Drugs found in teen's car

A 16-year-old Rochester Hills boy was arrested in Independence Township Friday and the Oakland County Sheriff's Department will seek possession of his car under drug forfeiture laws.

According to a report filed at the Independence substation, the boy was seen parked in a car smoking by a deputy responding to another call. The deputy approached and asked the boy's age, then informed him it was illegal for him to smoke. After seeing what he thought was a bottle of alcohol in the boy's pocket, the deputy asked him to step outside the car.

What he found was that the bottle turned out to be a "cracker"-- a container used to open nitrous oxide canisters. A search of the car turned up a scale and rolling papers and a book bag containing three large bags of suspected marijuana. The substance was field tested and came back positive for marijuana.

"These three bags were wrapped in what appeared to be for distribution purposes," wrote Dep. Steve Mellado in his report. Other plastic bags similar to those used to wrap the marijuana were also found in the car.

The boy had $16 on him, and under the drug forfeiture law the OCSO can ask for the car, a 1990 Cutlass, and the cash. The drug case will be handled by probate court due to the boy's age.

Enrollment study shows school district's growth will continue

BY ANNETTE KINGSBURY
Clarkston News Editor

The Clarkston school district has a larger average household size than the rest of Oakland County and can expect continued growth over the next five years and beyond.

That was the conclusion of an enrollment study conducted by Carlisle/Wortman Associates and presented to the board of education Monday night.

Dick Carlisle, who is the longtime planner for both Independence and Springfield townships, was hired by the board to do an in-depth study of growth in the district, which lies principally in the two townships. Small portions of White Lake and Waterford townships also lie within the school district.

Carlisle reinforced what local residents have known for years—that Clarkston is a desirable place to live and will continue to experience new housing development for some time to come. However, due to his existing relationships with the townships, Carlisle was able to give solid projections about where growth would come and how soon.

The enrollment study breaks down student population growth by elementary attendance boundaries and shows that Springfield Plains is expected to experience the most new-student growth among elementary schools in the next five years. In coming up with that information, Carlisle looked at existing children under 5 years old, development now in the planning or building stages, potential lot splits and vacant land.

"This enrollment study might well be unique in the state of Michigan because of the approach we have taken," he said. "It's certainly no surprise to anyone sitting here that you live in one of the fastest growing communities in Oakland County."

The purpose of the enrollment study is to aid the board of education in planning for growth. The district has built a new elementary school and has a new high school under construction. The voters will be asked in December to approve a package to build another elementary and add on to existing buildings, largely because of growth.

Carlisle's study projects that 1,000 new students will be enrolled in Clarkston schools by the 2000-01 school year, for a total enrollment of 7,662. That's a little less than the StanFred projections the district has been using, which show enrollment at 8,064 by the same year.

However, except for that last year, the two sets of numbers are remarkably close, Carlisle said, especially since they were arrived at separately and by different methods.

"It's interesting to see how our results compare to the projections you've been using," he told the board. "We did our study and came up with our conclusions and didn't compare with StanFred... It turns out that we're very close. The difference is the timetable."

Carlisle suggested that the board review the study annually and see if the numbers hold up. Board vice president Janet Thomas said she'd also like to see the study updated annually, so the board always has five-year projections to work with.

"If we can keep it five years out with some kind of accuracy, it would be to our benefit," Thomas said.

How much will bond cost you?

BY ANNETTE KINGSBURY
Clarkston News Editor

The Sunshine Bond will be a real "Clarkston value," according to school superintendent Dr. Al Roberts.

Though the bond (if approved by the voters of the Clarkston school district) will call for borrowing $52.5 million, roughly the same as the amount borrowed to build the new high school, it won't cost homeowners nearly as much per year. That's because it will be partially financed by the Michigan School Bond Loan Fund.

According to the district's Director of Business Services, Craig Kahler, the state legislature established a limit on how much school districts can go into bonded debt. That limit (with some exceptions which Kahler

The news in brief

Town hall meeting on bond scheduled

The Clarkston PTA District Council has scheduled a public meeting to talk about the upcoming school bond election.

The meeting will be held at Bailey Lake Elementary School on Tuesday, Nov. 26 at 7 p.m. Day care will be available by reservation only; call 623-9105 to RSVP for day care.

The bond election will be held on Dec. 9 and will ask voters in the Clarkston school district for permission to borrow $52.5 million to build a new elementary school and add onto the existing elementary schools, renovate the middle schools and purchase technology.

Cheryl McGinnis, president of the PTA District Council, said each of the building affiliates of the District Council backs the bond issue.

Vision 2020 sets additional steering committee meeting

After the last Vision 2020 steering committee meeting held Nov. 7, members decided they needed to do further study before finalizing the Draft Strategic Plan for Independence Township.

"As the steering committee began to look at the revised data, they realized they needed to look at it in much greater scrutiny than at first blush," said township planner Dick Carlisle, who is heading the project.

Carlisle said that was his recommendation as well. "It's the role of the steering committee to sort these things out and develop a plan that's acceptable and proper for the township" before making any decisions, he said.

Another meeting has been scheduled for Monday, Nov. 18 at 6 p.m. in the conference room on the third floor of Township Hall. A public hearing, tentatively scheduled for the first part of December, has been put on hold until the steering committee completes its plans, Carlisle said.

New mental health plan subject of hearings

The Oakland County Board of Commissioners has scheduled a public hearing to discuss changes in its community mental health program.

The hearing will be held Thursday, Nov. 14 at 6 p.m. at the commissioners auditorium in the county complex, 1200 N. Telegraph Rd.

The board of commissioners is considering creating an authority separate from the county to run mental health services. Currently the county operates on a contract basis with the state to provide the services. The proposed authority would be a public, governmental entity.

Window contest winners

Lindsey Kenemer and Lisa Ferguson are the winners in the recent Halloween window painting contest in downtown Clarkston sponsored by the members of the Clarkston Downtown Business Association.

Lindsey and Lisa painted the window at Carol's Village Grill. Second place went to Mike Kutnick and Mike Parker, who painted Coach's Corner. Third-place winners were Joe Marti and Justin Jones, who painted the MICA mortgage.

"It was a difficult decision because all of the windows looked great," said Carol Harris of the Clarkston Cafe.

New kid on the block

Township treasurer looks forward to a new career

BY EILEEN McCARVILLE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

A couple of things motivated Jim Wenger to run for township treasurer.

Number one, the investment controversy. Number two, his students.

"The government kids said, 'Why don't you run, Mr. Wenger?'" the retired Clarkston High School teacher said with a smile, relaxing inside his cozy Clarkston home with a cup of coffee last week.

Independence Township's new treasurer said he's been a teacher for nearly 30 years and decided to try something different.

"I didn't have a lot of actual experience in government. I taught it, but I wasn't involved in it," he admitted.

"When everything about the derivatives came up, I felt there must be a question in residents' minds about what direction are we going ... That became the issue and why we had four challengers," he said.

Wenger, 52 and a Republican who was elected Nov. 5, was sworn in during a special ceremony for new township officials Tuesday night. He replaces long-time treasurer John Lutz.

As the new kid on the block, rounding out "the big three" — with supervisor Dale Stuart and clerk Joan McCrary — he's eager to begin his new job and has been keeping careful track of township happenings by attending board meetings and learning in every way he can.

He knows the latest information about the derivatives ("Two have been sold to date") and has a lot of opinions about the outcome, praising the township for acting quickly.

"A lot of people said they should not be in our portfolio and we should divest of them," Wenger said earnestly. "I think our board was ready. And experts, like Peter Root (of Munder Capital), were saying we should pull the trigger ...

"It's so volatile," added Wenger, speaking about the market. "As interest rates went up, these things really got hammered. For our portfolio, they're so volatile because they're pegged to a single-market rate and that's why the decision has been made to liquidate them."

Wenger also praised Lutz, saying it was admirable the former treasurer indicated he wouldn't stand in the township's way, although Lutz previously argued it was his responsibility to sell.

"I give him a lot of credit. He could have made it a legal issue and fought it," Wenger said, adding that Lutz has been gracious and helpful in acquainting him with treasurer's duties.

Wenger feels one of his primary goals is to eliminate the need for outside investment managers. But he has other items he wants to address while in office. One of them — not surprisingly, because of his teaching background — has to do with kids.

"As township treasurer I'm going to wear many hats. One is to get involved with Clarkston Area Youth assistance." He'd also like to keep posted on issues involving the entire community and believes in teamwork with other areas — schools, the city and the Sashabaw corridor, for example — because they're "inter-related."

"When are our roads going to be fixed? When can we update our library?" said Wenger, imagining some of the scenarios. He cites certain people like CHS

"I hope that I can develop a working and trusting relationship with Joan and Dale. If I can become a bridge between the two, that would be great."

athletic director Dan Fife, whom he hopes to talk to about utilizing the new pool for not only students, but community members, and township planner Dick Carlisle, who's important to keep in touch with as the area develops.

And, of course, there are those regular-grind duties like collecting money and keeping the books straight.

Wenger also believes communication is a big priority and he hopes to improve it. Though much has been said about problems between Stuart and McCrary, Wenger feels they're both top-notch people.

"I hope that I can develop a working and trusting relationship with both Joan and Dale. If I can become a bridge between the two, that would be great. I'd like to be able to share ideas and cooperate with them."

He knows it will take some time to feel comfortable in his new role — and for the community and board to feel comfortable with him.

A Clarkston resident since '67 and an everyday kind of guy, Wenger enjoys reading, the outdoors, walking, traveling and collecting sports cards. He likes to putter around the house with his wife Sharon, a building facilitator at Bailey Lake Elementary. Of course, like any proud papa, he also enjoys visits from his boys — Jason, who just got married and works for OE Systems in Troy as an accountant, and Matt, a sophomore majoring in engineering at U of M.

Wenger definitely knows his background — teaching a variety of government-related courses, including economy and social studies at Clarkston High School — will help him as township treasurer.

Like Mr. Holland in Mr. Holland's Opus, he has a soft spot for kids and people. He's seen it all — the Vietnam era where it was fashionable to go anti-establishment, the "Me Generation" and the present Generation X-ers. "More kids are coming in with baggage," he said, compassionately.

"Kids change. Times change," he mused. But he feels he retired at the right time and is ready for a whole new challenge.

"I have 30 years and some insights. And I want to give back to the township what they've given to me," he said.

Excellent Expo for Chamber

BY EILEEN McCARVILLE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Once again, Clarkston's Chamber of Commerce Expo was full of feasting, flowers and fun.

The annual event held at Clarkston Creek (formerly Spring Lake) Nov. 6 drew lots of people who munched hors d'oeuvres and walked around, admiring displays of local businesses that ranged from elegant (flower shops Waterford Hill Florist, Carrol's Flowers & Gardens and Gayanne's Floral Concepts) to entertaining (NBD Bank's "money machine" which blew dollars inside a cubicle for lucky winners to snatch).

The evening gives merchants a chance to showcase the contributions they make to the community all year round. Free and open to the public, it draws residents who become acquainted with their services while munching and browsing in a glitzy, but laid-back setting.

This year's expo drew about the same number of visitors as last year's and about 70 vendors, said chairperson and Chamber president Carrol Cantor.

"We had about 1,500 people," Cantor said, describing the event as "just perfect" with improvements over the parking situation in years past. More food and shuttling from a second parking lot at Sashabaw and Maybee, which resulted in staggered amounts of guests, made this year better than ever, she said.

Cantor especially noted the help given by young members of Clarkston High School's Octagon Club, who worked at both parking lots.

"They opened car doors for people, helped the vendors load up ... We couldn't have done it without them. We want to give them a big thank-you," she said.

Cantor said the improvements would be in place next year as well, including the inclusion of a social hour for vendors before doors open.

"It gives them a change to have a little to eat, have hors d'oeuvres, an open bar — to socialize a little before the public comes in."

Dissonance ends in conservatory case

Sale being finalized for long-time music teacher

BY EILEEN MCCARVILLE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

After a year of discord between six parties and their attorneys, a harmonious sale will deed the Clarkston Conservatory to one of its long-time teachers.

Dr. James Wilhelmsen, a piano instructor who has taught at the 37-year-old school of music for the past 20 years, said Oakland County Probate Judge Eugene Moore accepted terms reached by his attorney and others over a case that began nearly two years ago after conservatory founder and director Ivan Rouse died.

Problems previously stemmed from the fact that Rouse left no specific instructions as to how he wanted his legacy to continue, but entrusted his estate to three people: his attorney, Richard White, his sister Dorothy Koop and a friend, Dolores Imbrunone, head of Clarkston's Cedar Crest Academy.

Beneficiaries include Wilhelmsen, Imbrunone, friend Steven Hansen and Church of the Resurrection in Clarkston.

For months, the conservatory's future turned into a bidding war, with sides disagreeing on who it should be sold to and for what price. Wilhelmsen's original offer of $95,000 never received a response from Shirley Carpenter, formerly of Coldwell Banker The Michael Group, who listed the property at $225,000, he said. Wilhelmsen claimed it was Rouse's intention for him to have the conservatory. Though he came back with a second offer of $125,000 cash over a year ago and filed a petition, asking the court to supervise the sale, Moore told him he would grant only limited supervision — throwing the ball into the trustees' court.

Additional offers, including one from a Southfield music teacher, didn't work out either, Straetmans said.

Since then, both sides have "squabbled" over language, lost patience with each other and filed motions asking for relief, which was the case pending before Moore Nov. 5.

"Nothing seemed to be progressing," Straetmans added. "We wanted to compel them to accept our offer; they wanted us to get out of their hair. To try to satisfy everybody was onerous, in the least."

But last Tuesday before court, all appeared

'Short-term is to clean things up. Long-term, to build a recital hall.'

to be singing in unison.

White's attorney Clark Davis approached Wilhelmsen and Straetmans, indicating they wanted to settle. Davis told them the music teacher's cash offer was acceptable.

"Basically, it was settled out of court in the hallway. It was astounding. Davis approached us and said, 'I think we're very close to where we want to be.' There had been discussion but no settlement ... All sorts of letters and discussion back and forth. It bowled me over. It was a complete surprise," Wilhelmsen said, adding that he was "happy and relieved."

Moore's research attorney, John Munger, con-firmated that the parties appeared before the judge and informed him of the agreement. Straetmans is preparing the order, he said.

Basically the judge accepted "the modified offer of $125,000, under the condition that the purchaser (Wilhelmsen) continues to operate the conservatory in its current arrangement," Munger said. Wilhelmsen agreed to have that restriction included in the deed.

That's been Wilhelmsen's dream all along — and Rouse's, he says. Since the case has been in limbo, he and seven other music teachers have continued to run the conservatory, but have been unable to compose its future.

After the closing, which is expected to happen by the end of the year, Wilhelmsen wants to move ahead with that dream with plans for additional music classes like theory, music appreciation, Orff and a recording class for singers.

He also wants to renovate the 145-year-old building on Main St., which is in need of repair, and build a salon-style 150-seat recital hall out back where Rouse's rambling gardens once stood.

Also in the works is heavy advertising for new instructors, especially those who teach winds and strings.

"Short-term is to clean things up. Long-term, to build a recital hall," Wilhelmsen said.

Rouse's sister Dorothy Koop said she is glad the unfinished symphony is nearly completed.

"We're really happy that it's finally over and the place will be sold," Koop, who has supported Wilhelmsen all along, feels her brother would be pleased. "That's kind of the way he wanted it," she said.

Straetmans said he's also happy with the WAY things turned out.

"The way the settlement was reached was very amicable ... Although my client was exasperated at the beginning and at the end, everybody is now in harmony," he said with a chuckle.

How much will it cost me?

Proposed Phase III bond issue won't pinch as much as Phase II said do not apply to the present proposal) is seven mills. (A mill is $1 for every $1,000 in taxable property value.)

Because Clarkston is now in Phase III in a long-term building project, the district is already levying 5.64 mills to pay off its bonded debts. That means it can only add 1.36 mills for the proposed Sunshine Bond, even though the project will cost more than that. Enter the School Bond Loan Fund.

"Legally we wouldn't have the capacity to sell the bonds," Kahler said. "The initial tax levy would be insufficient so the School Bond Loan Fund pays the difference."

The district's oldest bond, levied in 1991, will be paid off in May of 1998, Kahler said. Then, money used to make payments on that bond will be used to pay off Phase III and the School Bond Loan Fund.

However, payments on the 1991 bond issue are relatively small, so residents can expect their debt-retirement millage to stay at seven mills for quite awhile, Kahler said, even if the district's overall property-tax base continues to grow.

"It's probably going to stay at seven mills about 20 years," he said. "But that makes certain assumptions about the rate of property growth, assumptions that are conservative by nature."

Kahler said he has run into some skepticism about the method of paying for Phase III because at first glance, some people can't figure out why $50 million cost them 3.94 mills for the high school and only 1.36 mills this time around. He said the best example he can think of is a home equity loan, where you borrow more money and extend the debt on your house.

"Yes we're extending the debt," he said. "In some respects it's like taking out a home-equity loan in that you borrow more money."

What is a mill?

A mill is $1 for every $1,000 of taxable property value assessed. The taxable value of any property can be found on its annual assessment notice or on property tax bills.

How much the new bond issue will cost on a given property can be calculated by multiplying .00136 times your taxable value. For example, if your home has a market value (according to the assessor) of $150,000, its taxable value is about $75,000. Therefore, multiply $75,000 x .00136 to find your tax increase under the proposal. In this case, the increase would be $102 per year.

For a home with a taxable value of $150,000, the cost would be $204 per year.

The amount of the Phase III proposal can be added to the 5.64 mills already being levied to pay off previously approved bonds. In addition, residents classified as homesteaders pay six mills each year for school operations. Non-homesteaders, those properties not considered a primary residence, pay 18 mills for school operations.

Roberts, who came on board as superintendent July 1, said the bond issue will provide academic excellence for all Clarkston students, and he feels it's a real value because of the way the debt is structured.

"We really believe we can be educationally better and fiscally sounder as a result of this campaign," he said, adding "1.36 mills to fix nearly every building is a Clarkston value."

Phase III will also mean operating funds will not have to be used for such things as portable classrooms. "They're not inexpensive to maintain and after awhile they lose their usefulness," Roberts said. "This is also an optimum time in terms of interest rates and inflation."

Sunshine Bond co-chair David Meyer said some people may be confused about the financing of Phase III. But he feels the administration has shown itself to be fiscally responsible, and that's what convinced him to get on board.

"I will get behind the school board if they show me they're using my money judiciously," he said. "I'm voting a tax for myself and it's been proven to me ... this bond has been proven to be affordable."

Roberts also pointed out that taxpayers no longer have to worry about school districts coming back for more operating funds, thanks to Proposal A. However, when their facilities need major help, they have no choice but to ask for authority to borrow funds.

If there's one thing everyone agrees on, it's that Clarkston as a community is a victim of its own success. Everyone wants to live here. There's no choice but to make room.

"I challenge anyone who says 'Enough's enough,'" said Mary Ellen McLean, co-chair along with Meyer of the Sunshine Bond campaign. "I challenge them to go into any school during the day ... They've got to get in the schools and see them."

The bond election on Dec. 9 will ask voters for permission to borrow $52.5 million for the following items:

- building, furnishing and equipping a new elementary school and acquiring a site for it;

That 'Up North' attitude

Driving southbound on I-75 Sunday night around twilight, traffic kept getting thicker and thicker the closer we got to home. Since it's the "between" season—no golf, no skiing—I couldn't help but remark on the volume of cars returning to the city.

"It's always like that," The Dennis said. And I guess he's right. Any Friday heading north; any Sunday heading south; I-75 is jammed.

We Michiganders love our north country. Even though The Dennis and I were only going for a long weekend, everyone we told would get that sort of wistful look in their eyes. "Oh, how nice," they'd all say. "Up North."

It doesn't matter where your favorite spot is, or even if you have a particular location you return to over and over. It doesn't matter if you're hunting, or skiing, golfing, or just lying on a beach. Going 'Up North' is a hallowed getaway around here. I forget why—until I go.

We only missed three days of work. But after a few days of long walks among the birches, listening to the waves pound the shore of Lake Michigan, fresh whitefish and toasty warm cabins, it's almost like you've been away forever. You forget about everything—everywhere—else.

You forget about election returns and who's feeding the cat. About how the mail is piling up, and how much the vacation rental is costing. You forget about diets and whatever everyday cares you have.

I guess I get nostalgic after every vacation I take. They're too short and too infrequent and like little sojourns into someone else's life (someone who doesn't have to go to work every morning). But the Up North vacation is extra special.

It's not so far that you have to battle airport traffic. You can pack your favorite pillow and bring food from home, if you choose. And there's not a lot of pressure about sightseeing. You basically go to relax.

This year, for our second stay in Harbor Springs, we discovered a nature preserve within walking distance of our cabin. With a light dusting of snow covering the trail, we walked quietly among fallen trees, watching as deer scampered past, barely taking notice of us. Though it was cold, we paused atop a dune to look at the beach below, covered with animal tracks. Then we trudged back, now warmed from the exertion, and returned to our snug little room.

I finished a book I've been trying to read for a year. I studiously avoided doing any writing—too much like work. I slept in, stayed up late—all the things I never get to do at home.

As the coming Christmas season heats up, like most people I'll get busier and busier. It won't be long before I forget about the quick trip north. Come January 1, as I settle reluctantly into what is sure to be an interminable winter, I'll probably forget just what was so special about the trip. After all, I didn't do much.

Oh yeah, that's right. That was the whole idea.

Letters to the editor

In Memory of Nelson Kimball

To the editor:
It can be said that one challenge of life is to spend it on something that outlasts it. One person who exceeded that challenge was Nelson Kimball, one of Independence Land Conservancy forefathers. Nelson died October 10, 1996.

E. Nelson Kimball was a retired Chrysler Corporation engineer who devoted his life to his family and community. After a long battle with cancer, he died at age 84 in Florida where he and his beloved Maddie lived for the past few years.

Nelson Kimball helped form the Independence Land Conservancy nearly 25 years ago, and served as the first president. During his years as president, the ILC emerged as a guarantor of open space in the community, raised money for the original band shell in Depot Park as part of the Bicentennial celebration, purchased property on Greens Lake (a blue heron nest site) with a generous gift from the Schmude family, and secured the first use in the state of a scenic easement within a development - Poquosin : thanks to the Kasl family (resulting in nationwide news coverage).

In 1986, the ILC honored the man and his work by naming our 43 acre property east of Independence Pointe as the Nels Kimball Sanctuary.

Thus, Nelson continues to be with us in spirit. His good works have left an enduring legacy. We shall miss him, but never forget him!

It was Nelson's wish that memorials be sent to the Independence Land Conservancy, P.O. Box 285, Clarkston, Michigan 48347.

With great respect,
Thomas K. Stone
President

Hard work pays off

On Thursday, Oct. 31, Club PRIDE students at Clarkston Middle School hosted a "balloon launch" as a part of National Red Ribbon Week. Everyone participated, and 700 balloons bearing drug-free messages were released - up to the ceiling of the gym where they could not adversely affect the environment!

This event was a worthwhile way to celebrate students' pride in living a drug-free lifestyle, and it would not have been possible without the help of the Clarkston Middle School PTA and the Club PRIDE students, who did a tremendous amount of work to blow up and tie ribbons on 700 red balloons in one morning.

Thank you to all of the PTA members who always work so hard to make this school a great place to work and learn!

Jim's Jottings

By Jim Sherman

Age matters

Can a person have both apathy and anger toward our presidential election process?

In the recent race we heard so much from one side about environment, children and Medicare and 'they stole our programs' from the other side that I voted early absentee and adopted the "I haven't died from an election result yet," attitude.

I did think about the political parties' nomination process. In 1992 the Democrats needed a throw-away candidate. George Bush was heavily favored for reelection. Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton offered himself, and you know the rest.

In 1996 the Republicans needed a candidate who could beat an incumbent steeped in controversy with Whitewater, Travelgate, indicted appointees and hints of immorality. So, who did the GOP pick?

A man who, as majority leader of the Senate, was on the tube every day opposing everything that came out of the Democrats' mouths, showing anger and disgust at every Dem. move.

A man whose image was negative and whose speaking ability was hesitant.

Why did the GOP get behind Bob Dole? Because he has "paid his dues," to the party.

His age was poo-pooed, not important. Well, his age certainly was important. Old-aged Arizona went Democrat for the first time in 48 years. Old-aged Florida went for Clinton.

And the seniors didn't do it because of Clinton's crap about the Republicans cutting off their programs. We seniors know the political game. We know Medicare and Social Security rules must change.

We also know that as seniors we can't do as much as we used to. We're slower. We like naps. We're not as quick, as alert, as capable as most younger people.

The day of the election I was playing golf in Arizona. While buying a hot dog from a young gal, one of my companions said, "You're going to vote today, aren't you?"

She said, "I'm -going right now!" Companion said, "You're not voting for Clinton, are you?"

Her face opened up, she looked at him and said, "No, but I'm certainly not voting for Dole." Her expression was obvious ... she wasn't voting for an old man.

I know there have been seniors who have accomplished great things.

Wonderful! I also know there's a reason people are retired early, a reason lounge chair business flourishes, a reason seniors watch the 10 p.m. news instead of the 11 and, and, and ... I forgot the other reasons.

A look back

15 YEARS AGO (1981)

Three weeks after proposing a list of amendments to strengthen the ordinance regulating arcades, Clarkston's Village Council unanimously adopts the changes — including one that will require a public hearing. New regulations say an arcade may not be located within 500 ft. of a residence or licensed establishment selling alcohol by the glass, will need license fees of $1,000 annually for the first 25 machines and $500 for the next 25 machines, requires maximum lighting throughout the premises as a safety measure, and no one under age 17 is allowed in the building during the hours and months when school is in session.

After more than a year of negotiations, Independence Township formally purchases the Maybee Rd. Park. The deal is closed Nov. 12, according to township treasurer Fred Ritter. The 14.02-acre parcel is paid for with Community Development Block Grant funds and is slated to become a neighborhood park that will include ball diamonds, soccer fields, barbecue pits and picnic tables. Dr. Daniel Bielak opens a sports medicine clinic that intends to specialize in care for athletes, in addition to his family practice in Independence Township. The days when prospective athletes received little more than a regular physical are dwindling fast, Bielak notes. The clinic will stress proper nutrition, provide electrocardiograms and offer a 12-minute computerized exercise bike test to assess people's conditions, among other services.

25 YEARS AGO (1971)

Negotiators for the Clarkston Education Association and the Clarkston Board of Education reach a tentative agreement on the complete terms of the 1971-72 school year contract after five hours of deliberation. The CEA convenes the following morning and ratifies the completed contract.

Mike Humphreys, 17, is named "Teen of the Week" by the Clarkston Youth Assistance Committee. Activities that lead to the honor include Mike receiving the highest award in Boy Scouting, the Eagle Award; acting as a den chief in the Cub Scout program, performing as a drummer for the school band; working in Bottles for Building collections; assisting in various sports activities for younger school children; and volunteering for the Paint-up Program at Pontiac State Hospital. Mike also holds a part-time job at Hallman's Apothecary.

50 YEARS AGO (1946)

News from "By The Way": Here's one person's description of "a boy" that will bring back nostalgic memories to many of us and a knowing smile from most parents: After a male baby has grown out of long clothes and triangles and has acquired pants, freckles and so much dirt that relatives do not dare kiss it between meals, it becomes a BOY. A boy is nature's answer to that false belief that there is no such thing as perpetual motion. A boy can swim like a fish, run like a deer, climb like a squirrel, balk like a mule, bellow like a bull, eat like a pig or act like a jackass ... He is a growing animal of superlative promise, to be fed, watered and kept warm, a joy forever, a periodic nuisance, the problem of our times, the hope of a nation. Every boy born is evidence that God is not yet discouraged of man.

Featured at the Drayton Theatre are Charles Colburn and Tom Drake in "The Green Years" and Paulette Goddard and Burgess Meredith in "High School Herd." Showing at the Holly Theatre are Eddie Dean and Jennifer Holt in "Song of Old Wyoming."

60 YEARS AGO (1936)

As a special concession to those who attend basketball games regularly and an inducement to others to come out to the games, a season ticket good for the nine home games will be sold for one dollar. This amounts to less than half of the cost by paying single admissions. The tickets will be offered for sale within the next few days. Buy your ticket and enjoy the whole home season.

Showing at the Holly Theatre are Lionel Barrymore and Maureen O'Sullivan in "The Devil Doll," Ross Alexander and Beverly Roberts in "Hot Money," Francis Lederer and Ann Sothorn in "My American Wife" and Shirley Temple in "Dimples."

Specials at Rudy's include lamb shoulder, 18 cents a pound; Boston butt pork roast, 21 cents a pound; fig bars, two pounds for a quarter; Muffets, a box for a dime; Bisquick, a large box for 29 cents; and peanut butter, two pounds for a quarter.

People poll

What kind of a mother will Madonna be?

KIRK AUBRY, CLARKSTON: I can't even imagine.

FELICIA DEVITT, CLARKSTON: I think she'll be a good mother. Even though I'm not a big fan of hers, I think she's waited long enough... From everything I've heard about her, she says she is finally ready to settle down and raise a child.

JEANNE KUSZA, CLARKSTON: Actually, I think she'd be a great mother. She had a solid Catholic upbringing and I think those underlying values are still there, although it might not look that way. I think she'd be open-minded and a good listener to her kids.

RICK NESBET, CLARKSTON: I'm sure she'll work out all right and she'll be a kind, caring and concerned mother.

KEVIN BURWELL, MT. MORRIS: She'll probably not be a very good one because she's always on the road and she's in a lot of weird scandals.

Don't Rush Me

By Don Rush

'First cat' stamp

Somewhere I hear the probing voice of Rod Sterling. Blackness is surrounding me. I hear the disjointed sounds of TV-land music playing.

Help me. Tell me I have not entered The Clinton Zone.

I know Prez Clinton won 49 percent of the popular vote and Bob Dole only 41, with Ross Perot bringing down eight percent. I concede the victory, already.

But something strange happened the other day. Something bizarre. Something so wrong I was dazed and confused. Yet it happened during a normal routine. I was reading the mail, press releases from across the country and the Central African Republic.

When my hands touched that press release, when my eyes beheld what I was holding, well, my whole world turned surreal.

Take a deep breath, Rush. You have not entered a different time and dimension.

I hope.

The headline read: America's 'First Cat' rated purr-fect stamp by Post Office.

There's that tingling feeling again.

The press release announced, "... the Central African Republic Postal Authorities have surprised collectors by honoring what many collectors consider to be one of the most endearing commemorative postage stamp subjects ever -- America's 'First Cat' ... Socks!"

I think I'm going to be sick.

The nine "colorful" stamps depict Socks along with President Clinton against a red, white a blue background.

Cat-lovers rejoice!

The rest of us can excuse ourselves from the room to down a bottle of Kaopectate or that pink stuff that I can't say, let alone spell.

This must be The Clinton Zone -- it has to be only a bad dream of a good TV show. Maybe I heard an American Broadcasting Company exit poll incorrectly. Tell me, I heard it incorrectly.

Here's what I thought I heard: something like 50 percent of people who voted said they didn't trust Bill Clinton, yet one in five voted for him anyway.

Something like 64 percent of the people who voted said they believed Bill Clinton wasn't telling the whole truth about Whitewater, yet one in four voted for him anyway.

Why would anybody vote for somebody they don't believe or trust? I have to be dreaming, don't I? Somebody pinch me, wake me from this nightmare. There's no place like home, there's no place like home, and I do believe in spooks, I do, I do, I do.

Okay, I'm back. If you cat-lovers want to get your paws on these stamps (and get a free pocket guide, "99 Little Known Facts about Socks and The First Family"), call 1-800-624-4427.

Don't tell 'em I sent you, please.

A big thank you

To my Family, Friends, CHS Football Team, Coaches, Co-workers and Clarkston Athletic Boosters: Thank you is not enough.

I'll never be able to tell everyone how much all the flowers, food, gifts and visits have done for my recovery.

It is wonderful to have such a great support group and family of friends. I'm on the road to recovery and hope you'll keep me in your prayers. I thank you from the bottom of my heart. I love you all.

Town hall meeting to talk about bond issue

On December 9th this community will be asked to vote on Phase III of the Clarkston Community Schools long term facilities plan. This proposal will provide:

- a new elementary school
- significant additions and improvements to all our older elementary schools
- space, renovations, and equipment to Sashabaw Middle School.
- improved use of space at Clarkston Middle School when it occupies the old high school.
- partially remodeling of the old CMS for occupancy by the Community Education Center, greatly enhancing its program delivery to the community.
- educational technology systems in our K-8 buildings.

With unanimous support for this bond from its building units, The Clarkston PTA District Council is pleased to host a Town Hall Meeting on Tuesday, November 26, at Bailey Lake Elementary during its regularly scheduled General Membership Meeting starting at 7 p.m. This is an opportunity for the public to obtain information regarding this bond. Child care will be provided and you are encouraged to call for a reservation at 623-9105.

This proposal is not a simple fix of adding square feet so that all of our elementary schools are the same size. It is an issue of how well education can be delivered in substandard rooms and closets. The school board, administration and the Clarkston PTA District Council believe that children across the district deserve the same opportunity to learn as their peers, no matter which building they attend.

Currently this district relies on at least 25 portables classrooms at our elementary schools to house growing enrollments. Furthermore, the continued financial drain of purchasing portables to accommodate growth dilutes the available operational funds intended for instruction. We see that this bond will:

- address our growing need for facilities to house students
- provide classroom space for quality educational experiences
- maximize use of operating dollars to provide classroom instruction.

This proposal is fiscally prudent and necessary to continue to stay on track to provide our children the needed education for the 21st Century. These children will be the providers for our future. Their job future will hinge on the quality of educational opportunities that we provide for them now. Please, for your children, seek information on this important issue and vote knowing the facts, not perceptions. Come into our buildings and see the quality of education already being taught to our children.

Vote on Monday, December 9th, Vote YES on the Sunshine Bond (Phase III).

Proud to live in Clarkston

Cheryl McGinnis, President

Clarkston PTA District Council

Kudos to K.C.

To the editor,

What a delight to read K.C. Kerby's column! It's about time the students noticed what is passing for education in the high schools across America. It's called collecting scores.

It would be a good idea for students to make their parents aware; possibly change could occur. On the other hand, maybe the only way to bring about change is for the young people to honestly care about their own learning as opposed to their scores.

There is a major difference between education and scores. K.C., you are correct when you say:

- 1) People are not statistics.
- 2) No test can measure personalities.
- 3) Each test means weeks of wasted educational time.

- 4) Learning is more important than testing.

I have watched high-school students for the last 25 years focus more and more on scores, and it doesn't seem to matter to kids or parents how they get those scores. Getting in a "good" college matters, as does impressing family, friends and relatives, but why doesn't the concept of actually learning something for all time come into the mix anymore?

Courage K.C., your survival is guaranteed because you are smart enough to complain about the acronyms publicly in an attempt to change the current situation. I find myself a dinosaur in the world of education because I believe learning and score keeping do not belong in the same game.

Kids got lesson in democracy

"Rich man, poor man." The kids of Clarkston now know that every vote is important and every vote carries equal weight. Thanks to everyone who worked on Kids Voting, 2,646 students had the pleasure and privilege of voting on election day, just like their adult counterparts. Approximately 200 volunteers worked on the project to make it successful. In particular, special thanks to the following:

Co-chairs David Reschke (asst. superintendent/curriculum), Joan McCrary (Independence Township Clerk), Don Brose of Brose Electric (liaison to the Junior Optimists of CMS and SMS), Robert Trzos of NBD Clarkston (secretary/treasurer). These folks don't like to make a big deal about their volunteering, yet Kids Voting is just one more thing they've quietly been a big part of, and they deserve our pride and gratitude.

Special Thanks to Larry Mahrle, Dana Pennanen and all our teachers and principals who embraced democracy and made time to teach this non-partisan voter education program to our students.

Marc Cooper, Impressive Type of Waterford; Michelle Weverstad, Clarkston Speedy Printing; and Margie Russell and her LINK students of 321 Productions donated copies of our curriculum materials, principal's manuals and Volunteer Packets to keep our expenses down.

You couldn't help but notice the red, white and blue Kids Voting ballot boxes and voting booths. These were made by the Junior Optimists of CMS and SMS under the leadership of their chairwomen, Tori Lauzen and Leslie May. Each coordinated her respective school's volunteers to assist the younger students on Election Day.

Every program has its financial costs. Major funding was provided by Detroit Edison Foundation, Clarkston Optimists and Rotary Club, Clarkston Foundation, Clarkston NBD and many wonderful individuals from our community.

Coordinators Sally Hadden, Cathy Nobel, Deb Bokuniewicz, Sandy Kolano and Bev Brown made the polls run smoothly. Extra volunteers, some called in at the last minute, enabled every student an opportunity to vote. The Clarkston News gave us terrific coverage and Bob Watson passed my name on to Detroit Edison, inviting my participation in Kids Voting Clarkston.

Thank you all.

On Halloween, a Clarkston Middle School custodian was asked about the number of students who came to school with black lips. "It's no different than any other day," he quipped.

CHS life

By Meghann Smith

Being the "perfect age" to start college hunting, a lot of people I know have started talking about what college they're planning to go to. Everyone wants to know a specific career goal or school plan that's in my future.

The truth is (and I'm sure this is the truth in many teenagers' minds) that I don't know what it is that I want. Whatever decision I make now will affect the rest of my life. This is very scary and confusing when you take into consideration all of the possibilities.

Everyone seems to want to know what college I'm planning on attending. Until recently I always would reply Michigan or Duke. Then would come the question I never knew how to answer: Why? My response to adults was a hurried "It's a really good school; they have excellent programs, I hear" or something to that nature. When my friends asked I usually would exclaim over the great parties those chosen schools had. (Haven't you heard of all those weekend blasts?) But the truth was I simply recited those schools when ever the all-knowing question was popped because I love Michigan football, basketball, and hockey and I knew that Duke had a killer basketball team. Therefore, basketball being my favorite sport, I figured that Duke would be a cool school to attend.

Now I've started to try and find more reliable reasons to choose a college. I still have that Michigan loyalty, and Duke does have admirable qualities, but are they the right schools for me? My mom wants me to go to Calvin College or another, similar, small Christian school. My father wants me to attend his alma mater, Hillsdale College, and my grandfather wants me to cheer on the Nitany Lions. Though I don't want to see Penn State in my future (a little football rivalry between the Wolverines and "grandpa's favorite" intervenes) it is an option I should consider. Grandma wants me at University of Florida and my sisters really don't care as long as it's a long way away from Clarkston, and them. Friends of mine suggest any school that boasts about great parties every night.

What about what I want? The only problem: I don't know what I want. Sure, it would be fun to go to a blow-off school. It would look excellent on any future resume to attend an Ivy League. Living in the Midwest for my whole life, it would be really cool to go where it never snows. I'd also like living in a big city, such as New York or Chicago.

Hopefully, every teenager out there whose mind goes completely blank when asked what sorority they'll be pledging for, in about two years, will find a school that they (not everyone they know) really like. But until then, don't worry when you find yourself scrambling through your brain to remember college football stats and the percent of parties per weekend when asked that threatening question. "Oh, well, um, actually I was thinking of maybe considering, you know, uh..."

Candy sale success has principal swimming

BY EILEEN MCCARVILLE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

They came. They saw. They slam-dunked. And when it was over, North Sashabaw Elementary principal George White was soaked from head to toe after resigning himself to — yes, another hilarious stunt — on behalf of his students.

Last year White agreed to be doused with sundae toppings if North Sash students "topped" their anticipated Morley Candy sales along with a high percentage of participation. As with last year, they sold well over — $37,000 worth, with 85 percent of the student population involved.

As the barefooted principal stepped out gingerly onto the pavement in back of the school, clad in only swim trunks and a sweatshirt, he couldn't wait to get out of the cold air and into a hot tank, where top candy-sellers were waiting to dunk him. (White instructed his staff to warm the waters — the only comfort he would allow himself in yet another spartan task.)

White bravely sat on a platform, waiting for the hit that would sink him. He didn't have to wait long. Like an arena full of spectators, the entire body of North Sashabaw seemed to be yelling for blood — er, water. They screamed "Go! Go! Go!" as students prepared their best shots.

After only one failure, second-grader Jenny Bray, who had sold over $356 of candy, proved herself a formidable contender for the Tigers and hit the board.

Down went a surprised White with his hands up in the air.

"Swim to the window next time," yelled a teacher as the dripping, good-natured principal emerged from the tub, climbing back to his perch.

Other successful shots were fired by fifth-grader Briana Walker, who sold over $403 worth of candy, and teachers Linda Zittel and Jeanelle Selhost.

A couple of unexpected dunkings occurred, including one by White himself, who accidentally pressed the seat down as he was climbing back up. Then, mistress of ceremonies Wendy Roehl stepped over to poke a stubborn part back in the dunk-tank mechanism and, by accident (she claims), upset White in the process.

"You did that on purpose," he said to Roehl who was laughing so hard she could barely talk.

Afterward, Roehl stood guard at the boys' bathroom while White towed off and changed back into his principal attire. Except for the sleek, combed-back hair, you would have thought he'd been dry all day.

"Must be nice to have a job where you can take a bath in the middle of the afternoon," quipped a custodian as White started back to his office.

White smiled and said he didn't mind the experience. And it was definitely "less messy" than last year's event.

"It was fun and great to see all that enthusiasm. If I'd had some little rubber duckies, I'd have been all set," he said.

Principal White awaits another dunking.

unique set of circumstances that they are dealing with. What I think is unique here is we can all learn from a 16-year-old how to handle a crisis and its accompanying grief and still claim new life and new hope.

"What I have been talking about are losses. The loss of a kidney is a physical loss but the loss of a dream is a psychological loss. Such are the losses we grieve from divorce, retirement and development of a chronic illness, to name but a few."

Parking hot topic at city

By BRAD MONASTIERE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

All discussions at the Clarkston City Council meeting Monday were shifted into park.

Parking - specifically, parking in the downtown area - was the major topic between city officials as everything from loading zones to the Clarkston Mills parking agreement was discussed.

Gary Tressel, engineer from Hubble, Roth and Clark, said the price for the Mills agreement has gone down since the last meeting, thanks to some "adjusting."

Tressel said the project would now cost $155,400, down from the $183,000 figure estimated last month. Tressel said the reductions now made this a "bare bones project" and does not include the sidewalk on the south side of Depot Street.

City attorney Thomas Ryan reported some more good news for the city, saying Detroit Edison was willing to move all utility equipment that would be needed as a result of the project for free. Ryan estimated the normal cost of that project would be between $50,000 and $75,000.

These changes were approved by the council in the form of amendments to the lease agreement for the project. Ed Adler, Clarkston Mills Mall owner and leader of the Mills project, said this was something which would help everyone involved.

"This has worked out very well," he said. "I think it's something that will please everyone."

The council also discussed a letter it received from Bowen Broock regarding landscaping he wanted to do in front of his property, Max Broock Realtors, that could be affected by the future installation of sidewalks in that area.

Broock, who was represented by his attorney

Tom Bowen, stated in the letter he was planning on putting up $18,000 to install some landscaping.

"He wants to maintain some control over the area," Bullen said. "He would rather do this himself than have the city do it."

"That's hilarious," Adler responded. "I heard he won't spend a dime on that."

But others on the council said they heard Broock was very willing to spend his own money on the landscaping.

"His primary concern is parking," council member Karen Sanderson said.

The council decided it would work out the best if it were to meet with Broock personally and talk about what he wants to do.

"I think we can accommodate everyone's needs," Broock said. "We have a perfect situation here."

"He wants to do some things with his property, but the city wants to put sidewalks in," city manager Art Pappas said. "We'll sit down with him personally and see what we can do."

In other council business:

● The council tabled discussion on the master plan and new zoning ordinance because it did not want to proceed without councilman Bill Basinger, who was absent.

● The council changed the date for its first meeting in December and cancelled the second. The Dec. 9 meeting was changed to Dec. 17 because the school bond election is taking place Dec. 9. The Dec. 23 meeting was also cancelled because of its closeness to Christmas.

● The council made a budget adjustment regarding the purchase of the new police vehicle. The $17,000 that was spent has to be shown on this year's budget, though it won't change the budget at all.

"We just need to show it on this year," Pappas said.

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 4, two high-school students were ticketed in unrelated events when they were caught smoking on school property. A 15-year-old girl and a 15-year-old boy were each ticketed and suspended for three days. It is a violation of state law for anyone to smoke on school property.

A van was damaged after someone entered a locked, fenced lot at a business on Dixie and vandalized the van and stole some items, including a license-plate tab.

Someone cut a hole in the top of a 1994 Geo parked on Peaceful Valley and stole 10 CDs and a garage door opener.

A deputy was called to assist animal control in removing a dog from a home on Sashabaw where it had been abandoned.

A 19-year-old Clarkston girl was injured slightly after she reportedly fell asleep at the wheel on Ranch Estates and ran into a tree, a culvert, some shrubs and some rocks.

A lock was punched on a 1986 Olds parked on Northcrest and a stereo, radio and garage-door opener were stolen. The owner said it was the second time in two weeks his car had been broken into.

A shotgun and a radar detector were stolen from a locked car parked on Mann.

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 6, a ring stolen from a home on Clintonville Rd. earlier was returned to its owner. A second ring, valued at $4,000, was reported to have been pawned. The events came to light after the parents of a teenager found one ring in his possession and made him return it.

A 35-year-old Clarkston man was arrested at his home on Marysue after he exposed himself to a pizza delivery woman. He had given the woman his name and address when ordering the pizza, and when she called the sheriff's department they found he was wanted on three outstanding warrants, one for a similar incident in Flint. He was also found to be in possession of a stolen license plate at the time of his arrest. A later search of his home turned up a triple beam scale containing traces of marijuana.

Stolen license plates were reported on Autumnwood and on Dixie.

Boy charged with beating pregnant girl

A 16-year-old Clarkston boy was charged in Oakland County Probate Court Nov. 7 with home invasion and assault with intent to do great bodily harm on his former girlfriend.

According to the Oakland County Sheriff's Independence substation, the boy, who is the father of the 18-year-old woman's fetus, wanted to cause a miscarriage by the attack. He beat and kicked the woman inside her mobile home. She was taken to the hospital and was later released. So far she shows no complications from the beating, according to Det. Dirk Feneley.

Feneley said the boy had no previous criminal record. He is being held at Children's Village on $25,000 bond pending a Nov. 22 pretrial. The boy's name is being withheld by the OCSD because of his age.

REAL ESTATE UPDATE

SHOULD YOU LOWER STANDARD?

HAVING trouble finding the home you can afford? Try changing your house-hunting technique.

27 S. Main, Clarkston
625-9300

QUESTION: I have a limit on the amount I can afford for a home. I am having trouble finding what I want at the price I can afford. Should I lower my standards?

ANSWER: No! Instead, try changing your home-hunting technique. There are always excellent buys in the market-place (especially today). It's just a matter of being seriously willing to look at a wider range of offerings. Broaden your standards - don't lower them.

A buyer with a long "must list" - I must have a 2-car garage, a certain number of full baths, a certain sized yard - has fewer homes to look at, hence, fewer opportunities to find a "good buy" than a more flexible buyer.

Wolves' season ends with a shocker

By BRAD MONASTIERE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

For a few minutes Saturday, the Clarkston football stadium was rocking, the team was soaring and it appeared the Wolves would be on their way to the second round of the state playoffs.

But turnovers and a rough Dearborn Fordson team wouldn't allow it, as the Wolves lost 34-20 on a chilly Saturday Class AA Region 3 playoff game.

Clarkston, which finished 9-1 on the season, had momentum going its way late in the first half, when junior quarterback Dane Fife led the team to two quick touchdown drives after Fordson took a 22-8 lead.

Fordson's fake punt at its own 25-yard line on a fourth and 22 surprised just about everyone, except the Clarkston defense, which squelched it to give the offense excellent field position.

After the teams exchanged fumbles, Brad Phalen leaped over a pile of players for a one-yard touchdown to pull the team within eight.

With Detroit Lions quarterback Scott Mitchell looking on from the sidelines in a Clarkston football cap, Fife worked his magic. He lofted a pass to Jason Frack who busted through two tackles to make his way to the end zone and make the score 22-20.

After a scoreless third quarter, Fordson marched 51 yards for the score to go ahead by eight points.

Clarkston then committed its fifth turnover of the game on the ensuing kickoff, killing any chance it had to respond. Fordson added a late touchdown to close out the scoring.

Clarkston coach Kurt Richardson saw one factor which turned the game around.

"Turnovers, turnovers, turnovers," he said. "You can't turn the ball over five or six times and expect to beat a team like Fordson."

It wasn't just the number of turnovers that hurt the Wolves, it was where they occurred. Three times, the team fumbled inside Fordson's 16-yard-line. The third time came on the opening drive of the second half, when the Wolves, coming off two successive touchdown drives, were on a roll and could have taken the lead.

However, the running of Fordson's senior back Kamal Jaafar didn't help the Wolves either. Jaafar used terrific blocking and blazing speed to pile up 331 yards rushing on 32 attempts, by far the best game any player's had against the Wolves this season. He added touchdown runs of 61, 48 and three yards to his terrific day.

Jaafar's 61-yard run came two minutes into the game and temporarily hushed a rowdy Clarkston contingent. He burst up the middle and ran virtually untouched for the touchdown.

But the Wolves charged right back, thanks to the throwing of Fife and running of Phalen. Fife scampered six yards on a bootleg at 5:17 of the first quarter to knot the game at 8-8. The bootleg play had been effective for Clarkston the entire season, as teams keyed on Phalen's running or Fife's throwing. Fife's running ability was a big key to the team all season, as it was on this play.

Fordson scored again on a long drive to take a 14-8 lead at the end of the quarter. On the next drive, Fife threw an interception which Fordson converted into Jaafar's 48-yard run to push the lead to 22-8.

The 20 points were tied for the fewest scored by the Wolves this year and the 34 points allowed were the most.

"The turnovers hurt us big-time," Richardson said, amid a wild celebration by Fordson players and fans on the field after the game. "We just weren't good as a team today. But we had a great, great year."

Indeed, this Clarkston football team had nothing to be ashamed of, completing an undefeated regular season, along with its first Oakland Activities Association Division I championship. The Wolves also broke the hex of Troy with a resounding 33-8 win in late October.

1997 appears to hold much promise for the Wolves, as the team returns 29 lettermen, including starters Fife, Phalen, Long, Brad Bailey and Ryan Kulka.

Girls beat Troy in a close one, 36-34

By BRAD MONASTIERE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

It appeared the Nov. 5 game against Troy would be another in a series of tough losses for the Clarkston varsity girls basketball team.

The Colts blitzed the Wolves 16-10 in the third quarter and held a three point lead with just five minutes left.

But thanks to senior point guard Sue Naboychik, Clarkston bounced back and pulled out a 36-34 win over Troy, upping its record to 10-8 overall, 2-8 in the Oakland Activities Association Division I.

Naboychik had four points, two rebounds and an assist in a fourth-quarter 7-0 run that pulled the Wolves from a 30-27 deficit to a 34-30 lead. She finished the game with seven points, nine rebounds and five assists.

Her first basket of the decisive run came when she made a pass and the ball deflected off a Troy defender right back into Naboychik's hands. She tossed in a layup right in stride to knot the game at 30.

Clarkston's next possession saw it go into a four corners offense. After several passes, Naboychik faked and drove through the middle for another layup, giving the Wolves the lead for good at 32-30.

After a Troy miss, Naboychik snapped up the rebound and took it all the way to the free throw line, where she made a perfect bounce pass to Tiffany Honey for a layup. For Honey, the layup represented two of her team-high 14 points. She also nailed three 3-pointers in the game.

Coach Larry Mahrle said it was a good win for the team at a time when it needed one.

"I was very pleased with the way we closed the game," he said. "A game like this helps our confidence, for sure."

Naboychik said it was defense which enabled the team to pull this game out.

"Everyone focused on defense and that was the key," she said. "Every game, we've gotten better. Our last two or three games have been close losses, but we feel like we can improve everything."

Other top contributors for the Wolves included junior Georgia Senkyr, who had five points and seven rebounds, and Aimee Giroux, who Mahrle said always gives a strong effort on defense.

Athens 36, Wolves 22

The Wolves then dropped a Thursday contest to Troy Athens 36-22.

It was the first and last quarters that did the Wolves in, as they were outscored 25-11 in those periods.

This was a tough, defensive-minded game which saw a total of seven points scored in the third quarter.

Jennifer Bauer led Clarkston in scoring with six points, while Sue Naboychik and Kammy Powell each had five for the Wolves, who dropped to 10-9 overall and 2-9 in the OAA.

Despite scoring just 22 points and making eight field goals for the game, Mahrle complimented his team on its effort, which he said was outstanding.

"I was very pleased with our effort," he said. "We played great defense for 32 minutes and played very, very hard."

Mahrle also said he was happy with the pressure defense the Wolves set up, which forced the normally sure-handed Red Hawks into 29 turnovers.

"Anytime you can hold a team like Troy Athens to 36 points on the road, you'll take it," Mahrle said.

Georgia Senkyr led the team with seven rebounds, while Aimee Giroux had four steals in the loss.

Pairings announced for basketball playoffs

By BRAD MONASTIERE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Considering the great difference in its won-loss records in conference versus non-conference, the Clarkston varsity girls basketball team received some good news Tuesday.

That news is that no Oakland Activities Association Division I teams are in its district playoff bracket. The Wolves are 8-0 in non-conference games, 2-9 in OAA games.

Clarkston faces off against Lake Orion at 7 p.m. Tuesday in the first round of district action. All district games will take place at Clarkston High School.

The other first round game, starting at 7 p.m. Monday is Holly-Lapeer West. The winner of that game takes on undefeated Lapeer East at 7 p.m. Wednesday, while the winner of the Clarkston-Lake Orion game plays Romeo at 7 p.m. Thursday. The district finals will be at 1 p.m. Nov. 23.

Clarkston coach Larry Mahrle said the Dragons are a very big team, one loaded with size on the front line.

"They have good size on their post players," he said. "They are a very solid ballclub."

The Wolves and Dragons met earlier this season, with Clarkston slaying Lake Orion 38-34.

Mahrle said the best way for the Wolves to be successful is to play to its strengths and turn up its pressure defense, something the team has improved upon lately.

"We are at a size disadvantage, but we play hard and aggressively," he said. "We have to take away their interior passing and play to our strengths. If we can make them work hard for all their baskets, we'll do fine."

Tickets for each game go on sale at the high school at 6:30 p.m. the night of the game. Tickets are $3 and no passes will be accepted, since this is a state-run tournament.

JV, frosh gridders hand out awards

As the Clarkston varsity football team was in the middle of preparing for the state playoffs, the freshman and junior varsity programs were putting the final touches on their seasons with the annual awards banquet Wednesday.

A total of 10 players were honored at the banquet, which recognized all the players of the two teams, in addition to those who won awards.

And both teams certainly had much to be happy about, each coming off excellent seasons. The junior varsity Wolves piled up a 7-1 record, with the only loss coming to old nemesis Troy. The freshman team finished at 6-2, pointing to a bright future on the gridiron for Clarkston High School.

Freshman team award winners were: Chad Booker, most valuable player, Jeremy Williams, most improved player, Rick Gieger, most valuable lineman and Ryan Thomas, Coaches' Award.

Clarkston's Allison Richards (20) goes for a layup in the Wolves' 36-34 win over Troy Nov. 5. The win was the second for Clarkston in Oakland Activities Association Division I play.

Rec. basketball

It's hoopin' time again and the Independence Township Parks and Rec basketball leagues are getting started soon.

The Pony Basketball League is for boys ages 15-18 that do not participate on a varsity or junior varsity team. The season begins Sunday, Jan. 5 with a 10-game regular season plus a playoff schedule for the top four teams. Regular season games take place each Sunday afternoon.

Returning teams need to have five players back from last year to register as a returning team.

Registration for a returning team will begin Nov. 18, while open registration starts Dec. 2. Teams need a minimum of eight players to participate. Registration is $16 for residents, $26 for non-residents. Fees are due no later than Dec. 13. If 12 teams are registered, there will be two divisions.

The Sunday Adult Basketball League will also be starting soon, with player fees and rosters due Nov. 15.

The sponsor fee is $100, with resident fees of $18, non-resident fees of $28. League play for the adults begins Dec. 1.

There will be four divisions in the adult league, each divided according to ability.

Playoff champions from each league will represent Independence Township at the state tournament in mid-March.

The mandatory managers meeting for the adult league is at 6:30 p.m. Nov. 25 at the Independence Township Hall Annex, 90 N. Main St. in Clarkston. The time for the Pony League meeting is forthcoming.

It's HOMETOWN BANKING at its BEST!

You know that saying, best of both worlds? That's what you get at your nearby Oxford Bank office.

The reason is simple. We may have one of the largest banking networks in this area, but each office is run on a local basis. Close to home.

So you get an unexpected level of value. Warm, responsive service from people you trust. And convenient access to more of the financial services you need, at every stage of life.

In fact, Oxford Bank is the only bank in the area that gives you the benefits of a small, community bank, and a major financial resource, wrapped into one.

Which is just one more reason we're proud to say Oxford Bank is this area's bank of choice.

Kids Voting draws big turnout

Dole more than a pineapple, Clinton more than a township for students

BY EILEEN MCCARVILLE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

By Tuesday, Alex Kelly was on a first-name basis with the candidates—calling them “Bob, Bill and Ross.”

The Bailey Lake third-grader felt pretty comfortable with that, after reading a slew of Weekly Readers and learning how to vote this fall.

“Bob, he says he thinks Bill is too soft on crime,” Alex drawled, after he slipped his ballot into the box. In class, he had listened to question-and-answer tapes from the three primary presidential picks. “Bill, I think he was the strongest. He said tons of stuff and the others only said a couple of sentences. Ross, he did not have the best answers.”

Violence was a “big-time” issue for the third-grader. “I think this country should be pretty safe from all the guns and needles and drugs. They should be kept away from your schools and the streets.” After digesting the issues, Alex decided to go with “Bill.”

“My life was pretty good while he was President,” he said.

Alex can partially attribute his careful choice to “Kids Voting,” a first-time program that was established this year for Clarkston school children from grades K-12. Spearheaded by Independence Township clerk Joan McCrary, it enabled students to learn about issues and voting procedures in their classrooms this fall, before casting their own ballots Nov. 5.

More than a mock election, the program is a national effort that not only attempts to educate children about the great American responsibility, but encourages their parents to get out and vote.

Sponsored by Detroit Edison, it was piloted in four Michigan school districts during the 1994 gubernatorial campaign. Results showed there was a six-percent increase in adult voter turnout in those districts that used the program. Edison plans to expand Kids Voting further for the '98 governor's race.

This year 11 Michigan school districts and 40 states, including Washington D.C., used the program. Nearly 30,000 of the state's school children participated, with Clinton winning overwhelmingly over Dole (5,216-2,960).

Last Tuesday students arrived at Clarkston precincts with their moms and dads. Holding their own registration cards, they were helped by Junior Optimist Club members from Clarkston and Sashabaw middle schools who recorded their names. After filling out their ballots, they slipped them into striped, patriotic-looking boxes made by the Optimist kids, who also built voting booths.

Many of the students who voted at two Bailey Lake precincts said certain issues hit home.

“I’m voting for Dole because I feel very strongly about abortion. I believe it should be illegal,” said SMS eighth-grader Jessica Holman.

First-grader Natalie Misialek gets some help from adult volunteer Sandy Kolano.

Others voiced strong concerns about violence, bear hunting and the economy.

“I voted for Dole because I did a lot of research and I thought he was better. I didn’t really base it on what my parents thought,” said Travis McIntyre, a SMS eighth-grader and member of the Jr. Optimists, who volunteered that day.

According to Kids Voting coordinator Sherry Regiani, 2,646 children from Clarkston public and area private schools turned out, voicing strong Republican affinity by casting 1,271 Dole votes to Clinton’s 935. Other winners were Ronna Romney in the U.S. Senate, Pat Nowak in U.S. Congress and State Rep. Tom Middleton. Students turned down proposals B and D, but went thumbs up with E and G.

“For our first time, I think it was terrific. It was an excellent voter turnout and the kids were enthusiastic,” Regiani said. All 80 Jr. Optimists showed up to volunteer, she added.

Regiani said 43-percent of Clarkston’s students showed up at the polls. She praised the young people and adults who helped bring Kids Voting to fruition, with special thanks to teachers who “pumped up” interest and taught students how to make informed decisions.

She especially noted assistant superintendent Dave Reschke who acquainted all Clarkston teachers with the Kids Voting curriculum.

“This community has embraced this program. Joan McCrary was invaluable. We filled up all those locations with terrific community support... Hopefully, by the time they’re 18, they’ll be out at the polls and voting,” she said.

Regiani shared a positive comment from her 16-year-old son Dan, who participated.

“He said, ‘Mom, two years from now I’m going to be a real voter. I don’t want to appear stupid when I go to the polls,’” she said.

Bottom: Jr. Optimists Joe Christopher and Lisa Hopcian “kid” around. Joe’s a Clinton man and Lisa chose Dole. Right: Seventh-grader Chris Rota slips his ballot into the box.

Boys 8, 9 steal car

The owner of a 1982 Chrysler Lebaron must have been pretty surprised when he saw the car travelling down the road—with 8- and 9-year-old brothers behind the wheel.

The boys were arrested Sunday after the owner of the car chased them in another vehicle, blocking them in until sheriff's deputies arrived.

According to a deputy, the boys liberated the car from a fenced-in lot Saturday night. The keys were inside the car and the brothers started the car, ran into a swing set and drove through the fence. Later that night they returned the car, only to come back for it Sunday, when they were caught on the road.

Along with the fence and swing set, the car sustained some damage, although no one was injured. The case is being investigated by the sheriff's auto theft unit and petitions are expected to be filed in Probate Court. The boys names were not released because of their ages.

Bids approved for new high school

BY ANNETTE KINGSBURY

With one bang of the gavel the Clarkston board of education approved nearly $25 million worth of bids for the new high school Nov. 11.

The bids will cover construction of most of the east end of the building, including the pool, auditorium, gym and cafeteria. A spokesman for construction manager A. J. Etkin said the bids will cover framing, walls, concrete floors, roofing, electricity and plumbing and complete about 60 percent of the bidding.

The next bids, expected in about eight weeks, will include the finishes for the building. Yet to come will be furnishings, technology and landscaping.

At the same time, the board was asked to approve several contingencies for mostly cosmetic changes should they become necessary. The changes include revising fabrics, millwork and some other architectural details. The board approved with one exception.

A proposal to reduce seating in the gym from 3260 to 2420 that could have saved $100,000 was axed. Trustee Sheila Hughes said the gym was originally planned for 4,000 seats and since enrollment is already nearing 2,000 such a cutback would be unacceptable.

Superintendent Al Roberts said the reason such plans need to be ready is that inflation in the construction industry has been larger than expected—double digits the last two years.

"So far, based on estimates that have come in, we've fared very well," he said. "But that doesn't mean we can afford to sit still. We're not. We're taking a very proactive stance here so we know where we're going."

"This board has been very dead set about not

Not just another day at the office

CHS choir students perform with DSO at Orchestra Hall

BY ANNETTE KINGSBURY
Clarkston News Editor

What would a piece of music sound like without rhythm? Without harmony? Without melody?

In the words of a latter-day Sherlock Holmes, "chaos, noise and cacophony reign supreme... and hip hop has died an early death." And it was up to Holmes and his trusty sidekick, Dr. Watson, to return the three important elements of music to the symphony and arrest the person responsible for kidnapping them.

That was the scenario last week at Orchestra Hall, where high-school singers from Clarkston and some other area high schools, along with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, performed six free concerts for school-children.

Fifty-seven CHS students from the varsity concert choir and madrigal singers were invited to participate in the concerts, which took place, two a day, on Nov. 12, 14 and 15. A total of 166 singers on risers crammed onto the Orchestra Hall stage behind the orchestra for the six sold-out shows. The CHS students were joined by singers from Southfield-Lathrup, Thurston, Grosse Pointe South and Northville high schools and drama students from Lathrup for the performances.

Before the first show Friday, the choir warmed up in St. Patrick's church behind Orchestra Hall. With very little backstage space, Orchestra Hall was just too cramped for so many people to congregate.

With CHS Director of Choirs Grayce Warren

leading a portion of the rehearsal, the singers warmed up amid the stucco walls and gold-tipped columns of the church. Then it was a quick trip across the alley and into Orchestra Hall.

Youngsters buzzed excitedly as they filled the seats of the hall, but the choirs were quiet as they awaited their turn to go on. The DSO's Director of Education, Daisy Newman, who scripted the show, introduced the program and conductor Lan Shui and then the lights went down. With their choir directors listening from a nearby box, the students went to work.

The symphony opened with Wagner (a movement from Lohengrin) and Haydn before the singing began. As the Haydn was winding down, the costumed Holmes and Watson took the stage and began examining the diminutive Lan Shui with their oversized magnifying glasses.

The characters explained the definition of the missing three elements, one by one, and asked the musicians to give an example of what music would sound like without rhythm, harmony and melody. Each time, it sounded like chaos. And one by one, the sleuths discovered where the missing links had been hidden, and returned them to the music. Then, the musicians would sing and play a piece illustrating that particular principal.

For example, rhythm was described as "a regular pattern or series of notes of different duration and stress." Rhythm was thought to be most likely hidden in—where else—the percussion section. Once found, the choirs sang two songs from "Carmina Burana,"

Others voiced strong concerns about violence, bear hunting and the economy.

“I voted for Dole because I did a lot of research and I thought he was better. I didn't really base it on what my parents thought,” said Travis McIntyre, a SMS eighth-grader and member of the Jr. Optimists, who volunteered that day.

According to Kids Voting coordinator Sherry Regiani, 2,646 children from Clarkston public and area private schools turned out, voicing strong Republican affinity by casting 1,271 Dole votes to Clinton's 935. Other winners were Ronna Romney in the U.S. Senate, Pat Nowak in U.S. Congress and State Rep. Tom Middleton. Students turned down proposals B and D, but went thumbs up with E and G.

“For our first time, I think it was terrific. It was an excellent voter turnout and the kids were enthusiastic,” Regiani said. All 80 Jr. Optimists showed up to volunteer, she added.

Regiani said 43-percent of Clarkston's students showed up at the polls. She praised the young people and adults who helped bring Kids Voting to fruition, with special thanks to teachers who “pumped up” interest and taught students how to make informed decisions.

She especially noted assistant superintendent Dave Reschke who acquainted all Clarkston teachers with the Kids Voting curriculum.

“This community has embraced this program. Joan McCrary was invaluable. We filled up all those locations with terrific community support... Hopefully, by the time they're 18, they'll be out at the polls and voting,” she said.

Regiani shared a positive comment from her 16-year-old son Dan, who participated.

“He said, ‘Mom, two years from now I'm going to be a real voter. I don't want to appear stupid when I go to the polls,’” she said.

Bottom: Jr. Optimists Joe Christopher and Lisa Hopcian “kid” around. Joe's a Clinton man and Lisa chose Dole. Right: Seventh-grader Chris Rota slips his ballot into the box.
