The Clarkston Memorial Day Parade makes its way down White Lake Rd. to Lakeview Cemetery.

Taking time to remember

A cool but sunny morning marked Clarkston's annual Memorial Day parade and graveside service in Lakeview Cemetery.

At 10 a.m. the small group of local American Legion posts, color guards and the Clarkston High School Band wound its way along the traditional parade route, ending up on White Lake Rd. where all was silent marching into the cemetery.

Folks carried flags and flowers, commemorating loved ones who have passed on. They listened reverently to several readings, including the annual reading of those who died in various wars, patriotic music and, as customary, the reading of the Gettysburg Address by local pastor Dr. Robert Walters.

American Legion Campbell Richmond Post 63 member John Lynch asked the crowd to "pay hallowed respect to those who have made the supreme sacrifice" so Americans today might have "freedom, justice and democracy."

Waldon, Clintonville to get paving

A previous dispute between Oakhurst developers and Independence Township officials has apparently been settled — without going to court. And township residents came out the winner.

A Concept Development Plan called for the developers of Oakhurst, a planned residential development (PRD) at Waldon and Clintonville roads, to pave portions of those two roads. In mid-March they began backing out because of costs, township attorney Gerry Fisher said.

However, the "skirmish" ended with the recent agreement of the developers to carry on with the agreement, Fisher told the township Board of Trustees at its May 20 meeting.

The original agreement stated the developers would "pave part of those roads to provide access to their project," Fisher told the board. On Friday, he explained the township "considered those roads were very important to the development, and important to the initial approval of the project."

The two roads will be paved as follows: Clintonville, from Waldon Rd., north to Clarkston Rd.; and Waldon, from Royal St. George, east to Clintonville Rd. The area is currently under intense residential development.

Message clear: Casinos are not wanted here

Joslyn/I-75 site considered

They were lining up to volunteer to stand in front of the bulldozers Thursday night at a meeting called by state Sen. Mat Dunaskiss to discuss the plans of the Bay Mills Indian Tribe for a casino at I-75 and Joslyn, just two miles from the Independence Township border.

Residents from Orion, Independence and Oxford townships and the city of Auburn Hills, within whose boundaries the proposed casino would lie, spoke out almost unanimously against the proposal. They were joined by Dunaskiss, state Rep. Penny Crissman, Oakland County Commissioner Larry Obrecht, Orion Township Supervisor Colette Dywasuk, Auburn Hills City Councilman Tom McMillin and Independence Township Supervisor Dale Stuart in their opposition.

The deal that would bring an Indian casino to non-Indian land in the state's most thriving county is a complex one. Mike O'Brien of the state Republican Policy Office explained that it stems from a legal dispute over former Indian land in the Upper Peninsula.

As O'Brien explained it, the Supreme Court has ruled that states may not regulate Indian lands because that would be tantamount to negotiating a treaty, a right reserved to the federal government. In the wake of that decision, Congress enacted the Indian Gaming Regulation Act (IGRA). Among its provisions was one that required the states to enter into compacts with the tribes.

"The situation of the Bay Mills Indian Tribe is unique; it is an off-reservation facility" O'Brien said. How the Oakland County location came about is also complicated.

An Ohio man who thought he had clear title to land in Brimley in Chippewa County near Lake Superior in the UP found his ownership of the land challenged in court by the Indian tribe in a dispute dating back to the 1800s. Rather than lose the land, he negotiated, and the federal court accepted, a land swap: two acres of industrial-zoned land in Auburn Hills for his 60 acres up north.

There are two portions of IGRA that allow for off-reservation gaming. Both require the land to be placed in trust with the federal government, and the casino to be approved by the US Secretary of the Interior. One provision requires the Secretary to consider the surrounding community; that's not the case if the land is taken as settlement of a claim.

"That's why this section of federal law is being called into question," O'Brien said. The problem is, this

The news in brief

Dog license deadline June 2

Time is running out to purchase your 1997 Oakland County dog license without penalty. The deadline in the close of business on Monday, June 2.

The cost of a license is $15; however, there is a $7.50 discount for owners of spayed/neutered dogs. Missing the deadline boosts the price to $30 beginning June 3.

Licenses are available at local municipal offices, veterinary clinics and the Oakland County Animal Care Center, located at 1700 Brown Rd., Auburn Hills.

Beginning June 3 the 10th annual Dog Census will be conducted county-wide. County personnel will go door-to-door to verify rabies vaccinations and licensing of dogs, as well as obtaining information on cats.

All dogs over 6 months old are required by law to be vaccinated against rabies and wear a valid license at all times.

"There were eight confirmed cases of rabid bats in Oakland County last year and while none of these animals were cats or dogs, rabies is a potential threat to our community," said Sandy Gay, Animal Control manager. "Please vaccinate your pets and keep them away from all wildlife."

For more information call Animal Control at 391-4102.

Cigarette sting

An Oakland County Sheriff's Deputy using a 17-year-old decoy netted three tobacco violators and one alcohol violator during an undercover operation May 16.

In the space of about two-and-one-half hours, the decoy was able to buy wine coolers at a Dixie Highway party store and cigarettes at three gas stations. In all four cases, the decoy had in her possession her legal driver's license but was never asked for her age or identification.

Clerks were ticketed at the Dixie Party Store, Roy Brothers Gas Station, Dandy Oil and Clark Oil.

Help Us Grow, the committee formed to support the June 9 school bond proposal, is looking for helpers on election day.

HUG is seeking volunteers to make reminder calls to get out the vote on June 9. The next HUG meeting is Thursday, June 5 at 7 p.m. at the school administration building.

SCAMP home tour features old and new

BY EILEEN McCARVILLE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Known as "the pink house on Main St.," 107 N. Main is a classic example of Carpenter Gothic, an architectural style seen frequently around Clarkston.

Characterized by decorative and delicate sawn details often referred to as "gingerbread," it was copied by American carpenters who knew of stone Gothic work in Europe, most notably in cathedrals.

Now owned by Jan and John Glass, the house is one of five which will be featured in this year's SCAMP home tour June 7. The tour benefits SCAMP, which offers a free summer program to children and young adults with special needs. The tour is one of SCAMP's biggest fund-raisers.

Other homes on the tour this year include Clarkston Mayor Sharron Catallo and husband Clarence's converted 1873 church at the corner of Church and Main; the new home of Frank and Sandy Barresi in the Manors of Deerwood; the home of Deanne and Dan Columbo on East Washington and the home of Carol and Ed Fisch on Misty Hill.

The preview evening for patrons on June 6 includes a reception at Chateau du Lac, the castle-like home of Mr. and Mrs. George Milidrag in Heather Lakes Estates. For ticket information call SCAMP at 625-3330.

The Glass House

According to the Clarkston Historic District Commission, "America had a strong carpentry tradition, and lots of wood. Americans had a need for quickly built housing. The invention of powered saws, the new balloon frame and the availability of house pattern books all set the stage for this emerging style."

Examples of Carpenter Gothic are seen in cities like Martha's Vineyard and San Francisco.

The Glass home at 107 N. Main St. has known approximately a half-dozen owners since it was built around 1850, says current owner Jan Glass, who resides there with husband John, two cats, Scheherazade and Cheeky Baby, and a dog, Rabbie.

As Jan provides a tour — accompanied by Rabbie and his wagging tail — she points out features of the home she's lived in since 1991. Although many changes have taken place over the years, it's evident previous owners have taken loving care to preserve its history.

Originally a rambling porch wrapped around the front, Jan says. All that's left is one pillar, which was transformed into a lamp post by one former owner.

"I'd love to do it again," she sighs. "It would be so nice to sit on the porch and watch the people walk by."

Inside, one's first impression is how well-lighted the home is, with sunlight splashing in through the many large windows in the living room, including an elegant three-paned bay window at the back. Traces of the bygone Victorian era remain in "escutcheons," light pink ornamental plates, used on the ceiling and as side pieces.

"I've kind of had to let the front dictate that the living room should be more elegant. It's crying out to be lady-like," she says, gesturing to the dainty fireplace, arched windows, lace curtains and traditional furniture.

A smaller area in front has been turned into a dining room, but "at one time must have been used as a parlor," Jan says, with a trace of brogue. She and her husband were born and raised in Scotland — hence the name "Rabbie" for her dog, named after Scotland's patron poet, Robert Burns.

As she speaks, the Glass's grown-up son Iain passes with a heavy hutch-like piece for the dining area. But that kind of furniture isn't allowed in the living room.

Jan's taste for big, baronial pieces

Jan sets out a basket of tomatoes in one of the additions the Glasses have made: a dining area with stained glass windows.

is instead realized in the back, where Rabbie now yawns luxuriously on one of the many furry rugs strewn about the family room.

It's definitely a more modern area where the family can get comfy. But, like other spots in the house, it blends both old and new. Though the Glasses have added wicker and Western-looking ceiling beams, original built-in "summer" kitchen cupboards still stretch to the rafters at one corner.

Actually, the Glasses took a wall out to make one large room, better for entertaining purposes as well. "We'd have people over for dinner and realize they were in two rooms." Other changes once made by owners included a coal bin converted into a den and a back laundry room into a summer kitchen.

Another new feature is the kitchen's bay-window area with three panes of striking stained glass, taken from an old church in Canada where the Glasses once lived. The Glasses added that section and an "island" to provide more space and "bring it up to what we need nowadays." The wallpaper is large Jacobean flowers. Through the years, of course, bathrooms were added, because "there would have been no indoor bathroom" in the old days, Jan reminds the tourist. "This was probably a bedroom," she says peeking into one. Her flair for humor is evident, with a stuffed animal sitting in one corner with spectacles and a good, thick book.

That's Jimmy. "He's supposed to be reading but he looks like he's watching the ladies on the toilet," she quips, trying in vain to push his head down closer to the book.

Opening a door, which at first seems like a closet, a narrow stairway is revealed. Jan trudges up the steep passageway and points out her collection of old duck decoys which rest on a stairway shelf. Most of them washed up on the Canadian shores of Lake St. Clair.

"This wasn't a rich person's home because it doesn't have a back stairway for the servants. It doesn't even have a maid's room," she muses. A landing at the top includes a few large

Technology an important part of bond issue

BY ANNETTE KINGSBURY
Clarkston News Editor

Perhaps the least talked-about but most far-reaching aspect of the June 9 school bond election is the technology component.

Pegged at between $6 and $7 million, the technology package includes adding electrical service and wiring to each of the district's buildings, as well as computers, phones, video, fiber optics and more.

A few students, parents and members of the media got a short lesson in one way students will use this technology last week at Oakland Schools, where a mini version of "Cybercamp" was demonstrated.

Five boys and seven girls—some with Internet experience, some not—were given a list of questions to answer. Then, after a brief video that gave them some pointers, they were turned loose on the Internet to find the answers.

"What we're trying to do here is show what can be done with technology," said Ron Sullivan, a member of the Help Us Grow committee and candidate for school board. "This is just one aspect of what can be done with technology. Computers, and I work with them every day, are a tool."

Elizabeth Hunt and Kourtney McLean, friends and sixth-graders at Sashabaw Middle School, were assigned to work together as a team but decided to tackle different questions, then pool their answers. As she searched for information about the ancient Mayans, Kourtney said she preferred this method of researching to going to the library.

There definitely are advantages, said Dr. Jan VanDam, a former teacher who now runs Oakland Schools partnership with MOAnet, the Macomb Oakland Area Network, an Internet provider.

"Information comes to the learner, instead of taking the learner to education. That's a critical change in how we think about bringing education and the learner together," she said.

As Kourtney worked on her archeology problems, Elizabeth, whose dad has Internet access at home, was looking for information related to astronomy, including the Hale-Bopp Comet. Sometimes answers came easily; sometimes they did not. Along the way, the girls found interesting tidbits on other topics by accident, a potential side benefit, according to Kourtney's mom, Mary Ellen McLean, a school-board trustee.

"You come up with all this other stuff that probably isn't the answer but you think, 'That might be interesting too.'"

VanDam pointed out that some parents fear children may get into inappropriate places on the Internet that way. However, she pointed out, school districts are developing "appropriate use" policies that students will have to read and sign. It will be their responsibility to back off if they find themselves in an undesirable location.

"We always involve parents," she said. "There's probably a lot of places in the Internet you don't want your kids to go, and some adults are afraid of that . . . People get all out of shape about Hale-Bopp and Heaven's Gate, but that is not about the Internet and technology. That's about religious fanatics."

Board turns down rezoning at Waldon and I-75

BY EILEEN McCARVILLE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Despite a recommendation by both the township planner and a special subcommittee, and despite the high profile of the Silverman Development Co. in Independence Township, a request to rezone acreage for a new development off Waldon Rd. was shot down by Board of Trustees members May 20.

The board voted 5-1 (clerk Joan McCrary was absent) to deny a rezoning request by Silverman that would have meant more than twice as many homes as currently allowed on a pie-shaped parcel next to Waldon Preserve.

The area in question is located on the south side of Waldon, east of I-75 and consists of 33 rolling, heavily wooded acres. It is just east of Waldon Preserve, a 60-acre parcel zoned single-family residential (R-1A), which required no zoning change and was approved for Silverman last summer.

The triangular piece, known as the old Harley Robinson estate, is zoned R-1R (rural residential). Under that zoning category, large lots with a minimum of 3 acres are allowed, said township building director Bev McElmeel. However, the acreage is master-planned for suburban residential which allows for smaller lots 1/2 to 1 1/2 acres each. Silverman's request would increase the density even further, into 12,000- to 15,000-square-foot homesites, if clustered. If not clustered it would be developed with a minimum lot size of 15,000 square feet.

Silverman vice president of development Steve Robinson, who appeared before the board last Tuesday, hoped the triangular piece could be rezoned accordingly. And though as many as 75 lots could be accomplished with the rezoning, he said Silverman had agreed to a deed restriction that would lock them into developing only 59. Carlisle said he and the planning commission deemed that number "realistic."

But, even with that provision, the idea didn't sit well with most board members.

"This has been described as heavily treed, severe topography ... Why would you be looking to increase the density when, at best, it seems to be in the suburban farms category?" asked township supervisor Dale Stuart, who later called the concept "clearly unacceptable."

Township planner Dick Carlisle said there are a number of factors that back the proposed rezoning, including road improvements on Waldon like paving and the availability of sewer and water, which were not there when the property was originally zoned rural residential. That now changes the property's potential, he said. The recent rezoning of multiple-family (R-2) to recreation for a proposed expansion of Pine Knob Golf Course is another reason.

That rezoning alone reduced the acreage "from 450 to zero," Carlisle said at an earlier planning commission meeting, referring to the number of apartment units possible under R-2 status. Carlisle looked at the overall density with areas like the golf course, Waldon Preserve and industrially zoned Bay Pointe Rd., "all which could support a lower density of the (Harley Robinson) site ... Coincidentally, all these things came together at once," he said.

But township trustee Neil Wallace and others maintained they could not support the idea, citing tree preservation and other factors. "I am not persuaded by this notion of neighborhood-tradeoff density," said Wallace, referring to Pine Knob Golf Course. If Silverman's request were granted it would be an "erosion of the master plan," he added.

Fellow trustee Larry Rosso did not favor the rezoning as well. "It's just beyond where I can aesthetically go," he admitted.

The only board member to back the request was Dan Travis, a member of the planning commission, as well as a member of the subcommittee appointed to study the project after the commission initially tabled its decision. Like Carlisle, Travis highlighted the factors that eventually caused the planning commission to support it, including Silverman's pitch for the deed restriction.

During the course of discussion, trustee Jeff McGee suggested the acreage might be instead considered as a PUD (planned unit development).

Travis said the special zoning category is a feasible option. "A PUD would allow you to return the existing zoning, do a full site-plan review ... It could mean less density than 59 (sites)," he explained last week. Through a PUD, the rural-residential character could continue, but the developer would be "locked-in" to certain commitments like buffering and tree preservation, he added.

Called Friday, township attorney Gerry Fisher explained the concept further as a kind of "tool" used to provide more flexibility if the project is well-designed, thus treating the area more specifically.

"A petition for a PUD may contain regulations on the property, unlike the inflexible standards that are observed in the ordinance. There's potential for bonus (additional) density based on an innovative design," he said.

Therefore, though Silverman wouldn't be able to get 59 units from the property, he wouldn't be locked in to the lesser number of homesites allowed under rural residential. Under a PUD he could get anywhere from 15 to 46, Fisher estimated.

Those decisions will have to come from Silverman, Travis said. "I don't know where it will go. It's totally the ball in his court. The township board has spoken and I have to stand by that."

As he left the board meeting, it was evident Robinson was disappointed and surprised he'd been turned down. "I don't know," he said, when asked if Silverman might consider other options, including the PUD. "That was not expected," he said of the motion. "We're not sure."

In Focus

by Annette Kingsbury

Unraveling the mystery

Now I understand how I passed geometry. I never really 'got' it; it was one of those subjects that just made my brain hurt. Somehow, I managed to get Honor Roll grades. Clarkston school superintendent Dr. Al Roberts recently showed me how.

At the May meeting of the Chamber of Commerce, Roberts did a little demonstration. He showed a story problem on a screen. All those in attendance read it. It was some stuff about batsmen and bowlers. I thought it might be about the game of cricket, but wasn't sure.

After we all read it at what was supposed to be a fifth-grade reading level, Roberts asked how many of us were certain of what it was about. Three or four people raised their hands. For the rest of us, he then put up a new slide, this one the same story but at a third-grade reading level. We read it again. The sentences were shorter, but the information was exactly the same. No one else said they knew, for sure, what it was about.

The next strategy was to test us on what we'd read. We did fine here, answering all the questions correctly, even though most of us didn't have a clue what it was about.

That, said Roberts, is what teaching strategies have been about for the last 200 years. We didn't understand it, so the teacher put it in simpler English. Then, after we'd memorized it, we were tested on it. If we got the answers right, we passed. If we still didn't understand it, no one knew—no one asked.

This is exactly how I got through geometry—in fact, most of the math/science classes in high school (in college I avoided them like the plague). All I can tell you about geometry now is it had something to do with shapes—circles, triangles, etc. If I use it in my everyday life, it's news to me.

But I got A's and B's. It reminds me of how I learned to play bridge, bumbling along until at some point I could play passably well. It was better not to think about how, because I really hadn't grasped it.

Roberts' point in making the demonstration was that teaching and learning have changed—or must change—as we go into the next century. The kind of challenges children face today when they come out of college are less about rote learning than about thinking, being able to find information you need and applying it usefully.

Unless tomorrow's grads will be satisfied flipping burgers, they will need to be able to think, not just memorize. Even those lucrative but repetitive jobs on the Big Three assembly lines are just not readily available anymore. If you expect to be able to support a family in the future, it's going to take more than a service job.

So educators must cope with adapting. The way they were taught is no longer the acceptable way. They must commit time, effort and money in retraining. We adults outside the teaching profession don't often stop to think about how different the world is now than when we were kids.

Letters to the editor

Think, then vote

On June 9, in addition to the school board election, there is a vote on a bond issue for a new elementary school and renovations to the existing elementary buildings. There are a couple of indisputable facts related to the Clarkston Schools.

First, the buildings are overcrowded and in need of repair and second, the situation is not going to get any better without action. Houses are still being built and people are still moving in. The new high school under construction will improve the situation at the high school and the middle schools, but something needs to be done to improve the elementary school situation. The proposed new elementary school and renovations to the existing buildings would do that and I urge people to vote yes on June 9th.

There are other ways to solve the problem and things that could be done differently in the existing proposal, but to me that is not the main issue. The community elected the school board to lead the district, and the school board has hired administrators to manage the day-to-day operations. When the superintendent position was open, the school board did an extensive search to find the best person available for the job. Individually and as a group these people are experts and we should listen to them. They have spent countless hours listening to architects, meeting with citizen groups, and reviewing proposals, often at great personal sacrifice.

They have come up with this plan because they believe it is the best way to educate the children of the district, not because they want to see taxes go up or because they get some other benefit from it. In actuality, this will make their jobs more difficult both as administrators and board members. Managing two construction projects at once is going to require greater time commitment on everyone's part. The fact, though, is that it needs to be done.

If you believe that the school situation is fine as it is and that the district will stop growing, then vote no on June 9th. If, however, you believe that we need to relieve the current overcrowding and improve the schools so that Clarkston graduates are as well prepared to move on in life as graduates of other schools, then don't nit-pick the details. Vote yes on June 9th and let the school board and administrators do the job that they were elected and hired to do.

Doug Baker

Vote yes

To the editor:

We are residents and parents in the Clarkston community who are concerned with the quality of our children's education. We believe that a good school system must strike a balance between fiscal responsibility on the part of the administrators and the community's wisdom to recognize when there are legitimate needs to provide resources for their children to learn.

We have a space problem as well as physical hazards in the existing schools. We also have a technology gap in our teaching resources. Please take the time to evaluate the issues, get the facts, and vote YES on June 9th.

If our government is really serious about getting us to quit smoking why not cut Medicaid to smokers? Then to make it work, pay $100 to those of us who squeal on cheaters.

I've always held Michigan State University's Cooperative Extension outfit in high regard. I never called them, just had this "image." In recent years a couple weeds have expanded their residence in our yard. Weed and feed mixtures seemed to give them added vigor. Recently I took samples of these intruders to the county offices, 1200 N. Telegraph. Four books and a consultation (without me) later, I was told to use Ortho Spurge. Nathan Grove, at the ACE in Lake Orion, not remembering it at all, called his source. Seems Ortho was bought out three years ago and the buyer quit making Spurge at that time. Another "image" blasted.

While checking my weeds I did a survey of chewing gum, cigarettes and fast foods by picking up the wrappers in our yard. It may be as reliable as Neilson. Winterfresh is the chewers favorite, BelAir is smoked most and Burger King leads fast food litters.

Jim (the insurance man) Downey's son, Jim, works for Intel in Seattle. While golfing with the senior Jim last week he said his son told him his company was sending him to Phoenix. "Really," the father replied, "my company's sending me to a massage parlor."

It's been a long time since I've quoted from the Dick E. Bird News, published by Richard E. Mallery, of Williamsburg, with another address in Acme. But, here's a couple quickies:

Wingtips: Hang strong-smelling soap, such as Irish Spring, on trees or on posts around the perimeter of an area you would like to keep animals from, like gardens. Since most animals have a fear of man and a good sense of smell, this might work on some intruders.

And, Dick E. Bird poetry:
Birds, ya know, don't got no bladder,
So wherever they is, it just don't matter.
On decks or on the sills,
The spirit moves, you hear a trill.
Then they fly, just like a thief,
That is how they spell relief.

The state has handed Independence Township a bitter pill to swallow with its proposed state equalized value (SE) factor of 1.0904. The move will materialize as an increase in residential assessments and tax bills, completely against the will of assessor David Sherrill, who has fought on the local level to keep SEVs constant and tax bills at a minimum. The increase is estimated at 9 percent.

It's proven that the fire which destroyed the Old Mill restaurant recently was related to arson, says Waterford Township Fire Department Chief Wendell Trager. Trager reports the remains of flammable liquid in areas where it shouldn't have been. Firefighters were unable to stop the blaze from destroying the landmark restaurant at Dixie Highway and Andersonville Rd. The restaurant opened in 1924.

Wednesday, June 4, will be a big day in Clarkston. The seniors will "swing out" at 10:45 a.m. and entertain the rest of the school from 11 till noon with a prophecy, will and class history. In the afternoon the owners of model airplanes will compete for awards in the gym. Several gasoline-powered planes and many rubber-band-propelled vehicles will be flown.

Playing at the Drayton Theatre are Tyrone Power and Gene Tierney in "The Razor's Edge," George Raft and Lynn Bari in "Nocturne" and Bobby Driscoll and Luana Patten in Walt Disney's cartoon picture, "Song of the South." Showing at the Holly Theatre are Ray Milland and Barbara Stanwyck in "California," Gene Autry and Lynne Roberts in "Sioux City Sue" and Gail Russell, Clair Trevor and Adolph Menjou in "The Bachelor's Daughters."

Excerpts from Clarkston High School's class will, 1937, by Dorothy Wilson: We, the Senior Class of Clarkston High School, being of unsound mind and disintegrating memory after four strenuous (?) years, do hereby make, publish and declare this as our last and best will and testament ... To Mrs. Walter, Mr. Bauer, Mr. Waters and any other teacher who may be concerned, we give and bequeath all the amazing knowledge and startling information that we have furnished them from time to time in our various examination papers ... Our dignity and good sense we leave to the Junior Class; may they apply it with rapid and spreading strokes ... Don't Rush Me

One for the gipper

Closure is a good thing. That in mind, I thought I'd give readers the last chapters of a number of past episodes.

How many remember reading about my dive-bombing, kamikaze robin? This foul fowl made my mornings early, messed up my deck and dirtied three of my home's windows, for nearly a month.

Day in and day out, I was awakened at 6 a.m. Nothing I did, not putting up pictures of owls, yelling, or putting masking tape on the windows worked. Frustration set in.

And ... then I put a plaster bunny rabbit on the deck railing. This gargoylish-looking rodent saved the day. There have been no dive-bombing attacks since.

Earlier this spring I reported to you all that someone had given me their old rototiller -- all I had to do is fix it. I reported that I prognosed the problem as carburetor related.

Sure enough, when I took the gas tank and carb off, the fuel system was gunked up tighter than a tick on a hound. Well, I cleaned it up some, and started to put the darned-thing back together.

There was this bolt that I was trying to get back in, but couldn't because the plastic cap where you put in oil was in the way. So I took it off and promptly dropped the bolt with a 7/16th head, into the oil.

I tried to salvage the mission by trying to scoop the bolt out of the dirty, black oil with a screw driver and deftly pushed the bolt into the oil pan. Lost forever, as far as I'm concerned.

Lesson of the day: don't ask Don to work on your small (or any) engine.

Thought for the week: it is nice to see communities come together, like they did here on Monday. There is just something about kids, American flags, color guards, 21-gun salutes and taps that warms me.

It's important to remember the supreme sacrifices made by warriors past, that we may live in relative freedom. It's good to see patriotism. It's good to be an American.

Letter policy

Next week is the last issue before the June 9 bond/school board election. We will publish as many letters as space allows. To better assure your chance of being published, please keep your letter short, sign it, include an address and daytime phone

Vote 'yes' now

Isn't it time to update our buildings with today's technology? Isn't it time to get rid of the one-room school atmosphere provided by portable classrooms? Shouldn't we face the fact that Clarkston is a growing community and needs to meet the educational concerns of our children now?

Today's successful worker needs to work with technology that is far beyond what most of us grew up with in school. Are we not holding back our children if we don't provide them the opportunity to work with this technology in our schools?

The portable classrooms in our school system segregate our children from the rest of the school's population. Everytime a child in a portable needs to go to lunch, gym, assembly or the media center they must go outside in the rain, cold, snow or the occasional sunny day. They go outside to reach an area the rest of the school can walk to without putting on a coat or worrying about catching cold.

There is no doubt that Clarkston is growing. Drive around and look at all the new housing developments under construction. We need a new elementary school now! Let's not wait like we did the last time we opened a new elementary school and were so full that we had to convert an art room and a math support room to classrooms to accommodate the large number of students.

The bond election June 9th provides technology for ALL the schools, it addresses the growth of our community with more space in all our schools and shows that we care about what really counts - kids.

Please think of our children's future June 9 and vote yes so they can be successful in a changing world.

SCAMP board supports bond

To the editor:

The community of Clarkston has embraced Clarkston SCAMP for more than 20 years. As a result, thousands of children and youth with disabilities have enjoyed an outstanding five-week summer experience. SCAMP has also touched the lives of hundreds of able, young Clarkston residents who have volunteered and worked side-by-side with an excellent teaching staff. This experience of caring and working on behalf of others has determined the future professional choices for many of our young people.

Tuition and community support through donations and fundraisers pay for programming expenses such as staff, transportation, and food services. Clarkston Community School District provides in-kind support by allowing SCAMP to operate in space at Sashabaw Middle and North Sashabaw Elementary schools. As a result, SCAMP has a home in our community and in our hearts.

How does one measure community? By each decision we collectively make that affects the whole. Our community is strong. Clarkston SCAMP is one example of this strength. The Clarkston SCAMP board urges you to support the bond election on June 9. Together we can provide opportunities for all children in our community.

Clarkston SCAMP Board of Directors

Elect Crigger

The time is coming again to elect two very important people who will accept the responsibility of making decisions relative to the education of Clarkston children. I would like to support Mr. Rick Crigger for one of these positions.

Rick has long been involved with his own children in Clarkston. For the past three years, Rick has traveled as a chaperone with the 8th-graders at Sashabaw Middle school, even though he did not have any of his own children participating.

As a veteran police officer, he is very aware of problems facing today's youth. Rick cares about the future of Clarkston kids. I believe he will be an asset and bring a fresh perspective to the Clarkston School Board. On Monday, June 9th, vote for Rick Crigger.

One proud family

We are very happy and proud to announce that our son, Chad Bailey, will be playing basketball next year at Central Michigan University.

Chad spent an afternoon with new head coach Jay Smith who explained his new Division I MAC Conference program. Coach Smith is very positive and enthusiastic about his new head coaching job and to have Chad on his team. Chad's dream of playing Division I Basketball for such a great coach has come true.

As Chad's parents, along with the rest of Chad's family, we could not be more proud and happy for Chad.

Chad, all your hard work and dedication to the sport you love has in the past, and will in the future, bring you all the pride and success of a job well done. The "dream" has come true!

Congratulations - We love you.

Growth demands 'yes' vote

Our secret is out! People have discovered the Clarkston community. They are appreciating its small town atmosphere, convenience to the I-75 corridor, and our local schools.

They are moving by the hundreds into Independence and Springfield Townships. Just take a short drive, and you will see new subdivisions sprouting up that were once country fields. This increase in housing is adding substantially to our school district population.

As members of this growing community, we cannot ignore the fact that our schools will not be able to meet the needs of our students. We need to address this issue at the upcoming bond vote on June 9th. Please become involved and vote yes on the bond proposal. Our children need your support. They deserve the best we can give to them.

Remember, it takes a whole village to raise a child. Vote yes on June 9th.

Mary Jo Smith

What is your vote worth?

Your vote matters most to your children. It sets an example to them. You are telling them, by your actions, that it is an important right. It is part of adulthood. That you care enough to make a choice for whatever reason and join your voice with others.

Children know when there is an election. They have to eat their lunches in the classrooms that day. They may ask if you voted when they come home from school. They learn in school how men of other races and women fought to vote. It seems a shame to let that passion go to waste.

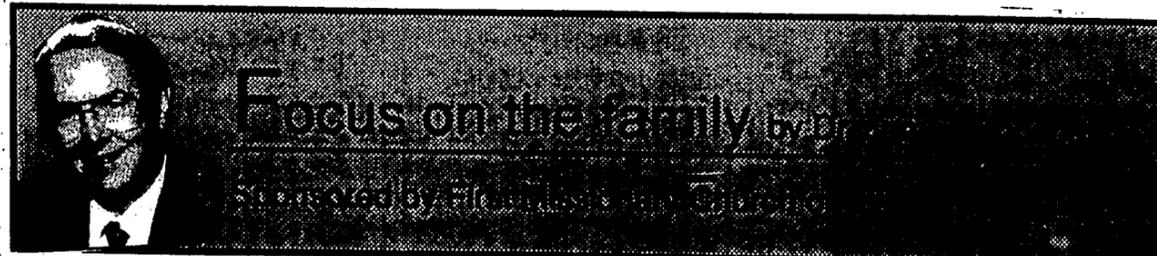

Don't say you can't make an educated vote. Newspapers always print articles about elections. Mail carriers deliver unsolicited stuff to our mailboxes about issues. Phone calls can be made to obvious parties, who will no doubt be happy to provide information.

Talk to your child about voting. That it is private. Talk with them about your choice and why another person might make the opposite choice.

Whether you go to the polls or get an absentee ballot, you are setting a positive example for our future generations by voting.

It is a shame to see such a poor turnout from such a caring and educated community.

Question: I have a 14-year-old daughter who wants to date a 17-year-old boy. I don't feel good about letting her go, but I'm not sure just how to respond. What should I say to her?

Dr. Dobson: Rather than stomping your foot and screaming, "NO! And that's semi-final!" I would work out a reasonable plan for the years ahead and a rationale to support it. You might say, "You are 14 years old, and I understand your new interest in boys. That's the way it's supposed to be. However, you are not ready to handle the pressures that an older boy can put on a girl your age." (Explain what you mean if she asks.)

"Your dad and I want to help you get ready for dating in the future, but there are some in-between steps you need to take. You have to learn how to be 'friends' with boys before you become serious with one. To do this, you should get acquainted in groups of boys or girls your own age. We'll invite them to our house or you can go to the homes of others.

"Your dad and I want you to date and have fun with boys, but you're not ready to plunge into single dating with a high school senior, and we'll just have to find other ways to satisfy your social needs."

section of the law has not been litigated before . . . There's no precedent."

James Alexander, attorney for the Bay Mills tribe, said that even though the court has ruled favorably on the land swap, the application to put a casino there has not yet been filed.

"It's a little premature to be here tonight," he said to the packed audience at the Orion Township Hall. "I can't tell you if a casino's going to be built, what it's going to look like . . . It's just too early."

Alexander said there have been no plans drawn up yet. "There is a dream, there is an idea," he said. The application process is expected to take six months, he added.

"There is a court order saying this swap has now taken place. The process now begins. The application will probably be filed in the next 30 days."

Pointing out that the tribe already has two casinos in the UP, Alexander said, "The Bay Mills Indian Community are good neighbors." He said their profits from the casino go toward improving Indian life, such as helping members build homes. And he pointed out that under the compact with the state, the state receives at least eight percent of the profits, the host community at least two percent. The exact amounts are subject to

Stuart was among the first to speak after the initial presentation was made. "I'm here to listen to input," he said. "But I also want to indicate on the record, individually and for my community . . . we think the outfall from that would have a negative impact on Independence Township and we would join in opposing it."

Later, in a phone interview, Stuart said he has concerns about traffic and crime. "I don't blame the people for being up in arms about it, especially in areas where we have less police protection" such as northern Oakland County.

Two Independence Township residents also spoke at the meeting. Dave Barnard held up a handful of lottery tickets and blamed the state for "turning Michigan into little Nevada. The people aren't doing it; it seems to me the state is doing it."

Admitting that he was "ambivalent" about casinos, he added, "I don't think we're going to stop it. It's just a matter of regulating progress."

Jim Smiley questioned the "dream" of the tribe to build the casino and echoed the ethical concerns of many others who spoke.

"The people in this room, this community also have a dream," he said. "That's one of the reasons I moved here. And that dream is to make a day's wage for a day's work. That's not what gambling is about... The love of money leads to nothing but evil." He suggested the local communities say 'no thank you' when offers of money from the casino are offered.

Stuart said that's not a bad idea, and he expects the surrounding communities—not just Auburn Hills—will be offered money to help counteract the impact of the casino.

"If there is a spin-off to the surrounding communities, it might be hard to say no to," he said.

As the imaginary line in front of the bulldozer got longer and longer, prompting an Oxford man to say he expected to see photos reminiscent of Tienamen Square. Dunaskiss said the important thing is for the community to band together and make its opinion known to the Secretary of the Interior, who will make the ultimate decision.

"Let's work together so we can get a very cooperative, loud voice together to the federal government," he said.

A real, live lesson in auto safety

What's the most important piece of equipment in your car? Seatbelts?

Wrong—it's you. because if a person doesn't buckle up, a seat belt is absolutely worthless.

A team of 70 students from Sashabaw Middle School got a memorable lesson in the importance of auto safety restraints May 22 when they visited the North American headquarters of Autoliv, a Swedish company that is one of the world's largest suppliers of occupant restraint equipment.

Located in Auburn Hills, Autoliv's technical center was the location for a tour, lunch and end-of-the-day actual crash test which the seventh-grade Sea Lions team from SMS watched from behind protective barriers.

Autoliv offered the program as part of its commitment to auto safety education. Besides witnessing the live crash, students toured the building's testing facility, which included computer and video demonstrations. Interactive activities were created especially for the seventh-graders.

It all ended in a big room with a big crash. When it was over, students crowded around the car to assess the damage and see the now-inflated air bag and what had happened to the dummies inside. They said they'd learned during the day about how restraint systems work, how to use them—even talked about the recent controversy surrounding airbags and children. They were advised to sit in the back seat in a car equipped with air bags, and, if that was impossible, to move the front seat all the way back.

The kids were treated royally by Autoliv, including a lunch of pizza and pop and giveaways as they left. But the impact of the crash was not lessened by all the fun stuff.

A spokesman for Autoliv said the company conducts and films crash tests on a regular basis for its own product testing or at the request of automakers or attorneys involved in litigation. As the car is pulled down a track by a wire, a bank of lights comes on over the crash site and cameras roll. It's all over, almost literally, in a flash.

windows and a sitting bench. "They tell me this is where the children came and played on a rainy day."

Two of the upstairs bedrooms are very special.

One, a guest room, is quaint with its sloped ceiling and quilted bedspread. Jan wanted it to look homey. A guest once remarked, "It's so much like my aunt's room, and I felt good. I wanted it to be like that."

Another bedroom is definitely original. "This is my outside-in room," says Jan. Instead of window boxes on the outside, she has built them — and the shutters — within. In both are thriving red geraniums. The twin beds feature "fence post" heads and feet. Jan envisions painted trees and flower beds on the walls, and may add some cat figures as well. "I thought it might be cute to have a cat peeking in from the OUTside instead."

I say there are 3 P's--people, plants and pets--that mess up a home. But I guess that's what makes a home too.'

Jan Glass

After the tour is completed, Jan wants to go outside and take advantage of the warm spring day. It's deceiving when one views these large, gracious homes on Main St. Many of them have spacious back yards that stretch to the Mill Pond.

As her animals romp, but stay within their boundaries, Jan putters among the forsythia and spring flowers which are poking through the soil. Her husband has put in charming brick pathways and removed a portion of the original garage.

That's so the Glasses can see the pond from a new back porch they have added. The first garage was evidently "for a Model T" because of its small size. What's left has become a potting shed so Jan can enjoy her gardening — which she plans to do a lot of in the years to come.

She and her husband love their home because they're close to town, but still have "nature" in the back. Jan faithfully feeds "her" fish at the dock, throwing bread crumbs out on the water. "Here they come," she says, as Rabbie waits patiently for a few crumbs. "Sure you can come on the property, but fish somewhere else," she says to imagined curiosity seekers. "I feed these ones."

The Glass House has become somewhat of a celebrity, immortalized in the handiwork of two local artists, James Russell and Robert Hubbach. In one of Russell's paintings, a collage, something looked familiar. It took awhile, but all of a sudden Jan noticed a large arch in the foreground was a piece of the delicate roof trim.

The Hubbach painting shows no other dwellings on either side. Because of that and the large lot it rests on, Jan believes much of the land once held farms.

As she cleans her home, readying for the SCAMP tour, she says she must pay special attention — even to the laundry room. "They didn't have kitty litter and bottle returns in those days," she laughs.

"I say there are three P's — people, plants and pets — that mess up a home. But I guess that's what makes a home too."

Mindi Thompson

It was very exciting because it was one of the first times a girls soccer team from Clarkston has won something like that. It was great for all of us who love to play the game."

PROUDEST LIFE ACCOMPLISHMENT: "I can't really pick one thing that stands out. Everything I have been involved in or accomplished has come as a result of others. A quote I once heard explains this: 'Every man who is great stands on the shoulders of giants.'

For example, one of the most meaningful experiences for me is working with the K'NEX kids at CHS. Through the dedication and organization of Barb Anderson, I have had the chance to learn a lot about others and myself through taking these students to various games, or activities such as after-school picnics or dances such as Snowcoming or Prom. Through the K'NEX program we have involved these multiply mentally impaired students in the social aspects of high school that I have every day."

CHS... "allows students the opportunity to be involved and experience many different situations, causing them to re-examine their own lives. It also has a lot of caring people who are attempting to work together to meet the needs of students, but unfortunately, politics still come out on top."

MAJOR CONCERN FOR HER GENERATION: "People miss the little things in life and don't understand the importance of what they can learn from helping others. They aren't willing to stand up for what they believe in and lose the significance of faith and hope. In a sense, they wake up too late."

REAL ESTATE UPDATE

DON'T RELY ON MEMORY

IT'S IMPORTANT to keep notes on all the homes you inspect to remember comparison details.

27 S. Main, Clarkston 625-9300

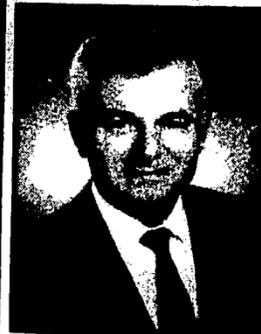

QUESTION: Do you have any tips on remembering the details about houses shown to you by the Realtor?

ANSWER: The Realtor's job is to find you a home. You'll probably be shown several. It's important to take notes on what you have seen or you may forget which home is where, how big, what shape it's in, or how much it costs.

Your Realtor can provide you with a checklist to make this important task easier and give you a copy of the listing sheet. This way, you can rate each home as you see it and instantly recall the location, price, construction, number of rooms, heating, taxes, etc. If you have a Polaroid photo to go with the house—so much the better.

Clarkston honors its best

BY ANNETTE KINGSBURY
Clarkston News Editor

A full house packed Clarkston Creek May 21 for the presentation of the annual Community Awards Breakfast, sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce and held in conjunction with Michigan Week.

Awards were handed out in the categories of property beautification, community preservation, adult youth volunteer, young person of the year and business person of the year. Winners received a plaque and a proclamation from state Rep. Tom Middleton.

Bud and Glenita Olafsson won this year's award for beautification. They own the big, old home at 43 N. Main on the Mill Pond and have been lovingly restoring it since they purchased it several years ago.

In presenting the award, event chairperson Wendy Halsey of Lighthouse Clarkston said, "I don't think I'd enjoy the work but it's been fun to watch." Many who pass by the house on a daily basis would agree.

Glenita Olafsson said when her family purchased their home they were warned by their salesman that there would be a lot of interest in it. "Welcome to the fish bowl" is how he put it, Olafsson said.

"Everybody stops by to see what you're doing." But, she added, "It's been a great experience being on Main Street."

Wendy Halsey of Lighthouse Clarkston presents the award for Citizen of the Year to two top Lighthouse volunteers, Dorothy and Jack Nicol.

Next up was Dr. Thomas Stone, who received the award for community preservation for his work with the Independence Land Conservancy. He was nominated by Mel Vaara, who presented the award.

Stone, a retired Oakland Community College professor, said he was the third person in the ILC to receive the award. "I hope it shows the importance of the work we're doing," he said.

Now in its 25th year, the ILC preserves land with important natural features through outright donations or through scenic easements.

"I dedicate this award to Nelson Kimball, the first president of the ILC," Stone said. "In his memory we continue to work."

Sally Hadden was honored as the adult youth volunteer of the year. A veteran volunteer, she has devoted her time and energy to many school causes, including PTA/PTO, bond campaigns, mentoring and various committees.

"It's not for the personal glory but for the children of Clarkston," said Cathy Reed-Voorheis, Clarkston Elementary School PTO president, who nominated and introduced her. "She exemplifies the volunteer spirit... She's deeply committed to the Clarkston community." Hadden, who sounded a bit choked up, could only say "Thank you."

Stephen Hyer Jr. was named young person of the year. He was nominated by his computer teacher at Clarkston High School, Jim Ashmore.

Ashmore said he's taught Hyer, a senior, for four years, "so I'm tempted to treat this like a roast. But I think I'll skip that."

Mentioning Hyer's 3.9-plus GPA and "extraordinary" load of six Advanced Placement (college credit) classes while also running a small computer business from his home, Ashmore said Hyer "still does find time to do a lot of volunteerism." Hyer has been involved in monitoring the Clinton River through the Science Club and a new EarthVision class, which he helped pioneer. He also participated in the Spanish and forensics clubs, and was a member of National Honor Society, Future Problem Solvers and the PTSA. He also worked as a computer helper at school.

"He has a business of his own selling computers. He has been an invaluable resource at the high school for teachers."

Marc Cooper, owner of Impressive Type, was named business person of the year for his volunteer work. Cooper, a former and future president of the Clarkston Area Chamber of Commerce, is also active with Rotary and Lighthouse, officiates youth sports and is a pilot.

"Marc is a source of abundant connections," said CHS principal Brent Cooley in introducing Cooper.

"I put a lot of time in but if it weren't for the volunteers in the groups I work with I wouldn't be successful. And I'd like to thank my staff because if it wasn't for my staff I couldn't go out and volunteer."

The last award went to Dorothy and Jack Nicol, a senior citizen couple who do volunteer work for Lighthouse Clarkston who were jointly named citizens of the year.

"This couple works tirelessly on behalf of Lighthouse Clarkston and other groups," Halsey said. "They are also active in their church."

Among their activities, the Nicols pick up day-old baked goods five days a week from the Clarkston Kroger store and deliver it to Lighthouse and other organizations.

"The food they retrieve would literally be thrown away because if it's not picked up by 9 a.m. it's in the Dumpster," Halsey said. She said they probably feed 300 people a week with their contribution.

"They're quiet people that you would never know," she added, and sure enough, the Nicols declined to make any comments in accepting their award.

A special award was given to the Clarkston Chamber of Commerce for donating $5,000 to the CHS senior all-night party. In closing, Halsey said, "I'm very proud to be part of a community that did not wait for a presidential summit on voluntarism." Then she challenged the audience to get involved.

"Community groups exist only because of volunteers. I want to thank everyone for making this the community that it is."

Clarkston students get certified in first aid

BY ANNETTE KINGSBURY
Clarkston News Editor

Fifth-graders in Clarkston schools will finish off the school year by being certified in American Red Cross basic first aid, thanks to a new curriculum used in their health classes.

"This year we're going to certify 520 fifth-grade kids," said health teacher Al Craven. "I don't know if there's many districts doing that."

The six-week course teaches children basic first-aid skills and knowledge they need to recognize danger, treat common injuries and respond to emergencies, according to John Schultz of the American Red Cross Southeast Michigan Chapter.

"The program was developed especially for elementary school children and allows the schools an exciting way to fulfill health and safety curriculum requirements."

On May 21, students in Mrs. Viviano's class at North Sashabaw Elementary got a lesson in bandaging. But Craven kept it in the context of all that had gone before, reminding students of the three common rules of first aid: check the scene and the person, call for help, then give care.

After demonstrating bandaging technique on Ashley Beech, Craven handed out rolls of gauze and the students went to work on arms, legs and heads. Many shared stories of family members who'd been cut in accidents, giving credence to Craven's statement that the curriculum needs to be realistic.

"We really wanted a skills-based program," he said. "We're trying to get as much as possible hands-on."

During the bandaging lesson, Craven covered a lot of ground, including animal bites, nose bleeds, something in the eye, broken bones, electric shock and precautions to use when someone is bleeding. Other lessons have covered such topics as rescue breathing and the Heimlich maneuver.

In addition to lectures and practice, students must complete a workbook and have their parents sign it in order to be certified.

This is the second year of a new health program in the Clarkston elementary schools. Students have one 35-minute health class per week for 37 weeks, in addition to physical education.

Craven said the concept has been well received. Indeed, when he asks for a volunteer to help him during class, nearly every student raises a hand.

"No one else is doing what we're doing here, having four health specialists teaching health, guaranteeing it's going to get done," he said.

ENTERING A NURSING HOME

Elderly people seeking to gain entry into nursing homes and their families should be aware that federal regulations ban discrimination against Medicaid patients on the basis of source of payment. This prohibition, which applies to admissions, services, transfer, and discharge, is commonly referred to as "Medicaid discrimination." That is the theory. In reality, residents applying under private pay rates, which are higher than the reimbursement rates provided by Medicaid, are likely to find it easier to get nursing home care. However, a knowledgeable lawyer can make use of prohibitions that are mandated by other federal, state, and local laws that continue to apply to nursing homes to that their clients are treated fairly. If you are wondering if you have been treated fairly, it is worth your while to consult with an attorney. A small investment of time and energy yield big dividends. At my office (620-1030), we handle civil matters as well as business and family law, and work in the areas of medical malpractice, personal injury, and auto accidents. Our offices are easy to reach at 11 North Main Street. Serving you with legal excellence and with concern for your well-being is our commitment to you.

HINT: It is against the law for nursing homes to ask entering patients covered by either Medicare or Medicaid for a security deposit, contribution, or any other form of advance payment.

Threats and harassment on White Lake Rd.

TUESDAY, MAY 20, three 15-year-old Clarkston boys were caught at a home on Paramus after a neighbor saw them break in. They threw food around the house before deputies arrived. Because there was so little damage and they are juveniles, it's unlikely they'll be prosecuted, according to a detective. One of the boys ran away from school later that day.

WEDNESDAY, MAY 21, after a call about a suspicious vehicle on Deerhill, police issued tickets to a 21-year-old Clarkston man for possession of marijuana, trespassing and failure to obey a police officer's signal. The man initially fled the scene, dropping some suspected marijuana and rolling papers as he went. He was arrested at his nearby home. His passenger, a 17-year-old girl from Waterford, was ticketed for trespassing.

A Balmoral Terrace man said he was standing in his home at around 5 a.m. when he saw a man pull on his car door handle. The man fled when the owner banged on the window.

A radio, amp, speakers, radar detector and some clothing were stolen from a 1995 S-10 parked on Winward after a window was smashed.

A complaint was lodged by a merchant about a 14-year-old boy Roller-Blading on a Dixie parking lot. However, the boy pointed out that a sign banned only skateboarding.

A 12-year-old boy said he was attacked by several of his fellow students at Sashabaw Middle School at a business on Maybee. The incident was turned over to the school liaison officer.

A speaker, amp, converter, CD changer, radar detector and about 50 CDs were stolen from a 1993 Explorer overnight on Waterford Hill Terrace.

Some clothing was taken from a student's locker during track practice at the high school. The locker's lock was also taken.

The owners of two cars--a 1995 Pontiac and a 1992 Volvo--reported their cars were damaged by baseballs from a nearby field around 8 p.m. on Clarkston Rd.

A man came to the substation to report he'd been assaulted during a traffic altercation on Sashabaw the night before.

A radio/tape deck was stolen from a 1994 Dodge parked on Wellesley Terrace overnight.

THURSDAY, MAY 22, after a deputy witnessed a car speeding on Dixie and then weaving on Pelton, he stopped the driver and then ticketed him for possession of marijuana. He was then taken home.

Possession and use of a stolen credit card on Sashabaw. A car was stopped for defective equipment and in a search for ID, the driver revealed a gasoline credit card in someone else's name. It belonged to the mother of a friend of his, who, it turned out, didn't yet know the card was missing. The driver had used the card to buy gas at a nearby station, where a signature is not required. The driver was ticketed for various traffic offenses; the credit card, a scale and a knife found in the car were confiscated.

Someone let the air out of all the tires on all 49 school buses parked at the bus garage on Middle Lake Rd.

A pair of Roller Blades were found on Havelock.

Neighbors said they had been sitting on the side of the road for four days.

Two Clarkston men, ages 19 and 20, were released pending further investigation after deputies stopped their car on Hawkmore Dr. and found marijuana plants inside, along with a quantity of planting soil. A detective said they are not suspected of growing the marijuana for sale and will probably be ticketed for possession, a misdemeanor. The men admitted they had been growing the plants in a vacant field and were in the process of transplanting when discovered.

FRIDAY, MAY 23, two Flint men were arrested on multiple outstanding warrants after their suspicious vehicle was reported at a Dixie car dealership around midnight. A Clarkston city police officer held them at a nearby gas station until deputies could arrive.

SKIN DEEP
by Scott Friedman, D.O.

FACES WITH A PEEL

Phenol and trichloroacetic acid (T.C.A.) peels are used to effectively remove facial lines and wrinkles. Phenol solutions must be closely monitored because they essentially remove the epidermis and a good portion of the underlying dermis along with the wrinkles and lines embedded in them. Trichloroacetic acid peels, which can be just as effective as phenol peels, are often preferred because they result in less skin color loss and their concentration can be varied for different areas of the face. The ideal patient for a facial peel is one who wants to remove fine to moderately deep wrinkles all over the face. These peels work best on medium-toned skin that can withstand subtle lightening. Because phenol peels are associated with loss of pigmentation in the peeled areas, they are not recommended for dark or very fair complexions. We provide complete skin care for your entire family. If you have a concern about something related to your skin call us for an appointment. If you are considering a chemical facial peel it is important to fully understand the various options available to you. Our offices are located at 6330 Sashabaw, Clarkston (625-0692); and 3003 Baldwin, Lake Orion (391-9599).

P.S. An alpha-hydroxy acid peel (which can contain up to 70% concentrations of A.H.A.'s) exfoliates the top layer of skin to treat rough skin texture and mild discolorations.

Outdoor dining approved for Mesquite Creek

BY EILEEN MCCARVILLE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

If you want to enjoy your meal in the sun, Mesquite's outdoor dining is official now.

On May 22 the Independence Township Planning Commission unanimously approved an amendment to the five-year-old restaurant's final site plan, allowing Mesquite Creek to serve its customers full meals within a seasonal outdoor cafe. Commissioners voted 4-0, with Todd Moss, Carolyn Place and Cynthia Lohmeier absent.

In April township planner Dick Carlisle alerted commissioners to the fact that the M-15 hot spot was violating the conditions under which it was approved. Though its original site plan called for the outdoor cafe to be "a cocktail/waiting place" only, Carlisle said Mesquite was serving full meals there as well. He wanted its owners to return to the board.

Last Thursday the amendment was added, allowing Mesquite the expansion but with certain conditions. According to commissioner Jill Palulian, the restaurant may now serve both lunches and dinners outside as long as valet parking is used during peak hours, determined to be from 5-9 p.m. Wednesday through Saturday, on holidays and during special events.

The valet system is an attempt to free up parking in the shopping center, which has been a sore spot with other merchants who claim Mesquite customers take their spaces.

In addition, Mesquite's owners are responsible for restriping any areas with clusters of nine parking spots, in order to provide more spaces. The restriping will mean narrowing some spots, but approximately 17 more will be able to be added to the shopping center, Carlisle said.

The outdoor dining was approved for up to 46 customers and opened the next day, said Mesquite manager Derek Grabowski. "And we'll be using it, weather permitting," he added.

Technology from 4A

If approved by the voters as part of the $57,650,000 bond package, the new technology will allow students—and, most likely, the community at large—to learn basic computer literacy as well as do reports and communicate with other computers in the district's buildings. Voice and video will also be accessible across buildings, allowing programs and lessons to be viewed in more than one location.

Such services are not available now partly because basic infrastructure is lacking.

"The thing right now that's a goal for most districts is to get their infrastructure in. Parents don't see that immediately. But... that's just the nature of the beast. You do have to keep up with your amps, as well as your megahertz."

Mary Ellen McLean agreed, but said there's another fundamental reason why the technology package is so important, and why it was included as part of one large bond proposal instead of as a separate issue.

"If we're talking about bringing our facilities up, being able to challenge our kids, technology has to be there. There's no point in doing it half way."

Rezoning

Called Thursday, Robinson said he was not in a position to discuss the matter.

Other Silverman projects in the vicinity include Lake Waldon Village, a single-family neighborhood off Waldon which is fully developed; Waldon Village Towne Center at Sashabaw and Waldon, a multi-use development currently undergoing construction; and Waldon Preserve.

Silverman also has a vested interest in a hotel project which has been discussed for property next to the I-75-Sashabaw interchange.

In other board action:

● A request to award a bid to Computer Systems, Inc. at $16,425, for the purchase of a computer/server as part of the LSCA Community Information Network Grant, was unanimously approved for the Independence Township Library. The CIN will contain full-text information on the Clarkston area, preserving much of its history and making it available on the Internet.

● A request by Parks and Rec. to hold the Kelly Miller Circus on July 1 in Clintonwood Park was unanimously approved.

● As presented by township assessor Dave Kramer, a request to post two Level I Appraiser positions was unanimously approved. The assessing department recently lost former employee David Petrak, who left for a position in Ann Arbor.

Terrific run ends at district finals

Soccer team makes big strides in 10-9 season

BY BRAD MONASTIERE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Adams 3, Clarkston 0

To put the Clarkston girls soccer team into perspective, look at playoff wins.

The girls won just as many games during their playoff run as the very successful boys basketball and ice hockey teams.

Although the step-forward season ended Friday night with a 3-0 loss at Rochester Adams in the District 10 finals, there was no denying the progress the Wolves made this season.

"I hope each year we can go a round further," Clarkston coach Brian Fitzgerald said. "Last year we only made it to the second round and I hope next year, we can be the ones celebrating a district win."

Two years removed from an 0-15 debacle where the entire team scored four goals the entire season, Clarkston came out against a clearly superior opponent (Adams was the OAA Division I champs) with a sound game plan; play back with a defensive mindset and hope for good counterattack opportunities on offense.

The plan worked pretty well in the first half, as the Wolves were down only 1-0, thanks to a brilliant individual effort by Adams' Abby Crumpton.

But the Highlanders scored just 1:20 into the second half, a goal that seemed to deflate the Wolves a bit.

When Adams did get good shots at the goal, freshman Allison Barth was there, making every save look so easy because of the good position she was always in.

"We gave it a real respectable effort," Fitzgerald said. "They've got one heck of a team over there, but I thought we played well."

The future bodes well for Clarkston also, as the team will only lose one player - Lisa Gebus - off its playoff roster. With three freshmen and five sophomores playing key roles this season, 1998 could be another step-forward year for the girls soccer team.

Clarkston 2, Lahser 0

Two years removed from a four-goal season, the Wolves advanced to the district finals for the first time ever, thanks to a 2-0 win over the Bloomfield Hills Lahser Knights May 21.

The game was a showcase of all the best qualities this team has had this year, good team defense, timely goal scoring and terrific on-demand goaltending.

Barth made the biggest save of her young career when she stopped a Lahser penalty kick with 17 minutes left in the game. A Lahser goal would have made it a 2-1 game and given the Knights the momentum they lacked all night.

Barth said the key to stopping the kick was guessing where the shooter was going with the ball and beating it to the goal line.

"I looked at her eyes and saw the last place she looked," Barth said. "I couldn't wait until she kicked it, I just had to guess where it was going."

Fitzgerald said the save was a game clincher for Clarkston.

"If they score there, they get fired up and probably tie the game," he said. "No matter what happens from here, it's been a great season for this team. We want to keep going."

Junior Georgia Senkyr scored a goal and assisted on another, continuing her brilliant season. She leads the team with 12 goals, none bigger than the ones she scored in playoff action. Junior Jennifer Bauer scored the second goal, off a nice pass from Senkyr.

Clarkston 8, Kettering 1

The Wolves picked a great time to have one of their best games of the season - the first round of districts.

Blitzing the Captains with four goals in 11 minutes, Clarkston breezed to its first postseason win this year at the home field May 20.

Prediction: Wings in 6

As I sit here proudly donning my home Red Wings jersey, I somehow take on the same midset our hockey heroes have. OK, now we beat Colorado, who's next?

Forget all the TV guys who will try to tell you what's going on. Look no further than the Penalty Box to get the scoop on the 1997 Stanley Cup Finals.

First, a little about our new enemies, the Philadelphia Flyers. The team is big. I mean BIG! They average six feet in height, more than 200 lbs. in weight and have a hunger and attitude to match Detroit's. Philly's main man Eric Lindros (exactly one week older than yours truly) was anointed the Next Great Player when he was drafted in 1991 by all teams, the Quebec Nordiques (the Avalanche in their current state).

Lindros refused to play for the Nords, so he held out for a year demanding a trade. After some controversy over which team he exactly was traded to, Lindros landed in the city of Brotherly Love. In that trade, Quebec (Colorado) picked up important pieces like Mike Ricci, Peter Forsberg, $15 million in cash, and goaltender Ron Hextall. Interestingly, Hextall is now back with the Flyers and will probably start Game 1 Saturday.

Lindros has been injury-plagued in his five-year career, but he can be best described as Darth Vader on skates. This guy checks in at 6'5," 230 lbs. and can absolutely put you through the boards. He's also shown his offensive flare with 11 goals in the playoffs, two of them game winners against the Rangers in the East Finals.

Right after the big trade, the Flyers were left with little more than Lindros himself. But since 1995, the team has made some shrewd acquisitions like vets Dale Hawerchuk, Paul Coffey and Eric Desjardins.

But the key guy the Wings will have to stop is American-born John LeClair. He joins Lindros and Mikael Renberg on the Legion of Doom line, the best non-Russian line in the NHL. LeClair scored 52 goals in the regular season and thrives in the open spaces he gets because of Lindros' presence.

In this series, the Flyers will try to use their superior size to wear Detroit down. But the area where the Wings have an advantage is goaltending (when was the last time we heard that?). The Flyers have been switching between Hextall and Garth Snow throughout the playoffs. When one has a bad game, they go to the other who steps up with a good performance. However, a team has never won the Stanley Cup using the two goaltender system. Mike Vernon has played terrific when called upon, so I see the Wings having the edge here.

Defensively, the Flyers call upon a pair of rookies, Janne Niinimaa (pronounced yaney neenima) and Dainius Zubris. Both can pass the puck well, but aren't as physical as the Wings' Vladimir Konstantinov, Aaron Ward and Larry Murphy.

One Claudia Lemieux candidate on the Flyers is defenseman Chris Therien, who leads the team with a plus-16 in the playoffs, meaning the Flyers have scored 16 more goals when he's been on the ice than their opponents. He is a big, tough guy and will take liberties with opposing players when necessary. Philadelphia also finished with 102 points, the third-best total in the NHL, so it's no fluke they're here.

Prediction Time: So I was a little off on my West Finals pick (Avs in 7), but it's for real now. Although Philadelphia has been dominant in the postseason, I don't think it's ready to win the Cup. The Flyers haven't played anyone as strong or hungry as the Wings in the playoffs so far and it will show early on. Detroit has all the puzzle pieces in place to finally do it. Wings in six.

Boys win first track league title since '89

BY BRAD MONASTIERE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

All season long, Clarkston boys track coach Walt Wyniemko cautioned that his team's dual meet success meant nothing if the team didn't perform at the OAA Division II meet.

Those five dual meet wins did show their importance, as the team easily won the OAA Division II championship May 20, giving the program its first league title since 1989, when the league was known as the GOAL.

Using depth and talent in several different areas, Clarkston took home the hardware with 150 points, well out in front of second-place Lake Orion, who had 89. West Bloomfield was third with 80.

But this day belonged to Clarkston, as the Wolves scored four individual first places and won three of the four relay events en route to the title.

"What I liked the best was that we got stronger as the day went on," Wyniemko said. "I was hoping we could manage 120 points and hold off Lake Orion, but we even bested that. Just a great effort by all our guys."

In the middle of all the point scoring for Clarkston was senior Jayson Scheiderer, who took a well-deserved first place in the 800 with a 2:00.6. He was also part of the winning 1600 relay team, along with Jon Burklow, Clinton Powell and Marc Venegoni.

Senior Chris Evans capped off a brilliant season with a pair of firsts in the hurdle events. The numbers truly reflected his dominance, as he won the 110 hurdles by 1.6 seconds and the 300 hurdles by 1.8 seconds.

Venegoni, who came up agonizingly short of qualifying for states, was the league champion in the long jump, as his 21'0" mark was more than a foot better than anyone else.

County Meet

The Wolves finished eighth at the Oakland County Meet Friday with 25.5 points.

Evans and Venegoni were the only individuals to place at the meet. Evans took second in the 110 hurdles and fourth in the 300 hurdles. Venegoni took fourth in the long jump. The 1600 relay team also took a fourth place.

Hockey team joins newly-formed OAA division

BY BRAD MONASTIERE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

After a memorable but loosely constructed first season, the Clarkston hockey team will be operating in some more structure next year.

The Wolves will join seven other teams in the newly formed Oakland Activities Association hockey division, as part of the Suburban Prep Hockey League in 1997-98.

The OAA Division will consist of Clarkston, Bloomfield Hills Lahser, Bloomfield Hills Andover, Waterford Mott, Waterford Kettering, and consolidated teams from Birmingham, Troy, Southfield and Royal Oak. The consolidated teams are ones made up of players from different schools. For example, the Birmingham team's players come from Seaholm and Groves. The Troy team's players come from Troy and Troy Athens.

Clarkston played its first season without a league affiliation and a schedule drawn up at the last minute. Next year, the Wolves will have 16 league games and eight non-league games.

Baseball team does the splits with Adams

Wolves are 7-5 in last dozen games

Clarkston 2-7 Adams 4-5

The ascension of the Clarkston varsity baseball team hasn't come without a few bumps in the road.

But after losing the first game of Thursday's doubleheader, the Wolves came back with better hitting and better pitching to post a 7-5 win over Rochester Adams, the 1995 and 1996 state runner-ups.

In game two, the Wolves charged out of the gate, bats sizzling. Three of the first four batters got on base, allowing senior Jason Frack and junior Jared Thomas to hit back-to-back RBI singles. The rally gave Clarkston a 2-0 lead.

But Adams chipped away, eventually taking a 3-2 lead after two innings. All of Adams' runs came as a direct result of Clarkston fielding errors.

But in the top of the third, Clarkston put a definition to the term manufacturing runs, by scoring four times on just two hits.

Junior Josh Clark opened the inning with a single. Senior Dennis Busch then came in to run for him and promptly stole second and third bases. Thomas continued his hot streak with a single, bringing Busch in to tie the game at 3-3. Thomas later scored on a wild pitch with the bases loaded.

Junior Mike Gray then planted a perfect bunt down the first base line to bring in junior Ryan Dudek. Brian "Whitey" Herzog later scored on another wild pitch. Clarkston then had a commanding 6-3 lead, one that was never threatened.

"The suicide squeeze is one of my favorite plays," Clarkston coach Roy Warner said referring to Gray's sacrifice bunt to bring Dudek home. "We did a good job with execution on that play and it showed how we've improved in the latter part of the season."

Clark's performance on the mound (a complete game, three hits, one earned run, seven strikeouts) solidified his place as the ace of the pitching staff. He also contributed at the plate with two hits, a run scored and a sacrifice.

The Wolves continued their late-season surge with a 12-4 whipping of the Davison Cardinals May 20.

Clarkston's Educational Support Personnel Are Dedicated to Making Our Schools The Best Place to Learn.

Dwight Parsons is a Custodian at North Sashabaw Elementary. Dwight's duties include cleaning all the rooms and floors, emptying trash, lunchroom setup and washing windows too. Custodians do most of the over all maintenance of the buildings. They also set up for all activities and then tear them down. Custodians are the first people the children see in the morning and the last one they see at night. They are always there to help with anything, including digging through the trash to look for lost retainers or staying late to help someone figure out the sound system.

Dwight has been with Clarkston Schools for the past 24 years. He is married and has two children, a son and a daughter who attend Davisburg Elementary.

When asked about his job Dwight says, "I like my job because I am around people and have the satisfaction of getting to know them and help them out."

Girls track dynasty intact as team wins OAA II

BY BRAD MONASTIERE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Over the last 13 years, some things you can count on are: lousy Michigan weather, death, taxes and success by the Clarkston girls track team.

The Wolves upheld their end May 20 by easily winning the OAA Division II meet at Waterford Mott.

As was the case all season, the Wolves dominated the distance events, taking a first or second in the 800, 1600, 3200, and the 800 1600 and 3200 relays.

At the center of that dominance was the state-qualifying duo of senior Kristin Maine and junior Megan Plante. Maine finished just .16 seconds out of first in the 3200 while leading off the 3200 relay team to an easy six-second victory.

Plante was all over the scoresheet, taking firsts in the 800 and 1600, as well as running anchor in the winning 1600 relay team.

Clarkston coach Gordie Richardson said the meet represented the Wolves' best overall effort of the season.

"We ran like a team that knew what it was doing," he said. "It started at the Mott Invitational, where we ran some pretty good times against some tough competition. Then at regionals, it was like yes, we know it's happening now."

Clarkston left its fellow league members in the dust, scoring 172 points, far and away better than runner up Lake Orion's 86. Waterford Mott took third with 72.

Clarkston also piled up some valuable points in the field events, with senior Kammy Powell taking seconds in the shot put and discus. She finished just one inch out of first in the shot put with a throw of 34'4". Powell will be the team's lone representative in the field events at Saturday's state meet in Rockford, for the discus.

Sophomore Michelle Wilson put the disappointment of regionals behind her with a resounding win in the high jump. She cleared 5'1", once again setting a personal best. She also prevented Lake Orion's Karen Chastain from a first place sweep in all the field events.

"Kammy's throwing was very encouraging," Richardson said. "Our kids were excited to be out there. Everyone was cheering each other on, all around the track. It was a special week."

With this being Richardson's 12th league title in 13 years, all this winning must be getting boring, right? "Every year it's fulfilling," he said. "This year was nice because we hadn't really been running that well until recently. We've turned the corner and have been getting some outstanding performances lately."

County Meet

The Wolves finished sixth as a team with 30 points in a solid showing. Junior Erica Holman finished sixth in the 400 with one of her best runs of the season (1:02.5).

Clarkston also picked up points with its 1600 and 3200 relay teams. Powell finished sixth in the shot put and fifth in the discus.

Jv sports

By Marc Wisniewski

Softball

The JV softball team started off last week with a loss to Brandon, 6-2. In the fourth inning Sara Mohny made it to first base on a fielder's choice and Lindsey Prudhomme knocked her in with a double to left center. Kathy Kopec stepped up to the plate next and hit the ball up the middle to score Prudhomme.

Anne Underwood led the team with 2 hits. Megan Hodges, who now is 8 and 7, only allowed 4 hits, but the errors by the defense proved too costly.

Last Wednesday, the Wolves picked up the win against Waterford Kettering, 9-5. Hodges hit a single in the first inning to score Underwood and Nikki Winn. In the fourth Prudhomme got hit with a bad pitch to advance to first base. She then proceeded to steal second and third and Underwood hit her in. Hope Manuel led off the fifth inning with a single and her speed allowed her to steal second and third.

Megan Hodges singled, Liz Harlton walked, Prudhomme then drove in a run, followed by Jessica Moore who hit a two-run double.

During the seventh inning Prudhomme hit a single to score Sara Mohny. Kathy Kopec then hit a sacrifice fly to score Prudhomme.

Anne Underwood has been on a 10-game hitting streak since the May 7 game against Troy. Her batting average since this time is huge, with a .577, going 15 for 26.

Ladies tune up for districts with decisive sweep

BY BRAD MONASTIERE

Clarkston 16-10 Kettering 6-2

One of the thousands of sports cliches coaches like to use is "peaking at the right time."

That phrase can be accurately applied to the Clarkston varsity softball team, who steamrolled a possible district opponent in Waterford Kettering 16-6 and 10-2 in a doubleheader May 21.

Game one started off ominously, as the Captains took a 6-3 lead after four innings. After a pep talk by coach Al Land, the Wolves woke up and exploded for six runs in the sixth and seven in the seventh innings.

"I wasn't happy at all about how we were playing," Land said. "But I think we got the message and we were solid the rest of the day."

Freshman Candace Morgan showed in the doubleheader that her versatility is a team strength. She came on in relief to pitch the last four-plus innings of that first game and allowed 1 run and struck out seven. At the plate, she hammered four hits and scored three runs.

Senior Sue Naboychik cracked a season-high five hits in the first game.

Game two was much more to Land's liking, as Clarkston took care of business right away, scoring six runs in the first three innings. Junior Tiffany Honey had a single and triple and scored two runs from her leadoff position. Morgan had 3 RBI, while junior Carmen Lund stepped up with a pair of RBI.

"We hit the ball well, but what I liked was that we were getting the big hits," Land said. "It seems like we're getting those days where we do everything well, or nothing well."

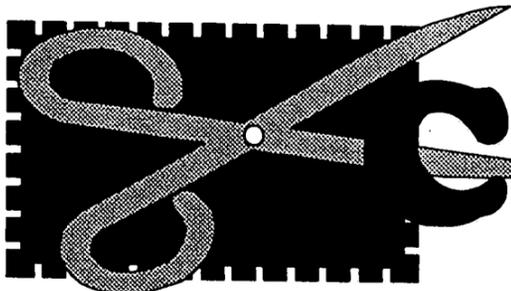

The Wolves will have some games to play before districts start Saturday. Because of earlier rainouts, Clarkston will have a makeup home game with Waterford Kettering Wednesday at 4 p.m. Thursday, the team travels to Shell Park for a pair with Waterford Mott, game time also at 4 p.m.

At Wednesday's game, the Wolves will attempt to cure the Clintonwood Curse, an affliction that has also plagued the baseball team. Incredibly, the two teams have combined for no wins at Clintonwood Park, the home fields for the two teams.

Senkyr led the onslaught with a three-goal hat trick. All three came in that 11-minute span in the first half that left no doubt on the game's outcome.

Senkyr said that despite holding two previous wins over the Captains, the team was not thinking it would be an easy night.

"We knew we had to come right out and put them away," she said. "We didn't want to be surprised with a close game, so we came out extra hard."

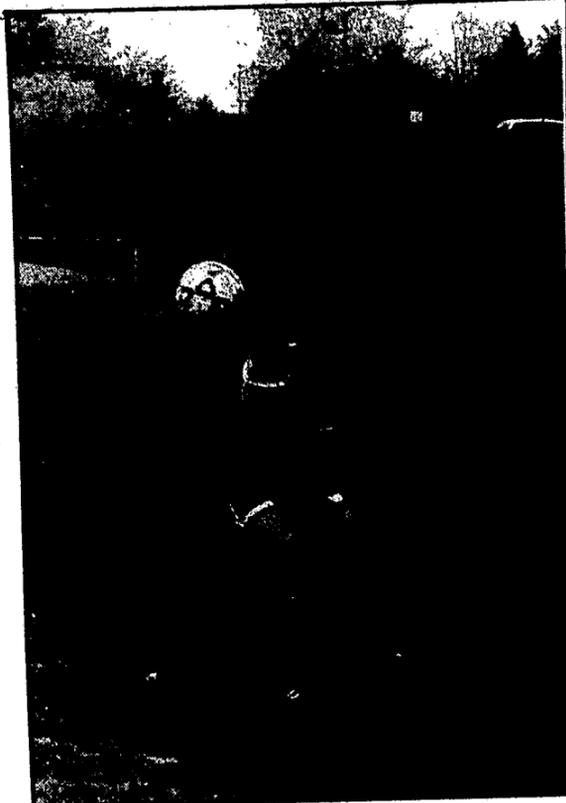

Senkyr was able to rest the entire second half of the game.

Freshman Jessica Thomas made quite a splash in her varsity debut. After spending the entire season on the JV team, Thomas scored a pair of goals in the win. The second came when she knocked the ball loose from the helpless Kettering goaltender and nudged it into the net.

Also scoring for Clarkston were sophomore Alaina Dodds, freshman Kelly Plante and senior Lisa Gebus. Fitzgerald said luck was on Clarkston's side on some of the goals, but he'll take them.

"I thought we were going to be in trouble because the girls were so loose in warmups," he said. "But we kept the pressure on and didn't allow them anything."

Indeed, the play seemed to stay in the Kettering defensive end all night, as Barth faced only three shots all night.

Sophomore Jennifer Kerney shows off one of soccer's trickiest skills, the header. Heading the ball is primarily a defensive play and can help a team's transition game.

Clarkston (9-12) got off to a good start, when Jared Thomas powered a grand slam home run. It was the first slam for the Wolves on the season. Senior Eric Knake added a pair of hits.

Clarkston then dropped an OAA-crossover doubleheader to Waterford Kettering 8-2 and 3-2 May 21. The two losses keep the Clintonwood Curse in effect for the team. Clarkston has not won a single game at the home fields this season. The Wolves lost their lone home game to Troy Athens before routing the Red Hawks twice on the road.

KNOB NOTES

Soaking up stardom

Vinnie Dombroski (center) is Sponge's lead singer and frontman.

If rock-band success can be measured by a web site on the Internet, Sponge has made it.

Add that to their other milestones: a 1994 gone-platinum debut album, "Rotting Pinata," which spawned the top singles "Plowed" and "Molly," MTV Buzz Clip airplay, and TV spots on "Letterman" and Conan O'Brien.

Now, with "Wax Ecstatic" and "Have You Seen Mary," the Detroit-bred band proves it's more than a two-hit wonder. With their new album, also titled "Wax Ecstatic," frontman Vinnie Dombroski says they had the same objective — "to make a great rock 'n' roll record, and that's it. As opposed to what's 'modern rock' or 'alternative' or 'metal' or any of that crap."

But, as they say, the best-laid plans of mice and men oft go awry, and that's what happened with the second disk.

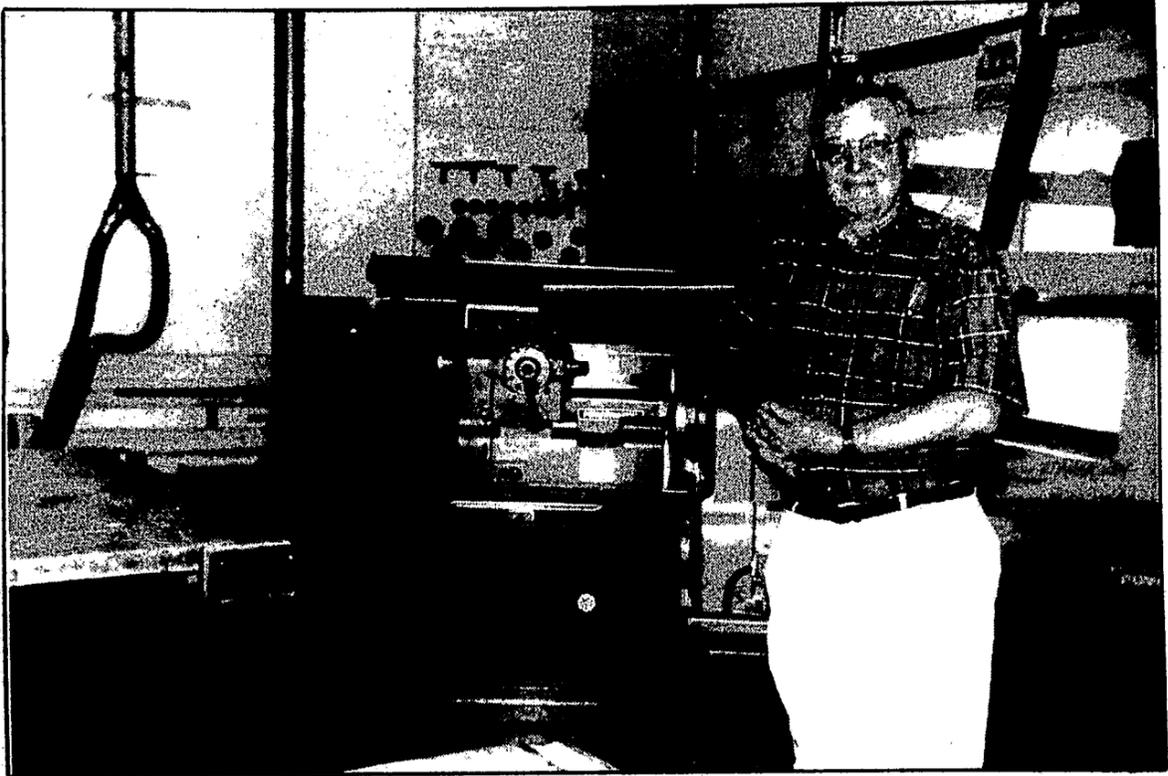

"What we had initially planned for this record was almost a Memphis-style slant, a la old Stax Records, Memphis-sounding R&B, Al Green meets Ziggy Stardust," explains Dombroski. "But we moved sort of away from that, and we even thought for a moment that we might do a concept album. Seriously. That's where 'Death of a Drag Queen' and other songs came from. 'Velveteen' was part of that concept, and 'My Purity' as well. We ended up keeping a few of those tunes and bagging the concept record idea."

Nevertheless, there's a unity feel in "Wax Ecstatic," as evidenced by a wide range of instrumentation and the pervasive tone of soulful, ironic reality. For example, Dombroski explains the theme behind the title track, and the album as a whole: "Everybody is looking for something and anybody looking to make a buck knows this. It's the pain-for-profit thing ..."

Admittedly influenced by everyone from the Supremes to the Stooges, Sponge still pulses with the power behind its Motor City roots. And though he's climbing to pop icon status, Dombroski doesn't see himself as the tortured rock star. Nor does he want his music defined as angst-alternative.

"I don't want to use rock music as my emotional garbage pail," he explains. For example, "Have You Seen Mary" is a record that says, "Yeah, life stinks, but even though we might be miserable, we're making the best of our misery ... I think it's a damn brave record."

Sponge appears with headliner Iggy Pop and Reverend Horton Heat, Tonic, Bloodhound Gang, Linda Perry, Ryan Down and Treadmill Trackstar as part of the ROAR (Revelation of Alternative Rhythms) Tour '97 at Pine Knob Thursday, June 5 at 2 p.m.

As much a fixture in his shop room as the lathes and tables, Tom Lamm is retiring after 37 years

Retiring teacher says kids made it fun

BY ANNETTE KINGSBURY
Clarkston News Editor

For the last 37 years, a cavernous room at the end of the hallway at Clarkston Middle School has been the daytime home of Tom Lamm.

Lamm, an industrial arts teacher who began his teaching career at CMS in 1960, will retire in June. He's the longest-tenured teacher on this year's retirement list.

Lamm came to CMS after graduation from Michigan State University when the building changed from a high school to a junior high, and he's been there ever since. The large wooden work tables in his room show the wear and tear of many years of youngsters who learned to saw and hammer, work a lathe and fabricate metal here.

However Lamm doesn't sound tired. Married to a teacher and with two children who've followed in their parents' footsteps, he said the kids are what's made it enjoyable for him all these years. They've kept him here long after he qualified for his pension and two years after his wife retired.

"I said 'Oh, this is going along pretty well. I think I can go back and do that another year,'" he mused. "The kids keep you young ..."

"I have a lot of fun with the kids. Sometimes some of my classes probably look a little nutty because you're challenging people to do a lot of stuff ... It's a fun age. It's a challenging age but it's fun also. In a lot of cases things are still pretty open and you can get some changes pretty fast."

Lamm has taught sixth, seventh- and eighth-graders, some in mandatory classes, some elective. "I see a real cross-section of people," he said. In sixth grade, boys and girls are pretty equally represented, but by eighth grade, it's mostly boys, he said.

"They like the hands-on, they like the activity. Frankly, some of them are missing their recess. I am an alternative outlet for people who maybe aren't interested in music, aren't interested in art."

Lamm got his start hanging around his father's car dealership in Grayling and never got tired of puttering around. "I've got unfinished projects that stretch back a lot of years," he admitted. "I've saved a pickup truck for 25 years to get to work on it."

Some of those projects may win more of his at-ention now, along with more travel.

"Done a lot, going to do some more," he said. He and wife Sally, who's retired from Hamtramck schools, are planning a trip to Ireland this fall.

"Already done England, already done the continent, Alaska, Hawaii," he added. "I'm going back to those places."

It probably won't surprise anyone to learn that Lamm thinks kids are different now than when he first started teaching. The town's different, life's different.

"The family unit isn't as strong as it once was. You've got a lot of situations where a couple of parents are working, Grandma and Grandpa aren't around, you've got a lot of moving."

Lamm said his students are always surprised to learn he knows who they are, often because he's known an older member of the family.

"They tend to think they're a separate little entity," he said. "Anonymous. It's kind of hard to express. I don't think people feel a sense of belonging ..."

"Geez, when I came here you actually had a lot of 'Leave it to Beaver' families. Nowadays, families have changed a lot. It's just the way life is now."

Working with middle-school students has meant a lot of parenting as well as teaching—hard work, Lamm said. And that's what he'd tell the next teacher to take on the job.

"Work hard. It's a job, it really is. You've got to work at it to make it go."

There will be a reception for Lamm at CMS today (Wednesday), 6-8 p.m. in rooms 107-108. The district retirement dinner is Thursday at Deer Lake Racquet Club at 6 p.m.

Waterford soccer club tryouts coming up

Any boys and girls interested in honing their soccer skills over the summer can consider the Waterford Warriors Soccer Club.

Tryouts start for all age groups between June 16 and June 26 from 6-9 p.m. All sessions will take place at the Waterford Civic Center Complex.

For more information and coaches names, call club director Tony Hufford at 623-2072.

CHS student wins slot in very special school

A Clarkston High School student has been accepted into the Illinois Mathematics and Science Academy for the 1997-98 school year.

K. C. Kerby will be a sophomore at IMSA in the fall and her family will be moving to Rockford, Illinois, about an hour away, her mother said. The move was planned before K. C. was accepted to the school.

According to K. C.'s mother, the IMSA is the only public, residential high school in the country. It covers grades 10-12 and enrolls 650 students talented in math and science.

An Honor Roll student at CHS, K. C. attended NASA Space Camp last summer and has been writing a bi-weekly column for The Clarkston News this school year about student life.

● Sean Mick, a 1993 Clarkston High School graduate, has been elected First Councilor of Sigma Pi fraternity at Oakland University. He will spend the next couple of months as an orientation group leader for incoming freshmen. He expects to graduate in 1998 with a degree in environmental health and safety.

● The following students made the Dean's List at Michigan Technological University for winter quarter: from Davisburg, Julie Lloyd, a sophomore majoring in civil engineering. From Clarkston, Jason Councilman, a senior in mechanical engineering; Sarah Fenton, a freshman in chemical engineering; Mary Ellen Geliske, a junior in mechanical engineering; and Brandon Williams, a sophomore in electrical engineering.

● Staci Hill of Clarkston is one of 12 Alma College students who will travel to Scotland to experience the settings of five novels during spring term.

Staci was also one of three finalists for the 1997 Barlow Trophy Award, the highest honor Alma bestows upon its students. It is made on the basis of scholarship and leadership and is elected by a vote of the faculty and student congress. Though she did not win the trophy, Staci was recognized at the Spring Honors Convocation. Her brother Scott, an Alma freshman, and her parents, Sharyn and Bill Hill, were in attendance.

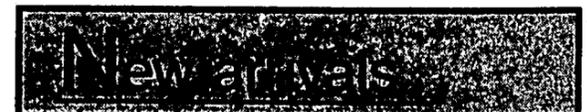

Staci has been accepted to the College of Human Medicine at Michigan State University.

● Mary Geliske, daughter of Edward and Belinda Geliske of Clarkston, made the Dean's List for winter quarter at Michigan Technological University. A junior in mechanical engineering, she is a 1993 graduate of Clarkston High School.

● Jason Kachorek, Jeffrey Roselli and Matthew Wenger, all of Clarkston, made the Engineering Dean's List for fall at the University of Michigan.

● Christopher Schwartz, a culinary arts student at the Northwest Oakland Technical Center, has won a scholarship to Johnson & Wales School in South Carolina. Schwartz scored so high he will be able to use his test score plus a 10-week summer course to enter the second year of the program this fall. He also received a tuition grant of $5,200. He is on target to receive his associate's degree in June, 1998.

● Stefanie Burklow of Clarkston has been inducted into the University of North Carolina at Charlotte Chapter of Phi Eta Sigma National Honor Society. Induction requires at least a 3.5 GPA and full-time student status.

● Bud and Gayle Swanson, formerly of Clarkston, announce the arrival of their grandson Nikolas Lee VanKeersblick of California. Nikolas was born to parents David and Kristi March 30, 1997. He weighed 6 lbs., 4 oz. and was 19 inches long. Other grandparents are Frank and Jean VanKeersblick of Eastpointe.
