In Independence, about 5,000 went to the voting booths. They passed an increase in millage for safety paths, 2,637 to 2,133. They also approved a millage renewal for Independence Township Library.

In Springfield, 1,699 voters approved the millage for the Oakland County Sheriff Department, 966 to 459. Trustee Richard Miller received the nod over Wanda Rothermel, 718-237.

While voters throughout the district voted to retain Mat Dunaskiss as the Republican candidate for the State Senate, locally both townships supported Tom Middleton. Both townships also supported David Galloway over incumbent Donna Huntoon as the choice for the Republican candidate for County Commission, District #2.

POH moves ahead with plans for medical campus

BY EILEEN McCARVILLE Clarkston News Staff Writer

Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital's proposed Clarkston Medical Campus is one step closer to fruition.

Independence Township Planning Commissioners approved the final site plan for five of the seven structures, 6-0, at their July 23 meeting. The decision followed a public hearing which drew no comments from the audience. (Jill Palulian was absent.)

The commission also recommended rezoning the 50-acre parcel from suburban residential to a PUD (planned unit development). Final approval comes from the Board of Trustees.

However, POH will have to return for approval of two remaining buildings: a three-story parking structure; and a medical facility slated to house surgical outpatient care, an emergency (trauma) center, a birthing center and medical food service.

POH has not yet submitted a site plan with detailing for that building, said commission chair Steve Board. A three-story parking structure attached to the facility still has problems as well.

Two matters are the number of parking spaces (over 250) and the visual impact of both structures on Dave Johnson's 260-acre development next door. "We're concerned about what it will look like, regarding the Johnson project," Board said. The parking spots "are more than our ordinance requires."

The campus-style complex includes two medical office buildings, an assisted living complex with special units for dementia and Alzheimer patients, the medical facility and the parking structure.

New CHS open for orientation Aug. 19

BY MARALEE COOK Clarkston News Editor

Clarkston High School is on the move. You still need a hard hat to enter the building, but it won't be for long.

The process of moving began July 28, under the supervision of Kathy Pierson. Pierson retired this year from teaching, and is the transition coordinator for the move. CHS principal Brent Cooley said Pierson is doing a "yeoman's job."

Currently, the staff operates in the old school in the morning, and at the new school in the afternoon,

Books and supplies have been boxed and labeled with their new room location, and three Bekins moving trucks make their way back and forth between the schools twice a day.

The first phase, the academic wings, will be ready by student orientation, which begins Wednesday, August 19.

The second phase includes the pool and auditorium, and should be complete by the end of September, according to Clarkston Schools director of business services, Craig Kahler. The pool will be ready for swimming classes by second semester. Competitive swim teams will not be set up until the fall of 1999.

The main entrance at the center of the building is the bus drop-off location for students. The entrance opens into the main reception area of the school and is where the offices for principal, assistant principals and counselors and support staff are located.

The offices run west along the front of the building to the two-story atrium entrance which services the student parking area.

Cooley said the school was designed with two student entrances to keep the traffic patterns separate and cut down on congestion. Event/activity entrances are located at the auditorium and gym/pool area.

The parking is also color coded. The blue area is for students, the gold area (at the front of the building) will be for teachers, and the white area for event parking on the east side of the building.

Workers are unpacking 700 new computers, and about 100 computers have been brought over from the old school.

Every classroom will have a TV with selected cable channels. The monitors will have the capability to show whatever is on a teacher's computer screen.

Demonstrations in one classroom will be able to be viewed in other classes. And after the wide-area network is set up, those capabilities will be districtwide, said Paul Witek, technology coordinator.

Other highlights include:

-- p A math lab with 28 computers available for classes.

- Two teacher planning/work rooms for about 44 teachers. Cooley said the workrooms will allow classrooms to be used by more than one teacher.
 - 15 science lab/classrooms.
- -- Three art rooms for two-dimensional art, sculpture and metal work.
 - TV/multi-media studio

A look at Oakhurst New golf club community is in harmony with history and nature

BY EILEEN McCARVILLE Clarkston News Staff Writer

Imagine having a golf course right in your own backyard.

That's what some of the new residents of Oakhurst will see from their windows and decks. They'll also be surrounded by rolling hills and breathtaking vistas, because nearly half of the project preserves open space and wetlands.

On a sunny July morning, project manager Ken Davis hosted a tour of the new multi-million-dollar residential community off Clintonville Road.

It's not your everyday neighborhood. The 810acre development is planned for not only 530 homes, but an 18-hole golf course; a private country club with a Junior Olympic-sized pool, tennis courts and other features; and a 30,000-square-foot clubhouse with a pro shop, locker rooms, fitness center and dining facilities. It will also include biking and hiking trails.

The golf course is in and a V.I.P. grand opening takes place this Friday. Forty homes are under construction and a 10,000-square-foot interim clubhouse is completed and will also open Friday.

Oakhurst is a project of the Valassis Family and The Mansur Group. Both specialize in championship golf courses and master-planned golf communities.

Besides the gorgeous setting, the location is ideal, says Davis, with easy access to freeways and other areas. "It's a beautiful development with a lot of amenities."

Oakhurst also features one of the highest elevations in Oakland County. "On one side you see Pine Knob. On the other side you see a beautiful golf course. You can't beat the view."

The golf course is undoubtedly the big draw, designed by renowned golf course architect Arthur Hills. What's unique is several residential neighborhoods will surround it. Springdale, a 94-lot customhome development, is currently under constuction.

Overall, Oakhurst's homesites will range from the low $300,000's to $1 million.

Some of the holes are located right within the wetlands area. Golfers will no doubt enjoy the peaceful settings as they tee off near tall pine trees, amidst the chatter of birds.

As Davis glides along the paved golf cart paths, he notes the bridges that were built over certain areas "to minimize the impact on these wetlands ... You see a lot of deer out here," he adds.

Also unique is the fact that Oakhurst developers have been able to leave a lot of the land intact. The site was once a large working farm, and many of the original rock rows and tree stands keep the feeling of local history alive. Some rock rows were even left to add a natural buffer between residents' back yards and the golf course.

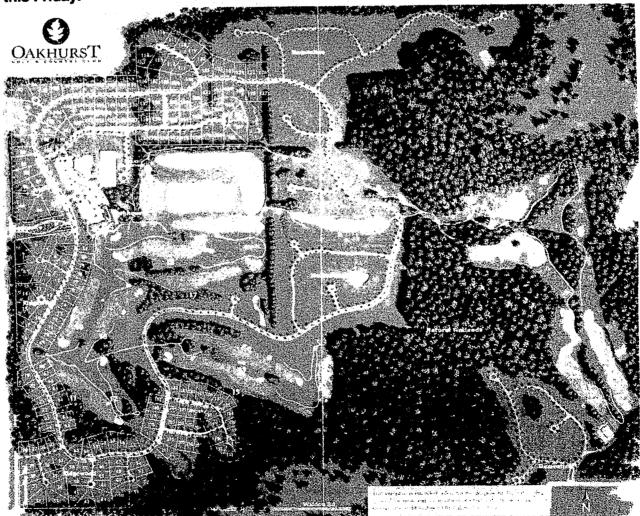

Independence Township planner Dick Carlisle, township planning commissioners and local historian Jennifer Radcliff worked with Oakhurst on a threepronged historic resource plan. The following goals were established:

 Provide additional landscaping to replicate the hedgerow plantings. "On any type of big farm like this, you see trees planted in north-south, east-west plantings. It separates the farm fields. What we're going to be doing is adding quite a substantial number of trees back into the property, take the existing hedgerows and supplement those," Davis says.

• A trail system will be developed, marking

Project manager Ken Davis stands in back of the new interim clubhouse, slated to open this Friday.

The Oakhurst Golf and Country Club plan shows homesites on the west side of the pathways after some of the property's early, previous owners, like the Beardslees. "We'll even include some property, the golf course in the middle and natural wetlands to the east.

New Clarkston school board president hopes to refocus the board

Shanks shares his vision for the future

BY MARALEE COOK Clarkston News Editor

Kurt Shanks was elected president of the Clarkston Community Schools Board of Trustees July 13, after three years as a trustee.

Shanks, his wife Penny and their two sons Jon and Jim, moved to Clarkston from Rochester Hills in 1993. Shanks was a member of the Rochester school board for one year.

Heworks at GM as manager of the Vehicle Safety Group for Flint Engineering Division.

Penny is an administrative assistant for the Clarkston Area Chamber of Commerce, and active in the state and local PTAs. Their son Jon is a sophomore at Clarkston High School and Jim is an eighth grader at Sashabaw Middle School.

After he was elected president, Shanks said he hoped to make some changes. Here he goes into detail on some of the ways he thinks Clarkston schools can

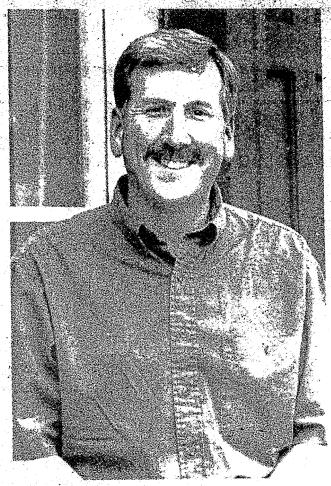

Why did you want to be president of the Clarkston school board?

"I think I can bring more efficiency and effectiveness to the meetings, and bring focus to how we do business. I'd like to see a committee set up that would regularly evaluate how the board does business."

Shanks added he would like to extend the same process to the central administration office. He said he would like to bid out routine printing and advertising, and evaluate how the office is set up.

Earlier, you said you would like to see some of Rochester schools' programs implemented in Clarkston. What are some examples of those programs?

"I'd like to strengthen the academic programs. For our gifted and talented students, we have nowhere near what Rochester, Bloomfield Hills and Birmingham have to offer.

"We have an increase in the number of students who are college and technology-prep bound. How are we challenging these kids to compete at U of M (and other comparable schools)?

"I see us (now) pushing up from the bottom, supporting at risk students. Some of our efforts go to the middle, and less to the gifted and talented.

"I'd rather we pull from the top. That way we can raise everything.

"(Superintendent) Dr. Al Roberts talks about raising the bar. But the real challenge is removing inertia.

"I think we're short-changing our kids in some areas. I think they will surprise the heck out of us."

Shanks said all the basics need to be "revamped" especially math and writing.

Not only is math important in certain careers, said Shanks, "It causes kids to think logically, how to get from here to there -- how to make decisions. And writing is such an important task. In business it's used to create research reports, and it's a basic form of communication. It can't be ignored."

Shanks said assistant superintendent Mike LeBay has been put in charge of research and evaluation of new programs.

"I would also like to provide opportunities for kids to experience Japanese, physiology, psychology, even nuclear physics on an exploratory basis."

You have said you're very concerned about the school district's financial status. Where do you see opportunities to save money?

"I would re-evaluate our outsourcing and bidding procedures. In the past we have not been able to buy in bulk because we have no storage capabilities. That will be possible now.

"Our schools get a per-pupil allocation. It's the same across the district. But it may not be best because the buildings are not equitable -- some are much older than others. Some expenditures should be up to the discretion of the principal, and some should be stan-

Funds allocated to runoff problem on Simlar Road

BY EILEEN MCCARVILLE Clarkston News Staff Writer

Simlar Road residents are hoping to get relief from nearly 10 years of runoff problems. At the last Independence Township Board meeting, it appeared things were headed in that direction.

On July 21 township supervisor Dale Stuart told the board that Michigan Department of Transportation, Road Commission for Oakland County and the township were all going to kick in funds to alleviate a silt problem that's been filling up a canal in back of people's homes. The canal provides access to Deer

The estimated cost of the project is $147,000. According to township engineer Randy Ford, the plan is a "two-pronged" approach. First erosion-control methods will be implemented along the banks, then the canal will be cleaned out with hydraulic dredging. On Tuesday, the board approved $17,700 of the total for preliminary engineering work.

According to Stuart, MDOT plans to contribute $44,000, RCOC $35,000 and the township $35,000 from its general fund. The rest is expected to come from Simlar Road residents through a special assessment.

Homeowners feel the problem has stemmed from a variety of sources, including MDOTs widening of Dixie Highway several years ago and surrounding development projects. RCOC is contributing to the project because Foster Road, a county dirt road, is another source of drainage problems, Ford said.

When rain sheets across Dixie it carries sediment through a culvert under the road, and on to the canal, where it piles up, blocking access to Deer Lake.

For years, Stuart said, he has been meeting with MDOT and the RCOC. Although it's not a "direct 'It's filled up so much, you can't even take a boat back there anymore.

responsibility" to help residents, he feels the township should step in. "Responsible parties" have not corrected the problem and have left residents with "a serious and annoying problem," he said.

Dan Kelley and Brian Ernst are two Simlar Road residents whose backyards have been affected. Both applauded Stuart's efforts at the meeting.

A visit to Simlar Road revealed a dried-up creek in back of Ernst's home, which is close to the culvert at Dixie Highway. The banks were seriously eroded, with many exposed tree roots. Ernst demonstrated how the creek had once been several feet high. On this particular July evening, not a trickle could be found.

He's documented the problems in several photos. Some show dirty water gushing through the culvert during rainstorms.

Kelley's property abuts the canal, which has worsened since he bought it several years ago. "It's filled up so much, you can't take a boat back there anymore." His little jet boat, which is supposed to draft up to eight inches, "gets stuck regularly."

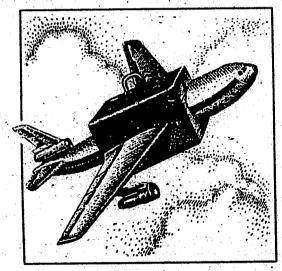

Kelley's also worned about the effects on Deer Lake. "This is not nice stuff," he said of the sediment; which he describes as oily. "We have wildlife, herons and turtles that aren't gong to be able to survive on this." The canal, he added, "is a necessary waterway. You just can't let it dry up."

But he's much more optimistic now. "At least we're past the first step - getting the engineering study and how much this is going to cost."

Similar Road homeowners Brian Ernst and Dan Kelley pose next to the canal in back of Kelley's home. Ernst points to a large pile of dirt that has practically reached the water's Television can get away with re-runs all summer, so I ought to be able to get away with one for a week.

Twenty-five years ago I wrote:

One of the cop-outs in the rearing of children has traditionally been the "if . . . then" technique of simple logic.

Every mother used it many times and for different reasons, but it was oversimplification. Some mother's "if . . . then" uses went like this:

"If you can play all afternoon, then you can find strength enough to take the trash out tonight.'

"If you can find time to read that comic book, then you can find time to do your homework."

"If you can eat three candy bars in the afternoon, then you can certainly clean up that spinach on your plate now."

And so it went in the if-then world of the child. But then came the realization finally that the ifthen technique wasn't so much logic as it was a subterfuge for getting a child to do something desired by Unfortunately, this oversimplified logic still exists. How many times have your heard these statements?

"If we can put a man on the moon, then (chose from any number of the following) a. wipe out poverty, b. wipe out war, c. wipe out smog, d. wipe out all weeds, e. do away with all road accidents.

And, there is the atom bomb if-then. If we can build an atom bomb then we can wipe out cancer. If we can build a hydrogen bomb then we can wipe out urban blight.

These are ridiculous conclusions. The "if" part of the statement hasn't got a blasted thing to do with the "then" part of the phrase,

Much of today's radio, TV and magazine advertising is based on the same erroneous logic.

If some Cro-Magnon throwback, who has made it big in crunching quarterbacks or ping pony balls for pay, steps in front of the camera or microphone then is an authority on what kind of tooth paste we should use or what kind of car we should drive, or what kind and where we should apply deodorant.

We are going these days with another if-then combination. If an ax-astronaut says that railroads are doing a great job or the El Burpo gasoline is the best buy, then it follows that he knows everything there is to know about railroads and gasoline.

There is a big demand for if-then logic when it comes to fund raising and getting millages passed. If you can buy a pack of cigarettes, then you can give to the consolidated gyp fund.

If you can afford a bottle of Heartburn beer (they never say quart of milk) then you can give to the fund to buy your pastor an erector set.

Frankly, this logic is full of prunes. In fact the ifthen theory is what some logicians call an invalid conditional syllogism.

IF you understand that last sentence THEN you have got a lot more smarts than I have.

Shanks looks like a winner to us

Based on his past voting record and his interview in this week's Clarkston News, it looks like the Clarkston school board has a winner in new president Kurt

He was one of only two opponents of the district's deal with Pepsi last winter. He has said the district is suffering from "inertia," and is calling for higher standards of education for our students. Realizing no new money will be coming into the district, he is identifying ways to cut spending.

His plans to bring Clarkston up to speed academically with Bloomfield Hills, Rochester and Birmingham are to be applauded. We agree with his prediction that our students "will surprise the heck out of us."

It takes courage to challenge a district the way he is, and staming to follow through on the changes. We hope he will receive the support he deserves from the board, the schools and the community. MKC

The pig and I

by Eileen McCarville

Last week I had the opportunity to make the acquaintance of a dainty little lady. I say dainty because of her delicate table manners, not her size.

You see, this lady — a female pig — weighed 1,000 pounds. I admit I was a little bit nervous, as her owner coaxed me to feed her. But she didn't charge, and took every piece of bread I fed her gingerly, politely, between her teeth. She even seemed to chew it a little before it went down.

In short, she didn't act like a pig.

You may have heard about "Sweetie" last week. She was heavily profiled, on TV and in the papers, including our front page. Independence Township couple John and Denise Curd of Independence Township are trying to find her a new home because they're moving to a smaller place.

The kids are gone and they want to travel. They can't take Sweetie with them, but they don't want her going to the sausage factory.

After I met the cute critter, I can't say I blame them. I've always liked fictional pigs, from Wilbur in "Charlotte's Web" to the irresistable title character in the movie "Babe." Then there's Porky Pig, "Winnie the Pooh's" Piglet, etc.

They're probably one of the cutest animals for caricatures, not too far away from the real thing. For example, what child, or adult for that matter, can resist a new litter of squealing, adorable piglets?

Sweene seemed to be a nappy sort, who wouldn't cry "Wee, wee, all the way home." I like to think it was a real grin on her face, as she trotted obediantly behind her master, giving a few grunts of pleasure as she ate her

As I sit here at my computer, facing another mountain of papers on my desk, I'm thinking about the life of a pig. I'm even reading "Charlotte's Web" again. Wilbur was happy, rooting for the occassional veggie, having conversations with the other farm animals, listening to the sounds of crickets and birds and lying in

The pig is one animal that seems to truly enjoy life and be content with what it has. There are no bills to pay, no time clocks to punch, no kids to send to college, no upkeeps like hair appointments. Best part of all, a pig can eat whatever it wants and not worry about the girth around its middle.

But I don't think I could handle the mud part. My lament, titled, "The Librarian's Wrath."

Don, Don, Don, Don, Don, You would think that by now, you would realize that you don't go after the library and think you can get away with it. You should know that any reporter worth his salt would check sources and see what the other side has to say before reporting on any subject, particularly something so American as a LIBRARY! Next it will be apple pie and Mom.

column penned last week. Here's Penny Peterson's

To aid you in any further columns, you might take note of the following: 1) Most library materials (we will use a book as an example) are checked out for a three-week period. 2) You may call and renew that book if no one else is waiting for it for another three- week period. However, if you don't renew, the book is now considered overdue. 3) You will be sent a first notice after 10 days. 4) You will be sent a final notice when you are 20 days late. 5) You will be sent a bill for the book after 45 days. 6) Still no response?!, You are sent a letter such as the one you wrote about in your column after 60 days. So you have kept this book for 105 days.

Now what would you do if you were a public library? This book was ordered, purchased, processed, shelved and checked out with taxpayer's money, not to mention the time it took a staff person to keep track of that book, mail out notices and the cost of postage to try and get that book returned so that another patron might read it.

Of course we use photocopies for notices and letters. If it was such a rare thing that only one person had an overdue book, we could send you a notice on the finest stationary. (I'm sure the taxpayers would love that). We realize that overdue fines and notices are a negative thing, but that is the about the only way we have to get a book back and not penalize all-those patrons that are conscientious and return their materials on time.

So let's get to the misdemeanor part. Yes, Don, it is against the law to keep any library materials. It is considered larceny by conversion under $100. If it is over $100., it is a felony.

I know you checked with the Oxford Police Department and I see that you failed to mention any kind of stealing or theft that can be considered a misdemeanor. Under the Michigan Penal Code, Chapter Lll, act 750.364 larceny from libraries - any person who shall take in any way from the library any book, pamphlet, map, chart, painting, picture, photograph, periodical, newspaper, magazine, manuscript or exhibit, etc. with intent to convert the same to his own use or intent to defraud the owner thereof shall be guilty of a misdemeanor

So there! (I thought I would sink to your level with that comment). You should know better than to maké a librarian mad!

Would that patron feel better if we sent this matter to a collection agency as many libraries do?

If you have any further derogatory columns to write about the library, please have the courtesy to check us out first (interruption from Don: I can't do that Penny. This way I get two columns, instead of one -- it's the American way. Now, back to Penny's letter).

P.S. We thought that you might enjoy this cartoon. Because Bucko! That is exactly what will happen if everyone keeps just ONE library book!

Tip of the Day Folks: never tee-off the librarians. And, the cartoon Penny referred to shows two guys looking at barren library shelves. One guy says to the other, "OK, I guess it was a mistake to fire the staff and run the library on the honor system."

FOCUS ON THE FAMILY

By Dr. James Dobson
Sponsored by First Missionary Church of Clarkston

QUESTION: You once wrote about an overweight fourth-grade girl named Nancy who was teased by some aggressive boys as she entered the classroom, while the teacher looked on in silence. What would you have done if you had been the teacher on that day?

DR. DOBSON: Those mocking, joking boys would have had a fight on their hands, I promise you that. Of course, it would have been better if the embarrassment could have been prevented by discussing the feelings of others from the first day of school. But if the conflict occurred as described, with Nancy suddenly being humiliated for everyone to see, I would have thrown the full weight of my authority and respect on her side of the battle.

My spontaneous response would have carried this general theme: "Wait just a minute! By what right do any of you boys say such mean, unkind things to Nancy? I want to know which of you is so perfect that the rest of us couldn't make fun of you in some way? I know you all very well. I know about your homes and your school records and some of your personal secrets. Would you like me to share them with the class, so we can all laugh at you the way you just did at Nancy?

"I could do it! I could make you want to crawl into a hole and disappear. But listen to me -- you need not fear. I will never embarrass you in that way. Why not? Because it hurts to be laughed at by your friends. It hurts even more than a stubbed toe or a cut finger or a bee sting.

"I want to ask those of you who were having such a good time at Nancy's expense a few moments ago: Have you ever had a group of students make fun of you in the same way? If you haven't, then brace yourself. Someday it will happen to you, too. Eventually you will say something foolish — something that will cause everyone to point at you and laugh in your face. And when it happens, I want you to remember what happened today."

Then I'd address the entire class: "Let's make sure that we learn something important from what took place here this afternoon. First, we will not be mean to each other in this class. We will laugh together when things are funny, but we will not do it by making one person feel bad. Second, I will never intentionally embarrass anyone in this class. You can count on that. Each of you is a child of God. You were made with

His loving hands, and He has said that we all have equal worth as human beings. This means that Susie is neither better nor worse than Wade, or Mary, or Brent.

"Sometimes I think maybe you believe a few of you are more important than others. IT isn't true. Every one of you is priceless to God, and each of you will live forever in eternity. That's how valuable you are. God loves every one of you. He wants us to be kind to other people, and we're going to be practicing that kindness through the rest of this year."

When a strong, loving teacher comes to the aid of a child in her claws, something dramatic occurs in the emotional climate of the room. Every child seems to utter an audible sigh of relief. The same thought is bouncing around in many little heads: "If Nancy is safe from ridicule, then I must be safe too."

You see, by defending an unpopular child in the room, a teacher is demonstrating (1) that she has no "pets;" (2) that she respects everyone; (3) that she will fight for anyone who is being treated unjustly. Those are three virtues that children value highly, and that contribute to mental health.

And may I suggest to parents, defend the underdog in your neighborhood. Let it be known that you have the confidence to speak for the outcast. Explain this philosophy to your neighbors, and try to create an emotional harbor for the little children whose ship has been threatened by a storm of rejection. Don't be afraid to exercise leadership on behalf of a youngster who is being mauled. There is no more worthy investment of your time and energy.

Fire destroys Perry Lake home

The third major house fire in four weeks in Independence Township occurred Saturday night, and reignited early Sunday morning, consuming a house on Perry Lake Road.

The fire started at around 7:15 p.m. in the upper levels of the house. After a two hour battle, firefighters brought the blaze under control.

However, the fire restarted at 2:59 a.m. Sunday, gutting the remainder of the house. Township firefighters called the restart "embarassing."

The residents - the Dan Fitzgerald family - was not home at the time of the blaze, and no one was injured.

"My wife came to see me in the hospital, and when she got home, she found the house on fire," Dan Fitzgerald, who is the varsity boys soccer coach at Clarkston High School, said.

The investigation into the cause of the blaze has been turned over to the Oakland County Arson Department, the group that investigates nearly all house fires to determine their cause.

Legal matters still haven't been worked out over POH's application for a certificate of need (CON), required for new hospital construction. Board said the current plan is to incorporate 30-50 beds for people from the emergency (trauma) center and out-patient surgery. "We're waiting to hear from the (state) attorney general on that," he added.

According to project architect Julie Kosik Shick the trauma and birthing centers are two items Clarkston has expressed a need for. "That's what this community wants," she said. POH predicts the CON matter will be resolved by the end of the year, she added.

Board agrees the area needs trauma care, which is not provided by any other local facility, including the new Mid-Oakland Medical Center just down the street.

"The comparison is, (that) facility is not a trauma center," Board said, describing the POH plan as "a trauma center with bed space" and "a small-scale hospital."

If all goes well, POH plans to start site work this fall, constructing an internal road and installing utilities. The planning commission's favorable recommendation "was a big milestone for us," Kosik Shick said.

School board secretary Janet Thomas and superintendent Dr. Al Roberts (back row from left), cheer them on. Shanks called the Clarkston schools "a district on the move." He added, "Many people have been involved in making these projects happen. We hope it will meet the needs of the community for many years to come. We appreciate the community's support."

Mike Odette poses with an old sign he found in the historic barn.

Longtime Clarkston resident Odette buys old lumberyard

BY EILEEN McCARVILLE Clarkston News Staff Writer

Mike Odette is hoping to keep some of Clarkston's local history alive with the purchase of a new lot on N. Holcomb.

The long-time Clarkston resident bought the site of the former Clarkston Lumber Company, a familiar sight around town for many years. Most recently, it was owned and operated by the late Bill Kelley, who died recently.

"It's a neat-o place: It's been here 100 years or so," Odette said. He estimates the property at 89 N. Holcomb has been a lumber mill for at least 80 years because of a sign he found in the old barn that reads: "50 YRS. of SERVICE, MILLER and BEARDSLEE LUMBER CO."

Odette, who lives just down the road on Deer Hill and is running for the state Senate, said he plans to build a new house and move in approximately a year from now. He's married with five children, and three of them

He said the barn and some outbuildings "are in pretty rough shape" and will have to come down. "I'd like to save the barn, but the leaking is pretty bad," he acknowledged. Tearing down some of the dilapidated architecture is allowable, as the site doesn't fall within the City of Clarkston's historic district.

However, Odette wants to keep the old garage and one outbuilding, which he'd like to turn in to a gatehouse-style apartment. "I'm going to build something that blends in with the area's historic character," he said, adding that he plans on salvaging some of the old tools and equipment.

Odette would like to showcase them in a museum in his new basement.

Already, the family has found some old artifacts, including bottles, coins and other items. One day, for example, his 5-year-old daughter Katy was digging around with an old Clarkston Lumber yardstick.

"She was just playing around and she found a 1902 silver dime with the 'lady of liberty' on it."

What happens to a parking lot when there's no time to pull weeds, trim hedges and pick up the occasional paper cup or cigarette butt?

A generous local citizen asks if she can "spruce it up a bit," in her spare time.

Barabara Nolin, a Clarkston resident for two years kindly offered to give The Clarkston News parking lot a face-lift. Living in an apartment, she's a frustrated gardener. "The entire village is such a lovely area, I just want to bring some color and care to this corner," says Nolin.

The entire staff of The Clarkston News agrees. The corner is shaping up nicely. Thanks, Barbara for a job well done:

"I'd also like to redefine the role of the Finance Committee. We need to look at significant budget changes -- the process of doing the budget. I want to make (director of business services) Craig Kahler's job easier.

"I'd like to keep a 10 percent fund equity so funds are available, rather than having to borrow. It also will improve our credit rating."

Shanks added the board needs to aggressively work with legislators and other school districts across the state to improve funding problems. He said the state Senate and House bills for two-year foundation grants are flawed, and suggested it would be a good place for the board to become more vocal.

What else did you like about the Rochester school district?

"Rochester did a better job of community involvement. I would have liked the Athletic Boosters to be involved in the planning of the high school athletic field and concession stand early on.

The new high school and new elementary school are opening close to capacity. Is there another bond issue in the district's future?

"We've provided those schools with the flexibility to expand. But we'd like to say we're retired from the construction business. The community has been so supportive, we don't want to ask for more money.

"We're at the maximum millage rate. (Building another school) wouldn't cost more, it would extend the debt farther into the future. We'll take a look at the (student population) projection reports in the fall, but we're hoping the school poulation will level off."

What do you consider your biggest challenge?

"Our biggest challenge is keeping on task -running the school district with the distractions from construction or (finance) problems with the state. We've felt highly distracted over the last few years.

"I would like to get out in the community and to different school events more often. Al Roberts has done a great job of being accessible.

The Allman Brothers Band

Knob Notes

ABB - still going strong

The Allman Brothers Band seems to be one of the few groups that transcends generations. And, coincidentally, band members reflect that range themselves — at least in the eyes of reviewers.

"The Brothers play with the energy of teenagers and the ornery wildness of veteran bluesmen," wrote The New Yorker, upon the release of their 1990 Epic album "Seven Turns."

Since then, the long-time Southern Rock band has continued to pack arenas, an indication they're popular with both kids and their parents.

Some think it's because they're a blend of down-home grooves and instrumental virtuosity, and a sound that keeps pleasing through the years. First bursting on the music scene in 1969, theirs was a unique blend of rock, blues, country and jazz -- and they paved the way for every three-guitar band that followed.

"Most fans had never heard anything quite like the mercurial solos and meticulous counterpoint effort-lessly unreeled by Duane Allman and (Dickie) Betts," wrote author Joe Nick Patoski in 1992's The Rolling Stone Illustrated History of Rock & Roll. "Indeed, the Allman Brothers Band had become one of the most impressive bands in the country."

That sound became trademark in hits like "Melissa," "Midnight Rider" and "Ramblin' Man." In 1996 the Allmans won their first Grammy for "Jessica" and recently, they were inducted into the Rock & Roll Hall of Fame

As inductor, country artist Willie Nelson made the following comments: "The Allman Brothers Band took what moved them and merged it into something unique that audiences love: a sound that redefined the direction of rock and roll, and opened the doors to a spirit of experimentation that continues in today's music.

"The Allman Brothers Band were and still are one of the most exciting live bands ever to hit the stage. They became road warriors with a vengeance and left devoted fans wherever they went ...

"(They're) a band that reflects so many of my sentiments about music: originality ... not confined musically or stylistically, but instead to forge your own way and make music that moves you, a devotion to the road, and understanding that beyond pleasing yourself as an artist, the only other consideration should be the people, the fans who come to hear you.

"And so, with pleasure, I give you rock and roll's greatest jammin' blues band, the Allman Brothers Band!"

The Allmans take the stage Sunday at 7 p.m. Steve Earle also performs. Some tickets for both lawn and pavilion are still available.

 Old materials such as cobblestones and barn siding will be incorporated into new structures, like golf course shelters, restrooms and a pump house. The general concept was developed by Peter Pollack, a planner and landscape architect based in Ann Arbor who was recommended by Radcliff.

Winen it's all done, "We really hope with the landscaping, replication and trail system, it really gives some sense of the history of this property," Davis said.

According to Radcliff, the meetings were very productive. ""It was important the context of the land return tree lines, hedgerows, stone structures and remain rural land." Pollack worked "amicably" with the developers, she added.

Radcliff is glad some of the heritage will be preserved, and credits the cooperative parties for making it happen.

These guys can really play!

Age is just a number for senior softball stars

BY BRAD MONASTIERE Clarkston News Staff Writer

In the dugout, it's a scene full of back-slapping, joking around and good-natured jabs.

On the field, double plays, line drives to center and diving catches are the norm.

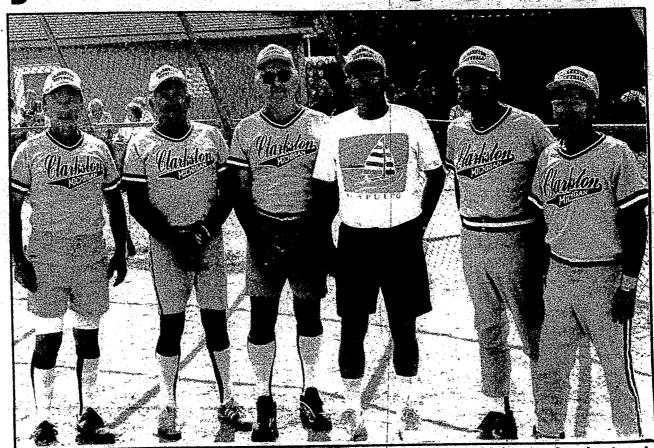

The best part of it all, most of the players just described can look back at their 70th birthday.

Monday was the final day of the regular season for the Independence Township Parks & Rec Senior Softball Leagues. Players from ages 55 to 83 years young - played the sport boys play, and did it remarkably well.

An example of this can be found with 83-year-old Clarkston resident Mike Miszczak. A 22-year veteran of senior softball in Oakland County, he said his good health is a major reason he can be an active player.

"I don't take a single pill," he said proudly. "It's fun, and I have good health, so there's no reason I can't keep doing this."

OAA's changing face gives Wolves new league rivals

BY BRAD MONASTIERE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

The Oakland Activities Association's version of musical chairs played once again this offseason.

Entering its fifth season of existence, the OAA has shuffled the division alignments in all of its sports, moving teams up and down to create rhore equitable and balanced competition.

For the 1998-99 school year, the varsity volleyball team is the only program moving down a league. Coach Gordie Richardson's team has been moved from Division I to Division II.

The other team Richardson coaches, the girls track team, went the reverse route, getting moved up -along with the boys team-to Division I from Division II.

All other Clarkston teams remained in the leagues they currently reside in, with a few interesting changes from the league's other teams.

Some of the new league alignments are listed in boxes with this story.

Volleyball

Richardson said he was unhappy with the decision to move the volleyball team down to Division II, just two years after his 1996 team won 40 games the OAA Division I championship.

"I knew (moving down) was a possibility, but if we win two more league matches somewhere in those two years, we stay in Division I," he said. "The precedent has been set that you don't need four teams per league (like in football), and I thought we were good enough to stay in Division I."

Clarkston's league record in the 1997 and 1998 seasons was 7-17. After its league title in 1996, the Wolves graduated 10 high-quality players, and the team dipped to 2-10 in the league. This last year, Clarkston finished with an above-500 overall record and went 5-7 in the league including wins over Birmingham Seaholm and Royal Oak Kimball.

But during that 1998 season, several tough losses may have sunk the team's hopes of remaining in the top league. The Wolves lost league matches to West Bloomfield (who also was sent to Division II), Lake Orion, and Kimball all in three sets with the third games decided by a total of 11 points.

"We should've been better the last two years," Richardson said. "You saw how many matches we lost we probably should have won. We have to accept this move and play better over the next two years."

Birmingham Groves and Troy Athens were moved up from Division II to Division I. Brandon, who has fielded very competitive volleyball teams in Division III the past two years, moved up to Division II. The other Division II volleyball teams are: Bloomfield Hills Lahser, Ferndale, Rochester and Waterford Mott. The Wolves beat the Corsairs 5-15, 15-3, 15-6 to win last season's district championship.

Track

One of the best sports stories in Oakland County the last few years has been the utter dominance of the girls track program.

Fourteen league titles in 15 years. Undefeated in league dual meets for 15 years. A number of state-qualifiers every year.

The last four years, Richardson's squad has run roughshod over the OAA Division II competition, winning league titles each time. This past season, the margin between Clarkston and the competition was wider than ever. The closest dual-meet margin of victory for the girls team was 58 points, and that came with the team resting many of its low-time runners.

The boys team, coached by Walt Wyniemko, has seen similar success the last two years, going undefeated in the league and winning two league titles.

With the boys and girls combining for a 24-0 dual meet record the last two seasons, a move to Division I was inevitable.

"You get better when you run against better people," Richardson said on the move up to Division I. "I always expect our winning streak to continue, and the move up to Division I will not change that."

Clarkston has moved up into the high-rent track neighborhood with state powerhouses Pontiac Northern, Rochester Adams, Pontiac Central and Southfield in Division I. The Huskies won the 1997 state Class A boysteamchampionship, while the girls from Southfield and Adams are strong and deep in many events.

"Those teams are much bigger, with more speed and depth than we've seen in Division II," Richardson said. "The emphasis will become how many athletes we can place in second and third in events. Those are the points that will help us to win."

Troy Athens requested to be moved down to Division II after two years in Division I.

Boys Basketball

When you look at the talent that's competed in the OAA Division I the last four years, you could compile a pretty strong college all-star team.

Start with 6-foot-9 forward Mike Chappel, who just trasnferred from Duke to Michigan State. His Southfield Lathrup teammate Greg Grays, emerged as one of the top outside shooters for Penn State in his freshman season. Rashad Moore and Mychal Covington of Pontiac Northern are headed to Oakland University next year. And of course, you may have heard of Clarkston players Dane Fife and Angelo Taylor.

A league that featured three of the county's top seven teams last season somehow got stronger with Rochester moving to Division II and Pontiac Central moving up to Division I. The Chief's featured four college-bound players in the starting five and were ranked No. 1 in the state by some publications through much of last season.

Clarkston coach Dan Fife, who's pretty much seen it all in his 15 seasons at the helm of Wolves basketball, said he likes the OAA system and feels like it's made area teams much more competitive than in the past

"With so many good teams and good players in the area, it's good for everyone involved that things are as competitive as they are," he said, "It makes scheduling much easier and you can bring in better competition for your non-league games."

Fife said the best part of the four-division alignment based on program competitiveness and school enrollment, has made competition more equitable in all four leagues. In the GOAL, Clarkston and Pontiac Northern constantly battled it out for the top spot, while a smaller school like Brandon was playing schools twice as big as itself in almost every sport.

"It's helped teams in Division I through IV," Fife said. "Being in the OAA has been outstanding for us and for Oakland County schools. It has raised the bar."

OAA changes good for Clarkston teams

The Oakland Activites Association has been host to not only some of the state's top teams and athletes, but the nation's.

Several league teams have been recognized over the last four years as having some of the top high school talent anywhere. Just take a look at the state hardware some teams can boast of.

Clarkston - 1994 state boys golf champs. Troy Athens - 1995 and 1997 state boys soccer champs. Rochester - 1997 state baseball champs. Rochester Adams - 1997-98 state wrestling champs. Troy - 1994 state football champs. Waterford Kettering - 1998 state softball champs.

This list could go on and on, but you get my point. I believe that when you combine all sports, boys and girls, the 28-member OAA is the most competitive public high school league in the state.

For the 1998-99 school year, the four-division conference is adjusting some of its members, moving teams in and out of leagues in an effort to bring athletes and fans the best, most equitable competition in every

This format is unique, and one I feel should be a model for other high school superconferences (that is, conferences with more than one division).

The best teams in lower divisions get moved up every two years, while teams that struggle in high divisions get moved down to a division where they have a better chance of success within that division.

It's a very good system, but still one with a few

First of all, how can the volleyball team get justifiably moved from the OAA Division I to H? I understand that Clarkston finished sixth out of the seven teams when the league records of the last two years are combined, and that was the reason for moving it, along with last-place West Bloomfield, down

The sport's committee likely overlooked Clarkston's 1996 league championship. The team that won 40 games and featured college athletes like Stephanie Giroux and Lisa Herron was too recent a vintage to move the team down a division.

Also, with Clarkston, Division I was extremely competitive, especially last year. Rochester Adams won the league regular season and tournament titles, but you could easily take the other six teams, throw them together, and have a hard time deciding which one was the best.

I know the move hurt coach Gordie Richardson, a man who takes a lot of pride in his teams' accomplishments. He has very high expectations for his athletes and himself, and don't expect those to change just because league foes will now be teams like Ferndale and Waterford Mott instead of Lake Orion or Adams.

"If the competiton was significantly lower, I'd expect our wins to go up, but the competition is still pretty tough," he said. "We know that if we have a team that we're good enough to beat in two (games), then we have to do it."

Shame on Royal Oak Kimball. The Knights, according to the formula for OAA football, should be in Division I for the next two years, building on a hot rivalry with the Wolves.

Instead, they asked to please, please stay in Division II, where they can feast every Friday on teams like Mott. Kettering and Berkley.

The system in place, which adds up the playoff points teams accumulate over two seasons and places teams accordingly, was bent because Kimball would rather win than get better. Clarkston coaches are pretty much united in their belief that they would rather go 5-5 in a league with the 10 best teams in the state than 10-0 in a lesser league. This lays the foundation of a strong program with integrity and character. Unfortunately, athletes at Kimball are being taught a lesson that winning is more important than the big picture.

Contrasting Kimball football is West Bloomfield's girls basketball program. The Lakers had been beating up OAA Division III schools by embarassing margins the last two seasons. Instead of being content to whip teams by video-game scores in Division II this year, the program requested a move up to Division I, and was granted it:

Thumbs-up to West Bloomfield, for doing what's best for its kids and its program.

Overall, the OAA system seems to be a good one. It works well for Clarkston teams because it provides them with the best competition in all sports. Usually, that means competition with the best in the state, and our athletes can only benefit from that kind of experience. Can anyone tell that I'm already excited for the new sports seasons?

Two Clarkston teams change leagues for new school year for when the OAA was first born.

In this year's school shuffle, Bloomfield Hills Lahser was moved down to Division II while West Bloomfield, a team that's lost four games in two years, jumped from Division III all the way to Division I.

The two-league jump was not part of the OAA's original intentions, but the Lakers were simply overwhelming league foes like Southfield, Auburn Hills Ayondale and Clawson.

Clarkston coach Ann Lowney, who won two OAA II titles at Birmingham Seaholm and a Division I title with the Wolves last season, said the Lakers should be a top contender in Division I despite the big jump in competition.

"I give them a lot of credit for the move, because they asked for it," she said. "The OAA is about fairness, and there was no reason for them to be in Division III or II."

The Wolves' 10-2 record and league title in 1997 may have saved it from being sent to Division II. Clarkston did not finish with an above-.500 league record in the first three years of the OAA.

Football

This sport's transition brought much attention not by a move that was made, but by a move that wasn't made.

Clarkston head football coach Kurt Richardson said the system in place for league assignments for football is as follows: School population is weighted in a system that also includes the team's computer ranking each of the last two years. All 28 OAA teams are thrown together, and theoretically, the top seven go in Division I, teams eight through 14 in Division II, and so on.

But that didn't happen. By this formula, Royal Oak Kimball should have been the seventh team in Division I, but a vote of OAA member schools supported the team staying in Division II.

Kurt Richardson said a reason for the non-move may be quality of schedule.

'So many teams complain about having to play Division I teams, they ended up adding a team to Division IV," he said. "Football is different because of the playoff system. If you lose one or two games, you're basically out of the playoffs right there."

Rochester Adams Highlanders Troy Colts Troy Athens Red Hawks

"Some schools put all the emphasis on winning and taking the easiest route to do it,"said Gordie Richardson, the team's offensive coordinator.

Regardless of what school moves where, Fife said the system has worked for Clarkston, and it helps to keep up its usual high standards for all of its teams.

"We are on the upswing with athletics. Our enrollment is growing, we're going into a brand-new facility next year, and our coaches are doing a great job. It's going to be exciting."

Senior ballplayers get the most out of golden years

Miszczak is six years older than anyone else on his team, yet there he was, legging out a single before scoring later in the fifth inning of Clarkston Megabowl's game Monday morning. His teammates said they call on him to pinch-run on occassion, saying he's one of the fastest players on the team.

Across another diamond near the senior center at Clintonwood Park, coach John Thomas was guiding his team to a win over a Rochester club. He said the senior softball leagues in Clarkston are the biggest in the state, boasting six teams and more than 100 players.

"I was on one of the original teams back in 1982 when it was formed," he said. "I wanted to show my sons that just because you turn 60, you don't lie around and watch TV all day."

Indeed, the only TV these guys probably watch is batting instructional videos, because Thomas' Clarkston Cougars team slammed the ball around the park all morning long. The Cougars compiled a 13-9 record in the season, and Monday broke their 0-for-Mondays streak with wins over the Rochester team. The Cougars are sponsored by Al Serra Auto Team and Saturn

Racing is a family experience

Last month's Port Huron to Mackinac Island sailboat race saw some participation from the Gebus family of Clarkston.

Dad John, daughter Lisa, 19 and son Adam, 15 were among the crew on board, while mom Nan was the shore support organizer, said John Gebus.

The family has been racing "Diamond Girl," their C&C 34-Plus in the 260 mile race since 1990. This year they finished 11th out of 17 in their class.

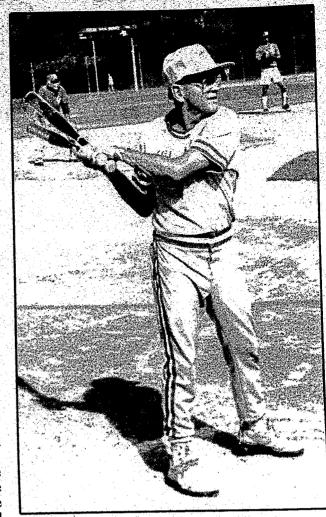

John said one of the memorable events for the crew was winning their start. "Diamond Girl" was the first boat to cross the starting line next to the committee boat, an accomplishment announced on WJR radio.

"Diamond Girl" was in 16th place at Cove Island, off the entrance to Georgian Bay — about half-way, said John. They were able to catch a group of boats and move into 11th place. He said the crew's most memorable race was two years ago, when they won their class.

The Gebus children love the experience, said John. This is Lisa's third trip and Adam's second. "They're very knowledgeable sailors, and they're a better asset because they know the boat," said John.

As shore support organzier, Nan's responsible for converting the boat from cruising to racing mode — stripping it of its amenities, said John. Nan met the boat and crew at Mackinac Island after the race and helped sail it back.

"It's a wonderful family experience," said John.

'A wonderful way to remember a wonderful kid'

Youth's memory kept alive through new sports game

> BY EILEEN McCARVILLE Clarkston News Staff Writer

When Ryan Schmidt was dubbed a manager at Carl's Golfland in Bloomfield Hills, he was only 18 years old.

"He was mature beyond his years," said Carl Rose, who co-owns the company with his father, also named Carl. Even though Ryan was still very young (he started as a sales associate when 15), he was a top candidate among a group that included those in their thirties, fourties and fifties.

To narrow down the choices, Rose took a poll among his employees. "It was Ryan," he said. Bubbly and a great employee, "He was just unbelievable," Rose added.

Those are some of the reflections shared about a very special young man July 21 — the day Ryan would have turned 22. Sadly, the former Clarkston youth died two years ago in a drowning accident.

But his memory will live on through a new sports game, recently installed at Bay Court Park. Visitors will now be able to play "Frisbee" golf at the Ryan Schmidt Memorial Disc Golf Course. The game is free of charge, and guests can check out discs from the park or buy their own.

The "holes" are actually nine yellow basket-type structures that catch discs when they land on target. The game begins to the left of Bay Court's parking lot.

Independence Township Parks and Recreation director Ann Conklin said Ryan's family approached the township, wanting to do something for the community that would commemmorate the life of their son. Because he loved sports, she offered them several choices and they picked the disc golf idea. The Schmidts and Carl's Golfland donated the funds.

Family, friends and township officials attended the dedication on July 21, which included a ribboncutting, refreshments, some practice on the new golf course and tributes to Ryan.

"It is a great tribute to this park," said Conklin. "But it is probably the greatest tribute I've seen for someone who left his life too early ... It's a really wonderful way to remember a really wonderful kid."

Ryan's father Jan Schmidt, who works for GM and now lives in Beijing, China with his family, choked up as he recalled how "It was 22 years ago today that Ryan came into our lives ... In his short life he accomplished a lot."

Later, Jan said, "Ryan was very active and a very sports-minded young man. This really falls into something he can be remembered for. He worked at Carl's. Golfland, so this sort of fits in with that. And it's a youthoriented game to help kids in the positive vein."

In all families, there is conflict to some degree. However, in some families, the conflict may be so severe and destructive that it prevents the family from growing and relating to one another in healthy ways. The mental health professionals at New Oakland Child-Adolescent & Family Center, located in nearby Davisburg, are experts in helping children, adolescents and adults deal with life suessors, depression, substance abuse and serious emotional and mental illness. The focus at New Oakland is on pro-active approaches to empower the family with the tools to meet lifes challenges.

Executive Medical Director Dr. Ismail B. Sendi of New Oakland has created a unique service for those whose personal crisis may not be adequately addressed in a weekly or bi-weekly counseling session. Pace-to-face, a less restrictive, less costly, alternative to psychiatric hospitalization has been successfully treating children, teens and adults since 1994. The client attends daily therapeutic programming for seven to ten days. Intensive work on the crisis is done through daily individual and group therapies, milieu activities and twice-weekly family sessions. Additionally, there are two to three meetings each week with the child-adolescent-adult psychiatrist to explore medication options. Program options include face-to-face days from 9:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m.; and face-to-face evenings from 3:00 p.m. to 8:00 p.m. Face-to-face also includes intensive specialty programs for the treatment of substance abuse, eating disorders, bedwetting and assessment for Attention Deficit Hyperactivity Disorder (ADHD). ment for Attention Deficit Hyperactivity Disorder (ADHD).
