Car accident claims life of Clarkston High School student

BY MARALEE COOK
Clarkston News Editor

For the second time in just a few months a Clarkston student has died from injuries received in a car accident on a stretch of road that has caused problems for drivers in the past.

Ryan Lorion, 17, a junior at Clarkston High School, died September 10 from injuries he suffered in a one-car accident Friday, September 4.

The accident took place on Clarkston Road, west of Eston Rd., near the corner of Lakeview Drive. Ryan and the car's 16-year-old driver were traveling west-bound on Clarkston Road when the driver lost control of the car as they went around a curve. The car went into a ditch, flipped over and both boys were thrown from the vehicle.

The driver was treated and released from Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital.

Deputy Walt Blackmer, of the Oakland County Sheriff's Dept. Traffic Investigation Unit, said that alcohol was not a factor in the accident, but details will not be released until the investigation is completed.

The accident happened around 9:30 a.m. The students were out of school for Labor Day recess and on their way to pick up another friend.

Lakeview Drive resident Amy Covault, who lives at the corner of Clarkston Road, was present at the accident. She said that curve has been a problem for drivers for years.

In the three years she and her husband have lived there an average of 50 drivers per year run off the road or have more serious accidents, she said.

Before that, Covault's mother-in-law lived in the home and also complained of problems.

Ryan Lorion

"Years ago, before we had mature trees (lined along Clarkston Road in front of the home), the cars would end up in her front yard or in the driveway. In one accident, she held the hand of a woman who was nine-months pregnant and trapped in her car," said Covault.

"When it rains, gravel deposits at the bottom of the hill, and in the winter, conditions are worse," she continued. "We usually can hear squealing tires from people trying to stop almost every night in the winter. It's scary to wake up to the sound of screeching tires."

Covault said she filed a complaint about the corner with the Road Commission for Oakland County (RCOC) in early summer. When she called back later in the summer, she had the impression RCOC did not think it warranted additional study.

That curving stretch of road, between Eston and Clintonville roads has speed limits recommended by the Michigan State Police of between 20 and 30 miles per hour. At Eston Road and east of Clintonville Road there are signs with blinking yellow lights warning of the curves and the speed limit reduction from 45 miles per hour.

Among the information that has not been released is the speed limit the boys were traveling. Dep. Blackmer said he has been traveling that road for over 20 years on patrol at the posted speed limit and faster when on a call, without any problems.

He said most of the accidents that occur on that stretch of road are due to speeding or alcohol, and called this incident, "a terrible tragedy."

RCOC vice chairman Rudy Lozano echoed Dep. Blackmer's point of view. He said the location was reviewed six or seven months ago for the possibility of putting up a guard rail, but that could present another problem. Lozano said there was some concern in that location a guard rail could propel a speeding driver into oncoming traffic.

Lozano said he spoke with Covault Monday morning and out of concern for the residents who live on that curve, would have RCOC reopen the investigation.

Covault said she understood most of the drivers who run off the road may be driving too fast or have been drinking, but still feels the drivers and residents

Local rescue units, police and fire departments responded to a three-car accident last Friday that took the life of an Oxford resident and injured a Clarkston woman. The accident, which occurred shortly before rush hour, had traffic backed up for miles along Baldwin Road.

David Nicholls, 48, died September 12 from injuries sustained in the crash that took place at about 4:05 p.m. September 11.

The accident happened on Baldwin Road at Stanton Road, with four townships bordering the scene; Orion, Oxford, Independence, and Brandon.

By a unanimous vote Springfield approves Meadowlands

By Genna Cottrell
Clarkston News Staff Writer

They were put through their paces, but Jerome Forrester and Lynn Kacy were given unanimous approval for their proposed Meadowlands cluster housing project by the Springfield Township board, September 10.

The Meadowlands project, located near the Hidden Trail residential area off of Rattalee Lake Road, has been ongoing for nearly four years. The township board, developers and local residents have pooled their efforts in order to create a new area of development that is saleable, yet preserves the surrounding natural amenities.

The Meadowlands, with its 15 lots on 20.28 acres, was first pitched to the board in a standard "subdivision" format with lot lines and housing in direct conflict with surrounding vegetation and grades.

The board suggested to Kacy and Forrester they redevelop their plans and submit them under a special land use permit for cluster housing, which they did. And after months of suggestion and resuggestion by both parties, the two agreed to a plan that suits all.

The new plan retains the majority of the existing woodlands and wetlands area, and provides for buffer zones throughout. "If you're careful, you won't even know there were houses back there," said trustee Dennis Vallad. "This can be done if done reasonably. It's as far away from any impact on the neighbors as could possibly be."

City councilman pleased with fund raising for study

At Monday night's city council meeting, David Savage said he was pleased with the progress of raising funds to hire a city development firm to study downtown.

Savage said he is $4,000 short of the $25,000 needed by the city to hire Hyett-Palma to help revitalize the downtown business district.

"Once we gather the funds, we will arrange for an escrow account to be established," he said. "If we wait until after the first of the year, we can account for it through next year's budget."

The newly established Clarkston State Bank has committed to giving $8,000 to the project, Savage continued. The National League of Cities is giving a 15 percent discount on its services, saving the council an additional $3,850. These contributions, along with the council's $5,000 contribution, make it close to its goal.

"Next, we'll be meeting with some downtown business owners," Savage said. "We are chopping away at it."

The play takes the audience on a suspenseful journey, filled with twists and turns and sprinkled with more than a dash of humor.

Directed by Bruce Bishop and produced by Melissa Breckenridge, the play's cast includes Win Likert, Greg Wilson, Linda Van Natta, Linda Killwald and Rick Shaw.

Tickets are $9 for Thursday shows (7:30 p.m.) and $10 for Friday and Saturday (8 p.m.). For more information call (248) 625-8811 or 625-1826. Everyone in the community can help

Teaching children how to succeed in life

BY MARALEE COOK
Clarkston News Editor

Assets and success. These are two words usually associated with finances, and rarely do they refer to children.

Several organizations in the Clarkston area are supporting a program directed at kids that have assets and success at their core. The difference is the assets are character-building techniques that can help develop happy, healthy children who make positive choices.

"What Kids Need to Succeed," is the title of a workshop October 1 which is designed to help parents, school personnel and community members raise healthy, caring and competent youth.

Its purpose is to answer the age-old questions, why do some kids grow up with ease while others struggle, and why do some kids get involved in dangerous activities while others spend their time contributing to society?

Developmental assets, 40 of them, are the key, according to research from the Search Institute. Speaker Flora Sanchez will present the program from 6 to 8:30 p.m. at Springfield Plains Elementary.

The concept has been embraced by several organizations in the area which are sponsoring the workshop, including Clarkston Community Task Force for Youth, Clarkston Area Chamber of Commerce, Clarkston Community PTAs and PTOs, Clarkston Area Youth Assistance and Independence Township Parks and Recreation.

Independence Township resident Suzette Hart is one of the program's advocates. The mother of nine children, Hart is on the Board of Directors of the Task Force.

In an interview last week, Hart said the developmental assets recommended by the Search Institute were parenting techniques she and her husband Tim have used instinctively in raising their children, which range in age from three months to 25 years.

Researchers at the Search Institute have determined there are 40 qualities young people need to increase the likelihood they'll be healthy, and keep away from at-risk behavior, said Hart.

"Research shows the average young person in grades six through 12 only has 18 of the 40 assets," said Hart. "They start off with more, but fall off in middle school as parents begin to feel their job is already done."

Suzette Hart, shown with three of her nine children, Regina, 25, Mike, 5 and Matthew, three months. Hart said she has always been involved with things having to do with children, first with her family, then through St. Daniel Catholic Church and now also with the Clarkston Community Task Force for Youth.

That's when parents have to get creative. It's the same as not letting a young child run out in the street."

She added if kids have less than 10 of the assets there's a chance they may not be strong enough to avoid trouble. If they have more than 30, there's evidence they'll make wiser choices.

Hart said the program is prevention-oriented and those involved hope the entire community will join in.

"None of us wants to see young people involved in negative things. Our society spends too much energy responding to a crisis after something happens. We'd like to replace that with a prevention approach and put kids in a better position to resist negative behavior," she said.

Hart stressed this program is supported by several groups and should be a community effort. "Most people would admit they can do a more effective job of helping young people."

For instance, following a workshop on the techniques, Hart was given the "homework assignment" of trying out asset building techniques on a young person she did not know.

Hart said she noticed a boy driving a remote control car near the library. She told him his car was cool and that her son likes them too. Hart said the boy told her he had built the car and seemed excited to talk about it.

"How many adults pass by kids and ignore them or don't want to be bothered? We need to think about our approach to young people and how we interact with 'Our society spends too much energy responding to (crises). We'd like to replace that with a prevention approach...'

Suzette Hart

them," said Hart.

She said asset building techniques used by school personnel, business people and people who have even occasional meetings with youth can help bolster self-esteem, and make up for what a teen may be missing at home.

"We also hope to have youth present at the conference," said Hart. "We want kids to hear the benefit of developmental assets so they can also be asset builders."

The workshop is October 1 from 6 to 8:30 p.m. at Springfield Plains Elementary School, 8650 Holcomb Rd. Tickets are available at the Clarkston Area Chamber of Commerce office or Independence Township Parks and Recreation office in advance for $7, or $10 at the door. Child care will be provided for children over two with pre-registration. For more information, call Clarkston Task Force for Youth, 394-0252.

Developmental Assets

According to research from the Search Institute, there are 20 External and 20 Internal Developmental Assets. Proponents recommend families quiz each other on

External Assets:

- Child receives support from three or more non-parent adults.

Townsend sub gets state funding to join Independence Twp. water system

BY EILEEN McCARVILLE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

The good news is over 60 residents of Townsend Lake Subdivision living in a contaminated well area will get free hookups to Independence Township's water system.

The bad news is the area has not yet been defined — and contamination could still be traveling.

So say state officials from Michigan's Department of Environmental Quality, which has been conducting well sampling in the area for the past few months. At least one-third of the estimated 100 wells tested have shown significant levels of contamination above state drinking water standards, according to Lois Graham, DEQ environmental sanitarian.

Both residential and commercial wells were tested, some more than once, on the following streets: Rockcroft, Corunna, Vandewater, Harding, Burlington, Wellington, Withorn, and portions of Waterford Road and Dixie Highway.

Graham said a number of volatile organic chemicals (VOCs) were found, including trichloroethylene (TCE), tetrachloroethylene (PCE), dichloroethane, trichloroethane and vinyl chloride.

Not all wells showed contamination, however, according to Cheryl Wilson, analyst for the DEQ's environmental response division. "In some wells there were small or significant amounts; in others there was none."

However, a $690,000 Quality of Life bond fund contract, recently approved by state and township officials, covers all the residents who fall within the state's established parameters — whether their wells are contaminated or not.

According to township Department of Public Works director George Anderson, homeowners in Townsend Lake originally petitioned for both sewer and water and were expected to pay for both through a special assessment district. But all that changed when the state ironically happened to be sampling wells in the area — and found contamination. Enough was found to qualify for state funding.

"So we told the resident to drop the water petition," Anderson said. Now residents will have to pay only for sewer, approximately $12,000 per homeowner for the next 10-15 years. Both systems are expected to be in by the end of January. The state is supplying bottled drinking water until that time.

Even though some residents' wells are clean, they'll get "a free ride" into the system because water mains will run alongside their homes, Anderson said.

The DEQ is planning to investigate the source of contamination, which could be linked to a former dry cleaners and gas station. Graham said tests revealed "a mixture of petroleum compounds and cleaning solvents." Some chemicals are carcinogens, considered to be cancer-causing.

Wilson said the DEQ is in the process of hiring a contractor to install a permanent monitoring system that will collect soil and groundwater samples. "They will tell us where the contamination is coming from and to define the area," she said.

Although Graham believes contamination is moving with the groundwater toward Townsend Lake, she said there should be no concern for swimming and wildlife. The chemicals are "volatile" which means, "once they get into the water, they will evaporate," she said.

Meanwhile, other residents in Townsend sub who are not a part of the hookup are concerned. Doug Phend, who lives on Rockcroft, said he is upset because the district stops one door away from his home.

His well was sampled only once, with negative results, but he's worried because contaminated wells are dotted throughout the subdivision. "Some of the wells they tested turned out OK. Some did not. So it's moving around ... If it's moving around, what's to stop people from starting to drink bad water?"

Several months ago, Phend experienced some physical symptoms which he believe may be traced to one of the contaminants, TCE: dizziness, vertigo, severe headaches and numbness to the left side of his face. Various testing was done at a local hospital, but doctors found no cause.

For the past three months, the family has been on bottled water, and Phend said his symptoms have ended.

Dr. David Wade, toxicologist for the Michigan Department of Community Health, agreed it would be difficult to trace Phend's symptoms to a contamination problem. Because TCE is a solvent, it metabolizes quickly — and then just as quickly dissipates.

"It can come out through the sweat glands," Wade said. Long-term exposure to TCE in high doses has grown tumors in laboratory rats, but a person would have to be exposed to very high amounts daily and over a long period of time to have problems, he added. "The long-term effect they're trying to control is cancer."

Wade said most problems come from accidents or industrial exposure to TCE in "high concentrations — much higher than we're seeing in the well water to date."

Meanwhile, the state hopes to install the monitoring system as soon as contracts are in place.

Graham said "no trace" of contamination was found in Phend's well or in 11 others sampled on his end of Rockcroft.

She has talked to Phend about his concerns. "I know he's angry. But we can only get so much funding for where the contaminated wells are," she added, noting the state's parameters.

"We're still going to monitor. We're not walking away from the site. If later on the contamination spreads to that part of Rockcroft, certainly the water main can be extended to help them."

Springfield Twp. gives okay to 'cluster' development

However, several local residents did not agree. "This is a rural township, I don't think this will be esthetically pleasing to us," said resident David Rademacher. "It's a very fragile area, a watershed area with wildlife. This is not why I moved out to Springfield Township."

Resident Bob Radoye spoke of his concerns regarding lot size. "The density in this area is supposed to be one acre - some of these lots are less than a half acre. I'm afraid of setting a precedent here that we can't take back at a later date."

Township Supervisor Collin Walls said, "The issue here is not 'can we stop this development' but can this land support 15 lots? By reducing the lot size, we can preserve the surrounding wetlands and wooded areas, and guarantee that they will be forever protected."

In other business

A proposed extractive ordinance was tabled pending further clarification of specific language by the township attorney. The ordinance, in its final draft, will address issues of earth moving and excavation in the township. Currently, special permits are required for what would be considered household types of excavation and grading, such as land-

To some the question remains: just what is 'cluster housing'

By Genna Cottrell
Clarkston News Staff Writer

So, what exactly is cluster development, anyways? Although the concept has been around and successfully used in Springfield Township and other municipalities, its principals can still be a mystery.

"There's a lot of misconception as what a cluster development exactly is," said Springfield Township Clerk Nancy Strole. "It's a simple concept, it just takes a different way of thinking about development."

In a nutshell, cluster development allows a community to retain its natural amenities while allowing for inevitable development to occur.

This happens two ways. First and foremost, parcels of land must still meet density requirements as set by the township. For example, if a 15 acre parcel of land is to be developed, it must not hold more than 15 homes if the lot size requirements are one acre in the proposed area.

The second piece to the puzzle is the part that is easily misinterpreted. If the proposed parcel is blessed with natural amenities such as lakes, streams, woodlands or wetlands, the surrounding areas may be better served by grouping homes and common areas together. Although the actual lot sizes may be smaller than the one acre, it allows developers to tuck in homes in a non-traditional way -- in compliment to surrounding natural resources.

The beauty of the cluster plan is that large areas of trees, steep slopes and wetlands are preserved for all to enjoy. "When a developer approaches the township requesting a special land use for cluster development, it almost always means that the township and its residents will gain a greater opportunity to express concerns and ideas on how to preserve the area," she said.

Permanent open spaces are planned directly into the development, along with common areas such as parks, nature trails and nature preserves. "These areas become untouchable in the future, that is to say in the master plan, they will remain intact despite future development," said Strole. "That works to everyone's environmental benefit."

This benefits both nearby residents and developers alike. Neighbors who currently live in the area are assured that the terrain will remain nearly the same as when they bought their property. Developers are required to create buffer zones that essentially shield their homesites from view using features that already exist, like trees and slopes.

Developers find that cluster development benefits them as well. The concept is still new to some -- builders have to move away from the standard "square subdivision" frame of mind. But once they do, they find cost savings in things such as grading, tree removal and wetland draining.

Property desirability is also increased. Strole noted that in the Bridge Valley development, properties that abutted features such as woodlands or wetlands were first to sell and at a higher price. Although technically the lot sizes may be smaller, potential buyers are impressed with the retention of the natural surroundings, which is what drew them to areas like Springfield Township in the first place.

It's a win-win situation for all, once the concept is understood. "We get folks in here all the time who are very concerned about the cluster plan," said Strole. "Once we can explain why we are doing this, they almost always agree it's in the best interest of everybody."

EI-LINERS

by Eileen McCarville
*The way
of romantics*

When I was younger, my father liked sharing the story of my first piano recital. I was the newest and smallest pupil, and my dad watched that long, painful journey up the aisle to the waiting Steinway — with tears, pride and a lump in his throat.

It was, of course, a metaphor for his little girl growing up, and one more realization that someday he'd have to let go. As I proceeded, he noticed my spindly legs and how they ended in brand-new shoes.

He suffered with me, every step of the way. And because of that, the shoes seemed larger than they really were.

"Those new shoes looked like gunboats," he used to say.

Somehow that scene wandered into my brain, while it was searching for a way to write about the subject of this week's column: "Titanic."

The doomed ship of dreams wasn't a gunboat. It was a luxury ocean liner. But that's close enough.

Like every other saturated romantic in the area, I snatched the blockbuster — in this case, at Blockbuster — as soon as the video became available.

"Go home happy." Yes, I did, but after I turned it in (late), I experienced the same kind of let-down you go through after Christmas.

It can be yours forever. Isn't that the hype they're feeding us on T.V.? Well, sentimental fool that I am, I fell for it. So a few days later I found myself in a dilemma — and in front of the "Titanic" display at Media Play.

Penny pinching after a recent vacation, I realized I should be frugal and spend my money wisely. Looking down at my old Rockports, I realized they were starting to fall apart at the seams.

A new pair of shoes on sale or a $19.99 movie? It was a hard decision.

But my woman's heart, which Old Rose says is "like an ocean," finally won over common sense.

Even though I knew my more-practical husband or late father might have looked down and said, "You need a new pair of gunboats."

There are some things in life only we romantics understand. The shoes can wait a little while when the heart calls.

Jack Dawson, being the starving artist who sweeps Young Rose off her feet, would understand.

Jack would have sketched a picture of the shoes — perhaps with Rose wearing only the necklace and the shoes — but he wouldn't have spent the money on them. He would have bought some brand-new charcoal pencils.

On the other hand, Cal, Rose's callous fiance, would have ordered her to buy a new pair if she needed them. After all, he couldn't even stand to see her hair wet.

Perhaps Molly Brown would have loaned Jack the shoes, like the tux he wore to the snooty rich folks' dinner.

Come to think of it, if Jack and Rose had shucked their shoes, they might have both been able to climb onto that piece of wood and survive.

Then they could have sold the necklace after they docked and bought millions of pairs of shoes, not to mention a new house and a trip to Paris...

Ah me, the way the romantic mind does wander. However, I like to think Jack and Rose would have bought the movie if they'd landed. They would have gone skipping off into the sunset — shoeless.

Sigh.

They would have gone home happy.

Honoring a leader with vision

Monday night the meeting room at Clarkston Schools Administration Office was dedicated to the late Dr. Leslie F. Greene who served the district as superintendent for 25 years.

The dedication was suggested by former assistant superintendent Mel Vaara, who worked with Dr. Greene for many years.

Each of the nearly 50 family members, former friends and colleagues in the audience shared affectionate anecdotes about their association with "Doc" Greene.

The tributes were warm, many funny, and all painted a portrait of a formidable, compassionate leader who accurately predicted the growth that would follow long after he retired.

When they introduced themselves, two trustees who never met Dr. Greene proved true the value of his vision.

Treasurer Ron Sullivan said his family moved to Clarkston because of the reputation of the schools.

Trustee Mary Ellen McLean said when people ask her why she moved "up north" from Detroit, she said, "It's because of this (the tribute) and people like this."

Well said. MKC

Letters to the Editor

He objects to firefighter's opinion

Dear Editor,

Who will pay the price? These are the words of firefighter/engineer Larry Wormnest in The Clarkston News last week. He also questioned whether we should cut back on some more critical services provided to the community by the firefighters.

It is this kind of attitude on the part of some that led me to say that approving the firefighters' contract was like being held hostage. However, I never suggested that the firefighters were terrorists. To the contrary, I also said at that meeting that fire protection is one of the most basic services taxpayers expect from their local government, and that we in Independence Township have quality equipment and quality personnel. But that does not mean that the elected township board or the taxpayers of this community should turn over the keys of the treasury or the management of the fire department to the firefighters.

To imply that the township must add whatever personnel or equipment is requested, or grant every pay raise and benefit demanded... or "someone will pay a price" could, I suppose, be intimidating. Some may even say that it is a scare tactic, but it is most certainly an inappropriate threat.

Firefighter/engineer Wormnest is also concerned that the contract ratification was held during a special closed session. Actually the contract approval vote by the township board was held in a public meeting that was specially called for another purpose, but was used to review the proposed contract so that we could deal with it immediately after two years of negotiations.

Closed meetings are typical when discussing labor negotiations and are allowed under the Open Meetings Act. Also, I have previously suggested to the supervisor that some of the board's discussion of labor negotiations be done publicly. It is my view that the taxpayers of this community would be upset with some of the demands made by the union negotiators, particularly those demands applying to just one individual.

The bottom line is that two years ago, the firefighters chose to re-open their contract and they now have a new contract which provides significant increases in pay and benefits although it is not everything the union negotiators demanded.

This contract will not put the township in the red. But knowing what our costs are, the township can now move forward with the supervisor's plans for increasing personnel. We are fortunate to have a good, well-trained, well-equipped fire department.

Now that the contract has been settled, I am convinced that in short order the township board will be reviewing the supervisor's plan for changes in personnel to keep up with the needs of our growing community.

Very truly yours,
Neil E. Wallace

Manpower is still the issue

Dear Editor,

Mr. Stuart, you stated in your editorial letter that you have been discussing manpower issues since 1992 but could not act on anything during your contract talks. These talks went from 1996 to 1998, what did you do for the first four years you were in office in regards to this situation?

Approximately three years ago the union came to you again in regards to the lack of manpower. You stated that nothing would be done until the new fire station was complete.

What does the building of a new station have to do with the manpower needed to safely operate the department and give the tax payers what they deserve? If the township was that unsure of the cost of running that new building (which we were told was the reason for not hiring at that time), then maybe the township should have built a more conservative structure. That new station has now been complete and operating for over two years and we are still under staffed.

The voters had allocated to levy 3 mills for fire service. I understand the Headlee roll back only lets us collect part of that 3 mills. Why can't the full 3 mills be collected like the voters elected? Maybe then that money can be used for the manpower needed.

You also stated that if the manpower was hired, the $2,500,000 (which is not the amount we now collect for fire budget) could double. Are you stating that all of the $2,500,000 goes towards wages and benefits?

My understanding is that the $2,500,000 is fire budget, which includes all of the operations, maintenance, utilities, equipment, etc. If that amount does pay for the entire operation, how can just manpower alone double that figure?

Also, you said that $2,500,000 was 3 mills collected; again, we do not collect the full three mills.

Your last paragraph in the editorial stated that the plans were designed to meet the needs of the community. Too bad you have not listened to the people who have to respond to those needs. I think we need a new

DON'T RUSH ME / by Don Rush

Thoughts from . . . somewhere

Here they are again, the ramblings of a mad man.

I must admit that while the jousting, unique crafts and fake medieval atmosphere of the Michigan Renaissance Festival is interesting, what really grabs my attention are some of the individuals who frequent the thing.

It's a fashion (?) bonanza of mythical proportions.

Like Merlin cast a spell on me, I cannot help but look at some people -- I mean stare. I mean gawk. I mean -- oh hell, I think you know what I mean. (If you don't, consider yourself lucky.) I cannot turn away when out in front, prancing towards me is a:

Womanly sized woman dressed as Rapunzel, letting it all hang out . . .

. . . some malnourished, bony kid of 20-something with purple eyeliner, sparkley lip stick, green hair and jack boots . . .

. . . 1970s pony-tailed radical left-over with a potbelly bursting from his leather vest, arms, back, neck and legs full of tattoos . . .

. . . woman of 40 or so who's lived life hard and yet still thinks she can stuff herself into black leather chaps and accompanying garments.

Commented to Jennie upon seeing the 100th pair of jeans on teens, dragging in the dirt, pant-leg bottoms under the shoes of the wearers, that I couldn't walk that way.

Don't they trip themselves?

Isn't it heck trying to wash and keep them things clean? Doesn't it cost a lot of money to buy all that extra jean material only to walk on it and pulverize the bottoms of the pant legs?

I must have lamented for long, agonizing minutes, 'cuz the gal by my side stopped me somewhere in mid-sentence with, "You are an old man."

The only comeback I had (have) is: "Honey, I was born old."

The festival is not much for stroller-bound boys. But, if you got one and have to take him, nine-month-old Shamus gives two thumbs up to the belly dancers.

I think it was the music.

Answer me this readers o'mine: with thousands and thousands of people, strollers, jugglers, actors in costume, horses, pipers, flouters and what-not-have-you-ers, why would anybody bring their pet dog to the Renaissance Festival?

JIM'S JOTTINGS / by Jim Sherman

Northwest, infidelity, McGwire

We probably don't qualify as "frequent" fliers (I know a salesman with a million miles), but with two round trips a year to Arizona and one to Florida it seemed like getting a Northwest WorldPerks Visa Card was the right thing to do.

Over the past half dozen years we accumulated enough miles for a 2-way flight to Phoenix. Then as we neared the required miles again for a free trip Northwest changed the rules. They now demand double the miles previously required.

Since the number of classes of seats in an airplane may come to a dozen, we reasoned the "free" fliers seats could be minimal and hard to get on our flying schedule.

So we quit using the Northwest Visa. With the strike by pilots being allowed to continue we get the feeling Northwest doesn't hold the public first in their plans.

Anyway, America West has the same number of non-stop flights to Phoenix as Northwest, 8:09 and 10:52 a.m. and 4:30 p.m., so let their peanuts and pretzels spoil.

By the way, do you know what non-stop and direct flight mean? Direct flights stop some place before its final destination.

Since the last Jottings a couple more people-in-the-news have followed our president's lead and admitted adultery, infidelity, promiscuity, disloyalty or whatever word their supporters and opponents want to use.

As the Russian comedian oft says, "What a country!"

Once the evidence poured in, Clinton admitted he lied about an "improper relationship." Since his opponents went public with their knowledge that Rep. Dan Burton of Indiana had fathered a child in 1988, he admitted it, but said "I never perjured myself," which makes it all right I guess.

Now comes a prominent Baptist minister who says, "Me, too."

Spread the blame, but don't put it all on television, today's movies, Internet and Baby Boomers. These three men were not the first.

And, didn't the home run race come along at the right time for Tiger baseball fans?

While the Detroit Tigers are making news the only way they know how, by firing their manager or bringing someone up from the minors, Mark McGwire is hitting 62 and Sammy Sosa is chasing him. And they're in the "other" league.

The "Wait 'til next year" cry will be for those two. The cry we can expect to hear is, "Wait 'til we get our new stadium."

After the two losses by MSU's football team, one by U of M and one by the Lions, I've taken to watching the Home and Garden TV channel with Hazel.

Wow! We've finally made it into the new school. As I returned to school this week, I realized that the new Clarkston High School is the fifth building I've had to learn to navigate in the past four years. This trend started the year that I lived outside of Boston, where I had to find my way around their high school due to the fact that our middle school was contaminated by asbestos, fumes and other various poisons. That same year, I moved into the renovated middle school, and the next year I came back to Clarkston and started eighth grade. I haven't been in one building for more than a year since.

So I'm used to finding my way around new buildings with nothing but a map to direct me. I haven't gotten lost yet this year.

The first time I got a chance to look around the building was on orientation day, when I went way up stairs to find my locker. The locker location guide was helpful when used in addition to the map, since the halls all seem to look the same. However, it was not very useful when it said that the odd-numbered lockers were on the left side of the hall and the even numbers on the right—it's a two-way street. But I did find it with minimal difficulty and manage to quickly open it on the way to classes a couple times per day.

Classes were also pretty easy to find, including my language arts class, which is located in the mysterious "Terrace." There was a fair amount of debate about where and what this exactly was, but I eventually figured out that it's just a euphemism for "lower level," which is in itself a euphemism for "basement with auto lab, manufacturing, and an English class."

The remainder of my classes are on the main squares, so they're not bad.

I've even managed to find the secondary stairwells—yes, there is hope! There are other staircases! I say this because it appears that many of my fellow students have only noticed the main stairwell—there's frequently a line to go up it, while the other sets of stairs have no more than five people on them at a time.

Now that I've found my way around, the only remaining obstacle is the distance, which I'm sure I'll get more accustomed to as time goes on. And the lines at the stairs won't be as difficult as we all get a better idea of how to maneuver.

Not only are there a lot of stairs, but computers and TVs are abundantly scattered throughout the building, too. I was a bit skeptical when I was told there would be multiple computers and a TV in every classroom, but it's true. And if there aren't enough electronics for you there, we've got nine computer labs.

The building's great, and will be even better when the auditorium, pool, TV studio, and other large facilities get finished. And if we got our lunches extended a bit, I'd be as happy as a freshly-milked cow.

Sheriffs awarded grant for beefed-up force

BY EILEEN MCCARVILLE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

With a crime rate lower than most communities, Independence Township is lucky.

If you ask local officials, much of that good fortune is attributed to outstanding police services — supported by residents who are willing to pay for them.

But police services must keep pace with growth. That's why the township took a look at its budget last October and decided it could support Oakland County Sheriff Lt. Dale LaBair's request for two new patrol officers and a detective to supplement his on-the-go force.

However, the board waited to approve budget costs because LaBair said a federal grant could pay as much as $75,000 per person of the officers' salaries over the next three years, totaling approximately $225,000. He submitted an application to the U.S. Department of Justice's Universal Hiring Program "COPS" (Community Oriented Policing Services).

Now, almost a year later, LaBair announced the township has been awarded the grant. It will be distributed to each officer in graduated amounts: $30,000 the first year, $25,000 the second year and $20,000 the third year.

He plans to also submit an application for a state grant, which was contingent on acquiring the federal funds. "It's a state co-grant," he explained. "You have to have the federal grant to pay that."

If awarded, the state grant will bring in an extra $61,500 over the next three years, and the township will only be responsible for $416,094 of the officers' salaries.

A patrol officer's salary and benefits package is around $81,811 a year; an investigator's package is $80,730, he said.

The township contracts with the OCSD for police services. The 1998 police personnel budget is estimated at $1,592,586. Anticipated overtime raises it to $1,941,938. The grants would reduce that number significantly.

Currently, the township's population is estimated to be around 28,000 people. According to LaBair, the Department of Justice's "suburban rule" is to figure one officer for every 1,000 people. According to those statistics, there weren't enough officers covering Independence.

Plus, with the "rash of larcenies," complaints and need for increased traffic enforcement, the additional in front of their new digs: the Independence substation.

staffing was desperately needed, LaBair said. With the hiring of three new officers, his staff has increased from 19 to 22 men.

The new officers include deputies Jim Willyard and Scott Patterson and investigator (detective) David Hendrick. All have been in the force for around 10 years, four years on road patrol and six years at the Oakland County Jail.

Hendrick has been a patrol officer at the Independence substation for one year, becoming a detective in June. Patterson and Willyard have been here

LIVE THE AMERICAN DREAM

That was the theme the folks at VIP Realty chose for their float in the Clarkston Labor Day Parade which won the "Best Theme Award". The Clarkston residents lined the streets and the community spirit shined.

"Our family cares about your family" All the folks at VIP and their families participated in handing out over 300 balloons and lots of candy. It was a chilly start, but the rain stopped and it turned out to be a great day for everyone, especially the children. It was fun to watch their anticipation and excitement.

Surprise!

The staff presented Nicole Gourand, the broker (and mom to all), a beautiful plaque commemorating the 10 year anniversary of their company. The theme "Live the American Dream" has never been more appropriate. Nicole claims the success of VIP Realty is the same as what brought the float together, everyone brings their special talents and they really care about doing a great job. That spells Success!

Business News

Therm and Judy Nichols then . . .

And now.

A new chapter begins for Nichols Heating and Cooling

By Genna Cottrell
Clarkston News Staff Writer

It isn't that Therm Nichols didn't enjoy running his business for over 20 years. "I'm just ready for a break," he said, "it's been hard work!"

And retire he will, turning over the helm of Nichols Heating and Cooling to his trusted employee and family friend Randy Young, effective the first of this month.

Nichols spent 22 years building a business from the ground up, with his first entrepreneurial adventure starting in the screened-in porch at his home in June of 1976.

His first customers were folks he had established a relationship with while reading meters for Consumers Power after his stint in the Army.

"It was a bigger commitment than we realized at the time," said Nichols. "It was not a smart move, we were undercapitalized, had young kids -- we were just young and foolish."

His wife Judy agreed. "In the beginning it was like being married to a doctor, taking emergency calls 24 hours a day. It was almost too much to handle, we created a monster!"

But as their experience grew and customer base increased, the couple learned to tame their monster into a successful and thriving business.

"In 1983, we had to move the business out of the house," said Therm. "We took it over to our location we had on Dixie Highway. We eventually moved again in December of 1994 to our current Andersonville Road location."

"And I now have employees that handle those late night calls."

Therm credits his company's success to prompt customer service and a commitment to stay on top of current heating and cooling trends.

"We are continuously updating our equipment, and sending our employees to distributor-sponsored schools. Over the years everything's gotten more technical, more efficient and competitive. We have to stay on top of those things."

That commitment to quality is something he knows Randy Young will continue to provide to residents.

"The customers just love Randy," said Therm. "He's very personable and concerned about his customers, and that shows in the work that he does."

Randy worked his way up in the company, starting out as an apprentice student from Clarkston High School in 1983, to eventually buying out the majority of Nichols stock last July.

"He knows what this takes," said Therm. "He's seen it all first hand - he's very mature and courteous. I have complete confidence in him to take Nichols Heating and Cooling to new heights of success, profitability and service to the community."

After handing over the reins to Randy, Therm and his wife have no plans to slow down. "I wouldn't even call this a retirement," he said. "I will still be working with the company as a consultant and in the residential sales systems. Guess I'll never get out of it totally, will I?"

Therm and Judy are looking forward to traveling and visiting with their three grown children, Stacey, Jim and Andy. "We don't have any grandchildren yet," said Judy. "But we do have several grand-cats! It will be nice to put a little of this behind us, relax a little and get to the stuff we've been waiting to try. It's a whole new start for the both of us."

Sheriffs

since July. The present staff includes one lieutenant, two sergeants, three detectives, one school liaison and the rest, patrolmen.

LaBair said the added force also fills the township's desire for "community policing." Willyard and Patterson are responsible for both traffic enforcement and "directed patrol."

"They'll have targeted areas to work," LaBair said, explaining the latter. "Their first thing is to concentrate on traffic enforcement. But they will not be dispatched to routine calls. They will be directed to specific areas."

One example could be posting a patrol car at the new high school, LaBair said. "Or if I know I am getting most of my injury accidents at Dixie and Maybee, that's where they're going to be."

Patrol officers aren't the only extras LaBair needed. He wanted another detective as well. "Because of the volume of calls out here, I had only two investigators on staff. They were running themselves ragged. The third (Hendrick) has taken a lot of the pressure off."

LaBair gives credit to his staff for keeping the crime rate down. He pointed to the latest robbery, which took place at a local health food store.

"Right now that is our only unsolved robbery," he said with obvious pride. "And we had a whole flock of 'em last year."

Township clerk Joan McCrary said residents should also be praised. "I always hear the reason we have lower crime rates out here is we're willing to pay for police services. The criminals all know we will pay whatever it takes to make our area a safe place. And we have excellent support from the taxpayers."

On August 25 the township board approved ballot language for police millage renewal, at 2.764 mills, to be on the Nov. 3 ballot.

"That is not an increase. That simply combines our two existing millages," LaBair said. If approved, the township will collect $2,377,210 the first year.

The board also recently approved a new contract with the OCSD, which will give officers, on the average, three-percent increases in their salaries.

CBS films CHS

A CBS news crew spent some time at the new Clarkston High School the first week of school filming a documentary on teens for the show "48 Hours."

Producer Abra Potkin said the crew has been filming at several high schools across the country, but the focus of the documentary and an air date have not been determined yet.

Potkin said she and the crew were very impressed with the new school. She has been doing teen documentaries for about seven years and has filmed in schools from Beverly Hills, California to inner cities, and CHS is one of the nicest she's been in. She added the CHS TV studio could be used to produce their show.

Potkin said the crew hopes to be back to film Homecoming October 9.

Sign up for Jr. Miss

Young Clarkston women who are high school seniors this year are encouraged to try out for this year's America's Jr. Miss program. The local program will be held in November and is open to all residents (You do not have to attend Clarkston High School to be eligible).

The date and location are still undetermined said Independence Township resident Forta Morgan, a past participant and parent who is running the pageant after a lapse of several years in the Clarkston district. However, Morgan is working with Clarkston schools and CHS principal Brent Cooley, who "is backing the program one thousand percent," she said, adding that the pageant will even get a spot in the yearbook.

Please contact Morgan at (248) 922-0912 if you are interested. The orientation date is set for Thursday, Sept. 24 at 7 p.m. at the new Clarkston High School. There will be a sign inside the main entrance pointing the way to the meeting's location. There will also be a series of rehearsals before the pageant.

Sponsors and volunteers for the event are also needed, Morgan said.

Jr. Miss looks for young women who excel all-around to represent each community. The contest is not a beauty pageant. Selection is based on scholastic achievement, creative and performing arts, presence and composure, physical fitness, and a 10-minute interview before judges.

Each contestant will participate in an opening number, do a group physical fitness routine, a creative and performing arts presentation of her choice, and a presence and composure group routine.

The local winner and at least one runner-up will go on to compete in the state pageant in Alpena. Finalists will compete in the national contest.

Winners receive scholarships in several different categories, which apply to any type of higher education. They are not limited to major universities, but also include local and trade schools.

scaping, gardening and excavation for structures and additions. The new ordinance would allow such excavations and extractions for home improvement purposes to proceed without permits.

The extraction ordinance will also attempt to give the township leverage in stopping developers who begin excavation and land leveling projects before their site plans have been formally approved by the township board.

Residents on Hillsboro Road submitted their petition to have the stretch of road between Shaffer and Hillman roads reduced to a 25 MPH speed limit. Currently, this two-tenths of a mile stretch of Hillsboro falls under "End Residential" signs, a non-posted/55 mile per hour status. In a letter drafted to the board, resident Denise Cape remarked, "This is a dirt road with 45 degree curves with 1.5 lanes at best. Upon oncoming traffic, one or both drivers must pull off to a near stop for safe passage while children and pets play at both sides of the road. Larger vehicles and less than ideal road and weather conditions only compound this already dangerous situation."

The request was transmitted by the board to the Oakland County Road Commission for action.

Sashabaw Middle School welcomes new assistant principal

Steve Marsden looks forward to helping students toward their goals

By Genna Cottrell
Clarkston News Staff Writer

The ring of the first school bell brought students back to a new assistant principal at Sashabaw Middle School, and Steve Marsden was ready for the challenge.

"It feels great to be back. I look forward to the new challenge. I see myself as a role model for the kids," said Marsden. "The teachers do a wonderful job of presenting the academics, and I like to set the guidelines for appropriate social behavior."

"I like being out in the halls with the kids. I try to pop in and out of the classrooms -- I really thrive on their energy and love working with them."

Marsden says he wants to create an environment where the students can come to him for help. "I would like every student to work and learn in a safe environment, one in which they feel confident and secure."

Marsden comes to SMS chock full of experience in the teaching field, and lessons in the school of life to share with his students.

After completing his bachelors degree in Social Science at Michigan State University, he went on to serve his country teaching reading to Army recruits at Fort Knox.

After serving in Vietnam for another year, Marsden returned to the area and earned his teaching certificate and a masters degree in reading at Oakland University.

Steve Marsden

However, his teaching desires would be put on hold while the banking world called for a time. "I went in to a local bank here in Clarkston for a mortgage, and came out with a job," he said. "I put it all on the back burner for a few years, but teaching was still in my blood."

He returned to his first love through the Waterford School District. He first taught reading at Mason Middle School, worked as a teacher leader, and then on to class advisor and department chairperson to assistant high school principal at Kettering High School.

Another masters degree in administration at Oakland University rounded out his resume, and a doctoral dissertation is currently in the works. So when the assistant principal's position came available at SMS, Marsden was ready for the challenge.

And what has been his biggest crisis this first week of school? "Helping the kids with their lockers," Marsden says with a smile. "But these kids are so very eager to learn. The very first day they were smiling and wanted to get in to the building and get a start. This is a hard time in their life. I hope to help them learn to cope with the pressures of it all. Helping them to understand their choices and to take responsibility for their actions is an invaluable lesson at this point in their lives."

That's my job as a role model in helping these kids," he said, "Helping them move towards a successful high school career and beyond."

Davisburg man charged in shooting

Preliminary hearing scheduled for September 24 at 9 a.m.

A Milford woman remains in critical condition at Genesys Health Park seven days after she was shot outside the Davisburg New Oakland Child-Adolescent and Family Center.

Davisburg resident Kelly Scott Rundell, 36 was charged September 10 with eight counts in connection with the shooting, which took place around 11 a.m. September 9.

Gwen Hunter, 43, a business manager at the clinic, was allegedly shot twice with a shotgun by Rundell, as she took a break outside the building. Rundell, who lives with his family near the clinic on Andersonville Road, reportedly is not acquainted with Hunter.

Rundell was arraigned before Judge Gerald McNally at 52-2 District Court. He was charged with assault with intent to murder, felonious assault, possession of a short-barreled rifle, resisting and obstructing a police officer, carrying a concealed weapon and three other firearms charges.

McNally ordered him held without bond in the Oakland County Jail. His preliminary hearing is scheduled for September 24 at 9 a.m.

Family members of Rundell who were present at the arraignment said they were, "sorry this happened."

Elizabeth Boyce, one of Hunter's co-workers, said Hunter's long-term prognosis is good but a lot of damage was done from the gunshot wounds.

She is expected to remain in critical condition through the weekend, but doctors hope to remove her from the ventilator soon, Boyce said. She added family members report she is "feisty" which is a good sign.

A fund has been established to help the family's expenses, Boyce said. Checks may be made out to the Gwen Hunter Fund, and mailed to the New Oakland Child-Adolescent and Family Center, 12731 Andersonville Rd., Davisburg, MI 48350. Boyce also said Hunter lost a lot of blood and donations of blood to the Flint Red Cross would be appreciated.

If no two people are alike... why should their funerals be?

They shouldn't, at least we don't think so. To be truly memorable, a service should reflect the tastes and preferences of the person who has died. Oxford man dies in crash

Nicholls was ejected from his vehicle, and the other two drivers were removed from their vehicles with the "Jaws of Life." The "Jaws of Life" are used to spread and cut the vehicle away from the victim.

Cheryl Shank, a 42 year old Clarkston resident, is still in serious condition, and Larry Yingling, a 45 year old Ortonville resident, was treated and released from Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital.

Yingling was northbound on Baldwin in his 1994 Chevrolet pickup truck. At the intersection of Baldwin and Stanton, his vehicle was struck by a 1994 Chevrolet pickup truck, driven by Nicholls, who was traveling westbound on Stanton.

need to be protected.

Last spring a Springfield Plains Elementary second grader and her unborn baby brother were killed on Dixie Hwy. in Springfield Township.

Following that accident RCOC agreed to study the possibility of putting in a center left turn lane or lowering the speed limit.

Over the weekend a wreath and flowers were placed at the site of the accident on Clarkston Road. Toni King, a friend of the Lorion family said Ryan worked at a nearby horse farm and loved vintage cars.

King added the family wants to urge young drivers to be careful when they drive and to wear their seatbelts.

Ryan is survived by his parents, Bob and Donna and his brother Matt. Funeral services were Monday. Memorials may be made to the Michigan Humane Society. Friends of Ryan's from CHS hope to organize a memorial, and details are pending.

Yingling's vehicle was forced into the southbound lane of Baldwin, where it struck a southbound 1997 Chevy Blazer. The Blazer was being operated by Shank.

According to the police report, Nicholls was not wearing his seatbelt and Yingling and Shank were both wearing theirs.

Alcohol may have been a factor in the crash, which remains under investigation by the Oakland County Sheriff's Department Traffic Division.

One of the vehicles ended up in Oxford, one in Independence, and the other ended up on the Lake Orion-Independence border.

According to the police report, Shank's Blazer flipped over and the fuel tank was leaking. She was still strapped in her vehicle with a seatbelt.

Rescue units from Orion Fire Stations #1 and #3 were at the scene, along with the Oxford Fire Department. Three ambulances were also at the scene to transport the three drivers to POH.

"We had three different vehicles and three different victims; one was serious and another subsequently died," Orion Fire Chief Jeff Key said. "We did CPR on the scene, and tried to revive him (Nicholls). We had to extricate each of the other two victims from their vehicles. It was a very unfortunate accident, but I wish all of our accident scenes could go that smoothly."

Key said the top of Shank's '97 Blazer had to be cut off, in order to remove her from the wreckage. One of the doors on Yingling's pickup truck also had to be cut off, so that he could be removed from his vehicle and placed on a backboard safely.

"I can't see the emergency response going much better, or more smoother," Key said. "This was probably one of the more serious accidents in our area in recent months."

Nicholls was a business partner with Barbara Hickman at Pattern Guild and Products, Inc. of Auburn Hills. Nicholls is survived by his wife, Lisa, his two children Ian and Aimee, and his grandmother Mary Brush.

Wolves avoid 1997 repeat in slim win over Falcons

Clarkston 17

Rochester 14

BY BRAD MONASTIERE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

It was a game that looked, sounded, and felt much like last year's.

The Clarkston varsity football team, visiting Rochester, dominated the first half of play and took a double-digit lead into the third quarter.

Then, the Falcons found some consistent offense and quickly closed the gap.

But unlike last year, the Wolves came up with big defensive plays when they needed it, and gained a key 17-14 win over Rochester.

Clarkston, now 2-0 overall and 1-0 in the OAA Division I, travels to Troy Athens Friday night for a game against the Red Hawks. In their last two meetings, the Wolves have outscored Athens by a combined score of 103-24.

The Falcons (1-1) had cut a 17-point deficit to three late in the fourth quarter, and was threatening to tie or take the lead with a drive that started on their own 35-yard-line with 1:50 left in the game. But on the drive's third play, senior Ron Wells intercepted a pass in the middle of the field, effectively ending the game and bringing a huge sigh of relief to the Clarkston sideline.

"We watched film of them all week and knew all the patterns they were going to run," Wells said. "Everyone is doubting us because we don't have any big-name players. We get some drive from that."

Wells' pick was his second of the game and the fourth by the Clarkston secondary, which played its best game as a unit in a long time.

"Our secondary was outstanding tonight," Clarkston coach Kurt Richardson said. "All through half-time, we were talking to the guys about not letting this game go like last year's, when we had a lead and lost it." In that game last year, the Wolves had a 19-7 halftime lead before losing 20-19.

The Wolves were in total control in the first half, thanks to a punishing ground attack that featured junior tailback Chris Mitchell and senior fullback Tim Loveless. Mitchell rushed 27 times for 159 yards and a touchdown, while Loveless ran a career-high 14 times for 105 yards and a score.

Loveless started the scoring on Clarkston's second drive by rumbling 12 yards for a score while dragging two Falcon defenders with him.

With 6:30 left in the second, Mitchell capped off a fabulous first half with a 10-yard touchdown run off left tackle to give Clarkston a 14-0 lead. Up to that point, Mitchell had rushed for 125 yards and had eight runs of more than 10 yards.

Richardson credited the holes the runners had to the team's excellent offensive line.

"We did a pretty good job up front," he said. "That's our strength, and we go to that when we need to make plays."

Junior Chris Mitchell powers his way into the end zone, giving Clarkston a 14-0 lead against Rochester Friday night. Thanks to Mitchell's 159 yards rushing and key defensive stops, Clarkston pulled out a 17-14 win over the Falcons.

The Monster's Game Ball

Ronnie Wells

A senior safety, Wells played a major role in Friday's clutch win at Rochester. He intercepted two passes in the game, the second coming with just over a minute remaining in the fourth quarter. He cut in on an underthrown ball by Rochester QB Chris Potts in the middle of the field to kill the Falcons' final drive of the game. The interception was big because Rochester had scored touchdowns on its previous two possessions and had captured the momentum in the game for the first time. Wells' first pick came on Rochester's second drive of the game, on a ball that was tipped into his hands. Wells, who has recovered from offseason ankle surgery, is also an All-County defenseman for the hockey team. "My ankle is fine, and it's good to be back," Wells said.

After scoring the touchdown, Mitchell triumphantly runs off the field, showing the team's "Shock the World" hand sign.

Cagers open new gym with hard-fought win

BY BRAD MONASTIERE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

For a half, the new Clarkston High School gym was not a kind host to its varsity girls basketball team.

But better shooting and improved offensive work led the Wolves to a 59-46 win over Lake Orion Tuesday night in the first varsity contest ever played at the new gym.

Clarkston suffered through a difficult first half shooting (9-for-31 overall) and was down 21-20 at halftime to the Dragons. Then, Sarah Morgan took over.

Morgan, a sophomore center, dominated play inside in the third and fourth quarters, scoring all 13 of her points in the second half. She also contributed eight rebounds and two blocks, stats that don't do justice to how well she played.

"We're growing with confidence as a team," Morgan said modestly. "I feel more confident playing with them now. The speed is the biggest difference at this level."

After the game, Clarkston coach Ann Lowney gushed over Morgan's game.

"Isn't she incredible?" she said. "She really kept us in the game. She is perfect for my kind of offense because she is a true low-post center. She learned a lot by playing against (Oxford's) Liz Holbrook."

The Dragons built a four-point lead midway through the third when Morgan started flexing her muscles. She scored seven points and handed out a pair of nice assists during Clarkston's quarter-ending 14-6 run.

"We never looked for her in the first half," Lowney said. "She still needs to call for the ball more, but she was getting steals and scored in transition."

After playing a stuck-in-the-mud first half, Clarkston was able to break Lake Orion's press with more success and do a better job on the defensive boards. Freshman Kaye Christie played a strong second half in helping to move the ball upcourt against pressure.

"Kaye is learning the game at this level," Lowney said. "She is doing the little things better for us." She finished with a season-high nine points, to go with three rebounds and three assists.

Senior Deana Kanipe led the team in scoring for the fourth time in five games with 14 points. She also played her best point-guard game of the season, dishing out nine assists and setting up easy shots for her teammates all night long. Junior Candace Morgan tossed in 10, and junior Rachel Uchman scored nine and had eight rebounds.

Lowney and her team aren't out to play pretty basketball. If necessary, the team will play as ugly as needed if it means getting a win.

That's what happened Thursday night, as the Wolves defeated Bloomfield Hills Lahser 58-36 on the road in an OAA crossover game.

Lahser, famous for its walk-it-up offense and zone defense, plays its share of ugly games, but Clarkston was able to overcome that with several long scoring runs and domination on the boards.

"We have to be in a situation where we're confident," Lowney said. "When we didn't press, we weren't aggressive and they came back at us. When we were aggressive, we play much better."

Despite not having starting power forward Corinne McIntyre available because of a foot injury, Clarkston's front line of Rachel Uchman and Sarah Morgan did considerable damage offensively and defensively, as each had their best games of the young season.

Uchman scored six, but collected a career-high 13 rebounds. She also had five steals and four assists in a game where she seemed to be everywhere. Morgan was in charge of the paint, scoring 12 points to go with seven rebounds, four assists and three blocked shots.

"Corinne is a big part of our team, so I knew Sarah and I had to step it up for this game," Uchman said. "We did a good job of keeping our composure and regrouping after they made a run at us. We did a lot better when we started attacking as a team."

Lowney said the team has started looking for Morgan in the low post more, because of all the good things she can make happen.

"When we can get Sarah the ball, good things happen," she said. "She will either score, get fouled, or pass to an open teammate. Tonight, the defense was collapsing in on her, and she did a good job of getting us open shots."

In the game, Clarkston jumped out to a 13-3 first-quarter lead, and led by as many as 15 before the Knights came back. Early in the third, Lahser scored six quick points to pull to within eight, but Morgan scored four of Clarkston's next five points to spark the Wolves on a 12-2 run.

Senior Deana Kanipe, who led the team with 16 points, hit 3-pointers in the last minute of the third and the first minute of the fourth to put Clarkston comfortably in front.

The Wolves play Madison Heights Bishop Foley at home Thursday. Lowney has called Foley the toughest team on the schedule. The team has a 25-point win over Oakland Christian already this season.

Junior Candace Morgan looks to pass inside in Thursday's win at Bloomfield Hills Lahser. Morgan is the team's second-leading scorer, but has also become an improved all-around player for the 4-1 Wolves.

Golfers starting to put wins together

BY BRAD MONASTIERE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Earlier in the season, Clarkston varsity golf coach Tim Kaul said this would be a tough season for his team, losing to more talented teams in the OAA Division I.

But even Kaul is surprised at the week the Wolves just completed, beating Rochester and Birmingham Seaholm soundly and barely losing to third-ranked Rochester Adams in what would have been an amazing upset.

"Generally speaking, they have exceeded my expectations," Kaul said. "The thing I always look at is can we stay consistent."

Clarkston lost to Adams on a fifth-player tiebreaker. That means the teams' top four players all finished with combined identical scores, so the winner was based on which team had the best score from its fifth player.

Captain Ben Ness played the best competitive round of his life, according to Kaul, against Adams. He shot an even-par 36 at Khaki Cousins Golf Course.

"That's a darn good score at that course," Kaul said. "Ben beat their all-state kid by two strokes. He was right there for a 35 too. He missed a short putt on the last hole."

Monday, the team bounced back from that near-miss to easily beat Rochester 150-169, the team's biggest margin of victory this year. Ness once again shot a 36 to lead the team. Trae Moreen shot a 37, Jeff Walters had a 38, and Derek Hool shot a 39. It was the second straight under-40 score for Hool, who was first on the team against Seaholm.

"I'm happy for Derek," Kaul said. "He struggled early in the year, but he's got his swinging under control more and he has a better tempo. He feels good about the way he's playing, and I hope he keeps it up, because he's a good player and a good kid."

Kaul added that he'd like to see Ness become more consistent, but his low scores lately have been a big boost to the whole team.

"He feels like he has a big responsibility to the team as captain," he said. "If he plays well, most of our other kids play well. He now understands that he has to be a leader."

My star report

At least there's one football team around here that can feel good about itself.

The laughable exploits of the University of Michigan (0-2) and the Detroit Lions (0-2) are rendered moot when discussion turns to the success the Clarkston varsity football team has had early this season.

The Wolves, picked by some other sportswriters to finish last in the OAA Division I, are coming off two impressive victories and look very confident heading into Friday's game at Troy Athens.

In week one, Clarkston overcame a sluggish first quarter to dominate Waterford Kettering in a 35-3 win.

But last week's thrilling 17-14 win at Rochester says more for this team than the 32-point blowout the week before.

The secondary deserves a lot of credit not only for its four interceptions, but shutting down Rochester's potentially explosive passing game.

Check out these first half facts and figures. Rochester's first five drives ended this way, in order: interception by Spencer Hynes, interception by Ronnie Wells, failed fake punt, interception by Rocky Lund, and a punt off a fourth-and-28 created by a sack by Andy North and Nick Upchurch. The Falcons also ran a total of seven plays in Clarkston territory in the first half and gained a total of two yards in the third quarter. Good job, fellas.

(By the way, I heard Syracuse QB Donovan McNabb just scored another touchdown on Michigan's defense and Scott Mitchell threw another interception.)

On offense, I feel the play of junior TB Chris

Mitchell has been a pleasant surprise to everyone. Well, except for all his teammates and coaches. Mitchell, who up until now was best known as a lefthanded pitcher for the baseball team who can throw a slicing curve ball, has shown that he has outstanding vision, deceptive speed and good footwork. And, as coach Kurt Richardson said after the Kettering game, a tough posterior. "He's got Walter Payton's butt," Richardson said.

Tim Loveless, who along with Upchurch have intensity levels off the scale, seems to like it when defenders try to hit him. He's the kind of player who would rather go helmet-to-helmet with someone than go out of bounds. He is one of the team's most vocal leaders, and his drive to succeed rubs off on everyone else.

Other keys to the early-season success have been the work of the offensive line, and senior QB Eric Jenks' mistake-free play. The line has just been blowing people off the line of scrimmage in both games, but figures to get its toughest test so far against Athens. Don't underestimate the work Jenks has done also. Yes, he's only thrown three passes in two games, but the quarterback still has a great deal of responsibility in any run-based or option attack. He hasn't turned the ball over, and has allowed the Wolves to string together long drives.

After Athens, Clarkston plays a pair of OAA Division III teams, at Pontiac Northern and home for Brandon. With the schedule shaking out this way, there's a chance the Wolves could be 5-0 heading into the Homecoming game against a team you may have heard of: Troy. Stay tuned, fans.

●It's great to see seniors Kristen Atkinson and Alaina Dodds back together on the tennis court.

Atkinson has recovered from offseason knee surgery in time to reform the regional-champion #1 doubles team from a year ago with her good friend.

Realistically, there was no reason for Atkinson to force herself to come back for the tennis season. Her main sport is skiing, where she enters this season as perhaps the state's best female competitor. Last December, she tore her knee up on a ski run. It was very possible that not only would she miss the rest of the ski season, but a chance to defend a regional tennis title as well.

But somehow, she ignored the injury and finished the 1998 ski season at the state meet. After a long spring and summer of rehab, she was back on the court.

Her return has also had a positive effect on Dodds and the rest of the team. Alaina clearly was not a singles player, although she played very well while there. By recreating the #1 doubles team, it has made Clarkston very strong with its doubles teams, and has helped the team to six straight wins in dual matches.

●A friend of mine called Monday morning, saying her daughter lost a series of charms at the old CHS track over the weekend. The charms are sterling silver and among them include a basketball with an inscription, a softball glove and one with the letters WWJD.

If anyone has information on the whereabouts of the charms, call Tammi at 625-5834.

JV Sports

Football

No one said winning had to be pretty.

But Clarkston JV football coach Doug Colling isn't interested in beauty. It's a good thing too, after his team's 21-8 win over Rochester Thursday night.

"Well, it was a win," he said. "It was one of those games - we had a lot of penalties, and got down 8-7 at halftime. But the most positive thing was that the guys responded to adversity so well and they showed the character and determination they have."

Colling's halftime adjustments worked wonders for the Wolves, now 2-0 on the season. Clarkston shut out the Falcons in the second half, while scoring 14 points of its own.

Sophomore Rob Conley led the rushing attack with 73 yards on 17 carries. He also scored two of the team's three touchdowns. Sophomore Matt Pearsall caught a TD reception from QB Ryan Kaul to finish off the scoring. Adam Gebus also scored on a two-point conversion and kicked an extra point.

Colling pointed to the play of the defense as one of the early season strong points for the team.

"I am very pleased with the way the defensive unit is playing," he said. "We were awful tough in the second half, and I'm not sure anyone would have scored on us the way we played."

Ramzy Dasugi led the defensive charge with six tackles. Dustyn Swendsen recorded a sack and recovered a fumble in the game. Nick Beetle and Ben Horstman each picked off passes in the game. Blake Fields also had an interception return for a touchdown called back because of a penalty.

Clarkston stays home this week, hosting Troy Athens at the old CHS field.

Soccer

The JV boys soccer team ended last week with one lopsided win, and one lopsided loss.

Clarkston defeated Berkley 1-0 on Sept. 8 in a game that coach Brian Fitzgerald said was not as close as the final score indicated. The next night, a strong Grand Blanc team blanked the Wolves 4-0.

Derek Hart scored Clarkston's lone goal in the two games.

"Grand Blanc is just a very good team," Fitzgerald said. "Berkley was probably our best game of the season. We scored 20 seconds into the game, and we controlled the play the rest of the time."

Fitzgerald added he's pleased with the progress the team's younger players have made a third of the way through the season.

"It's a big jump to go from club soccer to high school soccer," he said. "We are playing much better, and controlling the ball more now than we were earlier."

Basketball

The Wolves kept a strong season going Thursday night with a 37-23 win over Bloomfield Hills Lahser.

Clarkston outscored the Knights in the first three quarters by an average of six points each to keep control and pull away with the win.

Tuesday, the team played its first game in the new CHS gym with lesser results.

Clarkston lost to Lake Orion for the second time this season, 44-24. The Wolves lost to the Dragons in the finals of the Oxford JV Tip Off Classic Sept. 1.

Coach Jenny Warren said the team had no intensity or communication in the first half, when it got down 27-7.

"Our heads weren't in the game from the beginning," she said. "In the first game, we got down to this team by 16 points before we came back. We did the same thing tonight. We outscored them 10-8 in the second half."

Lake Orion was in total control of the inside play, getting almost all of its first-half shots from 10 feet or closer. The Dragons have excellent height in their forwards, and when Clarkston's Katie Jerge went down early with an injury, it left the Wolves vulnerable inside all night.

"We need to be more intense in warm-ups. We were glassy-eyed early," Warren said. "It's wierd because we had a great practice yesterday."

The road doesn't get any easier for the JV Wolves this week. Thursday, they host a strong Madison Heights Bishop Foley team at 5:30 p.m. Tuesday, the team heads to Troy Athens.

Girls tennis team conquers Fenton

Tournament win team's first in at least 5 years

BY BRAD MONASTIERE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

It's been a while since the Clarkston girls tennis team could add a piece to the overflowing CHS trophy case.

But it's time to clear some room, because the girls won the Fenton Invitational Saturday, thanks to three doubles team titles and three second-place finishes by singles or doubles teams.

"I really didn't know what to expect," a happy coach Melissa White said. "The girls were at the top of their game, and they didn't lose their intensity."

Saturday's win kept the team on a serious roll. The Wolves breezed through dual matches last week, beating Southfield Lathrup 7-1 and Ferndale 8-0, running their record to 6-1-1 on the season.

Junior Courtney Schubering returns a shot against Southfield Lathrup Friday afternoon.

Fenton champions included three doubles teams; #2 doubles Jenny Claus and Lauren Stout, #3 doubles Allison Olinger and Michelle Klotz; and #4 doubles Jenny Linenger and Emily Tate.

Claus and Stout, who have yet to be challenged at the #2 doubles slot this season, breezed through the tournament and beat Hartland 6-1, 6-3 in the final. Olinger and Klotz had a similar smooth road, beating Lansing Waverly 6-3, 6-3 in the finals. Linenger and Tate pulled out a hard-fought title, beating a good Romeo team 3-6, 6-4, 6-4 in the finals.

Junior Courtney Schubering took second at #2 singles, while the #1 doubles team of Kristen Atkinson and Alaina Dods also finished second, losing a tight final to Romeo 3-6, 6-3, 7-5.

White said winning a tournament like that can help the team's confidence as it heads into the middle of the season.

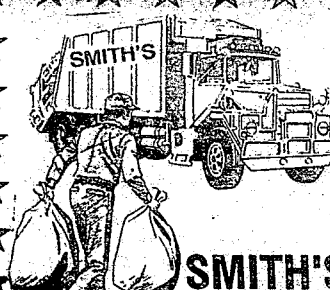

"Now, they have a material thing to see how good they really are," she said. "I hope it makes them tougher and not more complacent."

Today (Wednesday), Clarkston travels to Lake Orion for a dual match. The team then gets six days off after this latest exhausting stretch before taking on OAA Division I Troy Athens.

THE LAW & YOU

by Robert E. Kostin
Attorney at Law

GETTING THE JUDGEMENT PAID

Plaintiffs who win civil court cases should not expect to receive payment of any judgement before 30 days of the court having issued its ruling. After that, however, the plaintiff should send a copy of the judgement to the defendant with a letter demanding payment. If the amount of the judgement is considerable, the plaintiff may want to consider allowing the defendant (in writing) to pay in installments. If the defendant refuses to pay, the plaintiff may return to court and request a court order of execution, which entitles a law enforcement official to attach the defendant's property, or to garnish wages. This course of action is facilitated by the fact that the defendant is required by the court to list all of his or her assets at the time that the judgement is entered against him or her.

Avoiding litigation is often in the best interests of both parties involved with a civil case in business ventures, contract preparation, property acquisitions, and personal injury claims. Where litigation is unavoidable, our substantial trial experience is invaluable in the preservation of the rights and property of our clients. To schedule a consultation, call us here at 11 North Main Street (620-1030).

Hint: If the court decides in a civil case in favor of the plaintiff, the defendant will be ordered to pay all or some of the amount claimed, and in addition, may be required to reimburse the plaintiff for court costs and filing fees.

Obituary

Leonard H. Smith

Leonard Smith

Longtime Clarkston resident Leonard H. Smith, 73, died Sept. 9, 1998.

Mr. Smith, who moved to Clarkston in 1969, was the president and owner of Smith's Disposal and Clarkston Fuel & Supply and a big supporter of Clarkston-area athletics for years.

His son Ken said Leonard was a man who always took time for others.

"One time, a neighbor of his passed away, and he always made sure the Mrs. had her sidewalk cleared out," Ken Smith said. "He was the type of person who was there to help people out whenever they needed it. He had streets plowed before Oakland County would get out there."

The Smiths moved to Clarkston from Pontiac and started up Clarkston Fuel & Supply, delivering fuel and diesel gasoline to area residents. Seventeen years ago, he purchased Smith's Disposal, and has been taking care of residents' disposal needs ever since.

"He was always very kind and friendly to everyone," Ken Smith said of his father.

Mr. Smith, known to his friends as "Smitty," was a lifetime member of Michigan Petroleum, and a member of the American Association of Retired Persons and the American Legion Post 225. He served on a destroyer escort for the United States Navy in World War II.

He is survived by his wife Doris; son Ken (Pat) of Clarkston; daughter Carol Evans of Clarkston; grandchildren Jami, David and Wendy; great-grandchild Damien; brother Cecil (Dolly) of Waterford; and sister Virginia (Leonard) Hawkins of Cass City.

A funeral service took place Sunday at the Lewis E. Wint and Son Trust 100 Funeral Home in Clarkston with Rev. Campbell officiating. Interment was at Lakeview Cemetery.

Boys take 5th at West Bloomfield

BY BRAD MONASTIERE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

The competition was tougher, but the Clarkston boys cross country team was up to the challenge and delivered another strong performance.

The Wolves finished fifth overall at Saturday's West Bloomfield Invitational with 122 points, just two behind fourth-place East Kentwood. Plymouth Salem won the invitational with a team score of 90 points.

Clarkston coach Mike Taylor said his team gave a solid effort, and was happy that the team finished ahead of the other OAA Division II teams at the meet.

"It was a decent showing. A mixed bag," he said. "We measured up well against the other teams in the league, which I am happy about. We finished ahead of all of them, but I was hoping we could win the whole thing."

David Sage once again was the top runner on the team, as he took fourth overall at the meet with a time of 16:45. His arch rival, Lake Orion's Jordan Desilets, did not run in the meet because of an inflamed tendon in his foot.

Also medaling for Clarkston were juniors Matt Haver (15th overall, 17:21) and Kevin Breen (26th overall, 17:48).

Clarkston's other placers were Brett Quantz (18:09), Dan Burke (18:20), Chris Weber (18:19) and Eric Sweeney (19:06).

"The competition was pretty even at the top, and this was a much tougher course than we've raced on so far this year," Taylor said. "There were some key guys that didn't run, so you can't get as good of a measure on the other teams."

The team's busiest week of the season awaits. After Tuesday's three-way meet with Lake Orion and Rochester Adams, Clarkston travels to Chesaning for an invitational Thursday. Saturday, the boys and girls head north for a canoe trip.

"We're going to South Higgins Lake, and it will be fun," Taylor said. "The coaches are going, and we'll have parent chaperons there too. It helps to build team unity."

Members of the St. Daniel Youth Ministry, along with other volunteers, take a break during the long days of helping to build the foundation to a girls dormitory on their recent trip to Honduras.

Volunteers find faith, fun in Honduras trip

Ask anyone who was a part of the St. Daniel Parish Youth Ministry at St. Daniel's recent trip to Honduras if all the heat, cramped accommodations and hard work was worth it, and there's only one answer.

"Yes."

A group of 14 Clarkston residents traveled to the Central American country from Aug. 1-15 to participate in Mission Honduras. The group labored in the 90-degree heat to begin building the foundation to a girls dormitory there.

Members of the ministry contributed to the project originally started by Rev. Emil Cook of Kansas to help develop Maximilian Kolbe High School in Las Flores, Honduras. The volunteers found that hard work and faith led to many observations about the area, the people, and themselves.

"One thing we learned from the people there was that happiness is not about having money to buy material things," said Paul Ormiston, Clarkston Police Chief and one of the participants in the trip. "All the people there seemed to be content. Happy. They were always singing to us and always had a smile on their faces."

The group stayed in nearby Guadeloupe in dorms of their own. Their day started at around 7:30 a.m., when it worked on the foundation for around four hours before the weather turned too hot and humid. After a 45-minute prayer service, the group put in two more hours of work before calling it a day.

One of the trip's organizers was Bob Hadden, coordinator for the St. Daniel Youth Ministry. He said the setting for the work - a valley between two mountains lush with green due to the rainy season - and the spiritual fulfillment from the work made the trip more than worth it.

"Everything is so simple there," he said. "They have a real day-to-day existence. They depend on God everyday, much like what our society was 100 years ago."

Stan Garwood, a Clarkston resident who also went on the trip with his wife, said a highlight for him was getting to know the people who lived near the construction site.

"It was the highlight of my trip," he said. "There are hardly any mental health services down there, so I felt very good about being able to help out in that way."

"After being down there, you appreciate the variety and sanitation we have here," Garwood continued. "You know that anything you eat won't kill you. You can't do that there. You have to be very careful, but most of us got sick anyway."

Ormiston, who was able to avoid getting sick, said he was moved enough by the experience to write a letter to the people the group helped in Honduras (see boxed letter with this story).

"We took a side trip to the Caribbean," Ormiston said. "On one side of a mountain, there was a poor town. On the other side, there was a resort town with a lot of upper class, wealthy people. I noticed that the people in the resort town didn't have the same spark as the others in the village. Sometimes, you forget what's important, but you didn't on this trip."

Paul Ormiston's letter about his trip to Honduras

My journey to Honduras, Central America is complete. The experiences I shared with my daughter and twelve others from St. Daniel's Catholic Church are ones which will remain with me for life. I thank you very much for affording me the opportunity to have this experience, for it was only due to your contribution and the contributions of other generous people who made the trip possible.

For those who have never been to Honduras, it is a beautiful country. The mission at which we stayed was on a hill which overlooked La Paz (City of Peace) yet was surrounded by mountains. Our home for the two week stay was also the home of about fifty young orphan girls who showed their appreciation of us by offering million dollar smiles, endless hugs and songs sung from deep in their hearts.

All fourteen of us have returned with refreshed spirits and new insight into what is really important in our life on earth. In speaking with the others I found that they, like me, were somewhat sad to leave Honduras. Although we all have family and friends here in Clarkston, the fourteen of us became a family in Honduras. A very close family. A family very much in tune to the needs of its members. A family which had been brought together for the sole purpose of working with Honduran citizens in an effort to improve the quality of life for all. A family which, if it weren't for those we love here at home and the responsibilities our lives here place upon us, would be very content and indeed "happy" to continue our work indefinitely.

Once again I want to thank you for your support and your prayers. Both were greatly appreciated. The possibility exists that another mission trip will be planned a couple of years from now and so the possibility exists that I will be returning to Honduras once again. If this comes to pass it is my hope that I could once again count on your support.

NOTE: letter was edited for space considerations

Volunteers from the St. Daniel Youth Ministry and other adult volunteers are busy at work building the foundation for a girls dormitory. Many people who went on the trip said they were affected by the nature of the work they did, and the happiness of the children for whom the dorm will be built.
