It could very well be that the best day of little Cody Brown's life was his last.

A first-grader at Springfield Plains Elementary, he was new to the school, said Principal Sharon Devereaux, adding Cosy had recently moved with his family from. Kalamazoo.

"He had learned to read in the past month and he was very proud of that accomplishment. His mother said he loved to read to the neighbors," Devereaux said.

A car accident claimed the life of the 6-year-old Independence Township boy Friday evening on a stretch of road on which residents have tried to lower the speed limit.

When the results of his PSAT came in the mail, Tom Wisniewski was slightly caught off guard.

Tom, a senior at Clarkston High School, scored high enough to be named one of 16,000 Michigan National Merit

Oct. 9, he received a combined verbal and math score of 1490 (he received a perfect verbal score) on his SAT.

Tom, the son of Cass and Michelle, is a member of the CHS National Honor Society and is drum major for the CHS Marching Band. Each weekend he participates in the Michigan Youth Band at University of Michigan.

He also has won awards for original fiction and poetry, and is considering becoming a writer. His top choices are U of M, Harvard, Duke and Northwestern University.

Tom says he's thinking of double majoring at U of M in English and music. He will know by December if he has been named a National Merit Finalist, and will learn if he's received a cash award by April.

Bridging the gap -- WEunite brings youth, adults together

BY RENEE WIGHTMAN

Classification News Staff Writer

When it comes to toging one's vision, even the smallest tasks can become obstacles. This is a lesson Clarkston High School freshman Samantha Terryah learned recently.

She and two other teens were blindfolded and given walking sticks to guide themselves as part of a demonstration by Leo Kisell, who is legally blind. The presentation is a prime example of how one Clarkston woman is stepping forward to bring youth and adults together.

Her name is Maria Rotondo Mark, and she has many hopes for the new millenium. Among them is to bring together different generations in her own way -- and her way is called WEunite.

The group, which meets once a month at St. Daniel Catholic Church in Clarkston, blends young and old in a nonformal setting. WE unite stands for the Wisdom of elders and Energy of youth -- "and unite is the connection.

"Youth need caring and elders need to be validated," Rotondo Mark said. "So their coming together is a little miracle."

The meetings began seven months ago and were geared toward high school and middle school students interacting with people over 30. After the first meeting attracted more than 100 people, she knew the idea had taken hold in the community.

Rotondo Mark decided to start WEunite after heading up another generation-bonding effort, when she partnered Junior Optimist kids with retired Jesuit priests at Columbiere Center. She said the result was worth repeating.

"I took the initiative (to form WEunite). I thought, I'm going to take a risk," she said. "This was too great and I couldn't let it die."

WEunite is open to any faith, and its meetings are designed to be very informal, allowing for more comfort. "That's the beauty of it -- there's no structure," she said. "It's about you being you, and me being me."

For her efforts, Rotondo Mark was named the Adult Youth Volunteer of the Year for 1998 by the Clarkston Chamber of Commerce.

Communicating comes naturally to her --Rotondo Mark, a mother of two, has been the owner and operator of The Makeover Place in Clarkston for seven years. She says her job has allowed her to spread the word about WEunite and help people open up to others.

"My strength is people," she said.

She believes people can communicate only by putting judgements aside.

"The crucial part of today's world is to stop looking at 'groups' of age, of color. . . . It's not like one is bad and one is good " inception and believes the message being sent is a positive one.

"We're the worst age-segregated society in the world," Hadden said. "(WEunite) breaks down the fear and provides an opportunity for dialogue and friendship.

"Young people need encouragement. They're full of coubt."

Rotondo Mark agreed, saying the growing influence the Internet has on kids' lives is taking away from interaction with adults -- even peers. Growing up in a small town in Italy, Rotondo Mark finds the fast-paced world around her baffling.

"More than anything, we need to learn more communication," she said. One of her "dreams" is that a community center be built in Clarkston.

Rotondo Mark said when she attended the recent convention "Healthy Community, Healthy Youth" in Toledo with members of the Clarkston Community Task Force for Youth, she found hundreds of others with a common goal in mind.

"I was able to get a glimpse of the bigger picture. The resources are immense," she said.

During one session at the conference, Rotondo Mark, teamed with a teenager to discuss why youth have difficulty talking to their elders.

"I asked, 'How often does a young person look an adult in the eye?' Then it brought forth the questions, 'Who is a stranger?' 'Who is a friend?' 'How do we learn to trust again?'"

Left turn arrow should help some drivers by-pass city ying to ease downtown traffic

BY MARALEE COOK Clarkston News Editor

After December 22, traffic jams at eastbound Washington and Main Street in downtown Clarkston should lighten up.

That's the hope of Clarkston police chief Paul Ormiston, who told city council members at their Oct. 25 meeting there are other options if it doesn't do the trick.

Ormiston said most of the traffic at that corner is due to people heading to I-75 via exit 91 on Main Street north of town.

A left-turn arrow will be added to the stop light at White Lake and Dixie for Clarkston Police

public information officer for the Road Commission for Oakland County (RCOC) said the expected completion date is December 22.

It should ease the traffic flow because it's closer for drivers at that location to travel up Dixie Highway to exit 93 rather than come into Clarkston, said Ormiston.

The topic was brought up by councilman Walt Gamble who said traffic has increased to the point where W. Washington is backed up from Holcomb between 4 p.m. and 5 p.m. He suggested removing the three parking spaces on the south side of W. Washington. This would give drivers turning right onto southbound Main St. an extra lane, easing the backup for drivers turning left onto northbound Main St.

"We'll look at that in the future if we can't get relief," Ormiston said. "I think most of the people are turning left onto north Main. It may help right hand turns, but not left. "It's not our call anyway. RCOC would have to approve the change."

Ormiston added there are no right turn on red signs at the corner because parking on Main creates sight distance problems.

Ormiston said the next phase would be to have a signal installed at the off ramp from southbound I-75 at M-15. "With the left-turn arrow at Dixie and White Lake we help drivers make a left onto Dixie and send them up to exit 93, and with a new stoplight at southbound I-75 and M-15, help them turn left onto northbound M-15, creating a bypass around the city."

He said if the traffic continues on Washington after that, another option would be to install pavement sensors which would send a message for the signal to stay green longer.

Site of O'Neill medical building called an 'eyesore' Commission eyes improvements to medical building

BY EILEEN McCARVILLE

Clarkston News Staff Writer

Two prominent businessmen plan to refurbish a long-standing pediatrician's old office building.

At the Oct. 28 Independence Township Planning Commission meeting, commissioners took a look at Dr. James O'Neill's plans for his former medical building on M-15, part of the Mid-Oakland Medical project.

Bill Wint, owner of Lewis E. Wint & Son Trust 100 Funeral Home, and Dennis Kacy, Main Street attorney, plan to buy the two-story building. The two have a purchase agreement, pending approval from the planning commission.

"Dr. O'Neill is interested in selling the property if an amendment to the site plan is accepted," Township Planner Dick Carlisle said.

Plans call for the building to continue as a medical facility, with some office use. O'Neill said he currently has several practitioners operating there, including a physiotherapist and psychologists.

"We want to keep it medical," O'Neill said. Two years ago a planned unit development (PUD) was approved for the site, with improvements slated for parking and the building's appearance. Eventually Rainbow Rascals, a day care center, proposed a site plan consistent with the PUD. However, "Those plans never came to fruition," Carlisle said.

Commissioners want to see a strip of parking removed that abuts the safety path in front of the building. "Cars are parking on the safety path and even all over it," said Commissioner Rich Oppmann.

"It's just an eyesore," he said of the site's appearance. "When the PUD came up, we said let's straighten this all out." Relocation of the safety path has also been discussed.

Commissioners would like to see the area replaced with a greenbelt, which is subject to approval by Michigan Department of Transportation, which controls the right-of-way since M-15 is a state trunkline.

Although they prefer to see another section of parking eliminated in front of the building, they said they could better live with that than the sidewalk situation. However, they said there is plenty of parking in the back, shared with Mid-Oakland Medical.

"It's actually part of their parking lot," Oppmann said.

O'Neill disagrees with the removal of any front parking, saying it provides convenient access to the second floor. "My concern is people carrying small children, the handicapped, senior citizens," O'Neill said. Carlisle suggested parking previously eliminated on the north property line be reinstated as a tradeoff.

However, as commissioners and O'Neill could not agree, the issue was tabled, 5-0. Sherry Powell, an attorney from Kacy's office, said petitioners would return to the commission with some more ideas. Dan Travis and Cynthia Lohmeier were absent.

The final site plan and wetland impact was approved for Coulter Lake Estates, 5-0. The site condo development features 75 lots on 179 acres at the corner of Oakhill and Dartmouth roads.

Approval of the cluster-type development, located on a former gravel quarry, was subject to a remediation plan for groundwater contamination from an old garage where workers tanked up their vehicles. The contaminents are waste oil and diesel fuel, Carlisle said. Cleanup of the site is underway, with Michigan Department of Environmental Quality to provide final approval a year from now.

Developers are also trying to locate an old well which, so far, has been unsuccessful. It needs to be closed, according to health department standards. Developer Richard Ives said the search would continue. Commissioner Todd Moss asked what would happen if the well isn't found. Carlisle said most likely MDEQ would not issue a permit for the construction of residential wells.

A safety path will be built on the west side of Dartmouth, from the entrance of the project to Indianwood Road. Drainage improvements have also been proposed to come from Road Commission for Oakland County's 50-50 Drain Project. RCOC would kick in 50 percent, with remaining funds to be split between Coulter Lake and Indianwood Estates, a development on the other side of the road. Coulter Lakes has already committed to $12,500. Indianwood Estates developers are also being approached for a $12,500 contribution, said Township Engineer Randy Ford.

Public hearing set for new master plan and Vision 2020

The public hearing and formal adoption for Independence Township's revised master plan and Vision 2020 Strategic Plan has been set for Thursday, Dec. 9 at 7:30 p.m. during the Planning Commission's regular meeting. The location for the meeting will be set at a later date. Commissioners are concerned the Carriage House will be too small if there's a large turnout.

Commissioners were presented the final draft of the master plan last Thursday. Copies of both the master plan and Vision 2020 are available at the building department, the third floor of Township Hall, 90 N. Main St. in Clarkston.

Editorial Our local government officials are winners

In the newspaper business we regularly deal with local government officials. We are fortunate to have an excellent group in Independence and Springfield townships and the City of the Village of Clarkston.

They make themselves accessible and never complain about being pressed for. information on deadlines.

Because of the nature of their jobs, we deal with our township clerks and city manager more than any other official.

We are reminded of the generosity of their time and the depth of their knowledge, especially during elections.

At a time that is most chaotic for them, they remain polite, responsive and prompt in returning phone calls.

Hats off to City Manager Art Pappas, Independence Township Clerk Joan McCrary and Springfield Township Clerk Nancy Strole.

Thank you for making our job easier. MKC

Our business district is alive and well

Dear Editor,

I read with amazement what the 60 plus people, who attended the open community visioning meeting for downtown Clarkston on Oct. 13 to discuss the village needs, were looking for in the village.

A country store. Are you looking for a pure bristle nail brush, a great card, dishcloths or towels, toys, plush animals, a pet dish, jewelry, shopping bag, stationary, carrot peeler, T-shirt, night shirt, a lamp or custom lampshade. soap, gift wrap, etc.? Try Clarkston Country Store/Main Street Antiques.

We are a village business and have been here for the last 28 years. We are alive and well and have steady customers from a 50-plus mile radius who come because they love what we carry. I question how many of the meeting's attendees actually shop in the village or are familiar with what we offer here.

One request was for a pub. Try the Clarkston Union - you'll love it! Another, a dress shop - try Village Apparel. A few months back a council member said, "There is no place to buy a greeting card in the village." Try Rudy's, The Union General, or Clarkston Country Store/ Main Street Antiques. I've had cards for 28 years. Even try an antique postcard for a great twist.

Another request was for a toy store. Try the Union General or Clarkston Country Store/Main Street Antiques. Want old or new toys? We have both.

Count your blessings of the small town atmosphere and, come visit our block and a half business district, filled with fine quality merchandise and extremely friendly merchants, who are most often the owners.

We are here to meet your needs; you only need to stop in, make your request, and we will try our best. We aren't mall shops; we strive to have the unusual as well as the basics and travel far and wide to find these items for you. A customer came in one day with a photo of an item from a magazine that she wanted but didn't know where to find. I found it for her.

We enjoy providing personalized service to our customers. Another person came in looking for baby, birthday, and wedding presents. She was thrilled to find all three in only one stop at our store.

Come in, introduce yourself, ask for help. We enjoy helping our customers!

Dear Editor:

I'd like to ask Springfield residents to please mark your calendars for Sunday afternoon, November 7. You are invited to participate in a very important community event. As we approach the 21st century, the need to evaluate the community's strengths and areas where improvement is warranted has never been greater. How should we, and how will we, respond to changes within and outside our community? What direction do you and other community members want to see pursued?

The future direction that the community should take can best be found through strong public involvement in a broad systematic planning process. We have begun that

'Butterfly' angered by Internet exploitation

The day a man likens me to a butterfly, pigs will have wings.

Did I just see Porky fly by my window?

The truth is, I'm utterly disgusted with the recent online pursuits of one man and his dream to create "beauty" from the eggs of models. Although by today's information superhighway standards, the subject has become yesterday's news.

Not to me.

The man who claims "It's the butterfly that's the prettiest that gets the guys" needs to find a cocoon and stay there, because the dehumanization of women and children he is suggesting — and implementing — won't get him anywhere.

A recent article by the Associated Press brought to light the Web site, ronsangles.com, just scratches the surface with information about each woman, such as a photograph and health status. First of all, who can b lieve this? What about factors like education, career history and intelligence?

another point: How come women are the only subject of this buy, sell and trade deal? Last time I knew, there were male models out there strutting their stuff.

Wiahtman

Perhaps he is waiting to see his business take off before subjecting men to this exploitation. I don't think the idea will get too far, though especially with more recent articles stating Harris is linked to over a dozen erotic Web sites, further knocking his credibility.

I understand not all couples can have children, and surrogate parenting is not uncommon. What I don't comprehend is how people would spend thousands of dollars on a risky (and in my opinion, moronic) means of hava child of their own.

Secondly, the man, Ron Harris, takes fashion photos and breeds horses for a living. He isn't a geneticist or someone with credentials to back up his reasoning. The real experts are snickering at the prospect any child born from a model's eggs could result in that child being "gorgeous."

Whatever happened to "beauty is only skin deep?" And if he thinks by dropping names like Charles Darwin to strengthen his point, he's way off. I don't remember being taught anything about Darwin's Theory of Babe-o-lution in school.

I am also of the belief that today's supermodels are freaks of nature, and in creating babies with this unusual DNA, the outcome is unpredictable.

On the other hand, what is the possibility a child born from one of the models' eggs could have a birth defect? Could law suits be filed? This opens up a whole new can of worms.

But I doubt this will reach cataclysmic proportions, because there are too many intelligent, reasoning people out there to fall for this joke of an idea. For those who find even an ounce of sense in this notion, all I have to say to you is, buyer beware.

Question: What is a bird? Birds interrupt you when you are on the phone. They throw what they don't eat on the floor. They always want a different toy but play only briefly with it. They know the word "no" but do it anyway. They fuss to be picked up and held. They demand your attention at the most inopportune times.

You may have read last week's Clarkston News article, seen the photo of the track equipment under the bleachers at Clarkston High School or even spoken to the "anonymous" source. Did the story anger you as much as it upset me? Perhaps it did, but probably for different reasons.

The people of our community expect and deserve the schools to be good stewards of their generosity, and buildings, materials and equipment are assets that must be protected. Since the buck stops at my desk, any concern impacting the school system and its 7,200 youngsters is of great importance to me. So given the excellent rapport that has been developed between the local press and my office, I was upset when no one asked me about the storage problem. If contacted, my response would have been simple and direct. We will store the equipment in a commercial storage space until such time as we can provide an appropriate facility.

The fact is that there are literally hundreds of construction tasks that are still to be addressed. Anyone who has followed the stories of school construction as reported in The Clarkston News realizes that we are preparing to open our newest elementary. Readers understand that the affected buildings are working hard to maintain a sense of normalcy while dealing with massive construction, and it is hard for me to imagine anyone being unaware of the major changes that are underway, Certainly the storage of equipment is a priority, but the building of a storage facility isn't. At Friday's football game, I had the opportunity to discuss the anonymous complaint with the president of our boosters' association. We were both concerned about the mistrust that anonymity breeds, and both of us were more interested in working together to the benefit of all our kids (track, soccer, skiing, volleyball, etc.). Frankly, the days of lining up one group of parents against another must come to an end. There is only so much money, so priorities must be set. It is my belief that the boosters and the athletic council members are people of good However, calling a newspaper rather than my office is counterproductive because the decision-making ability lies elsewhere, and it is not in my nature to make decisions because of the "heat." The decisions that impact over 7,200 youngsters are too important to be left to what is on the front page, and the concerns of our citizens are too important to be left to anonymity.

Editor's Note: The Clarkston News contacted five people at Clarkston schools regarding the story. Two were available for comment. We were told Dr. Roberts was out of town, and he did not return reporter Renee Wightman's phone call.

planning process to identify the policies and strategies relating to the land use, growth and physical development of the community that you and other township residents wish to pursue.

The process chosen for updating the Springfield Township Master Plan is as important as the end result. The process chosen encourages and depends upon broad community participation. This participation is essential to the identification of problems, opportunities and long range visions for Springfield Township.

The Master Plan Visioning Fair is at Heather Highlands, 11450 E. Holly Road between I-75 and Dixie Highway. It is the beginning and the cornerstone upon which the community participation and our new Master Plan will be built. The purpose of the Visioning Fair is to provide a casual, family-friendly, fun setting for you and other residents to tell us your ideas and your vision for Springfield in the 21st century.

The program will begin promptly at 2 p.m. with a brief welcome and introductory remarks by me and Paul Rabaut, Planning Commission chair. For the remainder of the two hours, participants can move from station to station, each covering a central component of the Master Plan. Please tell us what you see as community problems and opportunities. There will be youth-centered planning activities available so please bring the whole family. Cider and donuts will be served.

Tell your neighbors and your friends or, better vet, bring them with you on November 7.

S. S. 1,622 hats will Make a Difference

Dear Editor,

I wanted to thank reporter Renee Wightman for the wonderful article she did on the Junior Optimists and the Hat's Off For Cancer project. It was a great help in getting the word out to the community.

The kids did a great job and had fun, too. Their goal was 500 hats. On Make A Difference Day they brought in 1,622 hats. Wow, what a day!

Hats are still coming in and people are still interested in having hat drives. We still have the hats at our house but do have a contact person from the American Cancer Society. She is out of town right now and we will be gone next week for a pre-teen event, so I am thinking by the holidays we should know where and have the hats delivered. I am hoping the kids will be able to take part in delivering the hats, also.

It was a pleasure meeting Renee at the WeUnite meeting. What a wonderful organization, and Maria Mark is a special lady. My Maria and I have enjoyed being a part of WeUnite. It is a real blessing.

Thanks again, and God Bless.

Big goals needed for this good cause

Dear Editor,

Reporter Eileen McCarville's article (in the Oct. 27 issues about Claire Balmas' battle with Crohn s disease) was beautiful, so well written, I m overwhelmed and not sure how to say thanks enough.

Our goals are big - help the kids, public aware-

We will forever be in your debt for getting us off the ground and being there in the beginning.

Renaissance students share viewpoints on school safety at county forum Selection of Student Sur

BY RENEE WIGHTMAN Clarkston News Staff Writer

Three Clarkston Renaissance Program students have a deeper sense of security about their school environment, following a recent county-wide forum on school safety.

Brian Brotemarkle, 17, Kelly Galbraith, 18, and Lisa Reed, 17, joined students from several other school districts Oct. 20 for the Preventing School Violence Student Forum at the Oakland Schools Kiva in Waterford. The three were selected by their teachers and volunteered for the day-long program, aimed at gauging students' responses on several safety issues.

With the use of handheld electronic devices, students could push a button corresponding with their feelings on an issue presented by school officials. In total, 50 questions were asked, ranging from eyewitness accounts of violence to safety measures already taken, as well as student opinion on prevention ideas.

• Galbraith found the interactive nature of the forum eye-opening.

"I didn't think (violence happening in schools) was that big a deal until I saw those ratings," she said.

Brotemarkle agreed. "I learned there's a lot more problems here (in Oakland County schools)," he said.

Brotemarkle said one question which asked how many students were aware of bomb threats at their respective schools had a shocking answer. The majority of the students said they'd experienced a bomb threat.

Reed said she wished students from Clarkston High School would have been represented at the forum. She, Galbraith and Brotemarkle all had attended CHS prior to coming to Renaissance, and said they found the larger enrollment caused more need for safety efforts.

"I think they needed to be there more than we did," Reed said.

The other students said they, too, feel more protected at a smaller school.

"Everybody gets along," Reed said.

The Renaissance Program has about 80 students, versus just over 2,200 at CHS.

"I feel a lot safer here than at Clarkston High School," Brotemarkle said. "I preferred the old high s ool -- it's just the way they run it."

Beth Ford, program supervisor, said kids have an advantage because issues are brought to the staff's locking school doors as a means to prevent afterschool violence.

"I said the doors shouldn't be locked, because what if someone gets hurt in the parking lot and can't get into the building?" Reed said her point was well taken by the other students.

Ford said she was surprised by students' low approval rating for security devices such as metal detectors.

Overall, the students were impressed with the forum. "It was really interesting," Brotemarkle said. As a result, he has volunteered to be part of a county advisory group on school safety which plans on meeting quarterly.

Marilyn Allyn, director of Clarkston Community Education, also was pleased with the forum's outcome.

"We really got to the grass roots of what was going on, and I think that went really well," Allyn said. And based on the students' responses, she said "a lot of emphasis should be put on intervention and prevention."

At Renaissance, Allyn said a peer mediation program is in the works and was generated in part due to the forum. As for the rest of the district, results were compiled and given to all school district superintendents last week during an inservice, Ford said.

Pat Brumback, assistant superintendent and head of the district team at the forum, said the information will be considered for the current school safety plan for the district.

"For years, we have had a proactive plan, and this year, we're revamping and reviewing," Brumback said. The plan incorporates school environment and physical safety, she said. Brumback said schools can be looked at as a miniature version of the community, when considering violence.

Selection of Student Survey Results from Oct. 20:

Note: Students were asked to respond to a set of 50 questions, ranging on topics from school climate and level of safety experienced to safety efforts. Below is a random sampling of results.

A far-reaching effort

People thousands of miles away from Clarkston will benefit from the efforts of a handful of students, parents and teachers at Clarkston Middle School.

The school received a certificate of recognition from the American Red Cross Oct. 27 during the school's first-ever pep assembly. Carol Morrow, Red Cross representative, said the $1,050 the kids raised will give direct aid to those affected by the recent earthquake in Turkey.

"The funds will help with shelter, medications -- whatever they need," Morrow said.

The idea to help out came from Sandy Blomquist, science instructor, said Danielle Blanchard, co-coordinator for the Student Leadership Council at CMS. Blanchard and her student leaders took over the project early in the school year, she said.

Aside from their efforts with the Turkey Earthquake Relief fund, the council helps with community outreach projects such as food drives, Earth Day activities and help fund special purchases for school-related use.

Kids at Warwick Pointe Holly Academy rounded out the week with a "Montana Roundup" outside the school Friday. The activities, which ranged from lassoing practice and fly casting to hayrides and campfire games, took place as an alternative to Halloween, with kids dressing in Western fashion. Drama Club presents 'You Can't Take it With You'

Clarkston High School's Drama Club is readying for its fall play, the classic "You Can't Take it With You." The three-act comedy by Moss Hart and George S. Kaufman runs Nov. 18, 19 and 20, at 7:30 p.m. at the CHS Performing Arts Center.

The plot involves the Sycamore and Kirby families, and star-crossed lovers Tony Kirby (Chris Allen) and Alice Sycamore (Truly Render). When her family invites his to dine at their home, the Kirbys are "shocked at how the other family lives their carefree lifestyle," said Amy Seaman, technical theater manager. The Kirbys decide marriage is totally out of the question.

Seaman explained the difference between the two families."The Sycamores are off the wall. They do what they enjoy. Mr. Kirby is a Wall Street businessman. So it's like a clash between the two."

Eventually, Tony convinces his parents that love is love, and differences aren't important. "Mr. Kirby has to realize there's more to life than business," Seaman added.

The madcap comedy weaves in other strange situations: the printing press set up in the parlor; Reba the maid's relationship with her friend Donald, and Grandpa's interview with a tax collecter -- where he tells him flatly, he doesn't believe in income tax.

"It's hilarious. It's a great show. It's funny, funny, funny," Seaman said.

The cast includes Pamela Ogle, Don Parker, Andrew Wheeler, Jessica Holman and other CHS Drama Club members.

Tickets go on sale Monday, Nov. 8, during all school lunch periods, from 10:40 a.m. to 12:10 p.m. Prices include $6 for adults; students/senior citizens, $5. Ticket reservations can also be made, starting Nov. 1. by calling the box office : (248) 623-4024. Information about the show is available via the CHS Performing Arts' Web site: www.clarkston.k12.mi.us/chs/ performingarts.

Purveyors to the stars

What do Palace performers crave when they're in town? Whole Foods Market has "the scoop"

BY EILEEN McCARVILLE Clarkston News Staff Writer

When the Backstreet Boys play the Palace, will they be ordering organic frozen pizzas?

That's the burning question for employees at Merchant of Vino/Whole Foods Market, prior to their three upcoming concerts.

The Backstreet Boys are one of the numerous performing acts who have their food cravings satisfied from the Rochester Hills organic and natural foods market, which supplements catering services provided by Palace Sports & Entertainment.

Clarkston resident Laurie Stern, former owner of Country Greens in Clarkston, is the store's marketing coordinator and community relations person. She's also a devout vegetarian who once taught natural cooking classes through Clarkston Community Education.

Stern says the market has supplied Palace entertainers since 1995.

Christopher Pelaia, event catering coordinator for the Palace, shops for the stars when they're in town, at any of the Palace-owned venues, including Pine Knob and Meadow Brook.

If the stars have needs above and including perishable or all-natural foods Pelaia cranks out a shopping list. "If they say, 'We need organic carrots for our juicer or organic foods for our kids,' I can get cans of Coke but I can't store organic carrots," Pelaia explains. "We go there to get things we can't stock from our purveyors."

Because they're in town for only a day or two, requests often come at the last minute.

"They have it all together for me, " Pelaia says, calling the store's help "tremendous."

While the market isn't told who orders what, they can pretty much figure it out, based on who's in town. "Say, for instance, the grocery list for Alanis Morissette." Pelaia says each band comes with a "rider" or request for items like a specific number of dressing rooms, stage size, etc. For example, the band could request "two bags of M&M's and five half gallons of milk."

Kristine Grey, human resources adminstrator for Whole Foods Market, says she has spent up to two-and-a-half hours filling up grocery bags for the stars — but she loves it.

'Chris calls or faxes an order. We do the shopping for them and all they have to do is pick it up," says Grey.

comfort for them to get foods they get at home." Some recent requests include:

The Bonnie Raitt, Jackson Browne, Bruce Hornsby, Shawn Colvin show: "We couldn't believe how much baby food and kid stuff they ordered," says Stern."And then we realized they must have their families and kids touring with them."

"We carry organic baby food and that's what they specified," adds Grey. "Shawn Colvin has an infant about a year old."

Natalie Merchant ordered "all very, very organic, healthy --- just pure food." Grey says.

"Lenny Kravitz has a girlfriend who is a vegen (a person who neither eats nor wears animal products),"

S. C. S. S. W. C. M.

"It's vitamin C and it gives you a quick boost of energy. She also ordered low-calorie nutrition bars."

"The B-52's were hard," Grey says. "If it wasn't organic, they didn't want it."

Grey enjoyed shopping for Bruce Springsteen. "I had never gotten meat before. He wanted filet mignon, lamb, tons of garlic, scallops, shrimp. He needed a good protein kick, I guess." Grey is not a vegetarian, contrary to many of the store's employees.

Springsteen's's order reflected his blue-collar, Born-in-the-USA roots. "It was kind of cool 'cause he's like that good, old American meat-and-potatoes kind of guy — which is exactly how I'd picture him."

Grey intends to shop for Phish food when the band plays the Palace Dec. 2. "I can't wait to see what they order," says Grey of Phish, a band who's sound and fan following has been compared to the Grate-just let me shop for Phish. I picture them as a popcorn, organic chip munching band.'

> Some stars are fussy — but not as persnickety as a client of her cousin's, a producer in New York. This star wanted "two pounds of M&M's, with all the yellow ones picked out."

> Pelaia says healthy eating equals satisfied stars --- and better shows.

> "These people run the road. They live out of boxes and trunks. You want them to feel at home. Catering is one of the things that sets the tone for the show. A good breakfast, a good lunch, it makes the day."

According to information from Whole Foods Market, there are around 100 markets throughout the U.S. A new store is under construction in Orchard Lake.

Like other stores, the Rochester Hills market at 1404 Walton Boulevard, carries produce, meats, poultry, seafood, cheeses, breads, pastries, prepared foods, ethnic items, wine, beer, vitamins, body care products and bulk items like cereals, grains and snacks. Gourmet items are also a specialty and sampling is provided in virtually every department.

Grey says, "We are everything a conventional grocery store is, but we feature all natural and organic (foods). We believe in educating the public too."

Therefore, signs posted throughout the store provide facts about organic produce or that "a lot of our fish is farmraised, to help protect the environment," Grey said. "We are the largest, all-natural food chain in the United States."

"Our customers get one-on-one attention," Grey said. "Customer service is a huge thing for us. Any customer who comes in here, they're going to get the same kind of special attention as the stars do."

She finds out from store team leader Christopher Phillips-Frishman who's ordering what. "I'm bold. I want to know whom I'm shopping for 'cause I'm nosy," Grey laughs. "It's fun to see what people order, what people cat."

"You can really tell a lot about their lifestyles," adds Stern. "I've done a lot of trail mix ... Food's a big comfort when you're staying in a hotel. Plus, they have parties. That's why they wanted trail mix, to pour in these big bowls. I say, 'I'll come and pour it for you," she laughs.

Grey says performers order lots of high-energy foods, a natural pick-me-up before or after grueling concerts -- "Clif bars, everyone wants freshly squeezed é. orange juice. Whole Foods Market is very big in California and a lot of the stars live in California. It's a

To market, to market: From left, Clarkston resident Karen Russell, the store's demo coordinator, Laurie Stern and Kristine Grey, display a tempting array of fruits and vegetables.

> Stern says. "I spent about two-and-a-half hours shopping for them because they were very specific."

> "Cher. I remember very distinctly what she ordered. Cher ordered Francis Coppola merlot. I didn't even know Francis Coppola owned a vineyard," cracks Grey. "She also ordered Throat Coat Tea." When told Cher had posiponed the concert's original date because she had a cold, Grey adds, "That would have made sense as to her ordering that tea." And Emergen-C.

and the second second

The market also supports numerous charities. "I do work for a lot of non-profit groups in the greater-Rochester community," Stern said. "Whole Foods has a philosophy of giving back to the community that supports it." This December a Giving Tree will support Lighthouse Clarkston. Folks pull an age from a Christmas tree inside the store. "We'll buy the gifts and put the age on the present," Grey said.

Four "five-percent" days also take place each year. A recent recipient was Leader Dogs for the Blind. "It's a very easy way to get a decent donation. We give them five percent of our sales that day," Stern said.

Group 'waiting in the wings' to support performin

BY EILEEN McCARVILLE

Clarkston News Staff Writer

A new support group, similar to Band Boosters, has been launched at Clarkston High School.

Called "Stage Support," its mission is to raise help "as needed" with "on-call" volunteers to assist with performing arts productions, said founder and coordinator Bev Territo. The group kicked off with the current Drama Club production, "You Can't Take it With You," which runs Nov. 18-20 in the Performing Arts Center.

The impetus to start the group was growth in the performing arts. "The production facility and performance programs have expanded in the new high school to require intensive resources in work and materials to produce quality shows. Many hands are needed to help," Territo said.

Territo stressed the "as needed" part of the group. "What we're trying to do is to create a base of volunteers who are just willing to help in their field of expertise and skills."

For example, "can we call on you when we need help with a costume or sets?

"Parents are waiting in the wings, so to speak, for calls to give us a hand," Territo said. "The concept is not for the parents to do the students' work. It's strictly a support type of role for us. Really, there are a lot of parents who want to help, but don't know how they can.

"There are no meetings, no dues. Just help when you can, when you're called."

The group is starting with a small core of current drama students' parents. Territo would also like to see CHS alumni and even those who don't have children at school get involved.

"It's for all interested community members who love the theater and kids and have skills to share Territo said. Areas include, but are not limited to, costumes and makeup, sets and scenery, props and materials. tickets and programs, refreshments and transportation, calling and typing, and publicity.

Stage Support founder and coordinator Bev Territo

Volunteers can also help with special events like the annual Theater-A-Thon and Spring Banquet.

Territo said several coordinators will communicate with the CHS production staff (Theater Director Jeff Tice, Theater Manager Amy Seaman, Vocal Director Mike Peterson, Instrumental Director Cliff Chapman and student directors). "They will relay information and needs to the Stage Support list of volunteers at the appropriate time in the progress of the production."

Volunteers will be called on the as-needed basis. Before forming the group, Territo talked to Tice and Seaman to see if they'd be interested. The response was very positive.

"It's still very new, but it's been helpful already," Seaman said. "It's nice to share more responsibility and not have to get it done all by yourself.

"(The volunteers) don't have to have kids in the school, They can be anyone in the community. We'll take all the help we can get,' she laughed.

Tice said he has always felt strongly that the drama department needed more parent help. "As director, If I wasn't so busy, I would have liked to have asked parents to give a hand. There are so many parents who want to be part of their children's lives at the high school," Tice said. "Especially with a show. It takes a great deal of work and commitment.

"Bev came up with the perfect solution. I feel fortunate that she came up with a vehicle to get the parents involved. I'm excited and the kids are excited the parents are taking an integral part of the process."

Territo has experience as a "stage mother." Her son Jim Territo was heavily involved in performing arts, as an actor and musician while at CHS. Jim graduated in 1997 and is currently a music composition/education major at the University of Michigan.

Territo is a theater buff herself. She wrote a variety show for students at Bailey Lake Elementary School and is currently writing another show for an elementary school in Lake Orion.

"I think it's so rewarding to see what happens to kids on stage," Territo said. "And it's wonderful to help in that endeavor. If you love the theater and you want to help kids, call us.'

For more information on how to help and/or become a member of Stage Support, call Becky Holman (922-9156) or Karen Parker (674-9596). An enrollment form designating areas of interest and availability will be mailed to you. CHS Theater Director Jeff Tice and Drama Club students may also be contacted for forms.

Red ribbons for a good cause

Students fighting the war against drugs at Pine Knob Elementary school celebrated Red Ribbon Week last week.

Fourth and fifth graders in Pine Knob's Just Say No club started the week off by hanging red ribbons on fencing and on the school's sign in front of the school Monday morning.

Pine Knob special education teachers and club advisors Trisha Carter and Kelly Leverenz said activities were planned throughout the week.

Food Town grocery bags were decorated with anti-drug messages and returned to the store for use. Students signed large red ribbons, recited an anti-drug plege and wore red to school on Friday.

Fifth grader Alyssa Borth, who moved to Clarkston after third grade, said she joined the Just Say No club last year. She said she enjoyed the D.A.R.E. program at her old school and wanted to be part of the club here.

The Just Say No club puts on skits which show other students how to deal with peer pressure about smoking, alcohol and drug use, said Carter. In one of the skits, Alyssa said she portrayed a girl who is convinced to change her mind about her behavior.

While Just Say No is separate from the schools BEE Grand anti-drug curriculum, Carter said she works with PKE health teacher Al Craven in development of the themes and presentation.

Carter has been in the Clarkston school district for 20 years and has started Just Say No clubs at North Sashabaw Elementary and Sashabaw Middle School also. "It's a passion for me," she said. "The kids enjoy the club. On the first day of school they asked me when it would start.

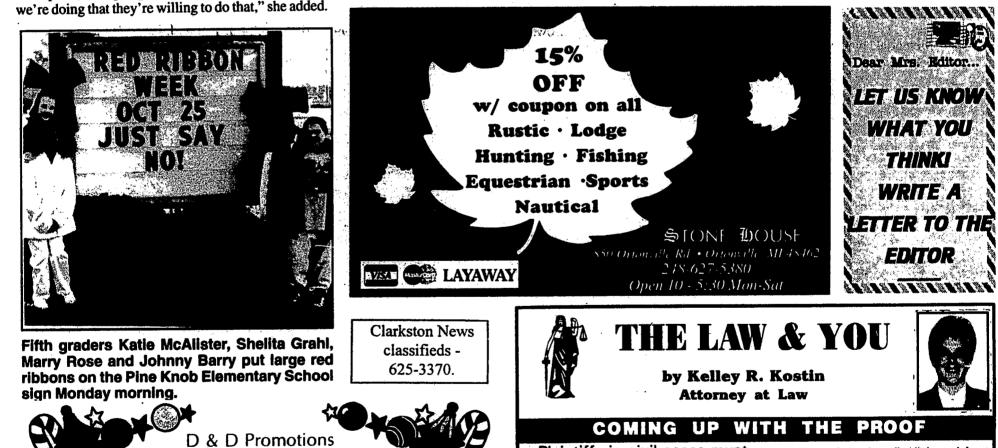

"The club meets during the fifth grade lunch period and the fourth graders give up their lunch period to be part of the group. It says something about what we're doing that they're willing to do that," she added.

Plaintiffs in civil cases must prove that the defendent was responsible for the accident and that the resultant damage was a direct result of the defendent's actions "by a fair preponderance of the credible evidence." In some cases, proving negligence boils down to a matter of neglecting a duty imposed by statute. For instance, those who fail to obey traffic laws are presumed to be negligent, in which case the plaintiff will likely recover. Then, there is the rare instance in which the simple fact that an accident occurred, and that the victim did nothing to contribute to it, is proof enough

"res ipsa loquitur" ("the thing speaks for itself").

Here at 11 North Main Street, we handle a variety of matters involving personal injury, auto accidents, slip & fall injuries, criminal defense, business law, real estate, family law, and civil litigation in both State and Federal courts. A 22 Wed., November 3, 1999 The Clarkston (MI) News How was your Homecoming weekend?

Homecoming, for me, usually involves a school dance. But this year, while my friends were at the dance, I was sitting through my cousin's wedding in Canada.

The drive up wasn't so bad. During the five hours, I was able to sleep and get a little reading in. Even the wedding wasn't too bad - in general, it's hard to find a wedding that's not boring, but at least the emcee was amusing this time. So while I would have rather been here at the dance, it wasn't excruciating.

What I wasn't so happy about was the fact that the next day was my birthday. Thus, the scheduled festivities included making the five-hour trip back home. I was at least allowed to sleep in, which was amazing, considering I have three- and one-year-old cousins where I was staying. My uncle made pancakes for breakfast, which also couldn't be argued against.

And then we got a phone call from my parents, who were staying with another of my mom's brothers. Our van had been broken into at some point during the night, and any bags we had left in it were gone.

Of course, I'd brought my luggage in so I would have clothes to wear. What I'd left in the car was my school bag full of textbooks, binders, and homework my plan had been to study for a number of tests on the ride home. So much for that.

My brother and I set to work making lists of what was in the bags, and we naturally came up with more things that it wasn't exactly convenient to be missing. My primary new discovery was the loss of my script for the fall play, so I couldn't be learning lines in the car now, either. Obviously, the day was looking exceptionally bright.

My dad and an uncle ran around town looking in dumpsters and garbage cans for our books, since we Rotondo Mark said interest in creating another WEunite group in Detroit is growing at Our Lady Gate of Heaven, and said she doesn't see an end to the program in sight.

"We all need to help. . . because you care, and just keep striving for more. And know yourself.

"To me, the millenium is, take with you not your car, your boat, but the value of human life, and respect, and honor. , . and keep hoping.

"Unity is what it's all about."

figured a few hooligans breaking into cars would not have much use for notebooks full of history, psychology. and science notes. I imagine the dialogue went something like this:

THIEF 1: (peering into backpack with disgust) What the heck is this? There's just books! Bet some kid'll miss this! Ha, ha!

THIEF 2: Geez! What a bust (tosses bags out of getaway vehicle's window)! Oh, well. There's always another van to break into (pulling over to examine the contents of the next locked van).

The last part's true - we weren't the only ones on the street this happened to. I guess it wasn't just a special birthday treat for me, then.

With no books found in dumpsters and the police unable to do anything, we headed for the expressway. Without any homework to be doing, we planned how we would believably explain the absence of our work to teachers. "Canadian criminals just broke in and took it. Honest!" The teacher would certainly liken this to the my-dog-ate-it approach, at which point I would say, "No, my dog didn't eat it, but they could have fed it to their dog!" But this would be smart-alecky, and I'd get the icy what-do-you-think-you're-trying-to-pull-I'msmarter-than-that glare. I'd be into this fabrication too far to pull out, though, and I'd just have to add something about maybe a cat eating it instead of a dog. Or maybe a domesticated chimpanzee.

I assure you, however, that the robbery itself was not a fabrication, even if they didn't feed the homework to various pets.

But the day's fun had only begun.

Before we'd even made it halfway to the border, we came upon a charming traffic jam in which we spent two hours moving seven miles. We were redirected at the next exit ramp, where each car in the line had to stop to ask for individual detour directions from the police officer directing traffic.

Along the course of this detour, we were led through the countryside and back over the freeway into a town tellingly called Drumbo, waited for a train at a crossing, and eventually found our way back onto the freeway. The whole trip home ended up taking seven hours, which would have been fine if I could have been learning lines and studying for my big tests!

Upon arriving at our house, there was a welcomed message on our answering machine from one of my uncle's neighbors, who had found our phone number in the pile of rubble that was our textbooks and binders. He had found it strewn about his vard about the same time we were filing our police report. Most of the school stuff we'd lost was there, and we were glad it had been found, but it couldn't get to us for a few days. During that time, most of my brothers' and my teachers were accommodating, so it turned out okay and everyone lived happily ever after.

Still, I'm hoping next year's Homecoming and my next birthday won't involve so much robbery and convoluted travel. I don't ask much.

Oakland County Sheriff's Department, said Cody was struck by a 1993 Dodge pickup around 6:04 p.m. on Andersonville Road, west of Clement Road near the railroad tracks.

The driver, an 18-year-old Clarkston man, was westbound on Andersonville when the accident occurred,

"The boy ran from the lake side toward his house." Poulin said. "(The accident) happened right in front of his house. The boy was crossing the road by himself." The driver told police he "started to slow down and the boy just shot right out in front of him."

The driver told Poulin "he saw (Cody) come up from the steps (leading to the lake) and assumed he'd stop. When Cody didn't "he hit the brakes hard. He locked them up," Poulin said.

There is a hill just before the accident scene that affects visability, Poulin said. The speed limit on that stretch of road is 45 mph. Alcohol or drugs were not a factor. The investigation will determine whether the driver was speeding, Poulin said. At press time, he was unsure if the driver would be charged.

Road Commission of Oakland County public information officer Craig Bryson said they received "a couple of requests" to change the speed limit last summer.

"We reviewed the requests and determined the speed limit was appropriate for the location," he said. "We come off sounding like a callous agency because we don't think it was a speed limit issue. But all of our rules and guidelines (for speed limits) were followed, and the Michigan State Police have the final sayso."

Bryson added, "It's a terrible tragedy, no matter how you look at it, but not necessarily because of the speed limit."

Cody died approximately a half hour after the accident, Poulin said. Neither the driver nor his 18-year-old girlfriend, a passenger, were injured. Poulin said the young woman's recollection of the accident matched the driver's. The driver was "shaken up," Poulin said.

"We have to do brake tests and find out what the condition of the vehicle is," Poulin said. The accident was "pretty simple, cut and dried. Child runs out in front of car."

Members of Clarkston schools crisis team helped the Springfield Plains staff and students deal with the tragedy Monday morning, said Springfield Plains social worker Dorothy Sommers.

"We had a staff meeting Monday morning to talk about how to tell students (about the accident)," Sommers said.

"We printed a guideline for teachers on the facts and ways to help students talk about it. The people most affected were his teachers, bus mates, classmates, Book Buddies and playground friends," she added.

Sommers said teachers spoke to all of the school's students to make them aware of the accident. She will also make community resources available for parents who need extra support. She said she's most concerned for the students who were neighbors and witnessed the accident and will follow up with them in days to come.

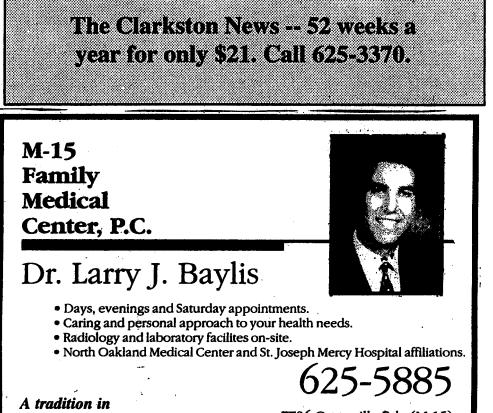

"Because the accident happened on Friday we had time to prepare -- to get ready for Monday (for crisis counseling), but it's so sad. It's never easy," Sommers

She also expressed concern about the driver of the truck who was distraught over the accident. Counselors at Clarkston High School were not available for comment at press time.

Clarkston Schools Assistant Superintendent Pat Brumback said staff at the administration offices had started a contribution fund.

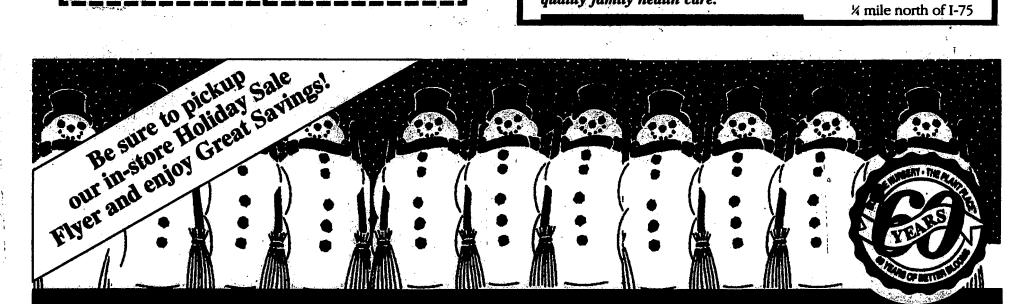

"Many times, during a tragedy such as this, people would like to contribute," Brumback said.

Condolences or contributions may be mailed to Springfield Plains Elementary, attention Secretary, 8650 Holcomb Rd., Clarkston, MI 48348. Checks should be made out to the Springfield Plains PTA noting the contribution is for the Brown family.

Tough defense gives Wolves second-ever playoff victory

BY BRAD MONASTIERE Clarkston News Staff Writer The level of play by the Clarkston ond half of Fridav's first-round playoff game nearly matched the perfect weather outside. Buoyed by a fast offensive start and an airtight second-half defense, the varsity football team won its second playoff game in school history, 34-14 over the Rochester Adams Highlanders at the CHS stadium. Clarkston improves to 9-1 overall with the win, tying the school record for most wins in a season (1994, 1996). In the second half, the entire defensive unit was outstanding, holding the Highlanders to plays of zero or negative yardage 12 times.

'We stopped being so cerebral and became more physical," said senior linebacker Jeremy Williams. "We played as a whole and just closed down their offense."

Coach Kurt Richardson said Williams and his fellow linebackers improved their pursuit of the ball in the second half.

"Our defensive (coaching) staff made some adjustments and the kids responded to them," he said. "Our outside linebackers did a better job of containing them and keeping them in front of us." Leading the defensive charge was Chris Smerka, who had a terrific game. He recorded three quarterback sacks and made one of the key plays of the second half. Smerka stuffed Adams QB John Metzger on a fourth-and-two play on the Adams 45-yard-line with 4:30 left in the game. Clarkston then took five plays before Chris Mitchell powered into the end zone for a touchdown, extending Clarkston to a 28-14 lead. Big, strong Bobcats up next for Wolves

'We need to get 11 people to the ball and gang tackle' BY BRAD MONASTIERE

Clarkston News Staff Writer

The Clarkston Wolves' second-round playoff opponent is very similar to the one it sees in practice every day.

The Grand Blanc Bobcats, 9-1 overall and the champions of the Big 9 Conference, come to the CHS stadium Friday night at 7:30 p.m. for the district final game.

Grand Blanc won its first-round playoff game, 41-34 over Lake Orion. The Bobcats sprinted out to a 20-0 lead before the Dragons came back. The game was tied 20-20 in the third quarter, and was a backand-forth game until the final gun.

The Bobcats feature an offense very similar to Clarkston's. A huge offensive line and a super-tough running back.

Senior TB Reggie Benton leads Grand Blanc in rushing this year and has committed to play at the University of Michigan next year. He checks in at 6foot-2 and 210 pounds, and is very tough to tackle in the middle of the field.

THESE PLEY OF REVUEW

Clarkston coach Kurt Richardson said Benton has tremendous speed and cutback ability, which will pose a big challenge for his defense.

"We need to get 11 people to the ball and gang tackle him," he said. "The hardest thing for us to adjust to will be his speed. We don't have anyone who can duplicate how fast this guy is."

Benton-finished fourth in the state in the 100 meter dash at last year's state track meet. He racked up an incredible 383 yards rushing and five touch-downs on 29 carries against Lake Orion.

Richardson cautioned that Grand Blanc has a passing game that's too good to ignore.

"They throw the ball decent enough to keep you honest," he said. "Their passing game is simple, but they have two pretty skilled athletes on the outside who can hurt you."

Grand Blanc represents the first non-OAA team Clarkston has played since the first round of the 1996 playoffs, when the Wolves lost to Dearborn Fordson 34-20. Grand Blanc and Clarkston used to scrimmage each other in preseason, but that discontinued a few years ago, after some Bobcat players started taking shots at the knees of Clarkston quarterbacks.

One weakness Grand Blanc could have is pass defense. Lake Orion backup quarterback Luke Denver threw for 396 yards and five touchdowns against the Bobcats last week. Three Lake Orion receivers caught at least 10 passes for more than 100 yards each.

"I think you can throw the ball on them, but we have to control the ball and the clock," Richardson said. "If we can do those things, we'll be alright."

Grand Blanc's only loss this season came to Flint Carman-Ainsworth, who is currently 10-0. In that game, Benton was held to 54 yards rushing.

The winner of the game advances to the regional finals, taking on the winner of the Macomb Dakota-Chippewa Valley game. A win would give Clarkston its first 10-win team in school history.

The last time Clarkston advanced to the second round of the playoffs was 1994, Jason Graves' senior season. The Wolves lost to the eventual state champions, Troy, 14-0 on Nov. 12, 1994.

In that game, the Colts capitalized on a blocked punt for a touchdown, and a Clarkston penalty on fourth down which was later converted into a touchdown, for its two scores. Graves, a Dream Team tailback for Clarkston, ran for 95 yards on 26 carries.

on a 26-yard touchdown scamper that turned the Clarkston sidelines into a mosh pit.

Senior lineman Ryan "Bubba" Clement said the win was sweet, but as of now, meant little.

"This game is already over, and we're not satisfied with just this win," he said. "We are just 1-0 right now."

"This game doesn't matter anymore," Williams added. "There is no last week, there is no next week. All that matters is the game you have in front of you."

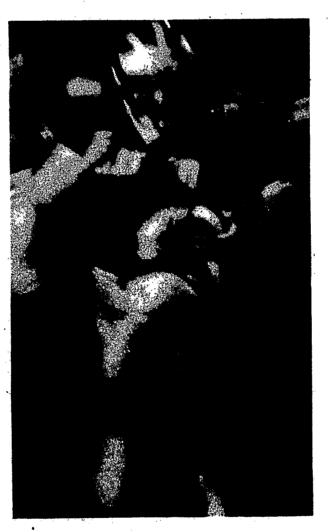

Gebus' electrifying kickoff return sprung the Wolves off to a terrific first quarter where everything seemed to go right. Even the extra point try, where the snap sailed over kicker Rocky Lund's head, turned into a good play for Clarkston. Lund scooped up the ball at around the 25-yard-line and sailed a pass towards the end zone. Senior WR Steve Schornak outjumped the Adams defense and caught the ball for a successful, if unplanned, two-point conversion.

Smerka recorded his first sack of the night on Adams' first possession of the game, setting up Clarkston's offense for another score.

Junior QB Ryan Kaul directed the Wolves on a seven-play 75-yard drive that took just 2:37. He fired a perfect touchdown pass to Gebus that put Clarkston ahead 14-0.

"Adam Gebus had a terrific game tonight," Richardson said.

Clarkston went ahead 21-0 on its next drive, which appeared even easier than the previous one. Clarkston marched 87 yards in only nine plays, highlighted by a 33-yard scamper by junior RB Rob Conley. Senior RB Chris Mitchell cut around the left side and held the ball out over the orange pylon for a 13-yard touchdown.

Boys clear regional hurdle

BY BRAD MONASTIERE Clarkston News Staff Writer

After three years of near-misses at the regional cross country meet for the Clarkston boys team, Saturday's meet was a hit.

The Wolves qualified for the Class A State Meet as a team for the first time in school history with a second-place finish at the meet, held at Springfield Oaks County Park.

Clarkston finished with 88 points, two behind regional champ Lake Orion, who had 86. Milford was third with 101 points, and Lakeland missed out on a state berth for the first time since 1982, finishing fourth with 103.

The state meet takes place Saturday at Michigan International Speedway in Brooklyn, the site of the meet the past four years.

Coach Mike Taylor called the meet "bittersweet" for the team, saying he was happy the team qualified for states, but was really hoping to win the regional crown.

"We wanted to get in through the front door, but the important thing is, we are in," he said.

Lake Orion and Clarkston eacn placed three runners in the top 20 individual spots, with Orion's runners taking fifth, 11th and 12th, ideal grouping for a large meet. The Wolves took fourth, sixth and 18th.

Senior David Sage was Clarkston's top runner, finishing with a time of 16:33. Senior Matt Haver ran a 16:48, and Kevin Breen was 18th with a time of 17:13.

The unseasonably warm and humid conditions were a factor in the meet, as well as Springfield's hilly terrain.

Sage said the team has never run well at Spring-

Taylor said his team will stay in its usual routine in preparing for the meet.

"We'll go hard early and taper off as the week goes on," he said. "It won't be much different than most other teams in the state will do. But we'll run our best, and we're keeping our team goals private for now."

The girls team finished 10th overall with a score of 243. Senior Nicole Fischer, suffering the effects of nervousness and the heat, passed out with half a mile to go in the race and was unable to finish. She would have finished in the top five had she been able to finish the race.

Coach Deb Zonca said Fischer's collapse was unfortunate.

"She had a high level of carbon dioxide intake," she said. "She looked good before the race, and even a few minutes into it. She just couldn't push herself any further."

Carla Delvecchio and Lisa Gauthier were Clarkston's top two finishers in the race, though neither ran under 22 minutes. Zonca said the weather affected times for all the teams.

"It was 20 degrees warmer than what the kids had been used to running in over the past two weeks," she said. "You just can't get acclimated to it in a couple of days."

field, but knew the state spot was theirs.

"The last three years we have been so close, and it's nice that we can all go on to states," he said. "We have to get redemption for this meet."

Senior Chris Weber, who has improved throughout the season, said he's looking forward to running one last race with his teammates.

"It would have been nice to finish first here, but we know we have one more shot," he said. "It's this next week that really counts. We've waited three years for this, and we're going to make it count."

Sage and Haver are the only Clarkston runners with state meet experience. But the other runners including Derek Coe and Brett Quantz, have been to MIS for the meet and are somewhat familiar with the 14 T course.

"We've gone every year to cheer on Dave," senior Dan Burke said. "We're just going to plan out our week as a team and do our best."

Wolves split games with Adams, Lakers

BY BRAD MONASTIERE

Clarkston News Staff Writer

Progress for a team can be measured in several ways, although it's not always easy to do against the best competition.

The Clarkston varsity girls basketball team got better as Thursday's game went along, but a big early deficit was too much to overcome, as the Wolves lost a 56-42 decision to the West Bloomfield Lakers at the CHS gym.

The Wolves now stand at 8-9 overall and 2-7 in the OAA Division I. More stern tests await for the team Thursday night when the Wolves take on fifthranked Waterford Kettering.

Coach Ann Lowney said Clarkston did the best it could against West Bloomfield, but an 18-5 firstquarter deficit was just too much.

"They started hitting all their jumpers, and then we play a zone. Then he (West Bloomfield coach Lance Davis) pulls it out and runs a stall, so we never got a chance to play our zone," she said. "They hit some great shots, and made it tough for us to come back."

The Lakers got off to a flying start in the game, getting out to a 13-0 lead less than four minutes into the half. West Bloomfield hit 3-of-3 3-pointers during the first-quarter blitz.

The Wolves regrouped and made it 13-5 before the Lakers brought the game to a screeching halt. The Lakers held the ball on offense for the final 1:40 of the first quarter, stopping the brief momentum Clarkston had built up.

The second and third quarters were more of the same, with West Bloomfield's terrific athletes beating

Clarkston up and down the floor, making every kind of shot imaginable.

The Wolves trailed 44-20 entering the fourth quarter, but it was then they strung some offense together and made the final score close.

Senior Rachel Uchman led the team in scoring with 13 points, nine coming in the fourth when Clarkston outscored West Bloomfield 22-12. Freshmen Kira Karlstrom and Jenn Carlson also made an impact on the game, combining for 17 points, 12 coming in the fourth.

Karlstrom finished with nine points, five rebounds · and two steals in another scrappy performance. Carlson tossed in eight, including a pair of threes.

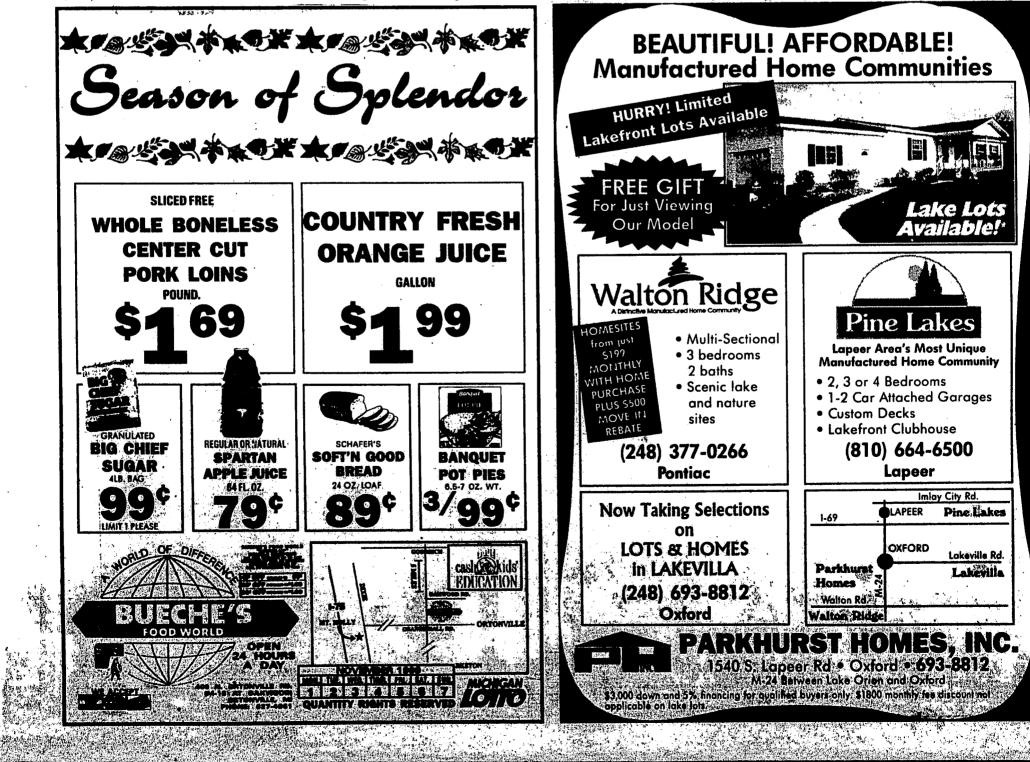

"It was nice to see Jenn shooting the ball better," Lowney said. "We have been slumping with our shooting. We are getting a lot of shots in practice, but you don't want to do too much, because then the players start to think too much."

The Wolves gained some revenge for a last-second loss last month with a gritty win Oct. 26 at home. A nip-and-tuck fourth quarter came right down to the final play, when a half-court heave for Adams Continued on Page 5B

"It's always nice to get a win like that," Lowney said. "I like how hard we played. I think we've come to play every game this year except last week against Athens."

A jumper by senior Candace Morgan put the Wolves ahead 31-25 early in the fourth quarter. But Adams then went on a 9-2 run to take a 34-33 lead, resembling the comeback it had against the Wolves last month.

Karlstrom sank two free throws with 2:31 left, getting Clarkston back out on top 35-34. Uchman and Carlson each made a free throw within the next 90 seconds, giving the Wolves a three-point lead.

The Clarkston defense tightened from there. Sarah Morgan forced a key jump ball, and Uchman grabbed two defensive rebounds and made a steal in the final 30 seconds, sealing the win for Clarkston.

Uchman finished with 12 points and seven rebounds to lead the Wolves. Karlstrom and Carlson each scored seven.

The bench also played a key role in the win for Clarkston. Junior Tovah Bazely had four points and six rebounds, and junior Nicole Thrift gave the team some key minutes at point guard, substituting for injured starter Kristen Falck.

"I thought Nicole Thrift had a great game for us," Lowney said. "The kids on the bench always have to be prepared, and she took advantage of her opportunity tonight. Tovah played a real hard-nosed game, and that was great to see."

I walked away from Saturday's cross country regional meet at Springfield Oaks disturbed.

One of the lasting images I have is not what it should have been. It should have been seeing the boys team qualify for states for the first time, while knocking multi-time state champion Lakeland out of the state meet. The boys had a terrific day, and deserve every ounce of congratulations they can get.

Unfortunately, the thing I keep thinking about is the way the meet officials handled some female runners as they crossed the finish line.

At many large cross country meets, there are times when as many as a dozen runners can finish almost simultaneously. For example, at the regional girls meet, seven runners finished within fives seconds of one another. Making it even more interesting was that these were the runners finishing 11th through 17th overall, meaning they were all state qualifiers and each place counts heavily into determining the overall score their team would receive.

I honestly don't know if the incident occurred in this grouping or not. But there was a point where several girls finished in a big group. They then had to stop running, stay in order and proceed down a roped aisle towards the scorer's table to report their name and school

These girls were on the brink of complete exhaustion. One was even leaning to one side while trying to walk, so spent was she from the hilly course and humid, 70-degree conditions. Yet there were a couple of occasions where meet officials screamed in the girls' faces and grabbed them roughly by the arms and literally threw them into the roped-off area.

Wed., November 3, 1999 The Clarkston (MI) News 5 B

I feel this was totally inappropriate conduct by the officials, who come from Holly High School. I reacted to seeing the girls treated this way with anger, and had to hold myself back from yelling at the offending officials.

I can understand the job these officials have is not an easy one. Dealing with screaming parents, demanding coaches, exhausted runners and general chaos that surrounds the conclusion of a race is not something I would want to do. But there is a right way, and a wrong way to handle the situation, and these guys handled it the wrong way.

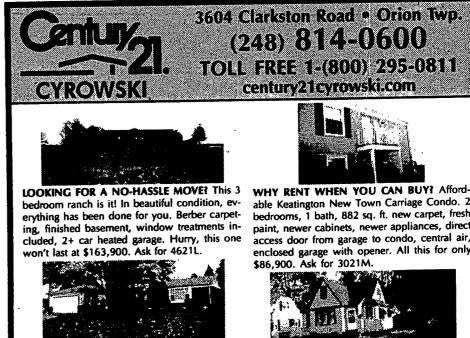

These girls were totally out of breath, and coming with the physical exhaustion comes the raging emotions that can overtake an athlete at moments like this. Screaming in their faces like a drill sergeant and being physically rough with them is not the proper way to treat these girls at this time for coaches or parents, let alone for a stranger with a whistle in his mouth and apparently, far too much energy to expend.

If it had been my daughter being manhandled like that, I would have been in the face of every meet official present after the race was over, and fired off a few E-mails to the Holly administration.

When Clarkston's Nicole Fischer passed out on the course, a half-mile from the finish line, no attempt was made to get her immediate help by the meet officials. Apparently, they were too busy trying to turn a string of runners into Marines. Although the site trainer was on hand to help Nicole, there are far too many dangers in such a situation to tolerate such a lack of attention.

I don't know who administers site officials at such meets, but a hard look needs to be taken at the people Holly brings in to run the meets. These kids work too hard and suffer too much during the season without having to suffer at someone else's hands, especially the hands of those entrusted to run the events.

MASTONISHING TRUE STORY. How I Lost 64 Lbs. and Gained My Self-Confidence!"

My name is Tania Olsson. I am a single mother. My son, Chaz, is eight years old. I am a customer service representative. I dropped 64 lbs. of fat in 11 short months. My story is so remarkable. I would like to share it with you.

By Tania Olsson

My cheeks burned with embarrassment as I stared at the television screen. We were watching a recent family video. "I'm huge!" I gasped.

I had always been tall and trim in high school. I was on the swim team and volleyball team. I was shocked and appalled to realize how fat I had become.

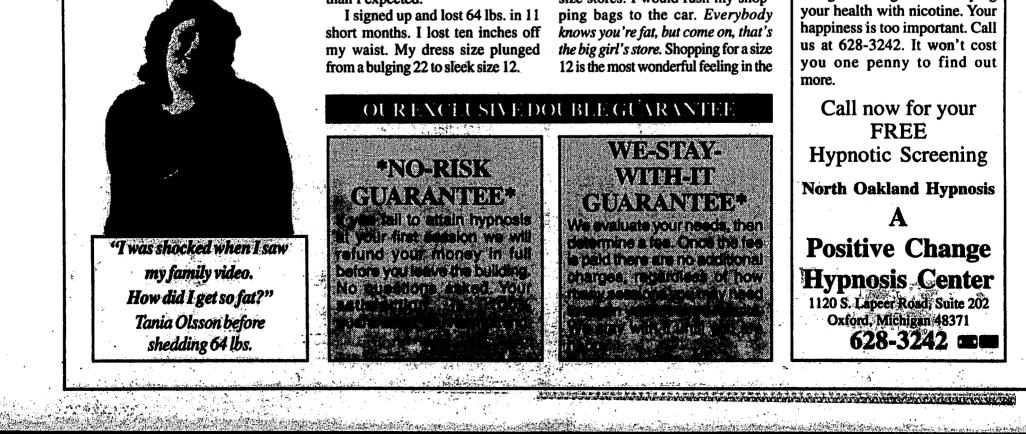

My folks never allowed junk food in the house. When I got old enough to make my own food choices, I went hog wild. Chips, ice cream and soda pop were my routine. When I was pregnant I started eating for two. After Chaz was born I cooked for two and ate for four!

I used food as comfort. I told myself it was just baby fat. It would go away. But it didn't go away. I was getting fatter every week.

With fat came anxiety and depression. My self-esteem was nil. I could see folks turning sideways to squeeze past me. I'd cringe inside.

My weight made me crazy. I refused to eat in public. I knew what people were thinking...Look at what you're eating...no wonder you're so fat. Go ahead, honey, have another cheeseburger.

I used to be so hard on fat people. Now I was fat, hurt and desperate.

Dieting Nightmares I was always trying the next fad diet. I tried grueling exercise routines. It my appetite diminished. I feel comwould never stick. When I didn't feel the results, I'd get discouraged. The cravings were unbear-able.

"You

weight -

I did!"

After Hypnosis

I lost 30 pounds twice with weight loss drugs. My weight shot back up so fast it made my head spin. The drugs set me on an emotional rollercoaster. I couldn't bear the thought of a third go around. Nothing I do works, I told myself as I sat on the couch with a gallon of ice cream. What's the use of trying?

Ray of Sunshine One day a close friend encouraged me to try hypnosis. I was skeptical. "I've heard they get great results," she said. I could only hope. The free screening was like a ray of sunshine. My consultant was caring and concerned. The office is professional and comfortable. Their level of confidentiality was impressive. I held my breath for the sales pitch. It didn't happened. They explained the program in detail. Left it for me to decide. The fee was much lower than I expected.

Whole New Me! Immediately after my first session > pletely satisfied with small, healthy portions. Next my food choices changed. When I was fat I would not touch raw vegetables. With hypnosis I have developed this strange attraction to carrots! They're as appealing as potato chips used to be. I know I will never, ever gain the weight back. Now > > that I'm thin and happy with my body, I can't think of a single reason to overeat.

Hypnosis Delivers Benefits!

I used to feel sluggish by 9:00 a.m. I was so depressed. Even my hair drooped.

Since hypnosis I look and feel young, alive and vibrant. My skin is glowing. My hair is thick and shiny. I have tons of energy. I'm light on my feet.

My family and friends all want to know how I did it. They want to be like me. The other day a coworker said, "I wish I could have even half your energy." That was the best compliment of all.

When I was fat I smoked skinny cigarettes to make me feel thin. Quitting smoking was a side benefit I had not expected. I breathe better. Move better. Enjoy more activities.

I hated walking in and out of plus size stores. I would rush my shop-world. I no longer worry about eating in public. When eyes are on me, I know they're thinking, "Hey, she's got it together."

Chaz is tickled to see my biceps. We recently went rock climbing. We enjoy rollerblading. There's no way I could have done that before.

Recommends

I suffered when I was overweight. I lived in a state of overwhelming helplessness. I was out of control. It was frightening.

Hypnosis was the smartest investment of my life. My consultant took the time to listen to my fears. I never felt pressured. My success was their main concern.

I got more than I expected from my private hypnosis sessions. I feel wonderful about myself. If it wasn't for hypnosis I wouldn't be enjoying my slim, healthy body today.

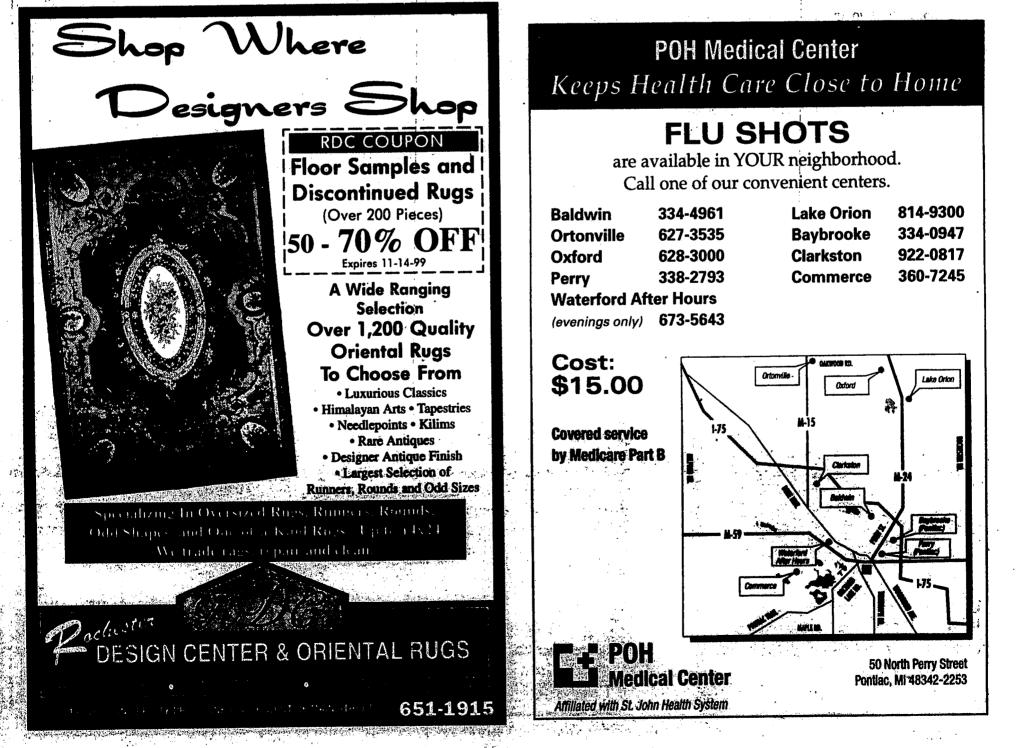

Don't think I'm a lone success story either. I meet other successful clients all the time.

My only regret is that I waited and suffered for months. You don't have to suffer another second. Call 628-3242 right now to schedule your free hypnotic screening. I know your consultant will answer all your questions and put your fears to rest. If they don't think hypnosis is right for you, they will tell you so.

Web site to provide audio, video coverage of games

The Michigan High School Athletic Association has entered into an agreement with Michigan Live to provide high school sports fans audio and video of selected championship events via the Interent during the 1999-00 school year.

The MHSAA and Michigan Live have teamed up in recent years to provide live and on-demand audio of the Association's Boys' and Girls' Basketball Finals. This year, that package expands to include the semifinals in both tournaments, and audio of all eight championship games of the MHSAA Football Playoffs from the Pontiac Silverdome, November 26-27.

On-demand video will also be added this year, with MHSAA Finals in Boys' and Girls' Soccer and Girls' Volleyball available for viewing. Video will be available after games have been aired in the MHSAA Championship Network.

In addition, Michigan Live will also archive video of the new weekly feature show, MHSAA Magazine, which debuts in January.

All of the audio and video can be accessed off the Michigan Live Prep Sports page www.mlive.com/preps.

"This is just another way to provide exposure for the student-athletes and schools which participate in MHSAA tournaments," said John R. Johnson, communications director for the Association. "We're pleased to expand our package with Michigan Live to put the live audio of more games and on-demand video on the Internet."

"This is a great opportunity for us to give our users what they've been asking for," said Michigan Live Editor-in-Chief John Bebow. "With in-depth stories, forums, chats, rankings, and photo galleries,
