

School board OKs 3-mill proposal

Non-homestead millage vote will be on June 12 ballot

BY JEFF PATRUS

Clarkston News Staff Writer

The Clarkston Community Schools Board of Education approved a three-mill, three-year millage proposal for the June 12 election.

The issue specifies that the proposal deals with non-homestead properties, such as rental, commercial, industrial, and retail properties.

According to Craig Kahler, the district's director of business services, "the uncertainty of what is happening with property values" precluded the district from having a two-mill, two-year proposal on the ballot.

In addition, he said that a longer proposal would not be beneficial to the district.

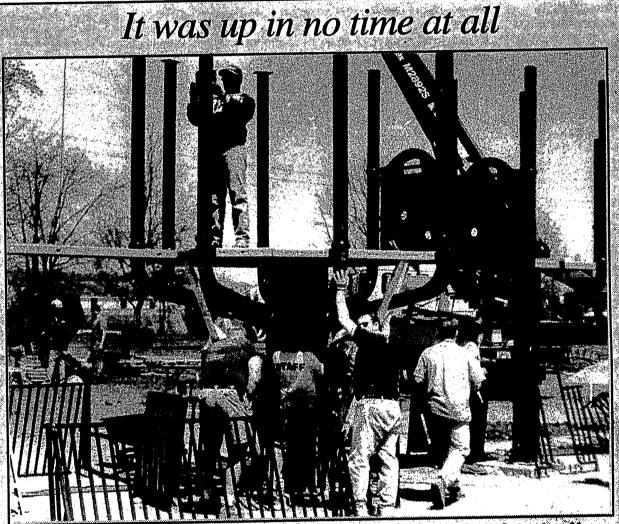

"I'm not sure that four years and four mills is that good, either," he said.

Kahler said that Proposal A, passed by the state of Michigan in 1994, is designed to ease the burden on homeowners and businesses in the area. He commented that the Headlee Amendment, passed in 1978 was originally designed to accomplish that very objective as well.

'That's what we've seen the last two years in Clarkston," Kahler said. "That's what the (Headlee) law was passed to do in '78."

Dr. Al Roberts, superintendent of Clarkston Community Schools, said that the district should be concerned with making its residents more aware of the financial issues facing the district so that they can make an informed choice when it comes time to vote.

"It's clear that a lot of our citizens don't understand school finance," he said. "We need to do a better of informing them."

Community joins to build playground

BY ED DAVIS Clarkston News

They came out in big numbers and couldn't have had better weather to work with.

An estimated 80 volunteers from the Clarkston area, with the help of employees of the Independence Township Parks and Recreation Department, worked together April 29 and 30 to help construct a new playground at Sashabaw Plains Park. Mother nature did her part to help out, as temperatures were and tool belts to begin working at 8 a.m. on April 29. The playground and surface cost an estimated $43,000, some of which came from a $40,000 community development block grant with another significant contribution from the Clarkston Rotary Club. Parks and Rec received $750 in community donations to date.

"It's been a great team building effort. Everybody's worked very well together," Conklin said. One of the biggest challenges was keeping all well fed over the weekend. me volunteer worke That job was the duty of Diane Baldwin, of Clarkston. 'Everybody we asked to donate something did. All the workers eagerly awaited my rounds of pop and water. The workers didn't stop working to feed themselves," Baldwin said.

At the April 10 meeting of the Clarkston school board, Kahler told board members that the district would lose approximately $375,000 this year, due to the Headlee Amendment. In addition, he said the district could expect to lose up to $450,000 next year.

According to the ballot proposal, the millage will allow the district "to continue to levy the statutory rate of 18 mills against non-homestead and non-qualified agricultural property required for the school district to receive its revenue per pupil foundation guarantee."

The three-mill increase (a mill is $1.00 on each $1,000 of taxable valuation, so the increase would be $3.00 on each $1,000 of taxable valuation) would take place during the years 2000, 2001, and 2003.

The millage will provide funds for operating purposes and restore the Headlee reduction, the proposal further stated.

in the mid ou s with sundy skies The playground is scheduled to open Thursday, May 4 at 6 p.m. with a ribbon cutting ceremony. It will feature slides, climbers, platforms and playstations and swings. There are also 20 picnic tables at the park to give visitors a place to enjoy a meal.

Ann Conklin, director of Parks and Recreation, helped put the event together and said things went very well over " .: weekend. "It's coming together real smoothly. Everybody has been pitching in and doing a great job," Conklin said. Some preliminary construction work on the playground began April 28, including site preparation. But the bulk of the work didn't begin until a large number of volunteers donned their work clothes

But when mealtime did come there was no shortage of food to go around. Donations of food came from many sources including area restaurants and residents.

Subway, LB's Muffins, Pappa Romanos Pizza, American Legion Axillary, Dunkin Donuts, Gregg's Gourmet Cafe, Dairy Dream, the Clarkston Village Bake Shop, Kroger, Oakland Woods Baptist Church, Big Boy, Rudy's, Girl Scouts and area residents all donated food and beverages for the event. The Second Front Exchanging ideas

Members of the Clarkston and Waterford Rotary Clubs met with Russian attorneys at Clarkston United Methodist Church Friday evening.

Clarkston Rotary helps bring Russian lawyers to Metro Detroit

BY ED DAVIS

Clarkston News Staff Writer

The Clarkston and Waterford Rotary Clubs have worked together to help bring an exchange of legal ideas from Russia to Metro Detroit.

Bob Vandermark, incoming president for the Clarkston Rotary Club and project director, worked with Ed Fisch, of Waterford Rotary, who was local coordinator of the event and helped oversee the project from the Clarkston and Waterford bases. They brought 11 Russian lawyers to the Metro Detroit area. Also playing key roles in the program have been Max Kotchetkov, an interpreter and Natasha Dronova, a facilitator, who is also a lawyer. Both Kotchetkov and Dronova have been staying with Fisch.

They arrived April 22. The program was part of the Productivity Enhancement Program (PEP) run by the Center for Citizen Initiatives. PEP brings Russian business leaders to the United States to study with their American industry counterparts. The program offers first-hand exposure to democratic and market realities and seeks to profoundly affect those who are rebuilding Russia.

The Clarkston Rotary Club is an international group aimed mainly at exchanging international ideas regarding professional and business issues.

In addition to learning about the American legal system during their stay in the Clarkston area, the group has also had a chance to enjoy some recreational activities. They went to a driving range, spent two hours shopping at Great Lakes Crossing, will visit Meadowbrook Hall and a General Motors assembly plant.

"They're very warm and friendly people. They make connections with people while they're here. One of the first things I noticed about them is how physically fit they are. The first full day they were here we went on we've done this. I think it's been a great experience for everybody involved. We want them to understand things about our legal system and of course, we're learning lots of things about their system as well," Vandermark said.

Vandermark said the Russian lawyers were surprised by how much of the American legal system is based on local freedom.

"I think they'll say good things about it. I think we have a very fair legal system. They were very concerned with corruption within the legal system, but I think they saw that our government is pretty honest. There's a strong system of checks and balances to see that it works that way," Vandermark said. The group visited the Oakland County Govern-

Aleksandr Shpagin, one of the Russian lawyers, in the group said that property tax only makes up point one percent of the total taxes accumulated in Russia. "That idea may seem routine to us, but it's new to them. They took a look at our land records and saw how much private property can help business," Vandermark said.

Olga Vykhristyuk, one of the Russian lawyers on the trip described further differences between the two legal systems.

"In Russia, we have criminal and civil codes at the federal level that apply to all legal matters in Russia. The American legal system uses court cases to set precedent in laws. We also noticed how the Ameri-

Vykhristyuk said she has enjoyed her stay in America so far and noted several things about the areas she has visited.

"It's beautiful here with lots of nature. Everything is great. You have better roads than in Russia, but I thought people would drive faster in America than you do," she said.

She added that the use of the internet is not as widespread in Russia as in the United States, but internet use is common in Russian colleges and is becoming more widespread in business.

Vandermark said he's hoping to run a similar program next year.

"It's been a great experience all the way around. I think everybody involved has enjoyed themselves and learned a lot," he said.

Two announce school board candidacy

BY JEFF PATRUS

Clarkston News Staff Writer The current president and secretary of the Clarkston Board of Education hope to retain their spots on the board when the annual school election hits town June 12

Meanwhile, a recent Clarkston High School graduate hopes to add a new face to the board.

Karen Foyteck, current board president, and Mary Ellen McLean. current board secretary, have announced their intent to run for reelection to the board.

They will be joined by Steve Hyer, currently a student at the University of Michigan and a CHS alumnus, on the ballot.

The three candidates are running for two fouryear spots on the board.

Due to a filing snafu, all three candidates will be running as write-in candidates on the ballot. Foyteck said that while it would present an inconvenience, if that's what they have to do, that's fine with her.

"We'll do whatever we have to do," she said. "It makes it a little more difficult, but it's not insurmountable."

Foyteck and Hyer both expressed their viewpoints on the district in telephone interviews with The Clarkston News. McLean could not be reached for comment as of press time.

Foyteck has served a total of eight years, or two full terms, on the board, including two years as president. She is a 30-year resident of the Clarkston area, having moved here in 1970.

She said that curriculum and technology are the two areas in which the district is striving for improvement.

Steve Hyer

"We're working hard on curriculum and integration of technology," Foyteck said. "We've done a lot of work on it; we still have more to do."

In addition, she said that opportunities for afterschool and extracurricular activities and clubs are a priority.

Above all else, Foyteck said that the education of the district's children takes precedence.

"We're trying hard to do our best for kids," she said.

Hyer, a 1997 graduate of CHS, has started a local business, called IGD (Internet Global Data) Solutions Corp. He said that the Clarkston district is on the rise, and he would like to be a part of that.

"The key issue is growth," Hyer said. "Clarkston is an excellent district. Our mission is creating processes that provide effective teaching and learning."

Planning commission approves site condos

BY JEFF PATRUS

Clarkston News Staff Writer The Independence Township Planning Commission, at its April 27 meeting, issued final site approval for a condominium complex to be built on White Lake Road near Dixie Highway.

The commission approved a proposal by David Plautz, president of Crest Homes, to build the Elderwood complex, a 16-unit site condominium project across the street from the Victor International site of Parks of Stonewood.

According to Planning Commission chairman Steve Board, safety issues led to the commission's request that the Elderwood and Parks of Stonewood sites be located across the street from one another.

He stated that Plautz has to take a few more steps before the project can officially get underway

"He has to go ahead and get his permits," Board said. "He needs to submit engineering drawings to the township."

Board commented that, in general, people wait a while before completing the engineering drawings, because they want to be relatively sure that the drawings will be approved.

"Most people won't do their engineering drawings until they know they have a reasonable chance of being accepted," he said.

According to Plautz, he expects construction plans for the condominium facility will be approved "sometime this summer," and the project should take 18 months to 2 years to complete.

He said that the 16 condominiums will cost approximately $200,000 apiece.

"It's a site condo," Plautz said. "We'll have street lamps. It'll be abundantly landscaped."

Collin Walls, who has spent the past 23 years as Springfield Township supervisor, feels that he has accomplished a great deal during his time at the helm.

At the same time, he feels there is more work to be done to improve the quality of life in the township.

With that in mind, Walls has decided to run for reelection to the post.

He said that the three primary reasons he is running for the job once again are that he enjoys what he is doing, his belief that the township has come a long way, and his belief that there are other things to be accomplished.

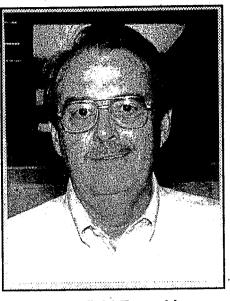

"I believe that I have accomplished a sense of teamwork and working together (within the township)," Walls stated. "I believe very firmly that no one man on the board can accomplish anything alone."

He commented that the township has made progress in its gravel programs, road improvements, use of private contractors, and zoning rules.

In addition, he said that a significant accomplishment is that the unique aspects of Springfield Township have remained the same, even though the area is undergoing changes in terms of development.

"I believe that what we've got in place recognizes the rights of the property owner, but balances development with preserving the character of the community," Walls said.

In running for reelection, Walls

Springfield Township Supervisor Collin Walls

stated that there are two primary objectives he would like to see the township accomplish in the years ahead.

One of them is the township "taking the next step in documenting environmental regulations" so that it may maintain the quality of life it currently enjoys.

The other involves something that has already been approved by township residents: the construction of a township civic center.

According to Walls, about 1-1/2 years ago, voters approved a bond to be used toward the construction of the center. He said that the facility will likely be used for a combined township office/ meeting room/library.

Nancy Strole, who has served as the Springfield Township clerk since 1992, has thrown her hat into the ring for reelection.

Strole, a 15-year resident of the area, will be seeking her third term as clerk; she was reelected to the post in 1996.

Prior to serving as township clerk, Strole served a term as a trustee on the Springfield Township board.

She said that while many people associate the clerk's position as one dealing solely with elections, in reality, that is a small part of the job.

"That is only a small portion of the job description," Strole said. "It's probably one of the more diverse positions."

As clerk, Strole serves as one of the members of the Springfield Township board. As such, she is involved with such matters as helping to establish budgets and policies for the board, and enacting ordinances for the township.

She commented that there is a wide range of responsibilities that go with the clerk's position, such as elections, maintaining all records for the township, organizing agendas for the township board meetings, and posting notices for public hearings.

"There's a lot of information that funnels through the clerk's office by the nature of the job," she said. "As a result, the clerk's office tends to be a central area for information requests."

A key objective for Strole as she runs for reelection is maintaining the quality of life found in the township.

"One of my goals is to try to continue to make Springfield Township an enjoyable and desirable place to live and raise a family," she said.

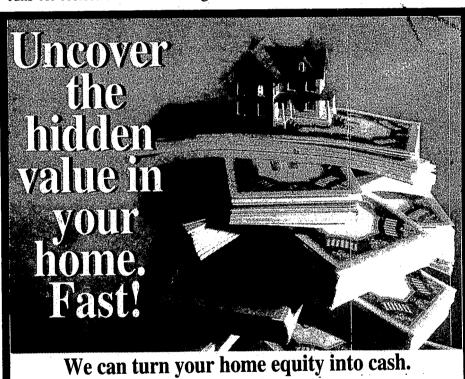

Strole noted that while she understands that progress and change are inevitable, they should not come at the expense of sacrificing the unique aspects of the community.

In particular, she said that preserving the area's natural resources is a top priority, noting that as one of the primary reasons that Springfield Township is able to attract residents to live in the area.

"That's one of my primary goals,"

Wings, Avs renew classic rivalry

Patrus'

Perspective

Jeff

Patrus

(Note: I realize the Red Wings are currently trailing in the series as of press time-he just remains optimistic, or at least hopeful, considering that the Red Wings are really all that Detroit sports fans have to hang their hat on at this time.)

Get ready for Wings-Avs IV.

The seemingly annual playoff showdown between the Detroit Red Wings and the Colorado Avalanche has become a regular installment of the NHL playoff season.

It has all the familiarity of the series of Rocky movies-except Wings-Avs II (in 1997, when Detroit went on to win their first Stanley Cup in 42 years) was a much better sequel than Rocky II will ever be.

Starting Thursday, April 27, the two teams commenced what promises to be a hard-fought series. One team will wind up continuing its quest for the Stanley Cup, and the other will pack its bags for the season.

You thought the fuss over Y2K was something? Chump change, compared to the rivalry between these two teams.

The intensity (and sometimes bloodshed) involved in their clashes evokes grim comparisons to wrestling matches.

Watching Darren McCarty take on Claude Lemieux, and Mike Vernon (and later, Chris Osgood) battle Patrick Roy in the battle of the goaltenders, you would have thought it was The Rock mixing it up with Triple-H for the WWF title.

Instead, it's two top-notch hockey teams putting thus setting the stage for arguably the best rivalry in sports during the past decade.

Next up on the plate: Wings-Avs II: Revenge of the Wings, in 1997. This was the year that the Wings finally reversed their history of playoff disappointments in the 1990's, conquering their archrivals in a memorable series on their way to the Cup.

Remember that year, when Colorado goalie Patrick

Roy, running his mouth, thinking that he is God's gift to hockey, said that he wants to see what the Red Wings were made of, the night before one of the games in that series?

The next game, I seem to recall, the Wings chased St. Patrick from the net with six goals in that game.

Or who could forget then-Colorado coach Marc Crawford, whining like the crybaby that he was, complaining that the Wings were beating up on his poor, innocent little players.

Wings coach Scotty Bowman then delivered an in-your-face to Crawford the Crybaby, saying, "I knew your father, and I don't think he'd be very proud of what you're doing."

The teams took a one-year respite from their annual playoff showdown in 1998, as the Red Wings went on to repeat as Stanley Cup champions.

They then renewed acquaintances in 1999. The Wings had designs on their third straight Stanley Cup. Leave it to those stinking Avalanche to throw a monkey wrench into the Red Wings' plans. The hometown heroes actually took an early 2-0 series advantage in Wings-Avs III, but Colorado would come roaring back, ending the Red Wings' dreams of a threepeat Stanley Cup championship by winning the next four games. There seems to be a pattern developing here. The Avalanche win one showdown, the Wings win the next, the Avalanche win the next...

everything they have on the line in order to demonstrate their superiority.

A brief recap of the storied playoff history of these two teams is in order.

Of course, no Wings fan will ever live down Wings-Avs I, in 1996. The Red Wings had just come off a recordbreaking regular season, winning a league record 62 games that year.

All that proved to be for naught, as the Avalanche went on to dominate the Wings in the Western Conference finals that year, en route to winning the Stanley Cup.

To add injury to insult, Colorado's Claude Lemieux (Public Enemy #1 in the eyes of Red Wings fans) broke the jaw of the Red Wings' Kris Draper in that series, That's one reason why Detroit fans should be optimistic this year. There's another reason, one having to Hey homies . . . whassssssup?!!!

You know what, that word (?) has never rolled off my tongue, or crossed my lips. I've heard it, read it and now I have just written "whassssup." But I have never said it.

Of course I have uttered the ancestral root word of "whasssup," that being, "wha'dup." And, I only use that when I'm in a good mood, with somebody I know rather well. Like I might say, "Wha'dup Jimbo?" when I address boss and this newspaper's publisher Jim Sherman. Never "whasssup?!"

By the way, how many s's are enough s's when trying to spell whasup?

Whassssup just doesn't fit in with the carefully crafted image of your hero, Don Rush. Thinking about it, I reckon I don't even use great-great, primordial granddaddy of "whassssup," — what is up.

When I'm hangin' with the posse and I need to address one of my homies, I usually say something like, "Hey Joe. How's it going." Or, "Hi Bob. How's the wife and kids. Nice shirt."

Yep.

I do not believe "whasssup" will make it in my vocab . a sure sign that I'm getting way too old for my own good.

The other day I found this dollar bill . . . or should I say, it found me? Let me explain:

I like money.

I am not greedy, I just like money. I like to look at money. Like I like to collect old stuff, I like to collect money. By the way, collecting money is different than saving money. For as much as I like money, and collect money, I'm not much on saving money.

At any exchange rate, when I get money I look at it. I want to see how old it is and what condition it is in. The other day while at an Oxford party store, the cashier forked over my change, and in it was this dollar bill. As I

A 8 Wed., May 3, 2000 The Clarkston (MI) News Residents say lower speed limit, create no passing zone

Davisburg Rd. residents organize petition drive

BY JEFF PATRUS

Clarkston News Staff Writer

Approximately 60 residents of Davisburg have signed their names to a petition requesting a reduced speed limit and a no passing zone in that area.

Among the residents signing the petition were Springfield Township Supervisor Collin Walls, Springfield Township Fire Chief Charles Oaks, and Trooper Jackie Powers of the Michigan State Police.

Also signing the petition were Keith Overly, an Oakland County Sheriff's Deputy, and volunteer firemen Stanton Richards, Thomas Oaks, Douglas Parsons, and John Murphy.

The petition requested that a speed limit of 40 miles per hour or lower, along with the no passing zone, be created on the part of Davisburg Road that stretches from Bigelow Road to Dixie Highway.

The section of Davisburg Road in question stretches through for approximately 1/2 mile.

The petition, addressed to the Oakland County Road Commission Traffic Safety Division, stated that "due to increased development throughout Rose and Springfield Townships, and the section of road defined above, traffic has grown at an alarming rate."

"Exiting or entering the driveways and streets located along this section of 50 m.p.h. traffic is a hazard for all drivers," the petition continued.

According to Walls, this is not the first time that township residents have raised their concerns; however, he felt that the current effort is much more organized

"The township board made a similar request about a couple years ago," he said. "It was not as specific, and it did not include a petition."

According to Walls, the times that the school buses run along the road coincide with the points during the day where traffic is the heaviest. As a result, the potential exists for a lot of hazardous situations, he said.

'I've heard of a number of near misses," said Walls.

Walls said that the petition was received April 27 from the clerk of the Oakland County Road Commission, and is currently being reviewed by the commission's Traffic Safety Department.

According to resident Ray Myatt, who organized the petition effort, the process of collecting signatures was delayed "due to the fact that everyone I presented this petition to felt compelled to personally explain their own harrowing experiences," he said in the petition.

Stock falling, but hopes still high at Clarkston State Bank

BY ED DAVIS

Clarkston News Staff Writer

Dave Harrison, president of Clarkston State Bank, will have good news and bad news to report at the second annual stockholders meeting May 9

While the bank has met or exceeded key financial goals for the year, it has also seen a steady decline in the value of its stock.

'All publicly traded banks have seen a decline like us," he said. "People have been investing in new world companies. We're competing in a strange phenomenon. Companies are now valued on momentum and potential, not earning."

Clarkston State Bank opened for business in January of 1999 and Harrison said he didn't predict the bank would begin making a profit until May 2000. But his bank turned the corner earlier than he expected, and has been making a profit since January of 2000.

"For a hometown bank this place runs well. I don't know what the investors' expectations were, nor do I know when the stock will start to rise again. I wish I could figure that out. All I can tell our investors is that we're watching their investment very carefully and that over time this will be a good asset to hold," Harrison said.

Still, Clarkston State Bank has seen its shares fall by $4.75 per share. The bank sold 950,000 shares when the company went public in November of 1998. The shares originally sold for $10 each.

Harrison said because of the nature of his business, some decline in stock was expected.

"It's all about a buy versus sell situation. This is an old world economy business. Banks generally lose a little in the beginning, but then they usually take on a more predictable pattern," Harrison said. "At the meeting I'll sit down with the shareholders and tell them how many loans we made and how much we lost. Then I'll compare that to other first-year organizations."

Just when stock in Clarkston State Bank will rise is a question that no one can answer — not even Harrison himself.

"It's a question of when investors will cause that to happen, he said. "By the nature of the business we had to hire lots of people in the beginning without making money. In general, a rule of thumb in banking is to have $2 million in assets per employee to make money. We're above that."

Harrison said he's seen fewer sellers of the stock since the first of the year, but hasn't received feedback from stockholders regarding the stock.

"I haven't heard anything from them regarding the stock, but I have heard plenty of positive feedback from customers within the community. We're happy with the shareholders, they're everything we want them to be. I just ask everybody be patient with the stock market. I think a little patience will be rewarded in time," he said.

Clarkston State Bank met or exceeded key financial goals for the year. At year-end its assets totaled $33.3 million, deposits reached $25.3 million and loans stood at $11.1 million. As expected, the bank posted a loss for the year of $604,000, equivalent to .64 per share. Harrison said nearly one fourth of the net loss is attributable to the funding of its loan loss provision, which is a non-cash type entry but is a prudent business practice.

Clarkston State Bank also opened its first branch office in July at Sashabaw Road, just west of I-75 in a busy Farmer Jack supermarket. With extended hours for customer convenience, the Sashabaw Road branch is the area's only bank open seven days a week to serve its customers' banking needs. Each office includes a 24-hour ATM and night deposit.

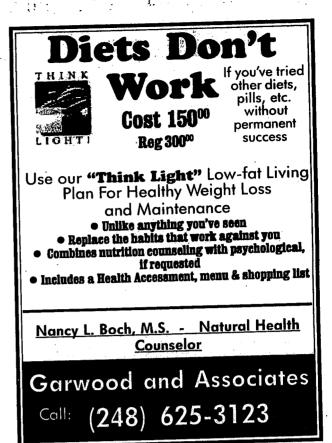

The bank also launched a courier service in 1999. The service provides on-site pick up of deposits from business customers, which enables them to bank with Clarkston State Bank without having to leave their place of business to transact normal banking transactions

In addition, Clarkston State Bank now offers 24 hour banking over the phone. Customers can get balances, make savings to checking and checking to savings transactions and make loan payments over the phone. Clarkston state bank also has a website, but not interactive. The address is it's www.clarkstonstatebank.com. The website gives detailed information about the bank and describes what products and services are offered.

Harrison said he expects Clarkston State Bank to continue to grow and be profitable throughout the rest of the year.

"I really want to thank the staff we have here. They're the ones that make the place great. They're very experienced and there's nothing, besides on-line banking, that the big banks can do that we can't," Harrison said.

Suddeth remembered as smart, soft spoken and caring

BY ED DAVIS

Clarkston News Staff Writer

The city of Clarkston lost a wonderful, bright young man last week when Aaron Robert Suddeth was killed in an auto accident on White Lake Road in Independence Township.

Aaron was described as a smart teenager who didn't have to study much in order to do well in school.

"Things came pretty easy for him. He could've done whatever he wanted to do in life," said Susan Gavin, Aaron's father's fiance.

"I know his friends and him were in this computer class together and Aaron read the book in the first week and thought he could teach the class. He was very good with things like that. Whenever I had a problem with my computer, TV or VCR Aaron always knew how to fix it," Gavin said.

Aaron had many hobbies and interests ranging from sports, to computers, to video games and television. He enjoyed playing soccer, football and tennis. He also enjoyed dirt biking and three wheelers.

"He had a great personality. Once you got to know him you could see how funny he was. He was a soft spoken guy and very, very caring," Gavin said.

Gavin will be missed by all who knew him. Aaron was the son of Jeffrey Suddeth of Clarkston and Karen Short of Goodrich and the brother of Ryan, Nick and Amanda.

Drug prevention workshop coming up this month

BY ED DAVIS

Clarkston News Staff Writer

The nationally acclaimed drug prevention series for teens "Parent-to-Parent" will be offered to Clarkston area parents and guardians on May 11, 18 and 25 from 7-9 p.m. The workshops are video based and facilitator led and were developed by Bill Oliver and Milton Creagh. The sessions will teach proactive parenting skills aimed at increasing protective factors and decreasing risk factors, so that your child will be more likely to achieve a drug-free passage through adolescence.

"I think the speaker in the videos, Mr. Oliver does a great job. He speaks from his own experience with his own daughter," Dixon said.

Dixon will be working with Jan Colbrunn during the workshops. Both will facilitate discussion after each 30 minute video is shown.

information and concepts fundamental to the remainder of Parent-to-Parent. It provides every participant with a critical understanding of the reasons children get involved with drugs and alcohol, their effect on adolescent behavior and the types of drug use. This segment develops parents' awareness.

The second mini-workshop teaches specific skills which allow parents to be effective yet provide latitude for their child to develop fully into a responsible adult.

The third mini-workshop is the intervention phase. The fact is that some children will place themselves in terrible danger regardless of parent's efforts to prevent the problem. This phase prepares parents to act swiftly and appropriately should it be necessary.

Each session is led by a trained "facilitator" whose single objective is to see that this experience is productive and enjoyable. There is time for discussion, questions and exchange of ideas with other parents within your workshop group.

Research has shown that a three-pronged approach to drug prevention is most effective: a school component, a parent component and a community-wide component. Although principles discussed will apply to all parents, the series will hold special interest and practical application tips for parents of children in grades 4-8, when parental influence is strongest and peer-selection is in process.

The Senior Center in Clintonwood Park, located at 5980 Clarkston Road will host the fourth annual Clarkston's "Parent-to-Parent" Drug Prevention Workshop, but only if enough parents get involved.

The workshops are free, but at least 20 people must register for the series with facilitator Cindy Dixon in advance at (248) 394-0252.

La Villa Ristorante gets ready to celebrate a grand re-opening to let customers know about their full-service bar, excellent wine selection, enhanced decor and new this summer, cafe dining outside.

BY MARALEE COOK Clarkston News Editor

ChefZog Gulaj of Clarkston's La Villa Ristorante has been getting rave reviews from customers who travel around the world.

Customers who have sampled his Chilean Sea Bass say its better than that found at the best restaurants in South America. Customers who also eat at the best restaurants in Italy gush that La Villa is as good as anything there. Longtime food critic Molly Abraham spent four hours enjoying the virtues of La Villa. And Channel 4's Chef Keith Famie raves about the "superb presentation and quality of food," reports owner Don Tocco with obvious pride.

Local customers are raving too. Clarkston Area Chamber of Commerce Executive Director Penny Shanks said a recent chamber luncheon at La Villa echoed others sentiments.

"The people who had never been there were surprised to find food this good in a restaurant in a shopping center. They served salmon to a large group of people and it was hot, fresh and delicious. That's hard to do."

Chef Zog, who has been with La Villa since June of 1999, has been in the restaurant business since culinary technical classes in high school. He studied at the culinary arts program at Oakland Community College, before going to work at Andiamo's, followed by nine years at Larko's Italian Chop House in Troy.

Although he is Albanian, his family emigrated to Italy, where he learned to love Italian fragrances and flavors.

Chef Zog and manager Barry Ellstein toast the fine culsine and service at La Villa Ristorante.

For instance, La Villa's appetizer Zafferano (saffron) Risotto -- lobster and asparagus, morel mushrooms on a bed of saffron scented risotto. "The saffron makes the dish unique and gives it the rich, warm yellow color," said Gulaj.

The Shrimp Villa appetizer is gulf shrimp lightly breaded then sauteed with garlic, lemon and a Chablis wine sauce.

Chef Zog's Vitello con morel, a veal scalopini sauteed with shallots and morel mushrooms demi-glaze and Madeira wine sauce is rich and light at the same time.

The filet mignon is Chef Zog's hand-trimmed black angus steak with zip sauce au jus. "Other restaurants have not perfected zip sauce the way we have," he said.

"I can't emphasize enough how much time we take on veals and steaks. There are no shortcuts here. We love what we're doing. I enjoy my work and I try to display that in the food," said Chef Zog.

Tocco said an unofficial poll of La Villa's customers voted their Tiramisu dessert the best in Oakland County. And during the last week of Lent a customer called in a request for Chef Zog to make his chocolate creme brulee after Lent.

The quiet flavors from Chef Zog's kitchen are meant to be enjoyed with a good bottle of wine, says Tocco. "At recent wine tastings with suppliers we picked an extraordinary selection of reds and whites for all tastes and price selections."

If you're celebrating a special occasion Tocco recommends Stag's Leap Merlot or Cabernet Sauvignon. He said their Blackstone Merlot is also very unique, and restaurant manager Barry Ellstein also suggests Rovaio Lalastra, which was given 90 out of 100 points by Wine Spectator. La Villa is available for special or corporate lunches and dinners. The Capone room offers private dining for 18, said Ellstein, who has 20 year of experience in the bar and restaurant industry. Customers may also custom design a menu to fit their budget. This summer La Villa plans to serve meals outdoors. Ellstein said they already have received a cafe license from Independence Township. Would you like to enjoy Chef Zog's exquisite cuisine in your own home? The same menu is available, said Ellstein -- everything except the salt and pepper shakers. La Villa Ristorante is located at 6397 Sashabaw Rd. at Hours are Tue. through Thur., 11 a.m. to 10 p.m.; Fri. from . 1 a.m. to 11 p.m.; Sat. from 5 to 11 p.m. and Sun. from 4 to 8 p.m. The restaurant is closed on Mondays. For Mother's Day, La Villa will be open from 1 to 7 p.m. and Ellstein urges that reservations be made

"We want our guests to dine with us -- not eat and run. There's a difference between just eating and dining, and enjoying the ambience and music," he says.

Chef Zog says his success comes from being personally involved in all phases of food preparation. When creating new recipes, Chef Zog said, "In my mind I visualize mixing flavors. Nine out of 10 times it's the right thing."

"Fresh ingredients are the most important," says Chef Zog. "I grind my own herbs and spices to get the full effect of their flavor. Also, combining different herbs and spices and marrying them together." He calls working among the fresh herbs "aromatherapy." Special marinades are key, and he has developed a Rolodex of flavors in his mind, he joked.

He also believes in top quality black angus beef and Provimi milk-fed veal, both of which he hand trims, he said.

Community comes together to build playground for kids

"I want to thank all the businesses for helping out and also Judy Haas and Gus Gofer, who helped me correlate all the sack lunches," Baldwin said.

Over 50 sack lunches were donated by residents of Clarkston and Independence Township.

"I have a 3 year old son, Nicholas. He can't wait to play on it," Baldwin said.

Free child care was also available over the weekend.

While the playground is scheduled to open to the public May 4, there are several more items that may be added to the park which will make it even better.

An in-line skating rink, basketball courts, concession stands and two bathrooms are all being discussed and more add-ons are possible depending on donations. Conklin said most donations have come from area residents and businesses. The basketball and in-line skating rink alone would cost an estimated $30,000.

Conklin said the bathrooms would probably be completed this summer, and Parks and Rec is in the midst of a fund raiser for the in-line rink.

"We hope to add as funds become available like the basketball court and the concession stands. The concession stand would be the last thing we'd add," Conklin said.

"It was just a great weekend. We had so many great people help out. One couple helped out because they had their first date there years ago. We heard lots of cute little stories like that. Everything came together really well," she said.

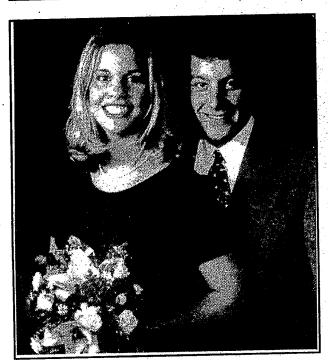

Clarkston Rotary Club President Mark Deacon, right, helps out at the playground build last Saturday. Ann Conklin, director of Parks and Rec, said the Rotary Club made a generous donation for the structure.

Worship

Take action on behalf of our young people New prayer group beginning

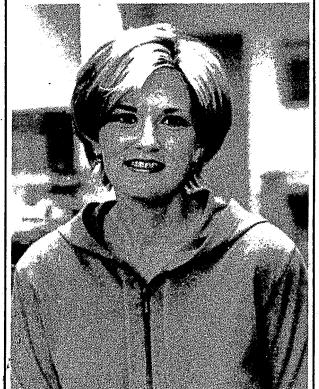

By Lori Blicher

Clarkston is a community that makes children a priority. I know, because my own two chidren have greatly benefitted from the many programs and activities made available to them each year. From school sports to sports camp to Optimist Club events to Parks and Rec. activities, and these are just the things in which my own family has participated!

While all of these programs are good and necessary and help to produce well-rounded citizens, as human beings we are only capable of helping to a point.

Even our greatest efforts require Divine intervention to truly make a difference. The Bible says in 2 Chronicles 7:14, "if My people, who are called by My name will humble themselves, and pray and seek My face, and turn from their wicked ways, then I will hear from heaven, and will forgive their sin and heal their land." Basically, if we do our part, God promises to do His.

Lori Blicher

If is my desire to see God heal our land. How many tragedies do we have to witness on the news before we take some preventive action on behalf of ise. our own young people?'

I may not be able to greatly impact Columbine, Colorado, but I certainly can do my part in Clarkston, Michigan.

So I invite you to join me in a newly forming community prayer group called H.I.P. - Humbled in Prayer. This group is open to adults 18 and over and will meet Tuesday nights from 7:30 to 8 p.m. in a classroom at Clarkston High School, 6093 Flemings Lake Rd.

Matthew 19:19 says, "Again I say to you that if two of you agree on earth concerning anything that they ask, it will be done for them by my Father in heaven."

Consider agreeing on this:

1. We are concerned for the youth of our community.

2. We want to humble ourselves. We freely admit our need for guidance and wisdom in raising our children, and look to God for help.

3. We know prayer changes things and makes a difference. It touches the very heart of God.

4. We seek God's face. We pray to the one true God in the name of Jesus.

5. We are committed to being examples ourselves, allowing our own lives to be changed in the areas that need change.

6. We count on God to fulfill His part of the prom-

7. We agree to set aside all other doctrinal issues or personal beliefs, joining together with fellow Christians in one single focus - our kids.

If you agree with these statements, please join me in prayer for the youth and children of Clarkston. Let's do our part and together watch God do his.

Four-year varsity starting catcher Derek Casper doesn't show up on the score sheet as much as some his teammates, but his contributions to this year's Clarkston baseball team go beyond his numbers.

40 years and counting...

Clarkston High School Class of 1960 gears up to celebrate its 40th reunion, and the reunion committee plans to make a party everyone will remember.

BY MARALEE COOK Clarkston News Editor

The Clarkston High School Class of 1960 will mark its 40th anniversary this year, and if three former classmates have their way, everyone who can, will be in attendance.

Georgena (Vliet) Miller, Patiann Rhyndress, and Shar (Spohn) Crum have been working diligently to find former classmates for over a year. They've rounded up many, but still have a few to go.

The trio brought pictures to The Clarkston News recently and are looking for help from the community in identifying and finding classmates.

The reunion is scheduled for August 19 at the American Legion Hall, 4819 Edgewood Dr.

About a year ago, 22 of the classmates staged a 39th reunion 'gals' luncheon at the Brandon Township Senior Center, said Miller. The women played Elvis records, reminisced and had a great time.

Some of the stories to be relived at the reunion this summer will include a senior skip day that went awry.

Miller said several students skipped school on a Wednesday, giving the excuse that they had dentist appointments. They forgot however, that the only dentist in town closed his office on Wednesday. The girls all received detention for one day.

Crum said that a big treat at her house was to be given five cents each Friday to buy a double sherbet.

Miller said there will be lots of prizes donated from the community and a 50-50 raffle. After expenses, the class has decided to donate proceeds to the Make-A-Wish Foundation in the name of the class.

You gotta' have art

Students show artistic abilities at Clarkston Elementary

Students participate in wide range of art workshops and three musical assemblies

BY ED DAVIS

Clarkston News Staff Writer

Creativity and fun were in full force when Clarkston Elementary School hosted Festival of the Arts April 14.

Students spent the day learning about and practicing many varieties of art ranging from tie dye tshirt making, to watercolor, to origami to jewelry making

Lori Blicher, chairperson of the event, said she was amazed at the variety of activities which were available for the children.

"It was a wonderful experience for the kids. They were unbelievable. They were very enthusiastic and cooperative. I was amazed at the willingness and creativity of everybody who helped. I had fun with this project since we started planning it," Blicher said.

An estimated 75 volunteers helped with the program. Sandy Turner, Jenny Locricchio and Jill Chaffee were also on the planning committee.

The all-day program had students participate in various art workshops, but also featured three separate assemblies.

The first assembly featured O.J. Anderson, a comedian from Ann Arbor. Anderson is a former opera singer, but changed jobs so he could spend more time with his family. His message was hard work gets you simple joy.

"He had the kids roaring and totally enthralled. They really liked him," Blicher said.

The second assembly was showcased by English folk dancing. An interactive dance and music with flutes, drums and bells kept students entertained.

Carol Johnson, from Grand Rapids, was in charge of the third assembly. She sang "music with a message," as she played guitar, piano and banjo and sang interactive songs with the students.

"The kids' favorite song was 'Bump in the Night'," Blicher said. "It's a song about being afraid of the dark. "All the kids loved her. They kept telling her to sing and dance," Blicher said.

Next year Clarkston Elementary will hold a Festival of Science Day.

A A A A A

Davis Continued from page 1B basketball team in seventh and eighth grades, but after failing to make the teams I gave up. My interest in sports didn't decline any however. I just channeled my energies for sports in different directions. Some of which led me and my fallen teammates to the emergency room.

Backyard football — Playing backyard football can be just as competitive, and sometimes even more dangerous.

First off, there's no trainer at a backyard football game. Secondly, there's no halftime. Lastly, there are no pads. That's where the danger kicks in. When I was in middle school the injuries weren't nearly as apparent as they were once we played in high school. Broken bones, stitches, dislocated knee caps, getting thrown into thorn bushes and playing in tennis shoes in mud and snow all made for interesting games. After suffering three serious injuries in two games my friends and I decided to put backyard football to rest. It just wasn't worth the pain anymore.

Street Hockey --- We turned our old high school parking lot into our own little Joe Louis Arena in the summer of 1995. Complete with two goalies (myself and somebody else who was dumb enough to stand in front of flying projectiles), nets and four to six skaters a side, we spent many a summer night on that parking lot pretending to be our NHL favorites. Hockey didn't see the amount of injuries that backyard football did, but it was just as competitive, moreso probably.

We played on that lot for two solid summers. Because a lot of us worked at restaurants, we didn't start playing until 10 p.m. or so, but the games usually didn't end until after 1 a.m. We became very close as a unit, and even though we didn't have a team name, or any uniforms, I'd venture to say we were as good as any other kids our age at the same game.

I remember one game we played

runs and walks.

As for the rest of the season, Capser feels the sky is the limit for this year's team.

"So far the season's going well. We hit a hot streak right before spring break and we really came together as a team. If we continue to play like we have been, we'll be playing well for a long time. Beating Troy this season was against a bunch of kids who came over from Farmington. Some of them had played with us before, but for some reason there were a lot more of them that night. We ended up playing them in a game: Novi vs. Farmington. We had never all been on the same team before. It was a weird feeling, and even though we were all good friends on and off the parking lot, we had never been unified. We won the game in what was one of my most memorable experiences as a kid.

We tried to play hockey again the following summer, but it wasn't the same. Some of the players had decided to live at school over the summer and some had lost interest altogether. But for a few summers, I really felt like part of a team.

So are you seniors. You're all part of the same team, and even though there are different cliques in high school, this last month, if your last year was anything like mine, some barriers between you will start to come down. I'm not saying you'll all instantly be friends. But I know at my gradation and times after I spoke to many people in my grade I didn't talk to while I was enrolled as a student.

So here you are seniors. A few weeks to go. Enjoy it, relish in it, but remember it's only a few more weeks. Be it better or for worse, you won't be in that school too much longer. Some people you think you'll stay in contact with forever, you won't. Some people you just may. It depends on what kind of effort you put into it.

As my five year high school reunion approaches this summer, I'm debating on whether to go. On the one hand it would be fun to see what a lot of people have been up to. But on the other hand, I'm one of the few Novi alumni who have kept in contact most of my friends, who are the main reason I'd go in the first place.

It's up to you seniors on whether or not you'll keep in touch with each other after graduation. You've spent four years building memories with each other. Why stop now?

something you just can't explain," Casper said.

"He's done a nice job as being one of our senior leaders. He's gotten more vocal and given us some solid senior leadership," Price said.

After graduation, Casper will be attending Adrian College to study criminal justice and will play baseball there as well.

Other hobbies of Casper's include model rockets and movies, particularly action and horror genres.

Nature of the Work

Reporters play a key role in our society. They gather information, prepare stories, and make broadcasts that inform us about local, State, national and international events; present points of view on current issues; and report on the actions of public officials, corporate executives, special interest groups and others who exercise power.

In covering a story, reporters investigate leads and news tips, look at documents, observe events at the scene, and interview people. Reporters take notes and may also take photographs or shoot videos. At their office they organize the material, determine the focus or emphasis, write their stories, and can edit accompanying video material. Many reporters enter information or write stories on laptop computers, and electronically submit them to their offices from remote locations.

In some cases, newswriters write a story from information collected and submitted by reporters. Radio and television reports often compose stories and report "live" from the scene. Some journalists also interpret the news or offer opinions to readers, viewers or listeners. In this role, they are called commentators or columnists.

Working Conditions

Usually hectic, reporters are under great pressure to meet deadlines and broadcasts are sometimes made with little time for preparation. Some work in comfortable, private offices; others work in large rooms filled with the sound of keyboards and computer printers, as well as the voices of other reporters. Curious onlookers, police or other emergency workers can distract those reporting from the scene for radio and television. Covering wars, political uprisings, fires, floods and similar events is often dangerous.

Hours

Working hours vary. Reporters on morning papers often work from late afternoon until midnight. Those on afternoon or evening papers generally work from early morning until early afternoon or mid-afternoon. Radio and television reporters are usually assigned to a day or evening shift. Magazine reporters usually work during the day.

Job Trends

• Employment is expected to grow little and there should be keen competition for jobs.

- Less competition is expected for jobs with suburban and weekly newspapers and small radio and television stations.
- Jobs are often stressful because of irregular hours, frequent night and weekend work, and pressure to meet deadlines.

Skills Needed

Reporters need good word-processing skills, however computer graphics and desktop publishing skills are also useful. Computer-assisted reporting involves the use of computers to analyze data in search of a story. This technique and the interpretation of the results require strong math skills and familiarity with databases.

Suggested Courses

English, journalism and social studies provide a good foundation. Courses in computer science, business and speech are useful. Fluency in a foreign language is necessary in some jobs.
