Patient raped at nursing home

Seven workers suspended, Dept. of Civil Rights investigating

BY BRAD MONASTIERE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

A report of the rape of a 92-year-old patient at the Greenery Health Care Center in Independence Township and the subsequent suspension of five employees and two contractors have sparked investigations by the NAACP and the Michigan Department of Civil Rights.

Steve Bakken, Greenery administrator, said he had a meeting with Charles Edmonson of the Michigan Department of Civil Rights Monday afternoon but wouldn't disclose what was discussed.

"We have been in communication with the department, but I can't give any more information than that," Bakken said Monday.

Phone calls to Edmonson, the NAACP and the American Civil Liberties Union, which is also interested in the case, have not been returned to The Clarkston News.

At the center of the controversy is the fact that all seven men who were suspended are black. The victim said she was raped by a black man sometime on July 8. She told a nursing home aide about the attack on July 9.

The center suspended the seven men who were black and on duty around the time the victim said the rape occurred.

Bakken said the suspensions are with pay and are in effect until police can clear each of their names.

"As soon as we get enough information to clear them from the investigating officer, the suspensions will be lifted," he said.

Det. Don Key of the Oakland County Sheriff's Independence substation is investigating the incident.

Department officials are not releasing any details about their investigation. There currently is no police report of the incident, because the patient suffers from a disability that doesn't allow her to communicate very well or for great lengths at a time.

"We are in the process of attempting to communicate with her and get as much information as we can," said Capt. Barnett Jones of the OCSA. "We are also attempting to interview each of the suspended individuals at this time."

Jones added that a criminal sexual conduct evidence kit was completed and forwarded to the Michigan State Police for lab testing. The results should be back within 7-21 days, he said.

Bakken said he couldn't release any details about the alleged victim, but did say she was treated at a local hospital.

Bakken said there are around 200 full- and part-time employees at the Greenery, located on Clintonville Road.

Clarkston Conservatory sold

BY ANNETTE KINGSBURY
Clarkston News Editor

Over two-and-a-half years after its founder Ivan Rouse died, the sale of the Clarkston Conservatory has finally been completed.

The Main Street school where several generations have come to study music has been sold to one of its teachers, James Wilhelmsen, and his wife Kathleen for $125,000 for the 1832 building, the land and the business. A court order to that effect was entered April 9 by Oakland County Probate Judge Eugene A. Moore.

According to the court order, the conservatory was "virtually the only asset" of the Ivan Rouse trust. Rouse died in October 1994 after suffering a stroke and was well known and loved around Clarkston as a bon vivant and town eccentric.

Wilhelmsen said it was "perseverance" that got him to the finish line after his offers to purchase the conservatory had been stalled from the very beginning by disagreement among the beneficiaries and trustees of Rouse's estate.

"They had a different attitude toward the conservatory," Wilhelmsen said. "They were more interested—this isn't all the trustees, but the majority—were more interested in cashing out of the conservatory than keeping it going. So they wanted to maximize the take."

Wilhelmsen said Rouse, in establishing a trust shortly before he died, made his wish known that he wanted the property to continue to be used as a conservatory. However, "He didn't put it in writing clear enough," Wilhelmsen said. "He was an artist, an eccentric . . .

"What he said in the trust document was that it was his desire to keep it as a conservatory. They were trying to sell it as something else. They had an offer for a spa, an antique emporium. They fought very hard for the spa."

In the end, Judge Moore accepted the offer from the Wilhelmsens that would keep the property as a music conservatory. However, some financial concessions were made due to the spa offer being on the table.

The court order states that Wilhelmsen's share of the proceeds from the sale (he was a beneficiary as well as the buyer) would be reduced by $3,750 and beneficiary Delores Imbrunone's share increased by $3,750. "This represents the estimate in the difference of the distributive share Delores Imbrunone would receive if the Margo Spa offer had been accepted . . ."

However, the order also states that Imbrunone, owner of Cedar Crest Academy, "may choose not to accept the assignment." Neither she nor her attorney, Dawn Schluter of Miller Canfield, would explain what that means and whether she has or has not accepted the assignment.

Dorothy Koop, Rouse's sister, said she was happy with how things turned out. "I'm real happy that it's what Ivan wanted," she said. "I wanted him (Wilhelmsen) to have it; all the family did."

Wilhelmsen said Judge Moore was "very involved. The judge put together the structure for the deal." The cash offer was possible for Wilhelmsen because two students at the conservatory, Richard and Ann Irwin, made the actual purchase. The court order actually sells the conservatory to them, ordering that they then enter into a land contract with the Wilhelmsens.

"They put together the money and stuck by me,"

Lighthouse severely short on food

Many people think of their local charities at Christmas time. But the summer months, when children are home, combined with a local UAW strike, has put a real strain on Lighthouse Clarkston.

"We are extremely short of food right now," said Wendy Halsey, director of Lighthouse Clarkston, a social service agency located in a historic former church on Maybee Rd. "Partly because it's summer and it's always like that. But the GM strike has hit us hard. We had people here after their first paycheck (was missing). They live that close to the edge."

Workers have been on strike at a Pontiac GM plant for several weeks. Lighthouse Clarkston serves a number of communities in northern Oakland County.

Halsey said she can use non-perishable canned goods, which can be dropped off from 10-4, Monday-Friday. Cash donations are great too because of combined food-bank purchasing.

"We can purchase from the Food Bank of Oakland County at a very reduced rate," Halsey said. "So we can utilize their cash donations very effectively."

For more information call Lighthouse Clarkston at 673-4949.

Fire department to host open house

You've seen the old fire hall on Church St. Now get a glimpse of the newer, bigger station on Citation Drive.

The Independence Township Fire Department will host an open house of its shiny new headquarters on Sunday, July 27 from noon to 3 p.m. There will be a ribbon cutting at 1 p.m.

The new building is located at 6500 Citation Drive, off M-15 near the district courthouse.

New charter school opens enrollment

New Directions Institute, a new charter high school devoted to the automotive and construction trades, is taking enrollments now through Aug. 1. The school hopes to enroll 125 students for the fall term.

Any state resident age 15-18 entering 10-12 grade is eligible to apply by calling 248-452-9794. The school is sponsored by the Oakland Livingston Human Services Agency and chartered by Saginaw Valley State University in Pontiac.

Gas station addition OK'd

On July 10 the Independence Township Planning Commission approved the final site plan, 5-0, for a convenience store addition to an existing Speedway gas station just south of Maybee Rd. on Dixie Highway. Commission chair Steve Board and commissioner Todd Moss were absent.

Petitioner Marathon Oil Co., which owns Speedway, planned the expansion in order to offer more items like food and beverages. Construction will begin in August. Commissioner Dan Travis said the business will be closed for approximately 75 days while the building is under construction. Several conditions were required for approval, including the addition of trees to shield a fence that divides Speedway from a neighboring site, township building director Bev McElmeel said.

Sad year ends without answers, action

One year after losing her daughter aboard TWA Flight 800, Barb Johns is worried government inaction could let the same thing happen again

BY ANNETTE KINGSBURY
Clarkston News Editor

It's 9 a.m. on a Thursday and already Barb Johns has been on the Internet, looking for the latest information about the crash of TWA Flight 800.

Nearly one year after the crash that took the life of her only daughter, Courtney, 18, off the coast of New York, answers are still hard to come by about what caused the 747 to explode.

There's plenty to look through on the World Wide Web, some of it of murky origination, some of it from reputable media outlets like the New York Daily News, which has devoted considerable resources over the past year to covering the story.

What most experts agree on now is that the center fuel tank exploded. What they do not agree on is why. Inter-agency squabbling has led a congressional committee to haul officials in and basically tell them to stop bickering and get on with winding up the investigation.

With the one-year anniversary of the crash coming Thursday, Barb Johns agreed to sit down with The Clarkston News. Citing family privacy, she did not want to talk about what the past year has been like, how she, her husband Fred and two sons have coped.

However, she did want to talk about the investigation, which she has followed closely. She also wanted to talk about the memorials that have sprung up in Courtney's honor. Lastly, she wanted to express how wonderful the town of Clarkston, where the family has lived for 15 years, has been during this terrible year.

Just what is this righteous mission?

"The wicked flee when no man pursueth: but the righteous are bold as a lion."

—Proverbs 28:1

One year ago last week, Courtney Johns was hard at work with other teens helping others as part of the Righteous Mission of her church, Clarkston United Methodist.

This year, the volunteers of Righteous Mission dedicated their labor to her memory. On their mission T shirts was printed her name, and a remembrance was held last Thursday night during which each of the 72 participants in this year's mission released a balloon.

Righteous Mission was a passion of Courtney's, according to her parents, and she was on the minds of many of this year's volunteers as the first anniversary of her death aboard TWA Flight 800 was approaching. Despite the loss, and partly because of a memorial in her honor, the mission's work goes on.

According to CUMC associate and youth minister John Leece, the mission is the work of three churches, his own, Davisburg UMC and Grace Chris-

The investigation

The NTSB (National Traffic Safety Board) and FAA (Federal Aviation Administration) agree that the center fuel tank exploded. The NTSB has made a recommendation on a temporary fix, but the FAA has balked at ordering it, saying it needs more time. What provided the spark for the explosion is still anybody's guess.

"It's down to six things. Four of them are mechanical, one is a directed bomb and the sixth one is I believe space junk, a meteorite, which is pretty slim. And the four that are mechanical, the point there is that there had to be two things if its mechanical. One of them is an ignition source, and they don't know what that is.

"They have four theories on what might have sparked an explosion but no proof on any of those. But the second piece is an overheated center fuel tank. And of all the things that upset us the most is the fact that the NTSB recommended back in December that the FAA order the aviation industry to take some interim steps to keep fuel tanks cooler, because an overheated fuel tank which is almost empty is not a big surprise. They know they're very volatile.

Question: Have there been other explosions blamed on that?

"I know the military has. And years ago the military recognized the importance of keeping the air/fuel mixture less volatile in those empty tanks, but they never extended that fix to domestic airlines.

"And the key to this flight--it sat on the runway, it's a hot night, they were waiting for takeoff for at least an hour and 15 minutes, the air conditioners were very close to the center fuel tank and they were going full blast, because it was a hot night. They believe that those units generated further heat which raised the whole volatility of that center fuel tank.

"So when this ignition source, whatever it was, was created after takeoff, the volatility in the tank was much greater than it should have been. Now they can fix that.

"The scenario for mechanical malfunction is incredible. There has to be a series of things, you know, 12 or 13 different things all have to click at the same moment in time. It's not impossible, but one of them has to be an overheated tank.

"The spark, if there was a spark, it wouldn't have brought the plane down if the tank hadn't been too hot. And the fact that the NTSB recommended back in December that the FAA take steps immediately--it was an urgent request--that they immediately take steps to reduce this condition in center fuel tanks, to me is real significant. Because when they did that they didn't say this is what brought down this plane, but we can see already that it could have.

"And then too it was an older plane. The older the plane is, the more careful you have to be. Hopefully the maintenance was up to snuff. That plane was 25 years old and I don't think its coincidental that TWA is retiring all its older 747s this year. They're phasing them all out ... It was the oldest one they had, or one of the oldest. I think the average age of TWA 747s was 25.6 years, and this was one of the oldest.

"There's two things that upset me. Number one, the FAA has not responded to this urgent message from the NTSB. We're going back to December, this is July and no action taken. They want to wait and see

"They don't really respond unless people get angry and say look you have to fix this, you have to make sure this doesn't happen. If this is a condition that's possible and it's going to bring down domestic airlines, it needs to be fixed.

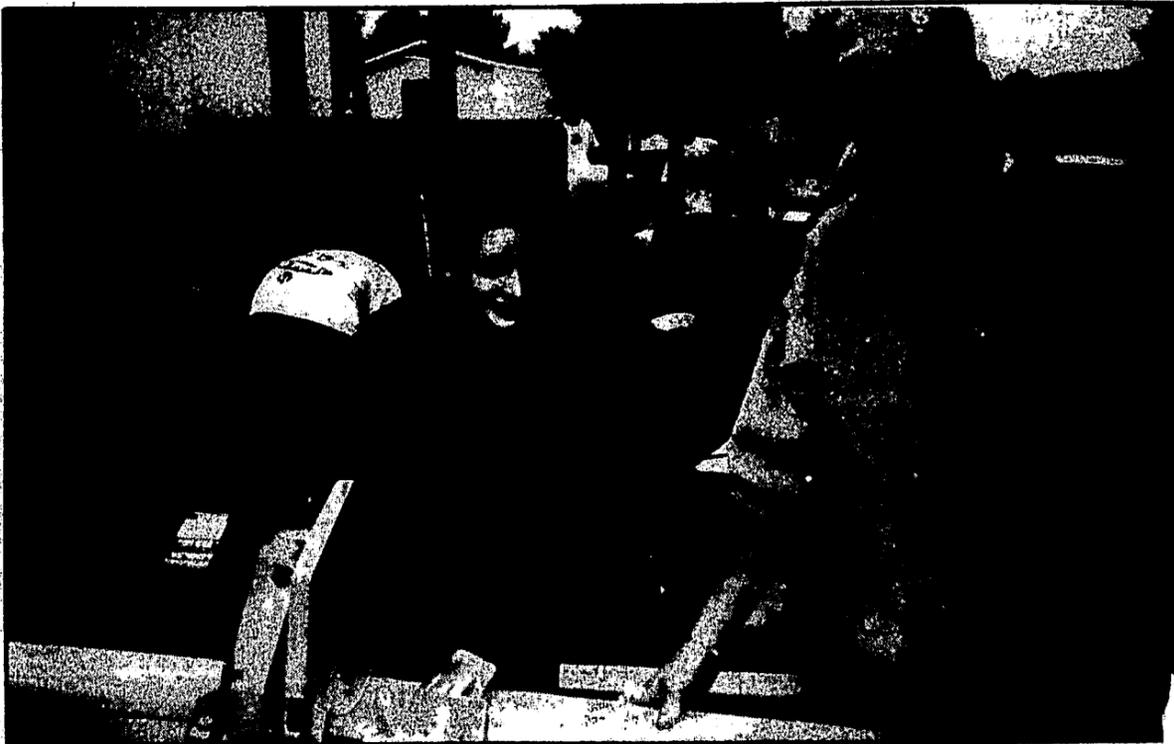

Question: But the public is not expert, they have to listen to their own experts too.

"Well that's what we do; we put our trust in the FAA. And I'm not sure its directed correctly. You know, when you get in your car, you can kick the tires, Wilhelmsen said. "Without them it wouldn't have happened." Clarkston's Church of the Resurrection is a 50-percent beneficiary of the estate.

He added that the spa offer had already had mortgage approval. "The reason it (the spa sale) didn't go through was ... I had the support of three of the four trustees."

Wilhelmsen, of Ann Arbor, has a 30-year career in music, both teaching and performing. He has a doctorate in piano performance and has continued teaching at the conservatory during the case as he did while Rouse was still alive. He explained that all Rouse's teachers paid him a commission that supported the conservatory, and that system has continued.

Enrollment has dropped off, from 300 students to about 100, so there is room to grow as well as a need for renovations, he said.

"The building was pretty dilapidated, even when Ivan died," he said. Clarkston United Methodist Church has agreed to allow the conservatory to use some space for lessons while renovations are undertaken. "Right now it's comfortable enough," he added.

In attempting to build the business back up, Wilhelmsen said he'll be expanding his offerings, adding brass, winds and strings ("something we've lacked in the last three years") to the current offerings of guitar, flute, voice and piano.

"We have students as young as 4 and as old as mid-70s," he said. "The focus of the school is it's a community music school. We don't audition; we don't turn anyone away. We think music is good for anyone."

The name won't be changing. "It's been that for over 35 years and I'm not going to change it," Wilhelmsen said.

Both he and Koop and others contacted by The Clarkston News declined to talk about the internal

Concert series scheduled

The Clarkston Conservatory has scheduled a series of concerts to signal it's back on the local music scene.

On August 10, guitar teacher Victor Sakalauskas will be the featured artist. On September 14, singer/pianist Trina Knowlton and Gordon Finlay will perform a joint recital. In mid-October, in honor of the third anniversary of the death of the conservatory's founder, new owner Jim Wilhelmsen is planning an Ivan Rouse memorial concert.

Details such as location and time have yet to be announced.

wrangling that had tied up the estate these past three years.

"It's over, and it was pretty painful for three years, and frankly I'd like to leave it there," Wilhelmsen said.

Summer tax bills late

You wouldn't think most people would be looking for their tax bills, but apparently that is the case.

Independence Township Treasurer Jim Wenger and other staffers spent the weekend stuffing some 12,000 envelopes after a series of mishaps combined to delay the bills from going out on time.

Wenger said first the printer's building was struck by lightning during the recent heavy storms that devastated several areas in southeast Michigan. Then the envelopes didn't fit right.

Over the weekend, some 120 man-hours went into getting the bills ready to mail. Interestingly, Wenger said he's had a good number of calls from residents wondering where the bills were.

"Some should get them as early as today," he said Monday. "We're going to be talking to the printer about their bill."

Cafe gets final OK on outdoor liquor sales

The Clarkston city council, at its regular meeting Monday, gave the Clarkston Cafe the final stamp of approval to serve liquor to its outdoor table locations.

City manager Art Pappas said the Michigan Liquor Control Commission told him that local government approval was needed for such service to be legal.

The council unanimously (Laura Aulgur, David Savage and Bill Basinger were absent) approved the action, with the stipulation that it, or Clarkston Police Chief Paul Ormiston, could revoke the privilege at any time.

The tables, sitting just outside the restaurant on the Main Street sidewalk, will be roped off and have supervision at all times. Hours liquor will be available at those seats are from 10 a.m. - 3 p.m. and from 5-10 p.m.

Walsh honored

Clarkston's Marcey Walsh is one busy person.

A music educator who home-schools her children, is president of the Friends of the Independence Township Library, leads a youth drama group and this summer is directing a children's program at the McMath-Hulbert Observatory in Auburn Hills, Walsh was just named Volunteer of the Month for July by the Oakland County 4-H Club.

Walsh has been a 4-H volunteer for eight years, working with several clubs. Both her children are involved in 4-H activities.

Walsh may be familiar to Clarkston schoolchildren for the music programs she brings to the schools on special art and science days. She is currently involved in the Empty Bowls Garden, helping kids plant and tend a garden whose harvest will be donated to local food banks.

School bonds for Phase III sold

BY ANNETTE KINGSBURY
Clarkston News Editor

The sale of school construction bonds approved by the voters in June was formally completed Monday night.

At a special meeting, the Clarkston Board of Education approved the sale of the bonds with a unanimous vote (trustee Kurt Shanks was absent).

"The bond sale went extremely well for us," said director of business services Craig Kahler. "We ended up having the best rates on the street for the week."

Kahler said the district's interest rate on the bonds will be 5.33 percent, "which is very good on the market right now. So good, in fact, that the district will save $11.4 million over what it expected to have to pay interest over the term of the debt.

Because of that, Kahler said, the district will borrow less than anticipated from the state School Bond Loan Fund (at 5.5 percent) and wind up saving $26 million in interest on the whole package.

"I'm happy to say nearly all the bonds were sold by the time we left," Kahler said. "We had a very good sale . . .

"We made some commitments to the community and I think we kept our promises. We did a very good job."

"We did get the lowest rate of the week, so to reiterate, I think we did very well," said superintendent Dr. Al Roberts.

Roberts said later in the meeting that he and Kahler have already met with the architects for Phase III (a new elementary school plus additions and/or renovations at most other schools) and are working on the first draft of a set of priorities for the mammoth construction project.

"We have the wheels in progress already," he said. A first draft is expected to be brought to the school board soon.

Regarding Phase II, the new high school, several bids were approved Monday night. A bid for an irrigation well for athletic fields was approved at well under the estimated cost. Kahler said it was important to approve the bid now so seeding can start.

In addition, handicap lifts were approved for the auditorium area of the new high school, again under the expected cost. The auditorium area is being worked on now, Kahler said in explaining why he was asking for the bid approval at this time.

In addition, some changes to the concession stand at the new football stadium were presented, including location and size.

The concession stand as originally designed turned out to be too expensive. Kahler said he has been working with the school's athletic boosters to come up with a design all can live with.

"We've met several times with the boosters to discuss location and size of (the concession stand)," Kahler said. "We met again last week and I think many of our differences, or our perceived differences, have been resolved."

The stand will be moved to correct sight lines and redesigned to provide more square footage and window space, Kahler said. A final cost estimate is pending.

"The impact won't be known until we know exactly what's going to be built, Kahler said in response to a question from board vice president Mary Ellen McLean about the budget. "We are not paying extra for design services. There's going to be some cost avoidance as well."

Trustee Janet Thomas suggested the board needs to see the new location on a map. Roberts said he would go one better by taking the board on a tour of the grounds soon.

"This whole thing has gotten larger than life so it would be helpful if we knew what all the commotion is about," Thomas said.

In other action

● The board approved bids for some new elementary classroom furniture at a cost of $22,728. The furniture is for Andersonville, North Sashabaw and Clarkston elementaries for some additional classroom and some replacements of existing, worn-out furniture.

Aulgur resigns from Clarkston city council

At Monday's regular Clarkston city council meeting, Laura Aulgur became the second member to resign her post within a year.

Aulgur said her reason for resigning was "My family situation has changed and we are selling our home." She was elected to her first term on the council in November.

The council has 30 days to fill the vacancy, which was effective July 7.

In a related issue, nominating petitions are now available for anyone interested in running for the three Clarkston city council two-year terms which will be up for election in November. Petitions must be turned in by 4 p.m. Aug. 5. Two one-year terms will also be up for grabs, slots that had been occupied by Aulgur and Steve Arkwright.

Petitions must be signed by at least 20 but no more than 40 registered voters in the city of Clarkston. Candidates need an Affidavit of Identity - available from the city clerk - and a copy of a birth certificate. Write-in candidates must file a Declaration of Intent to the city clerk by 4 p.m. Oct. 31. For further questions, call 625-1559.

Cabin fever

Like many people this time of year, I yearn to go "Up North."

I long for Brown-Eyed Susans, the haunting song of a hermit thrush, the smell of hemlocks after a thunderstorm.

That started a long time ago. My grandparents had a cabin in northern Wisconsin they bought from loggers who lived there in the early 1900s.

My dad took us up there every summer for two weeks or more, even though it was a solid 14-hour drive from our home in Holland, Michigan.

It was worth it to spend time away from the "real" world, though some would argue that brief communion with nature "real."

We didn't have the fancy van, so my parents took to packing the back seat with suitcases, fashioning a sort of bed for my brother and me. My dad, of course, insisted on driving the stretch in one shot, leaving at 4 p.m. and arriving somewhere around the wee hours of the next morning.

I remember how exciting it was to cross the Mackinac Bridge around midnight. I'd look up to see the bright lights and smell the fresh coffee my mom just poured into the Thermos to keep my dad awake. During the night I'd hear them exclaim, spotting the occasional deer.

In the morning it was magic — wildflowers, pine trees and the sky seemed to be bluer, clearer than it was in the L.P.

At the cabin in Mercer, dubbed "Shady Rest" with a shamrock logo, are too many memories to mention here. There was never a television set, but one Ironwood radio station — with static — that ran oldies and ads for a grocery store that carried pasties.

There were frequent swims in Spider Lake, walks on the trails my dad raked in the woods, more evening walks at dusk to spot wildlife, fishing, crawfish that nipped your toes, visits to the neighboring lodge to see if there were any kids our age, canasta, the smell of old books from the local library, the charm of the local folk and small-town fireworks on the Fourth.

Sleeping out on the porch, we had loons and "Taps" from the camp across the lake to serenade us at night and "Reveille" to wake us up.

Though my parents and grandparents are gone, they left a rich legacy. My brother, who bought the property, has made Shady Rest his home. Besides the old photos and memories is the guestbook, where you can find the earliest scrawlings from my dad and his sister that we love to read each year — Dad: "Oh ho. Me for the big fish." Aunt Jeanne: "Me for raspberries." Dad: "Guess I'll have to wait till next year to catch that muskie."

Obviously I met the right man. Over the long holiday weekend, my husband Dan and I spent time at his family's "cabin," some property near Hillman. It was only three hours away and provided a brief respite from the hustle-bustle world.

We had lazy mornings with books and newspapers, long walks and card games, hot dogs and hootenannies, bonfires and the best breakfasts we ever tasted. We did all those things we never have time for.

A taxing experience

With the month of July comes warm sunny days and your summer property tax bill. Under normal circumstances you receive your tax bill near the 4th of July. This is not the case this summer.

As of Friday July 11th the tax bills will be delivered to the township from the printer. Due to the power outages of last Wednesday's storm and a series of unforeseen problems, the treasurer's office is faced with stuffing nearly 12,000 tax bills and sending them out by Monday July 14th.

We ask for your understanding. I apologize for the delay. It is not our intention to make paying your taxes any more difficult for you.

Thank you for your patience in dealing with this most taxing situation. If Sue, Lil, or myself can be of help to you call us at 625-5111. Our extensions are 248, 212, and 209.

Jim Wenger,
Independence Township Treasurer

A caring community

To my wonderful neighbors and friends,

I want to thank all of my neighbors for their kind words and thoughts upon the death of my wife, Susan Romein. The people of Independence Drive are very special to me and my family, bringing gifts of food, flowers, and money. I also wish to thank all of my other friends in Clarkston and the surrounding area for their support.

At such times, in The Netherlands, family and friends come together to share in the sadness and to exchange fond memories. This past week has shown to me and my visiting relatives from The Netherlands, France, Texas, Missouri, Florida, Oklahoma, and Ohio that the people of Clarkston come together and have the same caring traditions. Thank you again to all my wonderful friends.

Sincerely,
Evert Romein and Family

Jim's Jottings

By Jim Sherman

How have Pathfinder, Mir benefited us?

We've never pictured a scientist as being giddy... wild-haired and gaunt maybe... but Matthew Golombek seems absolutely giddy about the exploration of Mars.

Golombek is the Pathfinder mission's chief scientist. Shown on the tube, he beams with excitement with the knowledge that everything about the mission has gone as planned. He, as we, know that has seldom been the case in prior space/planet searches.

We're not against spending taxpayer money for checking out the surface and atmosphere of Mars. We are against using our money to finance candidates for political office, as has been suggested in D. C.

If our government has a couple hundred thousand dollars to give to the National Science Foundation for a study to see why potential candidates do not seek public office, we surely have enough money to study Mars.

However, we're not sure what we will gain from the exploration. Some space trips have gotten us Tang and Teflon. The one thing this trip will bring us is a new Christmas toy. Mattel, et al, are probably, right now, in a bidding war to get the right to make and sell the microwave oven-size craft.

Pathfinder makers also got on my approval list when the builders went to the store and bought a camera from Kodak and radios from Motorola to send us pictures and signals.

On the other hand, and several thousand miles closer to Earth, we have the space ship, Mir. Would someone please write us what has been accomplished to further mankind's with this eleven year experiment.

Every few months we send a person up there to live with two Russians. Every few months something goes wrong in this station. Recently a space ship, controlled from within Mir, crashed into it and put the worried, harried look back on scientists' faces.

So Russia sent up another craft, this time controlled from earth, and all went well. American Michael Foale got a replacement for his lost toothbrush. The three also got oxygen, food, water and tools.

Both Mir and Pathfinder have brought great publicity for the computer industry.

It is totally mind boggling to this guy who is writing this column on a computer with absolutely no understanding of how it works.

I'm one who thinks chips come from buffalo and cows, a mouse is singular for mice, logic board is weary professor, a floppy disc is for churning up sandy soil, a mega byte comes from huge hornets, and a hard disc breaks up clay.

But I have learned where the "print" button is and I'm going to hit it right now.

Edison warns of scam

Last week Detroit Edison issued a warning to its customers to beware of imposters claiming to be Edison workers asking for access to homes.

In a press release Edison stated that in summer many scam artists try to get into homes by posing as utility workers. Often, they offer what sounds like a plausible reason, such as checking wiring.

"If you have not called Detroit Edison or the company has not contacted you, that's the first clue that something is wrong," said James Taylor, Edison's director of corporate security. "Protect yourself by verifying whether someone has a reason to be on your property before opening your door."

All Edison employees carry photo ID cards. When in doubt, call Edison at 1-800-477-4747.

The Clarkston Area Chamber of Commerce now has a website!

www.clarkston.org

should be up and running by the end of July. It will list Chamber members and allow visitors to enter key words to find a specific type of business.

Announcements

15 YEARS AGO (1982)

Clarkston High School graduate Tim Birtsas joins the ranks of professional baseball, ending months of speculation that he would turn pro by signing with the New York Yankees. Birtsas inks a one-year contract with the Yankees in his parents' Clarkston home July 12. The Yankees assign the 21-year-old southpaw to their Class A farm club in Oneonta, N.Y.

The state announces plans to build a house for six developmentally disabled adults on Indianwood Rd. near Dartmouth Rd., in what's been branded a "more rural" area of Independence Township. If built it brings the township's total of similar homes to 14. It is expected that the township's Board of Trustees will discuss strategy at its next meeting to decide whether to take legal action to stop the home from going in.

A 75-year-old Clarkston woman wins the state's $1 million lottery. "I want to go to California," says Margaret Bernard. "I've never been (there) yet. I think everything is too high priced unless you go with a tour group. I'm Scotch enough to save my dollars."

25 YEARS AGO (1972)

High winds, gusting to an estimated 50 miles per hour, do some damage and cause tornadoes to be reported in the Dixie Highway/M-15 area last Wednesday. Independence Township firemen are called to a scene when a tree topples on telephone lines, setting off the burglar alarm in local banks. The storm also strips all the petunia blossoms from plants sitting outside Ritter's Farm Market.

Clarkston teachers and the board of education are negotiating new teacher contracts for the coming school year. The negotiations are dragging on for several reasons. It won't be known until later how much state aid will be received, what the rate of delinquent tax returns will be and how much budget money will be available.

Issac Hayes will make a two-night appearance at Pine Knob Music Theatre Thursday and Friday. Hayes, composer of the "Theme from Shaft" and winner of a 1972 Grammy Award, has attained much recognition from his "Hot Buttered Soul" album which went gold, exceeding a million dollars.

50 YEARS AGO (1947)

Lightning strikes the steeple on Mount Bethel Methodist Church, causing a fire which destroys the entire building. The church, situated in the south part of Groveland Township, is a landmark to this part of the community. The bolt of lightning scatters fragments of the steeple over the adjoining fields, causing an estimated $4,500 of damage.

Featured at the Holly Theatre are Deanna Durbin, Tom Drake and Adolph Menjou in "I'll Be Yours" and Sydney Greenstreet and Joan Larring in "The Verdict." Showing at the Drayton Theatre are Wallace Beery in "the Mighty McGurk," Dana Andrews and Jane Wyatt in "Boomerang" and Jack Haley and Anne Jeffreys in "Vacation in Reno."

At Rita's Beauty Shop clients receive a soft water shampoo and wave for $1.25 and a dry-hair treatment for $1.75. All methods of permanent waves are given by operators with years of experience.

60 YEARS AGO (1937)

There are, it seems, banks, Banks and BANKS. First there is the ordinary bank, then the Bank that is a member of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., and lastly, the BANK that, in addition, is a member of the Federal Reserve System. Hence we rejoice that an announcement has been received from the Secretary of the Treasury in Washington D.C., alerting us to the effect that on July 7 the Clarkston State bank was made a member of this system.

Due to a misunderstanding as to the location of the Clarkston/Pontiac Eagles game, it is finally agreed to play in the Clarkston field. Mr. Russell does the hurling for Clarkston and, although he is wild at times, his teammates hit the ball hard and far — at one time collecting five doubles in succession.

Playing at the Holly Theatre are Claire Trevor and Lloyd Nolan in "King of Gamblers" and Errol Flynn in Mark Twain's "The Prince and the Pauper."

Don't Rush Me

By Don Rush

What have I done?

I think I may have created a monster — well, at least two. Nephews Dylan Wallace, 9, and Jeremy Felker, 8, are the two I'm thinking about.

I gave each a challenge in June: Write me a campfire story by July 19 and I'll give you $5. On July 19 they will recite their stories by campfire light at the Rush Campground and Spooky Story Center.

I reckon I'm trying to get some real writers/story tellers in the familyline — might as well start them young and give 'em a bribe. Story telling has long been a part of my life — well actually since I was younger than Dylan and Jeremy are now.

One of the greatest joys about growing up was visiting Grandma and Grampa McDonald in Brightmore.

Sure, Granny and Gramps were fun to be with, but the coup de grace were the nighttime stories told by Uncle Jim. I think Jim's about nine years older than myself, so he'd only be in his teens when he started yarning. He learned from his dad.

Whenever we'd spend the night and Jim was home, the sisters and myself would beg for scary stories. Jim would turn off the lights and we'd scurry to sit around him on the floor. He'd look at each of us and then commence to enthrall our little minds and imaginations.

It was usually some science fiction story based in the woods, where we all would camp and then something would attack. He incorporated each of us kids into the stories doing something heroic or funny. The story that sticks out in my mind is the one, "Attack of The Snapping Turtle Heads." That was a good one! These monsters had no legs, no bodies, no shells — just heads with mouths snapping opening and shut. I can see the worried faces of my sisters now. We must have requested it more than once.

The campfire/nighttime story Dylan and Jeremy want to hear from me is the dreaded story of Monkey Boy (Monkey Boy, who, abandoned at the age of 7 in the wilds of Independence Township, lived in the trees and stalked children unlucky enough — gasp — to be out after the sun had set . . .).

Even their five-year-old sisters, Jackie and Chelsea know the Monkey Boy story, except they've heard it from Dylan and Jeremy.

Hopefully this oral tradition of story telling and using the imagination can continue for another couple generations. Maybe they'll read more and watch TV less. Heck, who knows, the Rush family may even get a published author out of the deal!

I do know this: Jeremy wouldn't sleep the night of the challenge until his story was finished. Dylan finished his the next morning. Early indications have it the stories involve grave yards and monster pets.

What's your favorite Jimmy Stewart movie?

RICHARD JORGENSEN, CLARKSTON: "It's a Wonderful Life." It's a good story. It makes you feel good. He's great. I always liked him.

CECILE COLLINS, CLARKSTON: "It's a Wonderful Life" because it's just a good movie. It was Jimmy Stewart.

JANET PENILO, CLARKSTON: The Christmas one ("It's a Wonderful Life") was the one that was my favorite. In fact, I taped it last year because it's a real classic. He was always one of my favorite actors too. He always seemed so gentle, a real sweet guy.

ILA SURRE, DAVISBURG: I think that's easy, don't you? "It's a Wonderful Life." That's one of my favorites. I heard on the news the other day he was just like you saw him. That's the kind of man he was.

BOB THOMPSON, ORTONVILLE: "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington." Just because of who he portrayed, a real person instead of a cowboy ... A good actor can do that. And he's one of the ones.

Smith + Smith Associates Architects

One profession which many people do not understand is that of the architect. Architects design the buildings and spaces which make up the background of our lives. They are the link between lifestyles and the realities of engineering, construction methods and costs to provide home and work spaces that nurture our spirits while protecting our investment.

Since 1956, Smith + Smith Associates Architects has brought their experience with commercial, institutional and residential projects to serve clients throughout the midwest. Much of their work involves additions, renovation, rehabilitation or historic restoration of residential and commercial projects. Current work includes specialized projects for the elderly, converting a historic commercial structure into an upscale Italian restaurant as well as moving and/or remodeling single family and multiple residences.

Smith + Smith Associates Architects invites your inquiries and offers the opportunity to become a participating member of a professional team which will turn your ideas into a satisfying environment to enhance your desired lifestyle. You will participate in thoughtful development of project objectives, design studies, opportunities and options; all within realistic budget controls and the limitations of local codes, zoning regulations, construction schedules and other "practical" factors.

Smith + Smith Associates Architects are located in one of Pontiac's Historic Districts at 14 Williams Street 48341, phone 335-9190 or FAX 335-9214.

Philip R. Seaver Title Company

Joan Wummel, Office Manager

Buying a home is an important purchase. Once the deeds and mortgage documents are signed, the property is yours, so you think, but it may not be. Chances are, you are the owner, but a sure title is not simply having a deed in hand. A deed alone will not cancel prior "rights" others may have to your property—rights and claims you would never expect to exist.

When a title policy is issued through Philip R. Seaver Title Company, you can rest assured that your property is protected by the policy subject only to its term. If a flaw in the title is discovered, the title company will defend the title as issued, at its own expense, and will correct or clear the title or will pay any loss incurred. Now that you may be considering refinancing your home, you'll need title insurance again and the rates at Philip R. Seaver Title Company are very competitive in the area.

A low, one-time premium covers the entire cost for as long as ownership remains in your name. Protection of your property rests on the financial stability, professional integrity and responsible management of the title insurance company. So, select your title insurance as carefully as you would any other insurance. Protect yourself against loss due to title defects. Insist on an owner's title insurance policy through Philip R. Seaver Title Company, located in Clarkston at 6751 Dixie Highway, Phone 625-6100 for additional information today.

year-old Davisburg woman was shopping when she turned around and found her purse to be missing. A check of the store did not turn up the purse.

Thirty-five dollars in cash was stolen from a doctor's office on M-15.

SATURDAY, JULY 12, possible cocaine possession and breaking and entering at the Deer Lake Inn. A 29-year-old Waterford man was arrested after a short chase from the inn to the Deer Lake Raquet Club. Deputies spotted his 1985 Ford Mustang parked at the club and found him about 50 feet away, hiding behind an air conditioner. A search of his car revealed a brown nylon wallet with white powder in it. The powder was forwarded to the Oakland County Crime Lab for analysis. The man was arrested and taken to the Oakland County Jail.

SUNDAY, JULY 13, an unknown man was found standing in the north gym at Sashabaw Middle School. A window was open at the school's northeast corner, but the man wasn't found again.

A basketball support was bent on Transparent, causing $100 worth of damage.

A 22-year-old Clarkston man was arrested for three outstanding warrants and for contributing to the delinquency of a minor on N. Eston Rd. Deputies found him with a gym bag full of beer. Warrants out of Waterford for driving with a suspended license and leaving the scene of an accident were found, as was a warrant out of Lapeer for marijuana possession. He was lodged in the Oakland County Jail.

THE LAW & YOU

by Robert E. Kostin
Attorney at Law

HURT AT WORK

Under the law, employers must warn their employees of on-the-job dangers and provide safe working conditions. Employees who incur injuries in the workplace are prohibited from suing their employers for negligence due to workers' compensation. Payment is made by the employer's insurer, and the only matters to be settled are: whether the injury was caused by a job-related accident, and how much compensation is to be paid. Employees who are injured on the job cannot be fired, demoted, or retaliated against for filing a workers' compensation claim. If problems arise, an appeal can be heard before the Workers' Compensation Board. Although employees can represent themselves, it is best to be represented by a skilled attorney. HINT: Employees who are injured going to or returning from their jobs or who suffer injuries caused by stressful conditions may still be entitled to workers' compensation and other benefits.

If you feel your case wasn't properly handled, find out what new options might be available for you. Get the legal help you deserve. We are committed to seeing that your needs are met and your rights are defended. We are a full-service law firm with expertise in family law, contracts, domestic relations, real estate, and workers' compensation, among other areas. CRIMINALS' 100 for Independence Township

SATURDAY, JULY 5, domestic assault and battery on Upland. A woman said her husband hit her with a plastic coat hanger and kicked her several times during an argument. She told police he wanted to kiss her and she refused. He then became angry and hit her with the objects, she alleged. When a deputy arrived, he was shown fresh bruise marks around her thigh and on her back. The woman also said her husband is on probation.

SUNDAY, JULY 6, malicious destruction of property on Wedgewood. There were objects thrown from the inside of a house under construction.

Breaking and entering at Clarkston Creek. There were several items taken from the pro shop there.

MONDAY, JULY 7, malicious destruction of a vehicle on Ranch Rd. A window was broken on a 1993 Chevy, and the ignition was damaged and wires were cut on a John Deere truck.

Malicious destruction of property on Lock Moor Ct. A small bulldozer was driven over a man's front lawn.

Accidental car fire on Dixie. An 18-year-old Davisburg man was driving his 1987 Ford Escort when he noticed smoke coming from under the hood. He drove it into the Deer Lake Inn parking lot, where Independence Township Firefighters extinguished the flames.

Malicious destruction of property on Clarkston Road. A hoe handle was used to damage the rear passenger panel and door on a 1996 Chevy Lumina. The car, which was parked in a garage, had $4,500 worth of damage done to it.

A 19-year-old Clarkston man was arrested for contributing to the delinquency of a minor and minor in possession of alcohol on Briarwood Ct. A woman reported several unknown people knocking on her 15-year-old daughter's bedroom window at night. The following morning, she was gone. The mother did get a license plate; the vehicle was registered to the 19-year-old. The girl was found in his apartment. Another girl, in addition to the 15-year-old, was turned over to her parents.

TUESDAY, JULY 8, larceny of a shrub on Scenic Pines.

Larceny from a vehicle on Dixie. A cellphone, a pager, golf clubs and catering pans worth a total of $3,400 were taken from his car while he was away for the 4th of July weekend. The vehicle was not damaged and was unlocked and parked at a friend's house.

A 1983 Plymouth Reliant was scratched on Old Cove.

Domestic assault and battery on Clintonville. A woman and her husband got into an argument over their son's broken bed, when she alleges he pulled her hair, pushed her into a wall and hit her in the face with a phone, causing minor injuries. The man was arrested and taken to the Oakland County Jail. He admitted to pulling his wife's hair and said he was sorry.

Credit card fraud on Larkin Lake Road. A 40-year-old Clarkston man said someone has been opening up credit cards using information obtained from a stolen payroll check in November 1996. The man said he suspects a former coworker who said he was in the credit card business.

A 1997 Pontiac had its tires slashed on Timber Ridge Trail, causing $500 worth of damage.

Three West Bloomfield youths and one from Orchard Lake were cited for interfering with police authority, minor in possession of alcohol and contributing to the delinquency of a minor at Pine Knob Music Theater. A security guard observed the four drinking alcohol on the premises. A deputy smelled alcohol on all their breaths and all appeared to be intoxicated.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 9, indecent exposure on Clarkston Rd. A 15-year-old Clarkston girl was talking on the phone outside the Heather Lake Market when a man wearing black pants, a black shirt and a black hat exposed himself to her and yelled "Hey!" A couple minutes later, the girl was still on the phone when he returned, making noises. She then ran into the store and contacted police.

Larceny of a bicycle on Scenic Ridge. A 1996 bike worth $1,350 was stolen from a garage.

A 34-year-old woman had a seizure on Mann Rd. Harassing phone calls on Clarkston Rd.

THURSDAY, JULY 10, a shed was damaged on Windy Knoll. A 43-year-old man said he found a hole in the side of his shed that happened while he was on vacation. A BB gun may have made the marks.

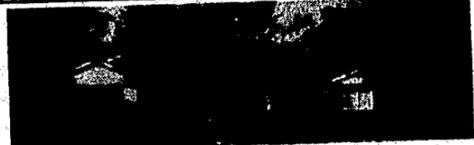

Several items were taken from a bathroom at a Balmoral Terrace residence. The window to the bathroom was smashed and the following was missing: two bottles of cologne, a 35 mm camera, pearl-handled knives and four coffee cans filled with loose change.

FRIDAY, JULY 11, a 19-year-old Clarkston man was arrested on an outstanding warrant from 52-2 and 52-3 District courts after a Clarkston resident reported a prowler near his home on Dixie. A driver was pulled over and a computer check revealed warrants for failure to appear, a trial plate violation and no license in possession.

Larceny from an auto on Pine Knob Rd. A $200 cellphone was taken from a car in a parking lot.

Larceny of a purse at a Dixie grocery store. A 72-you can check the engine, you can hear if it's not running, you can control that vehicle. But when you get into a plane, you're putting your life into the hands of the industry, the carrier, and the FAA, which is supposed to be policing them. And I think the truth is, they aren't doing a very good job.

"They're fighting terribly over TWA Flight 800. The NTSB and the FAA are at terrible odds about it. Because although they (the NTSB) can't pinpoint what caused this crash, they can see conditions that existed that might have done it, and they think interim measures need to be taken.

"Now, you can redesign a 747. You can make sure the air conditioning unit's not close to the center fuel tank. You can do more insulating. You can do things to make the craft safer in the long run, from the drawing table on. But in the meantime, you can do other things to protect that center fuel tank in those big planes. And they won't do them.

"Valuejet's a prime example of after-the-fact action. They've known for years that cargo holds that might catch fire could be a danger to passengers, for obvious reasons. And they've urged sprinkler systems to suppress the fire in case it did happen. No one ever did it; that's an option on an airplane. You can put a sprinkler system in a cargo hold, if you want to spend the money. But the FAA doesn't make you do it so no one does it because they don't want to spend the money.

"So that Valuejet basically came down because the fire overcame the pilot and there went 110 people. And now that that's happened, and they're all dead and buried, now they're making new planes put sprinkler systems in the cargo hold . . .

"That's sort of where we are. I think it's outrageous that the FAA does nothing to prevent the condition from existing again. And I heard the man on ABC say that this did not have to happen. He pulled no punches. That was his quote--this did not have to happen. That's pretty chilling to hear.

"It's terrible; it's a terrible thing. And then to think that they do nothing about it; that 230 people wasn't enough, man, it's . . . It's hard.

Question: Let's talk about Pierre Salinger, his credibility, putting his reputation on the line. He must be so convinced.

"He sounds completely convinced to me. When you listen to him talk he doesn't sound like an aging man who's addle-brained or who's going off on a neurotic tangent. He sounds very lucid, very sure. He's been in the battles before, the PR battles and he has not backed down. When that news came out last fall, I thought oh, everyone jumped on him so fast, I thought oh, he'll probably retract something now. He never did. He never retracted a single thing, and hasn't. But where that will go, I don't know. The FBI has essentially said no way that could have happened.

"The frustrating thing about being the parent is you can't do the investigation, you don't have a clue. You have to depend on the government to sort things out. And it's sometimes hard to trust that they're going to sort it correctly.

Question: We may never know what the ignition source was. They will eventually have to make a report. Why don't they get on with it?

"They're leaking the mechanical malfunction all the time. It's been leaked since the fall. But the interesting thing about all that is it would be better for the airlines to not have it be, let's say, a bomb . . . If it were a bomb, we would have our hands full in this country protecting our airports from the possibility of another one. And the industry doesn't want to pay for that. They don't want to delay you, they don't want to make you mad. They don't want to raise your ticket price. They don't want to hear that that kind of scenario could happen again in another US airport.

"The Pan Am families fought for years to make our airports safer and to do better screening and to make sure nothing could ever happen on a domestic flight . . .

"One of the first persons who contacted us after the crash last year was a woman in Brighton whose husband died on the Pan Am (flight which exploded tian in Warren. Homes in need of work such as painting, carpentry and yard work are referred to the churches through Lighthouse Clarkston.

Janice Herr-Krein, senior caregiver specialist with Lighthouse Clarkston, said referrals are collected all year and usually come from senior citizens and the handicapped.

"Then Righteous Mission decides what they can and can't do," she said. "We do have more than we can fill . . . Some of these people have to wait a long time." Some jobs are beyond the expertise of the mission, such as one case she knows of where extensive plumbing work is needed that can't wait a year. "We just have to hope someone will come along," she said.

Students (you must be at least old enough to enter high school and some are college-age) spend a week camping at a church camp in Oxford. By day, they work on the projects around northern Oakland County. By night they share camaraderie.

This year, Leece said, there were 50 teens and some 22 adult group leaders and the program keeps on growing.

"It's at capacity, I suppose. Every year we say that but it gets bigger."

Funding comes from the churches involved, from selling shares of "stock" in the mission, and, this year, from the fund established in Courtney's name. It's the single biggest contributor, Leece said.

Money is used to purchase supplies for the projects and cover the cost of food for the campers. Christ the King Church in Oxford charges nothing for the facilities. The mission just completed its ninth year.

Leece said that all week, Courtney's name kept coming up. "They did a song in memory of her called 'Friends.' And throughout the week we mentioned it. Not to be maudlin, but everybody was thinking about her anyway . . . We dedicated the week to her memory."

Checks made out to the Courtney Johns Memorial Fund may be sent to Clarkston United Methodist Church, 6600 Waldon, Clarkston, MI 48346.

over Locherbie, Scotland after originating in Germany). And the Pan Am families immediately believed that a bomb had gotten through on a US carrier, which still is a scenario. And they were sick because they were such an activist group. They worked for years to get better security measures in the United States airports. And our country didn't respond to that.

"They passed a security act in 1990 and three years later nothing still had been done. There's only a handful of airports in this country that are really taking it seriously because they're not being forced to. And the airline industry would just as soon not have to pay for it, as long as nothing else happens.

Question: It's incredible that it hasn't happened.

"It may have happened. So that's another thing. If it was mechanical, why aren't they taking some interim steps?

Question: For the industry, is it better if its a bomb, so it's not our plane's fault?

"No, actually I think it would be worse for them, because then they'd be forced to take a hard look at every airport, especially the major ones in this country, and upgrade the devices, upgrade the security, do more baggage matching to passengers.

"This is why this kid in Grosse Pointe, if you followed that, this young man who's an Arab American? You know he grew up on the street we lived on. We knew the family; they're a lovely family. We knew him when he was a baby. He's angry because he was profiled, he's an Arab American, he has an Arab name, and he was really upset because he was delayed and his liberties were—he was offended by being profiled. If the airlines were matching baggage to passengers, they wouldn't have to be profiled.

"Profiling is just the easy way out. We'll just pick and choose the people we think don't look so good and we'll check their stuff. If they were doing their job more thoroughly, and making sure everybody's baggage matched themselves and then checking all the cargo, screening all the luggage that goes through underground, they wouldn't have to profile.

"That's what's missing from that whole 'don't violate my civil liberties,' that's what's missing. If the airlines would do things more thoroughly, they wouldn't have to profile people and pull them out of line and embarrass them and make them miss a flight.

"The best security in the world is the Israeli ones. You go into a room with your luggage and from that room you go onto the plane. There is no way to wander out or have anybody wander in. They have to be careful because look where they are.

Question: Americans would probably never accept that kind of siege mentality.

"Well, we need to be forced to accept it. I don't want to scare people; that's not my intent. My intent is to say look, if an overheated fuel tank is part of the scenario and you're so excited about it, and they are, do something to fix it until you can get a permanent fix in there. Do something now. They can do something.

"For one thing they could put more fuel in the tank. That plane didn't have to go over there with an empty center fuel tank. Jet fuel isn't that volatile. It's temperature has to be raised and there has to be a mix of air for it to be ignited by a tiny spark. They haven't found what that tiny spark is yet.

Question: Would you go to the public hearings?

"I'm not sure. I think they're going to do one in August and I know there's another one in December. And you have to sort out, what's the topic this time and what are you going to offer? My expertise is limited. We'd probably consider it now. It's taken a long time to have a clear idea of what's happening with this whole thing. I think it's something we'd consider.

The memorials to Courtney

A number of memorials to Courtney Johns have been established. The Courtney Johns Memorial Scholarship at her alma mater, Marian High School in Bloomfield Hills, created an endowment fund currently valued at $130,000. Proceeds are distributed to students in need for tuition. The goal is to provide full tuition to the private school for four students each year.

The Righteous Mission Courtney Johns Memorial Fund (see related story) helps support one of Courtney's favorite endeavors through Clarkston United Methodist Church.

The Sports Club of West Bloomfield, where Courtney played tennis, now sponsors a scholarship for a boy and a girl for the junior tennis program. And the Franklin Fitness and Racquet Club in Southfield is presenting a sportsmanship award annually in Courtney's name for an 18-year-old woman.

In addition, a memorial plaque has been placed at the Marian High School tennis courts and trees have been planted in Courtney's memory at Depot Park in Clarkston, at Clarkston United Methodist Church and at Villanova University in Pennsylvania, where Courtney had planned to attend college.

Contributors to the memorials have included everyone from families Courtney used to babysit for to the MHS Class of 1997, friends and family. One friend, Jenna Lynn of Clarkston, celebrated her 16th birthday in January. She asked that in lieu of gifts, guests bring donations for the MHS scholarship fund. Her friends contributed over $800.

"You know there are big ceremonies next week out in Long Island," Barb Johns said. "They have four days of ceremonies planned out there. They're expecting over 700 family members who are going out ... We could have gone; TWA would have flown us out there, as if I'd want to get on a TWA airplane.

"We feel like she lived here; her life was here; her friends were here; this is where she made her mark. We're real grateful to them for the memorials and what they did for the victims, but that's not a place where I want to be. To me that's nothing to do with her. So we don't really want to go. I think the hangar tour would be awful.

"These are things locally people have done in her name. This is what's meaning full to us. The legacy that she left ...

(Regarding the Marian High School scholarship:) "We gave our first three scholarships this year. We're real thrilled about that one because it's grown beautifully. We gave a freshman, sophomore, junior this year; we were able to give them almost half tuition and we'd like to, over the years, we'd like to get funds and keep rolling, be able to give them full tuition. We'd like to have one Johns scholar in every graduating class.

(Regarding the fund to help the Righteous Mission of Clarkston United Methodist Church:) "She QUESTION: My neighbor thinks he is a canny man so he priced his home $30,000 more than comparable homes in the area. He is getting a lot of lookers but not even an insulting offer. Is there a lesson to be learned here?

ANSWER: When a home is placed on the market, it is in competition with all similar homes in the area. Most prospects will look at most, if not all, of the houses in their price range.
 Mr. "Canny's" home can actually act as a selling tool for other similar homes that are priced $30,000 less. It is a "reverse comparable," making others look like real bargains. The answer is to price your home realistically.

was there four out of the last five years. And we were out there on family night last year. I went out and cooked one night, spent a couple hours with her. Oh my gosh she loved that.

"What is it about a kid that they connect with something that just becomes real meaningful to them? You could see her face glow when she talked about this lady or that lady . . .

"This endowment will probably give them at least half what they need every single year, so it'll make it a little easier to buy supplies and paint.

"The next two are tennis related. She just knew a ton of tennis people and she worked out of a lot of clubs. And those two clubs, the first one is a scholarship for two kids. Every fall they award a scholarship for the winter season. It covers their court fees for their junior program. And they put their names on a plaque; they've got a plaque over there with her picture on it. They loved her over there. That was her second home. She made such an impression on everybody.

"That's the thing about Courtney. She could talk to an adult, she could talk to senior citizens, she could talk to a kid. She just had this presence, and everybody just loved her because they picked up on that. I don't know how she got it . . .

"I tell you, if I died tomorrow, I wouldn't have this many memorials. I can tell you I wouldn't. I think it's pretty significant to be 18 and have an impact like that. But I'm her mother, so . . .

I heard the man on ABC say that this did not have to happen . . . That's pretty chilling to hear.'

Barb Johns

"She had a lot of circles; it was interesting. She had her old friends from here, high school friends from down there, tennis friends from all over. She travelled around the Midwest playing tennis so she just knew so many people . . .

"So those things keep you going. Busy young person. Not perfect--dam near, darn near. She was a bit of an imp. You know, I find out all these stories now. People say--did you know about the time we were . . . And I'm thinking oh my gosh, Court. What were you thinking?

"You hear these things later and in a way it's kind of--I don't mean to say it's fun--but it gives you this broad picture of your child. Because as they get older and they begin to go out and drive and reach out into the world, they live a life you're not aware of, really, because you're not there. And then suddenly these stories come back that give you a picture of the kind of person she was. I think she was a little bit impish . . .

"They came back from Myrtle Beach one year with a bungee-jumping tape. They had gone bungee jumping. I had a friend who looked at me and said did you know they were going bungee jumping? And I said like yeah, right, like she called home and said 'Mom, I'd like to go bungee jumping; do you mind?' I would never have let her do that. But she did it. And we have her on tape. It's darling. It is. Because she's just glowing with excitement. Screaming all the way down. But it's cute. It's nice to have that glowing face . . .

The community

Living in Clarkston for 15 years, raising three children and being active in a number of arenas, the Johns know a lot of people in Clarkston. What they didn't know was how those people would respond to their tragedy.

"Our friends and family are outstanding and our church has been so supportive and so loving. But it's even the people that you barely know who give you a pat on the back. You know what they're saying to you. It's like a signal that our thoughts are with you. And I don't think you can (over)estimate the value of a community that cares about you. I can't even describe to you what it's like; it's like a lifting up. It just helps you go on.

"Oh I think it's a major advantage (living in a small town), a major advantage. I'd never want to lose that buoyancy of having people who care. We have dear friends who would be here in a second if I called and said I'm going to fall apart; please come over. I know they'd be here in a minute. And we have church people who'd do anything to help us; they've prayed for us. Our family, they're just wracked with grief but they care so much about us. And then to have the community wrap around you; it's like a cocoon of support. And it's incredible.

"I feel sorry for people who don't have that. Because when tragedy comes to you, and it does come to everybody, it really helps you care about waking up the next morning . . .

"I really feel driven this week to tell people why I'm concerned about the airlines. I don't want to scare them. But I think people need to know they can do something, to effect change early enough to keep this from happening again. I did feel a sense that this is the time of the year when people are going to be thinking about this tragedy again. Maybe it will prompt them to send an e-mail or send a letter of do something to encourage the FAA to take some steps. They don't have to cost a lot of money. But they need to do something.

"I worry that they'll focus a little too much on the ceremony and the emotional story. Everybody wants to read about the emotional story. I can see why they do. It's a human interest thing. But I'm afraid the real message will be lost in it.

"This didn't have to happen; it doesn't have to happen again. We fly, our boys fly, our friends fly. It needs to be fixed. And we need to make sure we're flying as safe as we can.

"I'll tell you something else, too: After President Clinton formed that commission on airline security--Al Gore headed it up last fall--it came out with some very strong anti-terrorist rhetoric at the time. And right after he did, the airline industry got all over him for that because they don't want to change the system. As antiquated as they are, it would cost money. And then they ended up donating a half a million dollars to the Democratic National Committee for the re-election campaign. And all of a sudden in December the commission's report comes out and it's very soft on anti-terrorism. And it makes you wonder: What do we care about? Do we care about people living, or do we care about five more bucks on our airline ticket?

"Money's very powerful. And it's not coincidental that all of a sudden half-a-million dollars comes into the DNC from the airline industry. They don't want to spend the money to change. And until more people die, they won't. Isn't that sad. It's very infuriating.

"That's why I sort of feel this cause this week." To write the FAA to ask them to take action, write Barry Valentine, acting administrator, Federal Aviation Administration, 800 Independence Ave. SW, Washington, DC 20591.

Fiona Apple

Success for Fiona Apple was fast and furious — especially for an 18-year-old.

She decided to spend time with her father in Los Angeles, where she cut a demo and completed her high school education through independent study at the same time.

Instead of sending out a few copies as planned, one tape found its way into the hands of a friend who just happened to babysit for a prominent music industry executive. He in turn played it for a holiday party guest, producer/manager Andrew Slater. The rest, as they say, is history. Slater is now her manager.

But she didn't have enough material for her debut album "Tidal," so called because success "has hit me like a tidal wave ... but also because 'tidal' refers to ebbing and flowing, and that's really what life is, a constant ebb and flow..."

"Songs don't just pour out — so I pressured myself to write," she continues. The result is ten timeless songs, featuring her primal, percussive chart-topper "Sleep to Dream."

Upon the album's release, the next step was performing. Though she's been playing the piano and singing all her life, with the support of an artsy family which includes her actor dad and singer-dancer mom, it

Tea party's in the garden

BY ANNETTE KINGSBURY
Clarkston News Editor

Tea parties conjure up all kinds of images.

There's the formal tea, with white gloves and watercress sandwiches and china cups. Precious little to eat, much ado about form.

Then there's the Mad Hatter's tea party in Alice in Wonderland. Everyone moving down a place, having to snuggle up to the last person's dirty dishes. The hedgehog in the tea pot. Ugh!

But what tea is really about is refreshment; afternoon nibbling to tide one over till dinner, and a stimulating drop of what's arguably the world's most popular brew. And what better place to have it than in the great outdoors, surrounded by nature?

Such a tea will be offered by Independence Oaks County Park on Sunday, July 20, 1:30-4 p.m. in the park's herb garden. Admission is $2.50 and tickets can be purchased in advance at the park. Entertainment and food, some with ingredients from the park's own garden, will be provided.

The garden is called the Jean Rubach Sensory Herb Garden, and was established in 1991 in honor of Rubach, a writer, poet and gardening enthusiast, by her children. According to park employee Missy Halleck, its called a sensory garden because it appeals to all the senses.

"We use it for some programs," she said. "And we use the herbs. We dry them and use them for some of the programs." The garden is wheelchair accessible and includes a rose-covered wooden seat at one end.

The garden is maintained with the help of volunteers, who weed, edge and mulch it. They meet weekly and sometimes take field trips too.

This is Halleck's first summer in the garden, but she's heard about last year's tea party. "I guess the rose geranium cakes were quite a hit," she said. They'll be offered again this year, along with other foods incorporating the plants in the garden.

Each of the three beds making up the garden has a theme, culinary, medicinal or fragrant. All entice the visitor to reach out and touch and smell.

The culinary bed contains such familiar herbs as chives, tarragon, rosemary and sage and some less well-known plants like borage and lovage, both of which can be added to salads. Some might not be thought of as culinary, such as violet and marigold, but are in fact edible.

The second bed is the medicinal bed, featuring plants with long histories of healing powers such as comfrey (skin irritations), eucalyptus (sinus), feverfew (migraine), foxglove (heart failure), mints (colds, digestion, flu, hiccups) and many more.

The third bed was planted for fragrance, and

Pine Knob gets approval for all-day shows

Ordinance still in the works

BY EILEEN McCARVILLE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Plans for three multi-stage events for the remainder of Pine Knob Music Theatre's summer season were unanimously approved by the Independence Township Board of Trustees at a special meeting July 8. But a proposed ordinance that would regulate the venue exclusively is still in the works, officials say.

Last Tuesday the board approved a motion, 6-0, to distribute outdoor assembly licenses to Palace Sports and Entertainment, which owns Pine Knob, in an attempt to hold them to an existing outdoor gatherings ordinance that would regulate all-day, festival-type shows. Trustee Larry Rosso was absent.

All the shows feature temporary second stages in addition to the permanent pavilion, and some include food, clothing and jewelry vendors as well as patron-friendly activities, such as an in-line skate ramp at one event.

Though three events are affected, there are four actual dates: Lollapalooza '97, presented both July 15 and 16, the Warped Tour on July 23 and the HORDE Festival July 27.

Township attorney Gary Dove outlined 15 points

A monthly listing of the activities and programs held at the Independence Township Senior Center can be obtained by calling 625-8231 or drop in to the center at 5980 Clarkston Road, in Clintonwood Park, (between M-15 and Sashabaw Road).

The nutrition program is held at noon, Monday through Friday, at the Senior Center. Reservations are needed by noon the day prior to your visit. A donation of $2 is requested from those age 60+, and a charge of $3 for anyone under age 60. Homebound meals and supplemental liquid meals are also available by calling Sarah at 625-8231.

that must be followed for license distribution, including fire department access to a hydrant and fire lanes, pedestrian safety, traffic ingress-egress and electrical issues. The intent is to regulate health, safety and welfare concerns inside the venue with the additional stages, he said.

Both township officials and Palace executive director Hugh Lombardi expressed satisfaction with those conditions.

"The Palace understands the township will be making inspections on the day of the event and making corrections at that time," township supervisor Dale Stuart said.

The first all-day event held this summer, an "OZZfest" featuring Ozzy Osbourne June 12, was perceived by some to be the toughest show of the season. Members from the board and the Oakland County Sheriff's Department, and building and fire department officials who conducted inspections, said Pine Knob responded favorably whenever asked to make corrections regarding its second stage and other areas that day.

And, though it did not include a second stage, a controversial Marilyn Manson concert held June 18 was not problematic, they said.

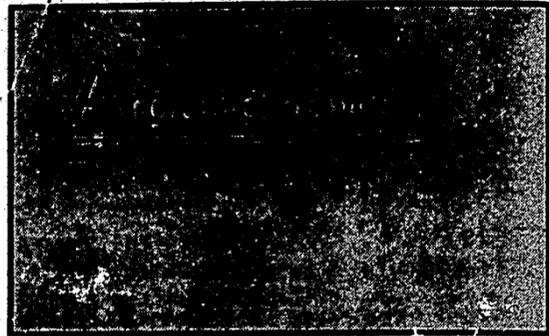

The board began talking about the possibility of creating an ordinance for Pine Knob in May. That proposed ordinance is "still in the works," said Lombardi after the meeting.

Stuart said the township became concerned and pondered the ordinance because the venue has been adding more all-day fests every year. Worries have included everything from all-day drinking to patrons walking across the parking lot.

When differences emerged and it was evident more discussion was needed, township and Palace officials scheduled two special meetings for June 10 and July 8. The township also asked the Palace to submit plans for its multi-stage shows, holding them to deadlines which have since been met.

The chief concern among Palace officials has been the township's right to shut down shows if the ordinance isn't adhered to. Currently, it is still in the proposal stage.

However, township treasurer Jim Wenger said last week, "It appears that both sides are attempting to make it work and be cooperative" and "resolve differences. It's just a matter of them understanding our needs and us understanding theirs."

The Clarkston News

Track stars of the future

The Clarkston Hershey's track team enjoyed an excellent season of running. Coached by Jack Leech (left) and Gene Attaman, Clarkston could be sending five athletes to the national competition, depending on times in the other seven states in the Great Lakes Region. Brad Welbourn took first in the state in the 100 dash, while the team of Jena Pryszybien, Lauren Smith, Emily Munchiando and Michelle Zeile scored a first in the 4x100 relay.

Hangin' with Mr. Clinton

I return to the familiar confines of my desk, besieged by papers after my weeklong vacation in Washington D.C.

I had never been to our nation's capital before, and looking back, I'd say it was a very unique experience. Here are some of the impressions that have stayed with me from that trip.

● Camden Yards. This is the home field of the Baltimore Orioles and it was everything I expected it to be and more. Much has been said about how the downtown Baltimore area has been revitalized by the presence of the ballpark, which opened in 1992. I was skeptical about how much a baseball stadium could really do for an economically downtrodden city. But after a tour through this classic-styled park, I now understand.

The atmosphere around the streets is like that of a college football Saturday. A few people here and there are grilling chicken or hot dogs. Vendors are busy setting up their stands pitching $5 hats and T-shirts. People decked out in orange and black are everywhere, excited about the Orioles' prospects for second half success. All this for a regular season game against the Milwaukee Brewers, the most anonymous team in baseball.

The best part of the stadium is on the way in. A big walkway makes a path to food vendors, including Boog Powell's barbecue, with the smoke rising from freshly flipped ribs. On the lower levels of the famous B & O Warehouse, there are pubs and sports clothing shops galore. My dad and I sat at a table with two guys from Philadelphia who, not surprisingly, would rather drive 90 minutes to see the Orioles instead of the 25-63 Phillies. The neatly bricked pavement had the occasional baseball engraved in it representing home runs hit there during the park's first season.

Then as you go into the stadium, bend-over-backwards friendly attendants greet you with a smile and wipe the seat down so well, you could check your hair in it.

After it was all over, secondary was that the O's lost 3-1. What counts is the quality baseball experience you get at Camden Yards. After spending an evening there, you get the feeling baseball could indeed return to glory.

I also proudly donned my Red Wings jersey at the game and got the thumbs up from a few people. I guess everyone loves a winner. But not quite everyone. As I was entering the hotel at the end of the night, some guy drove by and leaned out of his car and yelled "I hate Detroit!" Now what have we ever done to Washington to deserve such an outburst? Heaven knows Washington's done enough to us to incur our wrath for decades. I guess the fellow was suffering from the three I's: ignorant, inebriated and illogical.

● The sights in D.C. There is so much history packed into this little city, it's almost overwhelming. Arlington Cemetery, set among rolling hills, is a solemn place. Seeing John F. Kennedy's grave, the tomb of the Unknown Soldier and the Vietnam Memorial, you almost forget you're on vacation. Seeing the Vietnam Memorial and the 58,000 (twice the population of Independence Township) names was staggering. All those people, some younger than I am now, dead, and for what? It certainly makes you appreciate the peaceful times we've had for the most part the last 20 years. But overall, a terrific trip. Thanks dad.

Local kids make good at state Hershey meet

Clarkston made its impact at the state Hershey track meet in Howell with several first places.

Brad Welbourn took first in the 100 dash with a time of 14.47, just .4 seconds off the state record for 9-10-year-olds. The 4x100 relay team of Jena Pryszybien, Lauren Smith, Emily Munchiando and Michelle Zeile also took first with a time of 1:02.08. This was about a second off the state record.

Depending on results from the surrounding region, these athletes could move on to the national meet in Hershey, Penn.

Riverdawg roundup

Coming off a difficult holiday tournament, the girls 14-and-under team returned to league play with a pair of big wins over Airport Big Boy.

Sara Newill tossed a no-hitter and struck out nine in the game one, 23-2 blowout. On offense, she also hit a triple that drove in a run. Kiley Banycky had two doubles and four runs batted in and Amy Casey drove in three with a single.

In game two, Casey also threw a no-hitter in helping the Lady Dawgs to a 25-3 win. Bonnie Edgar had a monster day at the plate, hitting a home run, a single and two triples en route to 6 RBI. Casey and Nicole Thrift each homered twice in the slugfest.

The under-12 girls are also off to a solid start, going 6-2 in the league so far this season. The team's coaches, Mark Pingston, Shannon Midday and Tom Bollman, will guide the team into the Brighton Tournament July 18-20. If the team is successful there, it moves on to the National Softball Association Regionals in Milwaukee.

Mackin' their way to victory

Cobras all over soccer fields

Gertrude Smith

Gertrude I. Smith, 74, of Ortonville, formerly of Clarkston, died July 14, 1997.

Mrs. Smith was retired from GM Truck and Bus and was a member of the Disabled American Veterans Auxiliary.

She is survived by sons Roger (Carol Ann) of Hale and Robert (Dolly) of Rochester Hills; daughter Carol (Jim) Richardson of Clarkston; five grandchildren, three step-grandchildren, four great-grandchildren and six step great-grandchildren; sister Mildred Vitton of Arizona; and best friend Alice Churchill of Ortonville. She was preceded in death by her husband Gordon.

A funeral service will take place Thursday at the Lewis E. Wint and Son TRUST 100 Funeral Home in Clarkston with Rev. John Martin officiating. Interment was at Ottawa Park Cemetery. Memorials can be made to the Cranbrook Hospice.

was a little intimidating to think of thousands of people.

"I'll be nervous, but what else can I do? I won't go backwards," she said before a recent tour.

Apple's low, dusky voice is one talent. The other is her uncanny ability to be refreshingly honest, insightful and yes, wise, for one so young, delivered in her pensive, bluesy melodies.

"The way I feel about music — any song, any style — is that there is no right and wrong, only true and false. If the music and lyrics are conceived out of honesty ... then what has been expressed is art, regardless of what anyone's opinion is of it. So things are a lot simpler if you just tell the truth."

"People will come out and say 'Gosh, we didn't know this place existed,'" Halleck said. Over 100 species are represented, some purchased from the Sunshine Farm and Garden in Commerce Township. Most herb plants are easy to grow. They're not too fussy about soil as long as they have adequate water and drainage. Their strong smells make them undesirable to most garden pests. Many dry nicely without extraordinary effort from the gardener.

"I just love working here," said Halleck, an Oxford resident and recent graduate of Michigan State University's park and recreation resource program. "It's just nice to be outside, and I learn so much."

The Garden Tea Party will feature Shakespearean music by Reasonable Facsimile, a visit from Peter Rabbit, garden tours, live rabbits, face painting and tea treats. It's suitable for all ages. Beach opening turns 'pipe dream' into reality

Bay Court Park Beach now open for everyone

BY EILEEN McCARVILLE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

As if it were meant to be, the rain stopped and the sun peeked through the majestic pines, just in time for a Grand Opening Celebration for Bay Court Park Beach July 8.

Present at the ribbon-cutting ceremony that included music, hors d'oeuvres and speeches, were township officials, department heads, key players in the beach project and others.

Coincidentally, the celebration ties in with the 25th anniversary of Independence Township Parks and Recreation, director Ann Conklin told the audience. The other three township parks are Clintonwood Park, Deer Lake Beach and Sashabaw Plains Park.

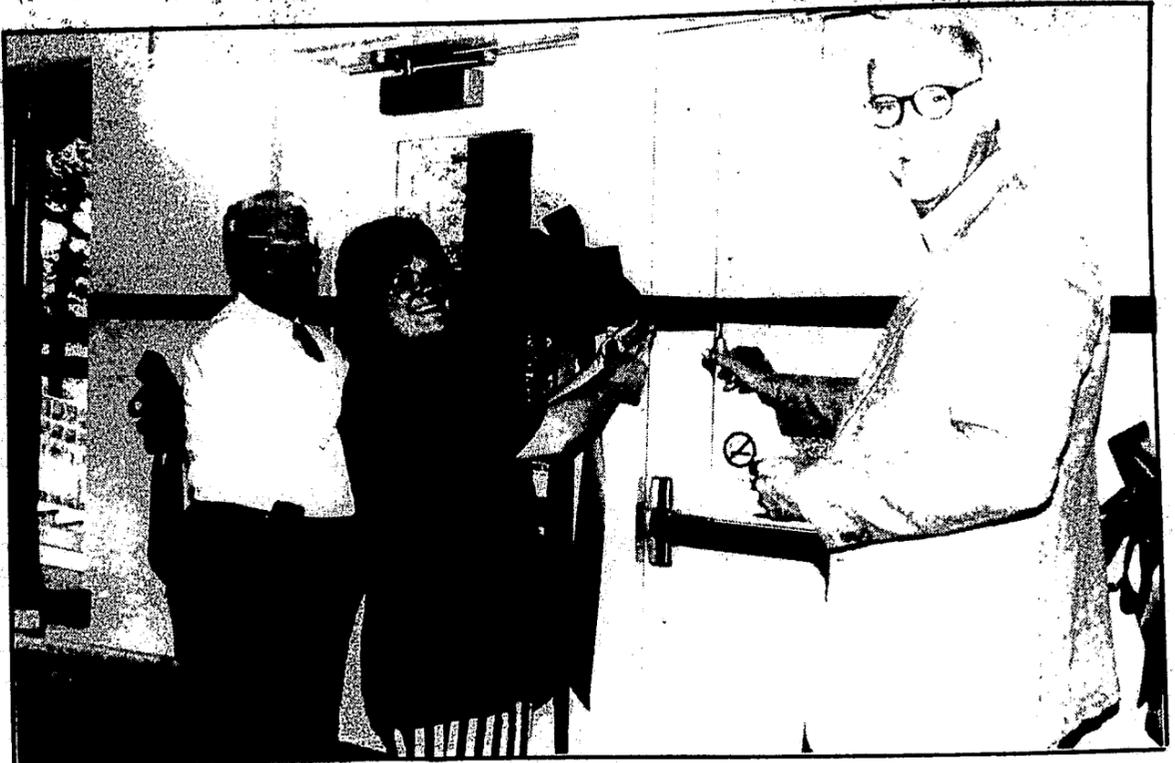

She, supervisor Dale Stuart and trustee Dan Travis, also chair of the parks and rec. advisory commission, gave brief speeches. They supplied the audience with bits and pieces of Bay Court's history, as well as their own personal reflections.

"Welcome to my pipe dream," said Conklin, drawing chuckles from the audience. She explained her pet nickname for the beach project. "There are a lot of people who didn't think this would be a reality — but here we are."

When construction began on the beach house a year ago, "It was as smooth as the roads in this county," she quipped.

Referring to that pun, Stuart, who spoke next, said after the township acquired the 50-acre parcel in 1988 which eventually became the park, one of the first projects was indeed the roads. "When we first saw roads coming through, we said, 'We destroyed it.' (We said) 'It's all roads now.'" But, of course, that was a necessary part, he added. Later improvements included the new playscape and beach renovation.

It's been a stellar master plan combined with

A brief history of Bay Court Park

- 1920-1940s: Called Camp Brady, the park is a Boy Scout facility.
- 1940s-1970s: After being sold to United Community Services of Detroit, which continues to use it as a camp, the property is leased to Detroit Public Schools.
- 1970s-1980s: Detroit Schools uses the facility as a camp for underprivileged school children from the Detroit Metro area.
- 1980s-1988: Property is vacated.
- 1988: Independence Township acquires the 50-acre parcel with a $500,000 grant from the DNR.
- 1992-1994: Phase I is completed. Renovations include a new entrance, roadway, parking, gazebo, pavilions and the Robert Leathers Playscape, a "dream" built entirely by volunteers.

● 1997: Phase II is completed. It includes the renovation of the beach front and a new beach house which features restrooms, concessions, a deck and a meeting room.

● Phase III will renovate an existing lodge built in 1921 and cabins. Currently no funding is available.

Though the township has received past grants, fundraising must continue. Those who are interested in participating should watch for future fundraisers. For more information, call the Parks and Rec. Department at 625-8223.

community effort that's made "this gem a reality," Stuart said. "It shows what can happen when people do get together and cooperate."

Township planning commissioner Carolyn Place said the beach house became that reality, thanks to a "Bottles For Building" bottle-recycling project that began in the '70s. Place and the late Lewis Wint were

'T here are a lot of people who didn't think this would be a reality - but here we are.'

Ann Conklin, Twp. parks and rec director that project's chairs.

Designated for a future township building, the "seed" money, around $72,000 with its accumulated interest, said Conklin, was ironically enough for a matching grant from the state's Department of Natural Resources.

"I was telling Dan Travis how great I feel," said Place, a smile breaking over her face. When she, Lewis and Conklin first visited the setting years ago and "saw all those trees and the lake, I said, 'Wow!'"

The property saw various uses over the years before it became Bay Court, said Conklin. From 1920 to 1942 it was a Boy Scout camp, for example. From the mid to late '70s it "sat vacant," she added.

"We had some vision to save it, to salvage this property," Travis said. The township didn't want to see it fall victim to developers. "It was a camp. It should continue as a park-like use." And now, with the new beach house, "It's just a terrific facility," he added.

This is

BEAR country!

A bear in sneakers; a bear in surgical scrubs; a bear in a purple Harley motorcycle shirt.

Some Clarkston kids used their imaginations July 10 in dressing up their favorite Teddy bears for a picnic that was part of the summer reading program at the Independence Township Library.

The program, dubbed BEAR (Be Eager About Reading) Country, brings kids something fun and educational to do over the summer months. For 10 weeks, grades 1-3, dubbed "the Brown Bears" meet in the morning; grades 4-5 meet in the afternoon under the banner of "The Grizzlies." They play games, hear stories and have visits from interesting guests.

Children's librarian Anne Rose said 90-100 children attend the morning session; 30-40 in the afternoons. About 25 older children volunteered to help out, some of whom are graduates of the program themselves, some who just love to come to the library.

Last week it was Teddy BEAR picnic day and kids were invited to dress up their bears for games and a treasure hunt, followed by bear-shaped cookies for treats. In the afternoon group, Brooke Turk said so far this summer the kids had played games, heard a storyteller, and investigated music. Oh—and they read too. "We check books out after classes," she said.

Rose said she was being enthusiastically assisted by 17-year-old Sarah Phillips. She credited Sarah with coming up with lots of interesting things for the kids to do. "She's an unusual person in doing all these things," Rose said.

Sing along, play along, laugh along Audience participation was the name of the game July 9 as the creator of Max the Moose came to town.

About 100 people turned out under sunny skies and balmy temperatures for a visit from Marc Thomas at Independence Oaks County Park's Cohn Amphitheater. Most of them left wearing big grins.

Thomas played guitars and pulled kids up on stage to take part in his funny songs. When they weren't up on stage, the audience was likely to have something to do, like clapping on cue or singing a certain word in a certain place. Never content to have someone just sitting, Thomas sometimes gave his listeners as much as three things to do, then watched them laugh at each other as they invariably messed up.

Thomas is listed in the Michigan Touring Arts Directory and has played all over Michigan, including in schools, theaters and educational conferences.
