Progress stalls on new city hall

Council considers hiring architect to offer direction

BY BRAD MONASTIERE

Clarkston News Editor

Monday night, the Clarkston city council agreed on one thing regarding plans for an addition to the city hall building: to put it on the agenda for the next meeting.

The council's building subcommittee, consisting of council members Anne Clifton and David Savage, gave an update to the council about its progress in seeking solutions to the issue. Clifton said the subcommittee was unable to come up with a list of specifications builders need to do the work on the building. She suggested the council hire an architect to compile that list at a cost of not more than $10,000.

"The last time we brought this up, you told us we needed to come up with a list of specifications," she said. "It's just been impossible for us to do, and I think we need a professional firm to oversee this process if we are ever going to move forward."

One option the council had previously considered was going with a design-build approach to the addition, meaning the architectural work and construction work would be done by the same firm. However, Clifton said the council may lose some control over the project should it go this route.

"I recommend we go with an architect," she said. "This offers fewer headaches and gets it going sooner." Councilman Walt Gamble agreed with Clifton.

"If we go with an architect, we'll know up front that there are no hidden problems," he said. "I feel comfortable with an architect, and I'd like to see this get off the ground."

Another issue holding up progress was getting the cost of construction documents. The council wanted to know if the cost of the documents would be included

Independence rezonings get first nod

BY EILEEN MCCARVILLE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

The Independence Township Board of Trustees approved the first readings of three rezonings Aug. 17.

■ Approximately 37 acres was rezoned from Recreation to Suburban Farm Residential (R-1C), and 5 acres from Recreation to Rural Residential (R-1R), on the corner of Eston and Algonquin roads. The property, formerly Clarkson Golf Club, is proposed to be developed as an estate-type subdivision by Franklin Property Corp.

■ A vacant 2.2 acre parcel on the west side of M-15, north of I-75, was rezoned from Single Family Residential (R-1A) to Office Service Two

■ A vacant 2.27 acre parcel directly north of the above parcel was also rezoned from R-1A to OS-2. The two parcels are to be developed jointly, with the north lot intended for a Bill Knapp's Restaurant.

John Bowman, director of marketing and real estate for Bill Knapp's Michigan, Inc., said there has been no decision as to whether the Clarkston restaurant would serve alcohol. Bill Knapp's is still testing alcohol at its Muskegon location and "inquiring" about the availability of liquor licenses in other communities, he said.

All three rezonings must return to the board for second readings and final approval.

Following a public hearing at the meeting, the proposed height for Trillium Place, a new senior apartments facility, was approved by the Independence Township Board Aug. 17.

The board OK'd the maximum height of 32 feet.

Labor Day Parade bike riding tradition returns

A once familiar sight to the Clarkston Rotary Labor Day Parade will return on Sept. 6 — kids riding their bikes, decorated for the occasion.

Rotarian Bob Beattie said parents interested in having their children ride their bikes in the parade should contact Jeff Lichty at (248) 625-4244. The idea was brought forth as a way to bring back a tradition "just in time for the millenium," Beattie said.

The kids will ride at the end of the parade, parents can pick up their children at St. Daniel Church, 7010 Valley Park in Clarkston. Parade marshals will also be on hand to take the kids safely to their final destination, he said.

Drug-free and all smiles

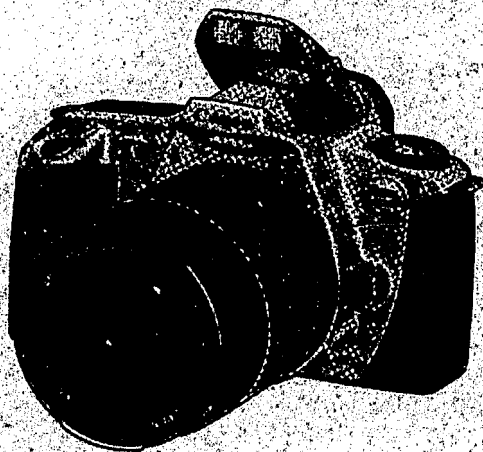

Independence Township Dentists Al Petrucci, David McChesney and David Shushtari took time away from their office June 26 to take part in promoting a drug-free lifestyle at Our Lady of the Lakes Festival in Waterford.

Manning a booth with information on the benefits of being drug-free, the dentists encouraged children and young adults to stay off drugs and lead a healthy life. More than 50 kids signed a release stating they would remain drug-free, thanks to the men's efforts.

"We wanted to do something helping the kids," Dr. McChesney said. "They pledged they would be drug free and be aware of their friends, to watch out for their fellow human beings."

Dr. McChesney said he and his colleagues will sponsor future community events.

Giving CHS sports a booster shot

High school athletic booster club pours the pop, grills the 'dogs and forms the friendships

BY BRAD MONASTIERE

Clarkston News Staff Writer

After several conversations at a drizzly football game, it became obvious there is one thing the Clarkston High School Athletic Boosters don't do: control the weather.

Other than that, the list of duties and activities the boosters seems endless. As a group, they find themselves taking the role of master chef, bargain shopper, logistics coordinator, crowd control, ticket taker and fan.

The boosters boast a membership around 300 entering the 1999-2000 school year, and with the start of the fall sports season around the corner, the group will roll up its collective sleeves and do its part to support CHS athletes.

The CHS Athletic Boosters are made up of parents and other adults in the community who volunteer their time at home athletic contests, working at the concession stands and fulfilling many other functions which help the games run smoothly. Some work security at games while others can be found scurrying about inside the concession stands, accepting orders for hot dogs, pop or candy bars at the games.

Ray Neubeck has been the president of the booster club for three years. You will find him at all home football and basketball games, helping to organize the boosters in attendance to work the games. He is also responsible for planning who works what games, as well as innumerable other tasks.

"I do a little of everything," Neubeck, an employee of the Independence Township Department of Public Works said. "I get all the supplies, and help get all the events set up."

Although Ray's son Dan graduated in 1998 after playing varsity football and basketball for two years, Ray stays as involved as ever.

"I was here before Danny came through, and I want to stay now that he's gone. But I do miss standing out away from the concession stand and watching him play."

On those nights when Dan and his teammates played, Ray made sure he never had to work the concessions. In fact, that's something he places a high priority on when planning which parents will work which events. He said if a parent has a son or daughter playing a particular sport, he will make sure they don't have to work that same game.

"I'll get the JV parents to work the varsity football games, and get varsity parents to work the JV games," he said. "I want them to all have a chance to watch their kids play the way me and all the other parents can watch their kids."

One fixture in the Athletic Boosters has been Dwight Spiker. He's one of the guys you'll see taking tickets at soccer games, or grilling those first batch of hot dogs in the hours before a football game.

Spiker was president of the booster club for many years before Neubeck took over, but stays active as ever.

"For the football games, we're usually here around 5. Some of us never come home from work. We go right from the office to here, this 'home,'" he said, pointing out the area around the concession stand and the bleachers at the new football field.

Spiker's dedication goes beyond being a part of his kids' activities. Spiker's children graduated from CHS in 1981 and 1984, but he's been one of the boosters' most active participants ever since.

One of the biggest changes the boosters have seen in recent years is the move to the new Clarkston High School. The capacity at the football field more than doubled, drawing crowds last year as high as 7,500 people. While that means more business for the boosters, and conversely better equipment for the athletes, crowds of that size did catch the boosters a little off-guard.

Athletic Booster president Ray Neubeck (left) helps to prepare hot dogs with former president Dwight Spiker. They get to football games two hours before kickoff preparing for the game.

The CHS Athletic Boosters will hold a fundraiser Aug. 28-29 and Sept. 4-6 at Farmer Jack's on Dixie Highway. There will be a sale on Pepsi products with the boosters getting 50 cents for every case that is sold. That money will go directly back into the CHS athletic programs.

"Last year, we ordered 60 cases of pop and 60 cases of bottled water for that first game," Spiker said. "We ran out before the opening kickoff," he added with a sheepish grin.

"I had to run up to Food Town and just bought stuff," Neubeck recalled.

Spiker said at a typical football game, the boosters will sell around 1,500 hot dogs, as well as around 80 cases of pop and bottled water.

According to Neubeck, the boosters raised around $30,000 last year for CHS athletics. He said the boosters recently allocated $3,000 to the boys soccer program and $2,000 to the girls tennis program.

But the money the boosters spend goes to a lot more than just new uniforms for the teams.

Athletic Trainer Gail Cooper said she could not do her job without the help the boosters provide.

"They have provided a lot of things for me," she said. "It's the little things they do that make the difference. They're always there, doing anything you ask them for."

Cooper said the new and improved warm-ups the boosters buy the teams have eased some of her workload, because they are designed to keep muscles looser and can help prevent injuries.

CHS Athletic Director Dan Fife said the boosters help the department function in ways it otherwise might not be able to.

"The boosters are the lifeblood of our programs," he said. "The thing I like most about them is that they know what their job is. It isn't to hire and fire people, but they do what they do in a very supportive way. They are there for the right reasons. I'd hate to think where the athletic programs would be without them."

"I work with Coach Fife a lot, and he's been tremendous," Neubeck said. "Everyone works together really well. There are never any disputes between anyone. All I have to do is ask people if they can work an event, and they are always so accommodating."

Bill Atkinson has seen two daughters - Katie and Kristen - graduate from Clarkston and his son Michael is on the varsity football and ski teams. He helps to coordinate the parents to work the basketball games and says being a booster helps him interact with the kids.

"Sometimes it's like a one-way mirror. You see them, but they don't see you, so you get to see how they interact with each other," he said. "Being a booster is a way to spend your time with a good cause, because someone in the community has to step up and help out. The kids are an exuberant bunch, and unfortunately, we've passed that stage in our lives. But being a part of what they do, it keeps you young."

Athletic booster sign-up forms are available at the CHS Athletic Office. Meetings are held the third Monday of every month at 7 p.m. in the high school cafeteria.

Gentle Gerry?

Judge refutes claims he's soft on crime

BY EILEEN MCCARVILLE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Local district court Judge Gerald McNally has been accused by his former opponent as being too soft on crime.

Dana Fortinberry, who ran against McNally in 1996, wrote a letter to The Clarkston News, calling for McNally to resign. He has been the judge at 52-2 District Court in Clarkston for nearly 31 years.

Fortinberry, a former magistrate at the court, said after three years of serving there, she could no longer tolerate his "leniency." That's when she decided to try to unseat him in the race for district judge several years ago.

However, following the recent death of a veteran Troy police officer's daughter in a car crash, Fortinberry decided that was the last straw. "My greatest fear has been realized," she said, calling for McNally's resignation.

Fortinberry claims the incident could have been prevented if McNally "had done his job." According to reports, Oxford resident Paul D. Werner, 27, allegedly drove the wrong way on I-75 last month and struck a car head-on which carried the 22-year-old female passenger. She was killed and he was charged with second-degree murder. Records show Werner's blood alcohol content was over twice the legal limit.

Fortinberry said several days earlier, McNally arraigned Werner on this third drunk driving charge, a June 23 incident in Independence Township. He continued "the standard bond of $100 which had been set prior to Mr. Werner's release at Oakland County Jail." Werner's driver's license was suspended at that time.

She says if McNally had set the bond higher,

Werner would be behind bars, and the young woman would still be alive today.

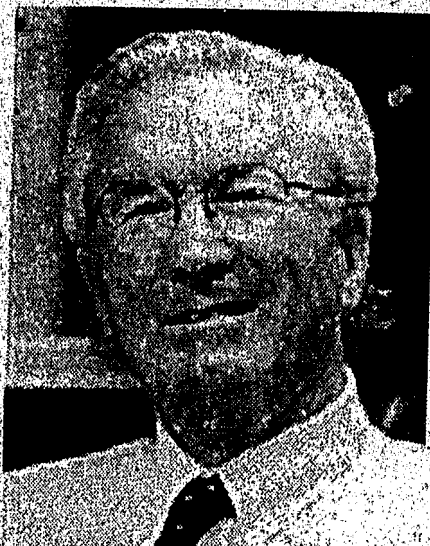

McNally, 67, says that's a pretty strong accusation and one that's unfair. It's also Fortinberry's "campaign" tactic, he added. McNally plans to retire at the end of his six-year term, and has to by law because he turns 70 the last year.

Fortinberry said she has made "no decision" to run in the next election. At present, she's busy raising three young sons. In response to McNally's comments, she said, "There is no campaign tactic. This is a citizen of Independence Township concerned about the way he's running his court."

"I guess I want to emphasize that, in no way is this a personal attack. This is in response to the way he does his job and has done his job for many years."

Dana Fortinberry says Judge Gerald McNally should resign.

McNally bristles at complaints from those who've dubbed him "Gentle Gerry."

"I get this rap of Gentle Gerry because I'm always polite to people," McNally said during an interview last week. "I don't yell and scream. I guess I'm peculiar that way."

McNally said he is bound to follow "a whole variety of state and federal law. We can't just go 'Off with their heads.'" In the Werner case, McNally said he was following the law, continuing the bond previously set by the jail. In accusing him of the death, Fortinberry "gives new meaning to the words 'mean and vicious,'" McNally said in a response to Fortinberry's letter to The Clarkston News (Both letters are published in Letters to the Editor this week).

"This was a tragic event. But if Dana wants to make political hay about it, that's her choice," McNally said. He calls the Werner situation a "garden variety" case.

"Out of the thousands and thousands of cases (he's seen in his career), this is the first one that bonded out and killed someone," McNally said.

"It's like someone who has a lot of speeding tickets and then speeds through a big intersection and kills a whole family. We simply continued the bond set at the jail."

Fortinberry said McNally could have set "a bond of $10,000 if he wanted to" to keep Werner in jail. "It's within his discretion as judge to set whatever bond is appropriate to follow those four elements I spelled out in my letter."

WE BELONG TOGETHER

In their own words . . . Letters to the Editor

Dana Fortinberry

Dear Editor,

In 1996, I ran against Judge Gerald E. McNally of the 52/2 District Court in Clarkston because, having served as Magistrate at the Court for over three years at that time, I could no longer tolerate Judge McNally's lenient treatment of dangerous criminals.

My campaign was endorsed by both the Oakland County Sheriff's Command Officers Association and the Deputy Sheriff's Association. Unfortunately, I was unsuccessful in unseating Judge McNally in that year's election, and he began a new six-year term in 1997.

Now my greatest fear has been realized. A bright and promising 22-year-old young woman is dead because Judge McNally refused to hold her killer accountable for repeated previous violations of the law.

On July 1, 1999, Judge McNally arraigned Paul D. Werner on his third drunk driving charge and continued the standard bond of $100 which had been set prior to Mr. Werner's release at the Oakland County Jail.

Just eighteen days later, Mr. Werner, driving the wrong way on I-75 with a blood alcohol content of .23, collided with a car being driven by Michael Pagel. Mr. Pagel's girlfriend, Stephanie Steele, was killed in the impact and Mr. Pagel was severely injured.

Miss Steele would be alive today if Judge McNally had done his job as the law requires him to do it.

When arraigning a person charged with a crime, all judges are required by Michigan law to set a bond which reflects the following factors: (1) the seriousness of the offense charged; (2) the protection of the public; (3) the previous criminal record and the dangerousness of the person accused; and (4) the probability or improbability that the person accused will appear at the trial.

I don't know how Judge McNally could have released Mr. Werner on July 1 on a mere $100 bond when it was apparent that he had been convicted on two previous occasions of driving while intoxicated and that he was very likely to repeat the behavior.

If Judge McNally had done a proper and thorough de novo review of the defendant's record and had set an appropriate bond on July 1, Mr. Werner would have been behind bars on July 18 and Stephanie Steele would be reporting for work at her job today.

State records show Judge McNally's inattentiveness to his obligations in this case are not merely a one-time aberration. In my campaign materials, I noted the results of the 1994 Drunk Driving Audit, which is compiled annually by the Michigan State Police and the Michigan Department of State.

Since 1995, Judge McNally has utilized the services of numerous visiting judges at the 52/2 District Court to help him complete his docket, so the 1994 Audit is in fact the last one to reflect only the work of Judge McNally himself.

That Audit clearly shows that, in Judge McNally's court, the average sentence given to drunk driving offenders, regardless of the number of prior convictions of each offender, was one day in jail.

Since every criminal offender receives credit in his sentence for the day of his arrest, what this means is that, during the time period for which these statistics were compiled by the state, Judge McNally never sentenced anyone to jail for drunk driving. The statistics from that audit reflect accurately the sentencing habits of Judge McNally during the more than three years I served as Magistrate at the 52/2 District Court.

I am sure that this letter, like any previous criticism of Judge McNally, will draw responses from many defense attorneys who will laud Judge McNally's judicial restraint when it comes to punishing their clients for the crimes of which they have been convicted.

The fact remains, however that Judge McNally has willfully and consistently refused to do the job that is required of him by state law.

After more than 30 years on the bench, Judge McNally is totally out of touch with his primary responsibility, which is protecting the people of the State of Michigan by upholding the laws of this state. It is time for Judge McNally to resign.

Very truly yours,
Dana L. Fortinberry

Judge Gerald E. McNally

Dear Editor,

Dana Fortinberry gives a new meaning to the words "mean and vicious" when she uses the tragic loss of a child to promote her own candidacy for district judge.

A much more appropriate response would be a period of silence and some sort of prayer of compassion.

Of course, desperate people do desperate things.

Golf course rezoning is the correct choice

Although rezoning of the former Clarkston Golf Course has been an emotional issue, we feel the Independence Township Board of Trustees has made the right decision.

Located at the corner of Eston and Algonquin roads, the board rezoned 37 acres of the nine-hole golf course from Recreation to Suburban Farms Residential (R-1C), and five acres from Recreation to Rural Residential (R-1R).

The township's purchase of the property to run as golf course, as requested by some residents, would have been a risky venture.

Independence Township is blessed with excellent parks already. The popularity of nine-hole golf courses has dwindled, as the sport grows in popularity, especially in upscale Oakland County. And Oakland County Parks and the Huron Metro parks system operate three nearby golf courses.

Clarkston Road Needs Passing Lane

Dear Editor,

The Independence Township Planning Commission, Dale Stuart and (township planner) Dick Carlisle are at it again. Well, some members of the Planning Commission. Please exclude commissioners Palulian, Travis and Figa. They voiced concern earlier.

There is a new day care center opening at the corner of Clarkston Road/Pine Knob Road. You can imagine my dismay when I read that Mr. Carlisle did not foresee a requirement for a passing lane on Clarkston Road as a prerequisite for site approval of the day care center. "A passing lane is needed on Eastbound Clarkston Road..." the article intimated.

Mr. Carlisle, where is your head? Mr. Stuart, how can this type of slip-up occur?

The article further intimated that the "(sic) burden of major improvements at the Clarkston/Pine Knob roads should not be placed on one developer." As a taxpayer in the township, who should pay for the improvement?

Do you suggest putting this tax on the shoulders of Independence Township residents? Or tax Oakland County residents? Or Pine Knob Music Theater? Tom Wilson would really like to hear that.

Driving west on Clarkston Road approaching Pine Knob Road, there is an elevation change in the road. I never use the corner for fear of an accident. I hope the township planners have driven to the area once in a lifetime to see the potential difficulty.

From the planning I have witnessed, it's doubtful. I foresee a major accident around this intersection. Perhaps the accident would involve children. Where will Messrs. Stuart and Carlisle be at that time?

By the way, the building and site look very inviting. Let's hope the township engineers and supervisors can plan this solution better than the plan executed for the development.

Thanks for your hospitality, generosity

Dear Editor,

Recently our Clarkston Girls Under-13 Select Soccer team had a bottle and can drive to help support our team for the 1999-2000 seasons.

Having never done this before, we weren't sure what kind of success to expect.

We were overwhelmed with the hospitality and generosity of the households we visited and would like to take this opportunity to thank all of those who contributed cans and bottles to our team. We raised $1,115.39, which was used to purchase our team warm-ups, athletic bags, and practice balls.

Thanks again to a community always willing to support their youth sports teams.

Lilith Fair was more than just a chick fest

Attending the "Lilith Fair" at Pine Knob Music Theatre was a read bonding experience for me and my college-age daughter.

This was the last year for the all-female tour, headed by sensitive singer Sarah ("Angel," "Hold On") McLachlan. Also on the bill this year were Sheryl Crow, the Dixie Chicks, Queen Latifah, Martina McBride and Liz Phair. A myriad of styles, from rock to country to rap.

It's interesting to note that McLachlan couldn't get backing when she originated the idea several years ago. Promoters told her an all-female tour would never make it in this male-dominated industry.

She had the last laugh. McLachlan persisted and the first summer Lilith Fair ran, it outgrossed ticket sales at every other concert tour. It's continued to be a consistent sellout.

How ironic that McLachlan — I guess you could call her a feminist because she touts female empowerment — is now choosing to end the festival because she is joining the traditional ranks of many of us.

She married her drummer, Ash Sood, and wants to settle down and raise a family. But she says she may be back in five to 10 years.

I hope she returns. Lilith Fair was more than just a profound musical experience. It opened my eyes to the unique contributions we have as women.

One dollar of each concert ticket went to abuse victims at women's shelters. There were a host of other causes represented — everything from donations for breast cancer research to safe sex and talking to your teenager about drugs.

Those are powerful messages for any gender and any age.

There was also fun — lots to eat and drink, clothes, jewelry, Tower Records discounts (my daughter and I delighted in tracks by Janis Joplin, Joni Mitchell, Linda Ronstadt and Sinead O'Connor) and a chance to check out local talent at two other stages. I particularly enjoyed the group Wild Strawberries and my wheelchair-bound father-in-law raved over a Christian singer.

It was neat that McLachlan included more genres this year — country with the Dixie Chicks and McBride, and rap with Queen Latifah.

Normally, I hate rap. But when I watched VH1's recent countdown of the best female artists of all time, I was impressed by Latifah saying that she wears a crown to represent all women. She said every woman should think of herself as a queen and always hold her head up high.

These are the kinds of messages I want my daughter to embrace. The gut-wrenching honesty — not the hypocrisy and the myths we accept blindly.

Lilith Fair has endured much criticism. For example, Jerry Falwell has called it a pagan festival because Lilith — supposedly Adam's first wife — was banished for her fierce, independent streak.

Others smirk because the festival draws alternative lifestyles — i.e. lesbians.

Well, I'll tell you, I'm at the point in my life where I believe it is more blessed to love than slander. I choose to accept Christ's message of love and forgiveness rather than the Old Testament way of burning in hell. Messages like "Judge not, lest ye be judged" and "Love thy neighbor as thyself" mean more.

Make no mistake, I'm not condoning alternative lifestyles. Rather, I'm saying life is too short to spend time dissing others. Take care of yourself and make your own choices.

I have always been proud of the fact that I'm an open-minded person. I'm far happier in pleasing my-

School days, school days

I knew it was getting close to the first day of school. I just didn't think it was so close to happening. Then I got behind a school bus, enroute to the office. Late for work again, folks.

I don't think I was ever late — excuse me, tardy — for school. Let me add for the record, I don't count college classes in the "school" realm of thinking. Progress reports from Mrs. Wood's first grade class to Mrs. Schreiner's fourth grade class show zero (accumulative) times tardy. Thank you, very much.

Of course, while I pat myself of the back and smile smugly at my timeliness, I can also assume some of my teachers would have liked a little time for themselves and their classes. Let's just say I wasn't your model student. Let's just say were I going to school today, educators would call for the administration of mind-numbing drugs. Were I in elementary school today, I'm sure Ritalin would rear its head in my direction.

I'm glad I'm not in school today just as much as today's teachers are glad I went to school 20 years ago.

I went to the fourth grade at Clarkston schools' Bailey Lake Elementary (1972-1973). There were six marking periods and in all Mrs. Schreiner noted yours truly "whispers too much." My conduct for the fifth marking period was, "unsatisfactory." I think that fifth marking period was about the time myself and a number of kids got taped to our desks.

What we did to incur the wrath of Mrs. S. I do not know... I do know punishment was quick. About 100 years old when I was in her class, she whipped out from behind her desk and across the room like O.J. Simpson running through the airport. It's all a blur now, but I think she actually hurdled the last row of kids to get to me and my malcontent chums.

Where she pulled that roll of masking tape from I can't say, but when she reached us she had it in hand. In no-time we were each, individually taped to our chairs, bound tighter than a calf at a rodeo.

Looking back, I suppose the preceding years were a good indicator of what would culminate with the dreaded Masking Tape Incident.

I went to kindergarten through the first half of third grade at Ashcroft Elementary School in Redford Township. They had four marking periods with three conduct levels:

1. Needs Improving
2. Improving
3. Satisfactory

Or bluntly: 3. Good; 2. Okay; and 1. Will somebody slap this kid — which was totally cool at the time. In Mrs. Wood's first grade class I racked up "1's" in developing listening skills (that's why I became a reporter-type); tries for self improvement (hey babe, if it ain't broke, don't fix it); follows directions; and assumes responsibility (What, I was just sitting here?).

Don't Rush Me

Don Rush

In the second grade Mrs. Marsden had a problem with my attitudes and habits — throughout the year I needed "to improve" my use of self-control. In the first half of the third grade Mrs. Milazzo agreed with Mrs. Marsden's assertion — Donald's self control needed help.

I still believe it was a conspiracy and vehemently deny any wrong doing.

Even though I had a crush on my other third grade teacher, Bailey Lakes' Mrs. Malkim (I think it was the long hair, groovy, circa 1971 lipstick and big round librarian-like glasses), she reminded me, "Say you're sorry," more than once. She also had me out in the hall more than once for corporal punishment — a swat on the bum (hey, maybe that's why I like her?).

Wow... so much time has passed since those days, about as much time as I spent behind that smackin' frackin' school bus this week.

Is it the season for multi-births?

Overheard conversation while sitting in Beaumont Hospital's ultrasound waiting room:

First the scene. I was with our twins-carrying daughter Susan. There were three pregnancies in the room when a fourth came in. The newcomer was asked by one already present, "When are you expecting?"

"In a couple months," she replied, adding, "with twin girls. How about you?"

"I'm just a few months along," Newcomer, "With how many?" Already present, "Four! Quadruplets!"

Newcomer, "What did your husband say?"

Already present, "He said I guess we'll have to buy a bigger boat!"

All the pregnancies in the room at 1:15 p.m. seemed to be interested in the program on the tv. I asked Susan the name of the show. "All My Children," she said.

I noticed that when a love making scene came on the tube none of the pregnancies watched.

Also, the quad-holder said to the twin-holder, "You're not that big!" Susan turned to me and said, "We're BIG!"

Jim's Jottings

Jim Sherman

This trip to the ultrasound room was to check the twins' breathing. Breathing? They're still in the womb. Apparently they breath fluids. Susan's having pickerel?

The media has done a good job scaring people about Y2K computer glitches that will eliminate all money access, halt food production around the world and bring about tidal waves, forest fires and earthquakes.

I don't know about the latter two, but the phrase, "safe as money in the bank" holds true.

Federal banking regulators report that 99 percent of the nation's depository institutions have finished testing their critical systems for the Year 2000 readiness. And the outlook is good.

Cynics, like my sister, Barbara, say, "Yeah, but that 1 percent is my bank."

Golfer Fran Bertram, of Oxford, MI and Sebring, FL turned 76, August 14. He has shot his age on the golf course every year since he was 68, except the year he was par (72).

On this recent birthday he missed his age by one shot. The 8-handicapper missed a 12-ft putt on 18 for a 77.

self than others. That's why I keep my ears, eyes and heart open when it comes to music. I love everything from Mozart and the Beatles to Alice in Chains.

Don't draw the line at Cher and Barbra Streisand. Listen to newer artists like Tori Amos and Alanis Morissette. Don't just fit in to what other people your generation do. Think for yourself.

Lilith Fair was more than a celebration of women in music. It was a celebration of women in life.

Unfortunately, it started with a tobacco slogan, but here goes: "We've come a long way, baby!"

Like Lilith, I have a fierce, independent streak. And, you know what? I'm damn proud of that.

Back to school? What's the big deal?

BY KEVIN KOSBAB

I'm sure the expectation is that I'll write about going back to school and how I feel about that. To make it simple, I'd rather have a longer summer; I'm not looking forward to school, end of story.

You must have already known that. Besides, I probably wrote last summer of not wanting to go back to school, and I'm sure you all have checked back in those archives of my columns you keep.

It wasn't a conscious effort, but I'm sort of ignoring the beginning of school this year. I went to orientation and everything, but it feels more like I've never left the building than I'm going back.

And I've bought clothes. Same stores as last year. My mom has quite the obsession with color, so she offered tidbits about the colors we saw.

"Red's the big color this year. For women, at least, red's the new gray. Gray was the big color last year." I'd say I don't really listen, but obviously I do, if I can recall it now. And I have to be polite, since she's the one paying for all the clothes.

I've got all my notebooks, binders, pens, and other various equipment. That part got me a bit excited just because I've got a strange and sick affection for new office supplies.

I could never work in a real office. I'd be the one swiping all the pens, unless they were ballpoint, of course, or otherwise sub-standard. Then I'd be the one in a ridiculous rage because I only had ballpoints to write with. The excitement quickly passed, and the supplies are lying in a plastic bag in front of my desk, which itself has not been cleared off for fear of homework filling the space.

After so many years of schooling, there's no more thrill. Now that many of my friends and I can drive, it's a lot easier to get together over the summer, so the element of not seeing people as much when out of school has been eliminated.

I haven't gotten a chance to get bored this summer, either - my job's kept me occupied. Thus, I'm not starved for any sort of activity involving movement. In fact, going back to school will mean taking a pay cut. I won't have as many hours available to work in.

I feel like I should say something optimistic. A tender message to leave you with, perhaps. But I don't feel tender or optimistic. I rarely do. And I don't have to! But I do have to go back to school.

It's not the actual schooling that bugs me. I've got no problem with learning, but the monotony of the return gets to me - I've done it all before.

I'll live, as I have the past ten times. And if I ever again get grumpy with the whole thing, I'll randomly find a name in the Clarkston phone book, call them up, and ask to borrow their Kevin Kosbab column collection as a source of inspiration.

A Look Back

By Eileen McCarville

15 YEARS AGO (1984)

If Independence Township keeps its newly hired seventh deputy, it faces dwindling police funds. Therefore, the board agrees to cancel the deputy's contract, and for the sixth time since 1976, asks voters to approve a millage increase for police.

The Clarkston High School varsity football team is whipping itself into shape, with two hour practices, twice a day.

25 YEARS AGO (1974)

Following Foghat's performance at Pine Knob Music Theatre, owner Joey Nederlander agrees to prohibit further hard rock concerts. His decision falls in line with recommendations made by Independence Police Director Jack McCall. Complaints range from alcohol and marijuana use to obscene language and poor crowd control.

No teacher salaries contract has been reached between the Clarkston Board of Education and Clarkston Education Association.

50 YEARS AGO (1949)

Officers for the newly reorganized Clarkston school district include: Paul Henry, President; F. LaVerne Spooner, Secretary and Keith L. Leak, Treasurer. Ronald Weber and Walton Robbins will serve as trustees.

RECOVERING DAMAGES

Those who are injured as a result of another's liability or negligent behavior are entitled to recover damages. Special damages, so named because they can be calculated with a certain degree of precision, consist of compensation for past and future medical bills and lost wages. General damages, which cannot be so precisely calculated, include compensation for the pain and suffering, past and future, endured by the injured party. Finally, there are punitive damages that, although not available in all states, are worth mentioning. They uphold the principle of public policy that a negligent party may be held liable for more money than it would take to compensate the injured party, serving as a warning to other negligent wrongdoers.

How will you protect your family if you are seriously injured? When someone else's carelessness causes you injury, changing your life forever, they should be held responsible. Here at 11 North Main Street, our profession is resolving conflicts for the benefit of our clients and their families. For us, practicing law is more than just a business. It is a profession in which we can help people at times of crisis and conflict when they need help most. To schedule a consultation, call 620-1030.

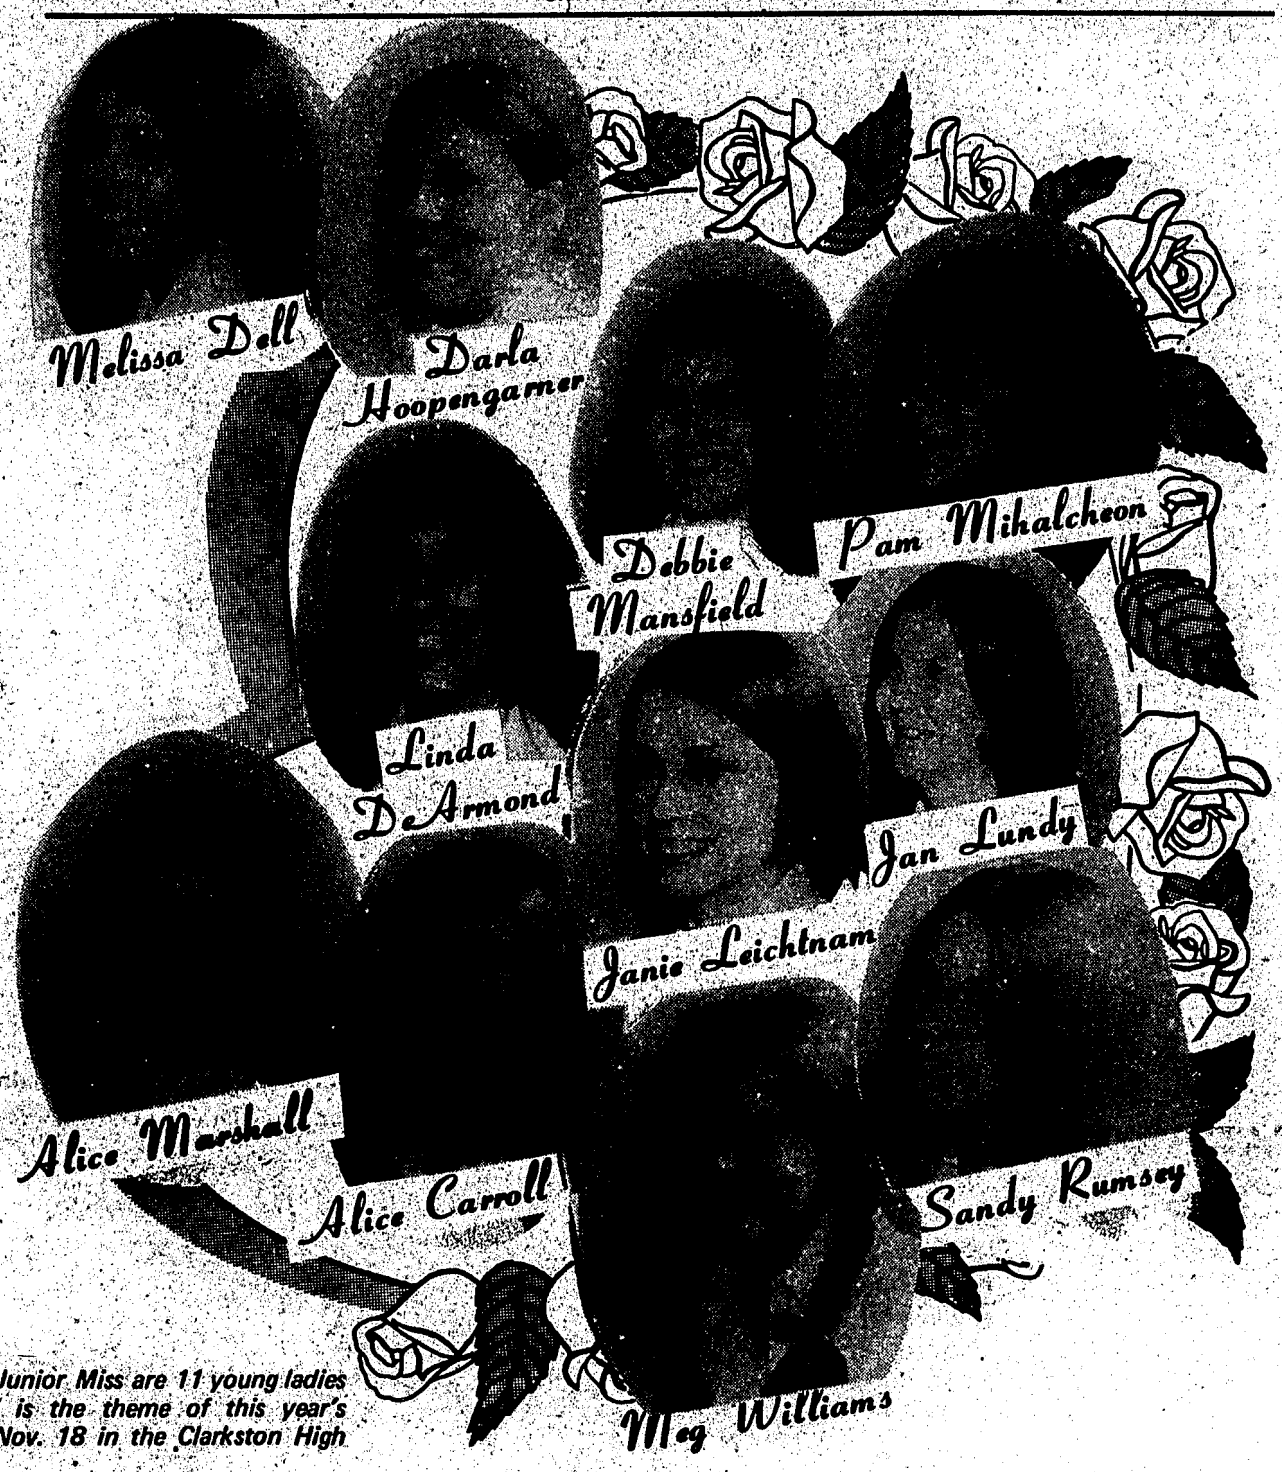

HINT: General damages include compensation for disability or disfigurement arising from another person's liability or negligent conduct.

Jim's Jottings

By Jim Sherman

When a gal handed me a card at Ford Hospital last week she said, "You'll need that when you come back." I quickly blurted, "I'm never coming back!" For a country boy to visit Ford is a confusing, then frightening experience.

Tranquilizers should be dispensed upon entering the parking area.

I wasn't sick, I just needed a test. Had I been sick someone else would have had the worry. The maze of corridors, bubbled out with waiting areas. The mass of people, unsmiling whether patients, workings or visitors.

And the waiting. On your first visit to Ford Hospital you're supposed to arrive an hour before your appointment to fill out forms. The form filling took about 3 minutes. Their typing it up took about 20 minutes.

Then upstairs to a waiting room. My appointment was for 1:30 p.m. so I didn't mind watching people until about 1:40. I have a thing about appointments. I feel they should be kept.

Right or wrong, I run by the clock. If someone is to pick you up at 7:45, or vice versa, be ready. Not doing so is breaking an agreement.

It's disrespectful... discourteous. I don't understand why people plan something for 3 weeks then are 10 minutes late.

As you can see I have a hang up about appointments. So, as the time dragged on my mind wondered about this unknown physician I was to see.

Do doctors ever apologize for not keeping an appointment? (Do patients?)

I began to build up a dislike for the man for his taking our appointment, thus me, so lightly. He was showing no consideration to me.

Each glance at the clock brought more unkind thoughts.

Does he think his time is more valuable than mine? We were all created equal so he is no better than I. On and on it goes until by 2:12 my feelings bordered on hate.

Finally, my name was called by a gal in white. "Follow me." Why not, I say, all I was doing is waiting for a doctor. Then, into the doctor's private waiting room. Oh, boy! Another long wait.

But, no. The Professional Man comes to the door. He glances at your medical folder, looks into your eyes and says, "Mr. Sherman, I'm Dr. O'Gawa. Please come in."

All the animosity evaporates. Professional manner has dispelled your thoughts of the doctor's ancestry and replaced it with confidence.

No need for anyone to concern himself with my hospital visit. I was only using it as an excuse to get strokes from golfing opponents. I don't recommend it if you play against the snivlers I do.

Casual, comfortable and conservative are it this fall, say stores and students

CLARKSTON COOL

BY EILEEN McCARVILLE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

When it comes to back-to-school fashions, Clarkston kids have the look.

Youngsters were spotted around the area this week, shopping with parents, while teenagers attended registration at Clarkston High School. Getting class pictures taken gave them a chance to show off their new threads.

At CHS, freshman Brandon Miller sported a new button-down shirt, over a white T-shirt, and jeans. He helped buy some of his school clothes this year.

"I had to get a job, but my parents helped me out a lot," said Brandon, who's been working this summer at the Waterford Cinema 11.

Fellow freshman Ryan Coleman looked hip in cargo pants and his new navy blue Abercrombie & Fitch vest.

He admitted the vest was expensive, "like $60."

The boys were with two friends, Brandon Burton and Anton Rozhanskiy. The new clothes might have boosted their confidence, but all admitted they were nervous about attending a new school. All were former students at Clarkston Middle School.

"I'm scared," Brandon Miller said. "People are going to be bigger than me."

It was hard to find classes during a test run that day. "I'm going to get lost, but I don't care," said Ryan.

Four freshman girls, formerly from Sashabaw Middle School, said CHS looks "big." All said they hadn't had enough of summer. But they'd be happy to see their friends again, and meet new ones.

"Yeah ... the (boys') soccer team is practicing over there," said Alyssa Verneau with a smile. She wore an Old Navy Tech Vest over a sleeveless T-shirt, jeans and a silver, ball chain choker.

Two friends, Darcie Louisignau and Jenny Johnson wore several necklaces — including "tattoo jewelry" around their necks. The girls said the tattoo jewelry is versatile and can also be worn around the upper arm. It gives the look of a tattoo without actually having one.

Pat Goforth, secretary to the principal, said high school styles haven't changed much this year. She was sitting at her desk, watching the new freshmen trickle in.

"They seem to have gotten away from wearing the baggy jeans and sweatshirts. They don't have that oversized look. They seem to be wearing their true sizes," she laughed.

Goforth said she also noticed "a lot of the girls are cutting their hair off. It's shorter." She also sees more skirts and dresses. They're getting shorter too, she quipped. "A lot of their shoes have the chunky heel on them. They love those," she added.

Goforth sympathized with the teenagers' comments about the overwhelming new school. "But once they get used to it, it won't feel as big as it is. A few of us went back into the old high school. It feels so small."

Like area merchants, Goforth summed up the look as casual again this year.

"The Tech Vest — that's what's really popular this year," said Nadia Petrescu, sales manager of the Old Navy Clothing Store in Rochester Hills, which carries items for both children and adults. The Tech Vest sells for $17.50. Popular colors are baby blue, hunter green and hot pink. "We're running low," she said.

Cargo pants ($24) and flared jeans ($22.50) for girls are the hot looks in pants. "They want the sporty look," Petrescu said. Plaid skirts and dresses are also selling well. Currently "tons" of teens are shopping in her store, because Rochester students go back to school early.

They've got the look...

Posing at Depot Park, siblings Brittany and Frank Davis model two popular looks for youngsters this fall. Brittany's necklace and long-sleeved cotton shirt feature matching Tommy Hilfiger logos. They're paired with wide-leg jeans, and Brittany's long, wavy hair is neatly pulled back with plastic clips. Flowers and butterflies are especially popular with young girls. Frank's Abercrombie & Fitch vest looks great paired with a checked, button-down shirt and cargo pants. His mom spiked his new haircut. Both kids outfit their feet with Doc Martens.

Doing the 'do: What's hip this fall in hairstyles

BY RENEE WIGHTMAN
Clarkston News Staff Writer

As kids return to the classroom this fall, they're also checking into local hair salons to get a 'heads up' on hair fashion.

Whether it's short, long, blonde or black, hair-styling fads are created faster than shampoo rinses out. At least that's what several stylists and their clients seem to think.

One trend with junior high and high school boys is bleaching the ends of their hair, said Will Freed, who will be a senior at Clarkston High School.

Freed bleaches his hair regularly and says many of his peers do, too.

"Especially with summer, people put in Sun-In, anything to get blonder. My brother is 14 and he's thinking of doing it," he said.

Suzanne Iler, a stylist at Salon Bonjour in Clarkston, said young men wanting dyed hair used to be taboo.

"Guys never used to have their hair dyed when I was in high school. It was just something for adults," she said.

Clarkston More Than Hair owner JoAnn Zulinski said a number of kids are requesting lightened hair.

"Lightening or highlighting are both really big this year," she said.

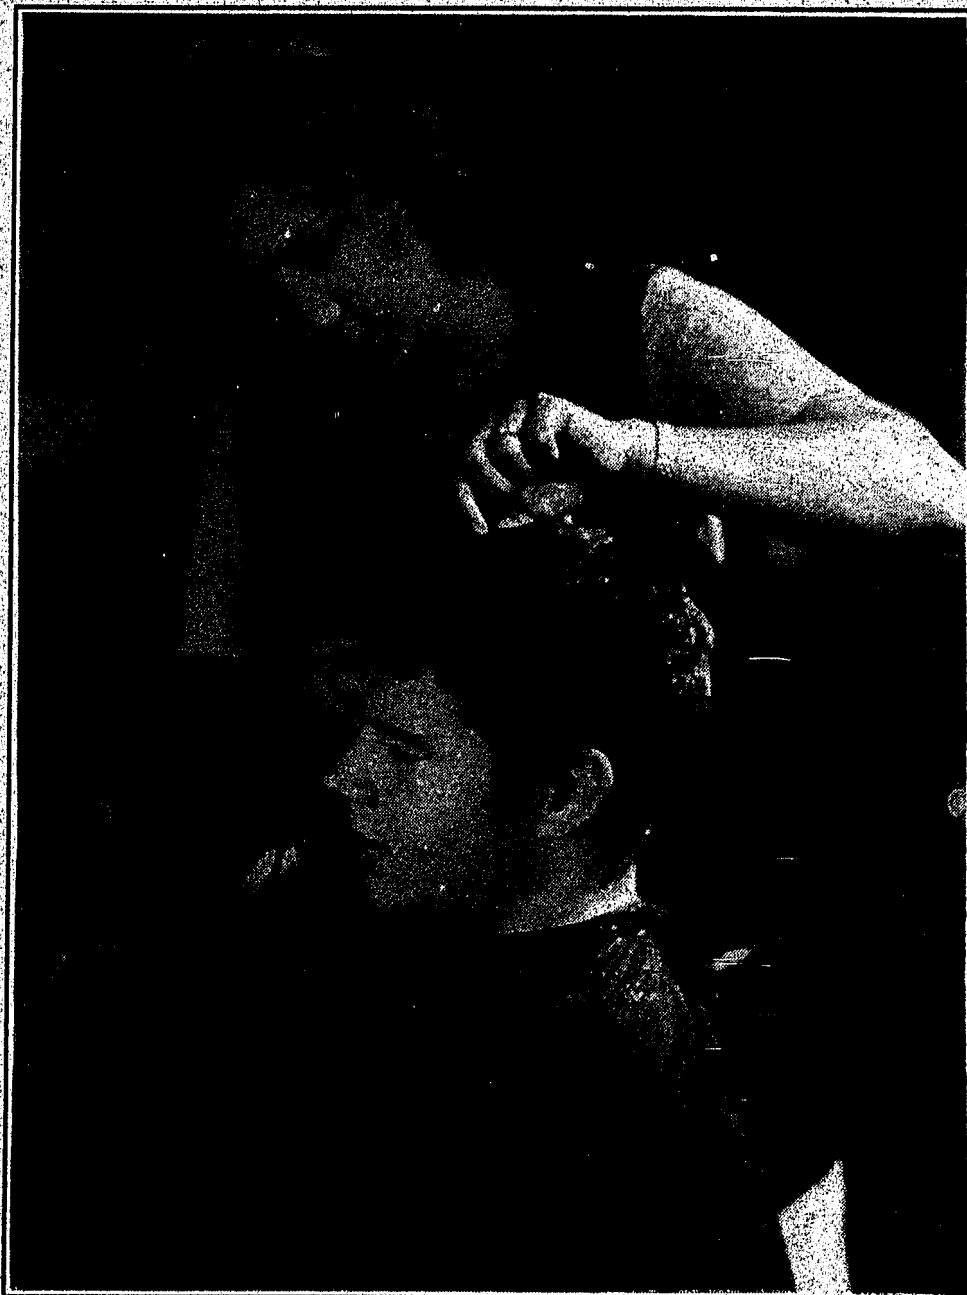

Sara Moor, soon to be in the eighth grade at Clarkston Middle School, recently had her hair lightened and enjoys the look.

Another middle school student, Jenny Howse, who will be a seventh grader at CMS, doesn't think the bleached look is very hip for boys, though.

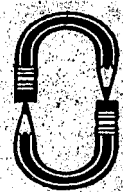

"It looks really bad on them. My mom wouldn't let my brother do it," she said.

Howse recently had her hair cut into a simple bob, and says most girls her age aren't into hairstyles that require a great deal of maintenance.

Will Freed, entering his senior year at Clarkston High School, gets his hair trimmed after the ends were bleached by stylist Suzanne Iler at Salon Bonjour in Clarkston. Freed says lightening hair is popular this fall for both guys and girls.

The cutting edge - back to school

Ryan Breeding, who will be a third grader in Waterford Schools this fall, goes from a spiked do (right, top picture) to a combed down look (left), with the help of More Than Hair stylist Cathy Krupp. "So many of the guys get summer buzz cuts and need to grow out their hair for school," Krupp said.

(Top right) Bryan Thibodeau, who will be a fourth grader in Brandon Schools, gets his hair neaten up for the start of the school year.

junior girls department (sizes 1-13) at Summit Mall in Pontiac, said she sells lots of cardigans with matching tank tops, pants with drawstrings, capris (three-quarter-length pants) and flared "big-leg" jeans. Hot clothing colors are orange, yellow, brown and army green.

"The new thing this year are the jeans with one big fold. The jeans are dark, but when you pull up the bottom it's lighter underneath." She just got new parachute pants in, but already figures they'll sell well. "My niece is 11 and she thought they were the greatest."

A shoe department salesperson said Doc Martens, Sketchers, Tommy Hilfiger items, laced boots and penny loafers are popular with both boys and girls. Tommy jeans, Nautica, Calvin Klein and Polo items are popular with high school boys, said a salesperson in that department.

Konfetti Kids, 5896 Dixie Highway in Independence Township, sells clothing to younger kids. Girls' sizes are 2T-14; boys' sizes range from 2T-7, and they also carry clothing for infants.

The store was crammed Thursday with parents and children. Salespersons, CHS junior Kelly Dobbins and Notre Dame Prep School junior Stacy Sikorski, say flared pants, striped down the side, are popular with little girls.

They're also buying "a lot of the capris," Kelly said. "And they're buying the shorts that have a flap and look like a skirt." Khakis and cargo pants are popular with both sexes.

Clarkston mom Laura Davis has been school clothes shopping with her two children. Brittany, 9, a fifth-grader, is in her last year at Clarkston Elementary School. Frank, 11, is entering Clarkston Middle School as a new sixth-grader this year.

They've been to Old Navy, Hudson's and Abercrombie & Fitch at Somerset mall. Old Navy's prices are "more reasonable" than Abercrombie & Fitch, Laura said.

Brittany likes "the Tommy (Hilfiger) things," skirts and jeans. Both kids like cargo pants and Frank bought a new Abercrombie & Fitch vest this year.

As for their hair, "Frank likes to get his up. Brittany wears those little (plastic) clips, sometimes in hers."

Laura describes the look for the new school year as relaxed, "It's casual but conservative."

Brittany and Frank modeled two of their new looks for The Clarkston News last week. Frank said his new spiked do was "real comfortable." His mom cuts his hair at home. Brittany said the clips (these were flowers) keep her hair out of her eyes.

Frank wore cargo pants and his new vest over a checked, short-sleeve shirt. Brittany wore a Tommy shirt, matching Tommy necklace and flared jeans. Both wore Doc Martens.

Laura was told her kids looked like they stepped out from the pages of a catalog. She laughed. "Made to order," she quipped.

Jenny wears a tattoo choker and other neck jewelry to create a layered look.

Finishing touches

(Above) From top, Darle's neckwear includes a tattoo choker, a silver butterfly necklace and a colorful daisy choker.

Stylin' for back to school

Moor said she sees varied hairstyles for both girls and boys headed back to school.

"Some of (the girls) are doing spirals and some have all the same length hair. Some have really short hair," she said. "The guys are flipping it up or combing it down."

Freed said he knows many high school girls who are dyeing their hair completely blonde.

"That will never change," Iler said.

Iler said girls will go to all lengths with their hair — literally.

"They're getting it cut real short. A lot of them have really curly hair. I think that looks cute," she said.

As far as cuts for guys are concerned, Freed said short is definitely popular.

"Most guys like their hair short. Bowl cuts are pretty much out," he said.

Iler added that the 80s look of shoulder length hair is anything but "in" with males.

"That long look is gone," she said.

However, the use of gel that came in with 80s fashion trendiness continues to be attractive.

April Worley, a stylist at More Than Hair, said brushing boys' hair forward and gelling it is popular.

"We're doing a lot of cuts where you push the bangs forward, and get it, like the Backstreet Boys or George Clooney," she said.

Zulinski said basic cuts are always "in," whether it be for boys or girls.

"Long hair (for girls) still seems to be popular, and there are still a lot of clipper cuts for boys," she said.

Among the more unusual, but still making the scene in schools, are dreadlocks, Freed said.

"I knew a guy who had dreds. I've seen a couple people like that," he said. "Nothing too crazy."

The goth look remains popular among some high schoolers, Freed said. Hair dyed black instead of red and purple is the most recent fad, he said.

Is Judge Gerald McNally too soft on crime?

The elements cite state law requirements for arraignment by judges. Among them are the person's previous criminal record and protection of the public.

According to police reports, Werner was convicted for two alcohol-related driving offenses in 1991. He had no alcohol-related driving incidents until an arrest for drunk driving in Independence Township this year.

Oakland County Sheriff's Independence substation commander Lt. Dale LaBair pulled Werner's driving record last week.

He confirmed Werner was arrested for drunk driving in Independence Township June 23, just days before the fatal crash, and arraigned by McNally on that charge. The charge is still pending.

"This guy has a horrendous driving record -- no doubt about that. I hear from the guys. They're always complaining McNally doesn't do this and that. But our job is to arrest and investigate, not to punish. That's the court's job."

"Judge McNally has a reputation of being lenient. Gentle Gerry is just that," LaBair continued. "But in this specific incident, I didn't see anything improper. Any time I've asked for a high bond and explained the reasons, he's always set a substantial cash bond."

"The other side is Judge McNally has been out here for about 30 years. And he hasn't changed that much. People in this district must know what they're getting and agree with it because they keep electing him. You get what you ask for."

Asked if he believed McNally should retire, LaBair said he didn't want to answer the question that way. "I will say, I think Gerry McNally owes himself some serious time on the golf course."

Donna J. Fahrner

Former Clarkston resident, Donna Fahrner, active in the community for 40 years, died August 22, 1999.

Mrs. Fahrner, who moved to Tawas City three years ago with her husband, Harry, was 68 years old.

Mrs. Fahrner retired from The Clarkston News as business manager after 20 years of service.

Clarkston News owner and former publisher, Jim Sherman Sr., said, "She was a godsend to our paper. She knew so many people, she made it easy for us to provide the area with its community news."

Mr. and Mrs. Fahrner were charter members of the Clarkston Jaycees and Clarkston Village Players. Other memberships include the Episcopal Church of the Resurrection, Clarkston Women's Club and the Dance Club.

Friend and former neighbor, Kay Robertson, who was a member of a local bridge club with Mrs. Fahrner for 15 years, remembers her as "a real warm lady. When I came to town in 1958 she made me feel welcome in town. She asked me to join the Clarkston Women's Club."

She is survived by her husband Harry, and her children Marcia (Ben) Hubbard of Ann Arbor, Michael (Rene) of Clarkston, Mary (Tom) Hall of Tawas City and Sharon of Phoenix.

Donna J. Fahrner

Obituaries

She is also survived by her grandchildren Zachary, Marie, Jason, Tara, Jacklyn, Matthew, Stephanie, Samuel and Eric, and her brother Robert (Arlene) Luke and sister Audrey Short.

A funeral service is Thursday, at 10 a.m. at the Lewis E. Wint & Son Trust 100 Funeral Home Clarkston, where friends may visit Wednesday from 3-5 and 7-9 p.m. Interment is at White Chapel Cemetery. Memorials may be made to the Episcopal Church of the Resurrection.

It's outta here!

(Right) Bill Mason of Clarkston knocks one into the outfield at the softball semifinals game for seniors at Clintonwood Park Thursday morning. Although the team lost to Farmington Hills, several of its members will play with other area senior leagues in the Seniors World Series for softball August 28 in Tallahassee. Clarkston's team members will be among 130 other teams from around the globe at the tourney, which was through invitation only.

(Below) Harold Rose of Metamora pitches to the next batter Thursday morning at Clintonwood Park during the semifinal men's softball game versus Farmington Hills. Rose will be among several other members of the Clarkston team to travel to Tallahassee August 28 for the Seniors World Series for softball.

Here's a sharp way to make a decision. Some people in the Middle East once believed it best to attach labels to arrows and follow the instructions on the arrow found to fly the farthest.

SKIN DEEP

by Scott Friedman, D.O.

MOLE WATCH

On average, young adults have at least 25 moles. And, because a change in a mole may be the first sign of an early malignant melanoma, regular examination of moles is encouraged. Malignant melanoma, the most serious form of skin cancer, begins in benign moles about one-third of the time. According to recent research, the most crucial signal that moles give is to change color - especially suddenly turning black. When checking moles, therefore, look for uneven color. If moles exhibit varying shades of brown or black, they should be examined by the dermatologist immediately. Suspicions should also heighten if moles appear asymmetrical, have indistinct borders, are larger than 1/4 in., bleed, or change size or texture.

Any questions regarding your skin, including moles, should be brought to the attention of a dermatologist. They are best able to advise you as to the proper treatment. A change in the color or shape of a mole may be a warning sign that should not be overlooked. Contact one of our offices, conveniently located at 6330 Sashabaw, Clarkston (625-0692) and 3003 Baldwin, Lake Orion (391-9599) for personalized attention to your skin care needs.

P.S. Malignant melanoma can be successfully treated in its early stages.

Progress stalls on city hall in the entire package, or would be separate from the conceptual and construction phases of the project. Construction documents are needed in a project like this, right after the architect submits renderings of the project.

Council member Karen Sanderson expressed concern over how much the project would cost if the council brought in an architect. The council is operating on an approximate budget of $150,000, or equivalent to the money raised by the .7 mill increase in taxes the council approved in June specifically for this project. Clifton said the eventual cost of the project will be the same, whether the council decides on a design-build route, or hires an architect.

"The whole thing, including architectural fees, would be within budget," she said. "We need to provide specific information."

City attorney Tom Ryan recommended the council bring up the issue again at its Sept. 13 meeting. By that time, the council will have more information on construction document costs.

Height ok'd for Trillium

3 1/2 inches, contingent on a development agreement being drawn up by township attorney Gerry Fisher. The agreement is needed to make sure the height won't exceed that limit, and that other conditions set by the board will be adhered to.

If not, the agreement will be "null and void," Fisher said. Developers would then have to return with a whole new site plan.

The two-building facility will feature 218 apartments in a combination of one, two and three stories. The height fits the township's limit of 35 feet for senior housing.

City council to meet with bond attorney at special meeting

The Clarkston city council could get some of its toughest questions answered regarding the water main project through downtown at a special meeting Sept. 2.

The council will meet with Dennis Neiman, a member of the firm Miller Canfield, which specializes in drawing up bond programs like the one the council is considering to fund the water main project.

The meeting will be held at 7 p.m. at the city hall meeting room.

The city is still looking into different ways the project could be funded, and what options are open to it, given the large cost of the project and the limited resources the city has to fund one. Gary Tressell, the city's engineer, is researching grants the city could receive from the state, as well as other ways it can reduce the cost of such a project.

The 1999 Clarkston varsity football team.

Wolves hungry for football success

'It's going to be a bloodbath Friday night' - coach Kurt Richardson

BY BRAD MONASTIERE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

The offensive and defensive line-men of the Clarkston varsity football team have set a trend for their teammates off the field; "It's cool to be fat."

The line will also lead the team on the field, as the Wolves open the highly anticipated 1999 season Friday night with a game at Waterford Kettering. Kickoff is set for 7 p.m.

This year's team sports the biggest offensive line in recent history, and a junior class that is coming off 9-0 seasons at the freshman and JV levels. While those are good things to have in the pre-season, the team still has to go out and perform in the regular season, according to coach Kurt Richardson.

"I think we all have high expectations for the season, but it's not just going to happen. We have to make it happen," he said. "We've set some goals for ourselves, but we have to put the work in to achieve those."

A football team's success often hinges on the performance of the offensive line, and Clarkston has one of the best anywhere. All five starters return from a year ago, and are big, strong and intelligent.

The line is anchored by four-year starter Ryan "Bubba" Clement, just the second four-year varsity football player Richardson's had - Dugan Fife was the first. Clement is being recruited by several Division I college programs, including Michigan State and North Carolina.

"It seems like Bubba's been here forever," Richardson said. "He's coaching the other kids on the field and makes all the right calls."

Joining the 6-foot-3, 280-pound Clement on the offensive line are Jon Robinson, Brent Schermerhorn, Jay Manojlovich and Eric Bauer. Richardson is quick to point out that this group is as intelligent as it is big.

"They are a very intelligent group," he said. "They're all good students in the classroom, and that definitely translates over onto the field. They all know the offense so well."

The main beneficiaries of this line are senior tailback Chris Mitchell and junior quarterback Ryan Kaul. Richardson said Mitchell has improved his speed from a year ago, when he had a solid first season on the varsity.

"Chris is so much faster than last year, I told him he sold that piano off his back," Richardson said. "I noticed it in baseball, that he's much quicker and faster than last year."

Kaul will step into the starting lineup at quarterback, and has been a he said. "I knew he would be good, but I didn't expect him to play as well as he has. His leadership has been great, and he's been doing a little of everything. He's doing the punting, will kick PATs (extra points), and even could play in the secondary for us if we needed him to. He does everything I would expect a senior quarterback to do. He makes good decisions."

Kaul's strong arm and mobility will be assets to the offense, which Richardson still wants to be balanced with the pass as well as the run.

Juniors Adam Gebus and Ryan Briceland are the starting wide receivers, although Briceland will not be available to play until the team's Sept. 10 game against Troy Athens. Senior Chad Booker and junior Nick Beadles will also split time at fullback.

"Gebus has been very good for us," Richardson said. "Steve Schornak has also done well, and he gives Ryan a big target out there."

Seniors Andy North and Adam Schapman will see most of the playing time at tight end, and give Kaul another pair of tall, athletic receivers.

Defensively, the Wolves will stick with their 50 defensive formation this season, and will deploy excellent athletes all over the field.

Clement will start along the defensive line which boasts of a lot of depth. Robinson will be one of the linebackers and will be joined by senior Jeremy Williams and junior Ramzy Dasugi. Richardson said the defensive unit will have a lot of role players, with some starting on first and second downs, while others come in on third down. Booker will also be a fixture at line-backer.

The secondary is athletic and features returning starter Rocky Lund. Senior Ryan Thomas started the team's last game of last season against Lake Orion, and figures to start most of this season. They are joined by juniors Cody Senkyr and Matt Pearsall, who were important pieces in last year's 9-0 JV team.

Another player who will see plenty of time is senior Ross Martello. He is the backup quarterback, but will also see time in the secondary and on special teams.

"Ross will be in there for us somewhere," Richardson said. "He's worked very hard, and we'll have him on every special team we have."

This year's junior class comes to the varsity team with a perfect high school record. When they were freshmen in 1997, Dave Whitehead coached them to a 9-0 record, and last year under Doug Colling, the team also went 9-0 and featured a terrific defense.

"They are used to winning," Richardson said of his juniors. "Winning breeds winning, there's no doubt about that. But I've seen other JV teams that have gone 9-0 and been mediocre on varsity. Then we had a freshman team that went 0-9 and ended up making the playoffs when they got to varsity."

This year's team is not only big in size, but big in numbers. With 70 players on the team, it's the most players Richardson's had since he became head coach in 1987. He said the large numbers are a source of concern for him.

"With having so many kids, unity and chemistry is a big question," he said. "I know some of the kids might not be happy with me, but I want them to be tight with each other."

Clarkston is coming off back-to-back 6-3 seasons, after winning its only OAA Division I title in 1996 when it went 9-0 before losing in the first round of the playoffs. High school football has a new playoff format this season, where every team that wins six games makes the playoffs, and some teams with five wins will get in, based on their playoff point totals.

As a result of the revamped format, there will be a district round to the football playoffs for the first time, which forced the start of the regular season one week earlier than usual. All teams will still play nine games and keep their traditional ninth-week opponent.

Last season, the OAA Division I made its case of being the best league in the state. Troy, Rochester Adams and Lake Orion all went 8-1 and advanced in the playoffs. The Dragons made it all the way to the state semifinals before losing to Rockford. Clarkston's 6-3 record a year ago was only good for fourth place in a league that is very tough, top to bottom.

"Troy is always the team to beat, but Rochester will be good this year," Richardson said. "Lake Orion looks outstanding, and I was told Troy Athens was an improved team this year. In this league, you gotta come to play every Friday. It doesn't get much tougher than we have it in our league."

Clarkston opens its season Friday night at Waterford Kettering. Although the Captains reside in the OAA Division II, Richardson said he's been very impressed with what he's seen from them in the pre-season.

"They've got two backs that can run and their quarterback throws decent," he said. "It's going to be a bloodbath Friday night, because you know they want Clarkston bad."

Youth will be queen on basketball team

Wolves return three starters, search for improvement

BY BRAD MONASTIERE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Clarkston varsity girls basketball coach Ann Lowney discovered one of the best ways she could improve as coach for the upcoming season was to spend a little time not being a coach.

"I took some time and got away from the game a little bit," she said. "I also went to some clinics, watched a lot of film, and really tried to become a better coach than I was a year ago."

Lowney made a big splash in her first season as Clarkston's coach in 1997, taking the team to an 18-4 record and an OAA Division I title. But last year, the team slipped to 8-13 and lost to Oxford in the first round of the playoffs.

"I've gotten back to teaching a lot of fundamentals this year," Lowney said. "I'm willing to admit that I made some mistakes last year, and that I needed a break. But it's good to learn from those mistakes, and hopefully I'm a better coach because of them."

This year's varsity team features six returning players, with only three seniors, and two freshmen.

The senior captains are guard Candace Morgan, forward Rachel Uchman and swingman Lindsey Prudhomme. Morgan is entering her fourth year on the varsity team, while Uchman and Prudhomme are in their third.

"I am very pleased at the work ethic of the team and the leadership from the seniors," Lowney said. "They are our captains not just because they are seniors, but because they are our leaders."

Morgan is an excellent outside shooter who has improved her game driving to the basket. Uchman has been one of the team's top defensive players the past two seasons, and was Clarkston's top rebounder a year ago. She also has a knack for finishing around the basket. Prudhomme has had a terrific preseason, according to Lowney, and is a good athlete who can make plays in the open court.

Juniors Kristen Falck and Sarah Morgan are also projected as starters, at point guard and center, respectively. Falck will have to carry a big load, especially after the departure of sophomore guard Kaye Christie, who is sitting out the season. Falck didn't play a lot on the varsity last year, but has shows excellent skills in practice so far.

"I think being on the varsity, and backing up Deana Kanipe was a good experience for her last year," Lowney said of Falck. "I've noticed that she is a very quiet competitor. If she keeps up that competitive edge, she can be very good for us."

Morgan evolved into an excellent center last year, effectively rebounding and scoring inside.

"Sarah has made the most strides of anyone else over the winter," Lowney said. "She has improved her free throw shooting, and is ready to take over the role of being a starter."

Another returning player is junior forward Tovah Bazely. Although she didn't play much last year, Lowney said she will fit into the frontcourt rotation this year with Morgan, Uchman and Prudhomme.

"Tovah became a much better athlete in the offseason," Lowney said. "She played on a very good AAU team, and I think that gave her some confidence."

The 1999 Clarkston varsity girls basketball team.

Two of the top players off the bench will also be the two youngest on the team. Freshman guards Kira Karlstrom and Jenn Carlson start their high school careers on the varsity team.

Karlstrom, who often practiced with the varsity team while in eighth grade, is a 5-foot-3 point guard, who is "our little pest," according to Lowney. She can defend on the ball very well and is a fundamentally sound player.

Carlson is already one of the team's better scorers and has 3-point range on her shot.

"Jenn is my purest scorer on the team," Lowney said. "Both of them have played the game for a long time and are great offensive shooters. I can see putting Kira on some of the tougher guards around too."

Juniors Emily Butzine and Katie Jerge will also see playing time in the frontcourt after being one of the top JV players last season. Juniors Nicole Thrift and Tricia Brewer will also get rotated into the guard positions.

One change Lowney wants to make with this team is to take some of the pressure off of it that

Soccer team ready for a third helping

Back-to-back district champs open season Tuesday night

BY BRAD MONASTIERE

Clarkston News Staff Writer

If the boys soccer season is a buffet, the Clarkston varsity team helps itself to the best selections at the end of the table.

After treading through the steamed green beans and overcooked potatoes of the regular season, the team has helped itself to heaping portions of apple crisp at the end of its seasons, winning two straight district titles.

The Wolves get started on a third trip to the table Tuesday night when they welcome the Rochester Falcons to town.

Clarkston coach Dan Fitzgerald said he gears his team towards improving in the regular season, with the goal of being successful in the postseason.

"The way I gear our season is that the postseason is the most important thing," Fitzgerald said. "It's a long season, and so much can happen, I don't want our guys getting burned out. This year's seniors want to finish the way the seniors the past two years have finished, and that's with a district title."

The Wolves will be strong up the middle with several returning players in the fold. Leading the midfielders will be seniors Mike Renda, Mike Licata, Jared Bauer and Bill Kalush. Renda is entering his fourth season on the varsity team, while Bauer, Licata and Kalush are in their third.

Renda is a big and strong player who can mark his man well, according to Fitzgerald. Bauer is a skilled playmaker who has become bigger and stronger in the offseason.

Kalush is an offensive threat every time he steps on the field, and is one of the fastest players on the team. Licata is another skill player who is an excellent passer.

Defensively, the team will be led by three-year starter Mike Tharrett, who had an outstanding season last year for Clarkston.

"He's one of those guys you don't notice as much, but he does his job very well," Fitzgerald said. "He is consistently steady for us in the back."

Derek Decker is another returning starter on defense, and will play sweeper for Clarkston. He is also much bigger and stronger than he was a year ago, Fitzgerald said.

Senior Dustin Coleman will be the starting goalkeeper for the Wolves. Injuries prevented him from playing much of last season, but he did start most of the team's games two years ago and brings experience and moxie to the position.

"Dustin has looked very good in practice so far," Fitzgerald said. "He's aggressive and has no fear back there, which is what you need to be a good goaltender. He takes a lot of heat off the defense."

Two of the top JV players from a year ago will headline the forwards, Derek Hartz and Pete Klemm were two of the top goal scorers for the JV team which finished 12-5-1 last year. Pete is the younger brother of Eric Klemm, who scored the district-winning goal for Clarkston last year against Rochester Adams.

Other first-year players expected to have an impact are freshman midfielder Shawn Gardner, and defenders Ryan Davis and Adam Kozarski.

Fitzgerald said he's been pleased with what he's seen from the team in the preseason so far.

"I think we'll be a team with a lot of depth," he said. "We had a real good first week of practice. It wasn't as hot as it was last year, and we don't have as many outside distractions as we did last year."

The team will play its home games at the old high school field, which is being converted into a soccer-only facility. Parents have been working on the field, scoreboard and locker rooms to make it a true home field for the soccer team, something Fitzgerald said will help the team once the season starts.

"A lot of parents and players have spent time working on the locker rooms, giving the kids lockers to use in the buildings," he said. "They also made the field a little wider and longer, and it looks real nice. We'll practice there once in a while too."

The Wolves figure to be a top contender in the Crank up the Hank - it's time for football season

There's no country music in my CD collection, but this time of year, the sound of Hank Williams, Jr. blasting his "Monday Night Football" theme song always gets the juices flowing.

Friday night, the Clarkston varsity football team's much-anticipated 1999 season underway with a game at Waterford Kettering starting at 7 p.m.

I am excited for the upcoming season. The guys have an opportunity over the next three months to enjoy some of the best times of their lives.

Here are a three reasons why I think this team has a chance to succeed this year:

■ The offensive line.

Affectionately known as "The Hogs," this group is tough, smart, experienced, determined, and BIG. The trio of Bubba Clement, Jon Robinson and Brent Schermerhorn have played together for three years on the varsity team, experience few other lines can match.

Complementing these three are seniors Eric Bauer and Jay Manojlovich. Bauer looks as much like an Amana refrigerator/freezer set as anything else. Manojlovich plays center and is responsible for making all the line calls and recognizing the alignment of the defensive front.

These guys take a lot of pride in what they do, and understand their roles on the team. They don't think of themselves as five offensive linemen, but one unit, working together to help the team win. With that kind of attitude, the team will go far.

■ The running game.

The powerful offensive line will be clearing holes for a stable of backs which should churn up the yards on offense. Chris Mitchell returns from a solid season last year and combines toughness with surprising speed and quickness. He's good at breaking tackles, and should he remain injury free, a 1,000-yard season is not out of the question.

Senior Chad Booker has moved from tight end to fullback, giving Mitchell yet another big body to run behind. He blocks with a lot of ferocity, and can catch the ball out of the backfield on occasion. Junior Rob Conley also figures to get a lot of playing time. He was the leading rusher on last year's 9-0 JV team, and is dart-quick.

■ The junior class.

This year's junior class comes to the varsity football program with an impressive pedigree. Eighteen wins, no losses in two seasons of high school football at the freshman and JV levels. Last year, the team beat the two toughest teams in the OAA Division I, Troy and Rochester Adams, by a combined score of 42-0. QB Ryan Kaul is athletic and has a very good arm. Players like Ramzy Dasuqi, Nick Beadles and Bryan Endreszl are playmakers on defense.

Coach Kurt Richardson, I'm sure, is quick to remind these players that an 18-0 high school record now means absolutely nothing, and he is right. The caliber of play at the varsity level is completely different. But one thing the 18 wins taught those players is how to win. Not all of their games were blowouts over those two seasons, and I'm sure they had a game or two that turned on a lucky bounce, a fluke play, a missed tackle. They understand how to win games, and how to make their own luck.

Although the team should be strong, no game on its schedule is a given. You still have to win one game before you can win two, and the players have to be cautious not to look too far ahead. From what I've seen so far, we could be in for a fun fall season.

■ On a related note, hearty congratulations go out to 1999 CHS graduate Nick Upchurch, who made the football team at the University of Central Florida.

"For a guy his size, to make a Division I team is a great compliment," Richardson said. "And they play all the big boys too, like Nebraska."

Upchurch was a captain of last year's football team and played along the defensive line. He was listed at 5-8, 170 pounds, very undersized for the position. But few players anywhere played with the kind of fire and heart Nick did.

I remember talking to him in the old high school cafeteria after the Kettering game last year, a 35-3 Clarkston win. Around 45 minutes after the game, his eyes were still ablaze, a hard look of determination on his face as he talked about how much he wanted the team to start the season with a win. After that meeting, I never had a doubt Nick would make a college team, no matter his size.

Richardson said Nick made the team as a running back and defensive back. He might not see much playing time this year, but to get where he is now, the battle is already won.

■ Here's my quick preview of the Detroit Lions, 1999 style.

Before Barry Sanders retired, I figured this team for 9-10 wins, battling for a playoff berth. I thought with a maturing Charlie Batch, and a very athletic defense, the Lions could take a big jump forward in respectability this year after a humiliating 1998.

But alas, these are the Lions. Barry skipped town the eve of training camp, and the team has seen key players like Luther Elliss, Mike Compton and Bryant Westbrook slowed to injuries.

was there last year, when the team had very high expectations.

"A lot of the girls are playing with more confidence and aren't looking over their shoulders this year," Lowney said. "There's no fear, because they don't have to live up to anything, and they know it can't get much worse than it did last year."

Lowney said she expects her team to be picked in last place by many publications, but that doesn't bother her at all.

"A lot of people picked us for last two years ago when we won the league," she said. "This year, nobody's expecting anything from us, so we're just taking it one game at a time."

Once again, the OAA Division I will boast some of the county's top teams and top talent.

Rochester returns four starters, including Sara Potts and Paige Harris. Although Waterford Kettering lost one of its best players, Allison Keebaugh, to graduation, Andrea Hillsey and Devon Hillstrom return to a powerful lineup. West Bloomfield lost its top player in center Kim Klipela, but three starters return.

"Rochester has to be the team to beat, with Potts and Harris," Lowney said. "Kettering is always talented, and Troy has a bunch of good kids back."

Clarkston opens its season where last year's ended - at Oxford High School. The Wolves take on Lake Orion in the first round of the Oxford Invitational Tuesday at 7:20 p.m. The winner of that game takes on the winner of the Oxford-Oakland Christian game Thursday night, also at Oxford.

Hills Lahser. Royal Oak Kimball also returns much of its core from last year and will be in the running for first place in the league.

"We'll compete with all three of those teams," Fitzgerald said. "West Bloomfield and Berkley will be down a bit this year, but it's still a tough league."

On Sept. 30, the team faces Adams in a rematch of last season's district finals when the Wolves won a 2-1 shocker.

"I'm sure they will be coming at us hard, and they will be one of the best-rated teams in the state," Fitzgerald said. "But for us, it's just a regular season game. We match up well with them, and that showed in last year's regular season game, when we played them tough. But the district is the same as it was last year, so we might see them again."

There will be a number of events highlighting the team's first game of the season. There will be a Youth Soccer night starting with a scrimmage at 4:15 p.m. with the under-10 Impact Boys Soccer team in action. A soccer field dedication will also take place, featuring guests such as Clarkston school board president Karen Foyteck, Superintendent Dr. Al Roberts, and athletic Director Dan Fife. There will be a shootout during halftime of the JV game, and coaches will have a shootout at halftime of the varsity game.

Any youth soccer players wearing their team jerseys to the game will get in for free. There will also be a balloon liftoff at the opening kickoff of the varsity game.

CHS graduate finishes Ironman race

BY BRAD MONASTIERE
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Science tells us that more than 70 percent of our bodies are made of water. Matt Scharl, a 1987 Clarkston High School graduate, may dispute that fact.

Scharl recently completed a grueling Ironman Competition in Lake Placid, New York, where he swam for 2.4 miles, rode a bicycle for 112 miles, and ran a full-distance marathon.

Perhaps the most amazing aspect of Scharl's race was the fact he didn't drop from exhaustion afterwards.

"When you are running down that chute, and see 1,000 people cheering, you forget how tired you are," said Scharl, now a Chicago resident. "My stomach was a little upset, but Matt Scharl that was because I hadn't eaten anything all day. I walked down to a restaurant and had a chicken sandwich."

He makes it sound routine, but Scharl's athletic ability and drive are anything but. While a track athlete at CHS, Scharl set the school record in the pole vault with a leap of 14 feet, one inch. The pole vault is one event which requires a great combination of speed and strength. He parlayed his success with the Wolves to a track scholarship at the University of Michigan, where he competed well enough to place in the Big Ten Indoor Meet in the pole vault.

Scharl, 29, then fell in with a group of people who enjoyed running, biking and swimming, and sometimes all three. He started training for marathons and ran in the Chicago Marathon a couple of times.

His enjoyment of all three activities, and his competitive spirit, led him to participate in the Aug. 15 Ironman Competition, where he placed 332nd out of around 1,550 competitors, with a time of 11 hours, 26 minutes and 44 seconds. Finishing the race fulfilled a longtime goal for Scharl, who saw it as an ultimate test of his endurance.

"When I got about three miles from the finish, I got all choked up," he said. "I didn't realize what a big deal it was to me to finish until I got that close. The entire nine months I spent training for that event, was all worth it at that moment."

Scharl said the hardest part of the race for him was the swimming.

"The swim part is real chaotic because of the number of people in the water, and they're so close to you," he said. "I came out of there with a couple of scratches and I think I got a heel in the eye pretty early on. The main thing with the swim is you have to stay relaxed and focused, and go at your own pace."

After coming out of the water, Scharl said he was very happy to begin the bike portion of the race. The results show that as well. He was in 488th place coming out of the water, but by the time he finished biking, he moved up to 205th place.

"I ended up the 175th fastest biker there," he said. "I would have finished higher if I had run the marathon harder. But I pulled a hamstring in March and didn't push it as much as I could have."

He said the bike ride was also enjoyable because of the scenery around the course.

"It was nice to just look around at everything there, like this river and the rolling hills," he said. "I could take my mind off of what I was doing, and that helped."

Scharl says he lost around 11 pounds participating in the Ironman Competition, even though he took liquid nutrients throughout the race.

He consumed 2,500 calories for the bike ride and 1,000 calories for the marathon portion of the race. Scharl estimated he burned between 8-9,000 calories over the course of the race.

He kept his heart rate in the 170s through the bike race, but pushed himself up to a high of 198 during the marathon.

"I pushed myself to the edge, then went over it," he said.

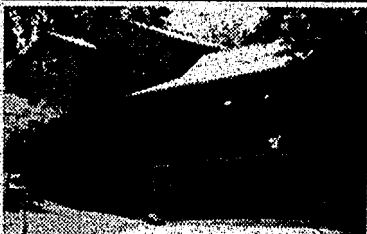

Scharl said he recovered from the race within four days, much faster than the normal recovery time of three weeks after such a race.

"It was more emotional for me watching the other people finish," he said. "I saw a 70-year-old man finish it in 16 1/2 hours, and that is just amazing. And the crowd stays and cheers the whole time. We are so lucky to be able to do something like this, with the time commitment involved and everything."

As far as his future goals are concerned, he would like to qualify for the international Ironman Competition, held in Hawaii. He has to finish in the top seven in his age group in a future competition in order to qualify. But beyond swimming, biking and running, one lifelong goal remains for him.

"I want to sail around the world," he said. "That is my ultimate goal."

Why is a 1999 Saturn the best value for you and your family?

- 1). SAFETY. It's the first light passenger car to earn a Five-Star Rating for both the driver and passenger safety in frontal crash tests. (You did want them safe, right?)
- 2). LOW COST OF OWNERSHIP. The car experts at IntelliChoice selected the Saturn SL series "The Best Overall Value, Compact Class Under $15,000" (You did want Low Insurance Rates, High Resale Value, and Low Fuel Costs, right?)
- 3). SPORTY LOOKS AND FUN TO DRIVE. Your Saturn's good looks will stay that way thanks to dent and rust resistant polymer body panels. The 3 coat paint process flexes with the panels and resists stone chips too. (You did want them looking good for years to come, right? The big grin on their face comes from the fun to drive thing, no extra charge!)
