Village Bookstore to close by end of September

BY EILEEN McCARVILLE Clarkston News Staff Writer

After two years of running a business, Edith Smith is getting ready to close the books. For good.

The Village Bookstore owner announced last Thursday that she plans to close her downtown Main St. business by the end of the month. September 30 will be her last day. She has no plans to relocate.

"There is no business," Smith said, during a short telephone interview. "There isn't enough business because I don't have enough customers." Smith did not wish to discuss the specifics of why she's closing. She declined further comment.

Owned by Dr. John Stevenson, the building containing the bookstore also houses his dentistry business, the new Republic Bank and several upstairs apart-

Stevenson rented space to Republic after Milieu, a clothing store, moved out two months ago. He has no prospective tenants for the bookstore space, but says he might use it to expand his dental office. "But I'd prefer to keep it retail," said Stevenson, expressing empathy for the continued decline of downtown business.

"A lot of people are upset about (NBD Bank) leaving because that brought a lot of people downtown." Smith has suggested that Stevenson find another owner for the book store business, but Stevenson says that's "iffy" because parking problems and other factors make it difficult for a retail business to survive.

Main St. business owner Buck Kopietz, who owns both Tierra and Millpond Inn, estimates the bookstore has existed in Clarkston for 14 years, with three different owners.

A few years ago the downtown lost long-time tore Hallman's Apothecary. This month the bar is leaving and, just a couple of days ago Morgan's Service discontined its gasoline sales, after 32 years. Residents and business owners are alarmed. Is their quaint, beloved "village" drawing its last breath when it comes to needed services and retail?

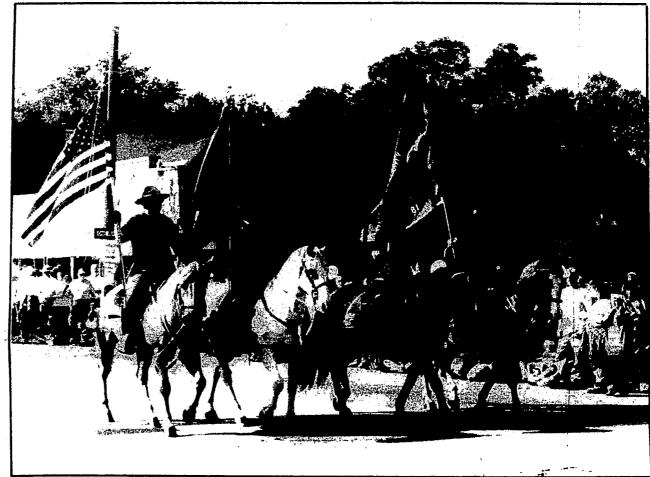

"Every person is kind of burnt out, blown down," said Dave Chiappelli, owner of Main St.'s Clarkston Hair Design. "Hopefully there will be someone who says 'I can do it.' It may not be a bookstore, but it'll be Chiappelli says downtown business is "niche" business. In other words, folks have to come downtown for something special. It's not about competition, he feels, with big boxes like KMART, for example.

The bookstore is one of those special businesses, Chiappelli says. "Although you don't see it, the tears are flowing inside. I have loved that bookstore."

Chiappelli has experienced "some of the same See BOOKS, page 19A

Township eyes housing for elderly

Senior boom inevitable, Vision 2020 planner says

BY EILEEN McCARVILLE

According to the book "Age Wave," changing demographics predict America's 76 million babyboomers will live longer — and better — that their forefathers. Independence Township wants to prepare for that inevitability.

Last Thursday township planning commissioners continued a discussion on elderly housing that began two weeks ago at the Aug. 14 meeting. Keeping in line with Vision 2020 philosophy, planner Dick Carlisle told commissioners they should consider both independent and assisted living as the area's aging population grows.

Vision 2020, a plan designed to guide the township's development into the next century, was the "impetus" for senior housing, Carlisle said. Studies showed "the necessity for this kind of housing ... housing that supports a relatively independent style of living."

or the longest period of time I have heard the need for this type of housing."

Commissioner Dan Travis

He defined independent housing as that in which elderly residents would need very little assistance to continue their former lifestyles, and assisted living as that in which seniors would function nearly independently, but need some help with daily tasks like getting

Both differ from traditional "convalescent care" or nursing-home type care, and both are needed in the township, he said.

The task that lies before the township is creating the proper zoning category. Currently, such housing could be established in existing multiple-family zoning, which typically addresses structures like apartments

School district to host forum

Clarkston school officials, including superintendent Dr. Al Roberts and the board of education, invite residents to a public forum to discuss upcoming construction projects.

The meeting is scheduled for Monday, Sept. 15, 7-9:30 p.m. at Clarkston Elementary School's multi-purpose room. The meeting will focus on educational specifications for a new elementary school and the additions and remodeling planned for older buildings. Both projects were approved by the voters in June.

Don't forget this weekend's Taste of Independence

At presstime restaurants serving their specialties at Independence Township's "Taste of Independence," sponsored by the Parks and Recreation Department this Sunday, were still changing but included the following: Clarkston Union, Cook's Farm Dairy, Gregg's Gourmet Cafe, Las Piramides, Meals on Wheels, Mr. B's Roadhouse, Pete's Coney, Rudy's Market and Dairy Oueen.

The entertainment lineup is as follows: Dexter Mayworm, master of ceremonies; the Ron DeRoo instrumental jazz ensemble; Waterford Village Elementary Chorus, a children's choir; "Take Five," a Clarkston High School brass quintet; Julia & Keith Kohring, trumpet/piano; Jonathan Barnes, piano; Jonathon Moniaci, piano; Meghan Murphy, vocalist; Brandon Robertson as Child "Elvis" and Jack Thompson as Adult "Elvis." A silent auction is also included.

"Taste of Independence" takes place Sept. 7 from 4 p.m. to 8 p.m. at Bay Court Park, 6970 Andersonville Rd. in Independence Township. For

Liquor store robbed for second time in a week

Nearly a week after being robbed the first time, The Liquor Cabinet at 6450 Dixie Highway, was robbed at gunpoint Saturday night.

At the latest robbery, two white males, around 18 and 15 years of age, got away with $2,500 in cash and four books of lottery tickets. The older male placed a book bag on the counter and told an employee to "put all the money in the bag and don't do anything funny."

The pair then fled on foot in a westerly direction from the store. Three people witnessed the two running behind the Outback Steakhouse construction site.

A K-9 dog was brought out to follow the trail, which led to an apartment complex on Maple. A dark blue jacket, shirt and a roll of duct tape were found along the trail.

The employee said the older male was around 5-feet 7-inches tall with a thin build and a thin brown mustache. The younger suspect was 5-11 with a thin build. He had a blue scarf pulled over his mouth and didn't say anything during the robbery.

Detective Mike Key, who is investigating the first robbery for the Oakland County Sheriff's Department Independence substation was not available for comment as to whether the two robberies are thought to be related.

Ditched World War II plane soars again

Clarkston team restores plane salvaged from Lake Michigan, local cable TV crew records it

BY ANNETTE KINGSBURY Clarkston News Editor

On June 21, 1943 a Grumman F4F-3 Wildcat Navy plane attempting a takeoff from a makeshift aircraft carrier went down in Lake Michigan during a training flight. It was World War II, after Pearl Harbor, and the US was struggling to find ways to train its pilots while keeping them out of danger from the enemy.

Pilot George Hahn had already completed a couple of successful takeoffs and landings, but this time something went wrong and the plane ditched. Hahn was rescued but the plane sank in 220 feet of water.

Fast forward to 1991. The US Navy hired a firm, Worldwide Aircraft Recovery, to salvage some planes from World War II. One of them was Dodds.'

The chronicle of how the plane was completely restored by two men with Clarkston connections has just been turned into a video, thanks to volunteers at the Clarkston TCI public access studio. The video debuted Aug. 18 to an audience that included the plane's restorers. They were wowed by the results.

Dave Kensler, president of Kenrick Corp., a Clarkston insurance firm, bought the plane. He asked Michael Dodman, a mechanic who worked on the company's planes, to restore it. It was a labor of love that took three years to complete.

The saga began when Kensler went to the Oshkosh, WI air show in 1978 and fell in love with some privately owned military planes he saw there. In 1988 he bought his first plane and learned to fly.

After the Wildcat was salvaged from the lake, Dodman heard about it and all too easily convinced his boss to spend a quarter of a million dollars to buy it.

"I looked at it for about an hour and said 'Yeah, Dave, we can do this,' Dodman said. Kensler said it was fate.

"It was waiting, literally, my whole life to be found," he said.

Once the purchase was made and the plane delivered to the Oakland International Airport, reality set in. That's also about the time Larry Smith, himself a World War II bomber pilot and a "hanger rat," as Kensler described him, learned about the project. Smith, a TCI volunteer, and Michael Gay, a TCI employee young enough to be his grandson, went on to coproduce the video about the project.

"I had an idea," Smith said. "I wanted to tell the story of the people and the plane, the time and effort, the blood and sweat."

Smith jokes that Gay "was in kindergarten when we started and now he's going to Michigan State in two weeks... It seems that long." Gay said, "I wanted to get it done before I left. The last couple of weeks was a crunch. The last month we probably spent two or three days a week."

Cable coordinator Erin Devlin said "Almost as interesting as the documentary was the relationship between Michael and Larry."

The same can probably be said of Dodman and Kensler. Though Kensler was the money man, he acknowledges that Dodman, a Clarkston High School graduate, is the one who made the project possible.

Over the three years it took to restore the plane, the two found the original pilot, saw the accident report of the crash, and meticulously restored the plane so that it's over 90 percent original Grumman.

Because they intended for the plane to be flown, they had to make a few concessions to current FAA rules. But authenticity was a priority, and they ended up with the only fully restored original Wildcat in the world.

Amazingly, the plane was in remarkably good condition after 48 years under water. And the landing had been so expertly handled that there was little damage. Many components, including some made of wood, were able to be retained. Some parts, such as the gun sight, were still useable. The carburetor only needed cleaning.

The engine wasn't found with the plane but was salvaged later and underwent a separate, year-long restoration in California. The team was able to document that it is the original engine from their plane.

Dodman and Kensler estimate that 18,000 man hours went into the restoration. Of that, 12,000 were by Dodman, the rest by a team of volunteers.

"Everyone had the same goal and that was bringing it back to life," said Ron Hinman, a volunteer and self-confessed "history nut." "It was just like a family member."

When the restoration was completed and the plane was ready for a test flight, there was yet to be another irony. The team recruited Bill Dodds as the test pilot. As Kensler tells it, Dodds was 8 years old when a Wildcat ditched on his school playground in Long Island and he got to sit in it. He'd been waiting to do it again ever since.

On June 20, 1995, 52 years after it went down, the plane took off from the Oakland airport and returned to the skies. Dodds is seen on the video finishing his preflight check and pronouncing the plane "just like it came out of the factory." As "Don't Sit Under the Apple Tree" plays in the background, the plane is seen soaring over cheering supporters. Someone says in amazement, "Look at it fly!"

"It was a very emotional time," Kensler said. "When the plane left the ground I was looking at Mike to see his reaction... We wouldn't be here today if it wasn't for his dedication and talent."

Dodman said he was happy, scared and worried. In the video he says, "When it finally lifted off and was 300 or 400 feet in the air it was relief... I had tears coming out of my eyes." Then he chokes up and adds, "I do now."

Dodds went on to fly the Wildcat in the 1995 Oshkosh air show, where it won Reserve Grand Champion in the World War II class and received the Lindy Award, named after Charles Lindberg. Dodman won the Golden Wrench Award for craftsmanship. Hahn, the original pilot, was there to see it soar again.

"It was very gratifying," Kensler said.

The ending of the story is this: the plane was sold in May to a collector in Olympia, Washington and is now being flown on the West Coast air show circuit. After all that hard work, how could they?

"It was all the money I had," Kensler said.
"Unfortunately we don't have the ability to keep it."
The selling price, he would only say, was "a lot." But a plaque inside the plane will show forever who restored it.

Dodds has since died, and in 1995 Kensler crashed another plane he bought. Though there are other planes, he and Dodman agreed that for them, there'll never be another project like the Wildcat.

"I couldn't have asked for more," Dodman said.
"I love doing that kind of work; I've always loved it."

The documentary will be shown on TCI's public access Channel 65 in the Clarkston area. Check listings for showtimes. Gay said they also hope to market the half-hour video to other educational stations, such as the Public Broadcasting Service.

Get me to the church on time

New pastor splits her duties between three parishes

BY EILEEN McCARVILLE Clarkston News Staff Writer

If you see a car pass carrying a white-robed minister, relax. It's not the Flying Nun.

It's just the Rev. Gretchen Denton, a new church lady in Clarkston, who took over the responsibility of managing three local congregations Aug. 15.

She will dash from Sashabaw Presbyterian in Clarkston to Atonement Presbyterian and Lakeland Presbyterian in Waterford, preaching and getting acquainted with their parishes. A member from "pulpit supply" will fill in when needed, she says.

Relaxing in one of her offices, at Sashabaw Presbyterian last week, Denton compares the role to that of the traveling preacher or "circuit rider," established by the Wesleyan Society in 1785 America.

According to an edition of Encyclopedia Americana, the role was created to help "mature a civilization on the America Frontier." Seven circuits were organized in the West and the South, as envisioned by founder John Wesley.

"These lonely missionaries would go forth to organize churches and congregations ... In remarkable short time, the circuit rider became as much a fixed character on the frontier as the hunter and the land speculator," states the text. "Although he is usually pictured as gaunt, poorly clad, and riding a bony mount, the circuit rider had a nose for the location of religion-starved settlers."

Denton certainly does not fit the profile of the deprived spiritual messenger atop a starving steed. But she admits it will be a challenge to maneuver her shiny purple Chrysler to three different parishes.

Her services are badly needed. Currently, none of the three churches can pay a tull-time minister's salary, and all need a leader while in transition.

It's her calling, says Denton, matter-of-factly.

"It's really interesting work ... I'm trying to help these churches discover their future. My vision is that all of these three churches will have made some decision on what they are called to do."

Denton and her husband Doug recently moved from Ohio to Rochester Hills and have two grown-up daughters, Michele and Lisa, in their early twenties.

It wasn't until a few years ago that she decided to enter the ministry, after a long career as a high school home economics teacher. Asked why, the down-toearth pastor quips, "I've often wondered that."

It might have something to do with her volunteerism. Among her interests are women's rights, and Denton has been active with the League of Women Voters.

She was inspired when she attended a national Presbyterian peace-making conference in Washington, D.C. and "actually saw women ministers in action."

That was the impetus. Her children, then in middle and high school, didn't need her as much at home and "I wanted to return to some kind of employment. I guess I was at this point in my life with ...'What's next?"" In 1990 she graduated from the seminary.

Her background also helped prepare her for the "circuit-rider" role. "I grew up in a two-point parish, which is two small churches served by one minister," Denton explains. "I suppose you could call this three-point," she laughs.

Denton has never had a parish of her own, but isn't surprised. The church still has a long way to go when it comes to hiring full-time females, she says.

The Rev. Gretchen Denton will drive her circuitriding "steed"--a shiny, purple Chrysler, to three area churches each week.

"It's more difficult as a woman to get a permanent position (as a minister)," But, she adds, this is "the kind of work I like."

At all three churches Denton will preach Sunday services, conduct Bible study groups, sit on governing boards and try to think of ways to attract youth, a group which is sadly lacking.

Denton thinks it's because church members are either "very young or very old." Places like Mt. Zion's Youth Center, set to open this month, may draw more youngsters, she hopes.

Some day she'd like her own permanent parish, but like all dedicated pastors, Denton aspires to where she's needed most.

For now, she's getting acquainted with the area, as well as her congregations. One member even took her for a boat ride on Lake Oakland "so I got to see the community from the water AND from the roads," she See CHURCH, page 19A

Opening their hearts to foreign students

Clarkston family finds joy in cultural exchange

BY ANNETTE KINGSBURY Clarkston News Editor

Raising three teenagers at once might be enough for most parents. But for Cindy and Ben Benson, there's always room for one more. For the second year in a row they have opened their home to a foreign exchange student through an organization known as Youth for Understanding.

For the Bensons, who live in a welcoming home that shouts "family" in Independence Township, the experience has been nothing short of great. Last year they shared their home with Yumiko, a Japanese girl who won their hearts. This year their new family member is Laura Hompisch, 16, who recently arrived from Germany.

According to Cindy Benson, it all has to do with giving something back. When she was in her 20s she lived in Germany for four years and was taken in by a family there. She became fluent in German, has taught the language and now helps the foreign-born, including employees of foreign auto firms, learn English.

"I thought I'd like to pay back," she said. "The idea's been in my head for a long time."

Many organizations now sponsor exchange students. Cindy Benson remembered the American Friends Service from high school, but learned that Clarkston schools only accept students from YFU. After researching the organization, the family has never regretted the decision to go with YFU.

"It was one of those things where everything came together," Cindy Benson said. "I wanted to know what kind of recourse was there if it didn't work out for everybody." Citing another family where the match didn't work out well, she said, "YFU was right in there in a situation that could have been disastrous."

Students undergo orientation and both sides fill out questionnaires. Host families are allowed to express preferences, such as boy or girl, no smoking, etc. Cultural differences are discussed so, hopefully, there

Ending the confusion

My favorite school-bus memory is a scene I witnessed a couple of years ago, when, driving down Rochester Rd. south of Leonard just after school had gotten out, I was travelling behind a bus. At one corner the bus stopped and a cute little girl got out. Waiting for her was her adorable cat, its face uplifted as she came down the stairs. Then they walked off together.

But each year, as the start of school approaches, my little nagging insecurity about school buses returns. I wonder if I'm the only one who feels it.

As the big yellow buses hit the roads, I want to do the right thing. It's just that for the last couple of years, I've felt a bit confused about all the flashing lights. It used to be easy; the only lights that flashed were red and you knew you were supposed to stop. But now they also have flashing yellow lights. Then sometimes they just put on a turn signal. What's a driver to do?

This year I decided to do something about it, so I called Clarkston schools' transportation director Kevin Bickerstaff. He was kind, as always, and didn't laugh at my confusion, though he said it's not something he gets a lot of questions about. But he did understand.

"What's confusing," he said, "is the older buses used to be all red (lights)." This year is the first year that all of the newer-style buses are on the road, so all are equipped with the same kinds of lights, red and yellow.

The system is this, he said. "Treat it like a stoplight. Yellow means caution; red means stop." OK—simple enough.

A graphic from AAA reinforces that. It shows that on all buses, yellow lights flashing means proceed with caution and be prepared to stop, as the bus may be getting ready to. If red lights are flashing, you must stop no closer than 20 feet from the bus. When the lights are shut off, you can proceed.

Every year you see drivers who don't seem to know what to do. I know of several people who've been rear-ended as they waited for a stopped bus. You wonder how you can miss seeing all that traffic stopped directly in front of you, especially the big yellow ones.

AAA wants us all to know that this is a serious problem. Traffic crashes lead all causes of death and injury among children age 14 and under in the US.

"Knowing isn't enough. Drivers need to actually slow down in all residential areas—not just in school zones—so they have extra time to react to the unexpected child who darts into the road without looking," says AAA's Jerry Basch.

Amen to that. Along with kids getting on and off buses, I find that bus stops generate a lot of other traffic. There's mom seeing the kids off. She might be carrying a baby too. Then there's the cat or dog also seeing the kids off, and the traffic backed up in either direction. If it's raining or there's construction, it's even worse.

While it's no fun to get behind a bus making frequent stops when you're on your way to work, such is the price we pay for getting kids to school in semi-rural areas such as Clarkston. As long as we want the convenience, we have to put up with the rest. So buckle up, and watch those flashing lights.

Oppose museum in bank

Dear editor

As residents of Clarkston we cannot support the proposed donation of a viable commercial piece of property for a museum. Removing the current NBD building from commercial use would further erode a downtown that needs to add businesses rather than take away more of the tax base. We are supporters of the heritage and history of this fine community but, as with all communities, business serves as an important part of our future and must be encouraged and supported.

We lived in the neighboring community of Oxford for 11 years and visited the historical museum only once while living there. As residents of Oxford we used most, if not all, of the commercial businesses in town, and often lamented if one closed. The location of Oxford's museum seemed like an empty hole in the business district and was not well used, nor in our opinion a good use.

The downtown area of Clarkston needs to remain a viable commercial endeavor, with services to serve the citizens on a daily basis. Surely, as members of the banking industry, NBD understands the importance of keeping the downtown area healthy and prosperous. We understand that NBD's decision is a business decision. We hope that you will consider the long range impact and keep the building serving the interests of the total population.

We are not opposed to the idea of preservation, and we are not opposed to any of the citizens proposing the museum. We only ask that the building remain as a commercial use property.

Sincerely, James and Sandra Conlen

Jim's Jottings

By Jim Sherman

He's a sandwich short of a picnic

Before he retired as creative director at Sherman Publications, I asked Bill Ardelan to write some of his sayings that describe people we've all known.

The headline on this column is one of them. I think he might have had me in mind on that one on one of our not-so-smooth days.

You're familiar with these references to people who may not be driving their car to your liking, or who do off-beat things. Haven't you said, "That guy's only got one oar in the water."

Or, "He's not playing with a full deck;" "He's dumber than a box of rocks;" "He could get lost in a phone booth;" "That biological misfit couldn't even make a lap."

Bill Ardelan came up with those in a minute and a half, while never taking his eyes off me.

Well, through diligent research and dumb (my kind) luck we've come up with some more you may have used, are free to use, or can completely ignore. Add he, she or they in front.

15 YEARS AGO (1982)

It's back to school as planned Tuesday morning, despite the lack of a new contract between Clarkston Education Association and Clarkston schools. Contrary to a television news report, a tentative agreement has not been reached between the district and the teachers, superintendent Milford Mason says.

In what's been called a "binding ballot," adult leaders of Camp Fire Inc. are being asked to vote for or against the sale of Camp Oweki, a 120-acre parcel on the shores of Gulick Lake in Independence Township. The question of selling was raised two years ago when Camp Fire officials weighed the need to cut services over the feasibility of keeping the camp.

Winners from the Labor Day parade include the Rotary Club for its best-theme float, featuring a large cake honoring Clarkston's 150th birthday; Mr. G's Pac-Man float; and Barbara Fry, of Clarkston Community Women's Club, who takes first-place in the costume category.

25 YEARS AGO (1972)

The Independence Township Board of Trustees votes unanimously for interim zoning to larger lot sizes in the Reese Rd. area. The temporary measures will halt small-home developments on small lots in the rural Reese area north of I-75. About 20 area residents protest to the board about the Heritage Heights Sub proposal to build 69 homes on 30 acres behind Reese Rd. homes. The present density is 18 homes to 40 acres, resident spokesperson Richard Marshall says.

Dick Purtan, popular WXYZ-radio disc jockey, will emcee the Pine Knob program sponsored by Clarkston Area Jaycees next Sunday. For $2, a patron can hear Lorio; see Mr. Whoodini, CKLW-TV personality, perform his magic; call up memories with the Waterford Jaycee 1894 Washboard Band; and listen to the mellow barbershopping of the Rolling Tones. Proceeds will benefit the Jaycees.

50 YEARS AGO (1947)

Clarkston's Labor Day parade is said to be the best ever, with lots of children and balloons. Bill Radoye and his band make a good showing and everyone is delighted with the beautiful horses and ponies, as well as other animals like dogs, cats, a rabbit and a duck. First prizes for costumes go to Sharon and Elaine Crosby as Raggedy Ann and Andy; and to Janet Sue and Johnny Willoughby as The Old Woman Who Lived in a Shoe and Humpty-Dumpty. Folks are already planning for next year. There is some talk of floats.

Playing at the Holly Theatre are Roy Rogers and Dale Evans in "Bells of San Angelo" and Ronald Reagan and Alexis Smith in "Stallion Road." Showing at the Drayton Theatre are Sidney Greenstreet and Martha Vickers in "That Way With Women" and Bob Hope and Dorothy Lamour in "My Favorite Brunette."

Specials at Terry's Market include ready-to-roll pie crust, 23 cents a package; pure pork sausage, 45 cents a pound; grapefruit juice, a 46-ounce can for 23 cents; and Spry shortening, a 3-pound can for $1.05.

60 YEARS AGO (1937)

Michigan 4-H boys and girls will vie for competitions and state 4-H championships at the Michigan State Fair this week. Among them is Harriet Beckman of Clarkston, who is entered in canning judging.

The county gets eight more roadside picnic tables, thanks to an expansion of the state highway department roadside development policy. Clarkston will get an additional table on M-15, 6.7 miles north of the village.

Specials at Rudy's include Miracle Whip, 37 cents a quart; short ribs, 15 cents a pound; oleo, two pounds for a quarter; Jello, a nickel a package; and Lafer brothers Coffee, 29 cents a pound.

County announces new toll-free line

Oakland County residents can now call county government on its own dime.

The county has announced a new toll-free number for reaching each of its departments. The number is 1-888-350-0900. An operator will assist you if you don't know the extension of the department you wish to reach.

department you wish to reach.

"The new toll-free number is designed to greatly improve the public's accessibility to county services," said county executive L. Brooks Patterson. "This is just another way we hope to make dealing with county government a pleasant experience."

Glory days

It was with a certain amount of pride when I read that the old high school football team — The Clarkston Wolves — were ranked No. 15 in the nation by USA Today. (No, not the team from the Class of '81 — but the boys wearing the blue and gold these days).

Since the summer before 8th grade this time of year is a special time of year. It's football time. I can remember the smells, the action, the players and most of the coaches. All the funny little scenes stored in my memory that I haven't thought about in a year suddenly are replayed.

Krueger, Warner, Richardson, Wynimko, DJ Marsh, Martin, DJ Campe, Smith — coaches that helped shape and discipline young teenaged testosterone . . "I see their smiles and see the berserker look in their eyes and hear the rapid-fire string of unintelligible, but unmistakably colorful metaphors preceding or following commands and certain players'

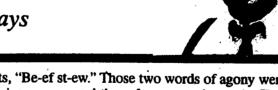

Ah, the good old days.

Some of the memories I have mentally categorized, for example "Throwing Up & Passing Out."

Beached Porpoise (at that time is didn't qualify for the Shamu or whale status). From Coach Krueger Richardson during conditioning week: "If you don't puke you're not trying hard enough!"

Cache form his) — Einstein. From Coach Campe Beached Porpoise (at that time is didn't qualify for the Shamu or whale status). From Coach Krueger — "@&^%$@##@! RUSH!" or "RUSH @&^%$@##@!" used interchangeably.

From frequently picked on buddy fom Roberts, "Be-ef st-ew." Those two words of agony were during a game and the only reason given why Tom looked pale and couldn't play.

In ninth grade, as practice wound down, under the scorching August sun, at the end of windsprints as Coach Krueger barked out, "SET, GO!," as the world turned green around me, I realized why I was falling under the goal-post: "Corn Flakes." Apparently, three bowls of Corn Flakes with whole milk before morning practice isn't a good practice.

Probably the classic moment of Coachdom was DJ Marsh showing us how to kick a field goal — he lined up, took the steps, swung his foot and landed on his keister in the mud. (Has anybody ever seen Charlie Brown kick a football . . . you get the picture.) He smiled when he got up.

I had many nick-names in high school football: From Coach Richardson — Astro (which, to him and a number of players from those days, still sticks). From Coach Wynimko (after I tried to convince him of a superior blocking strategy — which differed from his) — Einstein. From Coach Campe — Beached Porpoise (at that time didn't qualify for the Shamu or whale status). From Coach Krueger — "@&^%$@##@! RUSH!" or "RUSH @&%$@##@!" used interchangeably.

KATIE McARTHUR, C L A R K S T O N: Overall it was pretty good except for these last few weeks. Cold and rainy. A bummer It's too bad to end the summer this way with everybody going back to school.

QUESTION: What are the long-range implications of raising a strong-willed child? What can we expect as the years go by?

DR. DOBSON: Well, I can give you a few encouraging conclusions from our study. The tendencies of strong-willed children (SWCs) are to return to parental values when they reach adulthood. Parents told us that 85 percent of their grown SWCs (24 years of age and older) came back to what they had been taught-entirely or at least "somewhat." That is good news. Only 15 percent were so headstrong that they rejected their family's core values in their mid-twenties. In those exceptional cases, I'll wager that other problems and sources of pain were involved.

What this means, in effect, is that these toughminded kids will argue and fight and complain throughout their years at home, but the majority will turn around when they reach young adulthood and do what their parents most desired. That should be reassuring. Furthermore, if we could have evaluated these individuals at 35 instead of 24 years of age, even fewer would still be in rebellion against parental values.

Second, raising a strong-willed child (or a house full of them) can be a lonely job for parents. You can begin to feel like yours is the only family that has gone through these struggles. Don't believe it. In another study of 3,000 parents, we found that 85 percent of families had at least one strong-willed child. This is parenthood. This is human nature.

Third, I urge you as parents of strong-willed children not to feel "cheated" or depressed by the assignment of raising such individuals. You are not an exception or the butt of some cruel cosmic joke. All human beings arrive with a generous assortment of flaws, including the very compliant child. Yes, it is more difficult to raise an independent little fellow or gal, but you can do it! You can, through prayer and supplication before the Lord, bring him or her to that period of harmony in early adulthood that makes the effort worthwhile. I also believe that you can increase the odds of transmitting your values to these individuals by following some time-honored principles found in scripture. So hang in there! Nothing of value in life comes easy anyway.

Hold tightly to Solomon's encouraging words, "Train up a child in the way he should go: and when he is old, he will not depart from it." (Prov. 22.6

New face behind the piano at CHS

BY ANNETTE KINGSBURY Clarkston News Editor

When Grayce Warren decided to retire as Clarkston High School's longtime Director of Choirs, everyone knew her successor would have big shoes to fill.

But that's no problem for the new guy, Mike Peterson. You see, he got his introduction to vocal music from Warren, as a student and then as a student teacher.

Peterson attended Clarkston schools from first through 12th grade. He was active in band and theater before former theater teacher "Ma" Gibson suggested he might want to try choir, the better to get a good role in the annual spring musical.

After graduation in 1986, Peterson went on to Central Michigan University, where he received his bachelor of music education degree with a choral emphasis.

"I've always known I wanted to be a teacher; I was told I would make a good teacher," Peterson, whose father is also a teacher, said. "I just had to figure out what subject I wanted to teach."

After student teaching under Warren at CHS in 1992, Peterson taught in Reese (MI), near Saginaw for three years, covering instrumental, choral and general music classes for all the grades. Last year he spent back at CMU, working on his master's degree and teaching two undergraduate classes in the choral department. Though he's not quite done with his degree work, the opportunity to come back home to Clarkston was too good to pass up.

"I always wanted to; it was always my lifelong dream to come back and teach here," he said. "It's probably one of the few schools in the state to have a full-time high-school vocal music teacher."

Peterson acknowledges that Warren made the vocal music program what it is today, and that his education here, both in band and choir, prepared him well for college and his career.

"My last year here, out of the seven hours I think I had four of music. For somebody that knows they want to go into music, it's great . . . I was very well prepared."

Having said that, Peterson admitted it's a bit weird working alongside his former teachers. Besides Warren and Gibson, he counts Director of Bands Cliff Chapman as among his biggest influences. A trumpet player, Peterson spent two years as the CHS drum major. Now, Chapman's his department head.

"A lot of the teachers are still here," he said. "It's interesting."

Peterson met his wife at CMU when he was drum major and she was a member of the marching band. She is a supervisor in the day care program at Oakland Community College, and they are currently living with his parents, who live in Ortonville. They have one child.

As for what students can expect of him, Peterson said his personal style will be somewhat of a change.

"I have a different demeanor about myself. Grayce was definitely a disciplinarian. She was a wonderful teacher when kids did exactly what she wanted them to do. But I'm more the easy-going teacher. Things don't bother me as much. I let kids be kids."

That doesn't mean he won't be taking pointers from Warren, whom he's still in touch with. And it doesn't mean his students won't be challenged when it comes to the music they'll learn. His goal is to introduce his students to as much music as possible during their high-school careers.

"They need to know there are thousands and thousands of pieces of music out there they can learn," he said. "They learn they'll be challenged every day they're here."

However as a former CHS student, Peterson is aware that there are certain traditions, songs students look forward to performing as they move up in the grades as has been done for years. He's OK with that.

"There are traditions I think are great traditions. There would have to be a lot of push for me not to do it," he said.

However he would like to start some new traditions of his own. One is to break up concerts so all the choirs don't have to perform in one evening, making it more comfortable for the audience and allowing the choirs to stretch, musically speaking.

"There isn't any reason why two or three groups can't do a full concert, at least an hour," he said.

Another goal he has is starting up a "festival" choir, one that would include both students and adults from the community. It would perform a major choral work, with orchestra, once a year. "We can do maybe the Messiah, a major piece, in spring or fall," he said. "It's nice in that the community and the kids come together." He has experience with such a group at CMU, where up to 300 singers participate.

Peterson said students have already approached him, during his first week of school, about starting a show choir after school. He's open to that idea too.

"All the choirs we have during the day are more serious literature," he said. "If I can get the music and I think it's appropriate, a pops concert is a fun thing to do."

As a performer himself, Peterson can relate to all kinds of music. He's fluent in singing in foreign languages and works on weekends singing at weddings and funerals. Then there's his piano playing, which he's been at since third grade.

"One of my first loves is jazz, just sitting down and playing," he said. "I love doing that. It's kind of a release."

Concerts scheduled so far this fall for the CHS vocal music department are October 30 and December 17.

Whether you have totally organized your "notes," researched completely "your" lines or simply are just starting out, we have something to make you happy!

Sept. 13th, the meeting of the Pontiac Area Historical and Genealogical Society will offer a workshop, open to the public to acquaint you with the Family History Centers in the L.D.S. (Latter Day Saints) or Mormon Genealogy Library.

The teacher will be Kate Macom from Grand Blanc Stake Church.

She offers help that is available to all, and her experience in personal family research is an added "borus."

The meeting will be held in the lower level of the Pontiac Public Library from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. and if you are not a current member of our Society, please register for us by calling by Sept. 10th. Our phone number at home is 248-373-2629 and you can leave your name address and phone number if you get the "voice mail."

Of interest to everyone is ways to document your "lines" and information and Marie English has provided us with enough material on all of her "findings" to cover half of Oakland County. Her mother, the late Ethel LaLone left a legacy of years that Marie is just now discovering time to explore. We have gathered much of sharing to print in the P.A.H.A.G.S. quarterly, ready in October, if our plans are able to be realized.

To whet your appetite, in one picture from the Tower Genealogy we were able to find ties of following pioneer families: 1) Charles Tower, 2) Frank Dewey; 3) Hannah Brown Tower (mother); 4) Isadore Tower Hathaway; 5) Alice Tower Baily Looney; 6) Jessie Tower Looney; 7) Ray Dewey; 8) Jerome Hathaway; 9) Robert Looney.

These families pioneered "Mahopac," Lake Orion, Pontiac and even Lapeer County with their arrival in Mich. from New York state in the early 1800's.

We were given a photo album that tied these families with the Olmstead family, as well. The endless chain adds new links each day, as we put the pieces together.

As we progress toward the next century, much remains to be done to hand our history to the next generation, so we are busily starting with kindergarteners and will be "loaded for bear" with "4-Bearers."

Hoping you can meet with us on Sept. 13. We'll be looking for you, hoping our sharing with each other will bring about new means of building the future

Happy Hunting.

Concert features conservatory faculty

The Clarkston Conservatory will present "An Afternoon of Song" on Sunday, Sept. 14 at 4 p.m. at Clarkston United Methodist Church.

The event will cover opera to Broadway and feature tenor Gordon Finlay, soprano Trina Knowlton and pianist Toma Schwartz. All three are on the faculty at the conservatory.

Finlay is a graduate of the University of Michigan and has sung leading operatic roles in the US and Europe. Much in demand as an instructor, he is also a member of the Christ Church Cranbrook choir and a voice faculty member at Wayne State University.

Knowlton is a soloist and member of the professional octet at Christ Church and has been a church organist, choir director and double-reed player. She studies voice with Finlay.

Schwartz performed in Europe before immigrating to the US in 1965. A graduate of the Cluj Conservatory, he has been on the faculty of Bowling Green State University and currently is on the faculty at WSU.

Tickets for the concert are $10 and are available by calling 625-3640. The next concert in the series will be a memorial to conservatory founder Ivan Rouse, scheduled for Oct. 26.

What's the new gas tax costing you?

Here's a handy way to calculate the damages, thanks to SEMCOG, the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments.

Each Michigan motorist pays a 19-cent state gas tax and an 18.4-cent federal gas tax for every gallon of gas purchased in Michigan.

To figure out how much you pay, you need to know how many miles you drive per year, and how many miles per gallon your vehicle gets (or, simply how many gallons of gas you buy in a year). Then multiply the number of gallons you used by .184 for your federal tax, .19 for your state tax. Using the same system, multiplying your gas consumption by .04 tells you how much the new tax is costing you.

For example, if you drive 15,000 miles a year and your car gets 25 miles to the gallon, you use 600 gallons of gas per year. Therefore you pay $114 in state gas tax, $110.40 in federal tax, and the new gas tax costs you an extra $24 a year.

According to SEMCOG, improving Michigan's roads will cost $2 billion per year. In 1996 the state spent $1.8 billion. The new gas tax is expected to help close that funding gap.

At 19 cents per gallon, Michigan's gas tax is slightly above the national average of 18.7 cents. Michigan ranks 26th out of the 50 states in its gas tax. Tops is Connecticut, where motorists shell out 39 cents per gallon.

However, "we might be looking at 40 to 50 percent more density with an elderly housing project," Carlisle said. That would be because with "less people living there, you have no cars, no children." Units would be smaller, requiring less square footage.

"(Elderly) people do not want or need that kind of space," he said.

"Support services" such as congregate dining would also take away from square footage needed for each private unit, as would recreational facilities and storage space, he added.

Regarding development proposals, Carlisle said he would prefer to look at no more than a "two-story" project, but might consider three stories if it were a matter of economics, barrier-free design and site conditions. Designs would encourage a pleasing, home-style mother found just the right housing, which was appealing with its wide hallways.

"One of the things she objected to (in the other facilities) was an institutionalized feeling," Travis said.

Carolyn Place agreed layout was very important, and explained how her mother had moved into an American House facility. "Her room is 900 square feet. When you move from your house, you want to take something with you other that a bed and dresser," Place said, noting that many families are used to larger homes nowadays.

"You have to think about the generation that is moving up. So, if you live in this huge house, you don't want to go into 400 square feet."

Other issues addressed affordability and the need to locate elderly housing in areas where seniors can walk to conveniences like shopping.

Travis said three previous proposals for elderly hosing in the township never materialized, including last year's proposal for an assisted-living facility on property behind Mr. B's.

"For the longest pe riod of time I have heard the need for this kind of housing," he said.

Several years ago a proposal to establish an assisted-living facility on vacant property at the orner of Main and Waldon also failed. The concept was not a greeted warmly by several Clarkston city council members.

Vasco Da Gama commanded the first fleet to reach India from Europe in the late 1490s.

Carlisle presented a draft of proposed regulations for elderly housing to be included in the township's zoning ordinance. He will revise the document withthe help of township attorney Gerry Fisher, working on two specifications: creating both a new zoning district and a special land use within multiple-family zoning.

Much of the property zoned multi-family in Independence has already been developed, he said.

Fisher agreed predictions show a trend.

"There's a need for this kind of housing in Independence Township and Oakland County." The township could supply that need, he said, "so people that would like to take advantage of this type of living could stay here."

"Through all their life stages," commission chair Steve Board added.

In other commission action:

. Air Touch Cellular received conceptual site plan approval, 3-2, to build a 150-foot tower on Mt. Zion Temple property, with Todd Moss and Joe Figa objecting. Jill Palulian was absent. Approval is contingent on road access, wetlands impacts, buffering and screening conditions.

A new wireless communication ordinance was recently approved by the township's Board of Trustees, encouraging co-location on existing towers, but allowing new structures to be treated case-by-case. Air Touch is the first company to request a new tower, it must return to the commission for final approval, Carlisle said.

 Two possible zoning ordinance amendments were discussed. First: A hardship planned unit development ordinance would provide a tool for property owners who must demonstrate hardship if they can't reasonably develop their property under its current zoning. Second: A special accommodation use amendment would address requests for adult foster-care facilities in the township.

Family opens home to foreign students

lots for such things as stamps and film, the family

"The only thing the host family is responsible for is room and board," Cindy Benson said. "We treat her as a daughter. If we're going out for dinner and dad pays for everybody, dad pays."

As for parental responsibility, that's taken in stride by parents with kids of their own. "We can do as good a job, or try to do, as we do with our own kids," Cindy Benson said.

"People who take in YFU kids are all familyoriented," Ben Benson added. "It's just like having another child. You treat them just like your own child."

"You don't yell at them as much," Cindy Benson added with a laugh. "All you need is humor and just to be relaxed about things. You can't be uptight and do this."

The Bensons laugh when they mention that their new exchange student, Laura, a very quiet girl, had seen "Rosanne" on TV back home and came over wondering if American family life would be like that. Yumiko had wanted to become all-American as quickly as possible.

"She would buy 'Teen' magazine. She was a chameleon. I was thinking as she went home she had a lot of changing back to do," Cindy Benson said.

The language barrier has not proven to be a problem in the Benson household. The Bensons' daughter Genevieve, 17, had studied Japanese and Cindy Benson is fluent in German. But exchange students come here to improve their English, so they try not to speak their native tongue.

"She (Yumiko) did help me a great deal on my Japanese homework," Genevieve Benson said. "I really couldn't be much help to her . . .

"Yumiko was my age and so I shared my life with her. In the end we got real close because we shared the (bed)room. We stayed up many a late night talking about boys . . . She'll always be my sister."

As for Laura, she's already settled into family life. "She's very easy, she's very quiet but she seems very comfortable," Cindy Benson said. "You don't feel like you have to entertain her. You have to get into that right away, because this is not a host-guest relationship. This is a family."

The bottom line is that each visiting student is an individual and the family has to adapt to make it work. "The adjustment is difficult," Cindy Benson said. "And we knew. We said we'll just have to take them as they are."

Whereas Yumiko was into the social whirl and took lots of fun classes, Laura is a more serious student (at least in the early going—she's only been here three weeks) and is finding it tough.

"She's taking more serious classes," Ben Benson said. "She's struggling because of the language. It's very difficult to learn trig (in a non-native tongue)." Exchange students do not receive class credits for their year away.

The relationship with YFU has gone so well that Genevieve Benson spent the summer in Denmark as an exchange student herself. Unable to get a home in Japan, her first choice, she's happy with how her summer in Europe went. Because her family had hosted a YFU student, her own costs were discounted.

"It's well worth the fee," her mother said. "If you've got a child living in a foreign country, they may need some support. YFU will intervene and look out for that child."

"It's a well-run organization," her father said. For more information on hosting a YFU student, call local contact Kenneth Simmons at 628-9332.

Jr. Optimists help new sixth-graders "Make the Most of Middle School"

BY EILEEN McCARVILLE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Rick Morris and Andrew Clark stuck close together. "We've been in the same class for four years," said Andrew, pointing to his best buddy.

They were excited, but the two sixth-graders admitted to a few butterflies too, as they begin a new experience at Sashabaw Middle School this fall. What are their main concerns?

"Switching!" they said in unison. "We'll have so many different teachers," said Rick.

For the second year in a row kids like Rick and Andrew have been helped over that bridge — the transition from elementary to middle school — by members of Clarkston's Jr. Optimists through a "Making the Most of Middle School" program, held at Bay Court Park on Andersonville Rd. On Aug. 19, coached by adults from the Clarkston Area Optimist Club, they treated new Sashabaw and Clarkston middle school students to fun, food and friendship.

Jr. Optimists guided the youngsters through six different "stations," which included a q-and-a session, make-overs in the gazebo and "The Icki Lake Show," a takeoff on the teen-geared "Ricki Lake" talk show which definitely broke the ice.

First-time lockers and a teacher for every subject were just two of the kids' concerns. As veteran middle-schooler and Jr. Optimist "coach" Ryan Cocciolone pointed out, there are always those surprises:

"What happens when you walk in on Mrs. Soand-So in the morning and she's painting on her eyebrows?"

Some kids said they feel better when they look good, and many of them stepped out of the gazebo with new do's and a little extra polishing. With a dab of blush over her freckles, Courtney Bollman said her new make-up felt "weird. I'm like a tomboy. This is totally opposite 'cause I never had this done before. I'd wear the lip gloss. I wouldn't wear the rest."

Devin Fuller had lots of hair to work with and looked very stylish when the Jr. Optimists were finished. But "I just usually regular combit," he shrugged, admitting his normal routine of one-step hair care. "When I get out of the shower, whatever happens happens."

On the other hand, Tony Cocciolone, sporting some unaccustomed gel, said academics was a priority. "Getting good grades is number one on my list," he said.

Clarkston Optimist youth clubs chair Don Brose said the object is to touch on "student fear, appearance and self esteem, communicating, extra-curricular activities, attitude, positive peer pressure ... and lots of other stuff. The biggest thing we heard from our Jr. Optimist students is that this needs to be fun.

"The kids will really get a good push toward how good middle school can be, and they will be among others who have made middle school the best part of their lives so far ... Nothing like a little positive peer pressure."

Therefore, this year the emphasis was to be "a little more light, although we always want to put in the serious stuff." But keep it brief, he quipped, in line with short-attention spans. Brose said it was a great turnout, with over 180 new sixth-graders and 30 Jr. Optimists participating.

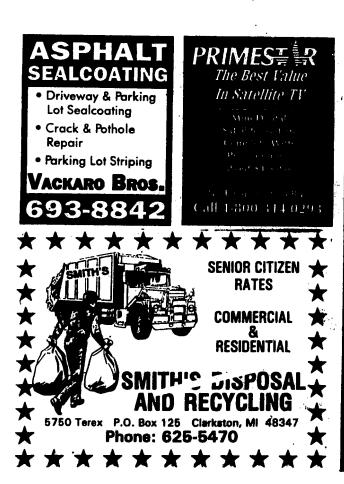

A year ago Katy Manojlovich was a new sixthgrader at CMS. She's glad to be giving back, said the Jr. Optimist. "Last year I was going into sixth grade and it helped me so much 'cause I wasn't scared anymore. I was so happy they could put this on."

Clarkston's planning commission recently approved a new master plan and opposed extending the commercial district. But then Clarkston's city council rejected a proposed museum in the bank building. Their reason? Losing a potential retail site.

City councilman Dave Savage hopes to address council at its Monday meeting with another look at national planning firm Hyett-Palma, which specializes in large- and small-town revitalization. He pitched the program two years ago, just after he was elected. Savage is up for re-election this year.

"I feel that if we had initiated that program two years ago, it would have had some impact on downtown - as far as the vision goes of what the community would like to see downtown," he said Thursday.

Savage has raised $5,000 from local business owners — half the cost to hire Hyett-Palma do a study of downtown Clarkston, which would address various issues like parking and do marketing studies.

But even though Savage has raised the money, Clarkston Mayor Sharron Catallo says she doesn't know how that study would be implemented.

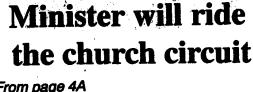

"You can have studies up the wazoo. But where do you get the money to implement it? You can't charge all the taxpayers to do what you need to do downtown,"

She doesn't have the answers. Many, including Catallo, have admitted high prices charged by landlords may be one of the reasons businesses are leaving. You have to "at least break even" to make it on Main St. she says. And "these buildings are going for a lot of money," she adds - pointing to sales, not leases. "I own some buildings, so I can tell you that.

"What's happening, unfortunately, is as business opens in the township, and even the shopping centers, it's going to pull more out of here." Catallo feels businesses may be somewhat responsible themselves. They need to "woo" their customers, make their buildings attractive and market themselves so potential customers will "search you out."

Catallo says she's not happy about the downtown situation. "I really am upset. They're taking away a lot of things I like." Her husband, an avid reader, will be especially disappointed about the bookstore. He also likes to give books as gifts.

'Clarence always orders a lot of books. He's probably going to be the person in town who misses them the most," she said.

laughs.

One of her challenges will be to discover each church's unique "personality" and, coming into each situation objectively, it will enable her to evaluate the strengths as well as the weaknesses. All three will gather together frequently for events like a recent group picnic and Christmas-time services.

The rest "you leave to God. I think there's quite a bit of faith to it. And when I leave, I'll leave it in the hands of other leaders who are helped by God."

Ironically, her older daughter Michele has been sort of a"circuit rider" too. While studying at Kalamazoo College, Michele worked as an Evangelical Church "global intern," serving in the Dominican Republic.

In Africa, like young America, the clergy needs to cover a lot of territory, in visiting remote parishes. Michele also rode a shiny steed, Denton laughs. The pastor "would go out on his motorcycle—and she would ride behind him on a motor bike."

The waiting is over

Top-ranked football team starts up long-awaited 1997 season Friday

BY BRAD MONASTIERE Clarkston News Staff Writer

Since last November 9, the Clarkston varsity football players and coaches have been waiting for redemption.

The time is now here, as the Wolves open one of the most anticipated local sports seasons ever Friday night at home against the Royal Oak Kimball Knights.

Although the 1996 campaign ended with a bitter 34-20 loss to Dearborn Fordson, Clarkston enters this season ranked first in the state among all classes and 15th in the nation, according to USA Today.

But that doesn't faze head coach Kurt Richardson, who said he is going into this season just like any other.

"It's a nice honor, but it means absolutely nothing," he said of the national ranking. "All I can ask from Continued on Page 2B our players is to play to the best of their ability. If we do that, everything will work itself out."

Ability and talent are two things Clarkston will have on its side this season. It starts with the "Lethal Weapon 3" backfield of seniors Dane Fife, Brad Phalen and Jeff Long. All have started on the varsity team for three years and all figure to be college prospects.

he threw for 1,832 yards and 13 touchdowns. He has a strong arm and is a very capable runner when called upon. It's not unusual to see him stiff-arm a couple of defenders if he has to tuck the ball away and run. He is also considered one of the team's vocal leaders.

Doing most of the running chores will be halfback Phalen and fullback/ linebacker Long. Phalen had a monster season a year ago with more than 1,200 yards rushing and 20 scores, including four against arch-rival Troy. Long is a punishing, straight-ahead runner who softens up the defense for Phalen's cutback style and Fife's throwing.

"Offensively, we need to be as balanced as we can," Richardson said. "Last year, we were that and we'll need to be again to keep those defenses off balance"

The receiving corps suffered a blow when senior Mike Maitrott injured his ribs during the first day of practice Aug. 11. However, he rehab is running well and he expects to return as soon as the Rochester Adams game Sept. 26.

Clarkston also lost two standout receivers, Brad Conley and Jason Frack, to graduation. This is a problem the Wolves face every year, but the new starting receivers always seem to produce.

"That's a big credit to coach (Phil) Price," Richardson said. "He does a great job with the kids we have (at wide receiver)."

Fife's other targets include seniors Ron Grinold, Marc Venegoni and Dan Neubeck. Grinold and Venegoni have good speed, while Neubeck is a solid possessiontype receiver. Richardson said he would like to see more consistency from this group than it's shown in the preseason.

The offensive line took a big hit to graduation, but. expects to have some solid performers this season. Sophomore Bubba Clement starts his first full season on the varsity, while seniors Mike Little and Mike Underwood anchor the group. Senior Eric Blundy should be a stabilizing force when he recovers from offseason knee surgery.

Clarkston will run a 50 defense, emphasizing high pressure on all parts of the opponent's offense.

Richardson said he's been very pleased with the production of Underwood, who plays the defensive line as well as offense. Others who will see significant time on the defensive line are seniors Kurt DeVos and Nick Upchurch and junior Mark Whiteman.

Linebacker will be a strong spot defensively with quality depth on the outside and inside. Long and senior Steve Bradford will man the interior, while senior Ryan Kulka is a big-time playmaker on the outside.

"Ryan is a second-year starter and we expect a lot out of him," Richardson said.

The most experienced position defensively for the Wolves will be in the secondary, where seniors Neubeck, Kevin Mason, Nate Skipton and Brad Bailey play the entire field very well. They do a good job both in pass coverage and in run support.

"Danny sees the whole field very well, a benefit of him playing basketball," Richardson said. "Skip is not the quickest guy in the world, but he is an extremely intelligent player. He knows where he has to be at all times"

Playing key backup roles will be juniors Ron Wells and Eric Jenks. Richardson said Wells is a versatile and capable backup, while Jenks has worked hard enough to earn a regular playing spot.

Other players who should figure prominently in the Wolves' plans are junior Tim Loveless and his brother, senior Jeff Loveless. Tim has been impressive in preseason scrimmages at the tailback position and at linebacker. Jeff is recovering from a knee injury suffered in the first play of the first scrimmage a year ago.

Richardson said he still has a number of concerns about this team, even though the first game is just days away.

"Overall, we need to come together as a team," he said. "We haven't been as solid, as tight of a group as we've been in the past. That has gotten us a long way in the past and there hasn't been the closeness we've had before.

"We also have to increase our intensity. The heart is just not there right now," he continued. "That is something our program is known for and that just has to improve."

Richardson called the OAA Division I in 1997 the best he's ever seen. As always, Troy returns a huge team with no big weaknesses. Rochester and Rochester Adams had young teams last year, but should make a big jump this year.

"Even our crossovers are tough," he said. "Kimball has three Division I (college) players on their roster. Kettering will be loaded again. It's not an easy road."

They've got S-P-I-R-I-T

Fans aren't the only ones caught up in the excitement over the varsity football team. The varsity cheerleading team is a big part of the whole Clarkston sports package, as the 15-member team gets ready to cheer on the teams through the fall and winter. Coach Debi Hool starts her 10th season as the squad's coach, with this year's co-captains Sarah Hool and Angie Thomson.

Athlete of the Week: Candace Morgan

Salut, Candace: Regarded as one of the best athletes in her class, Candace is starting her second year on the varsity basketball team. Candace, a sophomore, was in the starting lineup and delivered a splendid overall game in the Wolves' seasonopening 61-31 rout of Davison Aug. 26. She scored 13 points, while adding two rebounds and three steals. Twice, she stole a pass in Davison's backcourt and easily converted it for a layup. Once, she was fouled while shooting and converted a three-point play. She also was the starting third baseman on the varsity softball team last year and will likely see some time pitching for the team next spring. Candace also got off to a big start in the classroom in her first year of high school with a 3.7 overall grade point average.

Coach Ann Serra on Candace: "Candace is an outside threat for us offensively. The area that's improved the most with her is her confidence. She knows that all good shooters go through slumps, but that all good shooters keep going. This year, she has learned to keep going. On defense, she is not the quickest player we have, but she understands our defensive concepts very well. She is also a very mature person for a high school sophomore.'

Candace on Candace: "Coach Serra has made a big difference for us this year. Last year, I felt kind of useless out on the floor. But this year, I know what my role is for our team and we are communicating really well. I think this team found out what it could do after playing so well inthe scrimmages and we will have a good record this year."

The Clarkston boys and girls cross country teams got off to a flying start at the Flint Carman-Ainsworth Invitational Aug. 28.

Thanks to their dominating sophomore class, the boys finished first overall at the meet with 95 points, a whopping 36 points ahead of second-place Swartz Creek.

"I was happy with the boys. It was a real team effort," Clarkston coach Mike Taylor said. "It's a young group of guys and they responded well for the Sophomore David Sage got his first taste of what is likely to be a frequent serving - first place. Sage breezed to the first overall finish at the invitational with a time of 16:33.

'David ran the race basically by himself," Taylor said.

Sophomores Kevin Breen and Chris Weber and senior Curt Brewer also finished in the top 25 for the Wolves. All three finished within 34 seconds of each

"Kevin did a great job for it being his first race," Taylor complimented. "I also thought (sophomore) Dave Wicklund did a great job as our fifth man. That's the best way to judge a cross country race is by your fifth man, and David took 38th for us."

The girls team enjoyed a solid day also, taking third overall.

Demolition man

John Bradford, 16, of Clarkston, displays his shiny new trophies, which are in a little better shape than the car he used to win them. Bradford, a junior at Clarkston High School, won his heat race at the demolition derby at the Oakland County Fair Aug. 2 and also won the Figure 8 race there. Bradford helped to put the 1976 Chevelle together, along with his father John, who is a former state demolition champion.

Falcons

Wolves end seven-game skid against Rochester with 2-1 win

BY BRAD MONASTIERE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Clarkston 2, Rochester 1

If the Clarkston varsity boys soccer team needed any incentive to get pumped up for its Aug. 26 game at Rochester, it was provided by the public address announcer.

Before the game, the announcer proudly gave the score of last year's Clarkston-Rochester game (5-0 Falcons) and the all-time series record between the two teams (7-0 Falcons).

But the move backfired when the Wolves responded with a 2-1 victory, ending the losing streak to Rochester and getting their first win of the young

"We played within the game plan and counterattacked well," Clarkston coach Dan Fitzgerald said of his team. "It was a total team effort and every one of our guys that played played well."

Junior Tom Dews started the scoring for the Wolves, popping in a goal less than a minute after entering the game as a sub. Senior Shawn Verlinden assisted on the goal.

But after that, the Falcons put on more pressure offensively, finally breaking through senior goaltender Rean Turner's defense for a goal at the 14 minute mark of the second half.

But just as they did in their first game against Utica Ford II, the Wolves came right back with more aggression. The added pressure paid off when senior Mike Gabriel found the net for the game-winner with six minutes to go. It was his first goal of the season.

"Mike picked up a loose ball and beat a guy with the dribble. A real nice play," Fitzgerald said. "It's nice because we can play Mike at sweeper, but we don't lose any of his offense. If we can keep doing that, we'll be in good shape."

The Wolves now get into their OAA Division II schedule, with their home debut Thursday against Clawson. The JV game starts at 5:30, with the varsity to start at 7.

Clarkston's Jared Bauer (dark uniform) is in hot pursuit of a player from Utica Ford II during the Wolves' 1-1 tie Aug. 23.

Senior guard Tiffany Honey shows off her lefthanded layup skills during Clarkston's opening game win over Davison Aug. 26. Honey started and scored five points in the team's 61-31 romp. The team's home opener is Thursday when the Wolves take on Southfield Lathrup.

Cagers get motor running with big win

BY BRAD MONASTIERE Clarkston News Staff Writer

Clarkston 61, Davison 31

The Ann Serra era got off to a very good start Aug. 26.

Serra, in her first game as coach of the Clarkston varsity girls basketball team, saw the Wolves destroy the Davison Cardinals 61-31 in her Clarkston coaching debut

The Wolves (1-0) overcame a sluggish second quarter to run the Cardinals out of the building, thanks to a 38-12 second half.

"I was very impressed with the way the kids kept their composure," a beaming Serra said after the game. "What I saw was the kids kept working even when they made a run at us. I thought that was very important."

The Wolves took a comfortable 18-7 lead into the second quarter, but Davison (0-1) outscored Clarkston 12-5 in the second thanks to terrific three-point shooting.

But the game changed dramatically in the third, thanks in part to sophomore center Lori "Born To Be"

After picking up two fouls and sitting the entire second quarter, Wild made her presence felt early and often in the third, with eight points, a rebound and a steal in the first 3:37 that took the Wolves from a slim four point lead to a comfy 33-21 advantage.

For the game, Wild finished with 20 points, on 10for-13 shooting, seven rebounds and four steals. Not a bad effort for her first career varsity game.

"It just felt like any other game I've played," she said. "I think this is how you'll see this team play all season."

Wild was so dominant, by herself, she had more two-point field goals (10) than the entire Davison team (eight) for the game.

Senior Georgia Senkyr had a fine all-around game, scoring seven points, to go along with seven boards, six assists and three steals. Sophomore Candace Morgan scored 15, with two rebounds and three steals. As a team, Clarkston had 17 steals, indicative of the high defensive pressure it put on the Cardinals.

It was a day of relaxing for Clarkstonites Monday, as several hundred turned out for the annual Labor Day Parade downtown. Among those helping to celebrate the last holiday of the summer were area churches, members of the Elks Club, local firefighters, Grand Marshal Virginia Walter, a 30-year Clarkston teacher, and visitors from a galaxy far, far away. Some of the famous characters from "Star Wars" turned out, inleuding Yoda, Chewbacca and some stormtroopers, passing out candy to many of the youngsters on hand. Clarkston Police Chief Paul Ormiston called it one of the bigger Labor Day Parade crowds in recent memory, with more parts of the community getting involved in the event.

Members of the Clarkston Elks Club squeezed into their mini cars and drove around the parade procession, smiling and waving to all the onlookers.

At left, members of the Clarkston High School Band Boosters pass out coffee and donuts near the corner of Main and Washington Streets prior to the start of Monday's parade. when the Top, popularity of a Labor Day parade reaches across the galaxy, even the villains show up, as evidenced by Darth Vader (in black) marching along the Main St. route. Vader and the golden protocol droid C-3PO handed out ice cream bars and other goodies to anxious youngsters during the 60-minute parade.

A member of the CHS flag corps shows off her talents during the Labor Day Parade downtown Monday morning. The corps will make appearances at all CHS home football games this fall. Don't miss 'em.
