Foreign student enrollment doubles

Schools add a second aide for English as a Second Language kids

BY ANNETTE KINGSBURY
Clarkston News Editor

A bulletin board at Pine Knob Elementary School is filled with smiling faces. Not so unusual, except that the children pictured there—10 in all—come from Syria, Germany, Mexico and China. All of them are learning English in Clarkston schools.

That's more students with English as a second language at just one school than were expected in the entire Clarkston school district this year. In all, 18 ESL students are enrolled, more than double last year's count, with another 25-30 considered bilingual.

"I knew the first day of school I needed help," said teacher's aide Jessica Hurr, who has been running Clarkston's ESL program since 1984 when two little girls from China enrolled.

"We've had a big influx this year, everybody was surprised," Hurr said. The workload has become too much for just one person, so the board of education approved the hiring of another aide, Ann Gettig-Yovich, at its Nov. 6 meeting.

"We've become a United Nations over here,"

said Dr. Michael LaBay, Clarkston's Deputy Superintendent for Instruction. He said state law requires the district to go to bi-lingual status if it enrolls 20 children in one foreign language. "We're not there yet," he added.

Indeed, according to Hurr, students come from many different countries and circumstances when they move to Clarkston. Some families come on job transfers. Some emigrate to live with relatives already here. Hurr's job is to help them learn English well enough to keep up with American-born classmates.

"I think it's real important they learn the classroom vocabulary rather than 'I am going to the theater,'" she said, referring to traditional foreign language teaching style. "We have everything from non-English speakers to those who just need support for spelling and reading."

Fourth-grader Marcos Escamilla, a native of Mexico, would seem to be one of the latter. Now in his third year at Pine Knob, his father is a chef at Mesquite Creek and he has a brother and cousin also enrolled in Clarkston.

On this day he and Hurr will work on vocabulary for an upcoming spelling test. Without much apparent trouble, he reads each word aloud to Hurr, tells her how many syllables it contains and sounds them out. Hurr writes each word out onto a note card that can be used for practice later on at home. If he gets an A on the test, he gets to choose a reward.

"Marcos, you're doing great," Hurr says. Though he got a lot of A's last year, Marcos says, "This is different. It's harder." Even so, he wants to hold out for 25 A's before getting a reward.

"He couldn't have done this last year," Hurr says after Marcos' lesson is over. In one year he went from a first-grade to a fourth-grade reading level. "I spent a lot of time working on his self-confidence last year."

Then it's on to the first-grade classroom of Lynda Geary, who has two ESL students. Charlene Wang came from China in January; her father works for Ford. Lama Alghanem is in her second year in the U.S. but lived in Ann Arbor last year. It's the second year in a row Geary has had two ESL students in her class.

"It helps me when they (teachers) know what to expect," Hurr said. As she enters the classroom, students are about to take up their journals. They are assigned, in honor of Thanksgiving, to write a sentence containing the word "give."

During the discussion Lama raises her hand a couple of times but neither she nor Charlene speaks much. It's clear, however, by their responses that they seem to understand what is going on.

Geary confirms that the ESL students are more reticent with adults than they are with their peers. "You'll find them talking to each other in complete sentences," she said. "Most of the kids tend to be quite

The news in brief

Meeting time changes

Due to the impending Thanksgiving holiday, the November 21 meeting of the Independence Township Board of Trustees will begin at 5:30 p.m., rather than the regular 7:30 start time. The meeting is held at the township hall, 90 N. Main St.

Bids for Bay Court II

Phase II of Bay Court Park, which will include a multi-purpose building and beachfront renovations, could be done by Memorial Day of 1996.

But for now, Independence Township Parks and Recreation Director Ann Conklin is working on getting some acceptable bids for the $500,000 project.

Conklin received the board of trustees' permission to reject most of the 15 bids received for the project at its Nov. 7 meeting. Conklin said one bid was acceptable but she'd like to wait for a few other contractors to submit proposals.

Fire code updated

The Independence Township fire department's fire prevention ordinance is being amended to comply with more current laws.

The eight pages of amendments will be up for final adoption at the township board of trustees Nov. 21 meeting.

Most of the fire code updates relate to businesses and include regulations regarding Dumpsters, fire extinguishers, exits and entrances, an escape plan, etc.

City fills board vacancies

The following appointments were made during the Nov. 13 Clarkston City Council meeting.

Councilman Doug Roeser was appointed new Mayor Pro Tem, 7-0, to fill the vacancy left by former Councilman James Schultz.

Councilman Steve Secatch was appointed to city street administrator, 7-0, to replace Schultz. He was also appointed as the city council representative to the planning commission, 7-0.

Councilman Roeser was also appointed to the city's zoning board of appeals, 7-0, as council representative. Planning commission member Steve Arkwright was appointed to represent the commission on the ZBA, 7-0.

Movie theater coming?

Sashabaw Plains Park is under consideration for use as part of a cinema complex.

Currently the Independence Township Parks and Recreation department is leasing the land from Detroit Edison and using it as two soccer fields. In the last month, Edison asked the township to consider terminating the lease because a developer requested purchasing the property for use as ingress and egress to a theater complex.

Parks and recreation director Ann Conklin said in a letter to the board of trustees that the fields are not vital to the department and shouldn't stand in the way of a development that could benefit the entire township.

The board tabled the agenda item at its Nov. 7 meeting.

Chamber puts best foot forward

Annual Business Expo a chance to see and be seen

Spring Lake County Club was packed Nov. 8 for the annual Clarkston Area Chamber of Commerce Business Expo—and why not?

Where else can you go and chow down on free food while collecting free gifts from dozens of area merchants? One guest compared it to Halloween, and wasn't too far off, only this time it was adults going around with large plastic bags to haul the goodies home in.

The event, which was even more crowded than last year, is an opportunity for the community to meet business owners and put a face with a name. It's also a good networking opportunity for community movers and shakers.

Parking was a serious problem on this very cold night as cars spilled out onto the shoulder of Maybee Rd. and adjacent side streets. The huge turnout—1,300 guests plus 75 exhibitors, was unpredictable.

But otherwise the evening was a resounding success, according to event chairperson Carrol Cantor of Carrol's Flowers, who attributed the big turnout (double last year's) to good word of mouth.

"It just gets bigger every year," she said. "The purpose is to get many residents in to see the local businesses."

Cantor said the parking problem will be resolved next year, probably by using a limousine service to shuttle guests to and from a parking lot on Sashabaw Rd. "It will make it a whole lot easier for a lot of people."

Cantor said she had people helping with traffic at 5:45 (the opening was at 6 p.m.), "and already it was too late."

The expo is also popular with exhibitors. Last year there were 57, this year 75, and Cantor said she's figured out a way to squeeze in 10 more next year.

"I don't think it was too crowded in the building. It wasn't uncomfortable at all. I thought it was perfect."

This was the ninth annual Business Expo, the third year at Spring Lake and Cantor's third year as chairperson. When asked if she would be back next year, she said, "I wasn't going to because I've done it three years in a row. But this parking thing has got to me."

That sound like a yes.

Site plan for new CHS goes before community

BY ANNETTE KINGSBURY
Clarkston News Editor

The architects working on the perfect plan for the new Clarkston High School have moved the parts around, at least on paper, trying to come up with the most friendly plan while meeting the educational specifications requested by the school district.

They want to be friendly to the land, the neighbors and those who will use or visit the building, according to Chuck Olson of Greiner, Inc.

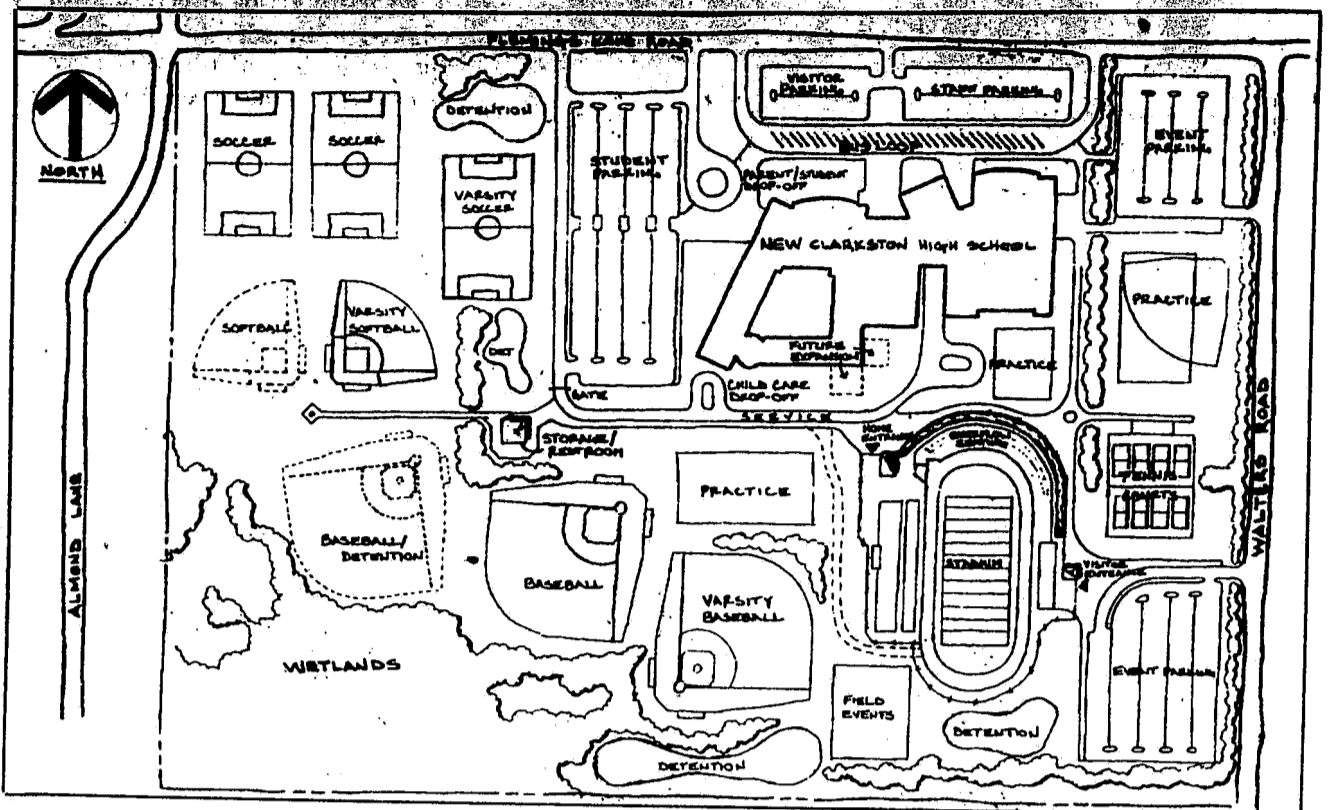

Olson told the Clarkston Board of Education at its meeting Nov. 6 that the wetlands on the property will be protected and the building will take full advantage of the rolling terrain and existing trees. In addition, he is trying to put parking lots and athletic fields, which require lots of lighting and draw lots of traffic, away from existing homes around the site, which is bordered by Flemings Lake Rd. on the north and Walters Rd. on the east.

Olson will present a site plan and interior plans for the building at a public meeting Monday, Nov. 20 at the high school auditorium at 7 p.m. The public is invited to attend.

"We're not complete yet with our schematic; our drawings are still changing," Olson said Nov. 6. "We're going to preserve the rolling nature of the site ... that wetland area is going to be totally preserved. We're going to have to knock down some trees but we're going to protect as many as we can."

One neighbor of the proposed building, who lives on Walters Rd., expressed concern about the amount of traffic the new building will bring to her street. Olson said it would be about 900 cars a day, in addition to sporting events.

"There is always something going on at school," said the neighbor, who didn't give her name. "So this is a real serious concern for us."

Plans Olson displayed Nov. 6 showed the ball fields tucked to the interior of the parcel, which ends 1000 feet from Waldon Rd. The main entrance to the building would face Flemings Lake Rd., with the intention of bringing most traffic in from that street instead of Walters.

Olson said he has met with the Road Commission for Oakland County and discussed the possibility of installing a traffic light either at Flemings Lake and Clarkston or at Walters and Waldon. So far, that is just in the discussion stage.

"I'm not asking for a traffic signal," the neighbor said. "I have to be able to get out of my driveway ... I myself and many of my neighbors will be at that meeting on the 20th. We don't know the questions to ask. We don't want them to become hysterical concerns."

"If there's any way we can make this plan fit better into the neighborhood, we want to hear them," Olson responded. "We will present our goals and then show how this plan fits into them." He suggested the neighbors prepare their own list of goals and bring them to the meeting Monday night.

"We have to work together to come up with the right solutions," said school board trustee Kurt Shanks.

Financing set for new fire station

BY DARREL W. COLE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Contractors are hired, a purchase agreement for property is imminent and now financing is set.

Soon the real work will begin on Independence Township's $2.2 million (including the $307,000 for land) fire station/fire administration/sheriff's substation complex, proposed to be located on Citation Drive, near the district court.

The building's financing is the latest aspect of the project to be approved by the township. The board of trustees voted 7-0 Nov. 7 to have NBD finance the acquisition of land and the building of the complex in the amount of $2,250,000.

The board decided on NBD's offer of a ten-year fixed rate at 5.45 percent interest, rejecting Comerica's similar offer. Financial consultants Evenson Dodge recommended the board accept NBD's offer because it allows the township to pay off the debt or refinance within five years. Comerica's proposal states any such actions would have to be approved by them first.

"It's just good to have this option in case," said Evenson Dodge's Tom Traciak. "Another point is that if you have cash available in the future and you want to pay off early you can do that."

After 10 years the interest on the debt will add up to over $714,000. Each year until 1995 the township will have to make a payment between $287,000 and $303,000.

Construction is expected to begin this month.

Other board action:

● The township board finally ended negotiations with a property owner on Bow Pointe Road in order to move on with road improvement plans.

The township was looking to acquire two parcels of land from one owner in order to improve and expand

Bow Pointe Road. Negotiations have gone on for several years with no progress made.

Because the project is deemed a benefit to the public, township attorneys recommended the board begin condemnation proceedings in circuit court. Such a process allows a municipality to purchase the land for a fair price because it would be for a public good.

● Mr. B's restaurant/bar, going in off Dixie, near M-15, needed to modify its liquor license request. The state's Liquor Control Commission is requiring Mr. B's to secure a transfer of a liquor license from the old building (recently torn down) to the new structure.

Mr. B's originally received approval for the transfer of ownership of the Sam's Town license to them, but the state required new approval because the old building was torn down.

The board approved the request, which will now be forwarded to the state. The restaurant is expected to open by Thanksgiving.

● Lowrie's Landscape was approved for the two-year snow removal contract at Thendara Park. The costs will remain at the 1994-95 season rate of $7,200 per season.

● The parks and recreation department is requesting bids for a senior van and a mower.

The van, used for the senior transportation program, would replace a 1991 van (with a wheelchair lift) that has 120,000 miles on it and is breaking down. Parks and rec director Ann Conklin said $25,000 has already been budgeted for a new van, with the funds coming from CDBG budgets from 1993-95.

The new van will supplement the township's 1993 van that has 76,000 miles, but runs well.

Bids will also be accepted for a new mower to help maintain over 120 acres of land.

● A public hearing was held on how the township should spend its $67,000 in Community Development Block Grant Funds. Some possible projects include donations to HAVEN, Clarkston Youth Assistance, Homechore, Meals on Wheels, Lighthouse North, tables and chairs for the township senior center, etc.

● The parks and recreation department received permission to advertise for a recreation programmer.

● The board approved its special assessment district tax role. The lost of assessments adds up to over $544,000 and includes over 5,000 parcels. Some of the SADs include 25 street lighting projects, delinquent water/sewer charges, lake level maintenance, road improvements, one drain project and street and sewer projects.

● The board met in closed session with specially hired attorney Roger Timm to discuss pending litigation.

The Clarkston News

In Focus

by Annette Kingsbury

The joint was jumping

It took me at least 20 minutes to find a parking place at last week's Clarkston Area Chamber of Commerce Expo, and even then it was probably illegal.

Last year I arrived late and found it difficult to get anything to eat. So this year, I told myself, I'll get there right when the shindig starts and everything will be fine.

Anyone who attended that night (Nov. 8) will be chuckling right about now. Even though I arrived just a few minutes after the appointed starting time of 6 p.m., I circled till nearly 6:30 trying to figure out what to do. I would have just gone home, but it was my job to take pictures so I had to get in.

I finally decided to park on a short, dead-end dirt road across from Spring Lake Country Club. It was very dark and hard to be seen as a pedestrian on the street, so I didn't want to have to walk far. There were other cars parked on the same vacant lot, so I crossed my fingers and left my car, hoping it would still be there when I got back.

Oh, it was still there all right, but so was an angry resident who confronted me about being on her property. She said she was taking down license-plate numbers and calling the police. I don't blame her for being mad, but no one could have predicted the huge turnout. Last year, even though I was late, I had no trouble getting a space in the Spring Lake parking lot.

I spoke to Carrol Cantor, the event chairperson, about the problem and she was just as surprised as anybody.

"We had people out there directing traffic at 5:45 and it was already too late," she said.

Next year, with even more exhibitors planned and probably more good word of mouth, Cantor is planning some kind of shuttle service. Good idea.

Helping hands

It's that time of year when you will begin hearing solicitations from all over asking for help for our less fortunate neighbors. The Clarkston News will be among them as we collect books for the Gift of Reading program which will go to Lighthouse North.

It occurred to me while at the Business Expo that a lot of local business owners will be involved. Indeed, many are involved all year working on various fundraising schemes. So when shopping during this all important holiday season, we might all do well to remember to patronize those merchants who give back to this community.

For example, Clarkston Auto Wash, owned by the indomitable Fred and Sheila Ritter, gave away a free upgrade Nov. 10-12 on your car wash for bringing in a non-perishable food item or cash donation for Lighthouse's Thanksgiving basket drive. Farmer Jack will enter you into a raffle for a $50 shopping spree for donating two non-perishable food items.

As more of these events are scheduled, we will attempt to bring them to your attention. But they illustrate why a phrase like "Shop your home town" is more than just a slogan. Home town people work in those businesses, and home town people benefit when such businesses do well.

Opinion

A good mix on city council

After a 43-percent turnout of registered voters at the Nov. 7 city council election, it can truly be said apathy is not alive and well in the City of the Village of Clarkston.

The fact that Walt Gamble received an overwhelming tally of 229 votes shows that residents have been paying attention to what goes on in their community. By electing Gamble, they've listened and voted for someone who takes the time to research issues with common sense and concern. Walt Gamble has a good head on his shoulders and provides the balance for a council that must make some crucial decisions within the year ahead. We agree with his statement that we can neither make decisions in a vacuum nor based on fear.

By voting for Dave Savage Clarkston residents have shown they are not happy with the unanimity council has exhibited in the past. Savage has spoken for those people who believe another voice should be heard. He's not afraid to speak up and will be an effective catalyst for change in the community.

By re-electing 10-year incumbent Bill Basinger, Clarkston residents have said they want to keep some experience on the council. They support Basinger's long track record and have faith in his anchored commitment to maintain Clarkston as it is.

We think this broad spectrum of opinion is healthy.

In a political cartoon The Clarkston News ran several weeks ago, Basinger and Savage were featured in a tug of war, positioned in their respective stances of tradition and change. If one more character had been added it would have been Gamble in the middle of the road.

Too often residents are blind to decisions that affect their very lives. Hopefully those who voted won't let that interest wane, but will attend future council meetings with open minds and continued commitment. This wasn't just an election. It was a milestone for Clarkston residents. ECO

The Insider

Now, what was that name?

During almost two hours of counting ballots for the Nov. 7 city council election, write-in Tom Zukowski received approximately 12 variations on his name. Some voters left his first name out altogether with misspellings including "W. Zuchowski," "Zilkowski" — and a suspicious-sounding "Tom Lobrowski." The inaccuracies prompted several of those standing around to tell Zukowski he would have had a far better chance had he been named "Smith" or "Jones."

Jim's Jottings

By Jim Sherman

Has the dot replaced the period?

Where have all the periods gone?
Have they been replaced by dots?

I was in an elementary classroom recently with granddaughter Karen, so I know computers have not totally replaced chalkboards, though they may have replaced multiplication table learning.

Ok, so a teacher, any teacher, instructs a student to write a dollar twenty five on the board, and he/she student writes $125.

Quiz: Will the teacher ask, "Where does the period go?" as she did in my elementary days, or will she/he ask, "Where does the dot go?" as seems to be the trendy computer talk today.

I sometimes listen to fm 95.5 on the radio where Dick Purtan, etc. hold forth 6 to 10 a.m. When I first started listening Purtan would say, "You're listening to ninety five point five."

No more. He says, "You're listening to ninety five dot five." It's that way all over the fm dial.

Personally I think the word dot should be left for the Morse code and an abbreviation for Dorothy.

Webster's fifth edition says a dot is a speck, a precise point in time or space, part of a letter in the Morse code. I'd like it better if Purtan says 95 speck five. At least he'd be different.

Periods not only make a point, they exclaim. In a recent column in his Detroit Free Press, Hugh McDiarmid wrote "Not 'each faculty' or 'each student body' or 'each claue of taxpayers in conjunction with the board,' but each board. Period." When a person says it that way it's the end of the discussion.

McDiarmid knows that writing, '... each board. Dot,' though proving he may be computer literate, would read as stupid as it looks.

I swear without the dot computer users would be just normal people like you and I. But, no, they can't communicate without dots and slashes. Listen to them tell, outloud, how to reach them on the internet, outer-net and fishnet.

"Hey, you can get me on jas dot slash u r nuts dot dot slash slash o j dot." I think everyone has an o j.

I fully believe the word period is headed for extinction except on afternoon talk shows when "those types" refer to menstrual cycles.

No, you didn't read it here first.

15 YEARS AGO (1980)

After the defeat of a ballot proposal to ban leaf burning eight months ago, Clarkston's Village Council is now considering overriding resident opinion and instituting a ban. The reconsideration is prompted by Independence Township resident Beverly Clemo who feels air pollution is the primary reason to take another look. Clemo says there is dense smoke rolling across village streets which remains there and endangers the lives of pedestrians. She is also concerned about the fact that some are burning leaves without a permit.

The Republican landslide which affects the nation, electing Ronald Reagan to the office of U.S. President, gets some help from Independence Township voters. Nationwide, Reagan defeats Democrat President Jimmy Carter with a 10-point spread — 51 to 41 percent.

The 10th annual Clarkston Chiefs little league football banquet held at Springfield Oaks Activities Center features two guest speakers, Detroit Lions place-kicker Eddie Murray and Clarkston High School Head Football Coach Walt Wyniemko. Murray fields many questions posed by little-leaguers, including one asked by a young fan. "What two teams are going to be in the Super Bowl?" he asks. "Well, the Lions are going to be one of them," answers Murray, drawing cheers from the audience.

25 YEARS AGO (1970)

Terry Thomas, Director of Student Services for Oakland Schools and a Clarkston resident, is given the Outstanding Guidance and Counseling Award by the Michigan School Counselor Association. Before coming to Oakland schools five years ago, Thomas was director of counseling at Clarkston High School. His other stellar accomplishments include editor of the Personnel and Guidance Association Journal and the Pupil Services Newsletter.

At its regular monthly meeting the Clarkston Board of Education announces several promotions and changes in administrative personnel. Milford Mason, administrative assistant in charge of special services, is named administrative assistant to the superintendent to fill the vacancy created by the death of Floyd Vincent. In addition, William Dennis is named high school principal and Janet Gabier is placed as dean of girls and head of adult education. Other promotions include Louise Jarvis to the capacity of assistant business manager, Mildred Rundell, to director of data processing, and Judith Day to bookkeeper.

Bailey Lake School holds a mock election for fourth- and fifth-graders on Nov. 2. Besides electing Governor William Milliken over Sander Levin, the students are overwhelmingly in favor, 218-42, of the Michigan Constitution being amended to allow 18-year-olds to vote.

50 YEARS AGO (1945)

The unbeaten Clarkston Wolves chalk up a perfect record for football season when they defeat Lake Orion 14-6. The longest game of the season includes many penalties, time outs, fumbles and — believe it or not — darkness. It is actually dark when the game finally ends. This is the final game for backs Frank Ronk, Bill Sharp and Walt Laplante. Norm (Tiny) Johnson, a 230-pound guard, and Jack Zollner, a 225-pound tackle, also play their last game.

The Holly Theatre features Warner Baxter and Hillary Brooke in "The Crime Doctor's Courage" and Bette Davis and Jon Hall in "The Corn is Green." Now showing at the Drayton Theatre are "Naughty Nineties" with Abbott & Costello and "Roughly Speaking" with Rosalind Russell and Jack Carson.

Specials at Rudy's include Drefit, a large box for 26 cents; Ivory Soap, two large bars for 21 cents; Campbell Tomato Soup, three cans for a quarter; Stokely Cream Corn, three cans for 42 cents; Gro Pup Dog Food, a box for 26 cents; and Del Monte Coffee, two pounds for 65 cents.

60 YEARS AGO (1935)

There's no fishy tale when Gus Larion, assisted by Raymond Jarvis, catches a 7 1/2 pound pike in the Mill Pond Wednesday. Larion is especially happy about the fact that the fish is caught right from the shore at the edge of his yard.

Seeterlin Bros, Inc. has been appointed to sell and service Oldsmobiles in this community. This new activity is in addition to their Chevrolet agency and will enlarge their business so as to cover the low- and medium-price fields.

Specials at Waterbury's Home Market this week include rolled rib roast, 27 cents a pound; bulk oysters, 29 cents a pint; Acme Graham or Soda Crackers, a one-pound package for 11 cents; Fels Naptha Soap, five bars for 22 cents; and Beechnut Catsup, two large bottles for 35 cents.

Vacations are made for breaking the law

On I-75, as the blinking police car in my rear view mirror signaled for me to pull over, my wife said: "I've warned you a hundred times that Tennessee police are strict about speeding."

"We are in Kentucky," I said.

"Them, too," she said.

What this nation needs is clearly stated, uniformly enforced speed limits on interstate freeways. We could also use fewer spouses who believe there are no limits, geographical or otherwise, on the instant conversion of hindsight into foresight.

Everyone knows the posted 55 and 65 mph limits are a joke. But how big a joke? For many years, when the road ahead is clear enough, I've set the cruise control on 65 for 55, and 80 for 65. This way I can pretty much keep up with traffic, except for tractor-trailers thundering downhill, which are why rest stops were invented.

For many thousands of miles, in Kentucky and everywhere else, this policy brought me not one speeding ticket. Until last month, when suddenly this Kentucky state cop charges me with going 15 miles over the 65 limit. Was he going through a change of life, an unearthly spiritual conversion, or what?

The fine was $89. But what hurt more was the opportunity given my darling wife to sympathize with my blotched driving record - car insurance going up? - by saying if I'd only listened to her continual obey-the-law warnings, I wouldn't have been eligible to be picked by that cop as that minute's one violator in a thousand who deserved punishment.

All of which is mundane griping about a common problem, hardly worth valuable newspaper space, except for what happened a few days later. What happened proved that it all depends, and wives can be as criminal as husbands.

We were in Florida, driving north from Naples to Ft. Myers Beach on a narrow two-lane coastal road, the only access to our destination, where we were to pick up two women and take them out to dinner. We got caught in a never-explained traffic jam that repeatedly slowed to complete long stops. It was soon apparent that we'd be at least an hour late for our date.

Except my wife couldn't stand the thought of her good friends waiting so long at a curb. Noting that the road intermittently expanded to include a long middle lane for turning only, she commanded me to use it, swiftly, although I had no intention of turning and then force snarling, law-abiding motorists to let me back in the regular lane or I would dent their fenders.

When I pointed out that we were breaking the law, my wife said it was OK because this was an emergency. As we neared our goal, only a few minutes late, she even ordered me to briefly drive the wrong way on a one-way street. From the look in her eyes, I suspected she was becoming a serial traffic law violator.

I followed my wife's criminal demands - after she put them in writing on the back of a road map - only in the hope of being caught by the law. I yearned to hear her tell a police officer about her two abandoned friends, prostrate on a curb, starving to death within sight of 15 restaurants.

But you can never find a cop when you really need one. My only possible recourse was provided later, by a posted restriction violated even more often than freeway speed limits. I mean those pool signs that order, "Shower Before Swimming."

There was such a sign where we frequently swam for a month. While my wife dog-paddled, I told everyone I could find that she hadn't showered in several days. But no one cared.

This is truly a lawless society.

Long-time columnist Jim Fitzgerald announced his retirement from the Detroit Free Press earlier this year. We will continue to publish his column, however, through the end of the year.

Don't Rush Me

By Don Rush

Dog food for thought

As assassinations, killings and bombings continue in the Holy Land . . .

. . . during this nation's worst turmoil since WW2 (giving 800,000 unnecessary taxpayer paid employees a few days off -- which is a few less people than populate the city of Detroit) . . . I did something I never thought I'd do.

Before giving Mickey The Wonder Dog a little bone-shaped dog biscuit, I took a nibble.

I honestly do not know what came over me. What evil force guided my hand and opened my mouth and made me chew and swallow, I don't know.

I'm telling you I just did it. I confess.

As I stood there in the kitchen, chewing, Mickey waited as patiently as she could for the rest of her treat. Which is to say she stomped around, bounced and yipped, as impatient dogs have a way of doing.

Crunch, crunch, crunch.

What did it taste like, I pondered? I knew that cardboardy flavor. I flicked the two-inch treat to Mickey and walked over to the couch to sit down.

Had I ate dog food as a kid? What was the name of the pup Mom and Dad got from Aunt Pat's about the same time I came into the world?

Teddy.

Was it Teddy The Dog's food I munched on . . . why did I know that flavor? What secret from my past was being unlocked?

And then, as if by Divine intervention, the answer came to me.

The answer took me back to St. Dan's Catholic Church in Clarkston. Back to a time when the new church was nothing more than a hill with some tall grass growing on it.

Back to a time when I, Donald P. Rush, trouble maker, was pure as the driven snow (sort of), when I was an altar boy. That taste came from the church. That dog biscuit tasted like those little round wafers.

"The body of Christ."

"Amen."

Crunch.

Okay, here's the next question. Is there some sort of symbolic thing going on here? Follow this: a dog biscuit tastes like the little round wafers eaten at church . . . dog spelled backwards is . . .

What, have I stumbled onto?

The heat is on

Whew!

After one of the most hotly-contested campaigns in Clarkston's voting history, the election's finally over. For me, the whole process was an eye, ear and mind opener. I'm glad I got to meet with each one of the candidates personally and listen to their concerns. I've come to the conclusion that anyone who's willing to devote time and energy to a $25-a-meeting side job is to be respected.

Now the hard work begins, the parties and teas are over. It's time to sit back and watch what the new year's council will bring. And, it's time to reflect on what the worst possible scenarios could be. I've decided to have a little fun and predict the future — real and imaginary — for each of the newly elected members.

● Bill Basinger. Basinger will bring to council all his past experience as a council member and legal spokesperson. He will be firm as always and not be moved from his views on rezoning. He will continue to play a paramount role in the preservation of the city's historic district so Clarkston can remain a charming, quaint community.

● Worst scenario: Basinger will narrow his council vision even further on the fights for only Greek Revivals in the historic district.

● Walt Gamble. Gamble will provide the common-sense balance within council. He will continue to research the community's issues, including the Waldon-Main rezoning. His communication skills will be evident as he takes a rational role in determining Clarkston's future.

● Worst scenario: Gamble communication skills will prove to be a double-edged sword for Clarkston's city council. His incessant chatter will cause council meetings to be twice as long. He will achieve greatness in one specific area though. Because of his salesmanship skills, he will convince council to purchase enough aluminum siding to cover the entire city hall addition.

● Dave Savage. Savage's designer savvy will be needed to blend the old and new in Clarkston. Modernization will come on the outskirts, but the badly needed repairs in the historic district will be initiated by him as well. He'll seek to preserve the old buildings Clarkston so dearly loves, but he will clean up and enhance the south gateway to Main Street.

● Worst scenario. With a Savage fight for change, Clarkston will become Rochester in six months. The pressure of individualism against other stuck-in-the-mud council members and worry about police protection will be too much for Savage and he will crack. He will frequently stand up in the middle of meetings and exclaim, "By love! We can be lucky the Rodney King incident didn't happen here!"

But, seriously, folks, I'm looking forward to sitting at future council meetings. I've heard so much complaining during the past year and I'm glad Clarkston voters finally took a step in the right direction and elected candidates to represent them.

I don't know what to expect. But I can make some predictions for myself too. I bet I won't be looking at the clock so much. Yawning and trying not to fall asleep. Penning my notes so methodically. And wondering what I'll have for a snack when I get home.

I'm excited about council. Aren't you?

CHS Life

By D'Anne Witkowski

Singing the college blues

As I look over at the America's Best Colleges guide on the table next to me all I can do is shudder. As much as I should be and as much as I know I have to, thinking about college has become my least favorite thing to do next to scraping ice off my windshield in below-zero weather with 90 mile per hour winds. OK, so I've never really done that but I think my point has been made.

Thinking about college just really stresses me out. Constant questions keep revolving around and around in my mind: How am I going to pay for it? Am I going to go away to school or stay at home? Can I afford to go away to school? What am I going to major in? What do I want to do with my life? If I go away to school, then do the dorms have community bathrooms and showers? Is the cafeteria's food good? If I stay at home then how am I going to afford a new car? How many licks does it take to get to the center of a Tootsie Roll Pop? How much wood could a woodchuck chuck if a woodchuck could chuck wood?

One thing is for sure, I am going to college. Not going to college is simply not an option for me. One way or another, I'm going to get there. I just wish that I knew exactly what college I wanted to go to and exactly what I wanted to do there right here and now. I don't, however, and that may just be because I just don't think I'm ready to think about the future when I can barely get the present.

One would think that now, with marching band over, I would have a lot of extra time on my hands to get all those little things taken care of that I have neglected to do, like clean my room, write back to all of my friends already in college, wash my car, get some sleep, do my homework and dust my ever-expanding collection of Hummel figurines. OK, so I don't really have any Hummel figurines, but if I did.

Quite the opposite is true. Now with marching band over I still have the fall play going, Theater-A-Thon is coming up and as a co-chair I'm already busy preparing, things are starting to get busy for me in yearbook, I still have schoolwork to keep up with, I am in desperate need of National Honor Society points, and I have writer's group if I ever have the chance in my schedule to attend. Not to mention the fact that I do have a life outside of school and I do need to eat and sleep — things all too much neglected by me in the absence of time.

With everything that I'm doing now in the present it's no wonder why I feel overwhelmed just thinking about the future. I am so busy with high school it seems crazy to be thinking about college — also it seems crazy not to. I need to send out letters for scholarship information and I need to figure out where I want to go to college and quick. Too quick, it seems.

No matter how stressed out I get and no matter how many times I feel like my life will never slow down and is moving along away from me in the distance at a pace I cannot meet, I have to honestly believe that everything's going to be OK. Life is good, it really is. I just wish I had another lifetime to figure out what I want to do with this one.

What do you like best about Thanksgiving?

Letters to the editor

Let's work together

To the Editor:

I would like to thank those Clarkston residents who placed their continued faith in me by voting for my re-election last Tuesday. I will make every effort to represent your interests, while working for the best interests of the city as a whole, as the new council deals with the issues facing Clarkston over the coming months. While we may have more divergent viewpoints than in past years, I am sure that we can all work together for the good of the city and its residents.

Sincerely,
William K. Basinger

Thrilled by Variety Show

Dear Clarkston News readers:

I spent a good portion of November 7 sick and in bed. Only the incessant whining of one of my three middle-schoolers got me to attend Clarkston Middle School's 1995 Variety Show. I now understand the adage, "entertain a cold, delight a fever."

I am thrilled to have witnessed that production. Every kid who dared to share his or her unique talent is to be congratulated just for getting on stage. They honest-to-God had talent on top of guts and they were each richly applauded by their fellow students and proud adults.

Given the chance, I would tell each one how special they were, but my personal highlights to that very special night are due to the vocals of Johana Bell, who brought tears to my eyes with her clear, sweet, innocent voice; the performance of Keith Chadrick singing "1-2-3." Wild cheers rose from the crowd in anticipation of his turn, then continued throughout his song.

Sandra Richardson and the compelling strains of her violin had my heart thumping. Kendra Harlow's first 20 seconds on stage were as electric as the blue she wore. She allows the music to speak through her. A glitch in the tape halted her performance; thankfully she later came back out and gave us more. We'd seen enough to know we wanted MORE!

Kudos to Danielle Blanchard, CMS music teacher and well-known vocalist. Her many talents were evident throughout the production and her vocal talent we were thrilled to get a sampling of when she and her Sister Act (a dozen-plus teachers) belted out "Respect." You got it!

Sincerely,
Jill Burstein

Why? Because we like you!

The D'Anne & Don Review

Family

BY DON DOWNEY

In Family, author Ian Frazier chronicles 200 years of his family history which he developed after years of research and reading. The book, which begins many generations ago and works up to the author's own life, is an intense study of the American family and the American dream. Although the book focuses on Frazier's family, it is clear that it is really about Americans as a whole: their hopes and dreams, and what makes them possible or impossible.

The most remarkable thing about Family is the amount of information it holds. It teaches about the Protestant movement in America, early forms of barter, and the origin of fraternity houses, just to name a few. The author's research is respectable not only for its size, but also for the clever way it is used. Frazier's unique knowledge of how this country evolved is well-blended with his own anecdotal family stories.

My only complaint about Family stems right from my largest admiration. With all the information and detail Frazier gives, it is easy to get confused and lose sight of the basic point of the story. He introduces so many ancestors in such short amounts of time I often found myself saying, "Who are all of these people?" I had to reread many sections for the sake of literal plot before I could even consider the overall meaning.

I recommend Family as a long-term reading project. It is not a book to be plowed through in a few days, but rather a work of art to study and savor.

Lou and Glenn Sanders

Ortonville man celebrates special day

Glenn W. Sanders' 90th birthday celebration was a little bigger than he expected.

The Ortonville resident was planning to meet his three daughters and their husbands for dinner Oct. 28. Instead, he was met by all his children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren who either drove or flew to be with him on his special day.

His older daughter Evelyn Maguire and her husband William of Manistee hosted a party for him held at Annie McPhees in Ortonville. It featured a large chocolate cake decorated with Masonic and Boy Scout emblems, and many gifts, some homemade, from members of Glenn's family.

Glenn was honored at Nardin Park Methodist Church in Bloomfield Hills recently for being the oldest Boy Scout leader in Oakland County.

In addition to all his gifts, Glenn's wife Lou received a very special one as well — a bouquet of 2 1/2 dozen red roses from the couple's nephew, George Stites of Birmingham. When Lou asked why, Stites told her it was because she takes such good care of Glenn.

"He's truly my better half," Lou, 83, said.

The couple are members of Clarkston United Methodist Church and former Clarkston residents.

Help for substance abuse begins at school

Our series on drugs continues

BY ANNETTE KINGSBURY
Clarkston News Editor

Clarkston High School's new Student Assistance Program coordinator knows what she's talking about.

"I'm recovering and I've been recovering since tenth grade," said Kelly Kanigowski in her office inside the CHS counseling department.

Not that it was ever a secret. Kanigowski made headlines back in the 1980s as a CHS student when she came out about her recovery and started a club called FACT, Fighting Alcohol and Chemicals Together. She went on to earn an undergraduate degree from Bowling Green State University and a Master of Social Work from the University of Michigan. After spending some time working in a hospital emergency room, she returned to CHS this fall to run the Student Assistance Program.

After she was hired, Kanigowski was handed a copy of the latest drug and alcohol survey conducted on Clarkston eighth-, tenth- and 12th graders last spring.

"I read it and said 'Wow; I have a big job to do.'" Despite her initial surprise, she said she believes the results are valid. "It's absolutely true. So many kids have said 'I've been to so many different schools and no school is as bad as Clarkston.' I have not heard different—that it's a huge, huge problem."

The problem is so bad, she said, that students who are in recovery—that is, those who have already been released from a substance abuse program and are back in school—have a hard time staying clean.

"They can't find any friends; they feel like they are the only ones that are clean and sober. And unfortunately I've had some kids go back because the loneliness is too much."

Kanigowski said generalizations cannot be made about the circumstances from which substance abusers arise. Affluence with its easier access to money and transportation is only part of the picture. All kinds of families are involved.

"We have kids who come from no money. We have kids that come from families that are using." There is also the problem of low self-esteem, and the fact that partying on weekends is seen as perfectly normal and OK.

Looking for help

Clarkston students taking the Michigan Alcohol and Other Drugs survey were asked the question, "If you ever found yourself 'hooked' on drugs, or otherwise needed help related to your drug or alcohol use, would you be likely to turn to any of the following sources for help? The number is the percentage saying "yes," they would go to this source for help.

source	8th	10th	12th
family member	34.4%	33.4	35.4
friend	63.1	70.4	68.1
teacher	13.7	11.5	9.4
school counselor	18.8	14.2	12.0
doctor	23.1	20.8	19.3
drug clinic	28.8	33.8	30.2
minister, priest, rabbi	16.8	13.5	13.5

choice as well. "You hear 'I'd rather get high than drink,'" she said. "We definitely have kids who say 'I don't drink but I get high or take LSD.'"

Kanigowski's caseload currently stands at about 100 students, 75-80 percent of which are substance abuse cases. She offers individual, family and group counseling. "I see kids from any type of personal problem to school concerns. And automatically substance problems are referred to me."

Kanigowski offers group and individual therapy to students who are users, who are recovering, whose family or friends are users, and who have just begun to have problems at school due to substance abuse. In the case of a first-time suspension for substance abuse, students have the option of having the 10-day suspension lessened by agreeing to attend a group. Once they make that choice, attendance becomes mandatory.

Groups are held during the school day on a rotating basis so no one misses the same class repeatedly. Kanigowski assigns students to various groups depending upon where their problems lie. Students may refer themselves or be referred by school staff or parents.

Kanigowski also works with parents and said she can offer a lot of technical assistance. "I have a lot of information," she said. She is also starting a parent's group later this month which will meet evenings.

Though few students refer themselves to Kanigowski, she said her biggest hurdle is usually parents.

"You get the 'Definitely not my child.' You can lay all the facts in front of them . . . every red flag you think of and they'll still rationalize and make excuses," she said. "Or I'll get the 'I don't care what I have to do; we'll take care of it' and then you never, ever hear from them again. And you have a few that will work with you. It helps if the parents come to you first."

Kanigowski said alcohol and marijuana are the most commonly used drugs in Clarkston, but "I know inhalants are definitely on the rise and I know LSD is back in the picture . . . If a kid says 'I'm only using on the weekend, you can be pretty sure it's every weekend and a couple of times during the week.'"

With a student body of over 1,800, there are only so many people Kanigowski can help. Many other staff members are trained in substance abuse awareness, at the high school and lower grades as well. Despite the size of the task, Kanigowski remains upbeat.

"You have to go into it with the attitude I'm really not going to be able to change Clarkston," she said. "If I can just help kids make healthy decisions, dispel the myths, then you've got to feel like you're doing your job."

"I don't want to be negative; I'm not trying to be. But you have to be honest. It's not like it's not happening because it is . . . I was in this high school going through exactly what they were going through."

Voting precinct lines will change

BY DARREL W. COLE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

The order came down from Lansing, and now the Independence Township clerk's office is stuck with the work of changing the boundaries of voting precincts.

Under Michigan Public Act 401, the state is requiring all municipalities to make its precinct boundaries "clearly observable boundaries." It means the township can no longer use section lines, power line easements and subdivision lines as boundaries.

The changes will require redrawing some precinct boundaries and the creation of two new precincts. In addition, new voting equipment, maps and professional services will be required to accommodate the changes.

Township Clerk Joan McCrary cited the recent legislation as another example of the state sending down orders and not helping to pay the costs. She also said this legislation was passed without anyone in the legislature consulting with the state's municipal clerks association.

McCrary discussed the dilemma with the township's board of trustees Nov. 7. While the board approved of all the changes, they also agreed that a letter be sent to the state voicing the township's displeasure with the demands.

Boundaries in nine precincts will be changed because of the new mandate. The first steps in the process are:

- Decide on "clearly observable boundaries" such as roads or railroad tracks.
- Map and describe the boundaries in metes and bounds and give legal descriptions.

- Submit changes to the Oakland County Clerk, Elections Division.
- Publish the maps and descriptions (as required by law) in The Clarkston News.

The requirements come with a heavy price tag and must be completed by Jan. 9, 1996. Some of the projected costs include:

- Hiring a clerk II position now, rather than waiting until 1996, as previously planned. The new clerk is needed to help with the project.

● Purchasing voting equipment for over $15,000, including new tabulators for the two new precincts. The money will be reapportioned from the capital projects fund.

● Approving the hiring of engineering services for redrawing boundary lines for about $6,500. The professional services are required for mapping and describing the boundaries. The cost does not include the printing costs of the maps.

Foreign student enrollment doubles

bright. They're eager learners, though you have to give them time to adjust."

Hirr said it takes three to five years for students to master English and it can take up to nine months for a student to be comfortable speaking.

"The younger they are, the faster they learn," she said. Older children have a tougher time. "I do more phonics work with them. Sometimes they have to work harder to master their lessons because they're still translating (in their heads) and as they're translating they get lost. The little ones don't seem to have that problem."

Hirr attends parent-teacher conferences along with teachers. Often she has to deal with parents who don't speak great English themselves.

"We write notes back and forth. The parents seem real comfortable asking questions back and forth on paper, just as I do." Parents are allowed to keep the journals for future reference.

Another way Hirr tries to help her students is with an exercise she gives their teachers and American-born classmates. Developed by a Wayne State University teacher, it reads like nonsense and quickly gives you a glimpse at what it must feel like to comprehend only part of what you hear.

"My goal is to let teachers and students understand what the child is hearing," Hirr said. "They realize they don't know English but they don't understand what they're hearing."

On average, students get four to six hours a week with Hirr, some of it in their regular classroom, some of it in Hirr's room, depending upon individual need. Hirr also provides after-school and summer tutoring.

"In summer in homes where only the native tongue is spoken they lose a lot," she said. Nevertheless, she doesn't expect parents to give up their native tongue to help a youngster learn English.

"We were asking them to do something we wouldn't want to do," Hirr said. In addition, a parent's English may be heavily accented and sound different from what the child is learning at school.

Depot Street improvements discussed

BY EILEEN OXLEY
Clarkston News Staff Writer

The crude drawing of a proposed sidewalk/beautification project for Depot St. met with mixed reaction from Clarkston City Council members Monday night.

The sketch, prepared by city engineer Gary Tressel of Hubbell, Roth & Clark, allows for approximately 20 feet of changes on either side, leaving a 20-foot right of way for street access. The north side along Max Brook Realtors, Inc. would combine a "serpentine," winding sidewalk with landscaping that might include trees and flower boxes. The south side would feature a wooden walkway with steps and platforms because of the steeper grade.

Councilman Steve Secatch and former councilman James Schultz met with Bowen Brook, president of Max Brook, and his lawyer Tom Bullen, for several months to discuss Brook's request for a landscaping plan that would rid the realty company of an asphalt street surface that has weathered over the years and become "an aesthetic embarrassment and potential liability," says a portion of a recent letter from Brook to the city council.

Last February a slip-and-fall next to Brook's resulted in a lawsuit against the city that is still unsettled. The city's insurance company recommended that all parking spots on Depot be eliminated. Council voted to prohibit all parking on Depot, posting "No Parking" signs and remarking the street. The result left an eyesore, according to Brook.

Many council members liked the plan, although some were skeptical.

"I'm just amazed that we'd go to sidewalks with a 20-foot street," said Councilwoman Karen Sanderson.

Secatch was concerned about the cost. The ballpark estimate for only Brook's side of Depot is $15,000, he said. The sidewalk would be city property with the landscape areas leased to Brook for 25 years with option for renewal. The lease agreement would include responsibilities for Brook like maintenance (snow removal, etc.).

"I think the cost will be higher," Secatch said. "It could be up to $20,000 or $30,000."

Newly elected Councilman Walt Gamble voiced concerns about liability.

"Where do you have the higher liability? Is it on sidewalks or on the street?"

"That's a hard question to answer," Bullen said.

Mayor Sharron Catallo pointed out that "With a greenbelt area, it make people top and think this is a more pedestrian area." She told council she would have more information by the next city council meeting Nov. 27.

Secatch said Tuesday morning he was unsure about a funding source for the possible project. But he suggested at least four different prospects — from the city's budget, a special assessment put before the downtown business district, a short-term millage rate that would bind Clarkston residents for about one year or state or federal grants.

However, he later offered yet another source.

"I think the best thing would be to use Community Development Block Grant funds. We have enough money to cover that if it meets ADA (American With Disabilities Act) standards." The city receives about $8,000 a year in CDBG funds and currently has reserves from previous years. It has not designated projects for this year as well. Secatch also feels before the city acts to spend the money for such a project, it should consider all its priorities.

"Before we spend x amount of dollars for a sidewalk, what are our priorities? Do we want city restrooms in (Depot) Park or a new dump truck? I think that should be established before we spend $20,000."

Bowen Brook, who has been out of town for the past few days, was not present at Monday night's meeting. He said Tuesday that at the last council meeting Oct. 23, a lease proposal was presented to council.

"We had approached the city months ago about buying five feet (of Depot) for a landscaping project." But council decided buying the portion was not feasible and suggested the leasing alternative, he said.

Brook said he never had any intention of including a sidewalk.

"Now it seems to have taken on something of a life of its own. I'm prepared to pay for the planting and flower beds."

But he added that he wasn't opposed to looking at the new plan.

"It might be a good idea. Anything would be an improvement over what is there now."

In other council action:

● Council voted 7-0 to authorize the purchase of a new police patrol car priced at $16,475. Because Chevrolet will cease making Chevy Lumina's, Clarkston Police Chief Paul Ormiston says the city should purchase the car this year because it will be cheaper.

● The 1996-97 Community Development Block Grant funds were discussed. Council members suggested that 20 percent of the funds should be reserved for possible city planning expenditures with 40 percent going toward local programs like Youth Assistance, senior citizens and Lighthouse Clarkston. The rest could go into barrier-free improvement areas or possibly into buying large-print books for Independence Township Library. The last suggestion was made by former council member Steve Arkwright. Council will have to designate funds by its next council meeting Nov. 27. Allocations are due by Dec. 1.

● A resolution was passed, 7-0, to spend $58,610 for a new DPW truck. The loan will come from NBD Bank with 5.15 percent interest for seven years.

Council considers limiting park use

BY EILEEN OXLEY
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Councilman Doug Roeser had some concrete guidelines in order for a new park policy at Monday night's council meeting.

Roeser began researching the project several months ago after a request for Depot Park use made by Olde Apothecary Antiques co-owner Susan Gahan was denied. Gahan wanted to hold an antique fair in the park, similar to the procedure used for Clarkston's annual Crafts and Cider Festival where profits are given to a charity. The situation raised concern for the city over who gets to use the park — and for what purpose. Council decided to adopt a park policy.

"The park was primarily designed for individual, private, low-impact use," Roeser said. "Every time I pick up the newspaper, I read about how we're trying to keep people out of the park. It's never been our policy to keep people out of the park."

Roeser feels the city should set aside only a certain number of available Saturdays and times so the park is not "always booked up." He added that council should also conserve the size of each event. For example, a large event might include no more than 200 people.

Roeser suggested guidelines as follows:

- Size and duration of the event would need to be considered. Duration would include "set up, take down and cleanup," all to be done by event-holders.

- Council would need to consider each event's potential for detriment to the park. Considerations would include possible damage to grass and sprinklers and impact of the event on neighboring residents.

- Public vs. private benefits would need to be weighed.

- Extraordinary costs like police protection would be paid by event-holders.

- A fee for use would be charged to non-residents. Residents would not have to pay for use because they pay city taxes. "Non-residents should pay a little extra," Roeser said.

- Event-holders would be given a copy of park policy and understand the rules.

- Some events would be restricted to and held along walkways within Depot so as to lessen park wear.

- Emergency access and egress should be incorporated into planning.

- Possible problems like camping overnight in the park or use of the city parking lots should be prohibited.

- Commercial use of the park should not be allowed.

Roeser said many things still remain to be discussed such as who may use the park, especially if some of the profits will be given to charities. Some things that are firmly established like the SCAMP walk — which Roeser feels to be a low-impact use — the Crafts and Cider Festival and Concerts in the Park, may be exceptions to the rule because of tradition and their benefits to the community.

Roeser said council will have to "sort it out. We can't legislate everything that goes through here."

He suggested that events be limited to two large events a year, six medium events a year and six small events a year.

Former council member Steve Arkwright had a problem with that. Arkwright, who lives across the street on Holcomb, said he would like to see "not more than one" large event per year.

"I can't get out of my driveway (during Crafts and Cider). People park on my grass ..."

Roeser said he would certainly consider limiting large event use to one such event per year.

Clarkston man injured in crash

Orion Township's second fatal traffic accident in as many months left a Clarkston man hospitalized in serious condition.

According to Oakland County Sheriff's Lt. Bruce Naile, the head-on collision occurred on Joslyn Rd. just south of Indianwood Monday night around 5 p.m. Witnesses said a 22-year-old Clarkston man was driving northbound when his car crossed the center line, striking a car driven by Mark Hopper, 35, of Lake Orion.

Hopper, the father of three, was pronounced dead at the scene. The Clarkston man, who was not identified, was taken to Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital with a severed ear and a broken ankle.

Naile said alcohol is believed to be a factor and blood samples were taken.

Dr. Haase specializes in diagnosing and treating all types of foot disorders, from corns, ingrown nails, plantar warts, bunions and heel spurs, to fractures, sprains and minor injuries. Also a special concern to the doctor is the care and treatment of the foot of each individual - whether it is the abnormal alignment in a child's foot, the nagging pain from day-to-day activities, or the arthritic or special problems of the elderly or diabetic patient.

ROGERS CHIROPRACTIC CENTER

Nothing Replaces Good Health

Chiropractic is not a new concept. This year it is 100 years old. Today, Chiropractic has become the largest drugless healing profession in the Western World. This science explains that some of the causes of pain disease in the body are the vertebral subluxations which create pressure upon nerves and interfere with the normal transmission of vital nerve energy. The Chiropractor's objective is to locate the place in the spine where the nerve pressure exists and by specific adjustments restore vertebrae to their normal function. These corrective adjustments release pressure on nerves, and thereby allows the body to heal itself. In addition to traditional "back pain" other conditions which may respond to Chiropractic care include treatment of headaches, whiplash, work accidents, sports injuries, pinched nerves, and numbness, to name just a few. The results from recent studies have come out. Chiropractic spinal adjustments is now one of the most studied methods of treating back pain. All the studies have proven that it is nearly twice as effective as traditional medical treatment for back related pain. It has been found that patients recover twice as fast as recovery is for a longer period of time and it is much less expensive. This information has been brought to you in the interest of better health by ROGERS CHIROPRACTIC CENTER located in the Waterfall Plaza on Dixie Highway. Call (810) 623-6200 for more information or a free consultation. All insurance accepted including Medicare & Medicaid.

Safe handling of "ready prepared" holiday dinners

Don't let the convenience of buying a prepared turkey dinner turn in to a nightmare.

According to Sylvia Treitman, home economist with the Michigan State University Cooperative Extension Service—Oakland County, here are a few tips:

If you are eating within two hours of picking up the food, keep it hot, not just warm. Set the oven temperature at 140 degrees or more. Use a meat thermometer.

Stuffing and side dishes must also be kept hot. Cover with foil to keep food moist.

If dinner will be more than two hours, remove all stuffing immediately and refrigerate. Cut turkey off the bone, slice and refrigerate. That goes for side dishes too. Then reheat to 165 degrees.

Buying a refrigerated, fully cooked stuffed turkey is not recommended by the USDA, Treitman says.

For more information, call the Food and Nutrition Hotline at 858-0904.

Suit filed over fatal accident

A Clarkston woman has sued her ex-husband over a traffic accident which killed their son.

Shannon Stanley and her attorney, Todd Weglarz of Fieger, Fieger & Schwartz, filed papers in Oakland County Circuit Court Nov. 6 asking for a judgement in excess of $10,000 alleging Matthew Alan Stanley was "driving recklessly and with gross negligence" before the accident, which occurred July 11, 1994 at M-15 and Oak Hill Rd.

In the accident, Matthew Darwin Stanley, 11 months old, was killed and Amanda Lynn Stanley was "seriously and permanently injured," according to the suit. The suit alleges that neither was wearing the required child safety restraints at the time of the accident.

According to Det. Tom Poulin of the Oakland County Sheriff's traffic division, no one was ever ticketed or charged in connection with the accident.

"It was presented to the prosecutor's office for review," Poulin said. "Because it was a father who lost his child they generally don't go forward."

The suit alleges that Matthew Alan Stanley was driving his 1994 GMC van when he "negligently slammed into" a 1984 Thunderbird waiting to turn left from M-15 to Oak Hill Rd. According to Poulin, Stanley's car was then hit by a semi-truck.

"He was distracted with something, at least that's what he told us," Poulin said. "He lost control. We couldn't prove it was speed. He was probably doing the speed limit, which is 55 there."

Weglarz could not be reached for comment. The suit has been assigned to Judge John McDonald.

Regular season over with a win over Kettering

Basketball team at best in season's end

BY DARREL W. COLE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

This time, Waterford Kettering was no match for a determined group of Wolves.

The first time the Clarkston girls basketball team faced Kettering, they were easily defeated. But this time around CHS was ready and ended the regular season Nov. 9 with a convincing 59-49 OAA Division I win.

On Nov. 7, the Wolves beat Royal Oak Kimball

District play

Clarkston was scheduled to play Lapeer West Nov. 15, 7:30 p.m. at Holly High School. If they win that game the Wolves move on to the championship game Nov. 17 at 7 p.m.

31-24. Clarkston is 14-6 overall and 5-5 in the OAA.

The Kettering win showed just how much the Wolves have improved since early in the season. Coach Larry Mahrle said his team played inspired in its last home game and has shown it is a team to be reckoned with by winning four of its last five games.

"A lot of teams just try to get the regular season over with but I believe we've really gotten better each game and are better now than early in the season," said Mahrle.

The key in his team's late-season run has been better offense. For the Wolves, defense has been a constant plus, but it's been a patient offense that has Clarkston primed for a district run.

"We got better on offense and in our transition," said the coach. "Now we are looking for the right shot instead of forcing it and are feeling more comfortable in our offense."

The Wolves showed how dangerous they can be against Kettering. They raced out to a 19-6 lead after the first quarter, forcing Kettering into turnovers and racing down the court for easy buckets themselves.

Most of the damage early on was done by junior point guard Sue Naboychik and senior forward Nickie Winn. Several times Naboychik ripped down a weak side rebound, dribbled up the court and passed off to a teammate for an easy layup. Winn was hot from the start, nailing 15-foot jump shots and scoring on offensive rebounds.

At the half, Clarkston was up 31-15.

Kettering tried to close the gap, but senior guard Leah Howard took over late, breaking down her defender one-on-one.

Part of the team's late-season strategy is the four corners offense. When the Wolves take a lead, Mahrle said this offense forces defenders to come out high and guard his players. Because the Wolves have a quick group of guards in Howard, Naboychik, sophomores Jennifer Bauer and Tiffany Honey, they can break down defenses and drive to the basket.

Either they get a layup, get fouled or pass off for an easy bucket.

Mahrle used the offense against Kimball and Kettering and it worked as planned.

"They (Kimball) sat in a zone when we had a lead so Sue just held the ball out there for three minutes until they came out and guarded us. It worked well against Kettering too but we missed too many layups when we drove."

With the Wolves playing their last regular season game at home, Mahrle said his lone seniors, to clear out in Clarkston's convincing win over Waterford Kettering Nov. 9.

Howard and Winn, both captains, were determined to beat Kettering.

"Those seniors willed themselves to win this game."

Winn ended the night with 21 points and Howard scored 14 along with five steals.

Another determined effort came from Naboychik. She dictated the game with 11 points, eight rebounds, seven steals and six assists.

"She ran the whole show," said Mahrle.

Runners still going strong

Stefanie Burklow and Liz Cook, two members of the Clarkston girls cross country team's 4th place state finals finish, competed separately last weekend in prestigious meets.

Burklow, a senior who holds the CHS record in cross country and was fourth in the state this season, competed Nov. 11 in a qualifying meet for the Midwest Cross Country Championships, a six-state meet of only the best runners.

She finished 9th at the qualifying meet, held in Grand Ledge. The top ten runners advance.

The Midwest meet will be held this weekend in Kettering, Ohio.

Cook, a sophomore who finished 22nd at the state meet, competed in a meet sponsored by the Michigan Cross Country Coaches Association Nov. 12 in Dexter. Cook placed high enough in the meet to qualify for the national competition in her age group.

The national meet will be held in Charleston, West Virginia.

Seniors commit to universities

Three Clarkston seniors are headed to NCAA Division I universities to play sports next season. Softball player Stephanie Giroux signed a national letter of intent to play at Michigan State University, while wrestler Joe DeGain, pictured bottom left, (University of Michigan) and baseball player Jeff Mull, pictured bottom right, (Eastern Michigan University) were expected to sign Nov. 15. Above,

Giroux (front row center) is surrounded by family and friends as she signs her letter of intent with MSU Nov. 10. At her left is her mother, Sue; at right is her father, Al. Behind them are (second row, left to right) sister Suzie, 9, friends Sarah Ashley and Kelli Simko and softball teammate Crystal Lemke; (back row) athletic manager Dan Fife, CHS softball coach Al Land and principal Brent Cooley. ### JV Basketball

The JV basketball team beat every team they played this year but one. Unfortunately, that team was Waterford Kettering, which finished 20-0. Clarkston's record was still excellent, though, at 18-2, including a second-place finish in the league at 8-2.

They played two games in their last week of the season. On November 7, the Wolves played Royal Oak Kimball, who put up quite a fight. Clarkston was down 22-14 at the half, but came through with a big second half, allowing only six points, and scoring 26, to come away with a 40-28 victory.

Then on November 9, they had a big showdown with Kettering. They got off to a very sluggish start, being down 23-12 at halftime. Kettering went on a 10-1 run to start the second half and take a 33-13 lead. The Wolves came back in the fourth to cut the deficit to seven points, but they eventually fell after a great effort, losing 51-38. Cathy Eby led the Wolves with nine pints, Aimee Giroux had eight, and Georgia Senkyr played an excellent game, and scored six. (Special thanks to head coach Brian Ray for his help throughout the season.)

Freshman Basketball

The freshman basketball team closed out a good season last week.

On November 7, the Wolves played well, and defeated a tough Royal Oak Kimball team 35-30. Kathy Kopec played an excellent game scoring 13 points.

On November 9, the Wolves played undefeated Waterford Kettering. Clarkston lost by 14. "We played pretty well," said Coach John Zittel.

The Wolves finished their season with a record of 7-9. (Special thanks to head Coach John Zittel for his help throughout the season.)

WHEN YOU MAKE A COUNTER OFFER, set out all of your new terms in writing.

QUESTION: MY home is for sale for $150,000. I have an offer to buy it for $100,000. I will not sell for a dollar less than $135,000. How do I go about making a counter offer?

ANSWER: As with any offer, always make a counter offer in writing, setting out exactly what your new terms are. Nothing of significance should be left out. This means, in addition to the new price, how long your counter offer will be open and whether you are willing to provide some of the financing including the interest rate and term of years for repayment. Once the counter offer is signed and accepted, it becomes a binding contract.

Whitetails are plentiful but safety remains focus

Dawn today marked the opening of the 1995 firearm deer season, and the Michigan Dept. of Natural Resources is reminding hunters to use caution in the field and handle firearms safely to avoid tragic accidents.

"Michigan has more land open to public hunting than any state in the eastern half of the United States," DNR Director Mike Moore said. "We're fortunate to have a whitetail deer population that's the envy of hunters everywhere. This season is expected to be one of the best in many years, but only if hunters observe some basic safety rules that will keep them alive and safe through the season."

Michigan is one of the safest places to hunt in North America; the 1994 firearm deer season was Michigan's safest on record. This good safety record is attributed to Michigan's Hunter Education classes. This year, approximately 32,000 young men and women successfully completed Michigan Hunter Education classes. Hunters born after Jan. 1, 1960 are required to successfully complete the class before they can purchase a license to hunt. Since its inception in the 1960s, more than 1.2 million persons have completed these classes in Michigan. The goal of the hunter education program is to train responsible hunters while further reducing the number of firearm and bow accidents.

This year during the 15-day firearm deer season, nearly 700,000 hunters will spend tens of millions of hours afield pursuing whitetail deer in Michigan. Hunters can take simple, practical measures to avoid becoming an accident statistic.

First, make certain you will not be mistaken for a game animal. The easiest way is to prominently wear blaze orange as an outer garment. Hunters concealing themselves in a blind should hang or paint blaze orange prominently on the exterior of the blind. When moving during low light conditions, hunters are advised to carry a lighted flashlight to alert other hunters to their presence.

Hunters should select their hunting partners carefully, and refuse to hunt with persons who do not obey the game laws or are risk-takers. All too often persons who are excessively competitive become involved in hunting accidents. They seem to feel that they must get the most, the best, the biggest or the first. Being over competitive can be a formula for tragedy.

Two-party hunting accidents rarely involve strangers. Keep alert to the movements of your hunting partners all times. Expect the unexpected. Do not let a momentary lapse in your concentration result in a tragedy.

These are some especially important rules to remember when handling firearms:

- Treat every firearm as if it is loaded. Never touch a firearm without checking the chamber for live rounds. Never hand a firearm to someone or receive a firearm from another person without first checking the chamber and magazine.

- Always control the muzzle of your firearm. Point it safely. The gun's muzzle should never be pointed at another person even for an instant. Keep fingers off the trigger until you are ready to shoot. Insist that all hunters in your group handle firearms carefully and respectfully. Real friends do not take chances with the safety of others.

- Be certain of your target and what is beyond. Never shoot or even point your gun at a movement, a color or sound. Be aware your surroundings. Look, not only at the target, but beyond the target for persons or objects in your line of fire.

Doin' it all at the Depot

Village Player takes on new role as director

BY EILEEN OXLEY
Clarkston News Staff Writer

A season ticket holder for years, Donna Ellis never dreamed she'd be on the other side of the footlights.

But last year she became a member of Clarkston Village Players and has since done about everything you can do at Depot Theatre.

"Last year was my first year. I worked in every play and with every director as assistant director, sound person, stage manager ... mainly because I wanted to learn about this group in particular," says Ellis who is wearing a bright, emblemed red sweatshirt — a token of appreciation from the crew of last year's "A Murder Has Been Arranged." She was the assistant director/stage manager of that production.

She talks about the various handmade logos that are dotted over the front, including a hand and finger pointing to the place actors should be at curtain time. There's a giant megaphone in the middle. That could represent her most recent role as well, as director for the Players' production of "The Cemetery Club" which opens Nov. 17.

She also clutches a copy of "Play Director's Survival Kit," a book Player Marlene Sewick lent her.

"It's been a lifesaver for me, being a first-time director." The book offers guidelines for directors that are more appropriate than "doing it by your shirttails," Ellis says with a laugh that causes her yellow curls to bounce. Other helps include additional director-related reading material and listening to seasoned Players.

The real impetus for all this, Ellis claims, was working with some kids from Children's Village three years ago. A paraprofessional for the past 16 years, Ellis spent nine of those at the Village as out-student coordinator. She counseled adjudicated teens from Oakland County's Juvenile Court who had problems with home or school truancy. Some were also labeled "home or school incorrigible."

The tender-hearted mom of three daughters who are now grown up, Ellis sensed the root of the problem for many of these teens was low self-esteem — and she wanted to do something about that. With Children's Village administrator Dick Wasoons's permission, Ellis created several confidence-building activities including a leadership class, a student council and a girls volleyball team.

"He let me do what I wanted to do," says Ellis. She soon found herself a play director as well.

"The school received a call from a DJ who had a tape from someone in prison. (The inmate) said he had a play to help troubled kids so they wouldn't get where he was," Ellis says. As a result, Ellis directed 24 teenagers in a play entitled "17."

"We took liberties to make it more realistic. The kids gave me a lot of input," Ellis says. She adds that the privilege of watching the children bloom was one of the most rewarding personal experiences she has ever had.

"They played (the characters) out in the environment they were in. They made it a piece of themselves and they took ownership of it."

Unfortunately, the budget for Children's Village was slashed and Ellis found her out-student program was one of those cut.

"Too bad. I think I was able to create something for the kids," she says.

Since then, Ellis, who has a background in instructional technology, has been working with Waterford Mott High School SMI (Severe Multiply Impaired) teacher Carolyn Burns to mainstream severely physically and mentally handicapped children into general education classes. There she has found herself involved in introducing yet another special group of teenagers to the theater. Burns asked Ellis because of her work at Children's Village.

Mainstreaming the special children into theater as well as general ed. classes has turned out to be reciprocal "because it helps (the special ed. kids) with self-esteem and (the general ed. kids) with accepting them," Ellis says.

Now that she's made the transition to working with adults who are members of Clarkston Village Players, Ellis says it's not all that different.

"There are a lot of different personalities and we are all equals. The bottom line is to have fun. If we can't have fun doing this — then why are we here?" she asks, throwing up her hands.

Now, as a firmly-in-place Player, Ellis says she'd like to use what she's learned in working with teens and develop a summer youth and children's theater program — sort of a Young Clarkston Village Players. Although nothing is planned yet, Ellis says she's approached the Players' board about the idea.

"I would like to direct it," she says.

Naturally, now that she's done almost everything else, the inevitable question is "When are you going to act?" Ellis is no stranger to the stage, having overcome butterflies years ago when she was frontwoman for her own music group entitled — what else? — the Donnatones. She was the only girl and sole accordian player.

"Everyone keeps saying, 'When are you going to act?' It'll come," she says. "If I wasn't directing, I'd probably take the part of Mildred to get my feet wet."

Players present 'Cemetery Club'

The Clarkston Village Players present "The Cemetery Club," a bittersweet comedy that involves the friendship between three widows in their mid to late fifties. Because of the mutual losses, the women find they are kindred spirits and make regular visits together to their husbands' graves. But when a new man enters the picture, they find their conventions are challenged.

"This play deals with one of life's passages that we all must relate to at one time or another — the death of someone we love," says director Donna Ellis. "I think there is a piece of all of us in this play. That's what makes it so real."

Produced by Al Bartlett, the play features Jan Cable as Ida, Nancy Penvose as Doris, Karen Stankye as Lucille, Bob Kaminskis as Sam and Ruth Parent as Mildred. Friday and Saturday performances Nov. 17, 18, 24 and 25 and Dec. 1 and 2 begin at 8 p.m. Thursday performances Nov. 23 and 30 begin at 7:30 p.m. For more information call (810) 625-1826 or (810) 634-5198.

Mt. Zion to open performing arts center

BY EILEEN OXLEY
Clarkston News Staff Writer

"Let them praise his name in the dance."

—Psalm 149:3, The Holy Bible.

Although she has studied classical ballet and other dance forms for years, there was one goal Audra Garleff always hoped to accomplish.

Believing that dance is just as important as music and other art forms used to praise God, Garleff wanted to see it incorporated somehow into church worship and ministry.

That dream has finally come true for Garleff, a ballet teacher with Oakland Christian Association School of Dance in Waterford, which is owned by Mt. Zion Temple of Clarkston.

"Mt. Zion is dedicated to bringing the classical arts back into the church as a form of worship and as a ministerial outreach," says Garleff in a recent press release. As a result, Mt. Zion will open a new Performing Arts Center in its old Clarkston church building this January.

Mt. Zion's Pastor Loren Covarrubias initiated the idea for the center after he attended his teenage daughter's dance recital. He was appalled by the sexually explicit dance moves and vowed to "give people the opportunity to dance in a clean atmosphere," says Mt. Zion fine arts director Colleen Bruderick, who is also involved in the project.

Currently the old Mt. Zion Temple building, located at 4453 Clintonwood Rd. near Mann, is being renovated for the new center. Classes will include not only dance, but gymnastics, vocal and instrumental music and drama. Prices per 12-week session will range from $39 to $59.

"They're purposely keeping it low so people can try it," Bruderick says.

The dance studio will feature mirrors and a

will teach 10 different dance classes at Mt. Zion's new performing arts center which will open in January.

'I look at my body as an instrument. God must have given me this ability, this desire, and I want to bring other people into it.'

Audra Garleff

suspended, floating floor covered with a special vinyl "so you won't slip and hurt yourself when you jump," says Garleff. There will also be a portable stage floor used for traveling performances to various churches and other locations. Bruderick, who also has a dance background, will teach children's beginner classes for 3-year-olds and up. Garleff and Carmen Wade will teach those at intermediate and advanced levels. Although various dance forms are offered, the primary emphasis will be on quality training in classical, Russian ballet.

In addition, the teachers hope to form their own dance company and will hold auditions near the end of November or beginning of December.

"I would ask that they be Christians with Christian goals in mind," Garleff says, adding that company members don't have to be from Mt. Zion's congregation. "And they need to make a commitment to the company to work on rehearsals, choreography and anything upcoming."

Members can be "anybody, any age, any denomination," says Bruderick.

"We want to make adults feel welcome too," adds Garleff.

The two hope both the dance company and performing arts center will be in place soon after the holidays.

Garleff says she has dealt with a lot of negatives about dance throughout her life. Although many of the old taboos are ancient history, there are still some who view any form of dance as sinful. Like any of the arts, it's all in how you use them, she says.

"I look at my body as an instrument. God must have given me this ability, this desire, and I want to bring other people into it."

Including men. Good, male dancers are hard to find, the teachers say.

"There's such a stigma. They think dance is just a sissy thing," Garleff says.

Currently, there is a very small ensemble that has performed in churches at Easter and Christmas. But Garleff and Bruderick hope to expand it with the formation of the company. One goal will be to develop five- to 10-minute Christian ballet performances that can be used right within Sunday morning church services. Many of the dance sequences would feature storylines taken right from the Gospel.

One of Garleff's dreams is to tell the entire Song of Solomon through dance.

"It's such a beautiful story, what it really means. It's about the Bride of Christ. It just blows you away."

But the primary purpose is to glorify God, she says. "That's always been my goal."

"That's Pastor's idea too," adds Bruderick. "Take the art form to the world and give it back to God."

For more information about the performing arts center and auditions for the dance company, call Colleen Bruderick at Mt. Zion Temple, (810) 391-6166.

They cheered when Lauren Giordano stretched her leg up toward the ceiling in "Flashdance."

They screamed when Keith Chadrick crooned "1-2-3."

But they went absolutely wild when staff members hammed it up to "Respect."

Led by music teacher Danielle Blanchard, the culmination to Clarkston Middle School's 1995 Variety Show Nov. 7 was a parody of "Sister Act." Blanchard, who had rewritten Aretha Franklin's lyrics, came out on stage in sunglasses and waved her hands holy roller-like in the air.

"You see, the sisters and I got together and decided the teachers get a bad rap — and I'm not talkin' 'bout music," Blanchard said, plunking her hand on her hip as kids in the audience laughed.

While she belted out the lyrics holding a mike, staff members appeared to the back of the stage and strutted in true chorus line fashion while "Father" Tom Lamm, a CMS shop teacher, stood sternly to the side wearing a tool belt over his choir robe. The staff members also wore robes but added a touch of humor with hilarious hats, including Suvonne Sanford whose topper featured a flamingo with flapping wings.

Instead of asking for "a little respect when you get home," Blanchard implored the students for some respect "when you come to school."

CMS para-professional Marsha Combs said Blanchard coordinated the show which featured 126 sixth-, seventh- and eighth-graders in a variety of acts, including vocals performed by several school choirs. "That's close to 18 percent of the student body!" a section of the program read. Besides auditioning and performing, students who participated were required to sign a contract and follow the rules for a successful performance. Other members of the student body were part of the show's light and tech crews.

Staff members were bitten by the show bug as well.

"We decided as a staff to do a little something too," said Combs, who was fastening her choir robe before the staff's debut. "But the kids don't know anything about this.

"Well ... They kinda sorta know something's going on," she admitted with a laugh.

Feminine screams and sighs are heard as eighth-grader Keith Chadrick sings, in "1-2-3," "When I look into your eyes, I can see inside."

Through dance, sixth-grader Kendra Harlow says "The Roof Is On Fire."

Seventh-grader Sandra Richardson plays "Allegro" from George F. Handel's "Sonata No. 4."
