High school Say 'Ah' ... seeks more police help

Liaison officer's role expands; second officer to be hired for semester

> BY ANNETTE KINGSBURY Clarkston News Editor

Criminal sexual conduct in September. Carrying a concealed weapon in October. Domestic violence in November.

These are not routine reports from the police blotter-they are incidents that occurred at Clarkston High School and required the intervention of the school's police liaison officer. And they're just the tip of the Responding to an increased need for such services, the Clarkston board of education voted Monday night to increase the time of the district's only police liaison officer. The board also agreed to a request to hire a second officer to conduct most classes in the Drug Abuse Resistance Education program. The change is effective beginning with the second semester and was described as a temporary move.

Until now, Oakland County Sheriff's Deputy Dave Hernandez conducted all DARE classes at the elementary and middle schools and acted as a liaison officer at the high school and anywhere else he was needed. But deputy superintendent Dr. Mike LaBay told the board of education Monday that as demand kept growing this fall, DARE classes never got started.

"As the year started more and more of his time was needed as liaison," LaBay said. "So we postponed

A committee was formed to try to figure out what to do about the situation, LaBay said. Its decision was to ask for another DARE officer for one semester, then add the appropriate material to the elementary health curriculum for next year.

The cost of the request is expected to reach $20,000 and will come from the district's general fund. Superintendent Dr. Al Roberts conceded not everyone is happy with the decision, and that's why it is tempo-

"Right now we have various viewpoints. I don't want to hide that from the board or the public. There are some disagreements about how effective it is in its present form."

Theater's fate still unclear

All Clarkston's a potential stage for Clarkston Village Players

Clarkston News Staff Writer

To be or not to be. That's the state of the Depot Theater — even two months after Canadian National Railroad said they'd take a joint offer.

In November CN said it had a deal with the Clarkston Village Players and two other entities to sell a 1.3-acre parcel on White Lake Rd. which the railroad wants to sell. The Depot Theater sits on part of the land.

But, since then, a set of complications "have taken us in many different directions," said CVP president Al Bartlett Monday. Problems include the following:

• One of the three buyers backed out of the deal. So far the Players have raised $5,400 and have a generous benefactor who will loan them the rest, but now it's a bigger financial burden.

• The Players found the lease agreement didn't include another stretch — the front of the theater to White Lake Rd. which they use primarily for parking. - 1995年 - 19

Negotiations for that parcel have not been finalized,

 As part of the purchase agreement with CN, an environmental study revealed contamination on the site. Though tests say the well is fine, soil borings show benzene, selenium and lead. Though an environmental consultant agrees there's no airborne threat, ground contamination could grow on White Lake Rd. because of its zoning status. "We realize we're in a very industrial area," Bartlett admitted.

Like a true director, he imagines several scenarios, one of which could be moving the tiny red theater to another site. (See related story.)

The Players could also opt for a new building, but that would cost thousands of dollars. Members have previously discussed the need for increased accommodations. Currently the CVP, a 36-year-old community theater troupe, produces nine performances per show. with a maximum seating capacity of 84. With a new building they'd like to see 150-200 seats, but "not too

Board reschedules bond issue

The June 8 annual school election will carry a bond proposal as well as the election of trustees.

As expected, the Clarkston board of education voted Monday to call the bond election June 8. The move comes in the wake of a defeat at the polls in December for a $52.5 million proposal to build a new elementary school and remodel and add onto existing buildings due to overcrowding.

The June proposal is expected to be substantially the same as the December question. No specific changes have been discussed by the board of education thus far.

Peeping Tom too predictable

A 16-year-old Pontiac boy who allegedly was peeking in a woman's window made it just too easy for Oakland County Sheriff's deputies.

The boy was seen peeking into the same woman's bedroom window on S. Marshbank in the Bridgewater Apartments two nights in a row. The woman notified the OCSD's Independence substation, and two deputies decided to see if they could capture him the third night. Sure enough, they did.

At around 10:40 p.m. on Tuesday, Jan. 7, two deputies caught the boy hiding under the bedroom window. When identified, it turned out he went to the same church as the victim and was a former friend of her children. He was turned over to his mother and the case will be forwarded to Probate Court for possible action.

Graduation party planning meeting

"Hollywood Nights" will be the theme of this year's Clarkston High School post-graduation party, scheduled for June 4 and volunteers are currently being sought.

A meeting will be held Wednesday, Jan. 22 at 7 p.m. in the CHS media center for senior parents. All committees are looking for volunteers to donate time and/or money, which provides a safe environment for graduates to celebrate.

For more information call Bob Olsen at 625-0000 or Trev Weiss at 625-6882.

Snowboard envy catches boy, 13

With the winter season each year comes the return of thefts of skis and snowboards at Pine Knob Ski Resort. Although the resort offers secure storage for equipment when not in use, many choose not to take advantage of it.

One 11-year-old Lake Orion boy left his $300 snowboard unattended Jan. 10 and it was stolen. However, shortly thereafter, he saw a 13-year-old boy, also from Lake Orion, carrying it around at the resort. The victim claimed his snowboard back, then notified security.

The teen admitted stealing the board, saying he took it because it was better than his own board. He was released to his father.

Fall MEAP scores take a dip

Like many districts in state, Clarkston sees scores drop district-wide

BY ANNETTE KINGSBURY Clarkston News Editor

Educators around the state were shaking their heads in bewilderment Monday.

This year's standardized test scores on the Michigan Educational Assessment Program were released. Scores in fourth- and seventh-grade reading and math dipped pretty consistently around the state, including Clarkston. A few districts posted gains.

Assistant superintendent Dave Reschke presented the scores to the Clarkston board of education Monday night. Though he wasn't happy to make the scores public before parents received their own children's individual scores, he said he had no choice given heavy publicity which broke Monday.

Compared to last year, district average scores dropped on all four tests. The fourth-grade reading average dropped slightly below that of Oakland County. All scores, however, remain significantly above state averages.

Some individual schools did better than others. Clarkston El., where last year every fourth-grader passed the math test, dropped to 83.1 percent passing this year. However, Bailey Lake posted a gain on the math test, with 88 percent passing as compared to 83.6 percent last year.

"It's important to look at trends, not compare a year because you're not looking at the same kids," Reschke said. "We don't get too nervous if we see a point or two shift. If we see five or six points, we begin to look (at curriculum)."

At the county and state levels, many seemed to point their fingers at the test itself. They noted that the reading test is the same one given in 1993, another year when scores were lower than expected.

Ernie Bauer, MEAP coordiator for the Oakland Intermediate School District, said, "I am not willing to believe that 114,000 kids are less able to do math this year than they were last year."

Reschke said he doesn't yet understand why locally, two buildings went down significantly in fourth-grade reading—Andersonville and Clarkston El. "We're still looking at that," he said, adding that he'd only had the scores for five days.

Reschke pointed out that historically Clarkston has been well above state average and that gap is widening. "We don't believe there's a problem with the administration of the tests," he said. "We just think there's some things this group of kids didn't pick up on . . . But we are showing some gains."

The range of scores within the district—from the highest individual score to the lowest—is narrowing, he said. "So we're getting a much more consistent approach to curriculum."

Reschke said teachers will do their usual analysis of the test results, item by item, to look for possible gaps in the curriculum. And he will be anxiously awaiting next year's scores to see if a trend is developing or if this was a one-year blip.

He hopes the real trend can be found in slow, steady improvement at some elementaries, such as North Sashabaw.

"We hope we've reversed a trend there. I think we have our highest score there since 1989. I hope that's a result of the efforts there."

Superintendent Dr. Al Roberts joined Reschke in cautioning the public not to use the MEAP scores as the sole measuring stick of schools.

"Academic proficiency is much more than a sampling of test data," Roberts said. "It's too important to be reduced to a box score mentality... Look below the surface, at how our students are doing on a wide variety of tests, not just the MEAP scores, as important as they are to us...

"Expectation levels have to remain exceedingly high . . . But let's look at the whole picture."

Depot Theater seeks new location

big" to sacrifice the intimacy with their patrons, Bartlett

"My personal feeling is that to physically move the theater would be a boon to the township or city. It's a historical piece that many don't wish to see tom down," he said.

On the other hand, a new building could fit right in with the area's visioning process. "Some people have expressed that a new theater could be part of the whole arts concept ... What we've learned from this fiasco is maybe we need to start looking elsewhere for a state-ofthe-art showplace theater for this community."

But, in keeping with the present building's historic quaintness, "It would have to be the right kind of theater that has the charm and ambiance you have right now."

At presstime, a CVP membership meeting was scheduled for Tuesday night. Members plan to brain-

'Where this will take us, I don't know. We have to have a home for '97-'98 somewhere," Bartlett said. adding that a strong possibility is to move.

'If the membership says let's look at it, then we would certainly pursue it," he said.

Two patrons attending "P.S. Your Cat Is Dead" on Friday's opening night have been following the happenings. Like others, they're concerned about the theater's future.

"My wife and I do hardly nothing for entertainment." said Randy Connop, an Ortonville resident who sat in the audience with his wife Sue. "It's close. It's affordable. It's so good."

Theater in Depot Park? Over council's dead body

BY BRAD MONASTIERE Clarkston News Staff Writer

Al Bartlett had a vision of seeing the Village Players perform alongside the gazebo and stream in Depot Park.

But that vision was blurred considerably when he took his idea to the Clarkston City Council Monday.

Bartlett, president of the Clarkston Village Players, told council Depot Theater needs to be moved out of its current industrial area into a new location.

"I envision the theater in Depot Park, next to the gazebo," he said. "It would be a beautiful sight."

However, council members dismissed the pos- torical significance if it's moved off site." sibility of the theater moving to Depot Park or anywhere in the city limits, for that matter.

WWe don't have anywhere near the informa- agreeing it would be a problem. tion we need," said city attorney Thomas Ryan." We need more than talk."

Bartlett went before council to get a gauge on how it felt about the move. Ryan decided he would look at the deed for the land before moving any further.

Bartlett tried to sell his idea by saying it would add to the historic nature of the surrounding area, and would be a nice complement to the downtown.

"If the theater is closer, like in Depot Park, it would be within walking distance of anyone in the village," he said. "It would also be an asset to the businesspeople, because it would increase traffic to local businesses and restaurants."

But some council members said Depot Park is the last place they would want to see the theater.

"I don't like the Depot Park idea," trustee Walter Gamble said in no uncertain terms. "It's a public park, but if the theater moves there, only those people can use it 300 days a year."

"The building (a former railroad depot) has no contributing historical architecture," trustee Bill Basinger said. "The only way it would is if you remove some of the additions, which then could call in to question its use as a theater.

"It has large sentimental value, but little his-

Parking was also brought up, with council

Another possible resting place for the theater that was discussed is Bay Court Park in Independence Township.

"Eventually, I see a new theater being built at Bay Court, but that's way down the road," Bartlett said. "None of us wants to lose the theater. Some people are already crying over the fact it has to move away from the train station."

Accidents pile up with snow

Last week's blast of winter weather caused dangerous roads on Independence Township streets and sent several people to the hospital due to auto accidents. Remarkably, there were no accidents reported at all on city of Clarkston streets.

"Everybody was real safe driving around the city; we had no accidents," said Clarkston Police Chief Paul Township drivers were not so lucky. On Thursday, a serious injury accident at around 2:30 p.m. on M-15 south of Oak Hill sent Cathleen Gallagher, 47, of Ortonville to the hospital.

Gallagher was southbound on M-15 when she lost control of her car, crossed the center line and hit a stake truck. According to the Oakland County Sheriff's Crash Reconstruction Unit, the driver of the truck tried to avoid the collision but was unable to.

That driver was not injured, but Gallagher was taken to Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital in serious condition. On Monday she had been upgraded to stable condition and was in the step-down unit with fractures of her clavicle and scapula, a hospital spokeswoman said.

According to Dep. Walt Blackmer, alcohol was not a factor but seatbelts may not have been used. The accident remains under investigation.

Also on Thursday, one person was injured in an accident on Dixie Highway and many non-injury accidents were reported, including four on Maybee, two on Clarkston Rd., and one each on White Lake Rd. and on Dixie. A carhit and knocked down a 12-foot spruce tree on M-15 in a case that was at first thought to be a deliberate destruction of property but ended up being blamed on the weather.

On Friday, there were only two accidents reported at the OCSD's Independence substation—on Maybee and on Dixie. However, on Saturday, five people were injured in a two-car accident on Sashabaw just south of Clarkston Rd.

According to a witness, a 1996 Ford Explorer travelling southbound went off the pavement briefly, and when it came back on it started spinning and eventually travelled into the northbound lane, where it hit a 1991 S-10 pick up.

The driver of the pick up, Shane Tomczyk, 20, of St. Clair Shores, and a passenger, James Beedle, 32, of Waterford, were injured. The driver of the Explorer, Mary Bailey, 35 and two passengers, Dawn Gottshalk of Clarkston, 35 and Patricia Bailey, 62, of Warren, were also injured. Patricia Bailey was ejected from the car on impact.

As of Monday, St. Joseph Mercy-Oakland reported Patricia Bailey was still hospitalized and in good condition. Tomczyk had been released and Gottshalk had been treated and released. The hospital had no records on Mary Bailey or Beedle.

On Sunday no injury accidents were reported in the township as roads began to get back to normal and drivers remembered what it's like to drive in Michigan's winter wonderland.

City seeks way to keep

NBD Bank downtown

The Clarkston city council is looking for a way to stop NBD Bank from closing its downtown branch.

Council members bounced ideas around about saving the Main Street bank at their regular meeting Monday night.

"I'm terribly upset they're leaving," said councilman David Savage. "Closing the bank there is unforgivable."

All council members echoed Savage's comments, including mayor Sharron Catallo, who said she intended to contact NBD's main office in Chicago to express the community's non-support for the closing of the branch.

NBD Bank announced the closure of the downtown branch Dec. 6 as part of a countywide realignment. Bank officials have said the downtown branch is one of eight in the county being closed in order to better meet customer needs. A bank spokesperson also cited the lack of a drive-through window and sufficient parking as reasons for the move.

But council said the needs of Clarkston residents will not be served should the branch be closed. Councilperson Karen Sanderson has initiated a petition campaign that she hopes to send to NBD's Board of Directors by the middle of next month. She encouraged other board members to collect signatures in their travels about

The Independence Township Board of Trustees is scheduled to address the issue at its next meeting.

ANSWER: The fate of your earnest money is governed by the language of your offer. If the bid is not accepted, your check should be returned immediately. Your bid should contain two protections. The offer should be made contingent on getting financing and the seller should agree to accept the earnest money as "liquidated damages" if you default. If you can't obtain mortgage financing, you should still get your earnest money back as long as you have responded honestly to appropriate questions about financing.

It began innocently enough.

I noticed the hat was worn during sporting events and used for quick dashes to the newspaper stand before showering.

But soon it appeared at breakfast, on the couch, at movies and family gatherings. When I gave him a kiss, I had to avoid getting a visor in the eye.

I soon discovered it was a relationship, a part of him, kind of like an extra appendage. The faded green Spartan hat with the dingy white "S" was something sacred that I didn't want to tamper with. In short, I didn't want to come between my husband and his hat.

What is it, I'm wondering, that makes a baseball cap so special to a guy? I know that it can cover a bad hair day, because I've often "borrowed" one myself. I think men collect hats the way women collect antiques.

Maybe it's just a guy thing, I tell myself. I notice it doesn't matter what they are wearing. I've seen Tigers hats with Lions windbreakers, Orion plant caps with "Don't worry, be happy" tees. Fashion is obviously not a concern.

Now, my son, he only wears a hat after he's washed his hair. He would never be caught dead with it in public. It's only used to plaster down his locks so he can create a parted, alternative-looking style. However, I noticed suspiciously, he does have a collection that's growing like guppies, so I'm wondering if he is a closet hat addict.

His personal assortment includes a "Ded Bob" cap from the Renaissance Festival, an autographed Pistons hat from championship days, as well as Taco Bell, Disney and "about 500 Ford and GM hats," he said, when interviewed.

He swears he doesn't know where they all came from (uh-huh).

During the holidays I noticed my husband was sporting anew topper which he acquired at a golf course last year.

"Now this," he said, holding it up reverently and looking into my eyes like a salesman, "is a hat." He pointed out the state-of-the-art Velcro instead of the usual painstaking notch adjustment in the back.

He plopped it on his head, admiring himself in the mirror. "Oh, yeah," he said.

Though I got him a Pistons hat for Christmas a patron-friendly teal with the new logo—it will take awhile to break it in. It will also take some time for him to give up his current affair with the golf hat.

As I sit here, staring at the brand-new cap sitting on the head of a favorite stuffed animal, I'm thinking. Wouldn't it look absolutely fabulous with a teal Pistons sweatshirt and leggings?

Decries spending on study

Dear editor.

Clarkston village residents, you need to be aware what some of your city council members are trying to do with our tax dollars.

Councilman Savage is trying to get the city council to agree to pay half of a $10,000 study. The other $5,000 would come from donations from some of the downtown businesses.

If councilman Savage and the businesses think it's such a good idea to pay half the cost of the study, then why not pay the whole thing? Why should village residents pay for a study at all? The village already has paid for other studies that are just gathering dust. This time let somebody else pay for the study, not the taxpayers of Clarkston.

The study that councilman Savage wants us to pay for is to determine what business would be best suited for downtown - office or retail. Retail will thrive and do well in downtown if they are competitive and customer friendly; just look at Rudy's Market. There are any number of ways to use $5,000 - street repair, sidewalk repair, port-a-john in Depot Park, master plan update, city hall addition.

Village residents you need to attend our city council meetings. Call all the city council members to let them know we should not be funding this study. Do not let city council waste our tax dollars. Attend city council meetings and speak up and be heard!

Sincerely, Michael S. Kelley

No means no

The Editor,

Please add my name to the growing list of residents who are tired of the Board of Education ignoring a valid public election to further their own private interests. It seems that once Board Members are elected they feel they have no more responsibility to the electorate. A "NO" vote means "NO!!"

Special elections are a hardship on the voters.
All school elections should be held on the same day once a year - in June.

And how about the expense? How many textbooks didn't we buy for our children?

And how about Clarkston Middle School? Adult education or an elementary facility. Where are the Board's real priorities? And why?

The board is going to spend more money and inconvenience the voters one more time this spring.

Well with luck, the final "NO" vote will come in June when someone thinks they are going to be reelected.

To quote Don Rush's article of January 1, 1997, "TRUST NO ONE..." especially ("those danged politicians").

John J. Moreau

Jim's Jottings

By Jim Sherman

Protecting ourselves with cautious words

Writers of articles and headlines find it difficult to produce a wedding announcement without putting "alleged" in there somewhere.

"Speculation" also gets a lot of use along with "rumored" and "assumed."

Like, "The alleged couple left immediately on their honeymoon. Speculation has it they're going to Ubly, however, there is also a rumor circulating they will be snowmobiling in the Everglades. It is assumed they will be together."

Such writing is all done on the advice of an attorney. Speaking of which, did you see the Blondie comic strip last week where the woman in the carpool asked why she wasn't invited to the guys' poker party. "Is it because I'm a woman or because I'm a lawyer?" All the men agreed they could live with one or the other at their game but not both. The writer of those words ignored the advice of an attorney and likely alienated some of each.

Crime story writers really get careful. Until there's a conviction we use the word "alleged" so often readers must think it's a person's first name.

Of course, writers are not the only ones who caution us that what we're about to read or hear may not be true. These you this want that word "may."

Researchers are big users of that word. "Mutant mice may hold the secret of long life," was a story the other week.

A doctor at Southern Illinois U. has come up with a way of dwarfing mice. One of these mice lived to be four years old, twice the normal lifespan of a mouse. I should get this doctor to assess the lifespan of the mice around our house. They've been there as long as I have.

These mutant mice "may" hold the secret of long life. They may have said the same thing about the carbohydrate diet, air bags, dynamite, computers, the Democratic party and Ross Perot.

I think the promoters of mutant mice can be compared to the company that tried to get us all to buy Lanolin in the earlier days of television. Remember, massage it into you scalp and your hair will thicken and multiply. It was somehow brought to us through sheep, and you don't see any bald sheep do you? You don't see Lanolin anymore either, do you?

When I see "may" in a headline I also see "may not" and turn to Blondie. (No, Hazel's not blonde.)

It's possible, of course, I may have this all wrong. It's alleged by so-called critics that the alleged writers were supposedly tending the mice.

A look back

15 YEARS AGO (1982)

Again, Robert Warrington's game room is shut down by Independence Township after six hours of operation. The night before members of the planning commission unanimously rejected his site plan and moved the situation to the ZBA. The township also filed for a temporary restraining order.

Taxpayers may be asked to dig in their pockets twice this year to pay school taxes. Citing high interest rates on tax anticipation notes, the board of education unanimously votes to make the request to township boards. The move is met with mixed feelings by Independence officials.

McDonald's Corp. eyes a new site in the township near the intersection of Sashabaw and Maybee roads. Realtor Tom Selhost says he's received a deposit and signed purchase agreement from the company, but has yet to close the deal.

25 YEARS AGO (1972)

A taxpayer suit against the township, charging illegal payment of a raise to supervisor Gary Stonerock during last year's annual meeting, is filed in Oakland County Circuit Court. The suit contends that Stonerock's salary increase from $14,500 to $16,000 was granted while attorney Richard Campbell improperly chaired the meeting.

Apparently there aren't many people interested in a rapid transit system between Detroit and Pontiac. Only 27 North Oakland County residents attend a meeting at Clarkston High School to hear Southeastern Michigan Transportation. Authorities explain plans for a steel-on-steel system that will cost $600 million.

The Clarkston Wolves add a win and a loss to their record this week. On Jan. 11 they smash West Bloomfield's Lakers 83-63, but lose to the Clarence ville Trojans 88-78 three nights later. Presently, the Wolves sport a 6-3 season record and a 3-1 league tally.

50 YEARS AGO (1947)

The Clarkston Wolves succeed in defeating Clawson Tuesday during a hard-fought game of 47-33. Clarkston is now the leading team in the league since it is the only undefeated team. However, the game is marked by innumerable fouls — 15 against Clarkston and 22 for Clawson.

Playing at the Drayton Theatre are George Raft and Sylvia Sidney in "Mr. Ace" and June Haver and Vivian Blaine in "Three Little Girls in Blue." Showing at the Holly Theatre are Roy Rogers, Dale Evans and Gabby Hayes in "Home in Oklahoma" and Jeanne Crain, Cornel Wilde and Linda Darnell in "Centennial Summer."

Specials at Terry's Market include sauerkrant, two cans for a quarter; Wheaties, two packages for 23 cents; prepared spaghetti, two cans for 19 cents; Libby's Pumpkin, a large can for 21 cents; B & M Com Relish, 18 cents a jar; and Pet or Carnation Milk, six cans for 53 cents.

460 YEARS AGO (1937)

George William Miller of Clarkston is among nearly 300 men and women enrolled in winter short courses now in session at Michigan State College. Mr. Miller is participating in the 16 week course in general agriculture, one of nine studies offered in specialized winter work. Other courses include home economics, golf course management, dairy manufacturing, dairy production, forestry and practical floriculture.

Featured at the Holly Theatre are Sonia Henie and Adolphe Menjou in "One In a Million," Dick Powell and Joan Blondell in "Gold Diggers of 1937" and Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy in "Our Relations."

Specials at Rudy's include pork sausage, two pounds for 35 cents; hamburger, two pounds for 29 cents; beef roast, 14 cents a pound; powdered sugar, two pounds for 15 cents; tomatoes, three cans for a quarter; and Rinso, a large package for 19 cents.

Don't Rush Me

By Don Rush

Still going

A number of things flashed across my mind this weekend. And while the most memorable moment was when my life stomped before my consciousness, there were other contemplations.

Like:

What is up with the male gender? Why must we do the fool-hearted things we do? Case in point was my drive to Gaylord last Thursday. For those with short memories, that was the day it snowed, blew and froze.

Gaylord is about 200 miles from here -- a two and a half hour drive (or less) by any red-blooded American male. This particular Thursday the drive took me five hours.

The thing that bothers me about us guys is I knew the Interstate 75 would be a mess. Heck, the roads 'round these parts were terrible. Despite this knowledge I opted to make the journey.

I noticed all the drivers on I-75 that night were men. I reckon they were driven by the same curse that haunts all those who produce testosterone: once we get it in our minds, we'll do what we darn well please, thank you very much.

There's something very Neanderthal about that logic. It's like something primitive takes over in situations like these. Grunt, drive, grunt. With full knowledge I was putting my life and any others on the highway in jeopardy. I drove on, grunt.

"Junt out gardon vice sought show status bage!

I knew things were getting bad when I started to see the jackknifed semi-trucks crunched into guard rails and off to the side of I-75. With pig-headed determination I gritted my teeth, squeezed the steering wheel a little tighter and drove on, grunt.

While I'm thinking about it, here's a suggestion for the Michigan Department of Transportation: plant trees — lots of them — along that highway. From Flint to about West Branch there are too few trees to cut the wind.

Past West Branch there are trees and the windswept snow is much less of a problem. So, plant some trees, darn it. Okay, I'm off the soapbox.

Where was I? Contemplation, snow, ice, I-75, pig-headed, gritted teeth . . . yes.

As I drove up and over the Zilwaukee Bridge I hit a patch of ice and in slow motion my car started to slide. After the eternity of those awful four seconds I ended up facing southbound on northbound I-75. To my left, where my car stopped, was the cement guard that was between me and the river.

Right then and there, as I watched the on coming traffic, that's when the life-thing passed before my eyes. That's when I knew men are interesting

I put the car in gear, whipped back into traffic and made my way to Gaylord, alive to do something foolish another day.

Students hit the spotlight in Theater-A-Thon

You've heard of a marathon, a telethon. But have you ever sat through nine full hours of a Theatre-A-Thon?

Many did Jan. 10 as members of Clarkston High School's Drama Club mimed, sang, danced and performed skits and standup comedy during the group's ninth annual fundraiser for the school musical.

Drama coach Jeff Tice said about 80 ninth-through twelfth-graders participated this year. Each student had to get at least $20 in pledges before the production, which ran from 3 p.m. till midnight.

"Students have been preparing these acts since about September, some since last year," he said. "It's kind of like going back to the old Vaudeville days."

Tice said it takes about $6,000 to put on a musical these days. Though the Drama Club has other performance-related fundraisers, the Theatre-A-Thon's the big one, he said.

It's truly a variety show. "Just about any thing or talent people can do on stage, as long as it's tasteful. Everything is rated G," he said with a chuckle.

I pledge allegiance

It's strange how people do things. Sometimes they really care about what they do, and sometimes they have no idea why they bother. Take the Pledge of Allegiance, for example,

Most people have been saying it since preschool, but many people I talked to weren't sure why. When I asked why they said the Pledge of Allegiance, most people said things like, "Because everyone does," "I'm supposed to," or "When I was little my teacher told me to." Their confusion confused me. Saying the Pledge of Allegiance means reaffirming your loyalty to America, which is a serious thing. How could so many people not know why they did it?

Then I realized that they probably didn't understand what they were saying when they learned it. Not many preschoolers know what 'allegiance,' 'republic,' or 'indivisible' mean. Even if they do, they're probably too young to understand the importance of what they say. They just stand up, mumble something they memorized, and sit back down. Nobody bothered to explain what it all meant.

That made me wonder how many decisions people make each day without thinking about them, just because somebody else told them to, or because they were trained to act that way. It might be a little thing like wishing on a star or stepping over the cracks in the sidewalk, or it could be something more important, like saying the Pledge of Allegiance. Things like that, though, really ought to be your own decision.

Think about it the next time you say the Pledge of Allegiance. Do you mean what you're saying?

New members include Noreen Daly Seiler, a former recreation professional who serves on the Recreation Advisory Commission, and Sheila Ritter. an active community member who owns Clarkston Car Wash with her husband Fred. In addition, township planning commissioner Todd Moss was appointed as commission representative to the committee. All are two-year terms.

Still no light

Per your published request I would like to share my road "horror story". This involves the Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT). In August, 1996 you published my letter regarding the installation of a traffic signal at Sashabaw Road for the traffic exiting I-75 South. It's not just the Oakland County Road Commission that seems to have the funding, but not the plans, the thought process, or sense of

In the case of a traffic signal, I first contacted (by letter) MDOT on March 2, 1995!! During the summer of 1995 I noticed traffic sensors conducting a study in the area. I made a follow-up call to MDOT and was informed a traffic signal was needed at the intersection. At this point things looked fine; well, it's almost two years since I wrote the first letter and there's no signal.

The story clouds from here. MDOT told me to work with OCRC; I was told it would be installed during 1996. When I called in July, 1996 to check on installation the responsibility was now back to MDOT. The project was still awaiting bidding to be installed by a contractor.

With some prodding from Independence Township, MDOT finally bid and awarded the signal project in late September 1996. MDOT assured the township and I this signal was a priority and should be installed by December. There was actual, physical progress in November. Poles to support the signal were installed, wiring was run, the road was marked for sensors.

Well, every day I get off I-75 at that ramp, I wait for an opportunity (often not safe) to make a lefthand turn. I notice people waiting to make a righthand turn. I notice gestures from upset people as flare. I notice a cable designed to support a traffic signal that would end all of this.

traffic is blocked, accidents avoided, and tempers

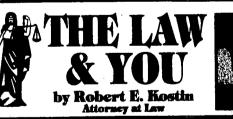

In 1997, I've been referred to Leon Wenger at the MDOT field office, (810) 666-3581. We've talked, he owes me a return call (or a traffic light). If I die at the intersection, MDOT will make my wife a rich woman. If someone else dies, I'll see to it MDOT pays ten thousand times the cost of the signal as a penalty for not doing what they have known is necessary.

The IRS says children born before Dec. 1, 1996 need Social Security numbers in order to be claimed as dependents on 1996 federal tax returns. # Parenting classes return

By popular demand, the PTA/PTO organizations at all six elementary schools in the Clarkston district will bring back a series of parenting classes aimed at parents of elementary-age children.

Jan Colbrunn and Laone Trese will be leading the discussion surrounding videos by Jim Fay, a noted expert on discipline solutions. The Cline/Fay approach is made up of four basic concepts which, when used consistently, produce happy, responsible children and adults who feel great about parenting.

Marilyn Mallett of Clarkston Area Youth Assistance said a similar series of classes was offered last year and was well received. There have been requests to bring it back so the PTA/PTOs, along with Youth Assistance, are obliging.

The free programs will be similar but not identical to last year's series. Baby-sitting services will be provided.

If you're a parent running out of answers and out of breath trying to communicate with your children, this program is for you.

All programs run 7-8 p.m. in each school's multipurpose room. The schedule is as follows:

Jan. 29: Andersonville Feb. 5: Clarkston El.

Feb. 12: North Sashabaw

Feb. 26: Springfield Plains

March 5: Pine Knob El.

March 12: Bailey Lake.

Former Clarkstonite lands role of extra in "People vs. Larry Flynt"

BY ANNETTE KINGSBURY Clarkston News Editor

Looking like a young government type wasn't hard for Dave Woodruff. After all, he is a young government type.

The former Clarkston resident, who now works as press secretary for Michigan Republican Congressman Fred Upton, won a part as an extra in the new film "The People vs. Larry Flynt" by showing up for the audition in a suit and tie and carrying a briefcase. He looked the part, and when he told them he actually did work for a congressman, he was—well, in like Flynt.

Woodruffis a 1989 Clarkston High School graduate whose mom, Nancy, still lives here. He graduated from Alma College in 1993 with a degree in political science and a desire to work for Congress. After an internship in Washington D. C. he worked for a year in another job before landing the position with Upton, where he's now worked for two years. Single, he lives in Virginia

One day he saw a newspaper ad for an open casting call for several movies that would be filming in the nation's capital.

"They said one of the things they were looking for was young government types," he said. "So I went in with my suit and briefcase."

After a two-and-a-half hour wait in line, he had a 30-second interview with a casting agent. "She gave me the once over, took a Polaroid picture. She asked me what I did and I said I work for a member of Congress, and she wrote that in big letters," Woodruff said.

Two months would pass before he would learn he had been hired, and even then he wasn't told which movie it would be. "I got a call to be at the Supreme Court on a Saturday," he recalled. "I actually thought I was being called back for 'Mars Attacks.' I was told to show up at 6 a.m. and dress conservatively. Since I work for a Republican, it wasn't hard."

Over the course of the 13 hours that followed, Woodruff would get an education on how films are made and how stars (and extras) are treated. And he would use his own initiative to maneuver into a prime spot behind star Woody Harrelson on the Supreme Court steps that he's sure will make him clearly visible in the film, which opened in the Detroit area Friday.

But the day, which was the film's last day of shooting, started off inauspiciously. Woodruff and about 40 other extras were kept in a holding pen for a half-hour until an assistant to director Milos Forman came over and explained what the scenes would be like. Forman never directed the extras, Woodruff said—only his assistants did.

"He (Forman) yelled at the extras once when we were chatting when we shouldn't have," he said.

The extras were sent to wardrobe and makeup ("I passed with flying colors," Woodruff said) then he was assigned a spot way in the back, at the top of the Supreme Court steps.

Congressional aide Dave Woodruff

"Woody Harrelson (the former "Cheers" bartender who plays the title role in the film) was there. Courtney Love (who plays his wife) was there," Woodruff said. He also recognized actor Ed Norton, who plays a lawyer, and an actor portraying televangelist Jerry Falwell who was "the spitting image of him," Woodruff said.

Woodruff said he was surprised by the off-camera Harrelson. "I always kind of thought (he) was naturally the character he played on 'Cheers,'" he said. "In all honesty, it's kind of the other way around. He's quite an odd character... He isn't the fun-loving little Woody we all know."

Woodruff's move up to the front row developed over the course of the day as he found himself walking back and forth, back and forth far from camera range.

He and a friend "kind of started working our way down the steps. By noon we were directly in front of the camera. For the rest of the afternoon we pretty much did what we wanted." When challenged by an assistant director as to whether he knew what he was doing, he ad libbed—and kept his spot.

Woodruff expected to be clearly visible, standing of debate. I think it's making a big statement."

behind Harrelson, in a scene in which Flynt gives a press conference after winning his Supreme Court case.

As for the experience, which was worth $60 in pay, took all day and only resulted in about 12 minutes or so of footage that made it to the screen, Woodruff said he learned a lot about Hollywood.

"We quickly found out in the movie world there is a pecking order," he said. "Way, way, way down on the bottom are the non-union extras." Union extras "got better food than we did. They got rain pay ($15 when it started to rain)"...

"It was a long day, a lot of hurry up and wait, standing around just waiting. It looks like there's a lot of wasted time... waiting to get this light right."

Over the holidays, Woodruff was home in Clarkston briefly, then went to Upton's home district in the Kalamazoo area to visit with local reporters. As he anticipated seeing his film debut, he was also upbeat about his job and the new year.

"We're going to have a good year," he said. "We have got a lot of important things on our agenda we're going to try to push through."

As for the subject matter of the movie—the fight for freedom of speech, even when it involves pornography—Woodruff said he felt it was timely, important and still controversial so many years after the events portrayed actually happened.

"It certainly is interesting to frame the debate about censorship and the First Amendment with somebody as low as Larry Flynt. As Woody Harrelson says (in the film) 'I'm the worst. If the First Amendment protects me, it will protect everybody' . . . and I think that's true.

"It is a real life movie and it's creating quite a lot of debate. I think it's making a hig statement."

Players 'Cat' clears the cobwebs

Clarkston Village Players review--By Eileen McCarville

Everybody needs a laugh after the holidays. And "P.S. Your Cat is Dead" is the perfect antidote for the dismal month of January.

Not that the Clarkston Village Players production doesn't begin dismally — for the lead character that is.

Jimmy Zeole makes Job look like nothin'. He's been fired from a play, his book's been stolen, his girl friend's about to dump him and the animal hospital calls with the coup de grace: his cat "Bobby Seale" is dead.

Topping it off, it's New Year's Eve, when everything should be bright and rosy. But a stroke of "good" luck -the appearance of a bad burglar turns things around.

The burglar, Vito, is also a downand-outer, blue-collar to Jimmy's white. But when the odd couple is forced to ring in the New Year together after Jimmy ties Vito up, a relationship develops. The two eventually realize problems are surmountable.

How they get there is the fun part. Scott Rudd, as prissy actor Jimmy, brings the right sarcastic edge to his character. His mugging is natural ham. Think Jim Carey without the overkill. Rudd plays him with nervous twitches like picking his fingernails.

He also gets to hurl the best insults. As his girlfriend leaves, he snarls, "As we say in the theater, break a leg! Break both of them! Then you'll have an excuse for staying on your back!"

That's tame for some of the other PG-13-rated dialogue. Warning: Parents, think twice about bringing your kids to this definitely adult production.

Contrasting Rudd nicely is Dean Vanderkolk as easy-going, smirky Vito. Underneath his crudity is a diamond in the rough. He's really the wise philosopher spouting the playright's thoughtful message: "Whatever you do, don't take any chances. One of 'em might work out."

Debbie Truba as the girlfriend and Richard Ernst as her date are welcome intrusions into the two's repartee. The set - Jimmy's loft in New York City is perfect. It's enhanced by a West Village skyline complete with tiny, white Christmas lights.

"P.S." director Lee Ann Woolcox said she read the play a decade ago and loved it. But "I was told Clarkston wasn't ready for a play like this," she said, pointing to the eyebrow-raising elements. The Players voted it in this year.

It was perfect for the season, she said, "very symbolic for the new year. Where changes — whether you like it or not - it's time to make them."

Board splits on salary adjustments

Top three get 6-percent hikes, but just barely

BY EILEEN McCARVILLE Clarkston News Staff Writer

Neil Wallace and Larry Rosso caused a ripple at the Independence Township Board of Trustees meeting

The township's supervisor, clerk and new treasurer almost missed getting 6-percent pay increases because both new trustees wished to table action until a salary compensation committee could be established.

The committee would draw upon members of the community who have expertise in determining salaries and benefits, such as business people and government officials. If created before the salaries were set, the committee could have suggested raises be higher, lower or the same as those recommended by township supervisor Dale Stuart.

However, the board approved Stuart's recommendations 4-2, with Stuart, clerk Joan McCrary and treasurer Jim Wenger abstaining during motions that affected them individually. Board members also unanimously passed approximate four-percent increases for 14 non-union employees and six department heads. All salaries are retroactive to Jan. 6.

The salary adjustments are the result of AFSCME (American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees) negotiations which were settled last year. At that time, union employees also received fourpercent raises, McCrary said.

Changes in full-time, elected officials' salaries are as follows: supervisor, from $54,000 to $57.250: clerk and treasurer, from $49,500 to $52,475. Stuart called for the increases because the three haven't received hikes since Jan. 1994.

'This is the third year in which we have provided increases for non-union and department directors without changing the salaries of elected officials," he said. Other area communities show the township's salaries to be "comparatively low," he added.

During a phone interview Friday, Stuart said adjustments were not made for three years because of an investment crisis. "We were in the middle of litigation and didn't want to do anything that would affect the litigation," he said. Stuart said he will establish the salary committee, but it will not be able to "decide less" than the set amounts.

Wallace said Friday that he has been publicly voicing the need for the committee since Feb. 1996, well before election time. During that time he wrote letters to The Clarkston News and urged the board to move forward at meetings.

"I don't know if the salaries for the full-time elected officials are appropriate or not. I don't have any facts to make a decision," he said. Though he and Rosso don't deny the three deserve raises. Wallace argued the importance of a study. "These are not raises for the people. We're determining appropriate salaries for the position."

Wallace said a committee would look at many factors, such as job responsibilities and the size of the community. He said he had hoped the committee would be established before salaries were adjusted.

"It may be that the compensation should be higher. But how do we explain to the taxpayers that we're raising it again Feb. 6?" he said, imagining the possibility.

Jyears without a raise, *** what's another 2 or 3 months?'

Larry Rosso

Rosso's statements were similar.

"My feeling is, three years without a raise, what's another two or three months?" he said at the meeting.

During a phone interview Monday, Rosso said he had also brought up the matter earlier, particularly during the election campaign. According to him, the board agreed on the necessity of establishing such a committee but never followed through. Reasons for having the committee are two-fold, he said.

'Number one, it gives accountability back to the voters because they place the seven elected officials in office ... Two, it also helps take the awkwardness out of the hands of the officials and place it in the hands of people who can research and use data from comparisons with other municipalities in determining salaries for elected officials...

Right now it has no data base. It has emotional feeling base," he said. Rosso added that Stuart never talked to any of the board members in advance about the 6-percent increase, "so we were caught off guard."

Departmental increases include the following:

- Bey McElmeel, building director: From $51,861
  - Gar Wilson, fire chief: From $52,814to $54,930.
- George Anderson, department of public works director: From $52,170 to $54,260.
- Ann Conklin, parks and recreation director: From $51,500 to $54,260.
- Mollie Lynch, library director: From $50,625 to $52,650.
- Dave Kramer, assessor: From $50,625 to $52,650.

Stuart recommended slightly higher increases for McElmeel and Conklin, in view of their additional job responsibilities such as regular attendance at township meetings.

In other board action:

• A request from Silverman Development Co. to rezone 33.4 acres of land from single family residential and office to planned unit development (PUD) was tabled until final documentation is completed. The proposed Waldon Village Towne Center at Waldon and Sashabaw is a mixed-use development.

 Due to lack of publication, second readings and adoptions were re-passed for the following: rezoning land from residential to office for the American Legion Campbell Richard Post #62 on Ortonville Rd.; accessory buildings and landscape modifications amendments to the township ordinance.

 A request from Conklin to lease a Hovinga Cannon copier at $2,388 annually for the senior center was passed.

All above motions were carried unanimously.

Philip F. Greco Title Company

Celebrating 25 Years

Buying a home is an important purchase. Once the deeds and mortgage documents are signed, the property is yours, so you think, but it may not be. Chances are, you are the owner, but a sure title is not having a deed in hand. A deed alone will not cancel prior "rights" others may have to your property-rights and claims you would never expect to exist.

When a title policy is issued by Philip F. Greco Title Company, you can rest assured that your property is protected by the policy subject only to its term. If a flaw in the title is discovered, Philip F. Greco Title Company will defend the title as issued, at its own expense, and will correct or clear the title or will pay any loss incurred. A low, one-time premium covers the entire cost for as long as ownership remains in your name. Protection of your property rests on the financial stability, professional integrity and responsible management of the title insurance company. So, select your title insurance as carefully as you would any other insurance. Protect yourself against loss due to title defects. Insist on an owner's title insurance policy from Phillip F. Greco Title Company, located in Pontiac at 185 Elizabeth Lake Road. Phone (810) 333-3090 for additional information today.

North Sashabaw Elementary Principal George White said in a letter to LaBay dated Oct. 22 that principals don't want to lose the presence of a uniformed officer in their schools.

"The relationship with the DARE officer is something that our health curriculum can not provide for our students K-5," he wrote. "To absorb the elements of the DARE program into the grade 5 health curriculum would take major reworking and elimination of some areas of the current health program."

"We don't really want to lose that," Roberts said Monday night. Trustee Mary Ellen McLean questioned the decision being made to drop DARE last fall. LaBay countered that it wasn't a formal decision. "Because we couldn't relieve Dep. Hernandez from liaison, that's what happened. Until November we thought we could pull this off. We thought it would slow down but it hasn't."

In a letter to Roberts, CHS Principal Brent Cooley said Hernandez's presence "has been an extremely important factor in maintaining and enhancing the feeling of students, staff, parents and community that CHS is a safe environment for people to learn and grow in." He admitted that because he was spread so thin, "In 95-96 Dave reacted many times after the fact ... We continue to increase student enrollment, student activities, and building use for 96-97, resulting in greater need for police liaison support."

Clarkston is not alone in such need. A survey of other large high schools in Oakland County conducted by Cooley revealed that most similarly sized schools already have a full-time police liaison, including Rochester, Adams, Troy, Athens, and West Bloomfield. The survey also revealed that CHS has one of the largest loads of students per counselor and per assistant principal.

Hernandez began keeping a log of his caseload in September. The log shows he was called to deal with a wide variety of cases, including marijuana and alcohol infractions, property crimes, disorderly conduct and even criminal sexual conduct, bomb threats and carrying a concealed weapon.

The new officer will be assigned to five elementary schools to teach the DARE classes. Hernandez will continue to teach at the middle schools and one elementary, as well as serving as liaison at the high school.

Wolves tame Huskies - again

Fife, Bailey, Conley spark team to 7-0 record

> BY BRAD MONASTIERE Clarkston News Staff Writer

Future foes of the Clarkston varsity basketball team should beware - there's more to the team than just Dane Fife.

Not to minimize the junior forward's contributions. After an early-season bout with the flu, Fife has stepped up to become perhaps the state's top player, a title he went further towards earning thanks to a yeoman's effort in the Wolves' 68-55 win over arch-rival Pontiac Northern Friday night.

It was the sixth win in a row for Clarkston (7-0 overall 2-0 OAA I) over the Huskies, dating back to

But through the first 2 1/2 quarters of their latest battle, it looked like Northern was finally going to break through with a win. The Huskies took a 33-26 lead with 4:20 left in the third.

But that's when Fife and the rest of the Wolves went to work. Buoyed by a zealous, sellout crowd, Clarkston outscored Northern 42-22 from there to win.

Coach Dan Fife said he was pleased with how the team responded to its first big-game atmosphere.

"It's the first time a lot of those kids have been in that kind of environment," Fife said in his usual hoarse post-game voice. "It was a great effort by all the kids.

Clarkston's Dane Fife (12) comes to a jump stop and looks to pass off during the Wolves' 68-55 win over Pontiac Northern. Fife dished out eight assists, in addition to pouring in 37 points and garbbing 10 boards.

Playing like this shows a lot about them and it will make them better."

Dane Fife finished the game scoring 37 points, along with 10 rebounds and eight assists. It was the fourth straight game he's scored at least 32.

Senior center Chad Bailey continued his solid play of late, scoring 11 points and eight rebounds, with a dunk and a three-pointer thrown in for good measure. Senior guard Brad Conley scored eight, including some key free throws down the stretch. Junior point guard Mike Maitrott had six, but according to Dane, "played his best game of the season."

The Huskies used a 7-0 run to take a five point lead into halftime and kept up the pressure through the entire third quarter. Threes by Conley and Mait helped keep the Wolves afloat during the quarter.

Then in the fourth, Dane took over. He scored eight of the team's 10 points in a 10-0 run which gave Clarkston a 52-45 lead with 4:48 remaining.

From there, the Huskies missed almost all of their outside shots and couldn't crash the offensive boards with the same intensity they did earlier in the game.

Dane then brought the crowd to near delirium with a one-handed slam dunk over two Northern defenders. He brought the ball upcourt, shifted over to the right wing and powered the ball through the net, bringing the entire crowd to its feet.

Coach Fife credited the team's work in practice the prior week to its strong play in the game.

'We won this game in practice this week," he said. "When you see the 14th guy busting his butt, it brings everyone else up a notch. When we get that kind of effort, the wins and losses are irrelevant."

Dane said the fourth quarter was the key to the

"In the fourth, we were able to pull ahead and stay ahead," he said. "We got off to a rough start and I was tight. But we settled down from there."

Said Coach Fife: "Our character kept us in the game early. Dane was wound up a little too much and I think he tried to do everything. But he was able to get calmed down and get all that nervous energy out of

The Wolves won't get much time to savor their win, however. After a game against once-beaten Rochester Adams Tuesday, Clarkston hosts Southfield Lathrup Friday in a rematch of last season's state quarterfinals.

The Lathrup game will feature Oakland County's top two scorers matched up, as Lathrup's Greg Grays brings his 30 points per game average against Clarkston. The junior varsity game tips off at 6 p.m.

Wolves outscore opponents 18-3 in weekend games

> BY BRAD MONASTIERE Clarkston News Staff Writer

Freshman Andy Cote was probably disappointed to see the week start. That's because he had a weekend to remember, as did his teammates on the Clarkston varsity hockey team, which dominated in two wins, 9-2 over Howell and 9-1 over Waterford Our Lady of the Lakes, in

Saturday and Sunday games. The Wolves improved to 7-1 on the season and have outscored their opponents by a combined score of 58-12 in the eight games.

Cote, who scored just two goals in the team's first six games, exploded for seven over the weekend. He added three assists for 10 points in the two contests.

The Wolves jumped on the Lakers early and often in this Sunday night battle at Lakeland Arena.

With three goals in the first four minutes, Clarkston had all the offense it needed to pick up its sixth straight win.

Cote tallied the third and fourth goals for the Wolves, the second coming on a clean breakaway to give Clarkston a 4-0 lead. The freshman forward had a monster game, scoring four goals and assisting on two Joach Rowden was pleased with how his team responded after going 22 days without a game.

"When he's in a good mood, he gets on a roll and plays well," coach Rick Rowden said of Cote. "When he's upbeat and loose, he's at his best."

Fellow freshman Anthony Facione also lit up the scoreboard with a goal and three assists. Also scoring for the Wolves were sophomore Bret Postal, sophomore Adam Leech and freshman Jay Manojlovich, who excited his teammates with his first goal of the season.

Rowden said he was pleased with how the team responded after going 22 days without a game.

"We were fine conditioning-wise and we concentrated and were intense in the first period," he said. "We then got very sloppy through most of the second period, but picked it back up in the third."

Clarkston once again has back-to-back games this weekend, with a Saturday game at Orchard Lake St. Mary's and a Sunday home game against Lansing Catholic Central. The St. Mary's game starts at 8 p.m., while the LCC game has a 6:30 p.m. face off time.

Facione racked up three assists and Leech added two goals in the win. Clarkston also maintained its undefeated road record on this night.

Wrestlers getting healthy, looking ahead to Adams

BY BRAD MONASTIERE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Clarkston 57, Lake Orion 19 Clarkston 61, Troy Athens 16

The most competitive match of this night would have come from the two teams that didn't face each other.

The Wolves kept their unbeaten record in dual and tri-meets intact, but a fourth team - Rochester Adams - wrestled Lake Orion and Troy Athlens also. But the two rivals will have to wait until Jan. 22 at West Bloomfield to get a crack at each other.

"The kids weren't affected at all by Adams being there," coach Mike DeGain said. "They were real focused and that's how we want them to be."

But until then, Clarkston cruised to wins over two OAA Division I foes, giving it a 5-0 dual meet record, 2-0 in the division.

The Wolves were particularly dominant against Athens, with eight wrestlers recording pinfall victories. Seniors Jamie Garrison (Hwt.) and Gordie Golec (215 lbs.) continued their improved wrestling of late, getting pins in 1:51 and 1:14 respectively. Golec topped that performance with a pin in just 49 seconds over Lake Orion's Bryan Youngpeter earlier in the night.

Senior Ryan Mick recorded the fastest pin on the evening, as he defeated Chris Hus of Lake Orion in a scant 41 seconds.

Other two-time winners for the Wolves were sophomore A.J. Grant (103 lbs.), senior Jason Tiefenback (135 lbs.), Rich Geliske (152 lbs.), junior Josh Lafferty (160 lbs.), junior Rean Turner (171 lbs.) and senior Scott Labrie (189 lbs.).

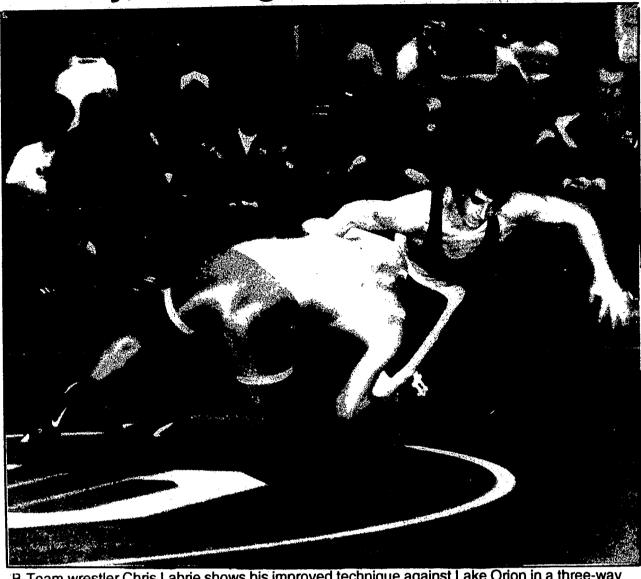

"I was happy because we dominated both meets with some kids out," DeGain said. "Adams will be a huge meet for us and we'll need the time to focus."

Clarkston 5th at Detroit Catholic Central Inv.

Despite the "low" finish, DeGain said he was pleased with the team's performance, considering five starters were absent from the invitational, won by powerhouse Temperance Bedford.

"We had three voids and some other kids still trying to get healthy," DeGain said. "With our full lineup, we would have been right there for first place."

Grant and Mick kept the ball rolling with medals at the meet. Labrie finished second in an exciting finals, where he lost 3-1, but according to DeGain, was on the verge of winning when time ran out.

"Scott has been right there in all his matches," he said. "He beat some of the best people in the state at Goodrich. You can't count him out of any match."

The Wolves next see action Saturday at the Adrian Team Tournament. DeGain sees the tournament as an opportunity to get some of his injured wrestlers some mat time before the showdown with Adams.

"I'd like to ease some of the kids back into it," he said. "You can't pop them back in right away against a team like Adams, so we'll just try to work towards that this weekend."

DeGain also complimented the performance of the B-team, who took first place at the Bishop Foley Invitational Saturday.

Champions for the Wolves were Ryan L'Amoreaux (103 lbs.), Dave Ziemann (125 lbs.), Aaron Saylor (140 lbs.), Pat DeGain (189 lbs.), and John Robinson (215 lbs.).

In the penalty box

with Brad Monastiere

I have always looked up to athletes. Even today, I view them with a certain respect for what they can do athletically, be it at the pro, college or high school level. People around the country also seem to hold athletes up to a different standard than "regular folks." It's like the way someone can hit a baseball or shoot a basketball makes them a little different, a little more special than anyone else.

As a result, people tend to view sports as a haven, an escape from the rest of the world. Therefore, real world problems shouldn't exist in the sports world, right?

The answer to that question came through with a loud "WRONG!" a couple weeks ago, when NHL player and former Detroit Red Wing Sheldon Kennedy came forward with the story that he was sexually abused more than 300 times by his junior coach Graham James. James was convicted and is currently serving a 3 1/2 year sentence in an Alberta jail.

Kennedy's story was broadcast on ESPN and published in USA Today. Part of his horrifying account dealt with what he had to face every Tuesday and Thursday from when he was 14 years old until 20, when he started with the Wings. A visit to Graham's house to "discuss Sheldon's future," which in reality was another occassion where James could assault Kennedy.

I watched Kennedy talk about his years of abuse, struggling with what happened. His eyes darted around the room, as if searching for a comforting presence that could make the pain easier. His voice was thick with emotion, as he tried to vocalize the effect James has had

"I have always felt like I was not normal," Kennedy, now with the Boston Bruins told USA Today. "I wish there was a pill, I could give (James) that would affect his life the way he affected mine."

In reading and hearing all this, it made me realize that just because Kennedy is a very talented hockey player doesn't mean he's immune to the dark side of life. In my eyes, Kennedy was no longer the hustling, hardworking forward he's been in his five-year career. He became a victim of abuse, just like a few other people I have known in my life. He is going through the same mental and emotional torture as other abuse survivors. Being a pro athlete doesn't change that.

Kennedy initiated the investigation in September, along with another player who didn't want to be identified. The courage and inner strength it took for Kennedy to follow through with this is immeasurable, just like it is for any another sexual abuse survivor.

Over the course of the investigation, it was discovered that James abused more players than just Kennedy and his anonymous co-plaintiff. Reportedly, hundreds of hockey players - many now in the NHL were sexually abused by James when he coached them on his Swift Current Broncos team. The abuse with Kennedy started when he was 14 years old, living away from his family for the first time.

James' defense at the trial was that he was a gay man, hopelessly in love with Kennedy. Enough said.

When I was listening to Kennedy and reading his words, he stopped being the athlete I put on a pedestal and became a man trying to cope with the black holes of life. He is on his way back to recovery, as he attends therapy weekly, and now shares his life with his wife of two years Jana and their daughter Ryan.

While James rots in jail (deservedly so), Kennedy can go about trying to put this horrific past behind him, and lead a life with his family. He just happens to go to work in front of 20,000 screaming fans every night and thousands more watching on TV.

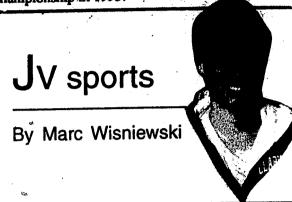

So the next time you see an athlete make a spectacular play and hear TV announcers talk about him or her like they are the Second Coming, remember they are human and have to deal with everyday human problems, just like you and I.

Adams comes back to bite Wolves in 3

Ladies drop to 2-2 in OAA; Lake Orion up next

BY BRAD MONASTIERE

Clarkston News Satff Writer

The stat sheet told the whole story after Clarkston's varsity volleyball match against league rival Rochester Adams Thursday night.

The Wolves lost the match 11-15, 15-12, 15-6 to the Highlanders thanks mostly to defensive errors and an inability to sustain good play, according to coach Gordie Richardson.

"I was very disappointed and the kids were too," he said. "After the game, they just put on their warmups and got on the bus. They knew there was no need to say anything."

The loss dropped Clarkston to 2-2 in the OAA Division I and 2-7-3 overall.

The match was highlighted by big scoring streaks by both teams. In the first game, the Wolves started out losing 4-2, then ripping off eight points in a row to take a commanding 10-4 lead. Adams responded with seven straight of its own to take a brief 11-10 lead before the Wolves closed out the game with a 5-0 run.

Things didn't go Clarkston's way from then on, though. The Wolves' play went down on the defensive end after the first game, illustrated by 28 defensive errors in the second and third games, as opposed to just four in the first. Clarkston's serve reception errors went from three in the first game to nine and seven in the last two. Adams was also more aggresive on its offensive end, as shown by its 13 and 18 attack attempts in the last two games after only 10 in the first.

'We had some serious mental errors on serves and attack errors," Richardson said. "Adams really came after us, and when they made mistakes, we couldn't capitalize."

Senior Stephanie Vogler led the team with 23 assists, while adding three aces. Senior Megan Bjurman had a team-high eight kills and six digs. Senior Kammy Powell chipped in with seven kills.

With junior Jenny McCue serving, the Wolves went on a game-ending 5-0 run to win the first game. A combination of good blocking and Highlander errors helped the Wolves to victory.

The second game was a nip-and-tuck affair, with Clarkston coming back to tie the game at 10 after being down 8-3 early. But the Wolves could not sustain much offense after battling from behind early.

The third game was all Adams, as it built an 11-2 lead and cruised to the win.

After six matches in five days, the ladies get a break in the schedule. The team doesn't take to the court again until Thursday, when Lake Orion visits Clarkston. Richardson said the layoff comes at a very good time for the team, since it has so much to work on.

"We have to work on our focus and our confidence." he said. "We're going to have to work very hard in practice, handling pressure. I thought Monday (a win against West Bloomfield), we turned a comer. But Thursday, we just went right around the block to the same place again."

Richardson said the match against the Dragons will be a stern test for his young team.

"We split with them at the league tournament last year, but they are better," he said. "They have a new coach who is very good and the players expect to be good."

Clarkston's Kammy Powell (right) blocks a kill attempt in the Wolves' loss to Rochetser Adams Thursday. Coach Gordie Richardson said Powell has been one of the team's better players lately.

Members of the Jungle celebrate the varsity basketball team's 68-55 win over Pontiac Northern Friday night. A packed house saw the Wolves improve to 7-0 before Tuesday's showdown with 7-1 Rochester Adams.

Clarkston skiers the team to beat at Pine Knob in 1997

BY BRAD MONASTIERE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

The strong tradition of Clarkston High School ski teams has flowed seamlessly into the new year, as the Wolves started the 1997 with four strong performances.

The Clarkston girls got off to a 2-0 start with big wins over Cranbrook and Bloomfield Hills Lahser Jan. 7 and Jan. 8.

The boys split their two meets, beating Lahser and losing to Cranbrook.

Coach Tom Halsey said the girls' team win over the Lahser Knights was key, since it was a hurdle the Wolves had been unable to clear last year.

"This was a big meet for them," he said. "The Lahser girls were our main competition last year, and it was a big mental hurdle for them to clear."

Sophomore Kristen Atkinson was the standout for the girls team, taking first place in both meets. After a solid rookie season last year, Halsey is looking for big things from Atkinson in 1997.

"She has the chance to be a state champion this year," he said. "After these two meets, she expects to win the rest of her races."

Jennifer Trepte also got off to a strong start, taking third overall against Cranbrook and second against Lahser. Katie Atkinson - Kristen's sister - finished fourth in both races, scoring for the Wolves.

On the boys' side, senior Jason Callahan was the top finisher for the team in both races. He finished third against Cranbrook and first against Lahser. Other scorers for the Wolves were senior B.J. Rumph, senior Kyle Russell and junior David Whipp.

"Cranbrook is a team we should have beaten," Halsey said about the boys team. "They are a traditional powerhouse.

"But these early season results can be a bit fluky," he explained. "Because you don't get a lot of practice time until after exams are over, you don't put a lot of weight in the early season scores."

Cheerleaders stay busy over the holidays

While others were opening presents and sipping eggnog, the Clarkston HIgh School varsity cheerleading team was busy winning more trophies and giving the school more positive recognition. The varsity team finished fourth out of 22 teams as part of the Pistons Cheer Competition at the Palace Dec. 28. The team's good finish is more impressive considering the team went without three members, one due to injury and two due to absence. Members of the team are (front row, left to right) Angie Thomson, Stacey Steiner, Susan Vagts, (middle row) Kristen Blue, Michelle Wilson, Theresa Osier, Sarah Hool, (back row) Kelley Kozma, Tonya Ogg, Emily White, Stephanie Dean and Jamie Reis.
