Crayfish hunting

Jacob Douglas, 6, of Florida took advantage of some beautiful summer weather and a net that was bigger than him to go searching for crayfish on the shore of Mill Pond last week. Below, Derek Parker, 11, shows off one of the spiny crustaceans. The two boys, along with Nathan Parker, 10, said they often catch crayfish on the Mill Pond. They don't eat them, just put them into a makeshift aquarium. Derek and Nathan are from Clarkston. (Photo by Annette Kingsbury.)

Talks begin between baseball club, township

BY DARREL W. COLE

Independence Township residents and trustees made it clear they would be in favor of a minor league baseball team playing 40 home games at Clintonwood Park.

Nobody at the July 18 public hearing in front of the township board spoke out against Central Baseball League officials negotiating with the township to designate the township as home.

The board members also supported the idea of talks and negotiations with the club, but a few expressed concerns about the township "subsidizing a small business."

Supervisor Dale Stuart said he wants residents to be assured the township won't be going into the baseball business but would be negotiating with the team as far as them using township fields.

Central Baseball League spokesperson Grayle Howlett said the upcoming talks will include such topics as:

School board allocates scarce classroom space

2 portables each to Pine Knob,
Andersonville and North Sash

BY ANNETTE KINGSBURY
Clarkston News Editor

Families moving into the new Bridgewater Apartments in Clarkston may be sending their children to Andersonville Elementary School this fall, if the board of education sticks to its guns.

The board voted 6-1 Monday night to place two portable classrooms each at Andersonville, Pine Knob and North Sashabaw elementaries, and to make no further boundary adjustments, except for Bridgewater. However final action on Bridgewater will not be taken until the board's August 14 meeting to give parents time to react to the news.

Bridgewater actually falls within the boundaries of Pine Knob Elementary. However the board has learned that Bridgewater's advertising brochure incorrectly stated that students would be attending Springfield Plains.

Andersonville is the only elementary currently significantly under capacity. Last year its enrollment was over 100 students fewer than the next smallest school, North Sashabaw.

Bridgewater is expected to bring in 65-100 new students by Christmas, superintendent Gary Haner said Monday. Those students are expected to have about a 20-minute bus ride to Andersonville, he said.

Some Pine Knob parents who have been speaking out about overcrowding at their school for the last several weeks were happy with the board's new direction.

"I'm a lot more at ease right now than I was in the beginning," said Helen Carson. "For the last three weeks what I've been trying to say is fairness in numbers."

Even if the move is finalized Aug. 14, the overcrowding problem is only temporarily solved. Indeed, the move is only planned to be for one year in the hope that a new elementary school will be approved in that time. In addition, as more subdivisions fill up, the board hopes to have a better idea of how many children will be enrolling.

Trustee Kurt Shanks voted against the measure. "I'm very hesitant to support a plan that may only stand up for one year," he said. "Bridgewater unfortunately is convenient but it's not in the long-term interest of the kids."

Haner asked the board for permission to begin hiring teachers for the six portable classrooms. He said

Local woman helps astronauts prepare for ultimate walk on the wild side

BY ANNETTE KINGSBURY
Clarkston News Editor

Tricia Mack always wanted to be an astronaut. Unfortunately, her eyesight will not allow that to happen.

However, in town last week to talk to students in the Oakland Technical Center's Women in Engineering summer program, Mack said she's doing the next best thing—training astronauts for extra-vehicular activities at NASA's Johnson Space Center in Houston, Texas.

"We feel we have the second best job," she told the students, both male and female. "You don't get to fly but you get to play with the spacesuits. It's exciting to me."

Mack, a Clarkston High School and University of Michigan graduate, got her highly coveted job after interning with NASA while still an undergraduate, a career path she recommends highly. Her audience was made up of middle- and high-school students who are exploring career opportunities in engineering during a six weeks electronics program. They're studying such things as problem solving, engineering analysis, computers and fiber optics.

Showing an impressive knowledge of NASA, right down to the tiniest detail of the spacesuit and every acronym the agency can devise, Mack held the interest of her young audience for an hour and a half. They peppered her with questions about her work and the space program in general.

Mack brought with her a mock spacesuit (or EMU, for extra-vehicular mobility unit) and got volunteer Amy Coughlin to put it on. Students quickly got an idea of just how difficult it is to live and work under such restricted conditions.

Mack said a real spacesuit weighs 250 pounds and includes pumps for oxygen and water for cooling and drinking, as well as a computer that lets the wearer know if any function of the suit isn't working probably.

"But remember, once you get it in space, it just floats around" despite its weight, she said.

The suits also include duplicates of everything so if one system fails, there's always a back-up. "You have to build in redundancy," she said. "In case something happens, you have another plan." Each suit is worth millions and there are only about 14 in the country, she said.

The students were interested in what it was like to spend hours at a time in the suit. What happens if you sneeze? What happens if you need a bathroom or get hungry? Apparently NASA has thought of everything, though not all questions have really comfortable answers. (Astronauts must wear diapers under their spacesuits and can't wipe their noses).

Mack pointed out that astronauts are all highly educated. Most have PhD's, some have MD's on top of that. Most pilots and commanders have vast military experience—in addition to perfect vision.

To prepare them for weightlessness and the experience of space, astronauts train underwater. "This is the best way we have to train on earth," Mack said. She's been able to dive into the huge pool they use, but has not yet been able to experience true weightlessness. She's on a waiting list for the 'vomit comet,' the plane the actors who recently made "Apollo 13" used.

"I would do it—probably once," she said.

$1.8 M approved for new fire hall

Bay Court beach house bids rejected as too high

BY DARREL W. COLE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Two Independence Township building projects will take different paths for now.

The Independence Township Board of Trustees accepted a construction bid for a new $1.8 million fire/OCSD station. But eight bids were rejected for a new $500,000 Bay Court Beach House because the bidders either did not meet specifications or costs were too high.

Fire chief Gar Wilson recommended a $1.885 million bid from Premacon, Inc. for the new station, to be located near the old court house on Citation Drive, off M-15. Other bids ranged in price from $2.024 to $2.181 million.

Premacon has already been hired by the township for construction of the new DPW building, and recently completed a fire station for the City of Southfield.

The station's construction received board approval in November of last year, by a narrow 4-3 margin.

The land where the station will be built has not yet been purchased by the township, but Supervisor Dale Stuart said a deal is close to being made. The land will cost over $300,000, which is not included in the $1.8 million station price.

The Bay Court multi-purpose building was expected to cost around $500,000, but parks and recreation director Ann Conklin said the lowest acceptable bid came in at $677,000, way over what the township can afford.

"The lowest bid of $547,000 did not meet our specifications," said Conklin. "We will not drop the project, but will wait. We're not prepared to cut the scope of the building but there are some things we'll do so we can come in at or around $500,000."

Conklin said she received eight bids for the Bay Court Park building, with costs ranging from $547,000 to $940,000. She said she will come back to the board with a plan of action within the next few weeks.

Other board action:

● A fire inspector and full-time clerk will be added to the staff of the township fire department.

Fire Chief Gar Wilson said the inspector is needed now more than ever because of the tremendous growth of the township, causing an increase in the number of inspections.

Wilson said building fire inspections should be done about once a year and more in some cases.

Inspections have suffered because of the need for department staff to respond to site-plan reviews and emergency calls, Wilson said. In the past, full-time engineers have been used to make some of the inspections.

Besides making regular inspections, Wilson said the inspector's duty will be to maintain all training in fire suppression and EMS courses, respond to emergencies when needed, and organize all fire prevention activities.

Wilson also received permission to hire a full-time clerical person to start in conjunction with the new inspector. Currently the department has a part-time employee in that position.

Because the job is a union position, Wilson will first post the opening internally. If no one requests the job, he then would recommend the part-timer be hired.

● Bay Court Park's 2nd annual Taste of Independence received one-day permission for a liquor license.

The taste festival, sponsored by the Dreamkeepers, is scheduled for Sept. 10 from 4-9 p.m. Local restaurants have been asked to join in the fundraiser again this year, after 11 participated last year. Township Parks and Recreation Director Ann Conklin said about 200 people attended last year.

Conklin said selling beer and wine helps to accentuate the variety of foods.

Just as they did last year, the township board approved a variance to the ordinance that states alcohol is prohibited at any township park. This variance is good only for one day.

Around town

● Adopt a dog or cat at the Michigan Humane Society's fourth annual Animal Care Fair Aug. 26-27, 10 a.m.-5 p.m. at the Southfield Civic Center, 2600 Evergreen (between 10-11 Mile roads). On-site adoptions, care clinics, discounts on pet products and a "best dressed" contest will be offered. Canine Frisbee champions, the state police K-9 unit and the Oakland County Sheriff's mounted unit will all offer demonstrations. (Leave your own pet at home, please). Village players expand their horizons

BY ANNETTE KINGSBURY
Clarkston News Editor

Imagine Sir Lawrence Olivier, still in costume as Henry V, having to dash out to the lobby to visit the bathroom, bumping into a few of the paying customers along the way. Or Betty Buckley, still in cat fur, bringing tears to our eyes with "Memories," then brushing up against fans in the loo.

That, until now, has been the dilemma of the Clarkston Village Players, who didn't have full bathroom facilities backstage at their home, the Depot Theater. Do you duck out while you're offstage, and risk running into an audience member or two and breaking the spell you've worked so hard to create under the lights?

That problem will go the way of outhouses when the players finish renovations and an expansion of their tiny theater this fall. Thanks in part to a $5,000 donation from a pair of season ticket holders, a loan and a lot of sweat equity, the Players will open their 1995-96 season in larger, more comfortable quarters.

The addition will give the actors more stage room, a larger green room and make-up area and a full bathroom backstage, as well as larger dressing rooms. They have enclosed a four-foot overhang on the back and one side of the former railroad station. It was all greatly needed, according to member Dave Kramer.

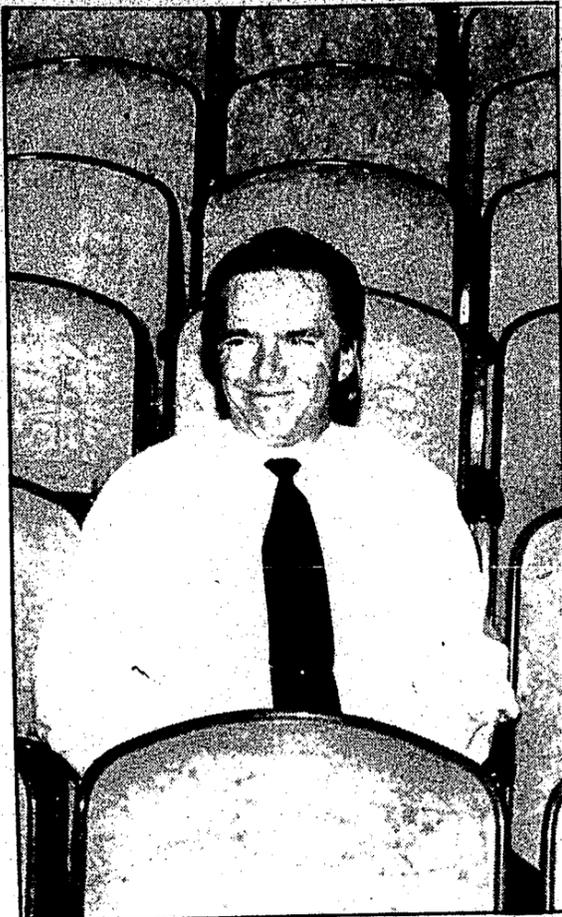

"You'd go out the door and sneak around the side and come in the door to go to the bathroom," he said. "And of course you don't want to get caught in costume."

Kramer said one part he played last year left him covered in make-up at the end of each performance. It was pretty difficult to get off without a shower, he said.

On a recent hot day, Kramer toured the renovations that will strengthen and expand the structure, which is owned by the Players on land leased from the Grand Trunk Western Rail Road. CVP member Rod Bereznicki is the foreman on the project, which includes the installation of new beams and floor joists to the old wooden structure for added strength.

"We are one of the few that actually owns its own facility," Kramer said. "We are a solvent organization and we do have money in the bank. But we also have had to take out loans. We had a couple donate $5,000 last year to the theater. That was a major shot in the arm for the building project."

The Players hope to expand their membership and season ticket holders as they expand their building. They want the word to go out that they are looking for new members—not because they are unhappy with the current roster, but in order to offer their audience some new faces.

"We're a group of really strong actors but the audience demands new faces and new personalities and therefore we are upbuilding our group," said Verne Vackaro, who will direct the first play of the new season, "A Murder has been Arranged."

Actors have come not just from Clarkston but from other nearby troupes such as Lakeland Players and Avon Players. And they bring with them varying levels of experience.

"Actors come from two groups," Kramer said. "They may be community theater people who are very dedicated to their craft. And then there are other people who got a taste for it in high school... If I've heard it once, I've heard it 50 times: I haven't done this since high school."

What they all share is a yen for the footlights that compels them to put in many unpaid hours of rehearsal, reading, set building and performing.

Kramer, who has been active with Clarkston Village Players for about five years, has also participated in productions of the Lakeland Players and Brandon Stage.

"I think it's good to move around and bring new people in because it really brings new energy," he said. Though he himself has played vastly different roles with very different looks on the Depot stage, he said, "The audience doesn't want to see the same 18 players over and over again. Even though you're acting as efficiently as you can you're still imbuing it with your own character somewhat."

In Focus

by Annette Kingsbury

The latest network: Internet

Just a few weeks ago, I read an account of pornography on the Internet and wondered, "Gee. What kind of people sit around for hours at a stretch communicating to unknown, unseen partners on a computer screen?" I couldn't imagine giving up so much of my precious time to such a silly endeavor. Don't they have live people to talk to?

But last week, a story broke in the major newspapers that changed my mind. One of the people involved in rescuing a downed American pilot in Bosnia had come back and, pumped with exhilaration, put the whole story on-line. Very shortly, it was posted on one of the major services, America On-Line, and was accessible to three million people. The Pentagon, we're told, is none too happy.

Suddenly, in one fell swoop, I understood the tremendous importance, popularity and accessibility of the Internet. Here was information that had not previously been reported in any medium—and for good reason. Much of it was classified.

But apparently without breaking any rules and without any malicious intent, one person broke a huge news story. He didn't have to know how to write. He was just excited about what he'd just done and wanted to tell someone about it.

Now, I've never surfed the Internet. Like all things having to do with computers, I'm a bit phobic about it. Hopefully I'll get a chance soon to try it a few times and get comfortable with it. Then, I'm sure, I'll want to have access to it all the time.

I can imagine it providing a wealth of research opportunities for my work. Right now, my resources are limited to the library and the telephone. And while that's been good enough for all these years, suddenly a whole new world has opened up.

For the last few years, the print media have been concerned that they would be replaced by computers. Perhaps now they're stepping back a bit, but at the same time they're offering more and more computer-based services of their own.

Two years ago you could call a voice mail system at the Free Press, push a few buttons, enter a credit card number and have information FAXed to you instantaneously. Here at The Clarkston News we invested in a voice-mail system that would allow callers to place a classified ad or answer a weekly poll question at any time of day or night.

Now, both services are obsolete. Major media outlets are offering up their on-line addresses for direct communication. Want to leave a message for a writer? There's E-mail now; no need for answering machines or voice mail. People can work at home or travel in their cars and never be cut off from the rest of the world.

Though I understand the Internet has been around since the 1960s, it seems to be enjoying an explosion now. Perhaps we're finally experiencing the ultimate convenience of computers. They've become cheaper, better, more efficient and better able to intercommunicate.

I can't even imagine what's next.

Letters to the editor

Club thanks community for great start

Dear editor,

As we wrap up the first year of the Clarkston Baseball Club's River Dawgs regular season, we would like to take this opportunity to extend our thanks to many deserving groups and individuals.

First on this list are the many people who decided to forgo their own personal agendas to come together and offer the community a better idea. We in Clarkston are lucky to have individuals who place community before self, and agreed that together we could form a club that would be a benefit to the kids that we all care so deeply about.

First on that list are Jack Leech and Mike Robinson who committed countless hours into the legwork of getting all this going. We would also like to personally thank all the coaches and managers of each age group who made certain that individual teams were ready to learn and play. The parents of all the players also deserve great thanks. The time involved, the travel and the effort were greatly appreciated.

Next on the list would have to be Ann Conklin and Dave Richmond of the parks and recreation department. Without their support and assistance this entire effort would have been impossible. The professionalism and honesty of these people allowed us to move forward without many setbacks. To put it very simply, without them, there would be no Clarkston Baseball Club.

We would also like to thank Darrel Cole and The Clarkston News, who gave us attention and coverage that thrilled every child that played. The Dawg Pound section was sensational.

Our final thanks go out to all the financial contributors who helped outfit and fund this entire project. The cost of travel league baseball is quite high. Each team committed to finding donors to help us offset the cost. The generosity shown by local business and families was outstanding. You all can take pride that 85 kids had the time of their lives.

Looking forward to 1996,
Clarkston Baseball Club

Lucky to have coaches

In June, Independence Township Parks and Rec sponsored a Clarkston City track meet. Approximately 30 9- to 14-year-old runners qualified to go on to the State Final Hershey's National Track and Field Youth Program.

This even was held July 14 in Howell. The runners representing Independence Parks and Rec won a combined total of 37 ribbons.

These remarkable results are due to the combined efforts of the runners and the coaches. A huge thank you goes to coaches Gene Attaman and Jack Leech.

These two coaches have generously volunteered their time and expertise running the Township Track Program. They have given countless hours of their time to the children participating in the program. They have also provided valuable instruction, training and, most importantly, encouragement to all the kids.

We are very lucky to have these coaches working with our kids. Thank you, Gene and Jack, for providing this wonderful opportunity for the kids of Clarkston.

Sincerely,
Kathy Lenc and Joe Kuhta and Family

I did this once before and didn't get in any trouble over it, so, Hello, Joe!

Regular Jottings readers know I occasionally write an entire column of short notes. Detroit News columnist Joe Falls writes one every week, "Sunday Best." I look forward to it. I like reading short facts, humor and quotes.

Following are some of Joe Falls' I particularly like:

Fact: If you are average, you will sleep 202,300 hours in your life. This does not count time in church.

Fact: A football is 28 inches around at its fattest point and is filled with 28 pounds of air pressure.

Nurse: "There's a man in the waiting room who thinks he's invisible." Doctor: "Tell him I can't see him."

Idle thought: Some folks pay a compliment like they went down in their pockets for it.

Patient: "Doctor, I think I'm shrinking. What shall I do?" Doctor: "Be a little patient."

Andy Rooney, sage, on 60 minutes: "Nothing in fine print is ever good news."

Fact: Your toes send messages to your brain at 240 miles an hour.

Anecdote Alley:

His friends tried to get him to close up but he wouldn't listen to them. Finally, a man named Hugh convinced him of shutting down.

Moral: Only Hugh can prevent florists friars. (Remember, these are Joe Falls'. I just said I liked them.)

15 YEARS AGO (1980)

Although Independence Township threatens court action, the first ride of the proposed "Wonderful World of Pine Knob" continues to operate. A township employee attending Pine Knob Music Theatre's July 10 concert saw the ride in operation and reported it to the township's building department. The township's building and planning department pulled the plug on the spinning Himalayan and a second deadline for submittal of a complete revised final site plan was given to co-owner of Pine Knob Investment Joseph Locricchio. Though the township gave Locricchio a second warning of court action, the ride was still operating as of July 18.

In contrast with a flurry of protest around the country, draft registration at the Clarkston Post Office on Dixie Highway begins quietly Monday morning.

The Clarkston community hosts two more exchange students through the "Youth for Understanding" program. The Donald Jonsons, who recently said good-bye to their Brazilian exchange son Paulo, are enjoying the company of Guillermo Salorio, 12, from Mexico City. Their neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Audley Arpoika, are the host family for Pablo Santa Maria, 13, also from Mexico City.

Clarkston Schools Superintendent Dr. L. V. Greene says Clarkston Schools will lose around $50,000 this year, a result of the Michigan Supreme Court decision handed down last week. The court ruled it will be illegal for public schools to charge students for any textbooks, special courses such as band or shop and athletic programs. "There is no question that the money will have to be figured into our budget," says Greene. "Eventually, of course, it will have to come from state aid or increased local taxes."

The Clarkston High School varsity cheerleaders win second place at the International Cheerleading Foundation's Cheerleading Camp. There they are coached in pompon routines, skits for pep assemblies and ways to raise funds. They plan to use many of the ideas to boost school spirit at CHS.

News from "By the Way": This week we have really been getting some summer weather and everyone has the urge to take a vacation. How wonderful it will be when we are at peace and there will be no worry about shortages and when you feel like it you can get in your car and start out for those old haunts that you used to enjoy ... Every weekend some service men come out from the USO in Detroit to enjoy Clarkston and the hospitality of its very fine people. Last weekend there were 15 or 16 here. On Sunday the Charles Robinsons and the Richard Bullens entertained these three fellows along with two sailors at a lovely dinner.

Dice hanging from mirror can earn ticket

Hanging from the van's rearview mirror is a thin strip of cardboard upon which is printed, in crayon: "For with God nothing shall be impossible. Luke 1:37."

It is not even impossible that this little sign, made by a little girl in Sunday school, could get her parents in trouble with the law.

No, I'm not here to preach against government interference with your right to freedom of religious expression in the privacy of your own car.

I'm here to warn you that a cop can pull you over for having something hanging from your rearview mirror.

It happened to Andrea Bartow, who recently graduated from Utica Ford High School. She took the tassel off her graduation cap and hung it from her rearview mirror. And a Sterling Heights cop sired her to a stop and said the hanging tassel was against the law.

Andrea's father, Chuck Bartow of Clinton Township, told me about it. He couldn't believe it. Neither could I.

"Andrea was proud to graduate, and I'm proud of her. Lots of graduates show their pride by hanging cap tassels from their car mirrors," said Bartow, who added that, as a truck driver, he's seen all sorts of things hanging from car mirrors — baby booties, fat dice, rosaries, handicapped driving placards, and so on.

"Are all those people violating the law?"

Andrea Bartow didn't get a ticket for her hanging tassel, only a warning. But she did get a $65 fine for not wearing a seat belt. According to state law, an officer can't issue a belt ticket unless he has first pulled the motorist over for another alleged infraction. Was it possible that the officer noticed Andrea was beltless and made up the anti-dangle law as an excuse to pull her over?

Her father said the ticket wasn't saved after Andrea paid it — with graduation gift money — so he couldn't give me the officer's name or the exact date of the ticketing.

I took my questions to the Sterling Heights Police Department, where Detective Linda Deprez said there is a state law against hanging objects from a rearview mirror if they block the driver's view. This law is enforced "at an officer's discretion," she said. She wouldn't speculate on the possibility of the unidentified officer using the anti-dangle law to write a seat belt ticket.

My daughter Ferd is usually the driver of the aforementioned van containing the dangling Bible quote. When I said she could be fined for it, she scoffed. She also said she'd hung her graduation cap tassel from a rearview mirror, and so have thousands of other graduates. It couldn't be against the law; the Sterling Heights police must be wrong.

No. The Secretary of State's office in Lansing faxed me a copy of the applicable section of the Michigan Vehicle Code. Concerning windows and rearview mirrors, it says: "A person shall not drive a motor vehicle with . . . a dangling ornament or other suspended object except as authorized by law which obstructs the vision of the driver of the vehicle."

(A picky grammarian might say a law isn't likely to obstruct a driver's vision, but I wouldn't advise saying that to a police officer.)

Handicapped driver placards are apparently authorized by this qualifier: "This section shall not apply to . . . the placement of a necessary certificate or sticker that does not obstruct the driver's clear view of the roadway or an intersecting roadway."

You might ask about the many dangling handicap certificates that obstruct much more view than tassels do. The answer is that such questions are up to a police officer's discretion.

Which you are at the mercy of.

(Speaking of good grammar.)

So. Don't ever say I never told you anything you didn't already know.

Don't Rush Me

By Don Rush

What went wrong?

The other day somebody put a bug in my ear and it has been buzzin' around ever since.

What is there to say about a society where fathers hack off their sons' heads with two-inch Swiss army knives; where mothers buckle their children into cars, then run the cars to the bottom of a lake; where adults punish their children by putting them in microwave ovens or chain them to a post inside a darkened closet; where 11-year-olds are stone-cold, murdering gang-bangers?

What has happened in America? What went wrong? Do we blame the knife manufacturers or the microwave makers or the car industry?

I hear people say there has to be mandatory birth control. I hear folks should be parental screening by the government prior to conception. I hear a lot of things that are scary, but people are serious. Rational thought is pushed aside by fear and anger.

I can fast see freedom-loving Americans giving up their freedoms if the government will "just keep us safe."

Gov. Engler wants adult crimes to be punished with adult time. Others in the state want the death penalty for Michigan criminals. Does this mean if Michigan reinstates the death penalty that 11, 12, 13, and 14-year-olds will be put down like adults should the punishment fit?

Try and tell me everything is hunky-dory, and I'll tell you to pull your head out of the hole you have it stuck down.

Did it have to get this far? What did we do to come to this point and what will we do to stop from further stumbling down this path of pain and misery?

I think most people can see that respect is fast becoming an ideal of the past. I think for far too long we have laid the blame on somebody else's doorstep: "It is not my fault I did that, it's the teacher's fault, it's the school's fault, it's the government's fault . . ."

I think you get the picture.

For too long kids in America have been given the idea getting something for nothing is the way things work: that they are owed something. It has become a part of our society: multi-billion dollar corporations are owed tax breaks; every person is owed a well-paying job, with all the benefits; farmers and ranchers are owed subsidies.

Everybody has their hands out, but no one wants to get them dirty. We are a welfare state from top to bottom, and we are now paying the price.

We are seeing the creature we created; we see the reflection in the mirror and we don't like what's looking back at us.

Ourselves, our families, our neighborhoods, our society.

Is it too late? Don't ask me, there are far greater minds out there than mine. I don't know all the answers. I believe, however, a start is to stop passing the buck. It is our fault.

You might want to say a prayer or two, too.

Focus on the family by Dr. James Dobson

Sponsored by First Missionary Church of Clarkston

Question: I've concluded that my husband cannot comprehend my emotional need. He will not read books that I give him, nor will he attend seminars, listen to tapes or even talk to me about my frustrations. Nevertheless, he is a good man who is faithful to me and has been an effective father. What do you suggest I do with this dilemma?

Dr. Dobson: The answer I'm about to give you will not satisfy you. My advice is that you change that which can be altered, explain that which can be understood, teach what can be learned, revise that which can be improved, resolve that which can be settled and negotiate that which is open to compromise.

Create the best marriage possible from the raw materials brought by two imperfect human beings with two distinctly unique personalities. But for all the rough edges that can never be smoothed and the faults that can never be eradicated, try to develop the best perspective on the difficulty and determine in our mind to accept reality as it is.

The first principal of your mental health is to accept that which cannot be changed. You could easily go to pieces over the adverse circumstances beyond your control, but you can also resolve to withstand them. You can resolve to remain stable, or you can yield to cowardice.

Someone wrote: "Life can't give me joy and peace; it's up to me to will it. Life just gives me time and space; it's up to me to fill it."

Can you accept the fact that your husband will never be able to meet all your needs and aspirations? Seldom does one human being satisfy every longing and hope in the breast of another.

Obviously, the coin has two sides: You can't be his perfect woman, either. He is no more equipped to resolve your entire package of emotional needs than you are to become his sexual dream machine every 24 hours. Both partners have to settle for human foibles, faults, irritability, fatigue and occasional nighttime "headaches."

A good marriage is not one where perfection reigns; it is a relationship where a healthy perspective overlooks a multitude of "unresolvables." Thank goodness my wife, Shirley, has adopted that attitude toward me!

Steven Schwartz travels the Prodigy highway and in his quest for a relative who was adopted, and is as yet unfound, provides a very special gift of information for all of us to share.

On behalf of Ann Faulkner, of Mt. Clemens, a fellow traveler on the E-Mail trail, Steve found a book in the Library of Congress entitled, "John Andrew Russell's History of the German Influence in the Making of Michigan." Written in 1927, the book includes a list of German ancestry of officers participating in the Civil War.

It lists the names, ranks, area of service, and much more in the 18 part (6 pages on screens, each) that serves as a "directory" of sorts for many of us still unable to locate our Civil War ancestor.

We are deeply indebted to Steve and publicly thank him for caring and sharing. He also includes the information on German-American officers of WWII. We are surprised at the vast amount of data to be found.

If you wish to contact this friend to all of us, you may E-Mail him: Steven Schwartz VEJV98B Pacific Northwest Territories on Prodigy. Be sure and thank him — because so few do.

For those of you concerned with genetically inherited diseases, we urge you to get to your local library and borrow a copy of "Hannah's Heirs." This book deals with five generations of a family that has familial Alzheimer's disease. It concerns family members of all ages and in my estimation should be read by every person 21 or over that knows the tragedy of having a member of the family who had, or is suffering from, Alzheimer's.

We hope you are willing to share with us if this book has significance for you and yours.

In the interest of promoting a better way to spread the "happenings," we invite you to share important "doings" of your group, and we'll include it for you.

Village players seek new actors, expanded audience

Auditions will be held Aug. 1-2 for the first production of the new season, "A Murder has been Arranged." In "Murder," there are nine characters, five women and four men. "There's a lot of opportunity for people to get on stage," said Kramer, who in real life is Independence Township's assessor.

With only 84 seats, the house at Depot Theater is always full. It provides an intimate setting, to say the least, that puts the audience literally at the feet of the cast.

"I actually think lots of people like the intimacy of Depot Theater," Kramer said.

The theater is perhaps most famous for the freeze-frame effect the actors create every time a train goes by. Though no longer used as a station, the trains still run only a few feet away, sometimes as often as five times during one performance. There's no particular schedule, so neither cast nor audience know what will be going on on stage when it happens. The lights dim, and everyone waits.

"The audience gives you license on that," Kramer said. "In a comedy, sometimes it actually adds something. 'Usually you come right back into character. But sometimes the actor will ad lib something. I've seen the audience ad lib.'"

What's your reaction to the Detroit newspaper strike?

SHEILA VANDERVEEN, WATERFORD: It hasn't affected my daily life. I get it, but I don't spend a lot of time reading it—I skim it. But I think what the strikers or picketers are doing is inexcusable by blackmailing the businesses—putting pressure on them (not) to advertise.

BOB DECELLE, CLARKSTON: You wouldn't want to hear.

JILL WOJTALEWICZ, ORTONVILLE: I'm with the Teamsters on it and I think those who are boycotting—that's a great idea. That's the reason we have unions.

KEVIN BANK, CLARKSTON: I used to read both the Free Press and News every day, so I've had to go through some pretty serious withdrawals. I had to resort to reading USA Today once.

L A U R I E VANDEKERCKHOVE, CLARKSTON: I get the Oakland Press, so it doesn't affect me at all.

Dillon leaving, new CHS assistant principal named

On the same night that he announced the hiring of a new assistant principal at Clarkston High School, superintendent Gary Haner announced the departure of the Pine Knob Elementary principal.

Haner said Mike Dillon was recruited by Rochester schools and has been hired away by that district, where his wife works and where he lives, effective August 14.

"We feel very badly for the Pine Knob family and kids because this is the third principal in three years and we know the success and popularity of Mike Dillon," Haner said. Several Pine Knob parents were in the audience and they expressed shock and dismay. In response to their questions, Haner said the school year would most likely start with a substitute principal, with a permanent employee on board in the first half of September. "We will look for an experienced educator to step in and get the school year started," he said.

In happier news, Haner announced that he has promoted world language coordinator Melissa Kentner White to assistant principal at CHS.

White has taught Spanish and French at Clarkston since 1988 and was to take over as subject area coordinator this fall. She has a BS from Ohio State University and an MA in educational administration from Michigan State University.

She will replace Ginny Farmer, who will move to Clarkston Middle School as assistant principal, a position left vacant by the retirement of Jan Gabier.

(probably #3) at Clintonwood Park would need to seat about 3,000 people. Howlett said the refurbishing could cost anywhere from $200,000 to $3 million, all depending on what is desired by both sides and who will pay for it.

● Beer being sold at games. Howlett said this issue is also part of negotiations, although it "would not be a deal-breaker" if the board would not allow it.

"To be honest," he said, "beer sales is an important revenue and something we will pursue."

● Ticket sales, which will most likely range in price from $4 to $7, could also be a revenue split between the township and baseball team.

● Would there be enough community support — attendance at games — for a team.

● Are there enough private investors lined up to support the team financially? As of now Howlett said the owner of three McDonald's restaurants in the Pontiac area, is one possible investor. Cost for a team franchise is around $600,000.

● How the approximately 40 home games would be scheduled so as not to conflict with other activities at Clintonwood.

● Deciding if there will be a charge for parking, and, if so, will the township or baseball team receive the revenue.

● Dealing with concerns from both sides about road access from Clarkston Road to the park. As it stands now, Howlett said the board's approval to talk means the above matters will now become part of the negotiation process. "We're not coming in here with any set demands," he said.

Trustee Jeffrey McGee said he's excited about the prospects of a minor league team coming into the area, but also realizes the board still has a duty to uphold.

"This is a business decision from the board. I feel I have a responsibility to the finances of this township and I'm for the generation of revenue, if that's what comes out of this for us. The heat of these discussions will probably be in the trade-offs we negotiate."

Trustee Daniel Travis added, "One of our chief responsibilities as a board is to provide recreation and nice places for our children and families to go. Right now, it doesn't cost us anything to talk and listen."

Residents in the audience spoke a great deal about the baseball team helping to provide an inexpensive place for families to go without driving far.

Rick Piechura, president of the new Clarkston Riverdaws youth baseball club, said the success of their club proves people in the area are committed to children and do support family activities.

Howlett agreed that minor league baseball such as they would provide focuses on the family. Besides the game, there would be other off-field activities and promotions to make the games fun for all.

Families have fun because the atmosphere is much more intimate than major league games. In the CBL, Howlett said kids can get autographs from the players and talk to them. It makes both players and fans feel like they are part of something special.

So far, Independence is one of eight communities — including Novi, Flint-Davison area, Saginaw, Kalamazoo, Muskegon, Lake City (Illinois), and London (Ontario) — the league hopes to have teams in.

The CBL will not be major league affiliated but would most likely be considered a Class A club, Howlett said. He hopes to open the season in 1996.

Players could come from all over, but Howlett said area players would also get consideration during spring tryouts. He expects to have three tryout sites: one in Florida, around the time major league spring training cuts are made, one in California, and one in the Michigan town where a team is planned.

the district has already hired 22 new teachers due to growing enrollment.

"It just shows the magnitude," said board president Bill Craig. "Twenty-eight to 30 teachers to maintain the (student/teacher) ratio we had last year."

Final teacher assignments are scheduled for the last week in August. However some assignments may not be finalized until after school starts due to late enrollments. Often parents do not notify the district in advance that they are moving in or out. Last fall, Springfield Plains received 25 new enrollments in one day in August, 100 for the whole month.

"This is, so to speak, a shell game for us," Haner said. "This is based on our best guess... It's no one's fault."

Haner also suggested the board consider pairing the elementaries so that if one fills up, there is a back-up school that takes any overflow. Clarkston El. would back up Pine Knob, Andersonville for Springfield Plains and Bailey Lake for North Sashabaw.

The plan proposed Monday night is expected to allow each elementary school to retain its music and science rooms and media center. Art rooms have already been used for regular classrooms.

"These portables will help maintain those special rooms they've never had in those schools," said trustee Sheila Hughes.

At this point the board is still planning to form a committee, which would include parents, to discuss a total redistricting for next year.

Though he voted for the motion, trustee Barry Bomier said he still felt it was "totally unacceptable."

"This is not the situation we want to find ourselves in. It's the reality of the situation," he said.

"These portables will help maintain those special rooms they've never had in those schools," said trustee Sheila Hughes.

At this point the board is still planning to form a committee, which would include parents, to discuss a total redistricting for next year.

Though he voted for the motion, trustee Barry Bomier said he still felt it was "totally unacceptable."

"This is not the situation we want to find ourselves in. It's the reality of the situation," he said.

Greenery Health Care Center

Gary Davis, Administrator

Long-Term Care Center Adds Subacute Unit

Once thought of as places for the infirm elderly to die, nursing homes are changing their image. Spurred by the effort to contain health care costs, some are becoming extensions of hospitals in which patients of all ages receive short-term subacute care and often return home.

An example of one is Greenery Health Care Center, located in Oakland County, which shows the transition long-term care facilities are making to include subacute care. Subacute care is more intensive than traditional long-term skilled nursing care but less intensive than acute medical care and rehabilitation. The change allows them to offer the best of both hospital and nursing home care. It includes a nursing staff with acute care experience, a full-time rehabilitation therapy program and a commitment to enhancing quality of life. They are CARF and JCAHO accredited.

Greenery Health Care Center provides the clinically complex care required by many post-surgical, cardiac and orthopedic patients—essentially what's available in the hospital but in a more cost-effective and home-like environment. And that means a lower health care bill and a more pleasant experience. Greenery Health Care Center is a 120-bed subacute, rehabilitation and extended-care facility located in Clarkston in Oakland County at 4800 Clintonville Road. For more information regarding their services, call 674-0903.

32 teams drawn to one man's tourney

Annual event moves from backyard to park

BY DARREL W. COLE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Wiffle ball may not become an official Olympic sport, but over the past six years it's become more and more popular.

At least in Gene Chamberlain's back yard.

The sixth annual Chambo's Wiffleball Tournament moved to a more prestigious location than the Chamberlain back yard on Foster Road. This summer's tournament drew 32 teams, twice as many as last year, and was forced to move to bigger surroundings.

So, with approval from Springfield Township, Chambo's unique tourney was played July 22 at Holcomb Park on Holcomb Road.

The tourney finally ended around 9:30 p.m. and the 1995 champions were Dave Tinkis of Clarkston and Matt Hockey of Chicago. The winners received an official Chambo's Wiffleball Tournament "Champ" hat.

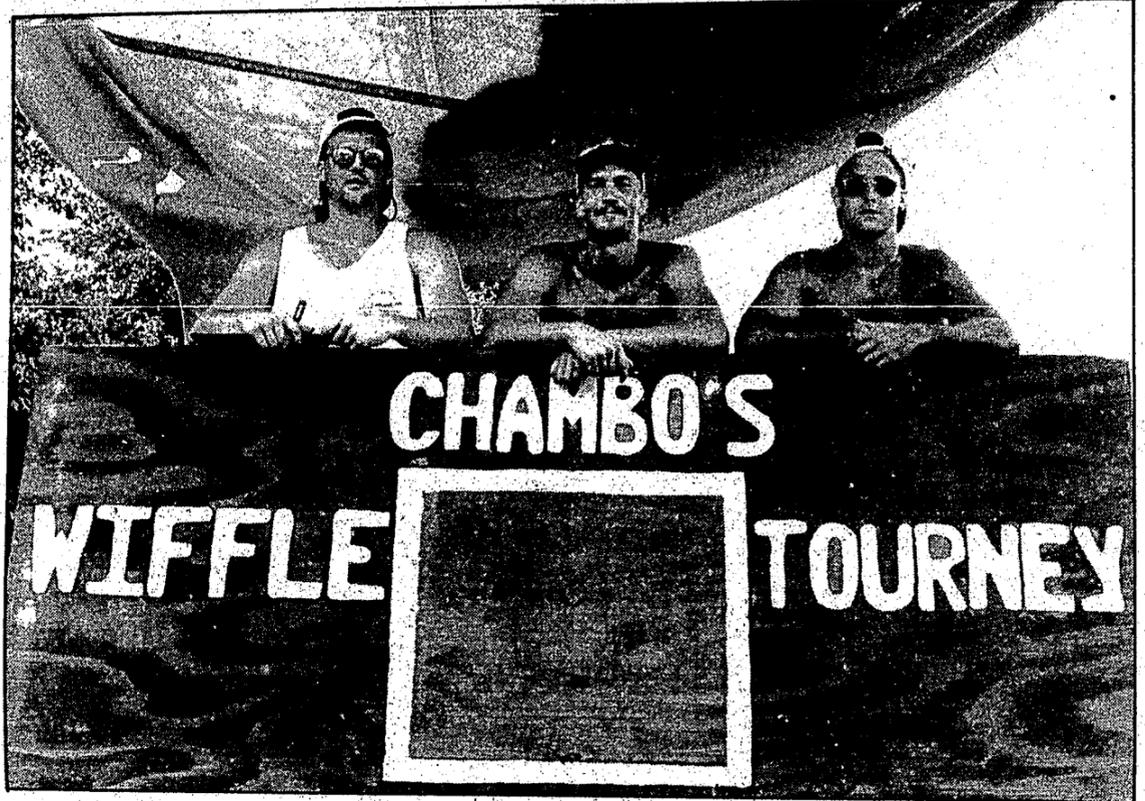

"We started with one field and had that for two years," said Gene a 1990 Clarkston grad who, along with brother Craig, originated the event. "But this year we knew more teams would be in it so we asked to use the park and set up four fields to play on."

Gene admits the tournament originally began as a way for friends to have a fun time. And while that attitude is still the prevailing factor, he says organizing a bigger tournament meant a lot more work.

But thanks to brother Craig, a 1986 CHS grad who came up from North Carolina for the tourney, Mike and Bill Brueck (both CHS grads), and many others, the tourney was a success.

Everyone contributed something, from designing the four fields to donating some of the beverages.

Wiffle ball, Chambo-style, is unlike any sport most people have ever played. It's similar to baseball but different in many ways, starting with the fact that the bat and ball are plastic and each team only has two players.

There are no base runners, only ghost runners. Runs are scored depending on how many base hits you get and the field more closely resembles a narrow triangle than a diamond.

Some game rules include: On defense, there is a pitcher and rover-type player. When a ball is hit, if a defender picks it up before it stops rolling it's considered an out; Lines are also marked on the field that determine whether a hit is considered a double or single; In addition, a ball hit over the fence, which is about 50 feet away, is a homerun.

Every participant paid a registration fee of $25 and received an official Chambo's Wiffleball Tournament T-shirt.

While player turnout was good, the number of spectators rooting them on was just as impressive.

Ski show on Big Lake

For $3 people can watch one of Michigan's best amateur ski teams in action July 27 on Big Lake in Springfield Township.

Spray Masters Water Ski Club and Show Team will present "Holi-Daze" at the lake located on Big Lake Road. The show starts at 7 p.m. and proceeds will be donated to the Springfield Township Parks and Recreation Department.

The water ski show team will perform a dazzling variety of jumps, barefoot skiing, swivel skiing, several two and three pyramid sets and other acts. The show team proved in 1994 that they are one of Michigan's best, taking second place in the Michigan Show Ski Amateur Competition.

The club will go for the title once again on Aug. 6.

Tickets ($2 for children) can be purchased at the Springfield Parks and Rec office on 495 Broadway in the Hart Community Center.

Spray Masters members range in skills from near-professional to novice and their main goal is to have fun, according to spokesperson Judy Hogaboam of Clarkston. For more information on the July 27 event or to inquire about membership, call Hogaboam at 625-8577.

Hershey track meet (July 29) welcomes all

BY DARREL W. COLE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Any child from the ages of 5-14 can participate for free in the Hershey Track Meet, July 29 at the Clarkston High School track.

The event, organized by Independence Township Parks and Recreation, is open to children of every skill level. The goal, according to coaches Gene Attaman and Jack Leech and parks and recreation programmer Dave Richmond, is to involve as many children as possible and to make sure they have a fun time.

Attaman, who began the program back in 1987, says there's no pressure to win put on the children.

"The kids come to the meet, register and then choose whatever event they want to run in," says Attaman. "That gives kids who may not have much success in sports something to build on because they get a tremendous amount of self esteem."

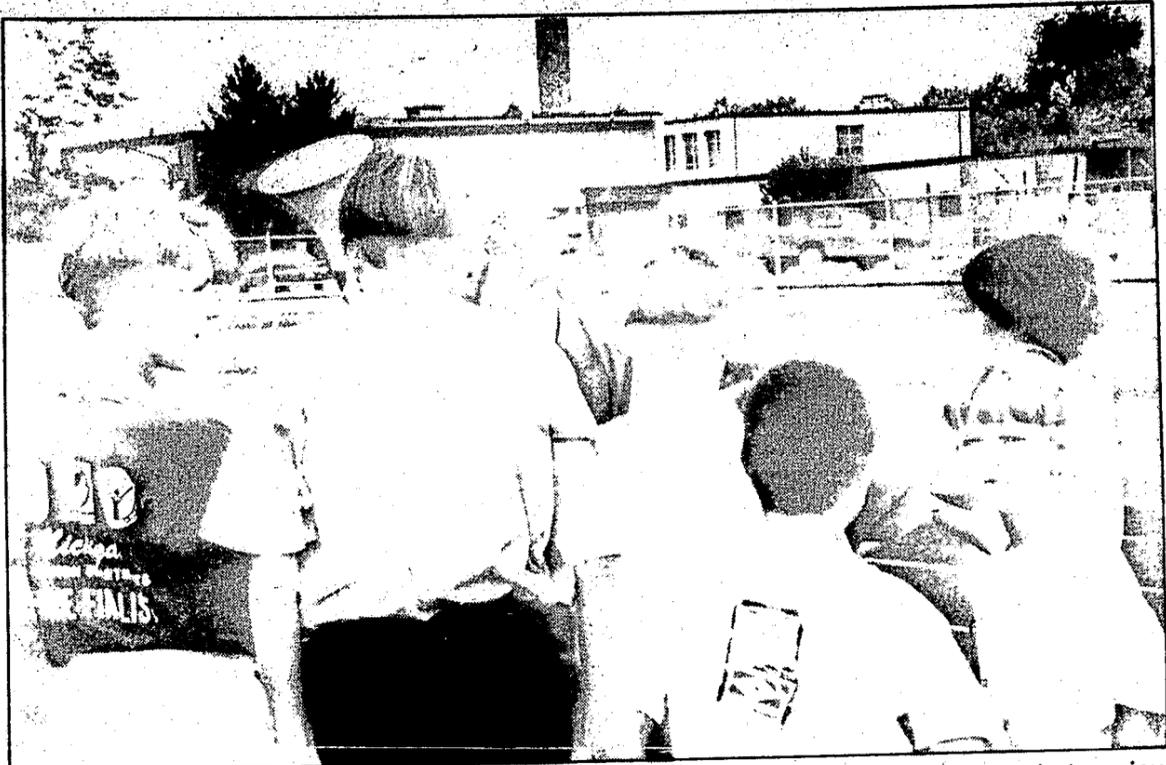

"When you go to the meets you'll see these kids are really having fun. Even the youngest ones gain confidence, although we just hope they keep their shoes tied," he said, laughing.

Richmond, who organizes the Hershey events for the parks and recreation department, said the free meet is important because it does not restrict involvement.

Two years ago the township held a free Hershey meet also and attracted over 170 children from all over to participate, including about 50 Clarkston-area kids.

The meet, sponsored with donations from General Electric Capital Fleet Services and attorney Larry Barnett, will begin at 11 a.m. Pre-registration is scheduled for 10 a.m. at the field. Forms may also be picked up at the township parks and recreation office. Call 625-8223 for more information.

Attaman and Leech do hold practices every day

Gene Attaman tells his young Hershey track athletes the first goal they must have is to enjoy themselves.

but attendance is not required to participate in the meet.

The idea of practices is to make the kids feel good about themselves, says Attaman, a former high school track coach at Utica before becoming a school administrator.

"I enjoy working with young people," he said. "In the first month we stress to them to be here because they want to be. Jack and I wouldn't be here unless we loved it."

The practices are light but Attaman says he still tries to make sure the kids focus on the fundamentals of the sport, such as starts and finishes.

Richmond says both men's dedication is the reason Hershey has remained strong. "He and Jack have put in a ton of time to the kids."

RiverDawgs call first year a winner

BY DARREL W. COLE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

The RiverDawgs' season may be over, but it's only the beginning for the Clarkston Baseball Club. In its first season of existence, the club overcame differing opinions, a late start and fielded six local RiverDawg teams which completed their season last week.

According to everyone involved in the organization, including the Independence Township Parks and Recreation Department, the season was a definite success.

"For the first year of a real organized program it was a tremendous success," said Dave Richmond, recreation programmer for parks and rec. "Our partnership with the club was great all year. In the first year of anything you expect to come up with some problems but we were able to overcome them because of the professionalism and dedication of board members." Clarkston Baseball Club President Rick Piechura is just as excited at how the year ended. What began in February and March as a small group hoping to convince individual youth team managers to join up is now a strong organization. The reason the club was formed was because too many local kids were playing baseball in other communities.

The RiverDawgs have a Clarkston/Independence residency rule and the ultimate goal is get all the kids who live in the area to play for the home organization.

Piechura said this season some local kids did play on other teams but it was mainly due to the fact the RiverDawgs were organized later than most clubs.

"Nobody left after we formed but we lost some to other teams because we started late," Piechura said. "Now we have parents calling us about next year already."

Richmond said, "This gives the community one more thing to be proud of. This RiverDawgs concept is one more aspect the community can build on."

One major concern was raising enough funds to get the team through the season. That fear was soon put aside as the club raised about $15,000 from a variety of sources, including one donor who gave $3,000 even though his son doesn't play on a RiverDawgs team.

The total cost to run the team for the season was $18,000 and the parks and recreation department took care of the difference.

"Ann Conklin (parks and rec director) and Dave couldn't do everything for us but showed us how to go about it and without that department we wouldn't have succeeded," Piechura said. "We were also lucky we had the support of good parents and a very dedicated board, including Jack Leech and Mike Robinson."

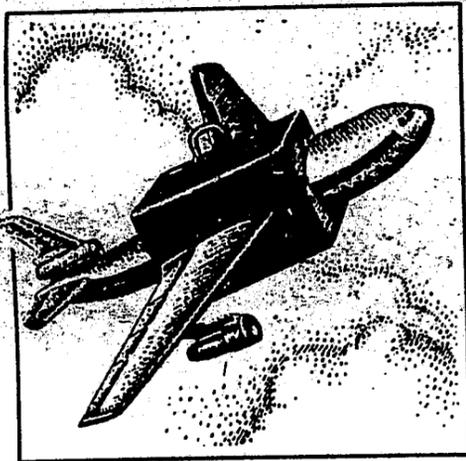

While the organization's strength is now evident, Piechura said early differences had to be settled.

Cody Senkyr

Running and having fun

Cody Senkyr, a 7th grader at Clarkston Middle School, hopes to get another chance to show his talent at the Hershey National Meet later this summer. Cody recently finished first in the 400 dash at the Hershey state finals and was second in the 800 run. While he's still waiting to see if those times qualify for the nationals, he's no stranger to winning. For the past four years he has won the state 400 title, and in 1993 was second in the nation. But Cody admits he doesn't worry too much about winning, because he just has fun running.

"Some of it just comes natural," he said. "But Mr. Attaman and Mr. Leech always say we should be having fun and that's what I do. They are here to make sure we do have fun."

Cody and his teammates — some of whom he won't meet until race day because anyone from ages 5-14 is welcome — will get another chance to have fun at the free July 29 Hershey meet at Clarkston High.

RiverDawgs are winners in 1st season

"Initially it took a while to convince everyone that this club would be the best in the long run and everyone finally did put aside personal feelings," he said. "There were 15 people in the room and 15 ideas about what the club should be. The bottom line was people wanted things to be better for the kids and gave up some things to accomplish that."

While the first season was a success, Piechura said his club is not satisfied to rest on its laurels. The club is sending out an evaluation form to parents and others involved to receive feedback on how they can improve.

"We did better than we thought we would but we can do better," he said. "Now we need people to come forward and let us know what they think."

High school bond sale comes in under budget

The Clarkston Board of Education got some good news on the sale of bonds for the new high school Monday night.

The board's consultants said the board will be paying a lower than expected interest rate on the bonds, due in part to some incredibly lucky timing.

According to consultant Dick Barch, the bonds went on the market on the same day the stock market took a 120-point dip. However the bonds were sold in the morning, before the federal government announced there would be no immediate drop in the prime rate. That sent the stock market into a tizzy, Barch said.

"Had we done this in the afternoon I have no doubt the interest rate would have been 10 to 15 basis points higher," Barch said. He said that would have added nearly $1 million to the cost of the sale via interest costs.

The board's bond attorney, Bob Thrun, said the money will actually transfer to the district on August 2. Trustee Kurt Shanks, who chaired the successful June bond election, pointed out that the lower cost means the debt retirement millage will not go up as much as planned, perhaps closer to three mills than the nearly four mills it was expected to cost each property-tax payer the first year.

In a related matter, the board approved several expenditures from leftover bond money from the Springfield Plains project.

Based upon the recommendation of administrators, the board approved $9,000 for additional sidewalks and drainage at Springfield Plains to solve a flooding problem. In addition, a computer which controls security at the high school will be repaired at a cost of nearly $9,000. The PA system in the gym will be repaired and expanded at a cost of $4,184.

The board also approved hiring a consultant to evaluate the extent of work needed on the Clarkston Middle School roof, and $112,000 for paving and parking lot improvements at Clarkston Elementary.

The moves leave about $200,000 in the bond account. That money is eventually expected to be used to make necessary repairs at CMS, and then to help replace playground equipment removed last year due to safety concerns.

In other action at Monday's meeting:

● The board appointed a finance committee composed of president Bill Craig, treasurer William McGregor and trustee Tom Howard. The committee's first job will be to define its role. The committee was suggested by Craig as a way for the board to keep itself more involved with and better informed about the budget.

AVOID SURPRISE LIENS

RELO
 WORLD LEADER IN RELOCATION

QUESTION: I contracted to have a house built. The contractor blew most of the money and I was forced to pay the suppliers and subcontractor. How could this have been avoided?

ANSWER: Whenever a contractor does a major job for you always require him to furnish proof that he has paid the suppliers and subcontractors for the job.

If he does not pay his subcontractors, the unpaid people could place a lien against your property for the money owned to them.

Your best protection is consultation with your attorney during the contract process.

The sea gulls had the place all to themselves last week as Deer Lake Beach in Clarkston was added to the growing list of beaches closed by the Oakland County Health Division due to unacceptably high levels of E. coli bacteria. By Friday the beach was back open—and crowded.

The return of folk music

If you miss the music of the Kingston Trio or Peter, Paul and Mary, you won't want to miss this week's Concert in the Park.

"One Flight Up" promises to bring the folk era back in their appearance Friday at 7 p.m. in Depot Park. This is the last in this summer's concert series sponsored by the Clarkston Area Chamber of Commerce.

"One Flight Up" calls itself a "modern" folk group, boasting over 20 years experience performing. The group is made up of Shelley Quayle, Eric Anderson, David Best, John Tschirhart and Jerry Schmidtke.

Quayle and Anderson have been working together since the '70s. Quayle has sung Top 50s and been heard on many commercials. Anderson put the current group together, calling on musicians he had worked with in the past, including Quayle and Best, a Wayne State University music major. Anderson is a songwriter, guitar-player Best is the group's arranger.

Tschirhart is the bass player and "quiet man" of the group. Schmidtke is the sound man. All have day jobs outside the band.

A comfortable place Senior centers offer fun, friendship

Second in a series on senior citizens in Clarkston, Oxford and Orion

BY EILEEN OXLEY
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Senior citizens in Clarkston, Orion and Oxford know they have a niche. For them, the doors at community senior centers swing into a whole new world of friendship and fun.

At the Independence Township Senior Center, seniors are able to give as well as to receive. Susie De Poorter comes in to help with the center's lunch program and is responsible for reassurance check calls.

"She calls all these people to see that they're OK — It's just a given Susie's going to do that," Lannette Amon, recreational program manager for the township center, says.

At the Orion Senior Center Lucille Fitch ("83 in September") plays the piano for herself and others. Fitch's husband died in 1971 of cancer and after selling her home she lived with several of her children until she recently moved into Heritage Place, a senior living center in Orion. Although she has four living children, 13 grandchildren and 17 great-grandchildren, it is still painful for Fitch to rekindle the memory of her oldest son who was killed during the Korean War.

"He was killed in action in the U.S. Navy while on a destroyer," she says. Fitch finds much solace in making lap robes and slippers for war veterans and remembers her son when doing so.

"I felt terrible until I came up here," she says, speaking of the center. "I can't see to write, I can't drive anymore... But I help Freda (the center's cook) pack Meals on Wheels. Anything I can do, I help them do. And I love it!"

Karen Muz, the center's director for nine years, calls the center "a pulse."

"Without a senior center they would probably be in their homes, deteriorating every day. If all you do is sit in front of a TV with a remote in your hand, you're going to go senile without any stimulation."

At her center there is almost everything imaginable to pique the interest of seniors.

"Ours is a multi-purpose center with outreach and educational programs," Muz explains. For example, in one room those who are artistically inclined can choose from a variety of activities — crafts, ceramics, mold pouring, stained glass, oil and china painting. And for the musically inclined — or for those whose talent begins and ends in the shower — there are the Church Street Singers, a senior singing group that began in Lake Orion United Methodist Church.

"Stout-hearted man": Rehearsing at the Orion Senior Center, Jerry Narnowicz belts out some patriotic tunes while his daughter, Church Street Singers director Kathy Wieland, plays the keyboard. Narnowicz, an Air Force pilot during World War II, sang in Bob Hope's show, knew the Andrews Sisters and was a good friend of the late Tennessee Ernie Ford. His stage name was Jerry Halloran.

"They go to other centers, concerts in the park and perform at nursing homes," Muz said.

Based also at the center are an OLSHA (Oakland Livingston Human Service agency) site, Meals on Wheels for homebound seniors, transportation services, a nutrition program, free health screening for things like blood pressure checks and mammograms, an exercise program and a well-stocked library that features "talking" and large print books as well as an Optelec machine that enlarges print. All make it easier for seniors to pursue their love of reading.

For those who want to continue camaraderie into travel, there are frequent excursions such as trips to Meadowbrook, the Macomb Center and the Lansing Museum. Coming up are a Covered Bridge Festival in Indiana where seniors will revisit the area's history and riverboat gambling from Illinois to Iowa in August.

"Seniors are like everybody else — They like to have a good time," quips Muz.

Muz estimates that the Orion Center serves many people, from not only Orion and Oxford, but surrounding communities as well.

"Because ours is a multi-purpose center, we cover a lot of territory," she says. "We're a small center, but we're homey, very quaint. We try to keep it that way so it doesn't become businesslike."

Although Orion Township is responsible for the building's general maintenance, heat and lights and the center receives federal, state and Community Development Block grants and private donations, the center must raise much of its own money for activities and supplies. Fundraisers such as the lap robes and slippers are a good source.

In Clarkston it's pretty much the same, says Amon. As in Orion, the Independence center features a daily nutrition program, Meals on Wheels, a travel program, ceramics, health, advocacy and referral services. It also offers senior sports like softball, golf, walking, volleyball and bowling.

"We have very active seniors in the Clarkston community — they wear me out," she says with a laugh.

The township center gets some help from state grants and through the township's general-fund budget but also does fundraising such as concessions, an annual flea market and bake sales held once a month at one of the Clarkston schools. The money goes into an escrow account which is used for center improvements.

"We strive as much as possible to make our program self-sufficient," says Amon. "I think our seniors take pride in that too."

Amon feels centers provide many things for those who are both lonely and on the go.

"Seniors find friendship at the senior center. We have a lot of widows and widowers and sometimes it's hard to make new friends. We try to help get people into a new life, a different life — or back into life again. It's somewhere they can go and be adults again without having their children take them somewhere.

"We try to offer something for everybody — from cards to volley ball."

The Independence Township Senior Center will offer a flea market Friday and Saturday, August 18 and 19, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. each day on the senior center grounds in Clintonwood Park, 5980 Clarkston Road. Proceeds will go into an escrow account for senior center improvements. Bake sales, concessions and a raffle for a ceramic item will be featured. Rent space is available for crafters. "We need donators (for the flea market) and buyers," says Lannette Amon, center manager. For more information call (810) 625-8231.

Americans embrace therapy

Demand, offerings grow dramatically; don't wait if you think you need help

BY ANNETTE KINGSBURY
Clarkston News Editor

According to the National Institute of Mental Health, the demand for psychological services in the U.S. has grown 400 percent in the last 25 years. The number of licensed professionals in the field has also grown accordingly.

Some 15-20 percent of Americans will receive therapy, with at least 250 different therapies to choose from. Twenty percent face a serious bout of depression, the most commonly diagnosed illness in the country, at some time in their lives.

Even with the proliferation of services available, studies confirm that many people seek therapy as a last resort. It may be human nature to wait until a crisis arrives: The average wait for getting help with a drinking problem is five years; with depression, two years; with panic attacks, 12 years, one study found.

Though he's been in the field for many years, the numbers still strike Fred Baumann, MA, a psychologist at Triad Associates in Clarkston, as "incredible." Having said that, he pointed out that in a modern group practice such as Triad, specialists from a variety of backgrounds work together to find out which therapy, and which therapist, can best serve a patient's needs.

At Triad, every practitioner has at least 10 years experience and a master's degree. Each has specialized in different areas, which may reflect his or her academic background, personal interests or professional experience.

When a patient first visits the office, which includes a psychiatrist, psychologists and social workers on staff, an intake evaluation is the starting point toward a match of patient, therapy and therapist.

"The number-one rule of therapy is to match the therapist to the patient so you don't have to work up the courage to spill your guts," said Diane St. Peter, a social worker at Triad.

Why try therapy

Just what exactly can therapy do for you? Three things, Baumann said.

"It should provide support. Life is hard to face alone. You've got a friend, you've got someone who's going to accept you unconditionally. That's something no other institution is able to do.

"Yes, you can get (support) from other realms. But the people that are getting it are not generally part of the 15 percent that gets into therapy."

Secondly, "Therapy should go on to minimize the weakness and the stressors, especially with individuals who have exhausted or distorted their confidence levels," Baumann continued. "They should rebuild their self-confidence, be able to determine what is rational from an irrational fear."

'The number-one rule of therapy is to match the therapist to the patient so you don't have to work up the courage to spill your guts.'

Diane St. Peter

And thirdly, "Therapy should reinforce or create psychological defenses. We are a product of our experiences in life. We've all been constructed with a belief system that certain defenses work, some conscious, some unconscious. Some do not work with the situation we're in. It may or may not be obvious to (a patient)."

As more and more research is done on the brain, the relationship between psychology and psychiatry continues to evolve. More and more conditions can be treated successfully with drugs. But talk therapy is still a part of the picture.

"Putting somebody on Prozac alone has a much lower result than Prozac and talk therapy," Baumann said. "Over the last 10 to 15 years I've seen a major change between the medical and psychological communities working together. We're beginning to realize the need for pharmacological help. And doctors have recognized that physical health is related to overall mental health."

Beyond individual therapy, there are also the options of group, family or marriage therapy and support groups.

"Sometimes substance abuse is just substance abuse," said St. Peter. "Sometimes you get rid of substance abuse and there are still problems. (The family) has no clue of what normal is all about, they've lived so long with alcohol."

St. Peter explained the difference in approach between a social worker and a psychologist. "A psychologist has been trained to look at you as a person," she said. "A social worker will look at you within your system, the person within the community . . . I do recommend the use of support groups in conjunction with therapy, not instead of."

Common problems

Attention deficit disorders and what's commonly called "incurability" are two of the areas currently seen in growing numbers, according to Baumann and Lou Goldman, MSW at Triad.

Goldman, who specializes in children, said he sees more and more cases of parents who have lost control of their children and can't get help from public agencies because of changes in the legal system.

"The courts won't do much with these kids any more," he said. "These kids don't fit into a hospital; they don't fit in any more. In order for us to be effective, we have to connect with parents and the schools."

Baumann said many parents come in feeling sure their children are afflicted with ADD, since the symptoms are widely known. They don't realize the same symptoms are shared with other disorders, such as conduct disorders and learning disabilities.

Free help for adult children of alcoholics

A series of three, free classes will be offered in Clarkston this fall to help adult children of alcoholics cope with the past and move on with their lives.

Pat Sullivan and Jim Blundo, certified social workers and licensed professional counselors with a practice in Troy, are bringing their expertise to Clarkston as a result of requests for services in the area.

Blundo is a Waterford resident. He and Sullivan have been in practice together for 12 years at ACT Counseling in Troy.

The classes, which will meet on three consecutive Thursdays, Sept. 21, 28 and Oct. 5, will be held at Clarkston United Methodist Church, 6600 Waldon Rd., from 7:30 to 9 p.m.

Sullivan and Blundo say they have a unique approach to working with the adult children (age 18 and over) of alcoholics.

"Every adult who grew up in an alcoholic family has been traumatized in some way," Blundo said. "In order to survive, they have learned to dissociate—go away. However, in adults the necessary survival skill of dissociation can become a roadblock."

"The Missing Piece" is a three-part class designed to help such people get "unstuck" in their recovery. It will benefit those with previous counseling or those just beginning the journey to recovery.

"The whole focus is always on the alcoholics and on the spouse of the alcoholic," Blundo said. "But what happens to the kids? They grow up in the house and they're affected."

"We've worked with adult children of alcoholics for 12 years and I think what we do is just different," Sullivan said.

The classes are free. To reserve a spot, call ACT Counseling by Sept. 19 at (810) 816-9799.

Americans embrace therapy

"Many of them are showing up at their general practitioner's office saying 'Put my child on Ritalin,'" he said. In reality, many have other problems.

The changing role of insurance

Baumann, Goldman and St. Peter expressed concern about the growing role of insurance companies in determining how much and what kind of care patients who need mental health services may receive. Though the clinic was recently approved to be a Blue Cross provider, many insurers require prior approval for visits. Some patients pay for their services out of pocket.

Goldman, who is also a member of the board of Havenwyck Hospital in Auburn Hills, said the average hospital stay now is only five days. Many drugs take longer than that to begin to work, let alone to evaluate.

"They (patients) are going in sicker and they're coming out sicker," he said. "It's the start of a stabilizing process but it isn't where it was five years ago. We're into some major changes as therapists."

"Mental health is an art as well as a science," said St. Peter. "If the major insurance companies are limiting you to 20 visits a year, you basically figure out if you're seeing a patient once a week, you better get them well in five months. And you're dealing with a lifetime of dysfunction."

"That's been one of the knocks of therapy, that they keep people in forever," Baumann said. "But most people realize when they're getting healthy. They realize you don't stay in therapy just for support."

A therapy group called "Family recovery from Addiction" with Diane St. Peter will begin meeting August 1 for 12 weeks. Group size is limited. Most insurances are accepted. Call 625-2970 to register.

Power failures, high heat dangerous to health

Due to the recent severe thunderstorms, many people may find themselves with no electricity in their homes and businesses. The lack of power coupled with the extreme summer temperatures can pose serious health threats, especially to infants, the elderly and people with chronic health conditions.

Two of the most common health risks during times of high heat are hyperthermia and spoiled food due to the lack of refrigeration. Below are some facts to be aware of when faced with one of these problems.

Facts about Hyperthermia

Hyperthermia is the general name given to a variety of heat-related illnesses. The two most common forms of hyperthermia are heat exhaustion and heat stroke. Of the two, heat stroke is especially dangerous and requires immediate medical attention.

Some preventive steps:

- Drink plenty of liquids, even if not thirsty.
- Dress in lightweight, light-colored, loose-fitting clothing.
- Avoid the mid-day heat and do not engage in vigorous activity during the hottest part of the day (noon to 4 p.m.).
- Wear a hat or use an umbrella for shade.
- If possible, use air conditioners or visit air-conditioned places, such as libraries, shopping malls and theaters.
- If not used to the heat, get accustomed to it slowly by exposing yourself to it briefly at first and increasing the time little by little.
- Avoid hot, heavy meals. Do a minimum of cooking and use an oven only when absolutely necessary.
- Ask your physician whether you are at particular risk because of medication.

How is hyperthermia treated?

If the victim is exhibiting signs of heat stroke, seek emergency assistance immediately. Without medical attention, heat stroke is frequently deadly, especially for older people.

Get the victim out of the sun and into a cool place — preferably one that is air conditioned. Offer fluids, but avoid alcohol and caffeine. Water and fruit and vegetable juices are best. Encourage the person to shower or bathe, or sponge off with cool water. Urge the person to lie down and rest, preferably in a cool place.

What about pets and animals?

Pets and animals can also be injured or even killed by extreme temperatures. Some things to remember:

- Never leave pets in a vehicle.
- Be sure to provide pets and animals with plenty of water to drink.
- It is always an option to bring pets into the air conditioning with you rather than leave them outside in the heat.

Preserving food in power failures

Follow these steps to help keep food safe during power outages or when the freezer or refrigerator is not working:

- If the appliance will be working again within a couple of hours, just minimize opening of the freezer and refrigerator doors.
- A fully stocked freezer will usually keep food frozen for two days after losing power. A half-full freezer will usually keep food frozen for about one day.
- If the power will be out for a longer period than the freezer will maintain the cold, dry ice may be placed in the freezer.

- In the refrigerator, food will usually keep four to six hours, depending upon the temperature of the room. If the power will be out for a longer time, block ice may be placed in the refrigerator.

- When power returns, immediately examine each food. If in doubt, throw it out.

Safe use of dry ice

Dry ice is actually solid carbon dioxide, which is an extremely cold solid material of about minus 110 degrees Fahrenheit. It must be handled carefully.

Twenty pounds of dry ice should keep a ten-cubic-foot full freezer for three to four days.

Handling dry ice safely

- Always wear protective gloves when handling dry ice — severe frostbite or burns on skin can develop. Protect exposed skin from touching the dry ice.
 - Put a piece of cardboard or several layers of newspaper between dry ice and food. Place dry ice on top of cardboard with food below — dry ice will freeze any food that it touches.
 - Do not put your head directly into the freezer when using dry ice.
 - Do not breath in vapors — they can cause suffocation or extreme breathing problems. Step back for a minute after opening the door to let vapors escape.
 - Use dry ice for saving freezer foods. Perishables such as milk or dairy products are apt to freeze completely in a very short time with dry ice. Use a regular ice chest with block ice for perishables.
- For more information on perishable food or dry ice, call the Oakland County MSU Extension Food and Nutrition hotline at (810) 858-0904.

Kids' allergies nothing to sneeze at

The end of summer means more than back-to-school shopping to parents whose children suffer from ragweed allergies. For about 75 percent of all children with allergies, the period from late summer to the first freeze is the most uncomfortable time of the year.

The best way to cope with the sneezing, runny nose and irritated eyes is to anticipate the season and begin a management plan before the symptoms become severe, according to University of Michigan pharmacist Cary E. Johnson.

"Seasonal allergies respond best when treated early," said Johnson, associate professor of pharmacy and clinical pharmacist at U-M. "If your child begins taking appropriate allergy medications when sneezing or nasal congestion first develops, the symptoms can often be controlled more effectively."

"One allergy medication — cromolyn nasal spray — should actually be started several weeks before the allergy season begins to be most effective in preventing or reducing nasal symptoms," he added.

About 20 percent of all children suffer from allergies, although many cases are unrecognized, according to Johnson. Ragweed pollen is the most common allergen, but children also can be allergic to grass and tree pollen, mold, dust, animal dander and other substances.

Children can develop symptoms — frequent sneezing, runny nose and watery eyes — at any age. Left untreated, children with allergies also can develop sinus and ear infections, so it's important not to ignore the symptoms, Johnson said.

To treat allergies safely and effectively, Johnson offers the following recommendations:

- Minimize your child's exposure to substances that aggravate allergy symptoms. Cigarette smoke can be particularly irritating.

- Don't try to treat your child's allergies yourself. Many over-the-counter medicines available without a prescription are too strong for young children. They often contain unneeded ingredients that can cause side-effects in children.

- If your physician prescribes an antihistamine, decongestant or combination of both medications for your child, ask about possible side-effects. Antihistamines may cause drowsiness, while decongestants can make your child nervous or cause difficulty sleeping. If a side-effect is excessive or lasts more than a few days, notify your physician.

Seasonal allergies respond best when treated early

- Use an over-the-counter nasal spray only if your physician recommends a specific product — primarily if your child is younger than 12. "Long-acting (12-hour) sprays or drops can cause an undesirable rebound or congestion of nasal tissues if used too frequently or for long periods," Johnson said.

- Ask your pharmacist for instructions on the correct use of all allergy medications prescribed or recommended for your child. Know the name and dosage of each medication and follow the dosage schedule as closely as possible.

MRI used for breast implant patients

Carolyn (fictitious name), like many other women, has accepted her personal responsibility for having regular breast exams and mammograms for early detection of breast cancer. However, Carolyn has breast implants and there the similarity with other women ends with regard to mammograms.

Mammograms use compression of breast tissue against the film box and the image is created. In addition to compression, women who have silicon breast implants must also have their breasts manipulated by pulling or pushing the implant away from the tissue close to the body. This allows for a more accurate reading of the breast tissue without the obscuring effect of the implant. Needless to say, this is additional pain which the breast implant woman must endure as she participates in regular screening as part of her health care.

Now, another alternative is available for women with breast implants. It is relatively painless, requires no compression or breast separation, and does not use radiation. This alternative, magnetic resonance imaging, sends low energy radio waves into a patient as she lies on a padded table within a strong magnetic field. The radio waves are re-emitted at different rates from normal and diseased tissue. This differentiation in the radio waves is the basis for diagnosis.

Magnetic resonance imaging provides another benefit as a diagnostic tool for women with breast implants through the degree of accuracy it offers when viewing the breast for abnormalities associated with the breast implant such as leakage or pain.

How to make summer grilling heart healthy

Nothing epitomizes summer more for Americans than firing up the grill for a backyard barbecue. Unfortunately, the traditional steaks, hamburgers and hot dogs that people grill are not the healthiest choices due to high fat and calorie contents.

To make barbecuing a healthier alternative, Fay Fitzgerald, RD, MA, coordinator of Henry Ford Hospital's Heart Smart program, offers grilling guidelines and easy-to-follow recipes.

Heart Smart Grilling Tips

"Grilling can be a very healthy and tasty way to cook, if you choose the right foods and preparation methods," says Fitzgerald. "You need to be careful because the way you grill can increase health risks such as cancer."

- Choose lean cuts of meat, which are lower in fat and calories. Marinating the meat before cooking will make it more tender.

- Reduce the amount of fat dripping onto the hot coals by trimming all fat and removing skin. The burning fat and resulting smoke produce potentially harmful substances.

- Minimize the meat's exposure to smoke and charring flames. You can do this by choosing thin cuts that cook quickly or by pre-cooking meat in the oven or microwave.

- Use foil to protect the food during most of the cooking time.

- Clean the grill rack of charred meat and fats after each use.

Summer Burgers with a Twist

Hamburgers are a favorite of everyone. With a little imagination, the fat content of this summer staple can be reduced for a healthier meal.

- Use ground turkey breast in combination with ground round to reduce the total fat content of a typical burger.

- Make a Heart Smart salad burger, which is almost a meal in itself. The salad burger has only 9 grams of fat compared to a typical hamburger at 15 to 20 grams of fat.

- Try a salmon burger, which has just 374 calories and 12 grams of fat. The best canned salmon to buy is Sockeye, at 11 grams of fat per four-ounce serving. Although some varieties of salmon derive more than 50 percent of their calories from fat, the fat is mostly unsaturated and rich in omega-3 acids that have been shown to decrease the risk of heart disease.

Red Meat Alternatives

In addition to leaner cuts of meat, more people are grilling fish and vegetables which are lower in fat. Chicken also remains a popular barbecue choice. While many people think fish and chicken are healthier than red meat, how they are prepared and served makes all the difference.

"If you grill chicken with a high fat and calorie sauce, you negate the health benefits you were striving for," says Fitzgerald. "You can make a variety of salsas and chutneys that contain almost no fat and cholesterol and are low in sodium. These can really spice up a meal. Many prepared sauces, on the other hand, tend to be high in sodium."

Swordfish and salmon are two popular and versatile fish for summer grilling, whether you choose filets or steaks. A four-ounce serving of swordfish contains only 5 grams of fat.

Keep in mind that there are many varieties of salmon, and that fat content varies. Chinook or King salmon contains the most fat, average 16 grams of fat per four-ounce serving. Coho salmon has less than 8 grams of fat per four-ounce serving.

Chili-marinated swordfish with pineapple salsa

- 1 tablespoon chili powder
- 1 tablespoon red onion, peeled, ends removed, chopped
- 2 teaspoons garlic, peeled, ends removed, minced
- 1/4 cup fresh cilantro, washed, dried, chopped
- 2 teaspoons oregano
- 1 teaspoon ground cumin
- 1/4 cup lime juice
- 4 6-ounce swordfish steaks, washed, patted dry
- Nonstick vegetable spray
- 1 recipe Pineapple salsa

In a shallow non-aluminum dish or plastic bag, mix together chili powder, red onion, garlic, cilantro, oregano, cumin, lime juice, olive oil and black pepper. Add swordfish steaks. Cover dish or seal bag, and refrigerate for 1 to 2 hours.

Preheat grill or broiler. Spray rack of grill with nonstick vegetable spray. Remove swordfish steaks from marinade. Grill or broil for 5 minutes, then turn and cook until done, but still juicy inside, about 5 minutes longer. Serve with pineapple salsa. Serves 4.

Pineapple Salsa

- 1 small/medium pineapple, peeled, cored, coarsely chopped
- 3/4 cup red onion, peeled, ends removed, minced
- 3/4 cup fresh cilantro, washed, dried, chopped
- 1 tablespoon white wine vinegar
- 1/4 teaspoon cayenne pepper

Place pineapple in a colander set over a large bowl to drain for about 5 minutes. Discard liquid. Transfer pineapple to a bowl. Add the onion, cilantro, vinegar and pepper. Chill for at least one hour. Makes four 1/2-cup servings.

Health news in brief

Depressed about headaches

Migraine sufferers face an increased risk for major depression and vice versa, concluded a study by Henry Ford Hospital psychologist Naomi Breslau, PhD., director of psychology research.

The estimated risk for onset of depression among migraine sufferers was three-fold higher than in people with no prior history of migraines. The reverse also is true. Both disorders are very common, with at least 10 percent of the population suffering from migraine, which strikes women three times as often as men. Depression strikes up to 15 percent of people sometime during their lifetimes.

Summer snacks for kids

During the summer months, kids often lose their appetites because of the heat. And when they do eat, it seems all they want is ice cream. Nevertheless, a balanced diet is important for a child's rapid growth and development. Fay Fitzgerald, a registered dietitian with Henry Ford's Heart Smart program, suggests trying these tips to get kids to eat nutritious and delicious summer snacks: include kids when you purchase and prepare meals and snacks; encourage kids to eat their vegetables by cutting them into fun shapes and serving them with a low-fat or nonfat dressing as a dip; and try serving pretzels, popcorn and cold cereal—all are good snacks from the bread group.

Battling bacteria

This picnic season, avoid becoming one of the two million Americans who annually get hit with food poisoning. According to Henry Ford Hospital dietitian Fay Fitzgerald, the best way to avoid food poisoning is to follow this simple rule: hot foods should be served hot (140 degrees or more) and cold foods should be served cold (40 degrees or less).

Food poisoning is caused by bacteria, and bacteria love lukewarm foods. Foods that need to be refrigerated should never remain at room temperature for more than two hours; one hour on hot and humid days. Be especially careful with poultry, fish, milk, meats and eggs.

Latex allergy on the rise

Latex allergies are now more common than allergies to dogs and cats in the general population, according to researchers at Henry Ford Hospital.

People are frequently exposed to latex gloves and rubber balls. Even condoms and diaphragms can cause allergic reactions to users. Symptoms include skin rashes, nasal and eye irritation and asthma. In severe cases, death occurs. Those sensitive to latex usually have an inherited tendency to become allergic and have had multiple exposures to latex.

Birth weight a factor in IQ

Low-birth-weight babies (5.5 pounds and under) have an IQ that is five points lower, on average, than children born at a normal birth weight, according to a recent study by Henry Ford Hospital.

This is the first time birth weight was isolated from other factors and proven to be a factor in IQ. The lower IQ scores occurred regardless of the mother's IQ, educational level and socioeconomic status. IQ scores generally declined as birth weight declined.

The study compared IQ scores of two groups of 6-year-olds born between 1983 and 1985 from an urban hospital in Detroit and one in a Detroit suburb.

The sting of summer

Mosquitoes, bees, wasps, horseflies . . . all of summer's favorite biting creatures will be out in full force. It's common for insect bites to turn red and swell to one to two inches, especially around the eyes or face, according to Henry Ford Hospital.

To help reduce swelling and itching, first apply ice cubes to the bite, then use antihistamines like Benadryl orally or apply a topical lotion or spray. If the swelling persists for more than a couple of days, spreads, or the wound starts to weep, there could be a secondary infection.

Love consists in this that two solitudes protect and touch and greet each other.

—Rainer Maria Rilke

Don't be a drowning statistic

If you are going to be in the water this summer, you need to follow basic safety precautions. Use life preservers, know the terrain, tides and currents, and exercise caution about where you swim.

Even experienced swimmers can drown if they develop muscle cramps and/or become fatigued. In addition, Henry Ford Hospital recommends that everyone learn how to clear an airway and perform mouth-to-mouth resuscitation.

Teen girls face osteoporosis later

American females may face a massive problem with osteoporosis in 40 years because adolescent girls today consume too little calcium.

Osteoporosis expert Robert Heaney, MD, of Creighton University, says adolescent girls are not getting enough calcium to build a healthy skeleton. This calcium shortage presents a serious long-range problem that goes beyond the threat of osteoporosis to include hypertension, preeclampsia during pregnancy and colon cancer.

Don't worry mom, I'm eating right

When it comes to eating healthy, Americans have split personalities. With one hand they're reaching for the broccoli and pinto bean casserole, with the other, they're going for the chocolate chip cheesecake.

That was the conclusion of an article in Food Business, which surveyed nearly two dozen food editors to better gauge how American consumers feel about lite and healthy foods.

"I think it's safe to say that most American consumers feel like they've been hit over the head with a ball at, they're so confused about nutrition," said Robin Mather, food editor at the Detroit News.

Longtime resident Jon Abbott

Though Jon Abbott was renowned for his beautiful collection of carousel horses, his friends in Clarkston remember him for many more reasons.

Abbott, a Clarkston resident for 20 years, died July 17, 1995. He was 66.

"He was just the most interesting person I ever knew," said his good friend Dale Ryan, also a Clarkston resident. "The neat thing about Jon was he could be at home with the most common person in the world and the most deeply intellectual ... He was down-to-earth."

Ryan, who referred to Abbott as "a brother, father and best friend," said he was also known for his sharp wit and infectious sense of humor which often led to playing light pranks on his friends. "He left people wanting more— You never knew what Jon was going to do," he said.

He recalled Abbott's collection of "crazy hats" which included several made of straw he nick-named his "Glenn Ford hats."

A club of sorts formed years ago when Abbott, Ryan and several other friends would banter back and forth good-naturedly, calling each other "derelicts." They decided to name themselves the (dere) lict brothers, which eventually got shortened to "The Lick Brothers." Each member had a name, with Abbott's "Daryl Lick."

"We had a lot of fun with that," Ryan said. "At Christmas time it was 'Lick-mas' and we passed out goofy presents to each other. It was who could pull the biggest gag. We had T-shirts made, we took tours. Jon used to put a sign on the trailer that said 'Lick Brothers on tour ... kids thinking we were rock stars used to stop and ask for autographs.'"

More seriously, Ryan noted the carousel Jon used to have in his backyard.

"Whenever he turned that calliope on it was a signal for all the kids in the neighborhood to ride the merry-go-round. It was a wonderful sound."

Another Clarkston resident and friend, Carol Eberhardt, praised Abbott for his entrepreneurial spirit.

"In my opinion he was the Barnum and Bailey of our time. I'm going to miss him. He was a dear, dear friend. His passing means a little spark in Clarkston has gone out."

Eberhardt said Abbott's concern for Clarkston was always evident. He played a key role in the community, organizing old car shows after Clarkston 4th of July parades, moving the historic Boothby house to the village in 1989 and acquiring the town clock during Clarkston's Sesquicentennial. It now stands in front of NBD Bank on Main Street. Eberhardt said he raised money, purchased the clock and was responsible for its placement.

An antique dealer and collector, Abbott began collecting carousel horses in 1972 with his wife Barbara. Their first piece was a wooden horse from 1885. The couple owned several complete merry-go-rounds and some of the wooden animals were used as models for magazines and calendars. The carousel that graced the Abbott yard from 1974 to 1979 now sits in Baltimore, MD at the Inner Harbor. Abbott was also instrumental in the placement of Huckleberry Railroad's merry-go-round in Flint.

A manufacturer's representative, Abbott worked for H.B. Williamson for 35 years, selling picture frames and moldings. He was a charter member of the Rolls Royce Owners Club, past member of the Lions Club, a professional auctioneer and well-known and respected across the U.S. for his expertise and knowledge of carousels. A musician, at one time he had his own group, Jon Abbott and the Esquires.

Dale Ryan summed up Abbott with a simple, touching epitaph.

"Jon had his own philosophy. He always said, 'Leave your mark. Leave some footprints so someone knows you've been here' ..."

"He certainly did. He left them all over this town."

In addition to Barbara, his wife of 32 years, Mr. Abbott is survived by two daughters, Kellie Jon (Mike) McClure of Brandon Township and Kari Lynn Abbott of White Lake Township; two brothers, Hans and Sterling; mother-in-law Marie Stewart, several nieces and nephews; and "The Lick Brothers."

A funeral service was held at the Clarkston United Methodist Church in Clarkston July 21 with Pastor Robert D. Walters officiating.

Memorials may be made to the Michigan Hemophilia Foundation, Ann Arbor, the Michigan Cancer Society or McLaren Hospice.

Stanley Orr

Stanley Orr, 87 of Dearborn Heights and Bellaire, died July 24, 1995 at Oakwood Hospital in Dearborn.

With his wife Irene, he owned and operated the Torchlight Tavern, also called Stan's Bar, on Torch Lake in Antrim County from 1945 to 1969. Located where the Clam River empties into Torch Lake, the resort was a post office for the Clam River settlement, a general store and tavern when the Orrs first operated it. After it was destroyed by fire in 1947, the Orrs rebuilt it, adding tourist rooms. The post office was closed by the fire, but the Orrs ran the tavern, store and apartments until they retired. Today the Torchlight Tavern is known as the Dockside.

An avid outdoorsman, Mr. Orr enjoyed hunting, fishing and traveling with his wife, brothers, nephews, other members of his family and many friends.

Mr. Orr was born June 1, 1908 in Groveland Township to Albert and Nellie (Parish) Orr. He was raised on the family farm in Clarkston, now the Orchard Campground in the Pontiac Lake State Recreation Area. He graduated from Clarkston High School and attended Ferris State College. He was involved in farming and then worked for Pontiac Motors for about 10 years. He lived in the Pontiac area until 1946.

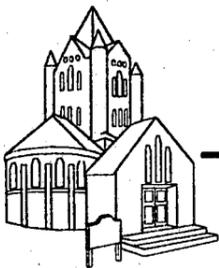

He married Irene Coe April 24, 1937 in Steuben County, Indiana. She died May 17, 1984.

Mr. Orr is survived by a daughter and son-in-law, Julie and Tim Powers of Dearborn Heights, and two grandchildren, Erika and Michael Powers, both of Ypsilanti Township. He is also survived by a brother and sister-in-law, Lee and Sybella of Clarkston; sisters-in-law Helen Orr and Josephine Asbury of Clarkston; Rhoda Still of Auburn Hills and Lillian Coe of Wixom; and many nieces and nephews.

Funeral services will be Thursday at 10 a.m. at Lewis E. Wint and Son Trust 100 Funeral Home in Clarkston. Friends may visit tonight (Wednesday) at the funeral home, 3-5 and 7-9 p.m. Burial will be at the family plot in the Helena Township Cemetery at Alden.

Memorials may be made to the Oakwood Hospital Adult Day Care Center, 18101 Oakwood Blvd., Dearborn, or the Helena Township Library in Alden.

Keeping the Balance

It perhaps took years for rock legends Van Halen to get the right "Balance."

The latest album, of the same title, is the long-awaited offering of a band that has been around for nearly two decades. With Van Halen's trademark energy, skillful musicianship and great lyrics, "Balance" is their first collection of all-new material since 1990's "For Unlawful Carnal Knowledge."

"Everyone who heard it told us there was something different from our other albums," explains Alex Van Halen. "I mean, we may have added little touches here and there, but that's not what they were talking about... it was the feeling behind the music. For us, I think it was the closest we've ever come to getting the sound we hear in our heads."

Dynamo lead singer Sammy Hagar simply says, "The music speaks to me."
The four members of Van Halen — Hagar, lead guitarist Eddie, drummer Michael Anthony and bassist Alex Van Halen — credit producer Bruce Fairbairn with some of that equilibrium.

"Being a producer is a very elusive job title," says Eddie. "Part baby-sitter, part amateur psychologist... Bruce was different. He made us listen to our music from another perspective and, with our added input, we ended up with more real musical insight than with most other producers we've worked with."

The 12-track recording features the smash single, "Don't Tell Me," as well as the sweet and sentimental "Can't Stop Loving You." Hagar says most of the lines came as they were playing, song titles as well.

"Lyrically, this album has a lot to say, maybe more than any other I've ever written," Hagar says. "I felt more inspired to talk about what I think is true and what I'm seeing in the world around me. It's all a lot more personal this time and I've never worked as hard to find the best words to say what I was thinking and feeling. Tracks like 'The Seventh Seal' and 'Deja Vu,' I'm real proud of — but I spent just as much time on a simple love song called 'Can't Stop Loving You.'"

"I tried to go a little deeper each time."

CITY COUNCIL MEETING MINUTES
JULY 17, 1995

The meeting was called to order at 7:37 p.m. by Mayor Catallo followed by the Pledge of Allegiance.

Roll: Present - Arkwright, Basinger, Catallo, Roeser, Sanderson, Schultz, Secatch.

Absent - None.

Moved by Arkwright, supported by Schultz, "That the minutes of the meeting held on July 10, 1995 be approved as submitted." Motion carried.

Moved by Arkwright, supported by Secatch, "That the agenda be approved with the following additions: Intergovernmental agreements, Methodist Church lot split, McKenna Associates proposal."

Committee Reports:

Sanderson stated there have been Gypsy Moth caterpillars sited in the area. People in the Village are requested to let Sanderson know which trees are involved in their areas.

Roeser requested that if anyone has any positive or negative comments about activities scheduled in Depot Park they should address these to him.

Arkwright indicated that there had been a letter from Pat Lally praising the Clarkston Police Department. He stated that Chief Ormiston had instituted more foot patrols and that this change had been well received by the residents.

Arkwright indicated that he spoke with Lee Mitchell regarding the Community Development Block Grant and that 20% of the available funds could be allocated for planning and administration.

Basinger indicated that the subcommittee of the City Council had met to clarify the facts regarding the property at M-15 and Waldon Roads for which a rezoning request had been filed. The subcommittee recommends that the entire Council deny the zoning change request. Basinger indicated that he had consulted with McKenna and Associates regarding this matter and that a copy of the Findings of Fact had been sent to the planning agency for review. Basinger provided the petitioners, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Olsen, a copy of the Findings of Fact. Mrs. Olsen made some corrections to the document which Basinger noted and agreed to.

Resolved by Sanderson, supported by Arkwright, "That the rezoning request for the property on the southeast corner of M-15 and Waldon Roads from residential to commercial be denied and that the Findings of Fact and the decision of the subcommittee be adopted." Roll: Yeas-7, Nays-0. Resolution passed.

Mr. Olsen thanked the Council for their time.

Resolved by Basinger, supported by Secatch, "That the city manager and the mayor be authorized to sign the contract with McKenna and Associates for planning services." Roll: Yeas-7, Nays-0. Resolution passed.

DPW Supervisor Bob Pursley discussed the need for a new truck for use in snow removal and salting the roads. The current truck is 13 years old and is rusting out. The initial costs have been estimated at $59,475 for a new truck. The old truck is thought to bring a minimum of $10,000 in a trade-in.

Moved by Roeser, supported by Schultz, "That the DPW Supervisor solicit bids for a replacement truck and equipment. The bids are due by noon on August 10, 1995 at the Village Hall." Motion carried.

Pursley indicated that he would be checking with Jennings Co., regarding additional wood chips for the playground. He plans to order these on July 18, 1995.

Resolved by Roeser, supported by Arkwright, "That the Mayor and the DPW Supervisor are authorized to purchase, plan and install a barrier and landscape at the southeast end of Depot Park at a cost not to exceed $500. The barrier is needed to prevent cars from driving in the park." Roll: Yeas-7, Nays-0. Resolution passed.

A cellular phone for the DPW Supervisor was discussed but no action was taken. It will be discussed again at the next meeting.

Arkwright indicated that he had a few areas of concern in the contracts with the Township. These concerns include: the inclusion of the safety path in the contract, the term of the beach contract is not uniform with the expiration date of the other contracts, the beach contract requires that the Village pay capital improvement costs to the beach with no delineation of which improvements or any associated costs, the fire contract concerns relate to point #5 and #10. Arkwright will discuss his concerns with the Village Attorney.

Basinger spoke with Mr. Vandermark regarding the lot split for the Methodist Church. Mr. Vandermark indicated that the lending agreement benefits the church in such a way that they intend to pursue the lot split. He has proposed altering the initial request so that the parking lot would stay with the church and not be split off with the residence.

Resolved by Basinger, supported by Schultz, "That the Methodist Church lot split request be referred back to the planning commission so the revised proposal can be reviewed for compliance with the zoning ordinance." Roll: Yeas-7, Nays-0. Resolution passed.

Selander Miller indicated that she would be resigning as clerk. Her last meeting will be August 14, 1995.

Moved by Roeser, supported by Arkwright, "That the meeting be adjourned." Motion carried.

The meeting was adjourned at 8:20 p.m.

Not long ago, I thought my number was up.

I had never taken the time to learn about the warning signs of a heart attack... you never think it will happen to you.

When it happened to me, the staff of St. Joseph Mercy's Estes Heart Center went into action, using the latest technology and equipment to help me. A cardiac cath found my problem... and balloon angioplasty restored my heart.

I'm grateful for the technology that saved my life, and I'm also thankful for the trusting hands that carried me and my family through. The wonderful nurses, doctors and caring support staff kept my wife informed and my family involved.

I felt reassured because they told me what was happening in a language that I could understand. The folks at the Estes Heart Center did a great job preparing me to go home... you have no idea how important that is.

My wife says there seems to be a little bit of magic at St. Joe's... I say there's just a lot of heart!
