Arbitration claim goes against township

Award is $100,000; township wanted $5 million

BY DARREL W. COLE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Independence Township was awarded only $100,000 of a $4.9 million arbitration claim in a decision handed down by arbitrators Nov. 28.

The decision is a clear victory for Westcap Securities and former brokers Craig Leibold and Jeffrey Oetting. And it's a clear defeat for Independence Township and specially hired attorney Roger Timm of Dykema Gossett.

There is no appeal process in arbitration hearings. The decision is final.

An earlier claim against PaineWebber and Leibold and Oetting, concerning two securities purchased at over $600,000, was settled in Sept. before a hearing date. PaineWebber paid the township $310,000 and took over the two volatile investments.

While township taxpayers still don't have to worry about any decrease in services or increase in taxes, officials are depressed, angry and disappointed about the decision.

The township board of trustees has called a special meeting for Nov. 29 at 7:30 p.m. to announce the arbitration panel's judgment.

Township treasurer John Lutz, who made the initial investments with Westcap, said the township could have avoided this scenario by accepting earlier settlement offers.

"A lot of things went on behind the scenes with closed meetings, and we had some other alternatives we should have looked at," he said, only hours after receiving the judgment Nov. 28.

Lutz said he can understand citizens' concerns about spending time and money for a claim that was lost. "I feel the same way," he said.

But he also said the four investments in question, while not being the most appropriate investments, were recommended by those brokers and are still performing.

Now that the case is over, Lutz admitted he's upset about the way newspapers and the board, except clerk Joan McCrary, have treated him.

"I was kind of like the Lone Ranger in this," he said. "I think you could see their (the board) attitude change. After a while they didn't even say hi to me."

"I will tell you that I have a bitter taste in my mouth about the newspapers and the board and how they've treated me through this."

Trustee Mel Vaara said he was depressed when he heard of the news Tuesday morning, but also thinks Lutz needs to take responsibility.

"He's the one that invested the money," said Vaara. "The ball is in his court because this is something he did on his own. They had a fair hearing and it went against him."

Lutz will run again

John Lutz, Independence Township's treasurer, has come under heavy criticism since four investments he made decreased in value by over $3 million.

But neither the bad investment decision, nor the $4.9 million claim filed by the township that was not granted, won't keep him down. Although the case is now officially over, Lutz said he doesn't expect the criticism to end.

"I don't think it's going to be over for awhile," he said. "I'm sure the newspapers will drag this out for a long time."

Lutz said he has been disappointed at how the press and township board of trustees has treated him.

When asked if he'll run for re-election in 1996, he said, "I'm going to run again. There's no doubt about it in my mind."

— By Darrel W. Cole

Trustee Jeffrey McGee said the board has been supportive of Lutz throughout, although it hasn't been easy. "In my opinion the board has done everything we can to be as human as possible. It's been difficult because his actions are the reason we're in this."

McGee said he was surprised at the panel's decision. "I'm most disappointed because we (the board) are making a decision based on the idea we're going to be successful. When we hear it's 70-30 or 80-20 that we'll win I feel our chances are good. So when I heard this, it's like a slap in the face."

Supervisor Dale Stuart was partially at a loss for words when contacted, shortly after he was notified of the decision.

"I'm very disappointed ... but I also think that because the arbitrators awarded any damages at all shows they found some fault. I think the decision goes against the weight of the evidence."

Looking back on the over year-old ordeal, Stuart said he doesn't think there is anything the township could have done differently.

"We felt we had a good chance of recovery. The thing I would tell citizens is that we were faced with a situation that was already in place and we did everything we could."

Westcap attorney John Carter and Leibold and Oetting attorney J.C. Nickens were pleased with the panel's decision.

"I think the decision came out the way it should have," said Nickens. "But this is not a happy situation for anyone. It's caused everyone a lot of pain."

Carter said he would have preferred no monetary award was ordered, but considering the size of the claim, they are pleased.

The decision

Three arbitrators determined Independence Township Treasurer John Lutz knew what he was doing when he invested over $5 million in four securities.

The arbitrators released their decision Nov. 28, awarding the township only $100,000 of a $4.9 million claim against Westcap Securities and brokers Jeffrey Oetting and Craig Leibold. The decision calls for Westcap to pay the township $100,000. The claims against Leibold and Oetting were dismissed.

The claims came about after the township invested in four securities that have decreased in value by over $3 million. Those investments, made between Sept. 1993 and March 1994, decreased in value because interest rates fell. The township claimed Leibold and Oetting misled Lutz with bad investment advice. The brokers said they were only following the orders of Lutz.

Arbitrators agreed with Leibold and Oetting attorney J.C. Nickens' arguments that Lutz was knowledgeable about these collateralized mortgage obligation securities.

"Leibold and Oetting specifically discussed with Lutz the nature of the investments complained of, including the volatility in the event of changes in the interest rate. Lutz confirmed that he understood the nature of the investments and discussed them knowledgeably at the time of the purchase," wrote the arbitration panel.

In their decision, the arbitrators go on to say that while the township complains of the four investments, they don't bother to mention the profits made with Westcap through other similar securities, totaling over $500,000.

Exactly why the panel decided to order Westcap to pay $100,000 to the township isn't known, however.

Nickens and Westcap attorney John Carter said it may be just a gesture by the panel to help the township with its expenses.

"I don't know," said Carter. "Maybe the arbitrators felt like they should reimburse the township some of the fees."

Man arraigned in assault

Dennis Darling, 43, of Independence Township, was arraigned Friday in 52-3 District Court on charges he assaulted a neighbor. According to a report filed with the Oakland County Sheriff's Department, Darling approached his wife, who is staying with a neighbor, and began a fight Nov. 22. When the neighbor intervened, Darling allegedly kicked him to the ground and beat him severely before fleeing. Darling was apprehended on Clintonville Rd. and arrested.

At the time of the incident, Darling's wife already had obtained a personal protection order which ordered him to stay away from her. In addition to the assault and battery charge, he was charged with domestic violence. Bond was set at $1,000 (cash 10 percent).

Snowfall catches motorists

The sudden snowfall which blanketed the area Thanksgiving eve caused a few headaches for Independence Township motorists and a number of accidents were reported.

One Clarkston man was injured when his car hit a pole on slippery Pine Knob Rd. A Holly woman rolled her car on an embankment on Andersonville Rd. and received minor injuries. A driver on Sashabaw Rd. lost control of the car, crossed the center line and hit another car before fleeing. A Ford Explorer pulling a trailer slid off M-15 and hit a tree; no one was injured.

On I-75 at around 10:40 p.m. all lanes were stopped when one car slid off the road and hit a car already off on the shoulder; no one was hurt. But two people were injured on Sashabaw Rd. and taken to St. Joseph Mercy Hospital after a head-on collision.

City allocates Block Grant funds

Clarkston's City Council made the following designations for 1995-96 Community Development Block Grant funds during Monday night's council meeting, passing a resolution 6-0 (Councilman Doug Roeser was absent):

- $1,000, Clarkston Youth Assistance
- $1,000, Senior Citizens
- $600, Independence Township Library (large-print books)
- $600, Lighthouse Clarkston
- $1,000, Independence Township Senior Center carpeting
- $1,600, city planning
- ⇒ $2,200, Depot Park (new wood chips)

Independence Township Library director Mollie Lynch was pleased to receive funds for large-print books which are devoured by patrons with vision problems. Lynch said for every $100 she can buy five books. The $600 designation will buy 30.

"We're always trying to update (our large-print collection). People have exhausted the books in their (favorite) genres. As the population increases, we have more and more senior citizens," Lynch said.

Board of review set

Clarkston's City Council set the times for Board of Review meetings at it's Nov. 27 council meeting. Both the March 11 and March 18 1996 meetings will be held from 1 to 4 p.m. and from 6 to 9 p.m.

Council also appointed Hoyt Frericks to a Board of Review seat, replacing Mike Lorimer.

A working vacation

Retired teacher spends month bringing English to Poland

BY EILEEN OXLEY
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Though former music teacher Janet Grimes enjoys her retirement, her interest was piqued when she heard about a volunteer teaching opportunity across the Atlantic.

Through a teamwork effort by the Elderhostel program and Global Volunteers, Grimes found out about a service program where senior adult volunteers were needed to teach conversational English in three countries — Jamaica, Indonesia and Poland.

Grimes, who doesn't relish "steamy weather," decided the latter was for her.

"It was time for an adventure," she said. Grimes liked the combination of business and pleasure. To her, the three-week excursion would be much more than a vacation.

"I love Europe. And it made so much sense to give something and leave something. This might sound a little flowery, but I never wanted to just go and come back with souvenirs."

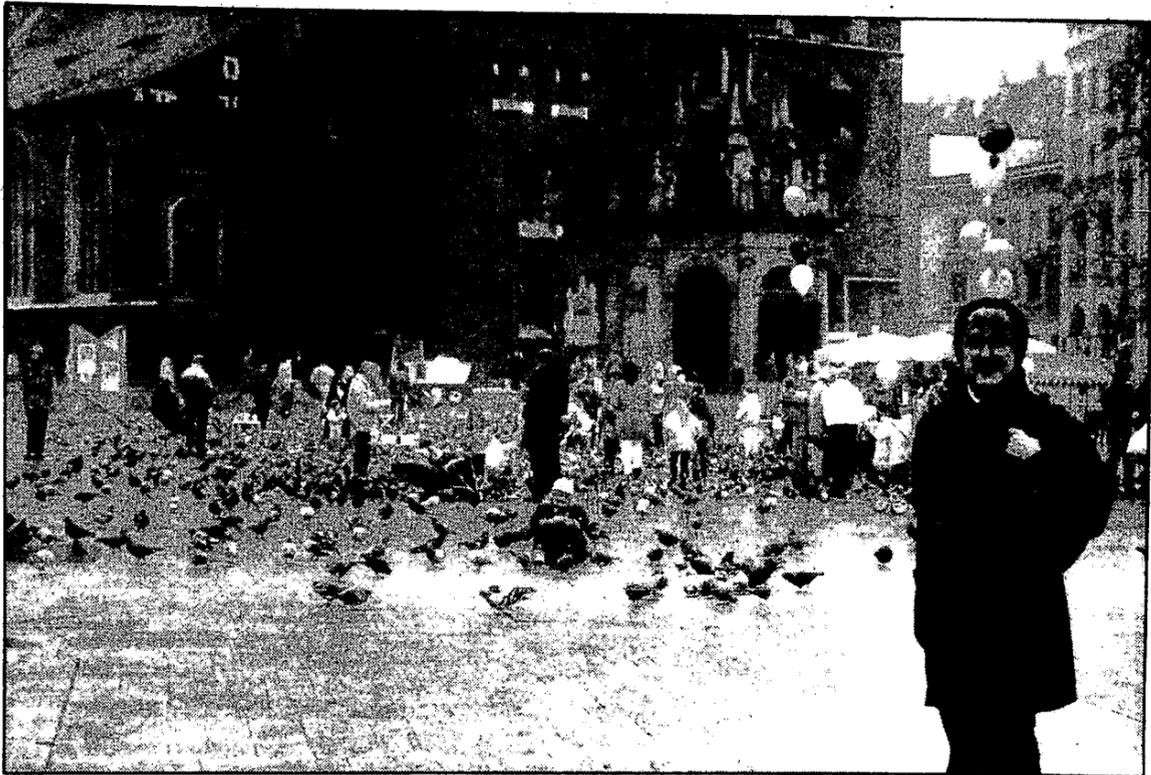

The experience turned out to be reciprocal, Grimes says, because she was taught about the people, the country and the language in return.

Grimes, a Clarkston resident who taught for 40 years in the Waterford school system, found herself teaching conversational English to third-graders early in the morning, and to 12- and 13-year-olds late in the afternoon at two elementary schools. The classes were extra hours, in addition to the regular school day. "(The schools) are doing it because they want to." Grimes said the children were like American kids in most every way, right down to "The Lion King" T-shirts that they wore. The younger children were particularly "lovely," she says, because they were eager and cooperative. They were often in their seats "before I was," Grimes, a self-described "not-a-morning-person," admits.

Most of the students knew some English phrases like "My name is ..." and they could name days of the week, months of the year and so on. Grimes started from there, often drawing upon her past music teaching skills to grasp full sentences.

"I used easy-type songs like 'Ten Little Indians' and 'The Bear Went Over the Mountain' — songs that had a lot of repetition in them." Grimes added lots of gestures, sign language and pointing. But it still was difficult to teach every word. "Like in 'The Bear Went Over the Mountain,' they knew what a bear was (in English), but I had to draw mountains on the blackboard. It was hard to teach 'went' but it didn't seem to bother them anymore. They knew what it meant ... But, thank goodness for that Polish/English dictionary. We depended on that!" she said with a laugh.

Not all the volunteers were teachers. Some went into the experience biting their nails, but came out believing they could do almost anything. Still, most of the time, the volunteers had to wing it, drawing upon old dittos, workbooks — and imagination — as their only resources. Now, the program will be more organized, because Global Volunteers has hired an English-speaking Polish woman to coordinate the curriculum.

Grimes and her 25 North American companions stayed at a manor in the rural country near Krakow that is named after Polish Nobel Prize-winning writer Reymon Towky. They were one half hour from the nearest town, she says, and depended on parents to get them to and from school and an old van to get them elsewhere. "It had jump seats along the sides and back that we would hold on to," she said.

That's all a part of what Grimes calls "a simpler way of life" in Poland. "There were little lace curtains in the window, oh, it was lovely. And they always

'I never wanted to just go and come back with souvenirs.'

greeted you with a smile, a wave and a "Dzien Dobry" (greeting). We learned to speak some Polish while we were teaching them English. We thought that was interesting. We learned 'please' and 'thank you' — those kinds of things."

Each weekend they were there, the band of volunteers traveled, visiting Warsaw, Krakow and a forest preserve, Bialowiecz Forest, near the Belarus border. Those experiences were an education as well, and Grimes especially remembers, with horror, the trip to Auschwitz where she walked through the gas chambers.

"I felt cold. It gave you that awful feeling — How could they do this to people. It was a cold, dreary day just like you see in the pictures. If you're there, you should see it. It makes you sit up and take notice if you haven't already."

On the upbeat, the group enjoyed a performance of "Fiddler on the Roof" in Warsaw — "in Yiddish, the way it should be" — and the combination of old and new everywhere.

"They have no fences for their animals. They stake them out. And cows march down the road. Sometimes you'd have to go at a cow's pace. You'd be in your car and you'd see a horse and wagon off to one side of the road."

In Warsaw, Grimes noticed the largest building, The Palace of Culture and Science, which was built by the Communists. She was told that, although it's still used, the Polish don't like it "because the Russians built it." Grimes also noted that the grocery stores are well-stocked, contrary to rumor. "You used to hear about the long lines and the empty shelves, but they looked just like ours." In Krakow, Grimes and her fellow volunteers ate at McDonald's.

Global Volunteers, a private, non-profit non-sectarian organization that was founded in 1984, works under the direction of local community leaders at the invitation of a local host organization. The English-teaching partnership in Poland began over five years ago, after Poland achieved independence from Communist rule. It was initiated by Rural Solidarity to assist efforts toward democratization and free enterprise. Volunteers work toward improving conversational ability and pronunciation — skills Polish citizens will need if they are to fit into the Western world.

"Six years ago they got out from under Communist rule," says Grimes. "Rural Solidarity is kind of their labor union. They want very much to be independent and they want their people to be able to speak English when it's necessary. They know it's coming to be."

Grimes says the program is strictly volunteer. That includes the price. The full cost of the experience from Oct. 5 to Oct. 31 was under $3,000. Not bad, she figures, for what you get — "air fare and everything else," including the weekend excursions which were extra, but a great opportunity.

For others who would consider becoming volunteers, Grimes advises talking to sources to find out what you need, including a little education on speaking Polish and a good dictionary. But most of it, she feels, you learn by doing.

"They told us — remember, you're pioneers in this. It hasn't been going that long."

For more information on volunteer services provided by the program, contact Global Volunteers at 1-800-487-1074, 375 E. Little Canada Rd., St. Paul, Minnesota, 55117.

Court dedicates new building

BY EILEEN OXLEY
Clarkston News Staff Writer

It looked new and smelled new. Gray-blue carpeting and plush chairs graced the lobby where only months ago the charred remains of the old courthouse had stood.

Several Oakland County and Independence Township VIPs as well as court employees and others were there Nov. 21 to dedicate the new 52-2 District Courthouse which burned to the ground during Devils' Night, 1994.

"I can't believe it was only a year ago that Gerry McNally burned his old courthouse down just to get a new one," quipped Oakland County Executive L. Brooks Patterson, one of several persons who provided a speech. Patterson was referring to 52-2 District Court Judge Gerald McNally, who, along with other court and office employees, had to endure the court's temporary relocation in Pontiac over the past year.

Patterson also recognized Clarkston citizens. "They were able to find this court as it moved around," he said.

Before the red ribbon-cutting ceremony, which took place outside the new courthouse doors and looked festive amidst falling snow, guests feasted on elaborate hors d'oeuvres and chatted.

As McNally reflected on the courthouse fire, he said he would never forget the scene of people leaving their offices, which he likened to the terrible aftermath of a Civil War battle.

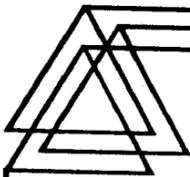

"All that was missing were the blood-stained bandages." But, he added, it was truly amazing how people recovered so quickly.

"Now we have to prove that we deserve this nice building," he said, with a smile.

At the wire: 52-2 District Court Judge Gerald McNally (left) and Oakland County Executive L. Brooks Patterson share ribbon-cutting duties at the new courthouse.

New precinct boundaries are set

Some voting locations change

BY DARREL W. COLE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

By early January voters in Independence Township will know how precinct boundary changes will affect them.

Clerk Joan McCrary expects to send out new voter registration cards by Jan. 2. The state deadline for the changes is Jan. 9, although McCrary wasn't notified of the new law until early this month. Michigan Public Act 401 requires all municipalities to make their precinct boundaries "clearly observable boundaries."

That means the township had to redraw some boundaries because they were using section lines, power line easements and subdivision lines. The new law requires boundaries to be roads, railroad tracks, etc.

While the new regulations have put an increased workload on the clerk's office, the cost to implement the boundary changes has been high. Two new tabulators cost over $15,000 and engineering services to determine the new boundaries cost over $6,000.

The township board of trustees approved the boundary changes at its Nov. 21 meeting.

Three new polling places were added, nine boundaries were changed and two new precincts were created. The township now has 14 voting precincts.

Some of the major changes are: Precinct three voters will vote at Calvary Evangelical Lutheran Church on Bluegrass (off M-15), instead of the Carriage House at Clintonwood Park; voters in precinct 13 will vote at First Congregational Church on Clarkston Road; and, voters in precinct 14 will vote at Pine Knob School.

A complete precinct boundary map will be published in The Clarkston News in the next few weeks. Copies are also available for viewing at the clerk's office.

Along with the added precincts, McCrary said there will also be a need for more election workers. Workers currently receive $85 per day, although she said it's a very long day. For information call the clerk's office at 625-5111.

Other board action

- A $26,080 air compressor system, including a new medical oxygen system, will be purchased by the fire department. The current system is nine years old and will be the back-up.

The other two companies bidding on the proposal came in at over $35,000. The approved bidder, Air Source One, offered a $9,630 trade-in for the department's old self-contained breathing apparatuses. No other company offered a trade-in.

- The township ordinance regarding the use of firearms by minors was amended by the board. The ordinance makes it unlawful for people under 18 years of age to use or possess a firearm or handgun designed exclusively for propelling projectiles exceeding .177 caliber, unless accompanied by someone over 18.

The ordinance meaning won't change, although the word "projectile" was substituted for BB.

- The board approved the first reading to adopt the 1993 National Electrical Code to the township's ordinances. In addition, 10 technical amendments were also approved. Final adoption is expected at the board's Dec. 6 meeting.

- Cari Polidan was approved for full-time employment in the clerk's office. Polidan has worked part-time in the office for three years.

Her position as clerk II was an approved budget position for 1996. However, the recent precinct boundary changes required full-time services sooner.

In Focus

by Annette Kingsbury

The people speak; is anyone listening?

Last week's public hearing on the new high school was an interesting exercise in participatory democracy. Interesting, at least in part, for what it showed about what people want from their governmental authorities.

It's fashionable these days in government, both in Lansing and in Washington, to profess that less is better—less government, that is. Would that a few of our leaders had been at the Clarkston High School auditorium last Monday to hear what local people think of that idea.

Basically, residents told the board of education that they want and expect government to make sure they are not victimized by development which they have no say in. In regards to the new school, they want an environmental impact study, a traffic study, street improvements, wetland protection, adequate law enforcement—the list went on and on.

The answers they got were not very reassuring. An environmental impact study is not required. A traffic study is up to the road commission, should it feel like doing one. Street improvements? Residents most likely will have to pay. Wetlands are about the only things protected by law, unless that too has been changed by the time this goes to print.

Not that there's any great conspiracy going on here. This is just the way things are in America today. Our leaders don't want to do anything to stymie much-coveted growth, so they are working to make investment easier. Unfortunately, if you're the little guy, it often looks like the way is being paved for the big guys, not you.

In the case of the high school, the school district doesn't even have to run the site plan by the township planning commission, the people who are charged with enforcing the zoning ordinance. Architects said last week it's the plan to adhere to township zoning regulations, in so far as is reasonable. Try that one on the planning commission the next time you're building a house.

The lesson I took home from the hearing is that most people want government's hands off, until a project affects them. Then they want government to make sure things go like they should. It's kind of the NIMBY phenomenon (not in my back yard) only in reverse.

And that's not to say the neighbors don't have good cause to be concerned. Imagine living on a quiet dirt road with few neighbors, only to be told one day an 8,000 seat arena is going to go in across the street. Your first instinct might be to move, but then who'd buy your house under those circumstances?

From the moment the site was purchased by the school district, the residents were stuck. All they can do now is lobby hard to get the best deal they can. We should all wish them luck.

Cooperation benefits all

It's clear after the Nov. 20 public hearing on the site plan for the new high school that cooperation among government agencies could be improved.

What residents learned at the hearing is that the Road Commission for Oakland County and the Independence Township Planning Commission have only had cursory, at best, input into the plans for the new school. This is not because of malice on anyone's part, but because such cooperation is not required by any legal statutes.

However, it was also clear there are some instances where the school board's interests and those of the neighbors of the new building will diverge. We believe, therefore, that it would be in the best interests of all concerned if the school district, township and road commission would agree to work together to arrive at the best possible solutions.

We agree with township trustee Bruce Mercado, who pointed out at the hearing that the township employs many people whose sole job is planning and building oversight, and their expertise had not even been tapped. In addition, we agree with residents that the road commission has not begun to answer questions about the impact on roads and traffic of the new building. The neighbors deserve answers to those questions now, not after the inevitable problems develop.

In addition, we believe the school district should make a commitment to work with the township to include the school property in a large regional drainage project the township has begun to undertake. The property falls within the regional drain's boundaries and contains wetlands. Yet the architects, in their drawings, are showing some six or seven acres of land devoted to detention ponds to protect the wetlands. While that is admirable, perhaps adopting the regional drain plan would free up that land for other uses and still protect the wetlands.

We believe the architects and the school board are working to obtain the best possible high school the taxpayers' $53 million can buy. However that shouldn't preclude bringing in every bit of expertise available. The above-mentioned people are already on the taxpayers' payroll and will not cost the school district anything to consult. We hope they do so, and soon. AK

Savannah Kay joins the family

Naturally, Hazel and I were sound asleep when our daughter, Susan, called us at 3 a.m. November 12.

Also, naturally, the phone is on Hazel's side of the bed. She's quicker, she receives more calls than me and it's her job to screen my calls. It was in our wedding vows.

Hazel knew what the call was about before she picked up the receiver, which was way before a second ring. And, when she said, "Oh, oh" at the same time she reached for the phone, I knew what the call was about.

Susan and her husband, Tim, were headed for, or were already at, Crittenton Hospital's maternity ward.

Forty-five minutes later we were there, too. We weren't nervous, but we did get lost on the way to the waiting room. I think hospitals are bigger now than when we needed their birthing facilities 41, 38 and 33 years ago.

I'll tell you one thing for sure, expectant parents, particularly fathers, are certainly different nowadays. No way in hell would I be in the birthing room with my wife as Tim was with his.

And, no way in hell would Hazel have allowed me in the same room with her at that time.

I wasn't even in the hospital when our second child was born, and I barely remember being in the hospital for the other two. I vaguely remember a waiting room, but do remember sharing it.

On this early November morn Hazel and I were the only ones in this waiting room. It was cold. The magazines were not only old, but none were masculine. 1992 McCalls does not hold my attention. Nor did any of the children's mags.

The best thing in this waiting room was a lounge chair. The next worse thing to the magazines was the tv program. Did you know they show World Wrestling Federation matches at 4:00 a.m.? (I couldn't find the channel changing button.)

Expectant grandparents look forward to these blessed events much differently. Grandpa fell asleep in his lounge. Grandma was still flipping pages on the old McCalls at 5:45 when a nurse announced our granddaughter had arrived at 5:10.

Mother, father and Savannah Kay Speed were doing just fine.

Tired and proud.

Relieved and emotional.

Very thankful.

It wasn't a stop-watch timing thing, but we weren't long with brand new Savannah Kay when she was in Grandma's arms.

I hope our daughter wasn't offended when I declined the opportunity to either drop the new born or let her head drop too quickly.

I have since held Savannah Kay. I think to show her feelings toward my first rejection she spit up on me.

Anyway, she's a perfect little doll who will bring her parents and grandparents great joy.

15 YEARS AGO (1980)

Oakland County Circuit Court Judge Francis X. O'Brien rules that Pine Knob Investment Co. can apply for a building permit to erect a 185-foot high ski run without site plan approval.

Julie Greetham is crowned Clarkston's new Junior Miss for 1981 after the culmination of a two-night pageant Saturday evening. In addition to receiving top prize of $450 toward a scholarship, Julie receives the $25 Kraft Award.

A park shelter and a physical fitness course for Independence Township's Clintonwood Park will be considered at the Dec. 2 township board meeting. Half the money for the projects would come from a federal grant program, but the board needs to decide how additional funding would be provided.

25 YEARS AGO (1970)

Clarkston is among seven of the 103 cities and villages in Southeast Michigan that more than doubles its population count in the last decade. Preliminary totals published by Southeast Michigan Council of Governments list Clarkston's population in 1970 at 1,541. In 1960 the count was 769.

The Clarkston Area Jaycees will present their 9th annual Junior Miss Pageant on Saturday, Nov. 28. Interested senior girls from the Clarkston area met for the first time Oct. 15 with the Jaycees and discovered the purpose and activities of the pageant.

The Clarkston High School wrestling team primes itself for a new season with an initial turnout of about 30 hopefuls at practice. After a successful 1969-70 season with a 12-1 league championship, head wrestling coach Dick Moscovic faces a major team rebuilding job — having lost eight varsity wrestlers to graduation.

The following poem, composed by Clarkston resident Robert C. Beattie, appears in the Nov. 30 edition of The Clarkston News:

Customers Are Always Right

Jones serves the public in his store, He cleans the windows and his floor.

He keeps his stock all nice and neat, And Jones' service can't be beat.

Jones gathers all his helpers in, Tells them to take it on the chin.

To never show a sign of fight, Till customers are out of sight.

To never weary of their tasks, But answer all the questions asked.

To grit their teeth but be polite, For customers are always right.

To cover up producers' flaws. And make excuses for the laws.

To keep light hearted all day long, Though jostled by a restless throng.

Greet each one with glowing smile, Though feeling badly all the while.

If you are slipping take a grip, And learn to button up your lip.

Then slip outside and take a pill, But never let them know you're ill.

Just be an angel day and night, For customers are always right.

60 YEARS AGO (1935)

News from "Blue and White Flash" (Clarkston School News):

Coach Waters will get a slight breathing spell. Football season ended Nov. 8 and basketball season won't begin until Nov. 25 ... On Nov. 27, the senior class will journey to Pontiac, Birmingham, Detroit, or what have you, for a theater party ... Will Junior Waterbury ever quit monkeying around? ... Bart Mann was kind of playful on Tuesday. Ask him about it ... Lyle Rexford is seen quite often with a new pair of shoes. Maybe it is caused from walking to school every morning.

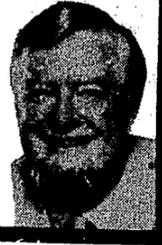

The finance committee of the Parent Teacher Association is going to give away a beautiful, big doll with complete wardrobe, just before Christmas. This will be one way of raising money to help pay for the school dishes and silverware.

Saturday Specials at Waterbury's Home Market include veal breast for stuffing, 12 1/2 cents a pound; pot roast of beef, 15 cents a pound, Wheaties, two packages for 21 cents; Chumgold Oleo, two pounds for a quarter; Table Talk coffee, two pounds for 35 cents; and Beech Nut Tomato Juice, three cans for 25 cents. Waterbury's will give away a turkey and basket of groceries for Thanksgiving.

If It Fitz

Era ends at club on somber, sober note

Writing recently about why the Detroit Press Club was forced to close, I blamed geography. A member responded that much of the blame should be dumped on boozing, or the lack of it.

"The problem is your generation drank a lot more than mine does," a thirtysomething fellow told sixtysomething me.

I can't deny the history. I have too many boozy memories.

Undoubtedly, one reason the 36-year-old club ultimately couldn't generate sufficient business at its downtown bar and restaurant was because so many current and prospective members now live a long drive away, in the suburbs. But it's also true that no matter where they live, today's news, advertising and public relations workers don't slouch on bar stools nearly as much as their predecessors did.

I recall a Michigan Press Association convention in the 1950s, when an editor and a reporter, for some forgotten reason, removed a couch from a hotel room. The next morning, hotel employees were unable to squeeze it back through the doorway. It was decided that the couch, responding positively to its liberation, had expanded in the hallway overnight.

That happened at the Kellogg Center on the Michigan State University campus during the days when hotel management discouraged drinking by offering no ice service to rooms, and no ice machines. No problem. It was winter, and it was soon discovered that ice could be chopped from the nearby Red Cedar River. It was a technological breakthrough, and at least one reporter damn near drowned.

Then there was the press convention where I cleverly impersonated a Michigan Bell PR employee by swiping his name tag. Soon I was buttonholed by a small-town editor who wanted to know how to get the phone company to advertise in his newspaper.

Based on my experience with the same problem, I advised him to write scathing editorials about lousy phone service, which would not only bring ads, but also a free lunch with a Bell representative. He tried it, and it worked.

It is surely likely that none of these memories would have been created without liquid aid. And it's equally likely that they wouldn't be repeated today.

Of course, it isn't only members of the press who, through the years, have cut down on stopping at bars and private clubs for a few drinks after work. It's become comparatively drier in most professions. The reason is a greater awareness of the damage booze can do to your health and your relationships. Also, drunken driving penalties are stiffer.

All of which is fine. The failure of a few saloons, public or private, is the correct price to pay for better health, safer roads and happier families. I still enjoy a little vodka, but my digestive system has convinced me that being a Hollywood-type, hard-drinking newsman isn't nearly as much fun as it used to be.

And I realize I'm lucky my boozy memories make me laugh, not cry.

Don't Rush Me

By Don Rush

Alphabet soup

The world we live in is a fast one.

So fast that people want their information fed to them by televisions and computers (the latest in electronic family members). People seem to have little or no time for reading newspapers.

Things just whip on past. No time to smell the roses or drink the coffee.

We in the print media probably are, to a small degree, responsible for this. We play right into the hands of a society spinning at warp-speed seven.

A good example of how fast and complicated life is, is the way we make acronyms for everything. Heck, here in the office I'm often referred to as the ATTP of SPI -- assistant to the publisher of Sherman Publications, Incorporated.

Acronyms are easier to use and I'll be the first to admit I use 'em as much as the next guy ... sometimes I have to sit a minute and think of all of the commonly used ones and what they stand for.

We have NATO and the UN. Who can forget OPEC?

Locally we run into these all the time: PUD, DDA, TIFA, CHS, CMS, SMS, CPD, SEMCOG, OLHSA, OCSD -- time out. I need to come up for air.

We used to have a sign here at the office, PIP:

... Paramount. We got smart, ditched the PIP sign and just used the words. PIP didn't sound as good as saying Pride is Paramount. PIP sounded trite, too light.

If you ever make it to a local governmental board meeting (and you should) get ready to get confused. Often times people in the know refer to things with the acronyms, assuming everybody else knows what they are talking about. Sometimes we here at the newspaper will even put them in a headline (more than we should).

We assume everybody knows what we're talking about ... however, one of the golden rules of journalism is never assume anything.

Local government officials often talk about and grant PUDs. The dictionary defines "pud" as the same as pood, a Russian unit of weight, equal to 3.611 pounds. Local government-types know that PUD is a Planned Unit Development.

Township workers are familiar with OCATS, SEMCOG and OLHSA: Oakland County Association of Township Supervisors, Southeast Michigan Council of Governments and Oakland Livingston Human Service Agency.

Is it any wonder why people are so confused and asking, "what the H, E, double toothpick is going on here?"

Arrivals, departures

It was a cold, snowy and treacherous drive to Metro Airport Thanksgiving eve. On the advice of a friend, I listened to AM radio, catching the latest in traffic and weather reports. I heard there were two accidents ahead of me on I-275. Although I had allowed plenty of time, it still took nearly 1 1/2 hours to drive from Telegraph Rd. to the airport.

Passing the flares along the blocked two right lanes of the stretch, I wondered about the motorists. Had they, as I, been on their way to pick up loved ones at the airport? I was worried my fiance Daniel would be anxiously waiting, that I would be late to pick him up from his flight. I breathed a sigh of relief as I walked in through the airport's doors.

I had arrived.

I was also relieved to be there nearly 45 minutes before his plane touched down. I saw the faces of others waiting too, as they peered up the stairs and escalator, watching for those who would be spending the holiday with them. They soon appeared, one by one, and I was touched by the scenes.

Grandparents waited at the bottom of the escalator to claim their tiny granddaughter and children. Peals of laughter, hugs and kisses, as the little girl was swept up into the arms of the couple. Then, two sisters — obvious by their matching platinum heads of hair — embraced, clinging to each other for several moments. A woman met a man at the bottom of the stairs. Smiling, they linked arms and walked away.

A happy time, I thought, and a few tears gathered at the corners of my eyes. Then, a few more anxious moments until I saw the dear, familiar face of the man

I love.

I reflected, as we drove home to spend four wonderful days together, about how our lives are made up of a series of arrivals and departures.

We arrive in this world, most of us heralded by great anticipation and love. In a few years we depart for school, and arrive to the warm, soft glow of our homes at the end of the day. When we become adults, we depart for college or marriage or a home of our own.

When we make it in our careers or other great accomplishments, people say "we've arrived." When someone dies, that person is often referred to as "dearly departed."

Our lives are full of arrivals and departures. Home to visit our parents. Home from work or school. Overseas to serve in the war, Europe, Vietnam and now, Bosnia. To the hospital to welcome a new baby or to pick up a friend or loved one who has undergone surgery.

Life seems to flow that way until the last departure that takes us away from this world forever. Some of us are ready, some of us are unprepared. Some of us are sure we have a chartered flight. Some of us don't know where we're going. From the moment we're born, until the time we die, we arrive, depart, arrive, depart ...

In those brief minutes at the airport, I realized how precious are the times of arrival — where we welcome those for happiness, celebration and homecoming. And how treasured are the moments we spend with loved ones until they depart, too soon, again.

Who's going turkey hunting?

Ah, yes, Thanksgiving. A time to eat and eat and eat and then, if the mood strikes us, to remember what we're thankful for.

Oh, yeah, there's also football and mystery relatives who say how you were this tall the last time they saw you while holding their hand up approximately at mid-thigh. I, for one, am not a fan of football at all and will never understand why the volume level of the television has to be up at such an ear-piercing decibel to watch this particular program. I also am not a fan of mystery relatives because I generally feel bad when someone is talking to me in earnest about how they can't believe how much I've grown, and all the while I'm thinking, "That's nice, but who are you?"

I, myself, barely ate anything all day long on Thanksgiving. I didn't wake up until after eleven o'clock, so that ruled out breakfast, and by the time I was ready to face the day it was time to leave, so that ruled out any kind of lunch.

Dinner for me consisted of especially small portions. I hardly ate anything. I didn't even eat that cranberry stuff in the shape of the can I get so excited about every year.

Maybe it was the miniature Milky Way bar I swiped out of the candy dish before dinner, or maybe it was the fact that I woke up sick Thanksgiving morning that spoiled my appetite.

Strange, but for as far back as I can remember, I always wake up Thanksgiving morning with an ailment of some kind, be it a stomach ache, a sore throat, or a dislocated collar bone. No matter, I was definitely not the food-shoveling queen at the dinner table this year, nor have I ever been in years past.

Thanksgiving is just not a holiday that I get really excited about. I never have. It's just not a very big deal to me. It's not because I'm a thankless person who has never realized how truly lucky I am. I think about how lucky I am every day and I don't need a designated day to sit down in front of a huge turkey to remember that.

I am lucky, but I'm not a big eater. I don't like football, and I never really get to visit with my relatives much on Thanksgiving anyway. I am also not a Pilgrim or an Indian like the ones shown to me all through elementary school at this time of year, though I imagine that need not be stated.

A bonus for this year is that none of my relatives pinched my cheeks while greeting me. Actually, that's never happened to me. Maybe it's not a bonus after all. Maybe it's something that I really am lacking in my life and somehow suffering inside because of. My guess is probably not. However, there was general excitement stirring amongst the kinfolk due to the fact that Laura and I drove together in a separate car to my Grandma's house, where the festivities were taking place.

Keep in mind, however, that my Grandma lives in Clawson, which is about a half-hour away on I-75, and the fact that many of my relatives had not seen or spoken to us in several years.

One thing that makes this Thanksgiving especially different from any other is the fact that there are no leftovers in my house. I will not be eating turkey sandwiches and turkey noodle soup and turkey a la mode for the next seven or eight months. This, however, is a positive thing, since I don't even like turkey all that much.

How big of a problem is traffic in Clarkston?

MARIAN EMERY, CLARKSTON: I think it's a big problem, especially with the big trucks. But the stop lights have helped a lot.

ALMA GOLDNER, CLARKSTON: It's a big problem — without any solution readily available.

LOU DECIANTIS, CLARKSTON: Compared to Detroit, where I grew up, it's easy. In comparison, it's a piece of cake.

JASON LABOMBARD, ORTONVILLE: It's not, in comparison to the other cities and towns I've driven through. They ought to go to Troy.

Inspiration is contagious

Betty Pursley (left) receives a stone made especially for her from Kim Bordine at Bordine's Nursery in Clarkston. Pursley was reading her morning devotions one day when she came upon a verse from Genesis which said, "I heard your voice in the garden." Wanting to make it into a plaque for her own garden, Pursley visited Bordine's, where she discovered a company does make stones with words printed on them. Bordine's manager Neil Frank contacted the company, Kay Berry Co., which decided to surprise Pursley with the stone with her message printed on it. A retired nurse, Pursley said, "I like to send love notes of encouragement, because life's too short not to."

Nutcracker keeps tradition in holiday

These days, when you can FAX Grandmother your estimated arrival time by cellular telephone from the minivan, it's tough to imagine jaunting over the river and through the woods in a spiffy, horse-drawn sleigh. Yet who doesn't prefer their holiday season with a dollop of old-fashioned flavor? And if high tech's making it hard to acquire a traditional yuletide mindset, the Oakland Festival Ballet Company can help muster your fa-la-las faster than decking the halls with boughs of holly.

On Saturday, Dec. 16, the non-profit troupe of talented young dancers returns to the Royal Oak Music Theatre for the first of four performances of The Nutcracker. Lawrence Hernandez of the Cincinnati Ballet will play the prince, and 13-year-old Liana Skousen will portray Clara.

Performances are at 11 a.m and 4 p.m. Dec. 16 and 17. Tickets are $16 for adults, $14 for seniors and children under 12 and are available at Ticket Master outlets and at the Royal Oak Theatre box office. For group rates call (810) 652-3117.

Future of Depot Street may be up to residents

BY EILEEN OXLEY
Clarkston News Staff Writer

The ongoing problem of how to improve Depot Rd. may be turned over to Clarkston residents.

At Monday night's Clarkston City Council meeting, discussion continued on how to rectify what has become an eyesore, safety hazard and possible liability problem since council voted to eliminate several parking spots last year in the wake of a slip-and-fall lawsuit against the city.

During the past few weeks council has appeared to be in favor of installing sidewalks on either side of the street in conjunction with Max Brook Realtors president Bowen Brook, who wants to landscape the north side where his business is located at Main and Depot.

Brook is concerned about the barren wall of his building which, to him, is an eyesore. He doesn't want the sidewalk because he is concerned about liability problems with falling snow and ice from his roof and increased pedestrian usage which could result in more slip-and-fall accidents.

Although council has considered leasing the area to Brook for up to 25 years, City Attorney Tom Ryan said the sidewalk would not be Brook's responsibility.

"It's not going to be his property. It's our sidewalk," Ryan said.

However, council has continued to brainstorm several ideas which include sidewalks on both sides of the street, a pedestrian crosswalk for safe access to Depot Park, additional parking, turning Depot into a two-way street and, at Monday's meeting, a possible parking structure at the bottom of the hill.

Although the costly structure was previously discussed by council, Councilman Dave Savage brought up the subject again after talking with Hubbell, Roth & Clark engineer Gary Tressel, who was present at Monday night's meeting and has drawn up possible plans.

However, the parking structure might make it necessary to close off Depot St., making City Hall, the Clarkston Mills Mall and other areas accessible only by way of Holcomb St.

But "It's a possibility," Tressel said.

Councilman Bill Basinger pointed out that the structure would cost from $6,000 to $8,000 per space. For 40 to 50 cars that could cost the city at least $320,000, he said. Basinger reopened an alternative — opening up parking along Depot at the bottom of the hill.

"The best use would be the parking structure, but at a cost of $300,000? Is it economically feasible?"

'Everybody says they don't want this community to be Rochester. If you don't want that, then what do you want?'

Gary Tressel

asked Councilman Steve Secatch, who has been part of a committee working on the Depot Rd. project. He suggested that a special city council meeting be set up to "just talk about planning."

Former councilman Steve Arkwright, who was sitting in the audience, thought the city's planning commission should take a look at the problem.

"I recommend that we have the planning commission look at it first and come up with some ideas or recommendations of how do we use that property."

Tressel thought that was a good idea and added, "It's up to the community to decide what the complexion's going to be for this area. Everybody says they don't want this community to be Rochester. If you don't want that, then what do you want?"

Ryan further suggested that the planning commission hold a public hearing and "have the (Clarkston Downtown) Business Association come. For example, if they want a parking structure cost, they can noodle around with that."

Council voted 6-0 (Councilman Doug Roeser was absent) to send the Depot Rd. situation to the planning commission for study during its January and February monthly meetings and to give recommendation to council by its February 12 meeting.

In other council action:

● Council discussed whether aerial or ground spraying should be used in combating gypsy moths this year. Ryan said the situation is especially bad in Clintonwood Park and will contact Independence Township Parks and Rec. director Ann Conklin.

● A second reading of the revised Historic District Ordinance was tabled until the next meeting when Ryan will present a comparison of the old and proposed new ordinances.

● Basinger received word from Community Development administrators that a crushed limestone walkway to the Depot Park gazebo meets with Americans With Disabilities Act requirements.

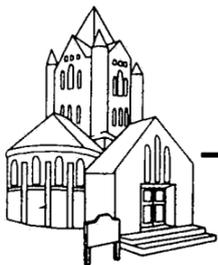

● Council voted, 6-0, to cancel the second December council meeting. The next council meeting, following Dec. 11 will be Jan. 8.

● Clarkston Police Chief Paul Ormiston presented a plan for acquiring an eyewitness surveillance system with VHS recorder for two patrol cars from Kustom Signals, Inc. Such a system would cost the city approximately $10,000 ($5,000 per car) and could be financed over two years at about $430 per month. The city has available funds in its police budget.

A decision will be made by the Dec. 11 council meeting as the contract price is only valid until Dec. 29. Ormiston feels the system would prove to be invaluable for police officer training purposes, safety and liability. Council members appeared to be in support.

● Basinger presented an invoice for safety path, library, fire and dump days services rendered by Independence Township for 1993, 1994 and 1995. The total owed to the township less the $270,000 asset allocation amounts to $110,665.20. Council passed a motion, 6-0, to accept the invoice and pay the township.

● City Manager Art Pappas announced he will be participating in the Muscular Dystrophy Association's lockup Wednesday, Dec. 6. Pappas will be picked up at 10:30 a.m. at City Hall and imprisoned at the MDA/Waterford Courts' Mock Jail in Clarkston (6110 Dixie Highway) with a set bail of $1,000. Call Pappas at 625-1559 if you want to contribute and set him free.

New Mr. B's plans Dec. 4 opening

BY DARREL W. COLE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Mr. B's long-awaited opening couldn't come soon enough for co-owner Holli Day.

Ground was broke just four months ago (Aug. 1), for the restaurant/bar, located on the south side of Dixie Highway at the M-15 intersection. It is scheduled to open Dec. 4. Day said construction has gone well, although minor snags did slow the project down.

"I did expect some snags going into this but I think everyone (in the township) has done the best they can to move this along," said Day.

One of the snags in the project was caused by the controversy surrounding the addition of another access to Mr. B's from Parview Road. Day said after residents came out in force to oppose the extra road, plans were abandoned with agreement from the township and county.

She said the proposal was only brought up because of a traffic concern on Dixie.

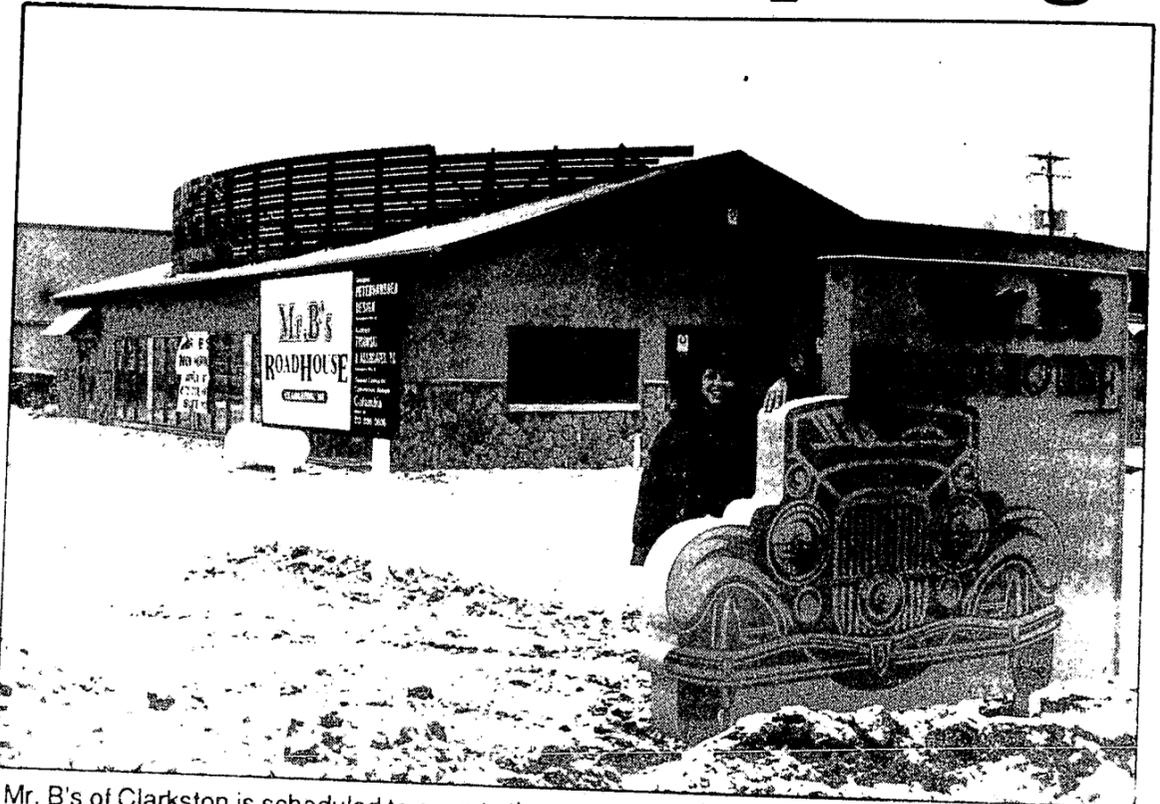

As workers continue to work around the clock, Day expects the results to be well worth it. Mr. B's, with popular establishments in Rochester, Royal Oak and West Bloomfield, will have something for everyone.

The restaurant/bar is known for catering to people of all ages, and Day says the Clarkston Mr. B's will do the same.

"We want a real relaxed atmosphere where everyone will feel comfortable."

They do that by offering a wide variety of entertainment, having well-trained employees and a good menu, including a Kiddie's Menu.

"Our employees go through 80 hours of training," said Day, who added they are still interviewing workers. "They are the representatives of us."

Mr. B's of Clarkston is scheduled to open to the public on Dec. 4 at 11 a.m. Holli Day is one of the owners who can't wait for that day.

In addition to a good group of employees, Mr. B's will have a video game area, pool/dart board area, dining area, a fireplace, two big screen TVs and nine smaller TVs throughout. From Tuesday to Sunday live bands will be featured, playing a variety of music. Mr. B's is also going to host a Christmas Party and New Year's Eve party.

Another perspective on Rush column

Dear Mr Rush:

Glad you and your chain saw were not around 80 years ago when that wild-eyed socialist Henry Ford doubled wages and reduced the price of the car.

True, he needed workers to meet projected demand. But he also knew that our developing capitalist economy would depend on a well-paid workforce for disposable income and investment. (Needless to say, his fellow "capitalists" were outraged.)

And what would you have hacked at when it was proposed that the 12-hour day be reduced to 10, and then to eight? And the work week to five days? Or, for that matter, that child labor be abolished?

Let's face it, in your time, the 7-hour day will be phased in, probably affecting older workers first. Downsizing through technology — or correction of management deficiencies — can only go on so long before radical columnists realize that machines can't buy cars (as Walter Reuther noted some years ago).

As for your concern about "unnecessary" workers, let's think about a temporary paper shortage — for whatever reason. The Clarkston News is reduced to four pages for two or three issues. How will we classify your missing column? Shall we add that term to the column head after it resumes?

And as for operating without other people's money, are you proposing to continue my subscription without a renewal check?

That isn't the chain saw I hear, is it? Isn't it you gritting your teeth?

Thanks to your column, which I always enjoy, this last hour has been especially pleasant.

Winter tax bill has changes

Along with the holiday catalogues and Christmas cards, Independence Township and city of Clarkston residents can expect their winter tax bills in the mail any day now.

According to Independence Township assessor David Kramer, township bills will be mailed on or around Nov. 30. City manager Art Pappas said the city will mail its bills out the first week of December.

The big difference property owners will notice in the bills is the addition of new millage to pay off the bond issue for the new high school. The approval by the voters in June will add 3.94 mills to the schools' debt retirement levy. A mill is $1 for every $1,000 of taxable value.

Kramer said he expects to get a few phone calls when the bills go out because of the new millage.

"Why did my tax bill go up is the question," he said. He pointed out, however, that township residents will not feel the full pinch since the township lowered its levy this year by .0872 mills.

In addition, there may be some confusion because there was no summer bill for 1994, but there is for 1995. The summer bill includes items not attributable to Clarkston schools.

"The summer bill is still in place; it was just eliminated for 1994," Kramer said.

The best thing to do to see how much your taxes went up is to compare the total 1994 levy to the total 1995 levy, Kramer said. Residents have approved some other increases, including Oakland Community College's operating levy, since Proposal A rolled back property taxes in favor of a higher sales tax.

CHS life

All in all, I'm not complaining. I did not have a bad Thanksgiving by any means, but I did not have a particularly exciting one, either. Then again, life is what you make it, so next year I plan to come to my Grandma's house dressed up as a giant turkey singing special turkey hunting songs.

Then, years down the road, when my relatives sit down for Thanksgiving dinner, they can say, "Remember that Thanksgiving when D'Anne dressed up like a turkey? Now that's a Thanksgiving I'll never forget."

Aerial photo bids

The Independence Township Board of Trustees accepted a bid for aerial photos and topographic mapping as part of the Sashabaw Corridor Drainage Area Study.

At its meeting Nov. 21, the board approved the low bid of $20,575 from Advanced Mapping Technologies. The two other bids for the work came in at $22,870 and $28,875.

The work is required in order for engineers to determine in which direction water flows in the corridor. The entire study, expected to cost about $75,000, is being undertaken to establish a regional drainage system in the Sashabaw area.

Cars targeted

An apartment parking lot on Parview was the scene of three reported attacks on autos Monday, Nov. 20.

During the preceding night, someone cut a hole in the top of a 1993 Ford convertible. The car next to it, a 1988 Jeep, had its lock punched and a radio and flashlight stolen. A 1986 Ford truck had a number of power tools taken from a tool box, including two drills, a grinder, two sanders, a Sawzall and a flashlight.

Needy receive bulk of Block Grant funds

BY DARREL W. COLE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Forty-nine percent of Independence Township's Community Development Block Grant Funds will go to helping those who need it the most.

The township's board of trustees approved the 1996-97 CDBG allocation of $67,189 at its meeting Nov. 21. CDBG funds come from the federal government — distributed by the county — to assist communities in supporting low-to-moderate income areas (although the township doesn't have any), non-profit organizations, community planning and limited other uses.

The bulk of the township's projected CDBG funds goes to non-profit organizations ($19,484) such as Youth Assistance and HAVEN and an emergency rehabilitation program ($13,437) for needy families. In addition, 33 percent ($19,171) of the funds will go to barrier-free improvements at the library and Clintonwood Park.

HAVEN (Help Against Violent Encounters Now) is one example of how CDBG funds can be used effectively, according to its director Hedy Nuriel. In a letter to the township board, she points out that in 1994, 138 individuals from Independence turned to HAVEN for help against either domestic violence, sexual assault or child abuse.

Car-deer crash leads to pile-up on I-75

A deer on I-75 caused a collision early Monday morning that was repeated on the same spot Tuesday morning.

Michigan State Police Trooper David Gonzalez said that at around 4 a.m. Monday, a Caprice traveling northbound on I-75 near Mt. Zion Church hit a six-point buck in the roadway. The driver pulled over to the right side of the road and he and his passengers, none of whom were injured, got out and began to walk.

The Caprice was then rear-ended by a second car, which was then hit by a third car. A fourth driver swerved to try to avoid the collision but ended up hitting the Caprice anyway. A fifth car then hit two of the cars. When it was over, the Caprice had travelled to the left side of the road.

"It was a mess out there for awhile," Gonzalez said.

It's unclear how many people were injured. Gonzalez said he thought six people were taken to Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital. The Independence Township Fire Department, which also responded to the scene, indicated five people were transported. Gonzalez said none of the injured were from Clarkston and none of their injuries were life threatening.

As of Monday, one victim remained hospitalized in the intensive care unit at POH, Gonzalez said.

Early Tuesday morning in the very same spot, a semi-truck hit a deer, killing it. "All that's left of the deer is a red spot in the road," Gonzalez said.

That area of the freeway is illuminated by lights from Mt. Zion, Gonzalez said, but he noted the air was thick with humidity, if not exactly foggy, at the time of Monday's accident.

When asked how drivers can protect themselves from car/deer crashes, Gonzalez admitted he'd had one himself recently, in a patrol car, on Dixie Highway.

Our Homes, Communities and Jobs Depend on a Stable Supply of Energy

Americans use more than 700 million gallons of petroleum products each day in the form of gasoline, heating oil, diesel fuel and jet fuel. Much of that petroleum is transported through underground pipeline systems.

FOR YOUR SAFETY:

CALL BEFORE YOU DIG

Know the location of all underground utilities near your excavating site. Call your State's Excavators "One-Call System." Representatives from the pipeline or utility will come to your site and locate the utility for you at no charge.

IDENTIFY PIPELINES

Be aware of pipeline markers in your neighborhood. Write down the name and phone number of the pipeline company listed on the markers in case of an emergency. Markers include warning signs, aerial patrol markers, casing vents and painted posts.

RECOGNIZE A PIPELINE LEAK BY:

- SIGHT: Pool of liquid, dense fog or discolored vegetation.
- SOUND: Hissing or roaring noise from the pipeline.
- SMELL: Unusual smell.

REACT TO A PIPELINE LEAK

- Leave the leak area immediately.
- Do not touch, breath or go near leaking liquids.
- Do not create any spark in the leak area.
- From a safe distance, call 911 or your local emergency number and the pipeline company.
- Do not drive into a leak or vapor cloud area.
- Warn others.

CMS, SMS set up solid foundation

BY DARREL W. COLE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Clarkston's football season may be over, but the future looks better than ever, thanks to a successful season of middle school football.

In their first season, the Clarkston and Sashabaw middle school teams are helping pave the way for a solid high school program. Both coaches for the middle school teams said they were pleased with the teams' first season. While both squads posted winning records, it was more important that the kids played hard and were taught the game's fundamentals.

It's those skills — not wins or losses — that they will be able to carry to the freshman, JV and varsity levels.

"This is the foundation of the football program," said CMS head coach Steve Himburg, whose team finished the season at 3-2-1. "We wanted the kids to learn the fundamentals but also mature and grow with their own personal development."

SMS head coach Steve Wyckoff, whose team finished 4-1-1, agrees. "First of all we wanted to teach them that if you go out on that field and bust your but, the score will fall into place."

Both coaches used the same playbook as the varsity, JV and freshman teams and focused on teaching the same philosophy. Each team had over 30 kids participate.

In the season's final game against one another, neither side earned a win, ending in a 7-7 tie.

Wyckoff and Himburg have spent many years coaching on the JV and freshman levels and said this coaching position offered a unique challenge.

"I understood the challenge coming in," said Himburg. "But I like teaching game and this is where it all begins."

Wyckoff said, "I can remember the first practice where the kids couldn't even get in a stance. But we had a great group of kids to work with and they learned."

Mountaineers make the climb

The Clarkston Mountaineers Under 12 boys select soccer team finished its first season together with a record of 8-1-3.

The squad, which competed in the Michigan Youth Soccer League, "showed a lot of poise given the fact they only played together since July of this year," according to coach Lee Gardner.

Offensive and defensive balance was another key in the Mountaineers' success. The team scored 43 goals (3.6 per game) and only gave up seven (.6 per game) the entire season.

Gardner said his team was known for its ball control and passing ability and it wasn't uncommon for the team to keep possession of the ball for 3/4 of a game.

"I'd have to say every one of our boys played exceptionally well and gave this season their all," he said. "They are not only a great team but these kids play with a lot of heart."

Air Force brings back recruiter

BY ANNETTE KINGSBURY
Clarkston News Editor

Staff Sergeant Jeannette M. Jimmerson has been assigned the U.S. Air Force recruiter for parts of Oakland, Livingston and Wayne County, including the Clarkston area. She has put up her shingle at 5328 Dixie Highway in the Northway Plaza in Waterford.

A Plymouth native, Jimmerson is a 12-year Air Force veteran. She attended Schoolcraft Community College and Henry Ford Community College prior to enlisting.

Jimmerson said her career has been interesting. It has included stints in England with the Royal Air Force, Team Stealth at the Tonopah Test Range in Nevada, and extensive travel, including Germany and France.

Prior to being assigned to Oakland County, Jimmerson was stationed at Nellis AFB in Nevada. Before volunteering to be a recruiter, her entire career was spent in the health care management field.

"I wanted to come back home and this was the only way," she said of her decision to become a recruiter. Though her office hours are 9-5 daily, "If somebody wants to join the Air Force, I will meet them at 10 p.m."

Her enthusiasm for the Air Force is evident in her speech and even in her answering-machine message. While loud music plays in the background, Jimmerson delivers a short speech that ends with the message "Aim High." Her card bears the same message.

Jimmerson said travel was one of the reasons she joined the Air Force but its community college, which grants college credit for all courses taken while in the Air Force, is an important factor as well.

"The Air Force is the best career move I ever made," she said. "It offered education, advancement, travel and money—all of which I needed 12 years ago. Now, 12 years later, I have an associate's degree from the Community College of the Air Force. I've toured the world, building lifelong friendships and received a paycheck in the process."

Jimmerson is the mother of two, Travis, 9 and Elise, 7 and is glad to be back home near her family. One of six children, she has always enjoyed family gatherings.

"Children should grow up with a strong sense of family and tradition. I want to offer them every opportunity to build upon—not to mention my parents enjoy the kids being so close too."

The new post also allows for some good, old-fashioned sibling rivalry: Her brother is Staff Sgt. John Hopper, an Army recruiter in Petosky.

Jimmerson's position had been empty for the last two years, forcing area residents to go elsewhere for Air Force enlistment.

"There was just a shortage of recruiters," she said. "I would like the communities to know that Air Force representation is available in their area."

Chubbs is an 11-month-old beagle mix who has been neutered. He is described as friendly, affectionate, happy and active.

Both dogs will be available for adoption Saturday from noon to 5 p.m. at the Pet Supplies Plus store at 5304 Dixie Highway in Waterford. They are made available by K-9 Stray Rescue League, a group of volunteers who save the dogs from being destroyed at the county animal shelter. Each animal is checked for health and behavior problems before being made available for adoption.

Volunteer Michelle Phaup said the response from would-be dog owners has been good in recent weeks but there are always more dogs awaiting new homes. In case of inclement weather, the dogs will be moved inside the store.

Calling the Wind

By Don Downey

Calling the Wind is a collection of breathtaking and thought-provoking short stories which chronicle the history of black America. Edited by Clarence Major, the collection contains nearly 60 stories written over and inspired by decades of the African-American struggle for racial equality.

Calling the Wind features authors from the well-known Langston Hughes and Toni Morrison to lesser knowns with equally strong voices. The stories are written in clear and poetic prose and sensitively portray the lives of many different types of people.

"Roselily," Alice Walker's piece about a girl's thoughts during her wedding ceremony, is one of the most beautiful short stories I have ever read. It begins:

Dearly Beloved,

She dreams; dragging herself across the world.

A small girl in her mother's white robe and veil, knee raised waist high through a bowl of quicksand soup.

Since Calling the Wind focuses on a set of cultural themes instead of a single writer or an award, the stylistic differences among the pieces are more profound than in most short-story collections. The stories range in size from two to 36 pages, and are easy to read in one sitting, making the book a good companion during breakfast or before bed (my two favorite times to read).

I like this book because each story is fresh, and, although racial issues are often addressed, its purpose isn't to bash white people. Calling the Wind is entertaining and enlightening, and, unlike many books of its type, appeals to people of all social backgrounds.

Holly brings back Dickens era

This year the Holly Dickens Olde Fashioned Christmas Festival will celebrate its 22nd anniversary in downtown Holly. Historic Battle Alley is transformed into a Victorian London street with characters from Charles Dickens' Christmas Carol strolling the street. Vendors serve up some tasty delicacies of the time, including hot roasted chestnuts, plump sausages and plum pudding.

Continuous entertainment at the festival includes appearances by the Dickens Players in a presentation of "A Christmas Carol" and special holiday musical selections. There will be jugglers, handbell choirs, carolers, Mrs. Santa storytelling, puppet shows, giant bubble making, holiday house making contests for children, live dulcimer music and more.

The festival runs every Saturday and Sunday through Dec. 23. For more information call the Holly Chamber of Commerce at (810) 634-1900.

Help for Alheimers patients

The Oakland Livingston Human Service Agency has received a $15,000 grant from the Mary Thompson Foundation to operate an Alzheimer Home Injury Prevention project.

By installing low-cost, permanent safety devices in homes, OLHSA will help families create a safer home environment in which to care for loved ones, rather than seeking out costly, less personal nursing-home care.

A total of 600 safety devices will be installed in the homes of 200 Oakland County families caring for people with Alheimers disease or other forms of dementia. Safety latches for doors, florescent tape to identify the bathroom door and tub grab bars are included.

In addition, OLHSA is collaborating with the Alzheimer Association's Safe Return program to provide identification bracelets to help ensure the safe return of memory-impaired people who wander away. The bracelets identify the person and display a toll-free number to call.

OLHSA has operated a Senior Home Safety program with funding from the Older Americans Act since 1993. So far, OLHSA has installed 2,726 safety devices in over 800 homes in north Oakland County.

For more information on the new program, call (810) 634-8011.

Edison provides holiday lighting tips

When setting up your holiday lighting display, don't let the sparkle of the season get in the way of playing it safe.

"People sometimes forget, in the rush of the season, to perform basic safety checks of their lights and other decorations," said Claudia Gabay, Detroit Edison's corporate lighting consultant.

"Anything electrical has the potential for danger, and spending just a few minutes on the side of caution could prevent a holiday tragedy."

To help lessen the possibility of shocks and fire, look for the Underwriters Laboratories (UL) label before stringing lights and setting up other trimmings. Even then, Gabay warned, some cheaper light sets have been stamped with a counterfeit UL designation and may not be designed for safe operation.

If you're considering a purchase but are suspicious about a low price, compare the UL label with another on a better-known brand-name product, Gabay suggested.

Another important consideration is to use lighting as it is intended by the manufacturer - either outdoors or indoors.

"If your indoor lights become very hot, they should be thrown away," Gabay said. "We hope our customers take just a few minutes and also check for frayed wires, damaged sockets and cracked or missing insulation."

Decorative lighting can be a safe, inexpensive way to shine in the holidays. Most lights cost from less than one cent to 7.5 cents per string to operate for six hours, depending on the wattage. For strands of lights that blink off and on, the cost is halved.

Gabay offered the following tips for a safer holiday season:

Indoor Lighting

- Do not overload electrical circuits.
- Use no more than three sets of standard lights on each extension cord.

- Do not insert new bulbs or change fuses when light sets are plugged in.

- Keep lights away from carpeting, furniture and drapes.

- Turn off decorative lights before you go to bed or leave home.

Outdoor Lighting

- Use only outdoor extension cords with molded plugs and sockets.

- Keep all electrical connections off the ground and hang sockets downward to prevent water from seeping into them.

- Do not run lighting cords through door or window openings where they can be damaged.

- Cover outdoor plugs and connection joints with plastic wrap and seal the ends with electrical tape.

Weight Watchers trims fat from holidays

It seems that food and the holidays are inseparable. Statistics indicate that people gain an average of 5-7 pounds between Thanksgiving and New Year's Day. With so many tempting sweets and traditional recipes loaded with fat and calories, what's a health-conscious person to do? Weight Watchers wants you to enjoy the holidays and not gain a pound!

"Moderation is the key," says Florine Mark, president and CEO of The Weight Watchers Group, Inc. "Choose the holiday goodies that are your favorites. If you want to sample more of a variety, just taste small portions."

Planning is also very important. Instead of sitting down to the holiday meal famished because you starved yourself all day, have a glass of low-fat milk or a piece of fruit about 30 minutes before your meal. If you're going to a dinner party, eat light at lunch and breakfast that day. That will give your stomach time to fill that empty feeling.

Other stay-slim strategies:

- Drink lots of water. It will help fill you up and curb your appetite.

- Stay at least an arm's length away from the buffet to prevent nervous nibbling. When you do hit the buffet, peruse all your options first and select only a few foods that you really want.

- Learn to be assertive in any eating situation. A simple and polite "no, thank you" or "yes, this is all I'm going to have" will do the trick. Remember it's your choice and your body!

- Eat slowly. Put down your fork between bites and join in on the conversation. It takes 20 minutes for food signals to reach your brain and tell you if you are full. Eating slowly aids this process.

- Exercise! Every bit of physical activity helps during the holidays. Besides eating greater amounts of food, the holiday season often brings on additional stress. Exercise not only burns calories and fat, but it's also helpful in relieving stress.

- Avoid alcoholic beverages. Alcohol stimulates your appetite and soon you'll find yourself at the hors d'oeuvres table with the munchies.

- Share with a friend. If a piece of pumpkin or apple pie looks too tempting to pass up, split a piece with a friend or eat only the filling and leave the crust. Almost 2/3 of the calories in a piece of pie are in the pie crust alone!

- Plan your grocery list. When holiday grocery shopping, stick to your planned list. Avoid impulse purchases such as packaged holiday cookies and goodies to "have on hand" during the holidays.

Oxford Bank announces dividend

The board of directors of Oxford Bank Corp., the holding company for Oxford Bank, has declared a semi-annual cash dividend of $1.03 per common share. This dividend will be paid Dec. 8 to shareholders of record at the close of business Nov. 24.

This dividend is 9.6 percent more than the cash dividend of $0.94 per share that the company paid in December 1994. With the cash dividend of $0.73 per share paid in July, total dividends paid to shareholders from 1995 earnings will be $1.76, or 9.3 percent more than the same time in 1994.

Randall Fox, chairman, president and chief executive officer of the holding company and the bank, announced the board's action. "Oxford Bank is experiencing excellent growth, and earnings have increased steadily throughout 1995. The board's action to once again increase cash dividends reflects our policy of ensuring shareholders see evidence of these favorable performance trends."

Oxford Bank is a registered holding company. Its subsidiary, Oxford Bank, is the oldest commercial bank in Oakland County and operates full-service offices in Oxford, Lake Orion, Oakland Township, Clarkston, Ortonville and Dryden. The bank has operated continuously under local ownership and management since it first opened for business in 1884.

This year SCAMP is offering Christmas cards designed by some young SCAMP-ers as well as some designed by advertising design students at the Oakland Technical Center Northwest on Big Lake Rd. There are five designs to choose from in two different sizes and a variety of messages. Each package contains 20 cards at a cost of $12. All proceeds go to support SCAMP.

Cards may be purchased at the Clarkston Schools Special Services office, located off the Clarkston High School parking lot. For more information call 625-3330.

Skiers love that early season snow

Friday's combination of great weather, a day off work or school and snow on the ground brought out the crowds at Pine Knob Ski Resort.

As music blared from the lodge, skier and snowboarders of all ages took to the hill. The sun, warm temperatures and a noticeable lack of wind made it feel practically balmy.

The fashion scene was interesting, to say the least. Though some came dressed as they might for school, colorful outfits and wild headgear contributed to the festive atmosphere.
