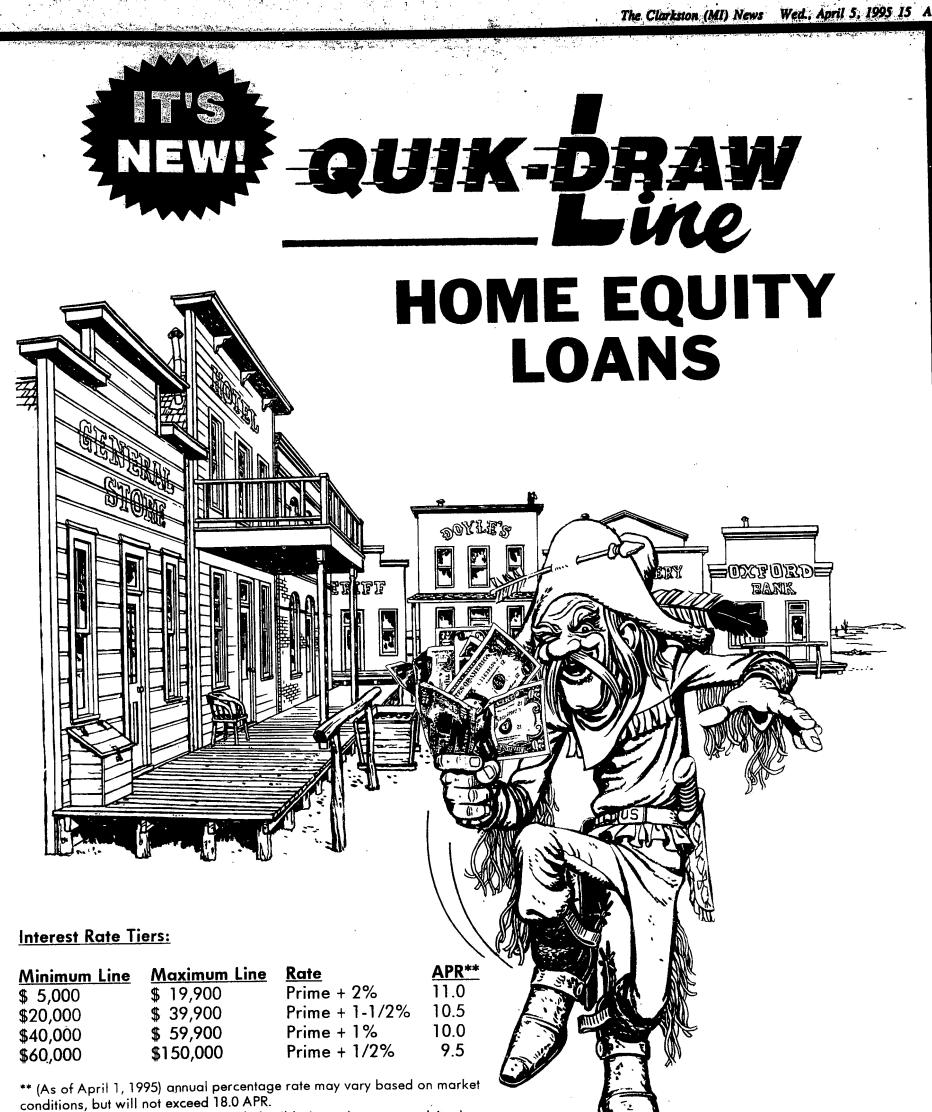

Hot dogs, drinks and treats will be available for all participants at the finish line. Pledge forms are available at the Clarkston schools Special Services Building at 625-3330 or by calling the 24-hour hotline at 698-6957. Registration will be open from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. the day of the race.

The name Dinosauria "terrible lizards" was given to these newly discovered giants in 1841.

Schools reorganize administration

OFFICE, from 1A

management of grounds and maintenance over to private companies.

In addition, Haner said Monday night that privatization of food service is "under heavy, heavy review." However, he said his reorganization is not dependent on privatization being approved.

"The reorganization will stand, regardless of any action on privatization," he said.

Trustee Kurt Karlstrom said he was reluctant to remove Nancy Zobel, the Supervisor of Accounting, when the Deputy Superintendent for Business and Operations, Steven Lenar, just left his job.

"Those are the two most important people in the district, I think they are and now they're not going to be with us," he said. "I don't know what's going on. I'm not going to rubber-stamp this proposal."

Haner reiterated his assertion of last week that some matters cannot be discussed in public because they are personnel related. He also refused to divulge the information in private to board members.

After last week's meeting, board members received a study conducted of the business office by the Michigan School Business Officials. The report varies somewhat from the reorganization proposal, Haner said, because it was a review of the existing structure, not a proposal for change.

The reorganization that is recommended will completely implement the recommendations in that study," he said. The next step is an implementation plan. "We won't be able to do that in a year, it will take a long-term timeline."

During audience questioning the subject of concessions by union employees as an alternative to had a meeting with Haner about a month ago. Privatization and central office reorganization were discussed, as were concessions.

"The ball's in our court," Brewer said. "We're going through the budgets at this time. We're finding a lot of discrepancies in their proposals to the board.

"I don't think we are going to make concessions. I think we're going to a different aspect of negotiations." He declined to be more specific, citing the confidential nature of negotiations.

However he did make a plea for the public to become involved in the discussion of privatization. The board of education will discuss its procedures for hearing presentations from private companies at its next meeting, Monday at 7:30 p.m. at the administration building.

"We do need the support of the people in the community," Brewer said. "This is further along than they want to admit."

NOTE: Over the weekend the Michigan Court of Appeals approved a temporary stay on PA 112, the law passed last year which included provisions allowing privatization without negotiation with unions.

Richard Simonson, Oakland Schools Assistant Superintendent for State and Federal Affairs, said the stay will have no effect on Clarkston schools' move toward privatization.

School districts have always had the authority to seek the most for the least," he said.

He pointed out that Pontiac schools privatized their transportation five years ago, long before PA 112 was passed.

In his new position, Lenar will coordinate financial services for a number of school districts who do not have their own business officials, in addition to his ISD work. He will be responsible for a total budget of $50 million, as compared to a roughly $30 million budget in Clarkston.

Lenar becomes the fourth administrator to leave Clarkston since last June. Haner said Monday that the district's auditor, Plante and Moran, will assist with budget work until a replacement is brought on board, hopefully by July 1.

The budget schedule calls for a budget workshop with the board of education on May 1 and a public hearing on May 22. Haner told the board of education Monday night a new schedule will be forthcoming.

Some board members had praise for Lenar Monday. "I like the man as a person; I like the job he did for this district," Kurt Karlstrom said. "I'm saddened I won't have the chance to say goodbye . . . He had certainly taken on a lot of tasks and done a lot of good things for the district."

BUS, from 1A

"They told us they did it (built the bombs) driving down the road with five people in the car," Young said. "We could have ended up with five dead kids."

Last week, a CHS student who is not involved in the case told The Clarkston News he and some friends had bought the bus to take to Florida over spring break. They were planning to be gone for two weeks.

All of which concerns CHS principal Brent Cooley. "Although it wasn't a school situation, we're always concerned about someone who might be putting themselves at risk or others at risk," he said Monday. "We're concerned about our young kids on weekends as well as weekdays, 24 hours a day.'

Students read all about it

Fourth-graders at Pine Knob Elementary School recently spent a whole day in school without opening a textbook. And their teachers said it was OK. As one in a series of Fourth Grade Happenings, their teachers had planned the day's lessons around using the newspaper. The students covered English, reading, geography and doing math using just the sections of the newspaper. They learned about the parts of a newspaper, read articles, found names of interesting places and located them on a map using longitude and latitude lines, and found examples of math terms in the papers. Pictured are Sabrina St. Peter (left) and Julie Burke.

Corrections

• Last week's front page story should not have said school superintendent Gary Haner asked the board to deviate from its own policy. Haner asked the board to approve an agenda item which had not previously been a discussion item. The board has no written policy on the issue but its common practice is to discuss an item at one meeting, then vote on it at the next. Haner, however, said Friday this is not board policy. "In my own opinion, it does not exist," he said.

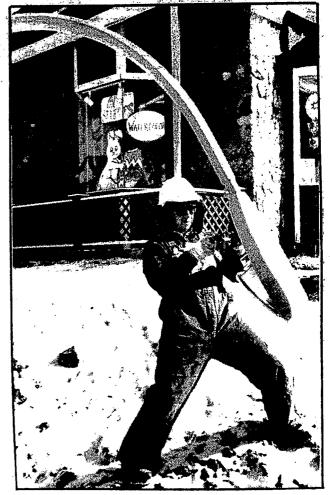

In addition, the story should have said board members received copies of a business office report before they left that night, not later in the week.

Also, Linda Nestor's current title was incorrect. She is the Supervisor of Food Services.

Senior class lead boys track hopes

Mott, Lake Orion top foes in OAA Div. II

> BY DARREL W. COLE Clarkston News Staff Writer

Until the Clarkston boys track team competes against real competition, coach Walt Wyniemko won't be sure just how good his team will be.

Although he is sure his 10 seniors will be the strength of the squad, the 16-year coach said it's a new league, season and tough to tell where they will end up.

"The seniors are the real strength, they are the leaders and were a big part of the program as sophomores and juniors also," said Wyniemko. "It's a good group of kids who happen to be talented and good to work with."

Those seniors include Steve Anderson, Rich Bevins, Shane Collier, Jason Graves, J.R. Kirk, Matt Warner, Matt Wenger, Andrew Holland, Jeff Dengate and Josh Preston.

Those 10 touch on a lot of areas for us but at some point we'll need some of the sophomores and juniors to fill in, as well as the freshmen. If we want to be good as a team we have to get others to step up also," the coach said.

Wyniemko said with the help of assistant coaches Mike Kaul, who has been with him from the beginning, and Mike Taylor, who joined the crew six years ag his athletes are getting taught well.

"They do a great job of coaching the distance at middle-distance people" as well as many other area Wyniemko said of the cross country co-coaches.

Wyniemko said he and the athletes are excit about the upcoming season but it's too early to dete mine how they will do. ## Kickers positive for season

BY DARREL W. COLE Clarkston News Staff Writer

, Depth may lead the Clarkston girls soccer team to a competitive season in the new Oakland Activities Association Division II.

The Wolves lost about six important players from last season's 3-13-1 team, but a solid group of underclassmen and a deep team could change things around. They will all be led by four-year varsity player Audrey Schlaff.

"We could struggle this year but even last season all the GOAL teams were pretty close," said fourthyear coach Dan Fitzgerald. "No one should really dominate this season either and we could do real well. It will probably come down to winning the close games."

Regardless of the experience of his players, Fitzgerald is pleased they all have good attitudes and are willing to work hard to get better.

"This season we have good athletes and are really dedicated but it's really a skill problem now," the coach said. "Many of the kids just don't play yearround and so it takes them about a month or longer to learn what they should be doing. By that time the season's almost over.

"We do spend a lot of time on skill work in practice and not as much on tactics like we should. But on the other hand they do work hard and keep positive."

A key to this season is defense and "not allowing the other team to score a lot of bad goals," the coach said. He said an improved offensive mid-field may help the team score points because the defense should be tough once again, just as it was last season.

Besides Schlaff, who was injured for almost all of last year but was one of the team's top players as a sophomore, Fitzgerald likes the improvement junior Brynn Allyn and sophomore goalkeeper Carin Kirk have made.

Fitzgerald said his players can improve and stay competitive provided they don't make a lot of mistakes. If all goes well and the team does improve, Fitzgerald thinks the Wolves could do some damage in the playoffs.

"I'd like to do well in the division and prove ourselves there so we can do something in the districts. We have a lot of JV players who are good too so it should be even more competitive as the year goes on."

The other OAA Division II teams include Lake Orion, Waterford Kettering, Brandon, Bloomfield Hills Lahser and West Bloomfield.

The Wolves got a taste of what it's like to play against OAA Division I teams when they lost 10-0 to Royal Oak Kimball in a crossover match March 30.

It doesn't get easier for Clarkston as the Wolves were set to face Class A state runner-up Brighton April 3.

Fitzgerald said there is a real difference between the teams in Division I and II. "All the teams played in a crossover match and all of them got beat just as bad so it wasn't just us. But in the Division II and III matches it was much closer scores. It's obvious there's a big difference in skill level."

A new coach didn't discourage 23 athletes from trying out for the Clarkston boys tennis squad.

And although coach Kevin Ortwine dreaded making any cuts in his first official duty, he was pleased at the enthusiasm of the kids who came out, and who eventually made the team.

"It was really hard to cut kids but since that first week we've really just been trying to get our positions set and have had a few challenge matches," he said.

Ortwine is no stranger to Clarkston tennis. He is a 1989 graduate and played three years under former coach Dick Swartout. As a senior, Ortwine was allleague.

Since then he graduated from Michigan State University in business administration and is now working towards a secondary education degree at Oakland University. While at MSU he worked in the indoor tennis facility and gained some valuable knowledge from the university coaches.

"We've almost got past that feeling-out part and right now I just try to let them know what I expect. So far everything is going great, these kids have great attitudes," Ortwine said, while also giving credit to Greg Kopec, who has two sons playing on the team and used to coach at West Bloom field, for helping organize practices.

Ortwine said the team is real young this season, with half made up of freshman and sophomores. That inexperience makes it even more important for the kids to get match time.

"From one to 16 we have a completely different mix of players," he said. "Our singles players play the game year round while we have a bunch of freshman that are first starting out. We expect to be inconsistent and inexperienced to start out."

Ortwine expects the singles players to have See AULGER Page 5B

Softball's strength in middle of defense

BY DARREL W. COLE Clarkston News Staff Writer

The new athletic conference alignment won't intimidate the Clarkston girls softball team.

After over a decade of playing in the now-defunct GOAL, coach Al Land's team begins again in the Oakland Activities Association Division I. But for the Wolves, the new alignment has them playing most of the teams they've battled with in the GOAL.

For many years the GOAL was one of the toughest leagues in the state, with powers like Waterford Kettering, Waterford Mott, Brandon and Clarkston. In fact, last season the GOAL champion was Brandon, who then went on to win the Class B state championship.

Coach Land, in his fourth year at CHS, says the tough competition every year is good for the team.

"Basically we have all the top GOAL teams again but this time there is no simple league team. I like that. But this is different so really the title is up for grabs."

This season the team's goals include winning a district title. Two seasons ago the Wolves advanced to the district finals but lost. Last year the squad was set on winning it but lost in the first round to Mott.

"Last year we had a team capable of winning the districts but we lost that first game 8-7 after leading 7-0. You don't forget that easily," said Land.

At 23-10 last season (tied for second in the GOAL), Land said he has another solid team. Although he lost a few strong seniors to graduation he said there are several players capable of filling those spots.

"We're real solid up the middle. It is our strength because you have to have good double-play capability and be able to cover bunts and steals. We have the speed and quickness to do that."

Leading that middle strength is last season's allleague contingent of senior Stephanie Giroux, center field and leadoff, junior shortstop Crystal Lemke and junior catcher Amanda Jenkinson. Freshman second baseman Amiee Giroux is also expected to excel.

The Wolves did lose their top pitcher from last season but Land expects junior Alesha Ulasich to take over and junior Nikki Maynard to be a capable backup.

"We do have some depth and kids on the bench that can hit too," he said. "We have a lot of all-around players who are good athletes and can fill in at anytime."

While Land said team pitching will be a key, he also said his squad must be a great hitting team with mistake-free defense to be able to win. The Wolves are capable of doing both because they are quick, Land said. "We need to have our kids on the bases because we have excellent speed. We need to get steals have hitand-runs and really make opponents pressure themselves into mistakes. That quickness offensively can also turn over to the defensive side and you can't teach that.

"The basic thing is that you really win with pitching but we'll try to win with offense and defense," Land said.

Rounding out the starters are senior third baseman Kiley Maitrott and an outfield that Land calls "maybe the quickest I've ever coached here," of juniors Leah Howard and Nikkie Hard and Stephanie Giroux.

Others battling for positions include freshman Tiffany Honey, sophomore Emily White, seniors Kristen Peterson, Allison Vallad and Kristy Barefoot, and junior Suzanne Schmidt.

What most pleases Land about his squad is its excellent attitude. "They work very hard and are enthusiastic about the season."

Coach Land said his coaching style is to make sure every player knows she is in this as one.

"I like to instruct them but I think it's also important to let the kids know they have to take some responsibility for the team. There are times they have to take charge and do it on their own out there. When they have that responsibility they like that and they pull for each other. We have this saying that goes, `Your best friend is the person sitting next to you, and that's your teammate.'

Clarkston girls track coach Gordie Richardson demands a lot of his athletes.

But no more than they expect from themselves. The proof of the coaches' and athletes' dedication is the fact the Wolves squad hasn't lost a dual league meet in 10 years of GOAL action.

Although that streak may be challenged this season with the Wolves joining the new Oakland Activities Association Division II, Richardson said the great attitude and hard work from his athletes is a constant.

"Depth could hurt this season but we've got some kids giving real great efforts to get better and they really understand what we're trying to get done," said Richardson. "If we can have the kids running well at the end, that's great." Besides losing four outstanding seniors the Wolves also did not return six other strong athletes that didn't come back because of injury, other activities or for no reason.

But Richardson said the team is not dwelling on what they don't have. He said the group he has now are excellent track athletes and could surprise some people. Richardson, who has coached about 18 years and won three regionals and was 3rd in the state in 1986, knows his upperclassmen don't know how to do anything but win, so they expect to do well.

"These seniors and juniors haven't lost a dual meet in the league since they've been running and they figure that will happen again. We know the kids from past champions want continue this streak."

Richardson knows in order to continue the success, several athletes will have to come through this season.

Pitching will be key with tough schedule

BY DARREL W. COLE Clarkston News Staff Writer

Nine returning letter winners and a solid pitching staff could lead the Clarkston baseball team to big things in a new league.

Veteran coach Roy Warner is optimistic but reserved about his team's upcoming season in the new Oakland Activities Association Division I.

"The key is pitching for us, but it's also our strength," said Warner. "Defensively we'll try to play as close to perfect as we can, but we've been working real hard and been going outside any chance we can."

The Wolves were 14-15 a season ago, good for third in the GOAL and finished as runner-up in the districts. But by Clarkston standards it wasn't as good a season as the team wanted, so, as always, Warner hopes to have the team focused for districts by getting better each game and shooting for another league title.

"We point to that each year. Last season we wanted to win the GOAL because it would have meant we would have been the first team in history to win three straight GOAL titles. The year before we were 14-1 in GOAL but couldn't pull it off last season."

Of the team's 18 players, nine are returning lettermen, including seniors Bobbie Blue, infield, Jamie Churchill, pitcher-infield, Blake Farah, infield, Chuck Nolen, pitcher, Joel Sanford, third base-outfield, Scott Sanford, catcher-outfield, Mike Turk, pitcher-outfield, and juniors Jeff Mull, pitcher-outfield, and Chris Carpenter, infield.

The team's returning pitchers include Nolen, 1-3, 2.10 ERA, Mull, 3-4, two saves, 2.10 ERA, Turk, 2-2, three saves, 1.56 ERA, and Churchill, 1-0, 1.47 ERA.

Last season Mull batted .373 and Turk .271.

While Warner will rely heavily on his returning lettermen, he expects other players to be able to step up and produce as well. Crucial positions which will see new starters this season include catcher and center field.

"We've got some good skills on this team but now we'll see how they respond. It's hard to say what goals we can have because it's a whole new league. I think our main opponent is ourselves," the coach said. "If we can stay away from mistakes we'll do all right."

Other teams in the OAA Division I include Troy Athens, Troy, Rochester, Rochester Adams and Royal Oak Kimball. In addition to a tough league schedule, the Wolves play some tough non-conference foes in hopes of making themselves better along the way.

"I'm not seeing any patsies out there," Warner said.

"With baseball you've got to be ready by game one. You have to have it all going and hope you get better."

Other players rounding out the squad include juniors David Barth, pitcher-outfield, Jeff Bemis, catcher-outfield, Robby Hukka, catcher-infield, Joe Jenson, outfield-infield, Ryan Knake, catcher-outfield, Jeff Lund, outfield, Nathan Manuel, infield, Justin Morgan, pitcher-outfield, and Scott Hill, pitcherinfield.

"We're excited about this season and the team has a real good unity," said the coach. "That's a good part about working with this bunch of guys."

strong seasons, led by sophomore Mike Aulger, who will play the #1 spot. "He's played in tournaments on his own and done well so far but he may have the hardest time because of the competition he'll be facing."

Mike Kopec and Rob Gecko will battle it out for the #2 and #3 singles spots while Kevin Kopec is set at #4.

Ortwine expects the team to receive the most victories from the #1 doubles team of Paul Woven and Jim Kyle. "They will be our strength and seem to play real well together."

The singles players must improve on their consistency, Ortwine said. "We have some guys with great strokes but then they have three points where they can't get a ball in play. A lot of that is getting them to play through the points and stop giving points away.'

He said many of the other players are still learning the strategies of the game, although they do have the skills and fundamentals down. "We're real young this season but if we can get them all to a consistent basis we'll be OK."

Distance crew to set pace for another title

Nicole Bauer and Liz Murphy are excellent hurdlers who also excel in the long jump and other areas. "They are real good leaders and all-around good kids," the coach said.

Bauer took 2nd in the low hurdles and 3rd in high hurdles at last year's league meet.

A strong distance and middle-distance crew is led by senior Leah Scharl, who was all-state in cross country, and Stefanie Burklow. Others who are giving strong performances in distance include Elizabeth Cook, Megan Plante, Carey Meade and Emily Hogan.

"It's a real good group of kids we have to work with and they give a great effort," Richardson said.

Richardson said he also expects freshman Jenny

Bauer, junior Lisa Herron and Lisa Jennings, Heather Brown and Gretchen Pitzer to do well in the 800 or 400 runs.

"In the 800, 1600 and 3200 we'll be pretty well covered but in this division those distances are a strength also."

While the team should be strong in the shot put and discus, Richardson is concerned about the sprints. He said there are some kids working hard to get better but it will be difficult to place.

The OAA Division II includes Troy Athens, West Bloomfield, Berkley, Lake Orion and Waterford Mott. Richardson expects Orion to be ready to challenge for a title after the Wolves beat them in the GOAL meet last season 68-60, coming down to the final race.

laws in YMCA event

Last year when Elizabeth Schmaltz visited Lansing, her trip coincided with a Nazi rally at the state capitol. This year it was less exciting-there was just a fire alarm in her hotel. But none of those experiences has soured her on a program called Youth In Government, which lets high-school students participate in a mock state government for four days. The event is sponsored by the Michigan YMCA.

Accompanied by teacher Scott Banks, seven Clarkston High School students took part in the program in late March. They stayed in a hotel, worked all day in the capitol building and were on their own for meals every night. According to the students, they had a blast.

The purpose of the trip was "to learn more about state government actions and how we get the laws we abide by now," said sophomore Heather Mustonen, who like Elizabeth, hopes to attend law school one day.

"Going into it last year I had no knowledge of government at all," said Elizabeth, also a sophomore. (Students at CHS don't get an American government class until senior year.) This was her second year making the trip, Elizabeth's first.

The two girls worked seven weekends at last summer's Renaissance Festival to raise the money for the trip. Before they went, they were required to write a proposed piece of legislation to be considered by a committee. Once they got to Lansing, they were assigned a committee to work on and a seat in the House or Senate.

Elizabeth was assigned to the education committee. Heather to traffic. The two girls co-wrote a bill that would have required all senior citizens age 70 and over to take a driving test every two years in order to keep a driver's license.

"We got it through committee," Heather said. It was one of about 400 bills that were considered, but there just wasn't enough time to pass them all.

"The bills that got lobbied hard for made it through," Heather said, proving she's a quick study.

Elizabeth said her education committee was especially tough, rejecting most of the bills presented. "There were quite a few bills on prayer in schools," she said. Other bills considered rules on student athletes, such as drug testing and minimum grade point averages. That pitted the athletes on the committee against the non-athletes, she said. In the end, mandatory drug testing was rejected.

One bill that was signed into law set up a standard statewide grading system for all schools. Heather was for it; Elizabeth against.

Heather said about half the bills her traffic committee considered had to do with drunk driving. Many more concerned drivers' education.

"On drunk drivers we were real tough," she said. Josh Holst, another CHS student, wrote a bill on voluntary school prayer which made it to a third reading in the House before time ran out. He was Continued on 23B

That's what Friends are for

Library group's new president hopes to mark his place

BY EILEEN OXLEY Clarkston News Staff Writer

Jim Meloche wants people to know the Independence Township Library is more than a place for bookworms.

Expanded three years ago with a new wraparound addition, the present library incorporates a sophisticated Internet system and media, community and local history rooms. It's been turned into "a public facility.

"Look at this," Meloche says, gesturing around the area. "It's comfortable, it's a great way to relax ... You can't find places like this."

Meloche, a township resident and father of three — "two grown and one not-so-grown" — was elected fan. 31 as the new president of Friends of the Indepenlence Township Library, a volunteer group that supports the building and its activities. He took the position because he loves volunteering and — of course — books.

"I believe in it so much, I'm willing to devote the time," Meloche, a self-described "lifelong bibliophile," said.

He replaced former president Chris Shull, who moved from the township and left the position last fall. "Chris really set this thing in motion," Meloche says.

Meloche has been a devoted fan of both the library's architecture and activities since he moved to Independence Township in 1976. He attributes a lot of his allegiance to trudging along with his 10-year-old daughter who, he says, "loves it here.

"She would LIVE here if I let her," he laughs. As the Friends' new president, Meloche says his objectives are two-fold.

"One, to increase community awareness of the library and its programs — and two, to support the library and its programs."

Abby Whiteford of Clarkston helps her daughter, Abby Elizabeth Whiteford, access the library's computerized public access system.

He's begun that work already. The Friends had their first meeting with Meloche as president March 28, and they accomplished a great deal, Meloche said.

They set the dates for a three-day spring book sale (May 4-6), established a committee to revise present by-laws, decided to work on a membership brochure, donated money to the Clarkston Farm and Garden Club to maintain the library's flower beds and discussed fund raisers and a Friends logo.

But the biggest task lies ahead. Meloche says the library not only needs support from its member Friends, it needs support from its community friends.

"What can we say to make them come here?

'We need to get people to see what they own.'

Jim Meloche

There's a lot here. We need to get people to see what they own ... We need people to bring in old computers and books ..."

Meloche, who is of French descent, admits his love for books began at an early age, growing up with northern "friends" across the border.

"I spent a lot of time in the library there, learning about my country, Canada." Because he has lived in the U.S. for so many years and forgotten much of his mother tongue, he now, ironically, uses the library for another service.

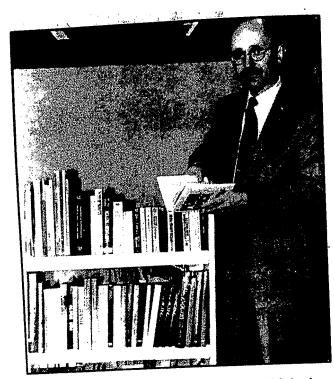

"I come here for French lessons," Meloche says, with a laugh, which brings up another use of the facility. Tutors may utilize small adjoining rooms to coach their pupils.

Now that he's in place as the Friend's president, Meloche says "the sky's the limit" as far as reaching out to residents and networking with other libraries.

Independence Township Library director Mollie Lynch agrees.

Presently, she says, the library is working on evolving into a higher-tech system with TeleCirc to access information more conveniently from home. Soon, Lynch hopes, residents will be able to do such things as renew books and find cost of fines through a 24-hour voice mail system.

Friends of the Library president Jim Meloche hopes to make township residents aware of the many services the library provides.

"If we can get the information to you, why should you have to come in?" Lynch says.

As the new Friends president, Meloche hopes to make the community more aware of the Library's inner workings, accomplishments and up-dated tools like Internet and other systems.

A far-reaching international network that locates information, quickly and accurately through a computerized system, Internet can be accessed through the township library. In addition, computerized on-line systems give a user access to the catalogues in other universities. The old wooden card catalogues are on their way out.

Library youth services head Anne Rose echoes the excitement from Meloche, Lynch and other "friends."

"We have the world at our fingertips," she said, with a smile.

The Friends of the Independence Township Library hold their next meeting May 23 at the library. A spring book sale will be held from May 4-6, with a special preview and sale the evening of May 3 for Friends and prospective members. For more information about the library, its services and how you can become a volunteer or Friends member, call (810) 625-2212.

Don't be an April (tax) fool

(Prepared by the Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants)

For many people, April Fools' Day marks the beginning of the two-week rush to complete 1994 tax returns. If you're still crunching numbers to figure the bottom line on your tax bill, the Michigan Association of CPAs recommends you take note of the following tax tales which describe how some taxpayers have fared in tax court. They may help to prevent you from being an April fool this tax season.

Write for profit or lose deduction

If you can't demonstrate your intent to make a profit, the IRS may prevent you from claiming losses associated with operating a sideline business, as it did in the case of one taxpayer. Employed as a technical writer of manuals, the taxpayer decided to use his spare time to publish a booklet on political events featuring his work and that of other freelance writers. He claimed the costs associated with publishing the book — 6,085 — as a business-loss deduction on his tax return. However, the IRS and the tax court disallowed his deduction because he failed to research in advance whether there was interest in the book, and he had not developed a marketing plan indicating his intent to make a profit.

Mixing divorce with business

Generally, when a couple divorces and divides their property, there is no tax liability on either side. However, if the couple was jointly involved in a business venture and divides business assets when they divorce, different tax rules may apply.

In one instance, as part of a divorce settlement, a woman received stock from the business she owned with her husband, then cashed her stock and claimed the proceeds were tax-free as a division of marital property. Not true, said the IRS. The woman actually had a taxable gain, since the sale of the stock was not specified in a divorce decree, and because the transaction did not simply involve the couple, but rather her personal business.

Long-distance commutes

Before you deduct unreimbursed transportation expenses for business purposes, make sure you know the tax rules. The IRS won't offset the costs of commuting to work, regardless of how far one travels.

Take the case of a family who moved from New York City to Vermont to lower their cost of living. The wife retained a part-time job in New York, commuting there on Wednesday and returning to Vermont on Friday. She tried to deduct her transportation costs on the basis her commute was necessary due to economic hardship. The IRS didn't share her viewpoint. It considered her commuting expenses personal because she chose to live in Vermont.

Nice guys don't always win

The IRS generally has three years from the date you file your tax return to assess any additional tax. However, if the return is filed prior to the official due date, the return is deemed filed on April 15 (April 17 this year).

After receiving an inquiry for additional time from the IRS, one taxpayer foolishly extended the deadline and gave the IRS more time to examine his return. The man believed the IRS only planned to check a few minor items. However, when the audit was completed, he was hit with an unpleasant surprise: The IRS had scrutinized his entire return and disallowed deductions that had not previously been questioned.

The taxpayer took the IRS to court, claiming that he and the IRS had not agreed on the parameters of the audit. The tax court ruled the extension contained no terms restricting what should be examined. As a result, the taxpayer was hit with a larger tax bill.

IRS office cuts through red tape

Taxpayers who meet delays or encounter difficulties in resolving federal tax problems may receive help through the IRS Problem Resolution office, according to IRS Problem Resolution Officer David Tash.

"The PRP office helps taxpayers who have had unsuccessful contacts with the IRS. The taxpayer generally deals with one person who has the authority to cut through red tape and handle problems promptly," Tash said.

According to the IRS, the most common problems brought to the PRP office are incorrect billings by the IRS, mistakes made by the taxpayer, mixed up social security numbers, or missing refunds.

"Problem resolution should not be used as a substitute for normal channels, because most problems can be resolved before they reach the PRP office," Tash said. "Also, PRP cannot be used to appeal a decision of a tax examination. However, for the taxpayer who has contacted us before and whose problem remains unresolved, PRP can certainly help."

The IRS Problem Resolution Program office can be reached by calling the IRS toll-free on 1-800-829-1040 (ask for PRP), or by visiting one of the local IRS offices around the state.

named an outstanding lobbyist, along with Camille Lutz, another CHS student. Camille was also named one of five outstanding freshman. The students, like their real-life counterparts, tackled the issue of school finance. However their solution is different than anything the legislature has offered. They came up with a plan to set up an educational foundation with money from drunk-driving fines and lottery money. The foundation would then fund the schools. No word on what the governor thinks about that idea.

"I think I know more about what they do up there (now)," Heather said. "It was so much fun."

"When you put yourself in their position it helps a lot in understanding," Elizabeth said.

Though the students put in long days at the capitol, starting at 8:30 a.m. and not finishing until two hours before curfew, they did manage to meet some new people. In addition to state Rep. Penny Crissman (R., Rochester) they met students from across the state. They had a dinner together, a dance and an evening of karaoke.

Elizabeth and Heather said they'd recommend the trip to their friends and hope to go back next year. Josh and Simone will continue the experience by attending Boys State and Girls State, respectively, this summer.

COUNTY OF OAKLAND CHARTER TOWNSHIP OF INDEPENDENCE CRANBERRY LAKE ESTATES SANITARY SEWER IMPROVEMENT AND SPECIAL ASSESSMENT PUBLIC HEARING NOTICE Date: April 18, 1995 Time: 7:30 P.M. Place: Township Hall (Annex) 90 N. Main Street Clarkston, Michigan PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that on April 18, 1995, at 7:30 p.m. in the Township Hall (Annex) of the Charter Township of Independence, 90 North Main Street, Clarkston, Michigan, the Township Board shall meet for the purpose of hearing comments and objections to the proposed sanitary sewer improvement, the petitions filed seeking the improvement, and the tentatively special assessment district. The proposed improvement involves the construction of sewer line, manholes and other facilities to provide public sanitary sewer service to all of the lots in the Cranberry Lake Estates subdivision not previously served with sanitary sewer, and to three acreege perceis having frontage on state highway M-15, all of which property is described on the list of parcels numbers below.

Native American; Researching Polish Records in U.S.A.; Adoption Records; Scotland Research; Quebec; Early Dutch immigrants; preserving the past through photos; beginning Scotland; 3 classes (repeat) of Advanced PAI and classes on videotape describing usage of the Mormon library materials and records.

There is no charge for this day-long event, but pre-registration is required; and runs from March 15-April 15 by phone. DO NOT call Monday, Wednesday or Thursday between the hours of 3:30 p.m. to 6 p.m. and NOT after 9 p.m. any night! Call Eleanor Naegle at 810-634-7070.

Classes not filled by the 22nd will be open firstcome, first-served. Bring a brown bag lunch or eat outside at the nearby restaurants, 12 to 12:30.

Early registration will offer the best choice of classes, so hurry on this one.

As we seek help to carry on the many responsibilities of leadership of our Genealogical Society, we must find ways to staff our library, with summer coming.

Checking the offerings on the computer highway we learned the lesson on family history was on Hispanic heritage, and jumping to the Genealogy Bulletin Board, turned to Native American notes.

A 3-inch stack of printouts will afford enough research material for anyone needing answers on locating tribal records, "free college" questions for N.A. applicants, and lots of people seeking intermarriage ancestry connections.

Workshops on Saturdays at NOMC (Pontiac General Hospital) will continue if response is received indicating interest.

We know with summer coming that many of you will be busy with "Summer Fun" things to do, places to go and kids OUT of school.

You may contact me, or the answering machine, at (810) 373-2629 if more info is needed. Hope your Easter is blessed and a time of renewal.

Happy Hunting.

Kids get a break

So far this spring, 128 pairs of children's shoes have been donated to Lighthouse North, thanks to a campaign underway at Clarkston Stride Rite. The store is collecting used but wearable shoes and giving donors a coupon worth $5 off a pair of new Stride Rite shoes. Pictured are store owner Rod Lema and Lighthouse North branch manager Wendy Halsey, who picked up the donation, emptying the barrel so more shoes can be collected. The program continues through April and is sponsored by Stride Rite and WNIC radio.

Traveling light

Pine Knob Elementary fourth-grade students took their passports and traveled around the world Jan. 26. After researching a bit of their own heritage, students of Debbie Luczyn, Phyllis Ness and Michele Shaltz chose a country to study in depth. Working in groups they prepared a learning center on each country displaying maps, flags, natural resources, native dress, food, money and music, among other things. Each group was responsible for presenting its project to the other students and answering their questions. Pictured (from left) are John Moran, Kim Wilson, Erik Houston, Jason Shambarger and Ashley Mould with their display on Germany.

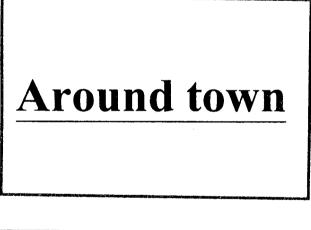

Rebecca Craig reads to a captivated audience of second-graders at Andersonville Elementary School as part of Drop Everything and Read day.

D.E.A.R.

March was reading month and on one very special day everything stopped for Drop Everything and Read Day.

Many schools invited celebrity readers to come and read a story of their own choosing to the students. At Andersonville Elementary, the hallways suddenly grew quiet as over the loudspeaker, two teachers sang a song to the tune of the Mickey Mouse Club theme, exhoring everyone to drop everything and read. Then, in each classroom, students gathered to listen.

Larry Dye shows off the cause he's supporting.

Bowling for dollars

So far $12,000 has been collected of a $20,000 goal as a result of the annual Bowl-a-thon for Easter Seals sponsored by Century 21 Hallmark West Real Estate.

Co-owner Carol Mountain said the event drew over 300 people from real estate, banking and title and mortgage companies and their friends and family, each of whom collected pledges. Now in it's ninth year, a silent auction was added to the bowling this year.

Century 21 supports Easter Seals on a national level. "Our office was number 20 in the nation last year," Mountain said. "Everybody was working for the common cause—to help the handicapable."

Anyone still wishing to make a donation can do so by calling 625-6900.

Linda Kustra mans the auction.
