Schools project $53.8 million budget next year

Good news: State foundation allowances up $300 per student

BY JEFF PATRUS

Clarkston News Staff Writer

The Clarkston Community Schools Board of Education took the opportunity Monday to discuss the financial state of the district heading into the next school year.

Craig Kahler, head of business services for the district, presented a budget review to the board at a special meeting.

According to Kahler, 65 percent of the budget for the next school year will be directed toward salaries, while 21 percent is earmarked for employee benefits and 7 percent for purchased services.

Projected revenues for next year are estimated at $53,872,393, while expenditures are projected at $53,800,832, which leads to a surplus of $71,561.

The fund balance, as of June 2001, is estimated at $5,999,434, with the percentage of expenditures estimated at 11.5 percent.

"We did manage to get the budget in balance," Kahler said.

He said that the retirement rate for the district is at 12.16 percent, while health insurance rates will be decreasing by over 1-1/2. The current non-homestead millage rate stands at 17.6772 with voters' approval of a three-month increase in this month's school election.

He presented some assumptions with regard to next year's budget.

Among them were a foundation allowance increase of $300 (4.88 percent) to $6,442 (with a net foundation allowance of $6,428); no new hires other than enrollment related; staffing ratios slightly below contract levels, with K-3 further below contract; limited school start-up resources (for renovated building moves); and proposed expenditure reductions included in the budget.

"The biggest change is the proposed increase in the foundation allowance," Kahler said. "We've adjusted the class ratio slightly for grades K-12."

He added that the district needs to determine its greatest areas of concern. "We need to articulate to the administrative staff what the targets are."

Proposed cost containment measures for the next school year, Kahler said, include a reduction in the supply budget, deferral of equipment acquisition for technology, operations and transportation, and reduction in athletic supplies.

He added that the end result may mean that staff

While seniors at Clarkston High School celebrated their graduation two weeks ago, another group of "seniors" graduated last week. Fifth grade students at several area elementary schools celebrated their graduation with award ceremonies and presentations before their final day of school June 16. middle school with the good-will wishes of parents, siblings and teachers. Several classes enjoyed guest speakers, musical numbers and slide shows in addition to the ceremonies. City hopes to add downtown parking

BY ED DAVIS

Clarkston News Staff Writer

Some relief to the parking situation in downtown Clarkston may come, but only if the city finds out it's covered from Meadowbrook Insurance.

If the city receives notice from Meadowbrook Insurance, the city's insurance company, additional parking spaces will become open to the public 24 hours a day on Depot between Main and the west alley.

Clarkston Police Chief Paul Ormiston said he expects the city to be covered. As of Tuesday, the city has not heard back from Meadowbrook Insurance.

"We need to be covered in the event of a lawsuit and we should be covered. To the best of our knowledge we are covered. There shouldn't be any exclusions. The city council is seeking clarification of the coverage," Ormiston said.

Those spots were taken away before Ormiston became Clarkston's Police Chief, over five years ago because of a lawsuit. A woman fell and sued the city and the spots were no longer made available to the public.

At their June 13 regular council meeting, council members resolved to make those parking spaces available again if the city is covered under its current insurance policy.

"It should give some relief to the office employees at this end of town. It should also help the retail parking too. They can now access other spots, and not take up the two-hour spots along on Main Street," he said.

If the city is covered, it will have to remove the no parking signs, mark the parking spaces. The parking spaces should become available to the public within a week of receiving written confirmation of Meadowbrook Insurance.

Garage sale 'techniques' vary

BY ELLY SPINWEBER

Clarkston News Staff Writer

Ah, summer. Time for graduations, vacations, little league games and, as always, garage sales.

Whether looking to be rid of old "junk" or to make a little extra money, garage sale techniques vary amongst sellers, each choosing a different way to make the most of their sales.

Denise Ferrand, who held a garage sale at her home on June 16 and 17, said she has one every four or five years and "made several hundred dollars just from odds and ends" this year.

Ferrand's home is located on Marvin Road in Clarkston; she said she was pleased at how many people came out, despite the fact she is a bit off the beaten path.

The sale contained toys, books, some furniture and a large amount of clothing, which Ferrand and her mother hung on racks and sized.

Ferrand said it is easier for people to shop with the clothes hanging up according to size, because then they do not have to sift through disorganized piles.

The garage sale also included a few unique items, such as a late-1800's pram, which sold for $250. The pram, which belonged to a neighbor, was in relatively good condition. Also at the sale was another neighbor's handpainted cradle, which was being sold for only $20.

Ferrand said she has been successful with her sales regardless of whether she focuses on selling clothes, furniture, or a mix of the two.

"The last time I had more furniture, but we came out about even money-wise," she said.

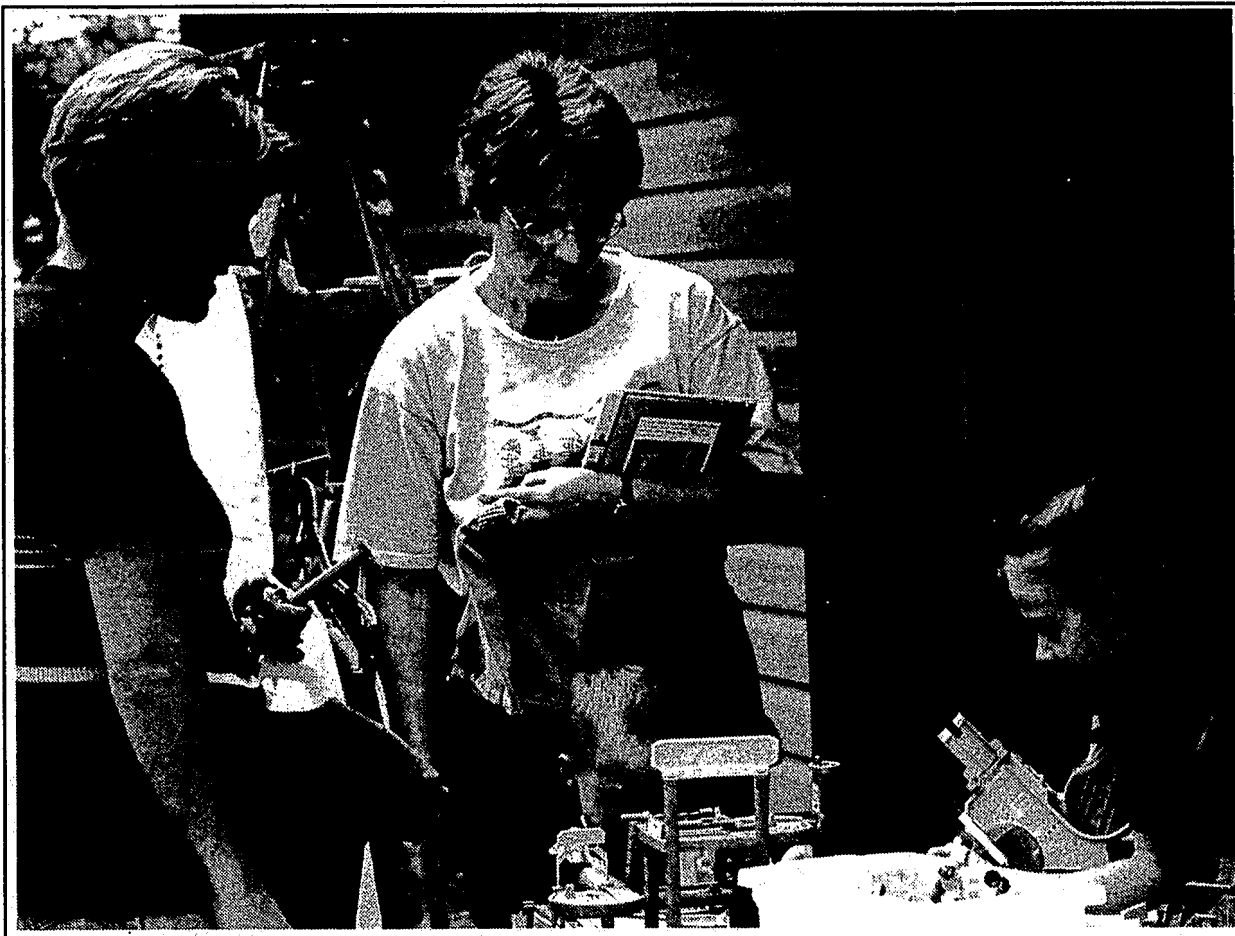

Ferrand added she has the sale every few years to get rid of her children's outgrown toys and clothing.

"They go through so much as infants, but I think as (the kids) get older, I'll give all this to charity," Ferrand said.

While individual garage sales work for some, others find group sales to be more lucrative.

Spring Lake subdivision, located off Maybee Road in Clarkston, held a sub sale on June 17.

Rick Goodrich, a resident of Spring Lake who participated in the sale, said he finds a group sale much easier.

"It's like a circus," he said. "We see a lot more people on days like this."

Customers-themselves often find group sales more lucrative — Goodrich said he sold a lot of merchandise to a family who visited the sub sale with 10 kids, a 15-passenger van and a trailer filled with garage sale finds.

Goodrich and his wife, who have a sale each year, sold mostly children's clothes this time.

"We'll do this every year until my son stops growing," he said.

His sales are more "to get rid of things" than to make money, Goodrich said.

"All this leftover stuff is probably going to Lighthouse," he added.

Denise Ferrand found selling clothes easier when they were hung up and sized for customers.

City close to finalizing downtown streetscape plan

Downtown Clarkston is one step closer to having a cozier ambience.

At the council meeting, held on June 13, the Clarkston City Council approved the final designs and material selections soon to be implemented when construction begins on the downtown TEA 21 enhancement project later next year.

Downtown enhancement recommendations included: installation of historic "Joliet style street light fixtures", which will accommodate flower planting baskets as well as colorful banners. New sidewalks with brushed concrete and old world Belgium pavers, new park benches and trash receptacles. Additional improvements will include installation of pear trees and other landscaping materials carefully selected to calm traffic effects while bringing the main focus to the his-

Waldon Rd. 'Town Center' development in final stages

BY ELLY SPINWEBER
Clarkston News Staff Writer

Negotiations are coming to a close in phase one of a proposed retail, business and office development off Waldon Road.

On June 6, Ed Adler, owner of the property, received a rezoning approval from the Independence Township Board, which moves the area from a planned research office/suburban residential zone to a planned unit development zone. This rezoning is one of the final steps in a process that has been ongoing for several years.

Adler is former owner of the Foodtown chain and current owner of the Waldon space.

The area, located directly behind what is now Farmer Jack, will have a 'town square' appeal, according to township officials and site planners.

Buildings on the 11-acre site, which include a day care center, will be of Georgian/Williamsburg architecture to maintain this appeal.

At a March meeting of the Independence Township Planning Commission, the preliminary plans called for brick buildings with stone headers and copper flashings.

Proposed uses of the business spaces include an Einstein Bros. Bagels or a Starbucks Coffee, Adler said at that meeting.

There are also several proposed landscaped sitting areas, plazas and planters to make the area more pedestrian-friendly.

The day care center, which will be built during phase one of the project, will include a 1,700 square foot enclosed play area and temporary drop-off parking for parents.

It is slated to contain approximately 235 students and 35 teachers.

The two remaining buildings included in phase one will be used for office space, according to township planner Dick Carlisle.

There was concern on the part of the planning commission at an April meeting that the site was becoming "a typical suburban retail development," said Commissioner Steve Board at the meeting.

"We have a chance to develop something that is architecturally and artistically outstanding here," Board said.

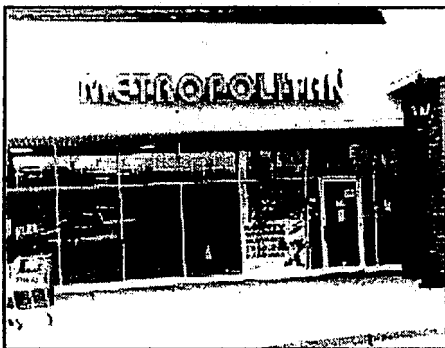

At the March meeting, Adler said he wanted phase one would be completed by September. However, building on the Waldon site has yet to begin.

Protect green space, promote recreation, says White

BY MARALEE COOK
Clarkston News Editor

The switch from the school community to township government seems natural to George White, who filed a petition earlier this year to run for Independence Township clerk. A Republican, he will face incumbent clerk Joan McCrary in the August 8 primary.

White, who retired from Clarkston schools in 1998 as principal of North Sashabaw Elementary, said he has been involved in a variety of areas of the township for many years.

As early as 1972, at a township board annual meeting, White said he made a motion for an advisory vote for the township hire to hire its first full-time recreation director. "The advisory vote passed and subsequently Tim Doyle was hired," he said.

At the same meeting White moved for an advisory vote for a full-time township planner instead of a part-time consultant. White said he does not remember if the board acted on the motion at that time.

White was also part of the building authority which purchased Clintonwood Park in the 1970s, he said.

An avid walker and cross-country skier, these recommendations are integral to White's "value system" which includes protecting green space in the township and promoting recreation, he said.

He also served on the community and schools parks and playground project which put together a plan to encourage community use of school playgrounds. "Independence Elementary is the first model of that plan -- access to rest rooms from the playground, which all elementary schools will have after the remodelings are complete."

White said all township facilities should be accessible by the handicapped as well. Understanding the need for that comes from his working with the Scamp program for the last 25 years, he said. Scamp is Clarkston's summer camp for youth and young adults with special needs. He wants the facilities compliant so "no-one has to stand outside or be left out. That to me is an embarrassment," he said.

White said he chose to run for the clerk's position because he wanted a voice on the township board and more than a trustee's position. He feels he has the administrative, technical and organizational skills to do the job.

"I felt this was a good starting point," he said. "I hope to be successful and have two terms as clerk. Then I would decide if I wanted to continue or go on to a different part of my life. I now have the vitality, energy and desire to serve the community."

White said another reason he wanted to have a voice on the board is because, "I saw how the board was functioning, having the inability to move forward. I have skills in team building, and I could be a valuable contributor to the functioning of the board." White said he supports the upcoming millage increase for the Advanced Life Support (ALS) proposal for the Independence Township Fire Department and the recent increase in Cairns IRIS equipment for fire personnel.

White said while he has not been privy to ongoing discussions about the township's proposal to purchase Clarkston Creek Golf Course, he favors continued protection of green space for future use.

In this vein, he said he does not want density increased and favors "hanging on to as many large parcels of land as possible." He also favors cluster developments, so green space is provided.

White said he is in favor of the schools and township's working cooperatively in the development of site plans and would like to see increased cooperation between the township and schools.

As president of GSW Clarkston Consulting, White sat in on meetings between the schools and the township engineer and planner during the construction of Independence Elementary School. "Everything they asked for was incorporated," said White. "The timing could have been more helpful, but it was an example of a successful collaboration." The contract between GSW Clarkston Consulting and the schools was terminated in February, but White still owns the company, he said.

Of the ethics resolution restricting campaign donations recently passed by the board, White said, "I understand their concern. I would hope people wouldn't be bought, but I can understand the vote behind that."

White is a fifth-generation Clarkstonite and traces his family roots as far back as 1837 when his ancestors helped settle Clarkston. Because of that his community roots are very strong, he said.

He's a past president or board member of several organizations, including: Clarkston Area Youth Assistance; Clarkston Area Optimists; Clarkston SCAMP Fundraising Corporation; Clarkston Athletic Boosters; Independence Land Conservancy. He was also an organizing member of the Clarkston Coalition for Youth, and is a member of the Clarkston Community Historical Society and the Clarkston United Methodist Church.

He also spent 16 years as director of community relations for Pine Knob Music Theatre.

His family includes his parents and two sons, Mark and Mike White, and Mike's wife Kara.

A few words about your summer tax bills

Dear Editor,

The Independence Township Treasurer's Office is in the process of preparing the year 2000 Summer tax bills.

Your tax bill will look different and hopefully be easier to read. We will send a laser printed bill with a perforated portion for the receipt. You will also receive a return envelope if you wish to pay by mail.

You should receive your summer tax bill during the first week of July. The summer tax bill contains all education-related tax levies. Included will be your local school operating and debt millage.

In Independence Township the primary school district is Clarkston Community Schools, but there are some residents who have Waterford or Lake Orion Schools. In addition there will be Oakland Intermediate Schools, Oakland Community College, and State Education tax.

'What is family?' was a fun celebration

Dear Editor,

I wasn't sure what to expect when I went to the WEunite "What is Family?" celebration on May 21. What I discovered was a fun loving evening where instead of having diversity glossed over like it is so often in society today, it actually was celebrated.

Several area families in the area shared who they are and what's important to them to kick off the event. In the world we live in today, it seems like everywhere we turn the media tells us what's normal, how we should act, and who we should be. I found it very powerful that families stood tall above all that and spoke for themselves, leaning on what they knew to be true. The whole world just might change if more people dared to come out of their shells and stand up to tell their stories and what they believe to be right.

After a delicious dinner the music and dancing began. I began to notice that people weren't hanging back or clumping together with only the others they knew — they were uniting. Some were laughing after letting loose on the dance floor. Some were playing games together. Some were simply talking. It was a night for discoveries, a night for learning about each other, and it was great.

By the time I left, I felt refreshed. The vision of WEunite became clearer for me, through the "What is family?" celebration. There was an atmosphere that can be found only where differences are accepted, and the common values that hold us all together are rejoiced in.

Wallace will stay active in township

Many people who closely watched the Independence Township Board of Trustees were surprised when trustee Neil Wallace decided not to run for reelection this year.

Several residents thought he would challenge Supervisor Dale Stuart for the top spot, and one resident who had fought against the Holiday Inn moving to M-15 at I-75 told me last winter he intended to head up Wallace's campaign.

When Wallace first announced he wouldn't run, he declined to say why. On Monday, he sat down with two reporters from other newspapers and me to explain why.

He said being on the township board was never about personal ambitions for himself, although he said he was accused of it several times. He also said he does not have ambitions for public office beyond the township level.

Wallace said that all along his purpose was to "do what I can so the community can reach its potential . . . to be unique and not just another suburb." He feels he can do as good a job on the sidelines and will continue to work for that goal.

He said his principal focus this summer will be to campaign for passage of the millage to support Advanced Life Support (ALS) for the Independence Township Fire Department in August.

Wallace said he voted against the millage increase "on nuance — I agree with the concept, just not the implementation." As for promoting its passage, "I'm doing this so people will know the value of this and vote for it," he said.

Wallace said too often when communities request a millage increase, not enough is done to insure it will pass. "If you believe in something, get the information out there."

Township funds can't be used to promote passage of the millage vote and Wallace said he has already helped raise $3,000 for a direct-mail and sign campaign.

He said he will also make himself available to citizens groups and advise them on how to present themselves to the township board, Planning Commission and Zoning Board of Appeals.

Unbeknownst to many people, Wallace performed that function for the citizens groups that fought the proposals to bring a Ryder truck warehouse to Sashabaw Road and the Holiday Inn to M-15 and I-75.

"When I read in the newspaper about the Ryder truck proposal I called the citizens whose names appeared in the paper. We met under the condition that no-one would know I was helping them. I did that because having my name involved would have been counter-productive (to stopping Ryder truck).

Maralee Cook

"I did the same thing with the Holiday Inn (group). I impressed on them how orderly they must be (at the joint Independence Township Board and Planning Commission meeting where the property was rezoned, and the Holiday Inn turned down).

Wallace said he believes the township has grown to the point where it should be professionally managed. He said a part-time supervisor and board should provide vision and policy. "Currently, the only qualifications you need to be supervisor are to get elected."

Wallace said he has met with a couple of the new candidates for trustee and thinks they would do a good job. "I think we need as much change as possible," he said, adding that after spending a long time on the board people begin to think like bureaucrats.

He also cautioned against those who run simply to make the board run more smoothly. "Consensus for consensus' sake is a bad idea. You need critical thinking. (Board members) should make sure they have adequate information to make a decision — require it if you don't have it. Make decisions based on principal, not what you think will be most popular."

Wallace said his wife Catherine is pleased about his decision not to run. "It's a good day when you can make a beautiful woman happy," he said. He added a recent vacation to Scotland with Catherine and their two daughters also validated his decision.

Gosh, I am becoming a grumpy guy

What ever happened to my youthful, optimistic, looking-at-the-world-through-rose-colored-glasses outlook on life and all things living.

Oh, I still respect life and all creatures great and small, except for those life forms that fit the general description of teenagers . . . and not all teens cause the ample amounts of hair on the back of my neck to stand on end, just the ones that are male and between the ages of 16-18.

I don't know why this is so. For godsake, I was once one of them (wasn't I?).

I wouldn't have noticed the ever-growing amounts of verbal garbage I spew whenever I see some hip hop, cool dude strolling down the side walk with his jeans hanging somewhere south of the Mason-Dixon Line, cigarette dangling out the corner of his mouth. Slack shoulders. Bobbing head.

Smirking.

But I made an off-color remark the other day about — what else — teenage boys, this time about the irksome way they drive, "You just can't trust them. They don't know what they're doing and they're gonna' kill somebody and — blah, blah, blah."

Dear Wife Jen reached out, grabbed me by the shoulders and then slapped me back and forth, left cheek, right cheek, then successfully executed a Stooges eye poke to my baby blues before I stopped my "blah, blah, blahings."

For a brief moment I thought I heard Ronald Regan, and all was right with the world. "Well, there you go again . . ."

Was I back in the 1980s?

Then the haze of my loathing started to lift and silhouetted in the light before me was Jen. "What's the matter with you? There you go again. You never have anything nice to say about those teen boys. You're becoming a grumpy old man."

What was that?

There. Clue. What you said . . . old man . . . grumpy . . . me . . . Dandy Don Rush. Quick with a smile and a twinkle in my eye . . . I was becoming a grumpy old guy. Lord above, say it ain't so.

But, I have to look at myself in the mirror and I cannot tell a lie. Yep. I do feel differently about those teen boys than I do for the rest of the universe's population.

I guess you can and agecist. Archie Bunker was a racist. Don Rush is an agecist.

And that is a shame. There are so many good kids out there I should be looking at and smiling with approval. Hard working kids who don't wear their baseball hats sideways. There must be kids who don't drive down the street, scrunched down in the seat. Kids who drive without their car-stereo blasting, "BOOM, BOOM, BOOM" causing small children to cry, dogs to howl and birds to fly gladly to their deaths, into buildings, trees, cars, whatever.

These are the kids that are our future. There is hope for a sane tomorrow . . .

Then I go to the local gas station at 11 p.m. and see a pack of teens standing in the parking lot, pants down to there, earrings everywhere, smoking, laughing stupidly, yelling to the cars that drive by and that old new feeling bubbles up from my bowels.

It's me, I know. It's not their fault they're 16 with nice cars. It's me, I'm jealous. I drove an orange 1972 Vega Kamback with a rust hole in the fender big enough to stick my head in . . . breath, Don. Relax.

I know it's something I have to work at. Maybe therapy will help. But, realistically I know I still have 14 years before Number One Son Shamus hits 16. And, who knows, by the time Shamus does turn 16 maybe it will be cool for teenage boys to be polite, dress neatly, not smoke nor drive like jerks.

Hey, a guy can dream can't he?

Playing ball in prison is a different game

We have a friend (one) from Blissfield, Jim Tibbs, who in his younger days played on an All-Star softball team. One of their opponents each year was a Jackson prison team.

Tibbs said the prisoners had all the advantage. For instance, in all their games they had home-field advantage.

They also supply their own umpires. There was little reason to question a ball, strike or other decision. Intimidation was ever present, not knowing which one on the home team was in jail for breaking and entering, bank robbery or murder.

The visiting team had one guard. The home team had 400 guards and all had bats. Tibbs said the prison team always had a winning season.

Today these prisoners are paid $1.35 a day to, among other things, keep the playing field groomed.

Had to call the Indians' Soaring Eagle casino in Mt. Pleasant recently. They have an appropriate phone number: 517-775-7777.

Why did my mother (yours, too?) always say, "Be sure and wash behind your ears."

I never asked if she said it to my sister, too. How did she think dirt could get behind my ears every day? Do mothers still say that? And, when was the last time you looked behind anyone's ears. I don't believe I ever did, including our children's.

Jeanette Tibbs, spouse of the above friend from Blissfield, sent me a note saying she learned all she needed to know from a cow.

Like: Wake up in a happy moo-o-d. Don't cry over spilled milk. Turn the udder cheek and moo-o-ve on. Seize every opportunity and milk it for all it's worth.

It's better to be seen and not herd. Honor they fodder and thy modder and udder relatives. Never take any bull from anybody. Always let them know who's the boss.

Don't forget to cow-nt your blessings every day. And, remember . . . life is easier when you take the bull by the horns.

P. J. O'Rourke said, "Golf combines two favorite American pasttimes: taking long walks and hitting things with a stick."

Fred Beck said, "If you pick up a golfer and hold it close to your ear, like a conch shell, and listen, you will hear an alibi."

Every talk show host, including Mitch Albom and Andy Rooney, have brought our attention to ridiculous warnings on labels. But maybe you haven't seen these few.

On Marks & Spencer Bread Pudding: Product will be hot after heating.

On packaging for a Rowenta iron: Do not iron clothes on body.

On Boots children's cough medicine: Do not drive car or operate machinery.

On Nytol: Warning - may cause drowsiness.

Local man writes history of Ukranian club

BY JEFF PATRUS
Clarkston News Staff Writer

The history of a Ukrainian youth organization in the Detroit area has come to life.

Clarkston resident Lu Hewko has put together a compilation of the group's history, dating from the post-World War II days to the present time.

The book, written in Ukraine, is entitled "History of Ukrainian Youth Organization 'Plast' Detroit Branch, 1949-1999."

"This was an opportunity to write a jubilee book," he said. "I felt it was worthwhile to document this organization."

"After World War II, there were a lot of immigrants that escaped the war from Eastern Europe, especially from Ukraine," he said.

Hewko estimated that approximately 400,000 people emigrated to the United States during the latter part of the 1940's.

With that in mind, the PLAST organization was formed as a common meeting ground for Ukrainian youth new to the U.S., based along the lines of the Scouting program commonplace among American youth.

Hewko said that those who made the pilgrimage to the United States during that period deserve a great deal of credit, considering they left "after the ravages of war" and headed to a strange country, not knowing the English language.

"I want to give credit to all these people," he said. "These were really of outstanding people." He also said that "an uncommonly high number of people" went on to attend universities and eventually became professionals in a wide variety of fields.

Today, he notes that every major city in the United States with a Ukrainian population has a PLAST chapter organized.

"This organization became very successful," he said.

Hewko said he spent a great deal of time researching the group's history ferent than most. There were many stories that were written by the actual participants."

Hewko was particularly struck by the level of community involvement on the part of those interviewed.

"I was impressed with the high caliber of civic consciousness and dedication," he said. "It turned out to be so successful."

Hewko said that the group focuses on such issues as character building, preserving their ethnic culture, religion, patriotism, and self-development.

He noted that in 1991, Ukraine became an independent state after 70 years under Communist occupation. At that point, the Ukrainians had no understanding of the democratic process.

Hewko said the book is designed in part to help them facilitate the change to a democratic way of life.

"This book is intended to be distributed heavily in the Ukraine, to help them go through this transition into a democracy," he said.

He said that so far, the book has met with a "good reception in the Ukrainian community."

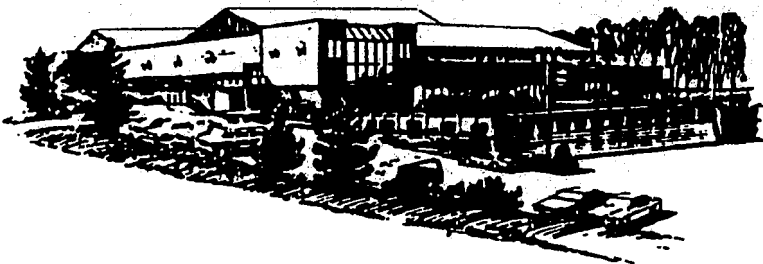

"It was a lot of fun," he said of the project. "It was very gratifying."

The book costs $30 U.S. ($35 Canadian), plus $5 shipping, and is available at the EKO Gallery, 26795 Ryan, Warren, MI 48091.

They can also be ordered by contacting PLAST Inc., c/o L. Hewko, 10393 Whippetree Ln., Clarkston, MI 48348; the telephone number is 625-9230, and his e-mail address is lohewko@aol.com.

A Look Back

15 YEARS AGO (1985)

In a very quiet election, incumbents Carolyn A. Place and Stephen E. Werner were reelected to four-year terms on the Clarkston Community Schools Board of Education. Only 2 percent, or 216, of the about 12,000 registered voters turned out for the election.

Scholarships, awards and grants totaling $51,231 belong to 1985 graduates of Clarkston High School. At the awards night for seniors, local scholarships totaled $16,000, college awards $17,800 and state scholarships and tuition grants $17,431.

After 17 years without any promotions, the Independence Township Fire Department has received permission to establish four new officer positions. The board unanimously authorized Chief Dale Bailey's request for four promotions within the department and the hiring of three new firefighters.

Legal action may be taken by the Clarkston Village Council to temporarily halt a portion of the road project currently underway by the Michigan State Highway Department for part of M-15.

It is conceivable that a half million dollar addition to the Northwest Oakland Vocational Educational Center on Bridge Lake Road might be in operation by fall of 1976. The first major hurdle in the expanded program has been overcome, the State Board of Education having made available a grant of $242,500.

Two bids submitted by W.R. Newsted Company for a new Clarkston District Courthouse are being considered by county officials. The bids, lowest of four submitted, provide for a 4,200 square feet of floor space at a yearly cost to the county of $23,000.

50 YEARS AGO (1950)

The Clarkston Fire Fighters have completed plans for the 4th of July program and promise a full day of fun. The day will start with the parade at ten o'clock and this will be followed by running races and other land events for young and old.

Committees for the big Community Fair to be held in the C.A.I. building on Williams Lake Road are wasting no time getting things in readiness for the event. The way the plans are shaping it looks as though this Fair will be one of the best ever to be held in the county.

Creative, hard workers help design party

BY MARALEE COOK
Clarkston News Editor

Drivers passing by Deer Lake Athletic Club on the evening of June 7 may have wondered what in the world was going on there.

But area residents familiar with Clarkston High School's all-night graduation party tradition knew right away. It was the scene for "Welcome to the Jungle".

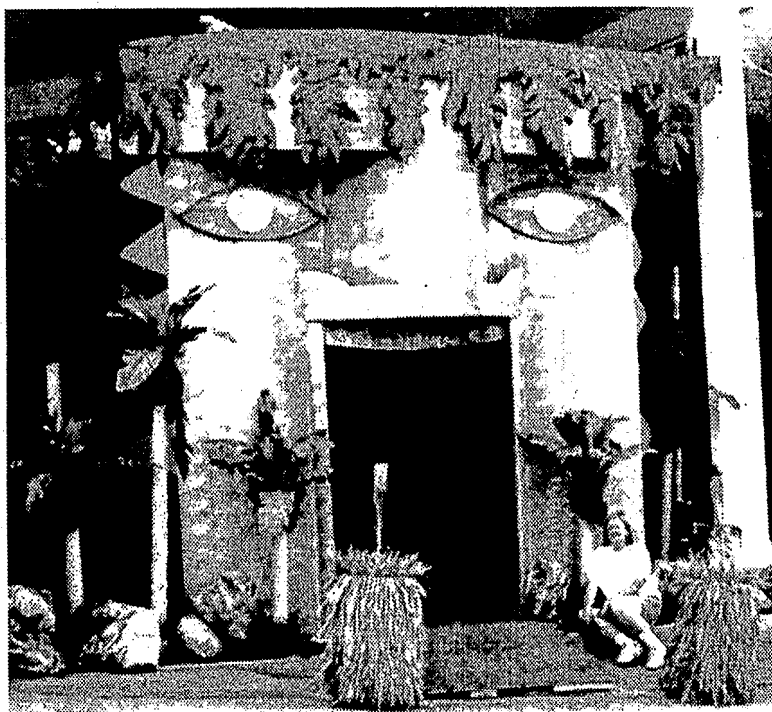

Each year parents of graduating seniors work on a variety of committees to present the students with a night of fun, food and good memories.

The theme of each party is chosen by the students and this year's was no exception. Parents in the decorating committee created decorations in a jungle theme for the kids.

The showstopper was the giant entrance way to Deer Lake fashioned after an African mask. It was designed by committee member Rohan Saparamapu, said Liz Wickersham, also a committee member. Wickersham Homes, Inc., owned by her husband Tim, built the entrance, and donated it to the schools along with the committee. Karen Roby and Manel Saparamapu are also committee members.

Wickersham said the entrance took about two months to make. It's made of wood and flex board with several coats of paint, and is flanked by palm trees and other decorations.

Decorations committee co-chair Sue McEvoy said their were about five sub-committees which helped put the decorations together. A lot of items were purchased from the dollar store. Newspaper was used, as was brown paper and people also made papier mache items. Co-chair Peggy North made most of the animals, said McEvoy.

"It was a wonderful committee to work on. Everybody had a job and it was a group effort. We couldn't have asked for better people to work with."

Next year's all-night party co-chairs are Marty Bolten and Kathie Valeri Carroll. Bolten said the seniors will vote on a theme as a class in the fall. Parents who would like to help out on next year's party should call Bolten at 625-4911 or Carroll at 620-8906. They are already beginning to plan, Bolten said.

Area man charged in beating death

BY JEFF PATRUS
Clarkston News Staff Writer

A Clarkston man is currently in the Oakland County Jail after being charged in the Friday beating death of Clarkston resident Lawrence John "Jack" Thompson.

Richard Lee Collar, 51, of Clarkston, was arraigned Sunday and charged with second degree murder in the death of Thompson, 38, a Clarkston resident who was the president of Thompson Oil Co.

According to Lt. Dale LaBair, commander of the Independence Township sheriff's substation, three women were partying that evening with Thompson, after which Collar showed up at the apartment with his date.

A fight ensued, and Thompson was assaulted repeatedly outside the apartment complex.

Police were dispatched to a fight in progress behind the building. When they arrived, they found Thompson severely kicked and beaten.

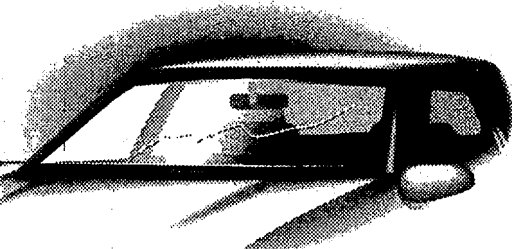

He was treated at the scene, and was pronounced dead later at Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital.

LaBair stated that additional suspects could be charged in the incident.

Springfield Plains hosts field day

BY JEFF PATRUS

Clarkston News Staff Writer

Students at Springfield Plains Elementary School took a break June 6 from the "three R's" and added a fourth "R" to their vocabulary: recreation.

The school hosted its annual "Field Day" outside the school, giving the youngsters a chance to unwind before summer vacation starts.

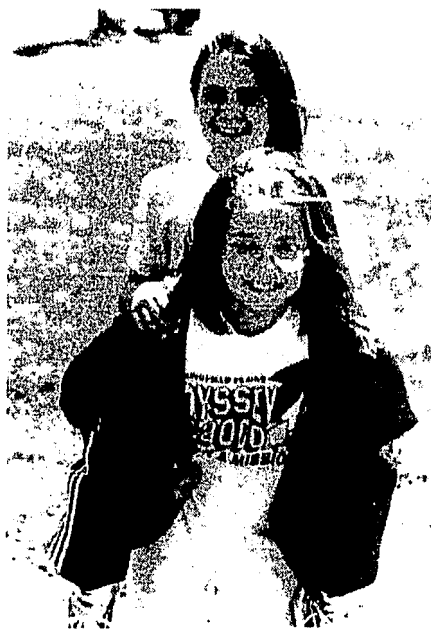

The event featured all sorts of traditional "picnic-type" events and games, such as tug-of-war, balloon toss and water relay.

In addition, new events were incorporated into the day's activities, such as Team Ski, a game in which teams of four had to walk together on skis to reach a certain point, and Hot Wings, a game in which the students used a sheet to fling a rubber chicken over a net.

Students from all grade levels took part in the day's festivities.

According to Joe Palace, a physical education teacher at Springfield Plains, the event gave the students a chance to understand the importance of working together as a team.

"Our events were based on teamwork and a cooperative learning atmosphere," he said. "To have success, they had to work as a team."

Palace said the activities turned out to be "fun stuff" for everyone involved.

"Everything was fun," he said. "We stressed working together and having fun."

He commended the efforts of approximately 80 parents at the elementary school, who worked to make sure everything ran smoothly.

"We couldn't have done it without them," Palace said.

SEARCHES AND SEIZURES

According to the Fourth Amendment of the U.S. Constitution, "the right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers and effects, against unreasonable search and seizure, shall not be violated, and no warrants shall issue, but upon cause, supported by oath and affirmation, and particularly describing the place to be searched, and the persons or things to be seized." Thus, all U.S. citizens have the right to privacy and security in their homes, their persons, and their properties against unwarranted searches or intrusions by government officials. If an unlawful search should uncover incriminating evidence or illegal property, it does not make the unlawful search

The barnyard takes a day off from school

I thought there was no chance we would have a day of school cancelled this year. After March, the prospects for a major snowstorm looked grim. Ice -- what we really needed -- was even less believable. So we had to be content with a full school year. Well, full plus the three days built in to make up for the assumed snow days.

So when the school had no power thanks to a well-placed storm last Tuesday, we knew the schedule could afford a cancellation.

The power was off before school even started. Aside from most of the lights in the halls being off, the first thing I noticed was that the clocks were out. We've got digital clocks in the high school -- and I am thankful for that every day -- so when the power goes out, there're no way to know what time it is. Unless, of course, you have a watch, but even if you do, it doesn't show the official time on which the entire school operates. Your watch can't ring the bells, either.

What were we to do? We went to our first hour classes when it seemed like it was about time for school to begin, but what was supposed to happen there? Should we stay in our classrooms, or could we go home?

Some of the classrooms were less than hospitable. Several of them have no windows, in which case a power outage brings complete darkness. And none of the rooms were free from the mounting heat: the air conditioning obviously wasn't running, and our windows are notorious for not having the capability to be opened. It became pretty clear that the building was built for electricity.

We could all smell an impending cancellation. Between that hope and the darkness and the heat, things started to get a little crazy. If we put as much effort into the schoolwork as we did trying to escape a day of school, we'd all be honor roll students. We all were desperate to know if we could legitimately leave, and answers weren't immediately obvious. I would say the school looked like a zoo with all of us running around, but "zoo" would indicate organized captivity and tourists with cameras. It was more like a farm with a hole in the fence, and chickens, sheep, pigs, and the like were scattering every which way and grunting, clucking, and bleating as they went.

Kevin Kosbab

The farmer was not pleased. Initially, the official word was that we could go home if we had a ride. Before I could get out, though, official word had changed, or, at least, was different on the other side of the building. It continued changing.

A glance outside showed that many had already left, taking advantage of favorable official words or just disregarding the unfavorable ones. But plenty of livestock continued waddling around in the building. Would we ever know, once and for all, if school was actually going to be cancelled? There was no power and only half the students -- was it even possible to have a normal school day?

It seemed that we were waiting to cancel until the buses finished dropping off the elementary students and could return to the high school. Until they came, the chaos was sure to ensue.

It might not have been so chaotic if we had had a single Voice of Reason and Direction giving the commands. I'm not saying we need a military commander roaming the halls on a tank and telling us with a megaphone, "Stay where you are. This is not a drill. Crews will arrive shortly to direct you to power outage refugee camps."

But a plan would have helped -- something that could have been decided upon and distributed effectively so we wouldn't have to rely on hearsay, differing opinions and understandings, and incomplete information.

Granted, the power went off at the worst possible time. My understanding is that it happened just as the buses were dropping students off at the high school. It was too late to send us home immediately, and it took time to make sure everything was happening safely, of course.

And if the cancellation had been quick, I wouldn't have gotten the chance to hear the "Mission: Impossible" theme song in my head as I swung from the ceilings, entered complex encryption codes, and crawled through the ventilation shafts that would lead out of school on our only snow day -- in June.

City enhancement plans

toric buildings councilman Dave Savage said.

Savage, who heads the enhancement sub committee said, "Our focus was on preservation of the historic integrity of the downtown while making improvement recommendations that were practical, easy to maintain, and which would provide some measure of traffic calming."

Other members of the subcommittee include Jennifer Radcliff, Susan Basinger and Gary Gavulic.

As part of the implementation of the Hyett Palma "Downtown Action Agenda 2000" the subcommittee, working with the Clarkston Downtown Partnership, asked preservation architect Gary Cooper of Ann Arbor-based Cooper Design Inc. to provide input for the subcommittee's consideration prior to final recommendations being presented.

Main Street will also be resurfaced with cross walks designated in different materials designed to slow down traffic while providing an identifiable walk way for pedestrians. Outdoor watering faucets will also be installed for watering plants and flowers.

Schools project $53.8 million budget next year

members may have to adjust their thinking with regard to the district's finances, and some programs and purchases will have to be delayed.

"We've had a lot of staff members who've never seen bad financial times," Kahler said.

Among the implications of proposed cost containment measures, according to Kahler, are that delays may result in the areas of projects/curriculum adoption, technology replacement/upgrades, and equipment/vehicle replacement.

In addition, he said that each purchase in the district will be more carefully scrutinized, and projects will be prioritized according to the safety needs of the students and staff.

"We need to gradually move to a different philosophy," Kahler said.

Dr. Al Roberts, superintendent of Clarkston Community Schools, said that the timing may be right to evaluate the curriculum as it relates to the budget.

"This would be a great year, from a budget sense and an educational sense, to take a step back, evaluate the curriculum, and then move forward," Roberts said.

Kahler commented that any budget reductions implemented this year are expected to be short-term in nature, with long-term issues being addressed by the administration and board during the upcoming fiscal year.

Another meeting of the Clarkston school board will be held this coming Monday, June 26, at 6:30 p.m. in the district's administrative offices, located at 6389 Clarkston Road.

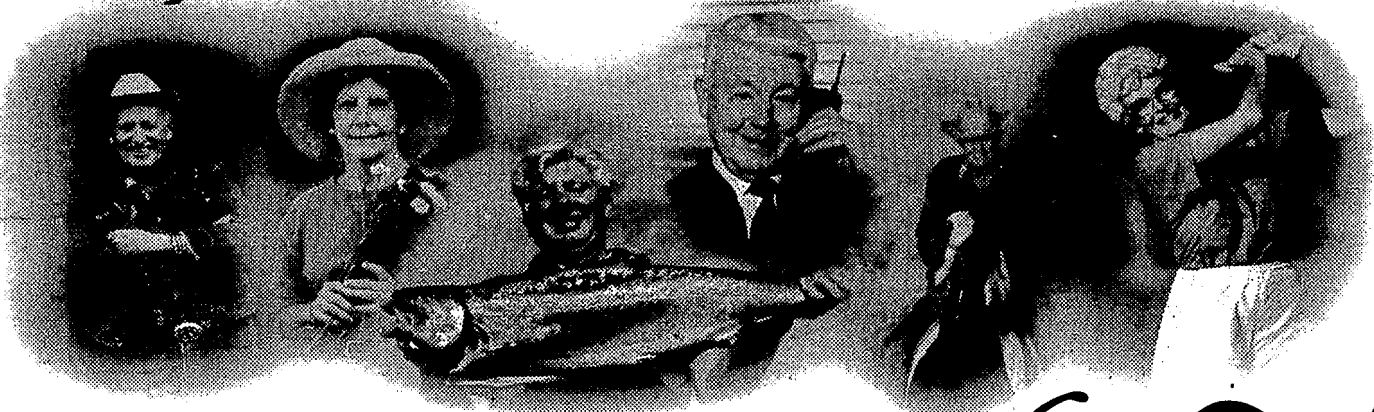

At that meeting, approval of a budget amendment for the 1999-2000 school year, as well as approval of the 2000-01 budget, is slated to be on the agenda.

In addition, a dialogue session regarding facilities, construction, and land use in the district will be held at that meeting.

If no two people are alike... why should their funerals be?

They shouldn't, at least we don't think so. To be truly memorable, a service should reflect the tastes and preferences of the person who has died. Which is why we believe in offering a boundless variety of service options. You can even add your own personal touch. On sale now: Musical memories of good times at CHS

The long-awaited Wolves Pack cd, "Halftime Favorites" hit stores, er, one store, recently. It's on sale at Village Apparel and Gifts (formerly Coach's Corner), at 12 Main St. in downtown Clarkston.

It's quite a bargain, at only $10 for 25 tracks. The selections include the CHS Fight Song, Let's Go Blue, USC, Louie Louie, Eye of the Tiger and more.

All proceeds go to the Wolves Pack group, after expenses are paid, said student director Blake Coe.

The cd will also be on sale at the 4th of July Parade in downtown Clarkston, which begins at 10 a.m.

Look for the tell-tale blue and gold cd label for the "Halftime Favorites."

Finding the perfect apartment is not a mission impossible

A breakdown of Clarkston's five largest apartment complexes

BY ED DAVIS

Clarkston News Staff Writer

Graduating can bring about several changes in one's life. For some, just starting out, part of that transition includes finding that first apartment. While it's no joy to have to move, it's not as overwhelming as it may seem. Here is my 'apartment survival guide' for people trying to find that perfect place to call home for the first time, right here in Clarkston.

Location and cost — I'll be honest, if you're going to live in Clarkston, you're going to pay some pretty high prices for apartments around here, but it's not any more expensive than some other parts of Oakland County.

Out of the five apartment complexes I looked at, one bedrooms begin at $625 and two bedrooms can go well over $1,000. Obviously, the cheapest way to make rent easier to afford is to get a roommate. Not only will rent be cut in half, but so will the groceries, electric, gas, cable, internet fees and phone.

Decorating — You're not living at home or in college any more. Be it for better or for worse, you've landed that job that pushes you out of the 'nest' and out into the 'real world.' This change is often accompanied by several emotions including fear, eagerness, happiness, sorrow and uncertainty. However, you now have the opportunity to decorate your apartment the way you want in and live by your rules.

While everybody's decorative ideas are different, one common bond that most young people share who are just starting out is that money is hard to come by.

One glance through the furniture ads in Sunday's paper and you'll quickly discover that new furniture isn't cheap. Don't buy new furniture. Instead, see if you can get hand-me-downs from parents, or head to garage sales.

You're bound to find something that will serve its purpose just fine.

If your heart is set on picking up a new piece or two, head to clearance cen-

Roaring with excitement

Five year old Clarkston girl featured in new Detroit Lions ad campaign

BY ED DAVIS

Clarkston News Staff Writer

It's with great anticipation that the Clarkston family of Ken, Tonya, Kurtis and Chelsea Beetham anxiously await another Detroit Lions football season.

Chelsea, five, was chosen to take part in a new Detroit Lions advertisement campaign called, 'Home is where the fans are.'

The ad campaign was headed by Deanne Forbes of Day-Forbes LLC. Chelsea was chosen at random — well sort of. Forbes said the ad campaign wanted to target specific demographic groups. A five year old girl was one type of person they were looking for — enter Chelsea.

"Those people aren't actors. They're supporters of the team and they stick with the team through thick and thin," Forbes said.

Season ticket holders were selected by Jennifer Manvo and before the Clarkston family knew it, the smiling face of the five year old was posted on a billboard at the corner of the Lodge and Livernois. There, motorists will see Chelsea smiling alongside new Lions running back James Stewart.

"This campaign is really all about the fans and it's inspired by the players. The players are touched by the fans who come out and see every game. This is what it's all about," Forbes said.

"This is only the second year we've had the season tickets so to have this happen was a real surprise," Ken said.

The Beethams sit in the family fun zone, which is located in the corner of the Silverdome's lower bowl. They've been avid Lions fans for several years.

Kurtis, 10, said his favorite Lions are Batch and receiver Herman Moore. Ken and Tonya both said

Pictured above are Lions season ticket holders the Beethams of Clarkston. In front are Chelsea, five and Kurtis 10. In back are their parents Tonya and Ken.

Moore is their favorite player on the team.

Like most Lions fans, the Beethams are anxious for the season to begin, and realize that how the Lions do this season largely rests on the injury to Charlie Batch.

However, Kurtis is confident in the Lions.

"I think they'll make the playoffs this year," he said.

Tonya wasn't quite as confident.

"They'll do okay, probably 8-8," she said.

Ken thinks the Lions will fare one game better.

"I think they'll go 9-7 behind Tampa (in the division). Washington is the team to beat," he said.

As much as the Lions are inconsistent, at least the Beethams always have a good time at the games.

"Chelsea likes to cheer when everybody else does. It's a long time for a five year old, but we all enjoy it," Tonya said.

Kurtis' favorite part about attending the games is typical of any 10 year old.

"I like the food and souvenirs best," he said.

The Beethams have picked up a fair amount of Lions memorabilia over the years. The old Honolulu blue and gray will be found on their collection of jerseys, key chains and stuffed animals — all in support of the Lions.

The Lions home season begins Sunday, Sept. 10 against Washington at 4:15 p.m. Tickets and mini ticket packages can be purchased by calling (248) 972-3564. Season tickets are available until Aug. 4. Mini Plan A covers the first four home games of the season and Plan B gives fans the final four games of the season. Plan A tickets can be purchased until Sept. 10 and Plan B tickets can be purchased until Nov. 5. Fans are advised to call and make deposits early as the sooner they get their deposits in, the better their seats will be.

Tigers off to great start this season in youth baseball

BY ED DAVIS

Clarkston News Staff Writer

They don't play at Comerica Park. They don't have million dollar contracts, endorsement deals or agents. But their record is better than the Detroit Tigers and some would argue that they're more fun to watch.

They're the Tigers of Independence Township Parks and Recreation 9 and 10 year old division. The Tigers are coached by Jim Mastromatteo of Clarkston and have started the season by posting a 4-1 record.

The Tigers practice on the 'Field of Dreams' which is actually the backyard of Mastromatteo's house, a three acre lot located on Strawberry Lane, right off M-15.

"They're great kids and all we want to do is stress old fashioned ideals and try to teach basic, fundamental baseball. We do our best to show respect to everybody along the way," Mastromatteo said.

The Tigers assistant coach is Harold Donovan.

Planning a bachelor party is no easy task

I'm getting married. Yup, believe it or not, me, the guy who looks like he's 17 and gets asked what class I'm supposed to be in when I visit Clarkston High School, is tying the knot September 16.

My fiancée, Andrea Ushman is a 1994 Clarkston graduate. My future father-in-law is Gary Ushman, who practiced dentistry in this town for years. He and his wife Judy moved to Florida, but will be living in Waterford over the summer months.

Like all couples who are making wedding plans, Andrea and I have been busy with all the usual vendors including the photographer, florist, DJ and reception hall. Add into the mix the church, marriage counseling sessions, gift registry and making out the guest list and you can guess how quickly our slim amount of spare time is spent. While I've been involved in all those decisions, Andrea has done more of the work. However, there's one area she needn't touch on — the bachelor party.

With around 15 guys coming to enjoy the day, a fair amount of planning had to go into the event. My best man will be coming all the way from the Chicago. Other people will be making the trip from Ann Arbor and Mt. Pleasant.

I began sending e-mails and calling people back in May. However, even in this day of "instant communication" thanks to the internet, we as 15 college educated young men couldn't pull it together. My buds either failed to check their e-mail, or didn't return calls. In any event, the party simply wasn't coming together as planned.

Enter the stripper.

Perhaps nothing causes as much panic or reason to worry for a bride-to-be as a bachelor party.

Andrea and I had a discussion a while back which set up a key rule for the event — no strippers, well sort of.

Naked women will be a part of my bachelor party. Make no mistake about it. However, Andrea and I have agreed that a stripper will not be allowed to dance for my friends and I in the privacy of one of our homes.

Instead, we'll be making a trip to Windsor to well, see the sights if you will.

We'll be kicking off the afternoon at Comerica Park to see the Tigers play the Oakland A's. After that we'll head to Canada, enjoy plenty of the "domestic" beer of choice, Labatt's Blue, and do our fair share of gambling. After that, we'll proceed to one of Windsor's "clubs."

After verifying the plans with all my friends, everyone, as I'm sure most women would expect, gave prompt response and agreement for the day's activities.

So while Andrea agonizes over what dish patterns and bed sheets she wants to register for, I'll be out with my buds from high school and college enjoying one last night of "bachelor freedom."

It just goes to show that even though the internet has sped up communication and made the world a smaller place, there's nothing quite like naked women, baseball and cold beer to bring a group of guys together in hurry.

The Tigers may win the game. They may lose the game, and frankly I don't care. But one thing's for sure. If it's tied I highly doubt we'll stick around for any extra innings. Windsor can be a lot of fun this time of year.

Apartments

ters or find items with cosmetic defects in them. A small scratch on that coffee or end table may make Martha Stewart cringe, but it should save you some serious cash.

Remember I only researched Clarkston's five biggest apartment complexes. Rooms for rent, houses for rent and studio apartments can be cheaper, but they're also harder to come by. A weekly glance through our Classifieds can help you find that less expensive apartment.

Pets — If you have a pet your selection is immediately limited. Most apartment complexes are okay with cats, and some even allow up to two cats per apartment. Dogs are a different story. Three of the five apartment complexes allowed dogs, but there are weight restrictions on how big dogs can be. Smaller dogs are better suited for apartments, and unless Fido can have a good size yard to run in, it's not really fair to have him cooped up in a small apartment all day, especially if Fido is a dog that requires lots of exercise.

Keep in mind that if you do have a pet, you'll also have to pay an additional security deposit, some of which is not refundable. Monthly rents can increase because of pet ownership. So if money is especially tight, say good-bye to man's best friend.

Features — Be careful here. A one bedroom apartment may be $100 cheaper than one with the same square footage that has vaulted ceilings, a washer and dryer and a fireplace. While those options are nice to have, they're not necessary when you're just starting out. Having to run to the laundromat with a pocket full of quarters can get old in a hurry, but that will make weekend trips to mom and dad's house all the better. Free laundry - and you thought it ended when you got out on your own!

Security deposits — All the complexes will require a security deposit. They vary in price, but can be as high as one month's rent. Generally, if you treat your apartment well and don't do 'college like' damage to it, you should be able to get your security deposit back. Steam cleaning your carpet when you leave will help get some of that deposit back. Generally speaking, if you're a decent tenant, your landlord should take care, and respect you.
