Officials hope post office won't deliver huge facility to Independence

BY EILEEN MCCARVILLE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

If the U.S. Postal Service chooses Independence Township for its new mail center, the building would be nearly one-and-a-half times as large as the former facility proposed for Ryder trucks.

On July 1, the federal agency posted a solicitation ad for for a Northeast Metro (Michigan) Processing & Distribution Center that will serve some suburbs in Oakland and Macomb counties and the Flint area. The intent is to build a 650,000-700,000 structure on 52 acres or more.

The post office is eyeing the following areas: one mile on either side of I-75, from 14 Mile Road to Sashabaw Road; one mile on either side of M-59 from Dequindre Road west to I-75; and one mile on either side of M-24 from I-75 to Silverbell Road. All communities in those areas have been contacted, including Independence.

The post office needs a site that provides major access to I-75, said Marilyn K. Nemeth, Real Estate Specialist for the U.S. Postal Service. She made it clear Wednesday that the "lengthy" search is only in the beginning stages.

"We're not asking any township to look for a site. We're asking if they know of a site in this preferred area," she said. The process entails visitation with a final recommendation. The date for submitting proposals has been extended beyond July 31 deadline, Nemeth said.

Nemeth said post office officials met with Township Supervisor Dale Stuart in May. At that time, no proposals were submitted, but offers are still trickling in from other communities, she said.

Township Clerk Joan McCrary said she saw the ad posted in a local newspaper. "If they come in, we have no control over them. It's just like the schools," she said, noting that the federal agency would not be required to submit a site plan.

When the old Clarkston post office on Main Street was remodeled into a carrier annex, "they didn't have to come to us for anything," McCrary said.

Township Planner Dick Carlisle confirmed the township would have no say over any development or construction, including a rezoning, if the post office builds the facility. "They (the U. S. Post Office) supercede

Coach's Corner evolving into Village Apparel and Gifts Clarkston to get its clothing store

BY MARALEE COOK
Clarkston News Editor

A longtime downtown Clarkston business is making changes that should make area residents clamoring for a local clothing store happy.

Coach's Corner, located at 12 South Main Street, for 26 years, is changing its name to Village Apparel and Gifts, and will offer clothing and gifts for the whole family.

Diane Brozovich, store manager and buyer, said the store will continue to sell the discount-priced Woolrich line, and will add casual clothing for men, women, teens and children also at discount prices.

Brozovich said the store will carry unique and unusual gifts priced under $50 as well, such as wood-carved lamps, pewter picture frames, candles, Christmas decorations, unusual-shaped crayons, crayon balls and uniquely shaped letters.

"Customers will continue to be able to order Clarkston High School varsity jackets, and we'll keep our Clarkston, University of Michigan and Michigan State University room downstairs," said Brozovich. "But the hard sporting goods items will be shipped to Dave's (owner Dave McNeven) Waterford store (Coach's Corner located at 5217 Dixie Highway).

Brozovich, who's worked at the store for 25 years, said sporting goods sales have declined over the years. She has been pushing for the change for a long time and is very excited.

Located between The Clarkston Cafe and Village Bake Shop, the store will be remodeled and should be completed and fully stocked by October. The exte-

Let 'Freedom' ring

Ryan Thomas, who will be a senior at Clarkston High School, has graduated from the Michigan Freedom Academy with a greater sense of patriotism. He spent a week at Phelps Collins Air National Guard Base near Alpena to gain a greater awareness of freedom with 100 other high schoolers from around the state. The annual event took place in early July.

The academy's four primary objectives were: to promote a sense of patriotism, to further the desire to lead, to enhance one's appreciation for freedom, and to provide a better understanding of a citizen's civic responsibility. Leaders in government and other areas spoke to the students throughout the week.

'They're very open, honest people'

Student shares memories of year spent in Mexico

BY RENEE WIGHTMAN
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Christmas without snow? It was about the only disappointment Christina Lichty had while spending a year in Mexico through the Rotary Youth Exchange program.

"Christmas was hard, but the last two months went by so quick. It was hard leaving (for Mexico), but it was harder to come home," she said. "You're not sure if you're going to see these people again."

Lichty, a 1998 graduate of Clarkston High School, arrived back in her hometown in June, after staying with two host families in Victoria City (or Ciudad Victoria), the capital of the Mexican state Tamaulipas. "It was beautiful," she said.

But orientation meetings held in the United States and geared toward lessening culture shock and homesickness were not enough to prepare her for the differences she met.

"I got homesick in the first couple months. I got face first, slammed into it. But once I developed friends, I don't think I saw my host family much," she joked.

During her visit, Lichty attended one semester at the equivalent of high school and a second semester at the University of Tamaulipas.

"I was truly amazed by how I was welcomed at school. I was the center of attention," she said. "They're very open, honest people."

She said being immersed in a Spanish-speaking country and having four years of Spanish at CHS prepared her well for any translation difficulties. "Within a month, I was almost fluent."

Lichty said while attending school, she found noticeable differences in the education system. For example, at the college level, students remained in one classroom, while the teachers changed rooms. Also, students were allowed a second chance on final exams.

"It takes some of the pressure off," she said.

In addition, all students wore uniforms, which Lichty said is an excellent idea.

"The uniform concept is the best concept, because no one is any different than anybody else," she said.

The intense heat took time to adapt to, Lichty said. Any thoughts of riding a bike or taking a walk in the afternoon sun were unthinkable, she said.

"You could feel the sun burning your skin — you didn't walk anywhere," she said. Temperatures reached lows of around 75 degrees in December, and the average temperature was about 96 degrees.

Lichty said in terms of recreation, day-to-day life in Mexico is much similar to that of the U.S.

"After school, we would go out to eat, go to soccer games, to the movies, shopping. . . . The normal stuff," Lichty said. Most films were in English, with Spanish subtitles.

Other familiarities included Burger King and Best Western — "and there were some pretty good Spanish soap operas," she said.

However, she said the work day was vastly different from that of the U.S., with the usual arrival time at a job being between 9 and 10 a.m. Lunch takes place around 2 or 3 p.m., followed by an hour-long siesta, and then back to work until about 9 p.m. Also, in Mexico, workers cannot exceed 40 hours per week.

Another custom Lichty learned was that while driving, a red traffic light had a different meaning.

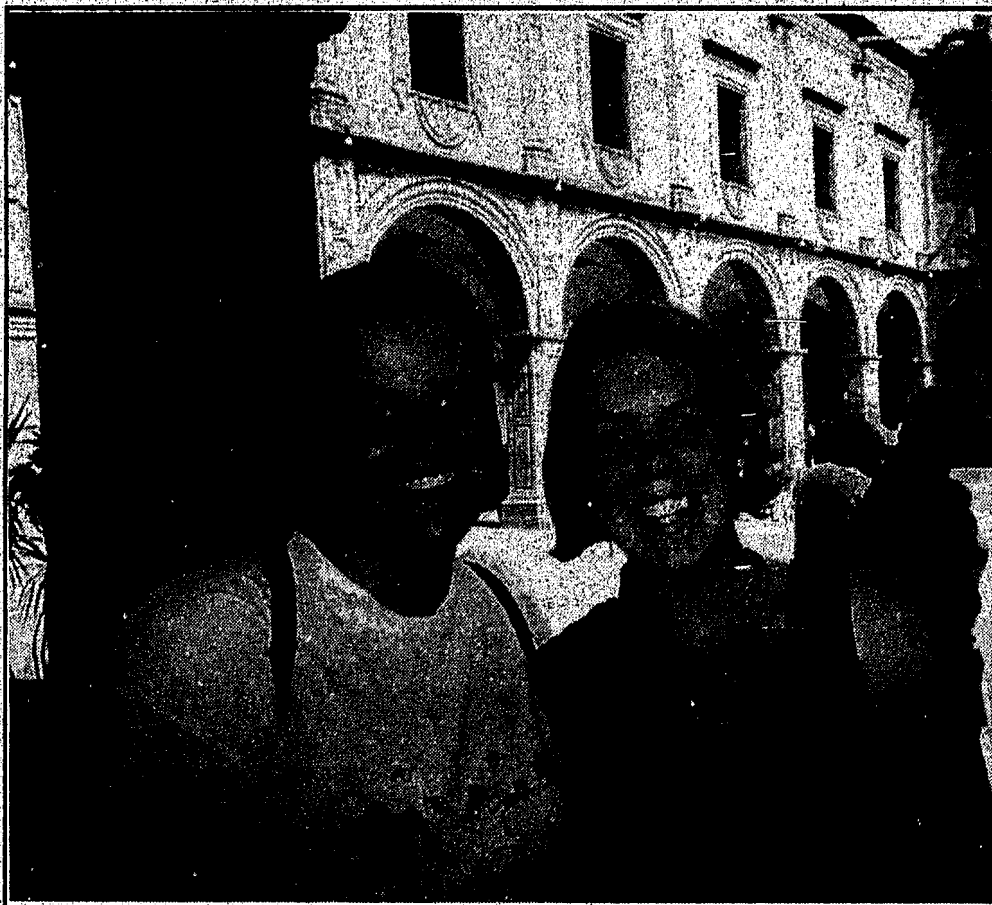

"At a red light, they would stop, look both ways, and if no one's coming, go through it. But they're not supposed to do it," she said.

With a lowered drinking age, another rule commonly broken was allowing alcohol to be served to minors, even with a drinking age of 18. "They have a don't ask, don't tell policy," she said.

Lichty said while staying in Mexico opened her eyes to a different lifestyle, others learned from her as well.

"They're very proud to be Mexican. In some ways, I found it hard being American. But then some people approached me and said, 'I've had this awful view of Americans, and now I've changed my viewpoint.'"

Through the Rotary program, Lichty said she and other exchange students also toured Mayan ruins and visited Cancun and other sites throughout the country.

As a reminder of her stay, Lichty has a thick scrapbook of photos and said she keeps in touch with her newfound friends through e-mail. Her best friend, Gaby, will visit Lichty in Clarkston in December.

"She's never seen snow. I'm going to take her skiing," Lichty said.

She will revisit the town when she attends Gaby's graduation ceremony in June.

Lichty will attend James Madison College at Michigan State University in the fall, where she plans on pursuing a career in foreign relations.

"I'd like to be an ambassador teaching English someplace — maybe an international lawyer or involved in cultural relations," she said.

Host families for Rotary Youth Exchange are currently needed in the Clarkston area; call Jeff Lichty at (248) 625-4244 for more information.

A very 'self-determined' effort

Jeff Jacks, 12, of Davidsburg, constructed this 1/8-scale working model of his dream skateboarding park as an exhibit in the self-determined category at the 1999 Oakland County 4-H Fair Aug. 2-8. He said the project took about two months to complete and consists of spray-painted wood, dowel rods and posterboard, fastened by a hot glue gun.

"When I first built it, I noticed things I wanted to change, so I rebuilt it to how I liked it," he said.

Jeff said he hopes such a skate park will soon be offered in the area at no cost for kids. Several area parks currently charge between five and eight dollars for entry, he said.

A four-year member of 4-H, Jeff said he wants to someday own his own business. "I know I want to have my own business — maybe open a trend shop. (And) architects get lots of money."

Jeff's exhibit placed third at the fair.

Roberts' superintendent contract approved for next five years

BY RENEE WIGHTMAN
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Dr. Al Roberts, board superintendent, will continue to serve the Clarkston school district for another five years, following 7-0 approval of his new contract by the Clarkston Schools Board August 16.

Karen Foyteck, board president, pointed out at Monday night's board meeting Roberts' contract will cover the July 1, 1999 to July 1, 2004 period, with a yearly salary of $125,000.

Roberts said a contract of two to three years is the norm for superintendents, and he is pleased with the unusual length of his contract.

"That's a message that provides for some stability in the school district. I was taken by the board support," he said. "When you have a school board behind you in a position of leadership, a lot of things can happen for you. I'm very fortunate."

As an addition to his contract, Roberts also will receive a $14,000 tax-deferred annuity, covering his four prior years of service to the board, which includes the 1999-2000 school year, Foyteck said.

Also new to Roberts' contract, it is stated in a clause that based on superior performance, Roberts may be awarded performance pay, but the amount(s) cannot be adjusted to his permanent base salary.

"I'm appreciative of the board's review. I'm equally proud of the Clarkston team," Roberts said. "We have some challenging times ahead of us in Clarkston."

In other business:

■ Geraldine Moore was appointed by a 7-0 vote from the board to take over the position of director of curriculum, research, planning and evaluation.

The position was left vacant after the retirement of Mike LaBay earlier this year.

The search for a replacement for LaBay ensued after former Clarkston High School Principal Brent Cooley declined the position.

Her appointment will become effective within the next two weeks, Roberts said. Moore hails from the Chippewa Valley School District in Sterling Heights, where she is currently the director of curriculum.

"We were very fortunate to have a very good selection of candidates," Roberts said. "We're just thrilled to get this position filled by someone of the highest caliber."

■ A $214,436 bid to renovate the Clarkston Community Schools transportation facility was approved 7-0 by the board, following brief discussion.

Due to the increased number of bus drivers needed in the district, renovations made by Cedroni Associates will include the addition of lockers and upgrading of restroom facilities, staff lounge and office spaces.

"I think the renovation is essential," said Craig Kahler, director of business services.

Roberts agreed.

"It's been so put off, it's becoming a real issue," he said. Funds for the renovation will be taken from the general fund Durant proceeds.

Board Trustee Janet Thomas also moved that an extra $8,375 be added if necessary following renovation to cover any cost for painting those areas.

Talk begins on new uniforms for CHS ensembles

The beginnings of discussion on improving the performing arts and other extracurricular areas in the Clarkston school district took place at the August 16 meeting of the school board.

Pat Brumback, assistant superintendent of 9-12 operations and student support services, presented to the board an estimate on the cost of 250 new uniforms for Clarkston High School students in the concert ensembles.

The $23,500 estimate, to be taken from the general fund, is pending bids which will be solicited in coming months, Brumback said. Outfits for 100 men and 150 women in the Symphonic Band, Symphonic Wind Ensemble, Madrigal Singers and Varsity Choir are needed for the 1999-2000 school year, she said.

Remaining concert ensembles can be outfitted with existing inventory, Brumback said.

Dr. Al Roberts, board superintendent, suggested band booster members could aid in raising funds for the uniforms, or a special fund raiser could take place.

Karen Foyteck, board president, mentioned problems in sizes might take place and therefore should be considered when making the purchase. She said perhaps students could purchase a part of their uniform, to ensure better fit.

Passing lane a problem for Planet Kids day care

BY EILEEN McCARVILLE

Clarkston News Staff Writer

Despite some roadblocks, a new day care center will open on schedule.

Independence Township Planning Commissioners wrestled with problems concerning a passing lane that needs to be built for Planet Kids, at the corner of Clarkston and Pine Knob Roads. Two access drives are planned, one from each road.

The new day care center, set to open August 30 with an enrollment of approximately 100 preschool children, is just down the street from Bailey Lake Elementary School.

The passing lane is needed for eastbound traffic on Clarkston Road, so drivers can get around parents turning left into the Clarkston access drive.

Project engineer Jim Scharl said the original design was scrapped because of several problems. One is that some trees on the south side of the road need to be removed, and the property owner won't comply.

That forced Scharl to go back to the drawing board and draw up two alternatives, which extend improvements 800 feet east of Pine Knob Road. Those plans compound drainage problems, and would also be "unbelievable costly," he said.

Because Clarkston Road is a county road, Road Commission for Oakland County won't issue a permit for the passing lane until one of those plans is accepted. Scharl noted either one would mean "major improvements" at the Clarkston-Pine Knob intersection, and didn't think the burden should be placed on one developer.

Scharl didn't expect the roadblocks. "We never, in our wildest dreams, anticipated the problem of constructing this passing lane," he said, noting the final site plan was approved months ago.

On Thursday, commissioners turned down a request that would have nixed plans for the Clarkston access and kept just the Pine Knob drive. Scharl said that's because commissioners wanted both access drives as part of the site plan.

Until the passing lane is constructed, a no-left-turn sign will be posted by the RCOC. That means parents will have to use the Pine Knob access to drop off and pick up their kids if they're traveling east down Clarkston Road, Scharl said.

However, parents will be able to turn right at any time. They will also be able to turn left and right when leaving Planet Kids. "They just can't turn left to enter," Scharl said.

Though township engineers will meet with RCOC in an attempt resolve the matter, Scharl said a solution may not be found. He said there's a chance the passing lane may never be built. In that case, the no left turn would be permanent.

Regina Thronson, who owns and operates Planet Kids with her husband Chris, said the problem affects approximately nine clients who would be traveling east down Clarkston Road to drop off their children.

Autumn Shores sub to improve dredged wetlands

BY BRAD MONASTIERE

Clarkston News Staff Writer

Thursday night, the Springfield Township Board of Trustees were pleased with efforts to take care of wetlands violations in an area subdivision.

Last month, the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality presented a cease and desist order to some property owners at Autumn Shores because some wetlands had been dredged and filled with sand.

At the township's regular meeting, supervisor Collin Walls said the property owners that were in violation have begun fixing those violations.

"Within the last three weeks, there has been significant activity by the developer and owners of lots four through seven," he said. "The restoration of grades has begun, and everything is going as we'd hoped."

The board directed attorney Greg Need to examine changes to the sub's master deed and bylaws as a result of the violations. In light of the changes the board deemed necessary, further action on the issue was tabled until the Nov. 11 regular board meeting. The board voted 6-1 to table any further action, with Trustee Elaine Field-Smith voting no.

"We are moving in the right direction," said Clerk Nancy Strole. "The property owners are taking the responsibility of taking care of the damage. We should have plantings there in October, and everything should be completed by the November board meeting."

Autumn Shores is located near Springfield Plains Elementary School on Bridge Lake Road. Property owners had been allowed to dredge up to 40 feet of lakefront property, according to their agreement with the developer. But Walls found last month 300 feet of Wah-Me-Gah Lake's south shoreline was dredged.

Letters To The Editor

Why improve a building to be vacated?

Dear Editor,

I wonder why the Independence Township Board of Trustees approved the remodeling of the township hall, moving the supervisor's office to the Annex building and a $5,600 engineering assessment of asbestos removal in June 1999.

Then, at the Independence Township Board meeting in August 1999, the Board of Trustees approved (Independence Township Department of) Public Works Director George Anderson's pressure for immediate action for a "user and needs" study for a new town hall.

If the Independence Township Hall is going to be vacated, why is money being spent for improving the building?

Respectfully yours,
Peggy Dryer, Clarkston

Good excavation practices necessary for safety

Dear Editor,

A side effect of Michigan's current strong economy and increased construction activity has been increased damages to underground natural gas facilities which have led to several high-profile incidents. These damages can be reduced if good excavation practices are followed by all involved parties.

Consumers Energy has always placed safety - for customers, employees and the general public - as its top priority. We continue to emphasize safety in every aspect of the work performed by our employees and those who are under contract to perform work for our company.

Between 80-85 percent of all damages to our natural gas facilities over the past several years were caused by either the failure to call MISS DIG three working days in advance of excavation so that the approximate location of utilities could be located and marked, or by failing to hand-dig and expose underground facilities before excavating. Both the advance phone call and hand-digging and exposing of underground facilities are required by Public Act 53, commonly called the MISS DIG Act. Anyone undertaking an excavation project - from home projects such as decks and landscaping, to large road or other construction jobs - is required by law to both call MISS DIG and hand-dig and expose

Grandchildren and fixing bad TV

I need grandchildren, fast.

Last weekend I took my 17-year-old son and 18 year-old daughter shopping for back-to-school clothes and supplies for a young boy and girl we "adopted" through Lighthouse Clarkston.

So there I was at an area discount store, tears welling up in my eyes as I watched my (almost) grown children pick out clothes, back packs and school supplies for our adoptees.

The experience brought back fond memories of getting ready to go back to school, easily the most important event of the year. The clothes, school supplies and accessories had to be just so.

In Eileen McCarville's story this week on going back to school, assistant superintendent Dave Reschke refers to school as a wholistic experience, and he's right. The academic portion, certainly in this day and age, is only part of the school experience.

My kids made good selections for the children, and made their choices much more quickly than I would have. They chose the same kinds of clothes they liked as children. I was 'oohing and aahing' over everything.

I bought shoes for the children at Payless, which was recommended by Lighthouse. I had intended to purchase gift certificates, but the store was sold out because of Lighthouse's donation program -- a good sign.

Program coordinator Mary Ann Emick said she will let us know how many recipients and donors participated in the program later in the week.

She added Lighthouse will soon be preparing for the Thanksgiving and Christmas drives. If you'd like to participate, call her at 673-4949.

The experience was a lot of fun, and I'm looking forward to doing it again, especially until I get some grandchildren to fuss over.

Been wondering how bad TV is going to get before it gets better? There may be hope.

Independence Township Trustee Neil Wallace sent me a recent Wall Street Journal article about a group of corporations who are hoping to change things for the better.

Fed up with the endless parade of shows aiming sex, substance abuse and other misbehaviors at prime time viewers, the companies are paying for "family-friendly" pilot scripts. The plan is for the pilots to be ready by fall 2000 on the WB network.

A TV critic from one of the Detroit daily papers criticized it, saying one future plot line has a teen showing up at the family's breakfast table with his girlfriend -- after the two had spent the night together in his bedroom.

With all of the tragedies going on in our society it is mind-boggling that Hollywood refuses to change gears and move away from that stuff.

The companies involved in the plan to promote family entertainment are listed as Procter & Gamble, GM, IBM, Johnson & Johnson, AT&T, Pfizer and Wendy's International.

Neil suggests this is "an approach that should be encouraged from the 'grass roots' on up." He's right. Taking a few minutes to call or write to these companies and show support will hopefully pay off for all of us in the future.

Comedy, politics and book lists

Editor's note: CHS senior Rob Brose joins The Clarkston News this week as a columnist. He'll alternate weeks with Kevin Kosbab.

A good comedian will go onto a stage, look into the crowd, and based upon the crowd's mood and appearance, decide what punch he wants in his lines.

Writing, for an audience that is, is a bit harder than that. I can't look into your eyes and judge if you like what I write or not, and I can't write with the same improvisation that comedians use in their acts.

I'd like you, good reader, to keep that in mind, because I haven't picked up a pen — well, keyboard — in the name of writing this whole summer (the lack of year-round schooling has lulled me into a state of extreme laziness). It's completely possible that this column will be worse than the 48-hour media fiasco centered around a well-known magazine editor's death. But hey, look at it this way, at least you won't have to sit through any live footage of me writing in order to get to the next column.

It's kind of funny, really. I've been wanting to write for a publication for a long time, and I had all these ideas for what I wanted to do with it. But now that I have a soapbox to stand on, I have no idea what I want to start off with.

Since this column is called "CHS Life," meaning things centered around life in prison — er, high school — and not "Ramblings From Some Kid Whom You've Probably Never Met," I'll write about the only school-related thing I'm thinking about (or even want to think about) right now: the senior intensive reading project.

Perusing the list, I noticed a lot of classics that I've thought about reading, but decided to read something else because the back cover sounded too boring. Blah blah Dickens, blah blah Shakespeare, blah blah blah. Aha! My saving grace! It just so happens that my favorite book, 1984, by George Orwell, is on the list!

Now this means two things — one (the lazier of the two) that, since I've probably read it four times, all

I have to do is a small, menial project, assigned by the English staff to the end that, we, the students, might have some English fresh in our minds, and consequently they won't have to spend as much time going over what we learned last year (cunning, no)?

The second meaning, my favorite one, is that I will get to debate and discuss the broader meanings of this book with my fellow classmates. It's cool because this book is great for discussions. You can apply its loaded politics to a number of different governmental systems and people's opinions.

Although, with my luck as bad as it is, I can already foresee the beginning of my English class. Everyone will pass up Orwell's powerful vision of the future for the less opinionated and aggressive works of Dickens and Shakespeare, as well as all the other overrated authors on the list. That happened last year when my friend Derek and I were the only ones to read The Autobiography of Malcolm X, plus another friend of mine (cool as he is) who didn't even read the book and the only reason he picked it was because he had seen Spike Lee's Joint (Lee, as you know, doesn't call them movies).

So I'm planning on Derek and I being stuck again. We do get to present something on the book to the class, so I guess that's all right. I do wish we'd get a better list. The fact that Ayn Rand, Noam Chomsky, and James Joyce didn't make the list shouldn't go ignored. But then again, this is my last year here, so I will be plagued by confining lists no more!

Anyway, I hope something more interesting will be happening next time we meet, because I know that, to all of you who don't have the misfortune of still being in school, booklists are probably more boring than Much Ado About Nothing, or Barry Sanders retiring. But forgive me; I'm no Jerry Seinfeld.

Should a grandpa see an ultrasound?

We watched daughter Susan grow a bigger belly for seven months. It was easy to see — Susan could hide behind a corn stalk.

Early on the ultrasound readers told Susan and Tim twins could be expected. That didn't excite them because they were told the same thing when now-3-year-old Savannah was in the same life-form.

But now, seven months into the bearing process, twins are confirmed and Grandma has bought them their first jammies.

Ultrasounds are a monthly thing now, and since Grandma went to view the last one I think Susan felt obligated to ask Grandpa if he wanted to see the current development; I did.

Beaumont Hospital provided the venue. "Sit there and watch the television up there," Susan instructed.

The ultrasounder squirted some jelly on our daughter's belly and away we went. The user's computer mouse roamed quickly around the enlargement. The tv screen looked like a whole bunch of intestines in a pan.

Then the mouse stopped. A circle was made from dots and babies' heads were measured. Then more movement and, "This is the femur," and it was measured.

"He's down here. She's up here. They're butt to butt. See the fingers?" Finally, I saw something I recognized, fingers. I thought I recognized other things, like ears, face and nose, but I didn't.

What I did see when the mouse was stopped was heart beats. They were really impressive, both the boy's and girl's. You could imagine hearing ... thump, thump, thump. Susan told me they even see the four ventricles, but I didn't.

A second reader came in to verify measurements. "Lots of kicking going on," she said. Susan said, "Yeah, my ribcage hurts."

Results: Boy weighs four pounds and one ounce, girl three pounds and one ounce. The girl's got to gain some weight, but it's not an immediate concern. Susan is now on a milkshake diet.

This being my first and last trip to an ultrasound reading I used the opportunity to ask, "How can you tell their sexes?"

As I said, only a few things in there were obvious to me and nothing that small.

The reader said, "Early on, at about 16 weeks, the genitalia are quite obvious. They become less clear when there are more legs and arms in the way, doubled up."

Susan pointed out the boy's face on the tv. I asked if it looked like me. She said it did.

What did you think of The Blair Witch Project?

"I think it was fun. It was truly scary, more like the old-style scary movie."

-- Mike Krystiniak, CHS assistant principal

"I liked it. It was creepy, but not really scary. I liked it better than the (slasher movies.) I don't like the gory stuff."

-- Heather Combs

"I thought it was OK. It's cool that it was different. I bet it starts a new trend."

-- Krista Roschek

"I didn't think the rocks and the sticks were that scary. It was different and the ending was scary. I was freaked out about everything after the movie."

-- Jennifer Yeager

"I was really scared. I'm too afraid to go see it again. I didn't like the ending, and I didn't like the jumpy camera."

Jim's Jottings

Well, we didn't get into our new home by Thanksgiving. We didn't get into it before the first snowfall, either. I had higher hopes on the latter. We got a screened-in porch on this 2-room with attic, converted foaling barn we live in.

When the Brace Beemers lived in it one winter they put plastic over the screen. After I bought it the plastic developed tears and I took it down. We were only there some summer days anyway.

But during the early morning of November 19th it snowed. Before that it rained and the wind blew. The screens on the porch separated the raindrops and the wind made the spray extend beyond the front door.

What I'm getting at, folks, is that when I came down that pull-down, outside stairs that cold spray went up my nightshirt before my feet could hit the wet cement... and it's 2 of those cold wet steps to the front door.

So, Wednesday night, there I was out in the bitter, cold, blowing snow putting up that plastic. Of course, I ran out of plastic. Naturally. But I did have 4 sheets of plywood to put up.

Hazel outsmarted me again. She quit that attic sleeping business. No cold, wet spray for her. I think I'll burn her mattress and make her sleep on the floor.

For a 3-point kick a band should play only half a fight song.

Finally I can use Bancroft in a news story. There's a Bow and Arrow Rabbit Hunt sponsored by the Owosso YMCA at their Camp Shiawassee. To get there you get off M-78 at the Bancroft exit. Oh, yea. The hunt is December 7. 28 years after Pearl Harbor we're back to bows and arrows.

All my life I've been buying something neutral in clothes so they would "go with anything." Looking over my wardrobe I came to the conclusion that clothes that go with everything go with nothing. I've even gotten away from wearing loud shorts. My work pants will go well with solids or plaids. My socks are all black to go with my shoes which go with my charcoal pants that go with my blended sport coat.

I'm going to change all that some

To Lori Hetherington and Kimberly Menzies it looks like everything's coming up snowy.

Plane crash claims 3 lives

Two area men were killed when the light plane, a Sessna 182, in which they were flying, crashed while attempting to land at the Tri-City Airport on Monday shortly after 6 p.m.

Dead were Merritt Cooley, 58, of 1245 Rattalee Lake Rd., Davisburg; Jack Davis, 33, of 3422 Quick, Holly and Vernon Theyson of Duluth, Minnesota.

The three men were enroute from Sault Ste. Marie to Pontiac when, according to reports, they ran into bad weather and requested landing day. Right after I change the world.

Hey, Dads! Do you ever ask your kids, "Who is the greatest guy in the world?" I did and 12-year-old Luan answered, "Mom's first husband!" She'll never reach 13.

For years I've fought the urge to walk to the back of a store when I go in the front door. I keep telling myself what I want might be in the front, but I usually end up walking to the back.

Whatever happened to panty raids? Maybe if maxi coats stay with us long enough, boys will forget the present exposures and start wondering again.

instructions at the Tri-City Airport which serves the Bay City, Saginaw and Midland area.

Landing across the runway, the plane nosed into the ground.

Cooley was the owner and operator of Cooley Soft Water in Pontiac. He is survived by his wife and 5 children.

The plane was reported to belong to Theyson and circumstances indicated that he was at the controls at the time of the crash.

Thieves steal church bell

The bell rope dangled uselessly from the bell tower in the little Mt. Bethel United Methodist Church in Groveland Township. Thieves, apparently using ladders, had stolen the beautiful, large bell that had called the congregation to worship for the past 20 years.

Sometime during the week preceding November 9, the bell had been lowered to the ground and taken away.

The bell was a memorial gift of Lee Wright.

Reverend Don Hall and members of the congregation are anxious to have anyone who might have any information leading to the apprehension of the thieves or recovery of the bell to call 625-3408. The church is located at the corner of Joosman and Bald Eagle Lake Road.

Notes from the Township

The township board covered their varied agenda in rather short order Tuesday night. Taking items in order of their appearance:

A petition for a constable's job from Kenneth E. Wilson was read by clerk Howard Altman. It stated he, Wilson, would like to be considered for constable should a vacancy come about. There are no vacancies now. Each township is allowed 4 and they are elected. The board can make an appointment to fill a vacancy.

A public hearing will come at the second board meeting in December, that's the 16th, on putting in more lights in the township.

Final approval was given Apple Lane Estates on the southwest corner of Oakhill and Hadley roads. There are 9 lots in the sub of 3 acres in size or more. It is zoned Suburban Farms.

The new library will probably be getting a new flag pole from the American Legion Post here and a flag from the Jaycees. John Lynch told the board of the Legion's offer and, after getting board approval, said he would work with the Jaycees on the project.

underground utilities before work begins.

The staking and locating accuracy of Consumers Energy underground gas facilities continues to be very high; however we are working to gain further success by performing quality assurance checks in the field, and providing for additional training. Consumers Energy also continues to enhance awareness of the MISS DIG Act and our damage prevention efforts by working with excavating contractors, contractor associations, the Michigan Public Service Commission and municipal officials.

We have employees whose primary responsibilities are to work with excavators and contractor associations. They meet with excavators, municipal and other officials at pre-construction meetings to ensure that all parties are educated about our gas and/or electric utilities, and can answer questions about the locating and marking of our utilities during construction. Providing damage prevention information and safety training to these and other groups are other key responsibilities.

To prevent excavation damage, we need the cooperation of everyone from our employees, contractors, customers, excavators and the general public to municipalities and government agencies. The following are some ways to address the larger issue of excavation safety:

- Hold pre-construction meetings with all parties regarding major excavation projects.

- Phone MISS DIG three working days before an excavation project begins.

- Perform timely staking and locating of underground facilities.

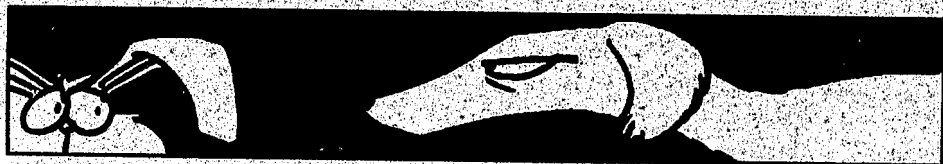

- Hand-expose underground utilities in advance of using power equipment.

- Utilize best damage prevention practices by all involved parties.

It is also important to call Consumers Energy day or night at 1-800-477-5050 if you suspect a natural gas emergency. We will respond quickly at no charge to investigate.

The majority of excavation contractors follow proper construction practices, and we appreciate their efforts to work safely. I believe that the best way to protect public safety is by working together.

Sincerely,
Paul Preketes

Ready, set, go . . . back to school!

Students and parents talk about how they prepare to go back to school

BY EILEEN MCCARVILLE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Getting children ready for the first day of school can be a big ordeal. But, by the middle of August, many kids and parents are ready for that first bell to ring.

Youngsters cite seeing their friends and showing off new school clothes as two reasons for returning to the classrooms. Kids and parents say they're eager for new academic challenges too.

If you want some pointers on how to prepare your children for the new school year, ask Tom and Leone Trese of Clarkston. They've raised 17 children. The youngest, Shereen, is a Michigan State University junior majoring in natural resource development. Three "kids" have Ph.D.s and eight have master's degrees.

"We didn't have to do anything particular to get them ready. The older kids liked it, so the younger kids did too," quipped Tom, a former school social worker.

He compares success in school to a job. "If you got smiles, good comments from your employer, you'll find it easier to go to your next job."

Compare that to a teacher and entering the next grade level. "If you don't keep up, it's harder," Tom said. "So, I would say that preparing for a child this year started with last year."

It's important to focus on last year's accomplishments, not last year's disappointments, said Tom. "Review their successes to build their confidence to go into the new year ... I remember that good grade you got or that project you did ..."

And talk, talk, talk "about what's going on before they start to push away from you."

The couple say good parenting takes commitment. They decided they wanted a big family and all the work that goes with it. "We appreciated and enjoyed each new addition."

After work, Tom came home to spend time with the children, and Leone started reading to them at an early age. They restricted TV viewing and encouraged their children to draw, instead of following the uncreative parameters of coloring books.

"We realized TV is a child watching some other child's imagination being acted out," quipped Tom. "We kept alive the full high functioning level of each child. We valued education."

They marveled in seeing each child's individual talents emerge — much like the colorful flowers brightening their backyard gardens. "We enjoyed helping them to blossom," said Leone with a smile.

This week, other Clarkston parents shared the bright and serious side of what it takes to get their kids ready for school.

Penny and Kurt Shanks of Clarkston have two boys at Clarkston High School. Penny says her kids are prepared — but she isn't. "My baby's going to high school!" she wailed. "I can't believe how fast the time goes by." Son Jim, 14, will be a freshman, and Jon, 16, is a junior.

Jim's already familiar with the building with his big brother at CHS, Penny said. She's been involved in Jim's summer study group designed to waive first-year science. He's the only boy, and already the girls have been bombarding him about styles and bargains.

"The girls are hysterical because they've been shopping all summer long. They're telling him, 'Oh, you have to have at least one Abercrombie and Fitch or Old Navy thing.'" Jim couldn't care less.

"He's kind of looking at me — make them stop!" Penny laughed.

As for Jon, he's starting to prepare a "wish list" of future college choices. He's been to a summer exploratory camp at a local college, where he got a taste of dorm life — in more ways than one.

"Jon says to me, 'What's up with the Jello? It is at every meal. Wednesday was a big day 'cause they changed the color,'" Penny laughed.

Education is a top priority with the family. Penny said Jon knows this will be an important year with ACT and SAT tests and more homework. He knows "This is what you must do to get into the college of your choice. Luckily, he's a very focused kid."

Other than that, the boys do "a deep cleaning" of their rooms in August, even through the rearrangement is often "a little weird," she quipped.

Maura and Brian Plante of

Shereen, Tom and Leone Trese

Jon, Penny and Jim Shanks are ready for new challenges.

Clarkston have three teenagers: Megan, 19, a sophomore at Marquette University in Milwaukee; Kelly, 17, a senior at CHS and Eric, 15, a sophomore at CHS.

When asked what they're doing to prepare the kids for school, Maura quipped, "Spending an awful lot of money."

The entrance to North Sashabaw Elementary School facing the parking lot is just about finished. Interior finishes in classrooms proceed to completion — floor covering, painting, ceiling grid, lights, clocks, public address system, fire alarms.

Work continues on the new media center at North Sashabaw Elementary School that faces Maybee Road.

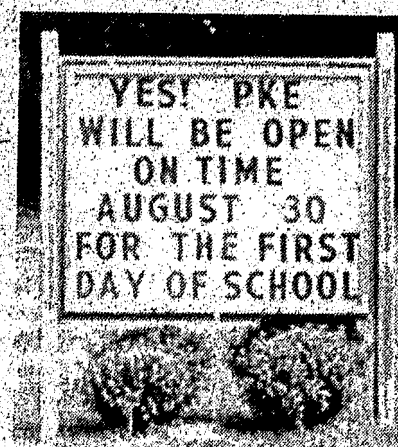

Construction on the main entrance to Clarkston Elementary School is underway. Finish site work is to begin this week on sidewalks, drives, parking, lighting and seeding. Multipurpose room painting and laying the sports floor is scheduled for later this month.

Yes, Clarkston schools will be open for classes by August 30

Between redistricting and construction projects, this has been quite a year of changes for Clarkston schools. In spite of what most of the school sites look like, classes are scheduled to begin August 30.

At Andersonville, Pine Knob and Bailey Lake elementaries, the Tier II schools, work will continue through the school year.

After Independence Elementary School students are moved into the new school, Sashabaw Middle School will be remodeled so its students can return in the fall of 2000.

Workers prepare the main entrance to the new Clarkston Middle School (old CHS). Interior finishes continue, heating and cooling nears completion and technology wiring has been terminated. Construction consultant said the move from the old CMS went very well.

Getting ready to go back to school

Other than clothes shopping, the main job with Megan is getting her back to Milwaukee. "We load up the van so we can move all her stuff." Since Megan runs cross country and track, the family doesn't see her much till the holidays.

"But she's so incredibly happy there, it makes it much easier; it really does."

School shopping is still a priority with the younger two. Maura states this has been the "smoothest" year ever. "Before, it was they wanted one thing, I wanted another ... Maybe the clothes are more conservative. That must be it."

She admits it takes some child psychology. "If I pick up something and say 'This is so cute,' they go 'ohhhh.'" Kelly is fussy; Eric is not a fashion plate. "He takes after his father."

The family tries to have one last bash before the new year begins, which coincides with two kids' birthdays. Once the year begins, "academic expectations in our home are pretty high," Maura said.

That especially applies to Kelly and Eric this year. "The reality of going to college is relevant with what they're doing now."

As far as the kids, Kelly is looking forward to her last year at CHS and Megan misses her school buddies. "You're used to being with them every day and night and then you don't see them for three months."

Eric is busy with a summer reading pick for his language arts class. "It starts getting me ready, thinking about school."

Like Penny Shanks, Maura says the years pass by much too quickly. "The only thing I wish I could do is turn back time. It seems like they were just going into elementary," she said, wistfully.

Kristine and Ray Case are in the midst of those years. Their son Cody will be a second grader at Bailey Lake Elementary School.

When asked if he liked school, Cody nodded an enthusiastic yes, especially "when you get to eat lunch." This year he has a new lunchbox with the Tasmanian Devil "and it came with a Pringles packet and a cooler and some coupons," said the wide-eyed boy.

Kristine said Cody enjoys reading and has been attending a summer enrichment program through Clarkston Community Education. It's important "to keep him fresh." The two make frequent trips to Independence Township

Library, "getting him ready for school, to do a little more reading."

They've gotten their school shopping done, and Cody is eager to meet the new principal next week.

At the other end of the spectrum are little tykes Patrick Kundracik and Christopher Bangor of Waterford. They were having a summer picnic with their moms at Bay Court Park last week.

This year Patrick will be a new kindergartner and he's "a little leery" about going to St. Stephens Lutheran School, said his mother, Diane Kundracik.

He'll miss his old preschool and the friends he made. "I say, 'You're going to make new friends, lots of new friends,'" Diane said. "We talk about (school) a lot, what's going to happen."

Patrick had the opportunity to see his classroom during registration and spent summer Bible school there. A home visit from his new teacher also helped. "I thought that was absolutely tremendous," Diane said.

Big brothers Nicholas, a high school sophomore, and Ryan, a college student, are good students. Diane doesn't even worry about Ryan partying too much, at far-away Miami State University. He's always been "pretty much a poop."

Little Christopher Bangor is excited about his second year of preschool at Stepanski Early Childhood Center. "He loves it," his mom Robin Bangor said. "He keeps talking about it, (saying) 'When can I go back to school?' I say, 'Soon, honey, soon.'"

Kristine Case

The first year was mostly social — getting kids adjusted to their peers. This year will be more academic. "He'll learn to write letters."

Older sister Carly is an honor roll student. "We set high expectations for her," Robin said. "Doing your best is a big thing. We ask, 'Are you proud of the work you completed? Are you proud to turn it in?'"

Both mothers are stay-at-home moms and glad to make the sacrifice — "sometimes your sanity," Diane cracked. Both said it's important to "be there" for your kids, whether you work or stay home.

"Always keep the communication open. Force them to talk to you. And just let them know that you love them. You'll always be there, no matter what," Diane said.

Cody Case

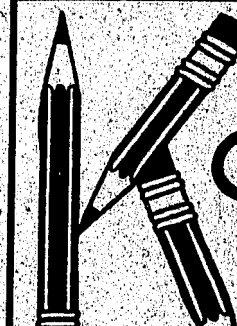

Dave Reschke is assistant superintendent of K-8 operations at Clarkston schools. He's also a father. Daughter Katie graduated from CHS and MSU and plans to teach elementary school.

"The first thing I recommend is talking to the kids about what they're looking forward to this year. And to reassure their children that going to school is as natural as it can be. Everybody's done it, and that's what you do," Reschke said.

School is "not just an academic thing," he added. "It's a wholistic approach. Their responses can range anywhere from I'm looking forward to seeing my friends to taking physics." It's important to let your children know you're proud of everything — from their accomplishments to their "great friends." Everything is "a part of growing up."

A 'Model' automobile

Marquie Harris of Clarkston poses beside his 1930 Model A Ford in downtown Clarkston July 12. Harris purchased the car, nicknamed "Henry's Lady" by Ford himself, from a man in Maine one year ago, sight unseen. "This is my only real collector car," said Harris, who also owns an older Cadillac and Buick. He rode his Model A -- which he said reminds him of the car in the movie classic "Chitty-Chitty Bang-Bang" -- in the Clarkston Fourth of July Parade this year. Harris said the car, which retailed in 1930 at $385, has many unique features, including a rumble seat his grandkids love riding in. And Harris said he is used to onlookers. "The fun part is all the little kids waving at you."

Roberts' contract renewed

Guidelines/Student Codes of Conduct received unanimous board approval.

The CHS handbook includes an attendance policy change, which states no difference will be made between excused and unexcused absences, said Pat Brumback, assistant superintendent of 9-12 operations and student support services.

Other differences for CHS and RHS include terms of admission, and for RHS, an assignment of school service rather than suspension and attainment of at least a C- to pass a class.

"This is the first step toward trying to standardize," Roberts said. "The handbooks display a consistency we haven't had before."

Concert uniforms

Trustee Kurt Shanks disagreed with Foyteck's idea of students buying items.

"I would have trouble stomaching that," he said. Shanks also suggested rain gear be looked into for purchase for marching band members.

Board Secretary Mary Ellen McLean advised student feedback be given on the matter, and Ron Sullivan, board treasurer, suggested adjustable uniforms.

Brumback said a second stage in the process of acquiring the uniforms would be to have all bids and designs for the outfits ready for presentation to the board by December. A decision regarding purchase would then take place in January 2000.

Also at that time, discussion on replacing marching band uniforms at a budget of $250 per student would take place.

The total cost to replace those uniforms, for 200 students, is estimated at $50,000.

A new tradition --

Eclectic goods, gifts found at Davisburg store

BY RENEE WIGHTMAN
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Six months ago, Ruth Andrews and Lynn Meacham opened the doors to their unique shop with hopes of bringing something new to Davisburg.

Six months later, they have a steady clientele from the area and offer a wide assortment of household and bath and body-type items.

"There was nothing like it in Davisburg. We wanted to be the first," Meacham said of their store, Country Traditions.

The two women live in Holly, but felt the location at 649 Broadway Street was "just a natural spot," for their store, Andrews said.

"You can pick up a quick gift, and it saves you having to go to the mall," she said.

The two are "really looking forward to Christmas" this year and already have been making orders for several holiday gift ideas.

Although neither of the two studied marketing, their savvy for shopping brings many unusual brands of merchandise to the store throughout the year, from Chicago to California.

"We pretty much know what we want to carry. We have similar tastes," Meacham said.

They also shop via the internet, and say it's been helpful in finding new items.

"I've been shopping my whole life.

It's my favorite thing to do," Meacham said.

Coffee, cards, homemade paper and picture frames are found throughout the store, but they aren't the biggest customer draw.

It's soap — Primal Elements hand-made soap from California — that people rave about, Andrews said. The soap is made from a vegetable-based glycerine, and sells faster than any other product they carry.

"They make great hostess gifts or gifts for teachers," she said. "It's really popular."

The aroma coming from inside the store attracts customers, Meacham said.

"People on the street say it smells so good," she said.

Also at Country Traditions are baby items, Crabtree and Evelyn lotions and perfumes, and gift baskets made to order.

The building has seen its share of owners, and in years past, has been a feed store, a collective and an antique shop, Andrews said.

They want to expand the building in the future, and are also interested in hosting classes on how to make soap, wreaths and dried flower arrangements.

The women believe commitment is essential to their business — and for anyone thinking of becoming an entrepreneur.

"If you're going to do something, you have to love what you're doing," Andrews said.

She said those considering starting their own business must first and foremost be financially stable.

"Figure out how much money you need, and then double it," she said.

Meacham agreed, saying money is the most important aspect of entrepreneurship.

"If you don't have enough money, you can put yourself out of business before you open," she said. "The American ideal is that you can start for nothing. You need to have a good plan."

Time is also a factor in running one's own business, Andrews said.

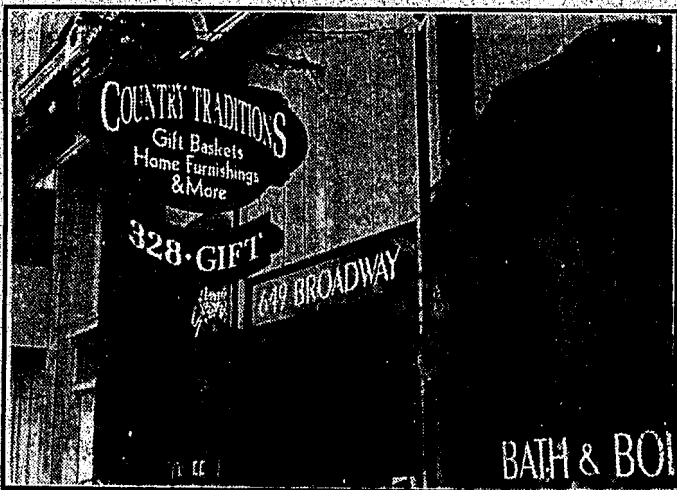

"I love this place more than anything in the world, except my kids, who I want to spend more time with," she said. "It's difficult to balance."

But the two say they are up to the challenge.

"We're still feeling our way around," Andrews said. "We're going to make mistakes, but hopefully, we'll do a few things right."

Country Traditions is closed Mondays, but is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday - Saturday and from noon until 5 p.m. Sundays.

For more information on what the store offers, contact Andrews or Meacham at (248) 328-GIFT.

Tickets on sale for CVP play

Get ready for another great theater season presented by Clarkston Village Players. Tickets are on sale for the first production, "Murder by the Book" which premieres Sept. 10.

Officials don't want post office distribution center in Independence Twp.

all local authority."

However, if a developer builds the structure and the post office leases it, the post office would have to have all processes approved by the township.

Nemeth said it's "not true" the post office wouldn't have to follow township say — even if it owns the building. "It is the post office's policy to comply with local ordinances, meetings, the whole thing. We seek a working relationship with officials," she said.

The post office intends to "buy the land and build the building," she said.

Last year, a 450,000-square-foot Ryder truck facility that would serve the General Motors plant in Orion was proposed to be built on Bow Pointe Road off Sashabaw.

The Ryder project was soundly defeated by the planning commission, and garnered overwhelming public protest. It was eventually built off Joslyn Road.

Nemeth said she was familiar with township issues, including the impact of Pine Knob Music Theatre and the former outcry over Ryder trucks.

She said those matters would surely be taken into account. "I don't want to start a ground-roots swell," she said. "We have not made a decision."

Jim Mruk, spokesperson for U.S. Postal Services Great Lakes Region, said mail would be "either dropped off or picked up" to serve the following zip codes: 480, 483, 484 and 485. He couldn't project the number of semi-trailers leaving and entering the site per day.

Asked if the post office could locate here, even if the township objected, Mruk said, "That's the case. But any location we get serious about, we're obviously going to establish a dialogue with that community."

"We try to be good neighbors, but we have a serious need for a processing plant in this particular part of the country." Mail volume related to growth in this area has caused the post office to seek another site, he added. Currently, many of the communities like Independence have their mail processed in Troy.

Carlisle said any proposal would have to be evaluated for "the specific nature of the use. If it's similar to the Ryder facility, the planning commission had made a determination that it was not a permissible use," he said.

McCrary objects to the facility in Independence.

"This would not benefit the township," she said, adding that, as a federal entity, it would not provide local tax base. "I would hate to see that built here because they're off the tax rolls."

Carlisle said that was correct. "If it's owned by the federal government — not a nickel."

Stuart objects to the facility in Independence also. He said if the post office picked Bow Pointe Road, it would undoubtedly meet the same opposition as Ryder — truck traffic and the proximity to residents' homes.

"In the first place, the location they were most interested in was the area for Ryder trucks," Stuart said of the May meeting. "They can expect to not receive a warm reception from that standpoint alone. They're going to hear publicly about that and from the people." He said a federal legislator could be contacted to intervene.

However, he said it was "premature" to start worrying, since no decision has been made.

"My suspicion is they are going to pick a location with the smallest headache possible," Stuart said.

rior will get a face-lift too. The dark teal paint will be replaced by a soft cream color, and a cream, teal, forest green and mauve awning should be installed in about four weeks, she said.

In the meantime, the store is having a big clearance sale to make remodeling easier, said Brozovich. Sweats, shorts, shirts, sports equipment and more are discounted to $10 or less in the "Sale Room" through August 28.

The Clarkston News previews the 1999 seasons of the CHS varsity football, girls basketball, boys golf and boys soccer seasons. Senior Kevin Breen sums up the anticipation by saying....

'This is our year to shine'

Sophomore Kaye Christie looks to drive against senior Candace Morgan at the first girls basketball practice Monday morning.

Junior QB Ryan Kaul scrambles for an eventual touchdown in Saturday's Blue-Gold football game. Kaul's Blue team ended up in a 14-14 tie with the Gold team at the game, which featured fall-like conditions: cloudy and cool. Clarkston stays home for the next part of its preseason schedule Thursday when it hosts a four-way scrimmage against defending Class A state champions Farmington Hills Harrison, Orchard Lake St. Mary's, and Marysville. The action begins at 5 p.m. Look for the varsity football season preview in next week's edition of The Clarkston News.

Senior Mike Licata chases the ball during the first practice for the varsity boys soccer team Monday morning. Clarkston enters the season with back-to-back district titles to its credit, and a solid core of returning players. Last year's JV team went 12-5-1 overall, making for high hopes for the 1999 squad.

MHSAA studies part-time students

The Michigan High School Athletic Association will conduct a series of three meetings during August to examine the issues surrounding and the opportunities that already exist for interscholastic athletic participation by students not enrolled on a full-time basis at its member schools conducting sports programs.

The three meetings will be approximately four hours in length and include an opportunity for public comment. The meeting schedule and moderators selected for those meetings are: Ortonville-Brandon High School, August 25, moderator Larry Lamphere, athletic director; Rockford High School, August 26, moderator Dave Price, athletic director; and Gaylord School District administration building, August 26, moderator Karen Leinaar, athletic director. All meetings will begin at 1 p.m. (EDT).

There will be a panel of approximately 12 persons at each meeting. While the groups will have a common agenda, the participants will differ. A recorder for each group will provide a report to MHSAA Executive Director John E. "Jack" Roberts, who will attempt to discover common themes and present them to the more than 1,200 attendees at MHSAA Update Meetings in the fall and to obtain reactions through oral comment and written survey. The major concepts and constituent reactions will be presented to the Association's Representative Council at its next meeting on December 1.

The MHSAA Representative Council approved last May to motion to appoint an ad hoc committee to develop strategies for Representative Council consideration to promote greater awareness and use of options that currently exist for interscholastic athletic participation by students who are less than full-time enrolled students of the schools sponsoring the athletic program and to explore additional options that might be considered by the membership to expand such opportunities with appropriate oversight of attendance, behavior, curriculum and progress toward graduation and other fundamental requirements of educationally based athletics. In June, the MHSAA Executive Committee approved an action plan to implement the Council's directive.

Presently there are five ways in which students who attend non-public schools and public school academies may participate in athletics in the school setting. There are three ways in which home-schooled students may do so. Ideas will be explored for promoting better the opportunities that already exist and to expand opportunities in ways that would be supported by the membership.

Manojlovich new leader of girls tennis team

Veteran tennis coach takes over young Wolves

BY BRAD MONASTIERE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Beth Manojlovich may be new to the Clarkston tennis program, but she's no stranger to the sport.

Manojlovich was named the team's third coach in three years, replacing Melissa White, who took over last year for longtime coach Dick Swartout.

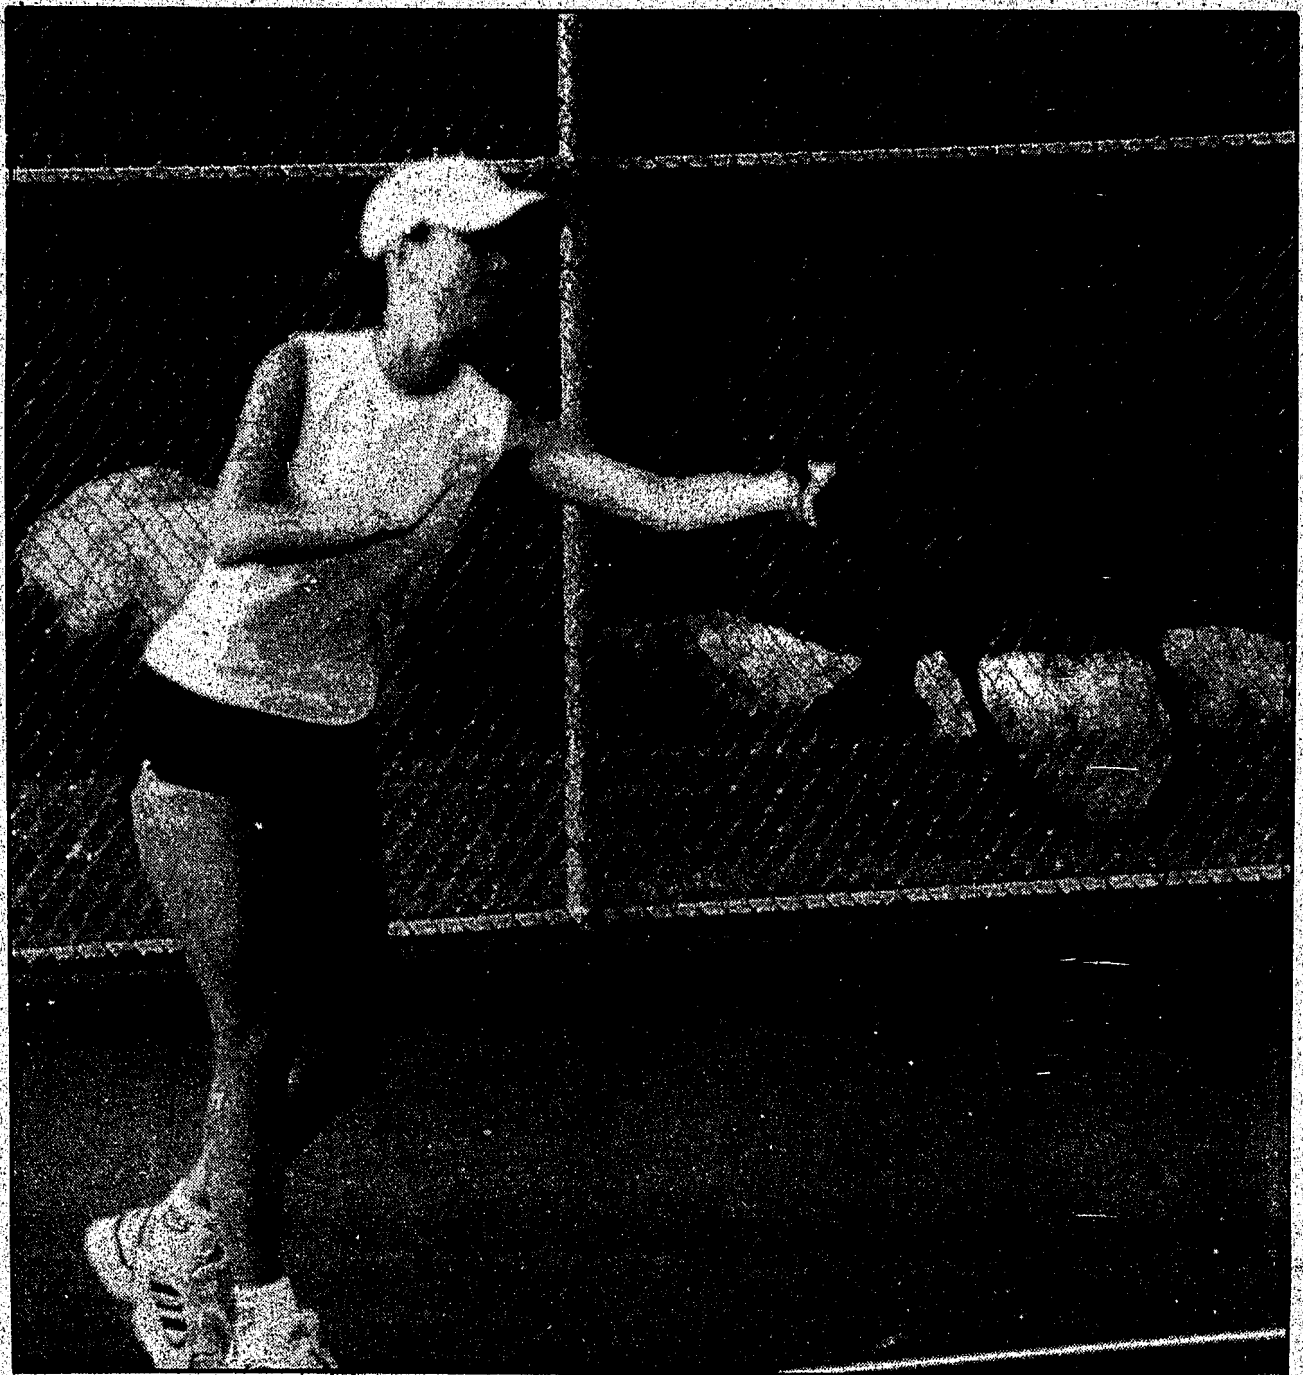

She comes to a team short on experienced players, but big on quantity. The Wolves lost seven out of 12 varsity starters from last year's team, which won the Fenton Invitational and finished second in the OAA Division II behind Troy Athens.

This will be one of the youngest Clarkston teams in recent years. The Wolves lost Lauren Bogart (2 singles), and Kristen Atkinson, Alaina Dodds and Jenny Claus, which made up 75 percent of the top two doubles teams last year. Senior Lauren Stout, Claus' partner for two seasons, returns.

Courtney Schubring returns as the team's number-one singles player for the third straight year. A senior, Schubring is expected to compete with the top players in the county.

Sophomore Michelle Dodge had an impact on the team last year as the four-doubles player. With so many losses to graduation, she will have an opportunity to move up the ranks.

On the doubles side, seniors Emily Tate and Jenny

Sophomore Michelle Dodge returns a shot during the first tennis practice of the season Monday morning at the CHS courts. Dodge could contend for one of the starting singles spots on the team this year after moving up to four-singles last year.

Linenger return, coming off an OAA II title as the four-doubles team last year.

Manojlovich hopes to make up for the lack of experience with numbers.

"We have 44 girls out for the team this year," she said. "One of the biggest challenges for me is that most of the girls are about the same level. We'll need our practice time to see where everyone stands."

Although Manojlovich is in her first year as coach, she has plenty of experience and help to get her ready for the season. Popular assistant coach Wayne Gilbert returns and should help her with the transition back into coaching.

Manojlovich coached at Grosse Pointe North High School from 1978-84, after a good career at Detroit Denby High School. She made the tennis team

Optimism abounds on first day of fall sports practice

Monday morning, many Clarkston High School teams gathered at the site to commence their 1999 seasons.

It's one of the special days of the year for me. A day to catch up with coaches whom I haven't seen in a while. A day to see the younger players who have been on freshman or JV teams in the recent past; mingle with the veteran varsity players. The numbers are high, and the atmosphere is one of fun and hope for the upcoming season.

■ One surprising development was the smaller numbers of kids out for the boys and girls cross country teams. The past few years have seen around 100 kids combined on the boys and girls team. However, this year only around 35 came out for the first day. This number won't be entirely accurate, because some runners, including standout senior Nicole Fischer, are away at band camp.

Although the numbers are down on the boys side, the quality has never been higher. This is the year the boys cross country program, and coach Mike Taylor have been waiting for. A group of terrific runners which includes David Sage, Matt Haver, Kevin Breen, Brett Quantz, Dan Burke and Chris Weber, are all entering their senior year and have one goal in mind: the state championship.

Last year, the Wolves captured the OAA Division I title, finally getting past Lake Orion. The goals are set higher this year, according to Breen.

"This is our year to shine," he said. "We had a lot of guys put in a lot of work over the summer, and we're ready to get started."

This group of runners has stayed competitive with some of the best teams in the state since they were sophomores. All the endless miles of running over hills, through the oppressive summer heat and chilled November days, were all done in preparation for this year. Count on these guys adding at least a couple of pieces to the sparkling new trophy case at CHS.

■ Although the numbers were down for cross country, they were more than made up for with the girls tennis and boys golf teams.

Tennis will have a maximum of 12 players on varsity at any one time, with golf having around five or six. That means less than 20 athletes will be in active varsity competition on any given day for the two teams combined.

Despite those odds, a total of 100 kids came out for the two sports this year, 44 in tennis and 56 in golf. Just the numbers alone have to be encouraging signs for first-year tennis coach Beth Manojlovich and second-year varsity golf coach Tim Kaul.

Since Tiger Woods' romp through the Masters in 1997, golf has taken up more and more room on the front pages of sports sections around the country, and more young people are getting involved in the game at an earlier age.

This trend is reflected locally, as turnout for golf tryouts has been in the 50s each of the past two years for the first time. Kaul even commented that former CHS golf coach Jim Chamberlain - who has seen more golf in his time than me and 10 of my clones ever would - said he's never seen so many junior golfers out at area courses.

The golf team is another one with a strong group of seniors, led by Mark Churay, Derek Hool and Dave Benner. Although Rochester Adams may be in another universe this season, the Wolves figure to fare well against the rest of the golf galaxy this fall.

■ As the morning progressed, I made my way up to the auxiliary gym where CHS varsity girls basketball coach Ann Lowney was getting her players off to a running start. Her gym-filling voice, quick strides across the floor and constant teaching were coming through loud and clear as she prepares her team for a season where every OAA Division I team looks very strong.

One of the things I like about coach Lowney is her enthusiasm in both teaching the game, offering criticism, and offering praise. In one play, she might tell a player that everything she did in a particular drill was wrong, which is just part of coaching. But the same player, on the next play, could execute to perfection, and the recognition from Lowney would be just as emphatic.

"That was perfect Candace! Perfect!" Lowney yelled to fourth-year varsity player Candace Morgan during a layup drill. This is something I don't think Lowney gets enough credit for, and that's the positive support she gives her players.

She faces a big challenge this year, as Rochester and Waterford Kettering appear loaded once again this year. But from what I saw, the Wolves will have a nice mix of post players and good ballhandlers on the perimeter.

■ I enjoyed visiting with varsity boys soccer coach Dan Fitzgerald, one of the nicest people I've been able to meet through this job.

We spent a couple minutes reminiscing about last year's team, which came up with a huge upset of Rochester Adams in the district finals, a game Fitzgerald called "the best I have ever been associated with."

This team has lost a ton of good talent over the past couple years, but the strength of the youth soccer programs in the area is starting to show itself. The team welcomes back standout players like Mike Renda, Mike Licata, Mike Tharrett, Dustin Coleman and Bill Kalush. Plus, the team will get an infusion of talent from last year's JV team, which went 8-2 in the league.

Kalush, one of those kids anyone would want to have as their son, is pulling double duty this fall as a forward for the soccer team and the kicker for the varsity football team. With hard work and the right bounces, he could have plenty to celebrate this fall.

Meritor baseball team takes first place

The Meritor 1999 13-14 year old baseball team finished in first place in the Independence Township Little League division for the second straight year, finishing with an 11-2-1 record. In addition to its regular-season title, the team won the league playoffs with a resounding 16-6 win over a tough Lee Cleaners team in the championship game.

Coached by Rick Martello and Mike George, the team also romped through the 1998 season, finishing with a 10-2 record.

This year, the team advanced to the state tournament, representing Independence Township. Meritor won an exciting first-round game, 9-8 thanks to a two-out hit by Jay Martello.

In the second round, Meritor edged Millington 10-9, earning the right to play in the district finals.

There, the team lost a tough 5-4 loss despite strong pitching.

Over the two seasons the team was together, it posted a 25-6-1 record, capped off with the league's best-ever finish in the state tournament.

The team members are: Brett Robak, John Balcom, Josh Herzog, Matt Vercauteran, Andy Crane, Jay Martello, Dan Howard, Jason Klotz, Eric Houston, Derek George, Randy Boyd, Paul Mesi, Zack Crane, and Carl Schulte. THE LAW & YOU

by Robert Kostin
Attorney at Law

GUARDIANSHIP

will determine whether the agent's authority shall continue. Here at 11 North Main Street, we handle a variety of matters involving family law, real estate, business law, criminal defense, personal injury, and civil litigation in both State and Federal courts. Our clients receive individual attention while making their difficult legal decisions. We take the time to explain all options and offer sound advice towards reaching a personally, economically, and legally sound solution. To schedule a consultation, call 620-1030. HINT: The decision to seek guardianship should never be based on stereotypical notions of old age.

*5.99% Annual Percentage Rate (APR) is fixed for four months for new accounts opened between now and August 31, 1999. After four months, the APR is variable and tied to the WSJ prime rate plus a margin. For example, based on a prime rate as of July 1, 1999, the variable rate will be 8.00% APR, which reflects a prime rate of 8.00%; less a discount of 0.25% for automatic payments from a qualified deposit account at this bank, plus a 0.25% margin. The 0.25% margin is based on a $30,000 line with a combined LTV of 80% or less. Subject to credit approval. Other rates and terms are available. Maximum APR is 18%. Minimum monthly payments of $100 (or interest only payment if greater than $100) will result in a balloon payment at the end of the 3-year draw period. Property insurance is required. Prepayment penalty may apply. Consult your tax advisor on the deductibility of interest. Title insurance and an appraisal may be required.

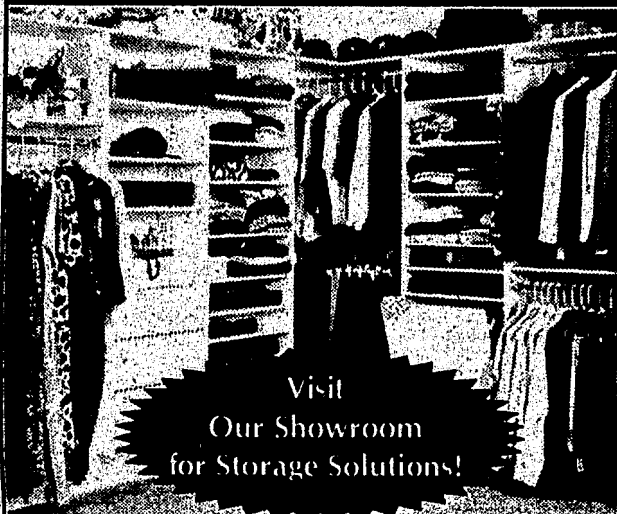

Getting started

Clarkston varsity girls basketball coach Ann Lowney instructs her players at the team's first practice Monday morning. The team gathered in the CHS auxiliary gym going through passing and shooting drills. Lowney is 26-17 in her two seasons as coach of the Wolves, including an oAA Division I title in 1997. This year's team will get stiff tests in the league from Waterford Kettering and Rochester. Kettering beat Rochester in last season's regional finals.

"I Prayed For A Miracle... I Found Hypnosis And Lost 71 Lbs.!"

Holding my fifth foster baby on September 12, 1996, before shedding 71 lbs.

My name is Marjorie Garst. I live with my husband, John. I am a homemaker and mother of four. I volunteer as a foster mother for newborn babies. I lost a remarkable 71 pounds in eight short months without dieting. I went from a chubby size 20 to a trim size 10! This is my true-life account of genuine, lasting weight loss success.

I had read the hypnosis ads for months. Frankly, I was skeptical. It seemed too good to be true. Then I saw a special report on the News. It featured folks who had quit smoking and dropped weight with hypnosis. One lady said she lost over 90 lbs. She said hypnosis made it simple. That got my attention.

I honestly didn't think the people in the ads were real until I saw it on the 11:00 News. Now it's happened to me and I have my own true story to tell.

Embarrassed and Ashamed

I dreaded my yearly visits to the doctor. My weight was climbing at a rate of ten or more pounds a year. It was dangerous for me to gain weight. My blood pressure and cholesterol were sky high. My joints were stiff and ached constantly. I could barely lift myself out of a chair. My health was in jeopardy. Yet I couldn't stop eating. I was out of control.

I was a career snacker. I sat on the sofa, watched TV and ate. I sat at the kitchen table, read the newspaper and ate. When I fed my foster babies, I fed myself too. I lived on sweets and soda pop. Food seemed to have some mysterious power over me. I ate all day. With every expansion of my hips and thighs my self-confidence withered. I was embarrassed, shy and reserved.

Dieting was the most confusing and frustrating experience of my life. Diets made me crave and binge. The only way I lost weight was by starving myself. I lost ten pounds once. Then I gave up and my weight came right back plus ten pounds more. My self-esteem was demolished.

Immediate Results

I was nervous when I called for the appointment. I didn't want to be pressured. The free hypnotic screening was a wonderful surprise. My consultant was genuinely interested in me. The high-pressure sales pitch never happened. She explained hypnosis in a relaxed, entertaining way. She went over the guarantee. I was impressed. If I couldn't be hypnotized, I would get a full refund. I had nothing to lose except a lot of fat. I signed up.

My new eating habits started immediately after my first session. My hunger pangs disappeared. My taste for soda pop vanished. I found myself craving healthy foods. Fruits and vegetables tasted different. It was like my taste buds came alive.

One day I was walking through the grocery store. I marched right past the bakery, candy, chips and soda without a glance. That's when I was convinced. Hypnosis had completely changed my tastes.

Doctor's Delight!

My last visit to my doctor was a thrill! My doctor nodded his head with delight. He confirmed my 71-pound weight loss. For the first time in my life my blood work and cholesterol are normal without pills!

I feel fantastic. No more aches and pains. No more cravings or binges. Best of all, hypnosis eliminated dieting for good!

Hypnosis made my weight loss easy and effortless. I know I will never gain the weight back. All the changes are permanent. I have a whole different way of thinking about what I put into my body. I never feel deprived.

Self-Confidence Soars!

When I was overweight I was extremely withdrawn. Some days I hardly spoke a word. I thought everyone was judging me. My self-worth was zero.

When the weight came off I felt

lighter after

better about myself. Hypnosis helped me relax. I gained a feeling of inner peace. I knew I was back in control of my life.

One Sunday my minister asked me to stand up in church to announce how much weight I had lost. After the service folks surrounded me to ask how I did it. I was completely comfortable chatting away with them. I couldn't believe it was me! So relaxed! So confident! There are now eleven members of our church losing weight with hypnosis, including my husband, John! He's already lost 30 pounds!

My entire family has changed thanks to hypnosis. My son lost 30 pounds. My 83-year-old mother lost 18 pounds. We're saving money on our food bill every week. What a bonus!

Twenty Years Younger

I thought I'd never wear a bathing suit again. On the 4th of July I gazed at myself in the mirror. I was wearing a sexy black and purple one-piece suit. I loved what I saw! I wore it that day and many days since. The best day of my life was spent filling two giant boxes with fat clothes I'll never wear again.

People say I look twenty years younger. They wonder why I'm always smiling. I have tons of energy. I'm light on my feet. I have a social life! I owe it all to the power of hypnosis.

Invaluable!

My results using hypnosis are invaluable to me. That's why I'm sharing my story with you. I believe in hypnosis. I'm certain you'll be as thrilled as I am. I know because I've met lots of other folks who are getting results like mine. They've shed 50, 60, even 90 pounds with ease.

Call now and schedule your hypnotic screening. It's absolutely free and there's no obligation. Ask about their no-risk guarantee. You'll be glad you did. If your evaluator doesn't think hypnosis is for you, she'll tell you so.

I know how much it hurts to be overweight. I've been there. If you have a weight problem, don't put it off. You'll probably just gain more weight. Do what I did. Call and schedule your free hypnotic screening. Hypnosis worked for me. It can work for you. Call now.

Don't waste one more minute being overweight. Your happiness is too important. Call us at 628-3242. It won't cost you one penny to find out more.
