Teens charged in school bus tire damages

BY EILEEN MCCARVILLE

Clarkston News Staff Writer

Three Clarkston High School students wanted a day off last Wednesday.

They got it — in Oakland County Jail.

According to the Oakland County Sheriff's Department, the three admitted to snipping air valves off the tires of 37 school buses, and caused an estimated $3,646 in damage. The incident occurred after midnight May 12, at the school bus garage behind the old CHS building on Middle Lake Road.

Steven Paul Selberg, 18; Zachary Robert Sartell, 17; and Aaron Lee Hayward, 17, all of Clarkston, were arraigned at 52-2 District Court by magistrate Thomas Raguso Thursday.

The three were charged with malicious destruction of property more than $1,000, a felony which carries a maximum sentence of up to five years in prison and/or up to $10,000 or three times the amount of destruction. Steven was also charged with possession of a switchblade, a misdemeanor punishable by up to one year in prison and/or a $300 fine.

None of the youths have past criminal records. Steven and Zachary are seniors; Aaron is a sophomore.

The three stood mute as Raguso entered a plea of not guilty in their behalf. A preliminary exam is set for June 18, 9:30 a.m. at the district court. Raguso set bonds at $1,000 each, cash 10 percent, and ordered a curfew of 9 p.m. The youths were ordered not to contact or associate with each other.

Springfield okays residential rezoning of Ellis property

BY MARALEE COOK

Clarkston News Editor

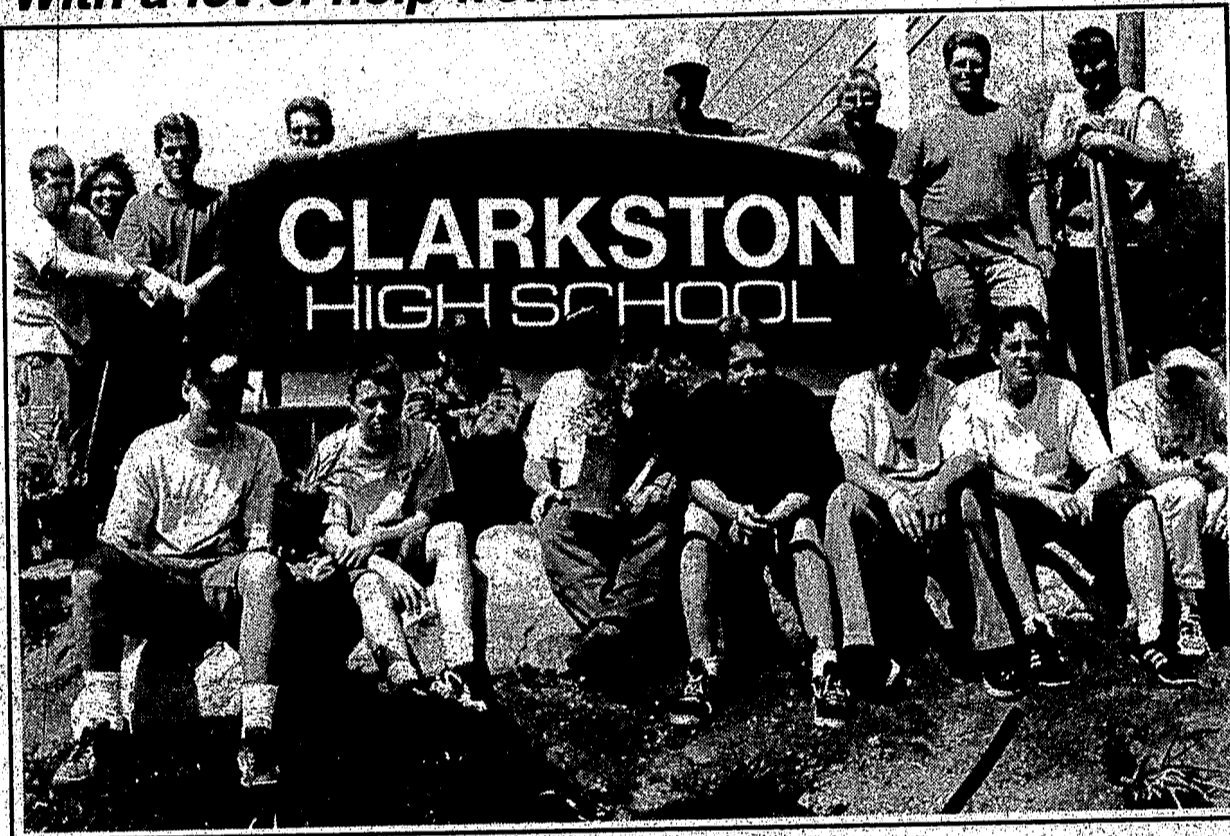

Rezoning of the Ellis family property at Dixie Highway near Davisburg Road was partially completed last week.

The Springfield Township Board agreed May 13 to developer Tim Birtsas' request to rezone the residential portion of the property and table the second reading of the commercial rezoning to the June meeting.

Fifty-nine acres were rezoned from R-1 — single family residential, one and one-half acre lots to R-2 — which would reduce the lot size to one acre.

A local boy scout's project to earn Eagle Scout ranking turned into a bonanza for Clarkston High School last weekend. Brent Schermerhorn, (standing, second from right) a CHS junior and member of Boy Scout Troop #189 spent three months researching, planning and designing the landscaping along the front walk and around the sign at CHS. The school purchased the plants and flowers, which will be in the school's colors, blue and gold. Scoutmaster Dan Hill said Brent would probably receive his Eagle Scout ranking in a ceremony by fall. A longtime area x-ray facility, North Oakland Radiology of Clarkston at 5825 Ortonville Road is no longer serving area residents.

Former patients have options to receive their x-rays, but they should first contact their referral physician, said Fred Lucas, a former partner.

Lucas said former patients from all sites (which include Clarkston, Waterford, Novi, Bloomfield and Southfield) should return to their referral physician's office specifically for mammograms, but also for other x-rays taken prior to the sites' closings.

"Mammograms have the most need for a follow-up," he said. "We recognize our responsibilities and are trying to meet that. We've had a tremendous number of requests for the plants."

He said close to 600 mammograms have been requested — the majority of requests by former patients. The fax number for requests is 248-489-7058.

In addition, former patients can also mail a request, with a check for $15 made out to: Anthony DeFeo, 19855 West Outer Drive, #100E, Dearborn, MI 48124. Information such as patient's name, a return mailing address, phone number, x-ray number and location where it was taken, and a statement absolving North Oakland Radiology of responsibility for the film also must be included in the request. Call 313-274-0410 for more information.

Candy Trace, office manager for Clarkston surgeon Dr. Sang Choi, said one of their patients received her x-rays in about two weeks.

Kari Gorz, director of administration for Clarkston Medical Group, said mammograms must be obtained by former patients for comparison x-rays to take place in the future.

"We recommend the patients get those x-rays,"

The News in Brief

Council sets parking costs

At their May 10 meeting, the Clarkston city council set costs for daily downtown parking spots for business owners.

The council unanimously approved charging $2,000 per space per year. The collected funds will become part of a parking fund used to maintain and improve existing parking spaces.

"We want to maximize the current parking we have," said council member Anne Clifton. This is not a plan for us to acquire more parking."

The fees were established by the city's new zoning ordinance, which was passed last month.

Clarkston Home Tour 17 will be another winner

The Olafsson House

BY EILEEN MCCARVILLE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Some homes have a secret garden. But Glenida and Bud Olafsson plan a secret room for the turreted hideaway at the top of their classic Queen Anne home on N. Main Street.

On a warm, spring day in Clarkston, Glenida is in the midst of remodeling one of the last nooks in the three-story, turn-of-the-century dwelling the couple bought five years ago. This afternoon a friend will help paint the finishing touches -- clouds and Victorian clock faces on the spired ceiling of the turret room.

The octagon-shaped room is sure to become a Wonderland for little nieces, who can play Alice at "tea parties" upstairs.

"People are really attracted to this room. They say, I would come up here and read in here and drink coffee and look out the little windows" that grace the perimeter. "I have a friend who says, 'Every house should have a secret room.'"

She plans to stencil a saying around the circular molding: "It is said time flies. Not true. Time stays and we fly," she smiles.

The Olafssons have done a lot of that -- flying about their historic home in an extensive remodeling project that began when they purchased the century-old structure. Glenida boasts she could cook "two deserts" on a wok and Coleman stove while her beloved kitchen was enlarged.

As she moves through the sun-splashed rooms, she points out the painstaking work. The couple's three teenagers -- Jason, a sophomore at Western Michigan University; Heidi, a freshman at Calvin College; and Andrew, a sophomore at Clarkston High School -- helped, and wall photos lovingly chronicle their efforts.

Solid oak floors were sanded and refinished, staircases and cupboards were added and shifted, and outdoor windows were preserved as interior "display areas" to preserve the past. The old gas heat was converted into gas-forced air to warm the upper stories. Outside, lattice-work under the wrap-around porch was temporarily removed to repair plumbing and decay.

Bud's bulldozing project around the south side nixed some lilacs, but Glenida has filled the space with spring flowers and perennials; a formal "knot garden" with dwarf apple trees, boxwood and barberry plants; and a charming trellis that signals a pathway to the back door.

Local historian Jennifer Radcliff, a next-door neighbor, says the lavender-beige and white-trimmed home, with its gingerbread clapboard, is a bonifide example of Queen Anne architecture -- an interesting combination of stability and whimsy.

"It gives a solid, stable feeling, but the fantasy is in the tower," she explains. Queen Annes are characterized by "lots of windows and wide, graceful porches. They're not always so filigreed or lacy. Some trim is more substantial. And stylized fish-scale shingles (in this case, on the second and third floors) are a classic detail."

As the visitor arrives, the wide porch steps are an inviting entry way. Next to the front door is a unique mailbox with a three-dimensional cat whose tail wags up and down. "The only pet I need," quips Glenida.

The spacious living room features a gorgeous, white-oak mantel the Olafssons added to an existing fireplace. "It came from a home built the same time ours was, in Buffalo, New York."

The room leads into the remodeled dining area whose south bay windows are part of the three-story tower. Glenida added a stenciled border of looped cords and tassels.

The Olafsson House holds keepsakes-- Bud's old CHS jacket and a 1976 John Denver ticket

An historic-looking chandelier and sconces were added from Plum Hollow -- even though originally these items were not for sale. "I said, 'I've got to have them,'" Glenida laughs. "The period matches." The kitchen extension is to the north, and a laundry room was added also.

A new family room indicates "there was a door here," says Glenida, pointing to an old outside wall. Another 10 feet was added for extra closet space.

Stenciling is evidently one of Glenida's passions. Examples range from ribboned borders, to a striped hallway, to the stenciled floral arrangement that spruces up two cupboards in the couple's bedroom.

Throughout the tour, Glenida provides historic info, often punctuated with humor. She estimates the home was built in the 1880s. Charles Lambert, one of the first owners, passed it down to his daughter Elizabeth and granddaughter Janet. "It was in the same family for 90 years. Of course, it's still referred to as the Lambert Home ...

"This was their 'summer home.' They actually had a cottage on Deer Lake as well. Your average poor family." According to Radcliff, the Lamberts donated the property that is now Deer Lake Beach.

Oldest son Jason's room is "functional," but youngest son Andrew -- the creative one -- wanted something different.

"His room became a fishing theme. He likes to fish on the Mill Pond," explains Glenida. Therefore, his bedroom reeks in pertinent touches, courtesy of Glenida's artist friend Mikey Reis. Among them are a fishing pole painted on one of the walls, so a lure-ing you'd like to cast a line. It leads to a matching bobber painted on the solid-oak floor.

Like other rooms in the house, the couple's bedroom is spacious, and curtained bay windows surround a four-poster bed. This is the third-floor part of the tower, Glenida notes. A game room looks across Main Street to Parke Lake.

The Olafssons delighted in finding pieces of the past when they remodeled -- a hidden staircase here, an outside window there. A date and signature from a turn-of-the-century workman lies behind a new kitchen cupboard. "We're only keepers of houses," she notes. "We're just temporary, we're just passing through."

from the couple's first date. A third staircase leads to a guest room on the top floor.

Also included in the tour . . .

The Eberhardt Home, a Greek Revival-style located on E. Washington is full of history as well as warmth and color.

The Hampton House, on Holcomb, is one of the original six homes documented to bring about the village's designation on the National Historic Register.

The Cooper House, located on W. Church is a spacious ranch on five acres. One garden is based on the bed at the British Embassy in Washington D.C.

The Lorimer House, a new home in Bridge Valley subdivision. The 4,400 sq. ft. home overlooks a pond and includes items from across the globe.

Clarkston Golf Club may become pricey sub

BY EILEEN MCCARVILLE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

A rezoning request for an estate-type subdivision -- slated for the old Clarkston Golf Club -- is set to appear before planners May 27.

According to a building department spokesperson, Independence Township Planning Commissioners are to address the matter during a public hearing.

Records show Andrew Milia, president of Southfield-based Franklin Property Corp., has an option to buy the 47-acre parcel, which includes the 50-year-old, nine-hole golf course, 9241 Eston Road near Algonquin. If rezoned, 34.8 acres would be developed into a "high quality, residential subdivision."

The acreage is proposed to be rezoned from Recreation (REC) to Suburban Farm Residential (R-1C). A preliminary sketch shows one-and-a-half acre lots, which meets the township's requirement for lot size under R-1C.

The proposed sub has been tentatively titled "Oakmont." A spokesperson for Milia said prices would range from $400,000 to $700,000.

The property has been owned by township resident Feather Buchanan's family for over a half-century, and has operated as a golf course since the early 1950s. Approximately five acres holds the family's home, and is not included in the proposed development.

A feasibility study developed by Brandon M. Rogers and Associates of Grosse Pointe Farms says Clarkston Golf Club has no room to expand and "is maxed out." It also states the nine-hole course can't complete with 18-hole golf courses. The golf club "is not viable or compatible in today's golf community," the study says.

According to Brandon and Associates, most golf courses average 150 acres. "Rising operating costs and a decline in play" are reasons for closing. "It is no longer feasible to maintain this as a recreational property," the study states.

A study of public and private golf courses was recently completed by Oakland County Planning and Economic Development Services. The study shows 43 public courses, six public-restricted courses and 25 private courses in the county; 56 are 18-hole courses and 18 are nine-hole courses.

The total of 75 courses results "in more golf holes per capita than in any other county in the U.S."

According to the National Golf Foundation, most golfers are willing to drive up to 30 minutes to an hour to play at a course of their choosing.

The meeting is set for 7:30 p.m. at the Carriage House in Clintonwood Park on Clarkston Road.

New elementary school building delayed, board approved Walters Road repaving

Elementary school students scheduled to begin classes at the new Independence Elementary School in the fall will be spending a few months at Sashabaw Middle School first.

Craig Kahler, director of business services for Clarkston schools, told board members at the May 10 meeting the new elementary school would not be finished by the start of the new school year.

He expected students would be in the new school by the end of November.

He said delays in closing on the property because of zoning issues as well as approval of water and sewer extensions kept construction crews off the property until October. He said it takes 12 to 13 months to construct an elementary school and the law prohibits workers from setting foot on the property until ownership of the property is finalized.

Kahler added efforts to compress the construction schedule could have resulted in high overtime payments and a possible reduction of quality in the work.

Starting the elementary students at SMS will not hamper remodeling work at that school, he said. SMS will be complete by August of 2000.

The board also approved paying costs of $253,000 to pave Walters Road. If Independence Township approves the project (on the agenda for the May 18 board meeting) the project could be completed this summer.

No fish market for old Tierra Arts building downtown

Despite having a signed lease, the New England Seafood Company will not be moving into the old Tierra building at the corner of Main and Waldon.

Building owner Buck Kopietz had been working with seafood company owner Dan Halpin for six months on an arrangement that would bring the retail business to the city, but stumbling blocks along the way made an agreement unreachable at that location.

"Every time we would get close, something else would come up," Kopietz said. "It was like trying to fit a square peg into a round hole. The parking was not quite the way he needed it, and we got to a point where I was uncomfortable with what we would have to give up."

Kopietz said he has other suitors for his building, and he hopes to possibly bring a bookstore into that location. Last month, Kopietz started a drive to bring a bookstore back to the downtown district, possibly in the vacant Main Street building next to the Village

Bakeshop.

"We are trying to look at a bookstore," he said. "There's a lot in place for that to come in, and there aren't many other opportunities that offer this kind of support."

Kopietz added the seafood company is still looking at other properties in Clarkston.

Keeping kids on track

Editor's note: On April 21 The Clarkston News published the results of the Western Michigan University Drug and Alcohol Survey of Clarkston Community Schools students.

According to the survey, drug and alcohol use among Clarkston schools students is above the national average in all categories except smokeless tobacco.

This is the second in a series profiling the problem from the points of view of school administrators, police and community members.

For kindergarten through 12th grade, making drug education presentations or recommending boot camp, trying to keep Clarkston area kids in line is Det. Chuck Young's more-than-full-time job.

The Oakland County Sheriff's Deputy has been the school liaison for just over one year and says his main intent is to make sure kids graduate.

For students who are making bad choices -- smoking, alcohol or drug abuse or fighting -- just once or repeatedly, Young has one message:

"I want kids to take (their choice) seriously. I want them to understand this is a behavior we want to see not happen again."

The youngest drug-using student he's dealt with was a sixth grader. While he sees mostly alcohol and marijuana use, he has heard of students using other substances, including crack and cocaine. He said he has not heard of any heroin use.

He finds marijuana in quantities at both middle schools. "A lot of kids are real good. If they find it outside or in the bathrooms, they'll drop it off at the principal's office," he said.

Young said the procedure is to talk with parents before talking with students, and he assists administrators in discussions with students -- standing by for the safety of administrators or searching for weapons if necessary. If students are 16 or under, parents must be present when their student is interviewed, he said.

Up to eight students have been sent home from school for having been caught using marijuana in school, said Young. "A lot more, I can't even guess, have been sent home from school for alcohol use."

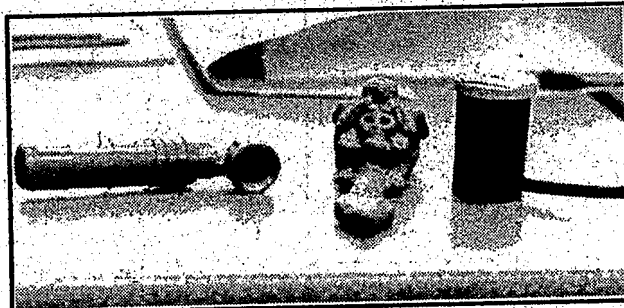

"Everyone I catch is turned over to (Student Assistance Coordinator) Kelly Kanigowski, and I work with the counselors," said Young.

"I follow the kids through the court system. If they're working on getting away from it (bad choices), I tell the judge. If they're defiant the judge will hear that, too. My credibility with the judge and the students is at stake," said Young.

He added he and the administrators and counselors work well together to attempt to keep students from getting in trouble and making sure they graduate. Superintendent Dr. Al Roberts also has "an open channel of communication" with Young.

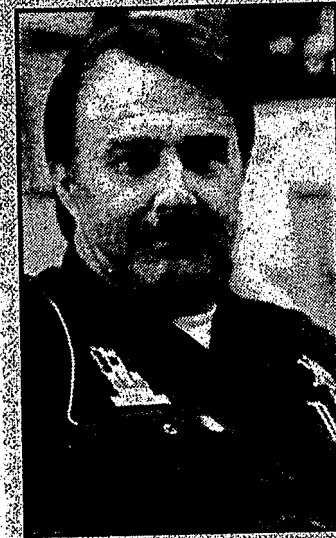

Students considered at risk and those in Kanigowski's support groups have visited the Oakland County Sheriff's Boot Camp with Young. He also had students listen to the stories of a man who spent 10 years in prison on a drug charge. "I tell them, 'Here's what's going to happen if you continue (these behaviors)' and we go from there."

As the youth officer for the township, Young is in charge of kids outside school grounds as well. He often makes presentations to scout troops and can be seen

Peer mediation good for everyone

Breaking up fights at the schools is also one of Young's jobs. "A lot of kids need Peer Listening classes or Peer Mediation. They don't know how to work out their problems," he said.

In a recent incident, a female CHS student was pushed down the stairs, resulting in serious injuries.

Young said the OCSD is offering a $200 reward for information on the identity of the person who pushed her. Anyone with information should call (248) 858-4950 and leave a message for Det. Young.

around town in the department's DARE car.

Area kids who are picked up for crimes are sent to Children's Village in Pontiac if they're 16 or under and their parents are called.

At 17, "the magical age of adulthood" they're sent to Oakland County Jail and parents are not called, Young said. Seventeen year olds are kept in the jail's standard holding cells, separated only into misdemeanor or felony cases. "We hope they're scared to death. There's nothing glamorous about this when they're exposed on their own."

In youths who are repeat offenders, Young sees a

Many people still have old "black" Silver Amalgam fillings. These fillings, because they are metal, expand, contract, and change shape over time. They cause leakage and new decay. Doing old fillings over again is no fun! We recommend only white, bonded fill material. Because it "bonds" or locks into the tooth structure, it helps increase the strength of the tooth. Silver fillings often weaken the tooth, causing fractures and expensive crowns.

Local teens want to help others

Kudos to Sashabaw Middle School eighth graders Emily Zarnicki and Amanda Walsh, and Clarkston High School sophomore Andrea O'Dea.

Upset about classmates who have committed suicide and others who are considering it, as well as turmoil among today's youth, they are attempting to do something about it.

The girls hope to start a branch of the Yellow Ribbon Project -- teen-led and other community support groups in the area.

The girls were well-received during their presentation at last week's Clarkston Task Force For Youth meeting, and the adults are anxious to help them meet their goals.

Oxford High School teens started a student-led support group in 1997 following a rash of teen suicide attempts.

May 20 is the date of their third Celebrate Life festival -- a day long series of events and assemblies devoted to awareness and education.

The goal of all of the students is to help each other -- certainly an honorable one.

We commend the students for their good hearts and intentions and urge community members to join in. Contact the Task Force at 394-0252 if you're interested in taking part. MKC

Reader gets a kick out of Sherman's column

Dear Editor,

I loved reading Jim Sherman's thoughts on paying your income tax and getting even with the I.R.S. Jim, you and I both agree that the government can get into your pocketbook pretty deep sometimes.

I remember when tax freedom day was April 1 while in 1998 it was May 10. Now I'd like to get even with our local government which strips you of your liberties.

I'll take the first 50 suggestions you can think of. I couldn't help but notice the price of your paper in 1970 was 10 cents. You've done a good job at cost containment. You should be charging more than 50 cents per paper, however, in today's market.

A Sunday main-line paper costs $1.50. I'll be looking for your suggestions.

No bad kids, just bad choices

This is the time of year we think about kids. Graduation is less than a month away. Seniors are dreaming of sunny skies, uncharted territories and plans for the future, whether it's college, jobs or taking road trips through the USA or Europe.

How sad that three Clarkston High School students looked at the present -- not their bright futures -- when they decided to pull a prank last week.

They admitted to wanting a day off from school.

An attack of senioritis, perhaps? Two of the youths are seniors, one a sophomore. They went to the bus garage early Wednesday morning, and vandalized 37 school buses -- snipping the air valves off tires (see related story).

We're left wondering. Didn't they think they'd get caught? Didn't they realize the consequences? Not to mention the physical cost: $3,650.

We look at incidents like the Columbine High School tragedy, the overwhelming stats that student drug use in Clarkston is higher than the national average. And, cocaine and heroin? It's downright scary to us parents.

We're left screaming that age-old question: "What's wrong with kids today?"

As I sat in court, and looked at the distraught faces of the boys' parents, I heard some of them say the incident was totally out of character.

These were good sons, bright sons. Kids who helped around the house and held down jobs. Kids who were never troublemakers. But they admitted their sons had made poor choices.

One dad and I looked at each other. He responded with a wan smile as my eyes reached out to his. The mothers looked as though they hadn't slept -- I'm sure they hadn't. Their faces were so sad I thought my heart would burst.

And the boys -- my heart strings reached their limits. All hung their heads. They were dirty, probably still in the grass-stained shirts they wore to jail. They were pale and tired-looking. Visibly ashamed. I wanted to cradle them. Yet, I wanted to throttle them.

That's all it takes. One bad choice to ruin your future -- at least temporarily. Despite my heart, my head was talking too. Somehow, they need to be held accountable for what they did. I hope they were scared enough to learn their lesson.

How many people are truly held accountable for what they do? Our president is a good example. With role models like that, what kinds of messages are we sending to our children?

It's important to note there are no bad kids, only bad choices. Like Anne Frank, I'm ever the sunny optimist. I still believe people are basically good. A very wise saying, handed down by my parents, was, "I love you. But I do not like your behavior."

These boys need a lot of love right now. But the right kind -- tough love.

I sowed some wild oats in my day. It was the Controversy at Lake Orion High School

Wed., May 19, 1999 The Clarkston (MI) News 7A

Received a five-page letter last week -- hand delivered by John Simkus. The big guy's upset. Something done in Orion has angered him -- but what? Read on, Dear Ones.

Lake Orion High School had an assembly on tolerance by the Rainbow Coalition. What John is upset about is notification of this speaking engagement was not timely. Apparently parents weren't informed of the group that spoke before their children. According to our editor in Lake Orion, Elaine Steib, the Rainbow group was to preach tolerance of gays, lesbians, bisexuals and trans-gender folks.

Tolerance of all of God's children is something I wish we all had in our hearts. We don't have to like everybody, but we certainly don't need any more hate. There is too much of that to go around. But

When there is a group like this appearing before students, parents need to be consulted. Heck, schools make parents sign permission slips for a trip to the zoo and for sex education class. One would think -- I would think -- that something as touchy as a touchy-feely, warm, fuzzy chat with a trans-gender person (whatever that is) would warrant notification to parents.

Writes John, "I wonder how this could be, I thought school was a place of learning, not a place subject to propaganda pandering?"

He has a point. According to the nine million studies quoted for the last 10 years, in academics American students are falling behind their worldwide counterparts. Should schooling be a love-fest, or should schools be a place of learning? I think it's a good question.

John's upset his school tax dollars went for such a program, during school hours (he said so in his letter). More of our resources need to be put towards teachers teaching English, Math, Science and History. Teachers, he writes, are "men and women of great strength and courage, who day after day, week after week fought (fight) to cram our wooden heads with objective, provable, testable, reliable knowledge not the pathetic hot air you are promoting. Thanks a lot Principal Thirjung."

John's post script: "School administrators, principals and counselors should spend half (at least) of their time teaching academic subjects in class -- it would keep down this kind of nonsense. Idle hands, you know."

From his letter, I gather John gets red-faced when all he hears is the intolerance of "straight" folks against not-straight folks, when there is no talk of intolerance by not-strights towards straights. It happens, he said, it happened to him. Intolerance cuts both ways and is not one group's property over another.

Today's lesson is for school administrators far and near. When planning a speaking engagement such as this, even though you may be 110 percent behind it, consult your bosses -- the ones that pay you. You don't work for the children, you work for their parents.

It must be the hat

We opened Michigan's trout fishing season the 3-day weekend of May 7-9. It was another in a long run of "fishing," not "catching" weekends of my life.

Perhaps we should have gone trout fishing earlier, on the official opening day, but I doubt it would have changed the results.

Three days ... not a nibble!

It must be the hat. Every fisherman has a "hat." It's usually nonconforming, ill-shaped and recognizable by other fishermen as a fishing hat.

It can't be the lures. To name a few, I tried four Mepps spinners, six Little Cleo's of six different sizes and colors, two Super Dupers, a dozen Rapalas and five Dardevils-DOG.

I tried spinners with and without live and plastic worms, hooks with Power Bait, things that rattled and things silent, Flatfish and non-flatfish, plastic frogs, crickets and something only fish are said to recognize.

It must be the hat.

We tried fishing with and without snaps, tried 6, 8 and 10 pound test line, used both round and elongated bobbers of different colors.

We alternated between open and closed bale reels on an old Shakespear rod and a new Ugly Stik. Fishing close to shore or far out failed to entice even a retarded trout.

Jim's
Jottings

Jim Sherman

It must be the hat.

I've read fishing articles in Field and Stream and Woods n' Waters by Tom Hugler, Babe Winkleman and Herb Boldt. I've wore dark clothes and crept stealthily to the water's edge, and I've worn light clothes and thrashed along the shoreline.

I fished both the north and south sides, still fished, casted and fly fished, fished upstream and down with high tech and low tech equipment.

It must be the hat.

My batch of fluorescent lures obviously didn't attract any fish, and neither did scented lures that wiggled, waddled or did nothing. The results were the same whether in deep or shallow water.

It must be the hat.

I will admit there are a few things I didn't try on our trout season opener. I didn't try one of those floating tubes where you fly fish with barbless hooks and put back any catch.

And, I didn't bring out any of the dozens of "killer" lures we have for bass, pike, perch, walleye and bluegill fishing. (I don't fish for salmon.)

By the way, none of these lures and fishing methods I've mentioned worked for me any better on those species than they did on trout. Nor did we try the other live bait, minnows.

But, just maybe I should have, and just maybe it's not the hat.

PS: Son, Jim, caught fish, but what does he know? He wears a hunting hat.

a Look Back

BY EILEEN MCCARVILLE

15 YEARS AGO (1984)

In conjunction with his Clarkston Ambulatory Care Center, pediatrician Dr. James O'Neill proposes an outpatient surgical clinic and psychiatric day care center at I-75 and Dixie Highway. He has filed for a certificate of need with the State Department of Public Health.

Work is expected to begin on a new cable facility at a renovated Clarkston schools maintenance building within the next two weeks. A 15-year lease with Tribune/United Cable Communications is approved by the Clarkston School Board, followed by site plan approval from The Independence Township Planning Commission.

Two more Republicans toss their hats into the ring for Independence Township Board seats. Carol Balzarini seeks a four-year term as trustee, and George Vitinaros is running for supervisor.

25 YEARS AGO (1974)

Settlement of the Waterford Hill Country Club zoning case is expected within the next two weeks. Developers have agreed no discount or department store will be erected on the golf course site.

Local business owners, Buck and Joan Kopietz of Tierra Arts and Design, hope to start a "Heritage Days" in Clarkston. The annual event would somewhat imitate Rochester's Art 'n' Apples festival.

The Clarkston Junior High School "Faculty Finks" basketball team gets lucky and upsets their younger counterparts -- the ninth-grade Wolverines -- by a close score of 103-98. During the students-against-the faculty fiasco -- where some of the staff wear clown duds like floppy shoes and suspenders -- Mr. McDonald wins 22 points and earns a stale McDonald's French fry. Mr. Potvin (with two points) prepares to educate students on how to win a basketball game -- shooting from mid court between his legs.

50 YEARS AGO (1948)

Voters of the Sashabaw School District No. 1 approve, by 164-28, the building of a new eight-room school at Pine Knob and Maybee roads. The tax will raise $80,000 to be applied to the building fund through an additional 15-mill tax for 20 years.

"Sorry, Wrong Number," starring Barbara Stanwyck and Burt Lancaster, is playing at the Holly Theatre.

Terry's Market serves up specials for spring appetites: frozen strawberries, 39 cents a package; Hot Cross Buns, 39 cents a dozen; and catsup, two large bottles for 29 cents.

sixties and teens were footloose and fancy free. Some of that era is endearing to me, especially the music. Other parts were dangerous. Today, there are even more choices to lead kids astray.

And more issues: AIDS, drugs that are manufactured with more harmful elements, an increase in teen suicide and violence, divorce -- parents who light up a joint themselves when their kid comes home. The list goes on and on.

I have had my share of heartbreak with my own children, nothing as serious as the above. And I have a lovely senior son -- a flaxen-haired charmer -- whom I'm chomping at the bit to get "graduated."

But there's always the "yet" word. Earlier, Clarkston schools superintendent Dr. Al Roberts said good kids can make bad choices. And sometimes they're not the only ones. Parents can make them too.

There are some groups in Clarkston making a positive difference. A new suicide prevention group is being formed by youths and adults, and Clarkston Community Task Force for Youth is uniting the generations also.

They've got the right idea. Maybe we all need to take responsibility for kids today.

School officials throughout county attend safety summit

Just a few days ago I attended a meeting sponsored by the Oakland County Schools Superintendent Association. I have met with this organization many times to discuss and analyze school issues, but this meeting was a first. Virtually every school district in our county was represented; most of them by the superintendent. Also in attendance were news media editors, Oakland County Sheriff Michael Bouchard, and Prosecutor David Gorcyca. Rounding out the group were school communications personnel and psychologists.

The pressing topic, of course, was school safety. For at least forty-five minutes we heard from the 28 school districts in the county. It is a sad statement that almost every district has been adversely touched in the past three weeks by either real or perceived threats to the safety of their students. Many districts have had to cancel school days, others have evacuated buildings because of threats, and still others — like us — have been able to continue a regular schedule while tracking down countless rumors and handling relatively minor incidents.

It is a fact that no district in the county has been untouched by media reports, reports that are not always accurate. In fact, media accuracy was on the minds of many of my colleagues and their communications specialists. Oakland Schools Superintendent Jim Redmond reported that he has met with area reporters and asked them to stress the consequences of vandalism and threatening behavior, instead of merely reporting the acts. There was general agreement that such an approach would point out the downside of aberrant behavior instead of creating celebrities out of those who misbehave. I concur with that opinion.

It was also noted by the Sheriff's department that, since the tragedy in Littleton, schools have had to maintain zero tolerance of crimes (or threats of crimes) committed on school property, whether toward administrators or other students. Comments or behavior that might have been overlooked two months ago is now being taken quite seriously. In fact, a psychologist at the meeting reported that referrals of school-aged children to professional counseling are higher than they have ever been, underscoring the fact that schools are taking ALL misbehavior seriously.

On a more positive note, my colleagues report that the relationship between the school districts and the Sheriff's Department have never been stronger. Although the circumstances are regrettable, this is one outcome that will help shore up the security in Oakland County school districts. I feel fortunate that our own relationship with the Sheriff's Department has been — and continues to be — a strong one.

The educators at the meeting had one overriding concern: coping with the fear created by these tragic incidents and churned into a national frenzy by the media! I think that this fear, while certainly legitimate, must be focused not only on our schools but also on the rest of society.

Why are youngsters so angry? We must seek answers and must be prepared to deal with whatever comes our way at Clarkston schools. We have a security plan for every building and a crisis plan that is ready to go into action whenever needed. We have turned aside the notion that it could never happen here. We are planning a community meeting to discuss our efforts to provide a safe environment for the children in our schools. And we are using every resource at our disposal to aggressively attack the possibility of school violence.

You can't fry an egg on the pavement, no matter how hot it is

by Dan Trainor
of The Clarkston News

Don't believe it: You can't fry an egg on the pavement.

"This is crazy, you just don't cook eggs outside."

Tricia Kelly summed up the noble experiment last Friday when the temperature topped 100 degrees.

Tricia, 7, and brother, Shane, 4, who live in Thendara Park Subdivision, were the most able of assistants to prove or disprove a ridiculous claim that "it is so hot you could fry an egg on the pavement."

When the statement was made in the office, it was off to Rudy's to ask for one egg, "please."

"One egg? What in the world for?" came the reply.

"I am going to fry it on the pavement."

"You're crazy!"

After getting the egg, the gals at Rudy's enlisted Tricia, Shane and mother Becky and it was off to the parking lot.

Soon the onlookers gathered in disbelief but still wondering, "Is it cooking?"

There has to be one in every crowd.

He passed by and, without a break in his walk, curtly said, "It won't work, I saw them try it on television last week."

"Well thanks, buddy, but tell me did the mascara run on the guy who did the television report?"

The hearty souls stood watching and waiting as that yellow "eye" looked up at us.

And there it laid doing nothing while we did the frying.

Oh well, so much for that old wives' tale.

Maybe that raw egg still laying on the pavement will cure a hangover tomorrow morning.

Sewer rates going up $8 a quarter beginning Aug. 1

By Dan Trainor
of The Clarkston News

Independence Township residents will be paying up to $8 more per quarter on their sewer bills beginning August 1 as a result of an apparent agreement between Detroit and the Environmental Protection Agency.

There is no way to get around the increase, according to George Anderson, head of the township water and sewer department.

Anderson and Supervisor Floyd Tower received news of the 105 percent rate hike Detroit will pass onto Oakland County at a meeting held last week in Detroit with some 78 other suburban communities served by regional system.

The rate increase is being ordered by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency to force the Detroit system to comply with the laws regulating the discharge of sewage into the Detroit River. Detroit has been cited 684 times in the past three years for violating the federal laws.

"The increase was inevitable," Anderson said. "The problem is the Detroit Water Board mismanaged the treatment plant for many years and now we have to play catch-up."

"The problem is if we (suburban communities) said no to the federal court consent judgment, we stood to lose some $100 million in federal grants."

"Losing the grants would be one thing," Anderson said, "but the EPA would still press for repair of the plant and secondly Detroit would have lost the federal funds for the project and the rates would have to go into effect at a higher rate because of the loss of matching funds."

The rate increase, while far below the 200 percent hike expected, was not received well at all by the suburban representatives, Anderson said.

"They resented how they are being forced to take the increase and how Mayor (Coleman) Young let it slide until the EPA stepped in so that it would be taken off his shoulders and onto the EPA's."

"Everyone felt that Detroit purposely let it slide so the EPA had no other choice but to step in," Anderson added.

"The biggest concern among the suburban communities," Anderson said, "is the operation of the Detroit plant and to take it out of Mayor Young's hands and put it into a regional or state control so this political mismanagement will not be allowed to happen again."

The August increase will not be the last, Anderson said. The consent judgment calls for another increase to go into effect in about three years. The amount of that increase has not been set.

Currently an average family in Independence Township pays a quarterly bill of $21.25 and village customers pay $4 less per quarter.

That cost will increase anywhere up to $30 per quarter depending on how much the township can absorb.

The township is currently considering assuming its own maintenance of the sewer system instead of contracting with the county at a cost of $4.25 per unit.

If the township does assume the maintenance, Anderson said, some of that charge would be lowered and help offset a portion of the increase.

Another option the township has, Anderson said, is to reduce some of the $12 per quarter residents are billed to pay off the debt retirement bonds on the sewer.

If the township board does decide to lower that rate, however, it would just be extending the life of the two mill ad valorem tax, Anderson added.

The sizzle was a fizzle

As crazy as Tricia Kelly thought it was, she and her brother, Shane, wanted to see if the egg would fry on asphalt. As it turned out the only frying was done by Tricia, Shane and the onlookers.

lack of respect for parents and "any authority figure at all." He sees the behavior as defiant and counts television as a big contributor to the problem.

"They see a lot of kids on TV getting away with violence, and they don't think about the consequences. There is always a consequence for everything."

Young said when kids are turned over to their parents most are cooperative and become involved in their child's progress. "When they do get involved, it ends there."

Other parents tell him, "Johnny would never do that," even when caught red-handed.

Young, who has been with OCSD for 15 years and at the Independence substation since 1993, is also a 1974 CHS graduate.

He has an office at CHS and said he's willing to work with the kids in different ways. "I don't always have to be an adversarial cop. I'm not a counselor, but these kids can come talk to me anytime they want. I'm glad to help them get out of the (bad) lifestyles they're in. I'll help them find a counselor, whatever it takes."

Local teens hope to help others in crisis

Recent suicides prompt young women to get involved, create local task force

Turmoil among today's teens and the recent suicides of classmates are motivating three area students to take action.

Sashabaw Middle School eighth grader Emily Zarnicki, and Clarkston High School sophomore Andrea O'Dea joined last Thursday's Clarkston Task Force for Youth meeting to brainstorm the possibility of creating support groups for teens and others who are at risk for considering suicide.

Emily and buddy Amanda Walsh came up with the idea after reading the book Chicken Soup for the Teenage Soul, particularly the story of the Yellow Ribbon Project, started in 1994 by parents of a 17-year-old suicide victim.

After checking out the Yellow Ribbon Project Web site, they brought the idea of creating a Clarkston branch to Betty Haran, coordinator of education classes at St. Daniel Church, and asked to develop it as part of their community service project.

Coincidentally, Andrea was realizing the need for support groups at the same time and discussing the matter with one of her teachers, Tina Chambers. Andrea also talked to Haran, who put the three girls together, then contacted Cindy Dixon and Diane St. Peter of the Task Force to see if the girls could make a presentation.

The goal of the three students is for adults to facilitate teens helping teens. Hopefully, when teens realize how much people care about them, it will reduce the risk of suicide, said the girls.

Teens often protect each other when they are at risk. The group hopes to initiate training sessions so students understand when to alert an adult that someone needs help.

The group hopes to expand on the girls' idea by making the effort community-wide. Options for training community members to respond to teens' needs were discussed.

If you would like to be part of the project, call Cindy Dixon at the Task Force, 394-0252.

At the meeting, Birtsas' planning consultant, David Birchler of Birchler, Arroyo, and Associates, said the request for rezoning the residential portion was based on four points:

1. R-2 zoning was consistent with the township's master plan.
2. It was also consistent with neighboring developments, Softwater Woods and Old Pond.
3. It offered a logical extension of the R-2 designation because it immediately abuts an R-2 development.
4. The development would offer a sensitive use of the site.

Supervisor Colin Walls said the request was "logical and consistent and saw nothing that would be detrimental to adjacent properties."

He told an audience member concerned about the effect of the project on neighboring wells, "there is no reason to believe it will have an impact on the aquifer and wells unless they are old and shallow. But there are not many 25-foot or less wells left." The vote passed 6 to 1 (treasurer Lois Stiles was absent).

Trustee Elaine Field-Smith objected to the rezoning, preferring a cluster development which she said would better preserve the wetland portion.

Rezoning of 21 acres from R-1 to C-2 (general business) presents potential problems, according to clerk Nancy Strole. She said there are several types of intense uses within C-2 that could increase traffic by 20 percent, up to 7,500 vehicles per day. She also questioned whether there was enough room for acceleration and deceleration lanes for access to business.

Trustee and planning commissioner Dennis Vallad said his reservations on rezoning to C-2 were based on the absence of specific information about what kinds of businesses would be included in the project. He felt some uses in the C-2 designation were inappropriate for the property.

Walls commended Birtsas for offering to table the issue (the vote was unanimous) so concerns and alternatives could be addressed.

At the meeting the board also approved the site concept plan for Kingston Point after developer George Mansour detailed the improvement made at the board's request in April.

The improvements include added buffer zones and future construction of a center turn lane on Dixie Highway that will be a joint effort.

Something to Crowe about

True-blue rock 'n' rollers The Black Crowes have survived problems like "drugs, divorce, departures and a general descent into madness," according to Columbia Media Department.

Their newest album "By Your Side," with 11 tunes written by brothers Chris and Rich Robinson, reflects the band's growth.

The title track, for instance, features these come-clean lyrics by Chris: "I've been over the hill and back/ Survived every kind of attack."

Says Chris, "We were always looking up the hill. Now we're up on top of the hill, and there may be other hills to climb, but now we can look back and say, 'That's how you learn.'"

In an exclusive interview with The Clarkston News, drummer Steve Gorman chats about the band.

Q: How long have you been together?

A: I guess Chris and Rich were playing together since high school. This is my thirteenth year with them. Rich is the baby. He turns 30 this month.

Q: How would you describe the band's style? You're certainly blues influenced.

A: We see rock 'n' roll as an amalgamation of all kinds of music -- blues, gospel, soul. It all goes into the pot, you know. We're very much influenced by different styles of music, and we wear all those colors.

Q: I hear a lot of soul in your music. Is that an accurate reflection?

A: Absolutely. None of us look like Al Green, but that's what we are. We think we're a soul band.

Q: How have you changed?

A: It's all about growth. To us, growth means always improving. Music is an infinite space. There's no finite line if you're a true musician. You get to a door. You're in a room with 10 more doors ...

You're in your '20s, you're having a blast. But that can also be very painful. We write songs about that ... 'cause you want to be 20 all the time. Our albums are very much a reflection of who we are and what we feel.

We left Atlanta with a duffel bag. Everybody has wives and babies. Now there's many duffel bags. That's how Chris always puts it.

This new album is much different. It's a much happier time. We feel more accomplished and better about where we're going.

Q: You have so many great songs on the new album, including your hit "Kicking My Heart Around." Does the song "Welcome to the Good Times" reflect the band's growth?

A: I think it's very much like that. The whole album deals with getting to a balance in life. There's a lot to be said for turning 30 -- OK, I get it now! You know, all those things your parents said -- hard work is good -- well, it's true.

Q: I've heard Chris, Rich and other band members cut their trademark long hair.

A: Everybody has cut and grown their hair at different times.

Q: Some people call you a "hippie band." After all, you headlined the Furthur Festival two years ago, started by members of the former Grateful Dead.

A: I think we've said, in the past, we've had a couple hippies in the band. There's a lot of improvisation. But we never sounded like the Grateful Dead in our lives. They were like a jug band. They played bluegrass and a lot of hootenannies.

I think in the '90s ... everybody wants to put you in a category. We've always been just The Black Crowes.

Q: A word for your fans?

A: They're the reason we've been able to do everything we've ever done. They've given us the freedom to be creative and not give in to what's going on around us. Detroit was the first city that really took to us.

Q: You recently played The State Theater. How was that?

A: It's a great vibe in there. Eddie (Harsch), our guitar player, lives in Detroit. We're all Red Wings fans because of that.

The Black Crowes appear with Lenny Kravitz, Everlast and Cree Summer, Saturday at 6 p.m.

Other upcoming shows:

■ Natalie Merchant, May 21

■ Hank Williams Jr., Charlie Daniels Band, Marshall Tucker Band and Molly Hatchet, May 28

Actress-comedienne Goldie Hawn performed with the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo when she was 10 and worked as a can-can dancer at the New York World's Fair when she was 20.

Teens charged

"I believe you will appear," said Raguso, referring to the next court date. "It's a serious matter."

Bail was produced and the boys were released to their parents.

According to police reports, an OCSD officer found Selberg's 1991 red Le Mans parked against the north side of the old CHS, and noticed a box with a picture of a bolt cutter. The bolt cutter was later found in a nearby field.

Meanwhile, the youths were spotted and questioned by another officer at the Amoco gas station at Waldon and Sashabaw roads. They said they had walked there to call for a ride after Steven's car broke down.

The youths admitted to planning the incident, and said they gained entry to the bus lot. All three had grass stains on their shirts and pants, and produced tools and/or weapons that ranged from knives to bolt cutters, wire cutters and tin snips. Zachary turned over a flashlight.

They admitted to cutting the straps to the gate, and ducking underneath the electronic eye because they knew the area was alarmed. The boys said they first let air out of the tires, but decided they weren't deflating fast enough, so they snipped the valve stems.

They were taken into custody and the case was turned over to Clarkston schools liaison Det. Chuck Young of the OCSD Independence substation.

"All cooperated and told me what they did," Young told Raguso. "The reason seems to make no sense for a day off school. That's why (they said) they did this."

Clarkston schools assistant superintendent Pat Brumback said the youths have been suspended, but may turn in their homework for full credit. They might be expelled.

The district's Discipline Review Committee met Friday to review the matter. "The recommended discipline for each of these three is expulsion," Brumback said. "The administration from the high school recommends the discipline, based on their school code of conduct," she explained.

However, only the school board may expel a student, she added. That action "can't happen any sooner than our next regular meeting, June 14." Brumback added the parents may request a hearing with the district hearing officer within 10 days of the incident.

Clarkston schools director of transportation Ron Conwell said transportation personnel worked from 2:30 a.m. to get the buses going, so kids could be picked up for school.

"As far as I know there was no lateness beyond normal traffic lateness. My two mechanics, grounds and maintenance personnel and CHS building supervisor Kevin Bickerstaff all worked together and provided enough vehicles throughout the morning."

Holly and Lake Orion school districts provided valve stems for the tires. "With their assistance in the emergency situation, it made it easier for us to get them all out," Conwell said.

Dawn Hayward, Aaron Hayward's mother, stressed in court and afterward, the incident is not typical of her son's behavior.

"He has done teenager things like all of us have done at one time. But malicious destruction — never."

Likewise, Zachary's father Richard Sartell said his son had also committed an act "totally out of character," describing Zachary as "a good kid."

X-ray office closes

Gorz said. She also suggests follow-ups be made only by certified x-ray technicians.

"There are other places in Clarkston to get x-rays, for patient access care," she said.

Lucas, also president of Lucas Medical Associates in Austin, Texas, said he and Lawrence Wayburn, radiologist, became partners of the Clarkston office and four others in Oakland County in October.

"We formed a joint venture — a venture that failed because there were not enough cases to cover the costs. The sites closed right before tax authorities closed them for previous debts from Dr. Wayburn that had not been paid," Lucas said.

"We're very sad to see this happen," Gorz said of the Clarkston office closing.

If no two people are alike... why should their funerals be?

They shouldn't, at least we don't think so. To be truly memorable, a service should reflect the tastes and preferences of the person who has died. Which is why we believe in offering a boundless variety of service options. You can even add your own personal touch. Ask to speak with our preneed specialist who can help you with your advance arrangements.

Just as no two people are alike, we believe no two funerals are alike.

Attraction for 'Star Wars' buffs a 'force' of nature

BY EILEEN MCCARVILLE

Clarkston News Staff Writer

Not so long ago, in a galaxy -- this galaxy, in fact -- the force was with Noel Stalker.

He had just asked fellow Clarkston High School student Beth Baldiga on their first date to the re-release of one of their favorite movies, "Star Wars."

He needed no help from Obi-Wan Kenobi.

By the next movie, "The Empire Strikes Back," they were holding hands. After the third film, "The Return of the Jedi" -- as they say, the rest is history, and Stalker had his own trilogy of memories.

Today, the two are engaged to be married and anxiously await the prequel, "Star Wars: Episode I The Phantom Menace," the first "Star Wars" film in 16 years which, at presstime, was slated to open Tuesday at midnight.

Stalker, is a detailer for a machine engineering company and will turn 20 May 29. His bride-to-be, 20, is a nanny and also works at a clothing store at Great Lakes Crossing -- where the couple plans to view the sequel inside the new Star Theatre. "Stadium seating and all," marvels Stalker.

On Monday, he said he purchased tickets for the midnight show. The morning after, "I'll have to come in and drink a lot of coffee," he quips.

Most likely, it will be a family affair, because the couple's parents love the science fiction extravaganzas as much as they do. After all, the couple cut their teeth on tales of Chewbacca and R2-D2. The first movie came out in 1977, before they were born.

"Every Feb. 1 (the 1997 re-release date), we have a one-year anniversary," says Stalker. Like Baldiga, he is a 1997 CHS graduate. "It was the second anniversary that she bought me the boxed set." He produces the trio of videotapes.

Stalker recently entered a "Star Wars" trivia contest sponsored by a local newspaper. He didn't win the free movie passes, but he got all the answers right. "We (he and Baldiga) were never fanatics," he admits. "But I guess we appreciate it."

He laments the fact his mom sold his childhood action figures at garage sales -- but consoles himself with the fact that most of the tiny laser swords that came with the toys were "the first things I lost."

"And then I had this Ewok castle. That was the coolest thing," says Stalker -- with a far, far away look in his eyes. "They don't make toys like they used to."

Nor movies.

The two say they've heard the sequel is heavy on special effects but light on plot. A review in People magazine describes the film as "cool looking, but can't help feeling we're being Force fed."

"The Phantom Menace" -- which features Ewan McGregor as a young Obi and child actor Jake Lloyd as the boy destined to become Darth Vader -- is the first episode of the complete "Star Wars" epic. "Wars," "Empire" and "Return" are episodes IV, V and VI.

According to People, creator-director George Lucas has plans to fill the holes with episodes II and III.

Stalker and Baldiga say the futuristic adventures are timeless in their appeal. They mention the conflict between good and evil, stellar soundtracks and -- sigh -- good, old-fashioned romance.

If each could choose a character, Baldiga has no problem strapping a pair of Danishes to her head to become Princess Leia. She also speaks for her fiancé.

"I wouldn't mind if he was Han Solo 'cause I think the description of him..." She searches for the right words to describe a young, hunky Harrison Ford. "He's a man's man. He always comes off as John Wayne."

It's only natural they share an affinity for the limelight. Baldiga is currently starring as one of the "doo-wop" girls in Clarkston Village Players' musical "Little Shop of Horrors." Stalker, a trumpet player, was a member of CHS's Solid Brass Quintet, and still plays gigs with former band members.

"Star Wars" buffs Beth Baldiga and Noel Stalker are cast in their own sequel -- their August wedding.

The two got better acquainted on the set of the CHS musical "Guys and Dolls" while in high school.

Both value the use of imagination, and wouldn't mind getting down on the carpet with their action figures again. "Kids don't have to imagine things anymore," complains Stalker.

Baldiga says fast-paced, head-swirling videos on TV channels like MTV don't help. "I think you have to have a longer attention span to watch movies now," she notes sadly.

They're excited that Baldiga's brother Joe -- another thespian who had the coveted role as King Arthur in this year's CHS musical "Camelot" -- just purchased a new "Star Wars" game.

"It has this huge Millennium Falcon. You push a button and it says things like 'Use the force' or 'We're doomed,'" says a wide-eyed Baldiga.

It's possible the couple may carry the "Star Wars" theme into their wedding in August.

Will there, perhaps, be a miniature Han Solo and Princess Leia atop the wedding cake?

"That would be cute. That's actually a good idea," laughs Stalker. "But we wouldn't have the pastor dress up like Darth Vader or anything."

Some "subtle" Star Wars puns would be fun, agrees Baldiga. "But not that the wedding party should come out like Storm Troopers." However, there's a touch of the impish Princess Leia. "We wouldn't do something like that..."

OSMTech skeleton gets a makeover by way of volunteers

By RENEE LUTZ

Clarkston News Staff Writer

"Mrs. Bones" will soon be back to her old self.

The Oakland Science and Math Technology skeleton had a nasty accident at the hands of two students last fall. They took her to a Halloween party and accidentally dropped her, resulting in extensive damage.

The students were suspended for taking the skeleton and fined for some of the damages, which included broken ribs and scrapes on other bones. In addition, many of the teeth were either chipped or knocked out.

Nicknamed "Mrs. Bones" by students at OSMTech, the human skeleton is instrumental in illustrating anatomy and in teaching biology classes, said Jon Thompson, OSMTech director and Orion Township resident.

The total estimate to repair the damaged skeleton was $800. To replace such a skeleton -- which may have come from as far away as South America -- would be in the thousands of dollars, Thompson said.

That was when he gave Gary Fitney a call.

Fitney, a Clarkston dentist, volunteered to repair several of the human skeleton's teeth, Thompson said.

"Gary was quite willing to do that," Thompson said.

Fitney agreed to complete the repairs, and also enlisted the help of an oral surgeon friend to save teeth to replace the eight or so missing or chipped ones. In addition, an OSMTech teacher also helped out by re-attaching several rib pieces with an epoxy glue, Thompson said.

The experience reminded Fitney of his years working on actual skeletons in dental school. "I learned not to breathe," he said of the fumes derived from grinding teeth to fit the skeleton.

Fitney used acrylic to bind the teeth into the jaw, the same adhesive he uses on live patients.

Thompson said despite the looks he and "Mrs. Bones" received in the lobby when bringing her in, he is glad he decided to ask for Fitney's help.

"I was pleased how receptive Gary was to the idea. The first time I brought it in, you should have seen the look on the people's faces," Thompson said.

Thursday marked the third visit by Thompson and the 25- to 30-year-old skeleton to Fitney's Clarkston office on Ortonville Road for repairs. The first and second visits were for fillings of some of the chipped teeth, Thompson said.

Fitney said the teeth are in pretty good shape, considering the skeleton's age. He also said it appears as though no dental work was performed during the person's lifetime.

Thompson remarked that the skeleton is probably for Fitney "the most cooperative patient he's had."

OSMTech is located at Oakland Technical Center, NW at 8211 Big Lake Road.

Triple threats on the track

The Rooding triplets - Jennifer on top, April on the left and Christina on the right, have been fixtures on the Clarkston cross country and track teams their entire high school careers.

April, Christina and Jennifer Rooding stick together in sports and in life

BY BRAD MONASTIERE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

The coaches of the Clarkston girls track and cross country teams have the unenviable task of trying to keep track of more than 50 athletes each season. But for three of those athletes, they only need to know one name.

Rooding.

Seniors April, Christina and Jennifer Rooding are triplets that are finishing up their careers running for the Clarkston girls track team. Christina and Jennifer ran track for four years, cross country for three. April ran in both sports for three years each. And despite having their distinct personality traits, their coaches admit to covering all their bases by referring to any one of the three just by their last name.

"They all came out as sophomores, which was my first year here," said girls cross country coach Deb Zonca. "So I had a hard enough time trying to tell one from the other. One time, I was yelling at one, saying 'Go April, go.' She yells back to me, out of breath in the middle of a race, 'I'm Christina.'"

The life of a triplet isn't always easy, and getting the three mixed up is something the three girls have dealt with all their lives.

"People are always comparing one of us to the other two," Christina said. "Teachers would get us mixed up sometimes, but it would be easier for them if we wear different outfits."

To the untrained eye, April and Christina look almost exactly alike. While Jennifer's hair is a darker shade of blonde, April and Christina have nearly Junior Pat Heber lunges for the ball at Thursday's OAA II Meet at CHS.

Netters a close second at OAA II meet

BY BRAD MONASTIERE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

The term "so close, yet so far away" was never more appropriate than for the Clarkston boys tennis team.

At Thursday's OAA Division II Meet at the CHS courts, the Wolves struggled in many brackets, but almost won the meet anyway. Clarkston finished with 34 points, just two behind league champion Berkley. Birmingham Groves tied with the Wolves for second place.

The Wolves managed one league champion and three runners-up on the day. Sophomore Brent Griffith won the league title at four-singles, thanks to a 6-4, 6-3 win over Pat Pedano from Waterford Kettering.

"It's tough, because our doubles teams did not have a good day," said coach Kevin Ortwine. "We had a number one and two seeds in doubles that both lost in the first round. But our singles players were terrific."

Junior Pat Heber took second at one-singles, losing to four-time champ Peter Volez of Auburn Hills Avondale 6-1, 6-2. Scott Barnett suffered a tough loss in the three-singles finals, 1-6, 6-2, 6-2 to Berkley's Eric Nett.

The toughest loss may have come in the four-doubles finals, where Matt Poley and Derek Hool lost to the Groves combination of Blake Nickles and Eric

Male Athlete of the Week: Chris Mitchell

Salut, Chris: Anytime you see a pitcher get a hit during a Major League Baseball game, a TV talking head is sure to utter the phrase "He's helping his own cause." But junior Chris Mitchell is such a good pitcher and hitter for the varsity baseball team, he helps himself all over. Chris is in his third season on the varsity team, and has seen the Wolves improve each year. A southpaw pitcher and the third hitter in the order, Chris has been a vital cog in the Wolves' 17-7 season this year. He pitched a complete-game shut out with a career-high 13 strikeouts in the team's 6-0 win over Rochester April 30, Clarkston's first over the Falcons in six years. He is also hitting over .500 and leads the team in runs batted in. Chris is also a key member of the varsity football team. He led the Wolves in rushing last year, and will get an even better opportunity in the fall, running behind the top offensive line in the county.

Coach Phil Price on Chris: "He is an All-State player. He has great command of his breaking ball, has excellent control, and being lefthanded doesn't hurt. But his real strength is hitting the ball. He's outstanding now, and I can only imagine how good he will get in the future."

Chris on Chris: "My control on the mound is a lot better than it was last year, and being the top pitcher, I am dealing with the pressure better. I like to be counted on by my teammates to do my part in helping us to win. If we play as good as we did against Rochester and Adams, there's no reason we can't go all the way. I have some talented teammates, and we want to win."

Female Athlete of the Week: Mandie Harrision

Salut, Mandie: The pieces have been falling into place this season for senior Mandie Harrision. A four-year starter for the varsity softball team, Mandie has emerged to become the team's best all-around player. This has been the first year she has started full-time at shortstop, and she has lent much stability to the team's infield with her consistent, error-free play. She has also cranked up the offense recently, with her big power surge coming May 8 against Flint Kearsley. She belted three home runs in the game, two in one inning in the team's 11-4 rout. Later that day, she hit a bases-loaded triple against Livonia Ladywood, sparking the Wolves to an 11-1 win. Mandie is also a two-year veteran of the varsity volleyball program, and is a co-captain of this year's softball team. She said she hopes to play softball at Oakland Community College next year.

Coach Al Land on Mandie: "I have seen a gradual improvement in Mandie each year since her freshman year. She has a nice glove, doesn't throw the ball away, and her bat has been coming around for us. And her baserunning is also an outstanding part of her game. She has good speed and knows what's going on out there."

Mandie on Mandie: "My freshman year, I was horrible, committing like five errors in each game.

Mandie Harrision

Then when I was a sophomore, I only committed three errors all season, and I've been better since then. I don't think a lot when I hit, I just swing the bat, and I think that's helped. After the Lake Orion doubleheader (a Clarkston sweep) everyone has started to hit, and we're getting better all the time."

■ Holly Invitational

The Wolves bounced back from the frustration of the league meet to win Saturday's Holly Invitational.

Clarkston finished first with 17 points, winning a tiebreaker with Petoskey, based on more head-to-head wins.

"We had a positive mindset going into the meet," Ortwine said. "We finished second the last two years at Holly, and with this win, that means we've won two of the three tournaments we were in this year."

Heber continued his Holly dominance with a win in the number-one singles flight. He won at four and two singles as a freshman and sophomore, and hasn't lost a set at the Holly tournament in his career.

Scott Barnett took first at three-singles, and the four-doubles team of Grant Gilford and Dave Wicklund stepped in and finished first.

"Our regular four-doubles team was out, so to have our fifth doubles team go in and win the tournament is a big credit to them," Ortwine said.

Wolves drop the ball against Colts

	Troy	7
	Clarkston	4

BY BRAD MONASTIERE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

The Clarkston varsity baseball team may very well be five innings away from being 22-2, instead of 17-7 on the season.

That's because in many of its losses, one bad inning seems to ruin the team's chances of winning. That happened again Friday, as a rough third inning led Clarkston to a 7-4 loss to Troy at the CHS diamond.

The loss drop: Clarkston to 4-4 in the OAA I, and all but eliminates it in the race for the league title.

The Wolves committed four errors in the top of the third inning when Troy broke open a 2-2 game and went up 6-2. All of the runs and errors occurred with two outs.

"We gave them seven outs in that inning," coach Phil Price said. "And I ran us out of two more innings by getting guys caught in run downs. Those were my fault. Our kids played well, we just gave too much away to a good team like Troy, and I blame myself for some of that."

In the bottom of the fourth, Clarkston had a rally going when Chris Mitchell and Spencer Hynes each reached base. However, both were picked off thanks to a sneaky pickoff move by the lefthanded Troy pitcher.

The Colts, 8-1 in the league, made all the plays they had to make and did not give Clarkston anything for free. The Wolves scored their four runs off a two-run triple by Mitchell and a two-run double by senior Eric Jenks. John Drallos, Bret Gove and Mike Simko added runs scored for the Wolves.

Mitchell pitched a solid game for Clarkston, and was given a lot of credit by Price after the game.

First baseman Jeff Oliver catches a pickoff throw from junior Chris Mitchell in the first inning of Friday's game against Troy. The Wolves lost to the Colts for the second time this season.

"Chris struggled with throwing strikes in the first inning, but was terrific after that," Price said. "It has to be frustrating for him. My whole philosophy is to throw strikes and play good defense. We couldn't get both at the same time, and that hurt us."

Mitchell led the way offensively by going 3-for-3 with an RBI and a run scored. Senior Spencer Hynes reached base twice for the Wolves.

Clarkston heads into the home stretch of the regular season this week, with a non-league game against Brandon, ranked fourth in the state in Division II Thursday at CHS. Monday, the team travels to Lake Orion for a single game.

■ In previous action:

Saturday, the Wolves hosted the first-place team in the Western Lakes Athletic Association and came away with draw.

Clarkston split a doubleheader with Farmington Hills Harrison, winning the first game 4-3 in 10 innings, and losing the nightcap 12-9.

Hynes was the difference in the first game, going 3-for-5 and lining a double which drove in the winning run.

On May 12, the Wolves avenged a bitter early season loss to West Bloomfield with a thrilling 6-4 win in nine innings over the Lakers. Francis Hodges continued his fine play, knocking out two hits and getting the win on the mound in relief. Mitchell added three hits and two RBI.

Softball team can't close out the champs

	Kettering	7
	Clarkston	4

BY BRAD MONASTIERE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Even in a loss, Clarkston varsity softball coach Al Land could see how much his young team has improved over the course of the season.

Although the Wolves lost a game it had won Friday, 7-4 to defending state champions Waterford Kettering, he recognized how much the gap between the two teams has closed since their first meeting last month.

"We are a whole lot better than the first time we played them, and I think (Kettering) is as good as they are going to get," he said. "Our goal is to get better as the year goes on, and we are doing that."

In the season's first regular season games, Clarkston played in awe of the Captains and committed uncharacteristic errors in losing a doubleheader by scores of 7-1 and 7-0. But in the latest battle between the two rivals, Clarkston not only didn't get blown out, but had the team beat.

Clarkston got clutch hits from the middle of its lineup in taking a 4-2 lead on Kettering in the bottom of the fifth. Candace Morgan and Mary Warchuck each singled home runners that broke a 2-2 tie. Then, the Captains showed why they are still the favorites to win it all this year.

They responded with four runs in the top of the sixth, getting key hits of their own after taking advantage of missed plays by the Wolves.

"I thought there were three key plays in that inning," Land said. "There was a play at home we didn't make, a bobble at first and a missed throw that cost us momentum. Then they have a player like Andrea Hillsey, who is just outstanding. We couldn't let her beat us, and she did."

Kettering racked up five straight hits in the sixth en route to its four runs that made the difference in the game. This came despite Morgan pitching one of her best games of the season.

"Candace did a nice job of getting her changeup over," Land said. "She threw well for us."

Warchuck drove in Clarkston's first run of the game on a single that brought Melanie Arnold home in the bottom of the first. Senior catcher Corinne McIntyre brought Warchuck home with a single of her own in the bottom of the second that knotted the game 2-2.

The Wolves, now 17-13 overall and 4-6 in the OAA Division I, travel to Brandon Wednesday and Rochester Adams Friday for more key league matchups. Monday, the team hosts Lake Orion.

■ Madonna Tournament

The Wolves put together their best day of softball of the season Saturday in winning the Madonna Tournament in their first year of participating.

Clarkston beat Southgate Anderson, Livonia Ladywood, Redford Union and South Lyon en route to its first tournament title in years. The four wins also represented the team's longest winning streak of the season.

Does the baseball batter hear the chatter?

In my business, knowing the English language is a very important skill. English is a complicated language to learn, but becoming a word master can help those in my field go a long way. English has many sides to it, and can be twisted around in various ways. There's urban English (also known as ebonics), and there's European English, which my Internet friends from Scotland have taught me varies between England, Ireland and Australia.

Then, there's baseball English.

Go to any Clarkston baseball game, and you will find the language gets more butchered than dollar-sirloin day at Meijer's. Phrases like "Hey there's a little rip," and "Whatta ya say keeeeyaaaad?" is commonplace.

I marched to the Wolves' baseball game Friday to try and make sense of this chatter that constantly bounces around the diamond. I found out that there is some form of chatter that applies to every situation: fielding, hitting, pitching.

Most guys on the team pointed to senior shortstop Mike Simko as the team's foremost authority on chatter. Mike is the loudest talker on the team, both in the field and on the bench.

"Simko is the biggest talker, and he has fun with it," says junior Rocky Lund.

"I like being loud. I have a lot to say," Mike said. "It's fun being loud, because it helps keep everyone loose and upbeat. Also, the other guys are a little afraid of making fools of themselves, and I have no problem with that."

While in the field, players toss encouraging words to each other like "Good shot, kid," and "There's a nice scoop 1-6." The chatter stays constant.

The same goes when a player is up to bat. Similar to the softball chants, the baseball players keep the chatter up for the batters because they are up in that batter's box, all alone.

"It gives you confidence," Lund said. "You know the other guys are behind you up there."

Examples of hitting phrases include "Hey nice poke, kid," and "Atta-you, Twinkie," in honor of junior Jon Robinson.

A primary ingredient in the chatter is a combination of a player's name and number. For example, when senior Spencer Hynes gets a hit, fans could hear the following chant: "Hey there's a nice rip two-five," recognizing Hynes' number 25. Lund prefers to chop up Hynes' name, saying "That's all you, Pence!"

Baseball chatter even has an evolutionary process. Senior Eric Jenks said chatter originates in the youngest little league levels, and has roots in the softball chants.

"Our chatter is a parallel to what they use in softball," Jenks said. "When we were younger, it was something just to keep you occupied. Now, there's more to it than that."

First-year Clarkston coach Phil Price sees some real value in the team keeping the chatter up.

"The better teams are the ones that communicate," he said. "You have to talk to people. Talk to the umpires. Find out what pets he has. Stay alert, so you know what pitch is coming. The infielders have to tell the outfielders where they're going with the ball. Once you plant that seed, the actions may come just a little quicker."

To the uneducated ear, much of this baseball chatter may not make much sense. Questions that are shouted across a field with no answers. Numbers split between a fractured name. But that's part of the charm of the game. A team like Clarkston, unilaterally supportive of each other. And who knows? If the team doesn't commit errors and keeps up its timely hitting, we may just get to hear those chatters ring through the polished diamonds in Battle Creek at the state finals.

■ I want to congratulate senior Corinne McIntyre on her decision to attend Mott Community College on a full-ride basketball scholarship.

Last year in this space, I used the word "perseverance" to describe Corinne, and I can't think of a better word for her. A quiet, blonde-haired girl who isn't as vocal as many of her teammates, Corinne is very understated in a classy way.

I think Corinne will have much success at Mott, because she has faced many challenges in her life and has overcome all of them. She suffered a terrible hand injury at the start of the 1998 softball season. I thought she would be out for the year, but returned a month later and ended up getting the district-winning hit for the team last June.

She suffered a nagging ankle injury early in the 1998 basketball season, but came back to play the best basketball of her career at the end, scoring 18 points and getting 20 rebounds in her last two games, against Troy and Oxford.

She has also bounced back from greater adversity. She was in a near-fatal car accident with her brother when she was in sixth grade. But she once again overcame the mental and physical trauma of such an event and has carried a very high grade-point average all through high school.

I have enjoyed my time covering Corinne and her teams, and getting to know her wonderful family; father Jim, mother Carol, and brothers Jason and Travis. I wish you the best of luck in the future.

Rooding triplets run together in track and in life identical shades of blonde hair, blue eyes, and hair length. Just to make things even more interesting, all three run similar events in track, events from the 800 run to the 3,200 run, plus various relays.

"At first, I wasn't always sure which one I was speaking to," girls track coach Gordie Richardson admitted. "But they are definitely not all the same person. It's nice, because you just say one name - Rooding - and all three are getting out there and doing something."

One key element in their relationship is competition. Running track and cross country requires constant training, especially in the off-season. The girls found this was a great way to spend time together, as well as make each other better distance runners.

"Jen pushes us and makes us run harder," April said. "But Christina and I like to run early in the mornings, when Jen would rather run later on."

"The competition between them is big," Zonca said. "They are very good for each other, because they share in each other's accomplishments, and they give each other someone to train with."

So how can someone distinguish one from the other? Jennifer says there is a small scar above an eyebrow on April, and Christina says people tell her she looks like a combination of the two. And while similar in personalities, each has her own unique traits.

"April is the funny one. She makes people laugh a lot," Jennifer says. Christina is the nice one. She is always there for people."

"Jennifer is definitely the feisty one," Christina said. "She has a very competitive nature and wants to win badly. She won't give up."

Zonca said those traits carry over in their interactions with teammates.

"Jennifer is the most vocal of the three," she said. "She will tell you like it is and she's very up front with people. Christina and April are more likely to be the comforters to the other kids, to give them a hug or a pat on the back if they need it."

Like all siblings, the three admit to having their disagreements, and it usually ends up being a contest of I'm-better-than-you.

"If we get into a fight, Jennifer will just come back and say, 'well I'm faster than you,'" Christina said with a smile. "But then I'll come back and say I'm better than her at something else."

When it comes down to race time, the three say they are each other's biggest fans.

"They are my biggest cheerleaders," Jennifer says. "I hear them the most, because they have big mouths!"

One thing Richardson is impressed with is how much the three get along, and how supportive they are of each other and their teammates.

"They get along very well for three sisters," he said. "They all have the same kind of determination and work ethic. There aren't any surprises you will get from them. They will always give you hard work, commitment, and a smile."

After 18 years of sharing space, clothes and friends, the girls face an uncertain future. They said none have made a decision on college, although they aren't opposed to attending the same school.

"Christina and I want to be together, and we are looking at Western (Michigan University) or OU (Oakland University)," April said. "We want to do the same thing, go into business and international marketing. And Western has a good program in that."

Jennifer said she is interested in occupational therapy, and wants to keep up her track and cross country career, possibly at Western.

"It would be nice to have a little change and live with new people, but I want to be with them too," Jennifer said. "It feels safer when I know they are there."

Regardless of where April, Christina and Jennifer end up in college and beyond, they agree that their bond will never be broken.

"Just knowing you will always have someone there to talk to is nice," Christina said. "They have pushed me to be better, and have been there to share things with. It's nice to have shared all the good times together with the two of them."

Clarkston Middle School track teams lose to Lincoln

The Clarkston Middle School boys and girls track teams hit their first bump in the road May 12 in a dual meet with Pontiac Lincoln.

The boys team lost 81-47, and the girls dropped a narrow 66-62 decision.

The highlight for the girls came when the team of Colleen Mead, Jenna Hart, Michelle Elmore and Mo Kuhta set the school record in the 4x800 relay, coming in with a time of 12:18.9. Elmore added a first-place in the 3,200 run and a second in the 1,600.

Mead teamed up with Lindsay Hart, Danielle Canterbury and Maria Vermulen to win the 4x100 relay, and the 4x400 relay team of Kelly Dougherty, Teresa Kuhta, Christyn Reuter and Katie Stapp won the 4x400 relay.

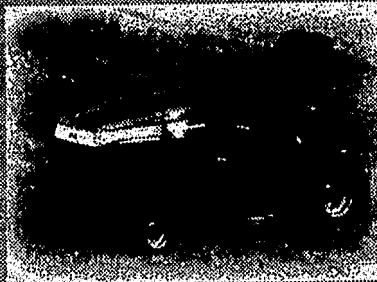

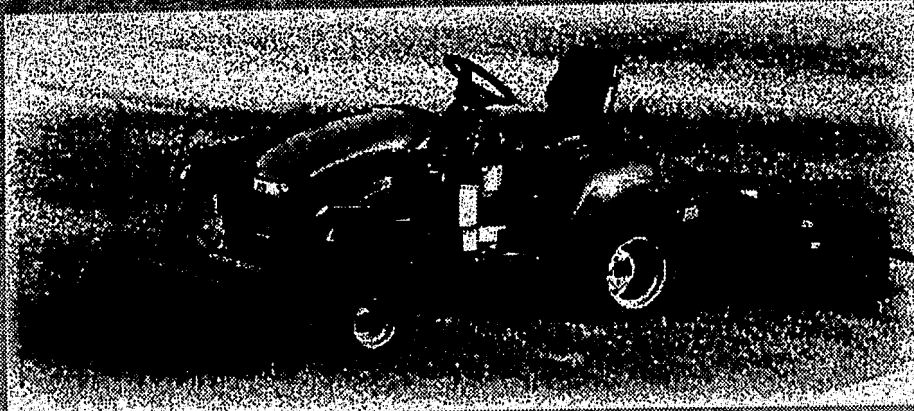

Reuter also took first in the 800 run with a time of 2:43, and the 400 at 1:07. Dougherty took first in the 1,600.

The boys team suffered a tough loss to a very fast Lincoln team. Lincoln took first place in all but two of the individual running events, and won two of the four relay events.

Clarkston used the team of Jeremy Zita, Andrew Breen, Evan Schneider and Danny Spencer to win the 4x800 relay. Eric Gauthier and Nick Reigel teamed up with Zita and Schneider to win the 4x400 relay.

The answer is simple.

Girls runners-up at Clarkston Invitational

BY BRAD MONASTIERE

Clarkston News Staff Writer

Saturday, the Clarkston girls track team hosted the 12th annual Clarkston Girls Track Invitational, and were very close to keeping the trophy right here in town.

The Wolves finished in second place at the meet with 77 points, one behind meet champ Detroit Renaissance, coach Gordie Richardson's alma mater.

Clarkston had several excellent performances at the meet, the team's last before Saturday's regional meet at Port Huron Northern.

"There were a couple of places we could have done better, but overall we ran very well," Richardson said. "We got points from the kids you would expect, the kids that are the backbone of the team."

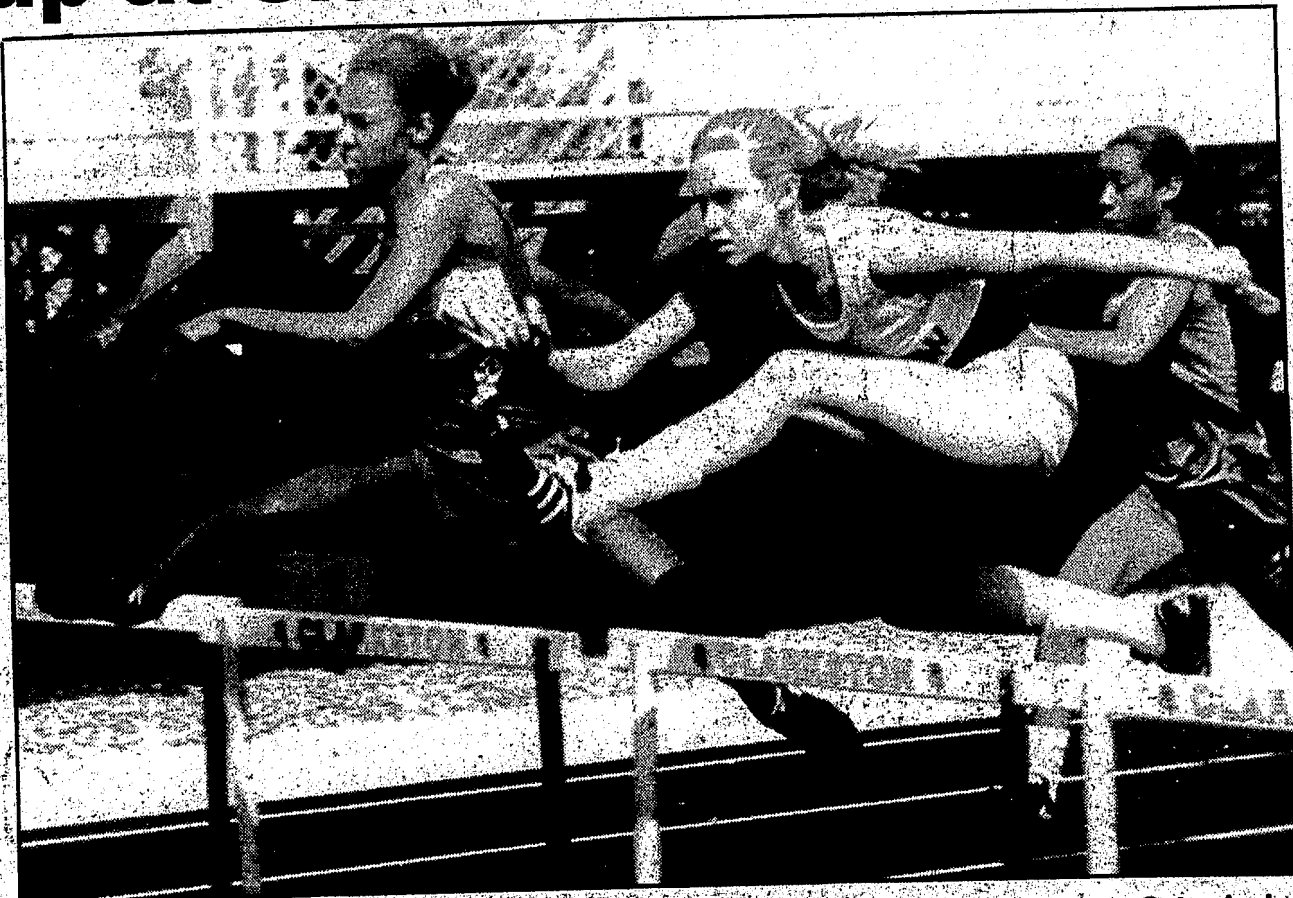

Junior Rachel Uchman had one of her best days of the season, helping the 4x800 relay team to a first-place finish (9:45.4), in addition to taking second in the long jump (15 feet, 5 3/4 inches) and second in the 400 dash (1:02.8).

The 4x800 relay team fell just a second short of the meet record it set last year, when it ran a 9:44.5, when the team finished in a tie for first at the meet with Livonia Stevenson. Uchman ran with Jennifer Rooding, Nicole Fischer and Lissa Lukens.

Sophomore Amanda Chicalas matched her season-best time in the 300 hurdles with a first-place run of 47.3. She also took third in the 100 hurdles, finishing behind teammate Brittani Brewer, who was first with a time of 16.67. Brewer was also fifth in the 300 hurdles.

"It was a good preparation for the regional and league meets," Richardson said.

Rooding and Fischer finished 3-4 in the 800 run, and Carla Delvecchio continued her improvement in the 3,200, with a fourth-place time of 12:48.9.

Sophomore Amanda Chicalas gets off to a strong start in the 100 hurdles at Saturday's Clarkston Invitational. Brittani Brewer won the event with a time of 16.67 seconds.

■ Clarkston 81 Pontiac Northern 47

■ Clarkston 68 Southfield 60

The three-way OAA Division I meet between Clarkston, Southfield and Pontiac Northern may have been the biggest test for the Wolves this season.

Facing two teams blessed with excellent speed, the Wolves used terrific performances from all areas of their team to pull off a double win, 68-60 over the Bluejays and 81-47 over the Huskies.

As expected, the Wolves gave up many points in the sprint events, like the 100, 200 and 4x100 relay. But they more than made up for it with key wins in events like both hurdle runs, the long jump, and all distance events.

The Wolves swept the 3,200 run from both teams, and took two places in the discus, high jump and shot put against Southfield.

Boys power past Pontiac Northern, Southfield

Clarkston 106-68
Sfd.-P. Northern 23-60

BY BRAD MONASTIERE

Clarkston News Staff Writer

When it comes to track, Clarkston has measured itself against Pontiac Northern for years, even the past four when the teams were tantalizingly separated by OAA Divisions. The separation appeared at its widest a couple years ago, when the Wolves did not win the OAA II title in 1996, and the Huskies won the Class A state championship in 1997.

Consider the gap not only closed, but reopened in a new direction.

Clarkston pulled off its biggest regular-season dual-meet win in years May 11 at the CHS track, defeating Northern 68-60 as part of a three-way meet with Southfield. The Wolves whipped the Bluejays 106-23.

"Just a great team victory," said a proud coach Walt Wyniemko. "Anytime you beat a team like Pontiac Northern, such a strong program, you know not many teams get that kind of opportunity. It was fun, and we are very happy with it."

Wyniemko and his team knew it couldn't match the Huskies in the sprint events, but Clarkston got top-notch performances from distance, middle distance and field events that helped swing the win its way.

Senior Dave Chavers took first place in the shot put with an impressive throw of 47 feet, 7 inches. Sophomore Adam Gebus scored more precious points with a first-place high jump of 5-10. Senior Clint Powell began a memorable day with a first-place discus throw of 137 feet.

Clarkston's depth was also a factor, as it swept the shot put, discus and high jump. Contributing to those sweeps were Bubba Clement and Ron Tolbert in the shot, Rafael Fauza and Chavers in the high jump, and Tolbert and Marc Wisniewski in the discus.

Powell then delivered the team's key win of the day. He scorched the new track in the 400 dash with a school-record time of 50.25 seconds.

"The field events and the 400 were key events for us," Wyniemko said. "We knew the field events were their weakness, and we went after it." Junior David Sage racked up plenty of points for Clarkston, taking first in the 3,200 run (9:51.7), the 1,600 run (4:32), and teamed up with Matt Haver, Brett Quantz and Kevin Breen to win the 4x800 relay (8:37).

The win moves Clarkston into a three-way tie for first with Northern and Rochester Adams atop the OAA Division I at 5-1. This means the Wolves can win the OAA I title outright with a victory at the league meet at Adams May 25.

"This gives us the opportunity to win the championship on our own merits," Wyniemko said. "We don't have to wait for someone else to help us win it, we can control our own destiny."
