Picky, picky

This is the one I want. No, this one: Justin Jones, 5, is pretty sure this is the pumpkin he wants to carve—if he can carry it away from Ashton's Orchards. "I can't hardly lift it," he said. For more photos of fall fun, see the back page.

Halloween festivities planned for downtown

The Clarkston Downtown Business Association is seeking to recapture the spirit of the old days in downtown Clarkston when Halloween was a big celebration.

The CDBA is planning a series of activities for big and little trick-or-treaters this Halloween season. The events will take place from Friday, Oct. 27 through Halloween. They include downtown business window painting by Clarkston Middle School students, a Midnight Madness sale Friday night, a children's costume contest and candy check in front of the Clarkston Mills mall on Halloween, and other activities still in the planning stages.

For more information call Carroll Harris at the Clarkston Cafe, 625-5660, who is coordinating the event.

At last!

City, township agree to deal

BY DARREL W. COLE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

It's over.

Two years of back-and-forth negotiating finally ended when the Independence Township Board of Trustees voted to accept an asset settlement with the City of the Village of Clarkston.

The board voted to approve six intergovernmental agreements with the city at its Oct. 3 meeting. The city council approved the IGA at its Aug. 28 meeting.

The IGAs became necessary when Clarkston changed from a village to a city in 1992, after a vote of the residents. As a village it was part of the township; as a city it is independent. Since that time the township and city have had many negotiations on how to divide assets and pay for services the city now contracts out to the township. The recently-approved contracts expire in 1998.

The agreements are as follows:

● After Clarkston became a city, a division of assets was required by state law. Because the former village and township shared property and some assets, the township agreed to pay the city $270,000. But that amount shall be paid back in the form of credits. Those credits are:

1) $175,647 for fire services provided by the township to the city in 1993 and 1994, through Dec. 1994.

2) $44,682 for library services provided by the township to the city in 1993 and 1994.

3) $22,563 for completion of the Waldon and Holcomb road safety paths, which the township is working on; and, the completion of construction of the White Lake Road safety path, which will cost the city about $35,000 (this will be paid in annual installments to the township of $5,000 each).

4) $500 for the township's "Dump Day" program in 1993 and 1994.

● The city will continue to be taxed 3.3 mills each year for fire protection services from the township.

● Continued use of the library by city residents will cost the city about $22,000 a year. City property owners will pay about .75 mills per year.

● The Deer Lake Beach lease will still only cost the township $1 per year and the beach will continue to be staffed through the township's parks and recreation department. However, the contract will now include a charge to the township for improvements that cost over $500. City and township residents have use of the beach and any programs offered there.

New fire/police station a go

In hopes of finally getting new fire-station construction moving along, a land purchase agreement has been signed and an increased construction contract approved.

The two agreements, approved by the Independence Township Board of Trustees Oct. 3, mean construction plans for the new fire station, which will include an addition for a sheriff's substation, will begin.

The land purchase agreement, costing about $307,000, took months to work out because an easement (involving several parties) running through the property required much negotiation. The contract to construct the station was awarded to Premacon, Inc. for $1.885 million in July. But that figure had to be increased by $50,000 because soil testing had to be completed, as well as other delays.

Township supervisor Dale Stuart said these last two actions mean the station's construction should be on its way.

The new station will include many features not included in the township's three current stations.

It is planned to be called Station #1 and will include four fire-engine bays, a 32x40 training room, living quarters and kitchen, administrative offices, electrical and mechanical room, breathing-apparatus room, equipment washing room, and EMS equipment room.

The current station #1, located next to Morgan's Marathon Gas Station in Clarkston, will be moved to the new facility on Citation Drive.

The current Oakland County Sheriff's Department substation, located next to the Secretary of State's office off M-15, currently costs the township about $40,000 a year, with about $300,000 left to pay.

The news in brief

Morgan Lake gets another OK

The 50-acre planned residential development addition to the Morgan Lake Golf Classic was approved by the Independence Township Board of Trustees Oct. 3.

After negotiations between township officials and Morgan Lake representatives, developers agreed to reduce the 81-acre lot subdivision to 79 lots, thereby reducing the density concerns the board and planning commission expressed at previous meetings.

Joint meeting scheduled

A joint meeting between The City of the Village of Clarkston, Independence Township, Clarkston Schools and Springfield Township boards is set for Oct. 24, beginning at 6 p.m., at the Independence Township Senior Center in Clintonwood Park. Township planner Richard Carlisle will discuss development and the impact it will have upon the area.

Public asked to remove signs

The City of the Village of Clarkston asks residents to remove their old garage sale signs and other notices as quickly as possible. Council members reported at Monday night's council meeting that there are an abundance of announcements and nails left on street signs and public utility poles.

Road commission schedules meeting

The proposed paving of Bridge Lake Rd. from Davisburg Rd. north one-quarter mile will be the subject of an informational meeting by the Oakland County Road Commission.

The meeting will be held Wednesday, Oct. 18, 3:30-6:30 p.m. at Springfield Plains Elementary School, 8650 Holcomb Rd. Road Commission staff will be available to discuss the project and drawings will be available.

Construction is scheduled to begin this fall and be completed in the spring.

Written comments may be sent to Road Commission for Oakland County, Permits and Environmental Concerns Department, 2420 Pontiac Lake Rd., Waterford, MI 48328.

Members still sought for facilities committee

Though work has already begun, Clarkston school district residents are still being sought to work on a committee charged with examining the district's elementary school capacity.

At Monday night's meeting of the board of education, Trustee Kurt Shanks, who chaired this year's successful bond campaign for a new high school, said more people are needed to study elementary school needs.

"All the schools are not represented yet," Shanks said. Non-parents are especially sought so a variety of perspectives can be heard.

To join the committee, contact any building administrator.

Pizza lovers don't need a special month to enjoy their favorite pie

BY EILEEN OXLEY
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Scott Rader of Little Dana's has pizza spinning down to a craft. He can twirl and balance a circle of dough on one finger.

Gregg Ryeson of Gregg's Gourmet Cafe also swears by spinning and attributes his thick-rimmed crust to "centrifugal force drawing it out."

But Al Sebastian, spokesperson for the Little Caesar's corporation, scoffs at what he calls "theatrics."

"It's not necessary. We don't throw our pizzas up in the air."

Still, no matter how you throw it, spin it, roll it, top it, bake it — and eat it — the result is the same. The simple combination of bread, sauce and cheese is a tasty 30 billion industry each year and keeps on growing.

According to facts supplied by PIZZA TODAY and the National Association of Pizza Operators, pizza restaurant growth continues to outpace overall restaurant growth, with pizzerias representing approximately 17 percent of all eateries.

What better way to honor the gooey discs and rectangles than to give them 31 days a year? October is National Pizza Month and several area restaurants work daily to keep pizza habits satisfied.

Ryeson, whose family has been in the restaurant business for years, owning Orion House and E.G. Nicks, didn't start his Clarkston restaurant and catering service because of pizza — but he admits it keeps things rolling.

"If it takes that to get 'em in here, that's fine," he says.

Ryeson admits he likes to do things the natural, old-fashioned way. That's why he likes spinning the dough. The result, a crust that's thinner in the middle with a rim of thicker dough circling it, is what Ryeson calls "a classic pizza."

October is National Pizza Month: Enjoy!

He insists on making everything himself. His sauces, including a green-tinged pesto, are made from scratch and vegetables aren't diced — they're cut into strips with a large French knife.

Though Ryeson, like others, agrees the most popular topping is cheese and pepperoni, he has his own ideas and his own creations. He uses Muenster cheese to enhance the flavor of mozzarella because he thinks the latter is bland. Nothing is canned; all vegetables are fresh and come from Detroit's Eastern Market.

Ryeson says he goes with the flow and offers 2 for 1 because "it's in vogue" but he doesn't go along with the double-cheese trend, although he does whatever the customer wants.

"It's kind of redundant to ask for double cheese," he says. "It's kind of overkill." And, although he honors all requests, he'll suggest that the customer not order an abundance of toppings because it weighs the pizza down and often results in a doughy middle.

Ryeson's most popular gourmet pizza, in addition to Vegetarian, BBQ Chicken and Smoked Turkey, is his California Special, made with homemade pesto sauce, mushrooms, feta cheese, red onions, mozzarella, Muenster and artichoke hearts.

"It's something I came up with, working at E.G. Nick's. You gotta do something different," he explains.

Ryeson stands by his creations.

"I agree that you are what you eat ... I could lose a little," he laughs, patting his stomach. "I have a saying that if I don't think it tastes good, I won't sell it." He also agrees that pizza is nutritious.

"It's a well-balanced meal. You have your dairy, you have your vegetables, you have your grain — it's in the dough itself. You have everything."

Dan Burleigh, owner of Little Dana's Pizza n' Deli, also didn't start out with pizza when he opened his business three years ago. But Burleigh followed suit, and with the addition of Rader whom he labels "The Pizza God," "our pizza business has done nothing but explode."

Burleigh says he does so much business with Pine Knob concert goers, Clarkston High School students and others that he's seriously considering adding day delivery to his night-time service. Beer and pop can also be included.

"The pizza business goes up when it gets colder. People don't want to go out. We sell more pizza in cold than warm months," Burleigh says.

Like Ryeson, Burleigh has his own special toppings. He likes to use four layers of cheese for his Sicilian Deep Dish and adds an extra layer over toppings for all his orders unless the customer doesn't want it. The result is truly a glorious, gooey delight. In addition to specialties like Hawaiian Delight, Bacon Double Cheeseburger and Meat Monster, his BLT pizza (bacon, lettuce and tomato) is a crowd pleaser. But, of course, nothing satisfies like the awesome favorite — cheese and pepperoni.

"Pizza God" Rader, who has been twirling dough for 20 years, says it takes a lot of practice to get the spinning right and Burleigh agrees "it's a talent."

Bus director responds to critics

BY ANNETTE KINGSBURY
Clarkston News Editor

Clarkston schools transportation director Kevin Bickerstaff got a resounding vote of approval Monday night when he asked the board of education, in essence, "How'm I doing?"

Bickerstaff asked the board whether they would like to reconsider transportation policy in light of continuous questions he gets from parents regarding location of bus stops, who walks and who rides, crowded buses and the like. Basically, they said no—just keep doing what you're doing.

The fall has been chaotic for Bickerstaff due to major changes in the bussing schedule. The district changed from a three-tier to two-tier schedule, re-scheduling building starting and ending times and necessitating the hiring of many new drivers. At the same time, a private company, National School Bus Service, was brought in to manage the department, and a contract with the drivers is still in the bargaining process.

In the early weeks, Bickerstaff, two mechanics and some National drivers from Oak Park have had to fill in on bus routes as new drivers were hired and trained. It's led to some problems getting kids to school on time.

"But we're making the two-tier system work and the buses we ordered (last year) are arriving," Bickerstaff said. "So it's smoothing out..."

"Keep in mind these are all new people. Did you see a bus get lost? Yes. Today I had one out on Milford Rd. before she called in."

Bickerstaff flat-out apologized to parents of SPICE children (pre-schoolers in special education) for problems with their runs.

"I apologize to those SPICE people for the inconvenience. We'll strive to do better," he said.

Through it all, experienced drivers have been accommodating, he added. "I'd also like to mention my bus drivers have been very cooperative... They came in and helped out some of the newer people."

Bickerstaff said he will ask the district's insurance company to conduct a traffic study around the high school where problems exist due to the close proximity of three schools. He hopes to bring the company's recommendations to the board at a later date. Meanwhile, he was told to keep enforcing board policy.

"You've been doing just great, Kevin," superintendent Gary Haner said.

Grant will help the little kids

Clarkston schools have won a $10,000 grant to assist children ages birth to 2 years old who have special needs.

Clarkston schools special services director Pat Brumback informed the board of education Monday night the grant has been approved.

"We noticed some children age 0-2 weren't getting served," she said. They include children whose disabilities are not considered serious enough to earn them a spot in a center program which already exists in Waterford for that age group. Until now, Clarkston schools began serving special needs children at age 3 through the SPICE program.

Brumback said the new program, called DOLL (Development of Language and Learning) will be funded by state and federal dollars and include home visits and therapy. For more information call her at 625-3330.

Possible changes for Depot Street

BY EILEEN OXLEY
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Improvements for Depot St. continue to be discussed among members of Clarkston's City Council members and downtown business owners.

Since parking was eliminated on Depot several months ago, options have included a landscape project for the south side of Depot, along with a possible sidewalk for safe access to Depot Park.

Council members Steve Secatch and James Schultz said at Monday night's council meeting that Max Brook Realtor's attorney Tom Bullen said Brook doesn't favor putting in a sidewalk on his side of the street. But he is considering beautification along the now barren wall where parking spots used to be located.

Several months ago, Secatch and Schultz agreed to represent the city in negotiations with Brook and Bullen. A walkway for safe access down to Depot Park that might incorporate landscaping was considered. Discussions have included whether or not the city, Brook or both should share in the cost of construction. The sidewalk would most likely have to be graduated because of the steepness of the street.

Secatch said a meeting is scheduled for today (Wednesday) between the city and Bullen. Schultz has talked with Bullen about the possibility of leasing to Brook the southern portion of Depot St. as an easement so he could incorporate landscaping.

"We could support a medium- to short-term lease. Perhaps a 25-year lease might be in the offing," Schultz said. "I said we can't give the street over to him (Brook) or sell it to him."

Secatch said he talked to Gary Tressel of Hubbell,

Roth & Clark, the city's engineering firm.

"He suggested leasing it. The property is worth a lot of money and the city might need that property in the future," Tressel also told Secatch that a sidewalk down Depot St. would cost an estimated $15,000.

Council members agreed that locating a future walkway on the north side of Depot where the road is less steep might be better because people wouldn't have to cross the street for access to the park.

But Basinger said the consequences of putting in any walkway would have to be considered.

"It may only cause problems if you try to landscape it. People will have to walk further out into the road." That could result in possible liability to the city if someone is injured, even if warning signs are posted, he said.

Schultz doesn't expect any projects in the near future.

"It's still very much in the negotiating (stage)," he said.

Secatch said there are no funds set aside in the new city budget for a walkway, but he expects discussion to continue.

"Somewhere down the road we'd like to put in a sidewalk," he said.

In other council action:

● A park policy governing general use of Depot Park was tabled to the next council meeting on Oct. 23.

● The city's amended historic district ordinance's first reading was tabled. Basinger has consulted with city attorney Tom Ryan and says the complicated ordinance needs to comply with and needs to be incorporated into state ordinance and law. He expects the reading to be made within the next two council meetings.

Candidates square off Thursday in debate

City residents will have the opportunity to address six people running for three vacant seats on Clarkston's City Council Thursday night. The public forum will be held in the Independence Township Library's community room, 6495 Clarkston Rd., at 7 p.m.

Those seeking re-election are present council members William Basinger and James Schultz, who have both served two-year terms. Councilman Steve Arkwright, who has also served a two-year term, has decided not to run again.

Challengers include Walter Gamble, David

Savage, Pamela Ford Morgan and Kris Werner.

The public is encouraged to address the candidates along with reporters from area newspapers. Co-sponsored by the Clarkston Downtown Business Association and The Clarkston News, the event will be moderated by the League of Women Voters.

The city election will be held Nov. 7 from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. at the Clarkston City Hall, 375 Depot Rd. The debate will be videotaped by TCI Cable of Clarkston for broadcast between now and the election.

In Focus

by Annette Kingsbury

Music City doesn't disappoint

The Bluebird Cafe in Nashville, Tennessee is a place where people come with dreams.

On a Sunday night, a songwriter named Lynn Elwood, who hails from New York but who moved his family to Nashville six years ago, takes the stage. A postal employee who dreams of a career in music, he has successfully auditioned for the opportunity to perform during writers night at the Bluebird, a Nashville institution. He will not be paid but will gladly sing three original songs. He admits he's nervous—really nervous.

At every opportunity he and scores of others like him will take to such stages all over town. They will order water and tip the waitress a buck or so—it's actually costing them money to make the rounds. Others come from as far away as Texas and Chicago for this opportunity to hear and be heard.

Across town at another club, songwriter Gary Nicholson and his band take the stage. All are successful session musicians, and Nicholson himself has sold songs to some big-time singers. Tonight, dressed in black and looking a bit like a short mafioso, he'll launch into two sets of original tunes that sound a lot more like blues than country.

At yet another club, big-time stars like Alan Jackson, Alabama, Pam Tillis and Patty Loveless are trotted out to announce a big, free concert coming next year. The crowd of media and fans goes wild as each enters the room. They don't sing a note, but everyone goes home happy anyway.

Welcome to Nashville. It's everything you might have imagined, and more. A bit like the Emerald City of Oz, it's a place where big dreams sometimes come true.

As we learned last week, the people are friendly, the weather is mild, and shopkeepers will gladly tell you which stars are among their customers. You can hear music—good, live music—just about any night of the week. And if you're lucky, as we were, you can bump into a few stars.

Our first day there, we saw one of our favorite singers sitting at a bar. He was gracious enough to let us take his picture, shake hands and chat.

It's been said that if you want to make it in country music today, you have to go to Nashville. Apparently a lot of people believe that, because the place is crawling with really talented people—singers, pickers, writers.

To me it's a bit daunting to think about trying to crack into that market, but new people continue to come. One article I read said the local musicians' union has been signing up 50 new members per month for the last five years. No word on how many of them return home without fulfilling their dream.

We didn't come home with any cowboy hats or boots, but we did come home with a whole new collection of CDs to listen to. And I guess we also got a glimpse of a different way of life. A life where people put their talent on the line, night after night, in the hopes the right person will hear.

It was awesome.

Letters to the editor

Pleasure to read students' writing

Dear Editor,

I am writing to commend you and your staff for the excellent job you are doing in providing a number of Clarkston High School's able young writers some well-deserved column space. The job that Amber Gebrowski did last year was, of course, outstanding. Amber is a writer and it shows. However, the work being done by this year's crop of student contributors is of a very high caliber also. It is obvious that they take their roles very seriously and strive to do a good

I am pleased that you are directing the News on such a course. All too often we assume the worst of our schools and teachers because the press students most often get is not always the best. It seems that the good they do does not sell as well as some of their other, less-desirable diversions. It is a pleasure to read that Clarkston students are showing a positive interest in each other and in their community at large.

Sincerely,

Clifton B. Higdon, Jr.

Bargain fairly

I read with great interest the article concerning Clarkston Superintendent Gary Haner and his unethical method of dealing with the Clarkston Association of Support Personnel (CLASP).

I would agree that it is wrong to disclose a recorded meeting without receiving the agreement to do so first. But it is just as wrong to use threat of loss of benefits, wages and possible employment when negotiating a fair labor agreement. How can any collaborative bargaining take place when dealing with a management who wishes to dictate a settlement by threats and intimidation.

By punishing these workers, who are also citizens in this community, for attending public meetings such as school board and PTA meetings is an insult to the whole community. These workers live and spend their wages in this community. They have a right to speak on issues that affect them and their families. If they do, Mr. Haner is correct when he states that this information will most certainly have a big impact on them.

I hope Mr. Haner changes his dictatorial behavior and bargains fairly with the CLASP representatives in the upcoming meetings. It would be a shame to have the Michigan Employment Relations Commission have to rule on an unfair labor practice against our school system.

They should not have to force the school administration to bargain fairly. I believe that the citizens expected that to happen when he was hired for the job he has.

Booster thanks

Dear Editor,

On behalf of the Clarkston Athletic Boosters I want to thank all the members who volunteered their help to put on the fifth-annual Pancake Breakfast.

Thanks also to all those who attended, and the staff at Clarkston Elementary who set up and cleaned up.

Jim's Jottings

By Jim Sherman

Taking care of Christopher C.

I receive the most comment on my Jim's Jottings columns when I glean (steal) them from other writers. There's probably a message there, but I won't pursue it.

Since comments have become fewer and fewer I'm going to call on Ed Perlberg, publisher emeritus of the Arenac County Independent in Standish, for this week's space filler. He titled it: "Can't we leave old Columbus alone?"

The world got along just fine for some 500 years understanding, and agreeing, that Christopher Columbus, a courageous and adventurous sea captain, had ignored all those who thought the world was flat.

He ventured out, daring to possibly sail west and off the end of the world into who knows what. Didn't happen, we've all learned through these 500 years. He didn't fall off . . . he discovered America . . . or so we've all thought.

A few years ago some great academic of some kind, who was burrowing through something or other rather than teaching, began casting great aspersions against Chris' character.

He was a nasty man. Bilked his country. Bilked his queen. Brought disease to the natives in America and treated them terribly . . . probably treated them exactly, it seems, as all those higher in the social and economic structure have always treated those that could be subdued, would or could not rebel against the treatment.

Our hero had been besmirched, his reputation tarnished. Enough to spoil the very best Columbus Day Sale a merchant could ever promote.

Now some Norwegian has come along . . . those dratted Norwegians just won't stop in their effort to claim Leif Ericson, not good old Christopher, discovered us . . . to insist Columbus discovered us in 1467, not 1492.

Boy, isn't that something. A 25-year possible error in a span of over 500 years.

What concerns us is that the Associated Press thought this "discovery" rated a news story to be put out to the world.

We're tired of facing all these doubts.

Never one to put importance on exact dates . . . no need to know if it happened in 1962 or 1963, early sixties would do just fine. Columbus discovered us in 1492. The Pilgrims came in 1620. And in 1776 we told the British to go fly a kite.

These are real numbers and there's no sense in fooling with them, no sense in trying to change them. Why even dream of messing up the school books?

And we still think Old Christopher was a good guy . . . and we're glad he found us.

Though folks today refer to Clarkston as quaint and charming, things were definitely different in the early 1800's when its history began. There were no stores, only forests and fields where tough pioneers had to depend on the shot of a gun or the hook of a line to catch their dinner.

The late Clarence Vliet was an early Clarkston resident who was born in 1876 and spent his boyhood years in an area that still retained the rural, pioneering atmosphere. He wrote about his family's and grandfather's experiences, recording them as a series of memoirs that reflect early life in Clarkston.

Mr. Vliet died at the age of 94 years ago after a variety of lifelong accomplishments including serving as superintendent of schools for both Clarkston and Birmingham.

Although she never knew her relative, a descendent, Georgena Miller of Ontonville, recalls that the Vliets came from the Netherlands to America before the Revolutionary War. Miller has researched the family's genealogy and found most of the Vliets were farmers or craftsmen.

"I was the last Vliet to be born at home," Miller said.

Local historian Jennifer Radcliff said the memoirs had been given to the Independence Township Library and were later found behind a cabinet where they had apparently fallen.

During the next few weeks The Clarkston News will run several of Vliet's memoirs. Although the stories detail the hardships of living in early Clarkston, the tales are vivid, fascinating and often touched with humor.

Abundant wildlife in early Michigan

By Clarence Vliet

Early Michigan settlers were amazed at the profusion of wild life in the forests and on the lakes and in the water.

Bear, deer, rabbits, squirrels, beaver, mink, muskrat, racoon, red fox roamed the land. The lakes were covered with geese and ducks, the waters were alive with pike, bass, and panfish, but the air supplied the mightiest host of all in the passenger pigeons whose spring and fall migrations literally darkened the sky.

Their numbers gave rise to incredible stories — true and false. My father told a pigeon story at the grocery store festival of yarners which was voted the place of honor.

He was a barn carpenter and as such man every day used to work in early spring in the woods preparing with his broad axe the plates, purlines, beams, rafters and other timbers needed for the summer barn erection.

His pigeon story ran "I was hewing timber when a cloud of pigeons darkened the sky over Waterford Hill but I continued work till the sky cleared again when to my amazement I discovered that swinging my broad axe over my head I had cut off half a bushel of pigeon feet that afternoon!"

Don't Rush Me

Boo-boo Boy takes another hit

There is something very scary about home improvement.

Upon further reflection, I suppose there is something very scary to some, and comical to others.

I know now, what I didn't a few short years ago, why there is a hit television comedy series by the name Home Improvement.

I'm one of the some who doesn't find home improvement funny. Home improvement, the actual action of ripping out and then replacing, is scary to me.

Let me count the ways . . .

The least of my worries about home improvement is not knowing what the heck I'm doing. Sure, I read the how-to books. Yep, I tune into the Master Handyman, Glen Haggie every weekend on talk radio. Yeah, and I even watch Bob Vila Sunday mornings. So what?

I'm still clueless . . . but like that comic strip by the same name, I'm a Pluggie. I'll give it a whirl.

Home improvement projects always seem to cost money. And, always more than estimated. This is a concern for me. I have this problem with letting go of the green in the chunks it takes to improve the home.

My father swears I get my penny-pinching ways from some distant Scot ancestor.

One of the greatest fears I have about home improvement projects is pain. Whether it is putting up drywall, or gutters, hauling rocks or dirt, digging holes or pulling carpet I always get hurt.

Pain hurts. Hurt is not good. If I were to follow this line of reasoning to its logical conclusion, I can hypothesize that home improvement causes pain. Pain hurts. Hurt is no good, therefore home improvement should be avoided . . . at all costs.

In one week last month I attempted two projects and ended up bandaging 11 cuts on my fingers and knuckles, three scraps on my knees and pulling two splinters from my left palm.

My wife now enduringly refers to her spouse as Boo-boo Boy.

Which brings me to this: Home improvement is a scary proposition because it can cause mental anguish and general embarrassment.

I don't know about the rest of you home improvers, but being referred to as Boo-boo Boy doesn't do a lot for my self confidence.

"Good evening, Sir. Thank you for inviting us to the business dinner. This is my husband, Boo-Boo Boy."

There is just something about that I find unappealing.

Drive through Ohio doesn't include cattle

Mary Lou, one of my countless sisters, lives in a large, plush, fenced-off suburban housing complex that includes a private golf club, where members are not allowed to wear denim in the clubhouse or on the links. Seldom is heard a hee-haw.

Mary Lou always dresses the part, even when she's out of town. The so-stylish slacks outfit she wore last Friday has never been nearer than a freeway to a farm. So it was marvelous to hear the greeting she received from the room clerk when she walked into a motel office:

"You here for the cattle show?"

Which reminds me that my 9-year-old granddaughter Tricia recently attended a horse camp in Crosswell. When she returned, I greeted her with a pun that's so old it's apparently new again. At least, everyone within hearing distance said they'd never heard this one before:

"Tricia was very popular around the stables. All the horse manure."

But back to the motel, which is a Best Western, of course, in Lebanon, Ohio. It may utilize the most foreboding marketing technique in the history of hostelry. On the window sill of every room, in plain view from the outside, is a fly swatter.

Where's the mouse trap, or plunger?

We stopped in Lebanon, on our way to Cincinnati, to eat where Charles Dickens, Mark Twain and Presidents Taft, Garfield, Grant, Harding and McKinley ate. It's the Golden Lamb, advertised as Ohio's oldest inn and restaurant, founded in 1803. The lamb is delicious, and there's no mention on the menu, silent or otherwise, of Hannibal Lecter.

Little Lebanon also has many antique shops that attract crowds of eager buyers. My brother-in-law Jack stayed in his room for fear of being purchased against his will.

Another thing I discovered about Lebanon is something I'm mentioning strictly in honor of the many readers who have futilely complained to me about home delivery problems since Detroit Newspapers took over printing and circulation functions for the Free Press and News.

At 7 a.m. Saturday in Lebanon, over 200 miles from Detroit, the Cincinnati Inquirer newspaper delivered to my motel room included a complete, detailed report on the Tigers game played in Detroit on Friday night.

At 7 a.m. Saturday in Lapeer, only 65 miles from Detroit, the Free Press and News delivered to my front porch had nothing about the same Tigers game except that it was incomplete. The difference is caused by early edition deadlines in Detroit; the more papers you sell over a wide geographic area, the earlier you have to start the presses.

There's something wrong with that picture, but don't ask me to fix it. I may not be an independent contractor, but I don't work for Detroit Newspapers.

For purely personal reasons, it should be mentioned that Ohio has at least one daily Free Press subscriber, and she was another reason for our trip. She is former Detroit and Port Huron resident Annabell Kilsdonk, now living in Fairfield. We lunched with her at another fine, very old restaurant, the White House, where it was mentioned that at age 90, Annabell might be my oldest reader. More likely she is the nicest, and sharpest.

The main reason for the long Ohio weekend was the Cincinnati wedding of Kerri Secrist and Paul Hartnett. Paul is the son of another of my countless sisters, Nancy the Itch, and her husband, Herbert the

Out to Lunch

When my English teacher checks papers and she doesn't want to hurt her students' feelings, instead of saying "no redeeming qualities," she says "out to lunch." This causes problems for me because as soon as I hear the word "lunch" my mind is gone for the day.

I have third lunch period, which means I go to four morning classes, then lunch, then two afternoon classes. Lunch is always my goal when I'm at school — if I make it to lunch, I feel confident that my brain may still be in one piece by the end of the day. Maybe my day wouldn't seem so divided if my morning classes weren't so hard and my afternoon classes weren't so easy.

Seniors have off-campus lunch. I used to think most schools allowed this privilege, but most don't. Going out to lunch is a lot more exciting than staying in. We have a choice of many restaurants instead of the usual old school food. My favorite places to go are Taco Bell because it's cheap and Greg's because I get cravings for their breadsticks and cheese dip.

Sometimes I go home on my lunch break. This is a nice opportunity to pet my dog and provide entertainment for my parents (a.k.a. "Where'd all the food go?"). It also gives me the chance to catch up on my naps.

Other times I go to my friend's house. Her mom runs an in-home day care and so there are usually four or five little girls running around screaming at each other, which is relaxing.

Off-campus lunch is a nice perk of being a CHS senior. It creates a nice stress-free window at a strategic hour of the day. The only thing I can imagine would be better is if the Clarkston school district went on a Leonardo di Vinci timescale: each hour divided into 45 minutes for studying and 15 minutes for naps. I'm starting to forget why I never had fun and snuck out to lunch when I was a junior.

Heritage Hunt II by Virginia Block

Many questions directed to the Pontiac Area Historical and Genealogical Society are of a historical nature, regarding businesses that operated from the earliest time of the cities' forming, to today.

From Michael Keller of Appleton, Wis., comes an inquiry about the Jewett Radio and Phonograph Co., located in Pontiac around 1920. We went to the phone directory, and calling the first listing, reached a young man whose aunt, Alice Ryan of Farmington Hills, was willing to talk to us, reporting that she had traced the Jewett family back to England in 1534.

Since Mr. Keller is writing the story of the Graham-Paige automobile, and asked about two Jewett brothers, Edward and Harry Jewett, who left their radio and phonograph business here, to join the Paige-Detroit Motor Co.

While Alice Jewett Ryan finds no connection to the two brothers mentioned, she recalls that her family did own a Graham-Paige at one time. We will check the city directories of the early 1920s to seek clues to Edward and Harry.

Mary B. Ryan of Oxford submitted the following surnames to us, some time ago (but maybe there's a link with Alice Ryan): Ryan, Geraghty, Dolan, O'Brien, Corrigan Gartner, and Hartman. While Mary gives Washtenaw, Livingston, Wayne county locations there are no time, date or first names.

She notes that she is interested in obits, particularly for Gartner and Ryan from Wayne and Macomb counties.

In the names index to the History of Macomb County, Mich., by Leeson (Chicago 1882) we found reference to Rev. A.W. Ryan and Mrs. Ann L. Ryan (we don't own the book). There were no Gartner, and only one Jewett (Eleazer).

Just about everyone has a "Smith" somewhere in the family, and Benjamin Smith, of Dighton, Mass., furnishes us with a descendancy that fills charts for many Oakland County families.

Mary Shaw Green compiled her family connection, in a publication for the D.A.R., in 1953. We were surprised to find much data on the family of Aaron Chapman, son of Randall and Orilla, being researched by Michele Keauka. Sharing the surnames found in this "Smith" history would fill a column, and this is only one such book, out of literally hundreds to be found.

Fortunately, if you haven't sought to find

"your" Smith, a good place to start is here, for yet another book in the P.A.H.G.S. library was written by Joseph Smith Jr., son of the founder of the Church of Jesus Christ, Latter Day Saints (LDS) or "Mormon" Church.

Any variant of the Smith name needs to be included in your searching.
Happy Hunting.

At the Oct. 9 Clarkston City Council meeting, council members seemed to have mixed feelings about the soon-to-be-wrapped-up asset settlement with the township.

"What're we going to do for the next three years?" asked Steve Arkwright.

"We should have them (the agreements) bronzed," added Bill Basinger.

Auditors give schools a 'clean' opinion

BY ANNETTE KINGSBURY
Clarkston News Editor

The Clarkston school district ended the year with $1.375 million in "excess revenues," auditors told the board of education Monday night.

Though that only amounts to about eight percent of the district's $36 million budget, or enough to last only four weeks, auditors from Plante and Moran said it was good news since it represented a significant increase over last year.

Overall spending in the district was up 4.5 percent, "fairly typical for this per pupil range," said Fred Hailer of Plante and Moran. He said the district earned "a clean opinion" from the auditing firm.

Mike Walsh, account manager with Plante and Moran, said the district came very close to accurately predicting its income and expenditures—within one percent of revenue and 1.8 percent of expenditures.

"With all the changes and with funding unknowns I have to compliment the staff," said trustee Sheila Hughes. "One of our goals was to increase fund balance this year."

Due to significant changes in the way Michigan funds schools, Clarkston was able in the past year to restore many programs previously cut, as well as adding new programs. Monday night there was no discussion of putting the fund balance to any particular use.

In other action Monday:

● A one-year contract with the district's five cafeteria managers was approved. Assistant superintendent Duane Lewis called the deal a "zero compensation settlement." Although it includes a 2.19 pay increase for 1995-96, Lewis said, that is offset by other concessions, such as changes in health-care coverage.

● The board set Nov. 20 as the date for a public meeting on the site plan for the new high school. The meeting will be held at Clarkston High School beginning at 7 p.m. Architects from Greiner, Inc. hope to have a final drawing of the site plan at that time.

● Additional staffing was approved for special education at the high school and both middle schools, Clarkston Elementary and the SPICE program, based upon enrollment.

● Washington D.C. trips were approved for both middle schools, despite the objection of trustee Kurt Shanks, who voted against the trips. He said they are co-curricular activities that force kids to miss school.

● North Sashabaw principal George White gave a progress report on a playground master plan committee he chairs. He said his school has sent out a request for proposal for a play structure which will be funded by the PTO up to $15,000.

● The board approved setting its debt levy at 3.94 mills for 1995, up from 1.7 mills last year. The increase is due to the approval of a bond issue for the new high school.

● Deputy superintendent Mike LaBay said he is working with a parent committee on the issue of attendance boundaries. The committee will develop guidelines for future changes in attendance areas. A final report is expected to be submitted to the board of education by January.

● The board set a special study session on key issues for the current school year. The meeting will take place Nov. 7 at 7 p.m. at the board office.

● There was discussion but no action on a proposal by superintendent Gary Haner to pay for site work on a parcel of land the district owns at Reese and Rattalce roads. The proposal included about $20,000 worth of engineering at the site, which could be used for a new elementary building.

● There was discussion of ways to improve the notification of parents of high-school students when students do not show up for class. Currently a letter goes home after the third unexcused absence, but the district is looking for a way to provide earlier notification. Principal Brent Cooley suggested three options, favoring one that would include a computerized callback service that would call home whenever a student is unexcused. Cost would be $4,000 for the system, plus a part-time clerk. The board is interested but no action was taken.

● At around midnight the board went into closed session to discuss contract negotiations and the superintendent's evaluation.

New director leads Meadow Brook Hall

Clarkston resident brings expertise in art, business

BY ANNETTE KINGSBURY
Clarkston News Editor

When auto heiress Matilda Dodge married Alfred Wilson in 1925, newspaper headlines billed it as the union of two fortunes.

The 100-room mansion they built on the eve of the Great Depression at a cost of $4 million, known as Meadow Brook Hall, is now part of Oakland University, which was built upon their land.

For the past two months, Clarkston resident Lisa Baylis Ashby has been getting intimately acquainted with the English-style mansion. As only its second director, she is the one responsible for its management, preservation and use. With a $2 million yearly operating budget which doesn't begin to include renovations, it's a big job but she seems thrilled to have it.

"Lifestyles of the rich and famous," she calls it, with a laugh.

"I've been literally shackled to the house. I've been learning about the past so I can have a context for the present and plan for the future."

Ashby's resume is filled with both art and business experience. After growing up in Bloomfield Hills, she attended the University of Michigan, where she earned a BA in art history. Then she moved to California, where she earned an MA in art history/museum studies from the University of Southern California, then an MBA from UCLA's Anderson Graduate School of Management. Though her parents moved to Clarkston 15 years ago, Ashby hasn't lived in Michigan for 20 years. She and husband Kevin Ashby have two children, Samantha, 8 and Spencer, 4.

"I could never have foreseen coming back to this area," she said. (But) "at a certain point you enter a different phase of your life." During the lengthy interview process she said she found a new attitude both at OU and in the Detroit area.

"I was particularly attracted to a new spirit at Oakland University. Everywhere I've ever been I attract to a mode of change. That's where I like to be. . . I sense that about the Detroit area. I feel it's Detroit's turn now. There's a revitalization now, a new energy more akin to when I was growing up here."

Baylis said her combination of business and art is the wave of the future when it comes to managing non-profit operations like Meadow Brook Hall. "Now a lot of people understand cultural organizations should be led by individuals with business experience," she said. "The old profile of an art museum director is a PhD in art history, a white male in his 60s." She's decidedly not that.

Ashby's career path has included stints as director of finance and administration with the Minnesota Children's Museum, chief administrative officer with the Getty Grant Program in California and other management positions with the Fine Arts Museums of San Francisco and the J. Paul Getty Museum in Malibu. She has also been associated with the Craft and Folk Art Museum in Los Angeles.

And though Meadow Brook Hall isn't exactly a museum, Ashby said it's not that different.

"It's more accessible. We can open rooms up to people, unlike art museums where you have a gated doorway. . .

"Straight art is hard to swallow. If you intersect it with history (etc.) you can engage your audience a little bit."

Ashby's office, from which she directs a staff of 25, is on the second floor of the architectural gem which is tucked down a winding, tree-lined path off Adams Rd. She's fallen in love with the stained glass and all the ornate carvings which adorn both the interior and exterior walls.

"There you really see just the highest quality," she said. "The bottom line is we teach people the difference art can make in their lives."

But in order to keep the building alive, meeting huge utility bills and keeping the now 65-year-old house from crumbling, people must be allowed to come inside. It's an inherent conflict, as Ashby sees it, but one that's just a fact of life.

"The product we can put out there that's the most salable is to rent the facility," she said. In doing so "we can make important links to the community. So it works out well. It's an introduction for many people to Meadow Brook Hall."

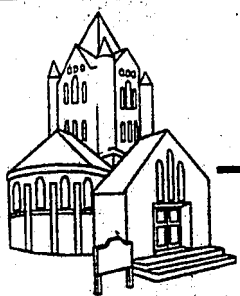

Ashby said the building is generally busy from breakfast through dinner. All the while, staff go around turning out lights as rooms empty, something that caught her by surprise.

"Think about the cost of a new roof here. The utilities are very high," she said.

This holiday season will mark the 25th anniversary of the hall's Christmas walk. Ashby hopes that by the time year 26 rolls around, visitors will be able to see a difference.

"I think you'll see a difference in the look," she said. "I really hope people, if they haven't been here, will come and take a look at Meadow Brook Hall and the improvements that will be here. I think this will grow to be a more attractive destination over time. . .

"The possibilities are sort of endless."

Mayor Lee of Smoklerville demonstrates a corn sheller to Pine Knob fourth-graders.

Sarah Williams, Michael Peteuil and Callie Martin make candles at the pioneer village.

Fall as Michigan's pioneers knew it

Fall in Michigan has probably always been beautiful. Just ask the fourth-graders at Pine Knob Elementary School.

The students took a trip to Smoklerville at Camp Tamarack in Ortonville recently. There they dressed in period costumes and spent a fall day as Michigan pioneers would have. They made rope and candles, found beaver pelts to trade at the general store for goods, bargained with the Indians for water rights, got an education and acquired a deed to a piece of land.

Paint the town October 21

Have a little time to help out a good cause?

Employees of Clarkston Chrysler-Plymouth are inviting the public to join them on Saturday, Oct. 21 to paint the offices of Clarkston Area Youth Assistance.

The employees will spearhead fund-raising and volunteer gathering for the project, as part of a national community outreach program founded by Chrysler called "Involved to Solve."

Area residents are invited to help by donating money and/or five hours of time to help in the painting. To volunteer, call Larry Hannant at 625-2635 or drop by Clarkston Chrysler-Plymouth at 8105 Big Lake Rd. no later than Wednesday, Oct. 18. Any donation not used in the painting will be given to Clarkston Area Youth Assistance.

CAYA social worker Theresa Blundell-Zucker said the help will be appreciated. Her offices are located on the second floor of the senior citizen center at Clintonwood Park.

"We conduct several programs and activities for children and families in these rooms," she said. "Having them painted will improve our work environment and the comfort of our clients. As a non-profit, we don't always have the resources to do something like this."

Youth Assistance is an arm of Oakland County Probate Court designed to provide early intervention for children as a way of keeping them out of the court system. Blundell meets with youth and their parents when they are referred by schools, police or parents.

"Involved to Solve" includes Chrysler-Plymouth, Dodge and Jeep/Eagle dealerships in partnership with Cares of America, a national, non-profit volunteer network based in Washington, D.C. Together the two organizations identify community problems for non-profit agencies and residents in need.

News honored with awards

The Clarkston News and its parent company, Sherman Publications, have received a total of 10 awards in this year's Michigan Press Association Better Newspaper Contest.

The Clarkston News received second place for overall excellence in its circulation category. The judges said the paper had "lots for people to read. Worth the cover price. Good mix of stories and every lead is imaginative. Paper appeals to all age groups."

The Clarkston News also received third place for editorial pages. News sports writer Darrel W. Cole received second place for a sports column he wrote while at The Lake Orion Review.

Other SPI papers also racked up awards. The Oxford Leader won three first-place honors, for breaking news, editorials and feature writing. The Leader also received a second place for sports coverage and honorable mention for breaking news.

The Lake Orion Review, in addition to Cole's award, received second place for breaking news and third place for a special section. The section, on the U.S. Women's Open Golf championship at Indianwood, also appeared in The Clarkston News.

FITZ, from 7A

Gabby, also often called the Cincinnati Sex Symbol, because that's what it says on his underwear.

At the reception, it was misty-eyed wonderful to see the several Hartnett granddaughters who look so much like Grandma Nancy did at the age she itched her brother the most.

It was such a good party, Mary Lou said she really didn't mind missing the cattle show.

"It's So Magic" --by Lynda Barry

127 pages, illustrated, 1994 HarperPerennial
Review by D'Anne Witkowski

If there is any book that everyone in the world should read, It's So Magic by Lynda Barry is it. A fresh, brilliant outlook on all aspects of life including family, school, falling in love and incredible secrets seen through the eyes of sisters Mariys and Maybonne, It's So Magic is some of Barry's best work yet.

Many may already be familiar with Lynda Barry through her "Ernie Pooks Comeek," found weekly in The Metro Times. If not, I highly recommend that, as well. Done in a comic-book style, It's So Magic is absolutely brilliant. Barry mixes emotion and humor to make every aspect of this book easily identifiable and memorable. From the great secret of Cyndi Ludemyer to singing "Born Free" to get Aunt Mary's bird out from behind the refrigerator, It's So Magic is a book that makes an impression on its reader for a long time after.

Some of the greatest sections of this book are the strips that character Mariys does "herself." "Mariys's Good Manners" and "How to Groove on Life" are excellent how-to guides to life according to the incredible Mariys, and "Calling Out for Love" is a terrific metaphor about acceptance.

Mariys and Maybonne are two open-minded and instantly likeable kids who have a lot to say and a great way of saying it.

After reading It's So Magic, I came to the conclusion that this world would be a lot better off if more people were like them.

Respond to FCC vote

Dear Editor,

The Federal Communications Commission is currently reviewing the Children's Television Act. The National PTA, one of the initial supporters of the Federal Communications Act of 1934 which mandated that TV stations could receive broadcasting licenses only if they provided programs in the public interest, has been instrumental in getting the Children's Television Act of 1990 passed. But after five years little has changed in the realm of children's programming. A study released last year by the Center for Media Education shows that the industry has paid little attention to the mandate of the law. Many stations have simply reclassified cartoons like "GI Joe" and "Bucky O'Hare" as educational.

Parents find ourselves in yet another battle. We urge all community members to take action on behalf of children and youth.

The opportunity is here to strengthen the Children's Television Act by adding the following points:

1. Set a standard of at least one hour per day of specifically-designed educational and information programming on all TV stations. (The FCC is proposing five hours per week.)
2. Redefine the FCC's definition of "educational and informational" programming in order to close the regulatory loophole which permit stations to cite programs such as "The Jetsons" and the "Flintstones" on their license renewal applications.
3. Count only standard length, regularly-scheduled educational programs as meeting a station's "core" programming obligations under the Act.
4. Exclude programs which are aired before 6 a.m. and after 10 p.m. from counting toward the core requirement of children's programming.

The Children's Television Act does not attempt to ban programs, it merely requires the industry to include children in their programming in exchange for receiving a license. So far, voluntary means towards improving children's programming have not worked. Every day another set of children are packaged and sold to advertisers with little concern about what children are watching. The public interest, which includes children and youth, has been flagrantly ignored.

Parents should share responsibility for what their children watch, but they cannot do the job themselves if there is nothing available for children to choose from. The market has not responded to providing more and better children's programming and parents need the active support of the FCC to improve TV quality.

Letters need to be sent now to: Commissioner Reed Hundt, Federal Communications Commission, 1919 M Street NW, Washington DC 20554.

Hurry - the FCC will be voting on this issue on October 16, 1995.

Sincerely,
Penny S. Shanks

Re/Max Today, Inc., would like to take this opportunity to thank all those who participated in or donated to the Children's Miracle Network at the annual Springfield Oaks Hot Air Balloon Festival held last weekend. Together, we raised over $1,400 for a very worthwhile cause.

Besides raising the much-needed funds, children and adults alike enjoyed the beautiful, crisp autumn days gazing up at the huge, colorful hot air balloons or rising "Above the Crowd" in the basket of the tethered Re/Max Balloon. Both young and old were amazed and delighted by "Ole White Eyes-Barney Buckles" the clown and his two magic shows. Cider and donuts were offered to complement that fall feeling in the air. All in all it was a wonderful day!

For those of you who were unable to join us, we hope to see you next year. For those who were, on behalf of the Children's Miracle Network and Re/Max Today, Inc. - we extend our gratitude.

Speak up on conservatory

To the Editor:

It was one year ago this week that we lost a vital member of our community. Ivan Rouse, owner and director of the Clarkston Conservatory of Music and lifelong resident, passed away.

For 34 years of his life he devoted himself to his school and the Village of Clarkston. Never in the 20 years of our friendship did he consider selling out for a profit. Even in the most difficult times he somehow managed to keep it afloat. His school was his contribution to the place he loved and its people.

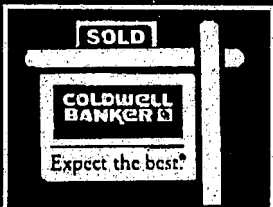

It is obvious that the trustees of his estate are doing a great disservice, not only to Ivan's memory and dedication but to the community as a whole. By attempting to sell out to the highest bidder they have taken away his desire that the conservatory would endure for years to come.

During the past year Jim Wilhelmsen has attempted to continue the school to honor his friend and colleague of 19 years. After being a part of the school those 19 years, Jim can carry out Ivan's dream for perpetuation. I truly believe he is the only person who can continue the conservatory with the direction and vision that Ivan intended.

The loss of Ivan has been enough of a tragedy to those who knew and loved him; I fear Clarkston will lose much more if the Clarkston Conservatory of Music is sold out for profit only.

Small turnout fails to deter anti-debt coalition

BY JONATHON KANE
Davison Index Staff Writer

It was a small group, with efforts aimed at a considerable target, that met Monday, Sept. 25 at Davison's First Baptist Church.

Mike Presant, state coordinator for the Concord Coalition, told the nine-member audience that they shouldn't be discouraged by the light turnout to discuss the national debt.

He said the group would be the 11th in Michigan, each aligned with a congressional district, and efforts would continue until each district had representation.

The coalition originated as a bipartisan effort to increase awareness and help eliminate the country's debit bloat, and Presant said it isn't a very palatable cause.

"All the groups started out about this size," he said, but it is understandable. "It's selling spinach, not ice cream."

His own motivation for joining the coalition more than two years ago, he said, was probably the same as those in attendance: he was concerned about leaving future generations with a bad economic situation.

After viewing a program featuring the founders of the coalition, former senator and presidential candidate Paul Tsongas and former senator Warren Rudman, Presant came to a decision.

"IT'S ABOUT time I stopped complaining about it and started doing something about it," he said.

As a management consultant with a bank advising small businesses on ways to raise money, Presant said he may have a little better understanding of economics, but it is a fairly simple problem.

If three borrowers approached a banker, each with the same income level and in debt to the same extent, each of them seeking to borrow the same amount of money, he said they may be treated differently.

The first being a homeowner who wished to borrow against the equity they created in their home, the second being someone wishing to make an investment, and the third wishing to consolidate debts accumulated on credit, Presant said the third would be hardest scrutinized.

He said the United States is in that situation with the nearly $4.9 trillion it owes, "it's that credit card cycle."

The U.S. Congress creates a deficit when it spends more money on programs than what the government takes in from taxes, said Presant, and the debt gets created when they borrow money to cover those deficits.

Gold card returns

Clarkston schools has announced that it will continue its Senior Gold Card program for school district residents age 62 and older.

The Gold Card entitles the holder to free entry to all Clarkston home athletics events as well as special discounts at the Oakland Technical Center Boutique, free birthday dessert at the Northwest Inn, and discounts on selected classes through the Community Education Center.

The district also schedules special events for Gold Card holders. Last year, members enjoyed a breakfast tour of Springfield Plains Elementary School, dress rehearsal "teas" at Clarkston High School, and an Introduction to Computers class at the new CHS media center.

Eligible residents may obtain a Gold Card from the office of any Clarkston school building or the administration office, 6389 Clarkston Rd. Bring identification such as a driver's license.

He said much of the deficit cutting being talked about in congress is done with "back-loaded" budgeting, congress projecting cuts two, three or four years in the future.

With many elected officials not being in office when those programs are scheduled to be cut, Presant said the new congress often fails to follow through and the budget must increase as a consequence.

This has occurred over the last few decades, he said, and the country has a debt that grew from about $1 trillion at the time former President Jimmy Carter left office.

"I don't think there's ever been a government that's borrowed their way to prosperity," Presant said, and the debt situation affects foreign confidence in our economy.

"IF WE don't show other governments we're not trying to control it, they're not going to want to do business with us," he said.

While Presant did not address many of the specifics of how the group would propose cutting the debt, he did say "everything needs to be on the table."

Even entitlement programs as Social Security and Medicare can be approached more cost effectively, he said, by applying what appears to be mere logic to the programs.

"It's ludicrous that a billionaire like H. Ross Perot should be getting his Medicare paid by working people trying to raise a family," said Presant.

The Concord Coalition literature he had available indicated plans for cutting national security and international spending, domestic spending, government waste and health care.

Those interested in more information about the Concord Coalition could contact District 9 representatives Robert McBride (810) 659-7823 or Jim Reed (810) 625-6245.

Pizza

Rader says he got started in the pizza business because "it was always my favorite food."

"I was picking up pizzas for my parents every Saturday night and saw a sign in the window at Dino's Pizza."

Although it took him three or four years "to get the spinning down," Rader says practice makes perfect and gives twirling tips to the novice.

Until they get it right, aspiring spinners "can flap it back and forth," he says.

Both Burleigh and Ryeson provide catering service — for the common folk and for the stars. Burleigh supplies almost every band who plays under Cellar Door Productions. Some of his famous clients and their pizza orders include Michael Bolton who ordered "two cheese, two pepperoni ...

"Cellar Door absolutely loves the Sicilian Deep Dish," gushes Burleigh. "But Ringo Starr had a really weird pizza. It was a vegetarian pizza."

But even stranger was an order from a regular person: "no cheese, broccoli and anchovies."

Ryeson also does catering for the stars, mostly album release parties through Polygram, Warner Brothers, Electra and other record companies.

"Van Halen never got pizza from me. But Lynard Skynard ordered pizza. They liked pepperoni and double cheese." Ryeson name drops some more, adding that Motley Crue's Vince Neil is a friend and often dropped by E.G. Nicks to get a veggie pizza. Mark Scott, WXYT talk radio host, is also a meatless devotee who likes "very little cheese."

But most clients, both agree, are your average folk who like to "top" off the weekend with a no-fuss meal. That includes Burleigh's 3-year-old daughter "Little Dana," whom he named his business after.

"She always says, 'Daddy, bring me home a BLT pizza.' If I bring her anything else she cries," he says with a hearty laugh.

From "31 Pizza Facts"

A Fact A Day For October,
National Pizza Month

● Americans eat approximately 100 acres of pizza each day.

● There are more than 58,000 pizzerias in the U.S.

● According to a recent Gallup Poll, kids between the ages of 3 and 11 prefer pizza over all other foods for lunch and dinner.

● Pepperoni is America's favorite topping. Other popular pizza toppings are mushrooms, extra cheese, sausage, green pepper and onion.

● Pizza makers have tried virtually every type of food on pizzas, including peanut butter and jelly, bacon and eggs and mashed potatoes.

● Around the world, toppings vary to reflect regional preferences. In Japan, eel and squid are favorites; in Pakistan, curry is a big seller; in Russia, red herring is a topping of choice; Australians enjoy shrimp and pineapple on their pies; Costa Ricans favor coconut.

● Basic pizza probably originated in pre-historic times, with bread cooked on hot stones.

● In 1889, an Italian tavern owner named Don Raffaele Esposito developed a pizza featuring tomatoes, mozzarella cheese and basil — ingredients bearing the colors of the Italian flag. Thus, the modern day tomato-and-cheese pizza was born.

Environmental workshop coming to St. Dan's

BY DARREL W. COLE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

It seems like a logical match. Environmental activism and religion.

But the organizers of the Environmental Workshops for Parishes says it's not so easy to get people interested. "It's been a frustrating effort all in all," said co-founder Iona Conner, who, with John Conner, started the movement in Maryland in 1988.

The goal is to get parishes to do something about preserving and taking care of our environment by establishing a church environmental committee and working in the community to help the environment that God has created for us.

People in the Clarkston area can hear firsthand how they can help when a workshop called "Stewardship of God's Creation" will be offered by the Department of Christian Service and the Connor-founded Grassroots Coalition for Environmental and Economic Justice, Oct. 17 at St. Daniel Church from 7:30-9 p.m. The church is located on Valley Park Drive, near Holcomb and Miller.

It is one of only two presentations in metro Detroit.

The workshop is free and teens are encouraged to attend. Arline Moore of St. Daniel will host the workshop and speakers will include Ed McArdle of the Sierra Club and John Nasazewski of Greenpeace.

The grassroots coalition's goals are to work with parishes and youth groups to:

- Grow in understanding of current environmental conditions.
- Intensify their commitment to God and to protect creation.
- Make environmentally appropriate personal lifestyle changes.
- Work in their communities on environmental problem conditions.
- Influence governments and corporations.
- Invite non-churchgoers to participate in these activities.

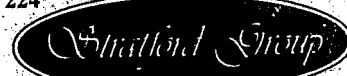

For more information call the Detroit office of the Department of Christian Service at 313-237-5958 or St. Daniel's at 625-4583.

Soccer team gives gutsy performance

BY DARREL W. COLE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

At this point in the season, records don't mean a whole lot.

And the Clarkston boys soccer team is playing like they have nothing to lose. And, in reality, they don't. While CHS has played well as of late — winning three of five games — they still have an overall record of 3-11-1. But the focus now is on districts and finishing the season as strong as possible.

Last week, the Wolves showed their grit in playing over injuries and tough opponents. On Oct. 5, the Wolves lost 6-2 to a physical Troy squad, and then went on to beat Fenton 2-0 Oct. 7 in a heated game.

Coach Dan Fitzgerald has been pleased with the team's effort and intense play as of late. "You know, you look at our record and say 'They must not be playing hard or giving an effort,' but I look back and really can't complain about the effort in most games. A lot of times the other teams we play are just deeper in talent."

The win over Fenton was particularly important because it was a non-division match against an aggressive squad.

"It was a real physical game for us and we need to play more like that," said the coach. "The kids played with a lot of heart in that game."

Clarkston started out the game determined, but couldn't capitalize on at least five breakaway chances (and several other shots on goal) in the game's first half.

The Wolves not only battled missed scoring opportunities, but also a physical Fenton team. More than once, scuffles almost broke out and refs were warning players from start to finish.

Fenton controlled the ball the last five minutes of the first half as the Wolves looked tired from their early all-out effort. But goalkeeper Rean Turner, a sophomore, made some good saves to keep Fenton from scoring.

Entering the second half, Clarkston once again turned up the intensity and finally scored at the 34-

coach Dan Fitzgerald

minute mark on a great assist from senior co-captain Ben Gabriel to senior co-captain Derrick Spires. The play was set up by Gabriel who snuck up the right side, carried the ball to the side of the net and placed a perfect pass to Spires in front of the net from about five feet away.

"Ben sneaks up for us on some plays," said Fitzgerald. "He's real good at creating things."

Fenton then took control of the game, but the Wolves defense wouldn't let up. From that point on it also got real physical. After one particular penalty, the ref asked loudly, "Can we play some soccer yet today?"

But neither team would let up and, for once, it worked in Clarkston's favor. Clarkston got its second and final goal at the 5:10 mark on a great play from senior Adam Gilreath, who fed freshman Dan Jackson for the score.

Gilreath was on the left side of the field and raced down to the corner, beating two defenders for the ball. He then dribbled out of the corner, fending off both players the whole time. As he moved up away from the net, Gilreath spotted Jackson open on the right side of the goal. Without turning his body to the net, Gilreath side-kicked the ball in the air for a perfect pass to Jackson.

Jackson then made a great play as he headed the ball into the goal for the 2-0 lead.

Against Troy, the Wolves played tough for most of the game, but couldn't keep up. CHS was down 2-0 after halftime, but cut that to 2-1 on a goal from senior Phillip Radloff (assist Spires). Troy scored again right away and so did the Wolves.

The score stayed at 3-2 for about 20 minutes until Troy scored again to take a 4-2 lead and never looked back.

The last several weeks have been even more difficult for the Wolves because of injury or illness to key players.

Spires can't use his right foot and limps around the field because of a painful big toe injury. Gabriel is battling a slight case of mononucleosis, sophomore Shawn Verlinden is nursing a bruised hamstring and senior Brad McCue missed several games with a bad back, although his inspired play against Fenton was a key to the game.

Fitzgerald said Spires is forced to use his left foot now because of his injury. "He can't tackle right now because of that and is now forced to do everything with his left. It just shows what kind of kid and player he is that he's still out there battling."

"He's a player that should be all-state but won't be because we aren't winning."

Fitzgerald said he's proud of the effort and dedication the players have shown the last few weeks. He just hopes that carries into the districts Oct. 23-28.

Regionals await tennis squad

BY DARREL W. COLE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

The regular season may have ended for the Clarkston girls tennis team with a loss, but, overall, the season was a success.

The girls lost 8-0 to Troy, an Oakland Activities Association Division I team, Oct. 2 and didn't place anyone in the OAA Division II tournament Oct. 7. Those late-season setbacks didn't come as a surprise to coach Dick Swartout, and regardless, he's proud of the way his team performed all season long.

Against Troy, whose team record is 5-5 overall playing in difficult Division I, the Wolves did receive some strong performances from five players. Number 3 singles player Renee Van Klavern put up a fight in her 7-5, 6-3 loss, the #1 doubles team of juniors

Jocelyn Stock and Becky Olsen played tough before losing 7-5, 6-3, and the doubles team of juniors Kim Deacon and Katie Atkinson lost in a well-played match, 6-4, 6-3.

"Once again you're seeing the difference between the divisions," said Swartout, comparing the Troy loss to his team's 8-0 win over Division IV champ Waterford Kettering two weeks ago.

The team didn't fare quite as well in the OAA tourney. The #1 doubles team of Olsen and Stock, seeded second going into that tournament, was upset in the first round. But once again, the Wolves got a few strong performances.

The #2 doubles team of freshmen Alaina Dodds and Lauren Bogart won their first match but lost the second to the #1 seeded team.

DeGain is voted top coach

DeGain's squad ended up with a 24-

2 overall record, including team titles in OAA Division I, districts and regionals. In addition, seven wrestlers qualified for the state individual meet, the most in CHS history.

DeGain has compiled a 57-9 overall record in his three years at Clarkston.

Clarkston almost upsets Adams

BY DARREL W. COLE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

The Clarkston girls basketball team came close to upsetting state-ranked Rochester Adams Oct. 3, but lost 43-36 in a defensive struggle.

The close game against Adams may have surprised people on the outside, but Clarkston's players and coach fully expected to win. Coach Larry Mahrie said the team knows that because they play such good defense, they always have a chance to win.

"Our girls hung tough and we believe we can beat anyone," said Mahrie.

But in the end the Wolves' lack of size inside made the difference in the game, held at Adams. CHS was outrebounded 41-19. "I think they scored almost all their points on putbacks (offensive rebounds)," said the coach.

The game was close throughout and was tied 33-33 with about 5:30 to go in the final quarter and it didn't help matters when senior co-captain Leah Howard fouled out with 4:30 left.

Clarkston did get strong performances from junior Sue Naboychik with six assists, Howard with 11 points and senior co-captain Nickie Winn with eight points.

The Wolves played Royal Oak Kimball Oct. 5 and came away with a convincing 57-31 division win. The game was close at the half, 24-18, but the Wolves came up with a strong third quarter and outscored Kimball 13-2. After that the outcome was never in doubt and all the CHS players saw game action.

That win moved Clarkston's record to 8-3 overall and 2-2 in the Oakland Activities Association Division I.

The Wolves received several strong performances, including Howard's 14 points, seven steals and six rebounds. Winn added 10 points, junior Allison Richards scored six and had five rebounds, sophomore Jennifer Bauer played a good floor game with four points, four rebounds and three assists, junior Carin Kirk scored six points and had three rebounds, and sophomore Tiffany Honey added four steals.

Mahrie said a 2-2 division record isn't too bad considering the Wolves played their first four OAA games on the road.

"For as young as we are, we are really hanging in there on the road," he said. "These kids just don't know how to give up."

Runners improve as big meets approach

BY DARREL W. COLE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

The boys and girls cross-country teams both gave strong performances last week at a dual meet and the Oakland County meet.

The boys were especially strong in a dual meet with Birmingham Seaholm Oct. 5. They won 27-30 to move to 2-1 in the Oakland Activities Association Division II. At the Oct. 7 county meet, the boys took 26th out of 39 teams.

The girls continued an impressive season by beating rival Seaholm 26-30, to go 3-0 in the OAA. That win also gave Seaholm its only dual meet loss of the season. The girls then went on to finish a strong 5th at the 31-team county meet.

Co-coach Mike Taylor said the boys' dual meet effort was good to see, especially the individual performance of junior Jeff Deevey, who finished 3rd overall and came in one second behind junior teammate Chaz Claus. It was one of the first times this season Claus had a teammate come close to his time.

Claus ran a time of 18:41 and Deevey came in at 18:42.

Clarkston also got strong runs from sophomore Jon Burklow, 6th in 18:58, senior Mike Puroll, 7th in 19:08 and junior Jayson Scheiderer, 9th in 19:25. It was the performance of Puroll and Scheiderer that gave the Wolves the win because Seaholm's last two runners finished in 8th and 12th place.

Deevey once again came up big in the county meet, finishing only two seconds behind Claus' time of 18:22. Coach Taylor said Deevey came on strong in the past week. "Sometimes it goes like that. He's kind of blossomed."

Next up were Burklow and senior Brian Ginn with times of 18:55, Puroll in 19:13, sophomores Curt Brewer and Aaron Sailor in 19:22, and sophomore Jeff Sitko in 19:56.

None of the boys finished in the top 25 at the county.

Girls squad

The girls team was behind early in the Seaholm meet but came back to win a close one.

Senior Stefanie Burklow won once again in a time of 19:55. Junior teammate Kristin Maine was next with a 3rd-place finish in 21:04. Senior Lisa Herron took 6th in 22:20, sophomore Emily Hogan was 7th in 22:22, and senior Stacie Iezzi was 9th in 22:34.

The finishes of Hogan and Iezzi were crucial because they were better than Seaholm's 8th and 11th place finishes.

Liz Cook, one of CHS' top runners, didn't run because of a foot injury.

The girls then gave a good performance at the county meet, led by Burklow's 4th-place finish in 19:45 and Maine's 24-place finish in 20:42. Both Burklow and Maine earned medals for finishing in the top 25.

Clarkston's next top runners were Cook, 51st in 21:33, Iezzi, 52nd in 21:34, and freshman Lissa Lukens, 57th in 21:37.

Taylor said he was real pleased with the efforts of his team and said they know the county meet is not where they want to run their best. Those best efforts should be at regionals, Oct. 28.

He credited Maine and Lukens for good runs, but said it's important the team's 4th to 7th runners put out better times.

Taylor also said Jennifer Gifford ran a strong JV race.

Wolves get wake-up call

No matter the score, the CHS football team knows how to win close games. Friday night, they proved it again.

BY DARREL W. COLE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

It wasn't supposed to be this way. If all went as planned, the Clarkston Wolves football team would have taken a comfortable lead, and then let some players in who haven't seen much time this season.

But all the best plans don't always work out, especially when the opposing team has its eyes on an upset. That's just what Bloomfield Hills Lahser thought Oct. 6. Although Clarkston ended up winning 13-12, Lahser didn't play like an Oakland Activities Association Division III team with a 1-5 record.

Either that, or Clarkston just didn't play like an OAA Division I team with a 5-1 record.

It was more likely a combination of both, according to coach Kurt Richardson.

"Lahser came in with a good game plan and did some things we hadn't seen on film and that we had trouble adjusting to," he said. "They hid the ball real

"...There's something to be said for these kids winning another close game. They know how to get it done."

coach Kurt Richardson

well on us and we just didn't do what we were supposed to on defense.

"It seemed like we'd get good drives but then have some kind of breakdown here and there."

Richardson was not disappointed in the team's effort, but thought the execution they showed in racking up 35 points the week before against Rochester was not there.

If not for a solid fourth quarter on offense and defense, the Wolves might have suffered their second loss of the season. But once again, the players came through in the clutch.

Entering the fourth, Clarkston was down 12-6. But a nice drive that culminated in sophomore running back Brad Phalen's long touchdown run tied the game. Then it was senior Ryan Schapman's turn to once again win it for the Wolves. Just like in the season's second game against Pontiac Central, Schapman kicked the game-winning extra point.

The Wolves had a few other good drives in the final quarter but couldn't capitalize. The defense also clamped down. "We made a couple good defensive stands in our end in the fourth and, for the most part, kept them on their side of the field," Richardson said.

Despite struggling, Richardson said he does realize the key is that his kids pulled it out in the end once again.

"We do have to get back to consistency and need to get much better defensively. But there's something to be said for these kids winning another close game. They know how to get it done."

Providing a spark in the second half was Phalen, the sophomore back who has played sparingly this season. After starter Schapman was injured (bruised ribs), it was Phalen's job to take over at tailback in the second half.

And take over he did with over 100 yards rushing, including some spectacular runs in the final quarter.

"He really came of age and did the things we've been waiting for him to do," said Richardson. "We had tried to give him some reps earlier in the season but it was just a matter of him learning the other things, like pass blocking."

"We always tell the kids you have to be ready because you never know when you'll get a chance to play."

Phalen is just one of four capable Clarkston runners. The others are Schapman, the team's leading rusher this season, senior fullback Joe DeGain, and sophomore fullback Jeff Long.

At one time or another this season, each of those backs has helped carry the team on long, sustained drives.

Clarkston has only three games remaining before playoffs. This week they travel to Rochester Adams in a division battle, then host a Division II team in a crossover game, and end with non-division foe Lake Orion.

PP&K winners

One Clarkston boy was among eight winners at the local Waterford competition of the NFL Gatorade Punt, Pass & Kick competition held last month.

Nicholas Lockwood of Clarkston won the nine-year-old age division with a total score of 157-feet-1-inch. Lockwood beat out the second-place finisher's total of 141-9. The score is the cumulative total of one punt, one pass and one kick.

Tennis nears end

Senior Mary Schmidt, the team's #1 singles player, also performed well despite losing 6-3, 6-3 in the second round to the #1 seed who beat her 6-0, 6-0 earlier in the season.

"This whole team has shown steady improvement all season long," said Swartout. "And we have a lot to look forward to next year as long as the kids take the lessons and go to clinics."

Swartout loses only two seniors — Van Klavem and Schmidt — and is excited about the talent of his younger players, especially the group of freshmen Dadds, Bogart, Kristen Maynard and Kristen Atkinson, all four of whom sported winning records this season.

In addition to the four freshmen, the Wolves will return three other players with winning records, including #4 singles junior Kristy Kade, Stock and Olsen, as well as #2 singles junior Sam Schubering, who finished one win away from .500.

Clarkston's top three singles players didn't have winning records but played tough competition each week with very few easy opponents.

The team hopes to have a good showing at regionals Oct. 13 to end the season. The team banquet is tentatively scheduled for Oct. 26.

Sat 9-3

By Mike Romeln

JV Golf

The weather was far from perfect last week, with rain and windy conditions. Obviously, Matt Williams failed to notice, as he broke his previous best round of the year last week by two strokes, shooting 37 on a tough Oxford Hills course on October 4. For the week, the Wolves were 1-1, and were rained out on Thursday.

On October 2, the Wolves lost to West Bloomfield 166-179 at Tam-o-Shanter. Ben Ness and Williams led the team with 41s; Adam Tate shot 48, and Chris Rosco shot a 49.

On October 4, Williams came through again to lead the Wolves to a 176-178 victory over Lake Orion. Ness was consistent as usual with a 43, Rosco shot a 46, and Tate and James Dennig both shot 50.

The Wolves are 3-9 overall, and coming upon a difficult stretch this week with three away games. They are scheduled to play Bloomfield Hills Lahser, Bloomfield Hills Andover, and Rochester.

JV Football

It was difficult to see the game through the driving rain, but the rough and nasty conditions did not slow down the Wolves as they trudged to a 16-8 victory over Bloomfield Hills Lahser.

When a team commits seven turnovers, as Lahser did, winning can be difficult, as Lahser found out. On the other hand, Clarkston was mistake-free. "We stressed before the game how important it was to hold on to the ball," said Coach Doug Colling. "We knew the ball would be slippery, and the defense would be grabbing for it on every play."

Jeff Loveless played an outstanding game on defense, making a big sack in the first quarter to knock the ball from the quarterback's hands. Clarkston recovered on the Lahser 20 yard line, and went up 8-0 on Brad Bailey's touchdown run and Jared Thomas' two-point conversion.

Clarkston scored again before the first half ended, this time on a Thomas one-yard run. Nate Skipton caught the pass for the two-point conversion and Clarkston headed into the second half with a 16-0 lead.

The defense finally allowed a touchdown with eight minutes left, as Lahser got an 85-yard touchdown run. Before the game ended, the Wolves would twice have the ball inside the Lahser 10, but came away empty both times.

"Everyone played tough, and we had a lot of fun out there," said Colling.

The Wolves are now 3-3, and play Rochester Adams this week.

JV Girls Basketball

Clarkston and Waterford Kettering are on a collision course. Both are tied for the league lead, both undefeated and scheduled to play this Thursday, October 12, at Kettering. Although this will not be the only time they meet this season, the winner will have the inside track to the league title.

The Wolves looked very impressive this week, winning two more games to up their record to 11-0. On October 3, Clarkston defeated Rochester Adams in a tough league game, 55-40. The Wolves led by five heading into the fourth quarter, and won it going away. Abby Wiley led Clarkston with 14 points and 10 rebounds, Aimee Giroux scored 12, and point guard Georgia Senkyr played a solid game with five points, four rebounds, four steals and three assists.

On October 5, the Wolves outscored Royal Oak Kimball 30-8 in the first half, and then cruised to victory to raise their record in the league to 4-0.

"We played real well," said head coach Brian Ray. "We shot the ball well and limited our turnovers."

This week, the Wolves play Pontiac Northern, and then get the big showdown against the Captains of Kettering.

JV Soccer

The JV soccer team split a pair of games this past week.

On October 5, the Wolves lost to Troy. Mike Lenhardt scored the lone Clarkston goal.

They rebounded on October 7 with a 5-2 victory over Fenton. Eric Klemm put the ball in the net three times for the Wolves. Lenhardt and Eric Eaton also scored for Clarkston.

The Wolves are now 7-7-1. They will play Royal Oak Kimball and Troy Athens this week.

Team approach to AD's office

BY ANNETTE KINGSBURY
Clarkston News Editor

After one year of sharing the duties formerly assigned to the athletic director, Paul Tungate and Dan Fife say their arrangement is working out fine, thank you very much.

Reporting to the Clarkston Board of Education Monday night, Fife, who works afternoons as athletic manager, and Tungate, who works mornings as athletic advisor, said they've come to be known as AM and PM around the league. Tungate retired a year ago as the district's full-time athletic director. Fife also coaches varsity basketball.

"The people in these positions seem to be very supportive of one another," said Clarkston High School principal Brent Cooley, adding that athletes and parents also seem to have accepted the arrangement.

As for coaches, Cooley said "They've adapted real well to that. We have not had anything spill over into the administrative offices."

Tungate's duties include scheduling, assigning officials, handling record-keeping and transportation and budgeting. Fife takes over at noon each day and attends all evening functions, as well as handling discipline and league duties.

"There is some overlap," Tungate said. "We make sure one person takes a position so we don't have two different decisions coming out of the office."

"He's been like a mentor to me in this position and it's been easy to work with," Fife said.

The dual staffing is actually saving the district some $20,000 a year, Cooley said, due to the fact that two part-time employees fill the job of one former full-time person.

Both Fife and Tungate said they are happy with the new Oakland Activities League and feel it has given Clarkston athletes exposure around the county they didn't have before when they were members of GOAL.

Fishing contest winners

Donna and Fred Munger of Clarkston were among many Oakland County winners in the Oakland County Parks annual fishing contest.

The Memorial Day to Labor Day contest was held at Crooked Lake in Independence Oaks and at Buhl Lake in Addison Oaks. Anglers registered their catch with parks staff and the biggest catches were determined by multiplying the fish's length by its weight.

Area winners at Independence Oaks were Fred Munger, who registered a large mouth bass at 20.5-inches long and 4-lbs, 10-ozs, and Donna Munger, who registered a rock bass at 10.5-inches long and 12-ozs.

Each top angler was awarded a fishing rod, reel and tackle box.

Volleyball star

Clarkston resident Cara Marker had 80 assists and 22 digs in two matches last week for her Kalamazoo College volleyball team, ranked fifth in the NCAA Division III women's volleyball poll.

Marker, a 1994 all-region selection, is a senior captain on the team. The Lake Orion High graduate is majoring in psychology/education.

Her parents, Tim and Joyce Marker, live in Clarkston.

Under 16

Oct. 8: The U16 team took an early lead on a goal by Alaina Dodds and the score remained 1-0 at half-time. Grosse Pointe came out strong after halftime and tied the game on a questionable goal scored off a corner kick. The Shadows recovered and Cara Forney converted a penalty kick after Amy Coughlin was fouled in the goal box. Dodds added another goal to seal the win. The team got good defense from Jenna Lynn and Beth Whittington while Crystal Wilkerson played a complete game in goal.

Under 19

Oct. 7: The U19 team beat the Warren Rush by a final score of 5-2. Allison Grieme scored two goals while Jackie Tripi, Natalie Vaughn and Brynn Allyn also scored. Assists went to Mindi Thompson, Amanda Yarber and Grieme.

Oct. 8: Warren United was the next opponent to fail to the Shadows by a 2-1 score. The win came against the only team to beat the U19 team this season. Goals were scored by Tripi and Norma Kammer, while Allyn, Carin Lloyd and Grieme had a number of shots on goal. Yarber and Jenny McCue played strong games from their midfield positions while Erica Holman played good defense. Erin Forney contributed to the winning effort with three saves as goalie. The Shadows' record is now 5-1-1.

130-IN MEMORIAM

IN MEMORY OF
Steven J. Jones
OCTOBER 16, 1995

It seems that every day in one way or another we are reminded of you... It could be that we hear a song, or walk past a familiar face, or just see the fall leaves dropping, and we realize once again how much we miss you. Even though we're not together, you are still a very special part of our life... Of course, we'd much rather you were here, but we are sure that you are in a better place with no pain, and you can be sure that thoughts of you and memories of times together are still very meaningful moments in our lives.

We miss you Stevie,
Love, your family

Clarkston tot Julian Cafmeyer, 13 months, shows no sign of being bored as he gleefully plays among the pumpkins at Ashton's.

David Vanderheyden, 5, a kindergartener at Pine Knob Elementary, decides this pumpkin is just the right size.

This sister and brother find more to enjoy than pumpkins and goodies. They're fascinated by the tiny gourds and bunches of colored corn.

Little does 4-year-old Kortni Chrisman know — there's something good for her underneath all that caramel and delicious nut topping. Kortni's mom Ardith wasn't sure her daughter would eat the apple once she found it.

Babes in pumpkinland

After several days of dreary weather, Sunday dawned crisp and clear. With just the right nip in the air, it was time to think about football, sweatshirts, apple cider and doughnuts.

People left their cares behind and trekked to the orchards and cider mills, sitting down at picnic tables to enjoy the familiar sights, tastes and smells of fall.

At Ashton's Orchard in Brandon Township, little ones were attracted by the bright, orange pumpkins — some as big as themselves. Parents were charmed by happy smiles and most children walked off with their favorites.

After all, it wasn't TOO soon to think about Halloween ...
