School bond passes easily

BY ANNETTE KINGSBURY

It isn't very often that you interrupt a state representative as he begins to speak, and get away with it. But that's exactly what happened Monday night at Clarkston High School.

State Rep. Dave Galloway came to the podium to address the board of education shortly before 10 p.m. As he began to speak, deputy superintendent Mike LaBay arrived with the results of the high-school bond election. From the back of the auditorium, he flashed superintendent Gary Haner a thumbs up sign. Haner couldn't help himself. He interrupted Rep. Galloway.

With a big smile, Haner raised both his thumbs skyward and the audience burst into applause. The bond issue had passed, 3,786-3,111.

"I'm sorry," Haner told Galloway. "This has been seven years in the making."

An emotional Sheila Hughes, as board secretary, read the results. "My son is a senior in high school. I started this process when he was in fourth grade," she said.

All day long, people had expressed optimism about the millage, even those who didn't support it. Standing on the corner of Main and Washington with a "No no no" sign he saved from the last bond issue, Bud King said he thought the new high school would be approved this time. It had been defeated twice before.

Across the street, waving a pro-millage sign, Sally Hadden was also optimistic. "I think parents in the area realize we really, truly do need a new high school," she said. "The longer we wait, the more it's going to cost . . . I feel good."

After Monday night's results were announced, Haner said he would ask the board at its next meeting to implement Phase III of its long-range building plan. Phase III would include updates to the exiting elementaries and possibly construction of a new elementary school.

Haner said if Phase III is approved by the voters in December, a new elementary could open in two years. No site has yet been identified for a new elementary.

Also at Monday night's meeting, the board approved a purchase agreement for the site for the new high school. The board agreed to pay $2.3 million for 111.45 acres of vacant property on Flemings Lake Rd. The property has access to sewers and water and Haner said it was the only piece large enough with those services left in the district.

The sellers, Tan Tek Lum and Wing Tek Lum of Hawaii, have given the district until July 1 to inspect the property and until September 1 to close the deal. After that, the price rises to $2.4 million. According to attorney James Miller, who represented the board on the purchase, that clause was added in case the bond issue was unsuccessful.

Ritter calls for Lutz to resign

BY DARREL W. COLE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Fred Ritter finally said in public what many people have been whispering behind closed doors: John Lutz should resign as treasurer of Independence Township.

The question was put to Lutz at the board of trustees June 6 meeting when Ritter, a former treasurer himself, told the board and Lutz that the investment debacle they are in should have shown Lutz he needs to leave office.

Ritter stated his case in the public forum, he insists, with no hard feelings for Lutz, whom he said is a nice man. But he did say Lutz should do what is right for the community.

"I'm really shocked the community is not up in arms over this . . . but I do think, John, that you need to do the community and board the service of resigning," Ritter told Lutz.

Lutz did not respond to Ritter's statement. In fact, neither did the rest of the board. The meeting moved on as usual, with no responses made from the board.

Ritter said he understands the board must remain silent because of the pending litigation against the companies that sold the derivative securities to Lutz. "I don't envy the board for the position they are in and I realize the litigation has not allowed you to respond publicly."

In an interview with The Clarkston News earlier this week, township supervisor Dale Stuart said any response by public officials, including trustees, to the comment posed by Ritter "has the potential of harming the litigation we are in. I think what I have to say is the fact that we are in litigation does not allow me to comment."

While Lutz did not return phone calls from The Clarkston News, the claims against two brokerage companies and its salesmen say Lutz was "misled" and didn't know any better when he invested in six securities, all based on interest rates staying low, that have decreased in value by over $3.5 million.

In interviews last year, Lutz did say he has made hundreds of profitable investments but only the few losses are being focused on by critics.

It may have been the first time Lutz' resignation has been called for in a public setting, but not the first time the question has arisen. When interviewed earlier

The news in brief

City council ponders top 3 police chief candidates

The top three candidates for the vacant Clarkston Chief of Police position were interviewed by Clarkston's City Council during a special open meeting June 7.

They are retired Pontiac police captain Michael Miles of Waterford, retired Pontiac police sergeant John Wargel of Waterford and Paul D. Ormiston, a Clarkston resident who is a police officer for the City of Auburn Hills.

City manager Art Pappas said Monday that council has not made a decision about the new police chief. At presstime, he expected council to discuss police chief contract negotiations within a closed session at last night's (Tuesday) council meeting.

School board meetings scheduled

The Clarkston board of education has scheduled two more meetings for the month of June.

On June 19, the board will meet at 7 p.m. in the Clarkston High School auditorium for possible action on elementary redistricting and staffing. Then on June 28, the board will meet at the administration office on Clarkston Rd. for approval of insurance bids and budget updates. A hearing on the 1995-96 budget is expected to be held at that time.

Earlier, superintendent Gary Haner indicated he would also ask the board to make a decision on privatization this month. That could come as early as June 19.

Reward offered

Independence Township is offering a $500 reward for the recovery of items stolen during the break-in of a maintenance building at Baycourt Park June 9 or 10, or for information leading to the successful prosecution of the thief.

The theft was the second in a week at the park. On June 5, park personnel reported a break-in at another building. In both cases, expensive equipment was stolen.

All calls should be directed to the Oakland County Sheriff's Department at 858-4950.

Schools name new director of business

Craig Kahler is the new Director of Business Services for Clarkston schools. He was approved by a unanimous vote of the board of education Monday night.

Kahler comes from Rochester schools, where since last October he has been the controller. He has been with that district since 1988 and previously worked for accounting firm Plante & Moran. He lives in Macomb County.

Kahler will be responsible for a budget of nearly $40 million, superintendent Gary Haner said. He replaces Steve Lenar, who left this spring. Kahler's first official day on the job is July 17.

"We're going to put him right to work beginning tomorrow," Haner said.

Bed and Breakfast opens

City continues court appeals

BY EILEEN OXLEY
Clarkston News Staff Writer

On a quiet Sunday morning, Buck Kopietz calmly walked out to Main Street and put up his sign.

Cars were soon honking as they passed and two early morning strollers, Alan Scott and his wife Narce Richardson, stopped to chat. Ironically, Scott hails from New England where bed and breakfasts are a frequent part of the landscape.

"They add a certain amount of class, a certain flavor to the community," he said.

Inside, Joan Kopietz was pouring coffee for the first official guests — two sets of Clarkston couples who each paid a dollar for one night's lodging — Stan and Kathy Garwood and Larry and Carol Eberhardt. A friend, Jan Rogers of Waterford, joined them for a hearty breakfast of scrambled eggs, assorted breads, juice, fresh fruit, bacon and sausage.

Though two court cases sit at the Michigan Court of Appeals level — Millpond Inn bed and breakfast was open for business.

"We're forcing the issue," Joan Kopietz said. "We're legal in the courts; We're just defying the city."

The Kopietzes' attorney, Phillip Adkison, said Tuesday morning, "I firmly believe they are doing nothing illegal and have the right to open. We have a Circuit Court Judge (Hilda Gage) who has reversed the zoning board of appeals and the effect of that reversal is to allow the bed and breakfast use."

"Unfortunately, based on past experience, one can not predict what the Clarkston city will do."

The Kopietzes have spent $30,000 and the city has spent over $10,000 in fighting a smattering of cases that began in 1991 when the Kopietzes purchased the former Goyette Funeral Home at 155 N. Main.

It all started when the Clarkston Zoning Board of Appeals turned down the Kopietzes' proposal for the inn. They had sought permission under Clarkston ordinance 910.04(3) which provides:

"If no structural alterations are made, any non-conforming use of a structure ... may be changed to another non-conforming use provided that The Board of Appeals, by making findings in the specified case, shall find that the proposed use is more appropriate to the district than the existing non-conforming use."

Breakfast, anyone? The first guests next to Joan Kopietz (left): Larry and Carol Eberhardt, Jan Rogers and Kathy and Stan Garwood.

Buck Kopietz sprays protection on the Millpond Inn sign.

The ordinance further states, "When a non-conforming use of a structure ... is discontinued or ceases to exist for six consecutive months, ... the structure shall not thereafter be used except in conformance with the regulations of the district in which it is located."

The battle lines are drawn between the city and the Kopietzes over the interpretation of those phrases. City Attorney Tom Ryan says the property returned to residential use once the funeral home was dissolved.

"That's what Tom (Ryan) says. One step — here to here and that's it," said Adkison. He disagrees, pointing out the six-month limit and other factors.

"Non-conforming use gives people the right if they were legal the time the zoning ordinance was passed ... You are allowed to change a non-conforming use to another non-conforming use provided there are no structural alterations and that the ZBA finds the new use more appropriate to the district." The Kopietzes pitched their proposal during the six-month time frame.

Adkison pointed to the philosophy of "Grassroots Tyranny" (the title of a recently published book) which argues that small local governments make the decisions about who gets what — sometimes within the danger zone of favoritism.

"You do not make up the rules as you go along. You apply those rights for everybody," he said.

Adkison says the phrase "may be changed" is part of the disagreement.

"It gives discretion to the ZBA to allow them to change to a new residential use or not." That's the interpretation Ryan stands by, says Adkison, although he argues that "may be changed" doesn't confer discretion to the ZBA, but to the owner of the property.

"The plain language of their own ordinance allows a property owner to change from one non-conforming use to another if the use is more appropriate to the zoning district."

At presstime, City Attorney Ryan could not be reached for comment.

So far, the Kopietzes have won the decision from Gage on more appropriate use and structural changes. The city has fought back by taking the case to the Michigan Court of Appeals where it may or may not be heard. If it's not heard "it's done," said Adkison, referring to that case.

A second case has been tied up at the Michigan Court of Appeals since 1992. It involves a decision by Oakland County Circuit Court Edward Sosnick who ruled that the ZBA had the discretion to refuse a use change that the Kopietzes applied for in February 1992. The Kopietzes appealed his decision.

Meanwhile, Buck and Joan will continue to operate their inn. They have a waiting list and the guest book is growing with signatures. Construction continues on the five guest rooms, each with its own bath. Two rooms are completely finished — the doll room that will feature soft rag dolls and the Abbott room, named in honor of resident Jon Abbott whose plans to open his own bed and breakfast backfired several years ago. Abbott's name suggestion, "Mill Pond Inn" was chosen from a "Name the B&B" contest.

"This meant a lot to me to be here the first night,"

Name That Inn ...

During the course of the bed and breakfast issue, the Kopietzes had a contest to name the inn. The entries ranged from serious to spoof. Here are a few of the suggestions:

- Litigated Livin'
- Cari-Boo Inn
- The Shady Rest
- The Arms of Morpheus
- Heaven's Rest
- "First" Floor B&B
- The Funeral Parlour
- Mill Pond Inn (the winner)

said Carol Eberhardt, a former village president. "I was the one to write the ordinance to get Jon's inn years ago."

Other suites include those with Southwestern and African themes and "the most isolated room," says Joan, that is dubbed "the wedding room," complete with whirlpool. It will feature a Victorian theme and be offered to newly-marrieds.

Joan says the decision to open could result in one of three scenarios:

"One, they may ignore us. Two, they could take us to district court and fine us $500 plus 30 days in jail per violation. Three, we could be taken to Circuit Court with a stay or injunction."

Adds Adkison, "(The city) may seek injunctive relief, a stay of proceedings or criminal sanctions. But

School redistricting battle heats up

BY ANNETTE KINGSBURY
Clarkston News Editor

Despite the euphoria of Monday night's millage victory, a battle is raging over a proposed elementary school redistricting that would force 76 students to change schools for the third time in three years.

At Monday night's board of education meeting, deputy superintendent Mike LaBay recommended that the children be transferred from Springfield Plains to Andersonville Elementary beginning in the fall. The move is an attempt to hold down the size of Springfield Plains' enrollment at a time when Andersonville is expected to be below official capacity and by far the district's smallest school.

The move would come along with the purchase of two portable classrooms for Andersonville. Two others would be purchased for North Sashabaw Elementary. Four would be purchased for the high school.

Parents in the affected area, living off Nelsey and Maceday Lake Rd. south of Andersonville Rd., showed up to voice their opposition to the plan. They disputed the administration's figures and suggested the portables be placed at Springfield Plains or that the district hold off on making any redistricting moves for a year.

Steve Bucinski, representing the Mt. View Country Club Association and toting his daughter Megan, said he had petitions signed by 266 residents against the redistricting. He said figures indicate the district will be 200 students over capacity next year, and questioned the logic of transferring 76 of them.

"That'll represent their third school in three years," he said.

LaBay's figures showed that even with the addition of the four portables and the transfer of the 76 students, North Sashabaw will be short one classroom for music next year. Springfield Plains, Pine Knob and Bailey Lake will have all classrooms in use. Only Clarkston Elementary and Andersonville will be at less than capacity.

"At the present time, Andersonville has the most room for growth," LaBay said. Enrollment at Clarkston is projected at 493 next year; Andersonville, 330.

Some new housing developments have come on so quickly they weren't even considered in population projections made a year ago, superintendent Gary Haner said. They range from subsidized apartments to luxury homes and leave the district scratching its collective head over just how many children will be moving in.

Outgoing trustee Kurt Karlstrom expressed frustration at the district's inability to keep up with population growth. "Here we are in the first year (of Springfield Plains) and we're at capacity," he said. "To piecemeal this thing through, it upsets a lot of people... Is (the redistricting) going to take us through '95-'95 or are you going to come back before school starts and say we've got too many people?"

"We use the best information we've got," LaBay said. "We think it'll take us through '95-'96. If you want an ironclad guarantee, we probably will not redistrict (again) in '95-'96 but we may come back for more portables."

4 of 5 bombers plead guilty

Four of the five Clarkston teens charged with conspiracy and possession of explosive devices pled guilty in Oakland County Circuit Court June 8.

Jessie Laycock, Armin Michelsen, Jason Buckman and Brian Trollman all made their pleas in exchange for consideration under the Holmes Youthful Trainee Act, which would expunge their records after a successful probation period is served. If probation officers do not recommend YTA status, Laycock, Michelsen and Buckman have the right to withdraw their pleas and go to trial.

"We would not oppose (YTA)," said Lt. Doug Hummel, commander of the Oakland County Sheriff's Independence substation. "It's a good deal for the youngsters. They don't have to go around with a record for life because of something they did as a youth."

The four are expected to be sentenced by Judge

Robert Sosnick July 13. Eric Erdreszl, the only one not to confess in the case, still has charges pending against him.

Correction

● A story about alternative education that ran in last week's Clarkston News incorrectly implied that graduate Ron Sayles received a GED. Sayles received a Clarkston High School diploma.

● In last week's Clarkston News several children pictured in a Pine Knob Elementary pioneer days story were incorrectly identified. The girl at top left was not Jessica Nealer and in the bottom picture the girl on the right was Jenna Hunt, not Lana Sinkutch.

Cranberry sewer project set to go

Board passes SAD 5-2

BY DARREL W. COLE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Sewers are coming to Cranberry Lake subdivision and almost everyone will be paying for them.

Despite objections from several residents, the Independence Township Board of Trustees passed the special assessment roll for the Cranberry Lake sewer improvement on a 5-2 vote. Clerk Joan McCrary and trustee Mel Vaara voted no.

The passage of the special assessment district roll means 126 lots will split the sewer cost of about $950,000 (not including interest) over a 10-year period. Township assessor Dave Kramer said he estimates each homeowner will pay about $1,000 a year, interest included.

The total SAD cost of about $7,500 per lot can be paid off without interest penalty by July 31, 1995. Otherwise, the first SAD charges will be on December 1995 tax bills.

Board approval of the roll means the SAD will continue as planned. Residents crowded the June 6 public hearing with about half saying they don't need sewers and don't want to pay for it. Some residents and board members even questioned the validity of the petition.

Legally, however, according to township attorney Gerald Fisher, the original SAD petition is valid.

About 25 citizens spoke at the meeting, with about half supporting the SAD and half against.

Supporters said while septic systems aren't failing now, it may only be a matter of time before they eventually do. If they wait, some people fear, costs will be much higher than they are now.

Opponents of the sewer say they object because the petition was not done correctly, the costs are too expensive and a sewer system is not needed.

Other residents say the sewers would be good for the environment, namely Cranberry and Little Walters lakes.

Sally Mason, a Shelly Drive resident, said she hasn't followed the controversy or history of the project, but she is in favor of sewers. "We are in between two lakes and I'm very concerned about protecting the environment."

Former township supervisor Gary Stonerock said citizens should look at this sewer as something for future generations.

"I remember a former Waterford supervisor who said 'It's up to us to leave this land and country in better shape for the generation to come.' We owe this to our grandkids and our families to do this now. We've all taken from Clarkston and now we can give something back," he said.

But several residents at the meeting said they don't believe septic systems are going to fail and pollute the lakes.

Mike Cronin summed up what several residents stated by saying, "Septics have been here for years and they can still handle it."

Trustee Vaara and clerk McCrary said they voted against the SAD because too many people have written or spoken up against it.

"I'm not opposed to sewers," said Vaara. "But I think there's been too much confusion over this and now I believe even more people want out."

McCrary wasn't at the first public hearing but said ever since the petition started she has been the "point person."

"I'm not against sewers either but this is such a split issue that I won't support it," she said. "I think too many people are against this sewer."

Board members voting for the SAD, including trustees Daniel Travis, Bruce Mercado and Jeffrey McGee, supervisor Dale Stuart and treasurer John Lutz, say the SAD process has met all the legal requirements and, in the long run, will be good for the township.

Travis, who also wasn't present at the first public hearing, said, "This is a legal process and we are abiding by the laws. I am in favor of the sewers but I hate to see friends and neighbors disagreeing like they have over this."

McGee said he understands people's concern over costs but the price will never get any cheaper. "I feel the opportunity is there to take advantage of this for the good of the township. There's also some concerns about the age of some of those septic systems, and that it is in between two lakes."

Cost questions

John Lowell said he didn't like the fact that the board could pass the SAD roll without exact cost figures. Township engineer Randy Ford said there's a lot of factors involved in coming up with the $950,000 figure.

"There's no way to accurately predict what the final costs will be but we think the numbers we have are pretty good," said Ford.

Stuart said the board can stop the process if costs exceed the estimates. "I would say if the project costs go beyond 5 percent then I would like to go back for a new public hearing," he told Lowell.

Farmer to CMS

Clarkston High School assistant principal Ginny Farmer will move to Clarkston Middle School in the fall in light of the retirement of Jan Gabier, CMS assistant principal. Gabier's retirement was accepted by the board of education Monday night.

The board also approved the hiring of a half-time kindergarten teacher for Bailey Lake and a half-time special education teacher for Clarkston Middle School, both beginning in the fall.

McGee said he understands people's concern over costs but the price will never get any cheaper. "I feel the opportunity is there to take advantage of this for the good of the township. There's also some concerns about the age of some of those septic systems, and that it is in between two lakes."

Cost questions

John Lowell said he didn't like the fact that the board could pass the SAD roll without exact cost figures. Township engineer Randy Ford said there's a lot of factors involved in coming up with the $950,000 figure.

"There's no way to accurately predict what the final costs will be but we think the numbers we have are pretty good," said Ford.

Stuart said the board can stop the process if costs exceed the estimates. "I would say if the project costs go beyond 5 percent then I would like to go back for a new public hearing," he told Lowell.

Farmer to CMS

Clarkston High School assistant principal Ginny Farmer will move to Clarkston Middle School in the fall in light of the retirement of Jan Gabier, CMS assistant principal. Gabier's retirement was accepted by the board of education Monday night.

The board also approved the hiring of a half-time kindergarten teacher for Bailey Lake and a half-time special education teacher for Clarkston Middle School, both beginning in the fall.

In Focus

by Annette Kingsbury

A common-sense approach

For weeks now, I have listened to the presentations.

Four private companies have trotted out the top brass to try to woo the Clarkston board of education into hiring them to do what has until now been considered school work.

Ryder and National want to drive the school buses. Marriott and ServiceMaster want to take over the grounds and buildings. They say they can save the district money. Mostly, they say they can do that by chopping wages and benefits. The rest, they say, will come from increased efficiencies.

But it was something outgoing school-board trustee Kurt Karlstrom said at the end of last week's presentations that, at long last, struck to the heart of the issue. What he said, basically, was this: The district can cut wages and benefits. If outsiders can cut energy costs, we can do that too. And if we need to hire an outside manager to make that happen, something is wrong with the way we are running this district.

So what it boils down to is this, in my opinion: Right now, school districts must negotiate with unionized employees over wages. Private companies coming in would be hiring everyone as a new employee. Any union representation would have to be voted on from scratch. Therefore, privatization boils down to merely the ousting of the union.

Depending on how you feel about unions, you may think this is either a great idea or union busting. What I'm saying is, let's just be honest about it. If we're trying to get around negotiating with a union, either because we want to cut wages or we just don't like the people in that bargaining group, let's say so. Let's not call it "private business partners" like it's some remarkable new concept.

Lest it sound like I'm picking on the school district, remember that the direction for these events comes directly from Lansing. Last year our governor and legislature enacted a law exempting certain things from the bargaining table for school employees. Those include privatization of services and discussion about carriers for some benefits, like health insurance. Suddenly, important work issues are not up for discussion by both sides—only one.

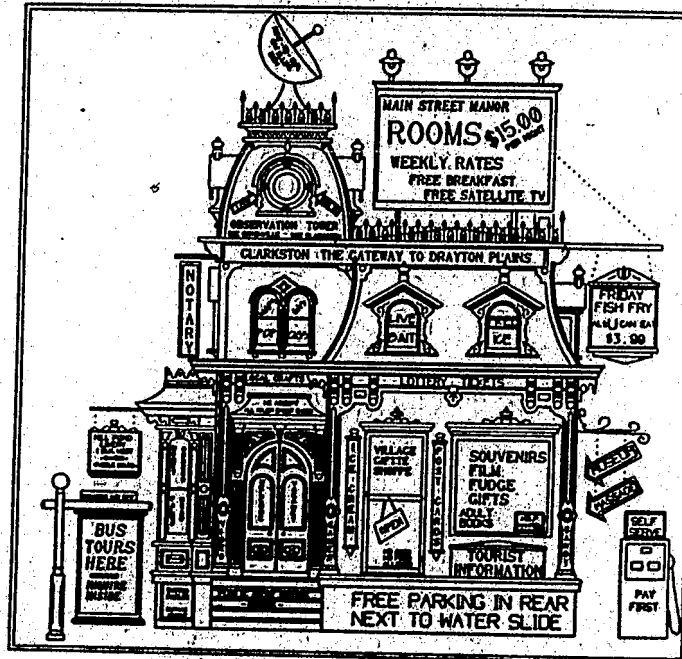

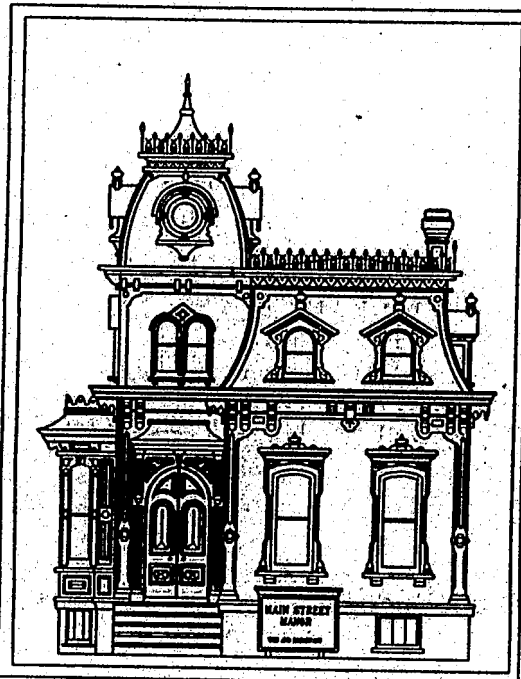

It doesn't take a genius to figure out that there will eventually be a trickle-down effect. Other state employees can expect to have such provisions applied to them in the future, then other privately employed union workers.

When Clarkston Education Association president Tom Brown stood up at last week's meeting and blasted the governor and the legislature, I was shocked at the vehemence of his statement. But after Karlstrom's statement and upon reflection, I have to admit he was right on the money.

In researching the whole issue of privatization, I spoke to an official in another school district which has adopted privatization and plans to expand it. He said in his district, some people make $30 an hour for mowing the grass. Is that too much? I think it probably is. But who negotiated that contract, and who held a gun to his or her head?

Jim's Jottings

By Jim Sherman

School playgrounds have changed

The first seven years of my elementary school education were in 1-room schools. My fourth grade school was Garrison in Vernon Township, Shiawassee County.

Like many 1-room schools, Garrison was on a corner, not that that's important to this story. The playground was just that... ground with a merry-go-round of sorts and a ball field, also of sorts.

With 5-year-olds in the same room, sharing the playground with seventh and eighth graders, I would have thought I would have learned all the wrong words, some dirty tricks to play on others and everything about the opposite sex. I can remember learning none of these.

Now we come to grandson, Danny, 9, and in the fourth grade of "today's" multi-room elementary school.

Danny, his mother and 6-year-old sister were headed for a soccer practice after a recent school day session. Danny, casually, in a no-big-deal manner, said, "We found a used condom on the playground today."

His mother, looking and sounding incredulous, asked, "What was that?"

So, Danny, still just matter-of-fact-like, said, "We found a used condom on the playground today." He really had mother's attention now. He also had his sister's attention. Realizing how carefully Karen was listening, Mother said, "Can we continue this conversation later?"

Karen's immediate response was, "Is this something else I can learn about when I'm in the fourth grade?"

Fourth grade is obviously more educational now than in my 1-room school days.

One more grandchild story, if you can stand it. Firstly, fishing from a boat and having to seek relief over the side is a 'guy' thing. It's very predictable. So, when Danny, Karen, their father and I went fishing recently, only Karen did not expect Danny to feel the call and seek relief over the side.

Karen took one look at what her brother was doing, turned away and with a chuckle said, "I'm never swimming in this lake again!"

Grandparents will, hopefully, see some humor in that. Grandparents will likely see a failure in the human race in my first grandchild story.

A look back

15 YEARS AGO (1980)

A bus incident puts a black mark on the last day of school when shaving cream is smeared on both bus and driver. Luckily, the bus is spared from hitting or being hit by other motorists, but Clarkston's school bus drivers Jenny Sansom and Cherie Miracle are furious over the incident.

The worn band shell in Depot Road Park will be repaired by James R. Morris, former owner of Morris Music. Clarkston's Village Council votes unanimously at its June 8 meeting to allocate up to $200 from its general fund to pay for the renovation.

A Main Street renovation plan proves costly and not in accord with the opinions of some downtown merchants. The concept, taken from a $15,000 study conducted by architect Betty Lee Francis, was to turn Clarkston into a pedestrian village and restore Main Street facades to their original appearance and era. However, many business owners like their facades just the way they are and say they will not change them.

25 YEARS AGO (1970)

During an Honors Assembly held at Clarkston High School June 12, outstanding seniors from the Class of 1970 are recognized for outstanding activities. Senior Student Citizens are Claudia Sawyer and Lou Lessare. The Danforth Foundation Award goes to Jane Richard and George Bennett and athletic awards are won by June Richard and Scott Robbins. Many other students receive department, industrial arts and cheerleading awards. Margaret Raymer receives the Clarkston Education Association's $200 scholarship which is given to a student who will pursue the field of education.

Petitions are turned in for those who seek to challenge Independence Township officers. Those who are expected to run against incumbents are Gary Stonerock, Bob Hurst, Louis Gavar, Shirley McDonnell and Robert Kraud. The primary election is set for August 4, with deadline for registration July 3.

50 YEARS AGO (1945)

The largest class in the history of the Clarkston school graduates Wednesday night. Gounod's "Festival March" is played on two pianos by Adele Thomas and Mina Campbell as the graduates stroll down the aisle to receive their diplomas. Following an invocation given by the Rev. Walter C. Ballagh of the Clarkston Baptist Church, Helen Denton and Mary Drake present the Salutatorian speeches on "Problems and Responsibilities of Young America" along with Valedictorian Patricia Stiles who gives her speech on "The Problems of Lasting Peace." Speaker Dr. Ralph Lee of the Education Division of General Motors Public Relations Department is humorous and sincere, giving graduates sound advice about laying good foundations and doing "the job just a little bit better than is required."

Featured at the Holly Theatre this week are "Here Come the Waves," with Bing Crosby and Betty Hutton, and "For Whom the Bell Tolls," with Gary Cooper and Ingrid Bergman.

Specials at Rudy's this week include Gold Medal Flour, five pounds for 32 cents; Grandma's Molasses, a pint for 27 cents; Nabisco Shredded Wheat, two packages for a quarter; Northern Tissue, four rolls for 21 cents; and Simonize Floor Polish, a quart for 98 cents.

60 YEARS AGO (1935)

A near disaster occurs when 15 freight cars jump the track near Maceday Lake. Several cottagers get quite a surprise when they see the cars come careening down the hill at the rear of their dwellings. Two girls and a young man from Detroit narrowly escape being crushed beneath one of the cars as it dashes down the bank towards them while they are attaching a trailer to their automobile. They get out of the way just in time. The mishap is blamed on a broken wheel on a gondola loaded with scrap steel that finally crumples near Andersonville Road and drags 14 more cars for a half mile, tearing up track before it jumps for good.

A fire alarm rouses citizens who grab everything from false teeth to the wrong shoes on the wrong feet and run down to the business center. The alarm turns out to be nothing but an announcement for Home Coming in a nearby village. There certainly seems to not be much of a fire and plenty of folks are "burned up" the next day.

An ad from Milford Granite Co. claims to do it all for the next potential customer: "We will mark your grave in any rural cemetery, any kind (of) granite, any kind (of) lettering for $25."

If It Fitz

by Jim Fitzgerald

The bully pulpit is no answer to violence

The best cure for what's bugging Kansas Sen. Bob Dole could be David Alan Miller, Thomas Barrett and Ray Sturm.

That's what I thought while listening to music in Lapeer's White Junior High School last week and, two days later, while listening to more music in Detroit's Orchestra Hall.

In earnest search for votes for president, Sen. Dole recently called for less sex and violence on TV and in movies. Except when the lack of violence might hinder the sale of military-type assault weapons to dope dealers, and thus prevent the National Rifle Association from donating large gobs of money to the political campaigns of suck-up candidates like Dole.

And except when the violent movie stars his conservative supporter, Arnold Schwarzenegger, who usually depicts killing as literally funny. Which is easy to do when your large muscles make you heroically immortal, even when the enemy outnumbers you 2,000 to 1.

Dole's opposition is to movies such as "True Romance" and "Pulp Fiction," satirical films that a mature audience recognizes as amusing exaggerations that exploit violence to reveal its true consequences.

Only an idiot would deny there's too much gratuitous violence and sex in movies and on TV. But, also, only an idiot would deny that the people who produce the bloody trash are giving the public what it wants.

The solution is to grab the public when it's young and raise it to appreciate Aaron Copland as much as a sexually rabid rock star, a classical pianist more than a college quarterback, and a documentary on peace much more than Sylvester Stallone shooting someone's head off.

Copland composed the splendid music played by the Detroit Symphony Orchestra in a concert for youngsters at Orchestra Hall last Saturday. The conductor was David Alan Miller, for this occasion known (and dressed) as Cowboy Dave. In his other life, Miller conducts the Albany Symphony Orchestra in New York.

The vocal soloist was baritone Thomas Barrett, a Virginia opera performer dressed in short pants to portray a young, stubborn rock fan — until he is converted in one hour by the marvelous DSO musicians.

The idea is to show kids that classical music doesn't have to be stuffy, it can be great fun. And it definitely was for a theater around half full of delighted children, including two of my granddaughters.

If only Orchestra Hall had been as packed as Joe Louis Arena was the next day for a hockey game, one of our most violent sports.

There were also many empty seats in White Junior High auditorium for a two-band concert starring seventh- and eighth-graders, with music teacher Ray Sturm conducting. Mostly relatives and close friends of the musicians attended, undoubtedly comprising a much smaller crowd than that at the nearest showing of the latest "Die Hard" movie excess of killing while smirking.

Mostly, I was there to applaud my favorite seventh-grade flute player, Emily, but I was glad to hang around for the full program. Like so many teachers, Sturm does a great job of coaxing the best out of his students.

I don't kid myself that visible leaders like Sturm, Miller and Barrett are going to gradually silence Sen. Dole's self-serving agonizing over movie and TV violence and sex. What the professionals need to upgrade entertainment, and retire Stallone and Schwarzenegger, is much more aiding and abetting from parents.

It wouldn't be easy, but it would surely be more effective than electing Dole president.

Don't Rush Me

By Don Rush

Don't let our children fight our wars

I haven't whined in a long time, so I'm due.

The other day I watched with sadness a young child of 10 or 11 reading a script. The script was obviously written by adults. The young girl read her script as passionately as she could, in between frequent pauses.

She demanded lunch programs not be cut, for kids like her would go hungry. She told the president that while he is chauffeured in new limousines and lives in a mansion and eats feasts, that kids like her walk, are homeless and go hungry.

And, while I was sad an adult would make this young child a pawn in some political game that no child should play, I was appalled that a responsible adult also scripted this line:

"No justice, no peace."

Does this political hostage in class warfare comprehend the significance of those five syllables? Does she realize this is the same phrase chanted in Los Angeles in the Rodney King debacle — rioting, violence even death is ok. To these people the end does justify the means.

No justice, no peace. This was the message this child delivered last week, at what was billed the Children's Revolution rally. It happened somewhere east of Michigan.

It grinds me to no end when I see or hear of children put in the middle of such political hogwash. It's not just, as in this case, a liberal group using fear tactics. It has happened all too often by conservative groups protesting outside an abortion clinic.

Adults using their children. Give them a sign and let them walk the picket line. Give them a speech and let them preach to the faithful. We are at a sad state of affairs, dear readers, when we allow this to happen. If I am a reactionary, then my reaction here is to fight, ridicule and put down.

How in God's good name could a caring adult let this happen, let alone promote this? What kind of life are these so-called mature, of-sound-mind adults preparing for their children?

So much for skipping rocks across the pond. Teach the children to throw stones at those who their parents target as the enemy. While we're at it we might as well chuck out this lesson of life: "If any one of you is without sin, let him be the first to throw a stone." And, add this: "Be damned any who dare disagree."

Maybe this country has always been so polarized. I can't say. Maybe we have always picked a bad guy, someone to vilify. I don't know.

I do, in my heart, know that if we are to survive as a country we cannot let our children continue to be used as fodder for our political battles, wherever they may be fought.

Can you live on that?

The sentence is fairly short and simple. Just a few words, but those words strike fear in the hearts of many. The sentence goes something like this: "I'm sorry, but it looks like (fill in the blank with you, your spouse, mother, father) need(s) to go to a nursing home." Yet, that sentence will be heard, in one way or another, many times this year. Maybe you will hear it.

A recent study suggests that about 43% of all people who reach 65 will spend time in a nursing home before they die. One in four will spend more than a year in a nursing home. One in 11 will require nursing home care for five years or more. That same study put the national average cost for a year of nursing home care at about $25,000. However, many locations have average nursing home costs of $35,000 and up.

Can you afford nursing home care? Take this test and see. First, add up all your annual sources of income from pensions, social security and the like. If you are married, add both spouses' income. To that figure add all investment income from interest, dividends, rents, etc. From your total income, subtract the annual cost of a year in a nursing home in your area. If the difference between your income and the cost of a nursing home is a negative number, you've got a real problem. You will have to start spending your principal immediately. Principal will be required to pay both the nursing home and to pay the living expenses for the spouse still at home. If the number is positive, ask yourself this question: "Can I live on that?" If the spouse at home could not survive on the difference between your income and the cost of a nursing home, principal will be consumed to meet expenses.

If you must spend principal, how long will your assets last? Remember if you consume principal this year to pay the nursing home, there will be less to invest to produce income next year. If there is less to invest, your investment income will probably go down. If your investment income goes down, you will probably need to consume more principal next year to meet nursing home costs. This is the start of an accelerating downward spiral.

Nursing home costs have to be paid. Either you or someone else must pay them. There are only three possible sources of funds other than you: your family, the government and an insurance company. Could your family afford to shoulder the burden of your nursing home costs? Even if they are able and willing, would you ask them for help?

Contrary to popular belief, there is a national government program to provide funding for nursing home expenses. It's called Medicaid. Medicaid is a welfare program for poor people. It is unfortunate that our national policy for long-term cares requires that you either must be poor or become poor in order to qualify for help. But, that's the law.

The best way to manage the risk of an extended nursing home confinement is through insurance. Purchasing a cost-effective policy requires careful planning and investigation. The quality of the policies has gone up; however, it is still possible to buy inadequate coverage.

Of course, this brief article is no substitute for a careful consideration of all of the advantages and disadvantages of this matter in light of your unique personal circumstances. Before implementing any significant tax or financial planning strategy, contact your financial planner, attorney, insurance expert or tax advisor as appropriate.

Heritage Hunt II by Virginia Block

The mail brings newsletters of both the Canfield and Barlow Family Associations and both editors have members throughout the nation looking for connections.

The index in the Canfield edition shows many surnames that would bear a possible tie to those some of you look for. Jayne Lorian will find a listing of Ellsworth (her maiden name), as well as a Waugh listing for three of you seeking the connection to Freeman Waugh, who lived in Oakland County early on.

The address for the Canfield Family Association is 1144 N. Gordon, Wichita, Kansas 67203. Telephone number is (316) 942-7120.

Edson L. Barlow, editor of "Barlow of Barlow," generously sent the last three issues of this quarterly and we were most impressed with issue listing miscellaneous Western marriages of Barlow ancestry. In our initial contact with Edson Barlow, we stated attending school all through grades 1-12 with a special friend, Lorraine Barlow. We found several Barlow ancestors marriages listed from Jasper Co., Mo., the county of my birth.

In another issue, all known Barlow patriots from the Revolutionary War that served their country will be found. The opportunity to contact Edson easily is great, for his address is: 840 Gunn Rd., Rochester, MI 48306-1905. He is listed in the local phone book, in case you have a name to connect with a Barlow.

Thanks for all the sharing, it's gratifying to know we can still help each other just by caring to unite efforts.

First-hand knowledge of who the folks were (in those old family pictures one finds in flea markets) will probably never be found, BUT - have you named and dated the photos you are gathering NOW, at reunions, weddings, graduation parties, birthday celebrations, bridal or "stork" showers, etc?

Many of you, like myself, have these events happening weekly, often when some of them occur simultaneously. We recently found a way to "share" these current happenings in an inexpensive way we feel might help cover similar situations for you.

After your films are developed, take the prints to Kmart on Joslyn, Pontiac and there the camera department will run them through the Laser Color Copier, so for under $5 we get an entire set of 10 Polaroid copies, and can send them to Sister Ann in Mo., Sister Katy in Calif., and friends that occasionally need to be thought of even after our kids who started kindergarten together, now have their kids graduating.

It results in our dating and naming those persons, places, events, all at once.

We are making arrangements with Kmart for a "special," where old photos can be copied, in a matter of minutes, at a very low price, enabling one to take preservation measures of the precious originals. The deterioration of these family keepsakes can be avoided, yet the copy is readily displayed in our notebook protective sheets for "show and tell."

Keep tuned for more from our treasures we find, more and more. Happy Hunting.

John and Leslie (Falls) Salgado of Clarkston announce the arrival of a daughter. Mia Lara Salgado was born May 3, 1995 at Beaumont Hospital in Royal Oak. She weighed 7 pounds, 3 ounces. Grandparents are Mary Jane and Joe Falls of Clarkston and Irene and John Salgado, Sr. of Plantation, FL.

It's a boy for Scott and Diane (Salgado) Thompson of Clarkston. Jason Michael was born March 7, 1995 and weighed 8 pounds, 3 ounces. Grandparents are Jim and Judy Thompson of White Lake, Lucy Thompson of Waterford and Irene and John Salgado of Plantation, FL. Great-grandparents are Mary and Rufus Poff of Waterford.

At school

● Kimberly Butrynski of Ortonville made the winter quarter Dean's List at the University of Toledo. She is enrolled in the college of engineering.

● Amy Rayner, daughter of Ronald Rayner of Clarkston, graduated from Warren Wilson College in North Carolina May 20. She is the recipient of the Scholars Certificate, which signifies that she is in the top five percent of her class. Her BA is in human studies.

● The following local students earned a 3.5 or better GPA at Michigan State University for the spring semester:

From Clarkston, Julie Acre, Heidi Barnes, Robert Brazier, John Chasteen, Jonathon Dunn, Stacey Frodile, Lisa Goforth, Shannon Heck, Geoffrey Johns, Rebecca Kretsch, Carla Merritt, Andrew Nichols, Tracey Ortwine, Michael Porritt, Michael Scott, Kari Stanley, Keith Wickle, Amy Wilmot, Shannon Wiltse, Jennifer Zamora, Julie Horiski, Michael Bills, David Eby, Charity Evans, Brady Galan, Jennifer Giannotta, Jessica Hearn, Derenda Howard, Douglas Mackay, Jason McNish, Tracy Moen, Julia Pygott, Brenda Schlatterbeck, Kristen Stanton, Michael Stanton, Kristen Upham, Nathan Werner, Daniel Williams, and Holly Zorka.

From Davisburg: Andrea Bauer and Scott Cassar.

● The following Clarkston students graduated from Oakland University this spring: Zachary Bird, BS biology; Cindy McMillan, MBA; Jennifer Roselli, BS elementary education; Stephanie Wagner, master of physical therapy; Michael Gilbert, master of physical therapy; Donald Montney, MS computer science and engineering; Beth Brazier, BS, HRD; Sebastian Glowacki, BS finance; Susan VanKoughnett Leigh, MA teaching, reading; Mary Devine, BS nursing; Arthur Allen, BS biology; Isabel Acre, BA economics; Jody Lopucki, BS, nursing; Carrie Abraham, BS elementary education; Jessica Smith, BS nursing; Carrie Monroe, BA communications; Candice Cruz, BS nursing; Geraldine Kar, BA psychology; Barbara Dabrowski, BA communications; James Haviland, BS biology; Nicholas Karloff, BS mechanical engineering; Allan Cook, MA English; Jacqueline Stanyer, MS electrical and computer engineering; Michael Bailey, MBA; Holly Sutton, MBA; Frank Szuba, Jr., MBA; Jane Winship, MBA; Marlo Heidisch, BA psychology; Kendra Ketzler, BS economics; Kelley Tungate, BS elementary education; Michael St. Charles, Jr., BS nursing; Darlene Roche, BS elementary education; Stacey Taylor, BA sociology; Diane Baker, BA psychology; Julie Wright, BS marketing; Patricia Hoff, BS marketing; Jill Roselli, BS engineering chemistry; Nancy Hampton, BA psychology; Renata Srugis, BS elementary education; Porferia Mellado, bachelor of general studies; Ann Cromwell McInnis, MA teaching, curriculum, instruction and leadership; Michael Murphy, BS general management; Robert Bauer, Jr., BS electrical engineering; Lori Stille, MBA; Amy West Morris, MA teaching, early childhood education; Cynthia Williams, master of music; Neil Peruski, BS elementary education; Christopher Waites, MS mechanical engineering; Matthew Forster, BA English; Colleen Klockow, MA teaching, early childhood education; Carrie Slade, BS elementary education; Dana Wilton, BA philosophy.

Honors

● Gene Grier, an Independence Township resident and nationally known author, composer and recording artist, has been awarded an ASCAP Songwriting Award for the 19th consecutive year. He was honored by the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers for his children's songs, musicals and choral music for educators and church musicians.

This year Grier's compositions have included 42 songs and arrangements. His latest recording, "EverGreen Morning," includes 15 of his newest efforts.

In service

● Navy Petty Officer 3rd Class Richard Molen, a 1987 graduate of Clarkston High School, recently returned to Norfolk, VA after completing a six-month overseas deployment aboard the aircraft carrier USS Dwight D. Eisenhower, which included duty in the Persian Gulf off Iraq and in the Adriatic Sea near Bosnia-Herzegovina.

The ship enforced the no-fly zone over southern Iraq, then supported UN efforts in Bosnia, protecting humanitarian relief flights. While spending 140 days at sea, Molen also visited France, Greece, Israel, Italy, Spain, Turkey and the United Arab Emirates.

Township to interview investment managers

BY DARREL W. GOLE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Discussion once again arose last week about whether a new Independence Township investment policy will take away some of Treasurer John Lutz' powers.

In reviewing a list of potential investment managers and custodians for the township, some township board members at the June 6 meeting said they wanted to be sure the treasurer's powers were not being taken away.

Trustee Mel Vaara and clerk Joan McCrary, although supportive of hiring an investment manager, said they just want to be sure the township is not violating state laws. Specially hired township attorney Roger Timm said Lutz will still have investment authority, but the new policy will set investment guidelines.

After concerns were answered, the board of trustees voted to set a special meeting where interviews could be conducted with possible investment managers and custodians.

The interviews will be conducted in public, but a meeting date has not yet been set.

Ken Carroll, the expert hired by the township to develop the investment policy and search out potential investment managers and custodians, rated the companies based on the township's needs.

Part of the rating criteria included security performance over the years, company personnel, investment policy, fees and having experience in divesting funds. The township plans on slowly selling off its risky derivative investments.

The township board voted to hire Carroll in late 1994 to develop an investment policy. Lutz invested in six separate derivative securities that have decreased in value by over $3 million.

Carroll's policy, adopted by the board several months ago, says the treasurer must act within the guidelines set by the board. The investment manager and custodian are there to handle the actual investing, based on the policy guidelines.

If there is any deviation from policy, the board must approve such changes.

Carroll rated six investment manager firms and four custodian firms.

Summer school programs abound

Grant funds women's careers class

The final school bell of the year has barely rung but already local schools are announcing their summer programs.

Waterford Our Lady of the Lakes will offer classes in English, Math, science and social studies for grades 7-12 to students from all schools. Students may enroll to repair credit or strengthen skills.

The program begins June 26 with registration; classes begin June 27. For more information, call principal Harrison Miller at 623-0340.

At the Oakland Technical Center Northwest, a grant from the Oakland Intermediate School District will enable the school to offer a Women in Engineering summer program at the campus on Big Lake Rd. Tricia Mack for high-school girls. Applications are now being accepted for the course, taught by OTCNW electronics teacher Don Peters. Classes begin June 19; cost is $30.

This six-week program will highlight career exploration in engineering with a hands-on approach, including field trips. Students will also be visited by Clarkston graduate Tricia Mack, now an aerospace engineer at NASA's Johnson Space Center in Houston, Texas. She will demonstrate a space suit, among other things.

The class is in addition to OTCNW's regular summerschool offerings, which begin June 19. Courses include computers, landscape and horticulture, electronics, building trades, metal machining, marketing careers, auto body repair, advertising, culinary arts and technical math.

The program is open to high school students grades 9-12 and adults and high-school credit is available. Tuition is $20 for two weeks, $30 for three weeks for undergrads; $100/$200 for grads. For more information on OTCNW classes, call John Tucker at 625-5202 or see your high-school counselor.

I firmly believe none of those are applicable here."

City Manager Art Pappas said Monday that he had a call in to Ryan and could not predict what the city's response would be. At presstime he said he expected Ryan to be at the council meeting June 13. Pappas recently issued the Kopietzes an occupancy permit for the first-floor bed and breakfast on the advice of Ryan that it be written for single family residential. The Kopietzes reside on the second floor.

When asked if he would intervene to close the bed and breakfast, Pappas said he wouldn't.

"I'm not going to. I don't want to. That's a legal matter. I'm not duking it out with them or anything."

The guests who stayed at the inn Saturday night appeared to be relaxed and confident. Kathy Garwood surprised husband Stan with the B&B booking as a birthday present.

"They had a cake for us and everything."

"If you believe in something, you're not afraid to say it outloud."

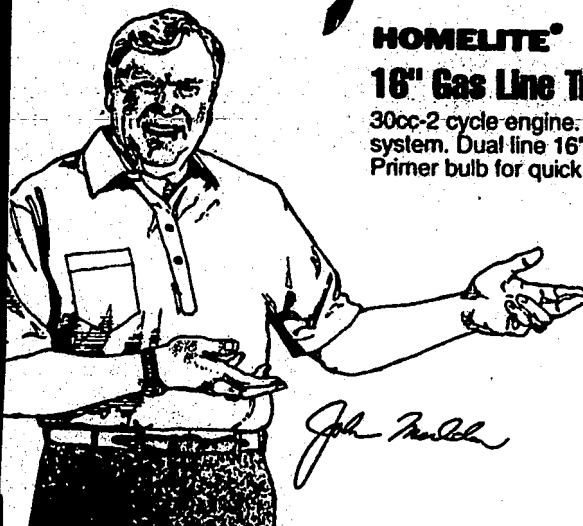

Bone marrow donors sought

The American Red Cross, WJBK-TV and WWJ-AM are sponsoring a blood donation and bone marrow testing event June 30 they hope will find a match for a little boy looking for a miracle.

Nine-year-old Jeremy Truong, a Vietnamese American, is looking for a bone-marrow match as he fights acute lymphoblastic leukemia. Participants at least 17 years old can donate blood and the first 500 qualifying people ages 18-55 can join the National Marrow Donor Program Registry. Entry onto the registry usually costs $150 but at this event it will be free.

The event takes place at Red Cross donor centers, including the one in Bloomfield Hills. To make an appointment call 1-800-GIVE-LIFE. For more information about the national marrow donor program, call 1-800-MARROW-2.

Clarkston Middle School's Junior Optimist Club presented the City of the Village of Clarkston with a $500 check last week for the Depot Park playground.

Over the past two years 55 CMS students who are members of the club conducted various fundraisers. They included a car wash last summer, the selling of food concessions during Concerts in the Park last year, and bake sales every other Friday at CMS.

The latter was the fave fundraiser, said eighth-grader Brianne Kohs, president of Junior Optimists. Her eighth-grade pal Sarah Szurpicki was chairperson in charge of the bake sales.

"Middle school students are pretty hungry. They never eat breakfast," Brianne explained. The biggest seller was Oreo brownies. She attributed the sales' success to Optimist members like seventh-grader Tom Forst who "never missed a meeting or a bake sale."

Eighth-grader Jenny Mizusawa came up with the idea about helping out Depot Park.

"I have two little sisters and babysit. I take kids down to the playground a lot," she said.

Junior Optimist adult advisor Don Brose referred to the fundraisers as "a tremendous experience. The neat thing about a club like this is that it's their ideas, not ours."

After accepting the check for the city, Mayor Sharron Catallo praised the young Optimists and remarked, "There are a lot of adults who couldn't accomplish this."

The money will be used for playground equipment and maintenance.

Dogs need transfusions too

Local family speaks up for need for canine blood donors

BY ANNETTE KINGSBURY
Clarkston News Editor

Like many twin sisters, Nicky and Casey do everything together. They eat together, play together, answer the door together. They look identical, and compete for attention.

But Nicky and Casey aren't people; they're schnauzers. The adored dogs of Judy and Richard Caldwell of Clarkston, they've agreed to be spokes-pooches for a very special cause—that of blood donor canines.

Actually, Judy Caldwell agreed to help inform the public of the crucial need for canine blood donors after Nicky nearly died last year when her immune system began to destroy her red-blood cells and platelets. Her spleen was eventually removed, but she wouldn't have made it if a dog hadn't been available to donate blood to her.

"At the time this happened a year ago I was unaware they had donors standing by," Caldwell said. One night, without warning, Nicky collapsed on the floor. Her veterinarian, Mike McLaughlin, diagnosed anemia, but even with medication Nicky's condition didn't improve. McLaughlin quickly referred Caldwell to the Oakland Veterinary Referral Service, the only place in Michigan with a canine blood donor on stand-by.

"She could not walk; I felt like I was losing her minute by minute," Caldwell said. "She was near death, very near death."

Nicky received one transfusion to strengthen her for surgery, a second transfusion during surgery a couple of days later.

"Without the blood she would never have made it," Caldwell said. "I can't tell you how lucky we are and how fortunate we feel."

The purpose of going public with Nicky's trauma is to get more dogs signed up as potential blood donors. For that reason, The American Red Cross, OVRs and several other sponsors are teaming up for "Buddies for Life," a canine and human blood drive scheduled for Saturday, June 17 at the Birmingham Dog Obedience School, 2243 Cole St.

"Pets are thought of as part of the family, and owners want the very best when it comes to saving the life of a pet," said Dr. Joyce Obradovich, Nicky's veterinarian at OVRs. "This often means blood transfusions."

Obradovich hopes to establish a registry of 100-150 dogs to be used as future donors. Right now, OVRs only has one dog who donates regularly, a greyhound named Dixie. It was Dixie who helped save Nicky's life.

In addition, human blood donations will be accepted by the Red Cross. Red Cross spokesman Dan Waxman, MD, said the agency typically experiences shortages in the summer.

"During the summer months, there are fewer blood donations because people are vacationing, schools are either closed or have a limited number of students, and many organizations are reluctant to schedule drives," Waxman said. "But the demand for blood products does not decline and human donors are the only source for human patients."

Nicky (left) and Casey with their grateful owner, Judy Caldwell. "Today you'd never know anything was wrong with (Nicky)," Caldwell said.

Waxman said the Red Cross needs 1,300 pints per week to meet its needs.

At the joint blood drive, humans will donate while dogs will receive a blood test and a physical exam. Dogs must weigh at least 45 pounds and test negative for heartworm. Humans must be at least 17 and weigh at least 110 pounds.

At the end of the visit, humans will enjoy cookies and juice while dogs will chow down on treats provided by Pet Supplies Plus.

To schedule an appointment for yourself or your dog, call (810) 334-6877.

'Family fun center' denied ordinance change

BY DARREL W. COLE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

There will be no opening of a "Pandora's Box" in Independence Township.

The township board of trustees voted unanimously June 6 to deny a request to amend the coin-operated amusement center ordinance. Developers of Bonkers Family Fun Center, a Chuck E Cheese type facility, had asked the board to allow the change so they could operate their coin-operated games which dispense tickets.

Board members voted against amending the township ordinance because they said doing so would open the door for similar establishments.

The township's ordinance prohibits video/arcade games, but the Bonkers company insisted its games are different. The games would dispense tickets to children depending on their performance. The tickets could then be redeemed for prizes at the prize counter.

Investors wanted to build the center in a 20,000-square-foot vacant supermarket located at the northwest corner of Maybee and Sashabaw roads.

Bonkers first came to the board for their request in early May.

Township attorney Gerald Fisher said the township ordinance prohibits gifts for performance, regardless of the type of game.

It states, "No gambling in any form shall be permitted on the premises, and no prizes, gifts, rewards, or the like, shall be offered and/or given by the owner, manager and/or employee for specified performance on a coin-operated amusement device ..."

Trustee Daniel Travis said the original development of the ordinance was no small task and should not be changed now. "A very lengthy and thoughtful process went into that and I see no need to change it now for what I perceive as a junior-league-type gambling facility."

Allowing this ordinance change would only lead to "bigger things," said clerk Joan McCrary.

Treasurer John Lutz said, "We shouldn't be changing an ordinance to satisfy one person in the community. It would allow something in this community we really don't want."

Bonkers Representatives at the meeting said they do not have a gambling facility, but rather a place where families could gather and kids could play on the many rides and games.

"I feel you're stereotyping us," said Bonkers investor Christopher Puertas. "We planned a business with the family in mind and I feel it's only a matter of time before one comes to Independence Township."

Other board action:

● Clarkston Office Center, located on Citation Drive, and consisting of 14 lots, will pay $86,200 to hook into the community water system.

The center agreed to a special assessment district for water improvements when the office center was established in June 1987. At that time, the proprietors signed a contract stating the township could hook them up to community water as soon as community water became available in the adjacent subdivision.

● Proposed modifications to the township's development design standards were tabled so the board can review the materials and add language that would exempt individual homes from more restrictions.

Some of the possible changes include: requiring as-built plans for sewer, water and drainage facilities; more regulations applicable to drainage basins; and, adding language addressing grading plans with respect to first floor and brick ledge elevations, proposed walk-outs.

Township engineer Randall Ford said the proposed amendments will help the township review development plans. He said current requirements for the above-mentioned designs aren't due until the project is almost finished.

"And in the past it seems it's always been difficult to get them," said Ford.

When the amendment is brought back up to the board, Ford said he will have a comparison chart that shows old requirements and new requirements.

● Township library director Mollie Lynch was given authority to purchase a $7,243 modem pool for the computer system.

The funds, which will come from the township's general fund, will enable library computers to communicate/transmit data via telephone lines. With the 16 modems hooked up to the library computers people will be able to: access the automated library system 24 hours a day; use the library's electronic indexes which include full text articles of over 500 magazines from 1992 to present; and, access Internet's vast resources.

Full Internet access with e-mail addresses will be available through Metro Net at a flat rate of $10 a month.

The board approved the new services for township residents only. They said if the city also pays some of the costs, city residents could also be included.

MORTGAGES CAN HELP

RELO
WORLD LEADER
IN RELOCATION

QUESTION: How important has the mortgage instrument been to the real estate industry?

ANSWER: The difference between night and day. Mortgages are the most common way to finance the purchase of a home. Let's face it, how many of us could afford to pay cash for our home? Thanks to mortgage financing, many people who would not otherwise be able to purchase their own home are now homeowners.

You don't actually "pay the mortgage" but rather the promissory note which is secured by the mortgage. Your property is the collateral used to guarantee repayment.

technical worker to secretary in the Oakland County Sheriff's Independence sub-station. Lt. Doug Hummel said Cole has performed the duties and responsibilities at the secretarial level for the past three years.

● Two street lights will be added to the Thendara Blvd. Street Lighting special assessment district.

The lighting SAD has been paid for by 78 parcels for the past 20 years, but two assessed residents said they don't receive the benefits because there are no street lights in front of their homes.

The added cost for the two lights is $343 for this year's assessment, at $4.40 per parcel.

● There will be no July 3 day off for township employees, but the board did allow a "skeleton crew" to show up, meaning that if employees have the days off to take and their boss approves, they can do so.

● The board met for about an hour in closed session under pending litigation in an arbitration claim filed against investment brokers. No action was taken after the closed session.

Letters to the editor

No favoritism

To the Editor:

Letters to this paper and, more recently, sensationalized reports by other news media have suggested that the city council accorded Curt Catallo special treatment when it approved a restaurant use and liquor license in a former church building on Main St. since a bed & breakfast use had previously been denied in a former funeral home on North Main.

The church approval, however, cannot be compared with the bed & breakfast matter since the two have absolutely no connection in time, decision makers, factual circumstances or law.

Three years ago the Zoning Board of Appeals denied the request for a bed & breakfast. It found a bed & breakfast would not be more appropriate than a funeral home since it would still be a commercial use in a residentially zoned area and that there was no reason why the home could not return to residential use as required by the long-established provisions of the zoning ordinance. This controversy continues only because the Kapietzes would not accept the ZBA decision and sued the city.

The recent recommendation and approval of the restaurant site plan in the former church was by different bodies, the planning commission and the council, under completely different provisions of the zoning ordinance. A restaurant use is specifically allowed in that commercially zoned structure and area. When there is no question that the proposed use is allowed by ordinance and when a site plan meets the requirements of the ordinance, it must be approved regardless of who the requester is.

As for the council's approval of the liquor license for the church building there previously were two liquor licenses in Clarkston, one at the Cafe and one at the Mill's restaurant which was later sold to a location outside the city. Based on this precedent, the Council could not now deny a second license in the village.

Further, regardless of our individual religious beliefs, the Constitution does not allow us to consider religious objections in our decisions, but only whether the use to which the building will now be put is allowed by our zoning ordinance.

In short, there was nothing whatsoever improper in the approval process nor any special favoritism shown in this case. If anything, Mr. Catallo's request was subjected to greater-than-normal scrutiny because of his relationship to a member of the council.

Members of the Zoning Board of Appeals, the planning commission and the council work to maintain a local government directly responsible to our residents. In such role we must make decisions which may be unpopular with some but which are required under our ordinances and in accord with our duty as we see it.

All our citizens are certainly free to publicly disagree with any decision and state their basis for doing so. However, public comment and media reporting should be based on fact, not sensationalism, if informed public debate is to take place.

Sincerely,
The Clarkston City Council

Agreement on tavern

I applaud Joyce Valentine for the letter that was published in The Clarkston News. I, too, am in agreement with her entire letter.

Thank you, Mrs. Valentine and The Clarkston News, for being a "hometown people paper."

Sincerely,
M.J. Batchelder

Out with geese

I noted Annette Kingsbury's picture of geese on Cranberry Lake that was on page 10 of your May 31 issue. Particularly upsetting was the caption under the picture that stated "area residents seem to enjoy keeping tabs on how many little goslings each set of parents are nurturing." You must have been taken in by a do-gooder resident (Mary Shamm) who is trying to prevent the taking of the geese from Cranberry Lake this year.

Yes, the geese are pretty and their goslings are cute, BUT they grow up to be geese and they all desecrate our lawns, beaches, docks and rafts with their large droppings, causing pollution and making our yards unsafe and unusable. As I told Mary when she tried to get me to sign her misleading petition, God gave man dominion over all of the birds, etc. (Genesis 1:26) and I'd like to enjoy my dominion!

Sincerely,
Stan Cool

Lack of respect

The opening of the bed and breakfast operation in a residential zone at 155 N. Main Street before a final legal determination has been made seems presumptive — and unbusinesslike.

While such an operation is not welcomed by most neighbors in the historic district, they would of course accept final approval. Pending a final decision, it had been expected that the Kapietz's would respect these concerns. We regret that such has not been the case.

Eighth-grader Kimberly Lytle (pictured at left with counselor Marge Dever) is this year's winner of the Bud McGrath Award at Clarkston Middle School. The award, given each spring, is named after a former school counselor who died of leukemia in 1983. It has been given every year since to the student who best exemplifies citizenship and spirit. "The child that is very positive, enthusiastic, who made a lot of contributions to the school," said principal Vince Licata. "Those are the kind of kids Bud gravitated to. Kimberly certainly matches that criteria. Her name surfaced right away." Kimberly is the daughter of Jim and Paula Lytle.

Disturbing the peace at the high school. A 15-year-old reported an egg and some syrup ended up on her car at the end of the school day, the day after graduation.

Non-injury accident on Maybee.

FRIDAY, JUNE 9, someone entered a 1982 Chevy van parked on Sashabaw and went through it, but nothing appeared missing.

A loose wire from an Ameritech pole caught a car on Indianwood Rd. and damaged the antenna and paint.

A window was broken on a GMC van parked in an Ortonville Rd. parking lot.

SATURDAY, JUNE 10, a Flint man was taken to Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital after he was injured in an accident on M-15 between his motorcycle and a car. The fire department reported the injuries were minor. The motorcyclist was ticketed after witnesses said he passed a car turning left, causing the collision.

Non-injury accidents (two) on Sashabaw and one on Maybee.

Breaking and entering of two buildings at an Andersonville Rd. business. In one case a door glass was broken; in the other, a lock was cut. A radio valued at $1,000 was stolen.

Two purses left in a car by women visiting a grave at Ottawa Cemetery were stolen while a child slept in the car. Missing were $430 cash, an airline ticket, a diamond ring and two checkbooks.

Larceny from a 1993 Chevy van parked on Staghorn Rd. overnight.

Larceny of two speakers from a 1989 Pontiac Sunbird parked on Clintonville Rd. The owner said the car was locked but a window was partially open.

SUNDAY, JUNE 11, the windshield and rear window of a 1990 Ford pick up parked on Allen Rd. were broken and the roof dented, possibly by a baseball bat.

A Deer Hill Drive resident reported a car drove across his lawn, lost control, hit a large rock and backed up, running into his garage. The report said the door was destroyed and the garage received extensive damage.

A 53-year-old Clarkston man had his truck impounded after witnesses said he drove it into a light pole and sign on Mann Rd. The man said he had been drinking all day and didn't remember the accident.

Injury accident on Sashabaw Rd. An injured Ortonville man who fell asleep at the wheel and hit two mailboxes, a tree and a fence, refused transport to a hospital.

The Oakland County Sheriff's Independence substation has responded to 4,878 calls this year through June 11.

Renter ousted in house fire

The cause of a house fire on Woodlane June 6 remained under investigation this week.

The resident was not home at the time of the blaze and there were no injuries. Independence Township Fire Chief Gar Wilson said flames were through the windows and roof on half the house when fire crews arrived. Since the only access to the house on Round Lake is a narrow dirt road, firefighters brought hoses in from the corner. Wilson said it was fortunate the fire was extinguished quickly so extra water supplies didn't need to be brought in.

If you're planning an emergency, do it right.

1. Make sure your doctor is certified in emergency medicine.

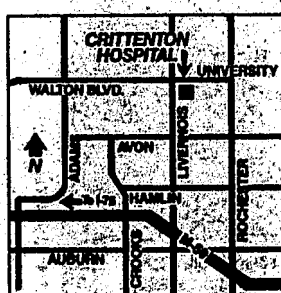

Surprisingly, many emergency department doctors are not. At Crittenton, our emergency physicians are specialists. In fact, our entire ER staff is thoroughly trained to handle any emergency. And faster treatment means a better chance for faster recovery.

2. Know that Crittenton handles small emergencies, too.

At Crittenton, we've supplemented our emergency department with "CareExpress." It's a special area of the emergency department dedicated to minor emergencies. Most patients are treated and on their way in an hour.

Three charged in bombing of $4,000 mailbox

BY ANNETTE KINGBURY
Clarkston News Editor

A very expensive mailbox in Heather Lakes Estates was the target of vandals who used a pipe bomb to blow it up June 7.

Actually it was the structure surrounding the mail box, which included glass block and copper, which was destroyed. The brick foundation, though damaged, was still standing after the explosion.

Three teenagers were arraigned in 52-2 District Court Tuesday morning on felony charges of malicious destruction of property over $100 and possession of an explosive device in relation to the incident. Gregory B. Dalessandro, 17, of Lake Orion, Don Toffolo, 17, of Rochester and Roger Schmidt, 18, of Oakland Township were released on personal bond and scheduled for preliminary exams on June 22.

They were among five teenage boys seen by a neighbor leaving the area in a 1990 Jeep Cherokee whose windshield was shattered by the explosion. The neighbor got the license plate number of the Jeep, which had a "no fear" sticker in the window.

The incident happened shortly after 10 p.m. on Hawksmoore and it was the second time since Easter the mailbox had been a target, the owner said. The boys were arrested after surrounding law enforcement agencies were asked to be on the lookout for them. According to the Oakland County Sheriff's Independence substation, the three teens confessed and expressed shock at the amount of damage the bomb inflicted. A pipe and wiring used in the explosion were recovered from the site.

The Oakland County Prosecutor's office declined to charge the other two boys seen in the car, teenagers from Oakland and Lake Orion.

None of the boys charged has a previous criminal record, according to OCS Det. Dirk Feneley.

It is expected to take three years to open the new school, and Haner remarked that enrollment could be at the new school's capacity by that time. That remark angered one person at Monday's meeting, who said she voted for the millage.

"What are we going to do with all these students that are constantly coming in this area?" she asked. "We're building below what we need."

Thomas, Shanks, OCC approved

Also in Monday's election, Janet Thomas was re-elected to the board of education. Newcomer Kurt Shanks will fill the seat vacated by Kurt Karlstrom, who chose not to run for re-election.

Thomas received 3,463 votes, Shanks 3,278 and Karen Foyteck 3,247.

In the millage request by Oakland Community College, unofficial results Tuesday morning show the millage passing with about 56.5 percent of the vote.

With one small district not yet reporting, the millage was passing, 42,956-33,071. However, Clarkston voters rejected the millage, 3,729-3,020.

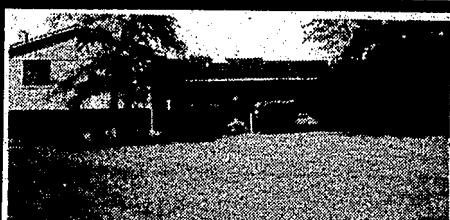

Turnout in the Clarkston school district was 27 percent in Monday's election.

Lutz good man who made bad mistake

this week by The Clarkson News. Ritter said he's heard the idea brought up from other people in and out of the township offices.

The bottom line, according to Ritter is that Lutz did not do his job as treasurer and has or will cost the township taxpayers money.

"It really bothers me that this township has to pay an investment manager when we have an elected treasurer, and that was his job," he said, while also adding he believes the board has done a good job of handling the investment problem.

One business taxpayer says Lutz very simply did not fulfill his duties to the community and should resign. Ed Adler, president of Food Town, located on Sashabaw Road, said he sent a letter to Lutz many months ago stating resigning is the right thing to do.

"I said in the letter he was hired by the people for no other reason than to exercise his judgment and he failed in that capacity, so he should resign," said Adler.

"It is obvious to me that those things he invested in were illegal and I am just tired of all these excuses being made."

Both Ritter and Adler agree Lutz is a "good person" and a "nice man." They say they are positive he did not put the township in this predicament on purpose. But Lutz's good image still can't make up for the fact he made a big mistake, they say.

"If you have 500 employees working for you like I do, at some point you will have to fire someone you really like," said Adler. "In business I've fired some of the nicest guys who have walked the face of the earth."

"So many people have said to me John is a good guy and he didn't do this on purpose and I agree. I feel bad for him as a person."

Ritter said he didn't go the June 6 meeting with the intention of stating publicly that Lutz should resign. He originally went to discuss a sewer project in his neighborhood and then stayed until the board discussed its investment policy.

"I can tell you as a taxpayer I'm angry because who the hell knows how much this will cost in the long run. The bottom line for me is the idea all this money being spent on attorneys and consultants and everything else. I understand the necessity of it now but it's avoidable if John would have used some common sense then."

Ritter lost to Lutz in the 1984 election for treasurer but he insists there's no hard feelings from that. Since then Ritter, owner of Clarkson Auto Wash on Dixie Highway, has made his own name in the community. "That election was 11 years ago and my life is completely different now. I don't want to get into office again and hold no personal animosity for John. He doesn't have a malicious bone in his body."

But Ritter does feel Lutz made a big mistake investing in the risky derivatives and mortgage-backed securities market. "I never got involved in that stuff because it was too speculative. I read it back then as it wasn't allowed under law, but I do realize since I've been out the market has changed."

Township officials insist the community is still in good financial standing, taxes will not be raised and services will remain.

Seal

Seal

Looking back to London, Sealhenry Samuel, better known as Seal, remembers how it all began.

He'd been developing his own music style back then, mixing rock, soul, blues and techno-funk and performing around the London club circuit. Soon, he was off touring exotic locales like Japan, India and Nepal which inspired him to co-write the 1990 British dance hit "Killer." It gained him record-label attention, allowing him to sign with a major company to record his 1991 hit "Crazy" and others on his debut album "Seal." It went gold the second week of its release.

"That first album was very young, very idealistic: If we only stick together we can save the world. I'd just come back from a long trip to Asia and I was unstoppable in that respect," he says.

Today, the newest album, also titled "Seal," is more realistic. It contains "Prayer for the Dying," currently number 19 on "Billboard" magazine's Hot 100 Recurrent Airplay chart.

Low-key about his image, Seal had never heard it on the radio but pulled over in his car one day when it came on.

"I'd been listening to it as a song and now I wanted to hear this thing that Trevor (his record producer) had always talked about: I wanted to hear the record. It sounded better on the radio than it did on the stereo at home.

"And the DJ said, 'That was the new one from Seal — well worth waiting for.' And I had this feeling. I've had it before, it's only momentary, it never lasts and I get it sometimes on stage and I've also got it when I've been on a snowboard ... almost unquantifiable ... just this rush."

Bird-brained

'Robbin' redbreasts take over woman's home

BY EILEEN OXLEY
Clarkston News Staff Writer

They don't live in Birdland but maybe they ought to.

A few feathered friends are almost "robin" Marie Wagner and son Dan of their shady home on Susin Lake.

Several robin families built nests all around the outside of the house this spring. There's one on the light fixture at the front door, one atop an Edison meter. Another is at the back door wall and the final one rests upon a grapevine wreath at the front. A careful peek revealed five sky-blue eggs in one and a few babies in another. The rest, so to speak, have apparently flown the coop.

"You go out the back door, (the mother) hears the door slam. She flies into the fruit trees — to detract from their nest, I think," says Marie Wagner. Though she's had the boarders every year, she's never seen as many nests as the ones built this year.

Marie thinks a lot of the robins' habits are for the birds, and is quick to dispel the good rap they've gotten as the state favorite. For one thing, she notes their lack of ambition.

"They're lazy. They don't like to build a nest. If you don't tear that nest apart, they'll be back year after year." She doesn't like the fact she has to scrub down the walls after they leave either.

And furthermore, "I don't think they give very long lessons. I think they say, 'There's the ground, kid. Aim for it!' I don't think they're the wonderful mothers they're cracked up to be."

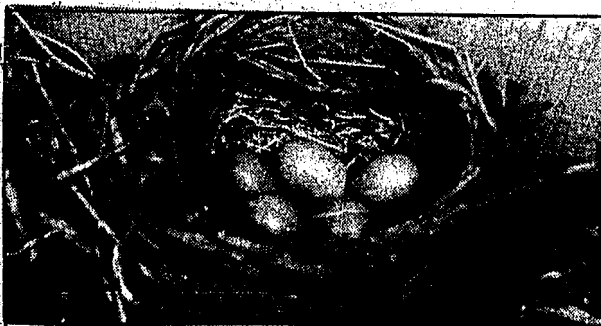

Nevertheless, the robins have returned for the past five years.

"If you tear down the nest, they still come back," Marie grumbles.

Animals and nature have always seemed to be a part of the Wagner family. Marie's late husband Norman always fed the birds and Marie swears the begonias and flowering crabs attract them. Norman placed feeders around the yard out back so he could watch them from the picture window. The view afforded him hours of entertainment.

"He was so sick, he couldn't do much else," Marie said.

A rather interesting critter herself, Marie has Five blue eggs await hatching in a nest built into a grapevine wreath.

Timmy, one of four cockateels owned by Marie Wagner, won't be joining his friends in the sky; the bird has his wings clipped.

loads of animal stories to tell. Some have resulted in damage to the Wagner home, but most are relayed with a touch of humor.

For example, though Disney would disagree, she doesn't understand why people think chipmunks are so adorable.

"They're cute in cartoon form, but not in real life," she said, referring to Chip 'n' Dale. "They dig holes in the ground and eat the new roots of the azaleas that come up in the spring."

(She doesn't like to admit they had to set rat traps.)

Other critter visitors have included "one undefined" that appeared out of a drain pipe when Marie believes development on the other side of the street forced some animals from their homes. The creature would occasionally appear and humorously sit up on its hind legs. Marie never figured out what kind of animal it was, but assumes a woodchuck or beaver.

She thinks her experience with a rattlesnake was another result of the across-the-street development. She was out in the back yard with her two shih tzus — Pooki-Pooki and Muffin. The dogs ran ahead of her and Marie spotted the rattler.

"He was the real McCoy. His head was up and his tale was up and going Ping! Ping! Ping! — just like ringing a bell. I started screaming. It must be that animals know when you're really desperate and you want them out of there." Both the dogs and she got away safely.

In one of her more humorous tales, although it came with a price — $1,300 worth of damages — a family of raccoons was living in the attic. The Wagners were unsure as how to rid the house of them. They finally called "critter control," says Marie and thought they had seen the last of them, but the father came back. There were screens blocking his former exit route and he couldn't get out.

"He got so hot under the collar he burst out a vent and landed in a fruit tree. He never came back," said Marie, with cackling laughter.

Though she grumbles about the animal kingdom in her back yard, Wagner is really glad for the company. Her four cockateels often raise a ruckus when they hear their wild relatives outside.

"In the spring the birds get kind of ditzzy. It's probably from eating the crab apples. I think they get intoxicated," she says, toning her voice down to a whisper.

Marie didn't always enjoy birds so much. When she was a child, she had a rather frightening experience when a bunch of roosters owned by her great-aunt Clare suddenly flew up without warning and began clawing at her. But she feels they got their due.

"To this day my very favorite food to eat is chicken," she says, narrowing her eyes to a gleam.

Middle school football, volleyball coming

Will strengthen programs

BY DARREL W. COLE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Two Clarkston varsity coaches are sure middle school football and girls volleyball teams will help make their programs even stronger.

The Clarkston Board of Education approved the addition of the two sports at a meeting in May. Teams will be formed for both Clarkston and Sashabaw middle schools next school year.

The change will bring the football and volleyball programs back to full strength. In 1987, ninth grade classes were moved from the middle schools to the high school, forming one team, rather than two.

Getting the programs back in the middle schools has been a focus for varsity football coach Kurt Richardson and varsity girls volleyball coach Gordie Richardson. They are heading into their ninth season as head coaches.

Both are excited about the additions because it will give more kids exposure to the sports.

The board accepted the recommendation from the Co-Curricular and Extra-Curricular Activities Review Committee to include football and volleyball sports. The proposal was accepted with the requirement that no letters, trophies, etc., are awarded for participation.

The football teams will have a six-game schedule and volleyball will have 12 games with competition coming from Waterford, Brandon and Lake Orion school districts.

For Gordie Richardson, it means his teams will finally be able to keep up with other volleyball schools that have the sport in middle school already. Until this past season, Richardson's teams had won four straight league titles and two straight district titles.

"There's been a lot of discussion over the years about trying to accomplish in four years of high school what other schools accomplish with six or seven years," he said. "I would like to think that it will benefit the program because it will take us less time to teach the skill things and we'll be able to spend more time doing team concepts."

Kurt Richardson, whose fall varsity squad just came off a 9-2 season and a playoff spot, said, "It's something I've been fighting for quite a while. It definitely increases the feeder system but my goal for that is to have the kids get a taste for the game."

While excited about the added success middle-school programs will lend to the high school teams, both coaches also realize the kids must first be coached by people who make the experience enjoyable, with less emphasis on winning. Kurt and Gordie will both have a hand in picking the coaches.

"I think the coach should be laid back because making it fun is a big thing at that level," Kurt said. "Sure, they have to have some discipline but we don't want the coaches running them into the ground."

Gordie agrees and added that it's important whoever is hired for the volleyball job knows the game and will incorporate his philosophies in everyday practice, just as the freshman and JV teams do now.

Currently the middle schools offer boys and girls basketball, wrestling and track.

Costs to run the football program for 60 athletes will be around $10,500, with $4,800 of that coming from pay-to-participate fees ($80 per student) and $5,700 from the athletic department budget.

Costs for the volleyball program for 60 children could be around $9,500, with $4,800 coming from pay-to-participate and $4,700 coming from the athletic department.

Beating the bigger boys

This group of 7- and 8-year-olds won the 9-10-year-old division three-on-three winter league at Basketball America. They were the only players of their age in the division and only lost one game all season, winning both of their playoff games in overtime. Pictured are (front row, from left) Steve Goodman, Robbie Clark, Brad Goodman and head coach Bill Craig; (second row) Michael Holody, Matt Craig, Mike Tatu and Max Clark.

Boys Track Awards

—By Varsity Coach Walt Wynlemko

Co-Most Valuable Players

Seniors J.R. Kirk and Jason Graves were the team's go-to guys.

Graves dominated the 400 meter and mile relay races. He could also beat others in the 200-meter run and long jump (except Kirk). He scored 125.5 points for the team but a stress fracture limited his effectiveness at regionals and he only qualified for the state meet in the long jump.

Kirk won MVP for the second straight year. During his three years on the varsity he has scored 587 points and has won three varsity track letters.

He was the most versatile athlete in the OAA, winning the high jump, long jump and 110 hurdles.

He broke the 20-year-old CHS long jump record, but a knee injury limited his effectiveness in the county meet and prevented him from performing at the state meet.

Kirk will continue his track career at Saginaw Valley State University on a partial track scholarship.

Most Improved Player

The varsity coaches chose Josh "Pumpkin" Preston as most improved because he threw the shot put and discus better every meet.

This season Preston caught fire near the end of the season, including six straight meets where he had personal bests.

The three-time varsity letter winner came through in his team's toughest meet

Team point leaders

J.R. Kirk, 253; Jason Graves, 125; Josh Preston, 61; Matt Wenger, 51; Chris Evans, 42; Rich Bevins, 37; Jeff Dengate, 33; Dan Slavin, 28; and, Matt Warner, 21.

Players better, despite 13-23 record

BY DARREL W. COLE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

As a team, the Clarkston varsity softball squad could have done better. But coach Al Land said he was always happy at the players' effort.

As the season went on, he was most proud of the fact the players improved. But regardless of won-loss records, Land said this Wolves team proved they are also tough in the classroom.

The team had an overall grade point average of 3.4, good enough to earn them Academic All-State as a team.

Here is an individual analysis of each player's season, according to Land:

● Kristy Barefoot, sr., 1st base — While holding a 3.95 GPA, she was also strong on the field, especially at first base. "She was one of the biggest improvements on the team," he said. "She worked real hard at getting better."

● Kiley Maitrott, sr., OF/1st base — Land said from last season to this season, she probably made the biggest improvement. She batted fifth or sixth in the lineup, was strong at the plate and has a strong arm.

"We moved her to first late in the season to get more offense in the lineup and she helped lead the team," he said.

The three-year varsity player was also a team captain and Land said her leadership skills really showed. "She often stopped to help the younger kids on the team. She is a great kid to coach and have on the team."

● Kristen Peterson, sr. — Despite this being Peterson's first year on varsity, Land said she could hit with the best of them, as evidenced by an almost .300 batting average.

"She was one of our most consistent hitters and came through with some clutch hits."

● Stephanie Giroux, jr., CF — Talent-wise, Land said Giroux is one of the best players in the state. But not only does she perform on the field, she also carries a 3.97 GPA.

"She had the most consistent season of anyone I've ever coached at CHS. She never had a bad game this season. She's good because she is always focused and it's that focus that makes her perform so well."

● Nikkie Hard, jr., OF — Coming into the season her one weakness was throwing, but Land said that changed by the end of the season.

"She worked real hard to get better and now she can throw runners out at the plate. She never gave up, never quit and kept wanting to improve."

● Leah Howard, jr., OF — A regular starter in left field who was able to run down just about any fly ball.

"It was her first season on varsity and she could really play defense for us."

● Amanda Jenkinson, jr. catcher — The team's #4 hitter most of the season was the team's vocal leader.

"I've never seen anyone hustle like her. She just loves to play."

While having a rifle arm at catcher, Jenkinson was also one of the team's fastest runners. She led the team in RBI while hitting the ball for power also, with 16 extra base hits in 45 hits.

"She is a great leader but is also able to have a good sense of humor and that keeps everyone loose."

● Crystal Lemke, jr., shortstop — She started on the varsity since her freshman year and didn't disappoint this season. Land said she is good because she is a student of the game.

While also one of the team batting leaders, Lemke is as talented at shortstop as anyone around. "She could pick up a ball and basically get anyone out with her arm alone. She takes a tremendous amount of pride in her game and always expects perfection."

● Suzanne Schmidt, jr. — She wasn't a starter but Land said she played her role as well as anyone on the team.

Schmidt was always working to get better. "She has a great work ethic and never complained or got upset. She approached everything well and learned from criticism."

● Alesha Ulasich, jr., pitcher — She made great strides from the beginning of the season and never let down despite a tough year.

"She was winning more than losing at the end and she was better," Land said.

Early on, Ulasich struggled with control and gave up walks. But Land said there was a lot of pressure on her and she never gave up. "She cut her walks down from 7-8 a game to two. That's why we were in games at the end of the season."

● Nikki Maynard, jr., pitcher — She did what she had to do during the season, which included finishing some games in relief, and starting games during one stretch when Ulasich was hurt.

A hard thrower, Maynard started to improve even more towards the end of the season.

● Emily White, soph., OF — She is a strong hitter who played mostly designated hitter during the season, before being moved down to JV to receive more defensive work.

Land said she has a great attitude and never once complained.

● Aimee Giroux, frosh., 2nd base — This freshman will only get better because she has all the skills it takes, Land said.

She was consistent all season at second and improved her hitting. "She did a good job for us, was always in the game and has a lot of fun."

● Tiffany Honey, frosh., 3rd base — She moved from outfield to infield and owned the third base position all season. "She started the season by asking

The Dawg Pound

Results rounded up by Jack Leach

Editor's note: The Dawg Pound will be a regular feature in The Clarkston News. The Clarkston River Dawgs Baseball Club is in its first year of play and includes five teams that compete in the North Oakland Baseball Federation.

12-year-olds

June 3: The River Dawgs edged the Hurricanes by a 4-3 score, thanks to a sacrifice fly from Lance Piechura in the bottom of the 7th inning.

June 5: The home opener at Clintonwood Park saw the club win 19-7 over the Prowlers.

June 8: Lake Orion beat the Dawgs 14-8, despite Ryan Kaul's 4-for-4 performance.

June 10: Clarkston moved its record to 7-1 with a 3-0 win over the Troy Yankees. Trevor Manuel scored three runs and Greg Kiester pitched a strong game.

13-year-olds

June 3: A makeup game with the Rochester Mariners ended in a 7-6 nine-inning loss. In the first game of the doubleheader, Jonathon Bemis pitched a two-hitter for a 2-0 Dawgs win.

June 10: The Brandon Braves lost to Clarkston 11-1.

14-year-olds

June 10: Eric Jenks allowed only four hits to help the Dawgs to a 4-2 win over the Troy Hurricanes.

June 11: After a 11-5 win over the Hurricanes, the Dawgs improved to 6-3 overall in the Sandy Koufax Division. Tim Loveless was 4-for-4 hitting and Nathan Jerdon pitched a strong game.

15-16-year-olds

June 10: Opening day jitters and a powerhouse Rochester Rams team gave the Dawgs two losses in a doubleheader at Clintonwood Park by scores of 11-4 and 10-4.

17-18-year-olds

June 10: The senior Dawgs team hosted the Mt. Clemens Mariners in the home opener doubleheader. After the Dawgs jumped out to an early 6-0 lead the Mariners woke up and scored 10 late-inning runs to give the Dawgs the 12-6 loss. In the second game, Mike Turk and Chris Carpenter combined for six hits, while Jason Ostrom stole four bases to lead Clarkston to a 14-10 win.

why she was on the varsity," Land said. "But it's because she rarely made a mistake. She's got the softest hands on the team and real feel for the ball."

She also hit well for the squad and was third in batting average.

● Sue Naboychik, soph., CF — She was brought up to the varsity for almost half the season and filled in at center field while Stephanie Giroux was out with an injury.

"She moved up because of her defense and made some really nice catches," the coach said. "When she got her chance she made the most of it."

T&C comes to Clarkston

The grand opening of T&C Federal Credit Union in the Clarkston Commons shopping center at White Lake Road and Dixie Highway was a big celebration for more than members Friday. The ribbon-cutting ceremony gathered guests that included T&C board members, Independence Township Supervisor Dale Stuart and several politicians — State Sen. Mat Dunaskiss, State Rep. Tom Middleton and Gary Sullenger, district director for U.S. Congressman Dale Kildee. Cutting the ribbon, left to right are Donna Campbell, Clarkston Branch Manager; Patrick McIlrath, youngest member with a youth account; Ester Powell, oldest member with an account; and Diane Addington, T&C president, CEO. "Our branch is designed as a branch of the future, featuring speedy automatic services such as ATM, cash dispense machines and 20-minute loan approvals," Campbell said.

Summer No Bummer for Class of '89 and others

What started out to be a better-late-than-never five-year reunion for Clarkston High's Class of '89 turned out to be a No Bummer Summer Bash. Many students turned musicians were on hand to provide more than the customary reminiscing during a perfect late spring evening Saturday.

Shessohuge, a three-member band that included '89 grads Rich DeClantis and Kyle Thatcher (with drummer Ron Tippin) headlined the 3 to 11:30 p.m. party that included volleyball, basketball and, of course, beer. Other bands GearHead, Willow, Sometimes Why and I Stand Mute provided plenty of entertainment for those who wanted to mosh it up, listen — or just have some background music to enhance the conversation with old school chums.

Class of '89 grads Chuck Wheeler and Nathan Burge, who graciously offered his parents' home for the event, said they were tired of waiting for the five-year celebration that never materialized.

"We didn't have a fifth-year reunion, so we're having this party anyway," Burge said, adding that one thing had led to another. Thus, the creation of the No Bummer Summer, a yard bash for not only the Class of '89, but other would-be partyers.

His mother Barbara admitted she was used to the noise after raising several teenagers.

"The kids have always had parties. We have them all the time — but never anything like this.

"They're doing it right, they're checking ID's and making sure nobody underage is drinking ... What are you gonna do?" she laughed.

Let the celebrating begin! The Class of '95 turn their tassels and turn on the celebrating at commencement ceremonies at Pine Knob June 7.

'There is no stopping us'

BY ANNETTE KINGSBURY
Clarkston News Editor

The Class of '95 saved its celebrating for the end of commencement ceremonies June 7 at Pine Knob.

As grads Jill Attaman, Jessica Doty, Mary Forbes and Kelly Raup gave the cue to turn their tassels from one side to the other, the new grads went them one step further. Caps were thrown into the air and the whooping and hollering began. At last, they could let off steam.

Earlier, as the students lined up outside the amphitheater, they appeared relaxed and calm. It was principal Brent Cooley who looked nervous. Or was that just the heat causing the sweat to drip from his brow?

To the strains of the traditional "Pomp and Circumstance" from the symphonic band, the grads marched down to their seats. They cheered warmly for classmate Katherine Morris, who sang an original composition, "In My Heart" in a strong, sure voice.

"I don't want to leave this comfort zone," she sang. "I'll miss you when I go . . . but we can stop the river's flow."

Amber Gebrowski, appearing calm, cool and collected, spoke about the pursuit of excellence she had witnessed in her classmates, and the trust they had to place in the adult world for guidance—until now.

"We're ready to roll the dice and enter the real world, the dream world beyond Clarkston High School," she said. "Today we realize we truly have been excellent . . . We've played the game of life, not just as participants, but as winners . . . There is no stopping us."

Brad (Bubba) Bailey spoke about the shared experiences that had brought the Class of '95 together to this point.

"I never saw there was a difference between band class and the football field," he said. "Rather I saw people working together . . . We have looked past all the differences so we can see what we have in common. This strength has allowed us to live life to the fullest."

Principal Brent Cooley said the Class of '95 would be remembered for "its unselfish attitude toward others . . . They truly celebrate the success of their peers. When one earned success, you all rallied around him or her . . ."

"Your school staff knows you will continue to exhibit this unusual trait wherever you may be."

Amber Gebrowski gives her graduation speech. "Our paths were often blocked, our sights were often clouded," she said.

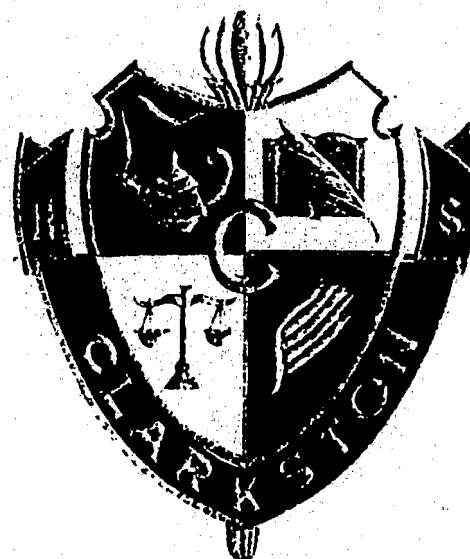

All smiles before the ceremony.

Brad Bailey makes his speech. "From varsity football to fine arts programs to a few detentions in between, I've done it all."
